—Photos by S. & S. Commercial Studio.

Crumbling walls of the Antlers hotel had been levelled to the ground late Thursday afternoon, as city employes worked at the scene of one of Wichita Falls' most disastrous fires. Pictures shown above were taken just before and as the walls crashed on the ruins. At the top left, a corner of the hotel a few hours after the blaze which claimed three lives and resulted in the injury of nine other persons.

The top X marks the spot where A. O. Johnson and W. J. Geis were trapped. Geis escaped by crawling down a fire hose and Johnson was injured when he jumped three stories to the ground. The bottom X shows where firemen recovered the body of Geno L. Anderson, and inset at right shows Anderson.

Firemen are shown directing a stream of water against the ruins in the next picture, and at the right, the camera caught a section of the wall of the hotel as it toppled to the ground. At the extreme right, the X marks the spot where the body of Smiley Turner was found crushed in the debris. Inset shows Turner.

At the bottom is another striking view of a falling wall as it was pulled down by a city street department truck. At the right below is a section of the crowd which milled around the scene throughout the day.

Vernon Man Drowns in Oil Covering Bottom of Tank; Road Crash Kills Two Men

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Dec. 12.—James S. Wyatt, 49, of Vernon was drowned this morning in four and a half feet of oil in a metal storage tank on the Humble Oil and Refining company's lease 16 miles south of Vernon. H. C. Justin, justice of the peace, after making an investigation announced that death was due to accidental drowning.

Mr. Wyatt had been seen about two hours before his body was found at 9:15 o'clock by his son Marion Wyatt or McLean and a brother, E. M. Wyatt of Breckenridge, who had come to the lease to visit him.

A search was started after his tools were found near the storage tank.

Mr. Wyatt had been working in the South Vernon oil fields for the past six years.

TWO KILLED IN ROAD COLLISION

Funeral services for R. A. Shaw, local oil driller who died in an automobile crash west of Iowa Park early Thursday morning, will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Cashion church. Burial will be in the cemetery at Burkburnett.

Mr. Shaw, who lived at 1424 Thirty-Fifth street, died shortly after a head-on collision which also cost the life of Curtis Barnes, a negro, driver of the other car. Two other occupants of the negro's car, said to have been on their way to Vernon, were being sought by investigating officers Thursday afternoon. The two are believed to have continued on their way after receiving emergency treatment at Electra.

R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, who conducted an inquest over Barnes, declared that there were no eye-witnesses to the crash except the passengers themselves, and that he found both cars, totally wrecked, near the center of the road. Barnes is believed to have died instantly. Mr. Shaw died as he was being brought to a Wichita Falls hospital.

Besides his wife, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Shaw, of Cashion, a brother, Altia, also of Cashion, two daughters and a son. Funeral arrangements are under the direction of the Hines mortuary.

Chatham Accepts Post as General Manager for Tuf-Nut Here

James W. Chatham will retire on Dec. 31 from the position of acting manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and manager of the traffic and industrial department of the same organization to become vice president and general manager of the Tuf-Nut Garment Manufacturing company of Wichita Falls, it was announced Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Chatham has been connected with the local chamber of commerce since Nov. 1, 1919, and on Nov. 1, 1929, assumed the duties of general manager in addition to his other responsibilities when Hubert M. Harrison resigned that office to accept the general managership of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the budget committee of the chamber of commerce set the 1930 budget at $58,000 in a meeting held Thursday afternoon, according to Orville Bullington, president. The amount named represents an increase of about $3,000 over the budget of 1929. Definite recommendations for its distribution will be made at the annual business meeting of the organization in January, it was said.

Resignation Accepted

He has been active in the affairs of the Tuf-Nut Garment Manufacturing company since its coming to this city more than two years ago, and was largely instrumental in procuring the location of one of its factories in Wichita Falls. Three Bandits Rob Oil Station

Three well dressed, youthful bandits Thursday night hijacked the Kee filling station on the Henrietta road, took $25 from the cash register, and escaped in a Chevrolet roadster, speeding down the highway toward Fort Worth.

The trio drove up to the filling station about 10:30, pulled a .45 automatic on L. H. Kee, the proprietor, and kept him covered while one of their number rifled the cash drawer, according to reports at police headquarters. Ellis Summers and A. L. Stubblefield, plainclothesmen, answered the call.

Hospital Patient Describes Her Daring Escape

(Editor's note: A cub reporter, who stayed on his "beat" long after other newspaper workers had gone home and to bed in the early morning hours Thursday, bore the brunt of the reporting of the Antlers hotel fire. W. P. Hood, The Record News cub, caught the first fire alarm at the police station at 3:30 a. m. and was at the scene a few minutes later. He carried Mrs. Billy Miller to the hospital after she had leaped from the hotel's third story window, and Thursday afternoon was rewarded with Mrs. Miller's graphic description of the fire as printed below. Hood subsequently wrote every story on the fire but one.)

By W. P. HOOD
The Record News Staff

A story of horror, recounted calmly from beneath the cool white sheets of a hospital bed and spoken of as though it were a reminiscent tale of dread and fear remembered from long ago, was unfolded Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Billy Miller, who was trapped in her room by the blaze which left the Antlers hotel a mass of tangled wood, steel and brick work Thursday morning.

Mrs. Miller, unable to escape through the door of her room into the hall outside, was forced to jump 25 or 30 feet from her third floor quarters to the roof of the building adjoining on the east. As she struck the narrow ledge below, her right leg scraped along the concrete work of an upstanding roof support, tearing away the flesh almost from knee to ankle and exposing the bone.

Soon after she had left the window, Wylie Miller, also a guest at the hotel, followed. He threw his body forward and struck the roof in a clear space, sustaining only slight body bruises. He rushed to the side of the injured woman and the two stumbled to the edge of the roof seeking a place to climb to the street level. Miller shouted "Here's a telephone pole," and seized her, half carrying and half assisting her to step from spike to spike until they had reached the alley.

"From that point I remember practically nothing," Mrs. Miller said. "I faintly recall having been placed in an automobile and almost the next instant I was on a hospital operating table. I guess I've slept most of the time since, but my leg, it—it hurts."

"What were your first impressions when you discovered the flames?" she was asked.

"Impressions? I didn't have any. Or maybe I had so many jumbled up in my mind I can't remember what they were.

"I was asleep when I heard someone shouting at the other end of the hall. It sounded like several people quarreling and I must have lain

SENATE SEATS 'OLD JO' GRUNDY

Torrid Debate Precedes Final Vote of Lobbyist

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. (US)—Joseph R. Grundy, old master lobbyist of Pennsylvania, was seated in the United States senate this afternoon as a senator from that state.

For over three hours before Grundy was passed he was both flayed and defended in a cross-fire of debate which rocked the chamber.

Through it all Senator-Designate Grundy sat smugly, never batting an eye.

Finally without a record vote, the senate seated Grundy and referred his credentials to the committee on privileges and elections to investigate and report as to whether he should be permitted to retain his seat. Grundy was appointed by Governor Fisher late yesterday.

Nationalists Deliver Blow in Canton Area

(By United Press)

President Chiang Kai-Shek, struggling to keep China unified against the wishes of war lords who would retain their independent armies, dealt a smashing blow in the Canton sector Thursday.

Alarming reports came from Harbin, however, to the effect that a Mongol republic under Moscow's protection had been established on western Manchuriah soil.

Shanghai, concentration point for foreigners from Chinese trouble centers, was reported quiet.

Appreciation Fund Started to Help Injured Firemen and Victims' Families

Wichita Falls citizens who appreciate the courage shown by city firemen in battling the Antlers hotel blaze Thursday, and in rescuing women and children from the burning structure, have been asked to contribute to a special fund for the aid of the fire victims and their families.

Decision to ask the public subscription of funds was reached at a meeting of a few representative business and professional men late Thursday when it became known that the city can legally make no provision for the widows of the two firemen killed in fighting the Antlers blaze, and is handicapped in the relief it can give those injured.

Supervisors Named

The Record News and Daily Times were authorized to accept contributions to the fund, and gifts should be mailed to these newspapers. Each paper will carry a daily list of contributions. As the money is collected it will be turned over to Lester Jones, selected as treasurer of the fund. A committee composed of J. T. Harrell, Fire Chief J. L. McClure and City Manager George D. Fairtrace was named to supervise the fund. This committee is authorized to use the fund in meeting such expenses incident to the death and injury of 11 city firemen as cannot be met by the city of Wichita Falls. The remainder is to be presented to the widows of the two men killed on duty.

The city of Wichita Falls cannot legally insure its firemen against death or injury. It cannot compensate widows of men killed in their work. Public spirited citizens have therefore been asked by the committee to provide some compensation under these conditions.

The following contributions were made Thursday night a few minutes after the word had gone out that the fund would be opened:

J. J. Perkins	$100
Art Jewelry Company	50
J. M. Spoonts	50
Southwestern Adjustment Co.	25
Williams-Dwyer Insurance	25
Lester Jones	25
B. D. Donnell	25
Total	$350

DEATH CLAIMS COL. GOODNIGHT

'Father of Panhandle' Dies In Tucson, Ariz.

AMARILLO, Texas, Dec. 12. (UP)—The Plains country lost one of its most distinguished and honored citizens today when Col. Charles Goodnight, 93, "father of the Texas Panhandle," died in Tucson, Ariz.

Colonel Goodnight was perhaps the best known personage in the Panhandle ranch country, for he had lived in Texas for 88 years and had accumulated a vast fortune and a reputation for charity, generosity and public service. The town of Goodnight, near Clearendon, was named for him.

Came Early to Texas

Colonel Goodnight came to Texas from Illinois with his mother and stepfather when he was 5 years old. They settled in Milan county. Before Goodnight was grown, however, he started to California, but halted in West Texas and went into the cattle raising business.

Subsequently he was an Indian fighter and a trail driver. He earned his first fortune raising cat-

FUNERAL SATURDAY

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 12. (AP)—Relatives of Col. Charles Goodnight, Texas pioneer ranchman who died here today, left tonight with the body for Goodnight in Armstrong county, Texas, the family home. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at Goodnight. The body will arrive in Clarendon, near there, Saturday morning, and lie in state until the time of the funeral.

Investigation Planned As Civic Leaders Open Drive To Aid Victims of Disaster

A joint city and state investigation of the fire which Thursday morning destroyed the Antlers hotel, resulting in the deaths of three persons and the injury of eight others when the walls of the "boom day" hostelry collapsed, seemed assured Thursday night in statements from city and state officials to The Record News.

Jess D. Carter, acting fire marshal at Austin, said that a deputy of the department had already been ordered to report in Wichita Falls for investigation of other fires, and that doubtless he would include the hotel blaze in his inquiry. Inspector Byrne of Fort Worth probably will handle the investigation, he said, and should arrive in Wichita Falls Saturday.

City to Aid

Mayor J. W. Akin and City Manager George D. Fairtrace said that the city would make no individual investigation, but that the municipality would lend whatever aid possible to the state in seeking to determine the causes for the blaze and for the heavy loss of life. Mr. Fairtrace pointed out that the hotel building had been constructed during the boom days here at a time when fire regulations were much less stringent than at present. The city's building code at present is designed to eliminate fire hazards so far as is possible, he declared.

Relief Fund Started

While Wichita Falls recovered Thursday afternoon from the shock of the tragedy which claimed three lives, civic leaders of the city launched a campaign for a fund which will in part care for the immediate needs of the injured victims of the blaze and those dependent upon the two firemen who lost their lives when the caving walls of the building crushed them to death.

J. T. Harrell, president of the City National bank, George Fairtrace, city manager, and J. L. McClure, fire chief, were named on a committee to supervise the fund, and Lester Jones was named treasurer and custodian. Contributions may be sent to The Record News and Daily Times.

Three Lives Lost

Smiley Turner, assistant fire chief; Geno L. Anderson, fireman, and Kenneth F. Brice of Bowie, 25, a bus driver, were the victims of the fire. Turner and Anderson were crushed under the falling walls of the building, while Brice was burned to death in the structure after failing to escape from the third floor of the hotel where he was a guest.

Late Thursday night brought favorable reports of each of the eight who were injured either in fighting the fire or in escaping its menace.

Officials at the Wichita General hospital made the following detailed report of the injuries and the condition of the four patients under treatment there:

Injured Improving

Howard Tate, fireman from station one, with a sprained back and a broken ankle, doing splendidly.

W. E. Phillips, fireman, 604 Ninth street, with a broken arm, bruises and cuts, doing well.

Roy Anderson, fireman and brother to G. L. Anderson who lost his life in the fire, recovering from shock, bruises and cut; probably eligible for dismissal Friday.

A. O. Johnson, 1615 Giddings, fireman, recovering from shock, bruises and cuts.

Mrs. Billy Miller, with 15 stitches in her leg from a gash cut in her 25-foot leap to escape the flames, resting well after the necessary surgical work.

At the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital, attendants reported that Chief J. L. McClure, who collapsed from shock, heat and smoke, and exhaustion after the death of his assistant, was resting quietly and making rapid progress toward recovery.

R. D. Rankin, of Sterling, Okla., miraculously unhurt after a leap from his third story window, was dismissed from the Hargrave-Walker hospital late Thursday.

FLAMES' HEAVY TOLL RANKLES GRIM FIREMEN

Department Saddened by Loss of Two Favorites When Walls Topple

An alarm at 3:30 o'clock Thursday morning meant just another fire for members of the department at central station. A second alarm at 3:45 o'clock meant a blaze which would be difficult to control. But at 4 o'clock a crumbling wall of solid brick and stone meant death.

The rumble of that falling masonry brought with it the most horrible tragedy within the memory of the oldest members of the fire department. Angered by the toll exacted from their number by that blaze, firemen from each of the city's stations fought a grim and silent battle after which victory seemed inadequate. Something remained to be done. Their hatred for those flames had not been satisfied even when nothing more than tiny wisps of smoke and steam issuing from blackened wreckage remained of the Antlers hotel.

Two Favorites Die

Smiley Turner, beloved favorite of the department since his name was entered on its roll in December, 1914, was crushed to death beneath those walls. Geno Anderson, hardly more than a boy with his 24 years and his fine-cut features, was taken from beneath that wreckage a torn and mangled body from which the life breath had been sucked.

Five others of their number were taken from beneath those bricks and stones with bodies torn and broken by the terrific impact of tons of masonry. Four of that number were lying in pain on hospital beds Thursday night. The specter of death hovers over two of the four, waiting in tantalizing silence during the night where one grim sweep of its scythe had cut down two lives Thursday morning.

Thursday's tragedy ended a period of several years during which no fatalities or serious injuries had been recorded by the department.

tle and driving them to New Mexico to market, only to lose it in the panic of 1873 ranching near Trinidad, Colo.

But he drove the remnant of his herd back to the Panhandle, formed a partnership with John G. Adair, and in 11 years they owned the now famous Goodnight ranch and more than 100,000 head of cattle, said to have been the largest single herd in the state at the time.

Weds Young Woman

The tremendous enterprise grew even larger, and the venerable ranchman finally disposed of his ranch holdings and retired. Two years ago he married Mrs. Corrine Goodnight, 28, survives him.

"The father of the Texas Panhandle" survived many hardships and had many narrow escapes from death while helping to civilize the frontier country of West Texas. He owes his longevity, he often said, to the fact that the Indians were poor rifle shots. His gun bore a single notch, however, representing a Tonkawa Indian.

Colonel Goodnight and his wife spent the winters in Arizona, but during the remainder of the year lived in the handsome residence he built for her at Goodnight, in the heart of the country he came to as a pioneer and won his fortune.

Robinson Explains Attitude of Demos

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. (UP)—Democrats in the senate have been misrepresented in "propaganda originating in ignorance or political motive," Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic floor leader, charged in a statement made public here.

