HOOVER FINDS CONGRESS COOL ON TWO ISSUES

Controversy Includes Immigration and Farm Aid Measures

WASHINGTON, April 23. (UP)—The range of controversy between President Hoover and the senate has extended beyond farm relief, which the senate began to consider today, to include also the immigration dispute over the national origins quota basis.

Despite the president's appeal for repeal or postponement of the national origins immigration provision, the senate immigration committee voted today, four to two, to postpone action indefinitely on two proposals for repeal. Unless repeal or postponement is approved by congress before July 1, the new basis becomes effective at that time.

Second Rebuff

This was the second senate rebuff for the president in two days. The other was signalized today in formal report of the farm relief bill to the senate with the debenture plan included as an optional amendment, which the agriculture committee approved yesterday, eight to six.

Because of his opposition to the national origins quota basis, the president is not expected to permit this indefinite delay, which may mean defeat, to stand without a fight. He has begun a fight against the farm relief debenture plan, which is expected to be successful ultimately, through the senate committee over-rode him.

Long Wrangle Seen

The controversy over the debenture plan flared up in the senate today as it took up the farm relief bill formally, indicative of wrangling that may last for days and delay final action. The house concluded debate today, and probably will pass its bill Thursday.

Democrats in both house and senate went on the warpath today to attack the administration's farm relief plan. After Senator McNary had completed his speech, telling why he could not support the de-

W. Phelan, president, revealed.

The questionnaire, all copies of which were destroyed, were said to be similiar to the one which resulted in the discharge of faculty members at the University of Missouri several weeks ago.

Wells, who is a ministerial student at the university, is charged with giving the order to the printer for the printing of the questionnaire, which school officials said was to be used in the psychology classes at the school. Wells told officials, after the copies were destroyed, that he was having them printed to be used in the state penitentiary.

CONTINUANCE IN ED PRYOR CASE TO BE URGED

Accused Man's Wife too Ill To Give Deposition, Counsel Says

A motion for continuance, presented Monday in behalf of Ed Pryor, former Electra constable, charged with robbery with firearms, will be urged again when the case is called in the 30th district court Wednesday morning, Shields Heyser, counsel for the defense, declared Tuesday night.

The motion pleads the illness of Mrs. Pryor and her inability to attend the trial as a witness in the defense attempt to prove an alibi for the former officer, indicted in connection with the holdup of J. B. Early, employe of the Jefferson hotel at Electra last summer

Depositions Allowed

Judge Allan D. Montgomery granted a postponement of the case when it was called Monday morning, allowing time for the taking of depositions from Mrs. Pryor, who is ill at Kirkland, Texas. Mr. Heyser indicated that the wife would testify that Pryor was attending her sick bed at the time of the alleged crime. The attorney said Tuesday that Mrs. Pryor's nervous condition had made it impossible for her to give the depositions needed, and that the same motion for continuance would be urged.

Mr. Heyser declared Tuesday that he would make a motion to quash a fourth indictment against Pryor, returned the day after his acquittal on other robbery charges last January, when the additional case is called for trial. The last indictment charges the former officer as an accessory in aiding a prisoner to escape and to avoid trial.

Once Acquitted

Mr. Heyser explained that his motion to quash would be based on an allegation that the defendant has already been tried and acquitted on the count, declaring that the accessory counts in the case in which Pryor was cleared last January were dismissed by the state at the opening of that trial and that the other indictment, brought in the following day, holds him liable for an offense of which he has already been acquitted.

All the indictments grew out of three robberies in Electra last summer during Pryor's term of office. Henry Shumate, principal witness for the state, was jointly indicted with Pryor. In testimony in the former trial Shumate declared that the officer had aided and encouraged him to commit the alleged holdups.

Colorful Throng of Spudder Fans Sees Shreveport Capture Opener

Milady (and Hiram, Too) Wear Newest Togs to Inaugurate Texas League Season in Wichita Park

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Opening day, that institution so peculiarly and typically American was greeted yesterday by the usual horde of baseball enthusiasts of Wichita Falls and vicinity. More than 7,500 fans saw the Spudders open the 1929 home campaign of the Texas league, with the Shreveport Sports as the enemy. The Spudders lost, 7 to 4, but even the defeat and the requiring of more than two and a half hours to complete the nine-inning pastime could not dampen the ardor of the enthusiasts.

Colorful Crowd

It was a colorful and excited throng, out at the ball orchard to see the game and other people, and some to be seen by other people. There were outfits worn by women that would have been appropriate at tea or the theater. But Milady must be adorned in finery and what place better to show her gowns and hats than at the opening day ball game.

And there was a sea of straw hats worn by the men, in honor of the occasion, which had been designated as Straw Hat day. And there were, if the truth be known, those of the male sex who were outfitted in their best bib and tucker, to be seen and admired. For the male likes to plume his feathers even as the female. For instance, there is the peacock.

Harvey and McClure

The honor of tossing the first ball was appropriately bestowed upon Alderman R. O. Harvey, former owner of the Spudders and now a vice president of the Texas league. His catcher was J. L. McClure, Wichita Falls fire chief.

Throngs lined the streets to view the parade. City and baseball official, players of the two clubs and numerous cards were in the line of march.

TRAIN YOUR OWN MEN,' IS DOHERTY'S ADVICE TO BUSINESS HEADS

MPLOYES ARE EY TO SUCCESS

dustrial Leader Prefers College Graduates

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
Copyright, 1929, by International News Service)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 23. "Don't hire men away from other mpanies. Train your own execu- es.

"Pick men of character. Study eir good and bad points, develop m and give them responsibilities. romote and encourage them. They ll make good for themselves and you. They will make your busi- ss a success.".

Henry L. Doherty, one of Amer- 's outstanding business men, ad of the Cities Service corpora- n, a $1,000,000,000 public utilities terprise, a prominent figure in all street, a leading oil producer d distributor, and whose wealth variously estimated from $25,000,-) to $200,000,000, gave this advice business men today through an clusive interview with Interna- nal News Service in his sumptu- s suite at the Traymore hotel.

Started as Poor Boy

Mr. Doherty, a "self-made man" every sense of the word, started career as a comparatively poor y with very little education and se to be one of the financial ants of the nation. His career ads like a Horatio Alger fiction ory.

"I left school at the age of 12 d I haven't had any schooling ce except what I picked up in school of experience," said Mr. herty.

A distinguished-looking man, ge of physique, with a shock of y hair and a gray Vandyke ard, Mr. Doherty is today—at the e of 58—in a position where he ploys the best brains of the untry and, strangely enough, he ows a decided tendency to hire llege and university trained men.

"I dont' say a college education is cessary to business success," he plained, "but a college training rnished an almost essential basis work that is professional or entific in character.

"I prefer men who have had to rk their way through college. ey have more drive than those o do not have to bother about tion. There are of course, a eat many cases where men make d in a big way without college ining.

Self-study is an important factor success. Too many college men aside their text books and cease study after they leave school. y are the ones that fail in the siness world. One must not only tain an education but improve on it."

In training men for high execu- e positions in his public utili- a company which operates in 300 ns in the United States and Can- a, Mr. Doherty makes a thor- gh study of them, their reactions, rsonal qualifications, whether y are naturally optimistic or simistic, et cetera.

"A man must not only conduct mself well inside the office but on outside, too," observed the ction and oil magnate. "We ow how all our important em- yes behave."

"You watch what they do after urs?" he was asked.

"Oh, we have no spying system or ything like that," he replied. ut it is surprising how much the s of any big corporation knows his key men. You can generally the pace at which any of your n are living. I am often sur- ised to read of big bank thefts— nk presidents must be blind metimes. You read where a man o has been getting a $10,000 sal- y has been living at a $20,000 te. The bank officials should ve known that in advance."

Quick Decisions Bad

Discussing executive ability, Mr. herty made the assertion that business there should be no ick decisions—at any rate very ."

"Quick decisions are usually ex- nsive," he said. "The business uld be so planned and thought so that nearly every decision uld be made long in advance. ose hustle bustle decisions are an indication of a good execu- e. Once in a while when some- suddenly builds next door to , or something like that, a mpt decision has to be made not often."

Doherty declared he was opposed "catch as catch can" methods of ploying men and equally opposed the sudden discharging of em- yes. He said time was when public utilities companies were much like the railroads: they didn't care how they treated the public.

"Today, however, no business is better conducted than the public utility business," he asserted. "I have long stressed the necessity of courtesy on the part of my em- ployes.

"I think employes who deal with the public are much more polite than they were years ago. The American public did not demand courtesy years ago but now they want 100 per cent."

"Rowed Own Boat"

Mr. Doherty comes from a family of scholars, although he himself left school at the age of 12 "to see what he could do in the world." He ob- tained his education by borrowing books, talking to people and by practical application and experi- ence.

He was the type who "rowed his own boat," as it expressed it to me. He became known as a fighter and a crusader in the oil business. He is self-taught and is known as one of the keenest mathematicians and chemists in the industries in which he is associated.

He started his career as an of- fice boy in the Columbus (Ohio) Gas company, advancing through various positions until finally he became manager of gas, electric and traction companies in Madison, Wis., St. Paul, Minn., San Antonio, Texas, Denver, Colo., and 25 other cities. He made a tremendous for- tune in Wall street, New York, where he owns dozens of valuable parcels of real estate. He is now head not only of the Cities Service corporation but of Henry L. Do- herty & Co., bankers and operators of public utilities corporations.

"Who's Who in America" says of him: "Mr. Doherty is recognized as one of the leaders in America in gas and electric arts and indus- tries; he is patentee of many com- bustion processes and apparatus and originator of many standard practices."

Mr. Doherty is a member of many scientific and engineering so- cieties. He is also a member of clubs in Columbus, Toledo, Lincoln, Neb., Kansas City, St. Paul and Denver. He is an outstanding fig- ure in the gas and electric light world and has made a big name for himself in Wall street. He has been ill for the past two years with arthritis but he informed Interna- tional News Service today that he will be back on the job in his New York office "in about three weeks."

BASS PONDS NEARLY READY

State Provides 20,000 Fry For Wichita Falls

With both of the bass rearing ponds at Lake Kemp already com- pleted, one filled with water, and the second now being filled, plac- ing of approximately 20,000 newly- hatched fish in the ponds will be- gin with the first output from the state fish hatchery at Diversion dam, according to officials of the Izaak Walton league.

Letters received from state offi- cials by Ben G. Oneal, president of the local chapter, stated that the bass hatch in the various state hatcheries has come along much more rapidly than was anticipated, and that Joe Dixon, superintendent of the hatchery near Diversion dam, has been instructed to furnish the required number of fry from the first hatch here to stock the re- cently completed rearing ponds.

Every precaution has been taken in the construction of the ponds, it was stated, to safeguard the young fish against depredatory members of the finny tribe extant in Lake Kemp. Inlet pipes have been equipped with wire netting, and channels have been equipped with specially constructed devices to di- vert any large fish which might gain entrance to the inlet. While the ponds are already supplied with a considerable amount of native water plants, making possible the admission of small fish immediate- ly, it will be necessary to provide prepared feed for the fry, Mr. Oneal stated, and further subscrip- tions to the rearing pond fund will be solicited for that purpose.

Evidence of the reputation which Lake Kemp already has gained as a center of good fishing is found in the May issue of "Outdoor Life," the most prominent magazine of this type published in the West. In the "Where to Go" department, an article over the signature of H. A. Burke, advises nimrods of the na- tion that Lake Kemp is one of the best-stocked water bodies in the Southwest for bass, crappie, and other varieties. Mention is made of the unusually extensive shore- line of Lake Kemp, and of the camping accommodations provided there.

The object of the rearing ponds built by the Izaak Walton league chapters in this section is to en- able thousands of the young bass to reach a size sufficient to promise survival before being turned into the main body of the lake.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., April 23. (AP) —Intervention of the United States district court in the fight being waged against toll bridges by Ok- lahoma and Texas was sought to- day in the filing of a suit here by A. G. Gilbert of Bryan county, a stockholder in the Red River Bridge company, asking appointment of a receiver for the company.

The company, which operates a bridge across the Red river near Durant, Gilbert sets forth, was re- strained by an injunction obtained by the Oklahoma attorney general from collecting tolls on the Oklaho- ma side of the structure and now is defendant in a similar action brought by the Texas attorney gen- eral in Grayson county, Texas.

At the same time the bridge com- pany filed a waiver of processes and agreed to the appointment of a receiver.

Distinguished by a Deep REGARD

THERE can be no conceit in claiming America's deep regard for Pierce-Arrow. It is a sentiment that has its roots in a former generation—and is warmly present in today's. But the significant point is why this is so:

Perhaps the chief reason is the inherent fineness of the car. Never has it known a compromise with quality—never a departure from the patrician way that has always been Pierce-Arrow. And so in cleaving to its own ideals it has won the loyalty of a nation.

The new Straight Eight came into this great heritage at the psychological moment in Pierce-Arrow history. Fine car owners had so wearied of bulk and stodginess in their automobiles that this fresh, slender creation of Pierce-Arrow made record conquests from the moment of its introduction.

No other fine car in America today knows so great a wait- ing demand.

LAMESA CROP OUTLOOK GOOD

Cotton and Sunflowers Promise Good Yields

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, April 23.—Cotton is coming up while the gins are just now closing down for the 1928 crop. Dawson county has approximately 200,000 acres of cotton of which about 10 per cent is already planted.

Weather conditions have been exceedingly favorable this spring due especially to the absence of the high winds that do so much damage. Also the good underground season and recent rains that put the soil in tip-top condition for planting. This insures early planting as well as a good crop for the coming season.

Due to the bright crop outlook much development is being made on the farms as well as in Lamesa. The farmers are building new barns and going the dairy route, Dawson county now having 320 registered Jersey cows, 30 of which are registered bulls in circles.

Chickens, turkeys and hogs are to be found on practically every farm home. According to a recent survey the average farm home has better than 100 chickens, and the county is estimated to have 15,000 good hogs.

The farmers are learning to live at home, as well as get some of their income from other resources than just cotton. It is estimated there will be 20,000 acres of new land go under the plow this year. Crops range from cotton to all kinds of feed, there being from 2,000 to 2,500 acres in sunflowers this year, which is a new product of the Plains. It is fast taking its place along with the cotton, corn and maize of this section, since the farmer has seen what the 1928 sunflower crop brought to them financially. As a whole the outlook for Lamesa and Dawson county for this time of the year was never better.

