

Illegal Alien Children Allowed into Texas Schools

HOUSTON (AP) — Saying children excluded from school suffer "great harm," a federal judge opened public school doors for thousands of illegal alien children, striking down a Texas law that blocked their enrollment.

"The statute absolutely deprives undocumented children of access to education, thereby causing them great harm," U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals wrote Monday in a ruling that paves the way for undocumented children to attend public school.

The landmark ruling orders four school districts in south Texas to admit illegal aliens Sept. 1 and enjoins the Texas Education Commissioner from enforcing the law statewide.

Texas is the only state that excludes illegal aliens from state education funding.

The reaction from school officials and minority leaders in the state was immediate and strong.

"I don't know of any crisis that measures up to this in my six years here," said Billy Reagan, Houston Independent School District superintendent.

But Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said Monday the ruling was "perhaps the most significant advancement in equal educational opportunity in recent history."

"It is a giant step for the concept that all residents of America are entitled to equal protection of the laws," he said.

Reagan said he will ask his school board to seek federal impact funds to help state school districts cope with the additional students.

"Certain parts of the state are going to be tremendously hurt," Reagan added.

He said HISD would have few financial problems absorbing an estimated 5,000 to 7,000 illegal alien children, but noted that the hardest-hit schools would be along the Texas-Mexico border.

School attorney Kelly Frels said a decision on appealing the ruling would be made later this week, but attorneys for the state earlier said they definitely would appeal an unfavorable decision.

Frels said officials might ask for a stay of the order, to give school districts time to plan for the additional students.

The Texas statute gave schools the choice of refusing to admit undocumented children, or admitting them by charging tuition.

In his ruling, Seals noted that an amendment passed in 1975 to the law effectively excluded the children from school.

"Although some school districts continue to educate all

Holder: Effect Minimal

Though school officials throughout the state are protesting a federal judge's Monday ruling that illegal alien children cannot be denied a public education in Texas, Hereford Independent School District Superintendent Harrell Holder has accepted the landmark decision with a yawn.

Holder said HISD has never attempted "to make any determination" which students in school are legal or illegal.

"(The ruling) won't make that much difference to us. We've never had 'em bring any papers to show if they're legal residents of this country."

"If they want to go to school, we let them go to school."

Holder said he had no idea how many, if any, illegal alien children have attended classes in Hereford.

"I may have 500 and I may not have any. It just doesn't make any difference to us," he said.

Donations Of Blood Scheduled

The Coffee Memorial Blood Mobile will be at the Hereford Community Center from 3 to 6 p.m. Wednesday for those wishing to donate blood this month.

"I would like to remind everyone that the need for blood does not take a vacation. We need everyone's extra help during this time," said spokesperson Pat Clark.

"It only takes a few minutes from your afternoon to go by the Community Center and give the gift of life."

Approximately 274 pints of blood are needed to replace blood used by Hereford area residents during the past month.

It's Cooler But Spell Not Over

Don't get your hopes up; the heat wave's not over.

That bit of advice was furnished by a National Weather Service forecaster in Amarillo after a cool front pushed into the Panhandle early Monday morning and dropped high temperatures nearly 10 degrees over what they have been the last few weeks.

"It was just a respite," the forecaster said this morning. "It'll be cool again today—probably around 90—but we'll get into the low 90's tomorrow and then it'll get hot again."

He predicted highs in the upper 90's to low 100's by the end of the week.

The forecaster said the high pressure system which has remained over the South for the last several weeks, inflicting searing heat and a costly drought, shows no signs of dissipating.

Monday's high in Hereford was 91.

Administration Lambasts Tax Cut

Registration, Protests Begin

By The Associated Press

Anti-draft demonstrations were small but widespread and noisy as young Texas men wandered into post offices for the first military draft registration in five years.

Chanting, hand-holding picketers lined up at the postal stations Monday to protest the draft and heckle those registering, while a small crowd conducted a demonstration outside a Dallas train station where President Carter was addressing a fund-raising rally.

Pickets were up in Austin, Houston, San Antonio and Dallas. The Dallas protest was held at Union Station downtown where Carter was to address a Democratic Party voter-registration drive. The protest was led by the Committee Against Registration for the Draft, and involved about 13 people at its height.

But CARD spokesman Greg Preston said, "This is just the beginning. We realize through what we read in the papers and what Carter has said that the U.S. is gearing up for war."

Another CARD member, Floyce White, 19, said, "I do plan to register but only because of heavy penalties of law if I don't."

When Carter arrived, the protesters began chanting, "No draft, no war," but few members of the slightly hostile crowd joined in.

In Austin four demonstrators were arrested in a downtown post office by General Service Administration officers while about 100 people outside joined hands and chanted, "Hell, no, we won't go."

The four allegedly refused to move when two construction workers wearing hard hats tried to register.

They were arrested and charged with obstruction, impeding and disrupting, and were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Phil Sanders who released them on $500 bond each.

In San Antonio, about 20 picketers marched in front of the downtown post office, carrying placards and shouting, "Hell no, we won't go fight for Texaco," and "One, two, three, four, Exxon's not worth a war."

About 40 young men were waiting in line to register when the post office opened.

A handful of hecklers jeered at the protesters from the courthouse steps, calling them cowards.

"You're parasites who like to take away from the government and give nothing to the government," one shouted.

In a scene slightly reminiscent of the Vietnam era, a young man and woman strummed guitars and sang anti-war songs while the protesters carried signs that said: "Sign up now. Reserve your plot at Arlington National Cemetery," and "No

Officials Claim

End to Recession May Take Awhile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation faces a painfully slow recovery from recession, with unemployment stuck at 8.5 percent through 1981 and pocketbooks continually hit by double-digit inflation, the Carter administration says.

An even gloomier picture of the economy is painted by the Congressional Budget Office, which is expected to predict about a 9 percent unemployment rate when its forecast is released Wednesday, sources said Monday.

The Carter administration released its revised economic outlook Monday, and it was drastically different than the original estimates in March, casting out any hope of a balanced budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

The administration now is predicting:

—A $30 billion budget deficit for fiscal 1981, a far cry from the $16.5 billion surplus projected in March.

—A $61 billion deficit for fiscal 1980, up from the $36.5 billion gap expected in March.

—A 3.1 percent decline in the nation's overall economy between last year's fourth quarter and this year's fourth quarter, followed by only a 2.6 percent rebound next year — the slowest recovery from a recession since World War II.

—Consumer prices will rise 12 percent between 1979's fourth quarter and 1980's last three months — slightly better than the 12.8 percent pace predicted in March — and a 10 percent jump next year, a little worse than the earlier expectations.

—Unemployment will rise from its 7.7 percent now to 8.5 percent by year's end, putting almost a million more people out of work, and will not improve during 1981.

Despite the dismal forecast, administration officials said there will be no proposal for a tax cut to stimulate the economy at this time.

"It is quite likely a tax cut will be desirable in 1981," said James T. McIntyre Jr., director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Carnival Begins

Most of the 180 Lions in the Hereford Club are involved in the carnival, which also features midway rides from Gene Ledel. Proceeds from the carnival are used by the local club for its worthwhile service projects.

To Drought-Stricken Texans

Carter Offers Heat Aid

DALLAS (AP) — President Jimmy Carter returned to the campaign trail Monday, capping a three-state fund-raising swing with a stop in conservative, Republican Dallas where he surveyed a drought-stricken farm and helped local Democrats fatten party coffers.

Arriving at Dallas Love Field 30 minutes late due to the area's first rainstorm in 29 days, Carter and reporters boarded a squadron of Marine helicopters and flew to a farm outside Justin, about 30 miles north of Dallas, where the president saw crops ruined by a searing heat wave.

"My heart goes out to you and I want to come here to dramatize for the rest of the nation the practical effect of the intense heat wave that has stricken most of Texas," he said.

Carter assured farm owners Olen and Myrtle Range he would hasten the flow of federal dollars to the sun-scorched Lone Star state, then called on the Almighty for additional relief from the blistering heat.

"We'll be praying for rain and cooler weather," the president told the Ranges.

He then traveled to Union Station, a renovated train depot in downtown Dallas, to be greeted by a handful of anti-draft protesters and about 1,000 supporters who each paid $10 and waved signs that read: "Thanks for the rain, Mr. President."

Obliquely acknowledging the anti-draft protesters, Carter said, "Today is the first day of registration for our young men to make sure that in the future that if we are challenged, we will be able to defend ourselves. We do not anticipate departing from a full volunteer military force. We are registering ... just in case we are challenged in the future."

The president also noted the United States has "respected the rights of all peoples throughout the world. Our commitment to human rights will never change and that is what we believe in," he said.

At that point, a 29-year-old member of the American Communist Workers Party was dragged from the meeting hall by a Carter supporter after shouting denials of the president's statement. "All is not right with American today," Oran McMichael yelled. "Today marks the day that the American working class youths are called on to give their lives for a few rich folks."

The man later was questioned by Secret Service agents, then released.

Later McMichael, a machinist for a Houston oil company, said he traveled to Dallas to "serve notice to the politicians and let them know that the American people will not stand for war, the draft or terrorism."

Carter was later interrupted by three hecklers and hesitated briefly before saying, "I think the American people, even including the Communist Workers Party, who is shouting back here in the audience, recognize that our nation is one that believes in human beings."

"... our nation has never failed to answer a question, to solve a problem, or to overcome an obstacle when our American people were united and when we saw the obstacle

Commission Tables Appraisal District

By DAWN OAKLEY
Brand Staff Writer

We lose a little bit now and a little bit later on, and all of it down the road," said Mayor Bartley Dowell Monday night at a meeting of the city commission.

"I think we ought not to go in until we have to," he said. "Every time you lose anything to state or federal government, you lose it forever. While we have choice, we should exercise it."

"Why not let them do all of it?" asked Commissioner Bud Eades. "Not going in is a good protest, but it doesn't mean anything."

"The only choice we have is now or next year," said Commissioner Wes Fisher.

"Let's not do it now," said the mayor.

"No, let's go ahead and do it," said Eades.

Thus argued the city commissioners last night for almost two hours on the proposed centralizing of a tax appraisal and collecting office.