Democrats, he said, are not "combining their efforts with any one or attempting themselves to penalize the East by unjust or ill-considered reductions in industrial tariff rates."

"Democrats favor justice to all industries," he said. "They believe too, in so far as possible, that the same rates should be made effective for agriculture as are fixed for other industries. They believe that no necessity exists for the general revision upward of the duties imposed by the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922."

The floor leader made a lengthy defense of the Simmons amendment to the flexible tariff provision which takes away the power of the president to raise or lower tariff rates upon recommendation of the tariff commission.

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

County Judge John P. Marrs tells the Wichita Falls Lions club that the six-shooter is responsible for two-thirds of the robberies and murders committed in this country. He called attention to the fact that there were more than 100,000 revolver shot wounds in this country last year.

Too often the man who slips a six-shooter into his pocket is taking a long step toward serious trouble. There is something in a six-shooter in the hip pocket that seems to communicate with the mind of the wearer and incite to aggression and desperate acts. There is many a man in our jails and prisons who started there by carrying a revolver.

Subscriptions to the Deep Oil Development company are approaching the $700,000 mark and Frank Kell, sponsor of the movement, has called a meeting of the subscribers next Saturday at noon for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization. He invited others interested in the project to attend the meeting.

Directors of the company are to be named at this meeting. A list of names of leading oil producers and business men has been suggested for the directorate. These will doubtless be chosen, together with representative business men from Archer, Young, Clay and Wilbarger counties.

The willingness of these men to assume the responsibility of directors in the new company is worth more for its success than would be the gift of another million dollars to its funds.

We confidently believe there is about to be launched here a strong independent oil company that will take its place among the leaders of the industry in the Southwest. The opportunity is still open to subscribe for stock.

The sympathy of many friends is with Ensign and Mrs. A. Shultz of the Salvation Army in the death of their daughter, Virginia Agnes. Another child, Bobby, is critically ill with pneumonia.

This deep sorrow comes to them at a season when they were in the midst of preparations to make the children of others happy at Christmas time. Like soldiers that they are they must carry on even with their hearts heavy with care and sorrow. But through it all they will be sustained by a faith and a hope through a gift which the Child in the Manger brought more than 19 centuries ago.

The assets of the life insurance companies in the United States will amount to $17,600,000,000 at the end of this year; this year's increase in assets will be $1,639,000,000; there are 67,000,000 policy holders insured by these companies. These are some of the statistics recited by Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

The break in the stock market has had no effect upon the stability of the life insurance companies which have stood firm and unworried through it all. "Premiums were received and claims were paid as usual," said Mr. Ecker in his annual address to the convention of the association. "Investments of the companies," he said, "continued to yield returns to provide for reserves and surplus as at any other time. . . . The outstanding fact is that life insurance, both by the wise limitations of legislative enactment and the high ideals of management, has been so completely disassociated from the speculative security market and its influences that it was not imperiled, nor can it ever be greatly threatened by this or any other similar catastrophe."

It is in times like the present that life insurance companies and building and loan associations are more greatly appreciated as opportunities for investment for the ordinary man.

With the death of Col. Charles Goodnight comes the passing of the last of the old guard of scouts and pioneers who began the conquest of the Texas panhandle back in the fifties when that part of Texas was given over to the Indians and the buffalo.

As scout, buffalo hunter and cattleman it is recorded of Colonel Goodnight that he always played his part as a man. Colonel Goodnight was better known in later years for his efforts to preserve a remnant of the mighty herds of buffalo that once swarmed the plains of Texas. In this he was successful and buffalo from the Goodnight herd have been the foundation stock for a number of herds to be found in different sections of the Southwest.

He died at Tucson, Ariz., but his body is to be brought back to Texas to rest in the soil he loved so well and on which he played so conspicuous a part. All of Texas, and especially the panhandle and plains may well pause to honor his memory and to recall his life and deeds. It was through such that civilization came to those sections.

J. W. CHATHAM RESIGNS POST

C.-C. Manager to Operate Tuf-Nut Plant

was accomplished several months ago. It is now owned almost entirely by local capital, and operates a sales force over a large territory surrounding this city.

Mr. Chatham's resignation was tendered to the board of directors of the chamber of commerce Thursday afternoon and was accepted. A nominaion committee consisting of A. H. Britain, C. E. McCutchen, N. H. Martin, J. T. Harrell and W. B. Hamilton was immediately appointed by Orville Bullington, president, and will meet in his office Friday morning to begin the task of selecting a permanent successor to Mr. Chatham. A large number of applications for the position are now in the hands of Mr. Bullington, it was said, and the committee will make recommendations of a prospective general manager to the board of directors at the earliest possible date.

Successor Sought

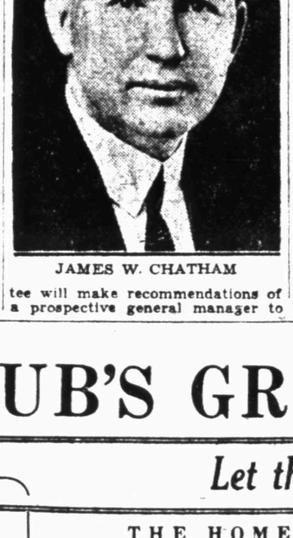

When Mr. Chatham first became connected with the chamber of commerce here, the organization had no traffic department organization of any consequence, it was said. He served as traffic manager for four years, then reduced his services to the organization to a part-time basis, giving the remainder of his time as auditor of the Wichita County Water Improvement districts until Nov. 1, 1926. On that date he became manager of the combined industrial and traffic departments of the chamber of commerce.

Under Mr. Chatham's administration the traffic department was built into one of the most complete and best equipped organizations of its kind in the state of Texas, according to officers of the chamber of commerce. Among its conspicuous achievements was the return of more than $12,000 to shippers in this city in 1927 in the form of rebates on overcharges on freight. The department also has handled a great many civic projects outside the usual routine of chamber of commerce activities, including arrangements for special trains on various occasions, entertainment of conventions, and handling of large scale visiting attractions. Mr. Chatham has been traffic manager for Maskat temple ever since 1920, and has handled arrangements for extensive traveling of its delegations all over the country.

The industrial department, created in 1926, was placed under Mr. Chatham's direction, and has been instrumental in effecting a great increase in the number and size of industrial enterprises in this community. He is recognized as one of the leading traffic experts in the Southwest, and is a member of the National Industrial Traffic Managers' association, and a director of the Texas Industrial Traffic league.

Following his retirement from the chamber of commerce on Jan. 1, Mr. Chatham will office at the Tuf-Nut Garment Manufacturing company's plant at Fourth and Travis streets.

BUS OWNERS GATHER HERE

Petitions for Changes in Routes Submitted

Approximately 70 motor bus owners, managers and drivers of Northwest Texas assembled at the Kemp hotel Thursday to attend public hearings held by C. V. Terrell, state railroad commissioner, and Mark Marshall, supervisor of the motor bus division of the state railroad commission, on a number of applications pertaining to bus transportation lines in this area.

Chief interest of the meeting centered in the applications of W. F. Daniels of Vernon and Ed Abbott of Lubbock for permission to install motor bus service between Lubbock and Floydada by way of Petersburg. Numerous witnesses and depositions were introduced by both applicants.

Other applications were those of Charles McDearman and A. B. Ward of Gainesville to sell their interests in the Gainesville-Wichita Falls bus line to F. H. Turberville of Wichita Falls, third partner; Brown and Ikers to install service between Wink and Kermit; and W. E. Watson to operate a line serving Clarendon, Dimmitt, Tulia and Freola.

All reports of the hearings here will be given to the state railroad commission at Austin for decisions.

"Investigations of the bus transportation industry in this section have revealed that most of the operators are well qualified and reliable men," said Mr. Marshall.

WEBB FEARS PRO TRANSFER

But It's Purely Matter of Opinion, He Says

DALLAS, Dec. 12. (AP)—There is divided opinion among dry leaders as to the wisdom of transferring the enforcement of prohibition to the department of justice, said the Rev. Dr. Atticus Webb, superintendent of the Texas Anti-Saloon league, in an official statement made public here tonight.

"Yet," he said, "the evident sincerity of purpose on the part of President Hoover honestly and vigorously to enforce the prohibition law will doubtless lead the dry leaders to accept his leadership cheerfully at this point for, after all, it is largely a matter of opinion and not of principles, and the dry leaders are willing to follow the judgment of those who are responsible for the enforcement of the law and who are friendly to the law. They are not sticklers for their own opinion. Results are what they want.

"It seems logical that the enforcement should be placed in the department of justice, but the spirit of American government has always been to separate distinctly the job of catching criminals from the job of prosecuting the criminals, as is seen in our sheriff's office being kept distinct from our prosecuting attorney's office. It is intended to prevent framing on persons for spite, or for other reasons.

"The greatest danger, however, comes from another source. The department of justice into which the enforcement would be transferred, if congress accepts President Hoover's suggestion, is composed of the federal judges and federal attorneys. These two appointments are largely political. It is true that when appointed a federal judge holds office for life and is supposed to be separated from politics. The federal attorney's office is the most political appointment made. Under our former presidents the appointments have not always been creditable. The federal attorney has it in his power merely to say of any case that he will not prosecute it, and then the guiltiest of the guilty go free. Often one of the hardest jobs the federal agents have is to persuade the prosecuting attorney to prosecute even when a good case has been made. Much of the criticism of these agents belongs to the prosecuting attorneys.

"The fact that this office is purely political and so frequently made as a reward for political activities rather than for integrity of ability, will make it necessary, if the change is made, to demand a much higher grade man in this office."

DIVORCE TRIAL HEARS WOMAN

Mrs. West Denies Charges By Mrs. Arnold

By DAVID P. SENTNER

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (INS)—Mrs. Margaret Crenshaw West, attractive corespondent in the sensational Arnold divorce trial, took the witness stand in supreme court today and denied that she had ever been guilty of misconduct with Ray H. Arnold, millionaire real estate man of Los Angeles and Washington. Mrs. West branded as falsehoods all charges made against her by witnesses for Mrs. Bessie Sturm Arnold.

Mrs. West denied that she ever had breakfast in bed with Arnold while she was a guest at the millionaire's home in Greenwich, Conn.

Mrs. West declared that on a few occasions she had partaken of orange juice in the bedroom of Arnold's daughter, Bernice. The witness said she had come East from California, her home, in 1925 and that Mrs. Arnold had invited her to the Greenwich home. The two women had known each other when the Arnolds were residents of Los Angeles.

Arnold Questioned

Earlier in the day, Arnold himself had been subjected to a grueling cross-examination by Mrs. Arnold's attorneys. The cross-examination brought out the first display of bitterness between Arnold and his wife's counsel, Charles Hann Jr., whom the millionaire had named as corespondent in a counter suit for divorce.

Hann and Henry Potter, cocounsel for Mrs. Arnold, questioned him about the time the millionaire, his son, William, and Mrs. West were in Arnold's apartment. William Arnold testified earlier in the trial that Mrs. West was living with his father in this apartment.

Q.—You said you had an altercation in the apartment with your son William and told him to get the hell out?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You meant it?

A.—I did.

Q.—He got out?

A.—He did.

Q.—And then who was in the apartment with you?

A.—Mrs. West.

Q.—Then you were alone with her?

Witness Angered

His eyes flashing fire, Arnold literally roared, "For about 10 minutes—about 10 minutes."

Before Arnold had been subjected to this line of questioning he testified that he didn't remember ever being alone with Mrs. West at the apartment, although he might possibly have been at some time.

When questioned regarding his visits to Mrs. West's home in Crestwood, Arnold admitted he had slept there occasionally, but reiterated that he had never stayed alone with her.

Mrs. Arnold's counsel made the millionaire do a bit of fancy handwriting. He was asked to write "Wardman Park hotel, Washington, D. C." where he once lived, and "wise child and his father."

No attempt was made by Mrs. West's counsel to explain this phase of the day's proceedings.

Mrs. West testified she received degrees of doctor of jurisprudence at the University of Southern California and bachelor of arts at Vassar.

When questioned about the testimony of William Arnold to the effect that she walked around the East Sixty-seventh street apartment in her night gown and in the nude, she said that it was untrue.

Quanah Streets Ablaze With Christmas Lights

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Dec. 12—Thousands of colored lights blaze on Quanah's streets in the hundreds of Christmas trees decorating the business section. The huge sign "Merry Christmas" topped by stars on the northeast corner of the courthouse grounds twinkles with greeting from the hundreds of red and green lights making up the sign and stars.

The lights were turned on Monday night, three days earlier than the date set by the committee in charge, and the West Texas Utilities company, to stimulate Christmas shoppers into shopping early.

Quanah's decorations this year surpass those of 1929 and it is believed will compare favorably with any town of similar size in Texas.

Long Skirts Made of Cotton Stage 'Comeback' Which May Be General

CHICAGO, Dec. 12. (AP)—Those long skirts, dotted Swiss dresses, wide brimmed straws—how young America snickers! But they're coming back! That cotton textile institute of American farm bureau federation says so.

Mull and muslin (grandmother used to think there was nothing much better for a dress) are returning. Frocks of these materials already are in vogue at Florida resorts, the farmers' wives were told by Miss Susan Bates of New York.

Cotton may not sound so ritzy to young women who speak in terms of chiffon, silk and such, but the institute revealed one could pay good prices for cotton as well. A simple street dress had $35 price tag and, Miss Bates said, $125 for an evening gown is really nothing.

Styles determine the price, the institute pointed out, cotton gowns created by well known designers commanding their price even as those in silk.

The uneven hemline was not much in evidence, but the dresses were long. Skirts for afternoon and evening were ankle length; sport and street dresses hung three to four inches below the knees.

Immediate Trial to Be Sought for Tom Vernon

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 12. (UP)—Immediate trial will be asked for Tom Vernon, former cowboy and ex-convict, charged with wrecking a Southern Pacific train near Saugus, Calif., and robbing passengers.

District Attorney Buron Fitts said today his office will ask the death penalty.

Vernon was arrested in Oklahoma.

Walters Gins Turn Out 6,324 Bales

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., Dec. 12.—The five gins in Walters had ginned 6,324 bales of cotton up to the close of the week. This number brings the total for the current season to more than 300 bales above the total for the entire season of 1928, when 6,012 bales were ginned. Some cotton is still coming in and it is believed the total for this year will reach 6,500 bales before the close of the season.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug store. Renfro Drug Co.—Adv.

Man at Altus Gets Five-Year Sentence

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Dec. 12.—Jimmy Hightower, escaped convict from the state penitentiary at Florence, Ariz., who was serving a five-year term, pleaded guilty before District Judge Frank Mathews today and received a sentence of five years to the state penitentiary in Oklahoma, on a charge of embezzling an automobile. Hightower was returned here this week from Tulsa, where he was arrested.

A Connecticut Yankee, named John Fitch, and not Robert Fulton, is said to have built the first steamboat.

Youth Featured in Program Of Literature Department

Members of the Woman's Forum and visitors enjoyed the younger talent of Wichita Falls in the program given by the literature department at the Forum clubhouse Thursday afternoon.

Rob McDonald, a boy of 12 years with an unusual voice both in tone and quality, opened the program with a lovely vocal number. Bernice Jeter, a Junior college girl and a member of the Writers club, spoke of "Children Who Write," naming the nationally known authors, Daisy Ashford, Hilda Conkling, Natalia Crane, Opal Whitely, David Putnam and Deric Nussbaum.

Roberta Lincoln, accompanied by her mother, gave an exquisite violin number and a group of children from Miss Cook's room in Alamo school, sang five lovely Christmas carols.

Bertha Mae Kruger was on the program with eight of her original poems. They were rendered beautifully and the audience particularly enjoyed "I Sail My Ships."

