Swollen rivers close in

Officials order evacuation as waterways near

■ Drenching thunderstorms bear down on St. Louis area, heighten fears.

Associated Press

Several hundred Missouri residents still living on a narrow peninsula between the swollen Mississippi and Missouri rivers were ordered to leave Thursday when officials warned that a levee wouldn't keep the waterways apart.

About 7,000 residents had been ordered to leave the peninsula in St. Charlges County north of St. Louis but some had defied the evacuation orders.

Drenching thunderstorms continued to bear down on the area Thursday, increasing fears that the rivers, swollen for more than a month, would converge 20 miles upstream of where they normally do.

President Clinton, who has stopped in flood-stricken Iowa twice in two weeks, will tour the St. Louis area Saturday, the White House announced. The Mississippi reached a record height of 43.3 feet at St. Louis on Thursday and is expected to crest there Monday at more than 15 feet over flood stage.

Upriver, water percolated up through the ground in East Carondolet, Ill., buckling streets and bursting water mains, as the powerful Mississippi forced the water table above street level and muscled through levees. Mayor Herb Simmons said 12 families in the town of 600 were evacuated.

In other parts of the Midwest, people put their backs into early cleanup efforts even as they cast wary eyes toward the skies.

Des Moines, Iowa, officials delayed by another day their projected date when 250,000 people will get back running water, knocked out early Sunday when flood waters spilled into the Des Moines Water Works.

Alpine ticket wins

An Alpine convenience store sold one of the two tickets that matched all six numbers Wednesday night in Lotto Texas, lottery officials said Thursday. But the owner of the ticket — who will split a $10 million jackpot — remains a mystery, said Manuel Domingo, a clerk at Triangle Foods in Alpine. "We're baffled. I guess the person may have left town or forgot they bought a ticket," he said. "I hope they remember soon." So do lottery officials.

HOUSTON — A man who didn't like the way a cheeseburger was prepared has been served 10 years in prison for breaking a waitress' jaw with a ketchup bottle. Donnis Ray Hancock, 24, was sentenced Wednesday and won't become eligible for parole until 1995 because the jury ruled the bottle was a deadly weapon. Hancock had ordered a hamburger Feb. 26 for a child of his. Prosecutor Vanessa Velasquez said he had the burger sent back to the kitchen because it had the wrong kind of cheese. Then it was sent back because it didn't have onions. It was sent back a third time because it had no pickles. The waitress then left and was replaced by Tiffany Loraine Davenport. When Hancock demanded ketchup from the 17-year-old, she pointed him to a condiment table. Hancock came back with a bottle, accused her of having an "attitude" and smashed her in the face.

Juvenile-crime session draws wide response

■ State advisory board hits city seeking solutions.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

Midland's grand jury report on teen alcohol, drug abuse, and gang activity — well known locally — is on its way to the governor's office.

District Attorney Al Schorre submitted it during a hearing conducted by the Governor's Juvenile Justice & Delinquency Prevention Advisory Board on Thursday.

The advisory board was in Midland seeking information on how to prevent and reduce juvenile crime.

Schorre said other counties are beginning to conduct similar investigations to take responsibility for curbing crime.

"Ector County has done this. San Angelo is in the process of doing it and more communities are getting involved at the local level," he said. "Midland does not have any problems any other communities don't have at the same rates."

Schorre said Midland County has had three capital murder cases in the last 18

Library turns page, begins expansion move

By Katherine Poteet

The Midland County Library will be closed for three weeks to begin moving materials from the old portion of the building into the newly completed expansion.

"We're basically just moving stuff into the new part of the library so that we can repaint and clean up the old part," said Sandra Wegener, county librarian. "We aren't nearly going to be finished in three weeks. This is just to get stuff moved."

The move is part of the library's $2.5 million expansion project, which will double the size of the existing library.

The library will reopen for business on Aug. 2. Until then, residents may still use the Midland Centennial Branch Library at Midland Park Mall.

Mrs. Wegener said because the library was still operating up until it closed Monday, the staff spent most of this week packing and getting items ready to move.

"It's just like moving in a regular business," she said. "You have to pack up office materials, unplug computers and stuff like that. Then, we have to move all the books.

"It's like spring cleaning," she said. "We haven't done any major moving or anything in 30 years. But, I'm proud of us. We haven't had a major catastrophe yet."

She said the library purchased new furniture but it has yet to come in.

"We are just going to have to scatter all the old furniture everywhere until it gets here."

Son-in-law's acquittal bittersweet for dead woman's kin

By Mike Carter
Associated Press writer

SALT LAKE CITY — For Orren and Frances Jenkins, the hard part was burying their daughter and three grandchildren.

Then came what Orren Jenkins calls "the mean part": defending their son-in-law, Sam Kastanis, against charges that he killed his wife and three children.

After a jury Wednesday acquitted Kastanis of capital homicide, the verdict was bittersweet for the dead woman's parents. When their son-in-law emerged a free man, the Jenkinses had to face the reality that their dead daughter was a mad woman who killed her kids.

"I feel guilty in some ways," Mrs. Jenkins said Thursday. Her daughter had come to her in the weeks before the Nov. 17, 1991, slayings and threatened suicide.

Mrs. Jenkins told her not to talk of such things.

"I was thinking it would bring her to sensible thinking," she said.

Instead, according to defense theory and evidence presented at trial, 38-year-old Margaret Kastanis' depression and paranoia only deepened. Her psychologist testified that she suffered from depression and paranoia and could have been diagnosed as paranoid schizophrenic.

Her sickness reached its nadir early one Sunday morning, when her three children, ages 6, 9 and 11, were stabbed and bludgeoned to death in their home.

Then, according to defense experts, Mrs. Kastanis stabbed herself four times in the chest, dying alongside her two daughters, Chrissy and Melissa, in a bedroom.

Kastanis, 45, stumbled across his bloody

Senate panel delays hearing on surgeon general nominee

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee postponed confirmation hearings for President Clinton's choice for surgeon general on Thursday as the White House announced a review of her presence on the Arkansas payroll while drawing a $550-a-day federal consulting fee.

The White House said late Thursday it welcomed the delay, saying it would give the nominee, Dr. Joycelyn Elders, "an opportunity to provide thorough answers to any outstanding questions."

"President Clinton is 100 percent committed to Mrs. Elders' nomination and looks forward to her timely confirmation," press secretary Dee Dee Myers said in a written statement.

Researchers find genetic link to male homosexuality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers have identified a gene pattern linked to male homosexuality, adding powerful new evidence to the scientific theory that the tendency to be gay can be inherited.

The finding does not prove homosexuality in males is genetically compelled, but it does show that the sexual orientation is powerfully influenced by inherited genes, said Dean Hamer, principal author of the study appearing Friday in the journal Science.

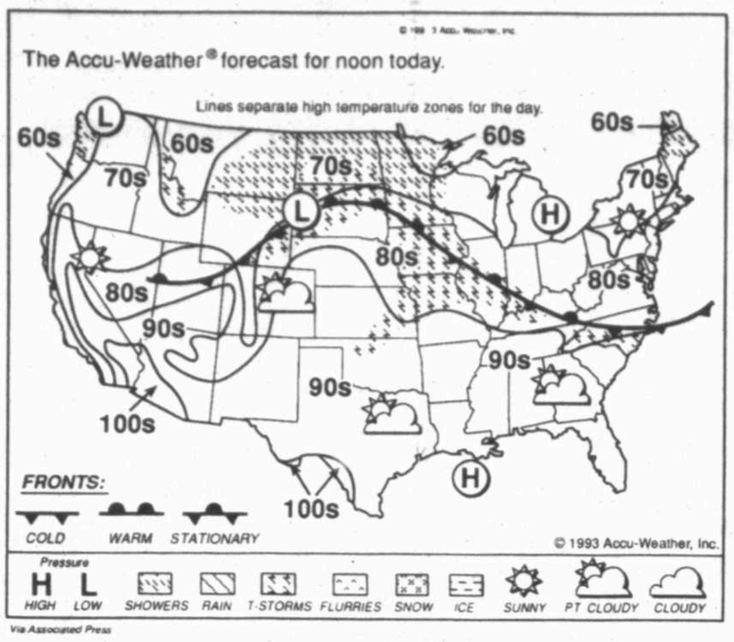

"This is the strongest evidence to date that there is an important genetic component to sexual orientation," Hamer said in an interview.

Evidence of a gay gene was found by studying the X chromosome in 40 pairs of homosexual brothers. Thirty-three pairs

RIVERS: Heavy rains threaten some areas

(From 1A)

Water won't flow from taps until Monday because 20 million gallons must first fill the maze of pipes and tanks in the water system, said L.D. McMullen, general manager of the plant.

The water won't be fit to drink for at least a month.

McMullen warned that only two of three huge pumps are expected to be running, so conserving water will be essential.

"Use it like gold," he said.

In the meantime, Des Moines Mayor John Dorrian barred nonessential workers from downtown buildings because sprinklers won't work and the city can't provide sanitation. Though downtown bridges reopened Thursday over the receding Des Moines River, few people, other than National Guard troops, were on the streets.

Sewage and other contaminants in floodwaters were blamed for bacterial infections that sickened four people in the Iowa City area, doctors there said. Though tetanus shots are being administered in many flood areas, Charles Driscoll, head of family practice at University Hospitals, said these infections weren't tetanus.

The floods have been blamed for at least 25 deaths and at least $5 billion in damage in eight states. More than 16,000 square miles of farmland have been flooded, about 1,600 homes have been damaged, and more than 150 levees have burst. Clinton has declared 228 counties, including all 99 in Iowa, federal disaster areas, and proposed at least $2.5 billion in federal aid.

Even though no significant amounts of rain fell Thursday in central Iowa and the Raccoon River was receding quickly, West Des Moines Fire Chief Randy Bracken recommended that 3,500 people evacuated Saturday stay away from their homes.

"The weather service is not giving me much hope," Bracken said. Forecasters said strong thunderstorms would strike over the weekend.

The National Weather Service issued a flash flood watch for the St. Louis area, as strong thunderstorms gathered and produced some drenching downpours. As much as 2 inches of rain was expected in some areas.

The Mississippi River surpassed the 1973 record height of 43.23 feet at St. Louis on Thursday morning and kept rising, with an expected crest of 45.5 feet on Monday, though a floodwall was expected to avert damage to downtown St. Louis.

The Missouri River, which reached a record level Thursday at Jefferson City, Mo., and parallels the Mississippi for about 15 miles before they meet north of St. Louis, was expected to crest at the rivers' confluence Friday. That left the peninsula between the rivers, including West Alton, Mo., in a squeeze.

St. Charles County Emergency Management officials ordered remaining residents in three mobile home parks, surrounding homes and businesses in parts of the city of St. Charles and north St. Charles County to evacuate immediately.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said the Missouri River will crest at 37 feet Saturday. The levee can only withstand 35 to 36 feet, said Petra Haws, spokeswoman for St. Charles County. She said the integrity of the levee was not threatened, however. If it was overtopped by flood waters, there would not be a washout.

Two more minor levees broke there Thursday. Mississippi River backwaters have swept nearly 9 miles inland and are lapping at the back of the levee.

"If it breaks, all that water from the Missouri is going to start pouring into St. Charles County," said Marty Limpert of the county emergency command post, who estimated several hundred people are still living in the evacuation zone.

"It would be a major concern," he said, although he added, "I don't want to scare anybody" because the levee appeared to be holding.

In other places, cleanup was under way.

ACQUIT: Husband gets support from in-laws unconscious son, Clinton, in a bathroom after coming inside from a workshed. He was arrested later that day.

At a news conference Thursday, Kastanis appeared bewildered with his freedom after 10 months in jail.

"The best thing of all is just coming out and seeing this beautiful sky," he said. "Fresh air. Freedom. What more can you say? . . .

"I've lost a wife and three kids that I loved dearly," he said. "But for myself, the truth prevailed. My life goes on."

The case was a rarity among family murder cases in that the deaths did not split the accused and victim's families. The Jenkinses and Margaret's five siblings helped pay for Kastanis' defense and testified on his behalf. And they wept with joy when he was freed.

Still, Frances and Orren Jenkins have a hard time believing their eldest daughter capable of turning her immaculate home into a slaughterhouse.

Orren Jenkins, 67, is a plainspoken man, a retired trucker and construction worker who has "worked in the dirt one way or another all my life." He is not easily convinced of anything — certainly not that his daughter is a killer.

"We're in the dark about what actually happened in that house," Jenkins said. "In my mind, the question will always be there that there was an intruder of some kind. I just don't want to accept the fact that Margaret could have done it."

Police ruled out the possibility of an unknown assailant, leaving Kastanis their prime suspect. The defense countered with evidence his wife experienced a slow slide into homicidal madness.

"The Margaret we knew couldn't have done it," Mrs. Jenkins said. "But she was ill, I'll be the first to admit."

As with her husband, there is a glimmer of denial. In her case, though, it stretches to doubt.

"If — and this is a very big if — if Sam did it, then he didn't know what he was doing," she said.

Yet, to Mrs. Jenkins, it is almost as inconceivable that the seemingly imperturbable Kastanis could have committed the savagery visited upon her child and grandchildren.

"In our hearts, we knew this wasn't his nature," she said. "Seeing him in jail, him calling twice a week. You just know it wasn't so."

The Jenkinses say there is no room for bitterness or anger right now.

PLANS: City abandons privatization idea

(From 1A)

ated with the landfill," he said. "And that was the main reason for even considering it."

During the last year, four different companies approached city officials with various proposals to privatize local operations — including one plan to build a recycling center.

Two different companies wanted to buy the landfill and charge the city dumping expenses. One of the companies was also interested in handling garbage collection.

"Basically the idea of privatization is a way to save money. With sanitation, if you're picking it up by hand it makes sense to privatize and lose the liability associated with things like back injuries and mashed fingers," said Ken Jones, director of Utilities. "But we use one guy and a hydraulic system to lift the dumpsters. We already do it cheaper than most places. Privatizing didn't make sense."

City officials broke off final discussions after learning they would not be able to eliminate future liability concerns.

"If the company that took over ended up closing down, then the liability goes back to us," Jones said. "Once you have that landfill, you're liable for at least 30 years after it's closed. And really you're liable forever."

The city currently has three closed landfills.

City officials relocated the Animal Control shelter in 1991 because it was located on top of a landfill that had started to settle — resulting in a cracked foundation and problems with methane gas.

In October, new environmental regulations from the Texas Water Commission will raise the cost of dumping at the landfill to about $24 a ton from the current cost of $9.50 a ton. The increase will be reflected on local water bills and will effect homeowners and apartment renters.

The regulations will force city officials to monitor methane gas periodically and place plastic liners along the bottom of each landfill to guard against hazardous water runoff.

Jones believes the city could eventually secure a permit to allow them to dump 25 feet higher at the landfill pits, which would bring the dumping cost back down to $13.50 a ton or less.

In many cities in the Northeast, the cost of dumping is over $100 a ton.

"We have 40 years worth of dumping left at our landfill. And we handle over 130,000 tons of waste a year," Jones said. "Those two reasons make it very attractive for these companies to want to take over. These companies operate landfills all over the world. It's their business."

DELAYS: Senate panel postpones hearings

(From 1A)

Under pressure from Republicans, the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee agreed to a one-week delay in the confirmation hearing for Elders, the 59-year-old head of the Arkansas state health agency. The hearing had been set for Friday.

The attacks drew a sharp response from Arkansas Democratic Sen. David Pryor, who said Elders' critics were resorting to "innuendo" and "attempts at character assassination." HHS secretary Donna Shalala also renewed her support.

Elders had previously drawn strong criticism from conservatives for her support of abortion rights and sex education. The questions of dual government jobs — one in Arkansas, the other in Washington — provided her critics with fresh ammunition.

Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., noted that Arkansas Gov. Jim Guy Tucker had expressed unhappiness over the nominee's double paycheck, even though Elders said she was taking vacation time to work in Washington. Nickles said the Senate should determine whether any state law was being broken.

At the White House, spokeswoman Myers told reporters that officials are looking into the question of Elders' dual compensation as well as reports that her husband didn't pay Social Security taxes on a nurse for his 97-year-old mother.

SESSION: State advisory board hits town seeking solutions months. "All of them (the suspects) were dropouts," he said. "Maybe we could have diverted them (from crime) at an early age."

(From 1A)

Schorre was one of 23 people who spoke to the advisory board before the lunch break in the downtown boardroom of Midland Independent School District.

Midland's hearing — the last stop on a five-city tour that included Houston, Arlington, Corpus Christi and Austin — was the most well-attended in the state, according to an advisory board spokeswoman.

The hearing drew speakers from El Paso, Sweetwater, Canyon, San Angelo, Odessa, Lubbock and Abilene.

A board representative said 23 persons had voiced their opinions by the lunch break. "We only had 25 speak all day at the Houston hearing," she said, noting several more people had signed up to speak during the afternoon session at the Midland hearing.

"The key to the juvenile justice system is early and aggressive intervention. Even the young ones should get services of some type," said Jane Anderson King, chief juvenile probation officer for the Randall County Juvenile Probation Youth Center of the High Plains.

Ms. King said, "the first flag that goes up" when juveniles turn to delinquency is running away from home.

Midland attorney Glen Aaron cautioned the board to make decisions "from a basis of reason and sociology."

"Every dollar spent on education, public awareness, and raising self-esteem and ethics is better than spending on detention," Aaron said.

Ricky Benton of the Midland Police Department juvenile division said runaways are a big problem in Midland. "We had over 600 runaways reported from our area last year," he said.

Judge Al Walvoord, designated juvenile judge in Midland, agreed. "Runaways tie up resources and tremendous police hours. Then they are put back into the environment that they ran away from."

Benton said truancy and parent apathy contribute to the problem.

"Sometimes there is no interest from parents," he said. "I arrested a 10-year-old for five felonies — four burglaries and one auto theft — in 10 months. The family didn't care. I don't believe punishment is the total answer but we need restrictive laws."

Benton lamented the lack of "family values being taught in the home."

"Juveniles should be accountable for their behavior," he said. "And more money should be taken from the adult system and put into the juvenile system."

Advisory board member Stuart Feinblatt of Amarillo told Benton, "You seem to be advocating that if we treat juveniles as if they were adults this will prevent them from becoming adult criminals."

"I don't see how it can hurt to try something different," Benton said. "Juvenile crime is up all over. I'm in favor of making an impact, especially on first-time offenders, though not necessarily locking them up with adults."

"But juveniles don't think as adults," Feinblatt said. "Even a 16-year-old does not think the same as a 25-year-old. The thrust of our interest is to prevent crimes (rather than just punish), especially with community programs."

Advisory board member Kathryn Revett of Amarillo, said most members of the board "work on a day-to-day basis with kids."

"The board consists of 25 to 30 members from around the state. About 50 percent are law professionals. We also have women and minorities on the board," said the former teacher.

Several law officials and judges said students weren't learning correct behavior "in their homes or churches" and that parenting responsibilities are being shifted to schools and the state.

Several law professionals applauded Teen Court for curbing crime in teen-agers in a positive manner.

Pamela Steakley of Sweetwater, a homemaker, former teacher and chairwoman of the 32nd Judicial District Juvenile Board, said El Paso schools — at school district expense — were opening gymnasiums at night to attract teen-agers.

"We are very short on activities for our youth," she said. "In the '50s when I was growing up there was a partnership between churches, families and schools. Now they all don't trust each other and disagree with each other."

She said teen-agers expect to have cars as soon as they get their driver's licenses. "It wasn't that way years ago. They are bored and they want their freedom. We need better parks, basketball courts and sandlot volleyball courts."

Eric Sanchez of Tom Green County Adult Probation in San Angelo, said 17-year-olds are juveniles one day and adults the next.

"They bring over the same issues and problems into the adult system," he said. Sanchez, who handles a gang caseload, said juveniles "join gangs for fame and notoriety. They have a great need for attention."

A common denominator with all juvenile crimes is that youth begin getting into trouble with truancy, according to Midland juvenile detective Dan Walkenshaw.

"They get to school on a bus and are in one door and go out the other side. When two or three are truant together then it can result in auto theft, vandalism and burglary," he said.

Walkenshaw said that for 33 schools and more than 22,000 students in MISD, there is one truant officer.

One Midland mother said her 17-year-old daughter "ran afoul of the law" and the hardest decision she ever made was allowing her to spend the night in Culver Youth Home. She said it was an experience that had an impact on her daughter.

MISD Police Chief John Miller talked to the board about changing Texas laws and codes. He recently returned from the National Association of School Safety and Law Enforcement Officers convention in Galveston where Miller was named to the association's board of directors.

Miller said the organization is pushing for bipartisan support in the House and Senate to pass President Clinton's National Safe Schools Act. The act would result in $75 million in grants being given to school districts to promote safety and educate parents, students and teachers.

"The money won't be used for just 'toys' like metal detectors, but for education for teachers, and to deter school violence," Miller said. "Young teachers are not trained in how to deal with school environments. They are taught to teach the curriculum and they need tools to deal with children's behavior in class." He said the grant money could also be used to hire truancy officers.