The lengthy discussion took place after they had unanimously and with very little debate voted to raise the work deposit required of renters to $20 from the current $10. The new deposit rate will begin next month.

The issue the commissioners spent the most time discussing was the new Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District, and it ended up on the table.

The district, which takes full effect in 1982, is formed because of the passage in the Texas Legislature of Senate Bill 621.

The job of tax collecting, which is currently done separately by the city, the county and the school district, will be centralized in one state office.

The separate districts may opt to have the state office do their tax collecting for them also, but that is not mandatory.

The advantage to the taxpayer would be that he could pay all of his taxes in one office.

Although the city of Hereford would still determine its own tax rate, it would not be involved in the appraisal, and would therefore have little or no control over how much money it would have for its budget.

In addition, the City of Hereford would be responsible the first year for 12.75 percent of the expense incurred in the operation of the new office.

"This central appraisal office will kill the city homeowner," said City Manager Dudley Bayne.

"When you take control away from the elected entities and create a new entity over which you have no control," Bayne said, you're creating a monster.

Although the county is not required to go into this central office, they have opted to do so.

Besides tabling the Tax Appraisal issue, the commissioners also tabled, with little discussion, proposed amendments to the city electrical code.

Commissioner Emory Brownlow asked that a

Huge Car Insurance Rate Increase Sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Insurance Board statisticians will recommend an 18.9 percent average increase Wednesday in private passenger car insurance rates.

If approved by the three-member board, the increase would raise Texans' total premiums by an estimated $257 million a year.

Board staff members will present their detailed recommendations to the board Wednesday at the annual automobile insurance hearing.

Insurance companies are expected to request an even larger increase.

"It looks like the worst in 10 years," said Clint Dare, manager of the Texas office of the Insurance Information Institute.

The board trimmed or avoided rate increases in some past years by tinkering with deductibles or the formula for predicting future accident costs from past experience.

But board member Lyndon Olson Jr. indicated there was little chance of that this year.

Rainstorm Welcomed By Dallas Residents

By The Associated Press

A welcome thundershower that pelted Dallas-Fort Worth chiseled the first crack in the merciless high pressure dome that has stifled North Texas for a month.

Monday's showers were the first trace of rain to dampen the North Texas area since June 22. Scattered rains also fell in several other parts of Texas.

In downtown Dallas, diners in a popular restaurant applauded the first clap of thunder.

"It's like Christmas or a baby with a new toy," said Ralph Fike, an East Dallas service station employee. "I just washed my car yesterday, and I'll wash it every day for the next six months if it'll get us some more of this rain."

However, the National Weather Service warned the brief showers did not necessarily signal an end to the record-breaking heat wave that for 29 days has held the Lone Star State in its grip.

"The rain just cooled things off Monday. It was nice while it lasted. But that's going to be about it," said forecaster Harold McCrabb.

Phillips Explosion

Prompts Investigation

PHILLIPS, Texas (AP) — Two oil company chemists burned in an explosion at the Phillips Petroleum Co. complex here were hospitalized in critical condition today as federal investigators began new checks into working conditions at the plant.

Company spokesman Arthur Austin said the explosion occurred about 9 a.m. CDT Monday in the Philtex plant, located across the street from the Phillips refinery, scene of three earlier accidents.

Austin said two ethylene gas — ETO — cylinders blew out in separate incidents. Two men, chemists Ed Huxley, 62, and Marty Nash, 60, were burned over 40 to 50 percent of their bodies.

Both were rushed to Northwest

Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where Huxley's left leg was amputated. Nash also sustained a serious injury to his left hand, said Phillips spokesman Norm Berkley.

The men were then flown to the burn treatment center at Parkland Hospital in Dallas, where a nurse said the men were in critical condition.

Communist Office Attacked in Tehran

By The Associated Press

Supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini attacked the Tehran office of Iran's communist party, shouting "Death to Russia" and "Long Live Afghanistan." Meanwhile, 10 more executions were reported, and four more officers were sentenced to die for the military plot against Khomeini.

About 200 young Iranians scaled the wall around the offices of the pro-Moscow communist Tudeh Party on Monday, smashed furniture and windows and occupied the building. Apparently no one was hurt, witnesses said.

The attack followed a strong anti-communist address by Hojatoleslam Hadi Ghafari, a member of Iran's Parliament who supports Khomeini's campaign to purge Iranian life of Marxist influences and build a society along strictly Islamic lines.

The number of executions Sunday and Monday rose to 15 as the official Pars news agency reported six "counter-revolutionaries" were put to death in Dezful, south of Tehran, for importing arms, unauthorized crossing into Iraq, armed resistance, maintaining links with subversive groups and bombing railway crossings and oil pipelines.

clearly and the goals that we wanted to reach."

Following his speech, a Dixieland band played "The Eyes of Texas" while Carter shook hands.

"I think he's just great," said George Reed, a Dallas printer who pressed the flesh with Carter. "I think this whole thing is fabulous. It's too bad we have a few nuts to ruin it all."

The President's motorcade then traveled to the North Dallas home of Jess Hay, former Carter campaign finance manager and former national finance chairman for the Democratic Party, for a private, $5,000-per-couple reception.

Several Democratic state officials were on hand for the affair, to discuss campaign strategy for November, among other topics.

Carter campaigners consider Texas' 26 electoral votes critical in a campaign against Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, who enjoys widespread, strong support in the state.

Republican presidential candidates have carried Texas just four times since the state was admitted to the Union in 1845, but the Democratic victory margins the past 28 years have been very narrow, except for Lyndon Johnson's 1964 landslide.

A crowd of about 75 curious neighborhood residents was kept a half-block away from the Hay home by Secret Service agents.

Most of the crowd members said they were not Carter supporters, but were glad the president came because city cleanup crews had scoured the neighborhood before his arrival.

"I tell you they've swept our street practically every day and there's not a twig on a lawn," said Kay Vail, a Hay neighbor.

Another, Don Averitt, said, "We got the streets cleaned up and the chuckholes filled. It's wonderful. It's a big happening for this neighborhood." Asked if he supports Carter, Averitt said, emphatically, "No!"

After the hour-long reception, the president was driven back to Dallas Love Field where he boarded Air Force One for the trip back to the capital.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Hodding Carter III, who used to meet with reporters regularly as spokesman for the State Department, will soon be grading their performance.

Carter, 45, will be the anchorman of a public television series aimed at assessing news organizations.

He will also be the chief correspondent of the program, says Ned Schnurman, its creator.

Carter, who stepped down as assistant secretary of state for public affairs three weeks ago, is the former editor and associate publisher of the Delta Democrat-Times in Greenville, Miss., and author of a book, "The South Strikes Back."

Carter said the program, tentatively entitled "Inside Story," will report and comment on the way television, radio, newspapers and magazines cover the news.

"The press is an institution virtually all Americans depend on and it should be a subject for public scrutiny, as other institutions are," he said Monday.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Composer and football fan Dominic Frontiere says he's still a Monday morning quarterback — even if he is married to the owner of the Los Angeles Rams.

Georgia Rosenbloom and Frontiere were wed Monday at the home of Tampa Bay Buccaneers owner Hugh Culverhouse. Among those in attendance were National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle and the owners of the Minnesota Vikings, New England Patriots and Philadelphia Eagles.

Mrs. Rosenbloom took over the Rams after her late husband, Carroll Rosenbloom, drowned in the surf at Golden Beach, Fla., in 1979.

The couple did not reveal where they would be honeymooning, but Frontiere said, "Georgia, knowing her, probably will want to return to the Rams training camp as soon as possible."

The bride said she was worried about keeping her new husband interested in football.

Police Searching For Stolen Auto

A 1974 yellow Pontiac Firebird was stolen sometime between Friday evening and Monday morning from Warren Brothers Motors, 1410 E. Park, police said.

The car, which belonged to the company, was valued at around $3,000.

Police said they have no suspect in the case and have seen no trace of the car.

A child's swimming pool, valued at $30, was stolen from the home of Sylvia Silero, 108 Hereford St., and a three speed girl's bike was stolen from Travis Lovvorn, 525 W. 15th.

A kitchen window was shot out with a BB gun at the home of Modena Thornton, 109 Elm.

Target Gas, 601 E. 1st, had a hole knocked in one of its windows, but no entry was gained, police said.

Police also said that one minor accident occurred over the weekend, with no injuries reported. Twelve traffic citations were issued, one arrest made for drunken driving and eight miscellaneous incidents investigated.

Aliens

children," Seals wrote, "the majority exclude them (undocumented children) or require tuition."

Seals noted national immigration quotas are "disregarded" and that many illegal aliens come to the United States to become permanent residents.

"Uneducated children who eventually will be admitted into this country will never be admitted into the society," Seals wrote.

He also said the state penalizes schools which admit illegal alien children by refusing to count the undocumented students when tallying per-student state aid. He said that forced school systems into refusing admission for undocumented students, for financial reasons.

The suits, originally filed in 1978 and early 1979, were consolidated in Houston in December of last year.

The plaintiffs argued that to deny undocumented children a free public school education was a violation Fourteenth Amendment rights, and Seals agreed.

"There is no indication," Seals said, "that the framers of the Fourteenth Amendment intended to limit which individuals located within the United States were 'persons' for either due process or equal protection purposes."

Seals also took the Texas legislature to task for its failure to pass laws that would make it a criminal offense for anyone to employ someone they knew to be an illegal alien.

"The State of Texas," he said, "unlike other states, has rejected efforts to discourage the employment of undocumented workers."

"In 1979 and 1977, legislation was introduced which would authorize sanctions against employers who knowingly hired undocumented persons. Neither bill was reported out of the applicable committee."

He also said the many illegal aliens currently enjoy a form of "de facto amnesty" because of the pressure applied by Texas lobbyists to slow down federal illegal alien harboring laws.

"It is thus likely," Seals continued, "that many of the undocumented persons in this country will remain here for years as a result of government inaction."

"While they remain in the country they should not be denied the right to speak or listen."

Seals wrote that by denying undocumented children "access to education we insure that most of them will become wards of society."

He rejected the plaintiffs' contention that the law was not only unconstitutional, but violated internationally recognized human rights and international treaties.

