Thursday Proved To Be One Of Fair's Biggest Days

CROWDS SURGE ABOUT GROUNDS TILL LATE HOUR

DERBY DRAWS BIG

Day Is Reported As One Of Most Perfect For All Exhibits

Thursday was one of the biggest days of the Texas-Oklahoma fair, with the grounds crowded from early morning to late at night. Many took advantage of the clearing skies to attend the races and other attractions, coming here from points in Oklahoma and Texas as well as from the Wichita Falls territory.

The J. I. Staley derby and the five other races that made up the speed program at the T-O track were the special features of the day, and the classic event drew an unusual amount of attention, the grandstand being crowded almost to capacity by race fans. The races proved to be probably the best of the week, although the afternoons' program was marred by a bad spill in the Staley derby that injured one jockey and unhorsed another, and several of the races proved to unusually spectacular and exciting.

The skies cleared in the early morning, after a day of rain, and the day became a perfect one for the fair, being neither too warm nor rainy. The number of visitors during the afternoon and evening steadily increased and from 1 o'clock until 11:30 a steady stream of automobiles passed through the gates, while many others, unwilling to wait in line, found places outside, walking into the grounds. While no definite estimate of the number of visitors could be made it was evident that the crowd was unusually large.

The special street car line built to the gates of the fair grounds by the Wichita Falls Traction company, proved of value to the crowds yesterday, the cars carrying hundreds of visitors to the fair during the day. With special cars stopping at the entrance every ten minutes even these were found insufficient, and trailers were added to care for the numbers. The crowd did not interfere with the schedule of the cars, however, and 10-minute service was maintained throughout the day.

The midway, featuring Wortham's shows, was popular and a record attendance at all concessions was reported. The sale of hamburgers, sandwiches and drinks went over the high water mark during the day, and operators of special concessions stated that their businesses would be a financial success.

The Hippodrome show in front of the grand stand in the afternoon and at night proved popular, and was featured with a special and new fireworks exhibition. The regular acts, with Al Sweet's Singing and Military band and the Sax-o-tet in several numbers, augmented by the flying trapeze and clown acts, were even better than usual, with some new stunts at each show.

The fireworks exhibition proved good, with many new features and an entirely different program of display. Using the flares and lighting arrangements to enact some clever designs, the artists of the fireworks camp were able to give an unusually attractive and interesting exhibition. They declare that for the remainder of the fair the program will be changed nightly.

The Walters, Oklahoma, Boys band which arrived in the morning and played at the grandstand in the afternoon was an added feature The band was composed entirely of boys from the age of eight to 16 years of age, all accomplished musicians, and was of 30 pieces. The boys, with headdress to identify them, came to the fair in a body as the guests of the fair association and during the day visited all the shows and exhibits. They played in front of the grandstand before the regular program of the afternoon and inside during the races alternated with Al Sweets band men as a special number on the program.

The program for today is varied, with a football game between Simmons college and Austin college as the feature event of the afternoon, with the races not on the bill. The regular race schedule will be run Saturday.

RIOT FOLLOWS TITLE BOUT IN GEORGIA CITY

Referee Says Crowd Forced Him to Declare Stribling Winner

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 4.—The titular fight between W. L. "Young" Stribling, challenger, and Mike McTigue, light heavyweight champion, here this afternoon, was officially called a draw, three hours after the fighters left the ring, by Harry Ertle, of Jersey City, N. J., the referee.

Ertle issued a statement declaring he was forced to award the fight to Stribling because he was being intimidated by angry spectators.

The 10-round fight was marked by boxing, hugging, slugging and rioting, the latter on the part of the spectators. Referee Ertle, first declared the fight a draw, but later, after a stormy scene, he held up Stribling's hand and announced him the winner.

Stribling, who hails from Macon, Ga., and who is a high school student, won the fight after eight rounds of fighting, newspaper men agreed, all by himself. In one round McTigue showed life and was awarded another round in which spectators said he actually showed fight.

In the remaining eight rounds Referee Ertle had to use more than ordinary means of physical force to separate McTigue and the challenger in the clinches. As the youthful Stribling would wade into the Irishman, his two arms were grabbed and they would wrestle over the ring. At the end of two of the rounds the men were tightly clinched when the gong rang and the referee had difficulty in breaking the clinch to send the men to their corners.

The fight program was put on before some 7,000 spectators at the Driving park arena after a stormy scene had been enacted in the town district. An effort to call off the fight was made by McTigue, who developed a pain in his left thumb which doctors early tonight said was caused by an imperfect healing of an old fracture.

When it was officially announced that the fight was off, police protection had to be sought for McTigue. He was prevailed upon to fight by leading citizens of this city who were responsible for the matchmaking and drawing to this city thousands of persons from many southern states. Placards were circulated with McTigue's name printed on yellow paper. Automobiles were also decorated in yellow cloth with signs tacked on the rear heralding that a light heavyweight champion of the world was a victim of cold feet.

At the end of the tenth round the men continued to fight, apparently not hearing the bell. They were separated and Stribling retreated into a neutral corner. Ertle made a motion

Sold Sweet Wine With Recipe, Now In Dallas Jail

By The Associated Press.

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 4.—J. M. Langford of New York City, representative in Texas of an eastern beverage manufacturing concern, was charged with conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law today.

Complaint was filed before R. V. Davidson, United States commissioner by Allen Bailey, federal prohibition inspector. Bailey arested Langford and seized a quantity of papers, including a letter from an official of the company.

The officers allege Langford was selling an unfermented grape juice to individuals in five, 10 and 15 gallon casks and giving them directions for bringing the grape juice to an alcoholic strength of approximately 12 per cent.

Langford told officers he brought from New York to Galveston a quart bottle of wine which tested about 12 per cent and that he gave prospective customers tastes of the wine, telling them that by using certain ingredients the grape juice sold by him would become the same as the sample.

He said that within four days he sold at Galveston 135 gallons of the grape juice on the strength of sample sips from his bottle.

Langford said he did not know he was violating the national prohibition law when he took orders for the grape juice.

The letter seized by the federal officers told Langford to hustle for a $1,000 bonus offered him, providing his sales totaled a certain amount by the first of the year.

Arraignment of Langford for the purpose of making bond will be held tomorrow morning.

Actress, Jilted, Now Accuses Chevalier Of Fleecing Her

Katherine Kaelred and, inset, Capt. Umberto Gualtiero Bellini Delle Stelle

By Central Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Why is it so often the case that when Dan Cupid turns his back on someone and leaves him stranded in the highway of love that unkind fate comes along in a gold-tired auto and runs all over the victim.

The case of Miss Katherine Kaelred, actress wife of J. Henry Benrimo, co-author of "The Yellow Jacket" is the reason for this query. Miss Kaelred has just had Capt. Umberto Gualtiero Bellini Delle Stelle arrested on a charge of larceny. The court petition mentions only monetary larceny. But Miss Kaelred tells a tale of heart larceny in reciting her story.

Miss Kaelred says that at one time she was engaged to Capt. Bellini, a chevalier of the royal Italian army. They planned to live in her New York apartment. Then she went abroad. But before she went she asserts, she gave him possession of the apartment, the power of attorney in handling the repairing and redecorating of it and about $6,000 in money. She charges that the captain suddenly married Miss Eugena Patterson, Chicago girl, while Miss Kaelred was abroad and hasn't settled his financial affairs with the latter as yet.

Capt. Bellini, his friends say, believed he had received a bill of sale for the house.

Miss Kaelred, an Australian, once played the lead for William Farnum in "The Renegade." In 1914 she played the role of Potiphar's wife in "Joseph and His Brethren." Three years ago she appeared in "Mamma's Affairs."

"WAR" FACTIONS TRANSFER FRAY TO THE COURTS

Military Rule Is Now Nothing More Than Empty Name

WALTON GIRDING UP

Terrific Political Campaign Is Now Predicted By Blake

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla, Oct. 4. The mad rush of the last few days momentarily stopped, Oklahoma tonight took stock of her position and conjectured as to the future.

With the court battle between Governor J. C. Walton and members of the Oklahoma house of representatives altered until next Tuesday, citizens whose attention has been fastened on the spectacular contest between the executive and legislative branches of the state government, turned to matters that had been for a time in the background and realized that martial law under which they have lived for nearly three weeks has become military rule virtually in name only.

In Oklahoma City, the military court that was convened to delve into alleged lawlessness of the Ku klux klan not only has been disbanded, but the grip of the military has been removed from the city in every respect. Military headquarters at a downtown hotel have been abandoned and persons appearing on the streets after midnight no longer need passes signed by the commander of the forces of occupation. There are no patrols to challenge the late wayfarers.

Likewise in Tulsa, the sole remaining activity of the military is the court of inquiry. This still is in session but guards are nowhere else to be seen. Inauthoratative quarters it was declared that less than a dozen troopers now are on duty in Tulsa.

Although Governor Walton declined today to reveal his plans, followers of the situation inclined in the belief that the military regime rapidly is drawing to a close.

It is known that the executive is girding himself for the supreme effort of his political career.

Pointing to the executives' statement last night referring to the election which he has called for December sixth to re-submit, a constitutional amendment empowering the legislature to convene at its own call as an impeachment body, in which he declared that in the next two months "will be fought the most historic political battle in history," observers tonight prophesied that the entire removal of martial law would be one of the governor's first moves to increase his political strength.

Governor Walton himself gave basis for this conjecture when he declared that no cases of mob violence in the state had been reported for two weeks, indicating, he believed, the situation well in hand.

Today Aldrich Blake, the executive counsellor, announced that plans already are under way to enroll Walton supporters and anti-ku klux klan voters in a definite organization. Cards will be mailed throughout the state within the next few days, he said, bearing the words: "Enroll now, show your colors. We are going to see the most terrific campaign in the state's history," Blake declared.

Resignations Of Harvey and Child Are Now Accepted

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The resignation of Ambassador Harvey at London and Child at Rome, submitted for private reasons and under agreements reached with the Harding administration, have been accepted, marking the first big change in the American diplomatic service since President Coolidge took office.

Ambassador Harvey will quit his post at the first of the year. Ambassador Child, who has left or is about to leave Rome for the United States, will not go back. None of the other American ambassodors nor ministers, the state department said, in making the announcement, has any similar agreements limiting his term of service so far as is known.

The only explanation of the two resignations given in official quarters, is that in both cases the ambassadors had a few months ago reached agreements with President Harding as to the length of time they coud continue at their posts. Whether they have deferred their retirements because of President Harding's death until President Coolidge should feel that they could be spared, was not disclosed. In both cases, there have been intimations, however, that the ambassadors were finding their positions unduly burdensome in a field way and that they felt they must give attention to their personal affairs.

There was no official word available tonight as to successors President Coolidge might send to fill the posts. At the state department, it was not admitted that any steps had ye been taken to sound out the two governments as to suitability of appointees.

THIS FORD IS NOW IN WRONG

Damon and Pythias, not living in the days of automobiles could not have gotten into the difficulty two high school boys did Thursday.

One of the boys owned a Ford. Coming from the school Thursday noon his car was gone. The police were notified and Motor Cop Griffin went in search of the missing car. The officer found the car in the hands of another high school boy a few minutes later.

The boy was arrested and placed in city jail. The owner of the car found out his best friend was in jail and had only borrowed his car. When the car owner got back his car he went to get some friends to go the bond of the boy in jail. In his haste Motorcop Griffin picked him up for speeding. The friends met at the city hall.

"Next time I borrow your car I'll tell you about it," the borrower assured his friend as both made bond.

NO WINNER FOR RACING CLASSIC

Bad Spill Breaks Up Heat —Will Be Run Over On Saturday

The Staley derby, classic racing event of the Texas-Oklahoma fair, was run yesterday afternoon with no winner declared, due to contentious which arose over a spill which disqualified the horses crossing the tape first and third. Nohow, with Jockey B. Norton up, was the only entrant not affected and was declared winner of second place.

The trouble and squabble in front of the judges' stand resulted from a spill in which Harp of the North, and Whippet, fell at the third turn of the first lap. Whippet was leading the field by a half length, with Jolly Cephas second and Brazos and Nohow a nose behind, when, as the horses made the turn, Whippet fell. Jockey B. Maskrid being thrown over the rail. Harp of the North also fell, and Jockey E. Barham luckily rolled from under the hoofs of the horses uninjured. In the spill Maskrid sustained a badly sprained knee. Jolly Cephas crossed the line first, with Nohow second and Brazos third.

The first and third money was held by the track, and will be added to a $500 special purse as the stake of a second derby race Saturday afternoon, at which time the same horses and riders will run. Nohow was given second money.