"We need a balance between punishment and rehabilitation," said MISD school board trustee Gary Willis. ". . . We need to compel parents to participate like the juvenile justice system compels them. We need some tools in public education so parents can't refuse to participate."

Pablo Espinosa Matta of El Paso said his city "is No. 1 with gang problems."

"Why not have one of these hearings in El Paso?" he said. Matta, who works with gang intervention programs, said many gang members have been "treated less than human."

"Expelling them from school and sending them home does no good. Then they just end up in the malls," he said.

GENE: Study links chromosome, homosexuality of brothers shared the same pattern variation in the tip of one arm of the chromosome, a region that may have 100 or more individual genes.

Hamer said his lab at the National Cancer Institute is now trying to identify the specific gene shared by the gay brothers.

A similar study searching for a genetic basis for homosexuality in females is now under way, he said.

The study is at least the fourth in recent years to identify possible biological explanations for sexual orientation and strengthens the argument by many in the gay community that homosexuality is not a matter of choice, but of biological destiny.

Members of the gay community said the new study could help change the perception of homosexuality.

"It may help people look at this as a genetic issue, that it is natural and it involves no sort of choice at all," said George Neighbors Jr. of the Federation of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays in Washington. "If you believe in God or nature, that's what homosexuality develops from."

But he said the finding could also pose a threat to homosexuals.

Neighbors said some gays fear that if a biological basis for homosexuality is found, there may be some people who view it as an opportunity to medically change the sexual orientation.

"Is this going to lead people to look for a cure of homosexuality or lead people to manipulate the gene so that it doesn't exist any more?" he asked.

In the other studies of biological bases for homosexuality, Simon LaVay, then of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies in San Diego, found in 1991 that a specific brain structure was smaller in homosexual males than in heterosexual males.

Studies in 1991 and 1993 at the Boston University School of Medicine of separated identical twins found a commonality of sexual orientation that suggested a genetic origin of homosexuality in both men and women.

"We knew there was a genetic influence somewhere, but we didn't know where," said Dr. Richard C. Pillard, co-author of the twins studies and a professor of psychiatry at Boston University. "Now Hamer has come along and found an area on the X chromosome where he thinks there is an actual gene. His was the next logical step."

Hamer emphasized that his study does not show that a single gene determines sexual orientation. Many factors may be involved, he said.

"There also could be another gene on some other chromosome. Or it could be that there was some other physical or biochemical factor involved," he said. "Or there could be some other non-biological factors related to life experiences or environment or upbringing."

Hamer said he and his colleagues searched for the gay gene by first studying the family histories of 114 gay men. They found that male homosexuality was more common than average on the maternal side of the gay men's families.

This suggested that if there were a genetic basis for homosexuality, it would likely be on the X chromosome, the sex-linked chromosome inherited by males from their mothers.

The researchers then studied the X chromosomes from 40 pairs of gay brothers and used a technique called linkage analysis to search for a genetic variant that the brothers shared.

A shared variant was found in the same chromosome region in 33 of the pairs of brothers.

Hamer said the results show with 99 percent certainty that a genetic variant plays contributes to the homosexual orientation of males.

"This means that the possibility of obtaining our findings by chance is extremely unlikely," he said.

The absence of the gene variant in seven pairs of gay brothers suggests that other genes could independently influence sexual orientation or that there are environmental or social factors that can play a deciding role, said Hamer.

Co-authors of the study were Stella Hu, Victoria L. Magnuson, Nan Hu, and Angela M. L. Pattatucci. Science is the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Ruling party may lose majority; what comes next is up in the air

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese political experts agree on one thing about Sunday's parliamentary elections: the Liberal Democratic Party faces cataclysm, likely losing its parliamentary majority for the first time in 38 years.

But after that, both the shape of a ruling coalition and the identity of the next prime minister are anyone's guess.

Both opposition parties and the Liberal Democrats voice confidence they can pull together a ruling coalition, but it will be a formidable task. And more than a dozen politicians are mentioned as possible replacements for Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa.

Nationwide polls by major newspapers show the Liberal Democrats expected to win between 215 and 240 of the 511 seats at stake in Sunday's ballot for Parliament's lower house, which chooses the prime minister.

If the party could win over just 15 to 40 additional legislators from scattered opposition groups, it could attain a 256-seat majority and manage to retain the power it has held since 1955.

That would mean a continuation, for the time being, of Japan's current policies.

Whatever coalition emerges after the election is likely to be unstable.

The conservative Liberal Democrats and their coalition partners likely would disagree on how to clean up corruption. And opposition groups would have to set aside considerable ideological differences to form their own majority.

If an opposition coalition is formed, its most likely choice for prime minister would be former Finance Minister Tsutomu Hata, 57, head of a party formed last month by renegade Liberal Democrats.

The coalition has said it would not change Japan's basic pro-U.S. foreign policy and would maintain the country's military. But it would be expected to quickly institute tough campaign finance laws and change the electoral system to discourage corruption.

In the longer term, Hata and other opposition leaders say they want to hand powers now held by Tokyo bureaucrats over to local governments.

Top Americans arrive to press for MIA results

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — With improved economic ties at stake, the highest level U.S. delegation to visit Hanoi since the Vietnam War arrived Thursday to assess official cooperation in the search for missing U.S. servicemen.

Winston Lord, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, brought a 22-member delegation to Hanoi for three days of talks with Vietnamese leaders on the issue of 2,253 Americans still officially listed as missing from the war.

"We're here on a very serious mission, and that's about all I can say right now," Lord told reporters.

President Clinton announced the trip July 2, the same day he made public his decision to unblock International Monetary Fund loans to Vietnam. The United States had vetoed such loans as part of an economic embargo it has maintained against Vietnam since the Communist north took over the south in 1975.

But Clinton said any improvement in U.S.-Vietnamese relations was contingent on progress of the missing servicement issue, and that sending such a high-level delegation conveyed "a clear message" of American concern.

The delegation included co-leaders Hershel Gober, deputy secretary of veterans affairs, and Air Force Lt. Gen. Michael Ryan, assistant to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as well as senior officials of four private veterans organizations.

"This is the highest-level delegation, with the most wide-ranging composition, from the U.S. ... ever visiting Vietnam," said Ho The Lan, an official spokeswoman for the Vietnamese government.

Police confiscate weapons arsenal in neo-Nazi raid

BONN, Germany (AP) — Investigators confiscated hate literature and a weapons arsenal Thursday in coordinated nationwide raids against an outlawed neo-Nazi gang and other right-wing radicals.

No arrests were immediately made, but charges were expected against 75 people following this latest blow against the radical right, which has been attacking foreigners and tarnishing Germany's image for nearly three years.

Seventeen people, most of them foreigners, died in extreme-right violence last year. The bloodshed has intensified this year, with the May 29 firebombing in Solingen that killed five Turks.

Late Wednesday and early Thursday, undercover and uniformed police struck at suspected members of the outlawed German Alternative in Berlin and other cities across Germany.

Air guns, starter pistols, baseball bats, clubs and illegal pamphlets were found in 67 apartments, said Norbert Weise, the Koblenz prosecutor who coordinated the raids.

Weise said 75 people would be charged with violating the ban on German Alternative, one of three neo-Nazi groups outlawed by the federal government last year.

Members of the three organizations have continued to meet and distribute propaganda slandering Jews and foreigners and calling for a Fourth Reich on the order of Hitler's Third Reich.

In a separate operation Thursday, federal, state and local police targeted the publishers of neo-Nazi literature in six of 16 German states.

The Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution, which tracks down political extremists, said skinhead magazines and "other pieces of evidence" were impounded.

Fuel delivery in Sarajevo brings some relief

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Serbs eased a two-week fuel blockade of Sarajevo on Thursday, allowing the crippled hospital and bakery to resume operations. But U.N. officials said life remained a living hell for many.

A day after a visit by the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, Bosnian Serbs allowed 75 tons of diesel fuel stuck at the airport for two weeks to be brought into the capital.

The first stops were the city bakery, a main water-pumping station and the hospital, which desperately needed the fuel to run generators for electricity. Doctors had performed operations only by natural light.

The bakery resumed operation within two hours of the delivery after a 15-day shutdown, the longest in its 40-year history. At no point during the 16-month siege had it closed for more than a week, even after it was badly damaged by shelling in February.

"I'm happy now that we can provide at least a small amount of bread," said baker Enver Kazazic, grinning as warm loaves tumbled off a conveyer belt.

The bakery received 10 tons of diesel, normally enough for four days. But Kazazic said the bakery would make only about 55,000 loaves a day instead of 100,000 to stretch out production.

Restoration of natural gas service, cut off by Serb forces last month, also was considered a major breakthrough in easing the city's deepening utility crisis. It will allow residents to cook normally for the first time in weeks.

But most areas remained without running water and electricity.

"Life remains a daily torture," said U.N. relief spokesman Peter Kessler, referring to the daily struggle to lug home water for basic needs. "People are living through hell."

Running water was restored Wednesday in some western neighborhoods, home to about 20 percent of the city's 380,000 residents. But restoration of electricity and more water hinges on delicate talks between the Muslim-led government and Bosnian Serb leaders.

Kessler said refugees in one former hotel were so desperate for cooking fuel that they tore molding off walls.

The city has been under siege for more than a year since rebel Serbs throughout Bosnia took up arms against Muslims and Croats who voted to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia. More than 138,000 people have been reported dead or missing.

In southwestern Bosnia, Bosnian Croat fighters and Muslim-led government troops fought for control of the city of Mostar.

Croatian radio said government forces were shelling southern suburbs. Bosnian radio said Croat forces, backed by regular Croatian army troops, had launched a heavy infantry attack on the southern front.

Mostar has been placed off-limits to U.N. personnel by Croat militia leaders, and Kessler said no food aid had reached the predominantly Muslim eastern side of the divided city for a month. He said the 30,000 residents there had only two communal water taps, both exposed to sniper fire.

In a ham radio broadcast monitored in Sarajevo, the leader of Mostar's Muslims, Smail Klaric, said Wednesday that 10,000 people had been detained by Croat militiamen at a helicopter factory. He also said women were being raped.

Japan quake death toll hits at least 126

OKUSHIRI, Japan (AP) — With the last fires finally out Thursday, workers dug through tons of dirt for a hotel believed to entomb more than 30 people — victims of an earthquake whose force brought down landslides and raised crashing seas.

At least 126 bodies had been recovered and 85 people were still missing from Monday's quake, Japan's deadliest in decades.

People crowded ferry boats that resumed service to the hard-hit island of Okushiri to search for relatives or mourn the dead. Community centers and school gymnasiums were filled with homeless people sleeping on mats on the floors. Their few extra clothes hung on hangers along the wall.

Aftershocks, meanwhile, continued to rock northern Japan.

The initial tremor, estimated at 7.8 on the Richter scale, touched off giant waves, fires and landslides. Police said 151 people were injured and about 1,000 people left homeless.

Rescuers delivered food and water to remote areas of Okushiri, a small island in the Sea of Japan where more than 100 people died. Some of the people whose homes were destroyed left on ferry boats that began servicing Okushiri again to move in with friends or relatives elsewhere in Japan.

"I've had enough," a grandmother said as she boarded the ferry.

Workers dug toward Okushiri's Yoyoso Hotel, which was covered by a landslide touched off by the quake. The bodies of about three dozen people, many of them elderly tourists, were believed to be inside in the hotel.

Tons of earth buried the two-story building, and work proceeded slowly. More landslides were feared after a heavy rainstorm Wednesday night.

Meteorologists said the tidal waves, which caused damage as far away as South Korea and Far Eastern Russia, surged at speeds of 300 mph and towered as high as 36 feet.

Many victims had no time to reach higher ground before the waves struck, just minutes after the quake.

Many of the 80 homes in Inaho, a fishing village, were washed away. Midori Mizuno, 53, said she ran for the hills as the waves arrived.

"The third wave caught me," she said Thursday, surveying what was left of her house. "But it threw me up onto high ground."

Misae Ikeda, a 38-year-old housewife, said she was swept away in her car, but managed to climb out a window. Frogmen dived to vehicles at the bottom of the harbor, but found few bodies.

In the village of Aonae, swept first by waves and then by fire, 37 caskets lined the Buddhist temple under a hanging scroll of the goddess of mercy. The chief priest chanted sutras for the dead as incense filled the air.

"We don't have enough room to put all the bodies," said priest Takazu Tetsutaka. "But I suspect they'll be bringing more."

Relatives made offerings of bananas and apples.

The death toll is the highest in an earthquake in Japan since 1960, when 142 people died.

Envoy calls for unity in peacekeeping force

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — A U.N. special envoy appealed Thursday for unity among the peacekeeping coalition faced with the controversial task of running down a renegade Somali clan.

"There were bound to be some growing pains. I regret . . . there have been differences in approach," said U.N. envoy Jonathan Howe, who seeks to ease disputes over the hard-line tactics against warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid.

In the most public rift, U.N. officials requested the removal of an Italian general for not following orders.

France, however, spoke out Thursday in support of continued U.N. military action against Aidid.

Playing to international criticism of the U.N. offensive, hundreds of Somalis took to the streets to protest bombardments of strongholds used by clansmen who have been blamed for attacks on U.N. forces.

At a well-orchestrated demonstration, 2,000 people waved placards printed with drawings of helicopter gunships above an English-language message: "Is this humanitarian aid? Help, yes. War, no."

U.N. officials reported more sniper and grenade attacks on U.N. outposts, but said no soldiers were injured.

Howe praised the work of the peacekeeping force and aid operations and defended the military campaign in southern Mogadishu against gunmen loyal to Aidid.

The United Nations wants to negotiate with responsible leaders, not "criminals and terrorists" allied to Aidid, said Howe, a retired U.S. admiral who is special representative of U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali.

Howe also sought to explain his differences with an Italian general who has been ordered to leave the 27-nation U.N. peacekeeping alliance.

He said he admired Gen. Bruno Loi's capabilities as a commander. But "we have to have unity of command, we have to have confidence among commanders. We have to have one policy and unity to carry it out," he said.

Italy threatens to take troops from Somalia

ROME (NYT) — Deepening a rift with the United States and the United Nations, Italy threatened on Thursday to withdraw its 2,600-man contingent from Somalia out of concern that what was originally a relief mission has turned into a combat operation that is taking sides in a civil war.

After days of increasingly bitter dispute, culminating in the U.N. call on Wednesday for the withdrawal of the Italian commander in Mogadishu, Prime Minister Carlo Azeglio Ciampi called for the United Nations to define the role of the troops, saying such a clarification of the U.N. role was "essential for our presence in Somalia."

Foreign Minister Beniamino Andreatta sought to soften the threat, saying Italy "is and wishes to remain in Somalia." Nonetheless, growing public unease at the Italian presence there and the government's clear irritation at the U.N. attitude to the Italian force in Somalia has reinforced the impression that an Italian withdrawal is being pressed by both politicians and top military personnel.

"I think that if we don't agree, we don't agree in Mogadishu or anywhere else," said Gen. Domenico Corcione, the Italian chief of staff, referring to a debate over whether the 800 Italian soldiers based in Mogadishu should be pulled back to other parts of Somalia. "It's pointless moving. We may as well leave."

Echoing widespread Italian concern that the relief role of the U.N. force in Somalia has been overtaken by an American-led campaign against Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid, a fugitive Somali warloard, Ciampi said the U.N. mission was moving toward "a military intervention almost as an end in itself against the wishes of those who are carrying it out."

Defense Minister Fabio Fabbri said "the continual repetition of combat operations and urban guerrilla fighting" were making it difficult to pursue the U.N. peacekeeping mission.

An Italian pullout could have far wider European repercussions since it would reinforce growing public pressure on the German government to reverse its decision to send troops to Somalia. And that, in turn, could create yet another European-American rift after allied disputes in Bosnia.

In Rome, the differences have a particular significance since Italy is Somalia's former colonial ruler and believes that it has a deeper understanding of the people there. Moreover, as Italian commentators have said in recent days, the dispute has laid bare differences between Italians favoring compromise and Americans bent on confrontation.

Italian unease began to build when three Italian soldiers were killed in Mogadishu on July 5 in an ambush by Aidid's forces — the first Italian ground forces to die in combat since the Second World War. The deaths inspired official demands for Italy to be drawn closer into the American-dominated command structure in Somalia.

"Italy has never questioned the need for unity of command in the United Nations Operation in Somalia," Andreatta said on Thursday. "But it asked to be adequately consulted and involved in the definition of the strategies and operational methods involving our troops."

FEMA reacts quickly, receives praise

WASHINGTON (AP) — A political dumping ground is one of the nicer names people have called the Federal Emergency Management Agency. But the Mississippi River floods of 1993 could change all that.

Headed by the first civil-defense professional in its 14-year history, FEMA is anticipating local needs, reacting quickly to requests and showing sympathy for flood victims. As swollen rivers continue to overrun counties across the Midwest, federal relief efforts are winning nothing but praise.

That's quite a departure for an agency known primarily for bumbling inefficiency in the face of tragedy and desperation.

After Hurricane Hugo struck South Carolina in 1989, Sen. Ernest Hollings called FEMA "the sorriest bunch of bureaucratic jackasses I've ever worked with." Disarray and delay drove the Dade County emergency management director to exclaim, days after Hurricane Andrew flattened large parts of south Florida last year: "Where in the hell is the cavalry?"

The new administration was determined to learn from the past, Vice President Gore said this week. Both he and President Clinton are citing FEMA's flood response as evidence of success.

"I think we're getting pretty good marks this time for getting out ahead of the curve," Clinton said Wednesday.

"I can't say enough good things about them. The communication lines and cooperation are wonderful," said Tammy VanOverbeke, emergency management director of Lyon County, Minn.

Dems begin work on tax compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic negotiators began work Thursday on a compromise version of President Clinton's deficit-reduction plan, agreeing the outcome will determine whether their party can govern the nation.

"This is our best chance to regain control of our economic future," Rep. Martin O. Sabo, D-Minn., said in opening the conference. "By succeeding, we will be able to tell the American people that, 'Yes, your government works.'"

"Let's put this bill on the president's desk and get this country on the road to creating jobs," pleaded House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

Republicans watched from the sidelines because they oppose the bill's tax increases, which would fall mainly on the well-to-do. "I can't conceive that the American people want us to pass something that will . . . do nothing to encourage prosperity," said Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, senior Republican on the Senate Budget Committee.

His House counterpart, Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, was more blunt. "Now it's their legislation," he said of Democrats, who control the House, Senate and White House. "When they pass this piece of legislation and it wrecks the economy, they're the ones who are going to have to take responsibility."

Clinton discussed the budget and other issues with congressional leaders of both parties in an afternoon trip to the Capitol.

He told reporters afterward that despite misgivings by some Democrats, he still wants the package to contain about $500 billion in deficit cuts, focus its tax increases on the rich and provide tax breaks to the working poor and some businesses and investors.

"In health care, as in a fast-moving soccer game, you've got to run to where the ball is going to be."

In coaching we tell kids they've got to run to where the ball's going to be in order to score. The same principal applies in health care delivery – our field is changing rapidly.

"At Physicians and Surgeons, our goal is to understand where those changes are occurring and be ready with the services and facilities to meet the needs, both today and tomorrow. With current medical capabilities you can often have surgery in the morning, go home in the afternoon, and heal completely in a few days.

"As we develop a new medical center, these changes are pointing us more in the direction of outpatient care.

"We have an excellent group of employees and physicians, and look forward to continuing our quality service at a reasonable cost."

Commitment given to reading program

Midland's Need to Read program has made life more enjoyable for hundreds of students during the eight years of its existence. It has opened the world of written communication to students through literacy.

The success of the Need to Read program is laudable. When one person who is illiterate learns to read, a life is changed and through that change an entire community can gain benefits.

Midland College has been a full partner in the Need to Read program, providing office space, training facilities and meeting rooms for tutors and students. The college's Adult and Basic Education department even applied for the special projects grant funding that originally started the Need to Read program.

The program has experienced tremendous growth since its inception, serving 140 individuals compared to the 14 it originally served. Midland College has met the program's space requirements, providing an additional office to Need to Read at a time when available office space at the college is not plentiful.

Cindy Turland, president of the Need to Read board, calls Midland College's assistance to the program "generous" and she's correct.

But as Midland College President Dr. David Daniel noted recently, "It is in the interest of everyone, especially Midland College, that the most fundamental of abilities of reading be enhanced. We are strongly committed to anything we can do to improve the program and increase the number of people who take advantage of it."

It takes that level of commitment to make a program such as Need to Read the success it has become in Midland. The entire community owes a vote of thanks to Midland College for its long and generous support to a program that changes lives for the better.

Equally worthy of praise are the hundreds of volunteers who through the past eight years have given their time to help make life better for others.

GOP ship sinks before setting sail

WASHINGTON — Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who has spent months trying to torpedo the Clinton administration, was recently forced to abandon ship himself.