Okla. Farmers, Not Content With Big Crops, Demand Good Storm Caves

Special to The Record News

LAWTON, Okla., April 23.—A sight-seeing auto drive through the rural precincts of this section of the country brings to light other things than that the crops are looking fine; that the blue-green fruit trees are overly laden with peaches, pears, apricots and plums and the bushes with berries; other things than that more dairy cows than ever before are munching the green grass of the pasture lands and that chickens and turkeys make the wrong turn in the highways that pass the farm houses in ever increasing numbers.

The one thing that attracts especial attention is that conveniently near to the farmhouse will be noticed a storm cave.

There are still hundreds of ill-repaired, poorly constructed farm houses in this section many farms are poorly provided with barns and outbuildings; fences are oftimes down, but—

There is always a storm cave.

Renters, faced with the necessity of "making a crop" to support their families cannot oftimes be over choice in their selection of a place. They are not over particular about the condition of the house or outbuildings, but they always want to know if there is a storm cave. No cave, no renter.

Lawton and vicinity has been very fortunate in being "outside" the big storm centers, but this country has some fairly big "blows." Anyway neighboring vicinities are frequently visited and folks want a safe hide-a-way when threatening clouds appear.

The majority of these caves are strongly constructed and safe. Many of them are of cement construction and afford an excellent space in which to store fruits and vegetables, being waterproof.

And in the rural precincts, the habit has grown for some member of the family to watch the storm clouds closely.

SCHOOL HEAD TO VISIT HERE

John Elward Brown Gives Three Addresses

John Elward Brown, president and founder of the John Brown schools at Siloam Springs, Ark., now making an extensive tour of Texas cities, will deliver three addresses in Wichita Falls on Sunday and Monday, April 28 and 29, according to information received Tuesday.

Mr. Brown will preach at the First Methodist Episcopal church at 10:50 o'clock Sunday morning, and at the evening service will occupy the pulpit of the Floral Heights Methodist church. On Monday night, at 8 o'clock, he will deliver a lecture on "The American Crisis," in the auditorium of the old Methodist church building at Tenth and Lamar. There will be no admission charge of any kind, it was announced, and the general public will be invited to attend.

In his talk Monday evening, Mr. Brown will interpret the educational trend of the day, telling the story of the phenomenal growth of his schools which he founded 10 years ago—an educational institution that has attracted the attention of educators throughout the world. In these schools only boys and girls with no other open door to an education are accepted, and are given a three-fold type of education—training of "the head, the heart and the hand." Here is none of the revolt and unrest of modern youth, for "Brother Brown's young 'uns" are an unspoiled group of young people who mingle under the most wholesome conditions, gather in the chapel for prayer services on Wednesday evenings and attend church in a body on Sundays, according to reports. Half a day every boy and girl is a student in a regular high school or junior college, studying the usual standard subjects. The other half day is spent in the industries of the school, as linotype operators, dress makers, farmers, editors, radio operators, cooks, waitresses and janitors.

Stop Rheumatic Pain With Prescription A-2851

Local druggists who are dispensing Prescription A-2851 are all loud in their praise of what it will do. It doesn't seem to matter whether the condition is of long standing and the pain constaut, or whether only occasional twinges are felt—Prescription A-2851 seems to go right to the seat of the trouble and knock out the pain.

While this particular prescription was compounded especially for rheumatic conditions—it has also proven successful in many forms of gout, neuritis and sciatic nerve pain.

Tear out this announcement and hand it to your druggist, or be sure to to remember the name—Prescription A-2851. In liquid or pill form. There is nothing else so good to drive out rheumatism.

Move Launched to End Impeachment Trial by Vote on Single Charge

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 23. (UP)—Senator Amos Ewing, Guthrie, today launched a move in the impeachment trial of J. W. Clark, suspended supreme court justice, to get a vote on article one of the charges against Clark without waiting to hear testimony on the other nine articles voted against him.

The senate court will vote on the motion Wednesday. Should this motion be adopted and if Clark should be convicted on this charge it was perdicted late today that the trial would end without the other charges being prosecuted.

After announcing that the house board of managers had informed him that they would finish with testimony on article one not later than Wednesday noon, Ewing made a motion that Clark offer his evidence on the article.

Glen R. Horner, Okmulgee attorney today told the court that in less than a month after he gave a deposition in the Riley libel suit, the supreme court handed down an opinion adverse to his clients. The slut involved $2,000,000.

The records of the case contained in five volumes having 3,253 pages were introduced into evidence and Marshal of the Court C. P. McClure was asked if he ever knew of a case of this size in which a justice read the records and rendered an opinion within eight days. McClure said he did not.

A sharp fight ensued when Horner was asked if he knew Clark's reputation. An objection was interposed and the question was put to a vote. The objection was overruled, 20 to 19.

It then developed that Horner did not know Clark's reputation.

The Arithmetic of PACKARD OWNERSHIP

IT IS just elementary arithmetic that buying two cars each lasting only half as long as one costing twice as much, results in the same expenditure of money in the same length of time.

Elementary arithmetic, yes. And yet if every man and woman who really wants to drive a Packard Eight were to sit down and actually figure the thing out in terms of their own car costs—the Packard factory would have to be multiplied in capacity every year.

For there are hundreds of thousands of motorists who are driving cheaper cars because they believe they cannot afford Packard ownership. They think the cheaper cars are cheaper to own!

Perhaps you are one of those thousands. If you are, just follow through our reasoning. Tens of thousands of owners of cars costing down to ten or twelve hundred dollars have done so. And then become the proud owners of Packard cars.

The Eight Costs—

There are eight items of cost in owning any car and first cost is not one of them. Compare each of these costs, item by item as between your present car and a Packard Standard Eight. You will find:

That the license cost is little if any more, and only a few dollars in any case.

That insurance may be slightly more due to the greater value of the Packard. But this applies principally to fire and theft coverage—a very small sum annually.

That garage cost is the same.

That the three operating items—gas, oil and tires—show no advantage for either car. The Packard Standard Eight gives 10 to 12 miles or more to the gallon of gasoline; 1,000 or more miles to the gallon of oil; 15,000 to 20,000 or more miles to the set of tires. What "half-price" car does better?

That Packard repairs cost less. This is due, first, to the simplicity of Packard design which makes repair work quick and easy; second, to Packard quality which requires less frequent repair, and, third, to Packard's automatic chassis and motor lubrication which protect factory precision.

That depreciation on a Packard costs no more and quite likely less than you are now paying.

Those are the eight costs—and the only costs to consider—in owning a motor car.

Unless You Are Very Unusual

You may agree readily with all of the above statements except the last—the really important one, about depreciation. And yet, unless you are very unusual, the fact that Packard depreciation will cost you no more than your present car costs you, is absolutely true. For you will keep a Packard Eight twice as long!

The Packard is a long-lived car. It is designed and built to give many years of first-class transportation. You are not tempted, either by lowered service from your Packard or by radical changes in new models, to turn your Packard Eight in after 20 months or so. You will keep it because you want to keep it. And in doing so you will enjoy the car you really want, at no greater expense than that to which you are now accustomed.

May we go further into your individual case using actual figures? We will be glad to do so without obligation. And a Packard Eight will be at your door at any hour you name. Just phone.

Address on Kellogg Peace Pact Features District Meeting of Clubs

By Staff Correspondent

ARLINGTON, Texas, April 23.—An address on the Kellogg Peace pact, by Dr. John Lord, head of the department of government, and dean of the graduate school T. C. U. featured the afternoon session of the first district, Texas Federation of Women's club, meeting in the 28th annual session here.

Dr. Lord's address was a part of the program on international relations. He was introduced by Mrs. D. L. Stephens of Anson, chairman of the international relations department of the district.

The speaker explained the peace pact in full, saying in part that it is an international policy entered into by the nations for the renunciation of aggressive wars.

It is intended to do away with force and bring in a willingness among the nations themselves for peace.

Reports Made

If a nation is attacked, the pact makes provision for it to defend itself. It also leaves nations free to work out their own domestic problems, and is one of the most effective plans yet devised to make the nations realize that wars are a distinctly destructive way to settle disagreements, the speaker said.

Mrs. J. L. Young of Mineral Wells, state chairman of the American home department, gave a brief report of the work of her department and introduced Mrs. Alva Wiegus of Fort Worth, formerly of Wichita Falls, who spoke on "Religious Education, a Need in the Home."

Mrs. Harry Karlsberg of Bowie, American citizenship chairman, gave her report and introduced Mrs. T. A. Hicks, who reported on citizenship training given in the schools and clubs of Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Cecil Smith of Sherman was the speaker of the afternoon from this department.

Club reports were given and among those of outstanding interest were from the delegates representing the newly organized federations in Jack and Montague counties, the 1923 Study club of Iowa Park which organization was sponsored by the Travel club in Wichita Falls, and the Woman's Forum of Wichita Falls.

Retreat Parade

Social features of the day were the retreat parade given on the campus of the North Texas Agricultural college, followed by a seated tea at the college through the courtesy of the household arts and music departments, and the luncheon at noon served at the First Presbyterian church. A fine arts program arranged by Mrs. Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls, chairman of the fine arts department of the first district, Miss Mayme Waldron, Mineral Wells, Mrs. David Warren of Bowie and Mrs. S. E. Ferree of Fort Worth, was given in the evening at the Municipal building. More than 200 officers, state officers, delegates and visitors are in attendance at the convention.

BALLOTING STARTS ON NEW OFFICERS

ARLINGTON, Texas, April 23.—More than 150 state officers, district officers and visitors had registered Tuesday for the opening session of the 28th convention, first district, Texas Federation of Women's clubs in session at the Arlington municipal building.

The meeting opened with the singing of "America, the Beautiful," after which reports were given by district officers and chairmen.

Representatives of the new clubs enrolled in the federation were introduced and among them were Miss Mary Tancred of Wichita Falls, delegate from the Junior Woman's Forum.

Nominating Committee Reports

Mrs. J. A. Britain of Seymour, chairman of the nominating committee submitted the names of new officers for the first district as follows: Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, Wichita Falls, president; Miss Robbie Caseleberry, Vernon, first vice president, and Mrs. Lee Morris, Chico, second vice president. There were no nominations from the floor. Balloting on the new officers has begun.

State officers and chairmen were given recognition and were introduced to the convention by Mrs. R. E. Buchanan of Fort Worth who stated that there are more state officers present at this first district convention than there had been at any of its previous meetings.

An address by Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, was a feature of the morning session.

Mrs. Potter spoke on the subject, "Pioneers of Texas," stressing the effect of American home life on the people of today. She asked to go on record as stating that the American home is the greatest stabilizer of society that we have in America today. Her address was followed by the assembly's singing, "The Eyes of Texas," led by Miss Mayme Waldron of Mineral Wells, district chairman of music and state chairman of community music.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

Not many women want to be set aside with the causal criticism, "She's so good hearted." It is the last thing that can be said. They probably have a feeling like Charles Lamb's when he wrote to Coleridge, "For God's sake don't make me ridiculous any more by terming me 'gentle-hearted'."

We have just learned of a town where everyone belongs to church, where there is not a single car and few horses and the buildings of interest to the public are the postoffice, the church and the school. It is on the little island of Tangier in Chesapeake Bay and the name of the town is Tangier, Va. The streets are only 10 feet wide. It was settled by Capt. John Smith and named by him. The Cornish fishermen who first settled it have left the traces of their tongue in their descendants who still live there. It is so thickly populated that the graves are dug all around the church and even in the yards of the homes, overhung by great shade trees. Little agriculture and no industry but fishing. Wouldn't it be a nice quiet spot for a vacation?

Baby Style Show Feature Event Of Next Hostess Day

A baby style show, with the very young of Wichita Falls modelling the very latest in children's wear, will feature the Hostess Day luncheon and meeting at the Woman's Forum Wednesday, May 1, it was announced Monday. Mrs. H. F. Weldon is arranging the event for the luncheon, and perhaps the largest attendance of the season is expected.

Six stores have already announced their intention of participating in this show and a number of small people are to parade the latest in small frocks and young men's attire.

There will be a dance of children in bathing suits and other numbers not yet disclosed. Music is to be furnished by a splendid pianist and the menu planned for the last hostess day of this season is to be particularly attractive, it was said.

The club will be beautifully decorated with Texas flowers and ferns.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD
Universal Service

NEW YORK, April 21.—And here, my children, are the answers as to why delicatessens flourish.

Situations wanted:

"Woman: Kindly nature, very refined. City only. Best wages. No laundry or cooking. Hours 10 to 5."

She gives an address, but no name. If you want her, go and find her. Someone might, just to find out what she will do.

"Cook: Experienced 3 to 5 o'clock. State wages. Address——"

She doesn't tell you what time you may have dinner but it must be around four thirty.

"Woman: Day work. No washing, scrubbing or cooking."

Probably wants a nice rocker by a window.

"Woman very respectable. Care private bachelor's home. No other help. Must be in city." (Address given.)

Imagine a bachelor remaining in privacy these days, when bachelors are bachelors and girls are the northwestern mounted.

"Woman. Refined, assistant to housekeeper."

Bearing out what Ruth Draper says about the "help needing so much help."

"Woman wants position 3 to 4 in small family, no cleaning, washing or cooking."

What then?

"Young lady wants work part time mornings."

She wants to give a little of her day to a little work.

"Young American woman as companion and very light housekeeping. Can drive car. Will travel."

That's young American all right.

"Lady refined wants light duties or act as companion to woman or child."

A lady wants to be companion to a woman, whatever that means. I can guess.

"Woman wants cook part time; must have dinner by 6:30 and be out by 8."

The family probably must be bedie by 9.

"Lady wants keep house for widower or bachelor. No children in house or other help. Sleep in or out."

Hers are day time preferences. At night—what does it matter!

But the balm comes from a little advertisement, by a German woman and one by a Finnish girl, who want work. Any kind, any hours, anti who tell the world they will scrub or wash or cook and they loce children.

But those two will probably change their views or go back to the old country where their generosity originated.