During the trial, attorneys for the state argued that the admission of undocumented children to public schools would damage or destroy the schools because of the financial burden.

Reagan estimated Monday that the HISD cost of educating the undocumented children in the coming school year would be about $8.5 million.

The state also argued that there were not enough bilingual teachers available to handle the sudden influx of illegal alien children.

Regan said "only 50" bilingual teachers graduated last year from Texas colleges and that HISD was already short of bilingual instructors.

He said he would consider the possibility of hiring Spanish-speaking aides to assist teachers who spoke only English.

David Gibbs, who registered in Wichita Falls, said, "It's no problem... I wouldn't mind killing a few Iranians." And in Houston, about 20 protesters marched at the Sam Houston post office downtown, where military recruitment centers are located.

"I think registration is ridiculous," said Kenneth White, 19, as he waited in a line of about 40 to pick up a form. "The 20- and 19-year-olds haven't enjoyed half their life yet."

But Michael McNaughton, 20, said he did not oppose registering.

"It ain't gonna hurt nothing," McNaughton said. "If I'm drafted, I'll go into the Marines."

About 11 percent of El Paso's 19- and 20-year-old men registered Monday, and there were no reports of protests or incidents related to the draft registration anywhere in the city.

Draft

blood for oil. We won't die for Texaco."

Most of the protesters said they were older than the young men registering and had taken part in anti-war demonstrations a decade ago.

"I don't think they (registrants) have a choice," said The Rev. Balty Janacek, a Catholic priest attached to the campus ministry at San Antonio College. "They have to register. We shouldn't expect them to protest. It was our age group that passed the (registration) law."

Bret Murphy, 32, said he served in the Air Force during the Vietnam era.

"I learned my lesson the hard way," Murphy said. "I don't want millions more to learn their lessons the hard way. Our government is preparing to get us into war... they're trying to whip up feelings for war. But because of the Vietnam War, people are reluctant to believe them. They lied for years about Vietnam."

Taxes

inflation — as well as interest rates," Ullman said. "In my travels the message is becoming increasingly blunt: 'We don't want a political tax cut.'"

The hearings were scheduled after Republicans and their presidential nominee, Ronald Reagan, called for passage this summer of a $36-billion tax cut, which, starting next Jan. 1, would reduce individual income-tax rates by an average of 10 percent.

Miller said backers of any such across-the-board tax reduction should weigh its effects on inflation.

"Over the past 15 years, every period of economic expansion has driven the rate of inflation to new heights at the top of the (business) cycle," he said. "The ensuing periods of contraction have temporarily lowered the rate of inflation, but each time the rate of inflation at the trough has been higher than before."

President Carter and his advisers say any action to reduce taxes should be delayed until next year, when they predict the recession will have reached bottom and a recovery will have started.

The president met with congressional leaders today but there were differing reports on whether a consensus was reached on a 1981 tax cut.

Sen. Russell Long, who favors a tax cut beginning

Jan. 1, told reporters after the meeting that "we are not at war or at odds."

Sen. Wendall Ford, D-Ky., said in a separate interview that "the basic consensus of the group" was that there would be no stampede "into any political tax cut."

Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he believed a withholding reduction should begin Jan. 1 "and that we ought to do something about depreciation and that ought to apply to orders that are being placed now."

He described the sentiments at the meeting by saying, "We weren't in total agreement, but we weren't in total disagreement either."

The White House repeated its position that now is not the time to consider a tax cut when it released its mid-year economic review Monday.

"The administration believes strongly that the last months of a congressional session, in an election year, are not the time to make the kind of decisions needed for a skillfully designed tax program to improve economic performance," said James T. McIntyre Jr., director of the White House Office of Management and Budget.

Unless a tax cut is of the kind that will increase investment and productivity, Carter's advisers say, it is likely to worsen inflation.

In the new review of the economy, the administration said unemployment is likely to reach 8.5 percent of the work force by the end of 1980 and remain near that level most of 1981. The rate was 7.7 percent in June.

A tax cut traditionally has been the federal government's basic prescription for fighting unemployment. But the situation is different this year, say Carter's advisers, because of persistent inflation.

MATTIE BEAMS

Services were conducted this morning for longtime resident, Mattie Beams, 95, of 601 E. 3rd St., in Rose Chapel of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

The Rev. Mack McCarter, pastor of First Christian Church, officiated. Interment was held in West Park Cemetery under direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Beams died Saturday at 1:22 p.m. in Westgate Nursing Home after a lengthy illness.

Born Dec. 2, 1884 in Kentucky, Mrs. Beams, the former Mattie Lindville, came to Deaf Smith County in 1908 from Kentucky. She married George Beams in 1901 in Evansville, Indiana. He preceded her in death in January of 1965. Mrs. Beams was a member of the First Christian Church.

She is survived by two daughters, Nora Lawhon and Gladys LeGrand, both of Hereford; a son, George Beams Jr., of Dallas; four grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

Serving as pall bearers were J.B. Noland, Bill Bradley, Jim Shaw, Bill Howard, Richard Thompson, and Leroy Sims.

BILL TAYLOR
Bill Taylor, 45, Liberal, Kansas postmaster, died Wednesday morning at St. Luke's Hospital in Houston following heart surgery. He was the grandson of local resident, Mrs. O.G. Hill.

Services were conducted Saturday morning at the First Christian Church in Liberal with Dr. Harvey Moore, pastor, officiating. Interment was in Liberal Cemetery, under direction of Miller Mortuary.

Taylor was appointed Liberal postmaster in January of this year, and had worked for the post office for 21 years. He had been a lifetime resident of Liberal, except for time spent in the air force during the Korean conflict. He was born Jan. 24, 1935 in Liberal, son of the late George and Effie Lee Taylor, and married Belva Whistler, March 15, 1957 at Amarillo.

Additional survivors include the widow; a son, Curtis; a daughter, Mrs. Kory (Julie) Krause of Liberal; a brother, Robert of Liberal; a granddaughter; two aunts, Mrs. J.D. Neill and Mrs. R.A. Daniels, both of Hereford; and two uncles, O.G. Hill, Jr. and Foster Hill, both of Hereford.

MRS. O.L. (MAGGIE) RIEGER
Mrs. O.L. (Maggie) Rieger, 74, died Saturday morning at Mount Pleasant. She was the mother of local resident, Mrs. Alta (L.C.) Hudson.

Services were held Monday afternoon for Mrs. Rieger at Campbell Funeral Home in Spur.

Mrs. Rieger and her husband, Ocie, farmed in the Hereford area for several years. He preceded her in death five years ago.

Additional survivors include another daughter, Zella Kendrick of Cookeville and formerly of Hereford; a son, Nelson Rieger of Mount Pleasant and formerly of Hereford; 12 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; five brothers, five sisters, and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial services were conducted recently for Herman L. Gilliland 72, of Fort Worth at Moore's Funeral Chapel in Fort Worth with the Rev. Clinton Newhill and Rev. W.C. Taylor Jr. officiating. Interment was in Moore's Memorial Garden in Arlington.

VFW graveside services were conducted by Post members, directed by Tom Samples.

Mr. Gilliland died July 16 at St. Joseph Hospital in Fort Worth following a brief illness.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Ola Gilliland; three brothers, Clyde H. Gilliland of Hereford, Travis H. Gilliland of Memphis, Arnold W. Gilliland of Sherman; five sisters, Mrs. Eddie Mae Bradshaw of Amarillo, Pauline Gilliland of Dallas, Mrs. Howard D. Morris of Welch, Mrs. Raymond M. Spence of Marysville, Calif., Mrs. Lester B. Dum of Lubbock; and several nieces and nephews.

Pall bearers were members of the VFW Post.

Triage

Viewers of the popular television program, MASH, are aware that this drama about a field hospital in the Korean war is effectively anti-war.

Viewers have also learned about "triage." When a chopperload of casualties arrives from the front, doctors must make discriminatory decisions concerning which ones get treated first based on the urgency of their need and their likelihood for survival.

Triage is sometimes called "the lifeboat concept."

When too many seek safety in the lifeboat, some must be turned away—mercilessly if necessary, beaten off with oars—and left to drown.

When the alternative is to swamp the lifeboat and drown everybody.

Triage. For generations America has been the world's "lifeboat."

But in 1980, limitless numbers seeking refuge from poverty threaten to impoverish us all. A newsman friend in Miami, Bill Viands, has been describing the situation there from the point of view of the homefolks.

A large section of his once-beautiful city is charred rubble. The immigrant invasion has overburdened welfare rolls and compounded local crime.

From a comfortable distance the national news media preoccupies itself with the "human rights" of the Cuban masses "yearning to breathe free—the wretched refuse" of unhappy foreign shores.

And Bill demands at least some, if not equal, time to reply.

What about the human rights of the native born U.S. Citizen who obeys the law and salutes the Flag?

Whose biggest single expense in his entire life is taxes — 25 to 30 percent of his earnings — which he has been paying since he was a teen-ager. The only government checks he ever sees are the payroll checks received while serving in the armed forces.

He has never been in jail, has always paid his bills. He supports his church, his family and assorted charities.

He votes every election—yet politicians ignore the majority he represents in favor of the noisier, angrier, belligerent groups.

So the majority gets limitless immigration, crosstown busing, ever more welfare, employment quotas and metric measure.

Like it or not!

Now his heart breaks to see his city and gradually his country taken over by an illegal invading army.

He feels his government has abandoned him for them. He feels neglected, helpless, hopeless.

He is beginning to know how the American Indians felt 100 years ago.

Bridal Shower Hosted

A bridal shower honoring Linda Mercer of Waco, bride-elect of Steve Hazelrigg, was held Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Don Taylor, 328 Centre. Forming the receiving line were from left, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Truman Hazelrigg, mother of the groom, the honoree, her sister, Vicki Mercer of Waco, and her mother, Mrs. Marvin Mercer, also of Waco.

Bride-Elect Feted At Afternoon Shower

A bridal shower was held Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Don Taylor, 328 Centre honoring Linda Mercer of Waco, bride-elect of Steve Hazelrigg.