Miss Eva Weber gave the general book review for the afternoon, discussing "A Vaquero of the Brush Country," by J. Frank Dobie; "God's Man," the wood cut story of Lynn Ward; "History of the American Magazine," by F. L. Mott; Clemenceau's philosophical autobiography; "The Lost Shirt," and "Caught Short," two humorous stories of the recent stock exchange and Kataev's "The Embezzlers," a Russian story.

Mrs. J. W. Cantwell, chairman of the department, presided and hostesses were Mesdames Essie Deberry, B. V. Magee, Frank Creighton, William Huff, J. D. Parnell, W. E. Fitzgerald, J. H. Barnard and J. M. Isbell.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

The bare limbs of trees shadowed against a moonlit, starry sky, are not less beautiful in their way than the lacy patterns outlined when those same trees are green.

◇ ◇ ◇

If we have two things for which our very soul is always devoutly grateful, they are that in our saddest moods, beauty still reaches our heart and that there are few times we cannot sidetrack worries with a good book.

◇ ◇ ◇

We saw the gray barked, sentinel trees in Judge Huff's yard with a night's silver sky as a background.

◇ ◇ ◇

We wondered as we always wonder, if the night is always as shining as it is in the month of December. Somehow it makes one think of the shepherds watching in their fields at night, and of the Christmas carols.

◇ ◇ ◇

These are pleasant things to have in one's mind when pushed about by a Christmas throng. A throng of women and children.

◇ ◇ ◇

About nine-tenths of the Christmas shoppers are women and not all of them are always in a good humor. Trying, we suppose, to make prices and presents fit one another. It is like trying to put the proverbial square peg in a round hole.

◇ ◇ ◇

But women are doing other things than shop. In Fort Worth the other day, a business like state federation president announced the business like conducting of her term of office. At Mineral Wells, the board members expressed themselves as favorably inclined toward the employment of a paid financial secretary for federation work.

◇ ◇ ◇

This has been done. The secretary is not Mrs. R. F. Lindsay's personal secretary. That capable woman looks after her own work. But this office is a business experiment that will lessen the work of treasurer and financial secretary.

◇

We just heard a woman say, "My, it's hot! I believe the world's coming to an end." Another remarked, "I don't care," and there were several horrified ejaculations.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Well, I think it would be nice to be here when the world comes to an end," No. 1 said. "I hate to think of dying and being in a grave, not knowing what's going on."

◇ ◇ ◇

That is the up-to-date attitude of man and woman; just to wish to know what is going on.

A teacher had been telling an infants' class about the Ten Commandments. In order to test their memories, she asked: "Can anyone give me a commandment containing only four words?"

A little hand was immediately raised.

"Keep off the grass," said the youngster.—Tit-Bits.

Zundy Junior High Gives Outstanding Program

Christmas in all its beauty was exemplified in the program carried out Thursday in the regular meeting of the P.-T. A. at Zundelowitz Junior High school. From the opening number to the adjournment into the cafeteria, the Christ-like spirit was emphasized.

Mrs. T. R. Boone presided and the first number introduced was by the Children's Glee club, trained by the Zundy supervisor of music, Miss Minnie Barker. Dressed in white robes and carrying lighted white tapers, they sang a group of Christmas carols, closing with the ever sweet "Silent Night."

Devotional Given

An unusually lovely devotional was given by Ellen Newby, one of the Junior high pupils who took the story of the birth of Christ as her topic. Mrs. R. D. Ford followed her with a splendid talk on books.

Mrs. Marvin Smith led a round table discussion on the topic "Chracacter Building." Mrs. Smith, making the preliminary talk, spoke on the sensible dressing and use of low heels in Junior high that would have its effect on the future of the high school girl. She then called on five other mothers for short talks. Mrs. Walter Cline talked on the splendor of a wholesome and healthy mind; Mrs. B. D. Donnell on what love and kindness mean in character building; Mesdames Roy I. Carter and Stafford G. Helm of Dundee, spoke of the importance of home environment and Mrs. C. A. Spragins spoke on the spiritual side of character development.

Miss Ida Mae Chitwood's room, Mrs. Harry ten Brink, sponsor, won the prize of $5 for attendance.

Salad Plate Served

Following the program the mothers adjourned to the cafeteria which was beautifully decorated with Christmas trees on each table and there the members of the organization and the Reagan and Zundelowitz Junior high teachers were served with a delicious salad plate by Winnie Bette Beattie, Fay Humphrey and Allen Newton.

Those who registered were Mesdames W. C. Krauss, Paul Green, J. H. Simmons, Roy I. Carter, Sam Acton, F. Brandeberry, L. E. McConnell, F. S. Randolph, J. L. Art, George Sturm, S. A. Presbyterian Society Will Have Bazaar

The Floral Heights Presbyterian Missionary society has announced a Christmas bazaar to take place at Lotus store No. 2, 704 Indiana, Friday.

Supposing This Happened to Your Clothes

If anybody walked all over your clothes, you'd call the cleaner in a hurry. And you'd know that your dresses and suits would come back looking like new and feeling as clean as the day you bought them.

And using a brush or running a vacuum cleaner over those suits and dresses wouldn't give you quite that feeling, would it—dust being one thing, and dirt, another?

When we clean rugs, we wash them. And when we return them, they look as though they had been washed.

For 10 days only, we are making a special price of $3.00 for each 9x12 rug. Clean your rug for the holidays, 24-hour service.

A CLEAR SKIN comes from within

Lack of appetite, loss of strength, skin eruptions, that "tired feeling" and other human ills may be due to a lack of red-cells in your blood.

If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

"MY despair was so great I could have cried. The good cheer and merry happiness of others only mocked at my condition. I had begun to wonder why life could be so cruel. No appetite. No strength. Skin blemishes always embarrassed me. Aches and pains coursed through my body. I wanted to restore my health and live. What was I to do? . . . happily the day came and I found the right road to Health when a friend recommended S.S.S."

You may be one of the thousands with a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run-down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

Did you know that every cubic millimeter of the normal, healthy person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles? They are the tiny red particles which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to the cells of the body. Rich, red blood wards off disease. It is very dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

You owe it to yourself and friends to give S.S.S. a trial. It helps Nature build rich, red blood. For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

S.S.S. Is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs. It gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes; ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Herbert Kaufman's
THE LITTLE PEOPLE
Daily Editorial

WASHINGTON is summoning no conferences to safeguard his interests. And there are no set union scales to determine his fair wage.

No increases, such as Henry Ford has volunteered to inaugurate for the general stimulation of consumption, are apt to benefit Johnny. So it seems as though the case is up to you.

To avoid argument, let's admit that competition must regulate compensation.

And we'll also concede that investment and sentimentality don't belong in the same pew. The value of labor is obviously set by supply, demand and output.

But Johnny's peculiar circumstances incline to make him a ward of generosity rather than of balance sheets and economics.

Consequently, faith in human nature prefers to conclude that you were preoccupied with vaster affairs, when you refused his recent request for a slight raise. The matter didn't seem big enough to bother about.

Besides, the Johnny market always shows a surplus. You can fill his place a dozen times overnight for the same pay. Poverty isn't able to haggle, bluff and hold out for betterments.

There are no effective groups protecting the welfare of non-specializing rag-tags of industry or commerce. And it seldom occurs to you that the higher cost of living isn't a snob. It recognizes no class distinctions, but impartially visits porters, errand runners, and office drudges, as well as proprietors and executives.

Greenbacks don't vary a hair's breadth in size, but there's another dimension to be considered; money grows or shrinks according to the pocket in which it's carried.

◇ ◇ ◇

FOR INSTANCE, a widow's dime is far bigger than a wastrel's. Necessity, not the mint mark, establishes the significance of currency. A splurger's hundred hasn't nearly the obligations of a laborer's ten.

Struggle and need are magnifying glasses through which prosperity is never compelled to look.

You didn't study arithmetic in the school of privation and therefore you fail to appreciate the importance of "chicken feed."

The price current, instead of larder and wardrobe-pinch, informs you that subsistence costs tend to become dearer each season—that rental, fuel and sustenance are always crawling to new levels.

But poor folk derive their expert knowledge of such changes from more intimate sources.

Only the charwoman, rubbing and scrubbing in phlegmatic despair—and the underclad, patch-shod, shivering lad on the package wagon—and the shabby, debt-haunted pen-pushers in the bookkeeping division—stand slight chance to make good on stands for fuller payroll justice.

There are millions of under dogs ready to accept Fate's scrawniest bones. But try not to glean your profits out of their helplessness.

Winter is here and tenements are translating dimes into slices of bread and cups of coffee and niggardly shovels of coal.

And if your concern is in such bad shape that you can't afford to delegate a few night-club and theater and show-off dollars into warming, nourishing messages of happiness this Christmas, your situation is too far gone to be pulled through with scrimpings at the expense of The Little People.

After this, you can't offer the excuse of thoughtlessness to the Eternal Auditor, upon whose records your financial rating won't be reckoned.

And if you're still in doubt as to your social duty, let your wife decide whether she wouldn't choose to have a mite less later, that the others shall have a bit more of comfort today.

Lo, What the Years Have Wrought

FROM all sides, pouring down the intellectual chute like a howling Plains wind, we hear nowadays of the advantages of civilization. And yet, most of the disclosures fail to mention what, to the ordinary man, is civilization's most revered blessing, to-wit, viz., and as follows: That in 1929, when one man disagrees with another, an argument follows; whereas, in Cro-Magnon days one or the other was knocked in the head with a stone axe, knifed with a piece of flint, or otherwise appropriately slain.

The ordinary man is of course made aware, through his newspaper, an occasional periodical, or street corner gossip, that marvelous works of poetry and literature have been and are being written, that science is cutting many capers, and that every mode of thought is being changed; but he has a living to make and is too concerned with keeping the refrigerator stocked to investigate Milton or to study Ford's methods of production. However, he is acutely conscious that his fellows treat him nicely and regard him as a man as long as he bears himself as one, and he instinctively knows that as long as he makes an effort he can make a living.

He knows that if he disagrees with his boss he can go tell him so and not get his block knocked off. In fact, he is ever on the lookout to catch his boss making a mistake so he can point it out and offer a correction, and so prove that he has the firm's interests at heart. Could he do that in the dark ages, or even 50 years ago? He could not. The Cro-Magnon stalwart who found a little sapling trying to cook meat would crown him and go on his way chewing raw flesh, as he always had. The business man of 50 years ago would likely have dismissed an employe who had the courage to tell him that he was losing money by inefficient practices.

No such blindness is promiscuous now. Rather the modern executive tires of men who always agree with him, and assembles men around who will argue and fight for their ideas.

Our affairs of the heart are also—and for which, hallelujah!—made much more alluring. Frinstance, as a realtor friend of ours says: We were standing near the Hamilton building the other day when the world's most beautiful woman passed. We suppressed an awful urge to burst into song, and stood there, eyes bulging. Presently an important looking cuss came out of the building and grabbed her arm. He saw us staring, and he looked at us hard. We couldn't figure out what a woman like that wanted of a man like that, but we let the matter pass and went home, for beauty is everywhere.

Now reflect how simply the matter was handled. In the stone age that man would assuredly have committed murder had he found us peering at his love.

Culture, we conclude, is just one manifestation of civilization. Tolerance and broadmindedness is its universal gift. Culture is there if you have the will and the leisure to get in. But tolerance is everywhere for the asking.

Hurley Recognized by Hoover

OKLAHOMA Republicans and for that matter all Republicans in the Southwest have been given recognition by President Hoover. Patrick Jay Hurley has been made secretary of war. He was born in the old Indian territory. He was educated in the schools of the old Indian territory. He is under 50. He has been a success as a lawyer, he has won his spurs as a banker, in politics he has scored as a leader and when the world war was on he was a soldier in France and for heroism on the battlefield he was voted the distinguished service medal by the American congress.

He has been a Republican since he has been old enough to vote. He never scratches a Republican ticket. He is for the old flag, the old guard, the old platform of principle. Long before the Kansas City convention "Hoover for president" was his slogan in Oklahoma and elsewhere. Now he has been given his reward. There is a warrior at the head of the department of war. He did not hold down a swivel chair while the blood letting was on in the land of the lilies.

Problem of the World Court

PRESIDENT HOOVER authorized the signing of the protocol of adherence to the permanent court of international justice, containing the Root formula for American entry into the world court, and it was signed by an American representative at Berne, Switzerland, as directed by Secretary Stimson of the state department.

Now it must go to the American senate for advice and consent as to ratification.

There is opposition on the part of certain senators. If favorable action is taken then the republic of Washington will enter the League of Nations by way of the back door of the organization which was created by Woodrow Wilson and ditched by the American senate.

A Merger of the Producers

WOOL MEN and mohair men of America are said to be enlisting for the war for the protection of their interests. Sheep and goat growers of five important states, including Texas, are said to be ripe for the adoption of the cooperative plan of protection. Their motto will be "all for one and one for all." And with the farm relief board and the federal treasury behind them they see prosperity for their industry in the coming years. Then what will happen to the wool and mohair buyers of New England and elsewhere?

Quotations Worth Noting

Confirmation

One night you softly said: "This will not last—
Love is a rose that flowers and fades away;
All rapture and all ecstasy go past—
Pool fleeting objects in a ghostly play."

I laughed at your alarm and gayly chose
To hush your mouth the only way I knew;
And when I left I bore with me a rose,
Blood-red and beautiful—a gift from you.

Tonight I turned the pages of a book,
And withered petals fluttered to the floor;
The room went misty, and my fingers shook
As one by one I fondled them once more.

(Oh, I could swear I heard a low voice say
"Love is a rose that flowers and fades away."

Merciless Truth

The Friars' recent frolic, their best in years, was still the topic at the club yesterday. A group gathered around an enthusiastic member who was jotting down the combined salaries of the great cast of comedians who appeared in the Afterpiece.

"Yessir," ejaculated the tablecloth mathematician as he totaled the sum of the combined salaries, "the actors that appeared in that scene would have cost $80,000 a week!"

"You mean, of course," piped a cynic, "if they could get jobs."

Incidentally

Joe ("Sputter") Frisco was a high spot on the Friars Frolic program with his impersonation of Helen Morgan. Harry Rosenthal encountered him the other night to say: "I just left one of your greatest admirers — George M. Cohan!"

"That'll do me a lotta good," was the indifferent answer. "Everything good that Cohan guy writes —he plays in himself!"

In his report in the N. Y. American on the swanky gathering that witnessed the premiere of "Fifty Million Frenchmen" at the Lyric last week, Cholly (Pooch) Knickerbocker has this to say: "Vincent Astor was seated quite a safe distance from the shushing Walter Winchell."

Observation

When Jack Donahue, the star of "Rosalie" and now in "So s o' Guns," was two-a-daying it with his squaw, their act was incessantly the prey of the desperate-for-ideas brigade, most of whom lifted this or that from the Donahue act. So Donahue engaged two thugs to stop the burglars.

When they were tipped off that an act in Baltimore, Washington, Buffalo, Cleveland or anywhere had pilfered any of their material, the toughies would go to the town where the thieves were playing, look over their act, and if they were swiping the stuff, they would call backstage and say: "You are stealing gags and dance steps belonging to Jack Donahue. We are going to watch your act again tonight. If you do it again, we will knock your nose in and tear you from limb to limb."

The threatened pirates, of course, would quit and in that manner the Donahues protected their exclusive and clever routines.

But now that Jack is a star he never uses any of the tricky and amusing dance arrangements for which he fought so hard to keep.

Show Shop Talk

Charley Mercer, business boss for the Newman Traveltalks, used to be an advance man, or mebbe he was a press agent. Anyhow, several seasons ago he made a town in Ohio or mebbe it was in Indiana. When he went into a huddle with the theater manager to scale the house, Charley discovered that the rows of the seats were lettered backwards. The last row was marked A, and Z was right down near the piano.