Dole had been planning to set sail down the Potomac River for a fund-raiser aboard a luxury cruise liner. He even took a jab at President Clinton by christening his floating fund-raiser "The Kansas Boat House Cruise!" — an allusion to a joke that backfired on Clinton and emboldened Dole earlier this year.

Anderson

But this is one case in their high-profile feud in which Clinton may enjoy the last laugh.

We called Dole last week to inform him that his cruise was on the verge of violating two federal laws. Within 24 hours, he abandoned ship. Dole is still having the July 30 fund-raiser, but it will be aboard the American-flagged Dandy, a dinner boat that holds just 200 passengers.

Dole's original plan called for a cruise from scenic Mount Vernon, Va., to Old Town Alexandria, Va., aboard the luxurious, but foreign-flagged, Crown Monarch. The Monarch holds more than 500 passengers and features such amenities as slot machines and whirlpools.

But the Passenger Vessel Act states that "no foreign vessel shall transport passengers between ports or places in the United States, either directly or by way of a foreign port." The fine is $200 per passenger.

The law specifies that the vessel must be U.S.-flagged, U.S.-owned and U.S.-built. The Crown Monarch, meanwhile, is registered in Panama, is owned by a Swedish-Finnish company and was built in Spain.

Dole offered a "special overnight package." In exchange for a $5,000 donation to his personal political action committee, Campaign America, a couple could stay overnight in one of the ship's deluxe suites.

Otherwise, the PAC charged $1,500 a person for just cocktails, dinner, Broadway-show entertainment and the chance to mingle with Dole and other members of the Republican leadership. Campaign America collects contributions and then distributes them to various Republican candidates across the country.

For Dole, the fund-raiser does not come a moment too soon. The Senate recently passed a campaign-finance reform bill that would ban such PACs, so the cruise down the Potomac may be one of Campaign America's last hurrahs.

The second law the cruise would have violated, the Passenger Notification Act, states that "all promotional literature . . . through any medium of communication in the United States offering passage or soliciting passengers for ocean voyages anywhere in the world" has to mention which country the vessel is registered in. Dole's PAC failed to make this disclosure.

JoAnne Coe, executive director of Campaign America, told our associate Ed Henry that the PAC would have made a clarification in its follow-up correspondence for the event. "Neither Sen. Dole nor his guests would (participate) in any event that would not comply fully with the appropriate federal regulations, so that's why I pulled the plug on the Crown Monarch," said Coe after our inquiry.

Coe said the PAC had been misinformed about whether or not the fund-raiser violated the law. "We are demanding full refunds on all our deposits and other expenses incurred — which have been substantial," Coe said.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Is sex education right for 5-year-olds?

The culture wars heat up again this week in Washington. As usual, Bill Clinton aligns himself with the bureaucrats and '60s retreads laboring to reshape worn-out values like, oh, chastity and modesty.

In fact, Clinton himself started the present brawl. He named as surgeon general of the United States fellow Arkansan Dr. Joyce Elders, who thinks the time to start sex education is kindergarten. The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee takes up the nomination Friday. Dr. Elders enjoys an excellent shot at confirmation, but traditionalists will have plenty to say about her before the roll is called up yonder.

Murchison

What they'll say won't be complimentary. Dr. Elders, who formerly headed the Arkansas Health Department, has sex on the brain. Anyway, sex education, which she likens to driver-ed. "We taught (kids) what to do in the front seat," she says. "Now it's time to teach them what to do in the back seat." Except she'd start the back-seat part when the kids were around age 5: too low for the steering wheel but just right for learning the vocabulary of the sexual enterprise and for imbibing sex-ed's bland dismissal of moral standards.

The surgeon general-designate would hand out condoms in high schools, and she'd kindly agree to let the taxpayers finance abortions. And that's not all: She'd give prostitutes the surgically implanted birth control device Norplant, "so they could still use sex if they must to buy drugs."

Those who disagree must prepare to be glowered at. The surgeon general-designate has described her critics as "very religious non-Christians," with "slave-master mentalities." (Dr. Elders is African American.) Anti-abortion groups, as she sees it, have a "love affair with the fetus."

Nice. There's nothing like having your country's chief medical officer kick you around, year after year, for espousing pre-1968 standards of morality.

Parents, if Dr. Elders is confirmed, may expect to be drubbed regularly during her tenure. The sex-education mafia, of which the surgeon general-designate is a leading light, scorns parental meddling in children's lives. This is because parents often have different ideas about what's good for the children than do the self-anointed "experts."

CHARLEY REESE

Let's 'bleep' whiners into courage corner

Are you tired of self-pitying individuals wearing their victimhood like a Shriner's fez and forever parading up and down the streets, complaining about their woeful, put-upon lives?

Reese

I am. Bleep 'em.

Pal, if you hate your life, then end it. As a better man than you, Marcus Aurelius, once put it, "The door is always open." No law worth obeying says you have to hang around living if you think your life is so miserable you cannot open your mouth without complaining and whining.

I am really tired of professional victims and of people who cater to them. I'm more than just tired of them; I've decided to be downright intolerant of them.

So regardless of your race, ethnic origin, sex, sexual-orientation, immigrant status, religion, health status or whatever, if you have nothing better to do than complain about how much you're being oppressed, my message to you is: Go to hell.

What infuriates me about these professional whiners is that the loudest of them are generally well-off financially and well-educated. In other words, they have a good life. They're just so morally and intellectual weak that no amount of good fortune can ever match what their distorted egos think they deserve.

In the immortal words of Augustus McCree, fictional Texas Ranger from "Lonesome Dove": "Life is short — shorter for some than for others." To paraphrase a local car dealer in my city, "Come to Earth--where everybody dies."

Unfortunately, because of the matter of mortality, there is a tragic edge to life even when everything goes right. Even the person who is healthy, wealthy and wise will die and the longer he lives, the more funerals he will attend.

The Buddha put it quite well when he said, "When a child is born, the only certainty is that either the child will bury the parents or the parents will bury the child."

To live as a human being requires courage and grace under pressure. Billions of people live with that courage and grace in every country in the world from the poorest to the richest.

Only in America, and in recent times, have politicians and journalists decided that the worthless, graceless, cowardly, whining, neurotic, ignorant, historically illiterate, self-absorbed, self-pitying slobs in our society should be elevated to the podium and their every complaint listened to and commiserated with it.

As I said, bleep 'em all.

I'm tired of hearing women complain they're being put upon by men. I'm tired of hearing blacks excuse their failures by blaming whites. And now, by God, whites are starting to excuse their failures by blaming blacks. I'm tired of hearing people with AIDS complain about their pending death. Do they think everybody else in the world is going to live forever? Do they think they're the only people in the world with a terminal illness? Do they think they're the only people on earth who aren't going to live as long as they want to? Man, there are pre-school children with terminal illness showing more courage and grace. Doctors have been handing out death sentences to patients for centuries.

LETTERS

'Postal' letter distorts reality

Well, once again, the Midland Reporter-Telegram has printed an article from an outside source without regards of accuracy.

"Privatizing Postal Service could save numerous lives" (July 6, 1993) from the Wall Street Journal is such an article.

First, Federal Express and UPS do not have the manpower that the post office has. More employees more different personalities, more of a chance of potential violence.

Second, postal employees are fired, and fired for many different reasons, and the majority do not go on a rampage.

Third, the privatization of the postal service would be a disservice to the American public. The rates would go up, so that you would pay more for a letter. You would pay not only weight and size, but would also pay for distance! A customer moving only has to put in one change of address card. With the possibility of five, six, seven, or more delivery companies, are you sure all of your mail will be forwarded?

Fourth, the postal service is not a job for life. It is a living like any other, you mess up, expect to be fired! No postal employee automatically assumes he has a job for life.

Look around, violence is everywhere. Town & Country, Seven-Eleven, Furr's, McDonald's, and now law offices have all had a rash of killings in the past few years. As a footnote about the "world's most insular anti-competitive unions," more than 11.7 million pounds of nonperishable food donations by postal customers — a record one day collection in U.S. history — were delivered by letter carriers to food banks and shelters across America on May 15 in the First National NALC (National Association of Letter Carriers, one of those unions) Food Drive.

Equal school finance. Right?

Why are you property owners so upset? Of course the legislature passed the school funding bill you call the "Robin Hood" plan. Where else would we get the money to operate our schools? You don't actually expect the general public to do this, do you? How dare you even suggest such a thing! It is the property owners who have always financed this, and you should. Look at the business people, how they are getting so rich, with their high prices and all. Why, just the other day a fellow was going out with a pair of socks and they called the police. Like it was going to put them out of business, you know, if he didn't pay for them. A big store like that — and they are talking about having to raise prices because of no profits.

And just look at the homes in Midland. Why, millionaires live there. Their nice lawns, shade trees, flower beds, and paved drives. And they are upset when the legislators eliminated the homestead exemption. And increased their property taxes by 50 percent or so to make another school have as much money as the rest of them. Every school should be equal, we all know that. And just look at the schools. Boy, some of them are so crowded, and the air conditioners don't work, and the floors are in need of repair. Let's soak these property owners and make them build us new schools. With their big fancy homes, high income jobs and all they can sure afford it. And raise the teachers pay, too.

Hey — how about uniforms for all the kids! Might as well go all the way while we can. Boy, am I glad we don't have a school tax, a user's tax, an excise tax, an added value tax, or anything like that, along with an income tax possibly! That would mean that everyone would be involved in paying for the education of the future leaders of this Great State of Texas and the United States of America. And that wouldn't be fair, now would it?

Costly shows shun business

My wife and I salute the Midland Civic Center and promoter Mel Prather for the July 10th American Spirit Arts and Craft Show. We made our purchases and watched as scores of people, young and old alike, streamed in for the quality merchandise.

Other shows which charge a $3 or $4 per person admittance would have our business if they also would have a free admittance as this show did. We've always been turned off and away when a fee is charged in order to go in and spend our money.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

Pentagon sends final proposal on gays in military to president

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Responding to warnings from Attorney General Janet Reno, the White House and the Pentagon scrambled Thursday night to make last-minute changes in a proposed new policy on homosexuals in the military, struggling to make it restrictive enough to satisfy military leaders without running afoul of the Constitution.

Defense Secretary Les Aspin, after one last meeting on this issue with the Joint Chiefs of Staff Thursday evening, planned to send his final recommendation to President Clinton before midnight, thereby technically meeting the president's deadline of July 15.

But Clinton told congressional leaders Thursday afternoon that he wanted to take two or three more days to study the recommendation before he gives his final approval. He also wants Attorney General Reno and her aides to review it once more before he signs off on it, officials said.

A senior administration official characterized the Aspin compromise as a policy of "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue." What that means is that new recruits would no longer be asked whether they are gay. But they would not be allowed to identify themselves as homosexuals once in the armed services, except to chaplains, doctors and lawyers.

But in deference to the Justice Department and homosexual rights groups, the policy would also explicitly spell out the conditions under which the military could pursue an investigation into homosexual conduct.

Aides to Clinton and Aspin were working Thursday night on these particulars, which were apparently added after Ms. Reno told the White House last week that the policy could be hard to defend in court. Officials said she cautioned that the Constitution's guarantee of equal protection under the law could be violated if the policy went too far in prohibiting homosexuals from saying things that heterosexual soldiers were free to express.

Police stop white supremacist plot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A white supremacist plot to start a race war by bombing a black church, spraying its members with machine-gun fire and killing Rodney King and other well-known blacks was smashed Thursday with the arrests of eight people, authorities said Thursday.

A federal and local task force made the arrests in four Southern California counties and seized a large arsenal of guns and pipe bombs, Nazi paraphernalia and pictures of Adolf Hitler.

One of the eight was arrested as he was preparing a letter bomb to be sent to a rabbi, authorities said.

Other potential targets mentioned by members of the Fourth Reich Skin Heads were leaders of both the NAACP and the Urban League; Nation of Islam Minister Louis Farrakhan; the Rev. Al Sharpton, a New York activist; Danny Bakewell of the Brotherhood Crusade in Los Angeles; and rap music stars.

FBI agent Charlie Parsons told a news conference the plotters wanted to "help start a race war. That was their motivation."

Talk Radio: Listeners are angry, conservative, dialing right now

By Diane Duston
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Who are all those people who call talk radio? They're a conservative lot, according to a survey and the shows' hosts, and they're angry — about President Clinton, Congress, the U.N., the media, the church.

Men outnumber women two to one.

They're the "vocal minority," dominating call-in shows that deal with public affairs, says a report Thursday by the Times Mirror Center for the People and the Press.

The project is part of series of Times Mirror studies on how Americans are making their voices heard and the ways in which the distinctive views of the vocal minority differ from the rest of the population.

Talk show participants have many of the same national priorities as the public at large, but they feel stronger about almost everything, the survey found.

Consequently, they present a distorted and exaggerated picture of public opinion, says Times Mirror.

When asked to describe their callers, talk show hosts, too, characterized them as generally angry, anti-government, more critical of the president and Congress and more conservative than other people.

Surveyors gathered the findings after telephoning 1,507 adults between May 18-24 and 112 radio hosts from May 25 to June 11. The survey was augmented by repeat calls to 120 people who in other surveys had said they called radio talk shows.

Republicans and conservatives are more than twice as likely as Democrats and liberals to tune in for radio chat, the survey found. Angry people are the most represented and feminists the least.

Listeners say they find the shows a way to keep up with the issues and learn how other people feel. By a two-to-one margin, they say they're happiest when an opinion different from their own is being expressed.

However, those with the strongest opinions are more likely than others to think talk radio over-represents people with views opposite theirs.

Many listeners say they turn to talk radio for sheer entertainment. Only 1 percent said they listen because of the host.

Times Mirror contacted 66 hosts from the top 25 markets and 46 from smaller areas.

Notwithstanding the popularity of conservative Rush Limbaugh, more hosts lean toward the Democratic party than the Republican and they are relatively evenly split between liberal and conservative philosophies, the survey found.

Hosts tend to lead their callers, however, when it comes to a negative view of Clinton. Just 26 percent said they approved of the president.

The hosts are neither partisan nor ideological in their view of the president and, clearly, are more middle of the road and politically independent than their audiences, the survey indicated.

The hosts see themselves as shapers of opinion with an impact on public policy and politics.

They're far more likely to be concerned about the quality of public education, the economy and the federal deficit than the general public.

Malaria strain from Somalia strikes troops

ATLANTA (AP) — At least 150 U.S. soldiers, sailors and Marines have been stricken with malaria since returning from Somalia, triple the number reported in May, government doctors said Thursday.

The number of cases rose rapidly because the strain of malaria involved doesn't sicken people until as late as three months after they are infected, officials said. The strain, called vivax, was thought to be rare in Somalia, so more precautions against contracting it weren't taken.

"We were a bit surprised," said Dr. Rick Steketee, chief of malaria control for the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. "There was more vivax than anticipated."

Stricken soldiers must be treated promptly, CDC officials said, not only so they recover, but to ensure that malaria, which was eradicated in this country 40 years ago, doesn't return to the general population.

The Army had reported 85 cases by Thursday, including 77 at Fort Drum, N.Y., three at Fort Bragg, N.C., two at Fort Benning, Ga., and one each at Forts Stewart and Gordon in Georgia and Frankfurt Hospital in Germany.

The Marines and Navy have at least 65 cases, said Dr. James Newton of San Diego Naval Medical Center. About 60 are among Marines, and most are from Camp Pendleton and Twentynine Palms, Calif.

The cases represent just a fraction of the 20,000 troops sent to Somalia last December to help feed the country's starving people.

Those soldiers took pills to ward off malaria, but 48 became ill while in Somalia.

Judge dismisses 3 of Tilton's lawsuits

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A Tulsa County judge dismissed three civil lawsuits Thursday that claimed televangelist Robert Tilton defrauded three Oklahoma women through his Dallas-based ministry.

The lawsuits, which claimed fraud and emotional distress, were filed after an ABC "PrimeTime Live" report that alleged Tilton deposited contributions but trashed the prayer requests that went with them.

Judge Robert Scott said Tilton's ministry, which involves mailed solicitations, was constitutionally protected by freedom of religion.

"The cases were filed as a result of ABC's lies," Tilton said from his Word of Faith World Outreach Center. "These cases have totally been thrown out of court.

"We will remain confident that the truth will continue to prevail in this ministry and other ministries and churches throughout our land."

Gary Richardson, who represented all three women, promised to appeal.

"We believe in freedom of religion, but religious freedom is simply not the issue here," Richardson said.

The lawsuits of Dorothy Ries of Tulsa and Beverly Crowley of Wynona each sought $40 million in damages.

The women claim Tilton's ministry inflicted emotional distress by soliciting contributions from their husbands and writing that a miracle was prepared to happen, even though the men had died months earlier.

Q. How did the dalmatian dog become the firehouse dog?

A. In the 19th century, the dalmatian was brought to England from an area of Yugoslavia called Dalmatia. The dog was used as a carriage dog to keep other animals away from the carriage hores. Because the fire service used horse-drawn engines and carts during this time, dalmatians were a valuable asset. With mechanized hfire engines, the dalmatian has become a mascot.

Questions about emergency medical services or firefighting should be sent to Lights & Siren, P.O. Box 1152, Midland, 79702-1152.

Execution stayed

HOUSTON — Convicted killer John Selvage has received a stay of execution because of his deteriorating mental condition.

Harris County District Court Judge Joe Kegans on Thursday granted the motion filed on behalf of the retarded Texas man. Selvage was sentenced to die for killing a deputy sheriff in Houston in 1979.

Selvage had been scheduled for execution next Tuesday.

Two doctors testified that Selvage's mental condition continues to deteriorate. His attorneys contend his death sentence is unconstitutional because jurors did not consider his retardation when assessing punishment.

Prosecutor Shirley Cornelius said Selvage, diagnosed as a paranoid schizophrenic, has refused to take medication to control the sickness and cannot be forced to do so. She said he would be re-evaluated in six to eight months.

Selvage, 42, has had at least six execution dates, including one last month that was moved to July 20 so he could undergo further psychiatric evaluations.

Parking lot killing

DALLAS — A Dallas man has been arrested on capital murder charges in the July shooting death and $8 robbery of woman in a DART parking lot.

James Reed, 43, was being held in jail Thursday morning.

Reed is accused in the slaying of 23-year-old Leisa Dayana Bussert. Ms. Bussert was with her boyfriend, Randy Hines, at a Dallas Area Rapid Transit Park-and-Ride stop around 11 p.m. on July 6 when a man approached the passenger side of the car and demanded money.

Hines gave him the $8 in his wallet and began driving away when the man fired a shot that struck Bussert in the heart.

Acting on a tip, Dallas police arrested Reed Wednesday at his apartment. He also is wanted in Arkansas for a probation violation, police said.

Residents oppose retail in area

■ Several citizens express anger that the proposal for zoning changes would be heard again.

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

A group of about 60 residents from District 1, speaking out Thursday at a town hall meeting called by City Council member Pat Schneider, voiced their opposition to retail development in a northwest residential section of Midland.

The issue of retail development was killed by an unaminous vote at Tuesday's City Council meeting. However, several residents were concerned that the developers had been included again on the next City Council meeting's agenda.

City Attorney Keith Stretcher explained that once a zoning request is defeated, the issue cannot be raised again for a year. But, he said that if the proposal is substantially changed, the council can vote on it sooner.

The Planning and Zoning Committee determines if enough change has been made for the proposal to go back for another vote.

The issue concerns Wisconsin-based David Shea, who tried to get plans to bring a Best Buy consumer electronics store to a vacant lot between Ward Street and Whitmire. However, the plans were contingent on the approval of a request for zoning change from residential dwellings to a planned district for a shopping center.

The council denied the zoning change on Tuesday.

However, with changes to the proposal, the request will be brought before the City Council again on July 27.

Several residents expressed anger at the fact that the request would be heard again and said they felt as though their opinions were not being counted.

One resident asked for a show of hands of those who were opposed to retail in the northwest area. A number of hands were raised.

When Ms. Schneider was asked what would determine her decision for or against retail in the area, she said she would have to listen to both sides of the issue before answering.

"I think a lot would have to do with what the people out there want," she said. "But, I would also have to look and see if retail would be of benefit to the area. Regional chains, for instance, would draw people not just from Midland, but from the surrounding area."

Before the question and answer session, George Logan, director of Community Services for the city, at the request of Ms. Schneider, presented his staff from the four areas of community services: Parks and Recreation, Animal Control, Health and Golf Course.

Committee gives bureau high ratings

Staff report

An evaluation committee has given the Convention and Visitor's Bureau of the Midland Chamber of Commerce excellent and high marks for its efforts in attracting convention business to Midland.

The bureau evaluation — requested by the chamber — included the areas of conventions booked, conventions bid, conventions serviced and overall completion of its plan of work.

The evaluation committee involved industry experts as well as local participants familiar with the visitor industry. It was headed by Steve Kempton, manager of Luigi's Restaurant and a chamber board member and volunteer.

