Texas "Rubber Stamp" Past To Be Eliminated By Francis' Plan

MEETING AT AUSTIN

Head of Move For Free Delegation Confers With Governor

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Nov. 22. — Governor Dan Moody will support an uninstructed delegation from Texas the Democratic national convention next year, it was predicted Monday by Charles L. Francis of Wichita Falls, chairman of the Texas uninstructed delegation club, after an hour's conference between the two.

Mr. Francis disclaimed that the club which is now organizing a statewide campaign, is operating in the interest of Al Smith.

Chairman Brags Naught.

"We are trying to keep Texas from being a rubber stamp in the convention, as it has been in the past," Mr. Francis declared. "We want a delegation free, so far as individuals are concerned, but instructed as to party principles. We are supporting no individual, but to have every faction represented."

He announced that congressional district chairmen are now being selected.

Governor Moody will, in his opinion oppose any attempt to tie the votes to any candidate or public position, Mr. Francis said, and will apparently support the objectives of the uninstructed delegation club, picking out responsible delegates to the national convention and of leaving them free to cast their votes for the most available man.

Three Factions Formed.

Mr. Francis pointed out there have already developed three factions in Texas—James E. Ferguson and those who believe with him, who are supporting Al Smith; Thomas B. Love and those who are following him in the demand of pledging the delegates to only a few candidates, and the rest of the people, largely represented in the groups of finding the best available candidate as the convention progresses and supporting him.

Colorado National Guard Companies Stand Guard Over Strike Riot Scene

Four Strikers Shot to Death and Score Wounded in Bloody Outbreak at Columbine Mine

By Universal Service.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 22.—State troops were on guard tonight at the Columbine mine where four men were killed and a score wounded in a strike riot today.

The colorado coal fields have been tied up by a strike for several months. The Rocky Mountain Fuel company undertook to operate their Columbine mine with non-union workers. Elements of the I. W. W. joined the striking miners and after meeting at Boulder last night it was decided to move on the mine en masse this morning.

Women Among Strikers.

In the ranks of more than 500 strikers were many women. They approached the gates of the mine and were met by mine guards and state police. An order to halt was disregarded. Hand to hand fighting developed and the guards were driven back.

Taking up a new position the state police and mine guards leveled their guns at the oncoming marchers. Again the command to halt was given and disregarded. A crash of firearms followed. Many of the marchers believed the shots had been fired in the air. But when their comrades began to fall they retreated in disorder.

Gov. W. H. Adams declared martial law when word of the fatal riot reached his office here. Adjt. Gen. Paul P. Newton was ordered into the strike zone with instructions to put the martial law order into effect whenever he decided necessary.

Troops to Scene.

The military forces ordered to the scene included four companies of the Colorado national guard, one troop of cavalry, two armored tanks and one headquarters company. Most of these forces left Denver this morning and were on the scene tonight.

The strikers are armed only with knives, stones and clubs. But they used these weapons so effectively that several state police and mine guards were in hospitals tonight suffering from broken bones and severe bruises.

Among the injured strikers were two women. One was dressed as a man. She was struck by a bullet fired by one of the state police.

Strike Leader Shot.

Adam Bell, strike leader, was shot and probably fatally wounded. He was taken to a hospital at Longmont.

The battle began at dawn, the strikers hoping to arrive early and prevent the non-union miners from going to work. Louis N. Scherf, chief of the state police, said:

"The strikers reached the gate before we interfered. Then we called upon them to halt. They kept coming. I fired two shots in the air, hoping to stop them. I was under orders to shoot to kill if our lives were threatened. After hand to hand fighting, in which we were greatly outnumbered and in which several of my men were seriously injured, I ordered by men to fire into the mob. After the first volley the mob broke and fled."

Governor Blames Strikers.

Governor Adams charged that the strikers were to blame. He said:

"Chief Scherf did his duty. He ordered his men to fire only when it appeared his own life and the lives of his deputies were in jeopardy."

No disorders were reported from other mining districts of the state. The Columbine mine is the only one that has attempted to operate in the face of the strike order.

ELKS PLAN NEW BUILDING

Lot Purchased By Lodge For Club

Members of Wichita Falls Elks lodge No. 1105 Monday night approved the purchase from Maskat temple of the lot at Ninth and Travis streets. No consideration was announced. The annual memorial service of the lodge was announced for the first Sunday in December with Judge John F. Murphy as the orator of the occasion. The place of holding the service has not been designated.

City Council Approves Program Of Expansion For Zoo Started by Lions

Members of the city council went on record Monday night as favoring the adoption of a plan for the building of a zoo that will permit expansion through the years. The motion was passed after a committee from the Lions club composed of H. J. Bruce, T. L. Sorey and Dr. W. P. Bolding had presented the ideas of the club which has been sponsoring a zoo. The Lions were also thanked for their interest in the matter and will be consulted when a permanent site and plan are selected.

Mr. Bruce called attention of the council to the work of the club and stated that about 25 animals had already been promised and it was the desire of the club to see the number and types of animals increase from year to year, both as a matter of education and interest.

Mr. Sorey brought forth a drawing showing a temporary plan that was laid out in the form of an ellipse with cages at all but the front end. There were to be placed concession plans, shelter houses, comfort stations and other conveniences.

"Most zoos have grown from a

DEATH VOTED BANK BANDIT

Texas Jury Decides On Supreme Penalty

By Universal Service.

GROESBECK, Texas, Nov. 21.—A jury in district court here today made bank robberies an unhealthful occupation in Limestone county when the death penalty was assessed A. P. Burton, 21, for the part he played in the daring holdup of the First State bank at Tehuacana on November 3.

No shots were fired during the holdup but the robbers were armed, employes of the bank testified during the trial. And on their testimony the death penalty was assessed, as the state laws provide that the death penalty may be inflicted in any case of robbery with firearms.

The jury received the case Saturday. The verdict was returned today.

Burton showed no outward emotion when the verdict was read.

Court attaches later said that as far as they knew, this is the first time that the death penalty has been given in Texas in such a case.

CITY RESPONDS EAGERLY TO CHEST APPEAL

Prospects For Success Encouraging As Teams Take Field

FIRST REPORT TODAY

Former Residents And Visitors Add Gifts to Fund For Needy

Wichita Falls is responding willingly, even somewhat gaily, to the 1928 call of the Community Chest for a budget of $65,000, according to unofficial reports made by many workers Monday night at the close of the first few hours canvassing.

While no actual figures on first subscriptions were available, the first requests for subscriptions Monday afternoon found an almost universal willingness to give, and a wider interest than ever before in the work of the Community Chest.

OPEN YOUR DOORS!

An appeal to business men, particularly office workers, to admit Community Chest workers to their offices ahead of other callers was made Monday by Harry Hines, vice chairman of the campaign.

"Workers in the Community Chest drive are neglecting their own affairs to aid in this work, and for this reason, as well as because of the limited amount of time which we have to see all prospects, we are asking that office men give Community Chest solicitors entrance into their offices at the first opportunity."

W. S. Abbott, chairman of the auditing committee, reported that a number of contributions, ranging from $5 to $25, were made Monday by visitors in Wichita Falls and by former residents of the city. There has also been a number of volunteer contributions from Wichita Falls residents and many offers of assistance.

Bells Announce Campaign.

Ringing of giant bells through the streets at noon Monday signified the opening of the 1928 drive to the residents of Wichita Falls. Workers in the campaign gathered at the Wichita club Monday noon for final instructions and the final "pep" meeting, and to hear words of praise from Walter D. Cline, chairman of the drive.

Discussing the preliminary campaign which has been carried on during his absence from the city, Mr. Cline declared that "somebody has been doing a lot of good work here," and praised the individual leaders of the campaign. Mr. Cline introduced Harry Hines, vice-chairman of the drive, who declared it "is our sincere desire not to simply take gifts for the Community Chest, but to sell the community on the

RED---THAT'S ALL

Aged Men Jailed After Jag On Pop And "Canned Heat"

They looked upon the wine and it was red.

So, three men who have reached the sunset years of life were given night's lodging in the city jail when they became intoxicated from partaking too lustily thereof.

They were old, these three—old and maimed. Two walked with the aid of canes; the other hobbled along on crutches.

Their thirsts knew no bounds—nor discrimination. Failing in their efforts to obtain liquor, they bought canned heat from a drug store. This they diluted with water. They added strawberry soda pop. Thus the wine became red.

When arrested Monday night the aged three were in possession of a pint bottle of this queer concoction and three cans of heat which had not been diluted.

REMUS FILES INSANITY PLEA

Trial of Bootleg Slayer Reaches Testimony

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21. (AP)—The first evidence upon which the state depends to send George Remus, the former "king of bootleggers," to the electric chair was adduced today, after Remus had sprung the biggest surprise of the trial by declining to make the opening statement for the defense.

Six times last week Remus electrified the spectators in Judge Chester R. Shook's court by clashes with the prosecution, but the surprise of none of them excelled that of today when Charles H. Elston, associate counsel, opened for the defense.

Remus suffering from a heavy cold arose just after Walter K. Sibbald, deputy prosecutor, had concluded with an appeal to the jury to vote for the execution of Remus for the cold bloded murder of his wife here last October 6.

Remus Can't Talk

Quickly the defendant, who is his own chief counsel, sat down. He leaned over and whispered to Elston.

"I don't believe I can make it," Remus said, "can you do it?"

Elston addressed the jury, without a moment's warning that Remus would not make the opening statement he had planned, virtually since the day of the slaying.

He outlined a defense solely of transitory insanity. His most startling statement was that evidence would be introduced to prove that Remus had been insane for two years prior to the time he shot Mrs. Remus.

The chief factors upon which Elston erected his structure of temporary insanity, however, were Mrs. Remus' alleged association with Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., of Lansing, Mich., former prohibition agent and the alleged persecution of Remus by Dodge, after the federal agent had obtained the conviction which sent the former lawyer who turned bootlegger to the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

Woman's Aide Testifies

The first witness of the case, comely Mrs. Ethel Bachmann, who served Mrs. Remus as secretary, a year and a half, testified that she spent the last two nights of Mrs. Remus' life in her hotel suite here.

The high point of Mrs. Bachmann's testimony seemed to be that at 10 o'clock on the second night before Mrs. Remus was slain, she left her hotel and was away several hours on an errand which "would be very valuable if it materialized." Mrs. Remus did not make any telephone calls the night before she was killed, Mrs. Bachmann testified.

LEADERS FILE PETITION FOR SPECIAL MEET

Extraordinary Call Issued By Four Members Of Legislature

GOVERNOR INCENSED

Johnston Calls Action Of Meet Proponents Not "Good Faith"

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 21. (AP) Taking the bit in their teeth, four members of the Oklahoma legislature late today issued a call for an extraordinary session of that body, to meet Tuesday, December 6, and at the same time petioned Governor Henry S. Johnston to call the session.

The purpose of the session, the petition to the governor said, is "to investigate all departments of state, including executive and judicial, deemed advisable."

Asserting that they had obtained the signatures of a majority of the house members, asking for the session, the four authors of the petition declined to give the names of the signers to the governor or the press, because they did not desire to "subject them to the embarrassment of being continually harassed between now and the time for the calling of the session, as they have been in the past few weeks by employes and appointees of a number of departments."

Four Sign Call.

The call was signed by Tom Johnson of Pushmataha county; H. Tom Kight of Rogers county; E. P. Hill of Pittsburg county and Robert C. Graham of Oklahoma county.

The action brought to a head a movement that has been on foot for more than a month. A petition to the governor, calling attention to ten allegegations of irregularities in various departments, including the executive and the highway, was made public by Mr. Kight three weeks ago.

No enlargement was made on this petition today, Mr. Kight said, although it had been announced during the day that more specific charges would be added to it.

Mr. Johnson and Mr. Graham bore the petition with an attached statement and affidavit to the governor.

Governor Johnston received the two men cordially and hummed as he opened the envelope the documents were in.

Governor Is Miffed.

Questioning the men briefly, the governor commented on the absence of names from the petition, that "this is peculiar conduct for men who claim to be in good faith."

"Well, boys, I'm much obliged to you and I'll look it over," Governor Johnston said, in dismissing the two.

Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, whose position as confidential secretary to the governor was attacked in the first petition made public by Mr. Kight, looked into the governor's office when Mr. Johnson and Mr. Graham arrived, and listened for a short time as the governor read from the documents. Then she retired to her desk in the small office adjoining the governor's, the door remaining open.

U.S. Attorneys Plan New Move to Pin Jury Tampering Charge on Sinclair

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (AP)—A new and surprising move in the Fall-Sinclair oil trial jury inquiry is under consideration by District Attorney Gordon. Its precise nature was not divulged today but it was known that it would be independent of the grand jury investigation and also of the inquiry being made by a committee appointed by Justice Frederick L. Siddons of the supreme court of the District of Columbia to determine whether contempt of court had been committed.

The committee composed of James E. Laskey and James S. Easby-Smith, began its work today. Laws involved in the proceedings were gone over and the affidavits alleging Edward J. Kidwell Jr., juror No. 11 in the trial, talked too freely were examined. The committee was directed to examine the affidavits of Don K. King, a Washington newspaper man, and J. Ray Akers, a former street car conductor, who swore Kidwell had said he expected to have a car as "long as this block" after the conspiracy trial was ended.

From a Wichita Falls citizen who moved from this city more than six months ago comes the following letter addressed to A. E. Kelly, manager of the Texas Electric Service company, where the writer of the letter formerly was employed.