Recruit, running his first race with C. McCorkle up, took the first race in easy style, winning from a field of four with time of 59 4-5 seconds for five furlongs. Deertrail, E. Barnes up, was second a length behind, and Ringleader, a favorite, was third, Zander up.

The worst upset of the day was in the second race when Back Bay, at the lowest odds, won by a length, over a field of seven fast mounts. Back Bay has lost three races, without finishing in the money, and Agree to Certain Point, Certain Point failed to place in the five furlong race, and Jockey Barnes had little trouble in taking a win. Granny Lee, the favorite, with Jockey Barham up, was second, and Miss Speares, ridden by A. Maskrid, third. Time was 1:02 4-5.

The third event was one of the best of the day, with seven of the fastest horses entered, and Maggie May took first money, with Jockey B. Maskrid up. Keno, with B. Norton up was second, and A. Maskrid rode Budweiser into third place, with Dodger, a favorite, failing to get in the money.

Paula proved easily the fastest horse in the fifth race, taking a lead at the start and holding it and gaining the entire mile, winning by several lengths with time of 1:52 2-5 seconds. H. Zander was up. Tough and Tight, with C. McCorkle up, was second and Spearlene third. All Bright, easily the favorite, failed to get in the money.

B. Maskrid rode Moonwinks to an easy win in the last event, making a half mile five lengths ahead of Princess Signal, second. B. Norton rode Princess Signal, A1, with J. Cowan up, was third.

The races were witnessed by the largest crowd of the fair, with approximately 4,000 spectators in the stands. The track was in much better shape than Wednesday, and although heavy in spots, had dried considerably, allowing fast work. The track has been worked and it is expected that it will be in perfect shape for the races Saturday.

MINISTER'S CAR RUNS DOWN GIRL

Crossing the street near her home on Grant street early last night Mildred Price, about 9 years old, was run into by a Ford said to have been driven by a local minister and was so severely bruised she was rushed to the General hospital where it was found her condition was not serious.

The child was said to have come from behind a larger car and stepped in front of the Ford which struck her. It was thought at first her skull was fractured but this proved untrue.

Motorcycle Officer Griffin was near the scene of the accident and said it was unavoidable.

HOLDING AT BAY SMALL ARMY IN PRISON BATTLE

Rifles, Machine Guns And Gas Fail to Dislodge Desperadoes

THIRD GUARD DEAD

Warden Threatens to Dynamite Building to Capture Trio

By The Associated Press.

PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 4.—A detail of 25 national guardsmen from a company at Mayfield, was ordered to re-inforce the machine gun troop from Hopkinsville on riot duty at the western Kentucky state penitentiary at Eddyville by Gov. Edwin P. Morrow late tonight.

By The Associated Press.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—Rifles and machine guns which had been pouring a hail of bullets into the mess hall of the state penitentiary here, where three convicts have been barricaded since a dash for liberty Wednesday morning in which three guards were killed, were silenced soon after dark tonight when besiegers who ventured from cover, were not fired upon by the tenants of the improvised fortress.

Opinion was that the desperadoes were dead or desperately wounded. In view, however, of the possibility that the convicts with-held their fire to conserve a small stock of ammunition for a last desperate stand when the attackers should enter the building, it practically had been determined to maintain a guard about the place tonight and wait daybreak for further action.

That one at least of the barricaded building's defenders was, alive was proved soon after firing ceased when a man attempted to leave by the main doorway. Guards opened fire and the man disappeared back into the darkened building.

A ring of acetylene torches again was placed about the mess hall tonight and by the flickering light could be seen gaping holes in the foot-thick brick walls on the north and west side of the building.

Amazement was expressed by some observers that the defenders could have escaped death from the rain of steel jacketed bullets sent smashing into the building today, but prison officials were said to have considered it possible that the trio found safety by taking refuge in the heavy brick and iron ovens of the prison kitchen, located on the ground floor of the mess hall.

A supply of dynamite has been obtained and it was indicated tonight, that, if other efforts to dislodge the defenders fail, an attempt may be to sap and dynamite the building.

Third Death.

Death from wounds today brought to three the number of prison guards slain by the desperadoes in their dash for freedom early Wednesday. Failing to get clear of the prison grounds, the desperate trio, Monte Walters, Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, took cover in the mess hall and since have held at bay prison guards, members of troops, national guard machine gun company from Hopkinsville, and citizens marksmen who volunteered their aid.

A terse message from Gov. Edwin P. Morrow to Warden John Chilton late today directed that the desperadoes be routed "if it takes every man in the state and every dollar in the treasury."

"We are going to get them if we have to raze the building to do so," was Warden Chilton's comment on the governor's message.

Two national guardsmen, under protection of improvised metal shields, were able to enter the ground floor of the two-story mess hall today and release teargas bombs. A shift of wind drove the gas back upon the attackers and the two men, affected by the gas, were forced to abandon the attempt to dislodge the convicts.

BOY BAND NOW AT FAIRGROUNDS

Announcing their arrival with Sousa's "America's Triumph," the boys' band of Walters, Oklahoma, made its appearance at the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition Thursday.

The boys' band is made up of 35 members between the ages of nine and 16 years. The band was organized eight months ago with E. L. Nichols of Pilot Point director.

"Not all of he members of the band could come," said the director "for some of them are too small.

"Because of the growing of the boys we find it is impossible to keep them fitted in uniforms, Mr. Nichols said, "and no attempt is made to get them new."

Clothes For Milady—Gown of Blue, Fur Coat, Negligee

A frock and negligee of blue and a luxurious wrappy fur coat—what more could milady ask for a day's shopping? The gown of blue twill is rather more elaborate than many, having an unusual sleeve, a unique cape collar laced and being heavily braided. It has the new, wide neckline.

The frock is one of the few shown this season that has a normal waistline. The blouse is braided. The top of the sleeves and cuffs are cut in one piece with an under part gathered on just below the elbow. The wrist is close fitting and has a deep tab hanging from it. The sleeve proper and tab are also braided. A deep, square collar slit almost to the neck and laced near the bottom is a unique feature of the frock.

The skirt has a slight fullness on each hip and has heavily braided panels down the sides.

Not much comment is need on the luxurious moleskin coat shown on the right. It is one of those alluringly wrappy things, has an uneven hem and wide collar and cuffs of viataka squirrel.

A charming negligee for each feminine member of the household" should be in every home." The one pictured is a brocade of the palest blue. Narrow pleated ruffles trim the wide sleeves and encircle the neck running down to the fastening.

It is a pattern that would lend itself well to other materials than the one shown. Corduroy, which is used for such fascinating robes and in such sumptuous colors would be lovely made in this pattern. The ruffles could be pleated silk ribbon.

Just mention this to your husbands and brothers as a gentle and timely hint for the not too far distant holiday season.

NAME CURES IN OIL POLLUTION

Use of Apparatus, and Co-Operation Recommended By Commission

By RASCOM N. TIMMONS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Local Texas oil pollution problems were set out today by the department of the interior in a statement amplifying a general statement for the entire Atlantic and Gulf coast region, which was made public last week.

Pollution of these costal waters by petroleum oils constitute a serious problem at bathing beaches and a menace to marine and acquatic life.

Conditions in Houston, Galveston, Texas City, Port Arthur, Beaumont, and other ports can be eventually eliminated, so far as technical factors are concerned, through continued co-operation of the parties concerned, the report said.

The findings were prepared by a committee of representatives of the bureau of mines of the department of the interior, the American Petroleum institute and the American Steamship Owner's association, just made public. Remedial measures studied by the committee include oil-water separating devices on oil-burning ships and tankers, the providing of facilities in harbors for the collection and proper disposal of oil wastes, and the use of apparatus for handling oil water wastes from land plants.

The committee undertook the investigation after the acceptance by the state department of an offer on the part of the bureau of mines to undertake a study of the essentially technical aspects of the problem of pollution of navigable waters by oil, in connection with the work of the interdepartmental committee on the pollution of navigable waters, which had been charged with studying questions prepatory to the calling of a conference of maritime powers in conformity with a resolution passed by the 67th congress. F. W. Lane, petroleum chemist of the bureau of mines, is chairman of the committee conducting the investigation, the other members being A. D. Bauer of the bureau of mines; H. F. Fisher of the American Petroleum institute; P. N. Haring of the Steamship Owners association; and Charles Crotty, assistant director of the port of Houston, was thanked for valuable aid rendered. The committee made a first-hand inspection of conditions at most of the important harbors on the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts. A large number of industrial plants were also visited. The preliminary report now made public, deals only with conditions on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

The committee found pollution by oil to be present in some degree in most of the 25 places visited on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. In some localities, it is very serious. Apparently the worst conditions prevailed during the latter part of the war and the period immediately following, and attained the maximum seriousness in 1920 or 1921. Since this time, in nearly all localities visited, officials indicated that an improvement has taken place. In general, these conditions have been most serious in those localities where industrial activity has been greatest. The most seriously affected places seen during the present investigation, are the Schuylkill river in the vicinity of Philadelphia, the Houston ship channel, and Port Arthur, Texas. The last named city is probably the worst oil polluted locality visited by the committee, but even here present conditions are said to be somewhat better than those which formerly existed.

Regarding Texas ports the report said:

Port Arthur: Represents the worst oil pollution conditions at any harbors visited by the committee. Oil companies are skimming oil off waters. Pollution largely due to handling and transfer of oil between ships and land. Refineries are neat and clean but it is believed the separators are being overtaxed. Lumber industry has been driven to Orange, Texas. This port to all practical purposes constitutes a petroleum harbor.

Beaumont: Conditions in this harbor are good. Were bad during 1920. Regulations against oil pollution from ships are rigidly enforced. Some trouble still experienced with city sewers draining industrial section of town. Evidence found near this sewer of considerable recent pollution. Lumber in harbor waters awaiting shipment protected against oil stain by floating timber booms.

Houston Ship channel: Oil pollution conditions are locally regarded as not improving. Relatively low cost and great abundance of oil in this district, together with apparent lack of co-operation on the part of local industries contribute to make this one of the most seriously oil polluted districts investigated by the committee. Refineries have apparently gone further to prevent oil pollution than other industries. Separators used by other industries are of the crudest type with general lack of attention to their operation.

Galveston: Harbor conditions much improved during the last two years, largely as a result of strict enforcement of laws. General spirit of co-operation between masters of vessels, industrial plants and oil terminal operators. Dried and weathered residue on pilling and on large boulders only evidence of previous pollution. Present condition of harbor considered good. Local oyster and fishing industries driven 10 miles down the harbor to West bay. Local pollution attributed to ships and fueling operations and to a minor extent, sewers. Local shipyard, only industry contributing to oil pollution. Practically all ships entering harbor are oil burners. Conditions on beach front still bad, although somewhat better than two years ago. Oil in small globules and lumps still collecting on beach sands, formerly came in large patches. Believed due to ships at sea and to oil fields on Brazos river. Texas City water front conditions, in general, not as clean as at Galveston.

Oil pollution has interferred with bathing at a number of cities where beaches ordinarily draw many visitors from inland. The situation at beaches, however, is improving. The situation at Galveston beaches is described as bad and at Houston, it was said there is no complaint at the beach.

PILOT GOTOFF HERE FOR RACE

BEN GOTOFF.

Ben Gotoff, daring race driver who will be at the wheel of the Miller Special speed car in the races at the Texas-Oklahoma fair Sunday afternoon, is in Wichita Falls and is grooming his car for the speed classic here. His machine, one of the fastest dirt track cars in America, will be entered in three of the speed events and is expected to be one of the fastest in the races.

Gotoff is one of the best known racing drivers in the speed world, and holds a number of track records, including a long list of wins at Huchison, Kansas, St. Louis and Chicago, where he has raced for several seasons.

NEW HENRIETTA CHURCH UNIQUE

Has Unusual Features—Walls Now Going Up

HENRIETTA, Texas, Oct. 4.—The First Christian church which is now being erected in this city, gives promise of being one of the most complete and distinctly unique public buildings in this section of the state. The outside walls are now going up and the building is assuming shape, making an attractive addition to the business and social activities of Henrietta. Outside dimensions are 94x52 feet. Acme mottled faced brick veneer is being placed on the outer walls giving a handsome effect to the exterior plans. Concrete re-inforced piers support the main floor and these extend in columns through to the roof for strength and support to the main roof. Roofing to be galvanized shingles in pleasing effects. The main auditorium of the building will be 50x90 with large balcony and seating capacity of 850. Sunday school rooms and pastor's study are located on the main floor. Entrance to the main floor and auditorium is had from a wide series of concrete steps. One of the most unique features of the entrance is an inclined stairway for old folks. This consists of inclined steps that lead gradually up toward a side entrance to the main auditorium. Basement extends under the entire building and the main room of which will be used for a Sunday school auditorium. Basement also includes ladies' parlor, reception room, kitchenette and individual serving room with capacity for 325 plates. All walls are folding and so arranged that the entire basement can be thrown open into one large reception room. The church officials state that they will tender this as a free and open-house at all times for public gatherings of the various civic and social clubs and societies of the city.

