TEXAS LEAGUE SEASON SPLIT

50 MILLION FUND FOR CATTLEMEN IS TO BE READY SOON

CHICAGO, July 8.—The $50,000,000 pool formed by bankers for the relief of the livestock industry will be in operation in two weeks, it was announced here today following a conference yesterday when a satisfactory plan was made for rediscounting livestock paper at federal reserve banks.

The plan, approved by the federal reserve board, provides rediscounting of original cattle paper instead of making eligible participation certificates representing loans made by the pool, which bankers objected to as setting a dangerous precedent.

The original cattle paper, reduced in maturity from two years to six months, is eligible for discount under the federal reserve laws. The banks plan to renew the loans several times. The paper will be deposited with the Chicago federal reserve bank and allocated when rediscount is desired by a member bank. Application for loans in excess of $1,000,000 already have been received.

SINN FEIN LEADERS AND THE UNIONISTS TALK PEACE PLANS

MEET IN DUBLIN TO CONTINUE CONVERSATIONS LOOKING TO AGREEMENT.

THOSE INTERESTED WAIT NEWS FROM MEETING

London Newspapers Say Prospect Regarded More With Hope Than With Faith.

By Associated Press.

DUBLIN, July 8.—The Irish Bulletin, the official organ of the sinn fein, in a special edition this evening, states that Eamonn de Valera, the Irish republican leader, informed those present at the conference in the mansion house this afternoon of his proposed reply to Premier Lloyd George's proposal for a conference. It is expected here that a truce, to start Monday, will be announced tomorrow, the Bulletin adds.

By Associated Press.

DUBLIN, July 8.—General Sir Nevill MacReady, military commander in Ireland, took part in this afternoon's conference of Eamonn de Valera, the Irish republican leader, and representatives of the southern unionists.

Sir Nevill's coming created the belief among those following the conference that a truce would be arranged tonight.

LONDON, July 8.—Representatives of sinn fein and unionists of south Ireland met at Dublin today to continue conversations which it was hoped would develop some basis for peace negotiations which would end the era of bloodshed that has prevailed in Ireland for many months. Everybody interested in the settlement of the Irish question was anxiously watching for news from Dublin, but English political writers in this morning's newspapers seemed to believe the prospect of an agreement would be regarded more with hope than faith. In many quarters, indeed, the situation was viewed as giving little occasion for optimism.

This view was based largely on the belief that Eamonn de Valera, leader of the sinn fein, adhered unalterably to his demand for the establishment of an Irish republic, and that the British government as well as Ulster took its stand upon the Irish act, recently passed by the British parliament. It was stated that Earl Middleton, a south Ireland unionist leader, who was in London to confer with Prime Minister Lloyd George and others, and who returned to Dublin last night, had taken with him an intimation that any settlement must be in harmony with the Irish act, in accordance with which the Belfast parliament was created.

Whether, in the face of such an attitude, Mr. de Valera would accept the prime minister's invitation to London, was regarded as extremely doubtful.

Where the more hopeful view was taken, however, it was believed that Mr. de Valera might reply with a counter proposal. This, according to information received by the Associated Press from Belfast, might take the form of Mr. de Valera insisting that the government "put its cards on the table" before disclosing his own hand. It was said he might maintain that as Mr. Lloyd George had proposed a conference between Ulster, south Ireland and the British government, the onus of the situation was upon him.

Another view held in Ulster was that the sinn fein could not stand the financial strain of prolonging the conflict, and therefore was disposed to come to terms. In such event, however, it was contended, a serious difficulty might arise with the Catholic church in Ulster, which might resist any partition that would place the power to legislate upon educational subjects in the hands of the north Irish parliament.

In view of the great diversity of reports, it might be significant that the sinn fein parliament last night issued an announcement warning the public against "unauthorized and speculative reports connected with the situation."

E. R. SLATER, OIL FIELD CONTRACTOR, DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Word was received Friday afternoon of the death, in Los Angeles, of E. R. Slater, oil well contractor, who had resided in this district for the past ten years. Death was due to cancer.

Mr. Slater went to Los Angeles a short time ago for medical treatment. He resided at Electra for a number of years, moving to Wichita Falls in 1919. His widow survives, also two brothers and a sister residing at Tulsa.

Burial will be at Los Angeles. Mr. Slater was a native of New York, coming to this section from Oklahoma in the early days of oil development in Wichita county. He had numerous friends here who will hear of his death with profound regret.

GETTING READY FOR THE SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

AUSTIN, July 8.—The house and senate appropriation committees met in joint session in the senate chamber this morning and began work on the appropriation bills to be presented at the special session of the legislature which convenes July 18. A quorum of both committees is present. Representative Satterwhite, chairman of the house committee, and Senator Dudley of the senate committee are present.

TROUBLE IS REPORTED IN MEXICAN PETROLEUM CAMP

By Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, July 8.—Unconfirmed reports received here today state that disgruntled workmen in a petroleum camp in Zacamixtla, state of Vera Cruz, attacked the properties there yesterday, but fled when federal troops fired into the air. Zacamixtla largely is American-owned.

Some newspaper dispatches assert there were several deaths among the workmen.

Other newspapers denied there had been casualties. Nothing official regarding the incident could be learned.

NO ADJOURNED SESSION OF COUNCIL FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The adjourned session of the city council scheduled for 2:30 Friday afternoon was called off and the paving hearing continued until the time of the next regular session on Monday night.

GRANTS PERMISSION FOR A TEST CASE ON THE DEAN "DRY" LAW

AUSTIN, July 8.—Judge W. C. Morrow, presiding judge of the court of criminal appeals, granted permission today to E. P. Miller, attorney of Athens, Texas, to carry a test case of the Dean prohibition law to the supreme court of the United States. Mr. Miller represents Clyde and John Chandler, who were convicted of violating the Dean law in Kaufman county.

PRESIDENT OPPOSES THE TARIFF ON OIL SENATOR IS ADVISED

MAY APPLICATION FOR NEW LINE OF RAILROAD

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The interstate commerce commission again denied application of the Golden Belt railroad of Kansas for authority to construct a new line between Great Bend and Mays, Kan., holding that matter presented in the reopened case was substantially the same as the original presentation.

The carriers declared the new line would enable wheat growers to ship profitably to gulf ports instead of to two more distant eastern centers.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The tariff on crude and fuel oil is not approved at the white house. Information to that effect was gained today by Senator Harreld of Oklahoma when, together with W. N. Davis of Bartlesville, president of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association, and Frank Phillips, also of Bartlesville, he called to see President Harding.

While neither of these men would violate the unwritten rule against quoting the president, it was admitted that they received little comfort when the question of tariff on oil was broached.

It is understood that the administration feels that such duty would be unfortunate from a diplomatic standpoint.

Great Britain Appeals to the U. S., Japan and China for a Conference To Discuss the European Situation

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 8.—Great Britain, it was stated here today in a quarter usually possessed of reliable information, is believed to have made overtures to the United States, Japan and China on the possibility of a conference to discuss the whole eastern situation. If this is correct, it is pointed out, it might explain what Mr. Lloyd George, the premier, meant yesterday when he stated in the house of commons that he was awaiting replies from America and China before making a statement to the house concerning the Anglo-Japanese treaty.

Official circles declined to comment on the nature of any communications with the United States, China or Japan.

Announcement of the British policy is expected to be forthcoming next Monday.

PRESIDENT EXPECTED TO URGE A DELAY IN SOLDIER BONUS BILL

WASHINGTON, July 8.—In expectation of a message soon from President Harding urging temporary postponement of the bonus bill and greater speed with tariff and tax legislation, senate leaders today believed they already had mustered sufficient votes to lay aside the bonus measure.

No effort to recommit the bonus bill to the finance committee, as proposed by President Harding in his capitol conferences yesterday, was planned until receipt of the expected message. It was not certain when the message might be sent.

Minority leaders said they did not expect concerted opposition to recommital.

URGE THE ENACTMENT OF "TRUTH IN FABRIC" BILL

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Pleas for enactment of the French-Capper "truth in fabric" bill were presented to a senate committee today by retail clothiers and wool growers.

Herman S. Ritter of Youngstown, Ohio, former president of the National Retail Clothiers' association, declared that with the wool content marked on the goods, customers would know what they were buying.

U. G. Warner, secretary of the Iowa Fleece Wool Growers' association, blamed the depression in the sheep-growing industry to the unrestricted use of shoddy, while George E. Briggs of New York, representing the National Sheep and Wool Growers' bureau, said that such a law would "drive to honest dealings unscrupulous manufacturers of textiles."

THIRTY-SIX PEOPLE LYNCHED THIS YEAR

Twenty-Four More Than Same Period In 1920—Texas Not In the List.

TUSKEGEE, ALA., July 8.—There were 36 lynchings in the United States during the first six months of the year, 24 more than the number recorded during the same period in 1920, according to a report issued today by the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute. Lynchings during the first half of the year included two white men and 34 negroes, two of the latter being women, the report said. Eleven of these put to death were charged with rape. By states the lynchings were divided as follows:

Mississippi 10, Georgia 9, Florida and Arkansas 4 each, Louisiana and North Carolina 2 each, and Alabama, Kentucky, Missouri, South Carolina and Tennessee one each.

THIRD MAN HANGED FOR KILLING CHICAGO GROCER

CHICAGO, July 8.—Antonio Lopez, sentenced to death for the killing of Tony Varchetto, a grocer, during the holdup of his store on Jan. 15, 1920, was hanged at the county jail this morning.

Lopez was calm and collected on the gallows and when asked if he had anything to say, spoke a few words in an undertone to a deputy jailer, protesting his innocence, it is said.

He is the third man to pay the death penalty for killing Varchetto. Joseph Costanzo and Sam Ferrara were the two others convicted and executed.

DEFENSE ON STAND IN DEVEREUX CASE

State Rests Late Thursday After Testimony of Manager of Apartment House.

TULSA, OKLA., July 8.—Judge Redmond S. Cole today overruled a demurrer by the defense to the testimony of the state in the trial of Mrs. Jesse James and Miss Goldie Gordon, charged with the murder of Judge John Devereux, prominent Oklahoma jurist, who died under mysterious circumstances while they were acting as his nurses.

TULSA, OKLA., July 8.—Defense testimony is to be presented today in the trial here of Mrs. Jesse James and Goldie Gordon, charged with the murder of Judge John Devereux. The state rested late yesterday after introduction of testimony of Mrs. G. E. Thomas, manager of the apartment house where Judge Devereux lived, which was temporarily barred yesterday morning by Judge Redmond S. Cole. The court, after argument by opposing counsel, later ruled to admit the testimony which was given at the preliminary hearing. It was read into the record of the trial, Mrs. Thomas being out of the city and unable to appear. It was indicated the case may go to the jury late today.

HOWAT AND DORCHY GIVEN SIX MONTHS AND FINE OF $500

COLUMBUS, KAN., July 8.—Alexander Howat and August Dorchy, president and vice-president of the Kansas miners' union, were sentenced to serve six months in jail and pay a fine of $500 by Judge Frank W. Boss in the Cherokee county district court here today.

Howat and Dorchy were convicted last week of violation of the Kansas industrial court law by calling a strike of miners last February.

The certainty, not the severity of the penalty, Judge Boss declared, was the most important element in passing sentence. He could have sentenced Howat and Dochy to a year in jail and a fine of $1,000 each.

Howat made a speech to the court before sentence was passed, denouncing his trial and alleging that he was not given fair treatment there. He didn't know, he told Judge Boss, that he was violating the law when he called the strike.

Howat asserted that the court treated him unfairly in not allowing members of the miners' union Howat heads to sit on the jury. Judge Boss, in passing sentence, replied that it would have been a travesty to have allowed union miners to sit on the jury.

Judge Boss overruled a motion for a new trial, after which the defense gave notice of appeal. Arrangements were made for furnishing bond.

An affidavit signed by eleven members of the jury was filed in court this morning, but Judge Boss paid no attention to it as having any legal bearing on the case.

The affidavit, signed after the trial, declared that the jurors did not believe Howat and Dorchy were guilty of any wrong. The jury said it returned a verdict of guilty only because they had taken an oath "that they will be governed by the law as set forth in the judge's instructions," and declared the jurors did not believe in the industrial court law.

Judge Boss also ordered that Howat and Dorchy give a bond of $2,000 each not to again violate the industrial court law. As notice of appeal was given the court ordered that Howat and Dorchy retain their liberty on their present appearance bonds of $2,000 each. The convicted union leaders will not have to put up the bonds not to violate the law until they give appeal bonds which were set at $4,000 each.

ONLY TWO SMALL MINES ARE REPORTED AT WORK

STEAMER CALLAO SIGHTED OFF SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO

NEW YORK, July 8.—Fears for the safety of the passenger steamer Callao, bound from Buenos Aires for New York, were set at rest today when the Munson line received a cable message saying that she had been sighted off San Juan, Porto Rico, last Tuesday and probably would arrive here next Tuesday.

APPEAL TO GOVERNOR FOR AN INVESTIGATION OF FORT WORTH KLAN

AUSTIN, July 8.—Gov. Pat M. Neff received a telegram today from Fort Worth signed "a committee of good democratic friends" urging that he order an investigation of the operations of an alleged secret organization in that city. The telegram charged that a man was lynched at Fort Worth about three months ago and another tarred and feathered recently under guise of the alleged secret society.

"This is a deplorable condition to have in a community * * *" the telegram continued. "The newspapers are afraid to question their purpose. Good citizens decry such operations. We demand a secret investigation from your department immediately."

Governor Neff said he had no comment to make on the communication, pointing out that it was anonymous.

TELEGRAM WAS MAILED TO FORT WORTH OFFICE

FORT WORTH, July 8.—The telegram received by Governor Neff today, asking an investigation of an alleged secret organization in Fort Worth, was received by the manager of a local telegraph office by mail yesterday.

The lynching to which it refers is thought to be that of Thomas W. Vickery, who was taken from the jail here, where he was held for the killing of a policeman, and hanged by a band of masked men on December 22, last.

The tar and feather episode to which the telegram referred occurred here Tuesday night when Benny Pinto was ordered to leave the county by a masked band that was reported to have coated him with tar and feathers.

ENGINEER KILLED AND THROWN FROM TRAIN; BOILER IS BLOWN UP

EL PASO, July 8.—Engineer William Bohman of Sanderson, Texas, was murdered and thrown from his train and after four miles of uncontrolled speeding, the boiler of the engine of the freight train blew up, seriously injuring Fireman Charles Robertson of Valentine, Texas, according to advices received at the local offices of the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio railroad today. The train was wrecked ten miles west of Alpine.

Bohman's body was found four miles back of where the explosion occurred, advices from Alpine state.

Bohman was attacked while his fireman was busy raising steam for a grade, the fireman not noticing the engineer was missing and the engine unattended, according to the report.

The force of the explosion blew the boiler and engine about thirty feet and the cab about 200 yards. Only the trucks of the engine were left standing where the explosion took place.

TEXAS RANGER IS SENT TO INVESTIGATE EXPLOSION

AUSTIN, July 8.—A Texas ranger has been sent to Valentine, Jeff Davis county, to investigate the explosion of the boiler on a locomotive there last night, it was announced by Adjutant General Barton today. The ranger was sent at the request of Southern Pacific railroad officials, to which road the locomotive belonged. It is feared that foul play caused the explosion.

FIND THE BULLET-RIDDLED BODY OF POLICE SERGEANT

DUBLIN, July 7.—The bullet-riddled body of Police Sergeant Foody was found today near Ballina, County Tipperary. To it was pinned a paper reading "Revenge for the Dwyers." Foody was on duty in Tipperary village a few days ago when two brothers named Dwyer were shot.

The republicans are very active throughout Donegal. At Lifford roads hav been blocked, wires cut and trains delayed.

BELFAST, July 7.—During the curfew hours tonight the police were fired at from windows in one of the outlying districts. One policeman was wounded.

CONGRESSMAN PARRISH SECURES DISCHARGE OF A HENRIETTA YOUTH TO RETURN TO MOTHER'S BEDSIDE

By CHARLES S. HAYDEN,
Washington Correspondent Wichita Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—On telegraphic instructions sent out today, William E. Morris, whose home is in Henrietta, Texas, is discharged from the navy so that he may hurry home to the bedside of his mother, lying at the point of death. Young Morris enlisted in the navy during the war and when his term of enlistment expired he re-enlisted. Meanwhile, his mother had worried herself into a state bordering on nervous prostration and attending physicians had certified that the only way to save her life would be to have her son returned to her.

Rev. T. H. Morris, pastor of the First Methodist church at Henrietta and father of the boy, appealed to Representative Parrish, who submitted the case to the navy department asking immediate action. Officers in the navy at first were obdurate and refused the application, but the Texas congressman would not be denied and upon his personal appeal, that unless this sailor was discharged by wire it would mean the death of the boy's mother, forced the officers to rescind their actions.