"How come?" queried Mr. Mercer.

Love Finds a Way

Among the delights in the new musical hit, "Fifty Million Frenchmen," is Helen Broderick, whose droll cracks entice robust laughter. Miss Broderick has finally landed on Broadway in the Big Time Manner after fighting against terrible odds for many, many years. She could have arrived long ago, they will tell you, but every time she got an offer for a show at huge wages she always said: "What about my partner? He's good, too."

The managers, invariably would tell Miss Broderick that they would like very much to hire her partner, but there was nothing in their enterprise for him. And so Helen Broderick only accepted those ordinary shows that could "find a spot" for her partner.

Now both have been rewarded for their loyalty to each other. In the "Frenchman" hit her partner has a juicy role, and he acquits himself most creditably. His name is Lester Crawford, which is Miss Broderick's marriage tag.

Marriage for Two-- By Arthur Somers Roche

Shortly after an interview in which Helen Wilson tells Larry Tracy that she wishes to break their engagement so that she can marry the wealthy, middle-aged Frank Burton, and Larry swears, in pique, to marry the first girl who will have him, he rescues from a park bench a starved but beautiful girl, Joyce Carroll.

A few days later they are married, agreeing that the marriage shall in reality be nothing more than a friendship.

Shortly they sail for Biarritz, where Joyce gains great popularity and where Larry finds himself falling in love with her despite evidence of her strange past. A man named Ratty Rogan, in New York, tries unsuccessfully to tell Larry something of his wife, and in Biarritz Joyce gives 40,000 francs to a woman of the demimonde and tells Larry she lost the money at the gambling tables.

During a party given by Billy Valdemagara, a red-headed Spaniard and Larry's best friend, Larry comes on Helen Wilson on a high cliff overlooking the sea, and, feeling his old love for her revived, takes her in his arms. As he does so, he finds himself looking straight into the eyes of Paul Weedon.

A Nasty Threat

"Sorry if I disturbed you, Larry," said Weedon.

Rumors that had come vaguely to Larry's knowledge, rumors of queer financial carryings-on, that hinted at shady indecencies barely within the law, came back to Tracy now as he stared at Weedon.

"Your wife," said the intruder, "sent me to look for you, and—I'll go back to her now—if you wish."

In his last three words he put all kinds of meaning, but Tracy, unaccustomed to dealing with Weedon's sort, was able only to read one kind, Weedon was threatening him.

"If I wish? Now just what do you mean by that, Weedon?" he demanded.

Weedon shrugged his too-heavy shoulders.

"Let's talk it over some other time, Tracy," he suggested.

Tracy moved toward him. "Let's talk it over now," he said.

Weedon lifted a fat palm.

"Now, don't make a scene, Larry," he advised. "Burton is here, and your wife is here——"

"And what have they to do with your being here, Weedon?" cried Larry.

"Nothing whatsoever. Nothing at all," replied the other. "Only—you'll admit the circumstances are peculiar."

"Why should I admit that—to you?" said Larry.

"Well, it doesn't matter whether or not you admit it," sneered Weedon. "They are peculiar. Less than a month ago you and Miss Wilson were engaged. Now she's engaged to another man; you're married to another woman—and I find you here. Kissing."

"You know, of course," said Larry quietly, "that if another man had found us here—he'd have stolen away—kept his mouth shut."

"The intimation being that I'm not a gentleman, eh?"

"The intimation being all of that and anything else you like," snapped Larry.

"And suppose I don't like your intimations?" suggested Weedon.

"Then," and Larry's teeth shone in the moonlight, "it's always my hardest effort to please. If a client doesn't like what I offer, I think of something else. Such as this."

His hands went suddenly out. They clasped about Weedon's throat.

"Now, you fat rat," he snarled, "how do you like this intimation?"

"Larry! Please!" Helen's voice cut staccato through the heavy strangled breathing of Weedon.

Instantly Tracy released the man. Weedon adjusted his black tie.

"I might have been reasonable, Tracy," he snarled. "But now——"

"Now, you'll probably make up your mind that there's no possible blackmail to be obtained, so—you'll be nasty," said Larry.

He turned to Helen.

"My dear," he said, "I'm very sorry. I—you know how I've always felt about you. But I should have remembered that you—don't feel that way about me. I apologize for having offended you."

"Offended her?" Weedon's laugh was nasty. "Clever try, Tracy. Only—I stood, looking at you, for five minutes. The lady didn't fight very hard."

"May I take you back to the restaurant, Helen?" Tracy offered her his arm. He turned back to Weedon. "Weedon, each time I see you, from now on, I'm going to thrash you. Believe that as you believe in your God, Weedon."

"You can't," whispered Helen, as they moved back toward the dancing place.

Tracy laughed bitterly. "I must," he responded. "Well, what are we to do, Helen?"

"Do?" The girl shrugged hopelessly. "I don't know—if he talks."

Valdemagara hailed them as they came within the radiance of the lights. "Larry, your wife wants you. Why, Heaven only knows. With me here——"

"May I present the Marquis de Valdemagara?"

A Revelation

Larry, with a quick apology, made the two known to each other, and crossed the dancing floor to where, dividing practically all of eligible or desirable male Biarritz with Jeanne Mazell, sat his wife. She looked up gratefully as he approached. Somehow—Larry could not understand how she came to have the air of a grande dame—she dissipated her suitors with a gesture.

"I just wanted to tell you, Larry," she said, "what everyone else knows. Helen Wilson and Frank Burton are here."

He looked at her. "I've seen Helen," he said. "I've been outside on the rocks, talking with her."

Her eyebrows drew faintly nearer to each other.

"You've seen her?" she asked.

Paul Weedon came upon us as we were kissing," he said. "I thought I'd better be the first to tell you."

"Kissing—why, that means—"

And then, definitely, for always he knew.

"No," he almost cried, "it means—it means, Joyce, that I love you."

He wondered, in a stupid sort of fashion, if all his realizations would forever be after-thoughts. Today he had fought against loving his wife. This evening he had renounced her, been unfaithful to her in the spirit if only technically so in the flesh. He had renewed an old allegiance, finding its bonds suddenly sweeter than ever they had been in the past. But now he realized that he had utterly misread himself, had not understood at all the emotions that had swept over him.

He had thought this morning—and again tonight when he danced with Joyce—that her appeal to him was a thing attributable to her grace and beauty. He had thought, five minutes ago, that it was Helen's spirit that had drawn him to her, although he had recognized that Helen, too, was lovely.

But now, looking down into the questioning eyes of his wife, he knew, forever, that were she clothed in the drear, dry flesh of age he would love her. He knew that for weal or woe, through all this lifetime and—pray God—through aeons of immortality, he would adore her.

Why? God knew! Why hadn't he known before? God also knew the answer to that. It was as though he had come through some molding process, until now, at length, he was set everlastingly in the spiritual shape which always he would retain.

Beyond her beauty he looked at her soul. It was not, Heaven help him, what he would have liked to see. It was clouded, soiled, by the words of Rogan, by this afternoon's incident in the chemin de fer room. But that didn't matter. That soul called to him, possessed him, and would always possess him.

He had not "lived" as other men of his acquaintances had lived. There had been plenty of temptation through which he had not come entirely unscathed, but his relations with women, his attitude toward them, were clean. Reverence had never departed from him. But now he wished that he had lived as the companions of his college days had lived. Experience teaches, and it might have been possible for him to have learned by experience something—not about women—about himself. Unless one has experienced certain emotions, certain reactions, it is difficult to understand just what they amount to, what real meaning they possess.

Now everything was clear. But why couldn't everything have been clear weeks ago? Why should clarity of thought have waited until he had been untrue to himself, and done hurt to others.

He had never loved Helen. That he knew now. He had give her a naive, schoolboyish sort of love without the solid basis of realistic understanding of what she was. But Joyce had given real, a love that was based upon understanding, a love that recognized her unworthiness and thus was more binding.

And he had hurt Joyce. That question in her eyes could have been inspired by hurt. And it didn't matter that hurting her he had hurt himself infinitely more. He faced a future filled with self-hurt. Everything about Joyce would hurt him; the piling-up knowledge of her past, until suspicion became a definite fact—but it didn't matter. He loved her, and no matter how this love might hurt and shame him, he must be true to it and to himself.

Contempt

Now the question faded from her eyes. Its place was taken by a cool cynicism.

"Then," she said, "the way for me to prove my love for you—if I should ever feel any—would be to kiss another man?"

"Joyce," he pleaded, "you don't understand."

"I'm afraid I don't," she scoffed. "I'm afraid that any woman would find you hard to comprehend."

"A generous woman might not find it difficult," he said.

"What has generosity to do with you and me?" she harshly demanded. "We made a bargain. I could serve you, and you could be of use to me. And there was an understanding—you were to ask nothing of me, and if I didn't state it in so many words, you nevertheless knew that I would never ask anything of you."

"I knew that," he said.

"Then why tell me that you have kissed another woman? I suppose," she thrust, "that you even discussed the possibility of erasing the blot upon your happiness which happens to be myself?"

He colored. "Joyce, what does it matter what we said? If I love you—"

"What has that to do with the case?" she interrupted. "You say that Weedon saw you. You say that you wanted to be the first to tell me. I love your well-bred friends who, you think, would be apt to inform me—"

"Weedon would," he said.

"Did he say he would?" she asked. "And is that why you thought you'd reach me first?"

"I would have told you anyway," he said.

"And you let Weedon frighten you?" she inquired.

"I've told Weedon I'd thrash him every time I saw him," he blazed.

"That's better," she surprisingly said.

"I don't understand," he said.

"It doesn't matter," she replied. "Nothing that you do matters. And perhaps Miss Wilson is waiting for you."

Bank Killing Trial May Bar Reporters

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Dec. 12. (AP)—Charging that newspaper articles make it difficult to obtain jurors, J. N. Brubaker, attorney for Red Woods, charged jointly with J. H. Dumas in the Rankin, Upton county, bank killing, said he would make an effort to get a judge's ruling against newspaper men reporting the highlights of the case prior to the selection of a jury. The Woods-Dumas case is set for trial in district court here during the winter term.

The Woods-Dumas case created state-wide interest in that the Texas Bankers association's reward of $5,000 for "dead bank bandits" was involved. It was reported here that the state would attempt to prove that Woods and Dumas schemed to collect the reward for two men who were shot dead at the rear of the Rankin bank.

Woods' attorneys have hinted they will attempt to prove "political corruption" is at the bottom of the case.

BUTLER GIVEN 2-YEAR TERM

Manslaughter Verdict Voted By Hillsboro Jury

Hugh D. Butler, twice acquitted here on charges growing out of the loss of $700 from the Silver store several months ago, was given a two-year sentence for manslaughter in a recent trial at Hillsboro, according to information received here Thursday by Earl Kuntz, defense counsel in the trials here.

Butler was originally charged with the murder of two men at the Groesbeck fair in 1927. His first trial brought a 99-year sentence, but the case was reversed and a second hearing resulted in an acquittal. The trial on the second murder charge followed his acquittal here. Hillsboro officers having taken the prisoner from the Wichita county jail at the close of the proceedings.

A divorce suit, brought by Mrs. Butler against the prisoner soon after his arrest here, is scheduled for a hearing next week.

Farmer Quits Country To Take 35-Cent Job

CAMP SAN SABA, Texas, Dec. 12. (AP)—Will Freeman has forsaken his 165-acre truck farm near here to serve the community as postmaster at 35 cents a day. No one else would take the assignment and Freeman, imbued with true civic pride, said he could not bear to see the postoffice discontinued.

During cold weather it costs Freeman more to heat the building where the postoffice is housed than he receives in compensation.

The postoffice is 50 miles from a railroad and if it were discontinued it would work a handicap on the 30 patrons.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR LOCKNEY

Postoffice Structure Starts This Month

Special to The Record News.

LOCKNEY, Texas, Dec. 12.—Building activity in Lockney increases with the announcement that work will start immediately on two modern, fireproof buildings in the business district.

A contract is to be let on Dec. 18 for a new postoffice building, by officials of the Security State bank, who were the successful bidders for the furnishing of postoffice quarters for this city. New fixtures are to be installed by the United States postoffice department.

Work on a fireproof, brick building, that will house a local implement establishment, is to start immediately following the recent submitting of bids. The building is to be 50 by 140 feet and will be modern in every respect.

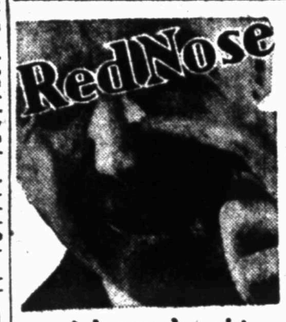

Another brick business house, located in the 100 block on Main street, is nearing completion and should be ready for occupancy within the next 30 days.

The contract calls for the erection of a brick farm home with every modern convenience and is to cost approximately $7,000.

Little Theater Jammed for Second Performance

With the crowd of second nighters at the Little theater production of "White Collars" filling every seat and crowding the aisles Thursday night, and renewed demands for more tickets being made, the directors of the organization made hurried plans for a fourth presentation of the popular comedy on Saturday night. F. C. McClung, director, announced the additional performance after the standing room only sign was put out Thursday. Tickets will be on sale at the Renfro Drug store at the ticket office of the Little theater.

The success of the premiere performance was enlarged Thursday night, with the cast gaining confidence and the large audience increasingly responsive. Two newcomers to the Little theater group, who are appearing for the first time in "White Collars" won especial comment for their effective character and comedy work, H. F. Ferrell, as the father, and J. W. Whitelaw, the truck-driving Romeo, put into roles of comparatively minor importance an artistry and finish unusual in an amateur cast.

CHRISTMAS IN CHEMIST'S EYE

Scientist Analyzes Yuletide Spirit

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. (INS)—Science has made a chemical analysis of "the Christmas spirit."

"It is the universal solvent sought by the alchemists of old," declared Dr. Howard A. Marple of Pittsburgh, today in the Journal of American Chemical society. It was an article entitled "The Chemistry of Christmas."

The Christmas spirit was characterized as a neutral chemical that builds new compounds and rejuvenates old. It was held a "reversible compound, for Christmas spirit returns to its original state, ready to begin anew."

Attacks Evil

"It has an affinity for good and attacks the bad," continued the article. "Large or small quantities of it can be handled, depending on the capacity of the mind that dispenses it.

"Let us analyze the chemical and physical properties of Christmas spirit as we do any chemical element or compound. It has, at times, an odor of frankincense and myrrh, the odor of evergreens or of burning tapers. That depends on the place and the heat of reaction. On mixing it, it has a tinkling, joyful sound, full taste of all good things.

Unbounding Energy

"Its energy is unbounding, dividing itself a million times it becomes more powerful, creating in most all it meets a feeling of light-heartedness; in some, a wistful sadness. More often it is like new wine—it refreshes, stimulates, makes happiness and smiles, increasing generosity and good nature."

According to the scientist the world is the laboratory of the Christmas spirit and all those who inhabit the planet may use and enjoy its benefits. Its wavelength covers the entire scale of the spectrum. It is a force that cannot be measured in meters or tons, and can be transmitted with the speed of light to extreme corners of the earth, using an ether wave as media.

Among the smallest races in the world are the Bushmen, Laplanders, Malays and Burmese, and oddly enough, these are all comparatively short-lived people.

Sam Smith

San Antonio Man's Appetite Like a Boy's

"At one time in my life I thought I had the worst luck of any man in Texas," says Sam Smith, now one of San Antonio's heaviest taxpayers. "I had to be careful what I ate or I would almost choke from the gas on my stomach. That was many years ago. In fact, until I started taking Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets). Ever since then I eat what I want and let NR take care of the rest."