One of the distinctive features of this church will include an elevated baptistry, with plate glass front, so placed that the ceremonies of baptism can be plainly seen from any part of the church room. This is located immediately in the rear of the restrum, and robing rooms for both ladies and gentlemen are located in the rear and convenient to the baptistry. Special arrangements have been made for the men's Bible class rooms, and also for a special study room for the young folks in the Sunday school, including both intermediate and young ladies classes. One room has been set aside for the little tots, who will receive special instruction under the guidance of a competent teacher trained in this particular work.

W. J. Mangum is chairman of the building committee and Carl Olsen chairman of the committee on finances. The various committees in charge of the building arrangements are working hard in a concerted effort to forward construction and to erect an edifice that will be a source of pride both to the Christian church and to the citizenship of Henrietta. It is expected that the church when completed will represent an expenditure of $35,000.00.

CLANCY MAKES BAD BEGINNING

Duesenberg Racer Draws Speed Cop in Hot Pursuit

It is against the state law to speed!

It is against the state law to run with a cut-out open!

It is against the state law to operate an automobile without a license!

It is against the state law to operate a car at night without lights!

Any of the above counts is usually enough to result in a fine in the county court. But when they all come together it is enough to mean anything from a fine to a life term in prison, according to motorcycle officer, Melvin Johnson. And Officer Johnson claims the distinction of being the only man on the force with the record of one arrest embodying all the counts at once! Here is how it happened.

Johnson was sitting along the paved road near the fair grounds last night when he heard a roar that sounded like an airplane flying low. He listened. In a few moments it developed that it was not an airplane, but some sort of vehicle moving along the highway. Nothing was to be seen but along the road the noise grew louder and nearer, until with a roar and a blaze of flame from exhausts, a cut down car passed the cop. It was traveling fast, according to Johnson.

In fact, it was travelling so fast that it took the officer several miles to overtake the car, and then only when it slowed down for a turn. When he waved the car to a stop the grinning driver looked over the side.

"Some race!"

Racing cars don't carry license numbers. Neither are the equipped with mufflers or lights. And they are geared so high that they just naturally can't go slow.

So when Melvin Johnson arrested Paul Clancy, race driver, at the Texas-Oklahoma fair, he learned the truth and Clancy paid no fine. Clancy was transporting his car from the railroad station to the fair grounds where he will run his Duesenberg against several other speed machines Sunday, and he carried a special permit from county officials.

"BLUE TRAVELER" TRIED OUT HERE

The "Trde Blue Traveler," new car put out by the Oakland company, arrived in town yesterday afternoon and accompanied by the city band staged an exhibition of the new four wheel brake feature at Twelfth and Indiana. On a wet pavement which had been specially provided the "Traveler" was driven at a speed of 40 miles an hour and stopped in about 25 feet without skidding or turning. To further display the value of the four-wheel brake, a model with the old two-wheel brake attachment was next driven over the slippery street at 25 miles an hour, skidding and turning entirely around when the brakes were applied.

Driving the "True Blue Traveler" was Tom H. Eleman, junior engineer of the Oakland factory, experimental department, who was accompanied from Tulsa here by J. E. Bayne, publicity man for the Oakland people. Accompanying Eleman when he made the test yesterday were Arthur Huff, local dealer, Walter R. Carver, Jerry Moffitt, Ray Haggard, and police chief George Hodgins. Fire Chief McClure had charge of the street preparations, having lots of water on hand for the event. J. L. McElreath, special Oakland factory representative from Dallas, drove the second car.

This car is one of six sent by the Oakland Motor company on a nation-wide demonstration to introduce the brand new model. Since it left the factory it has been driven more than 3,400 miles over all kinds of roads without an adjustment.

MASONIC REST ROOM POPULAR

The Masonic rest room, an entire hangar set apart by the Masonic bodies of Wichita Falls as a place of rest for those visitors at the Texas-Oklahoma fair who become tired during the day, is one of the most popular places on the fair ground, and scores of visitors find it a pleasant haven from the crowd and heat of the outside during the day.

The rest room is fully equipped with chairs and lounges that make it an attractive place to spend a few moments, and is open to the public at all hours of the day and night. It is in the Muskat temple temporary house hangar, the headquarters of the Wichita Falls Shriners, and has been donated free of charge for the use of visitors during the fair.

FIND MAN HERE WITH THROAT CUT

With his throat slashed and bleeding profusely, Fred Cole was found in the rear of an Ohio street restaurant Thursday morning and immediately rushed to the General Hospital where attendants say he will probably recover from the wound.

Cole was arrested Wednesday by the police department and placed in the city jail where he spent the night on a charge of drunkenness. He was released Thursday morning and a few hours later was found with his throat cut. A butcher knife was found near Cole and supposed to have been the instrument used in making the wound.

Cole has been in poor health three or four years and has been especially despondent lately, the police said yesterday.

MRS. ROWSER DEAD AFTER OPERATION

Mrs. R. L. Rowser of this city who went to Indiana for her health died Wednesday following an operation. Announcement of her death was received here Wednesday night. Mr. Rowser and his children left immediately for Indiana.

Two parade prizes were given; one went to the touring car of E. M. Stallings company, and the other prize went to the Ford coupe entered by the City National bank. First prize of the floats went to the trade float of the Bowie Broom company.

Due to the inclement weather the attendance Thursday was cut down.

The fair will close Saturday. The judging of entries will begin on Friday. A large crowd attended the style show tonight.

HARVEY IS TO RESIGN POST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—Determination of Ambassador Harvey to retire from his post in London about the first of the year was officially disclosed today at the state department. At the same time it was said that Ambassador Child at Rome would not go back to his post after his arrival in the United States within the next few weeks.

It was explained that in both cases the ambassadors were acting in accordance with agreements as to their terms of service reached during the Harding administration. It was indicated that Ambassador Harvey had informed President Harding on the occasion of the ambassador's last visit to Washington of his desire to surrender his post at an early date.

The reasons for the resignation of the ambassadors, it was indicated, were wholly personal and not connected in any way with the change in administration due to the death of President Harding. State department officials would not indicate whether the vacant posts had as yet been tendered by President Coolidge to anyone.

PENNA, SALOONS ARE STILL OPEN

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 4.—Notice on the saloons of Pennsylvania, which have been dispensing alcoholic drinks with utter disregard of the Volstead law and state prohibition enforcement measures, has been served in an emphatic manner by Gov. Pinchot. Every saloon, hotel or establishment in the state, against which evidence of violation of the law can be secured, will be closed, the governor declared.

Served by agents of the federal department of justice and state authorities, the ultimatum has been successful in the anthracite coal regions, where 254 saloons out of 444 which were served with closing orders have discontinued.

"The law is supreme," Gov. Pinchot declared. "The department of justice and state police will see that it is enforced when saloons defy it, when the whole sixty-four counties of Pennsylvania have been brought under its mantle."

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—With every saloon doing business as usual today and reports of the Retail Saloon Keepers' association and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment being arranged for, this city settled down to watchful waiting of the situation created by the closing order served by state and department of justice agents at the behest of Gov. Pinchot.

to the press box indicating a draw. Stribling leaned up against the ropes, amazed, and Ertle quickly left the ring. He was followed by McTigue and both were surrounded by civil and military police.

The crowd yelled for Stribling and angry spectators pushed through the police cordon in an effort to get to Ertle. A member of the police half dragged the referee back into the ring. Newspaper men were trampled upon by spectators when they rushed the ring and it was some time before the police could clear the square circle.

Ertle called newspaper men into a conference and asked Stribling to remain in the ring. The young challenger sat down in a chair, looked over to where his mother was sitting and burst into tears.

Twelve newspaper men responded to Ertle's request, the others could not make it through the ropes because of the crowd. Ertle asked them their opinion and each voted that the youngster from Macon had won eight rounds, lost one and the other was a draw.

Stribling was then called to the middle of the ring. The young giant stood with his head drooped as the referee reached for his hand to declare him the winner. After being given the decision, the fighter, attired in a light blue bathrobe, left the scene of battle with his mother.

Ertle was still in town at a late hour tonight and declared he was in no hurry to make his departure. He said that he would go direct to New York and file his official statement with the New York boxing commission.

Two hours before the fight, while a crowd was holding sway in the downtown district, Ertle declared, Major Jones, one of the promoters, came to his room in a local hotel and said that "McTigue, Jacobs, and myself, as long as I was in town, were being watched; that every railroad station was covered. I asked him what was the idea and he gave me no answer."

McTigue and Jacobs, the champion's manager were said to have left town by automobile immediately following Ertle's belated statement, officially declaring the bout a draw.

Cypress creek where it was found last Friday afternoon.

Gray in his statement to Hutchins implicated Paul Keith, and George McKinley, who he said acted as decoys to get Ballard out to the place where he was killed. He said they were not present at the time of the killing. Gray said that he used Mrs. A. J. Seman's car to carry the body to the creek where it was weighted down in the water. He insisted that Mrs. Seman had no knowledge of the crime or the use to which her car was put. Mrs. Seman and all the other prisoners have been released.

Gray is being held at Gilmer tonight but will probably be taken to Tyler. Kemp, McKinnley and Keith are being held at Greenville. Probably also they will be taken to Tyler.

The baggageman on number 6 was thrown from his car and fell underneath. 5-GAITED HORSE SHOW INTERESTING

An added attraction at the Texas-Oklahoma fair during the races yesterday afternoon was the exhibition of five gaited horses, which proved to be one of the most attractive and popular of the showings before the stands. Emerald, a beautiful black animal, and Susan Francis, both horses of the Fred Weeks stables, were shown, and brought rounds of applause from the race fans in the grand stand.

Buck Marlow, riding Emerald, showed the horse in its gaits effectively and the mount responded with a willingness and knowledge that was remarkable. Professor V. E. Kiel, on Susan Francis, also drew a large hand.

Both the horses wer pure bred animals and have won many ribbons at fairs and exhibitions all over the southwest. They are the property of Fred Weeks and are trained by him in his stables here.

The Weeks stables include many of the countries best mounts, and it has been a hobby with the Witchita Falls attorney and sportsman to own and train the best animals to harness and saddle.

TO DISCUSS THE SOMERS SYSTEM

The Somers system of taxation will be discussed at the business meeting of the chamber of commerce at the Kemp hotel today at noon. Mayor Frank Collier has asked judges and commissioners who are visiting in Wichita Falls to speak on the subject.

Citizens and members of the chamber of commerce are invited to come to the meeting. They are asked to make reservations at the chamber of commerce before 10 o'clock this morning.

KEEP KIDNEYS CLEAN, DRINK MORE WATER

If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers, Also Take a Little Salts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Adv.

MANY COUNTY AWARDS MADE

Community Exhibits Net Many Attractive Premiums

Educational exhibits at the Texas-Oklahoma fair fill one entire building, and include displays from Iowa Park, Electra, Burkburnett and the following schools in Wichita county: Cashion, Clara, Fairview, Lakeview and Howard, beside the large section devoted exclusively to the displays from the Wichita Falls city schools.

Iowa Park is the only community which offers a course in agriculture, and their display is quite informative along the lines of stock and chicken raising, care of milk, experimental seed tests and experiments in animal feeding.

Electra has an interesting athletic display in her booth, that shows eight silver trophies on an Electra athletic blanket, besides numerous ribbons, and the track shoes worn by Guy Thomas when he set the state record by running the 440 yard dash in 50 1-2 seconds.

Other communities exhibited splendid displays of handwork done by pupils in the various grades, showing the excellent standard of school work followed in this section of the state.

Wichita Falls shows remarkable displays in art work and home economics—work that has received state wide mention. The handwork displayed by grade school pupils is better than that done by the average housewife, and the dresses and hats on display in the high school section are creations of style and practically perfect workmanship.

Because of the method of displaying the exhibits, some of the names were lost. The judges have announced prizes in all lines of work as follows:

SOMER SYSTEM DRAWS SUPPORT

"If the Somer system of tax assessment is introduced in Wichita Falls the board of equalization can look every property owner in the eye and know that a just assessment has been made," President Pollock of Somer system who is here from Philadelphia said yesterday.