VOTE 5 TO 3 ON PROPOSITION; NEW SEASON TO START SATURDAY PRESIDENT DOAK ROBERTS SAYS

SHREVEPORT, LA., July 8.—By a vote of 5 to 3, club owners of the Texas league have decided to split the season, the new season to start Saturday, according to a message received here today from J. Doak Roberts, president of the league.

The Texas league split was forecast exclusively in the Times Thursday as a result of a conversation between the Times representative and Manager Walter Salm in Fort Worth. Manager Salm was opposed to the split before the Fort Worth series and it was his vote that turned the tide, despite the announcement that followed the meeting to the effect that the vote against the split was unanimous.

Salm knew that if the Spudders took the long end of the Panther series his club would still have a good chance to overcome them before the end of the regular season. After the last game, he said, "Mark my word, this season will be split within the next few days."

GRAND JURY TAKES RECESS TO MONDAY. NEARS END OF WORK

The grand jury of the 30th district court took a recess Friday evening until Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The jury has been in session since Wednesday morning and it is believed has completed its work and will meet Monday morning merely for the purpose of filing its final report. Judge H. F. Weldon will be in the city at that time to receive the report.

TWELVE UNION LEADERS ARRESTED ON A CHARGE OF UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLY

WILLIAMSON, W. VA., July 8.—David S. Rolle, international financial agent of the United Mine Workers of America, and eleven other union leaders were arrested here today by Major Tom Davis, Governor Morgan's personal representative in the coal strike region, on a charge of unlawful assemblage. They were taken to the city lockup for investigation, the authorities said.

MEXICAN TRANSPORT HAS REACHED MAZATLAN SAFELY

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—The Mexican transport Mexico arrived safely at Mazatlan, Mexico, June 26, it was announced here today by the editor of the Heraldo, a Spanish newspaper, which published a report several days ago expressing fears the transport had been lost.

THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MARRIAGE OF PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Today was the thirtieth anniversary of the marriage of President and Mrs. Harding, but they planned no formal observance. They were married at the same house in Marion from which the front porch campaign was conducted last year and General R. Christian Jr., now secretary to the president, was the chief doorkeeper.

CABINET CONSIDERS TENTATIVE DRAFT OF PEACE PROCLAMATION

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A tentative draft of a proclamation of the state of peace with Germany and Austria was taken to the cabinet meeting today by Attorney General Daugherty, but it was indicated afterward that the document might not be ready for the president's signature before next week.

Although most of the cabinet meeting was occupied with other matters it is understood that such discussion as there was of the proposed proclamation brought out that some of the president's advisers still consider a proclamation unnecessary. The preponderance of opinion has seemed to favor issuance of the document but it is believed no final decision even on that point has been reached.

SCENES OF ALLEGED BAWDY HOUSE ARE DESCRIBED IN TRIAL

Scenes alleged to have taken place in the house and on the premises of P. T. Austin at Burkburnett were described in the county court at law by witnesses subpoenaed to testify in the case against Austin in which he stands charged with running a bawdy house.

Officers who stated they had made arrests of men and women in the house and neighbors described events and happenings alleged to have occurred on the premises. There were at least twenty witnesses in attendance and at a late hour the jury was still hearing testimony.

The defense is that the things alleged to have occurred there if they did occur, were without the knowledge of the man on trial.

MEXICANS HINT AT SCANDALOUS ACTIONS IN OIL TRANSACTIONS

THREATEN TO "UNMASK AMERICAN PRODUCERS" IN THAT COUNTRY.

STATEMENT PUBLISHED IN MEXICO CITY PAPERS

Much Speculation of the Meaning of Secretary of Interior Calles.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Early withdrawal of the two American warships sent to Tampico because of labor disturbance in the oil fields was indicated today at the state department.

It was intimated that there apparently was no pressing need for the ships at the port as there seemed little immediate danger to American life or property.

MEXICO CITY, July 8.—P. Elias Calles, secretary of the interior, told Mexican newspapermen informally Wednesday night that the Mexican government was "prepared to unmask American oil producers," whom he charged with scandalous actions not only against the Mexican treasury but against the United States as well. This statement was published in three Mexico City newspapers and there was much speculation of the meaning of the secretary's statement.

Although the wording of the declaration of Seno Calles varied in yesterday's newspapers, each printed interview attributed to the secretary the same sentiments. He was said to have referred to alleged attempts by American companies to dodge income taxes by dissolving the parent corporations and forming numerous subsidiaries. Continuing, the secretary said, according to the version printed by El Universal:

"Knowing the other systems used by the oil companies to hide the true status of their enterprises, the Mexican government, in defense of its own interests, has, by means of special agents in the United States, started an active campaign to pull the masks from the faces of these companies."

Secretary Calles is said to have referred to the complaints of oil companies against article 27 of the Mexican constitution which nationalizes petroleum deposits.

"What has the Mexican government done," he asked, "to warrant these unjust complaints that this article is retroactive and confiscatory?"

The secretary is said to have asserted that oil pipe lines should be made public utilities, adding "when regulating article 27 we will deal with this subject."

In conclusion the secretary mentioned alleged monopolistic tendencies of large oil companies which have already acquired pipe lines, roads and terminals, causing hardships for smaller companies.

Local representatives of oil companies reiterated in statements last night that it was impossible for their concerns to operate except at a loss under President Obregon's recent decree increasing taxes on oil exported from the country. They asserted that no increase in oil prices could be expected before six months at least, adding by that time exportation will have ceased entirely.

DECLARE TAMPICO SITUATION NOT OF A SERIOUS NATURE

MEXICO CITY, July 8.—Official reassurances were given today in statements to the newspapers that the Tampico situation does not contain elements of danger to peaceful relations between the United States and Mexico.

"There is no need to give further thought to the subject," Secretary Calles, the chief of the cabinet, said this morning. "The vessels (the United States warships at Tampico) belong to a friendly nation that merely seeks to protect its nationals, and this is no reflection on our national integrity."

The secretary added that the Mexican government was strong enough "and always has been strong enough to protect the lives, both of foreigners and its nationals." It was absurd to think, he declared, that there was danger at the present moment.

A dispatch to El Democrata from Tampico says the United States cruiser Cleveland arrived there during the night.

MEXICO DESPATCHES MORE TROOPS TO TAMPICO REGION

MEXICO CITY, July 8.—Additional federal troops have been despatched to the region of Tampico by the Mexican government for the announced purpose of "giving guarantees to nationals and foreigners."

This action was taken although the forces regularly maintained around Tampico, where there is a serious situation arising because of unemployment, are deemed sufficient to deal with any emergency, said a statement issued last night by Fernando Torreblanca, private secretary to President Obregon.

Cesaer Lopez de Lara, governor of the state of Tamaulipas, yesterday was enroute to Mexico City, but it was officially reported he had conferred by telegraph with President Obregon, who ordered him immediately to return to Tampico to aid in the adjustment of the labor situation. So far as dispatches received here last night from Tampico indicated, there have been no untoward incidents in the oil regions there. Senor Torreblanca's statement said nothing had been received in official circles to cause apprehension inasmuch as "Mexican workmen who were thrown out of employment were acting with prudence and decorum."

U. S. HANDICAPPED NEGOTIATING TREATY WITH THE GERMANS

THAT COUNTRY NOT FREE TO MAKE JUST ANY TERMS SHE MAY DESIRE.

MUST FIRST SECURE CONSENT OF THE ALLIES

Secretary Hughes Believed to Have Plan For Next Step in Foreign Affairs.

By MARK SULLIVAN
National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—There is a general belief that Secretary Hughes has a plan in mind for the next step in our foreign relations, and there is universal confidence in Secretary Hughes' ability to make the best of a difficult situation. Beyond this there is nothing to be said as to what is going to be done, now that the peace resolution is recognized as more or less innocuous, ineffective and merely technical.

There are, however, serious misconceptions on the subject of what is now possible to do. The cheerful talk about negotiating a new treaty of amity and commerce with Germany omits an important fact. Germany is not now free to negotiate any sort of treaty of commerce that she may feel like negotiating. Germany is under mortgage, so to speak, to the allies. Germany is in the position of a bankrupt in the hands of trustees. Anybody who wants to deal with Germany must consult the trustees.

Allies Have a Say.

The allies can permit Germany to do just as much or just as little in the way of a treaty with the United States as seems expedient to the allies. In short, the allies have a veto and an extremely large regulatory power over any negotiations between Germany and the United States looking to a new treaty.

Against this fact must be balanced another. In any interference which the allies may quite reasonably set up to affect our new treaty with Germany we have no formal or legal right to protest. Their position as holder of the mortgage is incontestable. But we do have a strength of position which in any trading or negotiating on this subject between the allies and the United States will serve us strongly. We are in such a position that the allies will be sure to hesitate to take an unreasonable position with regard to a new treaty between Germany and ourselves. The allies owe us a great deal of money, on which the interest is overdue. In many other respects we have an economic and financial position which the allies are sure to reward with respect and which we can use as a counter weapon to the allies' position of guardian over Germany.

Cannot Force Issue.

Having stated this, it also is to be stated that this is not a pleasant way to look at the subject. We are more or less morally bound to respect the position of mortgage which the allies have over Germany. We would be in an unpleasant position if we should force the issue and insist upon making with Germany a kind of treaty which would be displeasing to the allies, or which would interfere with the allies' relation to Germany. Specifically, there is hardly any American who would like to see us insisting upon a form of treaty with Germany which in its tariff and trade clauses might impair the arrangements which the allies have already made to Germany in order to give them prior rights over all of Germany's resources.

In point of fact, if we now set out to make a separate treaty with Germany, we will have to deal not with Germany, but with Germany's guardian, the allies. Whether we like it or not, the fact is that in making the new treaty with Germany, which everybody now contemplates, we will be dealing really with the allies and will actually be to use President Harding's phase, "Engaging under the Versailles treaty." The allies are bound to each other by the Versailles treaty, and Germany's relations to the allies are determined by the Versailles treaty, and any new relation which we may now set up with Germany must be determined and limited by the Versailles treaty.

Simplest Way Out.

Under these circumstances, penetrating persons here in Washington reaffirm what President Harding said in April, namely, that the simplest way for us to get out of the dilemma and resume normal relations with Germany and the rest of the world would be for President Harding to resubmit to the senate the Versailles treaty, with the league of nations excepted, and with all other necessary qualifications. That this is the simplest way to go about it is incontrovertible.

Those who seek any other way arrive at all kinds of curious ends. There are some who say, for example, that we can take the ground that our old treaty with Prussia, written in 1828, is now automatically revived, and that since that old treaty is prior in time to the Versailles treaty, then we can ignore the latter. This is far-fetched reasoning, and would never occur to anybody except in a frantic and legalistic attempt to avoid engaging under the Versailles treaty.

Whether President Harding will choose the course of resuming the Versailles treaty, no person can tell. The two facts of record are that President Harding, by his speech in April, believes that to be best course, and Secretary Hughes, by the document he and thirty others signed last October, also believes that to be the best course. If President Harding and Secretary Hughes do not take the course which they believe to be best it will be because of political considerations. It will be because they fear the senate would reveal and that the old rancor of the irreconcilables against the Versailles treaty would blaze up again. In this matter time fights for the Versailles treaty. With every passing month the intensity of the old passion against it tends to subside by degrees.

A village surrounded by marshes is all that remains of the old Latin town of Ardea in Italy.

PLANS FOR AIRPLANE TRIP ACROSS PACIFIC

Australian Lieutenant Getting Ready For Dash From That Country To America.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., July 8.—An airplane flight across the Pacific ocean is to be attempted soon, it was announced recently by an Australian aviator, Lieut. P. J. Parer, who some time ago flew from England to Sydney.

To raise 15,000 pounds to finance the trans-Pacific attempt, Lieut. Parer has started on an exhibition flight around Australia. At the towns on his route he will take passengers on trial flights and will film motion pictures of the country over which he travels.

For the flight to America the lieutenant wants the best airplane money can buy, he said, for a dependable machine will be needed to cover the long stretches of ocean from island to island on his route. It will be possible to follow a chain of islands from Australia two-thirds of the way across, but on the American side of the ocean there will be a long stretch in which there will be no land.

A limousine body, similar to bodies used on passenger machines is planned for the new "boat." Parer by his flight hopes to win a prize offered by Thomas Ince, American moving picture magnate, for the first crossing of the Pacific by air.

MORE MARRIED PEOPLE THAN SINGLE SUICIDE IS RECORD FOR NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 8.—Suicides in New York were more prevalent among married persons than single ones in 1920, it was shown in the report of Chief Medical Examiner Morris, made public today.

The total number of suicides for the year was placed at 707. Of the victims 252 were married, 185 singles, 100 widows, 2 divorced and 68 whose social status was undetermined. Figures for the first six months of this year show that 90 more persons killed themselves than during the corresponding period in 1920.

This Is What We Do

WE permit you to pick out any "Lorain-equipped" gas range in our stock. We'll deliver it. Disconnect your old stove. Move it out of your way. Connect up the new range. Send a trained expert to your home to instruct you in the many different and wonderful things that a "Lorain-equipped" Gas Range makes possible. If, after using the range for thirty days, you don't want it, we'll replace the old stove, take the new one back, and charge you nothing for the whole transaction.

This Is Why We Do It

EVERY great invention has had to be proved to the public. Of course we know what a "Lorain-equipped" range will do; the manufacturers know—but you don't know. Also, we know it would be mighty hard work to convince you with words that "Lorain" is the greatest cooking invention of the age. The manufacturers know this, too. So, together, we've planned this method to prove ABSOLUTELY to a limited number of women the almost unbelievable accomplishments of a "Lorain-equipped" gas range.

DIRECT ACTION GAS RANGES WITH

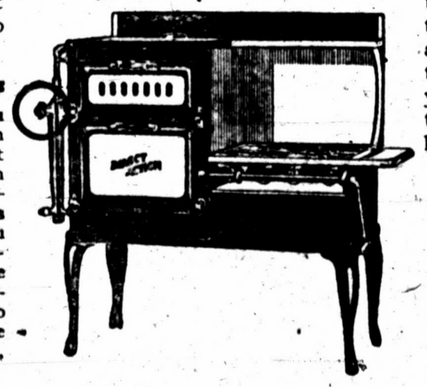

LORAIN OVEN HEAT REGULATOR

This Is What "Lorain" Is

The "Lorain" Oven Heat Regulator is a patented device attached to the oven of certain makes of stoves. This attachment permits the housewife to regulate accurately and control indefinitely the exact temperature of an oven. "Lorain" is not a thermometer. There is nothing to break, or get out of order. It is as simple to operate as a door knob.

This Is What "Lorain" Does

"Lorain" makes it possible for you to stew, boil, bake, roast in the oven—all at the same time—and without watching. It enables you to can fruits and vegetables in a new way—quickly, easily, deliciously, always successfully. "Lorain" enables you to duplicate exactly every cooking success—the same flavor, the same color, the same fluffiness, crispness, or flakiness. It enables you to cook a whole meal, just right, while away from home for two, three, four, five, or six hours.

This Is What YOU Should Do

You should take immediate advantage of this remarkable opportunity to try out for four whole weeks in your own kitchen the greatest gas range improvement ever designed. You should take advantage of this offer because it costs you nothing. If you like good things to eat—if you want to be economical—if you want to get away from stove-drudgery and pot-watching—if you want to live the happiest summer you've ever lived—get one of these wonderful stoves in your kitchen immediately.

IDLING DURING THE SUMMER VACATIONS GET BOYS IN BAD

Idling during the summer vacations gets many boys in bad, according to Juvenile Officer R. W. Morgan. The juvenile officer has been kept on the jump since the schools dismissed for the summer and Mr. Morgan is preparing to leave Sunday morning with several boys who have been sentenced to the reformatory.

Denver Black, a youth who has been in trouble at different occasions, was sentenced to the school late Thursday evening on a charge of theft.

One of the four boys picked up last Sunday in connection with the robbery of a store near the river was picked up again Thursday night. Last Monday the juvenile officer gave him another chance and turned the boy over to his father. The father took him back with him to Henrietta but information received Thursday was that he had run away from home.

Wednesday night a store was burglarized and Thursday night the second attempt was made but the alleged thief was caught. He gave his name as Roy Crook. When Juvenile Officer Morgan took him in charge he saw it was none other than the boy he had released.

$1,000 WORTH OF GOODS TAKEN FROM STORE AT WEINERT

Robbery of a store at Weinert, Haskell county, in which the robbers secured $1,000 worth of goods, was reported to Sheriff Fred Smith Friday morning.