That's because those little Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) soothe, sweeten and stimulate the stomach and bowels. Then the starch and sugar wastes can't remain in your system to form those acids which sour your stomach, bind your bowels and rob the blood of the red corpuscles it must have plenty of to keep you from suffering pain, biliousness, sick headaches, indigestion and rheumatism. More than 3 million NR Tablets are used a day. Get the 25c box at any drug store.—Adv.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Mother and Her Son Confess to Murder

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Dec. 12. (AP)—Prosecuting Attorney H. D. Green Jr., announced today he had obtained a confession from Mrs. Laura James Trimmer, 45, and her son, Sylvester James, 24, both of Pomona, Mo., near here, that they had murdered Mrs. Trimmer's father-in-law, E. E. Trimmer, 66, Tuesday night.

Green said Mrs. Trimmer and her son said they poisoned the man to get his money and property which he had promised to leave to Mrs. Trimmer and her husband, Charles, if they would care for him until his death.

Both James and his mother said Charles Trimmer knew nothing of the plot.

Mrs. Trimmer came here about 14 years ago from Blackwell, Okla., where her first husband, the father of Sylvester James, resides.

Abe was about to depart on a holiday to the continent. Sol had come to the station to wish him good-bye.

As the train was about to move off Sol said, "Vell, cheerio, old chap, and remember the old proverb, 'Ven in Rome, do the Romans'."—Tit-Bits.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

It clings with such tenacity, it has so combined itself with the metal, that it forms a permanent, lasting film that remains for months.

No other American oil will do this. No other oil will give you that degree of plus lubrication as will CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil.

INJURED FIREMAN TELLS OF MAD FIGHT TO ESCAPE TRAP

FLAMES SINGE HAIR AND FACE

Childers Tells Graphic Story Of Fire Horrors

Tragedy at the ultimate depths of its grimness and a miracle fused of steel and concrete mingled with the roar of falling tons of brick and timber Thursday morning when flames which destroyed the Antlers hotel were cheated of a victim by the chance arching of a section of fire escape beneath the deepest portion of the debris.

James M. Childers, 1301 Burnett street, a fireman from station No. 2, was one of three men manning hose directly beneath the west wall. The bricks, which fell without warning, crushed the life out of the body of Smiley Turner and inflicted serious injuries to Roy Anderson, the two others with Childers on the hose. Childers was imprisoned in a cell-like space under the deepest portion of the wreckage.

Fire Escape Saves Life

"I don't know how I happened to jump toward the base of the wall instead of toward the street as the others did," Childers said Thursday afternoon. "I remember a thousand thoughts and possibilities flashed across my mind at the moment the wall crumbled. I could hardly say the wall began to crumble, because it seemed to come all at once. It was over and we were under almost before we knew it had begun.

"I saw Smiley jump to the left and Roy to the right, both toward the street. I must have stood motionless for the fraction of a second and then I caught a glimpse of the bars of a fire escape next to the wall. I can't remember why I stepped under the grating but I was there in an instant.

"The next thing I remember distinctly was trying to extricate my feet and legs from part of the brick work which held them fast. I did not realize fully the fact that my arms and body were free until I had pulled my feet into the space where I was. My left hand was tingling with scratches from pieces of broken glass which must have grazed my arm as I jerked free and began working to pull my legs out of the bricks in front of me.

"The entire front part of my helmet was torn away in the first crash but I did not have time to take stock of what had happened until I was inside the enclosure. That helmet probably saved me from a crushed head, because a force powerful enough to tear out a part of the steel-like headgear we wear would crush anything less strong.

Blaze Lights Prison

"I was safe, at least for the time. That thought did not occur until I was able to move my entire body about in the cell formed by the grating and bricks. It was pitch black inside there and I had no idea of the appearance of the hollow space until a blaze from above swept over my head and gave me a momentary glance at my prison.

"That was the only time I cried out, when the flames singed my hair and burned my forehead. Immediately after I felt water from a hose and the flames disappeared.

I began digging at the bricks and wreckage in front of me and in a short while I could stick one hand out into the air. I waved frantically, thoughts of the grating giving way and allowing the tons of brick above to fall in on me driving me into a frenzy of labor. In a moment I could see through.

"The first person I saw was Thurston Harvey. A group of others were behind him. I heard a rumbling somewhere in the rear of the building and all but Thurston made a dash for the street. He remained and thrust out his hand to grasp mine. By that time I had worked about half of my body out of the hole and when the others rejoined Thurston, they pulled me to my feet.

"I shall never forget the expression on Thurston's face when he first saw me. 'Oh, my God, Jim, are you hurt?' he asked. I tried to smile and told him I was all right, but I had a hard time staying on my feet, even with their assistance. I must have been shivering all over. It wasn't fear. Somehow, the thought of fear didn't break in upon the primary desire to get out. I didn't exactly think about what might happen if I didn't get out. It was just that I wanted to be anywhere except under those bricks.

Tribute to Chief

"I didn't want to go to the hospital. I told them Smiley and Roy were under there and I wanted to move those bricks. They took me away. I don't know why, but my legs just gave out from under me at the hospital and they had to carry me to the bed. All the time I was there I kept thinking about Smiley, just a little to the left, under the edge of what formed my cell, and Roy, just to the right.

"They told me how Smiley was when they brought him out. They told me about the chief. Smiley was just like a son to the chief. So were all of us. I'll never work for a finer man than the chief and there'll never be another like Smiley. The shock to the chief must have been terrible, because he loved Smiley. I wasn't hurt. It just happened that way. But Smiley, we loved him."

In the time of Queen Elizabeth a law was made that no new building should be erected within three miles of London or Westminster.

WOMAN TELLS OF HOTEL FIRE

Mrs. Billy Miller Describes Escape From Flames

there for three minutes before I distinctly heard a cry for help. A woman was screaming. She seemed to shout a frenzied question which ended with a queer sobbing answer as though she were thinking more of those with her than of herself. 'Get out? Get out?' she cried, 'We can't get out!'

Flames Lick Door

"I sat upright in the bed and was on my feet in an instant, grabbing my clothes. Smoke was beginning to filter under the door and I heard sounds like a thousand tin cans being rattled outside my door. Footsteps hurried past outside in the hall and seemed to stop and hurry back in the other direction. This was not drawn out. It happened almost as quickly as I can tell it.

"I saw flames licking at the cracks in the door and the woodwork outside began to crackle. Those running about in the hall seemed to be bumping into the wall, into my door, into each other in their frenzy to find an avenue of escape. The smoke was filling my room and the persons outside apparently could see nothing but a blank wall of dense smoke clouds. I started to rush to the door, but a sudden crash and echoing of a renewed peal of shouting and screaming made me stop abruptly and turn to the window.

"When I looked outside, the flames were licking upward from the windows of the next room. I did not stop to think that only a thin wall separated my own room from those flames. My only thought was to get out. Means, not consequences, were uppermost in my brain.

"I glanced downward and saw a narrow space at the base of the wall. I thought I could land safely if I dropped straight downward and before I had realized what I was doing, I was in mid-air. The next thing I knew or felt was a terrific blade of pain in my leg, as though a huge knife had sliced away the flesh. I wondered afterward why I did not fall backwards toward the wall. Instead, I fell face down over the small ledge and had hardly crawled over when someone struck the roof in front of me. It was Wylie Miller. He picked me up.

"Toby" Trapped

"One of the first things he said when he had found I was hurt was 'Toby is in that room.' I didn't understand what he meant until I saw him looking upward at the room occupied by Kenneth F. Brice, familiarly called 'Toby.' He told me later he had seen Toby in there as he ran past the door and that he didn't think he'd have a chance to get out. Toby's dead now.

"And then we began trying to get down. You know the rest as well as I do. It would all seem like a dream, like something that couldn't have happened—if my leg would stop throbbing. They said there were 15 stitches in it. I can't feel anything except the pain. And I wish I could stop thinking—just for a minute."

Fear Permeates Auburn Prison

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 12. (US)—Fear permeates this prison today where horror reigned yesterday. Keepers concede the possibility of another rebellion as a bloody aftermath of the mutiny in which Principal Keeper George Furnford and eight felons were killed. Convicts dread the drastic discipline anticipated with the probability that some must face first degree murder charges. Officials in charge of the red-stained, bullet-chipped institution expect a sweeping reorganization of administration, from Warden Edgar Jennings down.

There is reason for the enveloping fear. Ten revolvers used by the desperate convicts in the uprising are missing still. Every one of the 1,564 prisoners has been searched. Every cell of the 1,210 in the prison has been examined. All the administration buildings and shops have been ransacked—but only two of the 12 pistols have been found.

Such Is Love

The straightforward young woman believed in telling the truth. She married a very sentimental young man.

"My darling," he said, "surely, I cannot be worthy of you?"

"Oh, of course not," she answered. "But when a girl's been 23 for six years she would be silly to be too particular, wouldn't she?" —Tit-Bits.

CITY TO HELP FIRE VICTIMS

Probe May Follow Blaze at Antlers Hotel

John M. Childers, another fireman, was dismissed from the General hospital Thursday morning shortly after he had received emergency treatment for several cuts and bruises.

First knowledge of the fire came when Patrolmen A. E. Miller and J. N. Austin, of the city police force, emerging from the alley at the back of the American hotel at 3:30 a. m. Thursday, saw flames licking through the roof of the Antlers building. They gave the alarm and rushed up a fire escape to waken the sleepers within the hotel.

Guests Terror Stricken

Terror spread through the building as the flames swept through the halls, imprisoning frantic men and women who fought their way out of the fire by way of collapsing fire escapes, who leaped blindly through windows, or were carried, fainting, in the arms of rescuers.

Through a smoke-dimmed window came a mother and six children, while spectators from the outside watched another woman, overcome by smoke and terror, sink to the floor. Watchers gazed in horror, helpless against the flames, while Kenneth Brice disappeared, screaming for help, from the window of his third floor room. The floors had collapsed beneath him. Four hours later rescuers found his charred and mutilated body.

It was at 4 o'clock that the west wall swayed and fell, burying beneath the brick and steel and the masses of burning debris, the bodies of at least 10 firemen. A cordon of police rushed to push onlookers aside, while the whole force of the fire hoses was concentrated upon the gap and dozens of rescuers began a desperate battle for the lives of the trapped men.

While the fortunate of the number struggled free, the grim work of bringing out the dead and seriously injured began.

The work of the axes, picks, and bars went on for 15 minutes before the body of Smiley Turner, assistant fire chief and veteran of the department, was lifted from the debris. The work was not completed until a tangled steel fire escape, which came down with the wall, had been torn away from the body of G. L. Anderson, the third victim of the flames.

Meanwhile from an upstairs window, Mrs. Billy Miller had jumped to the roof of an adjoining building, tearing a deep gash in her right leg as she scraped an encircling ledge Wylie Miller jumped through the same window just behind her and the two climbed together down the spikes of a telephone post to reach safety.

Pressed by the flames that were almost upon him, R. D. Rankin, of Sterling, Okla., took his chance on a leap to the pavement below—and won. His injuries, centered in an ankle and heel, were so slight as to make it possible for him to leave the hospital late Thursday.

Fire Chief in Hospital

Shocked by the news of the toll taken by the falling wall, Chief J. L. McClure, already suffering from smoke and exertion, collapsed. He was rushed to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital where his condition improved through the day Thursday.

A. O. Johnson fighting the flames at the top of the building, was forced to jump from a third story fire escape when he felt the structure giving way beneath him. Badly shocked by the terrific force of his landing, Johnson was first thought dangerously injured, but his condition was much improved within a few hours.

Roy Anderson, another fireman, was caught under the same mass of debris that crushed his brother to dead, but his injuries, beyond shock and bruises, were found to be slight. W. E. Phillips, Howard Tate, and John M. Childers, all firemen, were numbered among the trapped men. Childers, dismissed almost at once from the hospital, was saved from death when he was caught between two crossed timbers that sheltered him from falling debris until he could be saved.

Fears that other guests of the hotel might have perished in the flames were dispelled late Thursday when Mrs. Jack Sawyer, manager, completed a careful check and found that Brice was the only guest unsaved. The structure, once known as the Argonne hotel, was erected here during the days of the oil boom. Many additional partitions, some of them of beaverboard and other fragile materials, had been erected, fire officials declared. The building was owned by H. G. Karrenbrock. Property loss was estimated at $50,000.

Smiley Turner, a native of Paris, Texas, came to Wichita Falls in December, 1914. Five months later he became a member of the fire department where his distinguished service has been broken only by his enlistment in the United States army during the war. He was acting as assistant fire chief when he lost his life Thursday morning.

Mr. Turner is survived by his wife, and one sister, Mrs. Joe Clements of California. Tentative funeral plans are for 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the First Christian church. The following honorary pallbearers have been named: R. E. Shepherd, W. D. Cline, A. E. Kelly, Lester Jones, Walter Caldwell, Ed Peterson, Guy Rogers, Al Ellis, Sidney Gaines, George Lawler, J. L. McClure, Frank Burns, J. W. Akin, George D. Fairtrace, W. E. McBroom, Dr. H. D. Fillmore, Oral Jones, Dr. Q. B. Lee, M. N. Clifford, Vic Stampfl, Roy E. Carter, C. E. McCutchen, John W. Hunt, J. M. Spoonts, R. O. Harvey, J. H. Patton, W. B. Ward, and George W. Thorburn.

Geno L. Anderson, 24, was born in Wichita Falls, a member of the third generation of a family of pioneers. He entered the fire department about five years ago. His body will lie in state at the Hines mortuary until the hour for the funeral service at 3:30 o'clock at the First Evangelical church, Fourteenth and Broad, on Friday afternoon. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

Besides his wife, Mr. Anderson is survived by his father, Sam Anderson; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Anderson; a brother, Roy, and two sisters, all of whom live in Wichita Falls.

Rites for Brice Today

Funeral services for Kenneth (Toby) Brice of Bowie, bus driver who lost his life in the flames, will be held in Bowie on Friday afternoon. The body, crushed and badly burned after a crash from the third floor of the burning building, was taken back to the Brice home Thursday afternoon under the direction of the Merkle Undertaking company. Arrangements were completed by a brother who flew to Wichita Falls in his privately owned airship just before dawn Thursday after the news of the disaster had spread.

Mr. Brice was in the employ of the Wichita Falls Yellow Cab company. During the past year he has operated a bus for the company between Bowie and Nocona, according to Frank H. Clisbee, manager. He came to Wichita Falls this week to secure a state permit as a bus driver, a requirement outlined in recent legislation, Mr. Clisbee said.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Brice and two brothers, W. B. and B. C. Brice, all of Bowie.

Two Dallas Mexicans Charged With Murder

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Dec. 12. (UP)—Although both stoutly denied any connection with the killing, Juan Rodrigues and Orosco Manuel, Dallas Mexicans, were charged with murder here today for the death of an unidentified Mexican woman.

The woman's body was found last week under the floor of a house near Ennis. She had been brutally murdered and a wire was twisted around her neck.

102-Year-Old Texan Bemoans Fact He Will Soon Start Getting Old

BEAUMONT, Texas, Dec. 12. (AP)—Although he will be 102 years old next June, W. M. Kearnes, globe trotter, hale and hearty despite his years, bemoans the fact that his inability to obtain work is driving him to the old folks' home.

It is because the grizzled old nomad had decided it was futile to try to obtain another job and was hiking to Houston, 90 miles away, that he is a patient at a local hospital, and will be for the next six weeks.

An automobile struck him and broke four of his ribs. He is in a plaster cast.

"Say, I'm not old," Kearnes says. "I'm 101 now, won't be 102 until next June, but every time I get a job the boss finds out how old I am and I get let out.