With Mr. Pollock is George E. Ehrenberg of Dallas, divisional head of the Somers system of Texas. Pollock and Ehrenberg conferred yesterday with Mayor Frank Collier and City Secretary W. E. McBroome regarding the possibility of the system being put into use here.

The Somers officials say that approximately 15 local men would be used in clerical capacities to get the system installed here.

WHY THEY ARE COMING.

Nine vessels unloaded at Ellis Island 7,000 immigrants on the first day of October. A London dispatch says that the British unemployed now totals 1,233,000 and the idle army is expected to reach 1,500,000 by Christmas.

Conditions must be most unhappy in a country where the government is compelled to hand out a daily dole to keep from starvation an army of 1,500,000 men who are willing to work, but can find no work to perform. If it were not for the restricted immigration law of America the United States would be swamped in the very near future and the conditions might be reversed.

DEMOCRACY DISTURBED

John W. Davis, former ambassador to the court of St. James, former president of the American bar association and mentioned in connection with a democratic presidential nomination next year, has scant respect for the critics of the higher courts of America or their five-to-four decisions.

He is reminded that the democrats of the state of Washington have elected a lawyer to seat in the lower house of congress who would elect all federal judges by district vote of the people, the chief justice and the associate justices to be chosen by direct vote of the people of all the states. And this western democrat carries the good old Anglo-Saxon name of Samuel B. Hill.

THE BEARS WERE READY

Now the department of agriculture forecasts a total production of cotton of 11,015,000 bales. This appeared to have given the bears new life as they hammered cotton down $9.00 a bale and after doing this returned to their haunts in the tall timber. It will be recalled that the August forecast was 10,250,000. Last year's production was 9,761,817 bales and the average production for five years was 11,481,084 bales.

If the government guessers are correct the Texas crop will go beyond 4,200,000 bales and the carry over next year will center around the 2,000,000 bale mark. This will be the smallest carryover recorded in many years. Cotton is the one best bet this ear. This is the verdict of the big men of the industry.

In recent years the cotton reserves have melted away and the millers of the world realize that they are up against a real famine in the raw material. Texas saved the day this year. And if the drouth hadn't come in many districts the Texas production would have gone beyond 5,000,000 bales. All agree that a bumper crop would have played havoc with the price of the fleecy staple.

WHERE THE WATER FLOWS

With the sole exception of Los Angeles, the city of Dallas leads the nation in the number of new homes, in proportion to population according to a bulletin issued this week by the federal department of labor. Los Angeles leads all American cities with 22,046 families being provided for in new buildings.

Los Angeles had climate to sell and sold it. Then the wise men of the lower golden coast irrigated all the deserts and made them to blossom like flower gardens. Next the movie industry selected Los Angles as its permanent home and less than six months ago the oil magnates of the coast were made speechless by the coming in of new fields of petroleum which were veritable underground reservoirs of oil.

There was a time when San Francisco was the great city of the Pacific coast country. Now Los Angeles in population and wealth leads all the cities in the far west. California has the Imperial Valley. Irrigation made is as rich and as productive as the Valley of the Nile.

Irrigation will make Texas 10 times more productive and its people 10 times more prosperous than the Imperial Valley and its people in the years to come.

They had nothing to sell in the Imperial Valley. They have everything to sell in Texas.

Keep your eye on the Wichita valley.

NOT THIS YEAR

Under the new calculation made by the republican convention managers the south will have 154 and New England 100 delegates in the national convention next year. To get the republican nomination it will be necessary to have 518 votes. In the new reapportionment the southern state lose 13 per cent and New England gains 16 percent.

Richard Barry is the Washington correspondent of the New York Times. He is positive that if the next republican nominating convention was held in October or November of this year that Calvin Coolidge would get the first place on the ticket on the first ballot. But the convention will be held in June, 1924 "and many who count have not yet conceded the nomination of Coolidge."

This may be interesting to Barry and those around him but it would be more interesting to the vast multitudes who are to name the man who will be awarded the democratic nomination. There are more insurgent voters in America than ever before and an insurgent is always against the government.

Just now the wheat farmer is demanding financial relief.

Calvin Collidge is holding the reins of government. He can go just so far and no farther. He cannot advance the price of wheat. He cannot advance the price of petroleum or its products. There is an over production of wheat and there is an over production of crude petroleum.

Next year there may be an under production of wheat and an over production of cotton. Then the cotton grower will be holding the bag. What's the answer?

They've Got the Whole Household Working On It

A Romance of the Redwoods

"I mean that if you are willing to allow your battery to carry a load for any specified length of time I can arrange the load."

"If it's not beyond the power of my battery go to it," agreed Davenport. "I figure she'll give about 40 horsepower."

"That is more than ample. For how long?"

"Long as you like—until we get out of here, if you please."

"Is it another bet?" asked Burton.

"I'm willing," said Davenport, "doubles or quits. Is it a bet?"

"I don't bet that heavily against another man's game," said Gardiner, "but I'm ready to risk five hundred that I can produce a legitimate test right here, and that this thing won't stand up under it. It is understood that my test must be met, and that the time limit is four days."

"Well, that's rather an 'unsight unseen' proposition itself," rejoined Davenport. "But just to show you I'm a sport, I'll go you, provided that it is not beyond the strength of the battery. Its endurance within its strength is all I claim."

"What I propose," said Gardiner, "is that the terminals of this battery be connected with the self-starter of our car; and the starting pedal be locked down. Then the battery, through the self-starter, will be turning over the engine, against the compression. I don't know the exact power required, but it is considerable. Tomorrow I will compute it exactly. It is sufficient to exhaust the ordinary starting battery in from 10 to 20 minutes."

"That's ingenious," acknowledged Davenport, "but it's going to be as noisy as a street car. Its going to destroy our peace and quiet, and will end by getting on our nerves, I'm afraid."

Gardiner leaned back with a triumphant glance at his chief.

"Oh!" cried Burton, indignant. "You aren't going to give up like that, Mr. Davenport. Were you bluffing?"

"I didn't think you'd do that!"

"I wasn't bluffing," said Davenport quietly.

"Then do it!"

"Well, I'll tell you," suggested the young man, "there's no use getting excited or disagreeable about it. Let's be reasonable. Tomorrow morning we will move camp a little to get away from the racket, and then we'll start her up. Stay an extra day if you want to; it's worth it."

"I'll agree to that," acquiesced Gardiner, "as far as the general camp is concerned. But personally I stipulate to stay here within sound of the motor."

Burton exclaimed indignantly; but Davenport was unperturbed.

"Well," said he cheerfully, "you encourage me A little while ago the battery couldn't last over 10 or 20 minutes; and now it's a night-time already. I'll agree you shall stay here, if you want to, provided Simmins stays too."

"Simmins!" exclaimed Gardiner. "Why should Simmins stay here?"

CHAPTER IX.

A Marvelous Discovery.

"Well," sighed Grimstead after a moment, "this trip certainly promises to be interesting. If the thing works even partially as you say it does, you must have a brand-new principle in battery construction."

"It is a new principle," said Davenport. "Would you like to hear about it?"

Grimstead put on his poker face to conceal his inner excitement. This offer was more than he had hoped.

"I should like to very much," he replied.

"So should I," spoke up Burton, "but I want to hear it in words of one syllable."

"It's not at all complicated. Now you know if you put a copper plate and a zinc plate side by side in an acid solution, and connect them with wires you generate electricity. That is the simple wet battery.

"All right. If you run a dynamo you also generate electricity, this time by induction.

"Where does that electricity come from? You might say chemical action in the one case or mechanical action in the other; but they are actually only a means to an end. The whole world lies in a great field of static or inert magnetism. The cell and the dynamo are merely means by which this inert electricity is livened up, made into kinetic or active electricity; they actually produce nothing in themselves. Is that clear?"

"Perfectly," said Burton.

"When we have used this kinetic electricity, or it becomes 'grounded,' it returns to the reservoir of static. All I've done to make a short cut between the static electricity in which we are immersed and the kinetic electricity we can use."

"That is self-evident, young man," remarked Grimstead drily.

"I am just making it clear for Miss Burton. Go back to the wet cell. It is heavy and awkward and short lived. My battery is just like a wet cell without those disadvantages. The wet cell consists of two plates of different metal in a solution. Mine consists of two plates of different metals side by side in air. The wet cell transforms or produces its electricity by, or through a chemical action that is limited in effectiveness and in duration. My battery transforms the static from the air into kinetic chemical action—apparently; and in much greater quantity in proportion to the size of the plates."

Grimstead was sitting up now in his interest.

"There must be chemical action!" he cried. "You can't lift yourself by your bootstraps."

"Of course; there probably is," agreed Davenport. "I only said there was apparently none. It must be very slight—like the apparent loss in radium, I suppose—for, as I say, I have used this battery to drive my car eleven hundred miles without any wear I can determine by looking at it."

"What metals do you use?"

"Pardon," returned the young man, "but there, of course, you're asking my secret. I will say this, however. They are alloys of metals easily procurable. The alloy must be exact and the distance between the plates must be exact. I have a micrometer screw to adjust my plates."

"You say the metals are easily procurable. How much do you estimate it cost you to build such a battery?"

"Mine up to now have been experimental and built piecemeal by experiment," Davenport pointed out. "But in quantity they could be built—of that size—for somewhere between fifty and a hundred and fifty dollars. It isn't the materials; it's the accuracy, and I don't know just what workmen of the necessary skill would cost."

Grimstead's poker face was still doing business, but his cigar butt was chewed to a frazzle.

"You say that battery there will run a brake test of forty horsepower?" he asked.

"About that."

"Will a larger battery develop more horsepower in proportion? What are the limits in capacity?"

"I haven't the slightest idea. There's no limit apparently to the amount of static you can take by means of dynamos; why should there be any more limit to what you can take by other means? Of course, I don't know; I'm just beginning to try it out."

"Well, you may have something though it sounds pretty radical," yawned Grimstead, as though the subject had ceased to interest him.

Burton hopped from the log on which she sat.

"The moonlight is heavenly," she declared. "I must Mr. Davenport, outside the firelight?"

see it through the big trees. Will you go with me, Mr.

Davenport jumped to his feet. Gardiner too stirred as though about to arise, but paused as he felt Grimstead's restraining hand on his arm.

The two young people stepped out into the enchantment of the forest.

CHAPTER X.

"The" Larry Davenport.

They walked for 100 yards, feeling their way in the black and white contrasts of moonlight; then sat side by side on a log.

"It is almost too perfect," said Burton. "It almost hurts. But I shall never forget it."

They began to chat, to make disjointed remarks swinging back down the wide arc of ecstasy to the startling point of everyday things. In a little while Davenport was talking eagerly, openly. The subject was his battery.

"It ought to be tremendously valuable. You'll probably make a million or so out of it. I hope you do."

"Yes, of course. I'd like to make something out of it. But that isn't the real point. Do you mind if I talk a little about it?"

"Oh, please!" she begged.

"Don't you see what is will mean to the world," he said, "the poor struggling old world?" Lord, how it does work! What a burden it does carry. How it does struggle! All its energy is consumed just in feeding itself and clothing itself and keeping itself warm. And it has to hustle just to do that." He twisted on the log more nearly to face her. "Look here," he demanded, "what is the greatest material need, the very greatest need of the world?"

"Davenport's batteries," she replied promptly.

He threw back his head and laughed boyishly.

"I was getting preachy, wasn't I? Well, the thing the world needs most is breathing-time, time to play more and to soak up the things that never come to a man when he's in a hurry or surrounded by the buzzflies of detail. What the work-a-day world needs most is leisure, a little leisure."

"The trouble is," said Burton, "people are never satisfied. If they'd be contented to go without so many frills they'd have leisure enough."

If the fact that Ireland has joined the league of nations means that that country is going to quit fighting there is no doubt that the world is changing.

What's become of the old timer who used to blow the foam off his beer?

Generally speaking its a safe bet that the man who wants to run the government from a seat in the village drug store, usually permits his wife to make the living for the family.

Our idea of an enthusiastic is a man who can get all heated up over a post-season ball game.