Receiving guests at the entrance were Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Truman Hazelrigg, mother of the groom, the honoree, her sister, Vicki Mercer of Waco, and her mother, Mrs. Marvin Mercer of Waco.

Seated at the registry table was Vicki Mercer. The table was covered with a cloth overlay made by the prospective bridegroom's maternal aunt. White daisies decorated the table.

Marie Stringer and Mrs. Georgie Sparks served finger sandwiches, cookies, punch and nuts from a table laid with white lace cloth, handmade by the prospective bridegroom's maternal grandmother. It was over a yellow cloth and centered with an arrangement of white daisies and yellow pom-pom mums with white ceramic doves on each side. Flowered yellow napkins were used.

Hostesses for the shower were Betty Taylor, Frances Crume, Nadine Lance, Georgie Sparks, Marie Stringer, Lois Lemons, Mary Herring, Elaine Rains, Helen Lee, Ruth Black, Marlene Watson, Joyce Wartes, Betty Owen and Lavon Nieman.

Merry Mixers Install Club Officers

Merry Mixers Square Dance Club installed their 1980-81 officers during their regular meeting and dance held recently at the Community Center.

Those installed for the upcoming year were Jerry and Lillie Shipman, president; Gid and Juanita Brown, vice-president; Carlyle and Dorothy Sargent, secretary; Arthur and Florence Robinson, treasurer; and Ed and Joyce Geiger and Cliff and Reba Allmon, special chairmen.

The club had ten squares dancing to the calls of Larry Linder of Amarillo following installation.

The regular scheduled dance on Aug. 15 has been changed to Saturday, Aug. 16 with Vernon Weiss calling.

Receiving Wrong Numbers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a few words to those people who don't know how to respond when they have dialed a wrong number?

Please, folks, have the courtesy to say, "Sorry, wrong number." Don't demand to know who I am or what my number is. And please don't slam the receiver in my ear without a word, as if it were MY fault.

Our phone number happens to be one digit off the Hyatt House and one digit off a local grain company. I have taken the trouble to memorize the numbers of both places so I can help people who are trying to reach them. Many times, in the middle of my effort to give the correct number, I am clicked off.

People, don't you realize you are the ones who have interrupted me when I was asleep or taking a shower? How about a little respect, please? - Pain In The Ear In Decatur

DEAR EAR: Bless you for a letter thousands of readers can relate to. My number happens to be one digit different from Marshall Field & Co., and I am so tired of getting slammed down on that I'm getting a new number next week. Thanks for the final shove.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A long while ago I read something in the Rhode Island Churchman that changed my life. Now I realize I was terribly selfish. I should have shared it with others. Will you permit me the privilege of doing so, at this date, through your widely syndicated column? I would be ever so grateful. - A Mother Who Needed Help And Received It (Cape Cod)

SATURDAY WITH A TEENAGE DAUGHTER

"Are you going to sleep all day? Who said you could use my hair spray? Clean the dishes off the table. Turn down that radio. Have you made your bed? That skirt is too short. Your closet is a mess. Stand up straight. SOMEBODY has to go to the store. Quit chewing your gum like that. Your hair is too bushy. I don't care if everybody else does have one. Turn down that radio. Have you done your homework? Don't slouch. You didn't make your bed. Quit banging on the piano. Why don't you iron it yourself? Your fingernails are too long. Look it up in the dictionary. Sit up straight. Get off that phone. You've been in the bathroom long enough. Turn off the TV and go to sleep!

"Another day gone and not once did I say, 'I love you,' Dear Lord, forgive me."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sorry, dear. You can't save money by buying things "out of season." My grandmother's advice is as good today as it was when she gave it many years ago. Here it is:

Use it up. Wear it out. Make it do. Do without.

- A Co-Worker At The Sun-Times

DEAR CO-WORKER: Your grandmother and mine must have been related. Thanks for bringing back a few memories.

CONFIDENTIAL to Which Would You Choose?: I would rather think well of myself than have others think well of me, because I might be able to fool others but I can never fool ME.

1926-43 Principal, Teacher Special Guest At HHS Reunion

The 1939-40 Class of Hereford High School held their second reunion in 40 years Saturday at the Community Center with special guests, G.M. Hudson and Miss Stacia Irene Crawford.

Saturday afternoon was spent visiting and looking over old pictures and scrapbooks from the old high school days. Several persons other than the 39-40 Class came by Saturday to visit with G.M. Hudson, teacher and principal at HHS from 1926-43; and Stacia Irene Crawford, English and speech teacher for several years at HHS.

Hudson now lives in Rosenberg and Miss Crawford resides in Amarillo.

Saturday evening the class had a dinner at the Community Center. The innovation was led by R.L. Dowell, Jr., the benediction was by Louise (Cress) Oldham, and the welcome was made by Master of Ceremonies Bartley Dowell.

Reports were made on the members not present and special recognition was made of the deceased classmates.

Prizes were awarded for Most Children to Edna (Urbanczyk) Reinart after a tie with Paul Lyons and Ann (Cockrell) Osburn. The Most Grandchildren was given to R.L. Dowell, Jr. with six; to Frank Vaughn, for the furthest distance from Lakeview, Oregon; to Grace (Bowen) Covington for having married first; to Miss Crawford for the Least Changed; and to Hilton Higgins for the Man with the Least Amount of Hair.

The Class voted to have another reunion in about five years.

Those in attendance Saturday were, Ernie Schumaker and wife Billie from Sunray, Louise (Cress) Oldham from Grand Prairie, Shirley (Cress) Johnson from Clovis, Bill Miller and wife Tillie from Hereford, Francis (Young) Euler and husband Raymond from Friona, Bartley Dowell and wife Jeane from Hereford, R.L. Dowell Jr., and wife Nona Deen from Amarillo, Ann (Cockrell) Osburn from Colorado and wife Ann from Lakeview, Ore., Warren Owen and wife Juanita from Hereford, Shirley Ruth (Thomas) Foreman from Stratford, Grace (Bowen) Covington from Hereford, Bud Cawthon from Hereford, Margaret (Allen) Hare and husband Maurice from Hereford, Gladys (Gore) Angelo and husband Clay from Hereford, Hilton Higgins and wife Peggy from Hereford, Edna (Urbanczyk) Reinart and husband Airhart from Hereford, June (Botsford) Neel and husband Ray from Amarillo, and Paul Lyons and wife Margaret from Hereford.

Special guests Saturday evening were G.M. Hudson from Rosenberg, Ouida (Hudson) Bergstrom from El Campo, Miss Stacia Irene Crawford from Amarillo, Mrs. Decima (Ramey) Beene from Friona and Mrs. Lois (McCaslin) Gilliland from Hereford and Troyce (Stambough) Hanna and husband Grant from Hereford.

Qualities Of An Effective Leader

By: AGNES TAYLOR
County Extension
Agent (Ass't.)

How do young people view leadership? 4-H'ers who've received college scholarships for their outstanding leadership roles say that, for them, an effective leader has these qualities:

- Creates an atmosphere of mutual respect between oneself and those with whom one deals.
- Remembers the importance of standing up, stepping up and then stepping back.
- Correctly received, interprets and sends both verbal and non-verbal signals.
- Willingly accepts and takes advantage of criticism when it's due.
- Realizes that leadership means giving, learning, sharing and developing the "best you possible."
- Above all, remembers that there's more to leadership than just being up front.

effective leaders of tomorrow is a major objective of 4-H. The 4-H leadership program encourages youth to learn by doing and to develop skills in this area by active participation in their local clubs and communities.

More than 190,000 junior and teen leaders are carrying out projects in a variety of areas, including work with handicapped and emotionally disturbed children, teaching horticulture to underprivileged children, and serving as role models for younger club members.

As an added incentive, 4-H'ers are eligible for awards arranged by the National 4-H Council. These include four medals of honor for each county and one expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago for each state. Nine national winners also receive $1,000 scholarships and two high-ranking 4-H'ers receive silver trays presented in the name of the President of the United States.

Youth interested in more information about the 4-H leadership program may contact the County Extension Service.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

I come from a family of pioneers.
My mother invented guilt in 1936.
My dad dedicated his life to trying to get nail holes in the wall to heal themselves.

And according to my children, I introduced the word "No" to the Western world. (Before that time parents used "We'll see.") Their theory is that at first I only used the word to get attention. Then I started to enjoy it and today it's such a habit I say "No" before they even ask the question.

It's a distinction I don't deserve. I am not the first mother in North America to use the word "No." In fact, there is no doubt in my mind that when historians decipher cave markings of prehistoric cave dwellers and discover etched in a rock a plaintive, "Mom! Can I eat the leftover bear?" her response chiseled below will translate into, "No! I'm saving it for lunch!"

The word "No" is finally gaining the respectability among child psychologists it has so long deserved. Some of them are at last spreading the word that "No" means love and character building.

When I told my kids this, they said they already had more character than Mt. Rushmore.

They never understood me. They always thought I got some kind of a cheap thrill out of saying, "No, you can't drift down the Ohio River in a plastic dishpan," and watching them fall around over furniture staring at me with the contempt usually reserved for a mother who picks her children up by the ears.

I don't expect anyone to ever fully appreciate that a mother makes more decisions in one morning than the Supreme court makes in three years.

"Can I borrow your camera to take to a beach party?"
"You wanta chapone our three-day-two-night prom?"
"Can I pierce the dog's ears?"

"Will you tell me where you hid the book that condenses every novel ever written so I won't have to read this whole book tonight for my report?"

"Can I wear what I've got on?"

"Can't I stay here for a week by myself?"

"Do you want me to grow up hating you?"

I went shopping with my daughter the other day and as I pulled on a bathing suit I turned around and said, "What do you think? Should I buy it?" She shook her head and said, "No."

"Why not?" I demanded.

"Because your entire body looks like it needs pressing in it. I'm saying no because I love you and it will build your character."

Somehow, it sounded better when I said it.

Expos Clip Braves

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Beanball? A menace to baseball? Don't talk nonsense. It's just a brushback pitch — and it has its purpose. So says Dick Williams. And his Montreal Expos and the Atlanta Braves offered a pretty convincing case Monday night.