And if you don't want any of these, perhaps you'd be interested in the "Lady—refined. Not a servant. State wages. Must have room and bath and no work on Sunday. Christians only need apply."

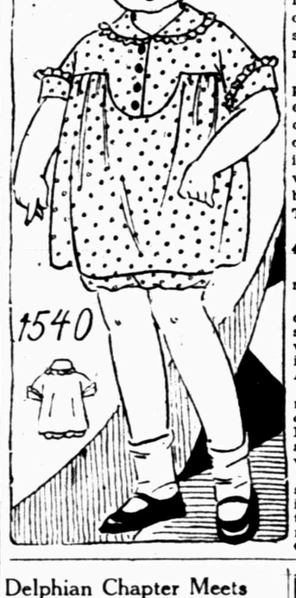

They'd be Christians. A Jew would make a better business deal than that.

And if these are not what you want, hear about the "Girl, good looking, will mind child three evenings a week for room and board."

The big hearted whatsit!

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

MINERVA'S MIRROR

MEN, perhaps are more gullible than women. Some of us are often invited to tell it to Sweeney—on the theory, doubtless, that Mrs. Sweeney wouldn't believe us.

Ashes to ashes, and dust to dust,
If the instalment man doesn't get you
The landlord must!

A friend of mine says he is pessimistic about human nature but optimistic about life, and that we often confuse the two and so grow morbid.

My friend depresses me; I fear he knows whereof he speaks.

The trouble with those women who are so willing to swear by everything that is holy is that they usually haven't the faintest idea of what really is holy.

Generally speaking, it's a man who says it's a woman who is generally speaking!

The dance floors of Broadway night clubs are also paved with good intentions.

Said an old-fashioned young man to his voluble but affectionate flapper sweetheart: "I'll have none of your lip—stick!"

The race is not always to the swift. Sometimes it's to the beautiful and dumb.

A good woman may, as the old song alleges, be hard to find—but not for a good man.

An ounce of self-control is worth a ton of regret.

No beauty spot can cover a multitude of chins.

Virginia Valli Tells How to Captivate

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—The 39 foremost movie directors find through their experience with the pictures that beautiful skin is the surest road to popularity for any girl. As Lewis Milestone, prominent director for Paramount, expresses it: "Smooth, exquisite skin is more captivating than anything else about a girl."

Virginia Valli knows that exquisite skin plays the largest part in a woman's power to touch the heart, on the screen and off. Like 442 of the 451 important actresses in Hollywood, she cherishes her lovely skin with Lux Toilet Soap. She says: "I do enjoy using Lux Toilet Soap. I delight in the marvelous velvety way it leaves my skin." Nine out of ten screen stars use this fragrant white soap, and all the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms.

Zale-Weinstein Wedding Here Is Beautiful Event

The home of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Persky, 1519 Fourteenth street, was beautifully decorated with American beauty roses and ferns on Sunday night when Miss Sylvia Weinstein, daughter of Mrs. E. Weinstein and sister of Mrs. Persky, was married to William Zale of Tulsa, Okla.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Maurice Cohn of Fort Worth, accompanied by Miss May Goldstein of the same city, sang beautifully "At Dawning" and "I Love you truly." Joseph Rabinowitz played the violin softly all through the ceremony. Mrs. Cohn played the wedding march as the bride entered on the arm of I. B. Persky. The bride's gown was a white satin basque with bouffant skirt of maline ruffles and a long veil caught in cap effect, circled with pearls and orange blossoms.

Rabbi S. J. Schwab read the ceremony.

After the wedding a reception and dance was given in the ball room of the Kemp hotel.

The bride's going away gown was a tan ensemble with accessories to match. Mr. and Mrs. Zale drove to Houston, from where they expect to go to Havana. They will be at home in Tulsa, Okla., where Mr. Zale is in business. He is vice president of the Zale Jewelry company at Tulsa.

WITH SNOWDRIFT . . . IT'S ALMOST AS EASY TO BAKE COOKIES AS TO EAT THEM • Fresh-baked, oven-browned . . . too good to last very long; but fortunately, almost as easy to bake as to eat . . . when made with Snowdrift. And here's a recipe to prove it to you:

DROP COOKIES

6 Tablespoons Snowdrift · ¾ Cup Sugar
3 Tablespoons Milk · 1½ Cup Flour · 1 Teaspoon Flavoring
1 Egg, Beaten · 2 Teaspoons Baking Powder · ¼ Teaspoon Salt

Mix together thoroughly the Snowdrift and sugar. Add egg, milk and flavoring, which have been beaten together. Add sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Beat until smooth. Drop by teaspoons on a shallow baking pan or sheet, placing the cookies two inches apart. Bake for ten minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) This makes two dozen cookies.

That's all there is to it! All because Snowdrift is so creamy that it stirs into your sugar and flour in almost no time at all. You see ice cream it for you, before we pack it in its air-tight tins.

'MIRACLE BOX' INVENTOR CLAIMS POWER TO BLOW UP WHOLE U. S.

LETHAL WAVE MAY END WAR

Mentalist to Give Perfected Contraption to Nation

By DAVID P. SENTNER
(Copy't, 1929, International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 23.—Invision a block of dynamite buried beneath New York City—a button pushed 20 miles away—and an electrical impulse spanning space to explode the block and knock "lil ole New York" sky high.

This and much more is claimed as possible through his "miracle box" invention, operated inductively through a wireless wave, and completed after six years' experimentation today by Joseph Dunninger, medium-exposing magician, mentalist and mind reader.

"And further, it is possible with a roomful of explosives and with the inductive force increased proportionately to blow up the entire United States," said Dunninger.

"You wouldn't do that, Mr. Dunninger," I said reproachfully.

May End Wars

"No, I am going to give my invention to the U. S. government," Dunninger confided. "I hope it will end all wars through the dire threat of its destructive properties."

(Dunninger stressed the point that he was against using explosives except in a pleasant way, explaining that some foreign power might think he had aggressive intentions and have one of its emissaries "take a pot shot" at him.)

"I shall invite you to a practical demonstration in a few weeks of detonating a bomb at a distance by merely pressing my electrical button," said Dunninger graciously. "I shall even let you carry the bomb and press the button."

Being a veteran mind-reader, Dunninger anticipated my conscientious objections.

"There won't be much danger," he said. "They will be little bombs and we shall place them in a large field."

I saw Dunninger demonstrate his "miracle box" and although explosives were not on the menu, he did enough to convince me that he knew his buttons.

To show that the mediumistic tricks could be accomplished scientifically, Dunninger made:

A drum answer questions by raps.

A plaster-cast hand tap out messages.

The jaws of a skull click.

A horn blow whenever commanded to do so.

A slate write, a bell ring, an electric light turn on and off.

Then Dunninger showed how he did it. He took off his coat and revealed a system of batteries, control switches, and electrical coils. He went to the table and revealed a hidden apparatus—his "miracle box." The electrical impulses from his transmitting apparatus, worn on the body, were shot through the air when he pressed the contact button in the palm of his hand. This gave life to the electro-magnetic control in the box which made sounds to imitate a horn, a drum and a bell. Other electrical contracts accounted for the other illusions.

Has to Sew Button

"This is the last word against mediums," admitted Charles Davenport, who has managed numerous spiritualists, believes in spiritualism but is not psychic personally.

Dunninger is chairman of the investigation committee of Science and Invention, the magazine which has offered $21,000 with Dunninger, to anyone who can display an alleged spirit phenomena which cannot be imitated by scientific means.

And speaking of buttons, one fell off the coat of Dunninger. For all of his magic he was compelled to borrow a needle and thread from one of his stenographers and sewed it on again—none too deftly.

Patience Rated Above Talent In Achievement of Fame and Fortune

The Road to Fortune Is Lined With Patience. Behind Each Brilliant Achievement Are Years of Persevering Effort in One Line of Endeavor and Steady Plodding Toward a Definite Goal.

Not long ago I asked a man who has achieved fame and fortune what was the secret of success, and he replied emphatically: "Patience. Stick-to-it-iveness. The ability to carry on in the face of hardships and discouragement.

"As a factor in success, he went on, "I put patience above talent, above energy, above enterprise, even above industry. All of these qualities help, of course, but unless they are backed up by patience they achieve nothing. For a man may have bursts of inspiration, he may work his fingers to the bone, he may be a gogetter, but his genius, his hard work will be just flashes in the pan if he is always changing about from ocupation to occupation and has not the patience to stick to any one line of endeavor.

"We hear a lot about people who have made a quick success. Believe me, for a man to make a quick success is rarer than for one to be struck by lightning. It does happen, of course, but it occurs so seldom that it is one of the phenomenons of nature, and is not to be counted upon.

"Practically always, behind the quick, spectacular success of which we hear so much are long, patient years of hard work of which we do not hear. Years and years in which a man wrote and rewrote stories or articles and sent them out to editors only to get them back again until he could have papered his room with rejection slips, but he stuck at his typewriter until he wrote the book that made him suddenly famous.

"Years and years in which an actor played in obscure stock companies until he developed the technique that one might put his name in electric lights on Broadway. Years and years in which some man nursed along a poor little shop, or a feeble little bank, until it grew into a chain store or was merged with a big trust company, and somebody discovered that he was a young Napoleon of finance.

"It wasn't a swift kiss from Lady Luck that did it, nor an inspiration of the moment. It was patience that turned the trick. The phonograph wasn't a happy thought that occurred one day to Edison. The Wright brothers made hundreds of flying machines before they got one that would stay in the air. Nobody had ever heard of Lindbergh one day and his name was on every lip the next, but when he flew across the Atlantic it wasn't his first trip in an airplane.

"Naturally there are exceptions to every rule, but nine times out of ten it is the plodders who succeed. The people who have the bulldog quality that makes them set their teeth in a thing and hold on until they literally work success out of it. The people who have the patience to do the same thing over and over again until they acquire craftsmanship and learn how to do it supremely well. The people who dig in and stay put until they build up a clientele just because they are so permanent that we come to have a confidence in them that we do not have in the fly-by-night doctors, or dentists, or merchants who are here today and gone tomorrow.

"Why, even the man of moderate ability has 10 times more chance to succeed if he is patient than the more brilliant man has if he lacks patience. The first question I ask the young man who comes to me applying for a job is what has he done and with what firms he has been employed. If he has tried half a dozen lines of different work and has been employed by a dozen different firms, I turn him down, for I know he lacks patience and will never amount to anything.

"I know he is one of the chaps who expected to make a quick success and to leap from bundle boy to president of the company in a couple of months, and that when he found out that there was half a lifetime of hard work between the two jobs he quit and tried something else, and when he found that, too, required patience, he resigned to try something else again. I know that he will never learn to do anything thoroughly and never be worth his pay to any employer.

"As I see it, the lack of patience is the great handicap under which the present generation is trying to run the race of life. Flaming youth is in too much of a hurry to do things and have things. It isn't willing to wait and work. It wants to grab success and riches and every experience of life, all that we old ones have spent 40 or 50 years in getting, without waiting for them, without working for them.

"No doubt it is all part of the modern mania for speed, when even babies draw in gasoline with their mothers' milk and school children are geared up to run in high and adolescent boys and girls are experimenting with the passions that used to be considered the prerogatives of strong men and mature women.

"But it makes me wonder if this haste to be grown while they are still young children isn't the reason so many girls come to grief, and if this hurry to get rich quick isn't why so many patient old fathers are supporting their impatient sons who are bond salesmen one day and insurance salesmen the next, and are trying the grocery business on the third, and have decided to study medicine on the fourth.

"Certainly the lack of patience of the young today is the reason why there are so many divorces. A boy and girl get married and as soon as the romance wears off and they discover that they are united to other mortals instead of godlings, they break up their home and call their marriage a failure.

"They haven't the patience to stick it out and adjust themselves to each other and try to make a go of it. They can't wait to develop understanding of each other, or to correct traits in each other that they find objectionable, or for the slow growth of habit which binds two people together more strongly than anything else. Yet many of the happiest marriages, like many of the most prosperous businesses, have been on the verge of failure and were only saved by patience.

"Patience. It is one of the cardinal virtues and the key to success. There is hardly anything in the world that you cannot achieve if you have patience."

—DOROTHY DIX.

SENATE PAYS BAILEY HONOR

Upper House Holds Short Session Tuesday

AUSTIN, April 23. (INS)—The senate adjourned until Wednesday after a brief session today, during which a memorial service in tribute to the late Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey was held.

Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston introduced the administration prison measure, and Senator Julien Hyer of Fort Worth introduced the pardon and parole law measure, one of the subjects allowed by Moody in his message to the legislature.

The $100,000 mileage and per diem measure, introduced by Senator Thomas Pollard of Tyler was finally passed.

The administration prison measure differs from the one introduced at the regular session in that it calls for the retention of the Darrington and Ramsey state farms and does not provide for the convening of a special session of the legislators in case legislators are opposed to the plans.

The attorney general, comptroller and chairman of the board of control are named as a committee for the relocation site rather than the attorney general, lieutenant governor, and speaker of the house as in the former measure.

In commenting on the discard of the provision calling upon the governor to convene a special session of the legislature upon the petition of a certain portion of the membership, Senator Holbrook said "the governor has given his word that he will call the session if the legislators want it, and if they will not accept his word, we might as well quit."

Hearing on T. and P. Shops Removal Set for Thursday by Gilmore

DALLAS, April 23. (AP)—A hearing on the removal of part of the shops of the Texas and Pacific railway from Longview to Mineola has been set for Thursday, according to an announcement by Clarence Gilmore, chairman of the Texas Railroad commission, here today.

Gilmore said the fact the road and its employes had agreed on removing the terminal facilities from Longview to Mineola had no bearing on this hearing.

J. A. Somerville, vice president of the railway, telegraphed to James R. Garfield, chairman of the railway mediation board, that another of the cases of the employes against the road had been settled. It was the assignment of freight crews case, and leaves only three of the original seven cases before the board. The cases were filed with the board in a special hearing here after road employes and the road failed to agree and a strike vote was taken.

Indigestion Stopped Quickly by Stomach Antiseptic

What is commonly known as indigestion is a fermented condition of the stomach which keeps the undigested food sour, creating acids and poisons. Fermentation is the worst obstacle in the way of overcoming stomach disorders.