"This letter shows that the Wichita Falls spirit and the spirit of our company of which we are proud extends outside of this city," Mr. Kelly declared.

The letter, which was accompanied by a money order for $5, says: "Hoping that the employees of the Texas Electric Service company are 100 per cent for the welfare fund and that the enclosed money order will make it a hundred and one per cent.

to give his entire contribution to one organization, if he so desires, and were urged to secure the votes of contributors on the question of continuing educational and recreational organizations as members of the chest next year.

W. S. Abbott, named chairman of the auditing committee, urged workers to turn in money as fast as it is collected, in order that the report of the campaign may be kept up to date. The huge thermometer at the City National bank corner will register the progress of the drive during the campaign period.

Organization Leaders.

Executives in charge of the various organizations composing the Community Chest were introduced by Mr. Cline at the meeting as follows: Mrs. Iva E. Austin, Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. W. O. Davidson, Travelers Aid society; Mrs. Rebecca Carrington, Day Nursery; Mrs. Effie McHam, Family Relief association; Miss Mary McIlheran, Camp Fire executive; Miss Katherine Henricle, Childrens' Aid society; Miss Myrtle Neely, Welfare board; Frank Creighton, Boy Scout executive and Capt. Z. N. Parker, Salvation Army. Zenobia Trimble, in charge of the colored day nursery and charities, was not present, but the work was represented by members of her board.

Workers in the chest drive will meet this Tuesday and Wednesday at the Wichita club at noon for luncheon, and to make reports on the progress of the drive.

haphazard scheme," he said "and we are seeking to prevent this in Wichita Falls. Our idea is that the cages should be erected on the unit plan so they can be added to if needed. The cages should have concrete floors with a drain in front and houses in the rear. The club recently has had an offer of an African lion and two buffalo calves."

Mayor Shepherd and Councilman A. W. King under whose supervision the park department comes, stated that whatever was done at present would have to be done on an overdraft basis and that the council did not feel it should spend the money. They both favored the adoption of a plan of work, however.

The bill of J. E. Morgan of $4,739.39 for work on the Memorial auditorium was approved. This leaves $53,685.15 of the contract yet to be completed.

Paving on Bluff street from 14th street to 15th street was accepted from L. E. Whitam and company. The coptract for the paving of Sherman road from York avenue to Lexington avenue was also approved.

Bids were opened on the concessions for the auditorium. The right was awarded to T. G. Gardner with the stipulation he could show financial responsibility to carry out the contract and the contracting parties could agree on the time of lease. The city placed the lease at one year with an option on the second year. Mr. Gardner's bid was $85 a month or 10 per cent of his gross receipts. The monthly pay bid was accepted. Other bids were Bert Taylor, 10 per cent of gross receipts with contract for five years; H. L. Porterfield, five percent of gross receipts or $50 a month for five years; and J. S. Smith, seven per cent or $40 per month.

Mayor Shepherd read a letter from the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company, building the water tower west of the city stating it would complete the work provided the city would allow interest on the overdraft. This was agreed.

Account Settled

Councilman P. B. Curd reported that the city had saved $2,447 by laying its own lines to the tower. The cheapest bid was for $5,887 while the city water department did the work for $3,440.

Settlement was made with the Janes Contracting company for worn done on the city sanitary lines for $1,981. This is a compromise figure and about $2,000 under the amount originally claimed by the company. The dispute arose over just what constituted hand work.

Mayor Shepherd announced the asbestos curtain for the new auditorium stage will contain a scene from Lake Kemp in the center with an irrigation project scene one one side and an oil field picture on the other. The scenery company has agreed that if the curtain is not satisfactory it will send an artist here to paint as the council directs.

The new traffic ordinance which codifies all of the present ordinances into one was read and Councilman Roy E. Carter asked that it be passed. He stated the main change was in the prohibiting of children under 16 years from driving automobiles in the city limits. He explained this complied with both the state laws and insurance requirements.

There was also some discussion over paragraph No. 37 which provides the chief of police may designate boulevard streets and stops. Several members of the council thought this should be left to that body. No vote was taken on the ordinance and it will come up again next Monday.

Entries in the skating race who are worrying about a way to get to Burkburnett can ease their minds as a result of the announcement Monday by Alec B. The hour for the skaters to assemble at the Gym for the ride to Burkburnett will be announced later.

A silver loving cup will be given the winner of this race, $15 cash to the first woman completing the marathon, this same amount to be paid as second prize to the second skater finishing in the event no woman marathoner qualifies, and $10 cash to be paid as third prize in the latter event—otherwise this same amount as second prize should the $15 mentioned before be collected by a woman racer.

Polo fans who will not be interested in the roller skating marathan can see their favorite sport staged at Call field at 10 a. m. Thursday where a match between two fast teams is to be played.

Young Wichita Falls

There must have been some hidden motif in naming the little blonde of the picture, Greta. And this particular Greta, like the Greta of movie fame, likes dolls and cars. Don't you know that the older Greta likes dolls, grown up dolls, to be sure, but dolls all the same?

Can't you just see a picture of the Greta of the above photo, with blonde hair peeping out from under the brim of a modish little hat (or do you suppose they will be wearing large hats by the time Greta Frances is a young lady?) and dressed as only Greta can attire herself, and stepping into a waiting limousine escorted by one of those grown up dolls mentioned above?

Greta Frances is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Sheldon, Jr., of 1908 Elizabeth avenue.

Luncheon Reservations To Be Made by Friday

Mrs. D. J. Carithers will have charge of the reservations for the Chinese luncheon which will be one of the prettiest events of this week and will be given Saturday at the Womans Forum under auspices of the literature department of the forum. All reservations must be made by 9 o'clock Friday morning. Guests privileges will be allowed and those desiring other information, are requested to call Mrs. Carithers.

The plays are "Will o' the Wisp," by Doris Halman, and is being directed by Mrs. Edward L. Fulton, and "The Man in the Bowler Hat," directed by Miss Ella Merle Mathis, a comedy whose author is unknown.

Membership tickets will admit to the plays Tuesday, according to Mrs. E. W. Wade, chairman of the drama department. The curtain will arise promptly on the hours designated.

The cast for the "Will o' the Wisp," is as follows:

HER HUSBAND'S SECRETARY

By WILLIAM A. WOLFF

Eileen Saves John from an Awkward Situation

By William Almon Wolff

BUT that was just what she had done. It was no selfish desire for John MacVeagh's company that made Eileen violate every instinct of modesty and shyness as she did. It was the working of her shrewd little mind, a mind far better than most people credited her with possessing. She had seen the dawning of suspicion in Henry Lovewell's mind; she guessed what disaster might come to MacVeagh if the banker, the most powerful man in the town, turned against him.

But no suspicion of this crossed MacVeagh's mind. He was a little amused, indeed, at the calm way this child—he thought of Eileen as a child—had made use of him. He thought well of himself at this stage of his career, did MacVeagh, as it was not unnatural that he should, dangerous for his ultimate success though such complacency undoubtedly was.

His business plans were working out, just now, better than he had dared to hope they would. Local financial stringency and a widespread national prosperity had worked to his advantage, as such conditions always do work to the advantage of the man with ready money, who can thus buy on a falling market and sell on a rising one. He was, unquestionably, flattered by his conquest of Marcia Lovewell.

In love with Marcia he was not; he scarcely even thought he was, beyond that faint bit of illusion on the score that is necessary for a love affair of any kind, no matter how trivial and passing. But, though she was several years older than he, Marcia was still a young woman, a good deal younger than her rather fatuous husband. She was a beautiful woman, too, in her way, and she made the most of herself. She had taste; she was the only woman in town who habitually bought her clothes in New York; she was, for that place, sophisticated. It was small wonder that the thought that she loved him threatened to destroy John MacVeagh's sense of proportion, to rob him of the sober caution essential to the success of his far-reaching plans.

He was, in any event, a normal youngster. His absorption in his business had not kept him from having the interest proper to his age in women; it had, however, kept him from any serious thought of marriage. Two axioms sprang to his mind when he thought of getting married. Unfortunately, they did not so readily occur to him when he became interested in a woman like Marcia, when marriage was not to be considered as a possibility. Old Bacon's talk of the hostages a married man gives to fortune, Kipling's "Whether down to Gehenna or up to the Throne, He travels the fastest who travels alone"—these guided him. Only at times, he forgot them.

Little Eileen Randall, sitting beside him in his roadster, he didn't take seriously at all, until she made him. Which was precisely what, on that ride back to town, she proceeded to try to do.

"I hope you and Mrs. Lovewell didn't mind my coming with you very much, John," she said.

"Eileen—you silly kid!" But he changed color. "What's Mrs. Lovewell got to do with it?"

"Oh—why—well, everyone thinks she's quite mad about you."

"They do?" he said, indignantly. "Then everyone's a busy-body and a fool!"

"Not everybody," said Eileen. "Maybe somebody's only a little sorry, and sort of hopes there won't be any trouble."

"Trouble?" he echoed. "You funny kid, Eileen—what makes you say a thing like that? I don't believe you even know what you're talking about!"

"Oh, yes, I do," she said, nodding her small, blond head wisely up and down. "I know a lot, John. I know a lot more than you think I do. You're rather like an ostrich, you know, sticking its head down in the sand and thinking nobody can see it."

His head went back, and he glared at her, angrily.

"But then, most men are, so you needn't feel bad about it," she said. "Only—I do think I'd be a little more careful, if I were you."

"Well—upon my word!" he said. "You silly baby—you're talking as if you were my maiden aunt! What do you care, anyway?"

She just looked at him, and the innocence of her big, blue eyes silenced him. He didn't understand her. But it seemed to him, for the first time that this was a child worth knowing; one with an original and interesting point of view. Unless, of course, she were simply stupid. It might be that. And that he did know, was the prevailing view of Eileen; people, in general, dismissed her as a nice girl, but the least bit dumb. That was what Marcia said of her.

Upon one point, however, he decided, very soon. The next time he saw Marcia, in fact, he decided that Eileen hadn't been dumb at all.

"I thought I'd die when that child slipped into my place so calmly!" Marcia told him. "But, Johnny—it's just as well she did. I'm terribly afraid we must have been seen some time. Henry's behaving very oddly."

"How do you mean?"

"It's hard to find words for it. He's just—oh, I don't know—but I'm almost sure he suspects us, Johnny. We've got to be very careful."

A queer feeling came over John MacVeagh as he listened. For the first time he began to see his affair with Marcia for what, after all, it was—a vulgar intrigue, secretly carried on, in which he played the not too noble part of the deceiver of a man who had trusted him. Had he been really in love with Marcia that would not, perhaps, have greatly troubled him. But as it was he didn't like it at all.

It was, perhaps, in that moment, that he had his first glimpse of Marcia as she really was; that he saw her as a bored woman, whose empty, aimless life made distractions like this attended love affair with him necessary. She would run no risks; not for anything in the world would she imperil, if she could help it, the security, the luxury that marriage with a man she despised gave her. Unconsciously, even then, John must have been comparing Marcia and other women he had known—with little Eileen Randall, in her fresh beauty, her naive and innocent frankness of speech.

"Careful?" he repeated. "Yes—that's right. I wouldn't want you to get into any trouble, Marcia."

"I'm thinking of you, not myself," she said.

There was probably about an equal measure of truth in both statements—with the balance a little in John's favor.

"Well—" he said. "What do you think we ought to do? Stop seeing one another?"

"You wouldn't care," she said. "I think you'd be glad."

"Now, now—you've no right to say that!" he said. He was bewildered, as any man would have been, by her swift attack; the fact that she was, at bottom, perfectly right, didn't at all justify what he knew to be an illogical and unreasonable twisting of his words. But that was like a woman!

"Oh, I know!" she cried. "You can't pull the wool over my eyes! You men are all alike. You always get tired—and then any excuse is good enough! You—very well! I'm not the sort to try to hold a man who's tired of me! I don't want ever to see you again! I hate you—I hate you—I hate you!"

"Oh, don't be silly," he said, wearily. He didn't want it to end like this. "Marcia, I've never said I wanted to stop. You were the one who said we ought to be careful, not I. I didn't think there was anything to worry about till you suggested it."

"You said we ought to stop seeing each other! You know you did!"

"I didn't say anything of the sort! I asked you if you thought so, and said: "Sir and Madame, we will have a very fine Thanksgiving dinner tomorrow. I hope you will come. JUST LIKE HOME!" And going down the street we almost cried while we laughed. JUST LIKE HOME! WE come? Well—not ever; so long as our great fireplace and shimmering candles and wide table and our delightful kitchen was where we could reach it for THANKSGIVING DAY! WE LAUGHED BECAUSE OF THAT. BUT WE ALMOST CRIED TO REMEMBER THAT THERE WOULD BE LONELY ONES WHO WOULD EAT THANKSGIVING THERE, WATCH THE CROWDS GO BY, AND BITTERLY KNOW THAT IT WAS NOT "JUST LIKE HOME!"

—NELL BRINKLEY.

That's quite a different thing, and you know it."

"It's not! It's nothing of the kind! If you hadn't wanted it you wouldn't have suggested it! Do you think I can't tell?"

"I think you're being absurd—you'll be having hysterics in another minute. Pull yourself together, Marcia. What do you think we ought to do?"

And almost punctuarily and because it was so obviously expected of him, he kissed her. She had begun to cry now and he hated to see her or any other woman cry. And so, in the end, their quarrel was patched up with a resolution that they would be more careful—and he had lost, and knew it, a golden chance to sever a bond that was beginning to be irksome and wearisome to him.

