De Klerk takes oath of office

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — National Party leader F.W. de Klerk was sworn in today as South Africa's acting president, a day after he and other Cabinet members forced the resignation of P.W. Botha.

de Klerk

In a news conference immediately after taking the oath of office, de Klerk praised the ousted Botha, who was in power for 11 tumultuous years, as one of South Africa's greatest leaders.

"His greatest gift to South Africa is the fact that he has put our country on the road to fundamental reform, that he has successfully started pulling South Africa out of its dead-end streets and that he guided us in the direction of a totally new dispensation," de Klerk said.

Shortly after being sworn in at the Union Buildings by Chief Justice Michael Corbett, de Klerk said he planned to convene a new Parliament on Sept. 13, a week after national elections. He is expected to be chosen by an electoral congress the next day to serve a full five-year term as president.

Botha had attacked de Klerk personally in what was seen as a bitter and undignified farewell speech broadcast on national television Monday night. Specifically, Botha said he opposed de Klerk's plans to make an important diplomatic trip to Zambia later this month.

De Klerk defended himself in a television interview immediately following Botha's speech, and said the 73-year-old president's departure "was in the best interest of South Africa."

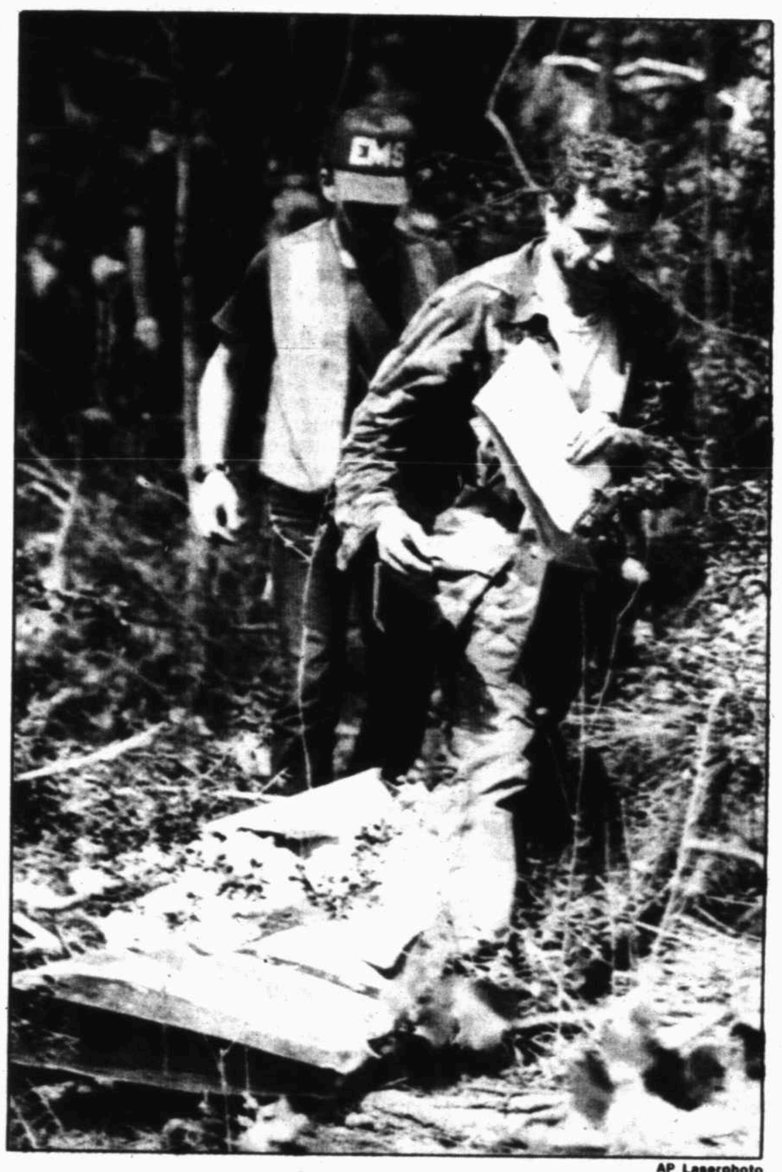

Botha, with his party's support, initiated South Africa's first halting steps of race reform in the late 1970's and early 1980's, though his efforts slowed considerably after nationwide black unrest erupted in 1984.

After his swearing-in, de Klerk said of Botha, "His place in history among the great leaders that our country produced is already assured."

"There is no doubt that we stand on the threshold of a new era in South Africa and southern Africa," the 53-year-old de Klerk said. "History offers us a unique opportunity for peaceful solutions."

"I trust that the people of South Africa will show the courage and vision required to break the cycle of conflict, tension and isolation that has gripped us for so long," he said. "We want to build a new South Africa in which all people participate in decisions affecting their lieves at all levels."

Investigators walk past debris as they search a densely wooded area near Augusta. Miss., where a small plane carrying Rep. Larkin Smith, R-Miss., crashed Sunday night. Smith and pilot, Charles Vierling of Gulfport, Miss., were both killed.

Rep. Smith impresses colleagues

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Rep. Larkin Smith went to Washington with a hard-line stance against crime gained in 22 years of law enforcement, and in his short House tenure he impressed colleagues with his knowledge of the law.

Smith

The bodies of the freshman Republican congressman and his pilot were found Monday in the wreckage of a single-engine plane that crashed Sunday night in a densely-wooded area of the DeSoto National Forest in south Mississippi.

The gray-haired ex-sheriff won a seat on the House Judiciary Committee because of his law enforcement experience, despite a Republican tradition of appointing only lawyers to the panel.

"Because of his background and hard-working manner he gave every indication of becoming a star," said Alan Coffey, chief Republican counsel for the House Judiciary Committee.

Gov. Ray Mabus ordered state flags to be flown at half-staff, saying Smith "had dedicated his life to public service."

A date has not been set for a special election to fill his seat.

President Bush expressed regret in a statement read by White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. "Congressman Smith was just beginning a promising career in the Congress," it said.

Searchers had to bulldoze their way to the thickly wooded crash site after rescuers spotted the wreckage of the single-engine Cessna 177 from the air.

Smith, 45, and his pilot, 58-year-old Chuck Vierling of Gulfport, had left Hattiesburg Sunday evening for a 90-mile flight to Gulfport. Smith had thrown out the first baseball at the Dixie Youth World Series.

The plane's engine appeared to have been dead when it crashed, said Dr. Michael West, deputy medical examiner for neighboring Forrest County. West said there was no sign of fire or smell of gasoline at the crash site.

Smith was the second congressman in as many weeks to die in a plane crash. Earlier Sunday, the wreckage of a plane carrying Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, and 15 other people had been found in Ethiopa with no survivors.

Bush says he can't assure hostages will be freed soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said today he can't offer any assurances that American hostages held in the Middle East will be freed anytime soon, and said his administration continues to look for "signs of change" from Iran.

"I think that if Iran decided they wanted those hostages to come out of there, there would be a good likelihood that that would happen, perhaps not with certainty but a good likelihood," Bush said.

"We don't have to be hostile with Iran for the rest of our lives," he said. The United States broke off diplomatic relations with Iran a decade ago.

At a pre-vacation news conference at the White House, Bush was questioned repeatedly about the possibility of military action against those holding the hostages, and he replied that "at some point we have to stand up for our interests, even if it means military, yet I'm not threatening military action."

Later, he added, "If I could find a way to take those hostages, get them, and bring them out and that required using the military force of the United States, make no mistake about it, I would do it in an instant."

The president fielded questions for 30 minutes on subjects ranging from economic policy to drug abuse. On those topics, he:

- Refused to rule out kidnapping Panamanian leader Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega to bring him to trial on drug trafficking charges. "I have an obligation to try to bring people to justice," he said.
- Said he was "comfortable" with budget director Richard Darman's weekend comment that the Federal Reserve was keeping interest rates too high to permit sustained growth.
- Promised to return from his vacation in Maine on Sept. 5 with a comprehensive plan to attack the "national menace" of drug abuse. He said his plan would include additional federal spending, but would not require higher taxes.
- Said he wished the "legal process" could move along in the case of Felix Bloch, a State Department official suspected of espionage, "without a lot of hype." Bloch has not been charged.
- Called on the Democrat-controlled Senate to act speedily on more than 100 high-level government appointments that await confirmation.
- Eulogized Reps. Mickey Leland and Larkin Smith, who died in recent days in separate plane crashes.

He said the two were "fine individuals (who) represented a deep caring for the poor, the disadvantaged, the victims of drug abuse and crime and many other areas."

Military staging artillery exercise in West Texas

FORT BLISS, Texas (AP) — Troops will be moving through West Texas and New Mexico this week in the largest air-defense artillery training exercise ever conducted in the continental United States.

The two-week mock battles began Monday when 65 soldiers parachuted into West Texas and attacked the headquarters of the 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade, said Sgt. 1st Class James Swartz.

The mountains and desert of Texas and southern New Mexico are the backdrop for the multiforce Exercise Roving Sands that will include some live-fire exercises.

Since the beginning of the month more than 8,000 soldiers, airmen and Marines have been converging at Fort Bliss Army post along with a variety of aircraft and artillery.

The mock battles of the exercise will be carried out at Fort Bliss, Biggs Army Airfield, White Sands Missile Range air space, Holloman Air Force Base, N.M. and at Roswell, N.M.

"It's being done on this scale so that it can coordinate the movements and activities for not only the Army but the Marines as well and the capabilities of the Air Force," said Brad Rose, Fort Bliss spokesman.

Consul says Japan interested in U.S. industrial goods

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

In an effort to diversify its economic base, Midland has turned its eyes overseas, hoping to develop international trade.

To this end, local businessmen played host Monday to the Japanese Consul General from Houston, Yasuo Hori, who spent the day with independent oil and gas producers learning about the oil business.

He was later honored with a reception at the Midland Hilton, hosted by the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Mike Strotheide, acting manager of the chamber, said Hori's visit was an attempt to solidify business relations between Japan and the Permian Basin. "I hope this will encourage exports from this area, and encourage Japanese investment here," he said. "We want the Japanese to know we're here."

For his part, Hori said there wasn't much he could do for local oil producers, because Japan is embargoed from importing U.S. oil — though his government hopes to be allowed to import Alaskan oil. What his country is interested in, he said, is industrial goods.

"However, in terms of investing in oil and gas exploration, there we have some room," he said.

He told the group — which included Mayor Carroll Thomas, Chamber chairman Steve Davidson, Midland College President Jess Parrish and several independent oil and gas producers — that Japan considers its relationship with the United States to be of utmost importance, and on strong footing.

He has developed a list of 10 myths about Japan and the Japanese and discussed them with the group:

Hance enters race for governor

AUSTIN (AP) — Kent Hance, citing his experience as a state senator, congressman and railroad commissioner, today launched his bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

"I am the one candidate who does not need on-the-job training. As your governor, I will lead from day one," Hance said.

Opening his campaign with a cross-state tour, Hance promised to work for a constitutional ban on state income taxes, increased local control over schools and tougher penalties for drug dealers.

He voiced a strong anti-abortion stance, saying, "I am pro-life. I am pro-family. I stand opposed to the abortion-on-demand crowd and to the various alternative lifestyles that the ultra-liberals condone."

A native of Dimmitt and a graduate of Texas Tech University, Hance first was elected as a Democratic state senator from Lubbock in 1974.

He went on to represent the West Texas city in Congress as one of the "Boll Weevil" Democrats who backed Republican President Reagan's proposal to cut income taxes by 25 percent.

In promising to seek a ban on income taxes in Texas, Hance said the state's lack of that levy makes it more attractive to business. "To the liberal, special interests of this state — read my lips, no state income tax in Texas," he said.

After an unsuccessful bid for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination in 1984, Hance changed parties and became a Republican.

Police appeal for information in hit-and-run accident

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Police have little evidence and have appealed to the public for information about the hit and run accident Sunday which claimed the life of a 63-year-old Grenada resident who was visiting his daughter in Midland.

The victim was identified Monday as 63-year-old Jacob George Felix, police spokesman Cpl. Jim White said. Felix was identified by his daughter, Mavis Walton of Midland.

Felix, who was living with his daughter for the last six months, was struck by a vehicle and killed late Saturday or early Sunday near the intersection of Lamesa Road and Magnolia Street, according to police. No identification was found on the victim, which delayed his identification until Monday, investigators said.

There were no witnesses to the accident, and police have "absolutely nothing to go on," Lt. Jerry Morris of the police traffic division said today.

"I suspect there will be a reward, and I think it might be up to $1,000," Morris said, noting he would try to get the incident publicized by Crime Stoppers.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Rescuers head to Ethiopia crash site

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Helicopter rescue crews today headed for the steep slopes of an Ethiopian mountain to hoist the bodies of U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland and 15 others killed last week in a plane crash.

Two C-130 Hercules cargo planes carrying rescue teams and fuel left the capital shortly after dawn for Gambela, about 35 miles southeast of the crash site, where they were to join two Blackhawk helicopters in the operation, said U.S. Embassy spokesman James Haley.

The teams were to begin recovery efforts by midmorning. Haley said officials hoped to get all the remains out of the site before nightfall but that the success of the operation depended largely on the weather.

Heavy clouds, rain and low visibility were believed to have led to the crash of the Twin Otter carrying Leland, eight other Americans and seven Ethiopians to the Fugnido refugee camp in southwestern Ethiopia on Aug. 7.

Persistent bad weather also slowed the six-day search as well as the recovery effort after the twin-engine plane was found Sunday, and the director of operations said the recovery operation could take two more days.

"The recovery is proving to be extremely difficult because of slippery rock, thick undergrowth and tall savannah grass," Air Force Maj. Gen. James Record, of the U.S. Central Command, told a news conference in Addis Ababa Monday night. "The cliff inclines at an 80 degree angle."

Once recovered, the bodies were to be ferried to Addis Ababa for identification by a team of forensic experts before being flown back to the United States later this week.

Gambela has served as the recovery coordination base since 12 bodies were found Sunday on the three-quarters the way up the slopes of a 5,500-foot mountain where the Twin Otter crashed, about 350 miles southwest of Addis Ababa.

The four missing members of Leland's party were believed to be among the wreckage. Parts of the plane and bodies of the victims were strewn over about a quarter-mile area on the virtually inaccessible, bush-covered slope. Searchers Sunday had to be lowered from a helicopter to reach the site.

Record said Ethiopia had accepted an offer from the U.S. National Transportation and Safety Board to participate in an investigation into the cause of the crash.

He said a team of experts already was on its way to Ethiopia, including representatives of the Boeing and Pratt and Whitney aircraft companies, which manufactured the plane's body and engine. The aircraft, which carries up to 20 passengers, was built by the Canadian Boeing subsidiary de Havilland.

A four-man congressional delegation also planned to fly to Ethiopia to escort the bodies home but officials have said they will not leave Washington until the bodies have been identified.

Leland, 44, was on his fifth visit to Africa and his second this year when the accident occurred en route to the refugee camp, one of four in southwestern Ethiopia run by the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees that house more than 300,000 Sudanese fleeing war and famine in their neighboring country.

The six-term Texas Democrat was traveling to the camps in his capacity as chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger.

SW Bell tentative agreement wrongly reported

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Associated Press reported erroneously on Aug. 14 the terms of a tentative agreement between the Communications Workers of America and Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The story said the agreement calls for a 5.25 percent wage increase plus a $1,000 bonus in the first year. The agreement, however, calls for the bonus to be included as part of the 5.25 percent increase the first year. For workers who would receive more than the $1,000 as a result of the raise, anything over the bonus amount would be applied to the wage base.

BODY

"We are going to need someone to call us. We have a little bit of physical evidence that was left at the scene. If we can find the car, we might be able to match it, but I just don't know."

Felix' body was found Sunday morning by two young boys who were walking along a trail near the intersection. He apparently was trying to cross Lamesa Road when he was hit by a vehicle traveling north, police said.

Morris said investigators are not sure if Felix was walking in a crosswalk, or tried to cross away from the intersection.

"I don't think at this point we are able to determine that yet," he said. "We are trying to place exactly where he was on the roadway."

Police said the victim's blood was sampled for alcohol content, but results from the routine test weren't available, Morris said.

EXERCISE

Rose said similar giant-scale practice manuevers have been carried out previously in Europe, but not in the United States.

The 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade, based at Fort Bliss, is running the exercise.

The operation has brought in Air Force units from Cannon, Holloman and Kirtland Air Force bases in New Mexico; Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth and Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma. Also participating are Marines from El Toro and Camp Pendleton and from Yuma, Ariz.

"The Marine Corps is playing the bad guys," said Swartz.

Five AH-10 fighters have been flown in from Missouri and Louisiana for the exercise. To transport equipment the troops will use CH-54 "Sky Crane" helicopters from Birmingham, Ala.

JAPAN

"Contrary to popular belief, the Japanese market is as open as it should be," he said. Noting the perception that Japanese tariffs are high, he pointed out that in 1987, Japanese tariffs on industrial products averaged 3 percent, compared with 4.2 percent in the U.S. and 4.9 percent in the European community.

In addition, there are a number of U.S. companies that enjoy dominant market share in Japan, according to Hori, who cited Schick razors, Polaroid and Coca-Cola as three examples.

"I emphasize that if a U.S. company makes a vigorous push to sell in Japan, it will be successful."

He told the group that the Japanese government is working to lower trade barriers and open distribution channels and government procurement.

■ Japan alone is responsible for the U.S. trade deficit.

Hori quoted the General Accounting Office as attributing the U.S. trade deficit in 1987 to four factors: The strong U.S. dollar, the strong U.S. economy, the Latin American debt crisis, and other factors — of which the trade account with Japan is part.

He said improving the U.S. trade deficit can't be done quickly and requires long-term multinational efforts, and he was pleased to point out that Japanese imports grew $38 billion between 1987 and 1988.

■ Japanese trade practices are unfair.

"This view implies the U.S. government and U.S. lawmakers are in the position to judge which practices are fair and which are not. We oppose this unilateral approach," he stated.

Japan works closely with multinational organizations such as General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs (GATT) — of which both Japan and the United States are members — and works within the confines of such organizations to address trade barriers, he said.

■ Japan is buying out the United States.

"While it's true direct investment from Japan is increasing, in cumulative investments, we ranked third behind the United Kingdom and The Netherlands," Hori pointed out. "And please remember that none of the takeovers by Japanese companies were hostile, but were reached in friendly fashion."

He added that Japanese investment in U.S. communities has created 216,000 new jobs and allowed for transfer of technology.

■ Japan is enjoying a "free ride" in terms of defense under the American nuclear umbrella.

■ Japan will become a major military power seeking hegemony in the future.

According to Hori, both myths couldn't be further from the truth. The Japanese constitution written after World War II limits Japanese military forces to within the country and for self-defense only, and will not allow production of or placement of nuclear weapons in the country.

He said the Japanese government plans to increase its defense spending, but has to mind not only the concerns of the U.S. government but of its neighbors such as China, Indonesia, Korea and the Philippines.

■ The Japanese government and people are among the richest in the industrialized world.

■ The Japanese are a faceless group of workaholics devoted solely to company ends.

■ The Japanese people work harder and spend less than people in other countries.

These are merely stereotypical beliefs, Hori said. He pointed out that while there are rich Japanese, they are no more the norm than rich Americans. He also noted that the Japanese government has had to borrow heavily and issue government bonds, just like the U.S. government.

He also noted a trend in Japan, especially by the younger Japanese, toward less work and more play. "Young people in Japan today are more interested in quality of life than disposable income," he said, pointing out that spending is increasing sharply, even among Japanese housewives — traditionally the most frugal.

■ Japanese behavior is influenced by parochialism and insularism.

After a long tradition of isolation, "My countrymen's interest in countries overseas is insatiable. Overseas travel is rising. Last year, 2.2 million Japanese visited the U.S., while 450,000 Americans visited Japan," he noted.

BUSH

Bush was questioned repeatedly about the hostages in the Middle East, and the recent flurry of sensitive diplomatic efforts aimed at winning the release of the eight Americans held in captivity.

He noted conflicting signals emanating from Iran in recent weeks.

"We don't have to be hostile with Iran for the rest of our lives," the president said. The hostages are thought to be held by the Shiite religious group Hezbollah, a faction heavily influenced by the Iranians.

"We're going to keep on trying but I can't give you a definitive assessment" of whether the hostages are any closer to freedom, Bush said.

"I just don't know. There's a lot of lines out there, a lot of initiatives have been taken," he said.

Asked why he did not retaliate militarily after the murder of Lt. Col. William Higgins, Bush said the United States still did not have adequate information to take either a diplomatic or military response. The Pentagon still is not certain when or how Higgins died; on July 31, his captors released a videotape that showed him hanging from a makeshift gallows.

"I do not want to be responsible for the loss of innocent life," Bush said, adding that he was also concerned that an American response could lead to harm for the remaining eight hostages.

He said that if he could mount an effective military rescue, "I would do it in an instant."

The president was asked whether he would consider seeking the extradition of Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, whose capture last month by the Israelis outraged his religious followers. "We have no criminal indictment" against Obeid in the kidnapping of Americans, Bush said. "We wouldn't move against somebody without the legal process going forward."

Bush generally endorsed Darman's criticism that the Federal Reserve was harming economic growth by keeping interest rates too high.

"I feel very comfortable with his (Darman's) sallying forth," Bush said. "I think I have said the same things in the past."

However, Bush stopped short of saying that if a recession occurred, it would be the fault of policies by the central bank.

HANCE

He sought, and lost, the GOP gubernatorial nomination in 1986, was appointed as the first Republican ever to serve on the Railroad Commission in 1987 and won election to that panel in 1988. He currently is chairman.

Hance joins an increasingly crowded field of Republican candidates that includes Midland oilman Clayton Williams and former Secretary of State Jack Rains of Houston.

Amarillo oilman and corporate raider T. Boone Pickens this week said he would decide by the end of the month whether he will seek the GOP nod.

"He had emerged as one of the real leaders in the freshman class of the 101st Congress," said Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., who had joined Smith at the youth baseball series.

"Our last conversation at the series was talking about the loss of Congressman Leland, and I told Larkin that he should be careful in traveling and performing his duties."

Smith had co-sponsored legislation to strengthen federal drug law enforcement, and criticized drug czar William Bennett for backing an import ban on semi-automatic assault weapons.

He once took fellow Judiciary Committee members to an FBI shooting range to demonstrate his belief that shotguns were just as dangerous as assault weapons. He claimed 90 percent of crimes were committed with pistols and shotguns.

A death penalty advocate, he supported making capital punishment laws uniform across the country. "It may not deter crime, but that person who committed that heinous crime won't be out there," he said.

He also advocated eliminating paroles and early release for dangerous criminals, and streamlining the federal appeals process, which he called "never-ending."

Smith sat on the House-Senate conference committee that drafted the final savings and loan bailout legislation, a rare assignment for a freshman.