Gordon's—an internal antiseptic, gets immediately at the cause by stopping fermentation—soothing and healing the inflamed and irritated membrane lining — driving out the acids and poisons.

Surprising results may be expected in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, excess acid, gas, bloating, heartburn, sour stomach and that "tired feeling."

NOW as never before you should be careful about lubrication

THE lubrication requirements of the present high speed motors are most exacting. With their fine adjustments, these motors will not operate efficiently with every oil. They require a lubricant which is made especially to to meet the particular conditions which they have created.

That's why it's most important to always specify the oil you want—and it will pay you well to insist always on a brand which has back of it the resources and experience of the Continental Oil Company. Then you will always be sure to get the right oil—in the grade made especially for your motor.

Ask for these brands at the better service stations and garages.

The Once Over

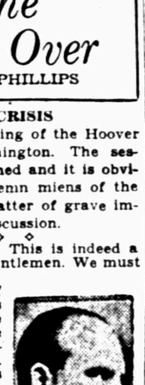

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE CRISIS

Scene: A meeting of the Hoover Cabinet at Washington. The session has just opened and it is obvious from the solemn miens of the officers that a matter of grave import is under discussion.

◇ ◇ ◇

The President: This is indeed a grave moment, gentlemen. We must be brave.

PHILLIPS

Secretary of State: A few days ago all was peace and quiet. The country was content and happy. Nowhere was there a cloud on the horizon and now. . .

The President: A great crisis such as this generally comes when it is least expected. It is a bolt, as it were, from the blue, and we are deeply grieved. I have spent the last three nights pacing up and down in my bedroom trying to figure a way out but in vain. It is my firm hope that some of you gentlemen may have thought of a peace plan. Has the secretary of War anything to suggest?

Secretary of War—As the matter bids fair to come under my department at any moment I have given it careful study. I can see no way out except to seat Mrs. Gann at the head of the table and back her up with a full brigade of marines if necessary.

The President: Are there any marines in this country now?

Secretary of War: Not many, but I can recall a few from other lands if necessary.

The President: Has the secretary of state any opinion to offer as to whether Mrs. Gann should be seated in precedence over the wives of ambassadors or not?

Secretary of State: Had I any idea such a delicate problem would have arisen I should have remained in the Phillippines, where everything was relatively quiet and uninvolved. Custom decrees that the wife of a vice president shall take precedence over the wives of ambassadors at dinner, but Mr. Curtis, unfortunately, has no wife.

Secretary of the Navy: That's what comes of electing a vice president without a wife.

Secretary of the Treasury: I don't see what difference it makes where Mrs. Gann sits. It will not affect the prosperity of the country in any way. Business is good in all parts of the land, the first quarter will show record earnings in all industries and I look for the greatest year in history.

Secretary of Agriculture: I agree with the secretary of the treasury. The administration should seat Mrs. Gann and seat her at once before the matter becomes a subject of further debate on the farms of the country. Already the farmers and their wives are spending so much time reading about it and arguing that they are neglecting their spring planting.

Attorney General: I have tried to find a way to prohibit formal dinners as a violation of the anti-trust laws or something, but without success. There is, however, one thing that can be done to solve the problem and save the nation from carnage and disaster.

The President: What is it?

Attorney General: Name Mrs. Gann's husband an ambassador to some court. Then as an ambassador's wife she can't be put below the vice president's hostess and as the vice president's hostess she can't be seated below an ambassador's wife. That permits her to sit anywhere she likes and solves everything.

The President (gleefully): Splendid! Splendid! Gentlemen, the day is saved. I declare the meeting adjourned.

The division of simplified practice of the bureau of standards of the department of commerce urges simplification of wheelbarrows. Meantime, how about doing a little something about lengthening the title of that division?

The Boss Has to Know

IF YOU want to teach a man how to do something, be sure you first know how to do it well yourself. This advice isn't especially new, perhaps; but it is given new force by a recent interview in which Henry Ford revealed that that is the rule he goes on in every phase of his life.

He uses it in his factory and he uses it in his recreation. For instance:

He took up the old-fashioned dances a few years ago because he noticed that at most dances the elderly people simply sat around watching the younger ones, and he thought that the old-time dances should be revived for their benefit. So he set to work to do it.

First, however, he had to learn how to dance the old dances himself. He got a teacher and made himself proficient in all the old steps that had gone out of favor. Then he considered himself qualified to lead the movement for the old dances.

"I always learn to do things myself before I try to get other people to do them," he said. "I never ask anyone in the Ford Motor company to do anything I cannot do. I learn it first and then I turn it over to someone else. In that way I can turn my attention to something else."

Obvious as this lesson is, there are a great many people who could take the time to relearn it.

You've met them. Perhaps you've worked for them, at one time or another. Occasionally such men get into positions of responsibility—though they don't often stay there very long. They're full of energy, full of ideas, full of ambition—but they can't get the best results out of the people who work for them because they themselves can't do the things they expect their subordinates to do.

In the old sailing ship days, a first mate whose handling of his men was unjustly criticized always had a ready come-back. It was:

"I didn't come in through the cabin window!"

What he meant, of course, was that he had worked his way up to the officer's rank by doing a seaman's work himself. If he was a good officer, he knew that he could do any job on the ship better than the sailors who worked under him. An officer of that kind, no matter how brutal or overbearing he might be, always had the respect of the men.

The officer the sailors hated was the one who had "come in through the cabin window"—who had gained his job through favoritism, and whose ability actually to do with his own hands the jobs that he directed them to do was not up to snuff.

No man can hope to rise very high unless he knows, thoroughly, every angle of the jobs below him. An ambitious young man, just getting started in a trade or business, would do well to remember that.

Silver Back on the Job

BOB SILVER is back on the job. That is, he is back behind the walls of a prison. He was captured by Houston police officers. His captors will receive a reward of $250 offered by the governor.

Bob Silver was condemned to die in the electric chair. A merciful governor commuted his sentence to life imprisonment. A mother's tearful wail won the respite.

Bob Silver betrayed the confidence of mother and governor and all those who interested themselves in his case. When an opportunity presented itself he escaped from prison and returned to his wallow in the mire, only to be run down and captured by the sleuths of the law.

There is another mother, broken hearted, in the story. Her son was law-abiding, her son loved home and family, her son was a credit to society and self. He was shot to death without warning. It must be true that it is the mothers who do the weeping.

Slogan of a Candidate

FORMER MAYOR OSCAR F. HOLCOMB of Houston, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the year 1930, has announced his platform. It is in the nature of a campaign slogan. It reads, "I will do for Texas what I have done for Houston." Next. The political river is deep; the water is warm; the state is wide and "the woods are full of 'em."

ALL UP IN THE AIR

Herbert Kaufman's Daily Editorial

MERLIN SONS, Inc., are displaying their line of spring samples.

Among the novelties of the season are slotted devices which automatically take the machine out of a tailspin and eliminate one of the prime menaces of sky-riding.

Another smart innovation is the Jenkins "radio eye," created exclusively for the military trade. The latest application of television enables scouting planes to wireless birds'-eye views of enemy movements and actual battles—thus forecasting the day when board of strategy will loll at desks across seas, and direct, from the war department itself, the most minute operations of field forces.

The culinary division of grand wizardy also begs to inform the public that travelers, flying out of Chicago to west coast points, will be served by "overhead" restaurants of the Fred Harvey system.

Kipling's "Night Mail," in which the novelist stretched his imagination until is creaked, was a dismal flop as a prophet.

That noted flight of fancy, momentarily ranked with "The Sleeping Beauty" and "Sinbad the Sailor," simply goes to show how soon the dream books of one generation become the textbooks of the next—and very poor ones, to boot.

Even Kipling couldn't anticipate half the developments upstairs navigation has already adopted.

Submarines are also sprouting wings. Italy is building one with accommodations for a seaplane. And if journalism could peep over the shoulders of all the naval designers, you might hear that the other powers have secretly met Mussolini's move and gone him a few better.

◇ ◇ ◇

ALL portents indicate the thorough and immediate occupation of the heavens. A company has been organized to insure both amateur and professional aviators against death and mishap. Henry Ford is burning midnight oil in his impatience to put little skim-abouts into limitless quantity production.

And General Motors, not to be outdone, has a few roc's eggs hatching in its vast nest, too.

The stock market has been pronouncedly air-minded for several years.

Bankers, who felt that their reputations "couldn't afford to attend a dinner to the Wright brothers," are cross-bidding for control of air traffic; and finance corporations are estimating how many billions the next decade will require for landing fields, community hangars, and installment-sold machines.

You think that you'll never fly, just as your father swore that he wouldn't risk his precious life and limbs in an automobile.

And you will remember how soon after that he was at the wheel overtaking the Joneses—chuckling, meanwhile, at grandpa's reminiscences about the first railroads.

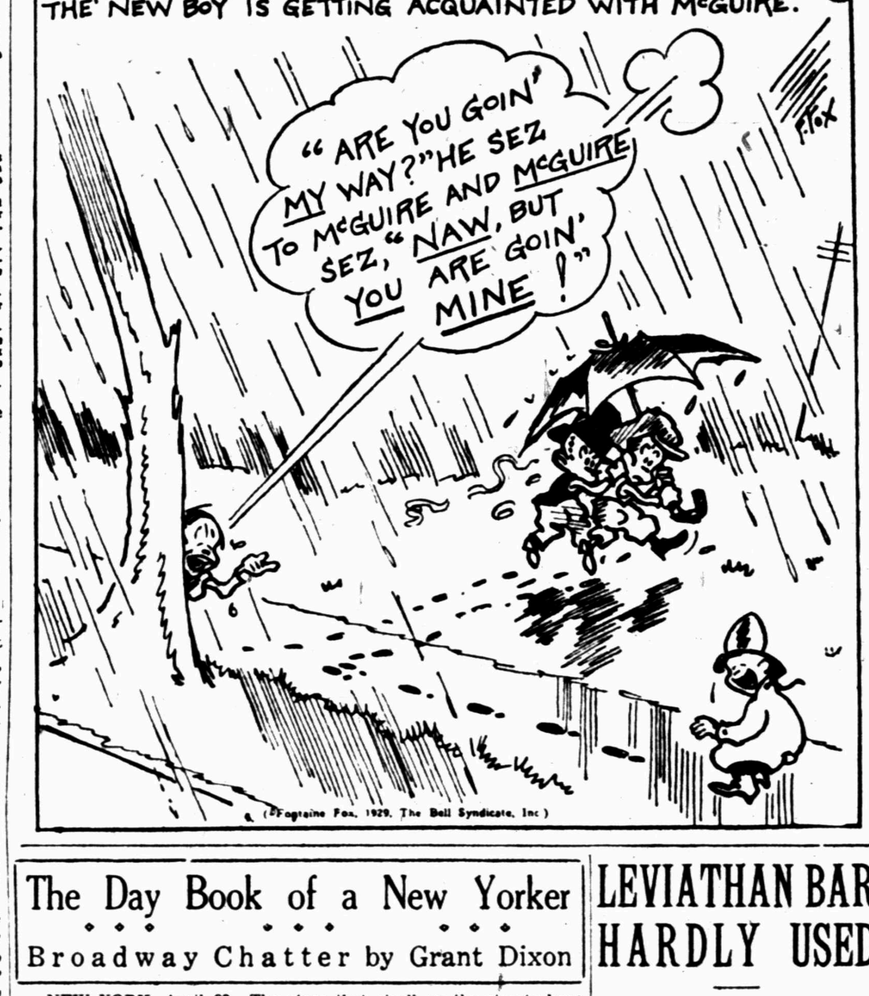

History and a few old timers recall the same general fear of the locomotive, at 20 miles an hour, that you now feel at thought of a transcontinental cloud trip between sun-ups.

But familiarity always grows contemptuous of first squeamishness. Example breeds confidence. The crowd spirit convinces the hang-back. We all eventually follow the lead of friends.

The greatest salesman on earth is the family next door. So start reading the catalogs—begin to study the definitions of "joy-sticks," altimeter and banking gauges, and get a medical "once-over."

Try on your helmet and goggles and grow used to the feel of 'em. Henry and Orville expect to sell a tri-motor, or at least a flying "lizzy," to somebody on your block within five years—likely as not, you.

FOONERVILLE FOLKS By Fontaine Fox

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, April 23.—The stars that stroll on the streets have nothing, perhaps, to do with the case and yet they serve, inversely, as a study of the closed mind.

I mean the closed mind of the public. When we observe what should be old, familiar faces in strange surroundings, we do not recognize them. Particularly is this so with our heroes and heroines and, persuing the thought to its objective, particularly is this so with our heroes and heroines of the stage and screen.

Lon Chaney, for instance, has been seen by millions, yet is seldom recognized on the street. He appeared on Fifth avenue not long ago. While it is true he had his arms and legs in action and good normal condition, the real cause of his freedom from detection was the fact that he wears horn-rimmed glasses when off the movie lots. Harold Lloyd is seldom recognized for the opposite reason.

Charlie Chaplin, of course, does not wear his famous mustache, shoes, cane and derby on the street and, when riding through Central park for more than an hour, he was not recognized by the taxi driver who chatted with him constantly. Buster Keaton, Alice Terry and Greta Garbo, while here on brief shopping tours, also went unrecognized.

Alice Joyce, on the other hand, is frequently identified by people who sometimes stop her and shake her hand. Perhaps that is because she frequents the avenue and does most of her leisurely strolling and shopping there.

But who would forget Big Bill Tilden's face? Yet, as he moves swiftly down the street, pedestrians fail to recognize him and a few, suddenly recalling that face, turn quickly, but too late, for one more glance at the hastily retreating tennis champion.

Yet it is astounding that in New York, in spite of the thousands of pedestrians who know not fame, so few of the great are recognized. For surely the city is saturated with citizens of Who's Who-land and most certainly they frequent the public places of the town.

They have their haunts, however, and there they can be seen and, perhaps, recognized. In Reuben's restaurant the younger social set often gather informally; in the Dizzy club and old Tony's may be found many of the literary world; in Sardi's the stage celebrities, dramatic critics and leading press agents dine regularly.