To Be Continued.

TWO THANKSGIVING DAYS

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"Be thankful if the first is yours!"

IN 1621, on the shores of a new home, self-exiled from their old one, the Pilgrim Fathers held their first harvest festival. It was a feast of giving thanks for the year's harvest—and the year's harvest of blessings. How many of us remember just why we go to Gran'mas that day and eat turkey and cranberry jelly, dressing and sweet potatoes, mince and pumpkin pie, and drink cider? Not many of us remember to be very grateful in some way for just a minute, that we have all the good things that we HAVE.

But if you have ever eaten away from the real Thanksgiving feasts that most of us know you would remember what the day is for. Folks with much less than you have to be thankful for, remember; and they would show grateful hearts and shining faces if they had their feet beneath such a table as yours. Every soul in the big world that knows this festival, hasn't a turkey and the delightful companions that spread the table with him, so smugly. And every soul doesn't get to eat Thanksgiving dinner with his OWN FOLKS AT HOME.

Once upon a time, the one who is my best beau forever and I dined in a tiny restaurant and watched the crowds go by the half-curtained windows. And the eager little owner, before we went, put into our hands a menu, with some cranberries like red beads drawn by some young beginner across the top by way of festivity.

Snobbery Quickly Induced by Home Influence

By L. Lamar Matthews.

A WOMAN who was visiting in New York passed Gramercy Park one day, just as a little girl and her nurse were entering the park.

Now, Gramercy Park is an exclusive bit of Manhattan. Residents of the neighborhood who are given keys to the grounds may enter, but only those who live there have keys. The visitor knew of this regulation, which made her admission to the place more to be desired.

"Won't you let me into the park with your gold key?" she asked the child, smiling benevolently upon the little mite of aristocracy.

"No!" was the answer. Just that one word "No." But her assumption of haughtiness and her how-dare-you tone of voice emphasized her answer quite sufficiently.

The visitor laughed and went her way. She told me about it afterwards, and seemed to think the child's attitude was amusing. But it struck me as being evidence of ill-breeding and a spirit of snobbery that had been fostered at home.

A snob is a person who tries to conceal his inferiority by a display of arrogance. He caters to his acknowledged superiors and is insolent to his alleged inferiors. That isn't a natural state of mind for any child. Snobbery in a child is induced by home influence. And it always announces in unmistakable terms: "My mother and father are not as grand as they would have the world believe."

Children who are brought up in homes where a healthy, kindly, generous attitude is maintained, carry the stamp of that influence through life.

I am reminded of a conversation that I heard recently. A well-to-do man was telling a younger man of his own poverty-stricken childhood. He mentioned a family across the street who were particularly kind and hospitable to the children in his own home. "We were ragged and not always clean," he said. "And there were not many folks who would have accepted us as playmates for their children."

"Well, I don't know," said the young man. "I remember two different sets of mighty poor children that I used to play with. Mother didn't run them out of the yard, and she always gave them a biscuit when she gave me one."

The boy's voice and manner unconsciously said, "I see no reason why a child should be snubbed because he is poor."

That was because his mother's example had implanted that idea in his soul. She didn't feel it necessary to step on somebody's neck in order to elevate herself. Nature did the elevating for her; and she could afford to follow her own judgment and inclinations.

Mothers too often judge their children's playmates by the neighborhood from which they come; by the clothes they wear, by the evidence of material possessions.

It is much more important that your child should have associates whose minds are clean, whose speech is decent, whose natures are sweet and whose motives are safe.

Household Hints

Sago that has been soaked in water or milk until quite soft is an excellent substitute for baking powder. Use one teaspoonful of dry sago to four of flour.

It's Far Better To Have Love Than Lots of Silk Gowns, Advises Dix

Why Is it Better to Have Love Than Imported Paris Gowns?—The Studious Wife Whose Small-Minded Husband is Jealous of Her Learning—How Can a Poor Young Man Meet Wealthy, Celebrated People?

Dear Miss Dix—At the time I was married, a little more than two years ago, I had two proposals. One was from a man much older than myself but who was very wealthy and would have been able to give me clothes, money and pleasure. The other was from a poor young man, but who was making a fairly comfortable salary. I was ecstatically, thrillingly in love with him, and a love nest of two or three rooms sounded like heaven. So we were married. But our marriage is a failure. If we had more money and I could have had better clothes and gone out more, perhaps we would not have got upon each other's nerves so badly, and I would not so much regret not having married the richer man. My husband has not as good a job as he had when we were married. Love in a cottage is not as it is depicted.

JUNE.

Answer:

Whichever one of your two suitors you had married, June, you would have wished you had married the other. You married the young man you loved and you are disgruntled because he cannot give you pretty frocks and fine cars and take you to expensive places of amusement, but if you had married the old man who could give you all of these things you would be eating your heart out in your hunger for love and romance and youth.

The trouble with you is that you ask too much of life. You want everything. You want love and romance and riches and pleasures, and it is mighty seldom that Fate hands out that sort of a prize package to a woman. Mostly we have to take the bitter with the sweet, the drawbacks with the advantages.

Of course, every woman would like to marry a fairy prince and have a husband who was equally good at raising thrills in her breast and making money, but there are very few fairy princes in these prosaic days and mostly a girl has to choose between the poor man who is young enough for her to love and the old man who can give her the luxuries she wants.

And I contend that she has a far better chance for happiness with a poor young man than with a rich old one and that it is better to have love than it is to have imported Paris frocks.

Anyway, happiness is a state of mind, and it depends on one's attitude toward life, not on what one has. Money will not buy it, nor will material things insure it. Some of the most miserable people I have ever known were the richest and many of the happiest were the poorest.

In your case you have all the raw materials for happiness in your hands and you are willfully throwing them away. You have a good husband, a good home, enough to live on comfortably. If you would make the best of these, they would all fill your life so completely that you would not pine for unobtainable luxuries.

If you would honestly try to be a real helpmeet to your husband and to help him build up his fortune, if you would interest yourself in his work and try to be an inspiration to him, you would not get upon each other's nerves. You would be chums and companions who would never talk out. Perhaps the reason why your husband hasn't as good a position now as he had when you married, is because you have taken the heart out of him by your discontent and repining over his not being able to give you all that a rich husband could have given you.

My advice to you is to brace up and do your part toward making a happy home. You will find your happiness on your own doorstep if you will look hard enough for it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have been married about a year to a husband who dislikes intensely my love for good literature and studying, but until last week there has been no great dissension about it. I do all of my housework and cooking and help him in his business for a few hours every day, but my evenings are left alone, as he does not return from work until 11 p. m. So I decided to take up a small college course of two hours on Tuesday and Thursday nights. This angered my husband so much that he refuses even to speak to me.

What must I do? This is not the 50-50 marriage of which I dreamed. Am I to be this man's slave? May I not have for my own, to use innocently, four hours of the hundred and sixty-eight in a week? My husband's conduct is killing my love and making me hate him.

TROUBLED WIFE.

Answer:

Your husband's conduct is inspired by jealousy. His egotism makes him desire to be superior to you in every way, to pose before you as an oracle, and so he cannot bear for you to study and read and make yourself his intellectual superior.

Very many men take this attitude toward their wives. It is really the explanation of why so many clever men marry fools. A man always wants to look down on his wife instead of up to her.

So, in judging your husband, bear this in mind and realize that it is distorted love for you that makes him want to keep you to his own intellectual class. He feels that the only way he can keep you is to fetter your mind, and he is not wise enough to know that the very method he is taking defeats its own end, and that nothing he could possibly do would drive you away from him so surely as this unreasoning and petty tyranny.

If your taking the college course angers your husband so much, possibly you will be wise to give it up in the interest of peace and harmony. But don't give up your reading and studying, for the world of books is going to be the place of refuge to which you will have to flee when you find life with a small-minded husband almost impossible. The woman who loves to read, and who can say "my mind is my kingdom to it" can never be wholly miserable under any conditions.

But why did you marry a man whose tastes are so unsympathetic and unsympathetic? How was it possible not to find out before marriage your fiancé's attitude toward the things that meant so much to you?

If only young people, who think they are in love with each other, would stop asking each other about the state of their affections and would put in a few searching questions about their tastes and habits and opinions, how many unhappy marriages could be prevented.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—What is the first step a man with no money and absolutely no background can take in meeting wealthy, prominent and celebrated people? I am not trying to be funny, but a frank reply.

STEPHEN J.

Answer:

Well, I should say that the first step in meeting wealthy, prominent and celebrated people would be to do something that would make wealthy, prominent and celebrated people want to meet you. Plenty of poor men with no background have done so, as is witnessed by the recent case of Mr. Lindbergh.

But why are you so keen about meeting wealthy, prominent and celebrated people? Believe me, if you think that they are going to advance your interests, you have another guess coming. All of the stories that you hear about rich men taking up poor young men and making their fortunes are fairy tales. And none of the celebrities' talent rubs off on the passer-by.

Devote your time and efforts to making your own fortune instead of trying to get next to the rich. Personally, I think that no greater misfortune can happen to any young person than to be associated socially with people better off than they are. Trying to keep up with the Joneses ruins many a man and woman.

Capper of Kansas

CAPPER OF KANSAS has a tax reduction plan. He is for the repeal of the federal automobile tax. He is for slicing the corporation tax. As he views it the corporation tax is a war tax and is passed on to the consumer. It is a burden on business and the consumers and its reduction to ten per cent should be made possible at the coming session of congress.

He shied away from repealing or modifying the federal estate tax. He holds to the gospel that it is a just tax as long as some states do not levy inheritance taxes.

Capper of Kansas is a friend of the farmer. His slogan is there must be a further decrease in federal taxes "but there should be a much bigger decrease in state and local taxes."

How would he go about it? This is a building age. This is a progressive age. There are millions of children to be educated. There are millions of miles of highways to be built.

There are laws to be enforced. There are regiments of office holder whose salaries must be paid. There is an army and a navy to be maintained. There are flooded districts to be protected. There are great dams to be constructed.

There are rivers to be harnessed. There are sea ports to be improved. There are ocean carriers of commerce and passengers to be kept afloat. There is a war debt of billions to be paid. Fluff and flubbub combined form a commodity for the political world of airy nonsense.

Facts are blunt. Figures are convincing. Capper should get down to facts and figures.

They Faked Their Evidence

PITTSBURGH HAS a citizens league. Pittsburgh is the home of Mellon. William L. King was executive secretary of the league. King and his investigators were ordered to clean up the town by the league. King and his investigators furnished evidence against alleged violators of prohibition laws.

Now King has confessed.

He has admitted under oath that all the evidence submitted was faked evidence compiled by the head of the league or rather its chief agent and his investigators. This confession caused an upheaval.

All the cases developed by the league now pending in the courts will be dropped as a result of the King disclosures.

This is a merry old world. It has a fringe that makes it a sordid old world in spots. There are men who live by their wits. They like to take down easy money.

This is what happened to King and his investigators if King told all of the truth in his remarkable confession.

Value of the White House

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE is the occupant of a costly home. Now it is announced that the White House and the grounds surrounding it have been appraised as worth at least $22,000,000 at present day realty value.

If the president were required to pay taxes on his official residence at the present rate of $1.70 for each $100 worth of property in the city of Washington, he would have to turn over to Uncle Sam $374,000 a year, nearly five times his salary.

As it is the people own the White House and its surrounding grounds and the tribe of Jones pays the freight. This is as it should be. This is a $400,000,000,000 republic.

Ruth Gets the Coin

RUTH ELDER is to get the coin. She has signed a contract to appear for 100 days at $1,000 a day in vaudeville by the Loew Vaudeville interests.

Their publicity agent let the signing of the contract and the price paid per day to the woman flyer known to the world, and the press is doing the rest.

Now just why should Ruth go home to hubby and lead the life simple away down in the Panama Canal zone?

Really $1,000 for 100 days appearance on the stage is a proposition not to be trifled with by masculine or feminine seekers of publicity or would-be thrillers in the air or in the street.

Texas On the Map

BONNIE ANXIETY 10, Hereford steer calf, owned and bred by the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, was awarded the grand championship in the fat steer class at the American Royal Livestock and Horse show at Kansas City. Bonnie Anxiety 10 was sired by Bonnie Anxiety, the college herd bull and was displayed in the show ring by a son of C. M. Largent, noted Hereford breeder of Merkle.

Bonnie Anxiety 10 previously had been awarded the championship in the Hereford class of steers. Kansas was the big winner in the early judging of fat sheep. Now how did that happen? Texas is first in the production of wool and third in the quality produced. In the fattening part of the game how comes it that Kansas leads Texas?

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—From Henry Bern, president and founder of the Tobacco Society for Voice Culture, comes the following illuminating letter

"I read your article about the Tobacco society . . . and regret that there should be some puzzlement as to its purpose. I'll tell you what it's all about and maybe you'll pass the good word on to your readers. We believe in viciousness for vice's sake! We believe in smoking for the pure, indecent and obscene pleasure to be derived from it! We're sick of the whited sepulchres of advertising who take a simple, inoffensive cigaret and place it in the pharmacoepia with smelly drugs and gargles and what not. We're tired of listerated, formaminted, old gold fluky-striked insinuations and shrieks about all the ills that breath, flesh and hair are heir to. We want to be let alone to be wicked, to be unafraid, to enjoy ourselves. We're trying to kid the bunk that is handed out by the advertising pallbearers of joy to an innocent public. Don't you think it's time for some of us to rebel?"

I'm still puzzled, after all that eloquence, Henry. It strikes me as being heavy-handed kidding.