A native of the small south Mississippi town of Poplarville, Smith's law enforcement career began in 1966 when he joined the Pearl River County Sheriff's Department. In 1977, he was appointed chief of police in Gulfport.

Running as a reform candidate in 1983, Smith defeated incumbent Leroy Hobbs to take over the scandal-ridden Harrison County Sheriff's Department. Hobbs later was convicted of racketeering and drug charges.

Last November, he narrowly defeated state Sen. Gene Taylor for the seat held by fellow Republican Trent Lott, who ran successfully for the Senate.

A public viewing was scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday in Biloxi, officials said. A funeral Mass will be held Thursday afternoon, followed by the burial in Gulfport.

De KLERK

Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, a leading critic of the National Party, said of de Klerk: "All he is doing is giving a new face to apartheid." Tutu said the transition is "just a change of initials from P.W. to F.W."

But Tutu said from his Cape Town office that he felt sorry for Botha. "He looked a pathetic figure. Here we saw a coup. They didn't use guns, but they certainly put pistols to his head."

In general, de Klerk and the other Cabinet ministers were more sympathetic to Botha than the public and news media today.

The banned United Democratic Front, the country's largest anti-apartheid coalition, said the leadership change will make little difference to South Africa's 28 million blacks.

The Cabinet members told Botha, who suffered a stroke Jan. 18, to use his health as an excuse for resigning 23 days before the crucial polls.

But the defiant Botha said his health was not the issue.

"I am not prepared to leave on a lie," Botha said he told the Cabinet.

Botha showed no emotion or signs of ill health when reading his 20-minute resignation statement from a desk at his official residence in Cape Town.

"After all these years of my best efforts for the National Party, and for the government of this country as well as the security of our country, I am being ignored by ministers serving in my Cabinet," Botha said.

Botha, nicknamed the "Great Crocodile" for his feared temper and sometimes ruthless manner, seldom appeared in public following his stroke.

Botha insisted he was not a "sulky old man," but he never offered congratulations to de Klerk, who replaced Botha as party leader in February.

Botha's behavior became increasingly erratic in recent weeks. Last month he refused to attend a farewell banquet planned by the National Party to honor him.

He did, however, appear unannounced at a provincial party congress, forcing de Klerk to give up his seat at the head table.

De Klerk, a lawyer who appears to share Botha's vision of limited and gradual race reform, has spoken in vague terms of dismantling more apartheid laws.

However, he has not promised any specific changes on major apartheid issues such as power-sharing with the black majority or desegregating schools and neighborhoods.

"De Klerk was party to the disastrous policies of the government under P.W. Botha's rule," the United Democratic Front said in a statement. "The mass democratic movement demands the government as a whole resigns so that democracy and peace may be established once and for all."

P.W. Botha, who met with four black African leaders last year, worked hard to increase South African contact with the rest of the continent. But he had said it was "inopportune to meet with President Kaunda at this stage," because the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla movement is based in Zambia and is planning to disrupt the September elections.

The National Party, which has ruled South Africa for 41 years, is expected to lose ground to both the anti-apartheid Democratic Party on its left and the hard-line segregationist Conservative Party on its right.

Toxin devastates Valley corn crop

Associated Press

Hundreds of farmers in the Rio Grande Valley have halted their corn harvest after high levels of a toxin were discovered, state agriculture officials said.

A rash of aflatoxin poisoning has affected several counties, particularly Cameron and Hidalgo, said Terry Lockamy, Cameron County extension agent.

Lockamy said 80 percent, or 30,000 acres of the corn crop in Cameron County was affected, and half of that must be destroyed.

The remaining contaminated corn could be sold at drastically reduced prices for cattle feed, he said.

Aflatoxin, a carcinogen, is released from a fungus known as aspergillus flavus, which flourishes on corn crops during times of drought, said Jose Amador, plant pathologist for the Texas A&M Research Extension Center in College Station.

Amador said as much as one-fourth of the valley's crop may be poisoned beyond levels safe for human consumption.

"But I don't think there's a danger to the consumer right now," Amador said. "The tainted crops are either fed to livestock, where higher allowances are allowed, or plowed under, where they are kept off the market."

Lockamy said the financial impact will not be determined for several weeks. The 10-week corn harvesting season in South Texas is in its final stages.

He said Cameron County has been doubly cursed because nearly all the corn grown in the county is intended for human consumption, especially in corn tortillas.

The U.S. government's guidelines on aflatoxin permit no greater than 20 parts per billion for human consumption, but up to 300 ppb for livestock feed. Levels up to 1,000 ppb have surfaced in Cameron County, Lockamy said.

Farmers have been plowing the corn under, rather than losing more money by harvesting, he said.

Lockamy said that along with the destroyed crops, many farmers are complaining that the federal guidelines are too stringent.

He also said the toxin's impact could be devastating to the economy in South Texas. "These farmers don't have the crop to give the elevators they contracted, who won't have the corn they contracted to give buyers.

"In short, we've got a wreck," he said.

Lockamy said farmers expected some problems with the toxin because of the drought, but were surprised by the extent of the damage.

Both Lockamy and Amador said the devastating year may not be an isolated occurrence. They suggested that the high levels of poison found this summer may simply be due to increased awareness. Refined testing, both in labs and home kits, have come along since the mid-1980s.

"Some farmers say the levels have been this high all along, that the only difference is now we've got sophisticated testing and now we're looking for it," Lockamy said.

Other culprits, at least in Cameron County, could be salty irrigation, he said. "But the bottom line is that it's unmarketable."

Farmers in Cameron and Hidalgo counties, moreover, were expecting only a 60 to 70 percent yield because of the dry conditions, Lockamy said. Yields for grain and cotton are expected to be even lower, he said.

Houston flags fly at half-staff as thousands mourn Leland

HOUSTON (AP) — Flowers and telegrams flowed into the Houston office of Rep. Mickey Leland and flags flew at half-staff throughout the city in memory of the congressman whose plane was discovered scattered on a rugged mountainside in Ethiopia over the weekend.

"Right now, we're really sort of in a state of limbo," said Lisa Louise, one of eight staff members at Leland's Houston office. "People want to know when the services will be held. We don't have any plans at this point. We may have some plans by the end of the week."

Ms. Louise said many calls to the office Monday were by people wondering where to send flowers. Others just wanted to share their grief.

Leland's family was "holding up as well as could be expected," she said, adding that his relatives have not told local staff members what kind of ceremony they want for him or where it will be held.

His family, including his pregnant wife and 3-year-old son, remained in seclusion.

Wreckage of the twin-engine plane carrying Leland and 15 others was found Sunday on a remote Ethiopian mountain 100 miles from its planned destination — a refugee camp near the Sudan border. The plane had disappeared Aug. 7.

Banner headlines spread the grim news, and local television stations devoted most of their newscasts to Leland. Many memorial services have been held throughout the city.

In Ethiopia, bad weather Monday forced rescue teams to postpone efforts to recover the bodies for a day. Such delays made it hard to determine when Leland's body might be returned to the United States.

"Apparently he's touched a lot of people's lives," said Ron Hunter, one of two Harris County Sheriff's deputies standing guard at the Texas Democrat's downtown office.

Doubt rising about Bexar deputy's story of shooting

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Bexar County sheriff's deputy who was shot while patrolling the county jail complex may have wounded himself and made up a story about how it happened, investigators said.

Authorities offered no possible motives Monday for why Deputy Garry Dale Smith, 33, might have concocted a story about a camouflage-clothed gunman he said shot him before fleeing.

Smith was treated and released from Medical Center Hospital after he was shot in the left shoulder about 3:25 a.m. Saturday. He described his assailant as 5-foot-10, between 21 and 23 years old and dressed in camouflage patterned clothing.

But San Antonio police Lt. Albert Ortiz said Monday that investigators doubt his account of the shooting.

"The evidence refutes his account of what transpired that night," Ortiz said. "When he gave us the story in the beginning, we had our doubts ... At that time we attributed it to perhaps the shock of being shot."

Police question why Smith did not return fire, why he didn't mention his wound until asked by a radio dispatcher and whether it could have occurred from the distance he described, Ortiz said.

A check of Smith's service revolver revealed it had not been fired recently, Ortiz said. "Your first instinct (in a gun battle) is to draw your weapon and defend yourself — he never did," Ortiz said.

At 6-foot-1 and of medium build, Smith would not have been prevented from drawing his weapon after suffering a superficial wound, according to Ortiz. The bullet that struck him, believed to be from a small-caliber gun, entered and exited near his shoulder.

Initially police thought Smith's badge may have deflected the bullet, but later it was learned the badge already was damaged.

After he was wounded, Smith did not mention his shooting to a radio dispatcher until he was asked if he had been hurt, Ortiz said.

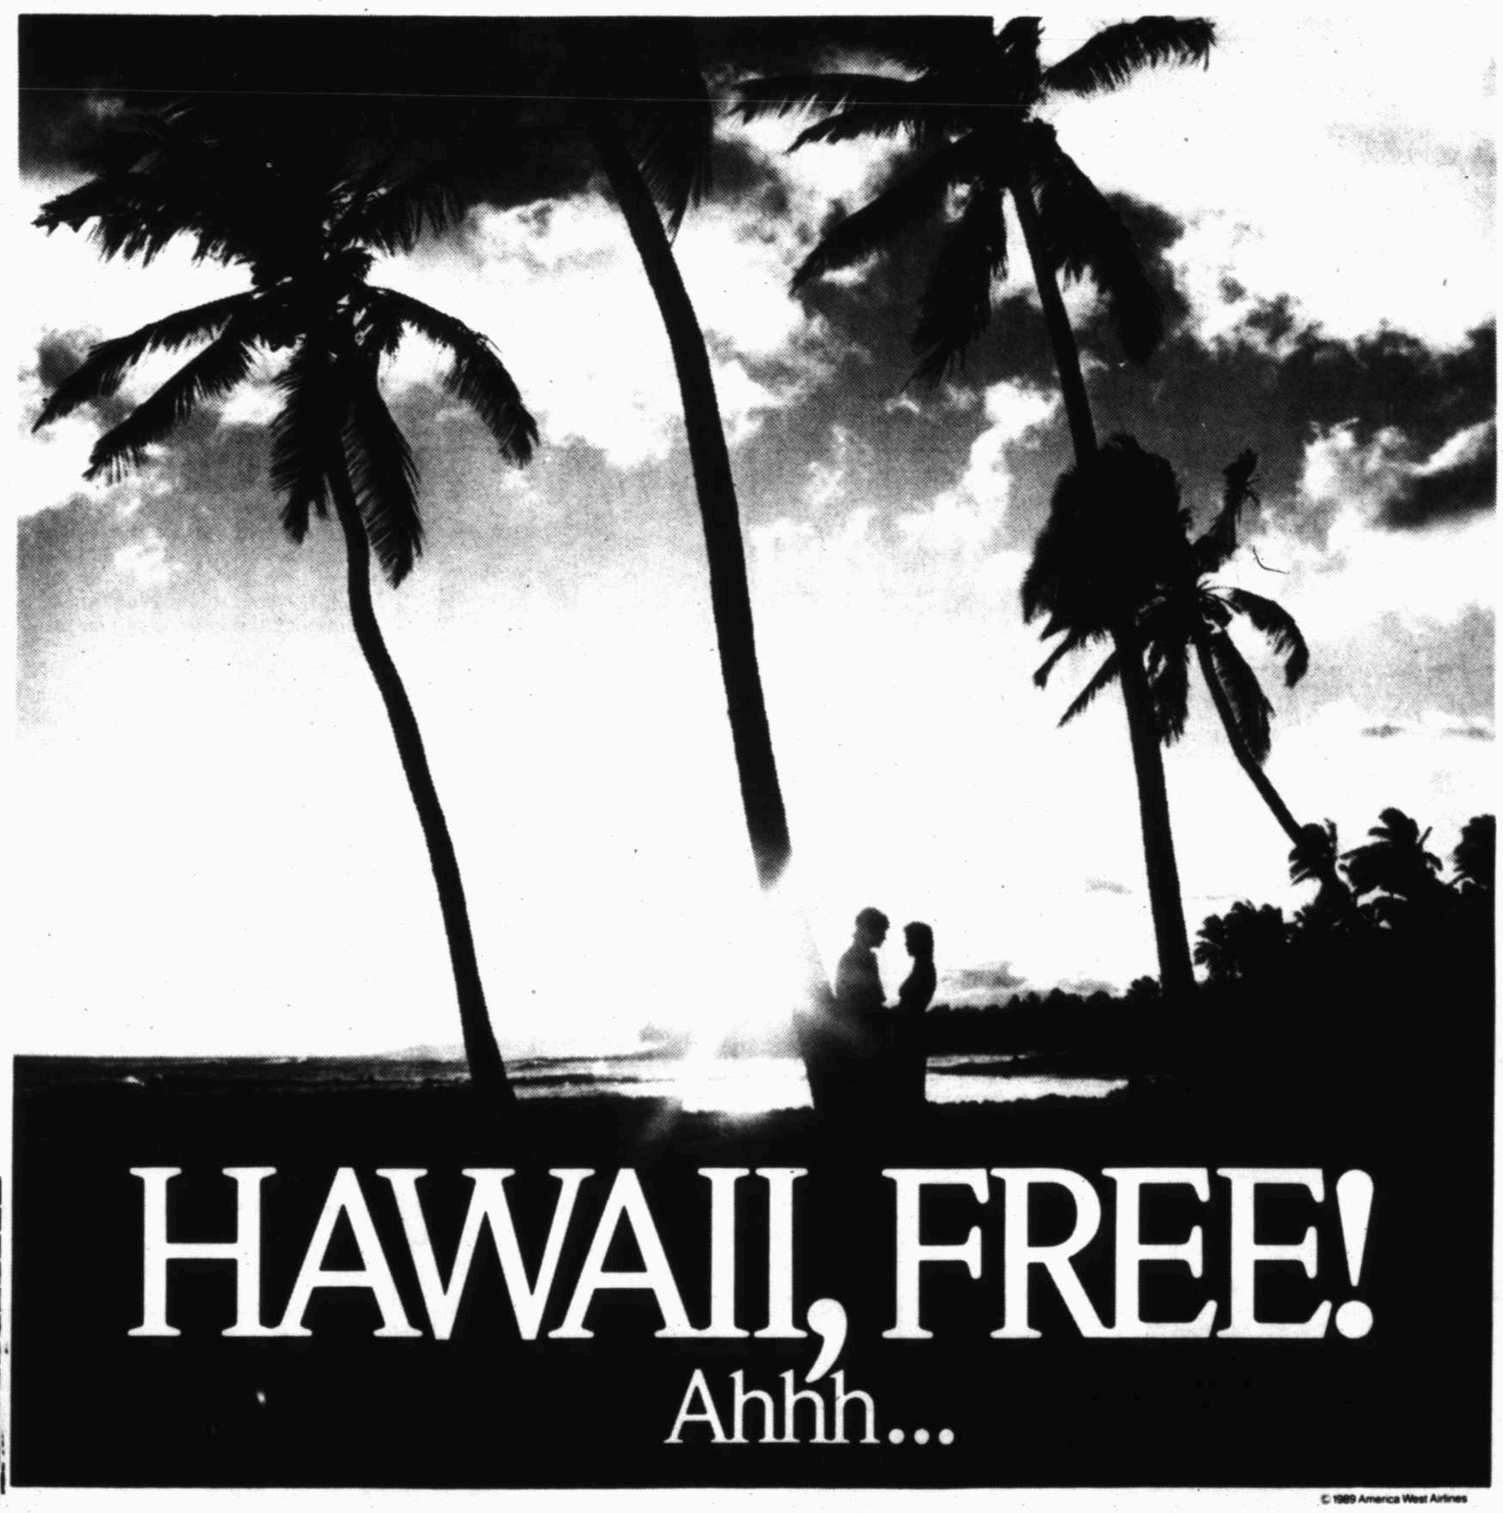

Also, the bullet had to have been fired from close range, almost within contact of Smith, rather than from several feet away, Ortiz said.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ◇

If we had to choose a theme song for bridge players, it would be "Can't Take My Eyes Off of You." You have to watch every card that is played.

Had North's five-card suit been a major, it would have been wrong to suppress it. However, since nine tricks are usually easier to make than 11, North opted for what he expected to be a simple contract.

East rose with the ace of diamonds and returned the queen, which was allowed to hold. Unfortunately, East had no more diamonds. The spade shift was taken in the closed hand, and declarer forced out the ace of clubs. West cashed the king of diamonds, but that was the last trick for the defense. South rattled off the rest to scrape home.

West was asleep at the switch. Had that defender been watching the spots, he would have realized that, since the doubleton 9-8 of diamonds appeared in dummy, declarer had no spot card higher than the seven, and could not hold more than four diamonds.

That should have made the winning defense easy to find. West must overtake the queen of diamonds with the king and continue with the ten to force out declarer's stopper. That gives declarer a diamond trick which could not be established by force, but inevitably leads to the contract's defeat. South has only seven fast tricks available, and must set up two club tricks to make his contract. However, West can grab his ace as soon as the suit is led and cash two more diamond tricks to beat the contract one trick.

NEW YORK (AP) — Julian Lennon is running hard to escape the shadow of his famous father, John.

The 26-year-old singer told US magazine in its Sept. 4 issue that his voice, which is similar to his father's, from now on will be heard on songs that are "a lot more raw and a lot more opinionated lyrically."

Lennon

"I've used my shyness in the past to avoid issues and keep my opinions quiet. I'm not tired of being nice, but there is more to me than that," he said.

Lennon hopes his third album, "Mr. Jordan," will help him recover from his second album, "The Secret Value of Daydreaming," which he called "a disaster."

Lennon's first album, "Valotte," won him a Grammy nomination for best new artist.

Lennon said that during the the 1986 release of "Daydreaming" he "was pressured and contractually obligated to write a hit in a short period of time."

Since then, he said, he changed management and stopped doing drugs.

"I'm not the dumb kid I was two years ago," he says. "A lot of decisions hadn't been made in my best interest, and I felt like I was being packaged. In one way, it was because of my ignorance and naivete. I haven't got a cent of what I earned from my first two albums."

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Alan Paley, an actor with television credits going back to "Surfside Six" and "Sea Hunt," faces attempted armed robbery charges after suffering a gunshot wound.

Paley, 54, who on his acting resume lists "experience with police .38," allegedly used such a weapon trying to stick up a stranger wearing a Rolex watch and gold ring in a hotel restroom last week, police say.

Fort Myers golfing executive William Donald, 55, said he wrestled the gun away and chased Paley with it, shooting him in the abdomen as he climbed into his car. "He was a pretty good actor," Donald said. "Maybe that's why he felt he could rob me."

Paley took off in his car but surrendered to police an hour later, according to authorities. He was released Saturday from Coral Springs Medical Center.

He apparently had problems with his work in the insurance business and was unemployed, said police Sgt. Howard Smith.

SITKA, Alaska (AP) — A 111-foot yacht belonging to Super 8 Motel chain co-founder Ron Rivett was beached to keep it from sinking, the Coast Guard said.

There were no injuries, but the Bonheur, which has a helicopter pad and is reported to be worth more than $1 million, was damaged extensively.

The vessel was pumped out and refloated early Monday but Coast Guardsman Ronald Morris said in Juneau, "You get something like that and you have to rip everything out and start from scratch, except for the hull."

The vessel lost a propeller and shaft and began taking on water Saturday about 35 miles northeast of Sitka on Peril Strait, Morris said. The crew lowered launches to push the Bonheur up against old piers; at high tide nearly the entire main deck was under water.

A tug was sent to tow it to Sitka where Rivett and his family were vacationing.

ATLANTA (AP) — The Federation of Southern Cooperatives will honor Willie Nelson, founder and chairman of Farm Aid Inc., Sunday for the help the entertainer has given poor and minority family farmers throughout the Southeast.

The coalition of farming cooperatives has received more than $700,000 from Farm Aid since 1985.

The money is for education, hotlines and emergency aid, such as food, medicine and heating to farmers in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Texas.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Nobel Peace Prize holder Mother Teresa is on a private visit to Albania, the Albanian state news agency ATA reported.

She wished to pay homage to the graves of family members in the Albanian capital Tirana, according to the brief report Monday.

Mother Teresa was born in the Yugoslav town of Skopje of ethnic Albanian parents.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, the new U.S. ambassador to Czechoslovakia, has arrived in Prague to assume her duties, the U.S. Embassy said.

The former movie star has served as U.S. ambassador to Ghana in 1974-6, U.S. government chief of protocol for the White House in 1976-77, and is a vice-president of The American Academy of Diplomacy, the embassy said.

She succeeds Julian M. Niemczyk, who has served as U.S. envoy to Czechoslovakia since 1987.

TAYLOR, Texas (AP) — Don Johnson has fans so worked up here to meet him or find out where scenes are being shot for his new movie that some have taken the extreme measure of seeking help from the Chamber of Commerce.

Johnson

The former star of "Miami Vice" and director Dennis Hopper on Monday began filming "Hot Spot," a crime thriller and love story that is touted as being in the tradition of the steamy "Body Heat."

Very few residents in this town of about 10,600 about 25 miles north of Austin have voiced concerns that the movie appears to be headed to a solid "R" rating. Bedroom scenes between Johnson and Virginia Madsen are to be filmed in a 96-year-old stucco mansion, according to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Chamber Executive Director Debra Gore downplayed the bedroom scenes.

"What I tell everybody is if you have Don Johnson in town you're going to have to expect that," she said.

AUSTIN (AP) — Edmund Heinsohn, a former Methodist minister sometimes called "the conscience of Austin," is dead at the age of 101.

Services for Heinsohn, who died Saturday, are scheduled for Wednesday at University United Methodist Church.

Born in 1888 in Fayetteville, his family moved to Bartlett, where he graduated as his high school's valedictorian.

Attend Mummers — and get happy!

Dramatist and essayist George Bernard Shaw recognized the value of laughter. Once he wrote, "Life does not cease to be funny when people die, any more than it ceases to be serious when people laugh."

Laughter is an important ingredient in the life of a community, too. It provides a way of relieving tension, spreading joy and good will, and of breaking down the barriers between people.

One Midland institution has been doing exactly that for more than four decades — Midland Community Theatre's "Summer Mummers." For 41 years now, the Mummers have been giving the people of Midland an opportunity to laugh at themselves, at others — or just for the enjoyment of it!

This summer's melodrama is "Buffaloed on the Bayou" or "Revenge of the Yellow Rose," and it's based on an historical event. Mummers' officials say the storyline is taken from the time when Santa Anna, the Mexican general who commanded the army which fought Texans at the Alamo, dallied in a tent with Emily Morgan, the noteworthy "Yellow Rose of Texas."

But even for Midlanders who are not titillated by the state's history, the Mummers provide plain old-fashioned fun complete with popcorn throwing, beer drinking, cheering the hero and hissing the villain. Of course, those in attendance who consume alcoholic beverages should arrange to have a non-drinker do the driving after the evening of fun.