The information given local officers was to the effect that the robbery was committed some time Thursday night and that the men made their escape in a Ford touring car which headed towards Wichita Falls.

The loot as described consisted of shoes, hats, silk shirts and hose and clothing, both men's and women's. The store robbed was owned by Dan E. Roberts.

PLACE CLARK'S BOND AT $500 AND IS RELEASED

H. C. Clark who it is alleged was found in possession of a large quantity of belting said to have been stolen from an interstate shipment on the Katy, waived examining trial before Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn Thursday evening and his bond was set at $500. He perfected bond and was released.

LEGISLATURE LIKELY TO PROVIDE FOR ASYLUM OPENING

Provision for the early opening of the northwest Texas insane asylum at Lake Wichita is expected to be made at the approaching special session of the legislature, and it is considered probable that the first patients will be received here in the fall.

The buildings are now practically complete and installation of equipment, for which appropriation has already been made, can be started whenever the board of control desires.

There is little doubt now that the plant will be put to the use for which it was originally intended. While no final action has ever been taken on the proposal to loan it to the federal government for a soldiers' hospital, the fact that the government has made other provision for disabled soldiers in this state is taken as materially lessening Wichita Falls' chances for obtaining such an institution.

AVIATION MECHANICS TO BE TRAINED AT GUNNERS

U. S. NAVAL TRAINING STATION, Great Lakes, Ill., July 8.—All aviation mechanics graduated from the mechanics school here, the largest of its kind in the world, are to be trained as machine gunners, under an order recently issued by the navy department.

The school has turned out 3,492 graduates within a year, including 537 marines. This is slightly more than half the entire enlisted personnel of the naval and marine aviation corps.

DECLARES THAT THE JAPANESE WILL BE HELD ACCOUNTABLE

PEKING, July 8.—Ignatius L. Yourin, minister of foreign affairs of the Far Eastern republic, in a note to the minister of foreign affairs at Tokio, declares that unless the Japanese command in Vladivostok refrains from interference with the domestic affairs of the republic, the government and peopeople of Japan will be held accountable before the world for continuation of civil war in the maritime province.

CITY TAX PROTESTS ARE HEARD FRIDAY

Not Many Property Owners Appear For "Kick Day" of Board of Equalization.

Friday was "kick day" for the city board of equalization, opportunity being given property owners to protest against increases in their valuations.

The number of protestants was rather below normal, and members of the board thought the hearing could be completed before night.

Some confusion was occasioned by the fact that county valuations have not only not been raised but have been reduced in some cases, and city property owners in some instances feel that the municipal valuations are rather out of line. The county this year adopted the policy of making values lower so that Wichita county will not continue to pay an undue share of state taxes.

Tax agents for the railroads occupied considerable time during Friday morning's session. The Denver obtained a slight reduction, owing to the fact that its old office building at Seventh and LaSalle has been removed. The Katy's valuation was not lowered.

Best Way to Stay Cool Is Keep Busy, Is Pastor's Advice

Speaking of his plans for summer church work, Rev. W. L. Tittle, pastor of Floral Heights Methodist church, makes the statement that the best way to endure the heat of summer is to keep busy at some worth-while task. He suggests more earnest church work through the summer and says that in the new church which his congregation is now occupying with fans installed and all kinds of conveniences there should be no material interruption of the work. He thinks that people will make shorter trips away from home this summer and urges church attendance when in reach of a church.

Mr. Tittle announces two special subjects for next Sunday. At the morning hour his subject will be "Christ and His Church"; at the evening hour the topic will be "Getting the Spirit of Christ Into the Heart of the World." According to this pastor, the activity of "the world, the flesh and the devil" demands that those who love God should be exceedingly busy and that the churches permanently established in the city should have the earnest and wholehearted support of every citizen who has the deeper welfare of the city at heart.

Will Likely Look for Another Girl; Inherits Fortune

DETROIT, MICH., July 8.—Last week E. C. Cox, 28 years old, thought this was a hard world indeed. He worked in the engine room of a hotel here at forty cents an hour. One of the pantry girls spurned his proposal of marriage because of his low earning capacity and he had to borrow $2 from the hotel manager to buy a clean shirt for the Fourth.

Today Cox bade the pantry girl and the hotel keeper farewell and started for California where, he has been notified of the one third share in the fifteen million dollar estate of Dr. Samuel Shaw of Hollister awaits him. Cox learned of his inheritance through a Toledo attorney who had conducted a countrywide search for him.

Rita is called the "miniature Mary Pickford," according to movie authority, and is said to have created a stir among producers with her wonderful personality and acting in the "Inside of the Cup." She has played as Olive Tell in "The Wrong Woman," and has had minor parts in other plays. LATEST STYLE

By LENORE

In writing of fashions it is so easy to fall into the impractical habit of searching out only the new and unusual—which, at best, often appeal to but a limited class of women—and overlooking the conservative styles which are accepted and liked by the average woman, that we are apt to give our readers an exaggerated idea of what is actually being worn even by the best dressed women of the country.

Taking the gown in the sketch as an illustration, this design cannot boast a single point of newness, yet it is a type of dress shown in many of the very best shops. I saw this particular model worn by a smart-looking matron at dinner on the roof of a fashionable hotel. It was made of orchid chiffon, crystal beaded, over satin of the same color, with a deeper shade in the satin girdle. The sleeves were above the elbows, and the wrap was of black satin, with chiffon lining like sea mist green.

PATTERNS NOS. 203 AND 204.

Patterns for the above models (dress No. 203 and wrap No. 204) can be obtained in sizes 34, 36, 38 or 40, by sending to Lenore, 8 West Fortieth street, New York City, your name, address, the number of the patterns and the size required, and 25 cents for each pattern, in postage stamps. Be sure to keep this newspaper clipping of the sketch and description of the garments to use as working models when one, or both, patterns reach you—which will be within two weeks' time.—The Editor.

FIRST CATCH YOUR PERSON; GET HIM MAD AND THEN WATCH

Catch your person, provoke him with some subtlety of polite annoyance, and then watch him. If his reaction is of a ruffled character, he ain't well bred!

A Texas exchange is responsible for the finding, and its inspirations have the appeal of well founded facts, to which there are of course the reasonable exceptions. The clipping is to the point, and follows in part:

"If you want to know whether a person is shamming refinement and culture, listen to the voice in anger or annoyance.

"The man or woman who was born to command never says sarcastic things in a raucous voice. The 'bred in the bone' leader is smoother when ruffled than the shammer who puts on the front supposed to be necessary to show authority. Self control is characteristic of men in high places who keep them permanently and continue the climb up the ladder."

GIRLS! WHITEN SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightfully lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.—adv.

I wish all the other fellas had kid sisters and brothers like me and the Lost Bag of Tripe, then they could not hooraw me and him when we go over to the ball field or to the pasture and take our baby buggies along, and if we had a whole string of them we could tie them together and make a peerade of them.

When we had went to the pasture with them this morning we had a hard time getting them through the woods over to Mud Turkle pond because the trees is so close together, but we was glad we did because the grass around the pond was alive with greeny frogs. I guess they go up in the grass to catch bugs to eat. We began to catch them and there was so many of them that even Hopper who is a crip and has to walk with a crutch could catch them and it made us hungry thinking how we would take them down to the duck pond back of Hopper's house and get a frying pan and cut them in two and pull the britches off of them and fry them.

We did not want to kill them as soon as we caught them because they do not stay so fresh when they are dead, so we put them between the blankets in Annabell Lee's buggy and we got the most frogs we ever got in our lives. We was hiking along to get to Hopper's house and was all talking at once and the dogs was hiking along with us looking glad and proud, when all at once someone said, "Young man give me that baby and you hustle to the market and get two pounds of round stake cut thin because we have got company for dinner," and my ant grabbed the buggy handle out of my hands and started for home with it.

I opened my mouth three times to say something to her, but what is the use of talking to a ant. She was gone before I knowed it and I knew I was going to get licked. I went and got the round stake and all the fellas was sore at me, but they said they was going to go back and get some more frogs and for me to sneak out and come around back of Hopper's.

I hiked home as fast as I could because I thought I might get there before they took Annabel Lee out of her buggy, but when I got there my ant was laying on the lounge and Youniss was looking at her and Younisses mother and mine was slapping her hands and holding camfor under her nose and she was making a funny noise in her throat and I wondered if she had swallode one of my frogs.

My mother turned on me and said I was the devvles unaccountable, and I said that I was just getting some frogs for dinner and my ant come along and grabbed them, and then Younisses mother said she loved frogs, and my mother said, "Reely?" and she told me to ketch them and get them ready and she would fry them and they was all over the house but Youniss helped me, and my mother fried them in corn meal and now I suppose I will have to go gethering frogs to feed the family every day.

When me and Jubilee was just getting to sleep somebody screamed and woke us up and I put Jubilee under the bed and went downstairs and my ant had stepped on a frog with her bare foot and had another fit. I was lucky my father did not take me out to the barn.

THOUGHT TRAVELERS' AID WAS A "TELEPHONE GIRL"

A dear old lady who watched the Y. W. C. A. Travelers' Aid at the union station for half an hour or more Thursday afternoon evidently drew her own conclusions about the occupation of that worker. She watched while the secretary used the telephone innumerable times locating relatives or friends of women and girls who failed to be met at the station; and for other such service. During a lull she ventured the remark that the Aid was "awfully busy."

"Don't you get awful tired doing that?" she said.

The Travelers Aid explained that she was pretty used to it.

"I know," said the old lady, nodding her head; "o' course a body gets used to it, but it's awful tryin' work. My daughter used to be a telephone girl, too, and I know."

The Adventure of the Six Napoleons

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1921, by Harper & Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The story thus far:

Mr. Lestrade of Scotland Yard tells Sherlock Holmes of the strange case of a man who commits burglary apparently for the pleasure of destroying images of Napoleon. In the first case, a plaster cast of Napoleon was shivered to fragments in Morse Hudson's shop. In the second a physician, Dr. Barnicot, living nearby, found his two plaster casts of Napoleon, duplicates of the one in the shop, both smashes. Next morning Holmes received a note from Lestrade uring him to come immediately to an address in Kensington and he and Watson rushed there.

At the house they went to they met Mr. Horace Harker of the Central Press Syndicate. As he was a journalist he said he often worked at night. When so engaged the previous night at 3 o'clock he thought he heard a noise, but decided it was outdoors. A few moments later he heard a frightful scream, and, dashing downstairs, found his bust of Napoleon gone and a murdered man lying on his doorstep. In his pocket were a shoestring, an apple, a map of London and a photograph of an unprepossessing man. Under a lamp down the street was the shattered bust of Napoleon. Mr. Harker started to write up the murder for his paper.

Holmes went to Hudson's shop. Hudson said he got the busts from Geider and company, and identified the photograph as one Beppo, who used to work for him. Then they went to Gelder's. He said Hudson's busts were part of a batch of six sent out the year before, the rest of which went to Harding Bros. of Kensington. He said the photograph was that of an Italian who once worked for him. Then they went to see the manager of Harding and Bros. He had records of selling one of the three remaining busts to Mr. Harker, one to Mr. Josiah Brown of Chiswick and one to Mr. Sanderford of Lower Grove Road.

Lestrade succeeded in identifying the dead man as a Neapolitan, one of the greatest cutthroats in London. Lestrade thought the whole thing was the work of an Italian secret society and Holmes sent out a message and spent the evening looking at old newspaper files, and later at night they went to Mr. Brown's house at Chiswick and hid in the shrubbery inside the gate. After a short wait they saw a man steal into the house. He soon emerged with a bust of Napoleon and shattered it. They arrested him. He proved to be the original of the photograph.

PART FIVE

But it was not our prisoner to whom Holmes was giving his attention. Squatted on the doorstep, he was engaged in most carefully examining that which the man had brought from the house. It was a bust of Napoleon, like the one which we had seen that morning and it had been broken into similar fragments. Carefully Holmes held each separate shard to the light, but in no way did it differ from any other shattered piece of plaster. He had just completed his examination when the hall lights flew up, the door opened, and the owner of the house, a jovial, rotund figure in shirt and trousers, presented himself.

"Mr. Josiah Brown, I suppose?" said Holmes.

"Yes, sir, and you, no doubt, are Mr. Sherlock Holmes? I had the note which you sent by the express messenger, and I did exactly what you told me. We locked every door on the inside and awaited developments. Well, I'm very glad to see that you have got the rascal, I hope, gentlemen, that you will come in and have some refreshment."

However, Lestrade was anxious to get his man into safe quarters, so within a few minutes our cab had been summoned and we were all four upon our way to London. Not a word would our captive say, but he glared at us from the shadow of his matted hair, and once, when my hand seemed within his reach, he snapped at it like a hungry wolf. We stayed long enough at the police station to learn that a search of his clothing revealed nothing save a few shillings and a long sheath knife, the handle of which bore copious traces of recent blood.

"That's all right," said Lestrade, as we parted. "Hill knows all these gentry, and he will give a name to him. You'll find that my theory of the Mafia will work out all right. But I'm sure I am exceedingly obliged to you, Mr. Holmes, for the workmanlike way in which you laid hands upon him. I don't quite understand it all yet."

"I fear it is rather too late an hour for explanations," said Holmes. "Besides, there are one or two details which are not finished off, and it is one of those cases which are worth working out to the very end. If you will come round once more to my rooms at six o'clock tomorrow, I think I shall be able to show you that even now you have not grasped the entire meaning of this business which presents some features which make it absolutely original in the history of crime. If ever I permit you to chronicle any more of my little problems, Watson, I foresee that you will enliven your pages by an account of the singular adventure of the Napoleonic busts."

When we met again next evening Lestrade was furnished with much information concerning our prisoner. His name it appeared, was Beppo, second name unknown. He was a well-known ne'er-do-well among the Italian colony. He had once been a skilful sculptor and had earned an honest living, but he had taken to evil courses and had twice already been in goal—once for a petty theft, and once, as we had already heard, for stabbing a fellow countryman. He could talk English perfectly well. His reason for destroying the busts were still unknown, and he refused to answer any questions upon the subject, but the police had discovered that these same busts might very well have been made by his own hands, since he was engaged in this class of work at the establishment of Gelder and Co. To all this information, much of which we already knew, Holmes listened with polite attention, but I, who knew him so well, could see clearly that his thoughts were elsewhere, and I detected a mixture of mingled uneasiness and expectation beneath that mask which he was wont to assume. At last he started in his chair, and his eyes brightened. There had been a ring at the bell. A minute later we heard steps upon the stairs, and an elderly, red-faced man with grizzled side-whiskers was ushered in. In his right hand he carried an old-fashioned carpet-bag, which he placed upon the table.

"Is Mr. Sherlock Holmes here?"

My friend bowed and smiled. "Mr. Sandeford, of Reading, I suppose?" said he.

"Yes, sir, I fear that I am a little late, but the trains were awkward. You wrote to me about a bust that is in my possession."

"Exactly."

"I have your letter here. You said 'I desire to possess a copy of Devine's Napoleon, and am prepared to pay you ten pounds for the one which is in your possession.' Is that right?"

"Certainly."

"I was very much surprised at your letter, for I could not imagine how you knew that I owned such a thing."

"Of course you must have been surprised, but the explanation is very simple. Mr. Harding, of Harding Brothers, said that they had sold you their last copy, and he gave me your address."

"Oh, that was it, was it? Did he tell you what I paid for it?"

"No, he did not."

"Well, I am an honest man, though not a very rich one. I only gave fifteen shillings for the bust, and I think you ought to know that before I take ten pounds from you."

"I am sure the scruple does you honor, Mr. Sandeford. But I have named that price, so I intend to stick to it."

"Well, it is very handsome of you, Mr. Holmes. I brought the bust up with me, as you asked me to do. Here it is!" He opened his bag, and at last we saw placed upon our table a complete specimen off that bust which we had already seen more than once in fragments.

Holmes took a paper from his pocket and laid a ten-pound note upon the table.

"You will kindly sign that paper Mr. Sandeford, in the presence of these witnesses. It is simply to say that you transfer every possible right that you ever had in the bust to me. I am a methodical man, you see, and you never know what turn events might take afterwards. Thank you, Mr. Sandeford; here is your money, and I wish you a very good evening."

When our visitor had disappeared, Sherlock Holmes' movements were such as to rivet our attention. He began by taking a clean white cloth from a drawer and laying it over the table. Then he placed his newly acquired bust in the center of the cloth. Finally, he picked up his hunting-crop and struck Napoleon a sharp blow on the top of the head. The figure broke into fragments, and Holmes bent eagerly over the shattered remains. Next instant, with a loud shout of triumph he held up one splinter, in which a round, dark object was fixed like a plum in a pudding.

"Gentlemen," he cried, "let me introduce you to the famous black pearl of the Borgias."