We are glad to learn that the movie actors who went into Death Valley to get local color for a picture, returned safely, although with parched throats. Our guess is that the press agent who wrote the story didn't get into the heart of the Death Valley. It would never do for a press agent to have a parched throat.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

The Family Friend

O Mother Says:
A doctor once told me he had so much trouble in winning children over and getting them to describe to him freely just how they felt, because they had been taught to look upon him as very important and a great personage, or had been threatened with the doctor when they would not take medicine. I have, therefore, taught my children to look up the family physician as their dear, good friend. I take them up to his office sometimes to be weighed, and their association with him has made them ready to trust him when they are really sick.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

LIBRA

Adverse aspects operate, making it very inauspicious for important matters. Avoid all risks. Practice self-control. Do not try to crowd things in today; go easy.

A child born today will be self-reliant and should be guided with persuasion rather than force.

People born on this date are noted for their inordinate sensibility to their environments and for their appreciation of all that is rare and delicately beautiful in thought and action. They are temperamental and artistic but extremely gullible and improvident. In fact, they are types to be cherished and protected from their own enthusiastic follies.

If today is your birthday you should cultivate the faculty of introspection and circumspection, for you know neither yourself nor your associates. You know in them only that which pleases you.

You are kind and generous in disposition and occasionally lavish with your charity. But at other times you are just as extravagantly tight-fisted, all according to your whim.

You are magnetic in personal charm. You will always have a host of friends, but among literal minded people who cannot understand you, you will have enemies.

You are inclined to be vain about your personal appearance and raiment, but as you have good taste, you are never obstrusive in your dress. This is true of both men and women but the former accentuates his conceit by excessive boasting.

Your governing planet is Venus and your birth stones are opals and diamonds. Venus produces musicians, painters, engravers, artists and all professions or trades leaning towards adornment. It is essentially the planet of love, happiness and ease.

You are affectionate, demonstrative and amorous, but you will lead a life of misery unless you marry someone who appreciates your fine love nature.

Sucessful people born on this date are.

CAP AND GOWN IS INITIATING

AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—Cap and gown, organization of senior girls in the University of Texas, is holding initiation this week for women students scheduled to receive degrees in June and August.

In the near future this group will organize the "Greenhorns," freshman co-ed class. Cap and Gown also has charge of senior week, which is usually celebrated some time during the spring, and the Bluebonnet Swingout, at which the officers of the incoming senior class are announced, and the seniors pass the chain of Texas Bluebonnets to their junior sisters. Members of the organization endeavor to further the interests of the senior class.

Officers for this year are Kathryn Lemly of Temple, president; Mildred Chambers of Cameron, vice-president; Virginia Reed of Austin, treasurer; and Thelma Lockwood of Austin, secretary.

More Truth Than Poetry

OLD CLOTHES

I envy not the ancient knight
The iron clothes he used t' sport,
Which filled with wonder and delight
The lovely ladies of the court.
It must have irked him to parade
Or go about his daily rounds,
Inside of boiler plate which weighed
A hundred pounds.

But once he'd bought a suit like that—
Although it must have come quite dear—
He did not go to Astolat
To buy another one next year.
With duds forged, bolted, and embossed,
Which lusty armourers evolved,
The early warrior had the cost
Of clothing solved

I envy not the shirt of mail
He used to wear upon his chest;
For me silk madras or percale
For daily wear I find the best.
Such slender interwoven links
Would mark one's hide up like a knife;
Yet such a shirt would last, methinks,
A man for life.

Moreover, when the shirt returned
From being laundered Wednesday morn,
It wasn't mussed, it wasn't burned,
It wasn't ripped, it wasn't tourn.
A shirt that wouldn't rend or tear,
Or fall to pieces or abrade,
Must have aroused to wild despair
The laundry trade.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

"LEAGUE CAN BE THANKED FOR GRECO-ITALIAN SETTLEMENT."

Newton D. Baker, ex-secretary of war, takes issue with critics of the league who declare the recent Italo-Greek controversy proves the association "a rope of sand." He gives full credit for the settlement of the question to the council of the league.

"The fact that there is no war in Europe today is due entirely to the league of nations, because for the first time in history the public opinion of the world was focused on an international crisis," he said recently.

"It is true," he asserted, "that Italy saw the great European powers arrayed against her at the council table, but it is true also that every small nation in the world was on tiptoe about it. The critics of the league expected a dramatic answer to Italy's ultimatum, but we can point out in answer to any criticism that peace has been preserved and the Italians leave Corfu tomorrow, bag and baggage."

Baker related the incidents connected with the meeting of the council that paved the way for a settlement, as an eye-witness of the meeting.

"Of course, everyone knows that the crisis came about through the murder of a boundary commission, headed by the Italian general, Tellini, which was appointed by the council of ambassadors of the league to establish the boundary between Greece and Albania. I maintain that the bombardment of a summer resort (Corfu) and the killing of a number of orphans by Italy is not proper behavior.

Only for "Good Offices."

"Following the Italian ultimatum to Greece, the council of ambassadors undertook an investigation. Why did not the league act? critics asked. Because Italy proclaimed that the bombardment of Corfu was not an act of war. M. Politis of Greece had asked the good offices of the league in persuading the Italian government to be satisfied with a deposit of money and give up Corfu.

"Greece had a right to regard the bombardment as an act of war and a right to ask the league to intervene. Any nation has that right but her request was only for the league's 'good offices.'

"The council of the league, knowing the council of ambassadors was investigating, notified that body of Politis' request. The ambassadors notified the league they were busy with the investigation and offered their assistance. Then came the council of the league which I attended.

"The reply of the council of ambassadors was read by Mr. Ishi of Japan. The Italian representative declared that the league should keep out of the controversy—that it was not competent to act. The Spanish representative, who spoke next, thanked the council of ambassadors and asked that the league be kept informed of its activities. He declared the rights of the parties could be kept by the adoption of eight proposals that he submitted.

"Again the Italian, Salandra, objected. He said he was instructed by his government to deny the league's right to interfere. The most dramatic thing I ever saw then happened. After the representative of France had urged 'no undue haste.' Lord Robert Cecil representing England, made a brief speech in which he asked that three provisions of the covenant be read.

"Cecil then proposed turning over to the council of ambassadors the proposal of Spain, embodying the eight suggestions submitted. The next morning, the council replied it had adopted all the proposals, with the concurring vote of the Italian member, Avazzano. There was no doubt then that Italy would accept.' There were no harsh words for Italy, but the proposal which settled the controversy emanated from the league of nations."

HEREANDNOW

We might as well get all there is out of life while we are here; the great beyond is as much a mystery now as it was a million years ago. And, like the future we can't live it till we get in it, so we had better cast our eyes around about us and see what we can get out of life today.

There are always affairs of the heart to keep one interested, and young, and pretty clothes to make and wear, and lovely music too, and great plays to see.

There is the radio and the movies, and dancing and all the games of sport—football and baseball games to go to, and the polo to watch.

What joys and thrills there are in this old world! With a few good friends, and lots of good books and one real sweetheart why look for heaven beyond the sky?

Heart and Home Problems Solved

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl nineteen years old. A certain young man that delivers our groceries is in love with me. I have gone with him twice, not that I cared to, but because I hated to turn him down. Every time he sees me he asks me to go car riding with him. Now when he comes with the groceries I hide in the front part of the house in order to avoid his asking me for a date.

What is the proper thing for me to do, hide or be bold and tell him I do not care for his company. It seems as if I haven't nerve enough to tell him. I am going with another fellow and told him but he does not seem to care. What can I do?

BETTY.

It is cowardly but easier to hide. I would advise, however, that you tell the young man who delivers your groceries that you are going with some one else and you do not care to go with him too. After you have faced the situation you will feel so much freer and better.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am nineteen years of age and am going with a young man several years my senior. He tells me that he loves me more than anything and I love him dearly. We are not engaged, and so should I kiss him?

Is a girl at this age old enough to go out alone with a young man at night? FRENCHIE.

If you kiss the man and give your love to him who says nothing about marriage, you are sacrificing yourself, because he remains free to leave you as soon as he loves some other girl more than "anything" in the world. Unless he loves you so much that he talks of marriage, I would advise you to keep your love in reserve and not let him know how much you care.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl of sixteen and have met a boy who will be nineteen his next birthday. We met about three months ago and I have fallen in love with him. He also talks to another girl. Would you advise me to keep going with him or not? He has proved to be a nice boy. He has been writing to me a long time.

MONDAY.

You have no claim on the young man since you and he are not betrothed, and therefore the fact that he has another girl friend is not cause for you to give him up. Let him talk to as many as he wants to because if you try to interfere you will find that he leaves you for some one else.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl of eighteen and I am in love with a young man eight years my senior. He is very nice to me and calls on me about three times a week, but it is about ten o'clock when he arrives. The reason that he does not come sooner is that he has to work until nine o'clock. Do you think that is too late for a young man to call on a girl? BROWN EYES.

Circumstances alter cases. Since the man works until nine o'clock he has a good reason for arriving at your house so late. If he were not occupied during the early part of the evening the late hour would be inexcusable.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl of seventeen and wish to have my first bridge party. I would like to do something original and I wonder if you could suggest something.

TROUBLED LILLY.

Because of the great number of heart and beauty letters I receive, I find impossible to consider the problems of entertaining. You might find helpful suggestions in a book devoted to the subject of entertaining.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: In reply to "Benda Eyes" you said a person who bites her finger nails should see a physician, but that would cost $2 at least, and I have found a remedy for 10c. Simply get a small nail file and carry it all the time. When you feel as though you would bite your nails, use the file running around the ends of the nails until the nervous feeling is gone. If one stays with this, in a few weeks she will find she has quit biting her nails.

I am sixteen years old and have always bitten by nails until the fingers were practically deformed. Three months ago I heard of the remedy of which I speak and now I don't use the file and neither do I bit my nails. Also, my fingers are becoming a good shape.

I hope this will help.

MISS L. W.

Thank you for your interest and your suggestion. The idea sounds excellent and would be well worth trying before consulting a physician. Sometimes, however, a habit like biting the nails is caused by a bad physical condition. If it is not overcome easily by yoing method I would still advise the physician.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: The other night a young man whom I like very much was out near my home. A little boy whom he knew went by. The young man caught the boy and twisted his arms and hurt him dreadfully, just for meanness. I became very angry and rushed up to them. I hit the young man again and again and asked him to stop. I haven't seen him since that night.

Should I beg the young man's pardon for hitting him, or should I let it go?

If I should beg his pardon, should I go on being the same toward him as I have been?

I am a great deal younger than he and something like a third of fourth cousin. THANK YOU.

Do not beg the young man's pardon. Simply treat him as if nothing had happened. Doubtless he was trying to be smart when he attacked the smaller boy and now is deeply ashamed of himself. Never menion what happened unless he does.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl in my teens and in love with a boy in his twenties. I have gone with his fellow for about 14 months. He says he loves me but there is also another girl. He has not been with her for a long time, but now he has asked me if I cared if he went with her just once. He says he is doing it to please some of his relatives.

Do you think the boy really loves me?

UNDECIDED.

It is impossible for me to say whether or not the boy really loves you. If you were wise you would tell him to go with the other girl by all means and did not oppose him in the least. Time will prove which of you he likes better.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: One of my girl friends knows a boy whom I do not. She has told me many nice things about him and I have seen him many times. I would like to have his friendship. How may I get it?

ANXIOUS BOBBIE.

If your girl is fond of the boy do not try to infringe on her rights. In case he is merely a friend to her, however, and she does not care for him particularly, tell her you wish she would introduce you some time.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: A friend of mine took me to an all-day picnic and I furnished the lunch. I have always liked him, but he has some queer ways and is very jealous. While at the picnic he left me alone quite a bit and at first I felt very unhappy and just like a wall flower. Then another boy saw me and stayed with me until lunch time. He did not have a girl there.

At lunch time I hunted up the boy who had invited men to the picnic and said it was time to eat. He was quiet all through lunch and hardly said a word to me. This made me very angry and I didn't say much either. After lunch he went off again and left me alone.

It wasn't long before the other boy came back and we had a very good time together.

Later in the afternoon when everyone started home I found the boy who had taken me wasn't anywhere to be seen. When I asked about him some one said he had gone home. Then the second boy said he would drive me home in his car, and I was very glad to accept the invitation.

After getting home I got a telephone call from the first boy and he said dreadful things to me about the way I had acted. He had not left the picnic and when he found I had gone home with some one else he was furious. He says he never wants to have anything more to do with me. I am perfectly willing he should not, but I do not feel I was really to blame.

Do you think it was my fault that things turned out as they did?

DESERTED DOLLY.

The boy brought the trouble on himself by acting as he did. After taking you to the picnic it was most decidedly his place to stay with you and see that you had a good time. You are not in the least to blame. It was most fortunate that there was another young man present to look after you and save you from embarrassment.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am nineteen years old and a stenographer in a downtown office. Yesterday a young man telephoned and asked to talk to me. Before I was on the wire the other receiver was hung up and so when I answered the party had been cut off.