Down the street is a treasured colored cook who owns to a dusky husband over in Brooklyn. Her mistress called Viney up at her Harlem hangout on the latter's day off. It was the week, also, of Florence Mills' spectacular burying. "There's a telegram for you, Viney," she said. "Want me to read it?" Viney said yes, and in the usual voice trembling with emotion, the lady of the house confided the bad tidings. Viney's man had been badly hurt in a traffic tieup on the south side of Long Island. The message had a come-at-once import. But Viney was firm in her refusal to get excited about it. "That man's pretty no-account," she said, indifferently. "I ain't going out there tonight, noways. 'Taint often I get to see such a grand layin' out as Florence Mills. I'd miss it if I's to hurry off to Sam'l."

The tabloids reached a height of vulgarity the other day when they printed, with innocent gusto, pictures of the "honeymoon cabin" to be occupied by Mr. Arturo Ramos and his bride, the Standard Oil heiress, Millicent Rogers. In the city room of a newspaper in a smaller American city, such a picture would be thrown out if ever it reached the desk. Certain it is that no regular city editor would give a photographer an assignment to secure such a picture. But the function of the tabloid journal is unique. The lowest curiosity of Peeping Tom is satisfied. Yet these "picture butchers" on the tabloids are good fellows, conservative, quiet, well-mannered, seemly. Most of them are married (happily) and live in Brooklyn. There is nothing in their private lives to indicate that their daily jobs are rather on a par with that of the white wing who sweeps up Park Row.

MODISH MITZI — Not Quite What Mitzi Expected — By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi, Polly and Aunt Sophia are ready to go to the country for a really old fashioned Thanksgiving Day. The lady to the left has nothing to do with our party, but she must be mentioned because her coat has a half belt in front and a detached collar of fox fur. Polly is wearing a coat with a cape split up the back. Aunt Sophia's flaring suede cloth coat is edged with krimmer. Mitzi decided on a tweed with a high collar that looks as though it tied. All of the ladies, you'll see, are wearing some sort of variation of the turban because hats grow trimmer and tighter every day. Polly's is felt Mitzi's is soleil velours and the other two are velvet.

The air rather resounds with "well, well, Bill" and "well, well, John." And Mitzi and Polly think these are the two prettiest girls they have seen in a long while. And aren't they smartly dressed! The charming young thing at the right wears a turban with the newest cut to its edge—up over one eye and down over the other. Her velveteen coat has a wide band of fur that can either drape around her shoulders or be fastened under her chin. The other new cousin wears a fur lined coat with just an edge of the fur showing as a collar and bands of it for trimming on the sleeves. Everything seems to be well indeed—except that Dud rather regrets there's a car instead of a sleigh!

HATTIE

A STORY OF LOVE AND SACRIFICE

By SAMUEL MERWIN

CHAPTER THIRTY NINE

Back in her compartment after luncheon, the talk went on. Hedwig slipped away unobserved. Disturbing as she found this searching analysis, of his, she couldn't let him stop. She'd never heard the remark of the Frenchman to the effect that taking love is making love. She only knew that she couldn't let him stop. She knew no other man like him. Henry had seemed a way out, she knew now because she had so helplessly wanted him to seem that. But this man was real. In his mind, animating every thought and every word, she felt an honesty that was to hear a vaguely, heartbreaking sort of beauty . . . She must find a way to give him honesty for honesty. Somehow. She couldn't go to him with a lie on her face—even if he shouldn't want her then. . . . And all this he was saying couldn't be true. That about the force of her career. She couldn't face it. She'd show him. She'd cook for him. She'd live in two rooms. If only she could make him see it! If only she could master her thoughts, and find a voice for this painful, wonderful, stirring and swelling in her breast. She must find the way out of her inarticulate self. Everything kept on going so fast . . . . And it was so queer. There were dozens of men in Beverly she knew by their first names; but she hadn't once yet spoken his aloud. Julian. She wondered if she ever could speak it . . . . Queerly, too, the de Brissac influence had become remote. She could also, at moments forget it. She thought again of those separate compartments in her life. De Brissace had come as a shock. "But," she reflected, "it wasn't me. It never was me." . . . Somehow she must speak out. She must make him feel the truth as she felt it. He must know, from her own lips, that he was her man.

She realized that he was talking on in that troubled way. Talking with that detachment of his fairly outside of himself, looking on. He seemed strangely a child. She wanted to take his head in her arms and mother him. Even if her experience should come to him as a shock . . . . She must listen.

"What I come down to do is the question whether what we think of as our personal happiness is ever of any particular importance. Every job takes us out of the personal. And living is just a job, I suppose. What we do counts, of course. And what we are, or become is a result of what we do. But I doubt whether our feelings are important. You've got to go on, whatever you may think at the moment. I couldn't take you out of all that just to live for me. That would be monstrous. Don't you see, Harriet? And God, he knows I'm no money-maker. I'm just one of these unaccountable artist persons, just a Gypsy. I have to wait on my work . . . wait and brood, let the cream rise as it will . . . and then may be nobody'll want it. I can't drive it or force it. I'm no industry! God, only if I were!"

A shadow fell across the compartment. In the doorway stood the conductor, with his, "Tickets, please!—" and behind him the Pullman man.

Hattie had to rummage through her shopping bag for her tickets. While she hunted her thoughts raced. Somehow these men were an opportunity. It almost seemed that she could speak through them to Julian . . . It was coming true. She could speak.

"Is there—" she was gazing up at them, her face was the sweetly blank mask of the famous picture star— "is there any room in the Grand Canyon car?"

Th train conductor turned to the Pullman man.

"Why, yes, Miss John," said that official, eager to please—oh, he knew her!—"There's a couple that want to change to a through car. But I'd have to put you and your maid in a section. There's no compartment."

"That'll be all right," said she, "if you have a berth for Mr. Dempster, too."

She could feel Julian's startled gaze, but didn't look. This was her competent everyday side. A year and a half of the picture business had developed that side. It was a relief to fall back into it for the moment. And it was amusing to know that Julian couldn't protest. He had to go away with the Pullman man after his things quite as matter-of-fact as she. She found that she could even smile at him then, and secretly—playfully, even—catch his hand and give it a little squeeze . . . . This would be the first step on the way out of her problem. The effort with Henry had been ill judged, but this was right. She felt it, as the tsony-faced Hedwig and the porter carried her things back through the train, exultantly. And the discovery that Julian was evading her brought a brooding faint smile. He had accepted the situation. She could see his suitcase resting on a seat a little way along the aisle. But she knew that he couldn't trust himself with her here in the open car. Not now. She had read it in his eyes when he went away with the Pullman man and in the fingers that for a moment had clung to hers.

At least, in the evening, they had the observation platform to themselves. All day they had tactily kept off this topic of the Canyon trip, even while rushing into it. For while outwardly all was as before—they were simply to be on the train, with Hedwig, one more day—their hearts, with that impulsive decision of hers, broke bounds They were closer; no doubt about that . . . . He said, finally, out here, tucked with her in a corner, on the little camp stools—

"This business does sort of crash in on us—this Canyon business. I was trying to think it out. Harriet, I'm afraid we're going too fast."

He found her hand. And she had a smile in her eyes. De Brissac she assured herself, was now more than a dim phantasm of memory. She was through with him. For the first time the thought came, a thought that was radiantly colored with this new glowing atmosphere, that perhaps she needn't tell after all. It might only make Julian unhappy. He wasn't the sort to be crudely jealous. He had broad understanding. Why not just close the doors of memory on an experience in which she had never found happiness. It didn't matter to her now. Why should it matter to him . . . Circumstances had driven her into it. The situation had developed far beyond her small capacity. The family had driven her, too, straight to that man—Alice, and Arthur, even Gran'ma. For the money they'd done that. And they'd keep right on driving her to him . . .

She shivered. Julian reached around and tucked her cape closely about her . . . . That was what she yearned for, his protecting hand. She was tired of the battle . . . . When he found, as he was surely going to find, how simply and honestly she would give her life to him, he'd stop worrying about her career. She had stopped. He'd see.

But she wasn't to get off so easily. Words came, surprisingly to herself; a nervous little uprush of speech; rather vehment; came out of one of those hidden under currents of mood that in natures so simple as hers are always stronger than any mere exercise of the brain.

"It's funny about all this success of mine." That troubled look was on her face. "Of course the money has been nice, having a pretty home and my car and everything. But I couldn't ever make it seem real."

"That's because it's still new."

"Perhaps." His fingers tightened about hers. "But I don't think it's just that. It's something else." She was staring out at the dimly receding track, unaware that he was studying her. She liked it when he gently put his arm about her shoulders. She settled wearily back against that arm and reached up her other hand to his. "It's the unpleasant atmosphere. Everything. All day. Everywhere I go I don't want to work with De Brissac. He . . . . takes advantage of me . . . . Was she telling? She hadn't known she was going to say that. She rushed on, or rather this surprising deeper self rushed her own. "They all been on me at it. The family. They'll live off me. Alice and Arthur and Emily . . ."

"You don't mean that your brother-in-law . . ."

She nodded nervously. "He doesn't do a thing but fuss over my business. Putters around. Gets on my nerves. And there's Gran'ma. She's in a sanatarium now. It's ninety dollars a week. And now Alice is going to . . ." What was she saying? She clamped her lips shut on that. She must get hold of herself. What was the matter with her anyway? It was almost as bad as the night she fainted, so long ago.

He was still studying her, with a deepening tenderness in his eyes. This was all new to him, this nervous disturbance. It stirred his really great capacity for pity. It shook him. Could it be wonderfully beautifully true that the child really needed him? She had, he saw clearly now, been passing through some deep experience. He could guess what. In a Bohemian world where men and women are thrown carelessly together in work that is in its nature somotional, such things have always happened, and he well knew, will always happen. He knew his Paris and his New York. He was no moralist. He was further honest, and could ask no more of the woman he loved than of himself. But his heart ached for her. And he tightened his grip about her little shoulders until her head sank as of right on his shoulder and her silky hair brushed his cheek . . . . And so, without knowing it, without ever knowing it; aware herself only of his exquisite sympathy, she had told him of everything.

Health and Diet Advice

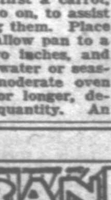

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

A HEALTHFUL THANKSGIVING MENU

If you did not read Monday's health article, see if you can find yesterday's paper and read what I have to say about "Holiday Feasting." If you will do this, I am sure you will be more satisfied to use this Thanksgiving menu which I have made out for you. It is being published on Tuesday so you will have plenty of time to arrange your Thanksgiving meals.

No matter how much I have warned you about the folly of holiday feasting, I know it is likely you will eat a good-size turkey dinner on Thursday, but if you will follow the rules I give you, you need not fear any bad consequences, and I know you will say afterwards that you are glad you followed my advice.

If you are going to have your Thanksgiving dinner around two o'clock in the afternoon, it will be a good plan to use a light breakfast of some one kind of fresh fruit, or perhaps one egg, Melba toast, and a stewed fruit. Avoid eating a large breakfast on Thursday, and you will enjoy with more zest the wholesome foods which I recommend for your dinner.

Take advantage of your holiday, and take a long walk during the morning, returning in time to rest for a few minutes before dinner.

THANKSGIVING DINNER
Ripe Olives Salted Roasted Nuts
Sliced Tomatoes
Roast Turkey or Chicken
Melba Toast Dressing
Baked Egg Plant
Mashed Carrots and Turnips
Prune Whip

Take a walk during the afternoon, and have a light lunch in the evening, using some of the cold turkey or chicken and a combination salad of raw vegetables.

Melba Toast Dressing: Put through the food grinder a suitable amount of Melba toast. Moisten with milk, and add any desired quantity of the following: Ground celery, raisins, and minced olives. Mix together in any proportion desired, being cautious not to use too many raisins.

Baked Egg Plant: Cut medium size egg plant in half, remove edible portion and cook until tender in a small amount of water. Mash, and add one-half cup of Melba toast crumbs to each cup of cooked egg plant. Heap into the uncooked shells, sprinkle liberally with Melba toast crumbs and bake for about ten minutes or until browned on top. Serve in the shells, with butter.

Baked Carrots and Turnips: Put through the food grinder small unpeeled carrots and turnips, using an equal number of each. It is a good plan to grind first a carrot, then a turnip, and so on, to assist in thoroughly mixing them. Place the mixture in a shallow pan to a depth of one or two inches, and without adding any water or seasoning, bake in a moderate oven about ten minutes or longer, depending upon the quantity. An agreeable flavor is added if the top is slightly browned. Add butter and a little salt as served.

QUESTION: Mrs. L. D. writes: "My four months old baby is slightly bowlegged. Will massage help and how should it be done? He is breast fed. What would you advise feeding him besides, at his age?"

ANSWER: Massage is always beneficial to anyone, as circulation through the blood vessels and lymphatics is thereby increased. However, do not depend on it to cure bow-legs. Your milk is apparently not giving him sufficient nourishment so far as the vitamins and bone building elements are concerned. Put him on a diet of orange juice and plain certified Holstein milk. You can rest assured that milk always contains enough calcium from which a baby can build strong bones.

QUESTION: Mrs. M. A. L. asks: "Will you please print in your interesting column what will remove a mole? Also, what causes little white spots on my hands? Will they spread, what will cure them, and are they symptoms of anything serious?"

ANSWER: One of the best ways to remove a mole is to go to a physician who is skilled in using the high frequency spark or the electric needle. The white spots on your hands are caused by some form of acidosis where the skin pigment is destroyed. They will not spread if you correct your diet and use other hygienic measures for improving your general health.