Race Suicide Is Practiced by the College Graduate

DES MOINES, IOWA, July 8.—Race suicide is being practiced on a vast scale by American college graduates, Maurice Ricker, assistant director of the United States health service declared in an address before the department of secondary education of the National Education association convention.

He submitted a series of figures to substantiate his statement. "Investigation by the federal health service," he said, "over a period of years indicate that the progeny of one thousand graduates from such institutions as Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Vassar and Smith will not exceed fifty in 100 years from now" while investigation among illiterate foreigners, he said, showed that in a like period the original thousand will be multiplied at least a hundred times.

The ratio therefore will be, he said, fifty men and women descended from educated parents to one hundred thousand individuals beg tten by ignorant parents.

This condition, Mr. Ricker said, is premeditated, college graduates shirking the responsibility of children. Mr. Ricker's statements created somewhat of a minor tempest at the meeting.

He urged that sex matters be taught openly in the schools. "It must be placed on the same footing as other sciences," he declared. During the discussion that followed, Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver raised the question whether the teaching of sex matters would not increase immorality. This contention was strenuously denied by Mr. Ricker, who cited figures to disprove it.

An international congress of educators to be held in 1925 was advocated this afternoon by Dr. Augustus O. Thomas of Augusta, Maine, in submitting a report of the foreign relations committee of the association.

LEOPARD CANNOT CHANGE SPOTS

Mr. Dodson, the "Liver Tone" Man, Tells the Treachery of Calomel.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—adv.

Be sure to get real Resinol

The box is blue, with the opal jar inside. Your druggist sells it. Imitations are not "just as good" as they are often crudely made, have little healing power and may even be dangerous to use. Resinol is never sold in bulk.

SAYS TRUCKS TAKE MUCH FREIGHT AWAY FROM RAILROADS NOW

Local freight traffic between Wichita Falls and Fort Worth, and between Wichita Falls and Seymour has been reduced 25 per cent by truck freighters, Fort Worth and Denver officials estimate. Tax Agent McKoy, of the Denver told the city board of equalization Friday that the trucking business was making serious inroads upon the railroads' business.

"Concrete roads and automobiles are taking a good percentage of the passenger traffic," he said. "Even where there are no interurbans to compete with. I never knew a time when the railroads were up against it as they are now."

DR. KNICKERBOCKER WILL HOLD NIGHT SERVICE AT OPEN AIR TABERNACLE

"The groves of the forest have been called 'God's first temple,'" said Rev H. D. Knickerbocker to a Times reporter, "and in the summer time they are much more comfortable than any house can possibly be. If you don't believe it, come to our open-air tabernacle, Eleventh and Scott, where we are going to hold all of our night services during the summer, and it will surprise you how perfectly comfortable it is in the open air beneath the golden stars and fanned by the vagrant breezes, as Brother Culpepper phrases it. The tabernacle is so situated as regards the wind that it is easy to hear and no obstructions cut off the breezes, which rival the freshness of the soft sea air.

"The morning service will be held in the church, where electric breezes imitate the fairy zephyrs of nature. At 9:30 a. m. I am going to lecture to my men's class at the Olympic theater, which also, by the way, is a very cool place, on the subject 'A Converted Cyclone.' At 11 a. m. at the church my subject will be 'God's Servant Problem, a Study in Applied Christianity.'

"At 8:15 at the tabernacle, at the corner of Eleventh and Scott, my subject will be 'The Greatest Thief in All History.' Extra special music at the night service. Everyone is cordially invited. Bring the whole family except the dog.

"We have received 170 members as a result of our revival so far, and we expect to receive scores more next Sunday, and we will have reception of members at both morning and night services."

BUGHOUSE FABLES

M'CLURKAN STORE ALSO HEAVY LOSER IN THURSDAY'S FIRE

Fire which swept through the Marvin Smith building on Scott street early Thursday morning took a much heavier toll in property loss than was at first estimated. It was learned Friday that the W. B. McClurkan company had been utilizing a room in the extreme rear of the building for storage purposes and that dry goods and furnishing valued at over $13,000 were stored there.

The total loss to the McClurkan company will not reach the listed valuation of the goods, officials of the store indicated Friday, but damage by smoke and water will run well above $10,000, doubling the estimated loss to the building and the three business concerns which it housed.

The damaged goods consisted mostly of men's and women's furnishings and small fabrics which were easily spoiled by water or smoke. A complete check had not been made Friday on the contents of the room and until that is done no accurate report can be made.

WATER TROUBLE IN BARTLETT WELL IS HOLDING UP TEST

The Bartlett test on the Henderson in Archer county, after bailing and testing out the sand at 1,604 feet with what is conceded to be the best showing made outside of the defined area in the Archer pool, are having a little of the old water trouble. After bailing to the bottom of the hole the water was found coming from below. The company will set a plug and try to shut it off and if not successful the casing will be pulled and the well drilled down to the deeper sand around 1,620.

The Harper-Jones on the Taylor is also having some trouble with water, and has set the 6⅝ casing a foot above the oil sand at 1,614, with a packer and have decided to run a string of 5 3-16 with packer and perforated joint into the sand and try to give it a thorough testing.

The Texhoma Oil Refining company's No. 4 Gose is, after cleaning out, showing up better than ever and is now flowing and swabbing between 650 and 700 barrels a day.

The Rattlesnake Oil company—Le Croix et al—on the Netherton are in trouble with a caving hole and find it almost impossible to set the casing around 1,100 feet.

Judge Felder and J. D. Dixon have made a location in the Spreght-McCutchen subdivision on the Thornberry tract, block 52, and will drill a 2,000-foot rotary test.

Musselman-Dagley and Simpson are erecting a derrick to put down a 2,500-foot rotary test on the Bosque county school lands in blocks 6 and 7, Clay county.

Services will be held in the Lutheran church at that place, Rev. Paul Kaiser officiating.

Burial will be in the Clara cemetery.

VOTE OF THE NATIONAL ECONOMIC LEAGUE ON INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS.

A list of the most important questions for immediate consideration concerning International Relations, prepared by a special committee of the National Economic League, was sent out on Monday, April 4th, to be voted upon by the members of its National Council. The votes on 1003 of these ballots, the returns received to date from 48 states, are as follows:

1. Should the United States refrain from joining any association of nations? Yes, 149 (15 per cent); no, 823 (82 per cent).

2. Should the United States enter the existing league of nations with modifications in general such as were acceptable to the senate of the United States? Yes, 657 (65 per cent); no, 298 (30 per cent).

3. Should the United States become a party to the Root-Phillimore permanent court of international justice adopted by the assembly of the league at Geneva and already referred to member-nations for ratification? (The United States, as one of "the states mentioned in the annex to the covenant of the league," is entitled to become a party to the court without being a member of the league). Yes, 840 (84 per cent); no, 61 (6 per cent).

4. Should the United States ratify the Versailles treaty of peace with reservations? Yes, 710 (70 per cent); no, 227 (23 per cent).

If your answer is "no":

Should the United States proceed independently to negotiate a treaty of peace with Germany? Yes, 177; no, 41.

5. Should the United States repeal its war legislation? Yes, 853 (85 per cent); no, 38 (4 per cent).

6. Should the United States take the initiative in summoning a conference with Great Britain and Japan for the limitation or reduction of naval armaments? (Both houses of congress gress in the last session passed amendments to the naval appropriation bill making such provision, but they did not become effective owing to the failure of the bill to become law.) Yes, 858 (86 per cent); no, 113 (11 per cent).

7. Should the United States take the initiative in summoning a general conference for the limitation or reduction of land armaments? Yes, 836 (83 per cent); no, 123, (12 per cent).

8. Should the United States cancel the $10,000,000,000 indebtedness of the allies to the United States? Yes, 96 (10 per cent); no, 853 (85 per cent).

If your answer is "no": (a) Should the United States accept in payment of Belgium's indebtedness to it, reparation bonds issued by Germany to Belgium? (This proposal was transmitted to congress on February 21, 1921, in order "that suitable action may be taken at an appropriate time" as a result of an agreement reached at the Paris conference in 1919.) Yes, 351; no, 423. (b) Should the United States make like provision for the indebtedness of the other allies? Yes, 154; no, 604.

THE BUSINESS MAN AND GOVERNMENT.

At a meeting of business men and bankers of Dallas Wednesday a resolution was unanimously adopted, placing these men on record as being opposed to all new taxation or increase in existing taxes and to any expenditures of state money except for the necessary expense of administering the state government. Representative Barry Miller, who attended the meeting said that he was glad that the business men were waking up and that this was the first time that the business men of Dallas had shown that they were studying the problems of government.

Government needs more the thought, study and counsel of business men. This is true of local, state and national government. Business men now are feeling the heavy burden of taxation and this is causing them to study the problems of government. Good will come out of this study and interest. And business men ought not to come forward to give counsel until they have given these problems real study. The solution of government problems requires study and work and understanding. It has happened before now that business men have done more harm than good by their counsel because they have not given the problems in which they have advised sufficient study. Just because a man is successful in business does not qualify him to pass on problems in government without digging into the very meat and marrow of things. It is after that kind of study and work that the business man can help with his counsel.

GOVERNOR NEFF'S FIGURES.

Figures made public by Governor Neff in his speech at Palacious support his contention that some of the reasons why our laws have not been better enforced have been the abuse of the suspended sentence law and the abuse of the pardoning prerogative of the governor. Governor Neff has collected statistics on criminal convictions involving a penitentiary sentence, suspended sentences, parsons, paroles and [illegible] from fifty-seven counties of [illegible]. These show for the years 1919 and 1920 and aggregate of 1059 sentenced to prison, 1423 given suspended sentences and 758 pardoned, escaped or paroled. These figures show that even after conviction the chances are two to one against the offender serving out his sentence.

In Dallas county, for instance, 120 were sent to prison, 146 given suspended sentences and 120 pardoned, escaped or paroled. Governor Neff, himself, is correcting the pardon abuse and while specific instances may be cited where even he has erred in commuting sentences or issuing pardons, his general course has been such as to leave room for no criticism that he has erred on the side of leniency. The abuse of the suspended sentence law can only be corrected by a change in the attitude of the public. It is true that some correction can be made by amendments to the existing law but the great corrective force must be in the changed attitude of jurors who apply the law. There are evidences of such a change. In recent months many have observed signs of a better observance of the laws of the state. Governor Neff, himself, has contributed not a little toward this change.

WHEN IS A PRIZE FIGHT?

If the New Jersey law regulating boxing was designed to permit an exhibition of boxing and to prevent a prize fight, one does not necessarily merit the appellation of reformer or blue law advocate in saying that the law is a failure as exemplified in the Dempsey-Carpentier bout. There was little doubt in the minds of those who saw the fight or who read the detailed accounts in the newspapers that this bout was a real prize fight. Both fighters entered the ring determined to knock out his opponent in the shortest time possible and there was every encouragement from every side for them to do so. A few years ago it was necessary for the fight promoter to search out some out-of-the-way corner that would permit a fight. Now there are a number of states close to populous centers that legalize "boxing exhibitions" which John L. Sullivan and others of the old school of pugilists couldn't tell from a prize fight. Some folks think this a retrogression in our civilization. Others believe that it is a partial restoration of our liberties. It's all owing to the viewpoint.

There will be a balance of only $449,000 in the state treasury on September 1, 1921, as compared with $5,336,000 on the same date a year ago, it was developed at a conference between the state treasurer and the state comptroller Thursday. The state is rapidly running toward a deficit and the situation calls for rigid economy.

The price of wheat was something like $1.60 a bushel, we believe, when the emergency tariff was enacted. Wheat is now selling for 92 cents a bushel and this notwithstanding that the estimated yield has declined many millions of bushels. And our republican friends are talking about putting a tariff on cotton.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

REPLIES TO CHARGES AGAINST JOINT STOCK LOAN COMPANIES

Editor The Times:

In Wednesday's issue of the Times there appeared the following dispatch:

"San Antonio, July 6.—A resolution asking that unincorporated joint stock associations in Texas which propose to lend money for building homes at three per cent be investigated and that the law which authorizes them be repealed or modified at the instance of the governor, was passed by the Texas Bar association in convention here today. The resolution stated that leading attorneys and members of the association claim that contracts of the loan companies referred to are deceptive in purpose and furnish a most fruitful as well as secure field for perpetuation of a fraud on the unsuspecting public."

This dispatch does a serious injustice to the joint stock associations loaning money to home builders in Texas. In answer to the foregoing charge I will be glad to submit my books for investigation to show that we have loaned on city property in the city of Wichita Falls more than ten dollars to every one dollar that has been paid members of the association.

Editor The Times:

Captain Kidd was a gentleman and a scholar compared to the pirate band now in control of the oil business of this country. Never in the history of a civilized country have we had any precedent that approaches the brazen robbery that has taken place in the last six months in this country. The big oil operators have arbitrarily reduced the price of oil to a point that has caused the complete ruin of literally hundreds of independent oil operators. While this thievery is going on the papers are full of financial statements of the Standard Oil subsidiaries showing colossal reserves and dividends warned and paid during a period that the men at the head of these companies have been crying over production and hard times. As a matter of fact they have been working with a frenzy and boldness to throttle the independent oil operator that compares favorably with the high handed tactics of the highway robbers who have been holding up banks and pay-roll messengers all over the country. Now comes the suggestion by the independents that a tariff be placed on Mexican crude and President Obregon, watching the situation, takes the stand that if there is to be a tariff, why not place the tariff where it belongs, where the oil is produced? In view of the hue and cry for a tariff in this country, Obregon saw the fitness of the case and declared an export duty of 25 per cent on Mexican oil. Now comes the money interests of this country and in retaliation orders a shut down in the Mexican oil fields with the resultant disorders of thousands of men thrown out of work over night. The American oil interests in Mexico claim they can not operate with the additional export tariff, but on the other hand the English are crowding operations to the limit. Why? As a matter of fact the American oil men operating in Mexico have defied the laws of Mexico so long they have reached a point where the least bit of law and order as applied to them makes them froth at the mouth. Now comes the United States government ordering armed ships to Tampico for protection of property owned by a gang of men who have made Captain Kidd look like a piker compared with them. Oh, yes, this is a sweet crowd that has control of the oil business in this country. They are due to have protection in their thievery because of the absolute brazenness of their operations. Reverse the situation. What would the citizens of this country say if Mexican oil operators came to this country and did the things Americans are doing in Mexico. Lynch law would be applied in a hurry and no questions asked. CHAS. D. DAVENPORT.
Fort Worth, Texas.

GRAIN TRIMMERS ARE OUT ON A SYMPATHETIC STRIKE

CHICAGO, July 8.—Grain trimmers who load boats at the elevators have walked out on a sympathetic strike to help the elevator workers, and four large elevators here are closed today for want of storage room. Several boats yesterday were loaded and trimmed by their crews and elevator operators say they expect to be working at nearly normal capacity in ten days.

WHY?—

Do Phonograph Records Transmit Sound?

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Like heat, sound is conveyed by means of vibrations of the air—vibrations which, striking upon the sensitive ear drums, cause them to carry a distinct message to the brain cells with which we "hear." There is still much to be discovered about the workings of the inner ear, but there is no mystery whatever about the effect of the sound waves upon the ear-drum, so the problem in the case of making phonograph records was first how to have the sounds recorded upon some fairly hard surface and, secondly, how to reproduce from these fixed impressions sounds which would be exactly like the original ones.

Thomas A. Edison overcame the first obstacle by cutting a spiral groove, with the lines placed closely together, around a brass drum which turned on a horizontal screw-axis so that, as the drum revolved, it moved endwise with a regular rate of speed. This drum was then covered with tinfoil, pressed into the bottom of the endless groove in order to receive the impressions of the sound wave and preserve them. Beside the drum was placed a hollow cylinder, one end of which was covered with a tightly stretched membrane. In the center of this membrane was a sharp needle, with a chisel point, that followed the groove on the revolving drum and was kept pressed against the tinfoil at the bottom. The other end of the cylinder was funnel shaped, in order to receive and magnify the sounds which set the membrance vibrating, and, in turn, made a series of impressions upon the tin-foil. The second obstacle, the reproduction of the sounds, was overcome by the simple process of reversing the drum, thus making the membrane in motion once more by means of the indentations on the tin-foil.

Since the first phonograph was made, a large number of improvements have been effected, both in the manner of recording sounds and in the method of reproducing them—but the basic principles remain the same as when Edison first worked them out.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST.

Petty Jealousy.

The little petty jealousies, if we could but get rid of these,
The world would be a happier place
with less of hate and strife;
If we'd but do a kindly deed, and let the credit go to seed,
We'd lose a thousand frowns and sighs which mar the joys of life.