The Summer Mummers provide a worthwhile function — allowing Midlanders to take time after a tough day at the office or after worrying about the trials and tribulations of the oil-based economy to enjoy the pursuit of laughter and a good time.

And, besides that, the Mummers contribute roughly $173,000 to Midland Community Theatre's 1989 budget of $800,000. So smile, by attending Mummers you're helping a good cause.

But you'd better hurry. The Mummers can only be seen on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at Yucca Theatre through Sept. 2. Hurry!

Powell's task tough

America's armed forces face a different but no less daunting task today than they did after the Vietnam War. Then, military leaders had to restore respect for the uniform after a war for which they took an unfair public pounding.

Now, they need to shape a new strategy to fit a complicated strategic environment in a time of declining budgets.

To meet this challenge, Americans are fortunate that Gen. Colin L. Powell has been named as the next chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. And Americans can count themselves equally lucky for the man who will leave that post after four years, Adm. William Crowe Jr.

As a result of recent legislation, the chairman is no longer simply a consensus maker for the warring bureaucracies of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines. He is the principal military adviser to the president. Along with the secretary of defense, he helps frame U.S. military strategy.

The services have been dragging their feet on that urgent matter, and that's disconcerting. Military leaders know they will have to cut the size of U.S. forces to deal with the federal deficit. Yet they seem inclined to do the job by trimming back a little here and there — without a coherent overall plan.

Powell is well-suited to the larger enterprise. He has had critical experience at all levels. He fought in Vietnam, commanded an Army corps in Germany and worked as a military aide to the secretary of defense.

He served several years in the White House, becoming national security adviser in President Reagan's difficult last two years.

He guided Reagan through the aftermath of the Iran-Contra affair.

He displayed a capacity to make tough calls by telling administration die-hards that the Nicaraguan rebels were a lost political and military cause and urging a course of negotiations for Central America. His personal finesse, political skills and independence win widespread praise.

Crowe has been a gem. He managed the difficult U.S. naval presence in the Persian Gulf during the Iran-Iraq war and opened an invaluable dialogue with his Soviet counterparts.

Powell will become the first black officer to serve as the nation's top military chief. His appointment is testimony to what blacks can achieve in the service of the United States today. Above all, he has earned the chance to lead the armed services.

Bush plays wild card in terrorist crisis

WASHINGTON — President Bush played a wild card in the grim poker game over the life of hostage Joseph Cicippio. The dramatic story can now be told of how Cicippio's execution was stayed.

Jack Anderson

In a recent exclusive interview, the president tipped us off how he might handle his first terrorist crisis. "I believe that under the new leadership, the Soviets will cooperate..." he told us. "This should be tested."

That's exactly what Bush did. Secretary of State James Baker met informally in Paris with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. Soviet-Iranian relations had been warming up, so Baker asked Shevardnadze to use his influence to defuse the hostage situation.

Shevardnadze agreed to carry a secret note from the United States to Tehran asking Iran's new leaders to intervene with the terrorists. The Soviet foreign minister not only delivered the note personally, but added his voice to the request.

In response, Iran's newly elected president, Hashemi Rafsanjani, formed a committee of four to handle the assignment, including himself. The other three were Iran's spiritual guide Ali Khameinei, Prime Minister Hossein Musavi and Chief Justice Abdul Ardebili.

The policy committee decided to apply quiet pressure on the terrorists. Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati and an aide, Hossein Sheikholeslam, were ordered to contact the terrorists. When Cicippio's life was on the line, they succeeded in persuading his captors to postpone his execution.

Velayati and Sheikholeslam have continued to keep in close contact with the terrorists. But the question overhanging the crisis is how much clout Iran's new regime has with the terrorists. Here is some background gathered from confidential documents and sources:

In June 1982, the late Ayatollah Khomeini began recruiting and training terrorists in Lebanon. Several terrorist groups were formed, and their loyalty now varies. They operate under various names but take direction from a super-secret command unit called the Council of Lebanon.

The council receives orders from Iran and distributes Iranian arms and cash to the terrorist groups. In the past, the terrorist operations were directed by Ali Akbar Mohtashami, an uncompromising hardliner who was the Iranian ambassador to Syria and is now minister of interior.

In the power struggle that followed Khomeini's death, Mohtashami lost out to the more moderate Rafsanjani. Though Mohtashami has now been squeezed out of the policy-making circle, he still has tremendous clout. So it remains to be seen whether the terrorists will listen to Rafsanjani or Mohtashami.

Bush, meanwhile, has been using a cautious approach. In the interview, he told us that he would use force to rescue the hostages if he felt "that the odds were reasonably good that they would be saved."

He also declared, "If the fingerprints of state-sponsored terrorism are found on hostage-taking, that state should be expected to pay a price."

So, after the terrorists' latest threats, Bush activated a 1985 contingency plan for bombing terrorist strongholds in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley. He also ordered the necessary military forces to assemble in the Mediterranean to implement the plan.

Meanwhile, his back-channel diplomacy got a reprieve for Cicippio. Nevertheless, the White House deliberately leaked word to the press that, had Cicippio been killed, the president would have ordered military retaliation.

NEGOTIATING WITH TERRORISTS.

CHARLEY REESE

First decision should be to defeat terrorists

For future reference, in a hostage situation, the first decision you have to make determines the ultimate outcome.

Charley Reese

That decision is whether your first priority is preserving the lives of the hostages or defeating the people who took them. If it's preserving the lives of the hostages, then you've already lost. The only thing left to negotiate are the details of your surrender to the terrorists.

While it is hard, the proper decision is to make your first priority defeating the terrorists. A necessary corollary to that is the hostages become expendable. You may be able to save them and you may not, but either way, you are going after the terrorists and make them pay a price for their acts. It is more important to defeat the terrorists than to save the hostages.

That is the logic of war. In the long run, that is the only way to defeat terrorism. Everytime a concession is made to terrorists, terrorism grows and multiplies. Logically it should. When something works, people try it again. When a technique gets people what they want, they use it again. Only when terrorists are convinced that they cannot get what they want, and especially when the sponsors of terrorism are made to pay too high a price, will this particular form of barbarism recede back into the shawdows of history.

Terrorism is a psycho-physical war. The physical acts, as heinous as they are, are designed to achieve psychological gains, not physical gains. The terrorist is not engaged in a war to seize territory. He is fighting to seize the minds of his opponents.

In the case of Arab terrorism, which is by no means the only organized terrorism, the psychological message is aimed at the West. First, the terrorists want the West to believe there will be no peace unless Israel is forced to meet their demands. Secondly, the terrorists want the West to blame Israel for the acts committed against Western citizens. It is Israel's fault that we kill your children, the terrorist hopes you will believe.

This is a variation of an old propaganda theme frequently used by communist dictators: we love the American people but it is your government that is the cause of all the problems between us. Another variation is the line used by American communists: I am a loyal American and it's only the government of the United States I want to destroy.

Thus, the terrorists in the Middle East offer a genuine test of our backbone and moral courage. Israel is a legitimate state which was legitimately established and has a right to exist indefinitely, as do other states. Israel also happens to be a democracy that shares our Western values, both moral and political.

The Middle East terrorists are simply doing what the Nazis once did. Oh, Hitler said, we have no quarrel with you but you must abandon England. Oh, said the Japanese fascists, we have no quarrel with you, but you must allow us to have our way with China.

Since when do we let foreign bullies set our policy for us? Since when do we cave into threats? Make concessions to people who murder our citizens?

The people inside the Washington beltway are not a representative sample of Americans. Some of them may wish to crawl on the floor and beg terrorists not to hurt us, but the majority of the American people, I believe, would sooner see Iran disappear in a mushroom cloud. I cannot believe a majority of Americans agree with the churlish Sen. Bob Dole who complains that Israel should be careful not to antagonize terrorists.

When we had a better class of presidents, an Arab in North Africa kidnapped members of an American family named Pedercalis and demanded a ransom. President Teddy Roosevelt did not wring his hands and huddle with advisors. He sent the kidnapper, named Rasouli, a telegram: Pedercalis alive or Rasouli dead. And he had the U.S. Marines deliver it.

Penne Korth's devotion to GOP paying off

WASHINGTON — Penne and Fritz-Alan Korth have had a mixed marriage for the past 25 years: She's a Republican; he's a Democrat.

Peggy Roberson

Each has followed his or her political inclinations with no interference from the other.

Now, Penne Korth, who grew up in Waco, Texas, is being rewarded for her devotion to the Republican Party, and to President Bush, by an appointment as ambassador to the small country of Mauritius.

Her husband, of Fort Worth, the son of former Navy Secretary Fred Korth, who served under Democratic president John F. Kennedy, practices law here with his father. But, a proud and supportive husband, he said he will be delighted to juggle his business so that he can tag along to Mauritius.

The Senate is expected to approve Korth's nomination after its August recess, despite the fact that some critics say she has a "slim resume." The Korths plan to be settled in the ambassador's home in Mauritius soon after that.

"Say it like 'delicious,' " said Penne Korth, suggesting a way to remember how to pronounce the name of the little-known country located 500 miles east of Madagascar, off the southeast coast of Africa.

Quoting humorist Mark Twain, who visited the island more than a hundred years ago, Korth said, "When God made heaven, he modeled it on Mauritius."

Interviewed last week at her elegant home in Kalorama, a part of Northwest Washington that is home to a conspicuous group of important Washingtonians, Korth said she has been studying at the State Department and the Foreign Service Institute to learn all she can about the country and its people, its political background, and her duties as ambassador.

She has learned that the 720-square-mile island is "a microcosm of the world," with a population of more than 1.2 million that is 60 percent Indian with large numbers of Chinese and, Britons, because it is a former commonwealth country. Several thousand Americans live there, too, many of them engaged in the booming textile industry or the import-export business.

Now Korth is learning French. Fortunately, she says, the most-spoken language on the 720-square-mile island is English.

Korth is somewhat apprehensive about the questioning she can expect from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at her confirmation hearing.

She is required to disclose all the property she and her husband own, every stock and bond, and — she swears — how many cattle and sheep roam the family ranch in Texas. She says her husband quipped, "Funniest thing, I haven't counted the sheep lately."

Under "experience," she lists the benefit balls, concerts and festivities that she has co-chaired. She also lists her current job at Sotheby's, the New York auction house which also has offices in Washington.

Friends say Korth has exceptional organizing ability. For example, she and her new husband arrived at his Georgetown home on Dec. 24, 1965, after a 10-day honeymoon, and the following day she had her father-in-law to Christmas dinner, at a table set with wedding silver she'd brought in her overnight bag.

"The cooking may not have been much," she is quoted as saying, "but the table looked nice."

Until her children left home to go to school, Penne Korth practiced a long, hard apprenticeship as the quintessential party chairman, according to Sarah Booth Conroy, a writer for the Style section of The Washington Post. "It is a profession not easily understood, appreciated or mastered. Its qualifications include a well-to-do husband, Mrs.-America-quality looks and grooming, and the ability to move mountains of donors, caterers, florists, building staffs, bands and volunteers," Conroy said.

Korth said she didn't hesitate when longtime friend George Bush telephoned on election eve and asked her to co-chair the inauguration festivities if he won. "I said, yes, sir."

With Bobby Holt of Midland, Texas, she worked to organize presidential balls, parades, dinners and other events.

But, contradicting a widely held assumption that wealthy people who give big bucks to the party are often rewarded with an ambassadorship, Korth said she didn't contribute as much as a dime.

Her job with Sotheby's has taken her frequently to Texas for lectures and collecting. "With two kids in college there, that's an added incentive," she said.

At Sotheby's, Korth is senior associate for bankers, lawyers, estates and trusts. "It's mostly an educational program," she explained, in which she tells banks that receive estates with valuable property or collectibles how to use Sotheby's services.

She took an art history course at the University of Texas, but most of her knowledge of art is self-taught. At the university she majored in communications hoping to become a television newswoman. "They told me I couldn't," she laughs, "because of my Texas accent."

At 46, Penne Korth is thinking that perhaps the three-year job of ambassador may lead her into a new career in government. "Obviously it's something the president thought I could do or he wouldn't have appointed me. I feel confident I can do a good job for him. If he thinks I do a good job, we'll see."

The challenge is coming at a good time in her life and the lives of her family. The Korth's oldest son, Fritz Junior, nicknamed Chico, 23, was recently graduated from the University of Texas and will be working in London in the fall. Their daughter, Maria, 21, is a junior at Texas Christian University at Fort Worth, and James, 16, will be a junior at Lawrenceville, a prep school in New Jersey.

"They're old enough to travel and absorb a totally new culture in a new part of the world," she said.

Panamanian bank pleads guilty to money laundering

ATLANTA (AP) — A Panamanian bank was ordered to pay the United States, Canada and Switzerland a record $5 million fine after pleading guilty to federal charges that it laundered $411 million for a South American cocaine cartel.

Banco de Occidente of Panama, where two managers allegedly conspired with the Medellin cartel, entered its guilty plea Monday before U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley.

The $5 million fine was the largest ever imposed by a federal court against a bank for drug-money laundering, said U.S. Attorney Robert L. Barr Jr. The conviction was the first of its kind involving a foreign bank with no U.S. operations.

The guilty plea resulted from a plea bargain between prosecutors and the bank, which had faced a maximum penalty of fines totaling $10.5 million and forfeiture of an amount equal to assets identified as cocaine proceeds.

Canada and Switzerland, which helped in the two-year investigation dubbed Operation Polar Cap, each will receive $1 million of the fine, Attorney General Dick Thornburgh announced in Washington. The fine-sharing arrangement was the first of its kind, Thornburgh said.

"This international cooperation in the war against drugs sends a message to drug traffickers everywhere that it is going to be harder for them to hide their ill-gotten profits, and easier for us to recover them," Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said.

"The bank pled guilty because of the activities of two people in one branch office," said William Richey of Miami, an attorney for the bank.

Richey said drug-profit transfers slipped through the bank unnoticed because the bank "exists to transfer funds. It's a trade bank."

According to prosecutors, the general manager and a commercial manager at a Banco de Occidente of Panama branch were bribed by members of the Medellin cartel. The Colombian ring reportedly accounts for up to 80 percent of the cocaine entering the United States.

The bank is a subsidiary of Banco de Occidente of Cali, Colombia.

The money was sent out of the United States and "laundered" through wire transfers, transactions used routinely to exchange large sums of money.

To conceal cocaine profits, the money launderers, posing as jewelry dealers, exchanged gold-painted lead bars among themselves to generate phony gold bullion transactions, Assistant U.S. Attorney Wilmer Parker III said during Monday's hearing.

Parker said informants and undercover U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents posing as money launderers penetrated the Medellin cartel and met several times with its leaders.

The bank pleaded guilty to one count of aiding cocaine trafficking through money laundering and to one count of conspiracy to defraud the United States.

State drops rape charges against Dotson

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Dotson, finally cleared of a rape that his one-time accuser later said she invented, says he's bitter over the agony the legal system put him through.

Dotson

"It's a good system but mistakes happen," Dotson said Monday after a judge overturned his conviction. "I have my bitterness, yes. It has been hard to deal with."

After the judge acted, prosecutors dropped charges that could have led to a new trial, saying they could not win the case again.

As the hearing ended, Dotson turned and smiled at his relatives in the audience, then heaved a sigh of relief.

"It's over," Dotson told reporters. "As they say, this is the first day of the rest of my life."

Dotson was convicted in 1979 of the rape and aggravated kidnapping of Cathleen Crowell Webb and was sentenced to 25 to 50 years in prison. Dotson had served six years of the sentence when Mrs. Webb, now a Harrisville, N.H., homemaker, said she invented the 1977 attack because she feared she had become pregnant by her boyfriend.

"I forgave her a long time ago. I've no animosity against her," Dotson said. "As far as I'm concerned, today my name has been cleared."

Mrs. Webb's attorney, John McLario, said she was pleased with the dismissal of charges and wondered "why something like this wasn't done long ago."

"She trusts that it will be put to rest and she naturally wishes the best for Gary," McLario said. "She is very sorry for the part she had in this unfortunate situation. When she came forward in 1985 she never anticipated it would be a four-year odyssey."

Circuit Judge Thomas R. Fitzgerald granted Dotson a new trial based on genetic tests which prove his semen could not have made the stain in Mrs. Webb's underpants — the key in his conviction.

Prosecutor Gayle Shines moved to dismiss the charges against him, citing conflicts in Mrs. Webb's statements and the difficulty in disputing the genetic test. Ms. Shines also said it was uncertain that Dotson would have to spend more time in jail if convicted again.

Ms. Shines said the state "absolutely (does) not" owe Dotson an apology.

"He was tried by a jury of his peers," she said. "I don't believe a mistake was made."

But Dotson's attorney, Thomas Breen, said the only conclusion was that Dotson was falsely convicted.

"Gary's going to have to live with the horror of knowing that he was incarcerated all those years for a crime he never committed," Breen said.

Dotson, 32, who married and became a father since his release, was paroled last August after recurring minor problems with the law returned him to prison.

He has two months left in an alcohol and drug treatment center, and said the program has changed his life.

Minorities under-represented in AIDS therapies, doctors say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many minorities infected with the AIDS virus are not seeking new life-prolonging treatments because of a lack of information and distrust of the medical establishment, doctors and social workers say.

Poor blacks and Hispanics are under-represented in AIDS clinical trials where experimental therapies are tested, and they often don't seek treatment until they are sick enough to qualify for free medical care, said AIDS caseworkers attending a government conference on AIDS and minorities.

"They're not as well-educated about prevention and they don't have a cousin who is a doctor who can tell them about the latest drug that's being tested in a clinical trial in their area," said Dr. Gina Brown, an assistant attending physician in obstetrics and gynecology at Harlem Hospital.

Also, the poor are often suspicious of attempts to get them into medical research, she said. Many hear only that the treatments, like AZT, make patients sick and don't understand that the drug can cripple the AIDS virus, said Brown, also a clinical instructor at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in New York.

One way to include more minorities in clinical trials would be to move the trials out of the academic medical centers and into the neighborhoods, many conference participants said Monday.

Because much of the research on new drugs is being conducted at universities, clinical trials are often set up in a way that excludes poor people, said Keith Cylar, a clinical social worker and activist with the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power, known as ACT UP. Often, services like transportation and day care are not considered, he said.

"Don't put the trials on Madison Avenue or at New York University, put them in Harlem," he said.

As of a month ago, 7,096 people with AIDS were participating in clinical trials sponsored by the National Institute on Allergy and Infectious Diseases, the chief AIDS research institute at the National Institutes of Health. Among them were 557 blacks, 731 Hispanics and 427 women.

AIDS activists helped start the move to community-based testing, and the federal government is preparing to distribute $6 million in the fall to groups that want to expand or begin such programs.

President pardons Armand Hammer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrialist Armand Hammer, pardoned by President Bush for making illegal campaign contributions to Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign, says the president's action reinforces his faith in the American legal system.

White House spokesman Bob Hall confirmed Monday night that Bush had pardoned the 91-year-old Hammer and nine other people whose names were not released. The White House usually does not announce its action on pardons.

Hammer, who pleaded guilty to the charges in 1976, released news of his pardon in Los Angeles.

"Having spent my lifetime fighting injustice, this vindication reinforces my abiding faith in the American system of justice," he said in a statement issued Monday through his Occidental Petroleum Corp. "I deeply appreciate President Bush's action in clearing my name."

Hammer spent several years seeking a pardon, and there had been speculation that President Reagan would grant one in his last days in office.

Hostage progress nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration says a breakthrough on negotiations for the release of American hostages in Lebanon most likely is months away.

"We think generally the progress has been significant," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Monday.

However, Fitzwater said he would not equate progress on the diplomatic front with the eventual release of the hostages.

"Those two elements are a long way apart, so I would not compare the two," he said.

Fitzwater said the United States had gleaned "considerable amounts of information" from contacts with other countries. Asked if information was being received from Iran, he replied, "from all sources."

The United States does not have diplomatic relations with Iran but has been communicating through third-party contacts, such as the Swiss government.

Drug abuse top problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teen-agers and adults alike view drug abuse as the most important problem facing the country — eclipsing fear of war, the economy, AIDS, crime, abortion and alcohol abuse as top concerns, says a new Gallup poll.

The results, said William Bennett, the national drug policy coordinator, "give a very clear sense of direction" to the Bush administration, which is to unveil its drug strategy on Sept. 5.

The Gallup report was released as President Bush prepared to discuss drug strategy today in three meetings, two with outside groups and one with his domestic policy council.

Bear survives fall from pole

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A mother bear learned more than her errant cub during their visit to Albuquerque as she was chased over backyard fences, driven off a rooftop and shot off a telephone pole with a tranquilizer dart.

Despite her 25-foot fall from the pole and the flame and voltage from an exploding transformer that she tangled with on the way down Monday, the adult black bear survived — with a limp.

The bear, believed to be from the Sandia mountains, was taken to the Rio Grande Zoo in Albuquerque for observation, Game and Fish Conservation Officer Richard Saiz said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Rioters toss homemade bombs on anniversary

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — Masked rioters hurling gasoline bombs and rocks clashed with riot police in the streets of Londonderry today, the 20th anniversary of the deployment of British troops in the city.

Police firing plastic bullets injured two men. Officers also arrested Irish-American activist Martin Galvin and accused him of violating a ban on entering British territory.

Galvin is publicity director of the New York-based Irish Northern Aid Committee. Police say the group collects money to buy arms for the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

Galvin said the money is for families of victims of the province's violence.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary said three hours of pre-dawn violence occurred in the city's Roman Catholic Bogside area, where two decades ago crowds barricaded streets in battles with police.

Police fired dozens of plastic bullets to disperse rioters, who wore masks to hide their identities. Police said two men were hit by bullets but were not believed to be seriously hurt.

The British domestic news agency Press Association said at one stage gunshots were heard, apparently fired at police, and that officers later were reported to have fired in the air to scare off the rioters.

Sporadic violence was also reported in Belfast.

At least 7 killed in strife

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Soldiers drove public buses to get workers to offices today at the start of a daylong strike called by Sinhalese radicals protesting the continuing deployment of Indian troops in Sri Lanka.

Shops in Colombo were closed and hundreds of employees began returning home because most offices and businesses were not functioning. Soliders in camouflage uniforms patrolled the city and policemen were posted at major intersections and near bus stops.

At least seven people were killed by Sinhalese radicals today and Monday, according to military officials. The officials, who cannot be identified under briefing rules, said the victims included two soldiers ambushed early today in the central town of Nuwara Eliya.

The other killings were in the Sinhalese-dominated south, they said.

Man confesses to killings

TOKYO (AP) — A man arrested in connection with the kidnapping and slaying of a 5-year-old girl has confessed to killing two other girls in a series of cases that have brought fear to Tokyo suburbs, police said today.

In a society remarkably free of crime, the brutality of the murders in an area northwest of Tokyo has shocked many Japanese and dominated news and television reports.