"They were amazed at how well we did with our budget," he said. "Everyone was impressed with the many good things the CVB does. Our challenge is to let the community know what the CVB is and what it does."

Chamber President and Chief Executive Officer Janna King said, "This evaluation and a similar one being conducted by the chamber's economic development division have been initiated by the chamber to review the programs prior to the chamber board retreat in August.

"We made significant changes in the direction of both divisions three years ago. We're taking the initiative now to get perspectives from people both inside and outside the organization."

"The outside viewpoint is an important component," she said. "These people see CVB programs in cities throughout the state. Their insights give us perspectives on our strengths and ways in which we can improve."

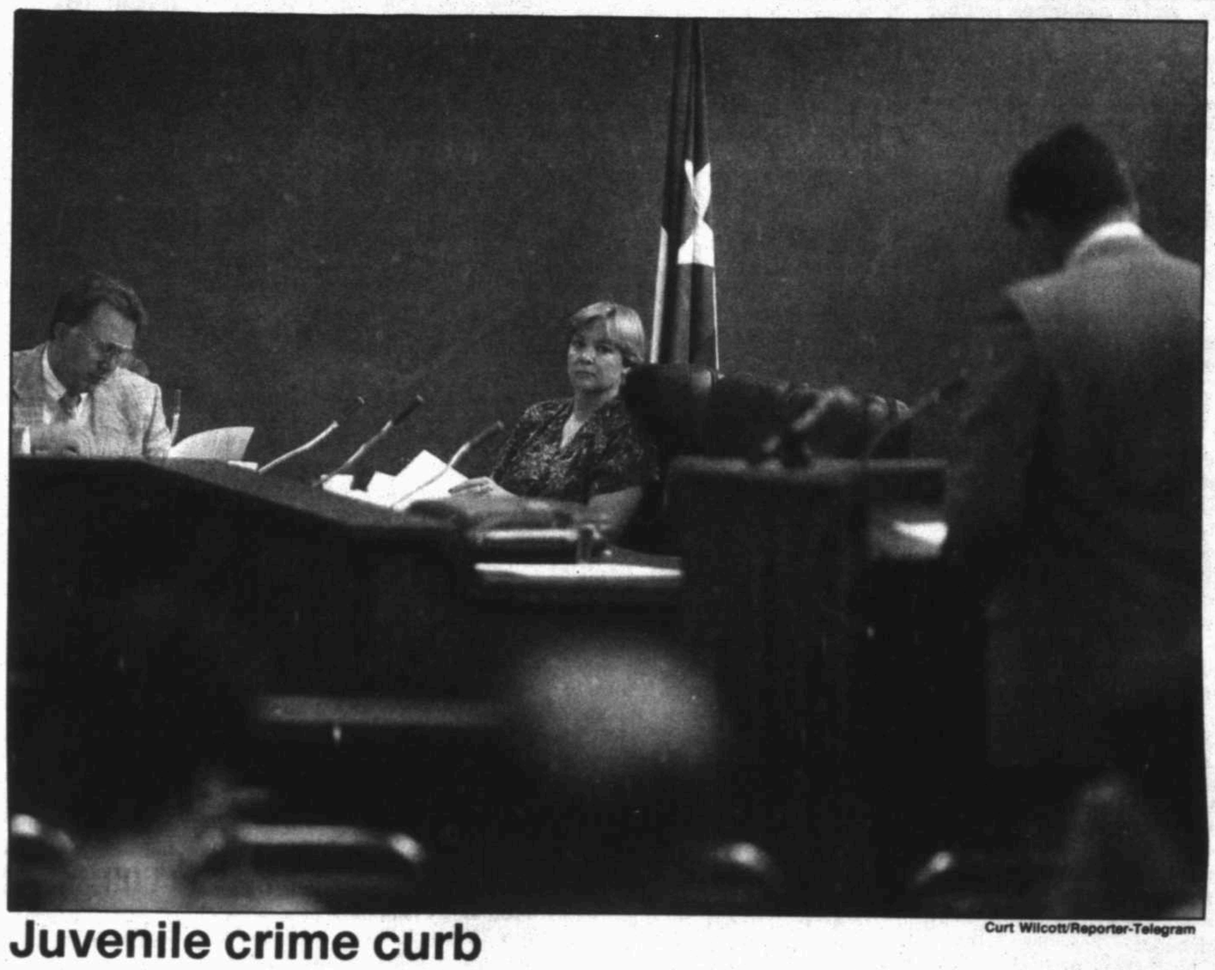

Mary Lynn Amoyo, executive director of the Texas Association of Convention and Visitors Bureaus, was one of the industry experts on the committee. She was formerly sales manger for the Dallas Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"The Midland program is very good, especially in view of the operating budget," she said. "The Midland CVB program is cost-effective and productive. For example, the piggy-backing of sales calls while attending a trade show. We also saw a very strong convention program and regional tourism marketing effort.

"We did see some challenges. More funds are needed by the CVB so they can do adequate advertising. First, there is a need for market research. Once those markets are established, then you can place advertising."

Former congressman leads off own defense

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Former congressman Albert Bustamante took the witness stand to defend himself Thursday in a tense showdown with his accusers after a 3½-year federal racketeering and bribery probe.

"I've been waiting for a long time for this day to come," said Bustamante, the first defense witness in his trial. "I have nothing to hide."

Bustamante's defense attorney, Tony Canales, questioned him about financial transactions that prosecutors contend were bribes or illegal gifts paid in exchange for his influence as a congressman. Bustamante testified they were legitimate business deals.

Then, on cross-examination, prosecutor Jackie Bennett accused Bustamante of accepting money illegally and lying about it.

"You weren't receiving payoffs, were you? You were an honest congressman?" Bennett said.

"I was an honest congressman," Bustamante replied.

Bustamante, who lost his re-election bid last year after eight years in Congress, is charged in a 10-count indictment with reaping $344,000 from illegal schemes. His wife, attorney Rebecca Bustamante, is charged in seven counts with aiding and abetting.

Prosecutors claim most of the money was funneled through her and disguised as legal fees.

Albert Bustamante testified that on Nov. 20, 1987, he acted as "courier" and picked up a $30,000 check for his wife from the offices of the prominent Jaffe family.

Bustamante initially said Mrs. Bustamante told him to pick up the legal fee check. During cross-examination, he said businessman M. Doug Jaffe Jr. told him to get the check.

Government attorneys claim Mrs. Bustamante did no work for the $30,000 and that it was an illegal gift the couple used to help pay for a house. Prosecutors claim Bustamante helped the Jaffes with a government contract in return.

Prosecutor Bennett said Bustamante's travel records show he didn't return to San Antonio from Washington until the day after he said he received the check.

"Well, I'm mistaken on the dates," Bustamante said.

"Yes. You're mistaken on the facts, too," Bennett said.

Bustamante added: "I'm not lying to the jury."

Bennett replied: "Is it a dream? Are you hallucinating?"

Bennett hammered at Bustamante about the date of a 1984 letter from Mrs. Bustamante regarding discussions with South San Antonio School District officials about their delinquent tax collection contract.

Prosecutors contend Mrs. Bustamante did no work for the school contract.

Midland College scholars join national honor society

Staff report

Seven Midland College students in the Radiologic Technology program were inducted into the Alpha Beta Gamma Honor Society on Thursday.

They, along with three honorary members, were honored at an awards luncheon at the Holiday Inn.

Students named to membership in Alpha Beta Gamma are required to have completed a minimum of 12 credit hours in college level courses at Midland College with an overall grade point average of 3.0 and a minimum of six credit hours of Radiology courses with a 3.4 GPA.

This is the fourth year for Midland College inducted members since receiving its Alpha Beta Gamma chapter in spring 1990.

Selected for membership this year were: Tonya McClane, Karen Chavez, Vicki Elrod, Janice Renfro, Mitzi Sevey, Lane Thornton, and Charla Young.

Named as honorary members were: Jeff Bates, RTR, diagnostic supervisor, Memorial Hospital and Medical Center; Ray Myers, RTR, Silver Reclaiming Services; and Kay Floyd, CPS, secretary for the Midland College Health Science Division.

Chapter advisor is William Heathman, radiologic technology clinical director.

Other radiologic technology faculty members include: Roberto Spencer, M.D., and Quinn Carroll, program director.

Running bulls trample Texan

HOUSTON (AP) — A 32-year-old Texan went to Spain for adventure.

He came back in a cast, having been trampled in Pamplona's annual running of the bulls.

"It kinda ruins the party," said Lee Whitney Marshall Jr., who hobbled off a plane at Houston Intercontinental Airport on Wednesday.

The Dallas airline executive suffered broken collarbones, a shattered knee, a broken left hand and pulled ligaments and tendons. He will undergo surgery this week.

"It was a trip," said the undaunted Marshall, adding that it's one he's thinking about taking again next year.

The festivities include the nine-day running of the bulls, is a traditional part of the San Fermin festival.

The bulls are set loose from pens in the city's old quarter and chase thousands of thrill seekers.

This year, 54 people, including Marshall, were hospitalized in Spain as a result of the run.

Marshall said the festivities "make Mardi Gras look like a tea party."

DEFENSE: Bustamante testifies

(From 1B)

They have questioned the legitimacy of the letter.

Bennett said the date of the letter from Mrs. Bustamante in San Antonio was the same date the couple was buying a house in Arlington, Va.

Bennett, amid repeated objections from Canales, asked Bustamante about $70,000 he made in cash deposits and about his dealings with Nashville, Tenn., businessman Ernesto Max Salas, who was accused of bribing public officials.

Bustamante said Salas was an acquaintance and that one time when he met with him "I took a witness with me because I thought he was wired."

Bustamante acknowledged helping arrange a breakfast business meeting between Salas and a Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport official at Salas' request.

"After that meeting, Mr. Salas paid you cash for having done so," Bennett said.

"That's a lie," Bustamante said.

Bennett asked if Bustamante recalled telling Salas during a dinner in Washington that if Bustamante were going to accept a bribe or illegal gratuity, he "would have it made out to his wife's law firm."

"That's a lie," Bustamante said.

Under questioning defense attorney Canales, Bustamante said a $35,000 payment in 1986 from businessman Eddie Garcia of Falcon Food and Management Services Inc. was for a house note on property the Bustamantes were selling.

Bustamante said he sold the note to Garcia instead of following his wife's instructions and financing it at a savings and loan, but then he later bought the note back.

Prosecutors contend the money was paid to Bustamante for his trying to get a renewal of an Air Force food service contract for Falcon Foods, run by Garcia and the Jaffes.

Defense witness Jim Valdez, a former South San Antonio School District trustee, testified the district superintendent told him Mrs. Bustamante "had contacted the district to collect delinquent taxes" before a contract was awarded to Heard Goggan Blair & Williams in March 1985.

Valdez also testified Mrs. Bustamante and attorney Oliver Heard showed him around their collection operation. The government contends Mrs. Bustamante, a lawyer at the firm, did no work to earn percentages of the district's delinquent tax revenues.

Valdez attacked government prosecutors and FBI agents for employing what he termed "Gestapo tactics" when they questioned his truthfulness about Mrs. Bustamante's involvement in the tax contract.

During cross-examination, Valdez admitted he solicited two campaign contributions from Heard the month after the tax contract was awarded, and that he called Heard to inform him the day after FBI agents interrogated him in May 1992.

CVB: Organization gets high marks organizer from Dallas, also participated in the evaluation committee. He said he was impressed by the Midland CVB's aggressive pursuit of new markets, especially motorcoach tours. In a little more than a year since the CVB began pursuing this new market, they have booked 14 bus tour groups through Midland.

"That's an excellent effort," he said. "It usually takes two to three years to start producing results in a new area. It shows that the tour operators have a lot of confidence in Midland's products and especially in the CVB staff."

McIlvain has worked the past 19 years in the tourism business, including stints with convention and visitors bureaus in Las Cruces, N.M., Odessa, North Dallas and Fort Worth. He said the detail in the Midland chamber's tourism plan of work is noteworthy.

"There are many specific goals in your plan of work and you have listed measurable results, which many communities still need to work on," he said.

During the presentation, staff members outlined the division's past performance, listed current goals and asked for comments and critiques from committee members. The results are being summarized for the board-planning retreat scheduled for late August.

Midlanders serving on the committee were Don Walts, Susie Hitchcock-Hall, Barbi Woods, Dan Anderson, Vic Hardy, Pat Schneider, Joan Baskin and Claire Woodcock. Also participating were Milton Meharg and Steve Amos, both from Austin.

Abortion protest results in 28 arrests

By Bill Hanna
N.Y. Times News Service

WHITE SETTLEMENT, Texas — As they attempted to stop a doctor from entering a women's clinic in this west Fort Worth suburb, 28 Operation Rescue protesters were arrested Thursday when they rushed through barricades and blocked the facility's driveway.

The abortion opponents, making their first visit to Tarrant County since their 10-day Cities of Refuge protests began July 9, had their most arrests in North Texas during this year's campaign. Most of the protests centered in Dallas County earlier this week.

Bart Largent, a White Settlement police spokesman, said one of the protesters would be charged with aggravated assault of a police officer. Twenty-four of the protesters were arrested on criminal trespass charges and three were arrested on charges of blocking an entrance; both are Class B misdemeanors.

Largent said he ordered the man charged with the felony to stop his van when he saw him driving about 35 mph toward the barricade.

"He was driving van in the back way and he didn't stop," Largent said. "The only thing I can assume is he wanted to drive through the barricades. I couldn't get out of the way in time and the van struck my left arm."

A magistrate set the man's bond at $5,000.

The arrests came in a brief flurry of activity about 12:30 p.m. following almost three hours of peaceful protest. The spark was provided by the arrival of the clinic's doctor as protesters blocked his path along a driveway leading to a parking lot.

When the doctor's vehicle finally reached the entrance to the clinic's parking lot, about a fourth of the 100 Operation Rescue protesters jumped across police barricades and sprinted toward the clinic entrance. All of the protesters were detained before reaching the entrance.

For about 15 minutes, many of the arrested protesters lay handcuffed on the parking lot while their colleagues behind the barricades cheered them on.

Afterward, Operation Rescue member Rusty Thomas, 37, of Houston, sat in the parking lot with his arms cuffed behind his back.

"We decided to focus our efforts on keeping the doctor from getting in the clinic to perform abortions," Thomas said. "We knew there were patients inside and we let a couple through because we knew if we kept the doctor out, there would be no killing here today."

Ro Martin, president of the clinic, said the protests were a "tremendous waste of manpower and resources," but he praised White Settlement police.

"The White Settlement police department did what they needed to do," he said. "This what they (Operation Rescue) did in Wichita, Kan., and they sat back and let them have their way."

Teen victim of surprised burglar, police say

HOUSTON (AP) — Police continued investigating on Thursday the fatal shooting of a 17-year-old River Oaks girl, who apparently stumbled into a burglary.

Mary Hughes died from a single bullet wound to the neck on Wednesday.

Her father discovered the teenager's body lying in their heavily shaded back yard after phoning police about a possible burglary at about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

A few items were missing from the Hughes home, but there was no sign of forced entry. However, the front door was open, said Houston Sgt. C.E. Elliott.

Trustee takes over Emory nursing home

AUSTIN (AP) — A trustee has taken over operation of a Northeast Texas nursing home after the state attorney general alleged its residents' health and safety were in jeopardy.

Attorney General Dan Morales, who filed a lawsuit in state district court in Rains County, said Thursday he had obtained a temporary restraining order and appointment of a trustee for the 68-bed Green Acres Nursing Home in Emory.

The lawsuit alleges that a Texas Department of Health investigation found violations of the state Health and Safety Code.

A lawyer representing the nursing home said appointment of the trustee was temporary, pending a court hearing.

Orrin Grover said he hoped the trustee could be removed even without a hearing after the nursing home gives the state information about action it has taken to improve conditions.

"I don't believe that anybody needs to worry about the care the residents are receiving in the facility. The residents I talked to seemed to be healthy and well cared-for" on a visit last month, Grover said. He said the staff is committed to providing good care.

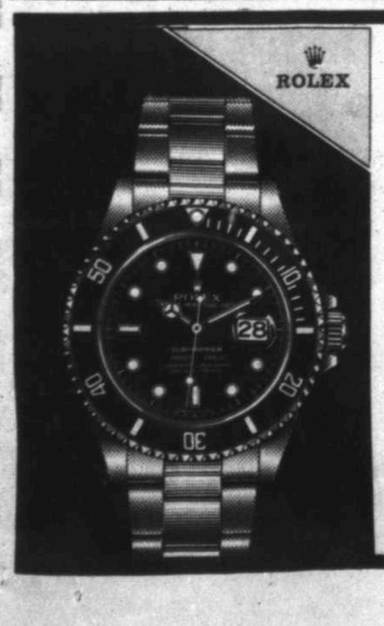

The Health Department alleged that inspectors found several patients had bed sores, and others weren't given their nutritional supplements or medication as scheduled.

During the investigation, several residents were observed wearing the same stained clothing for three days, and some said they had not had a bath in a week, Morales said.

Grover said an initial investigation found some problems with the facility's operation, which owners took immediate steps to try to correct.

Energy secretary tours nuclear weapons plant near Amarillo

AMARILLO (AP) — Secretary of Energy Hazel O'Leary toured the Pantex nuclear weapons plant Thursday and asked a diverse group of local leaders to help shape the facility's future.

Ms. O'Leary, who proclaimed herself in a mood to listen, mostly sat back and observed during the group's 45-minute discussion about how to form a Pantex advisory committee.

No one can exactly define the "site-specific advisory board" in terms of makeup or authority. But the group decided Thursday to name its members by Sept. 15.

Ideally, the proposed advisory board would make suggestions to the Department of Energy about matters at Pantex, the primary place where U.S. nuclear weapons are built and disassembled.

Bunkers at Pantex, located 17 miles northeast of Amarillo, also store plutonium "pits" on an interim basis.

Pantex — like other DOE facilities — stands at a crossroads as federal energy officials decide how to reconfigure the U.S. weapons complex. Possibilities include expansion, which concerns some Pantex critics who worry about environmental risks.

"I think we all have the same goals in mind," Ms. O'Leary said. "One, to ensure that the work here goes on, and goes on in a manner that takes into account the requirements for the safety, the continued health and benefit of the individuals working here and the citizens nearby."

Thursday's group of about 30 people included officials from the state and city, as well as schools, churches and the Chamber of Commerce.

The group agreed to select the advisory board's members with the help of the Keystone Group, a Colorado-based organization.

Hutchison releases records, hires lawyer

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, while releasing private telephone records Thursday, said she has hired a high-profile Washington lawyer to represent her in an investigation of the state Treasury she led for 2½ years.

John Dowd, an attorney who has represented political figures involved in the "Keating Five" and the Iran-Contra investigations, said his hiring by Mrs. Hutchison's husband, Ray, last week doesn't mean he anticipates criminal charges against the state's first-ever woman senator.

Dowd said his role will be to help clarify "false information" that has been leaked about Mrs. Hutchison's leadership of the Treasury since the Travis County district attorney's office began a grand jury investigation last month.

"Control over this matter will not be by the leakers who want to put out false and distorted information," said Dowd, who also represented former Major League Baseball Commissioner Bart Giamatti in a case against star player Pete Rose.

"The issue the way I see it here is whether people who choose to distort and disseminate false information can nullify an election of a United States senator. She asked me to help put together the facts."

Questions surrounding phone calls made for personal or political use on state time at the Treasury surfaced after the grand jury subpoenaed agency employees and records beginning June 10.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican elected senator June 5, has called the probe a politically-motivated campaign by Democrat district attorney Ronnie Earle to smear her name before she seeks re-election next year.

Until Thursday, Mrs. Hutchison had refused to release records from the private line she claims was installed in January 1991, when she took office as treasurer, and was disconnected in August 1992.

Mrs. Hutchison said because she paid for the more than 7,400 calls over a 19-month period, they were not subject to the state's open records law.

"We are putting it all out on the table," said campaign spokesman David Beckwith. "The phone logs, we continue to believe are not subject to the open records law. The phone logs are the result of a private arrangement she had to lease the line. She paid for all the charges herself."

Officials seek babies' parents after drug bust

LAREDO (AP) — U.S. Customs officials say drug suspects put babies in four transport cars to avoid suspicion, and authorities spent Thursday trying to sort out which child belonged to which parent.

None of the nine children belonged to the drivers or passengers of the car they were in, said Jose M. Martinez, chief sheriff's deputy in Webb County.

But an investigation by mid-afternoon had determined that at least six of the children had a parent in one of the other cars seized in separate stops on Tuesday and Wednesday, Martinez said.

Martinez said he wasn't sure about the other three children.

All nine children, ranging from 2 months to 3 years old, were turned over to child-protection officials.

"We can assure you that the kids are safe and their needs are being met," said Ramiro Soto Jr., the Webb County supervisor of child protection for the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services.

Citing confidentiality policies, Soto declined to disclose whether the parents had been found for all the children.