QUESTION: K. R. writes: "Kindly tell me the cause of small red veins appearing on either side of the norstrils, also remery for same. Am 23 years of age."

ANSWER: The enlarged veins in your nose may be due to a chronic catharrhal condition which keeps the blood vessels of your nose engorged. I suggest you adopt the non-catarrh-producing diet, and see if this does not remedy your trouble.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the many kindnesses and the beautiful floral offerings by our friends during our great sorrow and the loss of our dear little wife, mother, daughter and sister.

PAINFUL EFFECTS OF CONSTIPATION

Lady Tells How She Got Rid of a Very Troublesome Condition By Taking Thedford's Black-Draught

HURRICANE, W. Va.—Mrs. Ida Perry, of this place, says she found Thedford's Black-Draught to be a "fine family medicine," and gives the following interesting account of her use of it in her home:

"Sometimes I suffer from indigestion, and I have found that quick relief follows a dose of Black-Draught. This medicine is also excellent for constipation, and I am glad to recommend it.

"All last winter, I suffered from pains in my legs and across my back. I did not sleep well at all, and was very nervous. I could scarcely walk, and was unable to climb up and down the steps. I was almost past going, and it took all my strength to get around. My housework was a great care, and I did not feel equal to it.

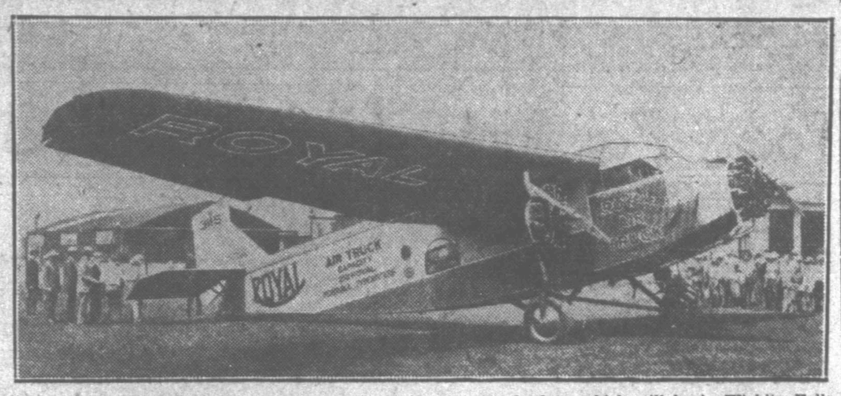

"I was in a condition that had been coming on me for a long time before I knew it. My trouble was from absorbed poisons but I did not realize it until I was in actual pain.

"I found Black-Draught a great help in getting rid of this trouble. I use it frequently. I feel lots better after I have taken Black-Draught."

Black-Draught is a natural remedy, composed of selected medicinal roots and herbs, and put up by modern scientific, accurate methods.

Letters From Readers

Editor, The Record News:

1. Political organization and government in a democratic country rests entirely on public opinion and support in final analysis. Squeeze plays in political conventioins for actions on any issue not generally supported, or action on any point on which the public is not practically united is premature. Political action is crystalized public opinion; it follows, does not precede.

2. Original party differences in the United States center around constructions of inherent inalienable human rights and policies for political and economic justice to all.

3. Primary planks of traditional democratic character includs those emphasizing individual rights, local self government, state rights and home rule, still vitally important.

4. Other party differences of long standing revolve around economic issues of tariffs, and taxation for revenue only, or for special aid to the few at the expense of the many, and such issues with other original party differences are still of fundamental primary importance.

5. Tap roots, trunks and main branches of trees support all minor branches, twigs and leaves. Government is primarily concerned with social order, protection of individuals and guarantee of freedom to grow and develop. Public opinion practically united against murder, arson etc., justifies laws punishing these felonies. All things are relative, is good Emersonism philosophy, and relatively no excess attention can, ought or should be given to twigs and branches or even flowers of civilization (in opinion of many) at expense of damage to tap roots, failure of organization of government anarchy in government etc., by excess regulation of human conduct on which practically united opinion does not hot yet exist. Not that such regulation on any issue may not be eventually as generally approved as laws against murder may be now, but that it is impossible to give excess attention to enforcement of laws beyond public opinion of juries in a democratic form of government.

6. All social problems as to human conduct are educational, or educational and religious only, and not political, until a sufficiently united public opinion exists to render support of governmental enforcement practicable. Enforcement is impracticable where undue percentages of actual know violations of laws perhaps prematurely passed, are exonerated by the juries. The remedy is more education, (eprhaps practice as well as education, (perhaps practice as well as protical attention minor issues at expense of ignoring fundamental issues of parties.

AND—

A Column of Et Cetras in Sport

BY VON

Old man Jinx has cast his ugly shadow over the Wichita Falls high school Coyote pack at a mighty inconvenient moment in the guise of the injury which will keep Quarterback Black out of the line-up at Amarillo with the Golden Sandstorm for the championship of district No. 1, class A. It is tough luck to lose a star player on the eve of the Thanksgiving day contest toward which Coach Alvaro McCallum had been leading every energy and developing every resource. There's but one recourse now, however, and that's the Coyotes to have their fangs in a fighting mood and slash that bunch of Sandies until their gore reddens the hills in defeat.

As a result of Black's injury, a heavy burden has been set on the shoulders of young Harvey, weight 122 pounds, substitute Coyote quarterback. He has already shown up well under fire, his last chance being in the Plainview game when he replaced Black after the latter's injury. Harvey is fast and a good player both on the offensive and the defensive but his lack of poundage is a serious handicap.

Falls broadcasts have been wondering about that 12-12 tie game of the Coyotes with Lubbock recently and what bearing it will have on the Funk's outing in the event the locals defeat Amarillo on Turkey day. But McCallum set all conjectures about the question of a play-over at rest when he stated Monday afternoon that the game would not have to be played over and would have no bearing in the event of a Coyote victory at Amarillo.

McCallum is taking his charges up to Amarillo Tuesday afternoon in order to give them a chance for at least one good workout Wednesday in the midlield air of Potter county. The Coyotes will find the higher altitude of the Panhandle to which they are not accustomed one of their big handicaps in the Golden Sandstorm game, according to the football experts.

Spudder fans will hate to see Frank Tobin, who caught the Wichita Falls club in the Texas league championships, quit the local ballwork for Shreveport as a result of his sale to the Sports by Pres. J. Alvin Gardner of the Dixie champions. Gardner has Cobb and Lapan remaining, however, and another catcher coming from Pittsburgh in the deal which sends Freddie Fussell, hurler of left shoots, to the Pirate lair. So the club should not suffer materially in the catching end, if at all. And the Sports need a good catcher.

President Gardner in announcing the Tobin deal, which comes right on the heels of Outfielder Griffin's sale to San Antonio, took occasion to again spike hot stove league rumors to the effect that Pete Turgeon, second baseman, is going to be swapped to New Orleans for First Baseman Davis and another player. "The only way Turgeon will ever leave this ball club is to go to some major league team," the Spudder magnate emphasized. And that ends another bit of gossipings.

The sincerest sympathy of his many friends goes out to Pete Turgeon in the death of whom mother occurred in Minneapolis. Mrs. Turgeon is now in Minneapolis to attend the funeral of her mother and many expressions of regard in her hour of sorrow have been transmitted to her.

REFLECTIONS . . . . By Bill Rice

It seems to be the fashionable thing among big college football teams this season to be defeated.

Believe it or not the reason most folks give for their lack of interest in soccer football is because there is no kick in it.

With those New York-to-Paris planes costing $25,000 apiece (and always failing into the ocean at that) it would seem to be cheaper if they'd just move Paris over here.

Ruth Elder says she knew she would be saved even when her plane dived into the ocean. Now don't tell us the whole business was staged!

Well, the college football season is about over and, much as the students hate it, there is practically nothing to do now but study.

However, the students shouldn't be too disconsolated. It won't be long now until they can throw their books at the professors and plunge into the business of basketball.

Thanksgiving day, coming at the close of the grid season, must have been originated by coaches whose teams did not come up to expectations.

Cashion School Gets Next Singing Meet

CASHION, Nov. 21.—Delegates from Cashion to the district singing convention held Sunday at Thornberry secured the next convention which will be held next Sunday. It was announced at the meeting that the Wichita county singing convention will be held at Quanah, north of Electra, in an all-day session on December 11.

W. R. Harper of Wichita Falls led the opening prayer. Miss Pauline McDonald was assisted by G. R. Cundiff, W. R. Harper, Howard E. Whitesides, R. S. Banks, E. M. Smith, J. E. Pepper, A. L. Ezell, Dr. Jackson and J. S. Gore. Specials on the program consisted of quartets by Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Banks, E. M. Smith and G. R. Cundiff and a solo by Howard E. Whitesides. Closing chorus was led by J. S. Gore and benediction was pronounced by J. E. Pepper. Mr. Gore was in charge of the meeting.

Maybe He'll Come To Spudders For Fussell

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21. (AP)—Ira Dunning, catcher for the New Haven baseball club of the Eastern league, has been sold to the Pittsburgh National team, George M. Weiss, president of the local club, announced Monday.

BOTH ELEVENS IN GOOD SHAPE

Close Contest Indicated In Annual Contest

For the junior high school football championship of the city of Wichita Falls!

Primed to the hilt for the contest to which both teams have been putting since the beginning of the current gridiron season, the eleven representing Reagan Junior high school and Zundelowitz Junior high are standing at ease this morning waiting for the opening whistle of their annual game to be played at Spudder park beginning at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Skull Sessions Staged.

Coaches of both teams took their teams through a final skull practice session Monday night for their last blackboard lessons in the science of gridiron combat. Both mentors late Monday declared their teams in fine shape as they concluded their last workouts, the Dragonettes at Spudder park and the Zundies on their home grounds.

Although records of the past season's play of the two teams indicates a slight edge in favor of the Zundelowitz team, gridiron fans are certain to see a stiff battle with either eleven capable of winning. Plenty of fight is expected from the opening whistle to the closing play and neither team is expected to win by more than a touchdown. Some junior football fans are predicting a scoreless tie.

Non-Suit Ordered In Kearns' Trial

Court Grants Motion To Enter Mistrial

By GENE FOWLER
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 21.—Up goes Tex Rickard, guardian of prize fighting and other good, clean fun, a few moments before the Jack Kearns-Jack Dempsey suit came to a sudden end in Newark today. Laymen, who thought the eminent promoter was about to recite "The Kid's Last Fight," were shocked to hear him exclaim:

"It's a contemptible lie!"

Jovian wrath darted from the maddened eyes of Tex, but instead of the conventional thunderbolts, Rickard held a fat cigar in his left mitt. He crushed the perfecto, unmindful of overhead expenses. Restraining hands, holding the ricardian coat tails, prevented Tex putting the clog on anyone or injuring his amateur standing.

Trial Is Closed.

The trial was closed when Kearns accepted a non-suit order in his $333,333.00 action, in which he alleged breach of contract. All morning long there roared a Niagara of words from learned counsel. The grunt-and-groan finger of suspicion had been pointing so steadily an an arrow on a one-way street.

Kearns' counsel charging the Dempsey people with everything from propaganda to pampering the kiddies with autographed pictures of the former champion of heavyweights, had moved for a mistrial.

Federal Judge William N. Runyon, inferring that he was being criticized by Richard F. Driscoll, of Dempsey's counsel, to plead illness last Wednesday in chambers, indicated he would declare a mistrial.

His offered an alternative of ordering a non-suit. If Kearns would consent, Kearns consented and tonight claimed a technical knockout.

Dempsey Claims Victory.

Dempsey, too, claimed victory. Rickard claimed victory. In fact, it was a claiming race.

But what was the charge that brought Richard Kearns, of sporting millions-aires and civic benefactors, to his treaty-ground feet? It was when Attorney Arthur Sager told the court that Kearns, Richard, been heard telling about the town squares of Manhattan that "the trial is in the bag." This phrase means that the act of stalls is really to be joined in three other spo-spots in east of five west.

Guns Kills Tex.

Did Wellington Beckets at Waterloo? Did Jimmy Finch as he neared the pole? Did Barney Oldfield ever say that "no smoking" sign in the subway? No.! Guns kill Tex as they did Abraham Lincoln, the Maestro of ballistic sports, Finch recommended an end to boyish pranks. Richard couldn't stand this threat. Always jealous for the good of the game, Richard had heard himself called a "shyster shadow" and "Dempsey's spiritual adviser." And, when he heard those cynical words about "being in the bag," the Richardian baritone rose shrilly above the legal tumult and gave us the Kearns Can Sue Again.

The unexpected legal knockout means that Kearns, after many months has sued Dempsey, can now begin all over again and sue for his wrestive $333,333.33. Of course, no one ever held so many throws up in any ordinary game, but prize fighting is different. In fact, men of cauliflower alley have been known to have eight kings at a time—four on the table and four in reserve up the sleeve.

Bill Cox Takes Top In Six-Mile Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (AP)—Bill Cox of Rochester, N. Y., representing Penn State, successfully defended his individual title Monday by triumphing over a large field in the annual Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. cross country championship over the six-mile Cortlandt park course. The time was 30 minutes, 34 4-5 seconds. Nineteen colleges participated.

Cox's time was considerably slower than his record mark set last year of 29 minutes, four seconds. Richardson of Maine was second at 30 minutes, 54 seconds.