The cases, however, also have drawn attention to the many animated films available in Japan that show violence and scenes of undressed girls and comic books involving crime. The suspect, Tsutomu Miyazaki, said he collected them.

Miyazaki, the 26-year-old son of a printing shop owner, was arrested Friday in the kidnapping and killing of 5-year-old Ayako Nomoto two months ago. On Sunday, police said he confessed to killing two 4-year-old girls, Mari Konno and Erika Namba.

Police said they also were questioning Miyazaki about whether he was involved in the disappearance of a fourth girl.

Polish president calls for joint meeting

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — President Wojciech Jaruzelski today called for a joint meeting as soon as possible of the country's major political leaders to find a "rational solution" for the deepening governmental crisis.

Walesa

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, meanwhile, said he is willing to serve as prime minister "if society wants it."

Earlier, Walesa welcomed Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak's decision to give up trying to form a government, as one of Poland's two minor parties endorsed Walesa's bid to form the next government.

The developments came one day after Kiszczak offered to resign as prime minister in the face of opposition from Solidarity, and urged instead that pro-communist Peasant Party leader Roman Malinowski form a coalition government that would include both communists and the free trade movement.

Solidarity has rejected such offers previously, saying only a government headed by the opposition and dominated by non-communists will have the credibility necessary to solve Poland's political and economic problems.

Jaruzelski "expresses his concern over the deepening instability of Poland's political and economic situation," a communique on the state's PAP news agency announced.

"The president intends to appeal to representatives of the main political forces in the country for participation in a joint meeting devoted to seeking rational solutions...as soon as possible," PAP said.

Poland's economy particularly is in disarray, with industrial production falling, shortages of basic commodities common, its foreign debt at a burdensome $39 billion and growing and rising inflation.

Associates have said that under such conditions that Walesa himself might be willing to serve as prime minister.

In a statement issued by Walesa today, he said:

"Gen. Kiszczak's declaration expressing readiness to resign...was received by myself as resulting from a feeling of responsibility for Poland, and a step opening new possibilities to solve the current government crisis."

Walesa, who is not a member of Parliament, said his offer of a coalition government of Solidarity, the Peasants and the Democratic Party "is today the only chance to change the course of events dangerous for the country."

Such a government, he said, would be "a government of national responsibility, nominated with respect for the rights of the Polish president."

Walesa apparently was referring to the constitutional rights of the newly elected Jaruzelski to control foreign policy and the armed forces. Presumably, Solidarity would nominate for the defense, interior and foreign ministries only candidates acceptable to Jaruzelski.

Despite those assurances, the prospect of a Solidarity-led government has alarmed both the communist Polish United Workers Party and the Soviet Union, which has said it could be destabilizing both for Poland and Europe.

Enterprise zone likely to be OK'd this fall

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

The chairman of the task force dedicated to gaining state approval for a "free enterprise zone" in Midland County said today chances are excellent the designation will be clinched by mid-November.

"There's no competition to get that enterprise zone," said Stan Garrison, a TU Electric Co. executive who chairs the Midland Chamber of Commerce's Enterprise Zone Task Force.

Garrison will hand deliver the official application to the Texas Department of Commerce Thursday.

Midland County Commissioners and City Council gave formal approval to the application Monday afternoon at a joint meeting.

An enterprise zone is "a necessary tool today," noted Mayor Carroll Thomas.

Midland's proposed enterprise zone covers about 16 square miles in the southeastern quadrant of the city — west through a corridor parallel with U.S. Highway 80 to the Midland International Airport and north along Farm-to-Market Road 1788 to its intersection with State Highway 191.

Downtown Midland is not included.

Because the state allows a zone to be no larger than 20 square miles, there is room for four square miles of expansion. Each designated zone has a life of seven years.

The state mandates that the enterprise zone have an unemployment rate of 1.5 times that of the state's for the most recent 12-month period.

At least 25 percent of the business' employees must be residents of the zone or economically disadvantaged.

Businesses that locate within a designated zone receive ad valorem tax abatements from local entities on any improvements added to the property's current valuation.

"Nothing on the tax roles currently is given up. It's what is expanded in the way of new industry" that will receive ad valorem credits, Precinct 1 County Commissioner Durward Wright stressed.

Each business will receive different tax abatements depending on the number of new jobs it creates, its annual payroll, the amount of added valuation, its private equity investment and the potential to provide employee training programs to encourage upward job mobility.

A business designated as an enterprise project is also eligible to receive up to $1.25 million in refunds of state sales and user taxes.

The taxes are refunded at a rate of $2,000 per new permanent job created up to a maximum of $250,000 per year for five years.

A project's refunds will be realized on either equipment and machinery or building materials for use in remodeling and construction that are sold to a project for use in an enterprise zone.

There is fairly stiff competition among state businesses for enterprise project recognition, Garrison said.

A total of 50 enterprise project designations are available in Texas fiscal years 1990 and 1991.

The needs of the community and its involvement with the project will be factored into the state's final decision concerning enterprise project designation, Garrison added.

Concern was expressed Monday by Precinct 3 County Commissioner Louisa Valencia that the county's "window pane" district — bordered by SH 349, Lamesa Road and Interstate 20 — isn't included in the proposed zone.

City of Midland Assistant Planning Director David Thurbon explained that the 1980 census statistics used in the planning didn't show a need in the window pane area that met current state mandates.

The 1980 statistics must be used until the 1990 census is taken, Thurbon said.

However, officials said they will include the window pane area in the probable expansion of the zone after 1990.

"We endorse whole-heartedly this bag of tricks in our arsenal. I would suggest that ... you expand, enlarge or gerrymander" the enterprise zone boundaries "to fit the needs of the community," said Doug Henson, president of SBC Corp., a local development concern.

The Midland Enterprise Zone will be administered by the Economic Development Division of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. City Manager Fred Poe will oversee its management.

Commissioners hope two employees will appease jail panel

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland County is under a state order to possess one jailer for every 40 prisoners in custody. The county has 28 jailers on its payroll and several others working in support staff jobs.

Call it the "great" compromise.

Midland County commissioners, seeking to appease a Texas Commission on Jail Standards order for more jailers, OK'd funding for two new employees Monday.

The hirings will require an amendment to the 1989 budget at a total cost of more than $11,000.

According to Precinct 2 Commissioner Guy McCrary, the plan was offered as a compromise to the Jail Standard Commission's recommended four new jailers.

McCrary said the two new employees will begin work Oct. 1 and help with the upkeep of prisoners in a recently refurbished 104-bunk jail that is already nearing full capacity.

The county is under a state order to possess one jailer for every 40 prisoners in custody. The county has 28 jailers on its payroll and several others working in support staff jobs.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter commenting on the hiring situation, said he doesn't expect that Jail Standards commissioners are going to be willing to give much further on the personnel issue.

He observed that the completion of a 192-bunk jail in south Midland next January will require that the county hire at least 70 more jailers at a total cost exceeding $2 million.

"I don't see the problem going away until we stop transporting prisoners," Painter said in reference to overcrowded jail conditions.

As of mid-morning Monday, the sheriff's department had 130 prisoners in custody, with a large number being farmed out to other county jails.

By hiring two of the four jailers recommended, Painter said he hopes the county will be able to appease the Jail Standards Commission for the time being.

"So far, we've been in good graces with them and we'd like to keep it that way," he said. "I don't want the Jail Standards Commission coming back and saying the sheriff didn't do this or he didn't do that."

The action preceded Monday's announcement that the Texas Department of Corrections would close its doors to new inmates after the inmate population exceeded a court-ordered limit.

The closing marks the ninth time this year the prison system — the nation's third largest behind California and New York — has had to close its doors, prison spokesman Charles Brown told the Associated Press.

The department is under a federal court order to not exceed a 95 percent inmate capacity.

As of midnight Sunday, the 26-unit system had 39,412 inmates, or 95.01 percent — six over the limit, Brown said.

The department will be closed to new inmates today and Wednesday and will likely open again Thursday, he said.

The last prison closure this year was June 15.

Commissioners also spent part of Monday morning discussing retiree insurance benefits, which led to the adoption of a health insurance policy to reward county employees for their years of service and save taxpayers up to $40,000 per year.

According to Precinct 1 Commissioner Durward Wright, county employees would become eligible for the health coverage upon retirement and continue to receive the service until federal coverage — Medicare and Medicaid — takes effect.

At that time, the county would become a secondary carrier, providing supplemental coverage at about one-third the cost to the taxpayers, he said.

In other business Monday, commissioners opened bids on a photocopier for the adult probation office, but tabled action to analyze the proposals.

Also, the court gave the county auditor authorization to advertise for the sale of a sheriff's department computer.

Peace officers rope funds for foundation

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Grand marshal of the rodeo will be 18-year-old Michael Brown, who is suffering from a heart condition. Michael's wish, which already has been granted, was a visit to Sea World in San Antonio. Along with that trip came a visit to the Alamo.

Texas peace officers, who had "rather be rodeoing" than chasing criminals, will be doing their pleasure this weekend in a Midland County rodeo arena.

Federal, state, county and city law officers will be coming to Midland from across Texas to participate in the two-day event, sanctioned by the Texas Police Officers Rodeo Association (TPORA) and sponsored by the Midland Sheriff's Rodeo Association (MSRA).

The rodeo, to be held Saturday and Sunday in the D&D Rodeo Arena between Midland and Stanton off Farm-to-Market Road 1208, is open to men and women in law enforcement "as long as they are commissioned and make their living as peace officers," said Jerry Lee, a Midland sheriff's deputy, former rodeo cowboy, and president of the Midland Sheriff's Rodeo Association.

"I rode my last bull when I was 38 years old," said Lee who, instead of riding wild bulls and spirited horses called "rough stock," will be helping put on the show.

"I would like to do bareback (bronc) riding but Mama (his wife, Nancy) won't allow it," Lee said, "since she won't listen to the whining and the crying about the hurts."

So Lee will just stay out of the chutes and off of the bucking, turning, churning, twisting and snorting wild critters and will help put on the show, which is to benefit the Permian Basin Make-A-Wish Foundation for boys and girls afflicted with life-threatening diseases and conditions.

"Our stars shine to make a wish come true," said Lee.

"That's an outstanding organization," noted Sheriff's Deputy Gary McLaughlin, MSRA vice president who, along with others, is working with Lee on the rodeo.

"It's absolutely great," Denton Hines, vice president of the Permian Basin Make-A-Wish Foundation, said of the rodeo's role to benefit the foundation.

The foundation grants wishes to children and teen-agers who suffer from life-threatening diseases and conditions.

"We have had more trips to Disney World than to any other place," Hines said. "It's popular with the kids."

Grand marshal of the rodeo will be 18-year-old Michael Brown, who is suffering from a heart condition. Michael's wish, which already has been granted, was a visit to Sea World in San Antonio. Along with that trip came a visit to the Alamo.

Michael will ride into the arena on a surrey.

Hines noted that Make-A-Wish originated in Arizona nine years ago when Arizona Highway Patrol officers granted a wish to a 6-year-old boy, Chris Greicius, who wanted to be a law-enforcement officer.

The boy was suffering from leukemia.

Before his death, the boy became an honorary lawman — an Arizona Highway Patrolman.

Hines found particular significance in the rodeo to benefit the Permian Basin Make-A-Wish Foundation.

"Those boys are working their tails off" in getting the rodeo lined up, Hines noted of Lee, McLaughlin and others. "I didn't realize there was so much work in putting on a rodeo."

Since the Make-A-Wish Foundation was organized in West Texas 2½ years ago, 18 boys and girls ages 3 through 18 have been granted wishes here, Hines said.

A 14-year-old boy, Joey Morris, who suffered from brain-stem cancer, got his wish to go to Disney World last year.

"It's amazing," Hines said. "He did a complete turnaround." The boy's spirits brightened, and he was able to get out of bed.

"He went back to school, started playing in the band, started singing in the choir in church. I know his mental attitude was different, complete and totally," before his recent death, Hines said.

The rodeo will be staged at 5 p.m. Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday in the D&D Corral between Midland and Stanton off Interstate Highway 20. A western dance will follow the Saturday night rodeo. Admission to each performance is $4 in advance and $5 at the rodeo gate.

Lee noted that rodeo events can be "dangerous" and are exciting and fun.

"Any number of things can happen to get somebody hurt," he said. "Hopefully, we won't get anyone hurt."

Befitting tradition, the cowboys and the cowgirls will be charging out of the chutes in their western garb, including long-sleeved shirt and hat.

"That's all part of tradition," Lee said.

Rodeo event will include bareback bronc riding, tie-down calf roping, ribbon roping, two-man calf tying, steer team roping, chute dogging, bull riding, wild horse racing, barrel racing, goat tying, wild-cow milking, calf scrambling and boot scrambling.

The calf scramble and the boot scramble will be for boys and girls.

Cowgirls will be competing in ribbon roping, barrel racing and goat tying. Wild-cow milking and ribbon-roping will be for men and women.

And the cowboys will be competing in rodeo events from bareback bronc riding to bull riding.

Cowboys and cowgirls will be competing for All-Around Cowboy and All-Around Cowgirl Billy Cook saddles and for belt buckles.

"They can be dangerous," Lee said of rodeo events. "Any number of things can happen to get somebody hurt. Hopefully, we won't get anyone hurt."

Anti-abortionists claim election shows sentiment

AUSTIN (AP) — Pro-choice leaders dismissed the notion that the election for Jim Wright's vacated congressional seat was a setback.

But the leader of the state's largest anti-abortion group said Monday the Saturday election showed that the pro-choice movement is out-of-step with most Texans.

"The clear message was that the voters of this state do not support the no-holds barred, abortion for any reason, through all nine months of pregnancy policy, of the radical feminists," said Bill Price, president of Texans United for Life.

In the election, Democrat Jim Lane, who was favored by the Texas Women's Political Caucus for his support of a woman's right to an abortion, finished third in the eight-candidate field.

Dr. Bob Lanier, a Republican who garnered 39 percent of the vote, and Pete Geren, a Democrat who placed second with 32 percent will face each other in a runoff. Lane received 22 percent and was the only other candidate to receive more than 3 percent.

The election was the first congressional race since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in a Missouri case that states could impose new restrictions on abortion.

Marilyn Rickman, chairwoman of the Texas Women's Political Caucus, said Price was reading too much into the vote tallies.

"I don't think we had used this election as the testing ground," Ms. Rickman said. "There is more in each election than the choice issue. There are simply more factors."

She said Lanier and Geren paced the crowded field because they had better name identification and were supported by their respective political parties.

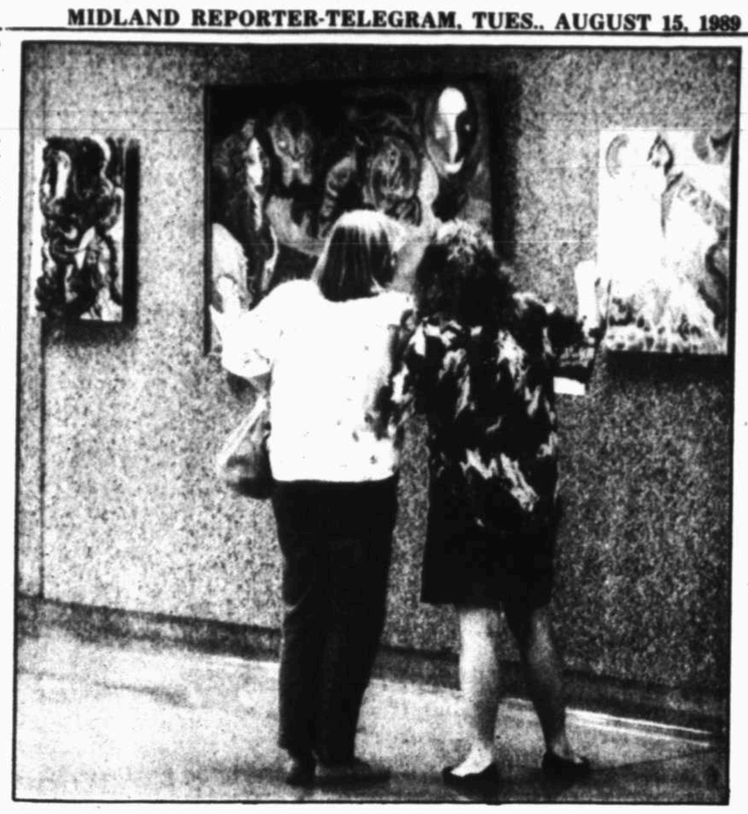

Phyllis Dunham, executive director of the Texas Abortion Rights Action League, said; "If people who want to make abortion illegal think that this race is a trend, they are undoubtedly in for a major surprise."

Gov. Bill Clements will set a date for the runoff after election results are certified.

Price said 75 percent of the voters chose candidates who believe "that at least in some cases there should be governmental interference in a woman's choice concerning an abortion."

Price said his organization will probably endorse Lanier in the runoff to replace Wright, the former House Speaker who resigned in the face of an ethics investigation that turned up 69 instances of alleged rules violations.

Wright has endorsed Geren, a former aide to U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

Taylor County Courthouse patrons in Abilene Monday study the paintings of Robert Nohl, a local artist. A few people have been calling the county judge's office complaining that the art depicts satanic worship.

Some see Satan's influence in art

ABILENE (AP) — Satan is alive and well and living in Robert Nohl's paintings on display at the Taylor County Courthouse, some people believe.

Nohl, a member of Hillcrest Church of Christ in Abilene who hopes to become an evangelist someday, says he always has been bedeviled by people who don't understand his work and see depictions of devil worship.

People started phoning in complaints to the county judge's office last week, just a few days after some of Nohl's swirly, surrealistic paintings were put on display Aug. 4 in the courthouse lobby. The office has received about eight calls, said Daniel Zimmerman, assistant in the county judge's office.

"I can see how people could look at them and interpret many different things," Zimmerman said. "But that's the beauty of the work."

But Natalee Armstrong of Abilene said: "There are various things in them that look less than beautiful. I think it is satanic — to me it represents the dark side of life. There's no redemption in them that I can discover."

Nohl said he isn't trying to portray devil worship.

"I use evil images to represent evil in society," he said. "When it comes to art, people are going to think whatever they want to think. I can't hold their hands and tell them everything that they're looking at.

"When it comes to something people can't explain, it's scary, so they label it because they need something to explain it."

Ms. Armstrong, who said she isn't reading anything into the paintings that isn't already there, said she hopes through complaints to persuade county officials to take the paintings down early.

Top drivers head toward Basin for pro Texas tour

From Staff Reports

Top drivers from the Alabama-based $1 million All Pro Racing Series will battle a top field of Texas drivers in the 1989 $90,000 "All Pro Texas Tour." Top drivers from Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, Louisiana and the Carolinas will see action in three different races at two tracks.

Texas action starts Wednesday night at the semi-banked ⅜-mile Twin Cities Speedway between Midland and Odessa, with the "Lone Star Chevy 150" plus three local divisions. Then, the All Pro and Texas stars move south to the big, high-banked one-half mile San Antonio International Speedway for the "San Antonio 100" plus two local divisions and the very popular Texas International Drivers Association (TIDA) Pro Sedans on Friday.

Saturday night the All Pro and Texas stars and cars will compete in the grand finale, the "San Antonio 250" — the longest short-track race in Texas history.

"We anticipate a great field of cars," said All Pro's Bob Harmon in a news release. "We'll have some 15-18 top All Pro regulars, plus there'll be some 18-20 top Texas stars that compete with the TIDA late models.

"The three races mean a lot of money — and a lot of points for our All Pro guys. Our guys like the trip, they like the Texas fans and in return, we can guarantee the Texas fans some of the nation's best racing at all three races."

The "Fourth Annual Texas Tour" will be All Pro's second time as far west as Odessa and the fourth time into San Antonio. Mike Harmon won the 1983 race, Donnie Allison won the 1984 event, Gary Balough won in '85 and Bobby Gill shattered all records in 1988 when he won all three Texas races back-to-back.

Headlining this year's entry list are Jody Ridley — the 1987-88 All Pro champ from Chatsworth, Ga.; former ASA/ARCA star Bobby Dotter from Miami, Fla.; 1984 All Pro champ Darrell Brown from Birmingham, Ala.; Junior Niedecken — three-time NASCAR champ from Pensacola, Fla.; current All Pro points leader Clay Brown from Goodlettesville, Tenn.; second place points driver Rick Crawford from Mobile, Ala.; red-hot rookie sensation and this year's only three-time winner so far, Joe Nemechek from Lakeland, Fla., who also ranks third in the current point standings; Billy Bigley from Naples, Fla.; and 24-year old Clifford Allison — the youngest son of NASCAR great Bobby Allison and younger brother of Davey Allison.

Other top All Pro entries include Keith Waid, Jeff Dawkins and Scotty Lovelady from Alabama; Tennesseans Sidney Minton and Eddie Hanks; Floridians Kenny Thorpe, Joe Winchell and Jerry Glenn; and Georgians Randy Couch and LaVerne Brunner.

Texas will be well-represented with Greg Davidson, J.D. Hughes, Junior Robertson, Randy Hollingsworth, and expected entries from Rick Rapp, Hubert Bean, Ken Neal and John Kelly.

The schedule of the "Lone Star Chevy 150" in Odessa are as follows: 7 p.m. All Pro Time Trials; 8 p.m., racing — 15-lap P/Stocks, 15-lap St/Stocks, 15-lap Pro Stocks.

Adult tickets are $15, children 6 to 12 are $5, and children five and under are admitted free.

Texas truck driver involved in deaths had speeding tickets

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — The truck driver who was jailed for investigation of vehicular homicide after his runaway rig killed two people and injured six others on Interstate 70 has a history of traffic violations.

Curtis Woods, 32, of San Angelo, Texas, has been convicted of speeding at least six times in Texas. He also has two convictions for driving without motor-vehicle liability insurance and was fined four times for failure to appear in court on traffic charges, according to San Angelo Municipal Court aides.

Woods posted a $5,000 bond Monday night and was released. No formal charges have been filed.

The Texas driver's 18-wheeler hit four vehicles Sunday. One of the four vehicles was knocked into another. Woods' truck sped out of control on eastbound I-70 for 1½ miles before it flipped over on Deadman's Curve near the Morrison exit.

Woods' truck carried 44 horses on their way from Rifle to a slaughterhouse in Morton, Texas. Sheriff's deputies had to shoot many of the horses, who were badly injured in the crash, and many others died.

The truck was estimated to be traveling 60 to 65 mph at the time it collided with the first of the cars, Colorado State Patrol spokesman Mark Anello said. Heavy trucks have a speed limit of 35 mph on the road.

John Neary, 38, of Manchester, England, was killed in the crash. A Denver-area woman who also died remained unidentified. Her name was being withheld until positive identification could be made.

LULAC wins ruling against Fiesta commission

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The League of United Latin-American Citizens has won a round in its ongoing battle against the Fiesta San Antonio Commission with a preliminary opinion by Attorney General Jim Mattox that the commission must open its books to LULAC.