The nine adult passengers and drivers were arrested after they crossed the Colombia-Solidarity International Bridge.

The adults, all from Chicago, each were charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute. They were held on $125,000 bond each.

"They tried hard to make it look like a family unit on vacation. But the kids didn't belong to the man, nor did the women," U.S. Customs Chief Inspector David Higgerson said. "It shows you the depths to which they'll sink."

The phony family scheme almost worked, but Customs officials said a drug-sniffing dog foiled the plot. Authorities seized a total of nearly 400 pounds of marijuana in the four cars.

Each vehicle was a late-1980s model Chevrolet Celebrity bearing Illinois license plates, travelling from the Mexican state of Guerrero to Chicago, Higgerson said.

A second trunk had been fitted inside the truck of each car, and marijuana was found in the gaps between the trunks, he said.

The first car passed unsuspecting Customs inspectors shortly after the bridge opened at 8 a.m. Tuesday, Higgerson said.

But a drug-sniffing dog detected 99 pounds of marijuana in the second car 45 minutes later.

Customs inspectors remembered the nearly identical first car and notified the U.S. Border Patrol checkpoint north of Laredo on Interstate 35. Checkpoint guards stopped the car and found 100 pounds of marijuana in the trunk.

A third Celebrity arrived at the bridge about 4 p.m. Tuesday. The dog again alerted officers to the trunk, and inspectors found 93 pounds of marijuana.

Early Wednesday afternoon, a fourth Celebrity tried to cross the bridge. It carried another 100 pounds of marijuana, Higgerson said.

The sheriff's department identified the adults as Jose Hernandez Torres, 24; Sylvia Lequizamo Arroyo, 22; Isidoro Granada, 43; Hector Sotello Trujillo, 23; Alejandra Lequizamo Martinez, 24; Carlos Cruz Rodriguez, 35; Gracie Garcia, 20; Francisco Arroyo, 34; and Yaquian Manrique, 32.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, JULY 16, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A chance to teach and travel will be hard to resist. Family members will be supportive, whatever you decide. A financial burden is lightened by a bonus or second job. Stick close to home base in late fall. Early in 1994, a newcomer inspires you to develop a talent you did not realize you had. There is almost nothing you cannot accomplish if you aim high enough! A spring romance could lead to a new home or a trip to an exotic location.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: dancer Ginger Rogers, tennis star Margaret Court, actresses Barnard Hughes and Barbara Stanwyck.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can prevent a flare-up at work by being willing to compromise. Be careful not to go into debt or back the wrong venture. Put your credit cards away and pay cash.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): By focusing your energies on one project at a time, you will accomplish more. The end of a longtime relationship causes less pain than expected. Settle debts and develop a realistic budget.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take a family member's financial tips with a grain of salt. Domestic life could become tense if you are too opinionated. Pay special attention to real estate matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Salespeople enjoy tremendous luck today. If higher-ups ask pointed questions, be candid but avoid betraying a source. A good evening to dine with old friends or former neighbors.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An influential person will come to you with an unusual offer. Ask for time to think it over. A spur-of-the-moment invitation brightens your evening. Dress elegantly for a special event.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The emphasis now is on entertaining for business purposes. Broaden your social circle. Employment affairs are affected by people you do not yet know.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spend more time with a teen-ager who will be away at college this fall. Candid discussions lead to mutual respect. Something you once thought unattainable moves within easy reach.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Showcase your special talents in the best way possible. Influential people offer to back a pet project. There could be strings attached. Weigh your options.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An idea that will bring you extra money comes from out of the blue. Recruit others to help you make the plan work. Higher-ups could be unusually demanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Issue an ultimatum if there is no alternative. Others should not be spending your money. Travel to a far-off place will involve delays but still bring enjoyment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Neatness counts when guests are coming over. Start tidying up early this morning. Deal with a knotty financial problem today so that you can get on with a special project.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It will take some initiative on your part to straighten out a financial mess. Dig in. You might be more edgy than usual. Stay home with a good book or video tonight.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ◇

Here's a hand to dazzle the finessers. How would you opt to play six spades after the lead of the jack of diamonds?

The bidding was straightforward. North's four clubs was an advance cue-bid showing first-round club control, a maximum no trump and excellent spade support. With at least 33 points guaranteed in the combined hands, six spades was an easy decision for South.

West led the jack of diamonds, declarer won in hand and drew trumps in two rounds. How would you proceed?

One way would be to take finesses in hearts and clubs. If either succeeds, you have 12 tricks. Not bad, since the odds in favor of one of two finesses succeeding is 3-to-1.

Slightly better is to cash the king of diamonds and ruff a diamond, then cash the ace-king of one suit. If the queen does not drop, play a third round of that suit and, depending on which defender wins the trick, you will either be able to claim your contract or else have to fall back on a finesse.

Which suit should you select for the throw-in? There's a simple guideline—use the weaker of the two suits! Since clubs is the weaker suit here (the combined heart holding includes the nine) cash the ace and king of clubs and surrender a club. After West wins the queen of clubs, you will make the contract if West holds either the ten or queen of hearts. On the forced heart return, play low from dummy. If East produces the ten, win the king and then finesse the jack. On this lie of the cards the queen pops up immediately, so you are home free.

Late-night nice guy Leno cuts Ted Kennedy, David Letterman a break

NEW YORK — The nice guy of late night, Jay Leno, has nothing bad to say about soon-to-be competitor David Letterman or the oft-lampooned U.S. Sen. Ted Kennedy.

Letterman

Leno, in this Sunday's Parade magazine, says he welcomes the addition of old pal Letterman to the 11:30 p.m. mix. Dave's new show debuts on CBS Aug. 30.

"I don't have any problem with Letterman. ... He's very good," Leno said. "I think there's room for both shows. It'll make late night TV more exciting."

Leno, whose monologues contain frequent political references, also said he's given a free pass lately to Massachusetts Sen. Kennedy.

"Every week, reams of Ted Kennedy jokes come in," Leno said. "But you say to yourself, 'The guy's been married a year, he gave that speech about turning his life around, it's not fair to pick on him right now.'"

WASHINGTON — Jason Richter, 13-year-old star of the new movie "Free Willy," wasn't allowed to ride the 7,000-pound killer whale that appears as his co-star. He did get to stick his hand in the creature's mouth.

Killer whales like their tongues rubbed and Richter got plenty of practice.

The Richter reading:

"It felt like chewed up bubble gum," he told AP Network News Thursday. "It's weird. It's chewy. I don't know how to explain it. It's soft when you rub it forward, but when you pull your hand back, it's got ridges in it.

"It's like a cat's tongue.

Richter said trainers wouldn't allow him to ride Willy, so a mechanical whale was used as a stand-in.

"They felt it was dangerous," he said. "I'm like a fly compared to him. He's humongous. If he smashed me into the wall by accident that would be it."

KING'S LYNN, England — Prince Charles and Princess Diana made a rare public appearance as a couple when they attended the funeral Thursday of her grandmother, the Dowager Lady Fermoy.

The estranged pair walked side-by-side behind his grandmother, the 92-year-old Queen Mother, into the 12th century St. Margaret's Anglican church in this town in the east of England.

They also sat together during the 30-minute service attended by 400 mourners, and walked to their limousine when it was over, chatting while Charles held up an umbrella against the rain.

Charles and Diana last appeared together May 31 at a veterans' service. They formally separated Dec. 9.

Lady Fermoy, who died July 6 at age 84, was said to have been close to Diana. She also was a close friend to the Queen Mother, becoming her lady-in-waiting in 1957, after both were widowed, and in 1960 received the title of Woman of the Bedchamber.

BATON ROUGE, La. — A kung fu instructor is taking on martial arts movie star Chuck Norris in federal court, alleging his idea was distorted and contracts broken in the making of the new film "Sidekicks."

Louis Illar, who lives in Baton Rouge, filed his lawsuit Wednesday against Norris and others involved in the film. Illar says the movie was derived from his screenplay "The Gift of the Iron Crutch."

Illar did not specify the amount of monetary damages he wants.

His lawsuit says Norris and California-based Iron Crutch Productions Inc. broke contracts with Illar in producing the movie.

"Sidekicks" is the story of a sickly teenager who gains confidence with the help of a character played by Norris. Credits list Illar as associate producer and story author.

Norris' agent didn't return phone calls Thursday seeking comment.

LOS ANGELES — Roseanne and Tom Arnold plan to give $15,000 to the Red Cross to help flood victims in Illinois and their home state of Iowa.

The comic TV couple want $5,000 to aid disaster relief for the hard-hit quad-city area of Davenport and Bettendorf in Iowa, and Moline and Rock Island in Illinois.

The flood relief effort itself will get $5,000 and the Wapello County area, especially the towns of Eddyville, Eldon and Ottumwa, will receive $5,000, the Arnolds' publicity firm, PMK, said Wednesday.

POIPU, Hawaii — First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton paid a quick visit to the once-again lush green island of Kauai to congratulate its people and officials on "the most remarkable and efficient response effort to a disaster that we have had in our country."

Mrs. Clinton took a helicopter tour and received a briefing Wednesday on the recovery efforts from Hurricane Iniki, which swept over Kauai on Sept. 11 with winds of up to 165 mph, causing $2 billion in damage.

Mrs. Clinton spent Wednesday night on Maui, where she visited a rural health clinic in the remote town of Hana. She has no other public events scheduled and is expected to remain on Maui until returning to Washington on Sunday.

FAMILY MATTERS

Children, even siblings, behave differently

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: I have three children, two boys and one girl, ages 9, 7 and 4. The two boys were and always have been very easy going and easy to parent. They usually just do what you tell them to do. Our daughter is another story. She was a difficult baby and I thought she was going to have colic forever. She has always been a discipline problem. No matter where we take her I swear she makes a scene on purpose. People are always looking at us like we're rotten parents. I hate taking her anywhere but especially to church or out to eat. I've told my husband that something has to be done about her behavior.

May

We try to discipline (daughter), but she is so defiant it just makes matters worse; she throws an even bigger screaming and yelling fit. We try to get her to be quiet and she just talks or yells louder. My husband isn't any better because he says that he can't bring himself to spank her. We wind up just ignoring her, but I know that we're not doing the right thing.

How can two children be so nice and one child turn out so mean? Even her brothers can't stand her and avoid her all they can. She seems mad at everyone all the time. Can you give me some ideas because we've all had it with her. OVERWHELMED

DEAR OVERWHELMED: When a child — or teenager for that matter — is in charge of the family, it causes problems. In answer to your first question, children seem to have identifiable temperament. Child development psychologists have identified three general types of temperament: easy, quiet and difficult.

The "easy child" tends to adapt to any situation with a pleasant attitude. They rarely complain and when they do, it is short-lived. They generally have good sleeping and eating habits.

The "quiet child" tends to be highly sensitive and does not handle new situations very well. These children tend to withdraw in the face of conflict and may well suck their thumbs or cry quietly.

The "difficult child" typically displays unpredictable sleeping and eating habits. They tend to have tantrums when things do not go their way. They do not adjust easily to new situations. Such children usually are easily frustrated and do not smile as often as other children.

Parents need to be in charge of the family. Though it should be a "democratic system" — each person entitled to his or her opinion — the parents must set the rules of appropriate behavior. As you have probably already learned with your boys, "easy children" require little in the way of discipline. They want to please their parents, so they generally do what they are told with good grace.

"Quiet children" need more sensitive discipline. Parents need to be especially careful to show these children more patience. The parents need to present their requests several times without criticizing these children for any failures.

"Difficult children" must be dealt with consistently. Usually, giving these children only a few demands and prohibitions at a time — but enforcing the consequences rigorously — works best. You and your husband could to prioritize your issues with your daughter and only concentrate on the top three for now. You both must demonstrate patience, firmness and consistency, or she will continue her behavior pattern. Don't be lenient one day and strict the next. This tends to teach such children to escalate the battle in order to get their way — a classic power struggle.

These are only generalizations. You may recognize different traits of these three categories in your children. "Labeling" children should be avoided, but sometimes such categorizing makes the process easier to deal with. Don Dinkmeyer and Gary McKay's book, "The Parent's Handbook," may be helpful in formulating a more structured approach to parenting. Parents need to establish a parenting philosophy together and then create an action plan accordingly.

THE CENTERS FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES OFFER THE FOLLOWING CAREGIVING OR PARENTING STYLE OPTIONS FOR PARENTS:

- Permissive: The parent is passive and consultative; hopes and pleads; shares and is lax; gives in often. In response, the child is often anxious, self-centered and demanding.
- Democratic/authoritative: The parent is involved and instructive; requires and insists; listens but is firm; is supportive and can be influenced. In response, the child is often respectful, responsible and secure.
- Authoritarian: The parent is controlling and arbitrary; demands and threatens; doesn't listen, knows best; puts down. In response, the child is often fearful, resentful, insecure and rebellious.

Jim May is the director of the Family Wellness Center.

Weather predicted on St. Swithin's Day

WINCHESTER, England (AP) — One way of predicting Britain's fickle weather is to check the skies on St. Swithin's Day (July 15).

Tradition says that if it rains here on St. Swithin's, it will rain for 40 more days. If the day is fair, 40 days without rain will follow.

St. Swithin, appointed Bishop of Winchester in A.D. 852, was an advisor to Ethelwulf, king of the West Saxons.

History does not explain his prowess as a weather forecaster.

DEAR ABBY

Sensitivity to others is precious commodity

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am still fuming about that "contest" dreamed up by some dim-witted program chairman for the annual mothers and daughters banquet at their church, no less.

Van Buren

First they asked all the women who were mothers to stand up. Then they asked all the mothers who wore dentures to sit down. I have never heard of anything so insensitive in all my life!

I have a suggestion for their annual banquet next year. How does this sound?

"Will all the mothers please stand?" (Does this include the women who have had only miscarriages or stillbirths? How about the foster mothers — and stepmothers who have borne no children but mothered many?)

Now, "Will the youngest mother present please stand?" (Does this include the 14-year-old victim of incest, and the woman who gave up her child when she was 15 and has no idea where that child is?)

Now, "Let's see the mother who has had the most children!" (This will revive memories of all the ridicule and insults endured by mothers who have had eight, nine, 10 or more children.)

We should also be aware that victims of parental child abuse do not want to listen to exaggerated praise for a parent they remember only with bitterness each Mother's Day or Father's Day.

Abby, please remind your readers that there is a need for sensitivity on both Mother's Day and Father's Day. — HURTING FOR OTHERS

DEAR HURTING: Thank you for a suggestion that may prove enlightening to many.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old woman, divorced 10 years, no children and am self-supporting.

About six months ago, I met a very charming gentleman who happens to be blind. He lives alone with a Seeing Eye dog and is remarkably independent. He lives in a city about 400 miles from here, and since we met, he has visited me four times.

I thought he was about 45 years old, but he told me that he is 38! I was shocked. He said the age difference is not a problem. Abby, this is the first time I've dated a man that much younger than myself, and this relationship has developed into a serious love affair.

The only thing that is marring all this is the fact that he told his mother I was 40 years old. Obviously, he was embarrassed to tell her the truth.

Abby, how important is the fact that he lied to his mother about my age? Please answer soon. I really care about this man. — SLIGHTLY SHOOK

DEAR SHOOK: Lying to his mother about your age indicates that (a) he needed her approval, and (b) he is less than honest. And now that you are aware of these two very important facts, don't rush into anything.

DEAR ABBY: You were right on the money with your response to "A Ladylike Lady" who complained that her husband leered at waitresses. This showed an obvious lack of respect for his wife, who was with him at the time. This lack of respect is widespread among most men. My husband, his brothers, etc., are all guilty. Their excuse is always, "It's the women's lack of confidence — their insecurity." What a crock!

My sister was out on a date one night when their car stopped for a red light. Her date literally put his car in reverse and backed up in order to get a better look at a pretty girl in another car! How's that for tact?

Another example: My friend and her husband were driving along, when the husband pushed her head down gently under the dash and shouted, "Get down — and stay down!"

After a minute had passed, she asked, "What's wrong?"

He said, "A beautiful girl was walking by, and I didn't want her to see that I was with someone!" — ORANGE COUNTY FAN

DEAR FAN: Your husband, his brothers and your friend's husband ought to be ashamed of themselves. What poor excuses for men! And a wife who would tolerate such demeaning behavior has my profound sympathy.

Woman drives cab 52 years

By Katharine Webster

AP Laserphoto

Rosie LeCours, the proprietor of Rosie's Cab and one of the first women to drive a cab in Boston, has retired after 52 years and more than 1 million miles behind the wheel.

BOSTON (AP) — Before the patriotic image of Rosie the Riveter urged women to take over "men's jobs" so American men could fight World War II, Rosie LeCours leapt at the chance to be among the first women to drive a cab here.

LeCours had been parking cars in a downtown parking lot when Town Taxi hired her in 1941. She went on to become the first woman hack to buy her own taxi medallion. But after racking up 52 years and more than a million miles behind the wheel, the proprietor of Rosie's Cab is retiring. She pulled the meter out of her cab last month.

"Nothing changes me," she said. "I'm the same Rosie. I'll be driving, just not with passengers — or not with cab passengers."

She insisted that she was as sharp as ever, and then proceeded to prove it, winding her 1985 Mercury Grand Marquis in and out of downtown traffic. "I don't miss a thing. My eyes are everywhere," she said.

Her voice was everywhere, too, as she greeted passing cab drivers and policeman or gave tips to other drivers. "Go on, go on, get out of my way," she told one. Then, "If you're going to turn right, get over on the right!"

LeCours thinks she survived in a tough job because she always said what she thought when she thought it. "I don't keep anything in me. That's why when I get home I'm not crying like some women do," she said. "There were a lot of men who couldn't take it and had to drop out."

LeCours' cab was easy to spot. It was lemon yellow with "Rosie's Cab" in black gothic lettering on the side and "Rosie" on the toplight.

LeCours, who wouldn't disclose her age, said she was a young mother when she began driving in 1941; women weren't allowed to own their own cabs. She saved money to buy a medallion and her own car, working first for Town Taxi, then for Yellow Cab.

In 1948, Police Commissioner Tom Sullivan decided that LeCours would be the first woman in Boston to own her own medallion, she said. She bought a 1941 Dodge.

She went on to achieve several other firsts. She was the first to drive through the South Station automobile tunnel when it opened in 1959. She also was the first woman elected to the Everett City Council in 1972.

"South Station was my institution," she said. She waited for fares at the South Station taxi stand and went up and down Summer Street "about 90 times a day."

She knows Boston like the back of her hand, but she has rarely been outside Massachusetts. "I've been everywhere, but I've been nowhere. I took everybody to the airports and the bus stations, and then I turn around and they go."

She has driven every Boston mayor and Massachusetts governor in 52 years, as well as famous athletes and movie stars. She has a stack of newspaper clippings and photos showing her posing with politicians and celebrities.

But she didn't go into cab-driving for the glamour. She had to support her family and help pay her husband's medical bills. Her husband, who died a few years ago, was unable to work for much of his life. "I started because I was hungry," she said. "I never accepted any welfare."

She never had a major accident and never had a claim filed against her, she said. Boston police know her so well that when she parked in a no-parking zone in front of police headquarters for 20 minutes recently, no one protested.

"This lady was in the vanguard," said Police Capt. Ronald Conway, who supervises Boston's cabs. "She was always a first-class lady and always created a tremendous amount of good will."

LeCours said she's ready to retire as a hack.

However, she has no plans to stop driving. "I like people and I like driving and I like to help people, especially the elderly. That's my life."

'Forgetfulness' not always Alzheimers

By Henry F. Page, M.D.

Page

"Is you is or is you ain't — Alzheimers?" Oh, for the good old days when one died young so that if you forgot a dear one's birthday or a neighbor's name, or you stood in front of a closet or refrigerator pondering the "hereafter," it all could be blamed on the scattering of youthful brains.

Now, being older and wiser, you cringe over the thought, "Am I getting Alzheimers?" The answer is that the chances of this being the case are such that you might just as well expect to win $10 million from the Publishers Clearing House. In either case the odds are grossly against you, as shown by the fact that 90 percent of persons over 65 years of age can display senescent forgetfulness without further deterioration. As one illustration: The older senescent man may forget to zip up his fly, while the early senile man may forget to unzip his in the first place.

Half of the remaining 10 percent may deteriorate to the point that the level of their job and social functioning lessens along with a decline in motor skills such as dancing or drawing. They may display mild to moderate anxiety along with hesitant or repetitive speech. With gentle support plus reality orientation, they will do well at home and live out a happy, useful life-span.