If only we would plod along, regardless of the little wrong,
Or having done a worthy thing not stop to reap the praise,
If only we could come to see the shallowness of vanity
And value service more than pride, we'd come to happier days.

But no, we feel that we must be rewarded oft by glory's fee,
For all we do we must demand the little gifts of fame;
Love turns to hate, and peace to strife,
and bitterness comes into life
Because we seek the petty praise and fear the petty blame.

Oh, let the fame and glory go! It is enough for us to know
That we have done a worthy thing—
why seek for men's applause?
And even though the world goes by unheeding, it is vain to sigh,
The credit is a lesser joy than having served a cause.

The History of Your Name

HACKETT.

Variation—Acker.
Racial Origin—Anglo-Saxon.
Source—A given name.

Hackett is one of those ancient Anglo-Saxon names which is far from being what it seems, having gone through a tremendous degree of change since the early days of the Christian era.

From the very close connection which exists between so many names and the words from which they took their origin you would feel justified in assuming that the original Hackett was one who hacked something for some purpose or other, that possibly he was a great warrior, with a reputation for dispensing rough treatment to his enemies. But nothing could be further from the truth.

The source of the name, on the contrary, appears to have been a very peaceful one, though just which of two possibilities, it is likely to remain for all time a question of conjecture. It came originally from the Anglo-Saxon. The more probable explanation is that it came from one in one case and from the other in another. In any event the name was Ealhere. The two possible sources are "ealh," a temple, and "aelf," a fairy.

When the Normans came to England their Latinized tongues were unable to twist around the pronunciation of Aelhere or Ealhere, and they corrupted it to Aucher, from which it finally developed into Acker and Ackett and Hackett.

POKER PORTRAITS — THE CHEERFUL LOSER

HUMANISMS
Inner Lights on Lives and Whims of Personages in the Public Eye

By WILLIAM ATHERTON DU PUY.

Senator George Higgins Moses of New Hampshire, who is a first-class picture of a live, pushing Yankee, admits that he is the man who discovered Venizelos, the Great Man of Greece.

Senator Moses was the American minister at Athens during the Taft administration. He had been at his post about a week when the Balkans broke into flame. He just naturally felt like a fixer, so he looked the situation over, talked it over with Irwin Loughlin of Pittsburgh, his secretary of legation.

The military league had been formed and these Americans decided that what it needed was a parliamentarian, a man who could work it. They looked over the field and spotted this lawyer, Venizelos, down in Crete. He had been pulling some spectacular stuff in a small way. He looked like a good bet.

It was so engineered that Venizelos came up to Athens. The second day he was there the American minister, most ostentatiously, with all the retainers he could muster, right out in the bright sunshine, went to call on the man from Crete. Very soon this call was no less ostentatiously returned. It directed attention to Venizelos. Other similar methods were used, American publicity stunts. Moses had not been a political editor of a Concord newspaper 20 years for nothing.

And so it happened that the original draft of the Baltic league, glorious for a day, but doomed to disintegration, was written in the study of the American minister and that Senator Moses today has in his possession the very first draft of it.

Forty years ago a farm boy named Elmer Ball received a bulletin from the government which was entitled "Entomology for Farmers' Sons."

Its purpose was to tell them how to keep down the insects that destroyed crops. But what it did in the case of Elmer was to arouse in him the desire to know more about insects, to become an entomologist.

So he wrote to four men who, he was told, were the greatest entomologists in the country, and asked each if, after studying entomology until he knew all the colleges could teach him, he could make a living at it.

Three out of the four advised against his trying, but Dr. Herbert Osborn of the Iowa Agricultural college encouraged him. So he saved his money and went to study under Dr. Osborn.

After graduating he got a job with the Colorado Agricultural college as an entomologist at $1,000 a year. One summer he went back home and a neighbor of his youth found him catching grasshoppers. He had found a cluster of the Rocky Mountain locust which was thought to be extinct.

This old friend upbraided him for devoting himself to such a foolish thing as catching grasshoppers.

"I get a salary of $1,000 a year for doing it," Ball replied, "and you can't show me another man of my age around here who is getting that much."

The neighbor scratched his head unconvinced and then asked:

"Do you really? Well, what does the other fellow get?"

This grasshopper catcher is now assistant secretary of agriculture.

H. H. B. Meyer, Bibliographer for the library of congress, says that there are publishers who go to great pains and expense in preparing books for the press and then run off a very small number, thus making the edition rare. One such publisher printed but four volumes. Thomas F. Ryan issued a book of which he printed but ten copies.

THE PEACE RESOLUTION

CONGRESSMAN PARRISH.

Mr. Parrish. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House: No man is more earnestly desirous of peace than I, but I am opposed to this resolution as it is presented now and as it has been presented on former occasions. I am opposed to it for a number of reasons, but fundamentally I am opposed to it because I am absolutely unwilling that the greatest struggle for democracy and humanity in all history be ended on behalf of the United States by a simple ex parte declaration of peace. I am compelled to withhold my approval until a valid and binding treaty has been properly signed and ratified, a treaty that will serve as a guaranty against the recurrency of such a horrible experience as has so recently wrung to the bleeding the hearts of the people of the world and has shaken to the very foundation democratic governments everywhere. Shall peace be declared without regard to the sacrifices that American citizens have made? Shall peace be declared without sounding a note of warning to the ambitious monarchs of the future? To ask the question is to answer it.

I do not believe that congress has authority to adopt this resolution. It might be said that congress could pass a resolution declaring a state of peace, but when it undertakes, as is attempted in sections 2 and 4 of the Porter bill, to preserve the rights of America under the armistice agreement signed on November 11, 1918, and under the treaty of Versailles, it transcends the field of a declaration and attempts to make binding certain treaty obligations and clearly falls within the inhibition laid down by the constitution.

When the constitution of the United States was in the making, Mr. Butler, a delegate to the constitutional convention, moved to add the words "and peace" after the words which gave congres sauthority to declare war, so that the constitution would read to "declare war and peace," but Mr. Butler's amendment was voted down by the convention, and thus congress was denied the authority to negotiate peace. The president, by and with the consent of the senate, two-thirds of the senators agreeing, was specifically authorized to negotiate treaties and settle international disputes, and I fail to see how any student of government can find any authority under the constitution for congress to pass a resolution clearly invading, as this one does, the treaty-making power which the founders of our government gave to the president and the senate. This resolution violates the constitution of the United States, and I cannot give it my support.

But, Mr. Speaker, there are other objections to this resolution. I do not believe that the resolution will accomplish one thing that its proponents claim for it. They say we want trade with Germany: Yes; we do want trade with Germany and all the world, and as an American citizen no man craves more than I do that America's trade and commerce with the world be restored at once; we want trade so that there will come with it prosperity to the struggling people of this nation, especially the farmers and producers, whose products can not be sold because the channels of the trade are choked, but this resolution offers no relief from the condition now prevailing. Its passage will not stimulate trade in any particular, and I quote as my authority for this statement the words of Mr. Harding, president of the United States, delivered on the floor of the senate on May 15, 1920, when he, as senator from the state of Ohio, said:

"I do not regard a pronouncement of formal peace as tremendously essential to the welfare of the United States or to the promotion of our trade relationships with the other nations of the world. I do not think a formal declaration of peace is essential to continued freedom from hostilities; I do not think it possible that Germany is likely to resume armed warfare against this republic in two generations to come; nor does it seem to me necessary to have this formal declaration, particularly in this form, in order to resume our commercial relations with Germany, for they are already more or less resumed, and in the very nature of things trade relations with Germany will be developed according to the needs of that people and our inclination to trade." (Congressional Record, p. 7098, 66th Cong., 2d sess.)

The truth is, we are trading with Germany and Austria today. On June 14, 1919, the war trade board of the state department issued license permitting trade with Germany under certain restrictions, which from time to time have been modified, and the records show that during the year ending in June, 1920, our export trade with Germany reached $400,000,000, which is the highest figure that it had ever attained in the history of America's trade with Germany. The highest mark heretofore reached was in 1913, when our export trade with Germany amounted to $320,000,000, and the passage of this resolution will not materially affect our trade relations with either Germany or Austria. But you can stimulate trade and commerce by the negotiation of a treaty of peace with those countries and the settlement of our international difficulties, so that an equitable basis of exchange can be agreed upon by the various nations of the world, and in this way confidence in international affairs will be restored to such an extent that business men and business concerns will invest their money in foreign securities, and trade and commerce will thereby be greatly stimulated. We must settle the world's difficulties in a legal and constitutional way before the world's trade and commerce will flow unchecked through its usual channels.

During the war every avenue of production in the United States was stimulated. By thrift and the adoption of scientific methods the farmers increased their production until today they are producing more per acre and per capita than ever before in our history. Likewise the factories and every other conceivable means of production in the United States have been stimulated to such a point that we are now producing more than ever before. We are producing much more than our country can consume, and if our prosperity is to continue it is absolutely essential that we find a foreign market for the overproduction of this country. Laborers can not find employment, farmers can not find a sale for their products, money will remain very hard to get until the obstructions to world trade have been removed and commerce permanently established. This can only be done by a speedy and permanent settlement of our world problems.

Mr. Box. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. Parrish. I will.

Mr. Box. Assuming that technical peace is so highly to be desired, can the gentleman imagine any reason why the president, in the exercise of the powers assigned to him by the constitution and by the uniform practice during our history, has not accepted the responsibility of entering upon the negotiation of such a treaty?

Mr. Parrish. I can not, and I was going to touch on that a little further on in my remarks. But the responsibility rests on the president of the United States. It rests on the republican majority. It rests upon those who have made so many promises to the people and who have assumed the responsibility of restoring conditions.

The republicans have been in charge of the legislative branch of this government for the past two years. They have been in charge of all departments of the government for the past three months, and yet there has been no official discussion with Germany through representatives or otherwise looking to a treaty of peace. You have done nothing that points in the direction of restoring the unsettled conditions now prevailing. You have simply left things hanging in the air. Uncertainty has been added to uncertainty, delay has been added to delay, confusion has been added to confusion, until the hearts of patriotic men are wearied, and I challenge you to show where this resolution will meet these conditions. (Applause on the democratic side.) It will not do it; it will fall short of that, and the American people will find after the passage of the resolution that it is futile and ineffective.

The majority report of the foreign affairs committee of the house has placed a most serious indictment against the Knox resolution, which repeals outright the declaration of war. The report states that the resolution is or might be construed as an apology to Germany for our ever having entered the war. I agree with that statement, but deplore the fact that the republican administration in its desperation to carry out campaign pledges has found itself in such a predicament that it must force this resolution upon the American people. Like Banquo's ghost, it will arise in the future to haunt you; it will arise to embarrass you and it may arise to do real harm to the American people. You are taking a very doubtful step, and no one can now foresee what the results will be.

But, gentlemen of the house, there is something else in this resolution that goes deeper than any of the things that I have mentioned. You are opening the way by which America must make a separate peace with Germany. When we bade good-bye to the boys who went across the sea to fight the battles of humanity, to fight for democracy, and to put an end to all war, no man ever suggested to them that the time would ever come in our history when America would ever make a separate peace with Germany. (Applause on the democratic side.) Have we come to a place where we are going to do that? Are we to desert the cause of the allies and make a separate treaty? The passage of this resolution is leading in that direction, and you are going to find that it will seriously handicap our representatives at the peace table. You are going to find that Germany, as she has always done in the past, will take advantage of every single technicality that presents itself. We have property in our possession belonging to alien enemies. American citizens have claims against Germany for property and lives destroyed amounting to almost a quarter of a billion dollars. We have ships in our ports that are there by virtue of the declaration of war. We have many other intricate questions which can only be settled around the peace table, and if you pass this resolution you strip America of the advantages won in the war and send her to the peace table as a coequal with Germany, there to be dealt with at arms' length. The rights of our citizens will be unnecessarily jeopardized and millions of dollars' worth of property may be drawn into useless litigation. This resolution will handicap the president in the successful settlement of the many and intricate problems remaining yet to be settled.

But, Mr. Speaker, there is still another very vital reason why I oppose this resolution, and that is the American people were told while the war was in progress that we were fighting to put an end to all wars. Does this resolution meet that pledge? Has America redeemed the promise she made to the boys who have gone down to death on the battle fields of France? Has America redeemed the pledge that she made to the fathers and mothers who gave up their sons in the supreme sacrifice of a nation's defense? What does this resolution do to protect the future against wars? It does absolutely nothing. As tragic as it is to the American people, you are letting the supreme opportunity of history pass without taking affirmative action to bring about world disarmament or an agreement among the nations of the earth that will secure the future peace of the world.

Why not call a conference of the nations now? Why not take some positive steps to insure disarmament? Why not do something that is real, something that will lift from the bended backs of the American people the excessive and cruel burdens of war and place hope again in the hearts of the millions of mothers of America who pray for peace? Do you offer this resolution as the panacea for all the ills of mankind? Do you expect it to solve the world's problems? Is this impotent resolution the answer you are giving to the mothers who have sacrificed loved ones in order that there would be no more wars. Is this spineless document the crown you would place upon the brow of the crippled and wounded soldiers? Is this miserable scrap of paper the monument you are erecting to the memory of the thousands of American soldiers who now lie sleeping beneath the poppies in France? No. With all that is in me I answer no, ten thousand times no, May God forbid.

KABER'S DYING WORDS 'MY WIFE ORDERED IT'

Displays No Emotion When Bloodstained Dagger Is Exhibited to The Jury.

CLEVELAND, July 8.—Unemotional, Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber sat throughout yesterday in Judge Maurice Bernon's little stuffy court room while state witnesses testified that the dying words of her husband, Daniel F. Kaber, for whose murder she is being tried, were:

"My wife ordered this done."

Neither did she display emotion when the bloodstained dagger with which Mr. Kaber was stabbed twenty-four times, was displayed, nor when witnesses said she had told them that she wanted her husband murdered.

Mr. Kaber's alleged accusation was testified to by Police Lieutenant L. B. Miller, the first outside person to reach him after the stabbing, and also by Dr. W. J. Quigley, one of the first physicians to arrive.

"I saw only one of them, but there must have been two," Lieutenant Miller said Mr. Kaber told him. "One was a man with a cap."

"The man with a cap," according to County Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton, was Salvator Cala, apprehended near Buffalo, N. Y., and now held on a first degree murder charge.

The state also offered testimony tending to substantiate its claim that an attempt was made by Mrs. Kaber to make the stabbing appear the result of robbery.

Mrs. Maria Matthews, a palmist, testified that Mrs. Kaber a few days before the murder, brought a large box of silverware and linen to her home and that after the murder Mrs. Kaber gave her the articles. The silverware and linen were offered as exhibits.

It has developed that F. W. Utterbach, Mr. Kaber's male nurse, whom the state had expected to call as a witness, has left a Pittsburgh hotel where he had been employed, and cannot be located. Prosecuter Stanton said that only last week in a letter to him, Utterbach had expressed a willingness to testify, but that a telephone call to Pittsburgh revealed that Utterbach had left the hotel after receiving a telephone call from Cleveland July 4. The police have been asked to find him.

Court is expected to be adjourned this evening until Monday.

KABER SUSPECTED THAT WIFE PLANNED HIS ASSASSINATION

CLEVELAND, OHIO, July 8.—Testimony tending to show that Daniel F. Kaber, whose widow, Eva Catherine Kaber, is on trial for first degree murder, suspected Mrs. Kaber of planning his assassination, was introduced by the state through two witnesses.

"My wife ordered this done! My wife ordered this done.

"My God, my wife ordered this done!"

These exclamations were uttered by Kaber to Police Lieutenant L. B. Miller of Lakewood, upon the officers' arrival at the home soon after Kaber had been stabbed, Lieutenant Miller testified.

"My God, doctor, my wife must have done this," Dr. W. J. Quigley, who was called to attend the wounded man, said Kaber made these seatements while yet conscious, lying on the floor by the side of the bed in which he was attacked.

The women witnesses testified Mrs. Kaber had told them she wanted her husband murdered.

Mrs. Mary J. Wade, an alleged medium, testified that Mrs. Kaber on the last of several visits to her said:

"I want you to try to get rid of Dan Kaber for me."

Asked by Mrs. Wade how she was to go about it, Mrs. Kaber was alleged to have replied:

"I want you to kill him—any way to get rid of him. The man I love has no money, only brains, and Mr. Kaber has $50,000 life insurance."

Mrs. Bertha Miethke, grandmother of the little Patricia whom the Kabers had adopted, testified that Mrs. Kaber said to her:

"I hate Dan Kaber and am going to get rid of him within the next six months in some manner or other."

The state in an effort to substantiate its claim that Mrs. Kaber had sought to poison her husband, introduced testimony of Dr. Quigley and Dr. Alfred Maschke.