Mattox's office cited a San Antonio ordinance designating the commission the city's official planning agency for Fiesta.

Therefore, the attorney general's office decided, the commission constitutes a governmental body subject to the state open records act, the San Antonio Light reported today.

"You have 10 days from receipt of this ruling to respond to the ruling or to provide the requested public records," Mattox's office wrote last week in a letter to Fiesta commission attorney Paul Curl.

Curl, however, said Monday that the commission would appeal the ruling and said the decision was based on inaccurate information.

The opinion was the latest twist in a controversy that started last spring, when the national LULAC organization tried to take over sponsorship of the Fiesta Flambeau Rey Feo parade from the local LULAC Council No. 2.

The Fiesta Commission later decided to sponsor the parade itself, prompting the Hispanic civil rights group to file a lawsuit and order Rey Feo Nick Garza not to take part in Fiesta events.

After national LULAC officials were denied access to the commission's records, they turned to Mattox.

Although commission officials have said they were willing to cooperate on an informational basis, they said they opposed LULAC's requested ruling from Mattox to avoid being subject to open records laws.

"Otherwise every weenie vendor at Fiesta would file a request to view our records," Curl said. "It's just a hassle more than anything else."

Curl said the commission doesn't consider itself a government body.

But LULAC attorney Ruben Sandoval said the commission hadn't shown any willingness to address the group's concerns about not being treated the same as other participating Fiesta organizations.

"That's just malarkey," Sandoval said. "We requested the opinion because they refused to cooperate."

Federal judge rules Meals on Wheels didn't discriminate

ABILENE (AP) — Meals on Wheels Plus Inc. did not discriminate when it awarded a construction contract for its new kitchen to the second lowest bidder instead of a Hispanic-owned firm that submitted the low bid, a federal judge ruled.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward ruled last week that the organization's board based its decision on "valid, non-discriminatory business reasons" when it decided against awarding the contract to the low bidder on the project, Allied Steel of Abilene.

The contract was awarded instead to Edge-Gemco of Abilene, the second low bidder.

Michael Sussman, a Yonkers, N.Y., attorney representing Allied Steel, said Monday, "I found the opinion unfortunate."

"I felt throughout the trial that the evidence showed a double standard was applied to Allied Steel. I still do," Sussman added.

Allied Steel, owned by Frank Solis of Abilene, was the only minority-owned company among 10 who bid on the $180,000 construction of a new kitchen and office building for Meals on Wheels in 1986.

Testifying in the trial earlier this year, board members said they rejected the bid because the bid documents weren't signed and because of concerns about the quality of Allied Steel's work and whether it could handle a project of that magnitude.

Allied Steel sued Meals on Wheels, its board, the architect on the project and the city of Abilene contending it was not awarded the contract because the company is minority owned.

The judge directed a verdict in favor of the city and the architect at the conclusion of the trial last spring.

Women paid to escort executives

DALLAS (AP) — Female companions were paid to escort Vernon Savings Association executives on at least four occasions, according to a former assistant loan underwriter's testimony.

Blair Davis testified Monday in federal court that he began hiring female escorts for his Vernon superiors in December 1985, once at the direction of former Vernon President Patrick King.

King faces federal charges of conspiracy, misapplication of funds and falsification of Vernon's books.

Prosecutors contend that King used thrift funds for political contributions and to pay for procurement of female companionship for Vernon officers and the state's former chief thrift regulator.

Defense attorneys maintain King was not aware of any wrongdoing by other officers at the thrift.

Hispanic entertainers promote songwriting contest against AIDS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Several Hispanic stars are promoting a contest for young songwriters to come up with music and lyrics that deal with the dangers of AIDS.

Gloria Estefan and the Miami Sound Machine along with Los Lobos and actors Edward James Olmos and Rene Enriquez said in a joint news release Monday they hope "Sing Out Against AIDS" will make Hispanic youth aware of the dangers of intravenous drug use and its link to the spread of AIDS.

"We believe that through music and songwriting, young people can reach out to one another and prevent IV drug use and AIDS," Miss Estefan said.

Government statistics show minorities are over-represented among intravenous drug users, and a large number of victims have been Hispanic.

The contest, starting Sept. 1, is open to anyone 12 to 21 years old in New Mexico, California, Colorado, Texas or Arizona. It's organized by the Entertainment Industries Council and the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Contestants are asked to submit audio tapes of original songs in English or Spanish that deal with drug abuse and acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Capezio Dance/Theater Trunk features famous shoes, costumes

From Staff Reports

The Capezio Dance/Theater Trunk Museum, a collection of famous dancers' shoes and costumes worn in productions, will be on exhibit at Second Skin, Midland Plaza (just east of Midkiff on Loop 250), through Aug. 29.

The trunk features footwear such as a white satin T-strap worn in "A Chorus Line," a signed white Capezio Femme Oxford worn by Ann Reinking in "Dancin," a lavender boot worn by Guenther Williams in the 1976 Ringling Bros. Circus, and an autographed white ballet slipper worn by Edward Villella.

In addition to footwear, there are many famous costumes featured in the trunk including Chita Rivera's lavender dress with crinolines from "West Side Story," a yellow dress and bonnet (with a pair of yellow satin shoes) worn by Irene Castle in the 1914 production of "Worn Your Step," a beaded headdress worn by Marilyn Miller in the 1920 production of "Sally," and a white tutu with gold trim worn by Cynthia Gregory as Princess Aurora in the third act of the 1974 production of "The Sleeping Beauty."

The truck also includes costumes and shoes from the Alvin Ailey and Joffrey Ballet companies.

High heels not made for walking

Study shows effects of tall shoes on feet

By KATHLEEN GRUBB

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Spike heels weren't made for walking, according to a year-long study of high-heel shoes that gives a leg up to flat footwear.

Becky Snow, who studied heel heights because she "needed a thesis" for a master's degree in physical education and exercise science, found that pressure on the ball of a woman's foot increases dramatically with higher shoes.

Compared with going barefoot, a ¾-inch heel increases the peak pressure 33 percent, a 2-inch heel increases it 53 percent and a 3¼-inch heel increases it 76 percent, the University of California biomechanicist said. Moreover, heels shorten the time a high-heeled foot has to adjust to the higher pressures.

The study doesn't prove high heels are unhealthy, but begs further research into heels and posture, joint deterioration and other foot ailments, she said.

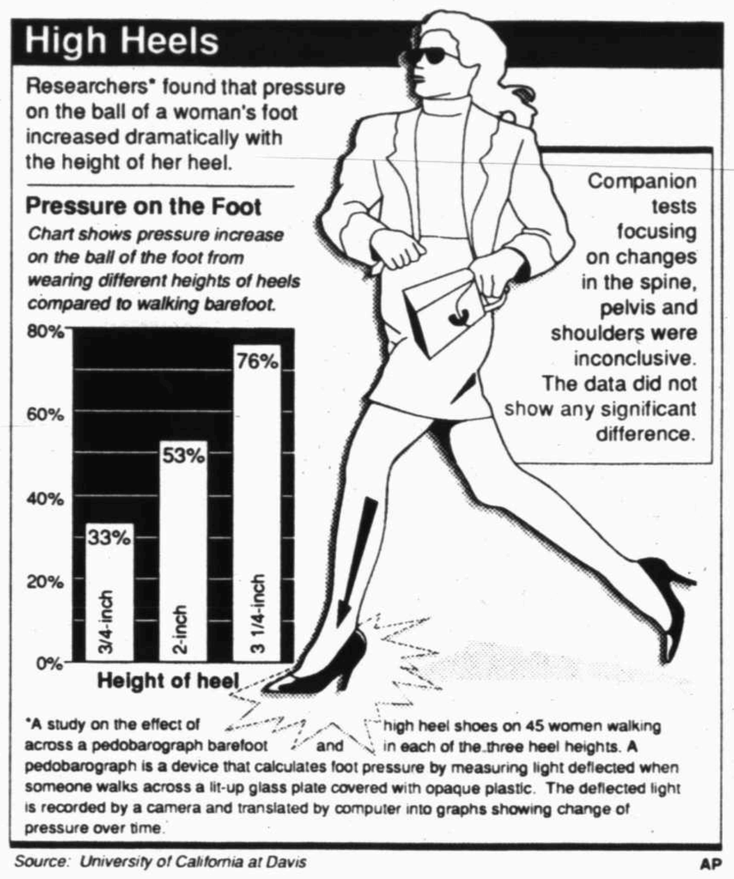

Keith Williams, a physical education professor and biomechanicist who advised Snow in her research, said he hopes it prompts the fashion industry to follow athletic-shoe makers by designing footwear with physiology in mind.

Williams, who has tried unsuccessfully to market dress shoes that are "more comfortable than beautiful," added, "Maybe they should require the shoe designers to walk in high-heel shoes."

EVEN IF the industry is reluctant, said Dr. George Holmes, an orthopedist at University Medical Center in Sacramento, studies like Snow's will do for high-heel shoes what cancer research has done for smoking.

"If you could come out with a series of papers and studies that could demonstrate the deleterious effect of heels," Holmes said, consumers "eventually will realize what's happening."

The industry is shifting toward "comfort shoes," said Margaret Pennes of National Shoe Fair of America, a New York-based trade group. "What started to happen is a lot of people got involved in walking and were wearing comfortable walking shoes. And they started to look for the same comfort in heels."

Source: University of California at Davis AP

Comfort heels incorporate technology from athletic and walking shoes, changing such things as length, padding, and shape to lessen pressure, Pennes said. "So woman who do care about what their feet are going to look like in 10 years have options they didn't have before.

"The good thing about it is that looks are not being compromised. It used to be that comfortable shoes would be nerdy."

SNOW'S STUDY, to be presented this month at an Orthopedic Foot and Ankle Society meeting, supports what Holmes and other doctors have suspected — that foot ailments, which afflict far more women than men, may be caused by shoes.

"There's not a lot of quantitative information about what happens when women wear high heels. There's a lot of anecdotal information, but not scientific data to back up statements people make," Williams said.

While other research has measured stride length, force and heel stability, Snow said a lack of techology prevented a study like hers until recently.

Snow, 28, used a machine called a pedobarograph — invented in England in 1976 and updated by a British bioengineer three years ago for use with personal computers — to analyze pressure on the balls of the feet.

The pedobarograph calculates foot pressure by measuring light deflected by walking across a lit glass plate covered by opaque plastic. The deflected light is recorded by a camera and translated by computer into graphs.

Snow, a certified athletic trainer who routinely wears running shoes but sometimes dons 2-inch pumps for dressier occasions, initially intended to study amputee runners, but switched because of the difficulty finding enough people who run on artificial limbs for a scientific study.

To recruit high-heel wearers, after newspaper ads failed, she went to the campus quad and listened for the "click, click, click" of womens' heels. She convinced 45 women to give up two lunch hours to walk across the pedobarograph barefoot and in each of three heel heights — ¾-inch, 2-inch and 3¼-inch.

A COMPANION study of heels' effect on posture and gait involved 11 women who spend nine hours each in a battery of tests. In one, they walked barefoot and in heels on a treadmill while cameras recorded the movement of fluorescent dots on their backs, legs and ankles; similar tests focused on changes in the spine, pelvis and shoulders. That study proved inconclusive, Snow said.

Even so, she said, "In speaking with people about high heels, or even in talking to my subjects afterwards if I see them on campus, they'll say, 'You know, I've stopped wearing high heels.' "

Button-down is American basic

Traditional collar has survived generations of changing styles

By BARBARA DeWITT
Copley News Service

Michael J. Fox is addicted to them. Bob Newhart launched a comedy career with a record album named for them. Politicians wear them when kissing babies and performing other vote-getting rituals. Even superstars like Paul Newman and Orel Hershiser have been known to sport them. And millions of men across the country have made them the uniform of the workplace.

The button-down collar has become an American institution. That comfy oxford-cloth shirt with the points of its soft collar held firmly in place by buttons not only survived generations of changing menswear styles but also has become the symbol of all that is good in business: youthful, educated, trustworthy, sincere, professional and friendly.

A friendly shirt?

"We always suggest a man wear a button-down shirt, preferably blue, when interviewing for a job," says Betti Natisin, president of a Los Angeles placement service.

"It makes the job candidate look polished but approachable, and I think ties look neater with a button-down. And," Natisin continues, "we've found that if a client is in his 40s or 50s, a button-down shirt will make him appear younger."

"You can't go wrong with a button-down collar. It's safe," explains Alex Rodriguez, president of a personal shopping and wardrobe consulting firm for men.

RODRIGUEZ, WHO has wardrobed the likes of Dodgers pitcher Hershiser, singer Al Jarreau, boxer Sugar Ray Leonard and newscaster Harold Greene, describes the button-down collar as part of a timeless wardrobe.

"Oversize shoulders and pleated pants come and go, but the button-down collar is a staple, like the navy blazer. It's conservative," he adds, "and favored by men who work at places like IBM."

The button-down has done OK for itself as a shirt.

"Throughout history it has enjoyed a young, conservative appeal," says Tom Julian of the Men's Fashion Association in New York. In the '50s, fraternity men wore it unbuttoned with the sleeves rolled up, while their fathers wore it with a gray flannel suit to the office. But the button-down's roots didn't grow in academia.

According to the legend of the button-down by William Brahler in the Land's End clothing catalog, polo players kept getting blinded by their own collars. So they got some seamstresses to batten down the flaps with buttons.

John Brooks, one of the Brooks Brothers in menswear, was at one of those button-down polo matches and took the idea home with him.

That was in 1896, and four years later the shirt with the polo collar was a big deal at the local Brooks Brothers store. For many, such as men's fashion designer and author Alan Flusser, the shirt remains the role model for all others.

In his book, "Clothes and the Man," Flusser says that the Brooks Brothers' original model remains the best version, because its points are long and the collar permits a roll that changes as the wearer moves.

But just like rep-stripe ties, there are variations. Among the leaders are Land's End, Van Heusen, L.L. Bean, Arrow and Gant, which make their button-downs in a variety of colors, including classic white, basic blue, preppy pink and the trendy new lilac, as well as stripes, checks and tattersalls.

OFFERING NEW twists to the oldie-but-goodie are Bugle Boy's Western-looking wine cotton houndstooth button-down, Jhane Barnes' button-downs of contemporary fabrics and patterns and Cecilia Metheny's classic shirt with square buttons.

Once you've become hooked on this classic, don't think this is a shirt for all seasons and reasons. It's not.

Julian explains that while the shirt is more casual than formal, it is appropriate for a job interview, especially in white, soft blue and stripes. It looks best, he says, with the three-button sack suit, but it also can be worn with navy blazers, madras or tweed sport coats, seersucker suits and pullover sweaters.

But you'll be making a fashion faux pas, says Rodriguez, if you mix button-downs with Armani suits (or similar Italian-inspired designs), tuxedos, double-breasted dress suits and art deco ties.

Favorite ties for the button-down collared shirt are traditional rep-stripes, paisleys, polka dots, solids and madras plaids. Knit ties and bow ties are also appropriate with this shirt.

Tieless, the button-down can be worn with the top two buttons undone over a T-shirt or cotton turtleneck with jeans.

Fans of the button-down will continue to argue over which brand makes the most comfortable cotton, the longest-wearing collar and the longest points and tails, but the shirt design has remained virtually unchanged since its creation. The classic button-down is always identified by:

A NON-FUSED collar without collar stays. Since the collar is soft, it never lies exactly the same way, creating a natural roll that reflects the wearer's individuality.

The points of the collar are always buttoned with two buttons, but in its early days there was a third button. It was on the back of the neck, to keep one's tie from showing, but that disappeared in the '50s.

Single-needle stitching, especially on the shoulders and sleeves for durability.

Seven pearl buttons on the front placket, each sewn in a cross-stitch method so they won't come off.

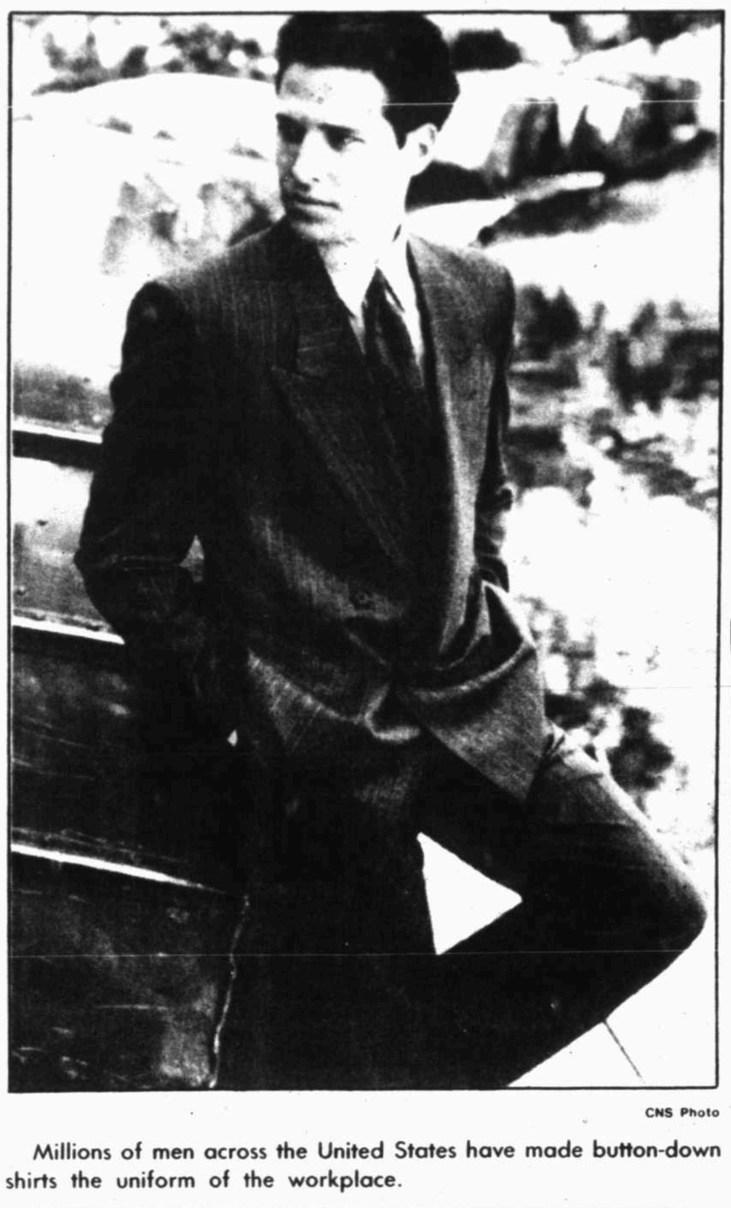

Sleeve plackets and gauntlet buttons to prevent gapping. Short sleeves may be cooler, but they're not considered traditional or professional.

A full-cut silhouette with tails long enough to tuck into underwear but not so long that they hang below the hemline of one's shorts.

Top-quality oxford cotton. There are different grades of softness, with pima and pinpoint at the top of the line. While polyester and polyester blends are less expensive and show fewer wrinkles, those wrinkles add status and character, much like a linen suit. For very casual attire, button-downs are found in cotton and wool flannel, as well as madras, gingham and plaid broadcloth.

A single pocket over the heart, which may be monogrammed. Sportier, non-traditional models sometimes are designed with two button-down pockets, but they aren't the real thing.

Belts used to 'tie' up waist

Associated Press

Belts have been around for 5,000 years but it's only since the 1920s that their main use became to hold up a man's pants — until then holding up trousers had been the job of suspenders.

The 20th-century belt is nothing special to brag about, according to an article in the current issue of Esquire, often little more than a strap of leather fastened by a brass buckle.

No matter how sleekly it is designed, it still resembles the horse's harness from which it was derived.

Fred Astaire appears to have felt the same way. Take a close look at him in the firecracker number from "Holiday Inn" or that scene from "Royal Wedding" in which he dances with a coatrack.

In those two movies, as in many others, Astaire wore an old silk tie instead of a belt. It served its purpose, it was graceful and it avoided the horse-in-harness look.

American men wear approximately 50,000 miles of belt, which is enough to wrap around the world twice, but these items are nothing like the belts of old.

In the Bronze Age, leather belts were tied around the midsection to hold rectangular pieces of cloth in place. Roman tunics also were cinched at the waist.

In the 11th century, and for several hundred years thereafter, belts served as a convenient rack on which to hang daggers, swords and pouches.

The most distinctive American belts have been those made by cowboys and Indians. The cowboy belt was decorated with a big brass plaque for a buckle. The Indian belt was beautifully crafted in glass beads or silver. Otherwise, American belts have been rather lackluster.

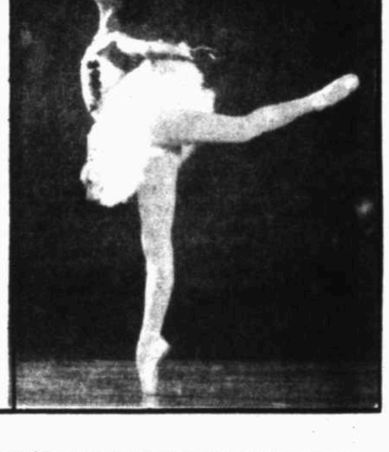

One way to beat the belt problem is to copy Astaire and substitute neckties. One New York City men's shop reportedly is designing a belt along the line of a tie.

AT WIT'S END

Younger generation only phone call away

By ERMA BOMBECK

Bombeck

The difference between youth and maturity can best be described by what happens the moment a person enters the house. Maturity runs to the bathroom. Youth punches the button on the answering machine to see who called.

I don't think I've ever seen a generation so consumed with the telephone. Every time I see a guy using a phone on an airplane at 34,000 feet, I think of Tony Roberts in the old Woody Allen film. Whenever Tony hit a new location, he automatically reached for a phone and announced, "I'm at 555-5473," as if someone cared. He never got a call.

The joke wouldn't play today because reaching out and touching anyone has hit epidemic proportions. The telephone cord has replaced the umbilical cord to sustain life. Sever it and we die.

Ivana and Donald Trump have 235 phones aboard their yacht ... nearly one for every linear foot. Motorists call their offices from cars to describe freeway conditions, and travelers call from planes mostly to say, "Guess where I'm calling from?" Conference calls, automatic dialing, call-screening calls are yours for the dialing. Call an 800 number and order a Crockpot. Call a 900 number and listen to women talk about their fantasies. Get an extension cord that will take you to another time zone. All of this is enough to make Maxwell Smart's phone shoe seem obsolete.

I am one of the few people who have always regarded a phone as an inconvenience. It's something that rings when I am in the shower, putting dinner on the table, or when I'm watching a pet psychologist on TV explain how to keep the dog from wetting on furniture legs.

For my children, life begins when the phone rings. I figured out once they spend about 75 percent of every waking hour fiddling with the phone.