President Gardner Separates The Three Musketeers

Here's a view of the three Spudder catchers who helped to win the Texas league championship of the 1927 campaign, Tobin, Lapan and Joe Cobb. One of these receivers at least, Frank Tobin, will not be seen in Spudder spangles in the 1928 campaign as a result of the announcement of Tobin's sale to the Shreveport club Monday for an unrevealed cash amount.

He'll Pilot The Spudders Again in 1928

Skipper Carl Williams of the 1927 Texas League and Dixie champion Spudders Monday signed a one-year contract to pilot the Wichita Falls club for another season. The skipper came back to town yesterday after a three-day duck hunt at the big lake.

Bearcat Meets Bearcat In Frederick Contest

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Nov. 21.—The Grandfield "Bearcats" won a decision victory from the strong Ryan "Cowboys" when they defeated them to the tune of 25 to 6.

This game makes Ryans' first defeat of the season and gives Grandfield again a chance for conference championship. The last two games played by the Bearcats proved disastrously, Duncan defeating them by one point and a defeat at the hands of the Waurika Eagles.

Grandfield meets Frederick next Thursday at Frederick.

University of Arkansas Porkers Given Publicity

Frederick Cats Drop 19-6 Game to Mangum

Special to The Record News.

It was the first conference game lost by the local high school team since November, 1924, when they were defeated at Sayre 10 to 0.

Dry Agents to Keep Eye On Gridiron Fans

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 21 (AP) The football game between Louisiana State university and Tulane at Baton Rouge Thanksgiving day will be witnessed by O. D. Jackson, prohibition administrator of this district and a squad of dry agents with instructions to arrest hip pocket violators of the Volstead act.

QUICK THINKING.

On the blackboard a boy with a certain amount of artistic genius had drawn a life-like caricature of a certain master.

Shortly after, to his horror, that master entered the room. Presently the portrait on the blackboard caught and held his attention. He looked at it in anger for a moment or two, and then faced the class.

"Who is responsible for this atrocity?" he asked in a voice of thunder.

The artist got slowly to his feet and coughed nervously.

"I strongly suspect his, parents," he observed, and sat down.

COYOTES WILL LEAVE TODAY

Pack to Get Practice In Amarillo Climate

Members of the Wichita Falls Coyote football squad, more than 40 in number, will leave at 2:05 p. m. Tuesday on their fateful trek to Amarillo where on Turkey Day they will match brain and brawn with the Golden Sandstorm cohorts in the battle for the district interscholastic league football championship. One workout will be held for the pack Wednesday in Amarillo in final preparation for the game Thursday. Coach Alvaro McCallum is taking his charges up two days in advance of the game to assure complete rest from the trip and to allow the Coyotes to become as accustomed as they may in the brief period to the higher altitude.

Old Man Gloom was in the saddle out at the Coyote lair Monday afternoon when it was definitely determined that Black, first string quarterback, is definitely eliminated as far as participation in the Amarillo game is concerned. Black's back injury sustained in the third quarter of the Plainview game last Saturday, will not mend in time for the contest Thursday, Coach McCallum said. Black will be available for the bi-district contest next however if the Coyotes succeed in eliminating the Sandies from the running on Thanksgiving Day.

With Black definitely out, Harvey, tiny Coyote substitute quarterback, will get his big chance in the game Thursday. Harvey weighs only 122 pounds, which is his great handicap, but he is a fast thinker, a good field general, and fights every miute he is in the game.

Coach McCallum Monday afternoon refused to give his probable starting lineup for the Amarillo game, stating that he had not yet made a final decision on one or two positions.

Trinity Stars Vie For Mythical Team

WAXAHACHIE, Nov. 21.—Trinity University has several football players who are making determined bids for positions on the all-Texas conference teams this year. Last season Trinity placed four men on the composite selection and Bryan Schley of the Tigers was voted the most valuable man in the conference.

Both Trinity guards, Herman Kozelski of Yorktown and O. D. Roland of Union City, Tenn., are due to get several mentions for the all-star aggregation, and at least one of them is likely to make the composite team. Kozelski, who is a scrapper from the opening to the closing whistle, has not been outplayed this year, although the Tigers have met such teams as the Texas Aggies, the Baylor Bears and the Texas Longhorns.

Valley View School Cagers Win and Lose

VALLEY VIEW, Nov. 21.—In a double-header played at the Valley View school the Valley View high school basket ball team won from the Cashion boys to the score of 32 to 8, while the Cashion girls evened the score by winning from the Valley View girls two games out of three.

Both games were interesting and full of exciting moments, the boys' games up until the last few minutes of play was closer played than the score might indicate.

Cobb Moves Family To El Paso For Winter

Joe Cobb, first string catcher of the Spudder baseball club, has moved his family to El Paso from their former home at Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. Pres. J. Alvin Gardner of the Spudder club met Cobb in Dallas several days ago and learned of the catcher's change in place of residence, made on account of Mrs. Cobb's health.

Death Calls Mother Of Mrs. Pete Turgeon

Announcement was made at Spudder baseball club headquarters of the death at Minneapolis of Mrs. Agnes Bostnow, mother of Mrs. Pete Turgeon, wife of the second baseman of the Wichita Falls club. A wreath of flowers to be placed on the grave was ordered by Spudder officials as a mark of sympathy from the baseball club.

TURKEY GAME TO BE CLASSIC

Aggies and Longhorns Both Powerful Teams

By DICK McMURRAY.

AUSTIN, Nov. 21.—One of the greatest Aggie teams in history will meet one of the best Longhorn teams in history Thursday at College Station. In view of the fact that the Longhorns have played some rather listless ball at times this season, that sounds like a funny statement, but if you doubt the veracity of it, look at the Texas record and then look at the list of players on the Texas team. Proof of this radical statement comes when we look at the comparative records of the two teams this season:

A. & M.
A. & M. 45; Trinity 0.
A. & M. 31; Southwestern 0.
A. & M. 15; Sewanee 0.
A. & M. 40; Arkansas 6.
A. & M. 0; T. C. U. 0.
A. & M. 47; Texas Tech 6.
A. & M. 39; S. M. U. 13.
A. & M. 14; Rice 0.

Texas U.
Texas 43; S. W. Oklahoma Teachers 0.
Texas 0; T. C. U. 0.
Texas 20; Trinity 6.
Texas 13; Vanderbilt 6.
Texas 27; Rice 0.
Texas 0; S. M. U. 14.
Texas 15; Baylor 12.
Texas 41; Kansas Aggies 7.

If you are good at arithmetic, it won't take you long to find a few facts from that stuff up there. The Aggies have scored 234 points this season, while the Longhorns have scored 157. Only 25 points have been scored against the Aggies, while 35 have been scored against the Texans.

Team Standing.

The standing for all games this season is about like this:

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Texas A. & M.	7	0	1	1.000
Texas	6	1	1	.875

Now everyone knows that the lad that deals in dope (speaking of athletic dope) is foolish, so that's why we're writing this. We want to prove it to you. Comparative scores show the Aggies are better both offensively and defensively. Comparative teams on paper show the Aggies about 97 per cent perfect. Take Joel Hunt out of their lineup, and the Aggies will be about seven per cent. In other words, Hunt is 90 per cent of the Aggie team, and if you take that Waco flash out of there, there isn't much left.

Dope Means Nothing.

Now the dope says that the Aggies will win that game Thursday, but you know and I know that dope isn't worth two cents when Texas and the Texas Aggies meet in their annual Turkey day contest. It isn't the best team that always wins. The fact is that as far back as we can remember in these 13 years that I have been on earth, the team that looked the poorest on paper is the team that has won the game.

Not fewer than 25 people ask me every day who will win the game. Just like I knew. If I did know, I could pick up about $5000 easy money. My guess on the game would be decided by a flip of a coin if I had one, but lo, I haven't had a sow for the last three months.

Aggies Best on Paper.

All that can be said is this: The Aggies are the best on paper. They have beaten S. M. U. 39-13, and that team beat Texas 14-0. But on the other hand, T. C. U. held both Texas and the Texas Aggies to scoreless ties. The Aggies look the best on paper, but the poorer team has usually won the Thanksgiving classic for the last several years. If you're better than I am, you can wade through this stuff and figure out who'll win.

Anyway, customers, don't miss that game if you can keep from it. Be one of the 26,000 there, or you'll miss the treat of your lifetime. More interest is being shown in the game this year, than has been shown in years.

Cole Has Chance For Scoring King

Arkansas Halfback Piles Up 181 Points

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 21. (AP)—George Cole, University of Arkansas halfback, will be one of the nation's leading scorers for his three years of varsity play when he ends his career as a Porker backfield man, statisticians here believe.

Cole in three years has amassed a total of 181 points. These include 21 touchdowns, 28 tries for extra point, 10 field goals.

Cole is rated as one of the best pass heavers in the Southwest Conference. As an illustration, in this year's contest with the Oklahoma Aggies, he tried 15 passes and 11 of them were completed. He has been outpunted in only two of the 27 varsity games he has played.

Although only five feet seven inches tall and weighing 152 pounds, Cole has proved one of the most elusive backs in the southwest. Homer Hazel, former Rutgers and all-American star now coaching at Mississippi university said of him last fall: "Cole is the greatest halfback in the south today."

TOBIN SOLD TO SPORTS' CLUB

Spudder Catcher Turned To Shreveport For Cash

Frank Tobin, former ace of Spudder catcher's staff, has been sold to the Shreveport club of the Texas league, President J. Alvin Gardner of the Wichita Falls Baseball club announced Monday afternoon. Tobin's sale was a straight cash transaction, the amount of which was not disclosed.

Tobin first donned Spudder spangles in spring training for the 1927 campaign, coming to the Wichita Falls club in the late fall of 1926 from Portland of the Pacific Coast league.

Tobin caught a majority of the games for the Spudders in the 1927 championship race until the arrival late in the season of Joe Cobb. Tobin's batting average for the season was .237.

Mickey Walker Takes On Paul Berlenbach

CHICAGO, Nov. 21. (AP)—Next in the weekly series of boxing festivals featuring titleholders is Mickey Walker's second invasion of the light heavyweight ranks, this time against Paul Berlenbach, who used to be known as "Punch 'em Paul," until he mislaid the punch.

Walker, trying to outgrow the middleweight ranks, and Berlenbach, are finishing training here for their 10-round contest Friday night at the Coliseum.

WILDCAT DRILLING AND LEASING SPREADS OVER WEST TEXAS

BLOCKS TAKEN FOR DRILLING

Phillips, Gibson and Others Active

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 22.—While Pecos and Winkler counties shared the spotlight in West Texas oildom last week, showings in wildcats, spudding of new tests and lease deals carrying drilling contracts attracted attention elsewhere.

In Concho county, Lawson & Parks No. 1 W. O. Shultz had a showing of oil at 357 feet in sandy lime. The showing, though failing to prove of value, was struck higher than in other tests drilled on the ranch. Kamper Kimbrough's No. 1 W. O. Shultz, 1 1-2 miles to the east, got a showing at 1205 feet.

Phillips in Sutton.

Seventeen and one-half sections of the Cusenbary ranch in Sutton county were leased by Phillips Petroleum corporation for $2.50 an acre bonus and 10-cent per annum rental. The contract provides for the spudding of a 3500-foot test not later than Nov. 15, 1928. Phillips also leased five sections from J. A. Cauthorn and twelve sections from Holman Brothers at prices understood to have been the same as those paid for the Cusenbary tract.

The rig is up for the Gibson Oil corporation's test in section 68, block 3, in Pecos county and spudding in will take place in a few days, E. D. Rattray of Amarillo, representative of the company, announced here. The wildcat will be twelve miles south of the Transcontinental's No. 1 Blackstone & Slaughter on a block of 100,000 acres owned jointly by Gibson and the Phillips Petroleum corporation. The land has been under lease for the last three years and interest has been stimulated in it by two gas showings and an oil showing in the Transcontinental wildcat, which has caused geologists to believe that a big sub-surface "high" runs east and west across northern Val Verde and Terrell counties.

Runnels County Block.

M. E. Lamar of San Angelo will spud about Feb. 1 a test on 3000 acres in Runnels county for which he paid $60,000, he announced. The block was obtained from E. O. Lange, M. F. Lindeman, R. J. Clayton and John Hoffman. The test will be in the center of the south half of block 19 on the E. O. Lange land, Austin Williams survey. Bushnell & Pettis of Coleman did the geological work and Mr. Lamar believes a pay should be picked up 140 feet higher than in the Lou Ladd, C. E. Sill and others' No. 1 R. L. McMillan, Runnels county discovery producer, which is 2 1-2 miles to the east. The Lamar wildcat also will be a mile and a quarter east of a test reported planned by Vacuum Oil company in tract 30, Domingo Diaz survey, and four miles north of the Bonnie well.

Mr. Lamar also has made heavy purchases of royalty surrounding the Runnels county discovery producer. R. G. Erwin, cashier of the First National Bank of Ballinger, estimates that between $300,000 and $400,000 has changed hands in Runnels county leases since the first well came in.

No new production in the Yates area in eastern Pecos county developed Saturday, although several tests were nearing the pay, presaging completions this week. Northern extension of the field came when Gulf Production company got a well on its 4800-acre block in Runnels county school land that gauged at the rate of 70 barrels an hour initially. A hookup with the Gulf's new pipe line to McCamey on the Orient railroad was made Friday, according to reports here. The new well, Gulf No. 2, is an offset on the west to Humble's No. 2 Smith and was drilled to 1067 feet.

Ozark Pipeline.

