Idaho July 11.—Charles H. Moyer was called to the stand in the case when court met today. The cross examination of Moyer by Mr. Darrow for the defense of evidence a letter written by Moyer to the Federation local union at Idaho, at the time of the trial of counsel for Harry Orchard under consideration. The State and was sustained. Mr. Darrow read several extracts from the letter. The cross examination of Moyer commenced at 10 o'clock. Senator N. P. Borah conducted the cross examination.

Examination Begins.

Mr. Borah first inquired as to the real power of the organization. The conventions rested. It rested in the executive committee, president, secretary and treasurer. Had been a member of the Federation since 1899. Moyer was very definite in his replies again today, evading his answers carefully.

Witness a Good Friend.

From Wounds.

Daily. In the negro who was shot by Pat Grogan, for being too close to the witness, died at 6 o'clock, as the result of the wound inflicted by Lewis. His wife, in whose arms he was when shot, died a part of the wound. Reported in a serious condition. May die. Lewis escaped into Oklahoma.

Orchard Guiltless at First.

declared that he had never been in the Cripple Creek district before the explosion. He always said that he knew nothing of a draft. Haywood to Jack Simpson December 21st, 1905. "Would you have knowledge of a check drawn to cover the draft?"

"Did you ever draw such a check?" "The only check I drew was given to Simpson in person when he drew his per diem and mileage in December in Denver."

He said at the time a lawyer was employed to defend Orchard, he did not believe he had killed Steunenberg and thought it another attempt to charge crime to the Federation.

His cross examination lasted but little more than an hour and a half.

On redirect examination Moyer declared that he had not heard of Simpson since January, 1906, and did not know where he was. Both sides announced that Moyer's examination was concluded and the court took recess.

Haywood Begins His Story.

Wm. D. Haywood was called to the stand immediately after the recess and his examination was begun by Darrow. Haywood was first questioned as to his family history. His father and step-father were both miners and he began to mine when nine years old. His father was born in Ohio and his mother in South Africa, being the daughter of an English army officer. He is married and has two daughters. He said he lost his eye when seven years old by sticking a knife into it. He joined the Western Federation of Miners in 1896.

THE FIRST ACCIDENT

AUTO IN GLIDDEN TOUR OVER-TURNS NEAR TOLEDO.

THE PASSENGERS INJURED

Machine Skidded and Slid Over Embankment Into a Ditch—Victims Not Fatally Injured.

By Associated Press.

Toledo, Ohio, July 11th, 1907.—The first accident of note in the endurance run for the Glidden cup occurred today when the car of K. R. Otis of Cleveland, carrying the wife of J. J. Nunan, Miss Rollins and J. Ed. Spooner turned over about six miles west of this city. Mr. Otis, Miss Rollins and Mr. Nunan were the most seriously injured, as they were pinned underneath the heavy car. There had been some delay in starting, and Otis attempted to make up for lost time as soon as he reached the city limits. While going at a high rate of speed, he attempted to pass Phillip S. Flynn's car and his machine skidded and slid over an embankment into a ditch. The unfortunate passengers were placed in Flynn's car and hurried back to the starting point, where they received medical attention.

From Toledo to South Bend.

The second day of the endurance test for the Glidden and Hower cups was begun from this city today when the first contestants crossed the starting point at 7 o'clock en route to the west. Other machines left at short intervals of several minutes each. Today's run will be from here to South Bend, Indiana, from which city they will go to Chicago, where two days will be spent in rest. Thus far the trip has been successful in all particulars and uneventful.

FORTUNE FOR NEEDED INVENTIONS.

Undiscovered Devices Which Uncle Sam Would Be Glad to Buy.

"A big fortune awaits the man who can design a scheme for delivering mail bags from moving trains," said Second Assistant Postmaster General McLeary to a newspaper man in an Eastern city. "A substitute for twine in wrapping up letters will also bring great riches to the inventor."

"Men with brains have been experimenting for years to solve the problem of how mail bags shall be received from trains under full speed. Every day hundreds of mail sacks are thrown from fast-moving trains onto the platforms of stations where it is impossible to make stops. The bags are frequently forced under the wheels by suction, are ground to pieces and the mail is scattered broadcast. If they escape destruction in that way they are badly torn and knocked about by ordinary rough handling."