We recently vacationed in a remote part of Mexico with a son who sends Ma Bell a Mother's Day card. You can imagine his horror to discover our hotel did not have a phone. Forget the blue sky, the beaches, the snorkeling, the fishing, the food, the tranquillity. He had a phone credit card and no place to stick it. Half-crazed, he got in the car and rode around for half a day trying to find a push-button phone so he could get his messages from his phone at home. He never found one.

Ever watch someone go through phone withdrawal? It is not a pretty sight. It's like he stopped existing and had to keep looking at his Social Security card to know that he was still an entity.

When the plane touched down in Los Angeles, he rushed to the nearest phone, and I saw him jot down a phone number and then hang up and begin dialing.

Why would you get so excited to hear from your dental hygienist that you were due for an appointment? All of it is sick!

DEAR ABBY

Parents tardy to day-care given low marks

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Disgusted in Virginia," who is upset by a day-care facility's policy that children not picked up by 6:30 p.m. are taken to the child welfare authorities. You thought that was terrible! What's so terrible about it? Obviously you have never been in the day-care business. Well, I have, and you wouldn't believe how irresponsible some mothers are.

My day-care hours were from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., but one mother brought her 2-year-old child here at 6 a.m. without even calling me first. She was on her way to the airport and was leaving town. She said "someone" would pick up her child at 5:30 that evening.

When nobody came for the child, I tried to reach the two numbers I had on the child's record. One was the child's grandmother. I called, and that phone had been disconnected. The other was a "friend." I called, and the person who answered the phone said there was no one there who knew anything about a child in day-care so I must have dialed a wrong number!

What was I to do? I didn't have the heart to take the child to a welfare facility and leave her with strangers, so I kept her with me overnight. (Her mother left no clothes — not even a clean diaper!)

She picked the child up around noon the following day with the usual excuses — her car broke down, she wasn't near a phone, she was unavoidably detained, etc.

As you might have guessed, I am not in the day-care business anymore. I don't have the stomach (or the heart) for it. — FED UP IN FRESNO

DEAR FED UP: Meet another day-care provider who is also fed up:

DEAR ABBY: During my 10 years as a day-care provider, I have heard every excuse in the book for not picking up a child on time. (The prize was a woman who was supposed to pick her child up at 3 p.m.; she came at 11 p.m. — saying she'd had drop-in company and couldn't get rid of them!)

While waiting for people to pick up their children, I have missed dental appointments (which I had to pay for), my daughter's piano recital, my son's no-hitter, and the funeral of a dear friend, not to mention countless meetings, hair appointments and manicures.

I have tried charging overtime, but charging is one thing, and collecting is another.

It's sad to see how upset and anxious these children are when they have to wait an hour or two for their pickups. It wouldn't be so bad if their moms would call to say they would be late, but most of them never bother to call, and the kids are wondering if their mom's been in an accident, had to work late or, worse yet, just forgot them.

About money: There are women who always forget their checkbooks, and others who are "a little short this week" and will pay me on Monday. When I first went into the day-care business, I was told (by a woman who was once in the business) to get my money up front. That's a laugh! I wish I had the money some of my clients still owe me.

I could go on and on, but it's bad for my blood pressure. I really do love children, but some of their parents should have remained childless. — ALSO FED UP

DEAR ABBY: Here is something to share with your readers. Every year, I send a birthday card to my two favorite people. One happens to be my identical twin brother, and the other birthday card goes to our mother.

My twin and I have always honored each other on our special day, but we haven't forgotten that our mother was there, too. After all, it was her "birth" day, also. — LE BARON STEWART, LOS ANGELES

DEAR LE BARON: To honor one's mother on one's own birthday is indeed a lovely gesture, but I must confess this is not the first time I have heard of it. My husband's sister, Paula, has been sending her mother (my mother-in-law) a dozen roses every year — on the day of her own birthday.

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Misery of pantyhose known only to those who wear them

By LINDA GILLAN GRIFFIN
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Pantyhose and I do not get along.

They are always too long, too short, too tight, too loose. They bag, they sag, they're hot and they have to be held together or held up with thick applications of clear nail polish and prayer.

Two decades ago, when skirts were getting shorter and shorter, I was probably the last female on Earth to buy a pair of pantyhose. To me, they were iron maidens.

My animosity had little to do with the fact pantyhose were invented by a man, probably as a form of torture. No, my disdain stemmed solely from their discomfort.

Even today, I put pantyhose in the same class as condoms:

Although no one really wants to wear them, they have their places, and if worn properly and for a sufficient amount of time, both are effective forms of birth control.

Hardly a week goes by that I don't find a new reason to dislike pantyhose. Picture this, because heaven knows a week ago Tuesday, several hundred other people did:

I'm in a big-city airport. I'm about three miles as only a drunken crow would fly from the gate at which I arrived to the gate at which I am due to depart in only about 15 minutes. Natch, the every-seven-minutes shuttle is nowhere in sight.

I'm sprinting down the concourse, loaded to the gills, huffing and puffing, when suddenly I realize that something is very wrong. Either there's a cool breeze blowing through the concourse or my skirt has disappeared. I stop sprinting and look down.

My skirt has disappeared.

It's gone. Kaput. Finis. The tops of my pantyhose are on public display.

My life tries to flash before my eyes but can't seem to make it past its last few painful minutes.

I look again. The skirt is there, but it's almost around my waist, apparently riding up on the static electricity built up between my pantyhose and the silk fabric.

I begin to pray in earnest. Oh, my gaaawd, let me die. But just in case he's not listening, I frantically tug on my skirt, slinging luggage here and there, trying to keep my balance.

By the time I reach the end of the conveyor belt, my skirt is edging down toward the tops of my knees, my heart rate is beginning to slow and folks are beginning to pass me again. Thankfully, they avert their eyes and do not giggle.

I don't giggle, either. I am worried about Alexandra Biryukova and her Soviet sisters.

As deputy prime minister, Biryukova is the Soviet Union's top-ranking woman politician. She also has just purchased 50 million pairs of pantyhose for her comrades and, if she's smart, a few thousand pairs — a year's supply — for herself.

I can only hope, considering all those pantyhose, that Biryukova managed to squeeze at least a few bottles of clear nail polish out of the bargain.

Video shows clients image improvement

Copley News Service

We've seen videos for exercising, fishing and sewing, and now Clairol Professional and Burlington have created a new category: image improvement.

Clairol has produced "Top Looks for '89," a 15-minute video featuring today's top hair and clothing designers that clients can watch in their own hair salons.

The video interviews the designers and discusses how to achieve a pulled-together look with the right hairstyle for various fashion trends. Among the fashion designers are Patrick Kelly, Betsey Johnson, Carolina Herrera, Mary McFadden, Dimitri and Marc Bouwer.

But Burlington goes a giant step further with its home video, "Image: Creating Your Own Self-Portrait." Test-marketed by Miss America 1989 Gretchen Carlson, the one-hour program combines a fast-paced, magazine-style format with practical tips on how to look one's best.

More than a "how-to" guide, it is a strategy session hosted by "L.A. Law's" Jill Eikenberry and features experts who provide advice about wardrobe, color, body language, voice, makeup, hair styling and professional etiquette. It comes with a workbook.

My favorite part is the business luncheon scenario, in which a woman shows etiquette no-no's, such as blowing smoke in her client's face and gulping margaritas.

Unfortunately, this unique, informative video is not available at stores, so you'll have to send a check for $19.95 (plus $2 shipping charge) to Image: Creating Your Own Self-Portrait, P.O. Box NN-1, Burlington, NC 27220.

For a young woman entering the job market, it's worth the wait.

Midland soccer player Bill Reis
...helping win a first title for Texas

Reis helps lead Texas to first Portsmouth title

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland's Bill Reis has only 10 young years under his belt, but he already has experienced a major athletic accomplishment that crosses the borders of the world.

Recently, Reis traveled to England with Bobby Moffat's Flame Soccer Club of Dallas to compete in the Portsmouth International Soccer Cup. In fact, over 20 Midlanders, for the second year in a row, made the trip in various age divisions.

But Reis had a unique experience in that the 11-under team he played on won the championship. It was the first time a Texas team had ever won a Portsmouth Cup — in any age bracket.

This was the 10th year that Moffat has taken Texas teams to England and the first time for him to come away with a crown of any kind. Moffat, a former pro in England and with the Dallas Tornado, crosses the state to find soccer players to make the trip each year.

Reis made the team last Nov. 20 with a tryout in Midland. He was the only 11-under Midland player chosen out of 20 that tried out.

"Most of the players on my team were from Pampa (4) and Duncanville (4)," said Reis.

His team won the Portsmouth title in grand style, winning all nine games played. Out of the 87 teams from across the world that participated in the Portsmouth tournament, Reis' team was the only squad to win all nine games, which included three pre-tournament pairings and two post-tournament games.

The Texas squad defeated the Pompey Young Blues of England, 4-0, in the finals. The Blues were the European national champions after winning that title earlier this year in France.

"It was great winning the title and Coach Moffat came to watch our game and talked with us after we won," said Reis.

"When we won the championship, we towel-popped the coach and threw water on him. He caught a cold," said Reis.

Midland loses ground in TL West

From Staff Reports

EL PASO — The Midland Angels still have time to make a push for the second half title in the Texas League West, but time will quickly disappear with many more 12-4 losses like the one here Monday to the league leading El Paso Diablos.

This is where the Angels hoped to jump back into the thick of the pennant chase, but now find themselves four games off the pace by the red hot Diablos, who have won four in a row and 11 of their 14.

Midland, who led the TL West coming into a homestand 11 days ago, have now lost three in a row, eight of its last 11 and 10 of its last 15. That trend must stop now.

The Diablos jumped to a big 9-0 lead with a big six-run fifth inning that featured a grand slam by Darryl Walters, his 12th homer of the year.

David Graybill, the Midland starter, took the loss by giving up six runs in 4⅓ innings, but he didn't have any help as Tim McCoy gave up six runs in one inning of work in relief. Relief pitching has been a major downfall of the Angels in the current slide from loop leadership.

The two teams play four more times in this series before the Angels move on to Wichita for seven games in four days. But this is where Midland must make up ground before El Paso goes up against last place San Antonio next week.

ANGEL DUST: Midland's Chris Cron extended his hitting streak to 12 games with a two-run single in the sixth. Ruben Amaro had a single and a double to extend his hitting streak to seven games. Meanwhile, Gary DiSarcina and Jeff Barns began building a hitting streak with hits.

Both have hit safely in four straight games. Mark Howie hit is third homer of the year to leadoff the ninth and two of his three homers have come off El Paso's Steve Monson. Monson went the distance against the Angels, striking out 10 batters to pick up his ninth win in 13 decisions this year. Barns, Midland's jack of all trades, made his debut at catcher. The utility infielder is trying to learn the position and will play catcher in the Instructional League this fall...

Nunn wins, but reputation suffers

The unbeaten Nunn displeased many of the fans and infuriated Bob Arum of Top Rank Inc. in retaining the International Boxing Federation middleweight championship Monday night.

"I'm seriously considering terminating the relationship," Arum said after Nunn beat Iran Barkley on a 12-round majority decision.

Then the promoter went further.

"We had a promotional agreement for one more fight and we're going to release him from it."

Arum also promoted Nunn's first two title defenses.

It was how Nunn won that upset Arum. The victory was workmanlike, but unspectacular.

"People who go to boxing matches are no different that people who go to any other entertainment. They want to be entertained," Arum said. "He won technically, but who gives a damn."

"I beat him more easily than Thomas Hearns or Roberto Duran," Nunn said.

Actually, Hearns lost to Barkley, getting stopped in the third round and losing the World Boxing Council title on June 6, 1988. Duran took the WBC title from Duran on a 12-round split decision in an exciting match last Feb. 24.

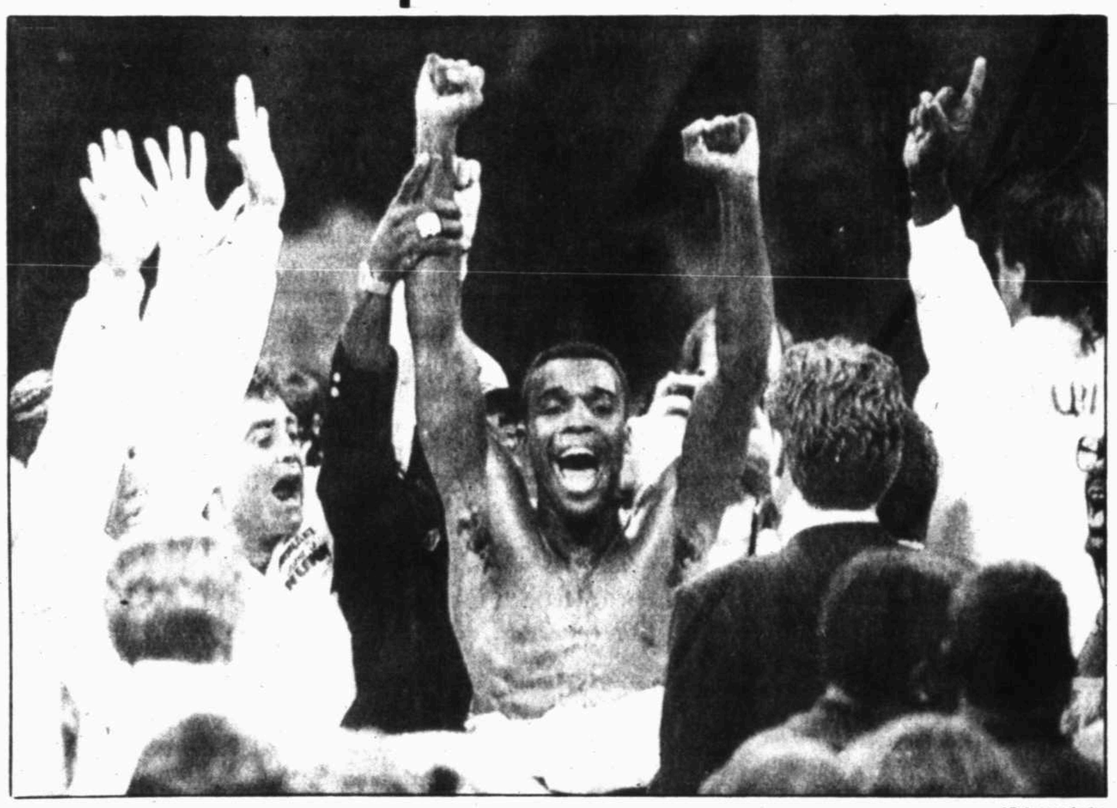

Watching Nunn boost his record to 34-0 were Duran, who boxed a three-round exhibition before an estimated crowd of 6,500; Leonard, who was a commentator for HBO television, and Emanuel Steward, who manages and trains Hearns.

Leonard and Duran will stage a long-awaited rubber match on Dec. 7 at Las Vegas, but Steward said before the fight that Hearns was interested in fighting Nunn, possibly next spring.

"I think before Michael Nunn can be mentioned in the same breath as Hearns, Leonard and Duran, he has to really go back to basics," Steward said.

Leonard felt that Nunn might be too concerned with being overhadowed by Leonard, Duran and Hearns.

"He's a talented champion," Leonard said, "but he's lost perspective."

Michael Nunn celebrates after his 12-round decision victory over Iran Barkley to retain the IBF Middleweight Championship Monday night in Reno, Nev.

Nunn, who had scored 23 knockouts in his first 33 fights, including an 88-second victory over Sumbu Kalamby in his previous defense, entered the ring as a 6½-1 favorite.

One person who didn't appear disenchanted with the match was Barkley.

"Mike fought a great fight and I fought a great fight," Barkley said. "That's all I can say.

"Let's do it again," Barkley said to Nunn.

"I'm ready for that if you are, Iran," Nunn said.

The boxers definitely were in the minority in wanting a rematch.

Barkley, who got $400,000 to Nunn's $1.25 million, now has a 25-6 record with 16 knockouts.

Top drivers slated for All Pro Racing event

From Staff Reports

The top drivers from the Alabama-based million dollar All Pro Racing Series will battle a top field of Texas drivers at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Twin Cities Speedway in the $90,000 All Pro Texas Tour event.

Action for the Lone Star Chevy 150 will take place on Twin Cities' 3/8-mile track. This is the second year in a row that Twin Cities has hosted this key racing event. It is the fourth time this series has come to Texas.

The tour moves to the San Antonio International Speedway Friday and Saturday for the San Antonio 100 and 200 races.

Cost for the Midland-Odessa event is $15 for adults and $5 for children (6-12).

"We anticipate a great field of cars," said All Pro's Bob Harmon. "We'll have some 15 to 18 top All Pro regulars, plus there will be some 18 to 20 top Texas stars who compete with the TIDA late models. The three races mean a lot of money and a lot of points for our All Pro guys. I think we can guarantee Texas fans some of the nation's best racing."

Mike Harmon won the 1983 Texas series while Donnie Allison won in 1984. Gary Balough won in 1985 and Bobby Gill shattered all records last year when he won all three Texas races back-to-back.

Headlining this year's entry list are Jody Ridley, the 1987-88 All Pro champ from Chatsworth, Ga., and former ASA/ARCA star Bobby Dotter of Miami, Fla.

Others are Birmingham's Darrell Brown, the 1984 All Pro champ; Junior Niedecken, the three time NASCAR champ from Pensacola, Fla.; and current All Pro points leader Clay Brown from Goodlettesville, Tenn.

The second place points driver is Rick Crawford of Mobile, Ala. Joe Nemechek of Lakeland, Fla., is the red-hot rookie sensation and is the only three-time winner on the tour so far while standing in third place in the points race.

Another special entry is the 24-year-old Clifford Allison, who is the youngest son of NASCAR's Bobby Allison and the younger brother of Davey Allison.

Texas will be well represented with Greg Davidson, J.D. Hughes, Junior Robertson and Randy Hollingsworth. Some expected entries are Rick Rapp, Hubert Bean, Ken Neal and John Kelly.

Three Bears' quarterbacks remain No. 1

By DAVE GEORGE
Cox News Service

MIAMI — Mike Ditka clearly meant to enjoy his Miami vacation Monday, coaching a 28-20 exhibition victory over the Dolphins while wearing a Hawaiian print shirt covered with colorful flowers and ukeleles.

Everything came easy on this night, including his response to the stickiest and most persistent question about the Chicago Bears.

"The quarterbacks all played well but I knew they would," said Ditka, who announced at midweek that Mike Tomczak would start against Miami instead of Jim McMahon or Mike Harbaugh but made no commitment beyond that.

"I've seen it all during training camp. There's no difference between them. You could throw a hat over any one of them and say he's your main guy. It makes it easier to make a decision because I can't make a mistake. It all depends on whose eyes you're looking through. No decision I make on this will ever be right in the eyes of you people (reporters) and the fans. But we'll make it and we'll go on. We've done it before and we'll do it again."

AGAIN AND again. It's a familiar refrain to the Bears passers, one that has desensitized them to the point where none of the trio gets too elated after a good performance. And all three were impressive Monday, from Tomczak's two touchdown passes to McMahon's ball-control series lasting nearly 10 minutes to Harbaugh's 89-yard touchdown drive.

"I guess we have three number one quarterbacks — number one, number one A and number one B," said Tomczak, who was 7-of-8 passing for 122 yards and threw touchdown passes to Neal Anderson and Dennis Gentry. "It's not too easy a situation to critique everyone after one game. I was happy with the way the whole team played. And I was happy that in the 1½ quarters I played we moved the ball and put points on the board."

Tomczak sat the bench the first nine games of last season as McMahon led the Bears to a 7-1 start. Then McMahon went out with a knee sprain and Tomczak came on to lead Chicago to three wins in four games. Then Tomczak went out with an injured left shoulder, but he missed only two games and started the season finale and the "Fog Bowl" playoff game against Philadelphia. Entering his fifth season in the NFL, Tomczak has a 16-3 record as a Chicago starter, a better percentage than McMahon's 49-17 record. Both are injury-prone, both are capable.

In McMahon's favor, however, is flash. His gritty play led the Bears to an 18-1 record and a Super Bowl championship in 1985 and Monday he did his best to look the part of the superstar, even though he's not even confirmed as a starter on his own team. McMahon wore a hoop earring under his helmet and met the press after the game in a pair of workout pants with a red leopard-spotted pattern. His undershirt featured Buckwheat, the Little Rascals character. As McMahon left the field, he signaled to a Domino's pizza vendor and accepted three pizzas from him on his way into the locker room.

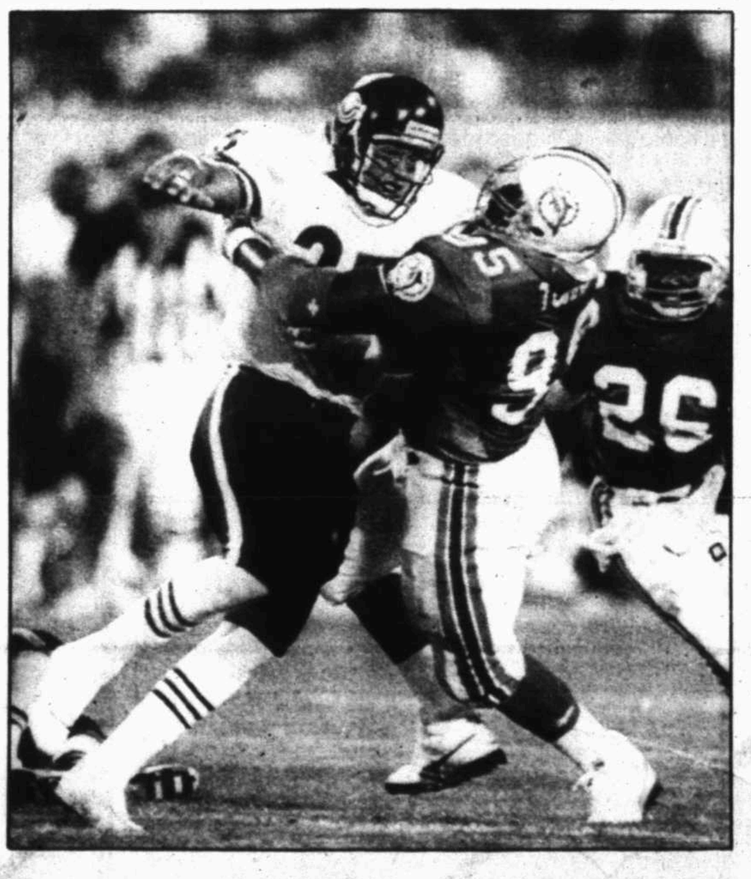

"I did the best with what I had," said McMahon, who completed 4-of-6 passes for 47 yards on his only series, a second-quarter drive that covered 84 yards. "I was only in for one drive but we got a touchdown out of it."

HARBAUGH, CHICAGO'S first-round draft pick in 1987, has done enough in practice to gain praise from Ditka but has started just two games in his career. Monday he completed 5-of-8 passes for 52 yards against Miami's defensive backups and tried to convince himself that being third in the rotation for the opening game had little significance.