In connection with the visit to the eastern Pecos county field over the week-end by Colonel Adrian Corbett of London, a director of the Royal Dutch Shell, in charge of the company's operations in America and Mexico, it was reported that the Ozark Pipe Line company, transportation branch of the Roxana Petroleum corporation, a Royal Dutch Shell subsidiary, has purchased $6,000,000 worth of 20-inch pipe for its line from McCamey on the Orient railroad to the north. The report added that plans to build the line from McCamey to Cushing, Okla., have been changed and the line will be carried on to the Dutch Shell refinery at Roxana, Ill.

Colonel Corbett and associates were scheduled to motor Sunday from Fort Stockton to Winkler county, where Roxana Friday night drilled in its No. 3C Hendricks for 380 barrels hourly at 2885 feet. From there, Colonel Corbett goes to California. He believes eastern Pecos county unquestionably is the world's greatest.

Magnolia Reduces Smackover Oil Price

DALLAS, Nov. 21.—Reduction of 15 cents per barrel in the price offered for crude oil in the Smackover, Ark., field effective today was posted by the Magnolia Petroleum company. The new price for that below 24 gravity is 85 cents and above 24 gravity $1.

Indian Lease Income Tax Ruled as Valid

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (AP)—Incomes derived by those holding leases on Indian tribal lands were declared taxable by the federal government under the revenue act of 1918 and those acts down to and including that of 1921 in a supreme court ruling today.

Wichita Falls Oil Men Find Deer Hunting Good in Southwest Texas

Next to bringing in gusher wells, the average oil man likes to hunt big game. Affection for this sport is now claiming the attention of no small number of the members of Wichita Falls' oil colony.

Among those who have penetrated the wilderness and returned this season is Bert J. Shaw, who brought back one deer and several turkeys from a foray into the picturesque Guadalupe river section near Kerrville.

Mr. Shaw was a member of a party composed of, besides himself, W. M. MacGregor, Roy B. Jones, W. Daniels, F. J. Lee, Frank Cullum, Shine Cullum, Walter Guthrie and Nat Chennault. While the others were going on to the Rio Grande valley, Mr. Shaw returned here Sunday night.

The party hunted on a 13,000-acre ranch owned outright by 17 local oil men. The ranch is situated, according to Mr. Shaw, in one of the wildest sections of Southwest Texas and is maintained by the Wichitans purely as a game preserve.

Those on the party who bagged a deer on the hunt were Mr. Shaw, Mr. Lee, Shine Cullum and Mr. Daniels.

At a cold storage house in Kerrville where Mr. Shaw left his kill overnight, there were 21 of the slain animals, indicating the hunting had been good during the day.

Dancigar Brings In First Rotary Drilled Test Making 7000 Barrels

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, Nov. 21.—Dancigar Oil and Refining company's No. 3 Jackson in the Bowers pool, south of Pampa and offsetting the Delaney well, was drilled in Sunday night and began flowing 300 barrels an hour from 2845 to 2865 feet. The oil is testing 42.8 gravity.

This well, which is located in the northwest corner of section 88, block B-2, Gray county, is the first well in this part of Gray county to be finished with rotary tools and will likely cause other wells to be drilled with rotary equipment.

The Delaney well, which offsets the new gusher on the southeast, has been flowing from 4000 to 5000 barrels daily for 40 days and the Bowers pool looks more and more like a field, operators declare.

Petroleum Highway Association Plans Road Through Oil Belt to Mexico

With its objective a modern highway from Tulsa, Okla., through Wichita Falls to the Mexican border, there to connect with an important road in that country, the Petroleum Highway association was organized at a meeting at the chamber of commerce here Monday. Representatives from several Texas and Oklahoma towns attended the meeting.

Claude C. Wild of San Angelo was named president of the association. G. E. Dunlap of Chickasha, Okla., was elected secretary.

After the organization had been effected the members voted to raise a fund of $2000 to be used for publicity and other preliminary work necessary for the establishment of the cross-country thoroughfare. Chambers of commerce in towns situated on the proposed highway will be asked to contribute the $2000 necessary.

The Petroleum highway, as outlined at the meeting, will run from Tulsa to Oklahoma City, thence through Chickasha, Duncan and Walters in Oklahoma, cross the Red river at the Burkburnett free bridge, on through Burkburnett, Wichita Falls, Archer City, Olney, Graham, Breckenridge, Cisco, Coleman, Ballinger, San Angelo, Fort Stockton and Alpine. Connection with a highway in Mexico at the international border south of Alpine is planned.

Those attending the meeting included E. Bee Guthrie, former secretary of the Oklahoma highway commission and now connected with the Tulsa chamber of commerce; G. E. Dunlap, Chickasha; Claude C. Wild, San Angelo; F. B. Peck, chamber of commerce, Duncan, Okla.; G. Y. Mutton, Chickasha; J. D. Mathes, Ballinger; E. A. Fletcher, Rankin, Union county, Texas; C. E. Coombs, general manager Burkburnett chamber of commerce; W. S. Cooper, Breckenridge; C. C. Hester and A. O. Maddox, Hamblock, Okla.; W. R. Lines, Walters, Okla.; Tom Looney and W. E. Fogg, Archer City; C. H. Clark, J. D. Parnell, Hubert Harrison and J. W. Chatham, Wichita Falls.

NEWS of the FIELD

TEXAS COMPANY SPUDS IMPORTANT WILDCAT

The Texas company is spudding at 267 feet in its No. 1 H. B. Street, which is to be a deep cable tool test and takes on the aspect of being one of Young county's most important operations. Located in the extreme western part of the county and only 20 miles north of the southwest corner of the county, it will test out a practically virgin area. Nearest production is a gas well approximately three miles northwest and in Throckmorton county. The Texas company test is located in section 1656 T. E. & L. survey.

PANHANDLE-FARMER.

Panhandle Refining company and C. P. Burton tested a sand at 1500-14 feet in their No. 3 Farmer, located in block 2, North Anderson ranch subdivision, Archer county. The sand showed both oil and water but the well was abandoned at a depth of 1514 feet.

MILHAM-REEVES.

The Milham corporation is drilling in dry, sandy lime at 2800 feet in its No. 1, Reeves, located southwest of Quanah, Hardeman county, and in section 78, east Texas railway survey. A flow of water was shut off just above 2790 feet.

This company has also just completed a small producer in its No. B-32 Waggoner, in the Rock Crossing field of Wilbarger county, from a depth of 2574 feet.

SHAW-WILSON.

Bert Shaw is drilling at 1500 feet and feeling for a sand in his No. 1 Wilson, located three miles north of the Panhandle-Farmer pool in southwest Archer county.

TEXAS-JENTSCH.

Another effort to find the big Turbeville pay has failed in the Texas company's No. 3 Jentsch, located in block 115, J. W. Harris subdivision, southwest of Archer City, which was abandoned at 1557 feet.

MONTAGUE COUNTY.

Additional territory in Montague county was found productive by the Texas company over the week-end when it drilled in its No. 1 Henley, located in the Finess Robertson survey and near the Bridwell and Heydrick production on the Salmon land. From sand at 1149-53 feet, the Henley well pumped at the rate of 25 barrels daily initially.

SHAW AND RATHKE IN JACK COUNTY.

Shaw and Rathke, among the most successful operators engaged in developing Jack county lands, may have another brace of producers to their credit in the Holman pool within the next ten days. Their No. 4 Cullers in the S. P. R. R. survey, abstract 550, is drilling at 1350 feet and their No. 4 at 1030 feet.

BARNSDALL-WILSON.

The Barnsdall Oil company's No. 1 L. F. Wilson, located in southwest corner of the east 79 acres of block 45, A. T. N. C. L. survey, Archer county, is rigging up.

Ginning Report Sends Market Higher

The cotton market staged another of its well known comebacks Monday, rising through the day to close about 50 points higher than the close of Saturday. The rise resulted from active recovering and fresh buying, inspired by the census report which showed 10,899,182 bales ginned prior to Nov. 14, 1927, against 12,956,444 bales on the same date last year.

Wichita Falls buyers paid 19¾@19½ cents for middling cotton, with as low as 17 cents being paid for snaps.

Receipts at local cotton yards totaled about 25 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (AP)—The census report showing 10,899,182 bales of cotton ginned prior to November 14, compared with 12,956,444 last year, was below average expectations and proved the signal for a very sharp advance in the cotton market today. January contracts sold up to 20.09 in late trading, a net advance of 69 points, and closed at 19.98 the general market closing steady at net advances of 52 to 59 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 37 to 66 points on active covering of shorts, combined with trade and commission house buying, which evidently reflected a bullish construction of the ginning figures. The sharp falling off shown by the returns between November 1 and November 14, compared with the previous ginning period, tended to confirm crop estimates of under 13,000,000 bales, and there was talk of considerably lower figures based on percentages of the crop ginned in the first two of the so-called boll weevil seasons.

The opening advance to 19.93 for December and 20.45 for March attracted a great deal of realizing by old longs or recent buyers, while there also appeared to be some selling here for southern account. Heavy offerings were absorbed on reactions of 20 or 25 points, however, and the market firmed up again in early afternoon. The volume of selling tapered off after the realizing sales had been absorbed, and the advance later carried most of the active months into new high ground for the day, December selling at 20.02 and May at 20.44, or 67 to 69 points above Saturday's closing quotation. Last prices were several points off from the best under realizing.

The afternoon advance was accompanied by reports of a continued firm spot basis in the south, but attention was so monopolized by the ginning returns and their possible bearing on the next government crop estimate, that other features attracted comparatively little attention. At the high point of the day, January contracts selling at 20.09, showed a recovery of 84 points from the low level late last week.

Exports today were 31,435 bales, making 2,857,908 so far this season. Port receipts today 51,517. U. S. port stocks 2,553,021 bales.

Profit Takers Increase Volume of Activities Monday With Market Sagging Under Heavy Liquidation

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The profit taking wave increased in volume on the stock exchange today and started a reaction that was enhanced somewhat by the weaker technical position of the market. The recovery in prices of the last fortnight had wiped out a good part of the short interest so that there was insufficient cushion to meet the heavier liquidation encountered as the day progressed. The absence of the stubborn support evidenced in the closing sessions of last week influenced renewed bearish operations by professionals so that the final hour witnessed the largest offerings of the day. The decline was orderly at all times, however.

Call money remained in good supply at 3 1-2 per cent. With the banking fraternity looking for continued ease as a result of Saturday's favorable bank statement. Cotton rallied on a bullish ginning report.

Wheat rallied slightly on bullish weather news but trading was light. Those who in former years were the outstanding figures in the grain market have a slight hope they will be able to renew operations. At the present time, they state, there is no grain market, due to the "intimidation" exercised by the demand of government agents for a report as soon as one operator or one group takes an extended position. Hope of being able to resume activity lies in a plan of Chicago interests to bring suit for a permanent injunction against the government preventing the demand for a report. Announcement of filing of the suit is expected soon.

General Motors, Steel and other recently favored standard industrials suffered most. There was no special news of importance and the selling largely was due to technical considerations. With the market close to the highest price levels known to history such technical corrections are not alone expected but are welcomed by the larger operators and banks who have learned with reason to fear run-away speculation.

Radio was an outstanding feature of strength among the more active shares as it registered a new high. Montgomery Ward was another to hold strong despite the general reactionary trend and the buying there was like that in Radio in that it was based on expectations of increase in earnings during 1928. Packard and Hupp both moved into higher ground on operations reputed to the Durant interests but Loos eWiles, in which the same group has been at work, dropped with the rest of the list.

WHEAT BULGES ON REPORTS

Trading Strong During Entire Day

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Wheat bulged sharply at the outset today on the strength of adverse reports from Argentine, which had resulted in higher levels in the Liverpool and Buenos Aires markets. Prices reacted slightly after the opening flurry, but the undertone was strong throughout the day and the market remained narrow, closing near the high.

Corn opened ¼ to ⅜c higher, but longs were quick to realize and prices sagged a bit. Trade was fair. A rush of selling by commission houses brought a decline in oats at the opening.

At the close wheat was ⅝ to ⅞c higher. Corn was unchanged to ⅛c up. Oats wer eoff ⅜ to ½c, and rye ruled irregular, closing ⅛c lower to ⅜c higher.

Following a strong opening, corn ruled decidedly weak during most of the session, but with the posting of a decrease of 1,967,000 bushels in the visible supply, prices rallied sharply near the close. Trade was fair all day. Prices declined after the sharp bulge at the opening, mainly on liquidation by the longs.

Old corn was steady in the cash market, but the new was sold at wider discounts. Spot sales were the best in some time at 319,000 bushels.

There was a good trade in oats.

Rye was irregular on a moderate trade.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21. (AP)—Argentine crop damage reports, as well as an unlooked for decrease of the United States visible supply total, led to higher prices today for wheat. Closing quotations on wheat were firm at ⅝ to ⅞@1c net advance, with corn unchanged to ¼c up, oats ⅜ to ½c off, and provisions varying from 7c decline to a raise of 2@5c.

Corn values had a late rally, ascribed to prospective rain or snow over the corn belt and to a decrease of nearly 2,000,000 bushels in the corn visible supply. Besides, shipping sales of corn here were the best in some time, 319,000 bushels. Oat failed to overcome early losses that were associated with heavy selling attributed to the east.