At first I thought he would telephone me again, but he did not. I am not absolutely sure who called, but I think I know. Would you advise me to phone the young man I think it was and ask him if he was the one? S. T. W.

I would not advise you to telephone the young man you think called you. When you see him ask him if he called, but forget about the matter until you do see him. He probably realizes you were not to blame for the thing that happened.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: Has one girl any right to telephone a boy who is going with another girl and ask him to come to see her? A certain girl telephoned my friend and said she wished he would come over to see her. He told me about it, but he didn't go. Don't you think it was a very bold thing to do? SWEET SIXTEEN.

It certainly was bold for the girl to telephone a boy who was not interested in her and ask him to come to see her. It is not a matter to absorb much of your thought, however, since he did not go and did not care to go.

Ruffles Are Piled All Over Each Other Upon New Models

Life with the modern skirt seems to be just one ruffle after another.

If the skirt is full, the ruffles are likely to be of taffeta; and then they are pece-edged with silver, or bordered in baby ribbon. Or each ruffle is trimmed with two rows of colored stitching, as they are in the dress in the photo. Agnes Ayers, the Paramount star, is the lady in the dress, and she has chosen this up-to-the-minute frock for her appearance in the Paramount picture, "Hollywood."

The dress is of morning mist taffeta, with neckline of tiny pink roses. The slippers are pink brocade.

If the ruffled skirt is of the slinky type, you will find the ruffles of finely pleated georgette or chiffon, or of lace.

The accordion pleated type is shown in the sketch to the left. This shows a lovely evening gown of silver shades of blue over it. The pleated collar and first ruffle are of indigo; the next ruffle is a shade lighter. And the next, and the next, and so on, each of a lighter shade, until milady is seen in five shades of blue.

The large ornament over the right hip is very fashionable and appears on many of the French models. It is composed of the pleated georgette sewed round and round till it resembles a huge and squatty tassel. In the case of the dress above, it is made up of the five shades of blue found in the skirt. Each ruffle is peco-edged in silver, repeating the glint of the silver slip very prettily.

The dress in the sketch to the right shows a lace ruffle skirt. Here the ruffles are crossed in the front. The bodice and skirt-slip should be of the same color, and of softest silk. If the ruffles are of cream lace, the silk might be of the same. Or, if the dress is to be more formal, and the lace is silver, the slip might be of silver cloth. And again—well, there are many, many things that might be done to vary this model. Colored lace, for example, might be used. And last, but not least, black lace over flesh silk.

ZONA GALE

In Collaboration With Russell Gore Writes On

THREE TIMES A DAY

Breakfast of fruit, cereal, toast, coffee. Luncheon of eggs or creamed meat or fish, a salad, a sweet. Dinner of a roast. Two vegetables and a dessert. It seemed a normal program for those in the world for whom living is not the sharp struggle which it is for the majority.

To be sure, unless after golf or a walk, nobody ever felt hungry on coming to the table, but nobody expected to be hungry. Eating was to keep one from being hungry, in fact.

Then something happened which changed the tenor of the household. To suit the exigencies of new occupation and status, the program was changed. Breakfast remained the same.

A luncheon of bread and milk and fruit was substituted. Dinner became fresh vegetables and a baked dish which might or might not be meat, and fruit. And the household made a delightful discovery: It was hungry!

Had they been eating too often? Too much? But not more than "everybody" ate who could afford to eat what they wanted. Then was it true—that only a part of the race eats what it wants? That the rest are getting along on merely enough to remain safely alive? But did anybody really want so much, or need so much as the "average" well-to-do family table supplies?

A curious arrangement, this. Two-thirds of the world underfed, and hungry. One-third or less grievously over-stuffed and never hungry. Markets subsisting largely because of the over-stuffed. And over all a complex system of rambling in the necessities of life, making things plentiful, or scarce, cheap or costly, not in deference to calories and the human system, but as a game!

It sounds like a story told by a madman, shouted out through the dark ward in the middle of the night, and hushed up by a scandalized attendant who marveled how the poor diseased brain had ever thought it up.

When, when, when—as Charlotte Perkins Gilman asked long ago—shall we understand that the purpose of food is to feed folks?

And when shall we grasp that the brokers and middlemen are behaving no more strangely than the "good provider" and his conscientious wife, that excellent "manager?"

BOBBED BRUNETTE IS NOW SOUGHT IN MURDER MYSTERY

HOUSTON, Oct. 4.—Search was being made today for a bobbed haired brunette woman, "the first real clew" police said, in connection with the death of an unidentified white man whose badly decomposed body with deep gashes on the head and face was found five days ago ten miles from Houston on Green's bayou.

The "first clew" furnished by A. B. Aldridge of Crosby, according to police, also involved a sandy haired man. The woman was said to be about 30 years old and had a small heart tattooed above the right elbow.

According to Aldridge the woman, accompanied by the sandy haired man, and another man stopped their automobile, which bore a Louisiana license and asked where a police officer could be found.

After being told where they could locate an officer, the sandy haired man replied that "I guess I'll go on to Houston."

According to Sheriff T. A. Binford of Harris county, the description of the other man in the party follows closely that of the man found dead in the bayou.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, J. T. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

Panthers Are Now Dixie Champs For 1923

VETERAN JOE PATE PITCHES BRILLIANT GAME; BUT DIXIE WALKER IS SENT TO SHOWERS

PANTHER PARK, FORT WORTH, Oct. 4.—Jakie Atz and his Fort Worth Panthers are the 1923 Dixie champions.

And to Joe Pate, veteran southpaw, must go a great deal of credit, for this canny southpaw, suffering from a lanced abcess on his shin, stepped in the pitcher's box and hurled one of the prettiest games of the series, holding the New Orleans Pelicans to four blows while his teammates were hitting the ball hard for a 7 to 1 victory.

Pate was complete master of the situation and except in the sixth inning, when a pair of doubles by Bogart and Eweldt netted the southerners their only run, was he threatened.

His curve was breaking nicely, and for the most part, the Pelicans were "fozzling" the ball around the infield—slow rollers or pop flies.

The hitting of the Panthers was a direct contrast, two of the drives being home runs, and the greater part of the Cat outs being on hard hit balls. Sears and Edington contributed to four base jolts, each time a runner being on base.

Dixie Walker, who won the fifth game of the series for New Orleans Monday, was hit hard and retired under fire in the third inning, Joe Martina taking up the pitching burden. Martina fared somewhat better, but failed to check the Texans' hitting.

The victory gave the Cats the series, four games to two, with one tie, and is the third that the Texans have won. In 1922, Mobile succeeded in downing the Fort Worth club in the only series the Southern association representatives have won in four nearest. The Fort Worth club has represented Texas in each of the series.

Today's game was a one-sided affair, the third such battle of the series. The Pelicans won one game 11 to 0, and the Cats another, 10 to 1. The other battles were hard fought throughout.

The Cats today opened up their artillery in the first inning. Calvo doubled and was sacrificed to third by Sears. Edington parked one over the right field wall, scoring Calvo ahead.

Haworth's single, a fielder's choice, and Calvo's single accounted for a Cat tally in the second. A walk and two hits by Kraft and Haworth, brought another run in the third.

In the fourth Calvo's third hit of the day, a single, and a double by Sears, gave the Panthers their fifth run.

Doubles by Bogart and Eweldts gave the Pelicans their lone score in the sixth inning. Sears' home run with Calvo on base netted the Cats their final pair in the sixth inning. Scores:

ST. LOUIS LOSES ITS LAST GAME

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—St. Louis lost its last game of the season on its home grounds today, being snowed under by Cleveland, 9 to 1.

It was a great day for Tris Speaker. He established a new major league record by swatting his 57th two bagger of the season, shattering the one established by Ed Delehanty in 1899, when with Philadelphia. The record swat came off Grant in the seventh. The Indians' manager, in his four other trips to the plate hit a home run in the first with Summa on base, and singled three times. He also scored four runs. Score:

MISS COLLETT IS DEFEATED HARD

By The Associated Press.

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Out of the golfing past today came a former champion, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia, with a game so nearly acurate and faultless that Glenna Collett, the Providence girl, who became queen of the links last year, could not offset it with fighting spirit, and the tournament for the 1923 woman's title took on a new aspect. Miss Collett was defeated, 2 and 1.

In the other three matches of the third round Miss Alexa Stirling, a three time national champion, eliminated Mrs. Melvin Jones of Chicago, a western title holder of other years, 7 and 5; Miss Edith Cummings, of Chicago, defeated Miss Edith Leitch of England, 6 and 4, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hardin Goss of Baltusrol, N. J., won from Mrs. Dorothy Camobell Hurd of Merion, Pa., 1 up.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Ted "Kid" Lewis tonight defeated Frankie Burns the Australian middleweight, on points in a 20-round return contest at Premierland, London. Lewis knocked out Burns last year.

Out In the Cold Is George

George Uhle, the leading pitcher of the American league todate and the champion Yankee tamer of the year, will be sitting outside the gate forlorn and alone, figuratively, speaking, when the world's series begins. For Uhle's pitching wasn't enough to carry the Cleveland Indians to the top.

That the best pitcher of the year should be missing from the lineups of the two teams facing each other in the world's series is not an unusual situation.

Walt Johnson, in all the glorious years of his reign as "king" never managed to land on a pennant winner. Grover Alexander has had but one opportunity to shine in the fall classic. Pat Moran's miracle feat with the Phils in 1915 gave him his only chance. And he proved the Phil's only pitching star that fall. He pitched and won the first game—the only one the Phils grabbed. The Red Sox took the next four.

Ed Rommel, the young phenom of last year, struggled manfully to pitch the Athletics into a money position at least but couldn't do it.

Addie Joss, wonder pitcher of his time, saw the Cleveland club lose a pennant by half a game in 1908—the nearest he ever got to a pennant.

Which may cheer up Mr. Uhle a bit as he takes up his winter job at wood chopping or floorwalking or some ther vocation which draws a number of diamond celebrities every off season.

Uhle has had his share of glory for the year however. In six straight starts against the New York Yankees until the other day in the Yank's own ball yard that the ball maulers got to George and trimmed him. No he licked them to a frazzle. It wasn't other pitcher in the circuit had walloped the Yanks over three times when Uhle turned his six victories.

Uhle rang up his first 24 victories early this month and seemed destined to reach that hoped goal of 30 victories for the year. Then he hit a slump and now, unless he can shake the jinx may fall one game or so short of that mark.

Uhle, it will be recalled by many started his major league career with a bang. Picked up from the sandlots of Cleveland, his home town, in the fall of 1919, he won 10 games before that season ended. The fans took kindly to him when he first reported for a tryout and have stood behind him ever since during periods when illness or inability to his stride have kept him on the bench. Which is a refutation of that old saw about a pitcher being without honor in his own town.

EXPECT CROWDS FOR A-S GAME

Heavy Clash Is Predicted At Fair on Friday Afternoon

With a football game promised this afernoon in lieu of the regular racing program fans at the Texas-Oklahoma fair are promised an unusual bit of entertainment, and some sport that is certain to be the best of the season. Austin college and Simmons college will meet on the gridiron in front of the grandstand at 3:30 this afternoon, in the second college football game to be played in Wichita Falls this year with one of the largest crowds of the season expected in the grandstand for the event.

Both the teams arrived in Wichita Falls last night, together with large delegations of followers from their colleges, and from all appearances, Wichita Falls became a college town overnight, with the colors of the rival schools showing in spots here and there on the arms of the squads of school mates of the players. More than a hundred and fifty college men are in Wichita Falls with the teams, and while the teams got their last few hours rest before the game the rooters did their best to let the town know they had arrived.

Both teams are reported in the pink of condition and confident. There has always been a keen rivalry between Austin and Simmons' college and both elevens are out for blood, with their eye on the victory sign. Well matched and excellently coached, the teams look able to give the spectators and football enthusiasts a game well worth while when they meet, and each coach has confidence in his aggregation of pig skin artists.

The managers of the teams arrived several days ago to complete arrangements for the game and all details have been successfully planned with no hitch in the plans expected. The St. James and Kemp hotels are the headquarters for the elevens and their rooting squads, while the collegians are in Wichita Falls, and everything is being done by the fair association to make their visit enjoyable.

While the fair association is planning for their comfort each team is planning trouble for the other. And from the looks of the players and their size, it appears that either might be able to do so.

The teams will be given light secret workouts this morning, the gridiron at the fair grounds and the high school grounds at the baseball park being used for this purpose.