But let it not be supposed that the famous or the notorious are confined to geographical divisions.

A lady only the other day came to me and asked, naively enough, how she could get "in" with the literary set. She wanted to know where they gathered, in what sections they lived. And I felt sorry for her, too; she was from a Massachusetts town and had written a novel. Whereupon she decided to come to New York, and, presumably, mix with the literati.

But I had to explain to the lady that New York's circles, particularly in literature and art (and frequently in society) have no geographical arrangement; that their gatherings are merely the get-together affairs of intimate friends and acquaintances who merely happen to have kindred likes and dislikes and occupations. A literary "club" or a literary party, labeled as such is, I think, about the most boresome affair in the world. And people of even the least literary significance are seldom found at them.

I do not, of course, include the literary teas given in honor of authors by their publishers. At the Century tea all the authors in the world, it seemed to me were present. Other large publishers also succeed in enticing them to parties, but they are strictly invitational affairs—as exclusive in their way as a formal party in Park avenue or Southampton, or a goodwill gathering of rival thugs in Chicago's South Side.

The most interesting of these social parties recently was that given by the publishing firm of Simon & Schuster's in honor of Joan Lowell the author of "Cradle of the Deep," and winner of a book of the month club's award. The party was on board the French steamer Ile de France and the guest list (of those who actualy attended) was formidable including Roy Howard, the publisher, Jack Dempsey, who has a ghost writer to turn out his literature, a couple of dukes, a smattering of Mayfair's Best and here and there, somebody who actually writes for a living.

Steamer parties are quite the vogue even though they usually are conducted under the suspicious eyes of revenue agents and customs men.

Wichita-Breckenridge Road Route Lessened

Special to The Record News

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, April 23.—Travel between Wichita Falls and this section of Texas is being greatly facilitated by the recent opening up of highway 67 over pavement between Graham and Breckenridge. Only a short detour of less than a half mile is required over this 42-mile strip. As a result this "Petroleum highway" is becoming more popular daily, the time between Breckenridge and Wichita Falls having been cut down by at least 45 minutes following the improvement.

Work is progressing on the road through Throckmorton county. When this is completed and other connections made northward, Breckenridge will have two first class routes to "The City That Faith Built."

Jury Disagrees In Suit for $1,250 Bonus

Judge W .W. Cook Tuesday afternoon discharged the jury trying the suit of A. Marshall, seeking the collection of an alleged $1,250 bonus from Sam Kruger, after the foreman had reported the jurors hopelessly in disagreement.

Mr. Marshall claimed in his testimony that the money was due him as compensation for his aid in completing certain financing plans for the Kruger Jewelry company. Mr. Kruger told the jury that any contract which had been made with the plaintiff was entered into by Max Shane, who he declared was not his agent.

LEVIATHAN BAR HARDLY USED

Movies Attract More Patronage Than Wine

By BARRY FARIS

(Copy't, 1929, International News Service)

ON BOARD S. S. LEVIATHAN, April 23.—Passengers on the S. S. Leviathan on this, the first westward voyage on which alcoholic beverages have been dispensed, simply refuse to take their drinking seriously.

The smoking room is getting only light patronage, and runs a poor second to the movies as a popular attraction. This is evidenced by the fact that the smoking room has been completely deserted whenever the movies have been shown on board.

So far this voyage, the biggest feature in connection with the serving of drinks was the champagne dinner last night, given to Comte de Polignac of Paris, to a brilliant assemblage of guests. Included among these were Constance Bennett, screen star, who is the wife of Philip Plant, of New York; Miss Betty Histed of Chicago, who was voted the prettiest girl aboard the vessel; Arlette Marchal of Hollywood, and Victor Garland, the actor.

Miss Bennett is returning to the United States to make a talkie film for Pathe. Garland also may enter the talkies.

An instance of how light the drinking is on board was the fact that about half of the wine opened at Comte de Polignac's dinner was left untouched.

Holloway Delays Quiz of Durant

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 23. (UP)—Governor Holloway Tuesday still delayed any action on the house investigating committee report seeking the removal of W. A. Durant, secretary of the school land commission.

The governor said he had not completed his personal investigation of the house report. The house report charges Durant with making over-loans and political loans.

Holloway could not fix a date when he would bring the report before the commission. The commission meets late Tuesday for routine affairs.

Izaak Walton Convention Asks 15 Bird Limit as National Rule

The convention of national directors of the Izaak Walton league of America, which met in Chicago on April 17, 18, 19 and 20, unanimously adopted resolutions asking the federal government to reduce the bag limit on wild fowl to 15 birds per day throughout the United States, according to Mr. and Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, who attended as delegates of the Wichita Falls chapter.

The resolution adopted at Chicago was identical in effect with that passed by the local chapter some months ago and forwarded to Washington. Under the present federal provision, an individual hunter is allowed to kill 25 birds per day, and as many as 50 per week. The greater number of inland states throughout the country have reduced the limit to 15 and 20 ducks per day. Concerted efforts of all chapters of the league are to be made this year for the lowering of the kill allowed daily.

More than 1,000 persons attended the national convention, which was held in the Hotel Stephens. The entire body attended a banquet last Friday night in the ballroom of that establishment. Prominent among the speakers heard at that time, Mr. Oneal said, were Paul G. Reddington, chief of the United States Biological survey, who has charge of the migratory bird situation in this country; Henry O'Malley, United State scommissioner of fisheries; Dr. T. G. Pearson, president of the Audubon societies, for the protection of birds; and Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the Peoples' church of Chicago, and one of the original 54 men who organized the Izaak Walton league of America seven years ago.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

(Copyright 1929 by The Bell Syndicate Inc.)

NOW YOU ARE ON A NON-STARCHY DIET

Today you are living on a vegetable diet made up of what are called the non-starchy vegetables. The list from which you are selecting your vegetables really names almost all of the vegetables, and there are not very many left which belong in the starchy class. Potatoes and Hubbard squash are about the only ones you will not find in this list. The tubers, such as parsnips, beets and carrots could be listed as medium-starchy vegetables, as they contain from eight to 12 per cent of starch, but these vegetables may be usually placed in the non-starchy class as their starch is not sufficient to cause the same digestive disturbances which are created when such starches as the grains and flours products made from the grains are used.

With the exception of potatoes and Hubbard squash, you can always think of vegetables as being non-starchy, and such vegetables may be always freely used in the diet with the exception of those which are especially gas-forming in themselves, such as onions, garlic, cooked cabbage, etc.

Those with a tendency to excessive gas may find that the use of turnips and beets will bring on stomach or intestinal distress caused by the gas produced from the use of these vegetables. Lettuce may also be considered a gas-forming food if too much is used at one time.

Spinach, string beans, asparagus, celery, small squash and egg plant may always be considered safe vegetables to use by anyone, no matter how sensitive his digestive organs may be. Of course, even these foods may be spoiled by improper preparation.

Minerals and Vitamins Needed

While the non-starchy vegetables contain only a small amount of starch and little sugar, they are, nevertheless, very valuable foods. The largest amount of their weight is made up of water and cellulose, but the solid material is a combination of vitamins and organic minerals which are indispensible to the body's growth. All of the animal kingdom, including man, must use food containing these substances. The carnivorous animals get their organic minerals directly from the fresh bones and flesh of the animals they have eaten, but man who uses only a limited amount of flesh foods and practically no bone must depend upon the vegetable kingdom for his mineral supply which the plants are able to transform from the minerals of the soil to vegetable minerals.

Each cell of the body, whether it is a nerve cell, muscle cell or bone cell must contain these minerals which are as important to the body as the foundation is to a house.

Fresh or Canned Vegetables

I know that the reader who follows the instructions in this curative diet course can learn to like more of this class of non-starchy vegetables than he has formerly used.

You are probably surprised to learn that there are so many different kinds of vegetables which you can get at all times, either either fresh in the market or canned. Practically all of the vegetables I have listed can be secured in a canned form and the method of preparation used today in canning keeps these foods quite wholesome and nothing much is lost in the canning process except possibly some of the flavor.

Your diet and daily regime for tomorrow is to be exactly the same as today, but in tomorrow's article I will suggest some changes for the following day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Coal Oil for Rheumatism

Question: J. A. S. writes: "I am troubled badly with rheumatism from the shoulders to the wrists, especially in the elbow joints—so much so that my right arm is slightly crooked already. Would rubbing the arms with coal oil be of benefit? Also, is eating apples harmful?"

Answer: It is all right to rub on coal oil, wintergreen oil, or any kind of liniment if it brings you temporary relief but you must not expect a cure from such treatment. Eating the apples might do some good providing you eat nothing else for three or four weeks. Poisonous infections from the colon is the primary source of rheumatism. Through a cleansing diet and colon hygiene you will be able to stop the spread which is now troubling you. The stiff arm may never become normal, but you can even hope for a good change in that as I have known many badly crippled cases to completely recover and regain the normal use of the joints affected.

Mucas-Forming Foods

Question: Mrs. W. M. asks: "In evading mucas-forming foods, should I eliminate bacon, mayonnaise, butter and olemargarine? I am very, very thin, and these are the only fats I use."

Answer: I see no reason why you cannot use a reasonable amount of the foods you ask about providing the rest of your diet is well balanced.'

EARLY LEAD GIVES SHREVEPORT 7 TO 4 VICTORY IN OPENER

SPORTS ACCORD TUERO SUPPORT

Benton, Stapleton, Crouch Star for Spudders

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Our Spudders were slow in starting yesterday, and the home opener of the 1929 season was packed in Art Phelan's hit and run bag. The Shreveport Sports hammered Milt Steengrafe, ace of Jim Galloway's staff, off the hill in the fifth inning, and with Oscar Tuero hurling effectively scored a 7 to 4 victory.

Steengrafe gave up six tallies in his tenure of office while the Spudders did not register until the fifth, when they scored a pair of runs. Cy Smith pitched steadily after relieving Milt, giving up only a run, that in the seventh, but Tuero, aided by some superb fielding by his comrades, held the Spuds to a couple of other tallies, in the seventh and ninth.

Tuero limited the Spuds to a pair of hits, both doubles by Benton, up to the fifth, and until that round not a homeling had passed second. Oscar yielded 10 blows, fast fielding aiding him when in distress late in the pastime.

Benton Bats Hard

Rabbit Benton continued to play the inspired baseball he started on the road jaunt. He smacked two singles and walked in other times at bat for a perfect day on the attack, and his fielding again was brilliant.

Bud Stapleton and Jack Crouch, playing their first Texas league game in Wichita Falls, each clouted a brace of hits, one of the catcher's going for two bases. Red Bennett, Dick Sullivan and Smith were other Spudders playing their first championship game at home.

McClanahan, also a rookie, led the Sport offensive, whaling two doubles and a single. He drove home a runner and scored twice himself. Bernie Deviveros clouted a brace of singles, and drove home two comrades in addition to tallying twice.

The Sports pounded out 12 hits, nine of which were made off Steengrafe.

Deviveros Features

Deviveros scintillated in the defensive play of the Sports. He participated in three double plays and started two two-ply killings that checked Spudder rallies in late innings. The Spudders also fielded fast and made one double play. There was only one error.

The contest was a trifle listless at times and the huge throng had little to enthuse over until the Spudders started hitting late in the game. It required two hours and 35 minutes to complete the nine innings.

Sports Score in First

The Sports scored in the first inning after two were out. McClanahan singled to left and scored on Holman's double to center. Bennett captured Cox's drive.

Benton led off the Spudders' half with a two-base smash to left-center. Turgeon struck out. Fitzgerald walked. Bennett lined into a double play, Stewart to Deviveros.

Fitzgerald's great running catch of Starr's short fly enabled Steengrafe to retire the Sports in order in the second.

Stapleton was safe at first on interference with his bat by the catcher, but Bud was out stealing for the third out.

The Sports only tallied one run off two hits and a base on balls in the third. Whelan walked after one was out. Hutson singled to center. Whelan going to third. McClanahan doubled to right, scoring Whelan and advancing Hutson to third. Holman fanned. Benton threw out Cox.

Benton Hits Second Double

Benton crashed a two-base knock against the left-center boards, in almost the identical spot as his first double, but two were out and Deviveros threw out Turgeon.

Shreveport added one in the fourth. Deviveros led off with a base on balls and went to second on Stewart's sacrifice. Steengrafe to Turgeon. Starr singled to center, scoring Deviveros. Tuero hit into a double play, Steengrafe to Benton to Stapleton.

Fitzgerald got a base on balls, his second pass, but Bennett fanned, Swenson forced Fitz at second and Sullivan was called out on strikes.

A flock of hits and loose defensive play enabled the Sports to tally three runs in the fifth. Singles by Whelan and Hutson put Gus on third. Benton fumbled McClanahan's roller, Whelan scoring and Hutson going to second. Holman's grounder went between Swenson and Benton, filling the bases. Cox forced Hutson at the plate on a tap to Steengrafe. Deviveros singled to left, scoring McClanahan and Holman. Smith replaced Steengrafe. Both runners advanced on a passed ball. Stewart fanned. Starr walked, again putting runners on all the lines. Tuero struck out.

Spuds Tally in Fifth

The Spudder attack finally got under way in the fifth and a brace of runs resulted. Crouch doubled to left after one was out, the Spudders' third hit and third two-base knock. Smith grounded to Deviveros, Crouch holding second. Tuero was wary of Benton and he passed the Rabbit. Turgeon smote one of Oscar's changes of pace to far center for three bases, scoring Crouch and Benton. Tuero tossed out Fitzgerald.

McClanahan clouted to left for two bases in the sixth, his second double and third hit, but two were out and Holman fanned.

The Spudders went out in order.

Shreveport scored again in the seventh. Deviveros singled to right after one was out and we t to third on Devivevos' hit to left. Starr was purposely passed, filling the bases. With a double play in front of him, Turgeon fumbled Tuero's bounder, but recovered in time to get Oscar at first, Deviveros scoring.

Spudder Rally Nipped

The Spudders started a rally in their seventh that tallied a run before it was nipped by a double play. Stapleton singled to center. Crouch dropped a single into right, advancing Stapleton to third. Stewart threw out Smith, Stapleton scoring and Crouch taking second. Benton beat out a bunt to Holman, sending Crouch to third. Turgeon hit into a double play, Deviveros to Stewart to Whelan.