"The Government has hunted in vain for a practical device for catching these flying mail bags. A simple hook device has been adopted by a passing train takes up a waiting mail bag. This is done by means of a hook and catcher. This same scheme has been tried for delivering bags, but has been found unsuccessful, the momentum gained in discharging the 300-pound bag being too great to be withstood by a device of this kind. The Government will pay a big price for the use of a patent which solves this problem."

"We are also looking for an economical substitute for twine. In every post-office of the country letters are wrapped up with twine on being made ready for delivery. The government pays hundreds of thousands of dollars every year for twine. We have had all kinds of substitutes offered but none has proved satisfactory. Plenty of practical devices have been submitted for bundling up letters, but they all failed before the test of quickly untying them. One snap of the scissors and the twine is severed. A good fastener which can be disposed of instantly will be worth a fortune to the inventor."

THE OLIVE BRANCH

HELD FORTH IN INTERVIEWS BY JAPANESE STATESMEN.

BEST FRIEND IS AMERICA

Declared a Leading Japanese Statesman at the Hague Conference.

By Associated Press.

New York, July 11.—Keiroku Tzuzuki, a Japanese statesman of cabinet rank and ambassador plenipotentiary for his country to the Hague Conference, is quoted in a Herald cable today as follows:

"Of all the countries of the world, the United States is the very last with which Japan seeks any trouble. The United States has been our best friend. The understanding between our respective governments is perfect. So it is almost firmly believed between the intelligent people of both countries."

And to a question regarding the sending of the American fleet to the Pacific, Tzuzuki said: "I say without question that Japan would look upon the cruise with the idea that no better time than the present could be chosen than now, just when the two governments are in most perfect accord."

Admiral Shimamura, who was with the ambassador when the statement was made, coincided entirely with Tzuzuki's views.

Under Warlike Conditions.

By Associated Press.

Washington, D. C., July 11.—When the American battleship fleet starts on its 13,000 mile cruise to the Pacific Ocean, it will proceed under war conditions. The fleet will not be constantly prepared to meet an enemy, but will conduct maneuvers designed to increase its effectiveness.

Japan Believes President Sincere.

By Associated Press.

Tokio, Japan, July 11.—The massing of the American fleet in the Pacific, about which the American newspapers have appealed to Marquis Ito for an opinion, is semi-officially discussed by Ito's administration papers today. It says:

"We cannot help feeling some misgiving with regard to the significance of the intended massing of the American battleships in the Pacific in view of the grandiose announcement attributed to the president to the effect that the navy would furnish a startling demonstration of the efficiency of the American navy. It is difficult for us to accept the assurance that the coming maneuvers do not possess any connection whatever with the Japanese American situation. We regret that Washington thinks it necessary to take what resembles a precautionary measure. However we are not disposed to attach any serious importance to this matter and have no inclination to doubt the president's sincerity in assuring the peaceful nature of the proposed maneuvers. Neither have we the slightest doubt of the pacific and friendly sentiments of the American government."

Ito declines a discussion regarding the sensational agitation of the press. His sole comment on the probability of war is, "there is no feeling in my heart for this."

Killed at Madill.

The Sherman Evening Post contains the following account of the tragic death of John Riley, who formerly lived in this city, and is well known to many of our people:

John Riley of this city was crushed to death at Madill between two cars of the train on which he was a brakeman. The accident occurred about four o'clock yesterday evening.

The train on which the unfortunate man was working is a freight on the Sherman-Madill run and had left this city Monday morning. The switching had all been done and the cars were being coupled for the return to Sherman. It seems from the story of those best informed that the draw-headers on the two cars were broken and they were fastened together with chains. Mr. Riley had stepped between the cars to unfasten the chains, when the cars came together, crushing him almost beyond recognition. He was removed to the hospital and died in about thirty minutes. The body was brought to this city this evening at 5 o'clock.

The grief of the family was heartrending and the mother of the dead man is prostrated. The deceased is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Kite of Claude, Texas, and Mrs. Tom McDonald of this city, and his mother.