Some work was necessary to put the field in front of the grandstand at the fair grounds in condition for the game, due to the fact that other exhibitions have been using the space but following yesterday's showings, the field was prepared for play by squads of workmen and is reported in the best of condition for a college game. Goal posts are to be erected this morning, and the game will begin sharply in the enclosure inside the race track at 3:30.

During the game and previous to its start the regular afternoon's program of band and musical concerts with hippodrome acts will be staged, with an unusual program promised.

M'MULLIN WINS ENGINE TROPHY

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—Lieutenant C. McMullen of Brooksfield, Texas, won the Liberty engine builders' trophy at an average speed for the 300 kilometers (186.42 miles) of 139.03 miles per hour. He flew a Fokker CO-4 plane with a Liberty 400 horsepower motor.

The other entrants with their average speeds finished in the order named:

Hall, the navy's only entrant who finished second 132.05; Bleakley 127.90; Melot 126.88; O'Connell 124.82; Brown 122.24 and Oldys 112.21.

Today's Game at Fair Grounds May Be Biggest Here During Season

Everything is set for what will doubtless prove to be the biggest football game here this season, when the Simmons college Cowboys and the Austin college Kangaroos clash at the fair park stadium today at 3:30 in the first Texas Intercollegiate association game, which will go far toward telling who the champions in that race may be for 1923. These two schools along with Howard Payne, are rated to be the class of the T. I. A. A. this year, and with two of the leaders meeting, the elimination fight is likely to prove a hotly contested affair, and a capacity crowd is expected to be on hand.

Both squads arrived yesterday afternoon, Coach Cawthon's Kangaroos putting up at the St. James and Coach Hay's Cowboys taking up quarters at the Kemp later. No extra crowd of rooters accompanied the Austin college outfit, their supporters waiting to go to the S. M. U. game next week, but a special trainload of Simmons backers will arrive from Abilene this afternoon. It is reported at the Simmons headquarters. The well known Cowboy band will be on this train, to furnish the old gridiron tunes for their grid heroes.

All men are in good shape, according to the respective coaches, and although the earliness of the season must be taken into consideration, a good exhibition of football is expected, and a hard fought battle is certain. Each team has played one game, being the only showings from which to make any estimate of the comparative strengths. Simmons, playing at home, was defeated by two touchdowns by the Baylor Bears, last year's Southwestern champions, the score being 14 to 0. Austin college playing within the shadow of Texas university, was also blanked by the Texas Longhorns, by three touchdowns. Baylor is this year not expected to have as good a team as the winning machine of 1922, while Texas is doped to have a stronger one than last year. All of which ranges the two teams playing here tomorrow pretty well even.

In the way of weight, Simmons has an appreciable edge, that team averaging about 168 pounds while the Austin team tips the beam at an average of 155. Both Coach Hays and Coach Cawthon state that their teams will in all probability, be better than the 1922 teams, although this may not show up until later on in the season. For their lack of weight the Kangaroos will have added speed, and a smoothly working machine is expected to represent the Sherman school today. The backfield has shown lots of speed, but it is almost a new one and not so strong on the defense. Hub Hollis, half of the scoring part of the Kangaroos last year, will be at the game tomorrow, it is reported, and will be missed by Coach Cawthon without doubt. In the matter of speed, Simmons will not be far behind, as they have some backs who will keep things moving despite a rather heavy line.

In the game today, men that are sure to be watched are Captain Adams, Cowboy fullback, and his running mate, Camp, right halfback. These men have played here before and are known to carry the ball well. Hubert Ferguson, Simmons left guard, is a local boy and is reported a big demon. Captain Morgan, Gill and Allred of the Kangaroo team are also expected to come before the grandstand eye. Since Wichita Falls is out of the regular college circuits, personal knowledge of teams is not so strong, but favorites are expected to come to light today.

Coach Cawthon has six letter men around which his team is moulded, while Coach Hays has six to send in. Twenty-two men make up the Austin squad, and 21 will be seen out in the Simmons spangles. Last minute decisions often come before big games, but the following men will be started in today's game, as given out late last night by the coaches. Cawthon will be unable to start Saxon, regular fullback, on account of injuries received in the Texas game. Poe, all T. I. A. A. guard for three years, was left at home on account of an injury.

Today's line-up:

SIMMONS	Position.	AUSTIN
Johnson, Wood	Left End.	Cone
Wright, Harrison	Left Tackle.	Morgan (c)
H. Furgeson	Left Guard.	Crawford
Maggart	Center.	Rollins
T. McCasland	Right Guard.	Franks
Maurice	Right Tackle.	Rogers
Gibson	Right End.	Smith
Kimbrough	Quarterback.	Allred
Camp	Right Half.	Miller
M. McCasland, Estes	Left Half.	Wharton
Adams (c)	Fullback.	Gill

Officials will be: Robins, Vanderbilt, referee; Roach, Baylor, umpire; Splawn, Michigan, head linesman.

The remaining men on the two squads, some of whom will in all probability get in the game, are: for Simmons, Reeves, Haynes, W. Ferguson, Mably, Harvey, Cook; Austin, Langford, Reeves, Wright, Dean, Moore, Tuck, Hill, Dickie, Payne, Nelson, Saxon.

TOADSTOOL MUSHROOM

The Proof of the Difference is in the Eating

MUSHROOMS and toadstools look so much alike that now and then somebody mistakes one for the other and the doctor gets a rush job.

Perhaps you can tell a mushroom from a toadstool—before eating. If you can't you'll find it pays to ask someone who can, rather than take a chance—and the same rule applies to valve cup buying.

Darcova Valve Cups and other valve cups may look pretty much alike but the difference is vast.

Before you re-cup, ask your neighbors in the oil country. They will tell you that "Darcovas" last longer and pump more oil.

WHEAT MARKET SHOWS DECLINE

Gossip of Reaction Brings Decline After Early Advance

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Wheat underwent a material decline in price today owing largely to gossip that a reaction was due after the sharp advance of late. Closing quotations were weak 5-8 to 1 3-8 cent net lower, with December 1.07 3-4 to 1.07 7-8 and May 1.11 1-2 to 1.11 5-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 1 cent lower to a like advance. Oats 3-8 to 5-8 cents down and provisions showing 10 cent to 25 cent drop.

Although old corn was again in demand with sales above 1.00, new crop deliveries failed to develop strength and the market averaged lower with wheat. Profit taking sales depressed oats.

Provisions reflected the weakness of grain and of cotton seed oil.

Fort Worth Livestock.

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 4.—Around 3,000 head of cattle and 2,000 calves were here today. The market held to a generally steady level and ruled fairly active, although the large number of mixed lots here gave the trade a slow appearance.

Two cars of the Welder steers from San Patricio county supplied the market with its top cattle for the day and the top steers for the week. They sold at 7.00. Most of the receipts displayed ordinary quality, only however.

Good cows went at a range of 3.75 @4.00, fair to medium cows brought 3.00@3.65, cutters sold at 12.25@ 12.85, and canners went at 1.50@ 1.90; medium to good heifers and yearlings cleared at 5.00@6.00; bills sold from $2.50@3.75.

The calf market held to a basis that was in line with the mid-week slightly higher trend, but some buyers were bidding lower and the movement scalesward was not very brisk. Some good south Texas calves, in the native division sold at 6.25. Most of the day's receipts cleared at a range of 5.00@6.00.

Stocker steers are worth 6.00@6.50, and the medium to good kinds are going at 5.25@6.00. A few cars of stock cows sold at a range of 2.00@ 2.20.

Nothing new developed in the sheep trade. Receipts amounted to 3,000 head and of that number around 3,100 were feeders en route to northern buyers. The market supply sold at prices that were quotably unchanged.

With 2,500 head of hogs here, salesman pegged for an advance and when sales were finally made they indicated strength, the market being called steady to 5 cents higher. Good hogs cleared at 8.05 and bulk sales made a range of 7.75@7.95.

Pigs remained about steady, the good kinds selling at 6.50@6.65, with bulk sales at 5.00@6.50.

New Orleans Cotton.

By The Associated Press.

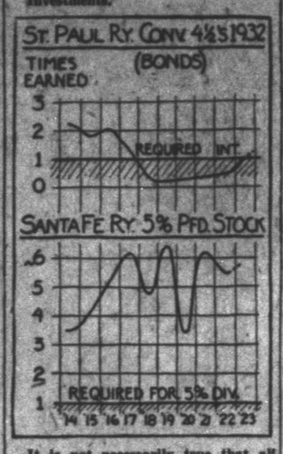

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—The cotton market today fluctuated between net declines and net advances, finally closing at net gains on the session of 6 to 15 points with closing sales of December ranging from 27.93 to 27.97.

The wet weather in the western half of the belt was the main factor on the opening and it put prices 7 to 17 points higher to 27.98 for December. A quick break resulted from the report that important mills would shut down and this movement carried the market to its lowest for the day, to 27.70 for December and to declines under yesterday's close of 11 to 16 points. In the end, the weather proved the more powerful influence

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

It is not necessarily true that all bonds are better than preferred stocks. There are exceptions.

In comparing Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad five per cent preferred stock with Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad 4 1-2 per cent convertible bonds of 1923, it is evident that Santa Fe is selling at a higher price. The stock is worth more than the bond. Why?

In the last ten years earnings applicable to the preferred stock of Santa Fe have averaged more than five times dividend requirements. The poorest showing was made in 1920 when the preferred dividend was earned three times over, and the best in 1921 showed the dividend earned more than six times.

On the other hand, St. Paul has been going down hill. Its best record in the last 10 years was in 1914, and its worst recently. Operations have not covered interest since 1917, although it is probable that 1923 will again show them earned.

This example shows that it cannot always be assumed that a bond, just because it is a bond, is a safer investment than a preferred stock.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED STEADY

Market Rallied on Weather After Selling Off

By The Associated Press.

Dec.	28.70	28.24	28.43-45	28.37

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—After selling off during the day's early trading the cotton market rallied on unfavorable weather reports and covering. December contracts advanced from 28.24 to 28.70 or 46 points from the lowest and 35 points net higher, but at this level there was a renewal of scattering liquidation and later fluctuations were very irregular. December sold off to 28.28 during the afternoon and closed at 28.43, with the general market closing steady, net 10 points higher to 8 points lower. The more active months showed net advances of 3 to 10 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 10 points to a decline of three points. There were overnight buying orders around the ring, but they were soon executed and prices eased off during the early trading. October declined to 28.57 and January to 27.72, making net losses of three to 20 points on the general list, but offerings were so readily absorbed at these figures, that early sellers turned to cover. This demand became more active on reports that rains had been quite general in Texas and that the recent wet weather had caused further damage to grades. The market showed considerable strength during the early afternoon, advancing to 28.97 for October and 28.15 for January, or 25 to 37 points net higher. October was relatively firm.

Exports today 5,032, making 999,284 so far this season. Port receipts 36,475; United States port stocks 487,654.

MITCHELL APPEALS ARE OFF DOCKET

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 4.—The Roy Mitchell case from McLennan county, in which the Waco negro was given death sentences for murder in four convictions, was wiped from the docket of the final court Wednesday, when three appeals were "abated." Mitchell was hanged July 30 for murder of Mrs. Ethel Denecamp. His appeals in the murders of Harold Bolton, Holt and Will Driskill, were stricken off the docket of the court of criminal appeals Wednesday.

The criminal appeals court upheld the five-year sentence of Hogden Crossett, former university student, for seduction. Charges followed the death in an Austin hospital of Rosa Stuart several years ago. The case was tried, however, in Lubbock county.

The trial court's ruling that Crossett and the woman were not man and wife under common law marriage was upheld by the criminal appeals court.

The court affirmed 11 liquor law violation cases and reversed and remanded one wherein a negro hotel porter, the object of an alleged frame-up by officers, who was sent out to get a bottle of whiskey, held in trial court to have been engaged in transportation of liquor.

Governor's Home Under Guard As Okla. "War" Continues

Palatial home of Gov. J. C. Walton of Oklahoma, in Oklahoma City, now under constant guard.

The home of Gov. J. C. Walton of Oklahoma is under constant guard day and night while the "war" between the governor and the ku klux klan continues. Walton, with the aid of the military forces, has flustrated the first efforts of the "insurgent" legislators to call special session.

NEFF ENDORSES INDUSTRY MEET

Was Launched Under Auspices of Texas Chamber of Commerce

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 4.—Governor Pat M. Neff has endorsed the state-wide industrial development movement launched in Texas under the auspices of the Texas chamber of commerce, according to a statement made today by Burt C. Blanton, industrial director of the state organization.