The residual 5 percent may become late confusional and thus Alzheimers or related disorders suspect. Significant memory decline, wandering, disorientation as to time and place all represent the probable onset of early dementia. In two years, half of these will deteriorate further to the extent that institutionalization becomes imperative, first in day care facilities and later in specialized nursing homes geared to the slow, gradual, relentless spectrum of total dementia and ultimate death. The whole tragic progression takes about seven years, more or less. The only bright aspect lies in the fact that Alzheimers and related disorders applies to only such a tiny percentage of the older population. Familial anxiety is out of proportion because of uncertainty due to the lack of an exact diagnosis, which requires a brain biopsy, while the early symptomology mimics many benign and much more frequent conditions. The seemingly epidemic-like increase in total number of cases results from the skyrocketing increase in the number of old, old persons that continue to now rise exponentially.

So fear not — but chances are you won't get the $10 mil either. Just keep all of life's multitudinous problems in proper proportion. Perhaps Peter De Vries was correct when he opined: "We know the human brain is a device to keep the ears from grating on one another."

Henry F. Page, M.D., F.A.C.P., is health and safety consultant to Midland Presbyterian Homes.

Child Care You Can Count On.....

We're rounding the corner to summer's end and it's time to start making arrangements for child care for the school year. Child care is a vital concern for today's children by today's parents and for this reason the Midland Reporter-Telegram is publishing our annual Child Care Directory on Sunday, August 8th.

The Child Care Directory is a method used to reach parents with information about the services that are available in the Midland area and who provides them. The parents of children in the Midland area have come to rely on this directory as a guide to quality child care. This section focuses on the basic "who, what, where and when" of quality child care in our area and the section includes a map so that your facility can easily be located.

You will probably want your facility represented with an ad in this special Child Care Directory, a story about your facility, a photo of your facility and a dot on the map to show your location. Special ad packages, ranging from an 8" ad to an 18" ad, are available. There are also rates for regular ads of any size.

Deadline for this special Child Care Directory is Thursday, July 29, 1993. For more information, and to reserve your ad space in the Child Care Directory, please call:

Oilers negotiate

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers have retained exclusive negotiating rights for Pro Bowl players Ernest Givins and Lorenzo White, but the two are far from agreeing to contracts with the club.

The two, listed as transitional free agents, were free to negotiate with other teams until 4 p.m. Today. Neither received any offers.

Givens' agent, Jim Ellis, was not surprised by the lack of interest. He said teams were reluctant to tender offers because the Oilers had the right of first refusal.

"If the Oilers didn't have right of first refusal, I think there would have been a lot of offers," Ellis said. "But the key phrase we kept hearing was that other clubs didn't want to get into a 'bidding war with the Oilers.'"

The Oilers have offered Givens and White minimum one-year contracts. Givens was offered $1.79 million and White $1.53 million.

Neither plans to accept the deals and will hold out of training camp pending negotiations that haven't yet been scheduled, their agents said.

Oilers general manager Mike Holovak said he wasn't sure when negotiations would resume.

Givins caught 67 passes for 787 yards and 10 touchdowns last season. White ran for 1,226 yards and caught 57 passes for 641 yards.

Australian Greg Norman drives from the rough at the first hole Thursday during the first round of the British Open. Norman went on to double-bogey the hole, but rebounded to shoot 4-under 66 for a share of the lead.

Norman, others grab share of Open lead

■ Norman keeps composure after double-bogey to take share of first round lead.

By Bob Green
AP Golf Writer

SANDWICH, England — Greg Norman emerged from showers and mist and drizzle today in a tie for the first round lead in the British Open with a fellow Australian and a couple of his old-time tormentors.

Norman, who came back from a double bogey on the first hole with a late string of five consecutive birdies and a 31 on the back nine, shared the top spot with Mark Calcavecchia, Fuzzy Zoeller and Peter Senior at 4-under-par 66.

■ British Open

"It's a matter of getting in the zone, getting the feel. Once you get the feel, you just go," Norman said of the birdie streak from the 13th through 17th holes at soggy old Royal St. George's.

"I feel I'm back. I feel I'm ready to win another major," said Norman, the 1986 British Open winner who lost the title to Calcavecchia in a playoff in 1989.

His closing burst seemed ample demonstration. It started with an 18-foot putt, was followed by a 45-foot chip-in and also included a 25-footer and a couple of mid-iron approaches that left him putts of less than 6 feet.

Mark Calcavecchia blasts from a sand trap enroute to a 4-under 66 for a share of the lead.

While Norman made the most spectacular move, it was only one of many on the course robbed of its natural defenses by rain that softened and eased its hard, fast fairways and greens.

The result was a complete change in the character of the course, exceptionally low scores and 11 men locked within a single stroke at the top of the standings.

AUSTIN — Emmitt Smith was a no-show for the opening of the world champion Dallas Cowboys training camp on Thursday but owner Jerry Jones produced a surprise guest, showing NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue around St. Edward's University.

"I wanted to be here to celebrate the Cowboys Super Bowl victory," Tagliabue said. "It's a helluva lot better being here than in Minnesota on the front row of federal court like I was last year."

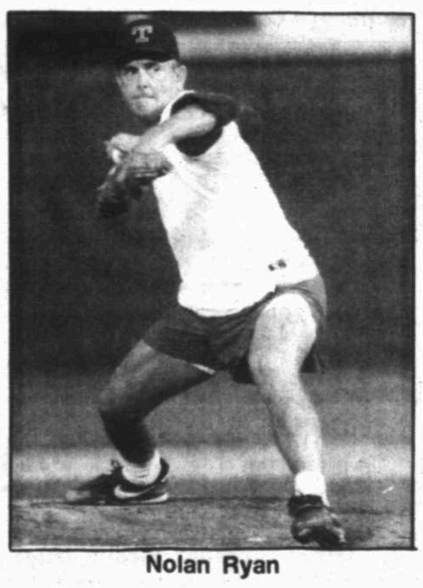

Tagliabue praised the Cowboys practice facility and threw Jones a bone when he said the world champions don't have to worry about being in another division when the NFL begins realignment discussions.

"There will be no radical changes regarding the Cowboys," Tagliabue said. "We wouldn't want to destroy what works. The Cowboys in the NFC East works."

Tagliabue added that the Cowboys

Texas continues wait on Ryan's return

Nolan Ryan

■ Rangers expect Ryan back for the first time in more than two months Monday.

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers will have to wait and see how Nolan Ryan feels before deciding when he'll come off the disabled list and if he will pitch Monday against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Ryan threw 95 pitches in a five-inning simulated game Wednesday at Arlington Stadium.

"He had no problems physically or anything, but the bottom line is that no determination has been made yet on whether he will pitch Monday," said John Blake, Rangers' vice president for public relations.

Blake said Ryan fielded ground balls, again with no physical problems, after his pitching stint.

Ryan went on the disabled list earlier in the season for arthroscopic knee surgery, and came back for one start before going back onto the DL with an injured hip. While rehabilitating from that injury, he cut his foot when he stepped on the blade of a water ski.

Eight players hit off Ryan in the simulated game — Jeff Frye, Jeff Huson, Jon Shave, Butch Davis, Geno Petralli, Mario Diaz, Doug Dascenzo and John Russell.

Blake said the Rangers didn't put a radar gun on Ryan to see how hard he was throwing.

In a roster move after the workout, the Rangers activated infielder Jeff Huson from the 15-day disabled list and optioned Shave, also an infielder, to Oklahoma City of the American Association.

Hancock Bowl moves to Christmas Eve

By Eduardo Montes
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO (AP) — A Christmas Eve date for the John Hancock Bowl will give the game a chance to shine as the first major sporting event following the end of the college football season, game officials said Thursday.

The Sun Carnival Association, the organization that runs the Hancock Bowl, announced the Dec. 24 date during a news conference culminating months of negotiations with CBS, which televises the bowl.

Association Executive Director Craig Helwig said that having the game kicking off at 12:30 p.m. on a national holiday, which is also a Friday, will give it a chance to attract a good, strong crowd.

Meantime, positioning it as the first bowl may well allow it to grab a bigger share of the television audience, which will be hungry for college football after the drought between the season's end and the beginning of post-season play, he said.

"It does very well ... in a spot where we are uncontested," Helwig said.

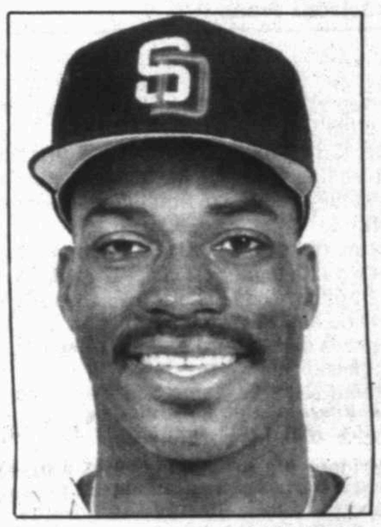

The game could do with better attendance. It has lost money the last two years and, according to a recent auditor's report, the association posted a deficit of $157,248 as of Jan. 31.

Most of the losses, $153,185, came in 1992-93, which included a bowl matchup between Baylor and Arizona that drew a crowd of 41,622 to the 52,000-seat Sun Bowl stadium.

The association also is negotiating with CBS on a television contract extension and on a sponsorship deal with John Hancock Financial Services. Both are in their last year of their contracts with the game.

Ramiro Guzman, president of the association, said something should be finalized with both CBS and John Hancock within 30 days.

Now, the association is focusing on trying to sell out the Sun Bowl, which hasn't been done in the years since it was expanded to seat 52,000, Helwig said. "We have tunnel vision at this point," he said.

Fred McGriff

McGriff wary of trade

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Fred McGriff left the San Diego Padres' lineup before their game Thursday due to injury, amid reports he probably will be traded to the Atlanta Braves.

But both teams said no deal was imminent.

Braves spokesman Jim Schultz said he was given no indication when he spoke Thursday to general manager John Schuerholz that a trade was about to happen.

"I have not been told to get ready to plan a news conference," Schultz said.

Padres general manager Randy Smith was at Thursday's game with the Philadelphia Phillies and offered little confirmation on whether McGriff would be traded to Atlanta.

"I never said he's going to Atlanta," Smith said. "He might end up there. There are other teams that are interested. When you get guys making his kind of dollars, less than a handful of teams can afford him.

"It's tough to say. I said all along we are one phone call away if everything is agreeable on each side.

"This has been going on for the month I've been here and the month before. We've got it narrowed down. We've got to make sure we get the very best deal there is. That's what happened with the Sheffield situation."

Although he was scheduled to start, McGriff asked to leave lineup because he aggravated a strained muscle in his right side, Padres manager Jim Riggleman said. McGriff left Sunday's game in Montreal during the first inning due to the same ailment.

McGriff reportedly will be dealt as a part of ongoing moves by the Padres to lower their payroll. The defending National League home run champion's contract pays $4.25 million this year and $4.5 million next season.

Rangers remain hot after break, beat Tigers, 12-7

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Torrid Rafael Palmeiro had two homers, two doubles and four RBIs as the Texas Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers 12-7 Thursday night for their fifth straight victory.

Palmeiro's two-run homer in the sixth inning snapped a 7-7 tie and helped the Rangers to its ninth victory in 10 games. Palmeiro — hitting .512 over the last 10 games — extended his hitting streak to 14 games.

Brian Bohanon (4-1) pitched 2 2-3 innings of innings of one-hit relief. Tom Henke got the final two outs for his 18th save.

The Rangers reached five Tiger pitchers for nine extra base hits among their 17, and got three hits and three RBIs from Juan Gonzalez. Texas has scored 33 runs in its last three games.

Julio Franco started the winning rally with a single off reliever Kurt Knudsen (1-2). Then Palmeiro hit his 18th homer.

The Tigers took a 7-6 lead in the fourth off reliever Todd Burns when Cecil Fielder and Mickey Tettleton led off the inning with walks. Fielder advanced to third on a fly ball and scored on Burns' balk.

But Palmeiro's homer in the fourth made it 7-7.

Franco's 10th homer, a two-run shot in the third following David Hulse's double, gave the Rangers a 5-3 lead. Palmeiro added his second double of the game before Gonzelez singled in another run.

But Rangers starter Kevin Brown blew a three-run lead for the second time in three innings as the Tigers tied the game at 6 in the third. Kirk Gibson had a two-run homer and catcher Ivan Rodriquez allowed a passed ball.

The slumping Brown lasted 2 1-3 innings, allowing six runs and six hits, and issuing five of a team-record-tying 13 walks by Texas pitchers. Over his last 14 1-3 innings, Brown has surrendered 14 runs and 20 hits.

Athletics 8, Yankees 3

NEW YORK — Ruben Sierra matched a career best with five RBIs — including a three-run homer in Oakland's six-run seventh inning — and the Athletics beat New York.

Sierra drove in runs in the first and third innings with a sacrifice fly and a single before greeting reliever Steve Howe with his 13th homer in the seventh as the A's sent the Yankees to their fourth straight defeat and ninth in 11 games.

Mike Mohler (1-1), the second of five Oakland pitchers, worked two hitless innings. Melido Perez (5-9) was the loser after allowing nine hits and five runs with two walks and five strikeouts in six innings.

Blue Jays 7, Royals 2

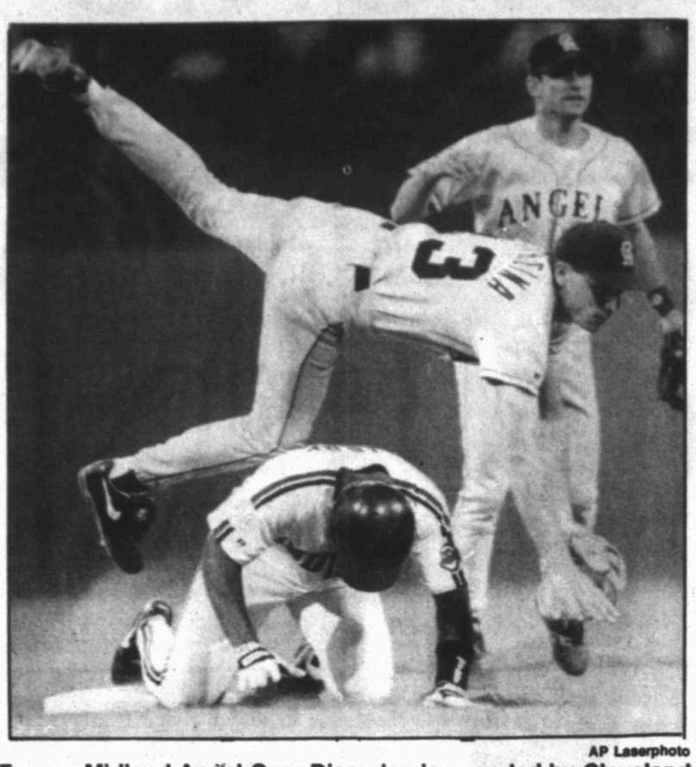

TORONTO — John Olerud homered in the seventh inning, then broke a tie with a bases-load walk in the eighth as Toronto snapped a five-game losing streak with a victory over Kansas City.

With the score tied 2-2, Roberto Alomar started the eighth with a single off loser Enrique Burgos (0-1), then stole second. Burgos hit Paul Molitor on the foot, and reliever Mark Gubicza walked Joe Carter to load the bases before Olerud greeted Billy Brewer with a four-pitch walk.

Tony Fernandez followed with a two-run double off Tom Gordon, making the score 5-2 and the Blue Jays, who lost 10 of their previous 11 games, scored two more runs on Pat Borders' RBI groundout and a wild pitch by Gordon.

Al Leiter (5-5) got the win in relief of Toronto starter Juan Guzman, allowing one hit in two innings. Burgos gave up two runs on one hit in his major-league debut, facing just two batters.

Kansas City starter David Cone lost a shutout bid when Molitor led off the seventh with his 11th homer. One out later, Olerud hit his 16th, tying the score.

Indians 7, Angels 3

CLEVELAND — Albert Belle hit a three-run homer, and California's defense came unglued as Cleveland beat the Angels to break a four-game losing streak.

The Indians scored four runs in the seventh inning, aided by three California errors. All told, the Angels committed a season-high five errors in losing for only the second time in seven games.

Scott Sanderson (7-9) lost his seventh consecutive decision, equaling a career worst, and contributed the most damaging error. After Paul Sorrento led off the Cleveland seventh with a single, Sanderson threw away Reggie Jefferson's bunt, putting runners at second and third.

White Sox 6, Brewers 4

MILWAUKEE — Pinch-runner Steve Sax stole a base and then scored the go-ahead run on an eighth-inning error by Milwaukee third baseman B.J. Surhoff as Chicago rallied to beat Milwaukee.

The White Sox tied the game with two runs in the seventh — the fourth run scoring on a wild pitch — and then went ahead with two more in the eighth against Milwaukee's shaky bullpen.

Orioles 5, Twins 3

BALTIMORE — Harold Reynolds had three hits, including his first homer in over a year, as Baltimore beat Minnesota.

Cal Ripken also homered for the Orioles, who have won five of seven. Baltimore's 28-12 record since May 31 is best in the majors.

Brian Harper hit a home run for Minnesota, which has lost six of seven.

Minnesota held a 3-2 lead until Reynolds hit his first homer since July 4, 1992, a solo shot off Scott Erickson (5-10) in the fifth inning.

Mariners 3, Red Sox 2

BOSTON — Dave Fleming and three relievers combined on a six-hitter as Seattle won its sixth straight game, beating Boston to hand the Red Sox only its fifth loss in 20 games.

Fleming (5-1) allowed five hits in seven innings. The left-hander, who started the season on the disabled list with tendinitis in his pitching elbow, has won five straight decisions. The Mariners are 9-2 in his starts this season.

Mike Hampton, 20, the youngest player in the major leagues, got his first career save by retiring Scott Cooper for the final out.

Cardinals slice into Phillies cushion; beat Houston 4-2

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Mark Whiten hit a 463-foot three-run homer and Rene Arocha won for only the second time in seven starts as St. Louis beat Houston 4-2 Thursday night.

The Cardinals cut the lead of National League East-leading Philadelphia to four games. It is the closest they've been to first place since trailing by 3½ on May 1.

Astros right fielder Eric Anthony never moved on Whiten's 12th homer off Doug Drabek (7-10), a drive on a 2-0 pitch. Todd Zeile started the rally with a two-out single and Ray Lankford got an infield hit as the ball struck diving third baseman Ken Caminiti in the right cheekbone.

Caminiti left the game and was taken to Jewish Hospital for precautionary X-rays.

Arocha (7-3) began his rookie year 5-0, but had been 1-3 with a 5.29 ERA in his previous six starts. He allowed five runs in four innings in a 9-3 loss to Drabek and the Astros on July 4 in Houston.

Lee Smith, the third St. Louis pitcher, worked the ninth for his major-league leading 31st save.

Giants 8, Mets 1

SAN FRANCISCO — Matt Williams' two-run homer ignited a four-run fourth, leading San Francisco to a victory over New York.

Returning to the lineup after missing 13 games with an abdominal strain, Williams went 2-for-2 and increased his RBI total to 66, second in the NL behind teammate Barry Bonds.

After Bonds led off the fourth with a single, Williams hit his 22nd homer, breaking a 1-1 tie. Mark Carreon followed with a double, went to third on Royce Clayton's groundout and scored on Kirt Manwaring's single.

The Giants' Bill Swift (12-5) gave up an unearned run on six hits in seven innings and benefited from two double plays. He struck out four and walked one.

The Giants, baseball's best team in the first half, improved to 60-30 and 30-11 at home.

Padres 5, Phillies 2

SAN DIEGO — Tony Gwynn hit a two-out, two-run infield single to break a seventh-inning tie as San Diego beat slumping Philadelphia.

The victory snapped a four-game losing streak by the Padres, who began the homestand with reports indicating the pending trade of first baseman Fred McGriff. The defending NL home run champion is said to be heading to the Atlanta Braves as part of San Diego's move to trim its payroll.

The first-place Phillies have lost five of its last seven games.

San Diego tied the score 2-all in the sixth on a two-out, two-run homer by Phil Clark, subbing for McGriff. McGriff reaggravated a strained muscle in his right side during batting practice.

Phillies starter Danny Jackson (7-7) allowed three hits in 6 1-3 innings, but had a season-high seven walks. He has lost four straight decisions.

Winner Greg Harris (9-9) worked seven innings, giving up two runs on seven hits with eight strikeouts and one walk. Mark Davis, released by the Phillies last week, worked two innings for his first save since 1991.

■ NL Roundup

Braves 4, Pirates 0

ATLANTA — Tom Glavine pitched seven strong innings for his 11th victory and Otis Nixon scored two runs on sacrifice flies as Atlanta beat Pittsburgh.

Glavine (11-4) gave up five hits, walked five and struck out three. He is 12-5 lifetime against Pittsburgh, including 9-0 at Atlanta. Greg McMichael and former Midlander Mike Stanton finished the combined six-hitter.

The Braves scored in the first inning off starter Randy Tomlin (2-6) without benefit of a hit. Nixon opened the inning with a walk, stole second and took third on a wild pitch before scoring on Terry Pendleton's sacrifice fly.

Atlanta's second run off Tomlin came in the sixth when Nixon, hitting .700 lifetime off the left-hander (7-for-10), tripled to lead off the inning and scored on Jeff Blauser's sacrifice fly.