John Riley was twenty-one years of age, was well known in this city and was very popular among his associates. He had been working on the Frisco about six months and was a brakeman at the time of his death, and was a member in good standing of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. He had been a consistent member of the Catholic church for many years and the funeral services will be conducted by Father Blum at four o'clock this afternoon. Interment at Catholic cemetery.

A DOUBLE MURDER

SALOON KEEPER AND RESTAURANT WAITRESS STABBED.

JEALOUS LOVER ACCUSED

Both Victims Were Terribly Mangled With a Butcher Knife in Hands of Maddened Man.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 11.—Peter Forrester, a well known saloon keeper and sporting man, and Marie Smith, 32 years old, a waitress in the saloon restaurant were murdered early today. George Hodson, a painter is accused of the crime. The Smith woman formerly lived with Hodson and her refusal to leave Forrester's place and resume relations with Hodson, is the alleged cause of the double murder. Hodson was arrested a few minutes after the shooting. He was covered with blood, but declared that he had no recollection of what had occurred. Forrester was sitting in front of his saloon when it is alleged that Hodson rushed up and stabbed him twice with a butcher knife. Hodson, it is alleged then rushed up the stairs to Marie Smith's room. She was in bed asleep, but was awakened by the bursting open of the door. As she sprang from the bed, Hodson, it is alleged, stabbed the woman in the breast and abdomen. Forrester died within five minutes. The woman was taken to the hospital where she died on the operating table. Forrester is 60 years old. His brother Edward J. Forrester is captain of the Buffalo police force.

NO REMEDY FOR CONDITIONS.

Attorney General Advises Sheriff Davis That He is Compelled to Receive City Prisoners at the County Jail.

Sheriff Davis believes that the man who was responsible for the jail delivery Sunday night was one of the city prisoners. Mr. Davis says that the lock was evidently broken from the outside and he does not believe that the work was done by anyone other than one of the city prisoners.

The sheriff faces a condition which he finds it impossible to remedy. The jail is never without a number of city prisoners, for whom he cannot find room in the limited number of cells, hence is compelled to herd them in the corridors outside of the cage, where any of them can give aid to the prisoners who are confined on more serious charges, who are kept locked in the cage.

Several weeks before the jail delivery Mr. Davis wrote to the attorney general, explaining the situation and asked if under the law he was compelled to take the prisoners committed by the city courts. The following answer was received to his communication:

Austin, Tex., July 10, 1907.

Mr. A. M. Davis, Wichita Falls.

Dear Sir—Replying to yours of the 14th instant, you are advised that it is our opinion that you would be required to place in jail prisoners committed under order of the city court.

THEY ARE HARD HIT

EFFECT OF NEW LAW UPON THE COUNTRY SAVERS.

MUST SUPPORT FAMILIES

Lay Themselves Liable to a Heavy
Fine and Long Confinement in The County Jail.

Tomorrow (Friday) will be the ninetieth day since the adjournment of the thirtieth legislature, and many new laws will go into effect. One particular law will affect one particular class of people, who will doubtless be convinced that it is no joke about Friday being an unlucky day. The law referred to is the one making it a misdemeanor for a man to fail to support his wife and children, punishable by a fine of from $100 to $1000 or imprisonment in the county jail from one to five years, or both. This law, if enforced, will truly make it hard for the gentleman who has heretofore taxed his mental capacity over a green covered table figuring out the proper amount of "English" to put on a certain ball to put another in a certain pocket while his better half is at home wearing herself out over a wash-tub and taxing her mental capacity on the proposition of where the next meal is coming from to supply her liege lord and keep him in a good humor when he finds time to come home for his feed. Enforce this law and you will take away the personal liberty of the man who has daily searched out a shady bench and proceeded to decrease the visible supply of chewing tobacco and criticised the actions of every successful man who is known to him personally or by reputation while his better half was at home rustling with the problem of wrestling food and raiment for the offspring of this measly cur. If this law is enforced and these country savers are compelled to be responsible for the daily bread of their flock, as they see it, the country may fall over itself and go the demnition bowwows, but the years at many care-worn mothers may be considerably lengthened.