In that launching pad called Atlanta Stadium, Gary Carter crashed a grand-slam home run in a six-run first inning and a two-run homer in the seventh while the Braves unloaded five home runs in their 8-6 loss.

"Now do you see why it's good to use the brushback pitch a little?" Williams, the last 105 years. The beanball isn't the term. It's brushback pitch."

And, with a laugh, he add-

Expos' manager, offered after the fireworks had ended. "There are no more now than there have been in the ed, "Evidently they didn't establish that tonight."

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston edged New York 3-2, St. Louis downed Los Angeles 5-2 and Cincinnati shaded Philadelphia 5-4. Chicago and San Francisco played 12 scoreless innings before darkness suspended play. The game was to resume today.

"It was probably one of the best nights I've had in the major leagues," Carter said. "But more than anything else, I'm pleased we won the game. I remember the last time we were in here, Larry Parrish hit three home runs and drove in seven runs, and the final score was Atlanta 8, Parrish 7."

Williams, too, admitted he had to hold his breath a bit. "A few rockets out there tonight. Quite a few...It's a good thing we had a six-run lead. I felt pretty safe — except it didn't work out that way."

His counterpart, Braves Manager Bobby Cox, added: "Six runs down, especially in the first inning. I wasn't too worried because we had 27 outs left to score, and the way we've been hitting the ball lately, I figured we had a chance."

Rick Matula gave up Carter's grand slam and Gene Garber allowed what proved to be his winning homer, enabling the Expos to edge two percentage points ahead of idle Pittsburgh in the East Division.

Winner Scott Sanderson allowed homers by Glen Hubbard and pinch-hitter Biff Pocoroba, then Chris Chambliss, Bob Horner and Jeff Burroughs jolted Montreal reliever with seventh-inning homers.

Astros 3, Mets 2
Some guys would be nervous, standing at the plate with the bases-loaded, two outs and the score tied in the bottom of the ninth. But not Terry Puhl. He calmly stroked the single up the middle that gave the Astros their victory and widened their NL West lead over the Dodgers to 1½ games.

"Pressure? I felt no pressure," Puhl said. "It was a rather calm task."

Frank LaCorte, 6-0, got the victory with two perfect innings, his first since being sidelined last week by a case of strep throat. "I don't think I'll get him sick anymore," Manager Bill Virdon joked.

Cardinals 5, Dodgers 2
A few good words of advice from St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog woke up Dane Iorg's bat after 83 homerless games as his three-run blast in the sixth inning carried the Cardinals past Los Angeles.

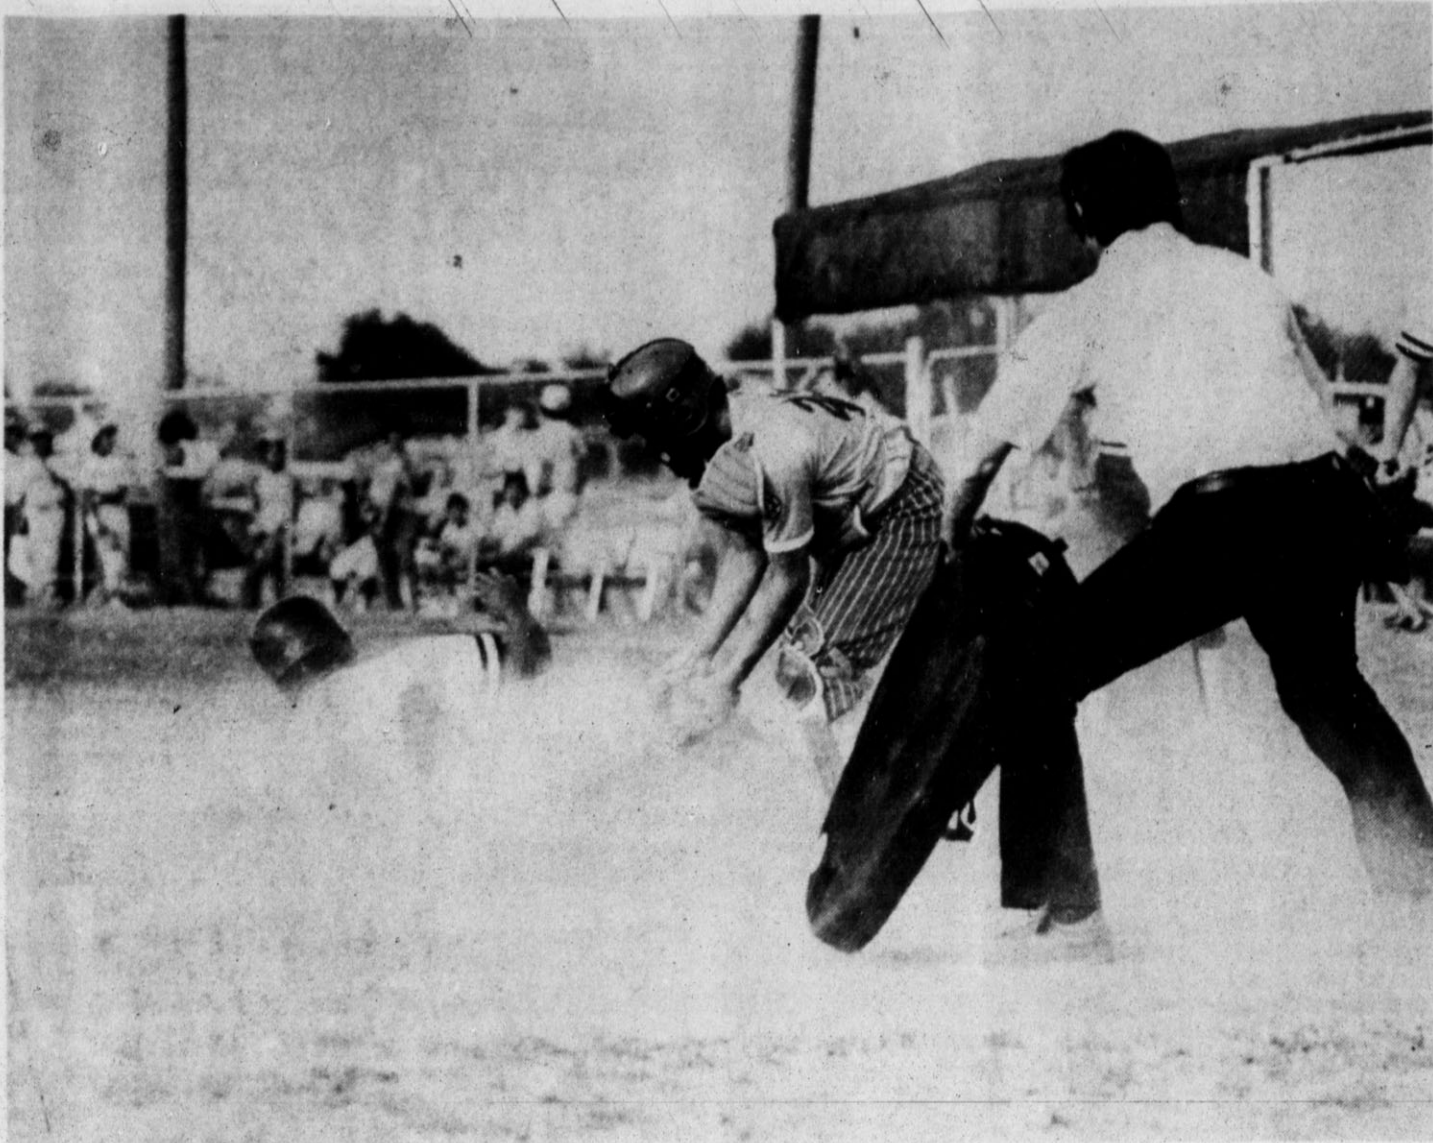

Reds 5, Phillies 4
Ken Griffey and Johnny Bench doubled to break a seventh-inning tie and, after a rain delay of nearly an hour, Dan Driessen singled Bench home with what proved to be Cincinnati's winning run that handed the Phils fourth consecutive loss and seventh in their last 10 games.

Q. On an especially hot day last week the radiator boiled over on my 1978 Ford Thunderbird. There was so much rust in the water it looked like red paint. What can I do to clean out the whole system?

A. You'll have to force the old coolant out by back-flushing. Fit a flushing T to the heater supply hose (the one running to the engine block or carburetor manifold, not the water pump). To find the correct flushing T size, measure outside diameter of heater hose and subtract 3/8 inch. To flush, attach garden hose to T, using adapter. Set heater controls inside car to "hot". Remove radiator cap and open drain plug. Run water until it comes out radiator neck clear. Run engine while flushing air conditioned car. Shut off engine and allow radiator to drain. Close petcock and add antifreeze until water forced out at T appears the color of antifreeze. This allows a 50-50 mixture.

Hereford catcher Raymond Martinez slides into home plate for a score in Monday night's Babe Ruth All-Star state clash with Perryton's Top of Texas All-Star squad. Hereford wiped out Perryton, 14-1, to advance further in the standings of seven-team double-elimination tournament. The squad is slated to meet Castro County at 5:30 p.m. today. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

DIMMITT—The site of the clash took place in a ball park west of Dimmitt at sundown. And typical of most western showdowns, the two opponents (in this case Hereford and Perryton's Top of Texas Babe Ruth All-Stars) had arrived for the states seven team double elimination slugfest with all their hired guns.

But from the beginning to the end of the lopsided 14-1 victory, Hereford commanded full edge over Perryton's beleaguered lot due simply to the fact the squad wielded the fastest gun in the West—a regular 'Have Gun Will Travel'.

Nicknamed 'Dynamite' by his cohorts, Rod Simon managed to put away a total of 15 potential batters while walking six and granting only six hits in the Hereford crew's walk-away win over Perryton (a victory that pushed his and Hereford's lengthening win mark to 5-0 in the All-Star Playoff campaign.)

That hurling onslaught combined with almost errorless fielding on the part of the Hereford squad permitted Perryton to make its only trip across the plate in the seventh and final inning of the contest.

And ironically enough, the one error made by the Hereford team kept the Perryton squad from being blitzed out of the contest as catcher Raymond Martinez and third baseman Mark Collier mis-cued on a trap play with Perryton's base runner in the final frame of play, thus allowing him to score the only Perryton run.

Even though Hereford canned the Top of Texas team with the massacre, it wasn't until the third and fourth stanzas of play that the squad actually presented a threat to Perryton. Both squads had charmed their way into a scoreless contest following the termination of the second inning.

But Hereford's bats started pelting Perryton in the ton of the third as first baseman Brian Taylor mainlined a double deep in left field only to be followed by brothers Robert and Raymond Martinez' singles for two Hereford runs.

Then in the fourth, after leaving two men stranded in the third frame, Mickey Stengal capped a double third base that led the way for a five run scoring spree.

Robert Martinez singled and was driven in by his brother Raymond off an error committed by Perryton's first baseman while Ricky McCracken chipped a double to center and then was brought home by Rod Simon's grand slam homer.

The Hereford tally wouldn't stop there though as the squad sent a run across in fifth and added up six more in the seventh frame following a scoreless sixth inning.

The squad is scheduled to continue its playoff encounter Tuesday night at 5:30 p.m. in Dimmitt as it pairs off against Castro County in its second state contest of the tournament.

Excessive Temperatures Hamper Nation's Athletes

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer

Weekend athletes seem to be wilting, but the professionals are holding up fairly well in the heat that is broiling most of the nation's eastern half.

No major sports events have been canceled so far because of the heat and, while several pro football players have been overcome by the high temperatures at mid-summer training camps, no serious injuries have been reported.

The daily readings in the 100-degree range, however, have cut down substantially on play at neighborhood tennis courts and golf courses in at least one city.

"We've noticed a big difference in the last couple of weeks," said Jerri McAbee, office manager at the Blackburn Tennis Center in Dekalb County, near Atlanta. "We have camps and clinics in the morning, but we hardly have anyone from noon to 6."

Dave Myers, head golf pro at Dekalb County's Sugar Creek course, said play has been down about 20 percent there since the heat struck.

"I've noticed virtually nobody is playing in the middle of the day, and some days no one will be there for an hour or two," he said.

While outdoor sports are feeling the heat, cooler endeavors are booming.

Municipal pools in Atlanta are staying open until 10 p.m. and Hank Jackson, the city's pool supervisor, said attendance is up.

"We've never been open this late," he said.

Bob Krouse, manager of Brunswick-Express bowling lanes in northeast Atlanta, said the heat has increased the sport's popularity.

"It's not massive, but things are usually slow in the summer and we've had two good weeks," he said, estimating a 5 percent jump in business.

Even the pros are making changes to cope with the heat.

The Cleveland Browns, training for the National Football League season at Kent State University in Ohio, have increased water breaks from two to five an hour, and have cooled players down with hoses instead of towels.

Walt Michaels, a linebacker for the Browns, apparently became ill from the heat at a weekend practice.

At the New York Giants' training camp in Pleasantville, N.Y., 11 players over two days were sickened by high temperatures, forcing the team to rearrange its practice schedule.

Two-day workouts are routine at this time of the preseason for football teams, but the Houston Oilers cut back to one session Saturday because of the heat. Coach Bum Phillips held that in late afternoon to avoid the hottest temperatures.

The St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL canceled a day practice at their St. Charles, Mo., camp and worked at night. And the baseball Cardinals used a rather unusual method of coping with the heat.

When the temperature on the artificial turf of Busch Stadium zoomed to 146 degrees, several Cardinal players dipped their feet — shoes and all — in water.

"You want to cool the metal off," first baseman Keith Hernandez.

Shreveport Slips By Midland, 9-7

By The Associated Press

Brad Bowman singled home the winning run as the Shreveport Captains exploded for 5 runs in the ninth inning Monday night to take a 9-7 Texas League baseball victory over the Midland Cubs.

In other Texas League action, Jackson clobbered El Paso, 14-4, Amarillo beat Arkansas, 5-2, and Tulsa edged San Antonio, 5-4.

In addition to Bowman's game winning single, Dave Wiggins drove in 2 runs with a triple in the ninth inning Shreveport outburst.

Gorman Heimuller, 3-5, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Bob Blyth, 5-8.

Bill Haslerig had a home run for Jackson as the Mets clobbered the El Paso Diablos, 14-4.

Mike Bishop, who leads the Texas League in homers, had his 23rd homer of the season in the sixth inning. Another sixth inning homer came from El Paso's Tom Brunansky, his 19th of the season.

Brendt Gaff, 7-8, was the winning pitcher. Charged with the loss was Rich Rommel, 3-3.

Stone Adds Up 13th Consecutive Win

Baltimore Grabs 12-5 Win Over Twins

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

The perfect pitching staff in the American League these days would have Steve Stone starting and Dan Quisenberry finishing.

Stone, who has become the ace of the Baltimore staff ahead of a couple of Cy Young winners, posted his 13th consecutive triumph Monday night as the Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins 12-5 in the nightcap of a doubleheader after dropping the opener 8-7 in 11 innings.

Meanwhile, Kansas City's Quisenberry took over the league lead with his 20th save as the Royals edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the New York Yankees 7-4, the Detroit Tigers clobbered the California Angels 14-3, the Texas Rangers downed the Boston

Red Sox 5-3, the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the Oakland A's 1-0 and the Seattle Mariners blanked the Cleveland Indians 7-0.

Stone blanked the Twins until the eighth inning, when they scored five times, three on a double by Ron Jackson. By that time the Orioles had a 12-0 lead as Dan Graham drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a single and Eddie Murray, who hit a solo homer in the opener, added a three-run shot.

"It's tough to be a star in a rotation that includes a three-time Cy Young winner in Jim Palmer and Mike Flanagan, who was last year's Cy Young winner," said Stone, who hasn't lost since May 5. "At the start of the season I was ticketed to be the fifth starter. This is absolutely the best I've ever pitched."

The Twins won the opener when John Castino, Butch Wynegar and Pete Mackanin singled off Tippy Martinez in the 11th inning while John Verhoeven scattered seven hits over 82-3 innings of relief for his first major league victory. The Orioles blew a 5-1 lead on Minnesota home runs by Ken Landreaux, Roy Smalley and Hosken Powell.

Ironically, Quisenberry was warned before the game for fraternizing with Farmer.

"I guess I might get fined," he said. "I was standing there talking to him while the White Sox were taking bat AL lead over Farmer, ires sent a messenger to tell me to stop. I like Ed Farmer. I wasn't thinking about taking the lead in saves."

Brewers 7, Yankees 4

Ben Oglivie had three hits and drove in three runs and Cecil Cooper added four hits and an RBI to help second-place Milwaukee reduce the Yankees' lead in the AL East to 7½ games. Mike Caldwell beat the Yankees for the eighth time in nine career decisions but lasted only five innings before giving way to Bob McClure. Milwaukee took a 3-0 first-inning lead when Paul Molitor, Robin Yount and Cooper, the first three batters, all singled, with Cooper's hit scoring Molitor. Oglivie scored Yount with a sacrifice fly and Sixto Lezcano tripled Cooper home.

Tigers 14, Angels 3

Steve Kemp hit two homers and drove in four runs, Richie

Hebner hit a three-run blast to cap a seven-run sixth inning and Champ Summers hit a solo homer in the ninth as the Tigers routed California. Kemp homered in the fourth inning and delivered again with two runners on base to wrap up a four-run fifth inning. Hebner connected off Dave Lemanczyk, who was charged with six of the seven runs in the sixth inning, all of which were unearned as a result of a two-out error by shortstop Fred Patek.

Blue Jays 1, A's 0

Toronto's Dave Stieb pitched his second consecutive shutout, a seven-hitter, and Al Woods hit a fifth-inning home run. Stieb struck out four in pitching his seventh consecutive complete game and his fourth shutout. Mariners 7, Indians 0

Tom Paciorek and Bruce Bochte each drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of Glenn Abbott. Bochte laced a run-scoring single in Seattle's three-run first inning and added a two-run double in the fifth. He also doubled in the third. Paciorek contributed an RBI single in the first and belted his 12th homer, a two-run shot in the fifth.

Texas Triumphs Over Red Sox

By DAVE O'HARA

AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Manager Don Zimmer of the Boston Red Sox says that in baseball "you take anything they give you."

Somehow that bit of philosophy has eluded his players this year. The Red Sox are doing the giving, American League rivals the taking.

The Red Sox failed to capitalize on a first inning scoring threat once again Monday night and went on to a 5-3 defeat at the hands of the Texas Rangers before 24,953 fans at steamy Fenway Park.

Boston appeared to have veteran southpaw Jon Matlack on the ropes as Rick Burleson walked, Dave Stapleton singled and both runners took an extra base on an error.

However, with Burleson on third and Stapleton on second and none out, the Red Sox came up empty. Fred Lynn lined to short, Burleson was thrown out at the plate on Tony Perez' grounder to short and Fisk grounded out to third.

"I don't know whether he (Matlack) was that good or the fact we're just not hitting," Zimmer said. "We had our chance to get him, but couldn't."

The Rangers, winning their third game in a row for the first time since mid-April, shelled starter Dennis Eckersley, 5-9, on six hits and three runs in less than three innings and added two more runs against Bob Stanley in the seventh.

Matlack, who underwent left elbow surgery last year, blanked the Red Sox on two hits until Carlton Fisk drilled a 2-2 pitch for his 12th homer with one out in the sixth.

Matlack gave up one more hit before retiring the side and turning over the pitching job to reliever Danny Darwin, who surrendered a two-out infield hit and Dwight Evans' eighth homer in the ninth.

Zimmer was puzzled by the Red Sox failure to hit southpaws in Fenway Park, once considered a graveyard for left-handers, after the club's home record against lefty starters this year dropped to 2-8.

"For six years I watched clubs come in here and bypass their left-handed starters," Zimmer said. "Now they're rushing them in at us. You figure it out. I can't."

The Red Sox hardly can rejoice in facing a right-hander tonight. Old nemesis Gaylord Perry is down to start for the Rangers against Boston's Mike Torrez, 5-10. Perry is 5-7 this year, but his lifetime mark against the Red Sox is 18-4.

In the only lineup change, Zimmer said All-Star catcher Carlton Fisk will start at third base for the first time in his career. Ailing Butch Hobson will be benched "until he's healthy" and weak-hitting utilityman Larry Wolfe will sit down.

Comaneci Makes Comeback On Beam

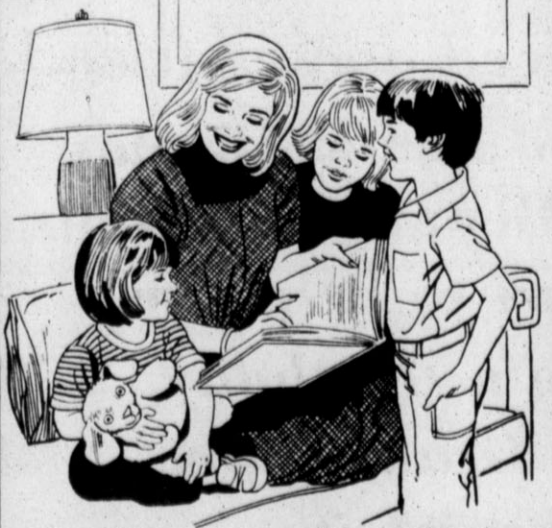

MOSCOW (AP) — Romanian gymnast Nadia Comaneci, who became the first Olympian in history to score perfect 10s, at the 1976 Games in Montreal, scored another 10 on the balance beam during the second day of competition and the opening day of gymnastics at the Summer games.

Soviet Natalia Chaposhnikova duplicated her performance on the vault in the first day of team competition, with the Soviets holding the lead.

The East German women swimmers got gold-medal performances from Barbara Krause, who broke her 100-meter world record for the second time in two days, this time with a clocking of 54.79 seconds.

Three world records were set, one was tied and two Olympic records fell. Sergei Kopliakov of the Soviet Union set an Olympic record of 1:49.81 in winning the men's 200-meter freestyle swim. Ines Geissler of East Germany won the women's 200 butterfly in Olympic record time of 2:10.44.

Athletes Want Out?

Afghanistan Official Denounces Defection Reports

MOSCOW (AP) — Afghanistan's top Olympic official has denounced as an "absurd provocation" reports that athletes from the Soviet-occupied country were trying to defect to the West.

The Soviet news agency Tass carried the rejoinder late Monday after Western correspondents reported they had been approached by Afghan sportsmen in Moscow asking about the possibility of seeking political asylum through the U.S. or British embassies.

Also on Monday, an Italian gay rights activist was quickly seized by Soviet security men as he attempted to stage a demonstration next to Red Square.

The plain clothes security agents grabbed and detained for up to one hour three Western reporters covering the protest and confiscated film from four still photographers and a television crew.

The episode provided graphic evidence that the Kremlin will not tolerate any kind of protest or demonstration during the Olympic "festival of youth and sport."

At least two members of the Afghan Olympic team have made repeated approaches to Western reporters at the Olympic Village.

In an incident last Friday, for example, an Afghan sportsman said: "Five members of our team want to go to the American or British embassy. We do not like it here."

However, at an impromptu news conference Monday afternoon, Afghan team leader Gholam Hassani claimed that no Afghan athletes had spoken to Western correspondents about defecting.

"These men live in Afghanistan and will continue to live in Afghanistan," he said.

Later Monday, Tass quoted Nassir Ahmad, general secretary of the Afghan National Olympic Committee, as saying the Western reports amounted to an "absurd provocation...invented in an effort to pass off white for black."

"The Americans invented the 'Afghan problem' and are now unwilling to part with it," Ahmad said.

The Afghan Olympic team had been hit by a considerable number of defections before coming to Moscow.

Seven wrestlers slipped out of Kabul on the eve of their planned trip to Moscow and made their way instead to Pakistan. Unspecified numbers of basketball and soccer players also were said to have defected earlier this year.

In the Red Square incident,

Italian Enso Francone, 32, of Turin, was seized when he attempted to handcuff himself to a fence near St. Basil's cathedral.

Francone earlier had said he was staging the protest to call for easing of strict Soviet laws against homosexuality and for the release of two men imprisoned on homosexuality charges.

Soviet security agents detained John Moody, the UPI bureau chief in Moscow, as well as correspondents Andre Birukov and Nicholas Meletich of Agence France Presse. Police confiscated film from all three before releasing them.

Another French Photographer also had his film confiscated, while security men moved in quickly to prevent an NBC television cameraman from filming the incident.

Swede Wins Gold Medal In Backstroke

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — An 18-year-old Swede with an aristocratic name and modest background has kept the Soviet Union from sweeping the first three men's swimming gold medals at the Olympic Games. No one, however, seems capable of stopping the East German women.

Bengt Baron of Finspang, Sweden, a town with population of 25,000, captured the gold medal Monday night in the men's 100-meter backstroke in 56.53 seconds. He edged Soviet favorites Viktor Kuznetsov and Vladimir Dolgov, who won the silver and bronze medals in 56.99 and 57.63, respectively.

"I would never have thought I could win an Olympic gold medal, at least not here and today," said Baron. "I still can't believe it and it will take some time before it really sinks in."

Baron also bettered the best American time this year of 56.66 by Peter Rocca, although Baron's best performance before the Olympics was only 57.77. He was not among the top 25 in the world in 1979.

"I just can't understand how I did it," he said. Sergei Kopliakov won the Soviet Union's second men's swimming gold medal as his time of 1:49.89 broke the Olympic record for the 200 freestyle. That bested the Games mark of 1:50.29 by Bruce Furniss of the United States set in 1976 but was short of the world record of 1:49.16 by American Rowdy Gaines.

"I was going for a Games' record," Kopliakov said. "I thought I could make it. As for beating him, well, he is not here."

Meanwhile, the East Germans have set a world or Olympic record in winning each of the first three women's events.

Barbara Krause, who at 21 is elderly in the world of swimming, broke her own world record in the 100 freestyle for the second time in two nights. She led a 1-2-3 East German sweep in the final in 54.79, topping her one-day-old mark of 54.98.

Caren Metschuck, who swam the freestyle leg on the world record-breaking East German medley relay team Sunday, won the silver and the 100 freestyle in 55.15. Ines Diers captured the bronze in 55.65. Cynthia Woodhead's American record is 55.63.

Ines Geissler won the East German women's third gold medal in the 200 butterfly in the Olympic-record time of 2:10.44, just one-hundredth of a second ahead of teammate Sybille Schonrock.

Michelle Ford of Australia prevented an East German medals sweep by taking the bronze ahead of 1976 Olympic champion Andrea Pollock whose Olympic record of 2:11.56 was broken by Geissler.

Irina Kalinina, two-time world champion, won the first diving gold medal in the women's springboard event with 725.910 points. The silver and bronze medals went to Martina Proeber and Karin Guthke, both of East Germany, with 698.895 and 685.245 points, respectively.

Soviets, Americans Share Legendary Hero In Spartacus

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MOSCOW (AP) — One of the priceless bits of trivia one picks up from mingling with the masses is that the Soviet Union and America share a legendary hero.

It isn't George Washington or Daniel Boone. It isn't Karl Marx or Vladimir Lenin. It isn't Bruce Jenner or Vasily Alekseev.

It's a guy who lived 2,000 years ago and whose favorite sports were wrestling lions in the Roman Coliseum and tossing javelins through the hearts of Caesar's legions.

His name: Spartacus.

Everybody who went through the sixth grade in the United States a generation or two ago is familiar with the name. Sixth-graders were forced in elocution classes to recite the stirring oration of "Spartacus to the Gladiators."

After that, their interest waned.

Not in the USSR. The dauntless gladiator who freed the slaves and waged virtual bare-handed war against Rome's might in the century before Christ is held here as a model of the Soviet revolutionary spirit.

"He was a very strong and courageous," explained Tanyan Petrova, a student at Moscow State University. "He symbolized the downtrodden who rose up against their oppressors."

The Spartacus theme is woven through the USSR's competitive and cultural life. Practically any school kid in this vast land of 262 million people can relate Spartacus' life story without a single hitch.

One of the country's most revered ballets is "Spartacus," which has been made into a film featuring Vladimir Vasilev in the title role and Natalie Bessmertnova as his wife, Frigia. The American movie version, starring Kirk Douglas, has filled theaters throughout the USSR.

A book on Spartacus, written by the Italian D'Avanoli, has been translated into Russian and can be bought at the corner book store.

Without searching through references, any of these students can tell you that in the century before Christ — around 73 BC — Spartacus was wrested from his home in Frakia, in Bulgaria, near the Yugoslav and Greece borders, and brought to Rome as a slave in chains.

Because of his great strength he was converted into a gladiator to fight and kill for the amusement of emperors.

"Spartacus organized a successful revolt among the gladiators," explained Yuri Mareev. "About 50 of them escaped. Then they made war on the Romans. At that time Julius Caesar was involved in a power struggle with Krass and Pompey, both later killed."

"After two years, Spartacus was captured and crucified like Christ," said Tanya sadly.

Legal Notices

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed bids addressed to the City of Hereford, Texas will be received at the City Hall until 2:00 PM, August 4, 1980, and then publicly opened and read for furnishing all plant, labor, material and equipment and performing all work required for an additional clarifier to the sewage treatment plant.

Bids shall be submitted in sealed envelopes upon the blank form of the proposal attached hereto and marked in the upper left hand corner. All proposals shall be accompanied by a cashier's check or certified check upon a national or state bank in the amount of five (5) percent of the total maximum bid price payable without recourse to the City or a bid bond in the same amount from a reliable surety company, as a guarantee that bidder will enter into a contract and execute performance bond within ten days after notice of award of contract to him. STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Former U.N. Ambassador George Bush, the Texan who slugged it out in the primaries with GOP presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, won his party's vice presidential nomination last week . . . and many Democrats believe it signals the Republican party's attempt to build a broad base among voters.

In Austin, Texas Democrats began preparing for a tough race in this state and the National Democratic National Convention next month in New York.

Behind the leadership of Reagan, Bush, Gov. Bill Clements, former Gov. John Connally, et al., — and a "now, if ever" attitude, Texas Republicans in the past year have added newcomers to their rolls, and are now prepared to play a whole new ball game.

The Anderson Factor

Independent presidential contender Ill. Cong. John Anderson may be on the Texas ballot, adding to the political twists of the autumn.

His campaign workers here turned in some 70,000 petition signatures to Texas Secretary of State George Strake, well over the 40,719 signatures needed.

Anderson's forces are expected to be challenged by a suit from the Democrats over whether Democratic primary voters are eligible to sign Anderson's petition. Strake has ruled Democrats may sign, and Atty. Gen. Mark White has ruled they cannot.

Battling State Agencies
The University of Texas System is expected to tell Gov. Clements it cannot comply with his demand to cut five percent of its payroll, although the regents agree in spirit with his efforts to cut the fat from state government.

Chancellor E. Don Walker insists that U.T. is not a "bloated bureaucracy," and a five percent cut would hit muscle and bone, not just fat.

Clements, who campaigned on a shrink state government theme, has been adamant about reducing state employees, but according ing to news reports, with little success.

One wise political observer commented that Clements and others, including Bill Hobby, Bill Clayton and a host of legislators, have succeeded in preventing unnecessary increases in spending. By making government "mark time" during a period of rising costs, the officials are, in effect, melting off the fat.

Apparently, that's not good enough for Clements, who now wants to beef up the inspection operations of State Auditor George McNeil.

Clements wants state auditors to perform in-depth examinations of state agencies, rather than "once-over lightly" inspections, as he calls them.

McNeil says he just wants "to be left alone," because his agency is doing fine. McNeil is appointed by the Legislative Audit Committee, which includes the Lt. Governor and House Speaker, and is confirmed by the Senate.

Odds and Ends

Arch Republican H. Ross Perot's company which handles the state's Medicaid program lost its bid to renew the $2 million Texas Medicaid contract, a group insurance plan for over 700,000 lower income Texans.

House Speaker Bill Clayton's Brilab trial date has been postponed until Aug. 18. While his lawyers rush to prepare his defense, Clayton hopes for an acquittal by Labor Day.

Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, campaigning for Railroad Commission candidates Jim Nugent and Buddy Temple, said he "wouldn't rule out" any future political race of his own, including governor or U.S. Senate.

Taxes on Energy

Attorney General Mark White was in Washington last week protesting other state's high severance taxes on coal shipped to Texas and at an Austin hearing with U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen on the windfall profits tax. Texas officials and taxpayers are outraged at the tax on backyard wells.

The Newspaper Bible

ARE YOU PUTTING FIRST THINGS FIRST?
There is no use trying to bring you back to the Lord again if you have once understood the Good News and tasted for yourself the good things of heaven and shared in the Holy Spirit.

And know how good the Word of God is, and felt the mighty powers of the world to come, And then have turned against God. You cannot bring yourself to repent again if you have nailed the son of God to the cross again by rejecting Him up to mocking and to public shame.

When a farmer's land has had many showers upon it and good crops come up, that land has experienced God's blessing upon it.

But if it keeps on having crops of thistles and thorns, the land is considered no good and is ready for condemnation and burning off.

Dear friends, even though I am talking like this I really don't believe what I am saying applies to you. I am confident you are producing the good fruit that comes along with your salvation.

For God is not unfair. How can He forget your hard work for Him, or forget the way you used to show your love for Him - and still do - by helping His children?

And we are anxious that you keep right on loving others as long as life lasts, so that you will get your full reward. Then, knowing what lies ahead for you, you won't become bored with being a Christian, nor become spiritually dull and indifferent, but you will be anxious to follow the example of those who receive all that God has promised them because of their strong faith and patience.

For instance, there was God's promise to Abraham: God took an oath in His own name, since there was no one greater to swear by.

That He would bless Abraham again and again, and give him a son and make him the father of a great nation of people.

Then Abraham waited patiently until finally God gave him a son, Isaac, just as He had promised.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Worries after hysterectomy

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 29-year-old female. Five years ago I had a large mass removed from my left ovary and there was a bleeding cyst inside of it. The doctor said it was endometriosis. Eleven months later I was pregnant with my first daughter. She was delivered by Caesarean section because of a breech position. A year later I began having severe pain on the left side and lower back. When I was to deliver my second daughter, again by surgery, my husband and I decided we couldn't take any more surgery and that our two children were enough. I had a hysterectomy at the time of the C-section, which included removal of the uterus, ovaries and the tubes. Currently I'm taking Ogen daily.

How does endometriosis affect the pituitary gland? Does the pituitary gland affect eyesight? Once the ovaries are gone, is the disease gone? Will I always have a monthly cycle of depression, irritability and swelling? Does a hysterectomy usually lower your sexual interest? Do most women going through early menopause have emotional problems severe enough to seek psychiatric help?

DEAR READER — To begin with, the tissue that lines the uterus is called the endometrium. When any of this tissue is displaced to other parts of the body, and commonly it's found in the ovary, it's called endometriosis. This displaced tissue undergoes cyclical changes secondary to sex hormone stimulation the same as the lining in the uterus itself. When it enlarges and swells, it causes pain. It can also destroy ovaries when they are involved or it can block tubes.

Endometriosis does not affect the pituitary gland. However, the pituitary gland stimulates sex hormones which, in turn, develops the endometrium whether it's lining the uterus or is elsewhere.

The pituitary gland is the master hormone gland that's underneath the brain and it's located right where the optic nerves from each eye meet. If it enlarges it can cause pressure on the optic nerves and affect vision.

Usually if the ovaries are removed, the endometrial tissue enlargement and degeneration cycle that causes pain will disappear.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-12, Hysterectomy, Cystocele and Rectocele, which will give you a lot more information about hysterectomies. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Young women who have had the ovaries removed as well as a hysterectomy often require hormone support. Otherwise, they have a premature menopause.

As explained in The Health Letter I'm sending you, many women do not lose interest in sex after a hysterectomy. Depression sometimes occurs after surgery even if it doesn't involve female surgery. If you're having what you interpret as excessive swings in your mood, it may be related to your life style. If they're more than the normal ups and downs that we experience, then you might need professional counseling.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm very upset about your column that you wrote advising the woman who had had frequent bowel movements that she should eat more bulk. You told her to include bran in her diet. Don't you know that people who have celiac sprue have to avoid gluten that comes in wheat and bran? Some of us celiac sprue patients have to run from one doctor to another for years before we are correctly diagnosed. Then when we are diagnosed, we're not always treated properly. If more of you doctors understood celiac sprue, we wouldn't have so much trouble.

DEAR READER — May I suggest that if you knew more about irritable colon, you wouldn't have made the remarks that you did. The column you referred to was about a woman who had had diagnostic tests by her physician. Her doctor had made a diagnosis of irritable and spastic colon, as was indicated in the column.

Now if you're going to get upset every time a doctor recommends increasing bulk in the diet for the large number of people in the general public who have irritable and spastic colon, you're going to be in a constant state of turmoil and that's not going to help your diarrhea.

The two conditions are entirely different. Celiac sprue is a very rare cause of diarrhea — its principle manifestation. Estimates run as low as three in 10,000 of the general population. The highest incidence in all the world is in western Ireland where it does occur in one in 300. In contrast, irritable and spastic colon is a frequent complaint. And in many of those people dietary changes are extremely helpful, specifically those that involve increasing the bulk in the diet through addition of bran and other foods that provide bulk.

Celiac sprue is caused by a toxic reaction of the lining of the small intestine to a protein called gluten, found in all of the cereals except corn and rice. It's not found in soybeans either. People with this problem have to avoid all of the gluten-containing cereals and all foods that might be made with them. Since flour and cereals are found in such diverse things as hot dogs, ice cream and cream soups, the list of things that have to be avoided is rather lengthy. Since you can't be sure what is in prepared foods, many such individuals resort to preparing all of their food at home from standard known items such as meat and vegetables. Rice flour and corn starch are often used for thickeners since flour is forbidden.

Now I'd like to point out that sprue is only one of many causes for diarrhea. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-8, What You Need to Know About Diarrhea, so you'll have a better understanding of the problem.

Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the valuable aids in determining whether a person has celiac sprue as a cause for chronic severe diarrhea is to eliminate all foods containing gluten, which I mentioned above. If the diarrhea problem disappears in two to three weeks, that is at least strong presumptive evidence that the gluten may be an important factor in causing the diarrhea.

When pants are painted

DEAR POLLY — I am desperate and need help in getting a paint spot off a pair of 50 percent polyester-50 percent cotton pants. I did not see the paint until a week afterwards. — DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE — Turpentine should remove oil base paint unless it is really set. Soak and then rinse out before washing the pants as usual. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When cutting fresh flowers like roses, hold the stem with a clothespin as you cut from the main stem. This prevents pricked fingers.

Pick up small splinters of broken glass with slightly dampened cotton. — FLORENCE

DEAR POLLY — Waxing window screens before putting them up will cause them to stay clean longer and dust will not cling as much. — MRS. H.B.

DEAR POLLY — I have a quick and easy way for spreading barbecue sauce on meat, particularly broiled chicken. After the chicken is broiled, put it in a large bowl, pour sauce over it, put a lid on the bowl and shake two or three times. All the pieces should be evenly covered. — PHYLLIS

DEAR POLLY — A sheet of fabric softener, even a used one, has many uses. When stuffing a new pillow, add a sheet cut into small pieces to the regular filling, and it will have a nice smell. Several sheets folded together into small squares make nice sachets for your drawers or linen closet. — EDITH

DEAR POLLY — To keep the knife from pulling the meringue off a pie, sprinkle sugar over the top before putting the pie in the oven. I find this works beautifully. — MRS. M.A.

DEAR POLLY — To make letter-writing to relatives easier, keep a paper handy and jot down daily happenings you might forget. The job is easier and the letters more interesting. — MRS. F.E.V.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Merit Blitz!

Low tar/good taste combination scores impressive
3-to-1 victory over leading high tar brands.

There's a low tar cigarette that's challenging high tar smoking—and winning.

The cigarette: MERIT.

High Tars Suffer Setback

Nationwide smoker research documents that smokers prefer MERIT.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed!

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and reported MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried!

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking.
And you can taste it.