Mr. Blanton receives a communication from Governor Neff in which he said: "I have just read press dispatches relative to the state-wide industrial conference called through the industrial department of the Texas chamber of commerce to convene in Dallas, October 6th. I am indeed glad to learn of this movement fostered by the Texas chamber of commerce to stimulate state-wide interest in industrial development."

Governor Neff's communication continued: "The possibilities in Texas are unlimited. There is no reason why Texas should not become one of the greatest manufacturing states of the union. I am rejoicing at this initial step taken by your progressive and forward looking organization, toward the realization of the endorsement of an industrial service for the promotion and development of industrial possibilities and activities, within the state. At any time that I can serve you in carrying out your purpose, I shall be glad to have you call upon me."

Upon receipt of Governor Neff's communiation, Mr. Blanton wired him as follows: "Cordially invite you to be present state-wide industrial conference convening Dallas, Saturday, October 6th. Invitations extended to industrial leaders throughout Texas. Please advise us of your intention to be present."

J. Perry Burrus, president, Dallas Textile Mills company, and the Texas Cotton Mills company, McKinney, who is chairman of the executive committee of the industrial department of the Texas chamber of commerce will preside at the conference.

The conference will be called to order by James Z. George, vice-president and general manager of the Texas chamber of commerce in the general headquarters of the organization Saturday morning, October 6, at 10 a. m.

"Every Texas banker, business and professional man interested directly or indirectly in manufacturing is invited to be present. Invitations have been extended to approximately 350 Texas cities and towns through their representative commercial organizations to send representatives to the conference," Mr. Blanton said.

"Subjects and problems affecting Texas' manufacturers will be discussed at the conference, together with the formulation of plans for the further expansion and development of every character of manufacturing industry in the state," Mr. Blanton said.

In conclusion, Mr. Blanton said: "The state of Texas is entering a new era of unprecendented industrial development, which will be most pronounced within the period of the next 20 years; most particularly the textile industry as Texas is destined to lead the southern states in the fabrication of cotton within that period, and ultimately, Texas, as the potential hub, will become the textile center of the world."

HERE IS A MULE WITH OWN COLT

A. & M. Authorities Convinced Three Fourths Horse Produced

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 4.—A regular mule, the kind that has been made famous by stories of stubbornness, meanness, and pure feats of arbitrary conduct has produced a progeny at the A. & M. college of Texas and by her act promises to shadow the fam of everyone of her tribe that has broken into the prints and picture supplements before her. She will have the authoritative statements of really accepted scientists whose vision cannot be doubted to credit her with a feat that has never before been officially accepted by veterinarians. Rumors of such occurences have been broadcast from time to time but investigations by veterinarians have always led to doubt. In fact this mule produced her first colt three years ago on an eastern Texas farm or at least her owner claimed such honors for her, but the world did not believe. W. L. Stangel, professor of animal husbandry of the college went to the owner who so defied the fine theories of scientists as to claim maternal abilities for his mare mule and offered to co-operate with him in proving her right to claim of progeny. The owner, L. T. Branham of Montalba, Texas, kindly turned the animal with her colt, which was three-fourths ass and one-fourth horse, over to Professor Stangel and they were brought here in 1921. She was bred in the fall of 1921 to a jack but failed to foal. The following year she was mated to a stallion and the past week foaled. The progeny in general appearance is a horse but he has the sharp, long ears of the asinine ancestors.

There is no official record of the mother mule's ancestry, but by every test that the animal husbandmen and geneticists of the college can apply she is a mule, or in other words, half horse and half ass.

The college will attempt to purchase the mule in order to continue the experimentation. The fact that she had produced twice seems to indicate that she is fertile and that her productivity is not merely an inexplainable phenomenon.

Scientists of the college have never before credited authenticity to a report of mules bearing foal, though there have been a number of claims made. They do not know of a single case where such a thing has occurred and been given official credence. On the basis of the crromosome theory hybrids in the animal kingdom are sterile. Recent articles by veterinarians in the leading journals of genetics and heredity do not give credence to such occurrences, the writers rather attributing such claims to circumstantial evidence instead of well observed fact. They are willing to attribute lactation and the adoption of suckling colts by the female hybrids but in cases where claims of fertility are made they would rather believe that the mother is not a hybrid but a horse with characteristics of a mule, transmitted very probably because of previous matings of the dam with a donkey.

Dr. Mark Francis, dean of veterinary medicine does place credence in such claims, however, but he bases his conclusions on other than the chromosome teory. He concludes that such occurences prove that the horse, zebra, jackass, and quaggus have the same origin, coming from the native horse of North America.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Stock prices today lost part of the gains registered in yesterday's brisk rally.

There was a fair accumulation of over-night buying orders, the execution of which gave the market a strong tone near the start. Speculators for the advance, however, showed little disposition to follow up their temporary advantage, with the result that realising sales came into the market in large volume. Thereafter, the usual leaders bobbed up and down with good support shown just below the high figures of yesterday.

Oil shares held relatively firm by the announcement of a further reduction in crude oil production for the week ending September 22. The Pan-American issues were bid up a point or so, but they yielded with the rest of the list in later trading. Standard Oil issues derived some strength from the unconfirmed report that Standard Oil of New York would soon be transferred from the curb to the "Big Board."

TWO ARE FINED ON DRUNK CHARGE

A fine of $100 for drunkenness was assessed against Homer Donohue by Judge Guy Rogers, Thursday, and R. B. Jones was fined $25 at the same time and on a similar charge.

The fines grew out of the arrest of Donohue by Sheriff Murphy and Deputy Bebaut on Ninth street Wednesday afternoon. Sheriff Murphy testified Donohue resisted arrest and that Jones was drunk also.

Both men entered pleas of guilty to the charges.

WOMAN ALLEGES SHE WAS TRICKED

Damages amounting to $9,000 are asked by Mrs. N. E. McElroy from B. M. Hester, W. L. Hawkins and J. W. Ferguson in a suit filed in the office of the district clerk Thursday.

The plaintiff alleges she put in $500 on an Archer county oil experiment which gave her an interest in the proceeds of a well drilled. She alleges the well came in a producer and that defendants misrepresented to her the true worth of her holdings and she sold them her interest far below its value.

She asks to be placed in status quo in regard to her interest in the company or that she be awarded $9,000 as her share.

Hinton Twins Given Special Music Program

The Joe Thomas Saxotette, one of the acts before the grand stand at the Texas-Oklahoma fair, yesterday staged the act before the smallest audience, in numbers, they have played to. Incidentally, they put up the best performance they have ever offered.

When the wonderful saxophone players were in front of the grandstand waiting their turn to entertain, some one whispered to them that Violet and Daisy Hilton, the famous grown-together girls from San Antonio with the Wortham shows at the fair, are devotees of the saxophone.

They were told the girls could not get over to see their act. Like children with a new toy the quintet besieged James Cunliffe, who is manager of the acts before the grandstand. They told him the story. They wanted to go over to the midway and play for Violet and Daisy Hilton.

Mr. Cunliffe knows the twins, and is very fond of them. He told the saxophone players to slip around the end of the grandstand and go through the back of Myer Myers' big side show tent, where the girls are, and put on the act.

Their call was quite a surprise. The musical artists put on the entire act, much to the delight of Violet and Daisy. When it was over the twins insisted that pictures of the party be taken. The party went back of the tent, and with the musical artists, the girls lined up before the camera. Then the Thomas company retired to the dressing rooms, and promising to make another call when they had laid aside the domino costumes, which are in keeping with the quality of their performance. More than a dozen times the Joe Thomas Saxotette has been at the same fair with Violet and Daisy Hilton, but never had the two attractions met. Before leaving the twins the girls asked the names of the callers and personally introduced themselves to Joe Thomas, Archie Nicholson, Walter Grebe, Abe S. McCaw, and Jep King, the five artists on the popular saxophones. Their call was more than appreciated, because the Hilton girls are by no means bad performers on the saxophone.

TATTING DISPLAY PRIZES AWARDED

The tatting display at the Texas-Oklahoma fair under the women's department boasts some of the finest handwork in the state. Articles on exhibition range from the sheerest and daintiest of fine work to rich designs in larger threads mounted on heavy linens in white and natural linen shades.

Judges announce prize winners as follows: Mrs. W. L. Bortosh, first for best display; second for best specimen; second for best handkerchief. Mrs. W. A. Yeager, first for best collar; first and third for baby caps. Mrs. W. H. Downing, first and third on luncheon sets. Mrs. Young, second on best specimen. Miss Mary Brown, first for best specimen. Mrs. J. W. Combs, second for baby cap. Mrs. John Love, second for best handkerchief.

Pimples Cause It

Whenever you go out to places of amusement, you can't help but pity the folks you see trying to have a good time, but are so shrinking and backward about coming near others where they can see their pimply, blotchy and eczemic skin that you can see they are only torturing their minds instead of throwing all cares to the four winds and enjoying themselves.

You almost feel like going up to them and telling them that they ought to begin using the wonderful Black and White Ointment, which so many thousands of happy people are depending on to keep their skin clean, smooth and good to look at.

Black and White Ointment is selling at the phenomenal rate of nearly two million packages a year, and the fact that it is so economically priced is largely responsible for this record. The 50c size contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have it. —Adv.

The Reason

—We are selling "WHO CAN BEAT IT" at 35 cents for a one-pound can—and three-pound can for $1.00 is that we are desirous of placing a can in every home in Wichita Falls. The quality is as good as we could produce at any price—its fresh from our roasters daily and a HOME PRODUCT.

Nash Announces Four Door Coupe

No car produced by the Nash Motors company has ever met so enthusiastic a response on the part of the public as the new four-door coupe, now on exhibit for the first time at the fair.

Despite the added features of appointment, the subtle betterments of body design and the definitely finer performance, the price of this beautiful car has not been raised.

The low swung handsome body of the new four-door coupe is finished in a lustrous shade of maroon with black running gear and fenders. Five maroon-toned wheels with the fifth wheel at the rear are standard equipment. There is a rear view mirror, kick plates to protect the paint; an instrument board with all instruments, including a full-jeweled clock, now grouped compactly under glass; rubber filled running boards, and lengthened low sweeping fenders.

At the rear is a sturdy, built-in trunk protected and beautified by strong nickel-plated bars. Matching in appeal the masterly coachwork of the four-door coupe is the quiet luxury of the appointments that adorn the car's interior. For example, there is an attractive vanity case and smoking set of the flush type. Overhead is a dome light that floods the car with soft radiance. And there are two reading lights—one in each corner—that throw light directly over your shoulder.

An efficient heater wards off the chill of inclement days and keeps you cozily warm on winter days. There's a robe rail and foot rest. And an automatic windshield wiper plays its part in the driver's satisfaction.

OKLAHOMA WINS IN COUNTY SHOW

Oklahoma won two first places in the county exhibits in the agricultural building at the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition.

Jackson county, Oklahoma, won first place on a score of 87 points. Tillman county came second with a score of 86 1-2 points. Wilbarger county, Texas, won third place, and Baylor county, Texas, fourth.

The Randolph farm of Tillman county won first place in individual farm exhibits, and the Valentine farm of the same county won second place.

SHE CASHES CHECK FOR HUBBY AND IS NOW IN JAIL

Soft brown eyes which looked all the softer from beneath a 15-gallon, "four X" John B. Stetson, Texas cowboy special sombrero, aboard black bobbed glide, came very near deterring police officers from arresting a young woman Thursday morning on a charge of forging a $30 check.

The young woman with the enormous hat, puttees and other cowboy makeup had not been consistent with her haberdashery. The night before, instead of appearing in the role of the girl from the golden west, she had dressed as sub-deb. In a chic tailored suit with shoes and hat to match, she, the officers charge, went into a downtown business house late Wednesday night and cashed the $30 check.

The check, the proprietor learned, had the signature of a Seventh street business man. The business man declared it a forgery and the young woman was sought. She was found in the cowpuncher garb Thursday morning. She said she had given the $30 from the cashed check to her husband who had gone to Trinidad, Colo.

She is being held at the city hall until the investigation is completed.

OIL MAN AND LAWYER CLASH

It was on one of the higher floors of the Staley building where a lawyer and an oil man suddenly decided Thursday morning to fight it out in the old approved fisticuff manner and their appearance a few minutes later at the police station indicated they had gotten complete satisfaction.

The lawyer to all outward appearances had been on the receiving end of the affray. Both put up cash bonds of $10 each to await trial before City Judge Joe Carrigan this morning.