Both physicians said they had treated Mr. Kaber and made examinations of him during a period of several months before his death. They asserted that he was suffering from neuritis and secondary aenemia.

Based on a hypothetical question asserting that an analysis of Mr. Kaber's internal organs after his death disclosed the presence of arsenic in quantity "sufficient to kill four men," both physicians said they would diagnose the cause of the aenemia and neuritis as arsenical poisoning.

This hypothetical question was admitted by Judge Maurice Bernon only on the state's promise to show by later testimony that an analysis of Mr. Kaber's organs showed the presence of poison in the quantity alleged.

Attorney Wm. J. Corrigan, on cross-examination of the physicians, sought to establish that the poison might have been absorbed from powders sprinkled over the organs by the undertaker who prepared the body for burial. He based a hypothetical question on this assumption, but Dr. Quigley maintained that the poison could not have been absorbed in this manner in such an amount as claimed by the state.

Attorney Francis W. Poulson, Mrs. Kaber's personal counsel, asserted this evening that the testimony of the undertaker will show that the powder sprinkled over Mr. Kaber's internal organs was arsenic, and according to Dr. Poulson, "enough to kill a whole regiment of men."

Attempts by the state to introduce additional statements alleged by Police Lieutenant Miller to have been made to him by Kaber soon after the stabbing were ruled out by Judge Bernon because the alleged statements were in answer to questions asked Kaber by the officer.

Shorthand was used by the Greeks and Romans as much for secrecy as for brevity.

MOTHER WORRIED OVER SON'S HEALTH

Houston Boy Was Losing Ground Every Day and Needed Something to Build Him Up

"I certainly am grateful for what Tanlac did for my son; it was just what he needed," said Mrs. A. Rainey, 1302 Charles street, Houston, Texas.

"Herbert needed something to build him up, for he had been in a run-down condition and suffered with his kidneys for a long time. He complained a great deal of pains in his back and slept so little he would get up in the morning feeling miserable. It worried me a great deal to see him drooping and losing ground every day.

"I never saw such a change in anybody as one bottle of Tanlac has made in him. He seemed to get new life and energy with every dose. A good ruddy color has come into his cheeks, and he sleeps well at night and feels fresh and bright every morning. He doesn't complain any more of his kidneys bothering him or of that old pain in his back. I can see that he has been benefited in every way and I am just so grateful that I can hardly express myself. I feel it would be a positive wrong if I did not let parents, especially mothers, know about this grand medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Wichita Falls by Miller Drug store, in Electra by Tarleton Drug store, in Burkburnett by West End Drug store, and by all leading druggists.—adv.

Peggy Joyce Gets $1,350 Per Month; $30,000 Expenses

CHICAGO, July 8.—Peggy Hopkins Joyce was awarded $1,350 a month alimony, $25,000 solicitors' fees, $12,500 legal expenses today by Judge Sabbath in the superior court, in her counter suit against James Stanley Joyce, millionaire lumberman, who had originally sued for an annulment of their marriage.

Peggy Joyce asked for $10,000 a month temporary alimony and $100,000 attorneys' fees. She has asserted her husband is worth at least $10,000,000, while Joyce contends he is worth $3,000,000.

The alimony granted is temporary, as Judge Sabbath has already decided that h would not go into the merits of the case itself until it came up finally in September.

Attorneys for Joyce immediately after the decision was read filed an appeal bond of $15,000 to take Judge Sabbath's ruling to a higher court.

FIVE BANDITS ROB BANK LOCATED AT COULTER, IOWA

DES MOINES, July 8.—Five bandits entered the Coulter State bank of Coulter, Iowa, at 2 o'clock this morning, according to advices reaching Deputy Sheriff Pugsley here, fired five charges of nitroglycerine and escaped with $5,000. A posse started in pursuit, but turned back when the bandits fired on them.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance, take Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

Gassers Fall Before Spudders in Opener With Sewell in Box

SHREVEPORT, July 8.—The Spudders took the opening game of the series from the Gassers here Thursday by a 4 to 3 count. Jim Sewell, one of Walter Salm's 1920 mainstays, went the full route for the winners for the first time since early last May, when he went home to get his "old souper" in shape.

He was never in better form in his life. For six innings not one Gasser saw the light of day on second base, and after the seventh the same thing was true. He was nicked for three blows in the seventh, and aided by a wild peg by Kitchens and Works' anxjety to get his foot off first base too early, three runs were chalked up against him.

A two-base crash by Cecil Griggs in the eighth was the Spudders' winning blow. This clout drove Danny Clark in from first base after he had reached that station on a pass. The detailed score:

First Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: Gleason was wild at the outset, but pulled out of his first hole luckily. Tanner received three wide ones in succession and then flew out to Jackson in right. McDonald drew a complimentary and the count was three and two on Miller before he finally missed his third swing. McDonald went down on the last pitch, but was caught, Henry to Hollahan. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SHREVEPORT: Storey cracked the second ball heaved at him to Works and was an easy out. Long popped to Clark. Sewell lost control for a second and passed Ewoldt, but Jackson grounded to Clark and was tossed out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: Gleason still had to pitch the limit to get the ball over and Clark had three on him before he grounded out, Hollahan to Eibel. McElwee skied to Long. Griggs also had three wide ones served him before bouncing an easy grounder to Hollahan, which was tossed to Eibel in plenty of time to retire him. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SHREVEPORT: Sewell had his opponents eating out of his hand in this period and they were unable to get the ball out of the infield. Eibel was retired by Tanner and Works while Sewell threw out Hollahan. Hartford hit to McDonald and was out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: Gleason settled down in this chapter and mowed the Spudders down in one, two, three fashion. Works popped to Hollahan. Kitchens sent a long fly to Storey which was gobbled up. Sewell grounded out, Clark to Works. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SHREVEPORT: The Gassers were still unable to get the ball out of the infield though Storey garnered the first hit of the game in this canto. Henry was retired by Tanner and Works. Gleason took three healthy cuts and sat down. Storey beat out a perfect bunt down the first base line, but went out stealing a moment later, Kitchens to Clark. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: The Spudders collected an infield hit this time, their first of the matinee, but it availed them naught. After Tanner had fouled out to Ewoldt, McDonald scratched a hit through first. Miller fouled out to Eibel in back of first and Clark's best was a long fly to Long in center. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

SHREVEPORT: Another Gasser hit was wasted in this session. Long cracked the first ball pitched to Griggs for an out. Ewoldt was deceived three times by Sewell's shoots. Jackson slammed a hot one through McDonald for a base hit, but like his predecessors first was as far as he got as Eibel popped to Clark. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: Gleason found himself in hot water in this chapter, but pulled out unscathed after allowing a couple of hits. McElwee started the ball rolling by plasting a single to right; Griggs dumped down a pretty sacrifice and McElwee halted at second; Works pasted one at Hartford and McElwee was caught going to third, Works was safe at first and went to second soon after on a balk. Kitchens walloped a hot one to Ewoldt that the latter knocked down but couldn't field in time to get the runner, Works stopping at third. Kitchens stole second unmolested, but Sewell couldn't drive his mates across, his best offering being a pop to Hollahan. No runs, 2 hits, no errors.

SHREVEPORT: Sewell continued his airtight thiwrling through the fifth. Tanner and Works disposed of Hollahan and the same pair retired Hartford. McDonald threw out Henry. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: The Spudders got a cheap run in this frame when the Gasser defense went to pieces. Tanner waited for four wide ones to pass, McDonald dumped a slow one down to Ewoldt who threw to second too late to get Buddy, and all hands were safe. Miller drove a long fly to Jackson and Tanner went to third after the catch. Clark hoisted one to Long who dropped it and Tanner counted. McElwee fouled out to Henry. Griggs also skied to Long but he held this one, retiring the side. One run, no hits, 1 error.

SHREVEPORT: Sewell was just as invincible as ever in this inning and the Gassers went out in order again. Gleason's bounder was easy for Tanner as was Ewoldt's grass cutter and Buddy threw both men out at first. Long popped to McDonald. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: The Spudders gave Sewell a comfortable lead to work on in this chapter. Works skied to Storey for a starter and then Kitchens caught one on the end of his willow and poled it to keep left for three sacks. He and Sewell worked a pretty squeeze, Kitchens scoring, while Ewoldt was putting Sewell out at first. This play unnerved Gleason and Tanner walked on four straight wide ones. Hartford dropped Henry's peg on Tanner's steal and the latter was safe. McDonald thumped a hard single to right that scored Tanner, but he died stealing. Two runs, 2 hits, 1 error.

SHREVEPORT: Sewell didn't appreciate the lead and waited until two thirds of the side had been retired before grooving a few. The Gassers then started to sock 'em and proceeded to tie the count. Ewoldt drew a pass for a starter, but was forced at second when Jackson hoist to Clark. Eibel grounded to Works and Jackson went to the middle station on the play. Hollahan doubled to left scoring Jackson and Hartford punched a one base clout to right that chased Hollohan over the platter. Hartford stole second and kept on to third when Kitchens' peg went into center field. Henry singled to left sending Hartford in with the tally that knotted the score. Sewell then put on the brakes and served Gleason three straight strikes. Three runs, 3 hits, 1 error.

Eighth Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: Griggs' war club put the Spudders back into the lead in this frame. Miller sent a skyscraper to Long and Clark watched four wide ones float by. McElwee flew out to right. Griggs leaned on one and pasted it to deep right for two bags, scoring Clark. Griggs tried to make a triple out of the drive and was nailed coming into third. One run, 1 hit, no errors.

SHREVEPORT: Sewell struck his stride again in this round and retired the side in order. Storey was thrown out by Clark while Long and Ewoldt flew out to right and center respectively. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

WICHITA FALLS: Gleason had things his own way this time and the Spudders went out as they came up. Works popped to Eibel. Kitchens was tossed out at first by Hollahan and Sewell grounded out to Eibel, unassisted. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SHREVEPORT: Jackson gave the Gasser fans a ray of hope by singling right off the reel, but the slugging Eibel hit into a double killing, Clark to Tanner to Works. Tanner also threw out Hollahan. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

LOUISVILLE THIRD SACKER TIES FIELDING RECORD

LOUISVILLE, KY., July 7.—When Joe Schepner, third baseman of the Louisville American association club, accepted thirteen chances without error in the first game at St. Paul yesterday, local sport writers declared today that he equaled the major league record held by third basemen which was made by George Cutshaw of the Brooklyn Nationals on August 23, 1913.

Rickard Hopes to Sign Carpentier for The Gibbons Match

NEW YORK, July 7.—Hope of getting Georges Carpentier's signature today to the articles of agreement for a bout with Tom Gibbons on Columbus day, October 12, was expressed by Tex Rickard, who said he expected a visit from Descamps, the French boxer's manager, during the afternoon.

Terms for the match were understood to include a percentage basis of about 30 or 35 per cent of the gross gate receipts for Carpentier. It was expected that the bout would be arranged before the Frenchman leaves for France to visit his wife and baby daughter on July 14. No trouble is expected from the Gibbons side of the contract. Rickard had hoped to arrange the meeting for Labor Day but Carpentier's broken hand will prevent him from entering the ring before the early part of October.

THE TEST.

To look Fate in the face,
However grim and dark;
To take the game's worst break
And hold the vital spark;
To throw soft flesh aside
Where trouble rules the fray,
Nor make one lone complaint
Along the harder way—

Can you, who've drifted long,
Be ready at the call
To swim upstream again
Whatever may befall?
For services also means
The trouble to endure,
Where those who come through fire
Shall find the only cure!

As we have suggested before in these daily dispatches, Americans lucky enough to see Suzanne Lenglen in action will see one of the sensations of competition, an unusual product that drifts along once in a century. The French girl has not only proved her greatness often, but has so far outclassed the next one in sight that no doubt, considering her youth, many years must pass by before she is dethroned. Uncanny speed of hands and feet, remarkable accuracy, power and the tennis knack are not likely to be stopped at any sudden moment.

Miss Leitch is still hopeful that she also can make the trip across, and with a Leitch-Lenglen combination there will be at least two cups in danger that are now prized members of a large collection. And, after looking at the range and physical qualities of both, no expertness is needed to see why they have been able to reach such heights.

BOB MARTIN'S CASE.

We are now shortly to have the opportunity of seeing just how far Bob Martin, of the A. E. F., has come along since he exchanged a number of blows with Bill Brennan last winter.

In that engagement Martin proved that he had the courage and a tidy right-hand kick, but the weakness of his feeble left was so apparent that but little could be said in his behalf until this fault was remedied. If he has attached a sting to his port-side battery he will be something to talk about. Otherwise any championship prospect will be extensively delayed.

QUITE A FLOCK

In addition to Tom Gibbons and Bill Brennan, there are Martin, Captain Roper, Gene Tunney, Harry Greb and one or two more who can be used to make up a series of interesting sessions by way of whiling away the remaining summer and fall.

With proper matchmaking the best of this lot can be finally picked for a toss at the championship, for while the class on parade isn't anything astoundingly remarkable, as heavyweight talent goes, it is something above normal. Which is precisely that much.

PUNISHMENT

I've never missed a two-foot putt
Without I felt my heart was cut.
I've never seen my mashie fail
Without I felt my soul turn pale.

"Ruth's big ambition still centered upon making 100 home runs." And yet they stabbed Caesar for an ambition that included only the emperorship of Rome.

Sport Shots by Paul W. Barkin

If Sewell's work wasn't a flash in the pan the Spudders will be up there yet. Jim always did maintain that he was a hot weather bird. Such being the case, if he doesn't come through now he never will.

We ought to come home in third place, anyway. That won't be a bit bad considering the crippled condition of the team.

Billy Smith said some time ago that he was through with Johnny Verbout for keeps. He said that several times and nobody had much faith in him, but he fooled 'em all last time. Verbout is now taking his regular turn with the Bears.

A typographical error in one newspaper yesterday had local fans in the air. The New York Giants' box score showed Zinn pitching for McGraw. It was Zink, not Zinn. Jimmy is still with George Gibson.

Pat Moran has been on the point of letting Buddy Napier out several times this season and he'll probably be seen in the Southern soon. He received another lacing yesterday.

Barney Burch must have his Buffaloes up around the top of the heap to stick. They're trailing the leaders by only four games.

The one big difference between the Fort Worth club and the local bunch of athletes is that the former can think in a pinch while our boys can't. When a Panther gets on base he knows how many are down, what the count is on the hitter, etc. When on the field they know what to do with the ball the minute they get it. They don't make any false moves. They know when a play is on. And the tighter the situation the closer baseball they play. They're lucky, too. There's no doubt about that. But they think baseball was well as play it. Mental errors hurt the Spudders more than the mechanical boots, though the box score didn't show that feature.

Danny Gross, one of the hardest working ball players who ever donned a uniform, is receiving a lot of adverse criticism from some local fans on account of his work in the late Panther series—especially because he uncorked a wild throw in the final game that spelled defeat for the Spudders. This criticism is wholly unwarranted and unjustified. Local fans will never see a gamer or more conscientious youngster on the diamond than Danny.

Danny's sensational work all year seems to have been forgotten. The fact that he jumped into the fray, a raw recruit, when "Buddy" Tanner was stricken with appendicitis, and kept the Spudders well up in the race seems to be overlooked by some. We wonder if these same fans realize that Gross was playing third base when he made that fatal heave and that he had been playing short practically every day until Wednesday. Also do they realize that the peg from the hot corner to first is altogether different than that from short to first.

Nobody felt worse over that peg than Danny himself. When he walked off the field after the game his head was between his shoulders. His mates didn't rag him. They know that he is a youngster trying to make good and that many a seasoned vet has blown up in a pinch similar to that. Danny is giving everything he's got to Wichita fans and it won't help him any if they fail to realize it. It's up to them to show him that they are with him when the club comes home. He's just as great a ball player as he ever was. It won't take him long to overcome his nervousness if the fans ride with him.

"Caddy" Works is aching for a chance to take a turn in the box. We talked with him in Fort Worth about his record as a hurler and he said that he had won the big majority of his games as a hurler while in high school and college. He came within an ace of getting his chance in the last Fort Worth game as Salm had him warming up for several innings. He'll be in there yet.

GALLENCAMP TO MEET LEWIS IN NET FINALS

Match Will Be Held Saturday For Championship of The City.

Delbert Lewis worked his way into the finals of the local tennis championships yesterday by defeating Bill Powers in two hard fought games. The scores were 9-7 and 8-6.

Lewis and Gallencamp will clash in the finals Saturday afternoon at 1609 Thirteenth streets. Judging by the crowds that have attended the matches thus far, a record breaking gathering expected to see these two men fight it out for the city title. Joe Hill has been selected to referee.