It was growing dark and Kane admonished the Sports to play ball when Holman and Tuero held a conference to kill time as Fitzgerald came to bat. Fritz walked, his third base on balls, but that's as far as he got.

The Sports went out in order in the ninth.

Deviveros knocked down Stapleton's harsh grounder, Bud's second hit to open the Spudders' half. Tuero tossed out Crouch, Stapleton advancing to second. Lapan batted for Smith and singled to center, Stapleton going to third. Benton bounced a hit over Stewart's head, scoring Stapleton and sending Lapan to third. Turgeon hit into a double play, Deviveros to Stewart to Whelan.

NOTES OF THE GAME

Harold Wiltse, the lefthander from the St. Louis Browns, probably will be Skipper Jim Galloway's hurling selection today in the second game of the series.

Art Phelan, Sports foreman, last night indicated that George "Grandpa" Woods, former Rice Institute pitcher, will be his hill choice. Woods is a righthander.

Joe Brown, ace of the Sports pitching staff, was sent home from Fort Worth Monday when it was feared that he was suffering from appendicitis. Advice received last night by Phelan, however, indicated that an operation is unnecessary and that Brown will be able to rejoin his team when it returns home Saturday.

Several opening day prizes were won and others still are to be gathered in by the Spudders. Rabbit Benton won an automatic lighter given by the Art Jewelry company and four quarts of oil from the Service Tire company for hitting the first double.

Pete Turgeon gets pajamas from Perkins-Timberlake company for driving home the first run and a shirt from Wages' store for his triple.

Jack Crouch gets a Bill Doak glove from Noble-Little Hardware company, for scoring the first run, and a bill container from Buchanan Stationery company for hitting the first single.

Howard Fitzgerald won a Stetson straw hat from Ludlam and Riggs for drawing the first base on balls.

Whelan showed some fancy fielding. The Sports first sacker was called upon to take some bad throws and he snared every one of them.

This young fellow McClanahan hit hard against the Spuds at Shreveport and he started again yesterday. A likely-looking lad, is he.

The rookie Stewart looked much better at second base than he did over at Sportville. He handled 10 chances flawlessly.

Old Oscar Tuero, the last of a vanishing race, a spitball hurler, struckout six. He passed four.

DANIEL BAKER WINS

BROWNWOOD, Texas, April 23. (AP)—A first inning attack that netted four runs gave Daniel Baker college a 6 to 1 victory over the Southwest Texas Teachers' Bobcats in the second game of their series today.

STEERS WIN WILD TILT

DALLAS, April 23. (AP)—Nine pitchers paraded in a hectic contest here today, in which the Dallas Steers scored six runs in the last of the eighth to defeat the Fort Worth Panthers, 9 to 7, in their series opener.

Four Panther throwers saw service in Dallas' big inning and three Steer chunkers were on the rubber in the ninth. Superior reserve strength, and wildness of the Cat hurlers finally gave the herd the decision. Three Cat errors gave Dallas many runs. Score:

Wiggins Mounts Water Wagon And Will Go After Heavy Title

It's Impossible to Picture Chuck Leaving Ale Alone, But He's Mighty Formidable Fighter, at That

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, April 23.—I have important news for the pugilistic proletariat, Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, and the coast guard. The Hon. Mr. Charles Chuckie Wiggins of Indianapolis, Ind., is off the ale.

"What!" says you, "have they quit making ale?"

The information about the Hon. Mr. Charles Chuckie Wiggins comes to me from Mr. Ray Alvis, who is Mr. Wiggins' manager when he can catch up to Mr. Wiggins. And Mr. Wiggins, as you are perhaps aware, is a vintage heavyweight, who has fought 'em all, one, two, three, four, five and in some cases six times.

"Chuck has given me his word that he will leave the ale alone this coming season and stay in shape," babbles Mr. Alvis, excitedly, probably meaning the shape of grapefruit. "He is firmly convinced that he can whip all the present heavyweight contenders. I agree with him when he is in condition he will soon fight his way to the heavyweight championship of the world."

I have dispatched an inquiry to Mr. Alvis to ascertain if the Honorable Wiggins means even Canadian ale. I somehow doubt that the old chuckie intends taking in the whole North American continent at one fell swoop. If so, this item belongs on the front page.

About Mr. Alvis

This Mr. Alvis is a pleasant spoken brow who is indigeneous to Chicago. He is the same Mr. Alvis, of the old loop Alvises, who is, or was, or may be, persona non grata nux vomica, e pluribus unum, and nix cum raus with the New York boxing commission.

If you even mention Mr. Alvis' name to our board it has almost the same sinister effect as when a messenger announces that Mr. Joe Jacobs is in the ante room. At least two members of the board are taken with convulsion.

It seems that Mr. Alvis was the manager of the one Eddie Shea, of Chicago, that night back in '25 that one Shea "fought," as we laughingly say, Charley Phil Rosenberg, then bantamweight champion of the world at the Velodrome not far from Spuyten Duyvil. On that occasion, one Shea fell prostrate in the fourth frame with some flourish but with lack of dramatic conviction.

You should have seen the boxing commissioners look at one another!

"Ah-ha!" said one, "the old diveolus!"

"Yes, indeed," remarked another, "the tank-a-rorium!"

"And inartistic," criticised the third.

They Took the Hint

So they got together and told Mr. Alvis and one Shea that if ever they darkened our doors again we would have the law on 'em. And the years have rolled onward, inexerably, and we haven't seen hide nor hair of Mr. Alvis or one Shea in these parts since. They knew when to take a hint.

I believe that one of Mr. Alvis' gladiators, called young Jack Thompson, was recently permitted to appear in Buffalo, and when someone mentioned the matter at the commission offices, a commissioner hoisted his brows in surprise.

"Buffalo?" he said, "is that in New York state? I thought it was only the place where big hearted Charley Murray lives. Wel', well, we can't be expected to keep track of everything that goes on out in the provinces."

But of course all this has nothing to do with Chuckie Wiggins, and his renunciation of good old ale, drink 'er down, drink 'er down. While I can appreciate Mr. Alvis' desire to capture the dry precincts for his man, I feel some alarm for Chuck. It has always been my impression that Chuck has been drinking ale since infancy, and I would like to hear from the physicians as to the probable effect on a man who has been weaned on ale suddenly chopping off same. Does he go daffy, or what?

Further, what satisfaction is the Chuckie going to get out of the heavyweight championship that Mr. Alvis says he is to win, if he has to go without his ale? But perhaps Mr. Alvis' statement that Chuck is off the ale for "this season" is the saving clause. There are other seasons.

A gallant old warrior is the Chuckle. He has been pegging along for 13 years, and has had over 200 ring battles. There was a little time out of his record while Chuck was in durance vile on what his friends say was "a wrong rap." But he has been going ever since. He is a huffle-scuffle old geek, bouncing and bouncing all over the canvass when he is in action, and heaving the cestii from all angles.

Mr. Alvis may be over-enthusiastic, but he is not far wrong when he says the Chuckle can lick the present heavyweight contenders. He would make some of them jump out of the ring. Of course Mr. Alvis is merely using a figure of speech when he says Chuck will soon fight his way to the heavyweight championship, but perhaps Mr. Alvis means of the ale drinkers.

I always like to see the Chuckle fight because he makes the other guy fight. There is not much style, and not much sense to Chuck's fighting, but no faint hearted beezark has any business in there with him.

There is an old fashioned ring to Mr. Alvis' announcement, at that, because the manager of the average ale-head generally tells you that his guy never smoked or drank in his life. But the Chuckle has always been frank and unashamed of his fondness for a few scuttles of ale now and then, and I don't know that it has affected his fighting. In fact, I am inclined to the belief that the Chuckle can bounce all the more when he is sudsed up somewhat.

I wonder, however, if Mr. Alvis realizes that he has exposed the old Chuckle as a law-breaker in his statement that Chuck is off ale? I find herein the inference that Chuck has been on ale. He must have been on ale to now be off ale. It is obviously against the law for any citizen to be on ale.

But perhaps Mr. Alvis refers to the pre-war ale activities of Chuck when ale wasn't illegal. The Spanish-American war. Chuck was fighting then.

DALLAS, April 23. (AP)—The Baylor University Bears, Southwest conference leaders, made a clean sweep of their two-game series with Southern Methodist university when they took today's decision, 4 to 3, in 10 innings.

The Mustangs apparently had it sewed up after scoring three in the fifth, only to see the visitors knot the count with three in the seventh. Gilliland and Sebastian cracked triples for the Bears. Score:

DUKE TRAMEL BOXES TONIGHT

Hall's Conqueror Faces Varner Here

Duke Tramel, the conqueror of Cyclone Hall, is rounding out one of the most successful seasons enjoyed by the Fort Worth welterweight. The Duke is hitting harder and boxing better than ever, as the ease in which he disposed of Hall showed. Tramel is to face Walter Varner, who Promoter Alex Ross says is a tough fellow, tonight in the 10-round windup of the professor's weekly boxing show at the Palace theater.

Rudy Hodge of Houston and Jack Doherty of St. Jo will step in the eight-round semi-windup. Kid Murdock, the Oklahoma veteran, will meet Henry Adams, the promising local youth, in a six-rounder and Jack Betts will face Martin Craig in another six-rounder.

Two four-round bouts, the first at 8:15 o'clock, open the show.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, April 23.—Up until the second Tuesday after the first installment on the automobile, we have never heard of Colonel the Master of Sempil, and Gladys, Lady Swaythling.

It seems that they had a luncheon engagement at the Savoy in London. Traffic in London is as congested as a pickaninny in watermelon time.

Colonel the Master of Sempil solved the traffic business by hooking up his seaplane. Leaving his delicate estate among the heather and the gorse, he flew downtown, landed on the Thames in front of Cleopatra's needle on the embankment.

A swift Savoy guest launch picked up Colonel the Master of Sempil and Lady Swaythling and took them to lunch.

While the launch was skipping to the wharf, Colonel the Master of Sempil was served with cocktails.

It seems that Colonel the Maestro of Sempil had solved the traffic problem by drinking on a launch.

Another way of solving the traffic jam would be for Colonel the Master of Sempil to shorten his name to Jake.

We do know how the colonel's solution would work in America.

It isn't everybody who can stagger home in a seaplane and a launch.

Lacking the essential dividends necessary to garaging such expensive vehicles we intend to try the colonel's recipe with more economical ingredients.

The cocktails are all right. They can be mixed if you can find the right kind of paint.

A dinner in the Savoy costs money. But, they say the ancient game of chess was invented in the same hotel when two colonels started pushing the dinner check at each other.

Instead of the seaplane and the launch we intend to substitute a bicycle and an ironing board.

Amusements costs very little in America. Thanks to Grover Whalen's newest traffic plan in New York, visiting pedestrians to that city can now play the old childhood game of prisoner's base with real, uniformed policemen.

The only drinking launch we have left is the Leviathan.

That deep-dish raft leaves for America all loaded up with the nectar of delirium.

All will be jollity and mirth. In the middle of the Atlantic the passengers will not need lifeboats.

What they will require most of all is lampposts.

The first radio message from the captain of the Leviathan was picked up by an amateur using a one-tube tomato can for a receiving set. It read:

"Ain't we got funnels?"

JACK CROUCH

BARRY HOLTON, new athletic director of Wichita Falls high schools, Friday is to be welcomed unofficially, but none the less enthusiastically, to the city. A luncheon, to be tendered by several business and professional men, will be the means of the first get-together by the new mentor and citizens of the town.

This luncheon reflects the enthusiasm held by Wichita Falls for the future of its prep athletics. A revival in interest of Wichita Falls over its high school sports is needed. This is particularly true of football.

Except in the Amarillo game, attendance at grid contests played here last fall by the Coyotes was negligible. This was not due entirely to the fact that the Coyotes were not a winning team. There was no great enthusiasm before the football season started. In fact, to be frank about it, there seemed a lack of color to high school football here last fall.

❖ ❖ ❖

PRE-GAME pep sessions were missing. Cheering by the students was largely individual. Academic football loses much of its interest when it is played in drab settings. You can't expect your citizens of the town to become greatly enthused over a football team if the students and teachers themselves don't display a lot of interest.

Wichita Falls is starting right in tendering the luncheon to its new coach.

Much as I dislike the word, it's the only appropriate one I can use here:

Let's all make lots of WHOOPEE for Wichita Falls high school football. Win or lose, let's have pep and color and noise.

Braddock Knocks Out Benson in First Round

CATS RELEASE TWO ROOKIES

Willie Stone and Chick Shiver Cast Adrift

FORT WORTH, April 23. (AP)—The outright release of Willie Stone and Charles Shiver by the Fort Worth Baseball club was announced tonight. Stone is a first baseman and Shiver an outfielder.

Stone probably will play independent semi-pro ball in West Texas.

Kill the Goose For Golden Egg

Fighters Ruining Own Rackets With Their Tactics

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, April 23. (UP)—A dearth of attractive cards threatens a boxing blight for the summer of 1929 such as the fisticuff industry has not experienced in a quarter of a century.

With half a dozen new promoters in the field, the difficulty is to find fighters—even second raters would do—who will ply their trade.

The bubble created by purse inflation has burst, and the promoters don't know what to do about it. The hams want terrapin prices, the public is about fed up on superfluous ballyhoo, and if you see a down-at-the-heel bum holding out a tin cup, don't call a cop, mister, that may be Jack Dempsey.

Jack's Lament

The former heavyweight champion, who has turned promoter, is feeling a little that way, he admitted this afternoon. His new bosses, Humbert Fugazy and Ed Cole, expect him to get busy and make some matches, and the fighters won't fight.

"That's the trouble with these birds today," said Dempsey this afternoon. They don't want to fight amongst themselves. Each wants me to dig up some big attraction from aboard or elsewhere and give him first crack at it. And as for the dough they want—well, I never had the nerve in my day, and you know I was a pretty good asker myself."

Things are just as quiet in the other promoters' offices. Madison Square garden isn't doing any business in the match-making line. Even the big "milk fund" show is gathering talent slowly and pinning its hopes upon the good will of Maxie Schmeling, who heretofore has displayed little of that admirable quality in his dealings with the cauliflower crowd.