The law is copied after a similar one passed in other states where it has had a wonderful effect in diminishing the number of do-nothing husbands and bringing them to taw in the matter of support. They have also in such states greatly decreased the demand upon divorce mills where claim after claim have been filed praying for a document of statutory separation upon the grounds of abandonment and non-support. The law, properly enforced will prove a God-send to every community in the Lone Star State.

At this season of the year the folks are looking for comfort above everything else. To meet this demand in a measure, the Methodist people today are having three electric fans installed in their church at the corner of Tenth street and Scott avenue.

Dear friend:
I love honey so much that I went to rob a bee's nest. Next time I'll go to the grocery to get honey.

Honey is so good on bread and butter. And you don't know what nice honey I got for 15 cents a pound.

Your friend,

IN A QUANDARY

PEOPLE OF STATE WILL BE IN ATTITUDE OF LAW BREAKERS

THE VIEW OF AN IRISHMAN

Holds That Between Death of Old Law and Birth of New He Can Do Much as He Desires Without Fear of Molestation.

"Every man, woman and child in Texas will be placed in the attitude of not knowing whether they are disobeying the laws of this State or not when they roll out of their little trundle beds tomorrow morning," said a well known attorney to a Times representative yesterday morning, "and yet it is an old thread-bare maxim that ignorance of the law is no excuse, it being presumed that every man can ascertain what the law is. There are dozens of laws that go into effect tomorrow morning, and even the prosecutors, or judges, do not know what they contain, save in a general way. It is safe to say that there is not half a dozen district or county attorneys in this State that are familiar with these laws—at least not familiar enough with them to undertake a prosecution where there is a violation. There are not half a dozen sheriffs or constables in the State that would risk an arrest for the violation of any of these laws.

The Irishman's View.

"Apropos of the discussion of the new liquor law I overheard a conversation between a couple of gentlemen from the Emerald Isle the other day, which, it appears to me, hit the nail center on the head:

"Bedad, an' ye can ate mate nixt Friday," said Pat to Mike.

"G'wan wid ye, now, phwat the divil are ye talkin' about, Oi dunno?"

"Why, mon, the ould law is repealed, an' divil a wan ov thim knows phwat the new law is. It may be that yer cut off from atin' mince pies or scrambled eggs along wid not bein' allowed to ate mate, but nary a wan of thim is goin' to say phwat it is, and nary a man of thim can deny that the ould law isn't as dead as Micky Finnigin's pup that got strangled on roughn on rats, an' nary a pinnace will iny ov thim impose on ye."

The Other Extreme.

"Now, that Irishman took just the opposite view to Assistant Attorney General Pollard, it seems to me. In a nutshell, Pollard holds that business must cease between the death of the old law and the bringing to life of the new, while the Irishman holds that everything will be wide open after the old law dies until the new law is born—in other words that the new law cannot become operative until the officers whose duties it is to enforce it know just what it is.

"I had occasion some days ago to write to the secretary of state for the copies of a number of laws, and he replied that it would be impossible to comply with the request until after August 1, as the printers were unable to have them ready before that time.

"Taking the Irishman's view of it, every old law repealed by the new law will be dead on Thursday and no officers will attempt to enforce the new until he has made himself familiar with its provisions, and that in the meantime he can do pretty much as he desires as to that particular law.

"On the other hand, Pollard's contention, sifted down, means that every business affected by the new laws must cease between the time of the demise of the old law and the time that the new one can be put into effect. There is just as much common sense in one view as there is in the other. However, I'm like the Irishman. I don't believe that any officer clothed with authority to enforce the laws is going to attempt to enforce any of the new laws until he has been able to acquaint himself with its provisions."

TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY.

Aug. 1 Will Be German Day at Jamestown Exposition.

By Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., July 11.—August 1st has been named as German day at the Jamestown Exposition. The German-American alliance, having headquarters at Philadelphia, has issued a proclamation inviting the German-Americans throughout the country to celebrate at the exposition the 152nd anniversary of the issuance of the declaration of independence by the German Americans. On August 1, 1775, the Germans in Philadelphia issued a manifesto in which they advocated armed resistance to English oppression. The Germans began to drill and to prepare for battle, which they saw coming long before the American declaration of independence was issued. The program for the day included a concert by representative German singing societies.