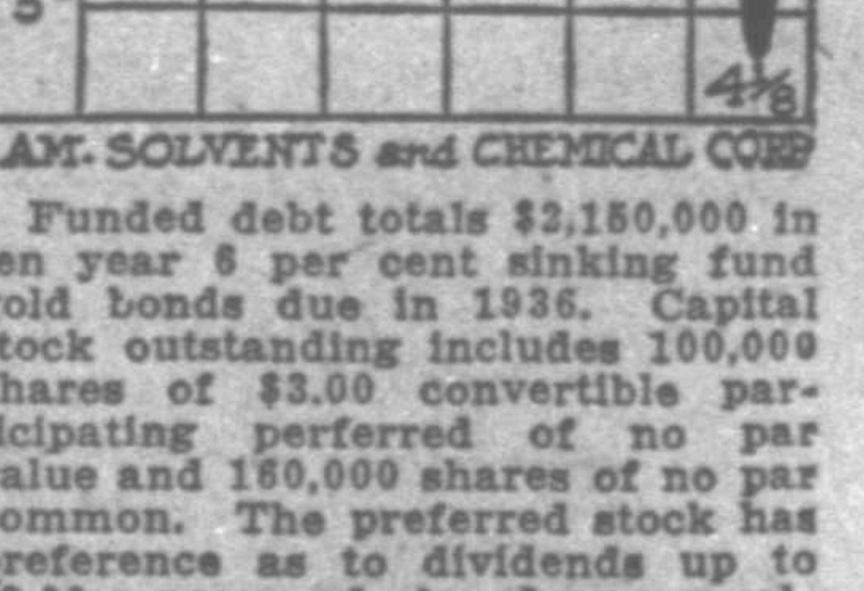

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to the upward trend of hog values.

COURT HEARS BEER CASES

Federal Grand Jury Begins Work

Pleas of guilty were entered in all criminal cases coming before Judge William H. Atwell in United States district court here Monday afternoon. Declaring that a defendant who pleads guilty is entitled to consideration, Judge Atwell evidenced interest as he inquired into the few cases which he heard, all being violation of the prohibition law.

A man and woman, brought before the court on charges of possessing one pint of beer, drew a $5 fine each, after comment by the judge as to the relative unimportance of such cases.

Angler Had Beer

A fisherman who said he had his beer to carry along on a trip drew smiles from attendants, and a nominal fine.

A large crowd was in the courtroom when the session opened. E. Crippen, assistant district attorney, George W. Parker, court clerk, and Mrs. Sarah Menezes of the Dallas office of the district attorney, as well as N. A. Dodge of Fort Worth were here for the session.

Grand Jury

The morning session of the court was devoted to the impaneling of the grand jury and the calling of the docket of bankruptcy cases. The grand jury in a federal court is more pliable as to number and always larger than that in the state courts. The present grand jury has 18 members. The vote of twelve is needed to return an indictment. Those on the grand jury are: R. Ludolphus, Wichita Falls; Duke Wallace, Crowell; Tom Goodpasture, Nocona; W. S. Denton, Burkburnett; W. H. Jackson, Electra; Bert Adrain, Wichita Falls; Joe L. Janeway, Bonita; C. C. Lindsey, Thalia; W. P. Stinson, Graham; G. R. Davidson, Electra; L. M. Cristoff, Electra; M. A. Bean, Wichita Falls; S. G. Merritt, Wichita Falls; G. D. Kramer, Murray; W. D. Barrow, Burkburnett; E. E. Price, Murray; H. H. Bray, Wichita Falls; J. H. Brumley, Burkburnett.

The grand jurors immediately went to their room and started to work.

Judge Atwell in charging the grand jury stressed heavily upon the need to protect American institutions and described the grand jury as one of them. He also urged the members to forget any personal feeling against the prohibition law and as good citizens to see that it was enforced.

Marion Talley -------- The Artist

BY STANLEY RAUB.

What Lindbergh accomplished in the field of aeronautics, Marion Talley has achieved in the realm of art. But the outstanding fact concerning both these individuals is their unsophisticated youthfulness and wholesome simplicity. Surely their deeds must be considered significant coming from the ranks of our modern youth which has been undergoing such a fire of public criticism.

Tireless Workers.

Marion Talley, the singer, has risen to the highest possible position of honor in the musical world, and that before her twentieth birthday. A nation has thrilled with wonder and admiration at her phenomenal success. But back of it all lies the reason for this sudden rise to fame. Being the rich possessor of an appealing soprano voice of rare quality, she has from earliest childhood given herself in utmost devotion to the training of this God-given instrument. Her quiet enthusiasm has been relentless in its eagerness to learn and she has pursued her studies with unceasing diligence. Always a tireless worker, she has deemed no sacrifice too great in striving for that highest goal of perfection.

But amid the glamour of acclaim, Marion has remained serene, keeping her vision steadfastly fixed upon the further cultivation of her art. Unwilling to rest upon laurels already won, she is constantly devoting herself to still greater endeavors. The fact that she has remained the same sweet, level-headed girl, amid all the praise and honor which have been so lavishly heaped upon her, bears high tribute to the soundness of her innate qualities. Her's is the rugged type of character which can safely weather the storm of popularity and move calmly on to the consummation of great and lasting acievement. What admirable qualities in one so young! Surely her contribution to vocal art will have been great ere her day is done.

Certainly then, it behooves the populace of Wichita Falls and surrounding territory to come out to hear Miss Marion Tally sing in recital at the new Municipal auditorium on the night of Friday, November 25. This being a festive season of the year, it appears that all should be in the mood to enjoy just such an occasion. Not only will it be a joy to hear this wonderful voice, which has sung from the stage of the world's leading opera house, but it will also be interesting to witness the charming personality of this young artist. Her program will be varied by an assisting violinist.

For Children Too.

Marion Talley's youthfulness should hold an appeal for the children also, and certainly they should be permitted to hear her sing—for who knows but that in our very midst may be one with a future like hers. The little folks with their ready imaginations will be quick to sense the qualities of her greatnes and instantly accept her as their ideal. And who can measure the power of such an influence and the genius it may call forth!

Surely it is fitting that Marion Talley should be the first artist to grace the stage of the new auditorium, being the newest star in the musical firmament. It is to be hoped that her appearance here will be a gala affair, drawing large representations from all northwest Texas.

The Womans Forum of Wichita Falls is to be praised for its efforts in briging such artists to our city. Already the fine work of this splendid organization is bearing fruit in the cultivation of taste for the purely ideal and cultural things of life, without which existence would be hopelessly dull and barren. More power to this organization in all of its future endeavors.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS RABBI

Schwab Defines 'Happiness' At Luncheon

Contentment and happiness are entirely different things, with real happiness being experienced only when one has a genuine love for mankind, Rabbi S. J. Schwab of Temple Israel said in an address before the Kiwanis club Monday noon. "Happiness" was his theme.

"It is a mistake to think happiness and contentment are synonymous," Rabbi Schwab said. "They are entirely different, for contentment may lead to satisfaction, which in turn may lead to corruption.

"A true and genuine love for all mankind — the principle upon which Kiwanis was built—is necessary to real happiness. The one truly happy man must have self-control, a true love for humanity, with an abounding joy in service to others."

Mrs. Herman Goldwasser favored the Kiwanians with two vocal selections, Mrs. Carrie Wilcox accompanied her at the piano.

Herman Goldwasser was chairman in charge of the program. William E. Young, fell a step ago, with Miss Ella playing the accompaniment.

Woman Rents House, Sells Furniture For $37

Search for a woman who sold $700 worth of furniture for $37.50 last week unsuccessful late Monday, police reported.

Police are looking for her because the furniture with which she made so free did not belong to her, but was the property of J. E. Shuler.

She rented a furnished house from an agent of Mr. Shuler last Thursday, giving him a check for $37.50, worthless as it turned out Friday, taking the furniture with her. Saturday the agent discovered the check was "bad." He hurried to the house, only to find it vacant.

Detectives Luke Hart and Pat Allen, headed the furniture into Saturday in Vernon, where she had sold it to a second-hand dealer for $37.50. The furniture was returned to Wichita Falls Monday, but the woman continued to elude capture.

Burglars Secure Notes In Raid On Office

Burglars who entered the office of J. Lewis Jackson Transfer company, 302 Ion street, during the week-end obtained notes worth about $4000 and a typewriter and check protector, valued at about $150, according to a report to police Monday.

The desk from which the notes were stolen was ransacked after the lock had been attacked. Incidentally, the notes will be difficult for the robbers to cash, it was said. Neither door nor windows had been broken open, it was said, so it is assumed the problem had gone large.

$40,000 Damage Suit Goes to Trial Here

Trial was started in the 78th district court before Judge W. W. Cook, Monday morning of the suit in which Tom Bullock is asking $40,000 damages from S. M. Gore. The suit is the outgrowth of an automobile accident on Dec. 17, 1926, in which the defendant was struck by an automobile. The defendant in his answer charges that the plaintiff was negligent and contributed to his own injury by not crossing the street at an intersection with another street and by not watching for the approach of automobiles.

"The Show," playing at the Orpheum theatre this week, is a masterpiece of the thrill-maker's art. With John Gilbert as a showman out of the underworld and Renee Adoree as the girl who loves him and through her devotion brings them on to lead the murderous gangsters of their world's most fearless character, it bristles with romance and adventure that takes the nerves of the audience tingle.

Gilbert and Adoree each give a remarkable performance and are supported by a capable cast. Bob Browning, its director, makes a notable addition to his gallery of movie pictures. The plot is built in Chicago against the background of a gangsters' den. In the main, Gershwin's tempo is lively and the tale moves with laughs all here and there, then awakens us to better nature through the faithfulness of a girl. Gilbert gives a true portrayal of a difficult but fascinating role.

School - College Notes

Dean S. H. Kibler, speaking to the college assembly Monday morning told the students of the record that the Brown University "Iron Men" football team of 1926 made. He pointed out the fact that the Brown team, in doing practically nothing this year in athletics in spite of the fact that eight of the "iron men" are on the 1927 team. Mr. Kibler said that he mentioned the point to show that sometimes a team fails to win when there is no evident reason why.

Coach Buck Ballgate spoke to the Junior college students in college assembly also. He said, "We do not need to make any excuses for our football team." Mr. Ballgate stated that Gainesville had too many injured men on their team to play their scheduled game with the Junior college Thanksgiving festival of the Gainesville team. The Indians will play the Simmons University Jayhawkers. The coach expressed the belief that the Junior college team would stack up very good in spite of the injuries of E. B. Ewing and of Dempsey Rivers.

The latter part of the program was turned over to the college debate, Seldon Hale. He said that there is only one way in which the coach can get his opponents of the squad to team and that is by the spirit that he puts back of the team. He also stressed the fact that the Shriners, many of whom are expected to attend the game, will judge the school spirit of the Wichita Falls Junior college and of Wichita Falls from the spirit displayed on Thanksgiving day.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Just before noon Monday the following announcement was sent around to the various rooms from the office. "All members of the pep squad who are going to Amarillo should give their money to Jimmy Hale in the cafeteria this noon and meet in the auditorium immediately after school."

BOLD THIEF

He Steals Constable's Overcoat From Front Yard

Constable Frank Morgan expressed the hope Monday that the weather man had missed his guess and that the cold spell billed for Tuesday will turn out to be as a gentle fall zephyr.

"At least, I hope the cold spell will be delayed until I can find time to go down town and buy a new overcoat," the constable said.

All because some inconsiderate person purloined Constable Morgan's overcoat from his front yard Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan started to go motoring Sunday afternoon. After getting in the car he decided he didn't need his overcoat, so he just tossed it over into his yard. After driving around about an hour they returned to find the coat gone.

IN DESPAIR OVER PIMPLY, RED SKIN

ITCHED AND BURNED— UGLY TO LOOK AT

Healed at last, quickly and easily

Charlotte, Mich., Oct. 21:—"I have been a sufferer from a most unsightly skin disorder, my face being full of pimples and blackheads and my complexion was very muddy. It was very ugly to look at as it was red and firey and it annoyed me by itching and burning. I tried many treatments, but got no relief. When I was a small baby I had eczema on my body and my mother used Resinol Ointment on it and she recommended it to me at this time. In desperation I decided to send for a sample of Resinol. After using the sample I bought more Resinol as I was convinced it was a splendid remedy. After I had applied it four times, the pimples began to heal and at the end of two weeks they had entirely disappeared. Now, I have such confidence in Resinol Ointment I would not be without it." Pardonable Pride allows us to think sometimes of what this institution has done for Wichita Falls in the last seven years. Of how many thousands of people it has started to saving money in a worthwhile way; of the nearly 2000 people it has helped to own homes; of how it has paid the money out on these homes, more than $4,000,000.00, without a single delay for lack of funds; of how it has paid withdrawal requests many, many times without ever going beyond its 30-day notice; though some instances were individual amounts from $25,000 to $75,000.

We remember paying out $110,000 once the same day to only two shareholders. A lady from Byers not long ago proposed to invest $100 and was anxious to know if she could get her money when she wanted it. We told her that she could. And now every day people invest in our shares and borrow money for home ownership purposes from us but like most of other folks we are trying to do more all the time so we would like to have you for a shareholder or a home owner. Could you come to see us?

The Secret of Keeping a Pimpling Body Sweet

Do you know why thousands of people who never have to take a laxative, do eat a candy cascaret now and then?

They have found that cascarets sweeten the whole system—bring an immediacy of power that means everything. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. Just what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Skin affect the living of the bowels. Mineral oils have a coating that the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to cascarets the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by natural muscular contraction! Do say nothing of the chemical, unsightly condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July. Men and women whose years have brought an sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they needed.

Cascaret is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every druggist has for 10c and 25c.