"I was born on a ship crossing the Atlantic, back in 1828, and all my life I've been living in Texas, in McLennan county, near Waco, but I've traveled, been in danged near every country and port in the world.

"Married? No. Always been lucky and missed 'em.

"I went around with Barnum's old circus, toured Texas with 'Old Mollie Bailey,' and helped build the first railroad in Texas in 1852."

Kearnes last job was at a lumber camp in Blox, Texas.

Probe Into Cotton Exchanges Begins

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. (AP)—Investigation by a senate agriculture committee of the New York, Chicago and New Orleans cotton exchanges started today with testimony that the law of supply and demand was the principal factor entering into the present depressed price of cotton.

The testimony, given by Gardiner H. Miller, president of the New York cotton exchange, met vigorous opposition from two southern Democrats on the committee, Senators Heflin of Alabama and Smith of South Carolina.

BILL VARE ILL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 12. (AP)—William S. Vare, former senator-elect from Pennsylvania, was ill at his home in Chelsea today with what was said to be a relapse from his recent illness.

An ounce of radium, carried in a man's hip pocket, would kill him in 10 hours by destroying his bones and tissues.

Sugar Tariff Increase Opposed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. (AP)—A protest by President Machado of Cuba against an "immoderate increase" in the American sugar tariff was read today before the senate lobby committee.

It was in a letter the Cuban president wrote last March to H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba company and who has been active in advocating a low sugar duty in the pending tariff measure, the only witness at today's session of the committee.

Lakin, whose company has large sugar holdings in Cuba, has cooperated with the Cuban government in urging a low duty and recently returned from Havana where he conferred with Machado.

LOSS SADDENS FIRE FIGHTERS

Department Favorites Die in Antlers Blaze

The sudden sweep of horror Thursday morning left scores of minds filled with unbelief. It did not seem possible that Smiley's footsteps should be forever erased from the stairs at central station.

"He's not gone. He can't be. It seems as though he's somewhere—somewhere we could go to him. Smiley's just . . . . " Tears broke the voice of one who had known Smiley's joyful countenance and happy personality for more than 16 years. No higher tribute to him could have been made.

Roy Anderson lay in the hospital Thursday night with a body covered with bruises and scars. His brother's body lay in state at the Hines' mortuary.

Brother's Body Found

When the wall of the blazing hotel caught them and held them until the frenzied efforts of rescuers had brought them out into the air, Roy was thrown headlong across the body of another fireman and pinned down before he could discover the identity of the man beneath him. When the bricks and timber had been removed from Roy's prostrate form, he managed to say, "There's another one under there." He was rushed to the hospital before he learned who the man was. Beneath the spot where Roy had lain, rescuers found the torn body of his brother, Geno, who had been instantly killed.

No thoughts of tragedy intruded upon the excitement which prevailed at central station when the alarm was sounded early Thursday morning. The dangers of fighting a hotel fire were not fully realized. They were not considered. One object stood out: to extinguish the fire. Warm beds and the delicious peace of rest after strain and hard work perhaps lurked in the smaller portions of each fireman's brain. There was work to do.

Firemen Sleepless

But when daylight brought out in relief the stark walls of what had been the Antlers hotel, no sleep was possible for the firemen who had left the station in a dash of excitement hardly four hours before. Some walked the floor of the station. Others sat quietly on beds and chairs, staring at walls or ceiling, breaking the silence only to drop some reminiscent word of the tragedy or of the lives of the two who did not return.

Wednesday afternoon, when normal activity gave no hint of the catastrophe to come, Smiley Turner was paying his invariable daily visit to the Memorial auditorium. From the rear of his car he produced a pack of bridge score pads and handed them to a young man who was just entering the auditorium.

"Give these to the young lady for me, will you?" he said. I promised her I'd bring them. Tell her I'll bring some more tomorrow."

Millard Fillmore was the only United States president who made no inaugural address.

Timing and Action

A bystander wants to know why it isn't easier to master good timing in golf than it is in tennis.

"In golf," he writes, "the player can take his own stance. He is not in motion. He can start his swing when he wants to. In tennis he is usually moving at top speed. He doesn't know just where the ball is coming until it is under way. He must get to that spot in a hurry and then time his return."

This sounds logical, but it isn't. The boll weevil, the black plague, the cancer of timing is tension. Without tension it would be comparatively easy to play most games well, in-so-far as form goes. It is a well understood fact that one of the best ways to handle tension is through action or motion.

Ask any football player how he feels while waiting for the first kick-off. His nervous system is in a snarl. Every pulse he has is jumping in a number of directions at the same time. This all disappears, or most of it does, after the kick-off has been run back. Which means the beginning of action.

Tennis is largely motion and action. For that reason there is much less tension in tennis than there is in golf. Moving muscles respond more naturally and with greater freedom. They act almost automatically, or through instinct. They are not tied up.

But golf is another problem. The very lack of motion creates tension before the swing is started. It is for this reason that the waggle came in as a partial relief. No golfer should ever get the idea that he is planted or set in his stance while addressing the ball. There should be a preliminary waggle with some sort of body motion to break through the increasing rigidity. There must be at least the thought of motion before the clubhead is started back.

But with most golfers the stance is about as flexible as a straight-jacket. They have put themselves beyond any possible hope of good timing even before the clubhead is started. They have locked the door by locking their hands, wrists, hips and necks.

Easy to See

This is all easy to follow when you check through. Balance, for example, is not a post stuck in the ground. It is motion under control. A beginner gets on a bicycle and as it starts away he and the machine fall. His body doesn't blend with the motion of the machine. Another gets on and rides away, easily and smoothly. This is balance, for it is motion under control.

The more action there is the less there is of tension. There is far less tension in a full drive than there is in a half shot or a short pitch in golf. In the first case the motion can be almost unlimited. In the second case there if a feeling of definite restriction.

A gram of tension can spread through the entire system quicker than the poison from a cobra or a rattlesnake. It means the destruction of all co-ordination.

Among ball players the one who had less tension than any other was Larry Lajoie. He stood at the plate as if he was half bored, swinging a bat lazily back and forth, often with only his left hand. His body was in motion, but it was lazy motion. There was no hurried bat swinging back and forth under the pressure of a tight two-handed grip. For this reason he was always in command of himself, with flexible muscles and relaxed nerves ready to respond instantly at his demand. With greater foot speed Lajoie would have batted above .400 year after year, probably up as high as .450 through several years of his career.

Golf and Polo

Devereux Milburn will tell you there is far more tension in golf than there is in polo—even in international polo. For polo is practically all motion and action—the last word in action. Milburn will tell you that in his opinion golf is the hardest game to learn—and stay put.

Yet golf would be much simpler if the average player would give more time and attention in the direction of curbing or curing tension. This doctrine has been advanced in these dispatches more than once, but it is something that will bear repeating, as it not only has a vital effect upon the quality of performance in any game, but also upon the condition of one's nerves, which in turn have a direct bearing upon one's health.

Turkey Shoot Big Event to Bowlers

Harry Katz, pin toppler extraordinaire, says that he has got to have one of those turkey gobblers that they are giving away at the Spudder alleys, and just to back it up Thursday he busted the old maples for a new high score of 676 in three games, the individual games running 238, 226 and 212 points. Now Katz is tied with Jim Jennings in a single game, having rolled 214 with a 14-point handicap.

The Spudder bowling alleys have put up five turkeys in a "turkey shoot." One of these will go as a prize to anybody who rolls for the three highest consecutives, two will go to the City League bowlers, and the last two will go to the Commercial league bowlers. Other rules governing the "shoot" may be seen posted in the alleys.

Chicago Kids Will Be Let in at Cub Games Free

CHICAGO, Dec. 12. (AP)—Chicago school children, who lack the price of admission to see the Cubs and White Sox play baseball, will not have to search for peekholes next season.

They will be admitted free to three games a week, President William Veeck of the Cubs and Secretary Harry Grabiner of the White Sox announced today. A charge of 25 cents will be made for other games, except those played on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Every year China uses 4,000 tons of lilies as food, the flowers being made into a nourishing soup.

TYSON-COACHED TEAM POPULAR

Buckaroos Will Send in "Four Horsemen"

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Dec. 12.—With one day left before the semi-finals gridiron clash here Saturday between Waco and Breckenridge gets under way, indications are that practically every rabid high school football fan in West Texas, as well as hundreds from other sections of the state, will be on hand for the referee's opening whistle.

The words, "Waco Tigers" have caused more fans to purchase seats in the middle of this week than had been purchased three hours before game time last week, when Amarillo played the Buckaroos in a di-district round.

Fame of Tyson Team

Few West Texans have ever seen Coach Paul Tyson's Waco Tigers in action. For years, high school football followers of this section have read about the Tyson-coached teams, how they won four state championships and how they have lost only four games since playing under the regulations of the state interscholastic league.

The fame of the Waco Tigers is as well known in this section as that of Knute Rockne and his Irishmen, yet few have ever had the pleasure of watching Coach Tyson's proteges perform. Added to Tyson's drawing power is the fact that Coach P. E. Shotwell is as equally known for his winning teams as is his opponent for this week. The two coaches have met twice before in the state finals and each has won one game.

Spin Plays

The fame of the Tyson spin play, which has been winning so many games for the Wacoans has attracted as much attention in this section as has the galloping backfield aces of Coach Shotwell's and the spectacular interference running of Graham, A. Magness and Pruitt, mates of the scoring ace, Boyce Magness.

While fans fought over choice seats in the Buckaroo field stadium Coach Shotwell whipped his charges through another stiff workout yesterday. The Buckaroo mentor will hold a final stiff session Thursday afternoon and then taper off with only light drilling Friday afternoon. Coach Tyson and his Tigers are due on the scene Friday afternoon and will get a short workout on the local field after the Buckaroos have gone to the dressing rooms.

One thousand fans will follow the Tigers here on a special train, according to word from the Waco headquarters.

Buckaroo Aerial Attack

The far-famed Tyson spin play has come in for much tearing apart on the Buckaroo practice field this week. Coach Shotwell is determined to break up the tricky Tiger play and has grilled his sturdy linesmen in this defensive manner. Coach Shotwell has also paved particular attention to the passing attack and is counting on the Tigers shooting an aerial game into the fracas.

Players in Shape

Every Green Shirt, with the exception of Captain Troy Carey, end, and Wray, guard, who were injured in the Amarillo-Breck game, will be in tip-top shape for the game Saturday. Captain Carey is in a local hospital and is out for possibly the remainder of the season. Wray has been hobbling around, looking on from the sidelines and may see service.

The galloping "four horsemen" are intact and due to beat a wider path against the Wacoans than they did against the lumbering Sandies from Amarillo. B. Magness, ball toting ace, was used less against Amarillo than in any game the whole year. Fans expect to see this lad do some running Saturday.

TIGERS COMPLETE LAST HOME PRACTICE, LEAVING

WACO, Texas, Dec. 12. (AP)—Dusk settled over the Waco Tigers' practice field tonight as a mist of rain fell, and a group of Bengals completed their last practice at home before meeting the Breckenridge Buckaroos Saturday in the oil belt city.

Few are the times before that a Paul Tyson team has left its home field for the last time before a big game with such a look of determination as did the 1929 machine today.

Coach Tyson had little to say. Monday he told his boys:

"They will tell you from one end of the state to the other that you have no chance whatsoever, but if the game was played in Waco, they would give you an even break. Well, the field out in Breckenridge is no longer and no wider than the one at the Cotton Palace. It is a little softer and there is nothing in the makeup of the soil to make you play better or worse."

Friday morning the Waco boys with Coach Tyson and his assistants will leave by bus for Breckenridge. They plan to make the trip in easy stages and hope to get in a light workout in the Buckaroos' city during the afternoon.

A special train carrying 1,000 Wacoans will leave here Saturday morning.

T. I. A. A. May Drop Baseball From Off Competitive Sports

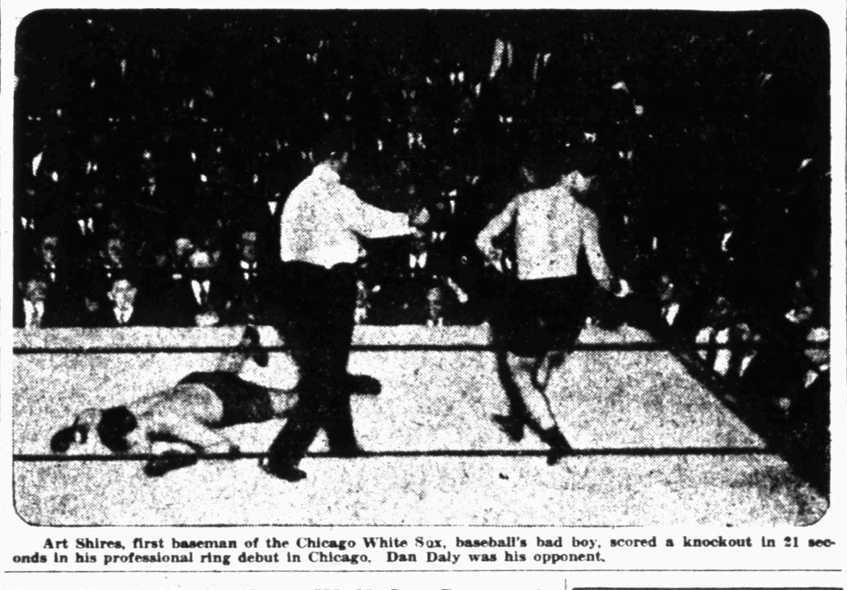

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Dec. 12 (AP)—There is a strong possibility that baseball will be dropped from the list of competitive sports in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association.

None of the schools in the association has scheduled a baseball game for the approaching season and no attempt was made to do so at the annual meeting this week at Dallas.

St. Mary's College Now Dickering With Iowa

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12. (AP)—St. Mary's college, possessing the most brilliant football record in the far West this year and one of the few teams in the country to complete its schedule without defeat, today started negotiations with the University of Iowa for a home and home engagement. If an agreement can be reached the first game would be played in San Francisco next year.

"The Great Shires" Wins in Ring Debut

New York Fight Fans Will Get Revenge

Friday Night Bout Will Be Big Sell-Out

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (UP)—New York fight fans today were preparing a strange answer to the unhappy deal they got Monday when Phil Scott won from Otto Von Porat on a second-round foul in an advertised 12-round bout, by insuring a sell-out for Friday's fight between Jimmy McLarnin and Ruby Goldstein.

The answer is a surprising one, looked at from the surface only. Instead of staying away in droves to register their disgust over a miserable program, the fans, two days before the coming fight, have supplied Madison Square garden with most of the makings of a $100,000 gate.

Bout Is a Natural

Actually, the hearty interest in Friday's welterweight bout is easy to explain. The bout's a natural.

The meetings of Canzoneri and Singer, McLarnin and Miller, and Singer and Chocolate were naturals, too. While the last of these three was a bit flat, there is every reason to believe that the McLarnin-Goldstein fight will give plenty of thrills.

Both McLarnin and Goldstein are terrific hitters. Both crowd everything they have into the front of the fight at hand.

Goldstein Idol

Goldstein, an idol of New York's east side, met Ace Hudkins in his first big fight. He almost knocked out the Ace, only to be knocked out himself. Later he met Sid Terris. Sid was floored for a nine count. At the word "nine" Sid jumped up, aimed one blow at Ruby and heard the referee count ten over the prostrate Goldstein.

McLarnin has always been a favorite hereabouts. Just now he is something like an 8 to 5 favorite to take Goldstein. By ring time he may be favored at 2 to 1.

Kid Chocolate, extremely dark Cuban negro, and Leonard (Young) Zazzarino are to fight in the same ring here next Wednesday night but they will fight at different times.