Max May Not Fight

If Maxie refuses to retire from his stand against Arthur Bulow, his maybe manager, there is little likelihood of his coming over to fight Paulino for the milk fund. And if he doesn't back down, there may be some hungry babies in town, for Der Maxie is about the last big bet for a top notch show, always excepting our old friend, Jack Sharkey.

Even the second raters, as Dempsey says, are not anxious to sign for fights with suitable opponents.

It remains to be seen whether Jack has the real genius, such as Tex Rickard possessed, to take a situation such as exists at present and make money out of it while promoting prize fights

The Main Schedule

Time comes winging, whispering:
"What about the years?"
What about the darkness as the coming sunset nears?"
To which I have one answer, where all I have to say
Is "Never mind about the years what about today?"

Times comes winging, whispering:
"How the years go by;
What about the twilight where the shadows hide the sky?"
Yes, the mists are gathering—
Time is on the way,
But never mind about the years —what about today?

Times comes winging, whispering:
"The frost is in your hair;
The heavy mists are closing in where shadows only fare."
Who bothers with the distant drum, or minds along the chart
If "Winter snows be on his head when spring is in his heart?"

The Four-Year Obstacle

A good many years ago Ty Cobb was talking about the barrier a ball club faced that had won three pennants in a row.

"After that," he said, "it is almost impossible to keep up the old spirit. It is an old story. Winning another pennant is nothing but winning another pennant. You don't run after a street car when you have caught it. Mixed with that is the idea many on the team hold, that the pennant can be won anyway, without breaking a set of backs to get there. There is a general let down. It has happened to almost every club in the game. Sometimes it happens after two pennant winning years. Nearly always after three."

This is one handicap the Yankees face this season. It is one of the main obstacles in the road. Fortunately for their side, a fellow like Babe Ruth wouldn't be satisfied with six pennants in a row if there was a seventh in sight. Every ball game to him is a ball game to be won, if there is anyway to win it. This feeling is sure to get to others of the club.

But for all that, constant winning brings about certain weaknesses, whether it be for an individual or for a team. Add to this the wear and tear upon certain veterans who have been around a long time. There is no way of telling just what year they will suddenly slip and fall back. The Yankees are again generally picked to win another pennant, but the quoted odds of 9 to 10 against the field are out of line.

One Form of Spring Football Practice

It may be impossible or at least difficult to hold formal spring practice for football. Conditions may be against it. Certain institutions may decide it is over-emphasizing the game. But there is one procedure a head coach might work on.

1. To persuade his two best kickers to take an hour two or three times a week practicing punting and drop kicking.

2. To get his two best passers and his two best pass receivers to take the same time, or as much time as possible, developing this feature of football.

3. To get his linemen to take 15 minutes a day practising quick starting. That isn't over-emphasizing anything and the results might be somewhat astonishing.

In the first two cases there is no chance to develop good kickers and passers in the brief fall session. The same goes for pass receivers. It is fine exercise and interesting work—to any one who likes football.

Main line value lies in the charge and quick starting through the first 10 or 15 feet. This is something else that can't be developed in a few weeks. All of this would take but little time from other work and could in no way be called "over-emphasis." After all, if one is to play football there is no crime in wishing to play it as well as possible.

If it is over-emphasizing a game to take enough time to learn the fundamentals, then the game should be abolished.

It might be argued that sport is sport and that it is not important to be proficient in any game. Not at the expense of other more important things. But the above philosophy is usually held by those who can't be proficient.

There is no question but that at many places most of the fun is taken out of football. This is partly due to the fact that coaches often attempt to get four months of training and instruction within two months or less. It can't be done. But the temptation is there to make one hour an afternoon count for more than it can possibly show. Football players know what they are going into under the modern regime. But crowds—big stadia—or stadiums—big headlines. This may be all wrong. But anyway, there it is. And pride must make those who care to risk the adventure, give some extra time toward getting ready for the pageant.

Ross Saye, Howard Scott and Ensign Rexford, the three athletes from the high school who won places in the district interscholastic league meet which was held in Wichita Falls April 13, will not journey to Austin on May 3 to enter the state track meet, according to J. N. Hall, coach of the Coyote track team. The three athletes earned the right to enter the state meet by winning a first or second place in the meet, but the rebate on expenses as provided for by the association, was insufficient for the athlete's needs, according to Coach Hall. Help from the school board was entirely impractical, according to J. W. Cantwell, city superintendent of schools.

Copies of the Coyote, high school year book, from the time of its first editon until the present time now appear in the display cabinet in the main corridor of the building and show the progress that has been made in the school annual each year since the time of the first edition, which was edited in 1912 under the name of "The Sunflower."

The new 1929 edition of The Coyote will be distributed on Friday afternoon at 3:20 o'clock, according to Miss Louise Kelly, sponsor of the year book.

City Places Orders For Incinerator Material

Materials to be used in the repair of the city incinerator and the extent of the repairs to be made on the plant were given a thorough checking Tuesday morning by George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

It will take about 30 days for the material to reach here and work will be started immediately after its arrival. It was estimated that the work will be completed within two weeks after the material is received.

275 BIRDS IN PIGEON RACE

Prizes Offered for Title Event May 1

Plans are rapidly being completed for the West Texas Pigeon derby which is to be staged on May 1, with a prize of $100 in gold for the bird registering the greatest speed in flight, according to Harry Kessinger, in charge of the event.

More than 275 pigeons from Wichita Falls already have been entered in the race, They are to be taken to different cities in West Texas, numbering about 26, and will be released by city officials and chamber of commerce executives in those places at 10 a. m. on May 1.

At the same hour Miss Bonnie Dale, well know aviatrix, will leave Lubbock, it was stated, by airplane, and will make the best speed possible to this city, in order to afford a comparison between the flying rates of the ship and the pigeons. The $100 will be awarded to the owner of the pigeon which shows the highest miles-per-hour speed, Mr. Kessinger stated. There will be numerous other prizes for leading contenders.

The race is being sponsored by the Orgatone company, which Mr. Kessinger represents.

HOOVER FINDS CONGRESS COOL

Immigration and Farm Aid In Controversy

benture plan Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, sponsor of the plan, vigorously criticized the president's statement opposing it, while Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, pointed out the committee had been unanimously for it until Mr. Hoover's statement.

Tariff Called Subsidy

"The tariff is just as much a subsidy for the manufacturing interests as the debenture plan would be for the farmer," Caraway declared. "A bounty of $146,000,000 which the debenture plan would provide is an unseemly gift to 25,000,000 of our people in distress, after we gave the railroads a bounty of $500,000,000."

Questioning the ability of Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to discuss the debenture plan, Caraway said:

"Hyde had no ideas when he came before the committee and if he has any now he has recently acquired them."

Several house Democrats revived the ghost of the old equalization fee, Representative Bankhead of Alabama twitting Representative Dickinson, Republican, Iowa, leader of the house farm bloc, for dropping his suport of the fee. Dickinson retorted that all of the principles of the old McNary-Haugen bill except the fee were in the present bill, and the election had proved the farmers did not want that form of relief.

"Mr. Hoover is a great man. He not only has buffaloed the Republicans, but also the Democrats."

FARM EXPERT PREDICTS RECORD CROPS FOR SOUTH PLAINS AREA

SOIL IN FINE SHAPE, HE SAYS

Experiment Station Head Makes Calculations

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, April 23.—Everything possible to investigate gives high promise of one of the best crop years in the history of the South Plains, according to Don L. Jones, superintendent of the State Agricultural Experiment station, located east of Lubbock.

"While not pretending to prophesy, and of course not knowing what might happen to us in the future," says Mr. Jones, "a diagnosis of conditions as they are today, based on what has gone before us in the months preceding, gives us many things over which we might feel optimistic and cheered, with the outlook for crops this year."

Five Major Factors

Mr. Jones explains that there are five major factors to be studied in arriving at an understanding outlook upon conditions. These are soil, moisture, temperature, rainfall, frost and early planting.

Soil and moisture has been good, he says, because of the October and December rains. Added to these we experienced a cloudy February, which held down evaporation. These conditions have put the ground in good shape for seedbed preparation, as well as providing good moisture for sod, which has been put in fine shape.

The extremely cold February killed a large number of insects that were hibernating over the winter season underground. These were frozen, especially the boll worms. The chances are that there will be no heavy boll worm infestation this year, unless we have a wet July and a wet August.

Work in Cycles

"Boll worm infestations seem to go in cycles," Mr. Jones remarks, "and I don't think we need have any great degree of fear because of boll worms this year."

He continued with the information that one of the biggest pests we have to contend with is lice, or aphids, on cotton. These will be with us more or less, because of our cool nights. They multiply more in the cold. But the state entomologist, Dr. F. L. Thomas, who made a preliminary survey and a close study of this pest last year, has high hopes of being able to do more work of exterminating, or at least, of combatting, ravages from this pest the coming season.

The heavy rainfall during the month of March, as records of the past 18 years reveal, considering the past history and a law of averages, point to an entire season with ample rainfall. Only two times in the past 19 years has the month of March showed heavier rainfall than this March. These were in 1915 and 1919. Both years, the wet March was followed by a wet April and a full season of rain. The only problem of rainfall is having it come distributed properly over the entire crop-growing time.

Frosts Cause Worry

Some folks have been bothered lately by fear of damaging frosts, but Mr. Jones points to the records of the past as indicative of cheer. Out of the 18 years in which records have been kept, this section has had only five frosts after the 15th day of April, and only two of these were severe enough to injure growing fruit.

Early planting is a subject that should be closely studied, Jones contends. During only one out of five years have the April plantings of feed given better yields than planting done in the month of May.

In 1923 we had an extra heavy feed crop, but not such a big acreage, the yield being responsible.

Cotton, planted early, is all right and very wise, but in planting feed crops it is well to remember that the records show we have our long dry period beginning with about the middle of July.

With these feed crops planted now, when this dry spell comes, they will be going into heads and will demand much more moisture at that time than at any time during growth of stalks. But waiting until May, time for feed stuff to grow heads will be delayed until past the middle August time, when the rains will start again, if the records offer any means of judging.

Price Outlook Good

The price outlook this year is exceedingly favorable. Because of many storms, floods and hails in the eastern and southern portion of the nation, many crops in these sections will necessarily have to be replanted. This, in itself, will tend to boost the price of crops raised in this area, as the demand will be greater with a shortage, or a late crop, obtaining in other sections.

Replanting will include both the cotton crops and the feed crops. "All in all," as Mr. Jones told members of the Lubbock Rotary club yesterday, "I would advise the merchants to stock up heavily with merchandise. If we do not make big yields this year in all crops, then there will be big stocks of goods on hand and we can have many sales that will offer us large assortments of goods from which to choose."

Simms Has Well Doing 2,000 Bbls.

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., April 23.—The Simms Oil company No. 1 Laster, in the southeast of the northeast of the northeast of 19-6-4, south of Asher, in Pottawatomie county, was drilled into the pay just a week ago, and has held a daily average of more than 2,000 barrels of oil. It was deepened one foot Sunday, and the output increased to 2,700 barrels for the 24 hours ending Monday morning. The well produced 2,228 barrels Sunday morning.

On account of the large flow of oil, the operators are unable to catch a sample of the formation in the bottom of the hole and are therefore, unable to determine whether the well is producing from the Simpson sand or still in the Viola lime. The last samples which were taken from the well show it is in the Viola lime. The total depth is now at 3699 feet and early Monday morning, the well was flowing at the rate of 110 barrels an hour.

Oil Firm and Aged Veteran Alike Meet City's Refusal in Tax Appeal

Two persons, one the manager of a leading oil company, and the other a grayhaired veteran of the Civil war, petitioned the city council Monday night at its regular weekly meeting to dismiss penalties on taxes past due for several years.

The manager of the petroleum company applied to the council by letter to dismiss penalties against his firm on several thousand dollars of delinquent taxes. He alleged that they had been allowed to go unpaid by a predecessor without the knowledge of the heads of the company.

The veteran came to the council meeting with the aid of a walking cane. He was dressed in overalls and a khaki coat, but wearing his war medal pinned proudly upon his chest.

He told the aldermen that he had bought a small piece of land about a year ago and had not examined his abstract at the time of the purchase for unpaid taxes. He was notified later that he owed several seasons of back taxes on his place.

Like the oil company manager the old gentleman asked the council to dismiss the penalties on the delinquent taxes. The council voted to take no action on the company's oil case while the old man was told that commissioners had no power to dismiss the penalties on his small tract of land.

Deputy Defeats Prisoner's Plan To Escape Jail

Dick Morris, deputy sheriff, thwarted what is believed to have been a plan for a break from the county jail Tuesday morning when he took two jack knives from a prisoner who had gained access to the office of the jail by answering to another man's name.

Mr. Morris, who had come to the jail to take another prisoner into court, immediately challenged the second man when he appeared down stairs, having been liberated from the upstairs "cage" when he responded to the other man's name. W. W. Allen, jailor, has been in the position for only a few weeks and has not become acquainted with all the prisoners by name.

"That's not the man," Mr. Morris announced and immediately subjected the prisoner to a search which revealed the two knives. Officers expressed the opinion that the prisoner, who is held on a capital charge, might have planned to gain possession of the jail keys when he was alone with the jailor in the downstairs office, or to make a break for liberty as he crossed the lawn between the courthouse and the jail.

SALAMANDERS

'Mystery' Reptiles at City Zoo Identified By Bunnenberg

Wichita Falls' two "mystery" reptiles which were donated to the municipal zoo last week by J. T. Taylor, 1516 Harrison street, were entered on the zoo books as salamanders, C. C. Bunnenberg said Tuesday.

The two reptiles have six tentacles about the head similar to the horns of a horned frog and are about four inches long with a body like a tadpole or catfish and four legs.

The nearest description of animals or reptiles similar to the pair which could be found in research in zoology data was the salamander. Mr. Bunnenberg said. The reptiles strangely resemble salamanders but are not true types, it was found.

They were found in a muddy pond on the Taylor ranch near Clarendon.

'Big Ten' Operators Come to Life And Push Stock Sales to Higher Plane

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, April 23. (US)—More active participation in dealings by the most powerful individuals in the "Big Ten" brought new buying into the stock market today. It offset a tighter money market and closed the list higher as turnover increased to over the 4,000,000 share level.