THE PREBLE GETS THE TROPHY.

Commander's Declaration, "If We Can Beat Our Own Navy We Can Beat Any Other," Greeted With Ringing Cheers.

By Associated Press.

Vallejo, Calif., July 11.—Interesting ceremony took place yesterday at the Mare Island navy yard when the President's trophy was presented to the torpedo boat, Preble. The Preble in the recent annual target practice at Magdalena bay secured a higher score than any other vessel of her class in the navy and was awarded the first prize, a bronze medal. The commander, Lieut. Frederick Freeman, assembled the crew and read the orders from the secretary of the navy, designating the ships which won the prizes and naming the Preble as the leader of her class. Lieutenant Freeman then said, "If we can beat our own navy, we can beat any other." Three cheers were given for the President and the United States navy.

SHOULD KEEP AT IT

MERCHANTS SHOULD NOT STOP ADVERTISING IN DULL SEASON

QUITE COMMON MISTAKE

Most Merchants Believe That the Only Time to Advertise is in the Busy Season.

Probably half the money that is spent by retail merchants for advertising in the newspapers or in any other way is paid out during a few months of the year when the stores are busiest.

Quite likely if there were no advertising done at all these months would be the busiest months of the year anyway. But most merchants seem to feel that when business is good is the only time they can afford to advertise.

When business is dull and the merchant feels he must cut down expenses, he usually starts in by cutting down his advertising.

He loses sight of what advertising really is and what it can do for him. He seems to forget that advertising has the power to change his dull, empty store into a scene of bustling activity.

Yet when customers are scarce and receipts slender nine merchants out of ten will thoughtlessly cut off the one source upon which they should depend to supply the much desired trade.

If the advertising is to be cut down at all, it would seem the wisest policy to spend the least when business was best and spend the most money for advertising in the so called dull months, when the results which follow good advertising would help to keep the store busy and the business up to a normal condition.

I don't believe any advertiser ever cut off his advertising without cutting off business at the same time.

Of course there is a great deal of money foolishly spent in advertising, and there is considerable money paid for alleged advertising that is not advertising at all.

When a man cuts off the worthless expenditures, he is really not decreasing his advertising. He is simply declining to spend money for that which brings him no returns.

But with the merchants who do good advertising and get good results—why should they not be most strenuous in their efforts to get new business when they need it? Why should they not do more advertising in the dull months than they do in the busy months?

No merchant would consider leaving his advertising out of the newspapers during the busy months of spring and the busier months of the late fall, but there seems to be no logical excuse for increasing the expenditure at these times at the expense of the duller months.

If you can spend only so much a year for advertising, by all means arrange it in advance, so that a good proportion of it will be used to keep the business going and growing in the slow months.

The trouble is that when a merchant starts to cut off his advertising expense he usually cuts off the good things and lets the bad ones stay. If he is spending $500 in the newspapers and cuts that down to $200, he congratulates himself that he is saving $300 thereby.

But is it really saved?

If advertising does any good at all, it certainly should be good enough to keep up the volume of sales when they show a tendency to drop off—every bit as much as it is good to boost the sales still higher when they are on the ascent.

I remember the experience of a merchant in a good sized town who started in business with a new store and a new stock, lots of enthusiasm and what he thought was a splendid opportunity to do an extensive business.

At the start he contracted for advertising space in the local papers and continued it regularly for three or four months, but the results were very discouraging. He didn't get the trade he expected.

So he decided to discontinue the advertising and save the cost; also he discharged his head clerk in order to curtail expenses.

Upon reflection, he said: "No; we will double our space, spend twice as much in advertising and see what happens." He tried it, with the result that business increased immediately fivefold. He re-engaged his former head clerk and in addition three extra clerks and then had to help a little on the busiest days.

Within a couple of months more following this increased advertising his store was doing the second largest trade in the town, with a fair chance of working up the biggest trade before the season was out, and, as he said, "It's all due to the advertising and backing it up with the goods as advertised."

This merchant's experience is unusual—not the results, for that was expected, but for a retailer to increase his advertising when business is dull instead of decreasing is certainly something extraordinary.

Don't stop advertising when you need the business. That's the time of all times to redouble your business getting efforts.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