Chocolate will face Dominick Petrone. Zazzy will tackle Jose Martinez, Spaniard.

Chocolate and Zazzarino both had fights last night. Both scored first-round knockouts. Ralph Esposito was Zazzy's victim. Chocolate took Herman Silverberg.

Zundelowitz Junior High School Basketeers to Be Minus Veterans

Coach Roy Golden's Zundelowitz Junior high cage warriors are fast rounding into shape and expect to be in top top condition by the middle of the year. As has been the case in past seasons, the Red and Gray five will be utterly devoid of veterans. All of the material for this year's team is green and will require much coaching ere a smooth working machine can be produced.

The squad is one of the biggest that has turned out in the history of the school. Several aspirants who are tall enough to grace a high school five give the impression that a great team will be developed. Lloyd Crowell looks exceptionally good as he handles himself well on a court and knows the game. Much is expected of this youngster in the Zundy basket ball games this year. Tom Green, inexperienced but promising guard, is leading all candidates for the guard position and looms as a mainstay in the Zundy defense. Several others are showing up well and prospects for a winning team this year are brighter than they have been in two seasons.

Zundy always rolls through the practice season with their eyes on the coming intercity championship when Zundy meets the Reagan aggregation in a series of three games in the latter part of February.

Mickey Walker With More Lives Than Cat, Is Up in the Big Money Again

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Somebody once called him the Toy Bulldog and they might have done worse, for he has the build of a heavyweight, the size of a welter and the cold ferocity of a pit thoroughbred. It was an apt name, in other words, yet some are beginning to suspect that it may have been a case of mistaken zoology. For the cat with nine lives is a sucker compared with Mickey Walker.

They have buried this guy, professionally, year after year. And year after year, he rises from the dead, bigger and apparently better than ever. Right now he looks the part of the best light heavyweight in the world. Three years ago, he was all over and done with as a welterweight, two classes below.

Takes Beatings

One of the outstanding champions of this division, he began to go in 1925 when he tried to win the middleweight title from the late Harry Greb and won only a beating that was to last him for several years. A month or two later, he defended his welterweight championship against Dave Slade and took another flailing, although the officials pulled one of those decisions out of the hat and gave it to Walker. Early the following year, he went down into the Pennsylvania coal fields and blew his title to Pete Latzo in a ten round fight. This was death No. 1.

He was resurrected and sent forth again as a title contender, the shortest of the many fistic "lives" he has lived. It ended in the eighth round when the referee intervened and gave Joe Dundee, the prostrate one, credit for a technical knockout. At this point, it seemed that Walker was dead, never to rise again.

He didn't even wait until his obituaries were formally posted before being born into another life—not as a passe contender for the welterweight title but as the actual, breathing, living champion of the class above. It happened in Chicago, where things will and do happen, and the event took place only a matter of months after the Dundee disaster. I presume that the late Tiger Flowers and his manager thought they were doing business with a couple of chumps when they tied up with Walker and Kearns.

Nearly a Riot

Anyhow, they made the match and Walker was bowed into the title on a referee's decision that almost caused a riot. Few liked the verdict but that was unimportant. For it went and still goes to this day, the only difference being that where Walker was a discredited champion then, he stands alone today as the undisputed dictator of the division. But that is getting ahead of the story.

It doesn't, for example, tell of the ensuing two years, during which Walker did nothing with marked success and thus had the distinction of burying himself. He looked every inch of a dead one during this interval and, when he ended it by going in there with Ace Hudkins in Chicago, and being slathered around again, the demise was almost official. According to my eyesight, he lost everything in this fight except the decision.

A few months later, the "dead one" was standing over the inanimate form of a very good light heavyweight, Armand Emanuel, in a California ring. The knockout was followed by a fight with Tommy Loughran for the light heavyweight title, which many thought Walker won, and a victory over Leo Lomski, one of the best of the contenders.

The dead had come to life still another time but when he lost a decision to the Los Angeles constabulary and the stories got about that Walker was doing his road work up the middle of Hollywood boulevard, they promptly killed him off again.

They said he didn't have a chance in his re-play match with Hudkins, whereupon he stepped out and almost spoiled the Ace for all time, thus cleaning up the division and laying a pipe line to a third championship in the class above.

Thus, Walker is up in the money again. And his erstwhile opponents? Greb and Flowers are dead. Dundee, Latzo and others are about through. He has survived them all.

SPORT Loose Ends

By W. G. CHAMBLESS

The big baseball deal last week at Chattanooga which transferred an entire infield intact from Tulsa of the Western league to the Wichita Falls club of the Texas league sort of went against the grain with the fans in the Oklahoma oil metropolis. Irving Burns, first baseman, Lindel Storti, second baseman, James Levey, shortstop, and Walter Euller, third baseman, were popular fellows in Tulsa and had built up a large following of fans there. Tulsa was proud of these boys and regretted to see them go.

But what proves to be Tulsa's loss will prove to be Wichita Falls' gain, for the aforementioned players ought to do credit and grace in any diamond in the Texas league circuit. The former Tulsa Oilers should give the Spudders plenty of punch for the 1930 Texas league championship scramble, for three of the four players rapped out a batting percentage well above the .300 mark. Not so bad for the infielders on the club, eh what? Coming just at this part of the season the new infield seems like a Christmas present from President Huff to the Wichita Falls baseball public. To be exact about the batting capabilities, presented herewith are the final 1929 averages of the new players as taken from the statistics of the Western league:

Player—	Ab	H	2b	3b	Hr	Av
Burns, 1b	623	210	39	10	34	.337
Storti, 2b	675	230	61	7	28	.341
Euller, 3b	445	143	35	5	24	.314
Levey, ss	334	96	19	3	7	.287

Three of the four new players were lam-up good infielders, too, according to the records. First Baseman Burns was fourth among Western league first sackers with a seasonal average of .988. Storti was second among the second basemen of the league with an average of .969. Euller was tenth among third basemen and his mark was .927. Levy's average gave him twelfth among the shortstops of the league with an average of .912.

They can't see anything but the Buckaroos down there in Breckenridge at this time. The rabid Buckaroo followers don't concede the Tigers even an outside chance in the game. One of the fans writing in to the boy who gets out the sports page down in Waco expresses no little sorrow for the certain slaughter awaiting the Waco Tigers and calculates as how long the trip back home that night will be. The enthusiast winds by saying that it is just a case of "a pretty good little team against a darn good big team." Such talk sounds like a lot of childish flapdoodle. Mr. Tucker who knows a thing or two about the game tells those boys not to feel too sorry for Waco and tells his own customers that nothing is wrong with Waco, but to make Breckenridge money spot them six or seven points and then bet their heads off. This is the strongest argument we know in favor of the Tigers. Mr. Tucker has seen both teams under fire and when he talks he is pretty sure to know whereof he is speaking.

There is no way of getting a line on the relative strength of the two teams. They have not played the same teams and any other other line of comparison would be highly conjectural. Both elevens have made clean sweeps of their conference games and decisively defeated their opponents in the quarter finals. There is no saying that District 3 in which Waco plays is stronger than District 2 in which Breckenridge participates. Thus the game must look like an even gamble to the neutral observer. The season record and the quarter finals of the Tigers and the Buckaroos follows:

Waco's Season Record

Waco 30, Belton 0.

RUPPERT TALKS ON THE OPTIONS

Scoring Rules Will Be Codified

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (AP)—The winter major league baseball profession moved today from one hotel lobby to another but the result was much the same. The American and National leagues, after holding their annual sessions for two days, combined in a joint meeting, but nothing of vital importance to the national game developed from the larger conference.

The club owners of both leagues agreed with Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York Yankees, that the number of players on option by each club, should be 15, instead of eight and that it should be possible to send players out on option for three years instead of two as at present. However, the minors will have to agree before a change can be made.

Committee on Relationships

A committee of four from each league will confer with the minors on matters concerning the relationship. Concessions will be offered the minors if they will agree to increase the number and length of options. Possibly the minors will ask in return that the majors agree not to sign college players.

In the future players whose contracts are transferred from one club to another must report to their new employers within 72 hours, except in the case af athletes called from the Pacific coast to the East.

Common Ownership

The question of "common ownership" of baseball clubs, the so-called "chain store system," came in for discussion, including an extended address by Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, the most extensive dealer in wholesale baseball talent in the game. No action was taken.

Radio Question

The question of radio reporting of baseball games did not come up.

As a result of efforts launched by the Baseball Writers Association of America, the scoring rules will be "codified, unified and clarified." The scoring rules in the two major leagues are not in complete accord and there are points not clear. These points a committee from the writers will untangle and will prepare instructions to scorers of baseball games everywhere.

The major leagues also acquiesced in a suggestions from the writers that the scorers for each club be appointed by the league presidents on the advice of the club presidents and local chapters of the baseball writers for one year, with two alternatives to serve in the absence of the scorer, with a provision that a man failing to measure up to the exacting standards efficient scoring be removed.

Three appropriations were made totalling $65,000, and to take care of the increase the baseball commissioner will deduct 15 per cent of the next world's series gross, instead of 10 per cent as has been the case in recent years.

The two leagues will continue to support the American Legion program of junior baseball, $50,000 being set aside for this purpose. The national amateur athletic federation was voted $10,000 and a part of this sum will be spent in providing expert instruction to coaches of sandlot and school teams throughout the country.

Five thousand dollars was appropriated for the association of Professional Baseball Players of America, an orgahization devoted to caring for former players no longer able to care for themselves.

"STAKED PLAINS"

Professor Thinks New Conference Will Rival S. W. Loop

LUBBOCK, Texas, Dec. 12. (AP)—Belief that the proposed "staked plains" conference might in time become as powerful as the Southwest conference and receive equal recognition was expressed by Dr. W. A. Jackson, member of the Texas Tech Athletic council, upon his return from the meeting at Dallas, where plans for the new conference were discussed.

Texas Tech, Simmons, Howard Payne, West Texas Teachers and Texas College of Mines, proposed charter members, all are big institutions in a fast-growing country, Doctor Jackson pointed out. "There is no reason why the Staked Plains conference should not in time become stronger than either of the state's other three conferences," Doctor Jackson said.

W. A. Stengel, chairman of the Tech Athletic council, has been appointed to preside at the meeting at Sweetwater Dec. 31, when representatives of the five schools will put their cards on the table.

FROGS TO GET NEW STADIUM

Board of Trustees Pass on Project

FORT WORTH, Dec. 12. (AP)—The movement to construct a new and adequate stadium for Texas Christian university was launched officially today when the executive committee of the board of trustees of the university passed resolutions promising aid and support to the project.

One of the resolutions adopted asked that any campaign on the part of the citizens of Fort Worth to build the stadium be carried on with as great dispatch as possible so that the structure will be ready by September, 1930.

Besides promising financial support in another resolution, the executive committee authorized the athletic committee of the board of trustees to proceed immediately with the drafting of plans for the stadium.

The resolution indorsing the project and promising the aid of university authorities in bringing it to a successful completion, declared that if the citizens of Fort Worth would raise $150,000 as present per cent of the cost of the construction of the stadium, the board would request the directors of the university land corporation, a separate organization, to finance the remainder.

Dixie Classic Team Shaping

Ray Morrison Coaching the Outfit

DALLAS, Dec. 12. (AP)—The team which will represent the Southwest conference in the "Dixie Classic" here New Year's day against an all-star eleven from the Big Ten rapidly is taking shape. Ray Morrison, who will give the squad a week's coaching before the skirmish, is expected to announce his complete roster within the next few days.

Announcement that four members of the champion Texas Christian university eleven would play for the Southwest has done much to boost interest. Howard Grubbs, quarterback; Robert "Red" Moore, tackle; Buster Walker, end; and Phil Handler, guard, are Frogs who have accepted Morrison's invitation.

"Choc" Sanders, Southern Methodist all-conference guard, is another to join the roster.

Arkansas has contributed four of its outstanding players, including Geis and Miller of the backfield and Van Sickle and Gardner of the line. Power, a crack end, and Bush Jones, guard, will be Rice's contributon to the team.

Capt. Tommie Mills and Conover, banks, and Richter, linemen, are expected to be Aggie contributions. Baylor's two graduating ends, Lucas and Potter, will represent the Golden Bears on the squad.

So far as could be learned, no Texas university players have accepted Morrison's invitation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tularemia

Question—H. M. P. asks: "Will you please give me the symptoms and treatment for the disease known as tularemia caused from the bite of a rabbit?"

Answer—The disease known as tularemia usually comes through an infection in the hands which comes from the intestines of a rabbit while being cleaned. This disease is sometimes fatal, but the victim usually recovers after months of extreme weakness. A more speedy recovery will be effected through a rigid diet regime. The details of this treatment are too complicated to be given in this column.

Gassy Foods

Question—T. Y. writes: "Kindly state what fruits and vegetables to avoid if one is inclined to gas on the stomach."

Answer—Those who are inclined to flatulence should avoid using the acid fruits with meals, and should not use onions, garlic, cabbage or navy beans and very limited of the starchy foods.

Increasing Height

Question: J. B. asks—"In your opinion, would a height-increasing course be injurious to a person 19 years old? I understand that the object of the course is to loosen the segments, and exercise the bones, especially the spinal column, which causes the person to grow.

Answer—If this treatment is given carefully it is of great value not only in increasing the height but in its effect upon other parts of the body from the stimulation to the spinal nerves.

Sooner Operators Extend Proration

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 12 (UP)—Oklahoma operators today decided to prorate the flush Oklahoma City oil field on a 50 per cent basis for the first two months of 1930.

It had been proposed to shut in the field to 40 per cent production, now effective.

The operators decided that new wells must be shut in for 65 days to prevent new flush production from coming during the 10 per cent increase allowed for January and February.

BUTTER PLANT PLANNED HERE

Southwest Dairies to Help Finance Producers

Plans of the Southwest Dairy Products company for development of production and manufacturing in this section include the installation of a modern butter-making plant on the second floor of the plant formerly used by the Kraft Cheese company, it was announced Thursday.

Utilizing the former cheese making plant for the development of the entire stock of milk produced for its uses here, the powdered and condensed milk manufactory will be given the skim milk, while all sweet and sour cream will go to the butter-making plant. It will comprise eight 300-gallon churns, with a combined capacity of 2,400 gallons at each churning.

Besides the butter-making plant to be located here, four others of similar type will be installed at other points in the Southwest, according to F. R. Freeman, local manager.

Of further interest to dairymen and farmers in this community will be the announcement that the Southwest Dairy Products company's plans for increasing production of whole milk include a financing plan whereby farmers will be aided in acquiring new dairy stock.

Electra continued Thursday to show signs of prolonging the cotton ginning season beyond the first of the new year with the information that fields in that community promise regular ginning for more than two weeks more. Thursday's ginnings in that district numbered 42 bales, bringing the season's total for Electra to 4,946.

Kemp City reports indicate that the season's total will mount to 2,200 bales—59 more than have now been ginned.

The county's total for the season mounted to the figure of 21,442 bales Thursday, with the day's yield running 146 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (AP)—Cotton was quiet today with prices generally lower under liquidation which appeared to be combined with some southern and local selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and small private domestic consumption figures. January contracts sold off from 17.16 to 17.06 and closed at that figure with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 4 to 8 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 1 point and showed net losses of 3 or 4 points during early trading. The New York cotton exchange service estimated domestic consumption for November at 526,000 bales, compared with the census report of 640,798 bales for October and 611,173 bales for November last year.

Southern selling was comparatively light. There appeared to be a little trade buying and the market steadied after the early offerings had been absorbed. Initial losses were recovered with the more active months selling 3 to 4 points net higher, but the demand tapered off at the advance and prices eased again later under a renewal of liquidation and local selling. The lowest prices of the day were reached at the close with December selling at 17.00, March at 17.37 and May at 17.61.