Nixon had two of the four hits Tomlin allowed in six innings.

Cubs 1, Rockies 0

CHICAGO — Mike Morgan pitched a five-hitter for his first complete game of the season as Chicago beat Colorado.

Morgan (7-9) walked none and struck out five to help the Cubs snap a three-game losing streak.

The right-hander, who had six complete games in 1992, entered the night 0-2 with a 10.65 ERA in two other starts against the Rockies this season. His last shutout was Sept. 17 against Philadelphia.

Steve Buechele provided the lone run with a run-scoring double in the fourth off Willie Blair (3-7). Blair allowed one unearned run on five hits and four walks in seven innings.

Reds 7, Marlins 4

CINCINNATI — Starter Tim Belcher and Joe Oliver each drove in two runs and Cincinnati took advantage of three wild pitches to beat Florida.

Florida has lost nine of its last 10 games and seven straight on the road.

Belcher (8-5) continued the Marlins' skid, allowing five hits in 5 2-3 innings, including two homers. The right-hander, who is being heavily scouted by several teams, is 7-1 in his past 11 starts.

Jeff Reardon pitched two scoreless innings for his eighth save.

The Riverfront Stadium jinx continued for former Reds pitcher Chris Hammond (10-5), who didn't fit into Cincinnati's plans this year but found success with Florida, winning eight straight.

Saints president resigns; Young signs new deal

Associated Press

Jim Finks took over as president and general manager of New Orleans seven years ago, fighting for the Saints' football respectability. One year, a 12-3 record and a playoff berth later, Finks won that fight.

On Wednesday, he resigned from the NFL team to spend his energies fighting for his life.

Finks was diagnosed with lung cancer in early May, and his roles in the front office were assumed by owner Tom Benson. Benson will continue in those capacities as Finks continues his reovery.

"I have received good reports from my doctors," Finks, 65, said Wednesday in a statement issued by Benson.

Finks, who came within three votes of becoming NFL commissioner in 1989, will continue to serve as a consultant to the Saints and as a member of its board of directors.

"I've got seven-plus years of blood, sweat and tears invested with the Saints," Finks' statement said. "I'm proud to continue to be involved, and very proud of the people now running the organization."

Benson said "the door would be open" if Finks decided later to return to the club in some capacity.

Vice President Jim Miller, who has been handling many of Finks' day-to-day duties during his absence, will concentrate on contract negotiations as the Saints prepare to open preseason training Friday.

San Francisco 49ers

Steve Young became the NFL's highest paid player when the team and his agent reached agreement on a five-year contract worth $26.5 million.

The two sides reached the accord after a lengthy negotiating session wednesday between Leigh Steinberg, Young's agent, and club president Carmen Policy. The talks were held at the club's headquarters in Santa Clara.

Young, last season's passing leader and MVP, was scheduled to arrive at the 49ers' training camp today to sign the deal, which will pay him an average of $5.3 million a year. That surpasses the average $4.8 million annual compensation of Denver's John Elway, according to Steinberg.

Chicago Bears

Stan Thomas, offensive tackle, was arrested on a drunken driving charge just after midnight near a northwest Illinois suburban shopping mall.

Thomas was arrested after he drove his Mercedes through a red light and onto the shoulder of the road, police said.

Cleveland Browns

Owner Art Modell said he is stepping down as chairman of the NFL broadcasting committee.

"I have enjoyed the last 30 years working on NFL television matters," Modell told commissioner Paul Tagliabue in a letter. "In that time, we have experienced an extraordinary growth of exposure and revenue. Needless to say, my interest in the league's welfare, and in particular that of the Cleveland Browns remains unabated."

Dallas Cowboys

Alan Veingrad, veteran offensive lineman, he has decided to retire.

Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said Veingrad, an eight-year veteran, called him and said he has decided to go into private business.

The 6-5, 280-pound Veingrad played both guard and tackle in a backup role during the 1992 Super Bowl season.

Miami Dolphins

Philadelphia Eagles running back Keith Byars has signed a two-year contract with the Miami Dolphins.

Byars, a former star at Ohio State, was a free agent after seven seasons with the Eagles and had until today to either sign with a new team or stay in Philadelphia.

Terms of the contract were not known. Byars made just short of $1 million in his last year with the Eagles. In seven seasons, Byars gained 3,532 yards catching passes and 2,672 yards as a rusher.

COWBOYS: Dallas starts training camp

(From 1C)

comeback from a 1-15 start in coach Jimmy Johnson's first season to a Super Bowl win in Pasadena "was one of the most extraordinary turnarounds in the history of league sports."

Smith is still in a contract dispute with the Cowboys and the NFL's leading rusher wasn't expected to settle soon.

"I'm optimistic that Emmitt will be with the team when we play the (Washington) Redskins on opening day," Jones said.

Smith was at home in Florida, hoping he will get $4 million a year. The Cowboys have offered about $2 million.

The rookie the Cowboys drafted to be Smith's backup, Derrick Lassic, a fourth-round pick from national champion Alabama, wasn't in camp either.

Lassic and second-round pick linebacker Darrin Smith of Miami are still unsigned although Jones said "we expect to sign them in the next couple days."

Another veteran who was missing was fullback Daryl Johnston, another restricted free agent, who was dickering with the Cowboys for a two-year deal.

"We should have something done with Johnston soon," Jones said.

Coach Jimmy Johnson said he missed the young players more than he did the veterans.

"I don't like to see the younger players missing training camp time," Johnson said. "They need the work."

Johnson predicted the Cowboys would be better than last year's 13-3 club.

"I think we will have a great football team," Johnson said. "I think we will be better because we are more talented. We have a lot of young players coming of age."

When the Cowboys won the Super Bowl, their average age was 25 years.

Johnson said he hoped quarterback Troy Aikman, who is recovering from back surgery, will be ready to play late in the exhibition season.

"Troy feels he will be ready late in the preseason and if that's the case, we'll give him some action," Johnson said. "It would be good if he could get some playing time before we take on the Redskins. He says he will be ready. I believe him."

Johnson was also happy when he was greeted by the temperatures in the mid-90s.

"It's hot and that's the way I like it," Johnson said. "Some people say the way we work in training camp would bother us late in the season. It did. We got better."

The Cowboys begin its grind at St. Edward's. Johnson ordered his team to be on the field at 9 a.m.

Rangers partner wants subcontractors fired

ARLINGTON (AP) — The lone black partner of the Texas Rangers is calling for the club to fire three subcontractors hired to work on the team's new stadium because their claims of being minority- or women-owned have been rejected by a certification agency.

"I think they should be removed because what they have done to me is fraud," said Comer Cottrell, a limited partner. "It's deceptive. Their integrity has been called into question."

In addition to breaking ranks with team management over the issue, Cottrell said he wants the Rangers to use a regional certification agency to verify ownership of subcontractors representing themselves as minority or women-owned.

The Rangers aren't obligated by any law to award any contracts to minorities or women. But Cottrell said the team has a moral obligation to do so because construction of the $174 million ballpark is being financed mostly through taxpayers' money.

Cottrell, founder and president of ProLine Corp., said he intends to outline his concerns to Rangers executives and will work with city officials and minority and women leaders upset over the team's failure to verify the background of subcontractors seeking work on the new ballpark.

Rangers president Tom Schieffer declined to respond to Cottrell's comments. Managing general partner George W. Bush was out of town and couldn't be reached for comment.

Cottrell's remarks were the latest in a controversy over the team's failure to verify the background of 15 firms the Rangers classified as minority- or women-owned in a report to city officials.

The Dallas Morning News reported last week that three of 15 subcontractors that the Rangers said were owned by minorities or women were not certified as such by the North Central Texas Regional Certification Agency.

The team has noted it was under no legal requirement to conduct background checks and also that the ballpark doesn't fall under federal, state or local programs that require any contracts go to minorities or women.

Rookie claims share of Big Apple

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Karen Lunn, a 27-year-old rookie on the LPGA Tour, shot a 3-under-par 68 Thursday for a share of the first-round lead at the $600,000 JAL Big Apple Classic.

Lunn is tied with Donna Andrews, winless in four years on the tour, Jane Geddes and Lisa Miller.

"Today is the best I've played in a long while," said Lunn, an Australian who lives in London. "My game seems to be falling into place. The wind was very difficult. ... It was swirling in the trees."

Nancy White, Lori Garbacz, Tammie Green, Vicki Fergon and Hiromi Kobayashi of Japan are at 69. Trish Johnson of Wales and Mary Beth Zimmerman are at 70 while Betsy King, who captured the classic in 1990 and 1991, is in a four-way tie at 71. Defending champion Juli Inkster was 3-over.

Lunn had four birdies, with her lone bogey coming on the par-5, 430-yard 15th hole, where she missed a 5-foot putt.

• She competed on the European Tour before playing in the LPGA qualifying tournament last year, where she tied for 19th place — non-exempt status. On the European Tour, she captured six titles and her sister, Mardi, captured the Ladies European Open last week.

"I keep reminding myself that I'm only a rookie," said Lunn, who is coming off a seventh-place tie in last week's Youngstown Warren Classic. "However I am getting more comfortable. Mardi is two years younger than me and we are very close. I talk to her every day on the phone and we discuss our games."

Miller, who has eight victories since turning pro in 1978, had an inconsistent round.

BRITISH: Four share opening round lead

(From 1C)

Gary Evans of England, Masters champion Bernhard Langer of Germany and Larry Mize were a stroke back at 67.

The two men deemed most likely to succeed in the 122nd Open, Nick Faldo and Nick Price, were very much in the hunt.

Price, the PGA champion, was in a large group at 68 that also included three-time British Open winner Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Americans Scott Simpson, Corey Pavin, John Huston, Fred Couples and Duffy Waldorf.

Faldo, the defending champion and three-time winner of this title, was in a group another stroke back at 69, along with Paul Azinger, who double bogeyed No. 15, and Jack Nicklaus, winner of the Senior Open last week.

Unable to break par on the softened-up course were Payne Stewart, Tom Watson and John Daly, each of whom shot 71. Ian Woosnam and Tom Kite were at 72.

The course, winding through sandhills overlooking Pegwell Bay on England's east coast and generally considered the most difficult on the British Open rotation — only one of the 11 British Open winners on this links managed to break par for 72 holes — also was made more docile by the absence of the customary strong winds.

"It's playing about as easy as it can right now," said Mize, like Calcavecchia and Zoeller the winner of a major title in a playoff against the star-crossed Norman.

Calcavecchia, the last American to win the British Open, played without a bogey, but had to one-putt three of the last four greens to save par.

"Maybe I just got too satisfied with what I had," said Calcavecchia, who has won just one tournment since capturing the Open in 1989. "But I have dreams. I want to win this thing again."

Senior, playing with a painful split in the skin of his right palm suffered in the cold and wet at the Scottish Open, did his damage on the front side, covering it in 31 on his way to 66.

Faldo, looking for his sixth major title, played the front in 32, but slipped to a 2-over-par 37 on the back, taking a 3-putt on the 12th and failing to get up and down on the 17th.

"I'm quite pleased — pleased to get in out of the weather," Faldo said. "I played well starting out, not so well coming in. If you hit a few bad shots, you pay the penalty."

All agreed the exceptionally low scoring resulted from the wet weather and relatively gentle breezes.

Miller 500 goes on despite racer's death

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — NASCAR's return to Pocono International Raceway this week normally would focus on stopping Dale Earnhardt's championship bid or beating Ken Schrader's track qualifying record.

There would be talk about Davey Allison's cart-wheeling crash at Pocono a year ago. They would chuckle and shake their heads about the guy who ran onto the track in front of Kyle Petty and Allison last month.

Allison's fatal helicopter crash this week changed all that.

There will still be racing, and plenty of racing talk. All of it will be tinged by the death of one of the most popular drivers on the circuit, the second time it has happened to the sport in less than four months, the second to his family in 11 months.

Allison's car will be absent from the Miller Genuine Draft 500, but not his name and number, which will appear on competitors' cars. Some will bear decals that say "In Memory of Davey Allison 28."

Mark Martin's Ford will be one of them.

"It's just hard to believe," Martin said Tuesday after getting word of Allison's death, which followed the airplane death of NASCAR champion Alan Kulwicki in April and the death of Allison's brother, Clifford, last August in racing practice.

Martin thought back to just two days before, when he finished second and Allison third behind Rusty Wallace in the inaugural Winston Cup race at Loudon, N.H.

"Sunday night we both flew on helicopters to the airport. I was sitting on my airplane steps and he came running over toward me and waved me out of the way so he could run up in my airplane and look at it," said Martin, who had bought his plane in the off-season. "He came in and we talked about the race.

Davey Allison liked going to Pocono, even with some bad memories for him and his family.

The driving career of his father Bobby, a former NASCAR champion and a three-time winner at Pocono, ended in a bad wreck in the second turn of the three-corner track in June 1988. Allison's own frightening crash last July came in the short straightaway out of that turn.

Prices rebound

NEW YORK — Talks between the U.N. and Iraq about a limited sale of oil were put on hold, helping oil prices recover on Thursday from the previous day's selloff.

August delivery of West Texas Intermediate settled at $17.67 per barrel, 18 cents higher, at the New York Mercantile Exchange. Oil fell 64 cents on Wednesday to $17.49, its lowest close since before the Persian Gulf War three years ago.

Iraq and the United Nations were reported close to an agreement on details of a limited $1.6 billion sale of Iraqi crude on Wednesday, contributing to the selloff.

Prices moved even lower early in Thursday's session, reaching $17.25 per barrel, after the U.N. repeated that an envoy's trip to Baghdad to defuse a standoff over inspection of missile testing sites was not linked with the oil talks.

But prices were bolstered Thursday by news that the oil talks would not resume until next week. Many in the market saw the news as contradicting reports that an agreement was near.

Traders have been watching every hint of progress or delay coming out of the closed-door oil talks. The oil market is chiefly concerned that the sale could mark the return of Iraq to a glutted oil market.

The $1.6 billion would go toward food and medicine and cover the costs of the U.N.'s weapons inspection efforts.

Natural gas prices were lower, with contracts for delivery in August finishing at $2.031 per 1,000 cubic feet, down 0.3 cent.

Dollar rises

NEW YORK — The dollar rose against most major currencies Thursday amid turmoil in the European markets.

In New York, the dollar traded late at 108.01 Japanese yen, up from 107.10 yen late Wednesday.

In New York, the British pound was worth $1.4915, down from $1.5035 late Wednesday.

Late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Wednesday, included: 1.7205 German marks, up from 1.7150; 1.5155 Swiss francs, up from 1.5090; 5.8805 French francs, up from 5.8565; 1,592.00 Italian lire, down from 1,595.00; and 1.2813 Canadian dollars, down from 1.2837.

Market gains

NEW YORK — Stocks moved mostly lower Thursday amid profit taking after the previous session's strong rally, but solid gains in a handful of blue chips hoisted the Dow Jones industrial average higher.

The Dow industrials moved into positive territory in the afternoon thanks to some selective blue-chip buying. It added 8.38, rising to 3,550.93 and nearing its all-time high of 3,554.83 reached on May 27.

Business sales outpace inventories

■ "Data continue to depict a labor market that is growing, albeit at only a modest pace," analyst says.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Business sales grew 0.3 percent in May, outpacing a modest 0.2 percent growth in inventories and assuring analysts that stockpiles were being held in check.

"There are some pockets of problems," said economist Michael P. Niemira of Mitsubishi Bank in New York, "but it's within the retail component . . . and even there it's not universal. Overall, there's no inventory problem at all."

In fact, Niemira said, the stockpile growth reported Thursday by the Commerce Department is consistent with the slow-growth economy.

Also illustrating the sluggish economy Thursday was a Labor Department report that new claims for jobless benefits edged up by 2,000 last week, to 334,000.

Still, the less-volatile four-week moving average of jobless claims, which analysts prefer to track because it more accurately reflects the labor situation, fell 2,750, to 339,000, during the period ended last week, the lowest level in five months.

"The data continue to depict a labor market that is growing, albeit at only a modest pace," said economist Marilyn Schaja of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp. in New York.

Meantime, interest rates on 30-year, fixed-rate and one-year adjustable rate mortgages fell to record lows this week.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said Thursday the 30-year, fixed rate average was 7.16 percent, down from 7.19 percent a week earlier and the lowest since it began calculating a weekly average in April 1971. The one-year adjustable average initial rate was 4.53 percent, down from 4.56 percent last week and the lowest since tracking of ARM rates began in 1984.

The Commerce Department said business sales totaled a seasonally adjusted $586.9 billion in May, up from $584.9 billion a month earlier. April's sales, originally estimated to have fallen 0.2 percent, were revised to a 0.2 percent gain.

Inventories totaled a seasonally adjusted $864.3 billion, up from $862.5 billion in April and the eighth straight increase. The April advance, however, was revised to 0.4 percent from 0.1 percent in the initial report.

The difference between inventories and sales resulted in an inventory-to-sales ratio of 1.47, meaning that it would take 1.47 months to exhaust stockpiles at the May sales pace. Analysts said the ratio was not dangerously high.

A high ratio could lead to production cuts and job losses as businesses reduce orders to shrink inventories.

But while analysts said the current ratio was unlikely to lead to production cuts and job losses, they said inventories also are unlikely to add much to the nation's economy in the second quarter.

Inventory buildup leads to increased output and adds to the gross domestic product, the sum of goods and services produced in the nation.

P&G to slash 13,000 jobs, shut 30 plants

CINCINNATI (AP) — Consumer products giant Procter & Gamble is cutting 13,000 jobs worldwide and closing 30 plants over the next two to four years in the most radical restructuring in its 156-year history.

With its announcement Thursday, the maker of such familiar household products as Tide detergent and Pampers disposable diapers becomes the latest American industrial titan to respond to the sluggish world economy by drastically cutting costs.

But unlike such troubled behemoths as IBM, GM and Sears, Procter & Gamble is currently highly profitable, and so is making the changes from a position of strength. Company officials also announced they would increase shareholders' dividends by 13 percent.

"We wanted to take our company apart brick by brick and put it back together again — into a leaner, faster-moving, more financially fit organization," said Edwin L. Artzt, chairman and chief executive. "We started with the premise that if we simplify our work, we can operate just as well and probably better with fewer people."

Southwest Airlines selects Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Southwest Airlines plans to make its debut in the East by offering flights at Baltimore-Washington International Airport starting in September, the airline said Wednesday.

Southwest chairman Herbert Kelleher said the low-cost airline would begin offering its cheap, no-frill flights between BWI and Cleveland and BWI and Chicago Midway Airport.

Aside from skipping many of the expensive perks for passengers, Dallas-based Southwest has spurned the hub-and-spoke systems that, while offering passengers more destinations, are costly to operate.

Southwest has been the only consistently profitable major airline in recent years.

New airlines and airlines that depend on Northeast routes will be most affected by Southwest's entry into Baltimore, said Raymond Neidl, airline analyst for Furman Selz Inc. in New York City.

Apple Computer posts huge loss, begins big revamping

By John Markoff
N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — The extent of Apple Computer's troubles became more fully evident Thursday.

The company announced a much bigger quarterly loss than had been expected and a big restructuring, even as it began laying off employees at its headquarters in Cupertino, Calif.

Meanwhile, Kaleida — the software joint venture with IBM through which Apple has been developing software for multimedia consumer electronics products — said that A. Nathaniel Goldhaber was resigning as president and chief executive.

The resignation led a number of executives and Silicon Valley analysts to suggest that a distressed Apple Computer may be changing its strategy and reevaluating its commitment to both Kaleida and Taligent, a second software joint venture with IBM.

"This shows how much corporate pain IBM and Apple are in," said Denise Caruso, editor of Digital Media, a computer industry newsletter.

To cover the reorganization and the planned layoff of 2,500 employees, Apple said it was taking a $320.9 million charge, resulting in a $188.3 million loss for its third quarter. It is the first quarterly loss for the company since 1991.

The loss came despite a 7 percent revenue increase, to $1.86 billion, compared with $1.74 billion for comparable period last year.

"We're confident we can put our business back on a growth path by aggressively pursuing market share while offering innovative technology," Michael H. Spindler, Apple's president and chief executive, said in a prepared statement. "At the same time, we must significantly — and permanently — lower our cost of doing business."

Spindler was recently made chief executive in place of John Sculley, who remains Apple's chairman.

Apple described its reorganization as the first steps in a broad "re-engineering" of the company. Thursday the company said it was consolidating itself into four business units, each responsible for its own profits or losses: the Personal Computer division; the Applesoft division; the Apple Business Systems division, and the Personal Interactive Electronics division. The Claris software business will remain a separate subsidiary.

Capital gains from growth stocks add to IRA

By Bill Doyle

Q: I understand the advantage of putting income stocks and income mutual fund shares into an individual retirement account is to defer the taxation of dividends. But what is the advantage of putting growth stocks and growth mutual fund shares into an IRA?

Is it that investments can be traded within the IRA, thereby keeping profits on the transactions tax-deferred?