"This is the way it has been all the way through training camp," Harbaugh said. "The competition has been good and it's making all three of us better. The only way I can look at it is this. Coach Ditka says we're all even. We're all number one And that's where I think I stand."

The system may be confusing but it has worked very well for Chicago. Last year the Bears were 12-4, tying Buffalo and Cincinnati for the NFL's best regular season record. If Ditka is bothered by the constant scrutiny concerning his most important position, he masked it well Monday.

"I feel good about our quarterback situation after tonight but I felt good about it going in," Ditka said. "You guys are the only ones who have a problem with it. I don't have a problem with it."

Gozzo keeps Jays' Fenway streak intact

Associated Press

Winning in Fenway Park is easy for the Toronto Blue Jays — even for Mauro "Goose" Gozzo.

Toronto won its 13th straight game in Boston as Gozzo won his second consecutive major-league start and Rance Mulliniks hit a two-run homer, leading the Blue Jays over the Red Sox 4-2 Monday night.

Gozzo, 2-0, who shut out Texas for eight innings in his major-league debut last Wednesday, allowed seven hits and two runs, one unearned, in five innings. Davis Wells pitched two innings and Tom Henke finished for his 11th save.

"I was originally drafted by the New York Mets (in 1984) and I came here for every game in the 1986 World Series," Gozzo said. "It was exciting pitching here. I had 40 passes for family members and friends. Now we can get together and celebrate tonight."

The Blue Jays remained tied with Milwaukee for second, 2½ games behind first-place Baltimore in the American League East. The Red Sox dropped 3½ out.

The Mets traded Gozzo along with pitcher Rick Anderson and catcher Ed Hearn to Kansas City on March 27, 1987, for pitcher David Cone and catcher Chris Jelic.

Gozzo never got a shot with the Royals, but he's come up big twice for the Blue Jays since Jimmy Key went on the disabled list.

"I'm ecstatic just being here pitching in the big leagues," Gozzo said. "It's one big thrill, a big dream come true."

Tony Fernandez had three hits and George Bell and Mookie Wilson had two hits each as every Toronto batter except Ernie Whitt had at least a single.

Mike Boddicker, 10-9, who had won seven of nine previous decisions, allowed 11 hits in 6⅔ innings.

"He didn't have as good stuff as he had in his first start, but he held them and that's what we needed," Fernandez said of Gozzo.

Gozzo, a son of Italian immigrants, graduated from Berlin High School, a short hike from the New Britain ballpark.

"The kid pitched well again," Toronto manager Cito Gaston said. "He throws strikes and goes right at the hitters. He got a little tired and I wanted him to go out on a good note."

Twins 6, Angels 3

Allan Anderson won his 14th game and fifth straight start, leading Minnesota over California at Anaheim.

The loss dropped the second-place Angels 1½ games behind Oakland in the AL West. California has lost four of its last five.

Al Newman had three hits, drove in a run and scored once for the Twins.

Newman's single sparked a two-run first-inning against Kirk McCaskill, 12-7, and he singled off reliever Greg Minton for the Twins' final run in the seventh.

Anderson, 14-9, allowed 10 hits in 7⅔ innings and Jeff Reardon got the last three outs for his 22nd save.

Orioles 4, Tigers 1

Craig Worthington's three-run homer in the 10th inning lifted Baltimore past Detroit at Tiger Stadium.

It was the Orioles' eighth victory in 10 extra-inning games this season, including 3-0 on the road. It was the last-place Tigers' 75th loss of the year, one more than all of last season.

Jack Morris, 2-10, allowed five hits in 10 innings, but two were home runs. Morris struck out eight, placing him second on the club's career list with 1,776, trailing Mickey Lolich by 903.

Dave Schmidt, 9-12, won his first decision since moving from the starting rotation to the bullpen on Aug. 7. Gregg Olson got the last three outs for his 18th save.

Brewers 5, Yankees 4

Gus Polidor, batting .194, singled in B.J. Surhoff with the winning run as Milwaukee rallied for three runs in the ninth inning off reliever Dave Righetti to beat New York at County Stadium. The victory moved the Brewers to .500 for the first time since April 28.

The Brewers were trailing 4-2 when Glenn Braggs opened the Brewers' ninth off Righetti, 2-4, with a double. Braggs went to third on Robin Yount's fly to right and scored on Greg Brock's infield out to make it 4-3. Pinch-hitter Joey Meyer drew a walk and Surhoff then doubled in pinch runner Tom Filer to tie the score 4-4.

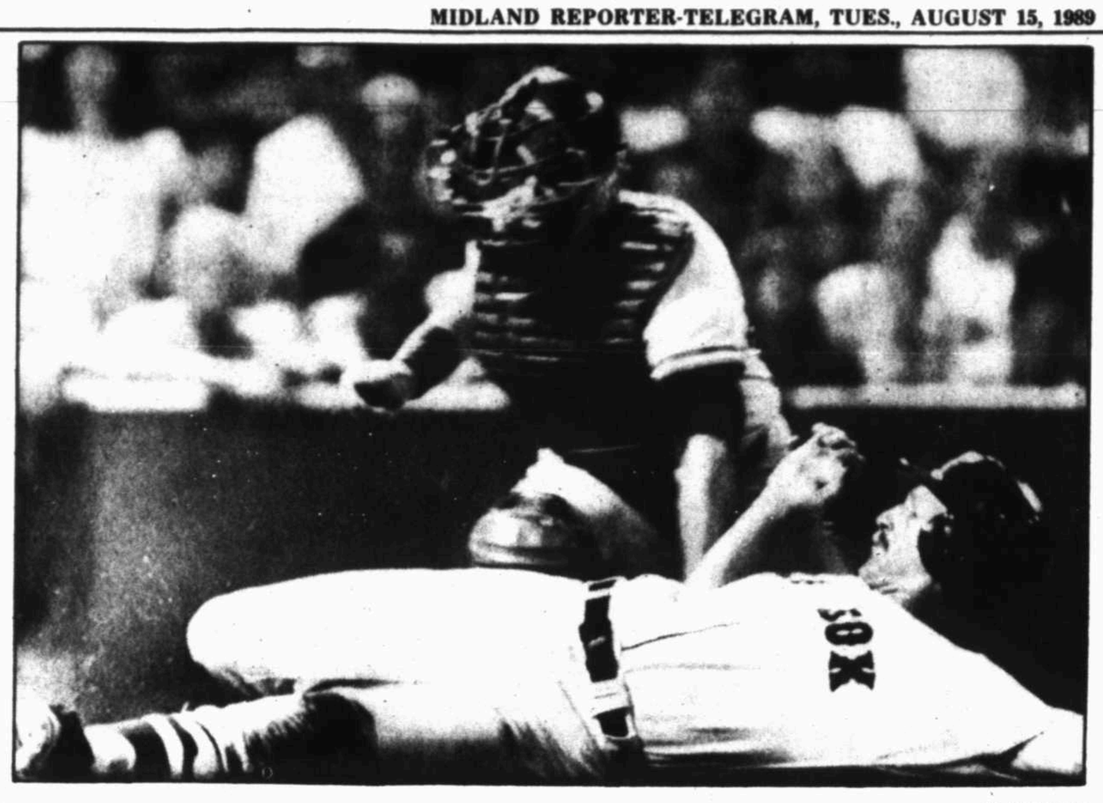

After an intentional walk to Mike Felder, Polidor grounded a hit past the third-base bag to score Surhoff.

White Sox 4, Royals 3

Pasqua, making his first start as designated hitter since returning from a knee injury, hit a 420-foot homer, his 10th, to tie the score 3-3 off Luis Aquino, 6-7.

Cards find life after Met series

Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals, all but left for dead after losing four of five games in New York over the weekend, came back to life Monday night.

"Our problem is we've got to get the hitting," said Manager Whitey Herzog after St. Louis swept the Atlanta Braves 7-4 and 5-2 in a doubleheader. "We've got to score more consistently in order to win. We don't have the kind of (pitchers) who can go out there and win 2-1."

Joe Magrane, winning for the 10th time in 11 starts, contributed a run-scoring single in the 7-4 opener.

"I just seem to be stumbling into balls," said Magrane, who homered in his previous start. "Knowing how I am as a pitcher when I face pitchers and they get hits off me, it really tees me off. I'm certainly not going to do any bragging."

If St. Louis is dead in its position, 5½ games behind Chicago in the NL East, it needs to be proved to Atlanta manager Russ Nixon.

"The Cardinals gave us a lesson in how to play baseball," Nixon said. "Magrane had good stuff, but he always has good stuff."

Rick Horton pitched 4⅔ innings of the nightcap before giving way to John Costello, 2-2, who pitched four hitless innings, and Ken Dayley, who got the final out for his 10th save.

"I owed Rick one," said Costello, who had blown a 3-0 lead that Horton took into the sixth inning of a 6-4 loss last Thursday night to the Mets. "I know he wasn't in line for the win, but I did not want to let him down again."

The victories left St. Louis two games behind New York and the Montreal Expos in the loss column and five behind the Cubs.

"If we could win our next 20 games, we'd be in there," Herzog said only half-facetiously. "We've got to hit the ball. We've got to score four or five runs more consistently."

Vince Coleman and Jose Oquendo each singled twice, walked, stole a base base and scored twice in the second game for the Cardinals.

NL Roundup

Pirates 6, Expos 1

Doug Drabek pitched a six-hitter and drove in two runs with a single as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat Montreal 6-1 Monday, sending the Expos to their ninth loss in 11 games.

Drabek, 10-9, has allowed three earned runs or less in 21 of his 25 starts this season. He walked one and struck out five.

Dennis Martinez, 12-3, lost his second straight start after winning 11 consecutive decisions.

With one out in the first, Jay Bell singled and scored on Bobby Bonilla's double. Glenn Wilson then blooped a single into shallow center field which bounced over the head of Dave Martinez. The center fielder was charged with an error as Bonilla scored and Wilson ended up on third.

Drabek drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the sixth and R.J. Reynolds scored from third on a fielder's choice when Drabek was caught in a rundown.

Cougs work with delicate balance

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston football coach Jack Pardee has been very emphatic this summer about starting the season injury-free.

"We have the talent to play with anyone in the country," Pardee said. "The bad news is it's a delicate balance. We don't have the depth to absorb many injuries."

However, preseason practice hasn't even started and already:

— The Cougars have lost starting linebacker Lamar Lathan for the early part of the season after he was injured in an on-campus auto accident.

— Backup offensive tackle Leroy Truitt hopes to return after being shot four times with a .32 caliber pistol outside a Texas City tavern.

— Pardee withdrew the scholarship extended to Dallas Carter recruit Gary Edwards after he pleaded guilty to a series of armed robberies.

Such a trend cannot continue if the Cougars expect to live up to their own expectations this season.

"We have a very fragile balance, we can go from being a great team to an average team real quick," Pardee said.

Cougar quarterback Andre Ware hasn't lost any confidence in the team's chances this season.

"We're not going to miss a beat as far as losing anybody," Ware said. "We're excited about the season and we're going to pick up where we left off."

The Cougars were one of the top offensive clubs in the country, with a final ranking of No. 18 in The Associated Press college poll.

Houston ranked second in the nation in pass offense, fourth in total offense and fourth in scoring.

SWC Preview

The Cougars became the first team in college history to have two 1,000-yard receivers and a 1,000-yard runner.

Jason Phillips led the nation with 108 receptions for 1,444 yards and 15 touchdowns and James Dixon caught 102 passes for 1,103 yards and 11 touchdowns.

They're gone but power-packed super back Chuck Weatherspoon, who gained 1,004 yards last season and scored 10 touchdowns, returns.

Weatherspoon took advantage of defenses spread out to cover the Cougars' run and shoot offense and averaged 8.5 yards per carry, which led the nation.

Kicker Roman Anderson also returns. He was the No. 5 scorer in the nation, converting all 51 extra points and 19 of 25 field goals for 108 points. The Cougars can't go to a bowl game this season because they're on NCAA probation, but that won't cause any motivational problems, Ware said.

"We want to go 11-0 and be nationally ranked as high in the top 10 as we can," he said. "We knew what was going to happen (probation) last year.

"We knew there would be a penalty but we didn't know it would be so severe. But everybody stayed. Only one guy left and we think we can be just as good or better this year."

Pardee returns six offensive and eight defensive starters from last year's team that finished 9-3 including a 24-22 loss to Washington State in the Aloha Bowl.

The Cougars lost senior tackle Glenn Montgomery, end Keith Jenkins and cornerback Johnny Jackson on defense.

Pardee also will have to replace tackle Terry Moser, guard Paul Hearn and center William Gant on offense but Ware expects the best.

"The offense has to execute and the defense has to have another good year," Ware said. "We've got some young guys coming in but it's just a matter of getting them some reps."

The Cougars will field a strong starting defense but they lack depth. In addition to moving Lathon to middle linebacker, Reggie Burnett went to strongside linebacker during spring drills.

"That puts them in places where they can be productive," Pardee said. "We had so many people hurt last year in the secondary that we had to juggle people. Now we're returning a lot of starters as a result of the injuries."

Ware hopes to improve on his 1988 performance in which he averaged 223.6 yards of total offense per game.

He completed 212 passes for 2,507 yards and a conference leading 25 touchdowns.

"I've put on about 10 pounds in the off season and I've been watching film every day," Ware said.

Houston opens the season Sept. 3 at Nevada-Las Vegas then has back-to-back open dates before playing at Arizona State Sept. 23.

Oilers' Drew Hill expects to report to camp soon

By REGGIE ROBERTS
Cox News Service

SAN MARCOS — Houston Oilers wide receiver Drew Hill late Monday night said he will end his holdout this week and could report to training camp Tuesday or Wednesday.

Hill, the team's leading receiver last season with 72 catches for 1,141 yards and 10 touchdowns, said he is reluctant to come to camp without a contract agreement from the Oilers.

"If I'm not there by tomorrow (Tuesday), I think I'll definitely be there Wednesday," Hill said. "I'd like to have something concrete on paper. I'd like to have the deal done before I step on the practice field."

Hill and his agent, Dr. Harold Daniels, met with Oilers General Manager Mike Holovak over the weekend in Tampa.

"I want to sit down with Mr. Holovak just as soon as he gets the time," said Daniels, who is seeking a three-year deal worth $2.2 million for Hill. "I want Drew in camp because he needs to be there."

Should Hill not report, the Oilers have several options — one of which is to place Hill on the retired list which would declare Hill ineligible for the 1989 season. Should that happen, the Oilers do not have to pay Hill any of the $400,000 salary he is still under contract for.

NOTES — One of the NFL's most celebrated tough guys has given his endorsement to one of its toughest teams — the Houston Oilers — for the 1989 season.

Former Chicago Bears linebacker Dick Butkus said Monday the Oilers will win the AFC Central Division because they play an aggressive brand of football.

Oregon gears for lottery, despite NFL warnings

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oregon Lottery retailers began gearing up today for the nation's first lottery-sponsored betting on professional football, despite warnings from the NFL that it might sue the state.

"We can't see that we're infringing on any legal rights of the NFL or we wouldn't be doing this," Lottery Director Jim Davey said at a news conference in Portland's Civic Stadium.

Davey used the news conference to explain the workings of the new betting game, which he predicted will generate $9 million a year for Oregon college athletic programs and scholarships.

Joining him were a number of coaches and officials from Portland State University, including football coach Pokey Allen.

"Any way that the state of Oregon can fund athletics is welcome," said Allen, who has taken his Vikings to the NCAA Division I national championships two years in a row.

Major college sports programs now receive no state money in Oregon.

The new game, called Sports Action, will be offered beginning Sept. 6 at computerized lottery outlets around the state.

Davey said that lottery officials began traveling around the state Monday to show retailers how the game works, explain the use of entry forms, and provide them with other details on operating the game.

Between 6 a.m. on Wednesdays and game time, players will be able to purchase a ticket to bet on from four to 10, or 14, NFL games with point spreads set by Nevada oddsmakers. The more games picked correctly the larger the payoff.

Players must use an official entry form being made available at retail sites and fill it out using a program listing "favorites" and "underdogs" that will be published in newspapers around the state.

Teams may be chosen by players of the new game, or they can allow the computer to select them.

Davey said the state is merely trying to tap into a $40 billion a year sports gambling industry and divert profits to the State System of Higher Education. He called it a choice between illegal gambling and supporting higher education in Oregon.

"Would you rather buy a Porsche for the bookie or help Oregon athletics?" Davey said.

But Joe Browne, an NFL spokesman in New York City, said in a telephone interview that lottery officials are merely promising more "pie in the sky."

"We continue to have serious reservations about football lotteries, in Oregon and in other states around the country," Browne said. "We have several weeks before the Oregon project kicks off and I cannot predict what our next step will be, but we cannot rule out anything, including litigation, at this point."

Bush aide nominated to head SEC

Breeden

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters and detractors of Richard C. Breeden agree his nomination as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission could define the Bush administration's response to the internationalization of financial markets.

President Bush on Monday named Breeden, point man on the new multibillion-dollar plan to bail out the savings-and-loan industry, to head the five-member SEC.

"He's an important member of the Bush team. It seems to me that Bush has placed a high priority on the SEC," said Lee Polson, executive director of the North American Securities Administrators Association, a national organization of state-level securities regulators.

Joseph R. Hardiman, president of the National Association of Securities Dealers, said Breeden "would be one who would be readily acceptable to the securities industry and one who would readily resolve the issues" facing the industry.

The White House announcement ended speculation about a successor for SEC Chairman David S. Ruder, who announced in May that he was stepping down.

The SEC post requires Senate confirmation.

Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of the securities subcommittee, said the challenges faced by the commission include "growing internationalization of financial markets and whether the SEC will have adequate resources in the 1990s."

"I look forward to the committee's hearings on Mr. Breeden, and to the opportunity they will afford to closely examine the Bush administration's plans in a number of key areas," Dodd said in a statement.

Created in 1934 during the Depression, the SEC oversees securities markets and regulates the sale of stocks, bonds and other securities as part of its mission to keep the markets honest while protecting investors.

Most recently, Breeden served as one of the architects of the S&L restructuring legislation, submitted in February, and guided it through Congress. The final plan, a sweeping rewrite of banking laws and the largest single-industry government bailout, was signed into law by Bush last week.

Securities industry leaders and Republicans generally hailed Bush's choice, but some Senate Democrats were less enthusiastic.

"I think it's a splendid appointment," said Roderick M. Hills, a former SEC chairman under President Ford.

"It's going to be a very hard time at the commission in these next few

Greenspan put on spot

ATLANTA — Budget Director Richard Darman has made it crystal clear Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan will be pilloried in public by the Bush administration if he screws up the soft landing he is trying to engineer for the economy.

Darman, who clearly fears the possibility of a recession as a result of the central bank's monetary policy, said Sunday the Fed should bring interest rates down even further to revitalize the softening economy.

Later, the White House tried to soften Darman's remarks by saying President Bush believes the Fed is "doing a good job." But significantly, it didn't disavow its budget director's message to the Fed.

Like most everything else, there's a downside even to the preferred soft landing, which is designed to produce more moderate economic growth with lower interest rates.

"The problem with a soft landing is that you don't put a dent in inflation," asserts Dr. Nariman Behravesh, one of the top economists at The WEFA Group, formerly Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates, of Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

Behravesh says the most likely economic scenario is a soft landing followed by a pickup in business activity that will eventually drive up inflation in terms of consumer prices to a new plateau of 6 percent.

"I think we'll have a repeat of what happened in the early 1970s, when we had creeping inflation," he adds.

The upward price spiral will eventually prompt the Fed to slam on the monetary brakes and trigger a recession to drive inflation back down to a more acceptable level, the economist suggests.

The WEFA organization looks for the annual rate of economic growth to be a sluggish 1.3 percent or so in the second half of 1989, with weakness in business activity carrying on into the first quarter of 1990.

But then WEFA forecasts a brisk pickup in activity in the second

REAL ESTATE

Prices, rates plague home sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — High mortgage rates and rising prices continued to plague sales of existing homes in the second quarter, a real estate trade group reported today, with 41 states and the District of Columbia posting declines.

At the same time, the National Association of Realtors said booming prices made housing most expensive on the West Coast and the Northeast in the April-June period.

The median price of a home in the San Francisco Bay area, the most expensive market, was $265,700, the Realtors said, compared with Peoria, Ill., which had the lowest median price of $47,700.

The median price means half of the houses sold for more and half for less.

The Realtors said their quarterly survey of sales of previously owned homes showed a seasonally adjusted annual resale rate of 3.72 million units, down 3.1 percent from the January-March quarter.

NAR President Ira Gribin said the sales reflected a lagging response to drops in interest rates that began in May.

"It took some time for the market to turn," he said. "Now, the people who can afford to get in the market are house-hunting."

But Gribin said the survey also indicates that home ownership is slipping further out of reach for first-time buyers in areas with expensive housing.

"High-cost areas are losing their entry-level market," he said, and in some high-cost markets, mortgage rates are forcing buyers to purchase less-expensive homes.

Washington, D.C., was the only area outside of the West Coast and Northeast ranking near the top of the price list. The nation's capital had a median price of $139,900.

Ranked second in the median price list behind San Francisco was Honolulu, with a price of $265,500, followed by Orange County, Calif., $247,600; Los Angeles, $218,000; and Boston, $188,600.

By region, the West posted an 18.7 percent median price increase in the second quarter over the April-June quarter of 1988. It was followed by the Midwest, up 4.9 percent; the South, up 4.6 percent; and the Northeast, up 3.5 percent.

The Northeast was the only region to post an increase in sales of existing homes, up 1.3 percent.

Bell phone strike begins to get hot

By POLLY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

A union official Monday blasted a proposal by one of four strikebound regional telephone companies, while a company car belonging to another "Baby Bell" was burned and a man was critically injured in a picket line accident.

Nearly 200,000 operators, clerks, installers and other workers stayed off the job in 20 states and the District of Columbia. Strikes began the weekend of Aug. 5-6 at New York-based NYNEX, Philadelphia-based Bell Atlantic and San Francisco-based Pacific Telesis. On Sunday, workers at Chicago-based Ameritech joined them.

Workers at the other three so-called Baby Bell companies have reached tentative settlements with the two big telephone unions, the Communications Workers of America and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

They are Atlanta-based BellSouth, which settled Aug. 5, and Denver-based US West and St. Louis based Southwestern Bell, which both reached settlements Sunday.

Officials at the four struck companies said customers were experiencing some delays in directory assistance, operator-assisted calls and repair services, but management employees were being trained to take up part of the slack.