Stocks in which these magnates were interested led trading, with General Motors gaining 2⅞, Mexican Seaboard 3⅝, Trico Products 3⅝, Johns-Manville three, and Yellow Truck closing fractionally higher.

Simms Petroleum with over three point gain to a new high featured a strong Oil group. Consolidated Gas added two points to its climb while Carbide moved fractionally higher. New Haven held the lead of a quiet and firm rail group with further gain of 2¾. Coppers were dull and irregular.

Banks called some loans to make adjustment with the reserve and the call rate went from renewal of 7½ to eight percent.

Just before election day good buying was reported in Electric Bond & Share. Public Service of New Jersey and other Utilities in this column. What they have done since is a matter of record. The same interests now are picking up the stock of the United Corporation in the over-the-counter market. Before long, it is expected, the stock will be listed on the big board. United Corporation is the investment trust formed by the Morgan interests to hold utilility securities and operate utility properties. Plans for expanding activity and adding to income are rapidly nearing consummation, Commonwealth Power is attracting attention, due to expectation that the shares will be split up on a three for one basis in the near future.

Greater attention was attracted to Simms Petroleum as 100,000 shares in a block was taken at a new high price for the move early in the day. Then the stock advanced with even greater vigor with the powerful group interested more active than ever. Richfield was mentioned as likely to go into the Sinclair organization but those who should know most of the plans of the Sinclair management state that Sinclair will take over a western property but will not be Richfield. Investment buying continues in Atlantic Refining. Mexican Seaboard directors meet tomorrow and there is reason to believe that they are more than satisfied with the improvement in operations recorded in the last several weeks and the outlook for further betterment.

Controlling interests in Baldwin give steady support to the stock as they are highly optimistic on the outlook and have recapitalization plans well in shape. A good deal of the preferred stock is held by institutions in Pennsylvania so that it may be necessary to redeem it for cash instead of exchanging it for common. However, with the increasing value of its Philadelphia plant, Baldwin is in position to pay off all the preferred, if necessary. The report of further gain in income of Allis Chalmers during the first quarter of the year resulted in the new high price for the stock. With only one class of stock, Allis shareholders should reap increasing benefit from the further gain in earnings looked for as the company adds to its new tractor business.

Return of the most powerful interests in the "Big Ten" was most apparent in General Motors and stocks of associated companies, mainly Yellow Truck and Trico Products. Those dominating the affairs of General Motors have just returned from Europe and are more bullish on their corporation than ever, if that were possible. Record breaking earnings are forecast for the current quarter. These Motors interests are working with the group in Yellow and in connection with its sustained strength it is expected further revelation of improvement in income will be made in the near future. Buying of Trico was experienced coincident with advice that the five year contract of the company with General Motors practically guarantees current dividends and earnings for a long time. With net at the rate of $6 a share, it was pointed out, Trico was out of line with all other motor accessory stocks.

Our ..... Lost and Found Column .....

The other day a poor hard working boy was walking along the street—in the outskirts of town—he glanced down at the gutter and saw a shining object. He picked it up—it was a bar pin set with brilliants. He supposed it was a "10 cent store diamond"—putting it in his pocket.

But the days did not bring work—so at last he went into a store and asked what they would give him for his pin. They said $5 . . and the boy was happy. However before he could get out of the store the police came and arrested him for stealing the pin.

He had a great deal of trouble in proving his innocence. The judge said to him "My boy, there has been an Ad in the Lost and Found column of The Daily Times-Record News for weeks, offering a reward of ONE thousand dollars for the return of that pin."

The boy was heartsick—a thousand dollars was so close to him—he was hungry.

He is a well fixed man today—but he learned his lesson—he reads the Classified Section of Daily Times-Record News every day now.

Something like this might happen to you—so take good advice and read our Ads each day!

JURY CALLS 25 WITNESSES

Burglary Investigation To Open Thursday

Twenty-five witnesses have been summoned to appear before the 30th district grand jury for April which will reconvene Thursday to complete investigation of a series of burglaries from private residences here during the past two months, George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney, announced Tuesday.

Evidence gathered during and since a sheriff's department raid on a Burnett street apartment house, resulting in the recovery of several thousand dollars worth of stolen goods two weeks, ago will be presented to the group. Five burglary charges have been filed against T. O. Cagle and two against Mrs. O. T. Hart, arrested at separate residences at the time of the raid.

Members of the sheriff's department are continuing investigations which are expected to lead to the recovery of more loot and to several additional arrests, but the work of the present grand jury is expected to center about evidence already in the possession of officers. Eighteen Wichita Falls householders have identified goods recovered in the raid and a large number of them are expected to offer their testimony to the investigating body.

BAD EXAMPLE WORST OF SINS

Influence Over Others Must Be Considered—Moreland

"As a man dies in his soul there are others who die with him," Rev. Patrick Dacus Moreland, pastor of the Grant Street Methodist church, told his congregation Tuesday night at the third meeting of a revival which opened Sunday.

"I know a lot of people who are running toward the graveyard of burned out hopes," he said. "Some of them are burning up their souls with bootleg whisky.

"My friends, the hardest thing which you will have to answer for on the judgment day will not be your own sins but those caused by the bad example you have set for your children and your friends.

"As a man dies in his soul, there are others who die with him. No man liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself. There are people who exert a tremendous influence over others without ever speaking to them."

Ushurs were forced to open up one of the wing rooms on one side of the main church auditorium in order to provide seats for the crowd that attended the meeting Tuesday night.

Mrs. H. G. Holcomb sang a special musical number. Twenty-seven members of the congregation gave testimonials of the blessings already received by them since the two-weeks meeting had started.

Cottage prayer meetings will be held at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the homes of Mrs. W. H. Black, 2706½ Grant street, and Mrs. O. F. Coleman, 2100 Fillmore street. Mrs. Holcomb will conduct a 30-minute prayer meeting at the chruch before the service opens at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday.

Scott Takes Office As School Trustee

Paul B. Scott, recently elected trustee of the Wichita Falls school board, was installed in office Tuesday at a called meeting of the board at the City National bank building.

A committee was also appointed to recommend an American history to the state board of education. If the history is adopted by the state board of education it will be used as a text book in Texas high schools, Mr. Brown said.

TRY, TRY AGAIN ADAGE ALWAYS WORKS WONDERS

"I Took All Kinds of Medicines and Treatments and Got Steadily Worse, But Orgatone Has Built Me Up. I Have Gained 22 Pounds," Says Wichita Housewife.

The old adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," has worked wonders for most of us. Some time in the lives of everyone we imagine things are going against us. The weaker become discouraged and give up, while the stronger face this great game of life with staunch hearts, clear brains and steady hands and with this good old adage as a slogan.

Probably more people become discouraged over continued ill health than from any other cause. The records of every city will bear this out. Others, who probably suffered as much physical pain and agony as their mentally weaker brothers, will not give up the fight, but will do all in their power to gain relief.

Such is the case of Mrs. N. B. Rawls of 204 Burnett street, Wichita Falls, Texas, wife of an employe of the Empire Paper Co. She says:

"I took all kinds of medicines and treatments, for my condition, but nothing seemed to help me and I got steadily worse. But I just kept on trying and finally decided to try Orgatone. I have gained 22 pounds and look and feel like a different person. I have more pep and energy than I have had for years.

"I suffered from gall bladder and stomach trouble, and had a bad case of indigestion. I just got to where I couldn't eat anything but orange juice and raw eggs, my stomach bothered me so. I had terrible dizzy headaches, and lost in weight until I only weighed 98 pounds, and guess I would have weighed less, if it hadn't been for Orgatone. I have gained in strength and all of my headaches are gone, and I eat anything I want and don't suffer with gas at all. I am glad to give this statement for what Orgatone has done for me."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy, but a new scientific bile treatment and may be obtained in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Other agencies are the City Drug Store, Burkburnett; the Tarlton Drug Co., at Electra, and the Vernon Drug Co., at Vernon, Texas. —Adv.

Prof. Glynn Lives Up to Advance Notices in Organ Concert Here

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

Completing a trio of musical programs given here in the last four days in which citizens of Wichita Falls and vicinity have been afforded artistry unexcelled in the United States, Prof. Franklin Glynn of Memphis, Tenn., entertained a gathering of approximately 1,200 persons for two hours Tuesday night with a varied and impressive recital on the organ of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Professor Glynn opened with Hollin's "Concert Overture," the various movements of which demonstrated the artist's control in the expression of changing moods. The oft-repeated melony, progressing in a fugued arrangement, rose to a resounding climax of full organ. The delicate theme of Mozart's minuet, light and graceful as the dancing brocade and lace, was given in a wistful, muted tone of appealing sweetness.

An outstanding number, which fittingly closed the program as arranged by Prof. Glynn, was a tone poem, "Finlandia," by Sibelius. The grief and sorrow of an oppressed people, followed by a challenging note of martial conflict, then a chorus of triumph; a hymn of thanksgiving and peace, and a concluding refrain of exultation were painted as clearly in the score as in a living picture. During the period of Russian control over Finland, the performance of this number was forbidden because it invariably stirred the Finnish masses into a renewed struggle for freedom.

Professor Glynn's concert here was arranged through the courtesy of the four local citizens who were donors of the Reuter organ placed in the new Methodist church building. He will leave Wichita Falls Wednesday for Brenham, Texas, where a concert will be given before the organist returns to his home in Memphis.

The complete program follows:

Concert Overture No. 2 in C Minor	Hollins
Minuet in D	Mozart
Largo in G	Handel
Fugue, in D Minor	Bach
Scherzo in E	Cigout
"Solveig's Song"	Grieg
"Musique Des Automates"	Delibes
Finale in B Flat	Franck
Idyl "Southern Twilight"	Glynn
Intermezzo "Springtime"	Glynn
Tone Poem "Finlandia"	Sibelius

Spudders Lose Before Throng

ing the parade and at the ball park. They were the prize-winning Burkburnett high school musicians, Paul Seeds' band, the Elks club band and C. C. Bunnenberg's playground band.

The Elks had a reserved section in the deep stands back of the plate.

Old Sol obligingly came out from behind the clouds before noon to save the day, but a high wind made it disagreeable for players and spectators.

Pennants Afloat

The Spudders were resplendent in their white uniforms, trimmed in glittering orange. The Sports were arrayed in the customary gray of a club on the road.

Texas league and Dixie championship pennants, won by the Wichita Falls team in 1927, floated from the flag pole in center field.

The Spudders were accorded a tremendous ovation as they trotted to their places for fielding practice. R. O. Harvey warmed up with Pete Lapan.

The Sports were given a courtesy cheer as they took their places for a defensive drill. Umpires Donohue and Kane were attired in natty white flannel trousers and their usual blue coats.

Players of both clubs lined up along the base lines leading from home plate while Harold Story, the expert photographer, made their picture.

Boy scouts and firemen acted as ushers.

Fire in Vacant House Causes $2,000 Damage

Damage estimated at more than $2,000 was caused by flames which ravaged a vacant house at 1104 Seventeenth street Tuesday night shortly after 10 o'clock.

The residence belonged to C. H. Foley but it had not been occupied for several months, residents in the neighborhood said.

The origin of the fire could not be ascertained Tuesday night though the greater part of the residence was destroyed by the blaze.

The garage of I. N. Stubblefield, 1606 Austin street, was ignited from the sparks fanned by high wind and was slightly damaged before firemen extinguished the blaze.

FOURTH MAN IN THEFTS HELD

C. A. Wright Arrested At Oklahoma City

C. A. Wright, the fourth suspect named in charges filed here in connection with a series of recent burglaries, was arrested in Oklahoma City late Tuesday afternoon under instructions from the office of Sheriff W. G. Bralley, according to information received here Tuesday night. The arrest followed investigations completed last Saturday and Sunday by Sam Spence, district attorney, in conference with officials here and in Oklahoma.

Wright has declared that he will fight extradition to Texas, Mr. Bralley was informed in a long distance telephone conference. Warren W. Belcher, deputy sheriff, left Tuesday night for Oklahoma City where he will handle the case for the sheriff's office here.

According to information in the hands of officials here, Wright has been twice convicted, once for grand larceny and has served terms in the Oklahoma and Louisiana penitentiaries. He is 32 years old.

The arrest Tuesday night is the latest development in an investigation begun two weeks ago when the sheriff's department recovered several thousand dollars worth of stolen goods from an apartment on Burnett street, most of which has since been identified as property taken from at least 18 Wichita Falls homes during the past two months. T. O. Cagle and Mrs. O. T. Hart, arrested here at the time of the raid, and a third man whose name was not revealed, are held under burglary charges. The result of the investigation are to be laid before the 30th district grand jury when it reconvenes here Thursday.

Wichita Falls Bids For Press Meeting

Ray Nichols, editor of the Vernon Record, and Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, expect to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Texas State Press association, where they will extend an invitation for the annual convention of that organization to meet in Wichita Falls in June.

Mr. Nichols, who is a member of the executive committee, stated Tuesday that another city which had been selected as the 1929 convention site has notified the committee that it cannot entertain the annual gathering of newspaper men of this state. Neither he nor Mr. Harrison had been advised as to whether invitations from other cities will be presented before the committee meeting at Dallas, but declared that an effort will be made to bring the convention to this city.

De Rivera's Rule Assailed in New Manifesto Threatening Bolshevism

HENDAYE, FRENCH-SPANISH Border, April 23. (UP)—A sensational manifesto attacking the government of Premier Primo de Rivera and declaring that bolshevism is about to be born in the Spanish army has been circulated in Madrid, according to advices received from the Spanish capital tonight.

The manifesto, of which Alejandro Lerroux, noted Republican leader, is said to be the author, asserted that King Alfonso could not ask the premier-dictator to resign if he desired and suggested that a national form of government be evolved in which all sections of public would be represented.

Urging the public to work towards convocation of a constitutional assembly, the manifesto said "provosion might be made whereby King Alfonso would go to America from which he would return as a Spanish citizen in case the assembly should decide in favor of a republic," according to advices received here.

Political circles were described as amazed by the attack on the dictator, who has put down subversive movements with an iron hand during his regime.