The winner will receive, in addition to the championship honor, a leather sport coat from the Southern Electric and the loser will receive a bathing suit from Richardson the haberdasher.

RUTH VISITS ORPHANAGE TO SHOW YOUNGSTERS HOW HE BANGS OUT HOME RUNS

PITTSBURGH, July 8.—Babe Ruth, playing here yesterday with the New York Americans in an exhibition game with the Pittsburgh Pirates, kept a promise to T. B. Doyle, prefect of St. Paul's orphanage at Idlewood, and visited the institution. Doyle formerly was prefect at St. Mary's Industrial school of Baltimore where Ruth spent his boyhood days. The famous ball player was accompanied by "Rabbit" Maranville nd Charley Grimm of the Pirates.

Ruth went to bat before the eight hundred children at the orphanage and was fanned the first time up by Mike Radanski, aged 12, crack pitcher of St. Paul's. Then Maranville took Mike's place and the home run king smashed the ball all over the lot to the delight of the fans.

DOROTHY DIX'S TALKS

By DOROTHY DIX
THE WORLD'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN WRITER

The Philanderer

A WOMEN who is married to a man with a roving eye and a wandering foot wants to know how she can cure him of flirtatiousness, and what she shall do about it, anyway.

There is no cure for philandering. The man whose fickle fancy is fired by every fresh face, and who is impelled to chase every high water skirt that crosses his pathway, has a constitutional affliction that only death will end. No matter how much he promises to reform, he will go on falling from grace until he falls into the grave.

He is just built that way. There's no faith in him. Possibly he can no more help being a butterfly that flits from flower to flower than a solid granite cliff can help being what it is, and staying in one place.

Certainly if a man cannot change himself, and steady his own wavering soul, no wife can accomplish the impossible task. Of course, every woman who marries one of those men whose hearts are a hotel run on the European plan, believes that she has got a ninety-nine-year lease on it, and is going to be a permanent tenant.

Before she has got fairly unpacked and settled, and has turned up the love letters and other souvenirs of her predecessors, there's a new name inscribed on the register, and she has to move into a back room or else get out. Some younger and fairer guest is carrying temporarily in the suite de luxe.

Many fake remedies are offered for tying such men to their own hearthstones. Women are told that they must give their husbands the thrill at home that they seek abroad. Wives are adjured to keep themselves always young and beautiful, and exquisitely dressed, and continue to be the vampiest vamp. Also they must keep their husband pursuing the love chase by keeping them guessing, and allure them along the path of matrimony by always being coy and arch and flirtatious themselves.

All of which is sheer nonsense. You cannot mingle thrills with the bills of domestic life, and matrimony is a place where you are called upon every hour of the day to pay the piper. Nor can you successfully swathe cooking stoves, and butchers' meat, and teething babies, and sickness, and all of the other hard, practical facts that make up the sum of every-day existence with the pink chiffon of romance.

Neither can any woman, however beautiful, however fascinating, however intelligent, and charming, keep a philanderer tied to her apron strings. Variety is the spice of life to him. He likes women, little and big, fair and dark, grave and giggly, high-browed and addlepated, and the one who charms him most is the one who has just smiled at him over her shoulder.

The woman who is married to a philanderer wastes her time in trying to make him take a serious view of his responsibilities, or to inculcate faithfulness into him. He can no more keep from making love to a pretty girl, or resist the appeal of a romantic situation, than a drunkard can resist the temptation of drink; and, alas, there is no Volstead act that prohibits alluring-looking females from parading the streets.

The wife's only comfort is that such a man is no more true to those females than he is to her, and that often in spite of a hundred light loves, she is the real love of his life.

For men and women differ in this—when a woman is faithless to her husband, her disloyalty goes to the very bottom of her soul. She has ceased entirely to care for him; but a man's faithlessness is often only skin deep, and even while he kisses other women's lips, and murmurs love talk in their ears, he holds for his wife the best that is in him, and gives her a respect and affection that he never feels for any other woman.

As to what the wife of a philanderer should do, that's another question, and the answer depends on a number of things.

It depends upon how much the woman cares for the man. Sometimes a woman loves a man so well that she is happier with him, even when he makes her endure hours of jealousy and agony, than she would be without him at all. Sometimes the man who has his lapses from grace is so lovable, so pleasant to live with, so considerate and kind to his wife, that she can afford to shut her eyes to his little peccadilloes.

For the flirtatious man very often does take as much trouble to charm his wife as he does other women. He is the sort of man who is a born lover. He knows by instinct how to do, and say, all of the little things that make life worth living to woman, and the wife who has this sort of mate is wise if she recognizes that philandering is not the worst fault that a husband may have.

Coldness, surliness, stinginess, grouchiness, all of these are qualities that are harder to endure in a husband than flirtatiousness. After all, it is better to be kissed by lips that kiss too many, than not to be kissed at all, and to suspect that a duplicate order of roses is going to some other woman, than never to have your husband send you a single flower.

Of course, women are monopolists who want all of their husbands' love and attention, and when they find that they have to share them with other ladies, their thoughts turn towards the divorce court. But divorce isn't often the cure-all for matrimonial ills that women think it is going to be. So often it is jumping out of the frying pan into the fire. So often it gives a woman freedom, and brings on her poverty, and homelessness, and loneliness, so that her last estate is worse than her first.

The modern woman does not want to be told to be patient and sit tight on her job as a wife, when husband does not measure up to her standards. Nevertheless, it is good advice nine times out of ten where the wandering husband is concerned. For philandering husbands are like Mary's little lamb: let them alone and they will come home. And in the meantime the woman has her home, her income, and her position in society, which are no mean consolations.

Something To Think About

Facing the Music

By F. A. WALKER

JUST when or under what circumstances the expression "facing the music," originated is, so far as I know, unrelated history—if you happen to know its origin, write and tell me—but one thing is certain, it is one of the most expressive of the many pungent Americanisms that a nation apt in coining phrases has originated.

I suspect that it had some sort of a military application in the beginning, that it meant that a soldier should always face the front where the band was playing and where the action was going on.

There are, as I understand it, only two explanations for a soldier being shot in the back.

One is that one of his own men too excited to take proper aim wounded him unintentionally. The other is that he had his back to the enemy and was running away.

The fellow that is facing the music never gets hit in the back.

That is just as true off the field of battle as it is on it. And it proves that there is only one way to fight and that is facing the foe squarely.

You never can evade REAL trouble. You may defeat it. You may overcome what seems insuperable. But to do that you have to FIGHT it, not FEAR it.

And the best way to battle anything is to face it squarely, fight it fairly.

If you ever saw two boxers in the ring and one of them fought with the side of his body towards the other, you will have noticed perhaps that the man who fought sideways never landed a blow with the hand that was farthest from his opponent.

If he tried to strike with it his competitor knew long enough in advance to thoroughly guard himself against its effects.

The well-trained boxer faces the music. He stands squarely in front of his adversary where either hand will have to travel the shortest possible distance to land.

The man who turns away from trouble, who thinks to escape it by avoidance, who doesn't face it bravely and manfully indicates a lack of courage and an absence of judgment.

Nothing will give your adversary more encouragement than the evidence which you may display of a desire to quit.

Many a man has won a fight after he has lost it simply because his opponent gave up when he was not defeated.

There was only one man on the ships of Columbus who really made the trip from Spain to the new world and that was Columbus himself. All the others quit days before the shore of San Salvador was sighted. Columbus won because he never turned his back to the dangers, never took his eyes from looking forward, he always faced the music.

There are two splendid memorials to this exhibition of sheer courage. One the statue of Columbus in front of the great terminal station at Washington. The other the inspiring poem "Sail On" by Joaquin Miller. If you cannot go to see one you can surely read the other without great trouble.

If danger threatens you FACE IT. If adversity threatens you FACE IT. If you have lost your job or your money or even your sweetheart put on the best front you know how and battle whatever circumstance presents itself face to face.

It is related by Sir Charles Napier that by fearlessly facing a tiger he sent it cowering back into the jungle. If he had turned away in the slightest degree he would have been killed.

The Psalmist says "Thou madest him (man) to have dominion over the works of Thy hand. Thou hast put all things under his feet."

One of the truest things ever said by a politician was the telegram which a state of Maine man sent to a despairing candidate—"Remember God hates a quitter."

Everybody hates a quitter. A man may lose and gain applause but a quitter doesn't get even sympathy.

Face the music. Fight a good fight. Then, win or lose, you will have done yourself the credit of trying the best you know how, of giving the best that was in you, of being down perhaps but never out.

An O. HENRY Story

The Hand That Rules the World

By O. HENRY

"MANY of our great men," said I (apropos of many things), "have declared that they owe their success to the aid and encouragement of some brilliant woman. I would have thought that occasionally, anyhow, you would have found the wit and intuition of woman valuable to you in your lines of—er—business."

"Now, wouldn't you," said Jeff Peters, with an emphatic nod—"wouldn't you have imagined that? But a woman is an absolutely unreliable partner in any straight swindle. She's liable to turn honest on you when you are depending upon her the most. I tried 'em once."

"Bill Humble, an old friend of mine in the Territories, conceived the illusion that he wanted to be appointed United States Marshal. At that time me and Andy was doing a square, legitimate business of selling walking canes. If you unscrewed the head of one and turned it up to your mouth a half pint of good rye whiskey would go trickling down your throat to reward you for your act of intelligence. The deputies was annoying me and Andy some, and when Bill spoke to me about his officious aspirations, I saw how the appointment as Marshal might help along the firm of Peters & Tucker.

"'Jeff,' says Bill to me, 'you are a man of learning and education, besides having knowledge and information concerning not only rudiments but facts and attainments. What I wanted you to do is to go to Washington and dig out this appointment for me. I haven't no ideas of cultivation and intrigue. I'm a plain citizen and I need the job. I've killed seven men,' says Bill; 'I've got nine children; I've been a good Republican ever since the first of May; I can't read or write, and I see no reason why I ain't illegible for the office. And I think your partner, Mr. Tucker,' goes on Bill, 'is also a man of sufficient ingratiation and conected system of mental delinquency to assist you in securing the appointment. I will give you preliminary,' says Bill, '$1,000 for drinks, bribes and carfare in Washington. If you land the job I will pay you $1,000 more, cash down, and guarantee you impunity in bootlegging whiskey for twelve months. Are you patriotic to the West enough to help me put this thing through the Whitewashed Wigwam of the Great Father of the most eastern flag station of the Pennsylvania Railroad?' says Bill.

"Well, boys," says she after a bit, "what is it?"

"Well, I talked to Andy about it, and he liked the idea immense. Andy was a man of an involved nature. So we accepted Bill's offer, and strikes out for Washington.

"Says I to Andy when we get located at a hotel on South Dakota Avenue, G. S. S. W. 'Now Andy, for the first time in our lives we've got to do a real dishonest act. Lobbying is something we've never been used to; but we've got to scandalize ourselves for Bill Humble's sake. In a straight and legitimate business,' says I, 'we could afford to introduce a little foul play and chicanery, but in a disorderly and heinous piece of malpractice like this it seems to me that the straightforward and above-board way is the best. I propose,' says I, 'that we hand over $500 of this money to the chairman of the national campaign committee, get a receipt on the President's desk and tell him about Bill. The President is a man who would appreciate a candidate who went about getting office that way instead of pulling wires.

"Andy agreed with me, but after we talked the scheme over with the hotel clerk we give that plan up. He told us that there was only one way to get an appointment in Washington, and that was through a lady lobbyist. He gave us the address of one he recommended, a Mrs. Avery, who he said was high up in sociable and diplomatic rings and circles.

"The next morning at 10 o'clock me and Andy called at her hotel, and was shown up to her reception-room.

"This Mrs. Avery was a solace and a balm to the eyesight. She had hair the color of the back of a twenty-dollar gold certificate, blue eyes and a system of beauty that would make the girl on the cover of a July magazine look like a cook on a Monongahela coal barge.

"She had on a low-necked dress covered with silver spangles, and diamond rings and ear bobs. Her arms was bare; and she was using a desk telephone with one hand, and drinking tea with the other.

"'Well, boys,' says she after a bit, 'what is it?'

"I told her in as few words as possible what we wanted for Bill, and the price we could pay.

"'Those western appointments,' says she, 'are easy. Let me see, now,' says she, 'who could put that through for us. No use fooling with Territorial delegates. I guess,' says she, 'that Senator Sniper would be about the man. He's from somewhere in the West. Let's see how he stands on my private menu card.' She takes some papers out of a pigeon-hole with the letter 'S' over it.

"'Yes,' says she, 'he's marked with a star; that means "ready to serve." Now, let's see. "Age 55; married twice; Presbyterian, likes blondes, Tolstoi, poker and stewed terrapin; sentimental at third bottle of wine." Yes,' she goes on, 'I am sure I can have your friend, Mr. Bummer, appointed Minister to Brazil.'

"'Humble,' says I. 'And United States Marshal was the berth.'

"'Oh, yes,' says Mrs. Avery. 'I have so many deals of this sort I sometimes get them confused. Give me all the memoranda you have of the case, Mr. Peters, and come back in four days. I think it can be arranged by then.'

"So me and Andy goes back to our hotel and waits. Andy walks up and down and chews the left end of his mustache.

"'A woman like that,' says Andy, 'ought to lead a man to the highest positions of opulence and fame.'

"'I misdoubt,' says I, 'if any woman ever helped a man to secure a job any more than to have his meals ready promptly and spread a report that the other candidate's wife had once been a shoplifter. They are no more adapted for business and politics,' says I, 'than Algernon Charles Swinburne is to be floor manager at one of Chuck Connor's annual balls.'

"'Then,' says Andy, 'you don't think Mrs. Avery will land the Marshalship for Bill?'

"'I do not,' says I. 'I do not wish to be a skeptic, but I doubt if she can do as well as you and me could have done.'

"'I don't agree with you,' says Andy. 'I'll bet you she does. I'm proud of having a higher opinion of the talent and the powers of negotiations of ladies.'

"We was back at Mrs. Avery's hotel at the time she appointed. She was looking pretty and fine enough, as far as that went, to make any man let her name every officer in the country. But I hadn't much faith in looks, so I was certainly surprised when she pulls out a document with the great seal of the United States on it, and 'William Henry Humble' in a fine, big hand on the back.

"'You might have had it the next day, boys,' says Mrs. Avery smiling. 'I hadn't the slightest trouble in getting it,' says she. 'I just asked for it, that's all. Now, I'd like to talk to you a while,' she goes on, 'but I'm awfully busy, and I know you'll excuse me. I've got an Ambassadorship, two Consulates and a dozen other minor applications to look after. I can hardly find time to sleep at all. You'll give my compliments to Mr. Humble when you get home, of course.'

"Well, I handed her the $500, which she pitched into her desk drawer without counting. I put Bill's appointment in my pocket and me and Andy made our adieus.

"We started back for the Territory the same day. We wired Bill: 'Job landed; get the tall glasses ready,' and we felt pretty good.

"Andy jawed me all the way about how little I knew about women.

"'All right,' says I. 'I'll admit that she surprised me. But it's the first time I ever knew one of 'em to manipulate a piece of business on time without getting it bungled up in some way,' says I.

"Down about the edge of Arkansas I got out Bill's appointment and looked it over, and then I handed it to Andy to read. Andy read it, but didn't add any remarks to my silence.

"The paper was for Bill, all right, and a genuine document, but it appointed him postmaster of Dade City, Fla.

"Me and Andy got off the train at Little Rock and sent Bill's appointment to him by mail. Then we struck northeast toward Lake Superior.

"I never saw Bill Humble after that."

The Housewife's Economy Calendar

CONSIDERATION FOR THE NEW MAID

IN THIS country it is customary always to have the new maid's room in good order when she arrives. Just because she is employed as a domestic is no reason why the room should not be freshly cleaned and dusted with the bed made up with clean bedding, and a fresh bedspread. To expect the new maid to clean up after a maid that has departed is decidedly inconsiderate, moreover, she will be far more apt to keep her room neat and attractive if she sees it first under such circumstances.

Some housewives adopt the principle of leaving the maid to her own devices at first for a few days and then check her up after she has given a sample of what she can do. That is they let her make the coffee and toa according to her own methods at first and then make corrections later. This is really unfair. Better by far is it to take time to give the maid minute instructions as to how you like things to begin with, and not to create the false impression at first that you will be quite content to have her cook entirely to her own liking. Often when the mistress does not "check the new maid up" until after a few days the maid takes this as unexpected criticism.

To a maid of intelligence it is always satisfactory to have some idea of what each day's duties will be. It is a good plan to give this to a maid in written form. On this list you should make note of the days when you expect the ice box to be washed, and when the garbage cans should be set out, if you live in a suburb where the collection is not daily. You should also make note of the days when bed linen is changed. It is far better to make a full week's schedule out than merely to say: "Mary, I want you to clean the ice box twice a week. Try to clean the silver once a week and don't forget the garbage cans on Thursday." If you give a little thought to the matter you can arrange so that the various duties that must be done within the week are arranged so that no day's duties are exhausting.