Except for some selling at the start, there appeared to be little pressure from the South, and general business during the entire day was quiet, with traders apparently showing more interest in reports from Washington concerning the senate subcommittee cotton investigation than in the ordinary market factors.

Liverpool cables said the market there had declined under Manchester and Bombay liquidation but had steadied later on covering or some buying on the reduction in the Bank of England rate to 5 per cent. According to these advices business in cotton cloth was limited and yarn sales were below production. Exports today, 16,091, making 3,679,758 so far this season. Port receipts today, 32,491. U. S. port stocks, 2,632,845.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12. (AP)—Extreme dullness characterized trading in cotton today, some operators ascribing the lethargy to the senate investigation of exchanges. Fluctuations were limited to a spread of 9 to 10 points. An early decline was recovered later but the market weakened in final trading and made new lows for the day.

January after rallying from 17.06 to 17.12, eased and closed at 17.04 or 7 points net lower. The general market closed steady net unchanged to 7 points down.

Liverpool cables were slightly easier and initial trades here showed losses of 1 to 3 points. Unfavorable British board of trade statistics for November together with a bearish private consumption report induced some selling after the start which carried March off to 17.34 and May to 17.50, or 3 to 5 points under the previous close.

Trade buying and covering developed and under pressure of this moderate demand active positions recovered to levels 6 to 7 points above the lows, with March at 17.41 and May 17.64.

During afternoon trading, values worked lower under realizing and freer offerings. Active positions made new lows for the day in late trading. At the lowest January traded at 17.03, March 17.31 and May 17.54, or 9 to 10 points under the highs. The close was a shade above the bottom, net 6 to 7 points down on active positions.

Babson's Bearish Ballyhoo Breaks Market Levels to Lower Grounds

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (US)—Selling of the last several sessions culminated in a wide open break in stock prices in a more active session today. Publication by a new ticker of another bearish prognostication by the Massachusetts Prophet was the signal for heavier offerings by professionals that quickly influenced liquidation. Active stocks lost from 3 to 17 points with Steel off 10¾, Anaconda 3, Consolidated Motors 2½, General Electric 12, Radio 6, American Can 8, Consolidated Gas 7⅝, Columbia Gas 7⅜, Columbia Graphaphone 5¾, United Aircraft 8⅝, Westinghouse 16¾, Johns-Manville 13, Standard of New Jersey 3 and American Smelting 4 points. Turnover increased to the 4,500,000 share level. Call money rate was held at 4½ per cent throughout.

Babson came out with another bearish statement. He regards the recovery as a "rally in a bear market." While he praises President Hoover's constructive activities he does not expect them to have much result for several months. His statement would have been of more value to his followers if issued a week ago when the market was recovering in good manner and much better prices prevailed. Its main benefit now is to those professionals who have been pounding at Steel and other leaders trying to force more liquidation. The break following publication of Babson's views gave them good opportunity to cover as it did result in some liquidation by those who have been none too confident of the market outlook. Professionals fighting the market are out to defeat the plans of the most powerful bankers in the country. Tomorrow's market should evidence whether or not the bankers are going to let the bears get away with their destructive activities. If they do the campaign to revive business sentiment will be dangerously undermined.

Individual stock news has little or no influence when bearish development is affecting the list as a whole. During the morning, however, there was evidence that constructive activity was continuing in several issues. Radio evidenced that those interested believe they had a chance of getting away with the dream of a world-wide monopoly while buying of International was due to similar influence. Foreign Power was mentioned as likely to play a most important part in the next merger deal announced by the Electric Bond and Share group. Expectation was voiced that Industrial Alcohol would declare an extra dividend as a result of earnings of $14 a share this year.

Reduction of the Bank of England rate to a 5 per cent basis was a pleasant surprise but it was offset by announcement of fairly large gold shipments to England. The lower rate in England, it was expected, would bring another reduction in the rate of the local rediscount rate. Bankers are not worried about gold shipments. It is maintained that the most powerful banking groups as well as the central bankers of Europe are in the closest possible accord with the money powers here. Therefore nothing will be done to disturb international money conditions. In fact there is continued talk of our market cataclysm and "correction of the credit position" was not entirely divorced from international monetary arrangements.

The reserve bank statements were not important and should have no influence on dealings. Increase in loans was expected. Even if increase were shown for the next several weeks it would have no fundamental influence on market fluctuations. The closing smash will bring some further selling at the opening seems probable. The manner in which it is taken will be watched closely for the entire street is looking to the banking powers to take a firm stand against those who have been pounding at prices. The firms that have reputedly been handling orders for the more powerful bears may take the stand that the increase in brokers loans was evidence that sufficient recovery had been scored but to those who know the actual small extent to which the public returned to dealings in the last week the gain is unimportant.

Grain

TEXAS CASH PRICES

FORT WORTH, Dec. 12. (AP)—Wheat closed 2c higher on the cash grain market today as mills and exporters increased their premiums. Grain sorghums also were active and higher under good demand. Other grains showed little change, but were wanted.

Exporters bid $1.30@1.30½ for No. 1 ordinary hard export wheat delivered gulf ports.

Other bids and offers, basis carlots delivered, freight paid to Texas common points:

Wheat—No. 1 ordinary hard milling $1.32½@1.33; No. 1 hard 13 per cent protein $1.33@1.34; 14 per cent $1.37@1.38; 15 per cent $1.41@1.42; 16 per cent $1.45@1.46.

Corn—No. 2 mixed corn $1.03@1.04; No. 2 white $1.07@1.08; No. 2 yellow $1.06@1.07. (Same prices quoted delivered Texas group one points.)

Oats—No. 2 red oats 59@60c; No. 3 white delivered Texas group one points 55@55½c.

Barley—No. 2 barley nominal, at 77@88c.

Sorghums—No. 1 milo per hundred pounds $1.65@1.68; No. 2 kaffir $1.37@1.40.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 12. (AP)—With better export demand evident, wheat prices here went up double quick in the late dealings today, and closed at the top figures reached.

Easier money rates in Great Britain had a notable stimulating effect, whereas unexpected weakness of Liverpool closing quotations on wheat today counted as only a transient influence here, and was ascribed to selling orders from this side of the Atlantic. Great Britain and Spain were said to be purchasing wheat from North America.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were firm, 1¼c to 1⅝c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼c to 1c up, oats varying from ⅛c decline to ⅝c advance, and provisions unchanged to 25c down.

Advices were at hand that official crop estimates in Australia had been greatly curtailed and that the Australian wheat yield this season would be only 96,000,000 bushels compared with 160,000,000 bushels a year ago. With North American export business estimated at 600,000 bushels or more, many speculative traders turned to the buying side of future deliveries, and a rally ensued as the day drew to an end.

Corn prices showed independent strength, especially for December contracts. Stormy weather, unfavorable for crop movement, was a factor. Oats averaged higher, sympathizing with other cereals.

Provisions went lower on account of scattered selling, although hog values were steady.

Rotary Speaker Tells Of Radio Development

Development of the radio from discovery 200 years ago that electric waves pas sthrough definite air channels to its present state was outlined before members of the Rotary club at the Kemp hotel Thursday noon by Don McCauley in a classification talk.

Annual investments in radio entertainment amount to more than $1,000,000, the speaker said. He urged radio patrons and fans to criticize more extensively the programs which they receive over the air.

Entertainment consisted of violin numbers by Mrs. J. E. Hall, accompanied by Miss Annette Walsh, and a sing-song led by R. E. Shepherd. B. D. Sartin solicited the patronage of Rotarians for the zoo benefit play to be given by the Little theater at the Memorial auditorium on Dec. 27.

COURT SETS FELONY CASES

R. E. Brewster to Go on Trial Here in January

Tentative criminal settings in the 89th district court for Jan. 13, 15, and 20, headed by the trial of Earl Freeman under an habitual criminal indictment, were announced Thursday afternoon by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney.

Freeman is charged with burglarizing the Loma Walker shop in Electra on April 23, 1929, and the indictment against him specifically alleges two former felony convictions, invoking the force of the habitual criminal act which calls for a life term prison sentence upon conviction.

The trial of R. E. Brewster, charged with embezzlement of the funds of the Iowa Park school district is second on the list of settings. Brewster was formerly head of the school system at Iowa Park. Three indictments, charging three separate offenses early in 1929, are held against him.

Other cases set for the week include the trial of P. B. Roberts, publisher of the Free Press here, under a charge of perjury, and of Dan Norwood and Taz Locke, indicted for the possession of a whisky still.

The second trial of Roy Grundy, indicted for the murder of June Hilburn here last October, is set for Jan. 15. J. J. Bartlett, former United States deputy marshal, charged with criminal assault, will be tried on Jan. 20. T. R. Glass, accused of embezzling the funds of the People's Ice company where he was employed as auditor for a number of years, will also be called for trial during the month.

Burial was in Riverside under the direction of the Merkle Undertaking company.

Out-of-town officials of the Salvation Army who were in the city Thursday to attend the funeral included Ensign and Mrs. R. B. Fitton, Capt. and Mrs. Z. H. Parker, Mrs. R. Thomas, captain, all of Dallas, and Capt. and Mrs. R. McNeland of Childress. All returned to their homes following the funeral services.

Speakers Club

Rev. Patrick Henry, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church, spoke at the regular meeting of the high school Speakers club Wednesday morning in the little auditorium on "Christmas Spirit." Miss Roberta Wolford gave a reading, "Da' Little Boy." A group of Christmas carols played by Miss Lois Corbin concluded the program.

Says She Threw Her Money Away

Abilene Woman Spent Hundreds Seeking Health; Orgatone Restores Her

"My troubles have been completely overcome since I began taking Orgatone and I am enjoying the best of health I have in years and more than I expected to ever have again," said Mrs. H. Durante, residing on rural route 2, Abilene, Texas, while in the drug store recently.

"I spent hundreds of dollars for medicines and treatments," she continued, "but it was just money thrown away, for I never got any relief from my suffering until I commenced taking Orgatone. I was in pretty bad shape for five years and hadn't been able to eat a square meal because most everything I ate would sour and cause gas on my stomach. I would get nauseated and often would belch up my food. I was so weak, nervous and run down I couldn't do anything, even a little housework was too much for me. I never got a good night's sleep and became extremely nervous.

"Well, I have just finished my fourth bottle of Orgatone and it is wonderful the way I have improved. Why, I feel so well and strong I do all my own housework without the least trouble. Last week I actually did the family washing and it has been many years since I did a thing like that. My appetite is fine and nothing disagrees with me. I sleep restfully and get up feeling refreshed every morning. The nervousness has entirely disappeared and Orgatone deserves every bit of the credit. It is the grandest medicine on earth, not only has it helped me but it has given me better health than I ever expected to have again."

LITTLE THEATER, Avenue H and Polk street: "White Collars," 3-act comedy drama, 8 o'clock.

STRAND: Nancy Carroll, Helen Kane and Jack Oakie in "Sweetie" musical comedy. Screen singsong. Paramount news.

MAJESTIC: "Untamed," with Joan Crawford and Ernest Torrence. Joan has done better. "Syncopated Trial," talking novelty—one of the best shorts thus far. Movietone sound news.

OLYMPIC: "The College Coquette." Comedy. Pathe news.

GEM: Tom Mix in "Soft Boiled." Chapter 2 of "Tarzan the Tiger." Comedy.

QUEEN: The Griffin players, melodrama.

Jumping from the delightful atmosphere of Wyoming's foothills in the late 19th century as utilized in "The Virginian," to any other setting which could be built will be difficult for any average group of patrons. Since the jump had to be made, the Strand theater bookings made as large a leap as possible overnight, and made a landing in musical comedy atmosphere of 1929 with Nancy Carroll, Helen Kane and Jack Oakie in "Sweetie." It opens Friday afternoon; and in this class of screen entertainment, promises to be quite as outstanding as "The Virginian" is above the entire field.

◇ ◇ ◇

Nancy Carroll's demure beauty, Helen Kane's highly vitalized piquancy, and the rural freshness of Jack Oakie's buoyant wisecracking will be the triumvirate of qualities with which lightsome humor set to modern melodies will bid for favor. Insofar as such productions pretend to effect plot sequence, the presence of Nancy and Helen in the story should motivate varying lines of action, for the two girls certainly were cut on different patterns. Speaking of Nancy, we shall always harbor a grudge toward the producers of "River of Romance" for not giving her the role played by Mary Brian. Even Nancy could not have made Buddy Rogers entirely plausible as "the terrible Col. Blake," but she could have emoted and rejoiced much more naturally at his home-coming.

◇ ◇ ◇

Jack Oakie is in a one-man class of masculine comedians. To admit that Will Rogers has created a sharp appetite throughout the country for human nature as cultivated in tumultuous Oklahoma does not discount the appeal of Oakie's style. His scren personality combines the unabridged conceit of "the Great" Shires, the homely awkwardness of Charles Ray, and the wisecracking proclivities of Claremore's most famous cowboy.

◇ ◇ ◇

The most raucous burlesque exhibited on scren programs in this city to date occupies the spotlight on the current Majestic card. "Syncopated Trial" introduces a chorus of lightly clad gracefuls, as might be expected where the term "syncopated" is involved. But despite their contribution of beauty and rhythmic synchrony, they are incidental. Caustic satire on the slack imputed to the machinery of justice, and original clowning on the part of material witnesses, would scatter mirth even on the frozen face of Buster Keaton.

◇ ◇ ◇

Reversing the process generally supposed to prevail in the movement of stage and cinema stars from Broadway to Hollywood, Lily Damita has graduated from her first love, the screen, to the musical comedy stage in New York. With a leave of absence from Hollywood (possibly to recover from her gyroscopic intensities in "Cock Eyed World") the fair Lily lashes about Jack Donahoe in "Sons o' Guns" with sufficient vamping finesse to command many paragraphs in the columns of New York reviewers. Particularly Richard Watts Jr. of the Herald-Tribune, who is hard to please, but he says of Lily that "there is no danger of your forgetting to watch her constantly and being decently impressed."

◇ ◇ ◇

But all the acting is not being done in New York and Hollywood. We had some in our own city Wednesday and Thursday nights out at the Little Theater. There were some—there was at least one—who momentarily forgot the display of histrionic eclat which entered into the production of "White Collars." For she chose a moment of subdued dialog on the stage to remark to, or in spite of, her swain: "Oh, how that Jerry Moffett is good looking!" Pulchritude was plentifully distributed among the cast, but more noticeable was the convincing portrayal of interesting character types. Speaking of Mr. Moffett, the role was particularly well-assigned, for he is by way of being born to the part.

SUIT AGAINST DENVER OPENS

Woman Asks $50,000 for Death of Husband

Trial of a $50,000 suit in which Mrs. L. E. Riley, suing for herself and her seven minor children, is asking damages from the Fort Worth and Denver railroad for the death of her husband in October, 1928, was begun in the 89th district court Thursday afternoon, with Judge Allan D. Montgomery on the bench.

L. E. Riley was killed when the automobile in which he was driving was struck by a Fort Worth and Denver passenger train at a crossing on the Henrietta-Wichita Falls road. The plaintiff is represented in the suit by the legal firms of Heyser and Hicks and Allred and Allred. Several days are expected to be required for the completion of the evidence, the plaintiff introducing the first of the testimony, outlining the physical landmarks of the place Thursday afternoon.

Boy Given $5,000 For Injuries in Accident

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hudson, suing for their 8-year-old son, Robert Hudson, were awarded a $5,000 judgment against the Murray Gin company of Dallas in a verdict returned by a jury in the 89th district court late Thursday evening. The boy suffered injuries claimed as permanent when he was struck by an automobile owned by the Dallas company as he returned from school along the Electra road several months ago. The accident occurred as the child alighted from a truck and started to cross the highway.