A: First off, you can't place unlimited amounts of stocks, mutual fund shares and other securities into an IRA. There are limits: $2,000 annually for most IRAs and $2,250 for spousal IRAs. The exceptions to that general rule are when lump-sum distributions from retirement plans are put into rollover IRAs.

You are correct about income from high-dividend-paying stocks and mutual fund shares being deferred from income tax while in an IRA. A similar tax deferral applies to growth investments — those that increase in market value.

No income tax is due until money is withdrawn from the IRA. So, if you buy securities for your IRA and later sell those securities at prices higher than you paid, you do steer clear of capital gains tax.

However, there are more advantages to an IRA than that. Every time a dividend is paid, you have more in your account. And each dividend payment adds still more. That's the beauty of "compounding."

The same thing happens to profits realized from the sale of investments in an IRA — unless the market values of the securities in the IRA go down and do not recover.

And remember that most growth stocks and shares of growth mutual funds do pay dividends — albeit small — that also compounds and adds to an IRA's value over the years.

Here's another factor: Most growth mutual funds make annual capital gains distributions from the profits realized by selling securities the funds held as investments. Those distributions escape income tax while you have fund shares in your IRA.

Q: I recently was looking for a not-too-risky investment that also pays reasonable income. The prospectus of a convertible securities mutual fund looked pretty good to me.

Because I'm unfamiliar with convertible securities, I invested only a small amount in that fund. What is your opinion of convertible securities? Are they good middle-of-the road investments?

A: You called it, with the term "middle-of-the-road." Convertible securities are not far out on either end of the safety-to-risk scale.

Most "converts," as they are called, are debt securities with "equity kickers." They are issued as bonds, debentures or notes paying fixed interest. And they can be exchanged for other securities — usually common stock.

Unless the company that issued the security defaults, the fixed interest keeps the market price of a convert from falling too far. And the conversion feature gives the holder of the convert the opportunity to share in the company's good fortune, because the convert's market price rises in line with that of the company's common stock.

In a nutshell, converts are both a conservative way to play the stock market and an aggressive method of playing the bond market. The owner of a convertible security collects steady interest while waiting for gains in the stock market.

That does not necessarily mean they are the best of both worlds. The interest yield on converts usually is somewhat lower than the yield on bonds. Also, the gains in a convert's market value often are less than the run-up in value of the stock for which the convert can be exchanged.

Some convertible securities mutual funds invest almost exclusively in converts. Others hold converts and a wide range of other securities.

Teledyne takes 1-time charge, cuts 1,200 jobs

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — Teledyne Inc., a leading producer of military electronics, said Thursday that it is consolidating its 65 operating units into 21 separate companies, a move that would eliminate 1,200 management jobs.

To account for the cost of the restructuring, Teledyne took a $5 million charge against its second-quarter earnings.

The company, based in Los Angeles, reported that despite this charge, its earnings rose 9.5 percent in the quarter, compared with the similar period of 1992. Revenue fell 16 percent.

Teledyne reported the job cuts and its earnings after the market closed Thursday. The company's shares had gained 75 cents Thursday, to $23.50, on the New York Stock Exchange.

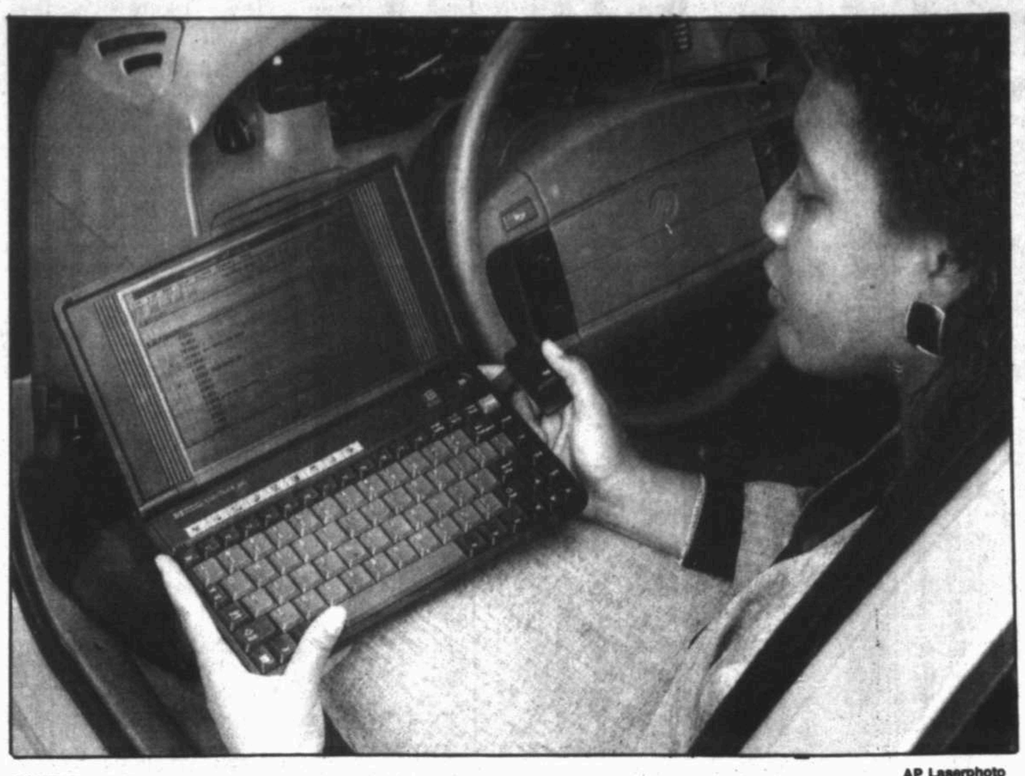

Rosanne O'Brien, a Teledyne spokeswoman, said the consolidation would be completed in the next few months and would reduce the work force to 22,000 employees.

The company will incur $26 million in expenses for severance packages and relocation costs resulting from the consolidation. The rest of the cost is to come from reserves, which were set aside but unused during an earlier corporate restructuring in 1991, Ms. O'Brien said.

The consolidation is estimated to cut $70 million in overhead and administrative costs at Teledyne, which had sales in 1992 of $1.3 billion, 35 percent of that in government contracts.

The company, which in February paid a $2.15 million fine to settle charges that it failed to perform tests on electronic components sold to the military, has warned investors that continuing investigations by the Justice Department could lead to either a suspension or termination of government contracts.

"The realignment will assist us in addressing the increasingly complex business environment of the 1990s and beyond," said William P. Rutledge, Teledyne's chairman and chief executive.

Plaintiffs' witness calls coach fare cut irrelevant

By Dan Reed
N.Y. Times News Service

GALVESTON — A veteran airline executive, called as a witness in Continental and Northwest's $3 billion antitrust lawsuit against American Airlines, testified Thursday that American's April 1992 reduction of its coach fares by 38 percent was "irrelevant" because few travelers had been buying the previous coach fares anyway.

Morton Ehrlich, a consultant called by Continental's attorneys as an expert witness, appeared to contradict the plaintiffs' contention that American's Value Plan fare system was an illegal act of predatory pricing designed to run weaker carriers out of business.

The 38 percent cut in the benchmark coach fare was the most significant part of Value Plan.

In previous courtroom statements, Continental and Northwest attorneys have said that American's 38 percent cut represented predatory pricing.

American, the plaintiffs argued, could not recover financially from that steep a price cut except by raising fares once weaker carriers were eliminated.

Ehrlich made his statement under cross-examination by American attorney Bob Cooper.

"I just couldn't believe he said it. . . ." Cooper said afterward. "That's exactly the point we've been trying to make all along."

But David Boies, Continental's lead attorney, said later that "Cooper was showing a chart showing the (coach) fare going up. And all that Dr. Ehrlich said was, that was irrelevant because a lot of fares that people were buying weren't going up and the chart wasn't showing that."

During his testimony, Ehrlich said he believes a January 1991 study by American, which concluded that a 40 percent cut in business fares would produce an annual loss of $800 million.

But he said he does not believe American's final study, which maintained that a 38 percent cut in coach fares, along with other aspects of the Value Plan, would produce an additional $30 million monthly.

Gun boom: Shooting ranges tap recreation market

By Gregory J. Wilcox
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — At the Warner Center Gun Club, children play video games or watch television in a side room while parents shoot at targets on the range.

At the Agoura Hills Indoor Shooting Range and the Target Range in Van Nuys, Boy Scouts can complete requirements for a marksmanship merit badge.

And the Northridge Pistol and Rifle Range has a video combat target range, with plans for competitive shooting leagues.

"We'll form teams just like the bowling places," said Bill Handley, who opened the Northridge range with his father Bill Sr. in November 1992. The elder Handley said he and his son have invested $200,000 just on their rental guns.

Target range operators are emphasizing family recreation at their facilities, where business is keeping pace with the sale of rifles and handguns in Southern California.

About 117,000 pistols were sold in Los Angeles County during 1992, up from 96,000 in 1991, according to the California Department of Justice. Between January and March of this year, about 38,750 pistols were sold.

In neighboring Ventura County, nearly 6,600 handguns were sold in 1992, up from 5,600 a year earlier.

Bill Poole, director of the recreational shooting, training and ranges division for the National Rifle Association of America, estimated there are between 12,000 and 14,000 shooting ranges nationwide. More ranges are opening and existing ranges are upgrading their facilities and offering family programs.

"Many women have taken up shooting handguns as a source of self defense and (discover) it's fun," Poole said. "In response to that, the ranges are waking up to the fact that they need to improve their image."

The Firing Line ranges in Reseda and Northridge have a women's night when the range time is free, said manager James Ness.

"Probably 20 percent of our business is women and it's increasing, but we're still trying to get more women in here," Ness said.

Throngs gather for Allison funeral

BESSEMER, Ala. (AP) — NASCAR star Davey Allison was eulogized as "the luckiest man in the world" Thursday as relatives, friends and fans said goodbye in a massive outpouring of love and grief.

Inside St. Aloysius Catholic Church, a standing-room crowd of some 750 people heard the 32-year-old driver remembered as a good son, husband and father.

Outside the brick church, hundreds more stood in the hot Alabama sun to listen to the funeral mass on loudspeakers.

Mourners included everyone from the elite of racing — owners like Roger Penske and drivers such as Rusty Wallace and Mark Martin — to Allison admirers and hometown friends from nearby Hueytown.

The Rev. Louis Giardino said that even in elementary school, teachers noted that Allison spent all his time thinking about racing. His father is NASCAR legend Bobby Allison.

"He knew what he wanted to be in life from the very earliest time," said Giardino. "I believe Davey Allison was the luckiest man in the world. Davey lived in a fraternity: family, his racing team and his fans, ... many of whom he had never met."

Afterward, cars stretched for miles behind the white hearse as it moved slowly toward Highland Memorial Gardens. The route was lined with thousands of people, some crying, others holding signs like "Davey's gone a lap ahead."

Dozens of cars stopped along Interstate 20, which overlooks the cemetery. Greasy mechanics stood at attention beside men in ties and matching suspenders.

Four jet fighters flew over in formation at the start of the graveside service.

Country singer Joe Diffie, looking down on the shaded gravesite, strummed a guitar and sang Allison's favorite song, "Ships That Don't Come In." Diffie volunteered to perform after learning Allison's widow, Liz, was trying to find sheet music, said Brian VanDercook, a spokesman for Allison's team.

Allison's father and mother Judy wept. They buried their other son, Clifford, in the same cemetery 11 months ago after he died in a racing crash.

"Now he's with his brother. We have to look at it that way," said NASCAR driver Michael Waltrip.

Allison died Tuesday of injuries suffered Monday when the helicopter he was piloting attempted to land on an infield parking lot at Talladega Superspeedway. Veteran driver and lifelong friend Red Farmer was with Allison, suffering broken ribs and a fractured collarbone.

A tired-looking Farmer attended the funeral in a wheelchair, his right arm in a sling. Fellow driver Neil Bonnett, who was at the track and helped Farmer get out of the wreckage, hugged friend after friend.

Robert Yates, owner of the racing team that Allison drove for, stood beside a tree, accepting condolences. A chartered jet brought members of the Yates and Bobby Allison racing teams to the funeral from Charlotte, N.C.

Callers on radio talk shows compared the spectacle to a day back in 1983, when the state mourned the death of Alabama football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant. But there was a difference: Bryant's career was over, while Allison's had yet to reach its peak.

Driver Dale Jarrett said Allison's death was a "tremendous loss" for NASCAR. The premier circuit of stock-car racing saw another young star, Alan Kulwicki, killed in an airplane crash only four months ago.

"It's even more of a loss for his family," said Jarrett.

In addition to his parents and wife, Allison is survived by two sisters and two children, 3½-year-old daughter Krista and son Robert, who till turn 2 on July 30.

Captains pull out win over Angels, 7-6

Staff report

SHREVEPORT — A crucial putout by Shreveport at second base when Midland was behind by one run in the top of the seventh cost the Angels the lead and the game as Midland lost its second straight Texas League baseball game 7-6 to the Captains here Thursday night.

With its second straight one-run loss, Midland is now 11-14 in the second half of the Texas League West standings. Shreveport squeaked a 1-0 12-inning win Wednesday for the second game of a five-game series with the Angels. Midland now trails in the series 1-2.

Midland centerfielder Orlando Palmeiro, who represented the tying run as the Angels trailed 6-5 in the top of the seventh, was thrown out at second by Captains catcher Roger Miller. Palmeiro and Mark Dalesandro hit back-to-back singles to begin the inning.

On the very next at bat, Angel first baseman Chris Pritchett knocked a double down the left-field line and advanced Dalesandro to third but would have scored Palmeiro. With runners at second and third, Angel rightfielder Jeff Kipila drove in Pritchett with a ground out to short, tying the game at 6-6.

The game remained tied until the bottom of the ninth when Shreveport centerfielder Dax Jones hit a sacrifice fly to left field, scoring Kevin Kasper from third for the win. Kasper was walked by Angel pitcher Jose Mussett, who picked up the loss (1-5) after Julian Heredia pitched four perfect relief innings.

Heredia came on in the fifth with two on base and no outs and did not allow a run while pitching to 11 men in four innings. Kasper advanced to third on a single by Shreveport leftfielder Rob Katzaroff.

Ranger rookie compare to Class of '86

By Simon Gonzalez
Associate Press Writer

ARLINGTON — Mike Bell considered his fellow members of the Class of 1993, and a smile slowly spread across his face.

"It's the best team I've ever played on," he said. "I think that's safe to say."

Safe to say? The Texas Rangers certainly hope so. Bell's last team was the Cincinnati state high school champion. Bell's current team is the Rangers' representative in the Gulf Coast rookie league, a club Texas officials say could be their best ever at that level.

"It's the most talented I've ever had, without a doubt," said Chino Cadahia, the Gulf Coast manager since 1988.

The Gulf Coast Rangers are loaded with the best, the brightest and the youngest prospects from the June amateur draft. The roster is filled with talented teen-agers, including Texas' first seven picks.

"They're very impressive," Rangers farm director Marty Scott said. "The jury's still out, but the early reports are that everybody's excited about them."

The young Rangers are so impressive that they are being mentioned in the same breath as the Class of '86. That year's draft crop included six future major-leaguers — a few of whom could be classified as superstars.

Juan Gonzalez, Dean Palmer, Sammy Sosa, Rey Sanchez, Kevin Brown, Roger Pavlik and Wayne Rosenthal all made the major leagues.

Cadahia didn't manage the Rangers that year, when they played in Sarasota, Fla. But he did manage most of the Class of '86 the next season at Class-A Gastonia.

And he said Bell, Edwin Diaz, Andrew Vessel, Toure Knighton, Roderic Walker, Daniel Smith and Mark Ocasio, the first seven choices this year, have similar potential.

"If we can come up with that ('86) draft all over again, we're going to be OK," Cadahia said. "I think it will happen again here."

'They're very impressive. The jury's still out, but the early reports are that everybody's excited about them.'

— Marty Scott
Ranger Scouting Director

The similarities between '86 are '93 begin with the ages of the players.

With the exception of Brown, who played three games at Sarasota before moving up to Double-A Tulsa, and St. John's University product Rosenthal, the Class of '86 graduated from high school to the pros.

The same holds for this year's group. All seven were in high school just a month and a half ago. Walker and Smith are 17. The other five are 18.

Sandy Johnson, Rangers assistant general manager for player personnel and scouting, said the team didn't make a conscious decision to draft teen-agers. They just were the best players available.

"The guys at the top or our list were high school guys," Johnson said. "We stayed with the philosophy of whoever's at the top of our list we'll take. It turned out to be high school guys."

That doesn't mean there wasn't some trepidation about using the first seven choices on players who are several years away from helping the big-league club.

"Rather than go safely (with college players) we decided to take a chance on the high ceiling of the high school guys," Johnson said.

They took them because of the other similarity between the Class of '86 and the Class of '93: the ability to hit, catch and throw a baseball.

The talent begins with Bell, a third baseman and their first pick in the draft.

The son of former Ranger Buddy Bell, he is leading the rookies with a .395 batting average. He had one double, six triples, one home run and 12 runs batted in through Tuesday, even though he's just now beginning to feel comfortable with a wooden bat.

"I'm starting to adjust to it, getting used to it," he said. "Anybody who says it's easy to hit with them doesn't know what they're talking about."

"Bell plays good defense and has a good bat," Scott said.

That also applies to Edwin Diaz, the second-round choice. The 18-year-old from Vega Baja, Puerto Rico, the same hometown as Gonzalez and Rangers catcher Ivan Rodriguez, is hitting .333 with seven extra-base hits, has stolen seven bases in nine attempts and playing a stellar second base.

"I'm very impressed with Diaz," Scott said. "Based on all the skills he exhibited he is a No. 1 draft pick, too. He's a solid second baseman who turns the pivot well. He'll hit some homers and steal bases for you."

Third-round pick Andrew Vessel should do the same thing. The 6-foot-3, 205-pound outfielder combines a powerful frame with a quick swing.

"When you see a kid with that swing, you can't help but get excited about him," Cadahia said.

Vessel is a favorite of Cadahia because he arrives at the ballpark every day with a smile on his face and with the desire to learn.

Vessel has yet to hit a ball out of the yard, but no one's particularly worried. Gonzalez, who hit 43 home runs last year, didn't hit any homers when he was a rookie, even though he had a league-leading 233 at-bats.

Indurain retains Tour de France's yellow jersey

ISOLA 2000, France (AP) — Miguel Indurain of Spain retained the leader's yellow jersey in the Tour de France by finishing a close second to Tony Rominger of Switzerland in Thursday's 11th stage.

"I did better yesterday," said Rominger, the winner for a second day in a row as the tour remained in the Alps. "But, Indurain seemed the same. I tried to attack once but there was nothing I could do."

Indurain was in total control throughout the 112-mile leg that had four climbs above 6,540 feet.

While others would go far ahead, Indurain would stay with the major challengers such as Rominger, Alvaro Mejia of Colombia, Poland's Zenon Jaskula, American Andy Hampsten and Denmark's Bjarne Riis. All were in the top 10 of the overall standings but still minutes behind Indurain.

When it came to the serious racing, up the final 10½-mile climb, Claudio Chiappucci of Italy joined the front runners and threatened to take the lead.

Each time, however, Rominger and Indurain caught up.

Robert Millar of Britain, leader over the third of the four mountain climbs, rejoined the group. He made another attempt to move away. Again he was caught and passed.

Indurain would accelerate whenever needed and took the lead of the top group in the final 3 miles.

Rominger and Indurain broke away from a group of seven in the final (half mile of the stage.

When Rominger attacked, Indurain went easily with him. Indurain moved ahead in the final 100 yards, but slowed to give Rominger the individual stage victory.

Chiappucci came in third, followed by Mejia and Jaskula. Hampsten finished ninth, 3:06 back.

Mejia remained the runnerup in the overall standings, but dropped 3 minutes and 23 seconds behind Indurain. Jaskula was still third, 4:31 back, with Rominger moving past Eric Breukink into fourth, 5:44 back. Hampsten was sixth, 11:12 behind.

For the second day in a row, though he won both days, Rominger failed to gain any time on Indurain who finished third Wednesday.

Gianni Bugno, among Indurain's top challengers early in the week, dropped further back Thursday. The Italian fell to 12th place, 23:05 behind.

Wilfried Nelissen and Mario Cipollini, who shared the yellow jersey during first week, were also eliminated. Nelissen, under investigation for a drug case in a Belgian race, quit. Cipollini was disqualified for falling too far back on time.

The Tour heads to Marseille today to begin three days of flat land before hitting the Pyrenees on Monday.

DISTRIBUTORSHIPS

LOOKING FOR PART TIME JOB? HAVE WE GOT A DEAL FOR YOU

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which are available now.

Often Asked ????

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth.

Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have F/T jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?

Depending on the size of distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly!

Some make even more!

How long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subsribers'papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday-Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a clay off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or a family member to substitute a for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