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS; WHAT THEY MEAN

DID YOU DREAM OF GARTERS?

SOME of the oracles regard a dream of garters as a sign of physical infirmities but the majority look upon the dream with more cheerful eyes and declare that if you dream of taking off your garters you will perhaps be delayed in your progress toward success but only temporarily and that through your own fault. If you dream that some one presents you with a pair of garters the omen is said to be that you will soon grant a favor to some one whom you wish to assist and that you will be able to do so without greatly discommoding yourself. Should you dream that you present a pair of garters to some one else then the omen is said to be that you will be assisted in your endeavors by some friend or acquaintance. But it is not considered a fortunate omen for a young lady to dream that her sweetheart presents her with a pair of garters for that is declared to indicate that she may have reason to doubt that he is as sincere as she might wish in his protestations of affection.

That latter signification is, however, denied by many oracles who assert the dream has just the opposite signification and that any young lady who dreams of being presented with a pair of garters may rely upon the fidelity of her lover. Where mystics disagree, who shall decide? There are other conflicting definitions among the various interpretations of a dream of garters which would make it appear that this is one of the dreams which have a different meaning for different persons.

DRESS

::By ANNE RITTENHOUSE::

The Young Girl Has Chosen the Yellow of Marigolds for Summer Frocks, Especially Those in Which to Dance. Also She Has Adopted the Greek Fashion of Adding Many Roses as Garlands on Those Filmy and Colorful Frocks.

YELLOW was expected when the shadow of Napoleon again fell upon women's fashions. It did not need the hundredth anniversary of this superman and its emotional observance by France to incline the designers of fashion toward a revival of costumery that governed the world during his life time.

Once in so often the Napoleonic fashions rise to the surface. They are never far beneath it. Serious historians of this warrior's life neglect the influence of his era on women in manners, morals, and clothes because they may not realize that fashions in clothes are reflections of every important passing event. Fashion is a mirrored lake in which all time and its personages are given back to the public.

The hundredth anniversary of Napoleon may have given impetus to clothes that were worn by those who then led the world of apparel and one of the straws that show the wind is the revival of that marigold yellow which swept Europe like an epidemic.

Young American girls find this color full of spring, full of buoyancy, full of charm. They will wear gowns of it throughout the summer. The fashion for it was started by older women through the persuasion of artist designers back in January, but the young generation has cordially adopted it as their own, giving them a chance to get away from the conventionalized pink and blue.

This shade of yellow is to be found in taffeta, in tulle and in chiffon. Often the three fabrics are combined.

The sketch shows a gown made for a debutante of next season and it carries out the scheme of combining a full skirt, a tight bodice, a wide sash, and a voluminous flounce. The fragile part of this gown is of marigold tulle, the foundation part is of yellow taffeta.

The Greeks, you know, flung roses over their young when they entered into the buoyant pleasure of life and this fashion was carried into France for its hours of victory during the Revolution and afterward. It still remains a fundamental idea connected with victory shown in the wreathing of the French guns with roses as they go into action. Just the other day this time-honored practice was carried out in France when the new guns started toward Germany. I saw them by the dozens going up to the battlefields during the battle of the Marne with their pink garlands from end to end.

When one takes this ancient idea into the wardrobe it is well to use full blown roses at the waist and for streamers down the skirt, and small pink rosebuds at the neckline.

There is no challenge thrown down to the full skirt for the young girl this season. So she has an ample foundation for these garlands. She has quickly emerged from the slim, narrow chrysalis into the gorgeous butterfly with wings. Her skirts are five and six yards wide as against the yard and a half worn in the last two years. She piles flounces on foundations and imitates the ballet costume in width if not in brevity.

Her skirts, mind you, do not end now at the turn of the knee; they drop halfway to the ankle.

Young girl's yellow taffeta dress with tulle in same shade. The sash is formed of tulle with garland of pink rosebuds. A bow of tulle is at the side and forms one sleeve.

Lyrics of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE CITY'S SOUL.

The Johnstowns from their waters rise,
The San Franciscos from their pyres;
So does the phoenix find the skies,
So cities conquer floods and fires.
Vesuvius no longer frowns—
The Neopolitan returns—
For cities have what never drowns,
True cities have what never burns.

For every city has a soul,
Some common impulse of us all,
The great expression of the whole.
I care not what the name you call—
"The love of home," or "civic pride,"
"Group consciousness," "community"—
But cities live that would have died
But for that tie that keeps them free.

And cities perish only when
They have no soul, no common bond
That binds in one the souls of men,
That lives today, but looks beyond.
Yea; build your walls and build them well;
But, when the architect departs,
You still must build the place you dwell
With love and hope in human hearts.

"What's In a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts About Your Name; Its History; Its Meaning; Whence It Was Derived; Its Significance; Your Lucky Day and Lucky Jewel.

MYRTLE.

MYRTLE is both a floral name and an appellative growing out of ancient Greek mythology. The fragrant white-flowering shrub which adorns so many trim gardens is the modern product of the evergreen which bloomed on the Hellenic hills and occupied a place of honor in the gardens of Olympus.

The ancients believed the myrtle to be sacred to Venus, goddess of love, and the superstition carried over into new-world nomenclature, so that the fortunate possessor of the name of Myrtle is thought to possess the secret of love and attraction. Certainly, if she wears a sprig of Venus's symbol above her heart, she will be irresistible, according to the ancient belief.

Despite the charming fancy which accounts for its derivation, Myrtle is more often regarded as a floral name by etymologists. Its greatest vogue is undoubtedly in England, though of late years it has attained great popularity here, unfortunately losing much of its dignity in transit.

The emerald is Myrtle's talismanic stone. It promises her success in love and protects her from a deceitful lover. The gift of prophetic vision is said to come to the wearer of the emerald. Tuesday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number.

To-Day's Lucky Jewel Color Flower

By MILDRED MARSHALL

JET.

TODAY'S talismanic gem is the emblem of sorrow—jet. However, the ancients believed that it acted as a protection against the causes of sorrow, if it was worn in close contact with the flesh. Like the pearl, it is most beautiful if constantly worn.

The opal, today's natal stone, is said to promise great possessions for those born on an anniversary of this day. Symbolic of constant change, it also prophesies for its wearer a life marked by luxury and extravagance.

Today's lucky color, according to the Orientals, is yellow. They believed that if worn by a woman, it signified that she would know unexpected happiness.

The purple wistaria is today's flower, and is believed to dispel sorrow for those who wear it.

TWO TO SIX POINTS DECLINE IN VARIOUS SPECULATIVE ISSUES

NEW YORK, July 8.—Losses of 2 to 6 points in various speculative issues occurred in the stock market today, effacing the greater part of the advance made during Wednesday's vigorous recovery.

Steels and equipments, notably Harvester and Pullman, also Mexican Petroleum, Famous Players and U. S. Rubber were among the weakest issues.

Much of the further reaction was due to the passing of the United States Rubber common dividend, which directed attention to other vulnerable shares. Another reason for the decline was found in the stiffening of money rates.

MARKED INCREASE IN PIPE LINE RUNS SHOWN LAST WEEK

The daily pipe line runs of this district for the week ending Saturday, July 2, show an increase of 5,580 barrels of oil over the runs of the preceding week of June 25. This increase was due to the cleaning out of the various storage around the first of the month and the ending up of the June business, and not to any increase of production. The following list shows last week's runs made by the lines in this district:

American Refining company, 20,000; Constantin Refining company, 22,125; Gulf Pipe Line company, 11,925; Humble Oil Refining company, 10,800; Magnolia Petroleum company, 15,300; Panhandle Refining company, 9,250; Prairie Pipe Line company, 9,385; Sinclair Pipe Line company, 16,930; Texas company, 54,650; total, 171,015 barrels.

Golden Opportunity for the Buccaneers If Any Are Abroad

NEW YORK, July 8.—There was golden opportunity at sea today for the buccaneers some people think are roving the ocean. Five steamers ploughing the Atlantic have eight million dollars in British gold consigned to American banking houses.

All are passenger carriers, heavily manned, and bankers fear no pirates looking for "pieces of eight." The Mauretania carries more than five million dollars, and the Olympic, Carmania, Lapland and Oropesa the remainder. Already this week nearly $11,000,000 in gold has been unloaded here. By mid-July almost four hundred million dollars in gold will have been imported since the first of the year.

Banking houses figure that there is more than three billion two hundred million dollars in gold stored in the United States, the largest amount ever accumulated in this country, and about one-third of all the gold in the world.

Mr. and Mrs. T. T. T. Reese have gone to Ohio, where they will spend several weeks with relatives and friends.

TIMES DAILY MARKETS

New York Stocks—Grain and Provisions—Cotton—Livestock

COTTON MARKET.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The cotton market showed increased activity and firmness this morning, owing to the continued strength of Liverpool, the improving reports from Manchester and talk of a better spot demand in the south. The opening was steady at a decline of 2 points on August, but generally 5 to 10 points higher, and before the end of the first hour active months were selling some 20 to 29 points above last night's closing quotations. A few more July notices were reported in the street, but arrivals here from the south have fallen off recently, and July contracts led today's early advance, selling up to 12.32c, or 29 points net higher, while October at 12.90c showed a net advance of 25 points. Spot sales in the Liverpool market were the largest in months, with private cables all emphasizing an improved demand from Manchester, and early advices from New Orleans said there had been a good spot demand there late yesterday with sales above the official quotations.

The forenoon advance carried the market up to 12.32c for July and 12.93c for October, or about 25 to 30 points above last night's closing quotations. The favorable showing of the wether map evidently failed to create any selling power, owing to the bullish character of the spot news, but the advance was checked by realizing late in the morning. Reports that the war Finance corporation has agreed to advance money for carrying long staple cotton for a Mississippi association of growers was regarded by local traders as indicating a disposition to help the cotton growers if necessary.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, July 8.—Persistent reports of a better spot demand lifted the cotton market today and in the first hour of the session values gained 19 to 23 points. Sales of 500 bales of spots were said to have been made after hours yesterday at 1c a pound over board quotations. Spot men said they had cablegrams from Liverpool over night asking for offers. Augusta wired that there was more demand in that market. October rose to 12.42.

Claims of higher spot prices in the markets of the interior kept the advance in contracts going and in the trading up to 11 o'clock the active months were 24 to 28 points over the close of yesterday, October rising to 12.47c.

The market turned a little easier during the early afternoon under realizing which was probably promoted by less favorable reports from the stock market. October eased off to about 12.77, or 16 points from the best, with the market quiet around 2 o'clock.

The market weakened following the report that a private crop reporting bureau was out with condition figures of 71.2 per cent of normal, against 70.0 a fortnight ago. Toward the close the trading months were 1 point under to 6 points over the final prices of yesterday. October dropped off to 12.22.

Cotton closed steady at net unchanged to 9 points higher.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The feature of the stock market at the dull and heavy opening of today's session was United States Rubber common, which fell 4½ points to a new low price of 49 as a result of the postponement of dividend action. Mexican Petroleums, American Sugar, American International, United Fruit and Bethlehem and Crucible steels comprised the other backward issues with several of the motors and affiliated specialties. A few obscure issues made slight gains.

Atchison, Illoinois Central and Louisville & Nashville were included among the heavy rails during the listless mid-session. Shippings also reacted. Pronounced weakness developed among such specialties as Sears-Roebuck, United Drug, Famous Players and Lorillard and Sumatra Tobacco, where losses ranged from 2½ to 6 points.

The closing was weak.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Downturns in wheat prices resulted today from opinions current that the government crop report would be only moderately bullish. Opening quotations, which varied from 1c lower to 3c advance, with September $1.19½ to $1.21 and December $1.23½, were followed by setbacks all around to well below yesterday's finish.

Confirmation of black rust in Canada led to an advance later. The close was firm, 2c to 2c net higher, with September $1.21½ to $1.22½ and December $1.24½ to $1.24¾.

Corn after opening unchanged to half cent lower, including September at 60 to 60¼c, scored moderate gains, but then underwent another sag.

Further export bids were in the market, but business was hampered by scarcity of available lake tonnage. The market closed steady, 1c net lower to 1c advance, with September 60¾c to 60¼c.

Oats started unchanged to 1c lower, September 35c to 35¼c, and developed but little power to rally.

Indications of export demand for l...d gave firmness to provisions.

3 MURDER CASES ARE SCHEDULED FOR TRIAL SOON

HENRY J. TOUSSAINT CASE SET FOR TRIAL ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 27.

DAN BENNETT TO BE TRIED FOR KILLING OF G. GENTRY

Judge H. F. Weldon Will Order a Number of Special Venires Monday.

Three murder cases are included in the setting of cases in the 30th district court which will go into session on Wednesday, July 20.

Henry J. Toussaint, charged with the murder of his father, O. H. Toussaint, will go into court on Wednesday morning, July 27, according to the settings made known Friday morning. It is alleged that the defendant killed his father on the night of Feb. 6, 1921, by shooting with a pistol.

Toussaint has been in the county jail ever since his arrest, which occurred on the following day after the killing. He was held without bond. It is generally conceded that the defense will be insanity.

The first case set is that against Dan Bennett, who stands charged under indictment with the murder of George Gentry. It is alleged that this killing took place on May 17, 1921. Bennett was arrested three weeks later and kept in jail for over a week before the city officers were able to secure sufficient evidence to file a charge against him.

Judge H. F. Weldon, who is enjoying a 20-day summer vacation, will return Monday morning, at which time several special venires will be ordered in the five capital cases set down for trial.

The settings are as follows:

Wednesday, July 20.

2797—State of Texas vs. Dan Bennett, murder.
2704—State of Texas vs. T. L. Greer, forgery.
2649—State of Texas vs. T. H. Morgan, swindling.
2772—State of Texas vs. Willie Davis, theft over $50.
2783—State of Texas vs. Anderson Lancaster, theft over $50.

Monday, July 25.

2788—State of Texas vs. Wiley Smith, robbery with firearms.

Wednesday, July 27.

2754—State of Texas vs. Henry J. Toussaint, murder.

Monday, August 1.

2769—State of Texas vs. L. S. Brannon, murder.

Wednesday, August 3.

2794—State of Texas vs. W. R. Muse, rape.

The district attorney will announce more settings within the next few days.

"Klan" Threatens Rent Profiteers; Gives Ten Days

A notice signed "K. K. K.," and purporting to be from the Klu Klux Klan, was received by the Times Friday morning containing threats against rent profiteers.

The notice was typewritten and was contained in a plain envelope, addressed in ink. The official seal of the klan, without which it is said no such letter is authentic, does not appear on the notice.

The letter, spelling, punctuation and all is as follows:

"In order that a few blood suckers, that have no other interest in life than to get every dollar they can by sapping the business men of this town by enforcing high rent contracts, and by so doing forcing them into bankruptcy. This notice is to give them a chance and only one chance. Because of this condition, an order of the Klu Klux Klan has been organized and will start a crusade against these vandels, if they do not adjust these conditions in ten days, during our investigation we have found twenty-three rent hogs of the worst kind, a few of these need hanging and not the usual punishment that is netted out by this great order.

"This is all the notice they will get.

ACUTE CAR SHORTAGE IN GRAIN TERRITORY

Matter Has Been Taken up With Railroads Direct and With Car Service Department.

STAMFORD, TEXAS, July 8.—The car shortage throughout the grain producing sections of west Texas is daily becoming more acute, according to information received by the West Texas chamber of commerce from the shipping points of the south plains and central west Texas. The traffic department of the organization has been called on by the towns of Goree, Weinert, Seymour, Crowell and other neighboring points for assistance in securing sufficient cars to load out wheat that has accumulated at the elevators. The matter has been taken up with the railroads direct and also with the car service department at Washington. Some relief has been secured, but there is the possibility that the shortage will become even more serious before sufficient cars can be routed into the southwest to care for the crop.

Speaking of the situation, Ed. P. Evans, traffic manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, stated that "some relief may be expected within the next few days. That relief, however, may not be complete. All concerned will continue to work on the proposition with the hope that the carriers will, within a reasonable period, be able to furnish the necessary equipment."

"The harvesting of grain in west Texas has just commenced, and with a serious car shortage already confronting the shipper, it is difficult to predict how the situation will develop. Shippers should notify their railroad agent of the number of cars that will be required and the approximate dates in order that the railroads may estimate the needs along their lines. There is no doubt but that the carriers are making every effort possible to secure equipment, but the chaotic condition of the transportation fabric of the nation and the fact that very little new equipment has been added in the past few years places them in almost a helpless position.