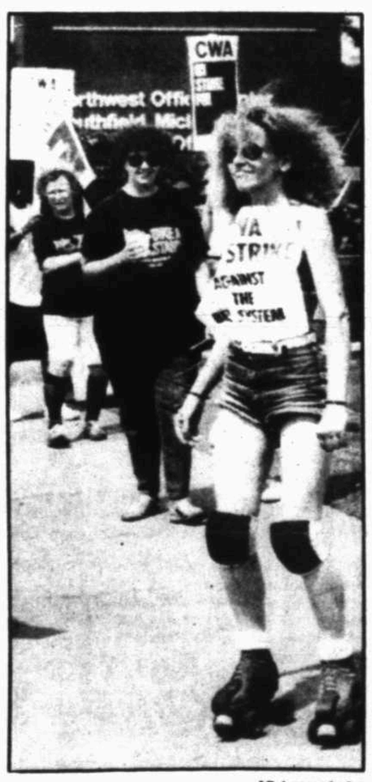

"Four thousand people can't do the job of 12,800, but they're doing the best they can," said Eileen Dixon, a spokeswoman for Michigan Bell, an Ameritech subsidiary.

Libraries have reported a high demand from people wanting telephone numbers but unable to reach a directory assistance operator.

"One day last week I had the Manhattan white pages and the Philadelphia white pages out and didn't bother reshelfing them between calls," Terry Tilden of the State Library in Harrisburg, Pa., said Monday.

Representatives of Bell Atlantic and striking workers met for about an hour Monday afternoon, and the company presented a revised proposal, said Kenneth Pitt, a company spokesman. The company was await-

NCNB plans downsize, restructure

DALLAS (AP) — NCNB Texas National Bank has initiated a program of staff restructuring whereby 2,000 of its 15,000 job positions will be affected over the next 18 months, a spokeswoman said.

"Affected doesn't necessarily mean eliminated," NCNB spokeswoman Martha Larsh said Monday.

She said there would be no layoffs, although positions would be eliminated through attrition, "but that number hasn't been determined."

"I think there will be jobs affected at all levels," she said.

NCNB Texas completed its assumption from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. of First Republic-Bank Corp. on Aug. 9.

Reducing the staff was necessary for NCNB to become a statewide bank, Ms. Larsh said.

Ms. Larsh said that while there is not a hiring freeze at NCNB Texas, the bank this year has adopted "very stringent guidelines about hiring from the outside. It requires the highest level of approval."

New line of leaner beef introduced

PHOENIX (AP) — Expecting retail beef sales to drop sharply as consumers continue to switch to poultry and fish, Sun Land Beef Co. announced Monday introduction of a new lean line of fresh beef in an attempt to counter that trend.

In 1989 alone, beef consumption has dropped to 66.8 pounds per person, a reduction of an estimated 5.7 pounds, said Vern Swanson, vice president of Golden Trim, a division of Sun Land Beef based in suburban Tolleson. In 1976 Americans each ate on average 94.4 pounds of beef a year, he said.

In comparison, Americans on average increased their poultry intake by about 30 pounds from 1976 to 1989, another spokesperson said.

Swanson said overall sale of retail beef may drop by more than $4 billion this year.

To combat that trend, Sun Land introduced a new line of beef that's between 91 and 98 percent fat-free while having the taste, texture and nutrients of regular beef, said Sun Land spokeswoman Beth Meyer.

The line, called Golden Trim, is expected to compare favorably with chicken, fish and veal because it has four times less fat, half the calories and almost 20 percent less cholesteral than regular beef, Ms. Meyer said.

"You'll find this more tender," Swanson said. "By processing (the meat) very early after the slaughter it actually has a higher moisture content."

In addition, the animals are slaughtered when they are about 16 to 18 months old, which is about two months earlier than cows slaughtered in the Midwest, Swanson said.

The entire line comes out of the Tolleson facility which uses grain-fed cattle from the local area, Swanson said.

The product line includes 27 cuts of prepackaged beef, ranging from filet mignon to stewing meat, and is the only fresh beef to carry USDA-approved nutrition labeling, Ms. Meyers said. It also carries cooking instructions because it takes one-third less time than regular beef because it is so lean.

Swanson predicted some Phoenix-area stores will be carrying Golden Trim within about 30 days at about the same price consumers now pay for regular beef.

"It's just an extension of the meat-line," he said and predicted other meat companies soon will follow suit.

The product is already being sold in parts of New York and in Houston, where it was test-marketed under the name Agrilite, Ms. Meyers said.

Oil prices continue higher

From Staff and Wire Reports

Oil futures prices continue higher.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, September contracts for West Texas Intermediate were up 12 cents to $18.70 at midmorning. The contract gained 10 cents to close at $18.58 Monday, but most contract months for later delivery were lower.

Contracts were traded in a listless session as the market continued in its summer doldrums with no significant events on the horizon to influence price movements. Gasoline futures were mixed.

Among refined products traded on the exchange, unleaded regular gasoline for September delivery jumped 0.63 cent to 52.09 cents a gallon. Many contracts for later delivery fell.

Heating oil futures declined after leading the market higher last week. The September contract slipped 0.16 cent to finish at 50.04 cents a gallon. Other contracts had smaller declines.

Analysts said the market turned in a dull performance, with no fresh news to influence prices. They said traders are looking forward to Labor Day for a pickup in activity and beyond that to the next scheduled meeting, on Sept. 23, of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Dollar higher in quiet trading

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar was consolidating at higher levels in early European trading today.

Gold prices were little changed.

Foreign currency dealers said the market was very quiet. Financial institutions were closed in Italy for a national holiday.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose for the fourth consecutive trading day, closing up 0.27 yen at 142.20 yen. Later, in London, it was quoted at 142.30 yen.

In London, the dollar rose against the British pound. It cost $1.5771 to buy one pound, compared with $1.5840 late Monday.

Gold opened in London at $364.85 a troy ounce, compared with late Monday's $364. At midmorning, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $364.70.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold rose $1.42 to close at $365.72.

"There's nothing going on," said one bullion dealer in London. "Gold is still in the doldrums."

Stocks continue retreating

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks retreated further in quiet trading Monday from near-record levels reached last week, but brokers said the underlying market remains strong.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 6.07 points to finish at 2,677.92.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 2 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 986 issues down, 473 up and 532 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 142.01 million shares, down from 197.55 million in the previous session.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 166.84 million shares.

Stock prices rose late Monday morning but quickly reversed course again and seesawed through the remainder of the session. Blue-chip stocks rallied early in the afternoon but the broader market failed to keep pace and the rally was soon aborted, analysts said.

Potential suitors keep UAL stock rising

CHICAGO (AP) — UAL Corp.'s stock price kept rising amid unconfirmed reports that several suitors have expressed interest in buying the airline company.

UAL rose $1.50 to close at $258.50 a share Monday in New York Stock Exchange trading. The increase followed a gain of about 56 percent last week following a $240-a-share takeover proposal to UAL, parent of United Airlines, from Los Angeles investor Marvin Davis.

The New York leveraged buyout firms Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co and Forstmann Little & Co. also reportedly have expressed interest to UAL officials in buying the Chicago-based company, while officials of New York-based Pan Am Corp. have stated they were interested in a possible merger.

Residential starts at six-year low

NEW YORK (AP) — Construction of houses, apartments and condominiums fell 8 percent in the second quarter to the lowest rate in more than six years, said the F.W. Dodge Group of McGraw-Hill Information Services Co.

Chicago trader pleads innocent to fraud

CHICAGO (AP) — A former trader in the Chicago Mercantile Exchange's yen futures pit became the 13th futures trader to plead innocent to charges stemming from the federal probe of suspected fraud in the world's largest futures markets.

Sidel, accused of defrauding his customers at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, is charged with one count of violating the Commodities Exchange Act and one count of mail fraud.

Wy-Cal Pipeline, PG&E sign transportation pact

HOUSTON (SWN) — Wyoming-California Pipeline Co., a unit of The Coastal Corporation, announced that Pacific Gas and Electric Co. (PG&E) has exercised its right to contract for firm transportation capacity on the WyCal system for 50 million cubic feet per day of natural gas from the Rocky Mountain area.

The contract, which covers a term of 20 years, provides for WyCal to take delivery of PG&E's gas in the state of Wyoming and transport it for redelivery to PG&E at mutually agreeable points within the state of California.

WyCal, a partnership owned by two Coastal subsidiaries, earlier this year received a final certificate from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) that authorizes WyCal to build and operate a 1,000-mile natural gas transmission system from Wyoming to Kern County, California. Through interconnections with other pipelines, WyCal can transport gas originating in several areas.

PG&E's right to purchase firm transportation capacity on the WyCal system was one provision included in a comprehensive settlement agreement announced by the two companies last March. By exercising its right to contract for firm capacity on the WyCal pipeline, PG&E also acquires an option to acquire up to 25 percent ownership interest in the WyCal system.

"We are very pleased that PG&E has decided to contract for firm transportation capacity on the WyCal system," said D. Lamar Smith, president of WyCal. "This participation and commitment by California's largest utility is an important step in providing new interstate natural gas pipeline capacity for California."

Another major California utility, Southern California Edison Company, has signed a letter of intent with WyCal for a transportation agreement under which Southern California Edison would transport a minimum of 50 million cubic feet of gas a day on the WyCal system for an initial term of 15 years.

Texaco boosts Argentina exploration

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Texaco Inc. has increased its exploration interests in Argentina to more than 19 million acres.

Texaco said its subsidiary in Argentina, Texaco Petrolera Argentina S.A., has entered into nine new exploration contracts with Argentina's state oil company, Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales.

Texaco, which has done business in Argentina since 1922, said it expects to complete the contracts by next Monday.

The nine contracts were awarded to Texaco as part of the "Houston Plan," a program by Argentina's state oil company started in 1985 to open the country's petroleum industry to private investment.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Brokers earn living by earning commissions

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Our total savings amount to $175,000. My husband recently gave his stock broker $20,000 to put into a certificate of deposit. This man is a friend of my husband, but I feel he is also looking out for himself. Did the broker make a commission on the CD?

A. Almost certainly, the broker was paid for that transaction. Perhaps it wasn't called a "commission," but some kind of payment — most likely called a "fee" — was collected by the broker. You really can't object to that. That's how brokers earn their living.

Doyle

Besides handling buy and sell transactions in securities, thereby collecting commissions, brokerage firms also sell other financial products — including CDs issued by banks and savings and loan associations. In this "deposit brokerage" business, brokerage firms keep track on which institutions are paying the highest interest and send their customers' money there.

That works out well for customers, because they get high interest without going to a great deal of trouble. It's also a good deal for the broker, because he gets paid by the banks and S&Ls whose CDs he sells.

You needn't worry about that $20,000 CD, assuming it is at a bank with Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage or a thrift institution with Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. coverage.

Q. My husband's broker wants to sell us a $25,000 split annuity issued by an insurance company. The annuity pays a fixed interest rate of 8.6. What will the broker's commission be on something like this?

A. That depends on the particular annuity, the insurance company and the arrangement the insurance company has with the broker. The broker might get as much as 4 or 5 percent of the $25,000 — $1,000 to $1,250 — for selling that annuity. But he might get less. Commission arrangements vary widely.

If you were talking about a variable annuity, you could learn the commission charge and other costs easily enough by reading the prospectus covering the offering of the annuity for sale. A broker or other sales person is required to give you a copy of the prospectus for a variable annuity at or before the time of the first sales pitch.

That's because, some 25 years ago, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that variable annuities are securities and subject to Securities and Exchange Commission regulation.

Fixed annuities are a different breed of cat. They are regulated by state insurance authorities. It often is very difficult to get an accurate reading on the commission and other costs of fixed annuities.

However, you can always ask your broker for that information. Assuming he or she is an honest person, as most brokers are, that cost data should be forthcoming.

Q. We are an 85-year-old couple with $6,186.01 in an interest-paying checking account at the local office of a federal savings bank, which has FSLIC coverage. I want to transfer our account to a commercial bank, which has FDIC coverage. My wife vehemently objects. She says the tellers at the local bank office are so nice to us they could not be nicer and the office is within walking distance.

I want to keep peace in the family, but it seems to me peace could cost over $6,000. Any suggestions?

A. Keep the peace by leaving your money where it is. It won't cost you a dime. FSLIC coverage is just as rock-solid safe as FDIC coverage — both up to $100,000 per depositor per institution. Your account is well below that coverage limit.

The safety of your money plus the convenience and friendly attitude your wife cites are good reasons to leave things as they are.

years," said Hills, now in private legal practice in New York. "The focus is going to be different. Our companies are going to seek capital abroad and foreign companies are going to be seeking capital here."

Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, also praised Breeden's intelligence and work on the savings and loan bailout but said, "He brings a limited direct market experience to this critical assignment and that is a matter of some concern when the SEC faces a time of epic challenge."

Breeden, a 39-year-old lawyer and banking specialist, said through an aide he will not speak with reporters until after his Senate confirmation.

Breeden, whose job as presidential assistant for issues analysis made him something of a White House trouble shooter, also helped fashion administration policy for dealing with the Alaska oil spill.

Breeden was deputy counsel to Vice President Bush from 1982 to 1985.

Earlier, he was a securities specialist with a New York law firm, and between government assignments worked in the Washington office of a Houston law firm.

He was also directed a task force on deregulation headed by Bush as vice president, and wrote the panel's report on the deregulation of financial services.

But Polson said he saw no irony in a former deregulator's appointment to a major regulatory agency.

"When Chairman Ruder was picked, he was widely characterized as a deregulator, too," said Polson "I don't think it's useful in determining how he's going to perform as chairman of the SEC."

quarter of 1990, with growth rising to a robust annual rate of almost 4 percent in the second half.

And that, according to the WEFA scenario, is where the trouble comes in, as the strong economy drives inflation in terms of consumer prices toward 6 percent in 1991. The Fed's restrictive reaction to halt the inflationary spiral will likely result in a recession in 1991 or 1992, Dr. Behravesh says.

How does this fit in with Greenspan's declaration that he favors a monetary policy that over a period of three to five years would reduce the rate of inflation to near zero?

"I don't think it is a realistic goal because it would take a very steep recession to get inflation down to a near-zero level, or a restrictive monetary policy to keep economic growth down to a rate of 1.5 to 2 percent over the next three to five years," says Behravesh.

"Furthermore, I believe that in his heart, Mr. Greenspan doesn't think it can be done, even if he talks like it. But he is committed to fighting inflation, and he has to try to talk inflation down."

STRIKE

ing a union response, he said.

"We've been making progress, obviously," Pitt said. "We'd like our people back and every day we hope it's the last day of the strike."

But CWA spokesman Jim Willer said the company's health-insurance proposal was "unacceptable." According to Willer, the company continued to demand that workers pay deductibles in addition to half the premiums for relatives other than spouses and children. The union refuses to pay any deductibles or premiums.

Willer said the company agreed to give an advisory committee on health benefits more power, but said, "This obvious superficial attempt to settle the contract is yet another in a long list of insults."

The issue of who pays for health insurance has been a key issue in several of the negotiations, as management has tried to shift some of the costs onto the workers.

A spokesman for Pacific Bell, a subsidiary of Pacific Telesis, said talks were planned later in the day. But no talks were scheduled at NYNEX or at the strikebound subsidiaries of Ameritech.

In the East, there were several incidents of trouble linked or possibly linked to the strike:

— A NYNEX picket, Edward G. Horgan, 34, was hospitalized in critical condition after he fell off a car that had brushed him on a picket line in the New York suburb of Mount Pleasant, police said.

Police Chief Paul Oliva said that an 18-year-old NYNEX employee was driving on the service road of a NYNEX facility when her car brushed Horgan, after he and several other pickets gathered around her car and yelled at her.

Horgan mounted the hood of the slowly moving car and pounded on the windshield, but slid off and hit his head on the pavement, according to the police account. The union disputed that, saying he fell onto the hood when the young woman accelerated. No charges were filed.

New York Telephone Co. President Fred Salerno appealed for calm after the accident and said he had asked the union to resume negotiations "to try and calm the waters."

— In Elmont, N.Y., police said a NYNEX car was burned shortly after midnight in a company parking lot. The fire, which police described as suspicious, also caused minor damage to a building nearby.

— Most of West Virginia was without long distance service for about eight hours beginning late Sunday when an aerial cable was damaged. Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone spokeswoman Roberta Fowlkes said vandalism couldn't be ruled out as the cause of the outage, which affected 600,000 customers. Lines also were damaged in the Sissonville area, affecting local service.

Scattered incidents of strike-related vandalism were reported last week, including several incidents of damaged lines in New Jersey. Peter Ventimiglia, a spokesman for New Jersey Bell, said Monday that the company had counted more than 175 incidents of vandalism or sabotage last week, but no new incidents had been reported Sunday night or Monday morning.

The "Baby Bell" companies were formed in 1984 by the court-ordered breakup of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. AT&T reached union contracts earlier this year and was not directly affected by the strike.

The Ameritech walkout affected 35,000 CWA members and 12.3 million customers in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. Ameritech subsidiaries also employ 13,500 IBEW members, most of them in Illinois. That union advised members to follow their own consciences when deciding whether to work or honor CWA picket lines; it appeared Monday that most were going to work.

Pacific Telesis has 42,000 CWA members and 2,500 IBEW members on strike. It sewrves northern Nevada and all of California.

Bell Atlantic has 41,000 CWA workers and 11,500 IBEW members and provides service in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

NYNEX has 40,000 CWA workers and 20,000 IBEW members and provides service in all or part of New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Connecticut.

Disney accuses firm of pirating cassettes

New York Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Walt Disney Co. said Monday that it had filed an anti-piracy lawsuit against a Pennsylvania company, accusing it of producing and selling bootleg copies of numerous Disney animated films not officially available on video cassette.

The lawsuit accuses Charles Forment and Nostalgia Video of Bethlehem, Pa., of pirating and selling copies of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Fantasia," "Peter Pan" and at least 19 other Disney animated features for $30 each.

After receiving a court order, Disney said, federal marshals raided two locations and seized copies of pirated video cassettes along with approximately 18 video cassette recorders believed to be have been used for illegal duplication.

The cache of at least 22 movie titles confiscated represented the most extensive list of Disney animated titles ever discovered at a single reputed source of piracy, Disney said.

The action against Forment and Nostalgia Video was filed in the U.S. District Court for Eastern Pennsylvania after an investigation by the film and video security office of the Motion Picture Association of America.

Forment could not be reached for comment. No one answered calls to a telephone number said to be for his business.

Judy Denenholz, a Disney attorney, said the company had not yet determined the amount of damages it would seek because it did not know how many allegedly pirated video cassettes were sold.

Mid-West Door & Window offers protective investments

Summer is definitely here, and is evident by the higher utility bills and discomfort in homes. Mid-West Door and Window has some good ideas that will help ease the pain of utility bills and allow you to be more comfortable as well.

Custom-fitted storm windows and doors will keep the heat out and the cool in, thus making your home more comfortable and energy efficient.

You might say storm windows and doors have six advantages.

It's a protective investment in regards to heating, cooling, security, added beauty to your home, and protection from dust and from hail storms.

Mid-West offers a wide selection of storm windows such as Reynolds, Mason and Peerless brands. All are different shapes, finishes and prices to allow you to pick the one that best suits your home and pocketbook.

Mid-West also offers storm doors by Peerless and Emco for extra insulation, beauty and security. These doors come with tempered safety glass, adjustable door sweeps and double locksets with keyed exteriors.

And to backup these doors, Mid-West Door and Window puts a one-year limited warranty on it.

You can't go wrong with these doors — with as much traffic that goes through doors, you need one that will last.

Exterior doors are also a specialty at Mid-West Door and Window. Mid-West does any type of door installation and you can be assured that the door will operate properly, be airtight and beautify your home.

Mid-West offers a wide variety of doors made of white pine and beautiful hardwoods and it offers insulated steel doors as well.

These doors are available in many styles and designs as well as glazing options such as beveled leaded glass or insulated glass, colored glass and much more to accommodate any style home.

Mid-West goes one step further to preserve and protect your home from Mother Nature's harsh elements with low maintenance exteriors by Revere.

Mid-West can apply steel fascia, aluminum soffit to brick homes and steel siding, fascia and soffit to wood frame homes.

Whatever the application, it will give your home a low maintenance exterior and allow you, the homeowner, the time to enjoy doing what you enjoy, rather than sanding, scraping and painting.

Low maintenance exteriors not only save you the hassle of painting, but also preserves and protects your structure for years to come. This means large savings to you the homeowner.

Low maintenenance exteriors also increase your home value and they increase resale values.

So why fool around with the biggest investment you have. Don't fall for the high pressure gimmicks or the big advertised specials. Call the professionals at Mid-West Door and Window, 682-4632, for all your home exterior needs.

Or stop by the showroom at 2400 W. Front. You will be glad you did and so will your home.

Showroom hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Mid-West Door and Window has a new van for your home improvement needs. Stop by the showroom at 2400 West Front and let the Mid-West professionals help you find a storm door or window to fit your needs.

The offer which best serves the interest of VA will be processed for acceptance. The name of the successful offeror and sales broker will appear in subsequent publications. VA will accept cash offers up to 10 percent below the advertised term sales price. VA also will pay reasonable loan discount points and buyers' closing costs on cash offers when requested on the Cash Sale Addendum to Offer to Purchase. However, the combined loan discount points, buyers closing costs to be paid by VA and the discount for cash may not exceed 10 percent of the term list price. Offers must be submitted at term listed price when buyers request a new GI loan with $1.00 move-in. Interest rate of available financing is 9.5 percent (APR 9.6 percent).

Purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing (Term Sales) must have VA Form 26-6705B, Credit Statement of Prospective Purchaser and Verification of Employment/Income, as outlined in Sales of VA-Acquired Properties Manual, attached to their VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale. Effective June 8, 1988, all credit underwriting for purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing is being referred to Miller and Davis PC. All brokers are reminded to refer to PM letter #17-88 dated May 25, 1988, outlining these new procedures. Purchase offers not accompanied by the required employment/income verification WILL RESULT IN REJECTION OF THE PURCHASE OFFER.

Prior approval will be required by VA for the transfer of a property secured by a vendee loan if the loan is not paid in full as part of the transfer. Public Law 100-689 also permits VA to charge a one-half of 1 percent funding fee for the transfer as well as a fee for processing the approval of the transfer.

VA has properties for sale statewide. If you desire to purchase properties in other areas, please contact any sales broker located in the area in which you are interested.

FORFEITURE OF EARNEST MONEY DEPOSIT

Prior to signing the offer, broker must deposit in broker's trust account the $500 earnest money deposit. The Earnest Money Agreement (Exhibit "H") must be signed by the purchaser(s) and submitted along with the VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on all offers. The $500 earnest money deposit will be remitted to Miller and Davis PC upon acceptance of the offer. Once a purchase offer has been accepted for processing by VA and subsequently cancelled at the request of the purchaser, the earnest money deposit WILL NOT be refunded and the purchaser will be required to forfeit the earnest money to the VA as liquidation expenses. There will be no exception to this policy. Therefore, the VA suggests that all brokers interview their buyers to assure they want the property prior to submission of an offer to purchase. VA pays 6% sales commission. Offers are subject to the provisions of VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on which all offers must be submitted. VA Form 26-6705 must be submitted in duplicate to:
