'Angel Arms' provides funds to help needy military personnel traveling home for the holidays

"Angel Arms" is reaching out to our local area.

This worthwhile venture is the creation of Esther Steinle, friend of Farwell's Vick and Denise Christian, and has spread like wildfire through our community. Its purpose is to help local needy military personnel travel home for the holidays.

Esther says some military personnel cannot afford to go home to celebrate the holidays with their families. Some are young or just recently located in our area. So she created Angel Arms to help them be with their families on important holidays or just in time of need.

It's a non-profit organization affiliated with the Matt 25 Hope Center in Clovis and is in its 3rd year.

Originally, Esther was simply looking for a way to give back over the holidays. While reading a novel, she found a section in the back of the book where the author asked readers to send in examples of community projects. One suggestion was sending servicemen home for Christmas.

So Esther contacted Cannon Air Force Base for suggestions.

The first year, she was given the name of a young serviceman who could not return home for the third year in a row. Esther talked with friends and soon collected enough money to buy the man an airline ticket home.

Esther had such a good experience with this act of kindness that she continued with it. "It felt like God kept it on my heart. I knew it could not just be one - I wanted to increase the number of people I could help," she said.

Esther then began working closely with Cannon AFB to find more military personnel needing financial aid. After establishing a non-profit status through Matt 25 Hope Center, Esther still had to wait about six weeks for approval from the Base.

With it, she her new goal - 6 soldiers going home at a cost of about $3,000. she spread the word and money started flowing in. It wasn't long before she had enough money for 11 servicemen to travel and she bought airline tickets for them.

A few days later, the Base called with one more name. With only $200 left in her account, Esther was not sure she could help. The 1st Sergeant insisted that he really needed aid desperately so Esther agreed to try.

While calling friends and making contacts, Esther thought to herself, "God will provide."

As she picked up the phone to make the reservation for the young man, it suddenly rang before she could dial. At the other end was a friend who had previously donated to Angel Arms. The lady said that she and her husband had discussed Angel Arms that morning and decided to donate another $400 toward the project this year.

With that extra donation, Esther now had enough money for this one soldier's ticket home. She definitely calls it a God thing.

The next year, Esther set her goal a bit higher and ended up sending 22 soldiers home using donated funds of $11,000. Her goal for this year has again increased -- she plans to send home 30 enlisted personnel at a cost of $15,000.

Right now, she has about $6,000 toward that goal, but she is confident that will change by the holidays. She is already making plans and reservations because she knows that God will provide a way to help.

Wind Energy project updated

The Parmer County Commissioners on Tuesday received an update on the wind energy project for Northeastern Parmer County.

James Scott, of Scatec, based in Denver, and who works in conjunction with Jim Bob Swafford's Mariah Project, said the company is still working on financial support and hopes to have all ends tied up by February.

The commissioners were told that drilling and working on the pads for the turbines will begin this month and should kick into high gear by the end of 2014.

Originally, they had planned for 200 megawatts in Parmer County but are now looking at 232. And if all goes well, the company feels the current goals could double.

The commissioners were told that the right of way for the transmission lines in Parmer County have been taken care of so they can connect with the major line in Deaf Smith County.

It's been about a year since the company received a 10-year tax abatement from Parmer County for the wind energy project that will go into effect after the project opens..

Under this abatement, for the first five years, in lieu of taxes the county will receive $2,000 per megawatt.

- In other business, the commissioners:
- Approved a resolution for seeking a grant for the county sheriff's office. If the grant is okayed, the funds would be used to buy in-car computers.
 - Received an update on the Panhandle Community Services, which helps needy folks, from Magi York.
 - Got an update from county veterans services officer Willie Dannheim.
 - Cast its votes for Kirby Burch and Tom Ware to serve on the Parmer County Appraisal District Board. The commissioners normally support Lazbuddie and Bovina residents so that all sections of the county are represented on this board.
 - Rescinded its recent decision to outsource the county's payroll. It has recently been learned that the attorney general has issued an opinion that payroll must be done through the county treasurer's office.

So, the commissioners voted to use direct deposits through the county treasurer's office for payroll.

Also, county employees will be required to have a checking account for the direct deposits.

Character Counts

Character Counts was celebrated Oct 21-24 at Texico Schools. Kye Thomas' 8th grade Leadership class gave presentations to all elementary class about having good character throughout the week. On Thursday, students dressed in a specific color representing each of the six pillars of character: Trustworthiness, Respect, Responsibility, Fairness, Caring, and Citizenship. 'Angel Arms' From page 1

Esther says that the soldiers are often shocked that someone cares enough to think about sending them home for the holidays. One of her favorite things about the program is hearing the stories of the enlisted men and women who benefit from Angel Arms.

Each year after the holidays, Angel Arms hosts a reception for all of the servicemen in the program. This yearly reception joins donors and recipients together for a night of storytelling and bonding.

One of last year's recipients had a heart-breaking and heartwarming story to share. The man got to visit with his entire family when he traveled home for the holidays. He said it was wonderful to spend time with everyone after being away for so long.

Not long after his return to base, the young man received a call that his brother had been shot and killed. He couldn't stress enough to the donors how thankful he was that he got the opportunity to visit his brother before he died.

Esther says stories like this keep her striving to expand and help as many servicemen and women as possible. She says that she "has lived here all my life" and the base has been a big influence.

"Knowing what they do for our country – their sacrifices for us – I am blessed to get to do this for them." She also stresses that all of these servicemen and women deserve appreciation. The Angel Arms program offers a little perk for these dedicated people who sacrifice so much.

"I would like to see other communities take this on and help as many servicemen as possible," she added.

Anyone interested in finding out more about Angel Arms can call the Matt 25 Hope Center at (575) 763-4400 or visit www.matt25clovis.com.

Billy Harbison

Billy Harbison, 85, of Bovina, went to be with the Lord on Oct. 23, 2013, following a brief illness.

Billy was firstborn of twin boys born to Walter Wade Harbison and Audrey Agnes (Carnes) Harbison on Sept. 1, 1928, in Wills Point, Texas. He married Katherine Joyce Burkett in Edcouch, Texas on Oct. 9, 1953. Billy worked on the family farm until he entered the U.S. Army. He was stationed in Anchorage, Alaska, and loved to share stories of his time there.

After his service to his country, Billy continued working on the family farm in South Texas and began a career working as a foreman in the cotton ginning business (retiring from Lawlis Gin in 1990) in Bovina and South Texas. Billy and Katherine lived in Edcouch and Weslaco, Texas, before making Bovina their permanent residence.

Upon retirement, Billy and brother Bobby had adjoining lots at the Arroya Estates in South Texas where he loved to spend time fishing and boating. Billy always looked forward to planting a garden with Brenda and Randy and enjoyed tending to the garden and reaping the harvest.

Billy never tired of telling stories about he and his twin brother Bobby and how they grew up as kids and what pranksters they were. Billy would always joke of getting the best of Bobby.

Billy is survived by 3 daughters, Brenda Kirkpatrick (Randy), and Lou Ann Walling (Haden), both of Bovina, and Joyce Kube (David) of Texico; his twin brother, Bobby (Janie) Harbison, of Montgomery, Texas.

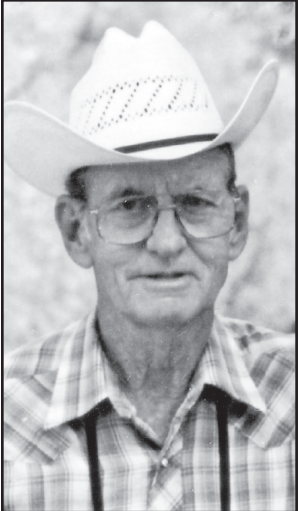

Billy was a proud granddad to 8 grandchildren: Alan Hromas, Tyler (Beth) Walling of Phoenix; Melissa (Marcus) Bell of Dallas; Rachel (Shane) Hill, Laura Gilbreath, Emily Kube of Texico, and Tanner Kube of Elida, N.M.; and a great-grandson Gabriel Alan Walling of Phoenix.

He is also survived by a nephew, Ray (Debbie) Harbison and two nieces, Linda Stanford and Joy (James) Moore.

Billy was a wonderful father, brother, granddaddy, great-granddaddy and uncle to his family and will be greatly missed.

Billy was preceded in death by his parents; his wife and the love of his life, Katherine and grandson Spencer Kube.

A private graveside service will be held at a later date. Memorial contributions may be made to the Mt. Olivet Cemetery Association, in care of Security State Bank, P.O. Drawer J, Farwell, TX, in loving memory of Billy Harbison.

Correction. In last week's State Line Tribune, it was reported that Hamlin Memorial United Methodist Church is offering an after-school program.

They are working on putting the program together, and the announcement was a bit premature at this time.

The railroad crossing between Texico and Farwell remained closed this week to allow the railroad to safely perform work to re-plank the crossing.

Traffic will continue to detour via FM 292. All east- and westbound traffic will be detoured.

Work on the project is expected to wrap-up Nov. 15, weather permitting.

Lazbuddie's Shyann Rainey qualified for the TGCA Cross County Academic All-State Team.

Her coach is Janene Jesko.

Farwell's Kamarie Schmidt and Sara Scott have been named to Eastern New Mexico University's Greyhound Sound Marching Band.

Texico School considers bond election for 2015

The Texico School Board on Monday met with two marketing experts to discuss a possible future bond issue.

They are looking at new roofs and other projects.

It appears the board will wait until 2015 to have a bond election because that would allow for more bonding capacity over having a bond election in 2014.

The last bond issue has been paid off.

In other business, the board:

- Heard a presentation by about six junior high students on their science projects that showed at the recent family night.
- Noted that the basketball calendars are now on the school website.
- Heard that the annual Citizens Bank basketball tournament will be a "shootout" this year.

Due to the date change. only four teams were signed up and it will be a round-robin format.

On the girls side, Texico will take on Melrose.

On the boys side, the teams will be Texico, Melrose and Hobbs JV.

With a late date for Thanksgiving this year, a week has been "lost" between that holiday and Christmas, causing scheduling problems.

Farwell School salaries discussed

The Farwell School Board on Monday discussed the salary schedule for 2014-2015 for aides, clerical and manual trades employees.

No action was taken.

In other business, the board:

- Plans to look at the school's tax rate (currently $1.04 per $100 assessed valuation) at its December meeting. Depending on the amount of a raise, an election might be needed.
- Heard that the school band concert will be Dec. 9.
- Heard Supt. Kelly Lusk report that he will check into the possibility of working with Friona School on a cooperative alternative school program.

This is when an alternate setting is needed, according to state rules, for students who get into trouble.

Friona School has such a program.

"We need to have this available," said Lusk. "But we hope we won't need to use it."

-- Cast its votes to have Tucker Crawford on the Parmer County Appraisal District Board.

Texico to open state playoffs

The young Texico Wolverines open state playoff action on Friday at 7 p.m. mst at Laguna-Acoma. Laguna-Acoma is between Albuquerque and Grants and is about a 4 1/2 hour drive. The Wolverines will again be without starting QB Justin Rucker, who suffered a concussion two weeks ago. Against Clayton, Texico started backup QB Kendall Naceanceno, who played with a pulled hamstring injury. Clayton shut out the Wolverines, 50-0, last Friday there. Clayton is ranked No. 2 in Class 2A, having only lost to No. 1-rated Santa Rosa. Texico is now 4-6 on the year. Josh Tredway kicked off to the Clayton 40 and the Yellow Jackets took an early 6-0 lead. Freshman Ramon Garcia took the Clayton kick out to the 35 but Texico was held and punted to near midfield.

Tackles by Zach Harrison and Kendall Naceanceno slowed the Jackets, but Clayton scored again midway through the first quarter. Adrian Gomez returned the kick to the 20. Mitchell Pinnell carried to the 38 but the drive stalled. Nick Loera punted deep into Jacket territory. Freshman Mason Golden had a tackle for a loss and the Jackets were pinned back on their 5. But a pass and a long run got a score and a 22-0 lead. On offense, Pinnell carried the ball eventually to the 40 but the drive stalled and Loera punted. Good defense by Harrison and freshman Brayden Herrington slowed the Jackets down. A good tackle by Pinnell and pressure by John Myers on 4th and 18

‘42’ tourney date moved

A note from local “42” honcho Jerry Whitney: Since the 5th Friday tournament date is the day after Thanksgiving, we will host our 4th quarter tournament on Dec. 6. The quarterly tournament normally costs to play, but I have been saving the money left over from each previous tournament (after expenses) and will go to the trophy store and actually buy trophies (instead of the framed certificates) to give to 1st, 2nd, and 3rd places. Thus, there will be no cost to play the final end of the 2013 tournament. Please bring snacks for everyone to enjoy. Water and tea will be available for free. Sodas are 75 cents each. The tournament will be held at 211 N. Griffin in Texico and is hosted by the Texico Senior 42 Club.

Coach Kevin Roberts said that Reagan Roberts and Haldon Ivy, right, were the key players that spearheaded the Longhorns throughout the season.

Whitharral turns away Longhorns

It was for all intents a “playoff game,” since the winner would advance to the state playoffs. Last Friday, Whitharral turned away the Lazbuddie Longhorns, 70-42. The 'Horns finished District with a 1-2 record. And Coach Kevin Roberts is looking ahead to 2014 already. “We only lose two seniors, Luis Godinez and Macoy Ruthardt,” he said. “If all come together next year, it should be a lot of fun for us.” Whitharral had a very speedy back that the 'Horns were unable to contain. Again, injuries hurt the 'Horns, who basically only could play 7 athletes in the game. Albert Solano and Ruthardt were out. Darrell Bishop fell (not in contact) and suffered a concussion. And Godinez could only play sparingly due to his knee. “Our team played like champions,” said CoachRoberts. “We were matching Whitharral point by point until they pulled away. Our team gave its all.” Reagan Roberts and Haldon Ivy were the top 'Horns tacklers. Offensive stats were: Eric Sanchez - 17 rushes for 87 yards; and 3 receptions for 36 yards and 2 TDs. Ivy -- 5 rushes for 37 yards; 7 receptions for 81 yards and 2 TDs. Roberts - 6 rushes for 38 yards and 2 TDs; and 19 of 29 passes for 229 yards and 3 TDs. T.J. Beckerink - 2 receptions for 22 yards. Gabe Beckerink - 4 receptions for 40 yards. Gabe Reza - 1 catch for 9 yards, and connected on three extra point kicks (good for 6 points). Garrett Page - 1 reception for 30 yards.

Border Banter

--Mike Pomper

Over the years, I have gotten to know a lot of coaches. Each year, the Tribune works with more than 20 coaches, for example.

I like to see our teams win but accept the fact that our small schools in Texas have a lot of challenges. It's a big state with more than 250 teams in Class 1A, for example.

And when an injury occurs to a key player, such as a quarterback or running back, it's not often a team can continue to play at its best level. Small schools simply don't have the depth.

When fall practice was held at Lazbuddie, it looked really good for the 'Horns to field a play-off team. But injuries across the board took quite a toll.

Texico's Wolverines recently took a hit when its top QBs were injured. The kids keep playing as hard as they can, but it's a tough situation.

Farwell and Bovina also both had stretches this year when injuries hampered the teams.

So after watching our area teams compete for the past 30 years, I have learned not to judge a team on its win-loss statistic, but rather on whether the team improves from when the season began to its season finale.

If improvement among the kids is shown, then I feel their season has been successful.

As longtime readers know, I am a strong fan of football in the way it helps young boys mature into young men. Football teaches a lot of important virtues, like teamwork and sportsmanship and discipline and learning not to quit.

So each season, despite the win-loss ratio, I see a lot of successes in our area teams and their athletes.

I view high school football in a positive light that way.

How do you view it?

Politics always fascinates me.

In our nation, we have basically a two-party system, Democrats and Republicans.

Periodically, there are third parties, such as Libertarians. And, of course, some folks run as Independents.

But unless you are quite well known, like when Joe Lieberman ran and won as an independent Senate candidate in Connecticut, most folks don't win unless they run as Republicans or Democrats.

That could very well change down the road, but at this point, I think I am correct in my thinking.

Let's take a look at last week's election for governor of Virginia. The Democrat won, 48 percent to 45 1/2 percent over the Republican.

Wait, that doesn't add up to 100 percent. What gives?

Well, there was a Libertarian candidate, and he got the rest of the votes -- more than 6 percent.

Most of us don't know a lot about the Libertarian philosophy but the Tribune has been fortunate to run periodic columns by Kent McManigal, a libertarian advocate, discussing his group's thinking.

In my opinion, libertarianism puts a premium on the individual while putting a halt on government's over-reaching.

(P.S. And I'm sure if I mess this column up, Kent will have a friendly correction in next week's Tribune).

The first Libertarian I ever met was in the mid-1970s when a Libertarian Party candidate for Indiana governor stopped at my newspaper and I had the opportunity to interview him. He impressed me.

The way I see it, folks who view the Libertarian Party in a positive light - and if no Libertarian was on the ticket, they would vote Republican far more than Democrat.

Thus, I believe that if no Libertarian candidate had run for Virginia governor, then the Republican candidate would have won.

Would I then be correct to say then that by having a Libertarian Party candidate on the ballot threw the election to the Democrat?

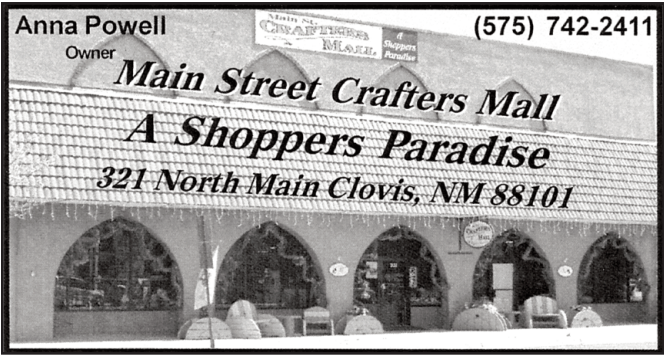

Yes, I understand the importance to the Libertarian movement to have candidates in each state for the top offices. So in the long range, it's a plus.

But in the short range? At what cost?

Farwell cemetery gets flag pole

Farwell city workers Ron Devou and James Johnson put up a new flag pole at the Farwell City Cemetery on Nov. 8, just in time for Veteran's Day. The new flag pole features lights powered by solar energy to light the flag at night.

I thought it might be fun to take a look at the aging process and how our viewpoints change as we advance from one generation to another.

For example, when I was a pre-teen, we talked about how badly we wanted to reach the apparent wonderful status of the teen-age world.

Farther down the line, we often mused about becoming doctors, railroad engineers or -- the most high of all of life's ambitions, pilot of a magnificent B-29 bomber.

Not all young-un's had that exact ambition, but each kid had his own dream.

Some of us played a little sandlot baseball, or marbles, or even mumblety peg. Never heard of mumblety peg, you say?

It was popular in the 19th century and first half of the 20th century and could be played different ways.

One featured trying to "stick" a pocket knife near your foot. Another was to stick the blade deep into the ground, then your opponent had to pull it out with his teeth.

Another line of play was to put the point of the knife on the left index finger and throw it to stick it in the ground point first. The next player attempts, in the same manner, to stick his knife in the ground with the cutting edges matching. When this rarely happened, the second player won the first player's knife. I never did see that happen.

When I was growing up, there were no computers, smart phones or any of the electronic devices of today. Those of us who lived in towns had others to associate with; those who lived out on the prairie were forced to entertain ourselves with a few cheap toys and our imagination.

Moving into our teens, our lives changed into a more mature set of dreams and conversations. Our attention span grew, and we began to notice girls. We began to actually think that they just may be of human form.

Conversations still wrapped around what we wanted to do with our lives. We talked about cars and far-away places, of playing for the Brooklyn Dodgers or the Yankees, or maybe even becoming a policeman.

This was our lives.

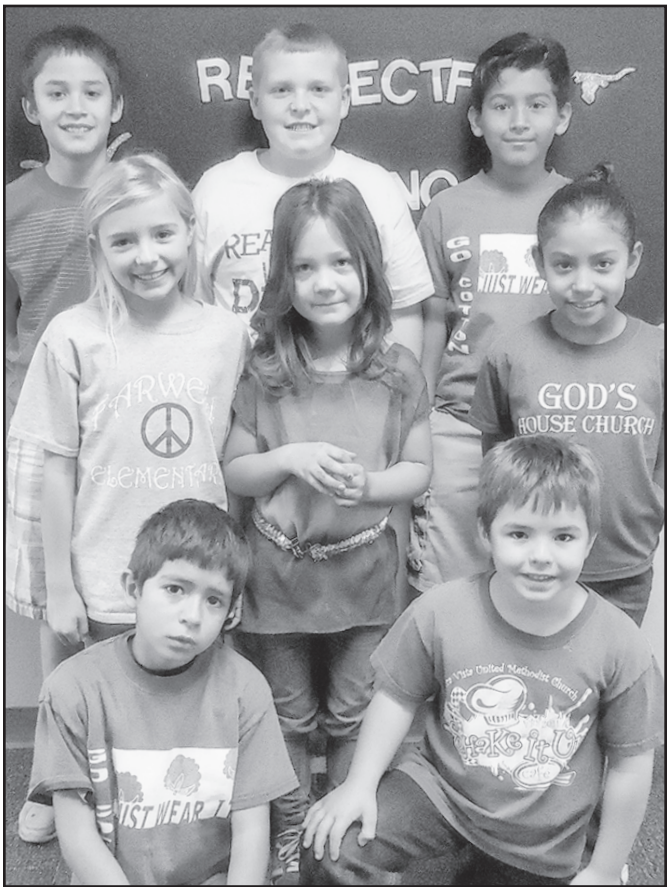

But a significant change was taking place.

Girls had become the mainstay of our conversations. Even when we were alone, girls seemed to dominate our thoughts; we were actually interested in getting to know them.

Most of us now began to take a serious interest in girls and wondered "would she go out with me." More intently, we talked about girls, cars, girls, college, and sometimes ... girls.

Oops, here comes another of those darned off ramps.

See you in a few miles with a continuation of looking at the aging process.

Texico students learn about Inidan tribes

The Texico 5th grade classes recently researched different Indian tribes. Each student completed a research project, oral presentation and a model of Indian life for their tribe. The 5th graders then displayed their Indian habitats for the entire school to learn about them. This is a yearly project for the 5th grade Texico students. Each year they come up with incredibly unique and creative designs for their habitat projects.

Steers win District

The Farwell Steers are football District champions.

The Steers, Sudan and Springlake-Earth all finished with 3-1 records.

But due to the way points are figured,

How times change

How times can change in 50 years.

Here's a look back at the businesses that sponsored the Tribune church services ad back in 1963:

- Kelly Green Seed, owned by Pat Patrick.
- Rose Drug & Gift.
- Watts Machine & Pump.
- S&S Furniture.
- Spur Restaurant, owned by Mr. and Mrs. C.W. Cathey.
- City Cleaners.
- Sheets and Son.
- Continental Oil Co., with Paul Wurster agent.
- Farwell Hardware, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Clay Henson.
- Hughes Auto Parts.
- Live Longer Laundry.
- Sherley-Anderson-Pitman.
- Gladys' Ready to Wear.
- Kemp Lumber Co., with Joe Crime as manager.
- Village TV and Electronics, owned by Ray and Irma Stone.
- State Line Food Mill, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Porter.
- Lebow's Hotel and Cafe.
- Farwell Motor Co., owned by "Stoney and Leroy."
- State Line Tribune.
- Farwell Plumbing Co., owned by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Birchfield.

Farwell came in as the No. 1 seed in the District for the state playoffs.

That means that Sudan and Springlake-Earth have football playoff games this weekend, while the Steers get a bye week.

Springlake-Earth will play Seagraves and Sudan will play

Crosbyton.

Since Farwell ended its season with a bye week, that means the team will have two weeks off before starting the state playoffs.

Thus, the Steers will play this week's winner of the Vega-Shamrock game between Nov. 21 and 23.

Lazbuddie seeks grant for water well, tanks

Lazbuddie Schools are seeking a $350,000 grant from the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission to build a water well and storage tanks.

A hearing on the request will be held on Nov. 21. A legal ad is elsewhere in today's Tribune.

Actually, Parmer County is seeking the grant on Lazbuddie's behalf because the PRPC does not give grants directly to schools.

Short-term vs. Long-term Investments: What's the Difference

At various times, many people may feel frustrated by the performance of their investments. For example, they expect growth, and they don't get it — or they think the value of their investment won't fluctuate much, but it does. However, some of this frustration might be alleviated if investors were more familiar with the nature of their investment vehicles. Specifically, it's important to keep in mind the difference between long-term and short-term investments.

What defines long-term and short-term investments? Long-term investments are those vehicles that you intend to hold for more than one year — in fact, you generally intend to hold them for several years. On the other hand, you usually hold short-term investments for one year or less.

You can find several key distinctions between short-term and long-term vehicles. Here are a few to consider:

- They carry different expectations. When you purchase an investment that you intend to keep for many years, you may be expecting the investment to increase in value so that you can eventually sell it for a profit. In addition, you may be looking for the investment to provide income. When you purchase a short-term vehicle, you are generally not expecting much in the way of a return or an increase in value. Typically, you purchase short-term investments for the relatively greater degree of principal protection they are designed to provide.
- They meet different needs at different times of life. You will have different investment needs at different times of your life. When you're young, and just starting out in your career, you may require a mix of long- and short-term investments. You might need the short-term ones to help pay for a down payment on a home, while the long-term ones could be used to help build resources for your retirement. But later in life, when you're either closing in on retirement, or you're already retired, you may have much less need for long-term vehicles, with a corresponding increase in your need for short-term investments.
- They can satisfy different goals. If you purchase investments that you intend to hold for the long term, you probably have a long-term goal in mind — such as building resources to help pay for a comfortable retirement or leaving a legacy. On the other hand, a short-term investment would be more appropriate if you know that you will need a certain amount of money at a certain time — perhaps to purchase a car or to fund a vacation.
- They carry different risks. All investments carry some type of risk. One of the biggest risks associated with long-term investments is volatility, the fluctuations in the financial markets that can cause investments to lose value. On the other hand, short-term investment vehicles may be subject to purchasing power risk — the risk that your investment's return will not keep up with inflation.

As an investor, you'll probably need a mix of long-term and short-term vehicles. By knowing the differences between these two categories, you should have a good idea of what to expect from your investments — and this knowledge can help you make those choices that are right for you.
