State changes may mean expanded school day

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

The Snyder High School graduating class of 1988 will receive their diplomas under guidelines quite different from those prescribed for current seniors.

These changes will be prompted by a state plan now moving closer to adoption by the Texas State Board of Education.

This plan is in response to House Bill 246, which itself addresses criticism that the Texas education system has swung too far away from basic education in favor of "elective" type courses.

To understand the proposed changes at the high school level — the area which has drawn the most scrutiny statewide — one must first understand the current requirements for graduation at SHS.

There are currently six classroom periods during the school day. During the four years of high school, this means students may take a maximum of 24 classes. For each class that is passed, a student earns a "credit."

To graduate, a senior must have passed 21 credits. As part of this 21 credits, seniors are now allowed to take eight "elective" classes.

Elective courses are those generally considered for "enrichment" and include such areas as athletics, choir, band, vocational agriculture, home economics, drama, industrial arts, photography, journalism, art, business education and driver's education.

The remaining courses required are related to what is considered more basic education such as English, math and science.

The requirements at SHS are above the current state standards and approximately the same as the newly proposed state plan.

The current state requirement is that Texas high schools require at least 18 credits for graduation. Snyder's 21-credit requirement is the same

$69,600 netted at sale

Junior livestock producers netted $69,600 for their efforts Saturday as 118 animals were sold by auction to conclude the 40th Annual Scurry County Junior Livestock Show.

Topping the sale list was the show's grand champion steer which brought exhibitor Rana Eicke $2,000 from the Championship Club, a consortium of several local businesses.

The next highest price for a single animal was paid to Brett Merritt, who collected $1,625 from Patterson Drilling of Snyder for his heavyweight crossbred steer. His animal was named reserve champion at the Friday judging.

Thad Springer, owner of the 1984 grand champion lamb, collected $1,025 for his heavyweight crossbred entry. Top bidder for the animal was Bassinger B&B Package Store of Colorado City.

Also leaving the auction with a four figure price tag was the grand champion hog, exhibited by Melissa Anderson of Hermleigh. It sold for $1,000 and the Championship Club was high bidder.

The Championship Club also claimed the show's remaining two champions paying $575 for the reserve champion lamb and $500 for the reserve champion hog. Both the second place hog and lamb were owned and shown by Ben Smith of Hermleigh.

PREMIUM SALE—Over 200 spectators and buyers were on hand in the Scurry County Coliseum Ag Annex Saturday afternoon as auctioneer Tommy Marricle sold 118 of the top finishers in the 40th Annual Scurry County Junior Livestock Show. Death penalty law vote nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to re-establish the death penalty for espionage and certain other federal crimes is heading toward a final Senate vote, with proponents and opponents predicting passage by a comfortable margin.

The Senate will complete work on the long-debated death penalty measure this week, but will first pause to honor George Washington on the national holiday set aside to honor the firs' president's birth.

Although the House doesn't end its 10-day recess until Tuesday, the Senate was scheduled to return today for a traditional reading of Washington's farewell address to Congress. This year, freshman Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., will deliver the 30-minute speech.

Passage of the death-penalty legislation appeared assured when the Senate on Feb. 9 broke a threatened liberal filibuster against it on a 65-26 vote.

That vote limited further debate on the measure to a maximum of 100 hours, but it seems unlikely the full allowable time will be used.

The legislation is designed to comply with Supreme Court rulings establishing constitutional standards for use of capital punishment.

It authorizes the death penalty for treason, espionage, homicide on federal property and, under certain circumstances, attempts on the life of the president.

It also could be imposed in cases where death results from explosives, murder of foreign officials, aircraft piracy and kidnapping.

Later in the week, the Senate may take up legislation extending for six years a ban on exporting oil from Alaska's North Slope. It was imposed as part of the agreement for building the trans-Alaska oil pipeline, but many in Alaska want at least a partial lifting of the prohibition. Many senators, however, hold that the United States should not export any of its limited domestic oil production.

On Wednesday, the House is expected to vote to establish a Select Committee on Hunger that would study the problems of hunger and malnutrition in the United States as well as worldwide.

WTC prof wins statewide office

Richard Lancaster, associate professor of English at Western Texas College, was elected secretary of the Texas Junior College Teachers Association Friday at the organization's annual convention in Houston.

Lancaster was chosen by a membership vote after being proposed by an association nominating committee.

Two candidates were nominated. The other was Henry Castillo of Temple Junior College in Temple.

Lancaster has served in the past as chairman of the TJCTA Professional Development Committee.

In addition at the Houston meeting, John Forshee, assistant professor of government and political science at WTC, was appointed vice chairman of TJCTA's Legislative Committee, one of three standing committees for the organization.

SHS, SJHS choir singers win superior UIL rating

Members of the Snyder High School and Junior High School choirs were winners Saturday in Abilene at the Region II UIL solo and ensemble contests.

Thirty nine local singers won medals for first division (superior) ratings at the competition.

Entries sang individually for contest judges. They were then rated for their respective performances on a scale of 1 (superior) to 5 (poor).

Local students earning a first in both solo and ensemble performances were Jon Traylor, David Etheredge, Brad McSpadden, Chris Dorn, Marvin Morrell, Kim Koening, John Pyburn, Diane Ford, Chere Curfman, Kristi Neill, Jeff McGuire, Dawn Farmer and Michell Harper.

Earning first division ratings in solo competition only were: Pam Williams, Robyn Fambro, Mickey Broach, Jeana Fox, Elaine Smylie, Cindy Tolbert, Sheila Martin, Lawrence McCown, Teka Eicke, and Geoff Chamblee.

Those winning the first division rating in ensemble competition only were Chelle Kruger, Kay Hammack, Teresa Waller, Charles McCormick, Gina Vaughan, Patty Martinez, Robert Patterson, Lisa Robbins, Sue Smylie, Karl Menges, Missy McIntire, Lisa Thompson, John Helms, Mitch Page, Amy Wilson, and Donnie Chapman.

The SHS and SJHS choirs are under the direction of Bill Lyon and Barbara Perkins.

Ask Us

Q. — Regarding the public school issue, we hear about plans from the UIL, the Texas Education Agency and the State Board of Education. Who's working for whom?

A. — The State Board of Education adopts policies which must be followed by all state school districts. The Texas Education Agency is the entity which sees that the state board's policies are implemented. The UIL has no relation to the state agencies. It is a group made up of and representing school districts. The UIL adopts policies which must be followed by school districts which participate in UIL competitive events.

In Brief

Italy troops withdraw

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Government troops fought off rebel attacks on the strategic mountain town of Souk el-Gharb today, and Italy withdrew its peacekeeping troops from their positions in Beirut.

The U.S. Marine contingent of the peacekeeping force has begun moving equipment and non-combat personnel from its base at Beirut's airport, and an American source said today he expects the Marines to be out of the city by next week.

"The redeployment plan has been approved, and the Marines are just awaiting the order to execute it," said the source, who asked not to be identified. "I don't expect the Marines to be at the airport next week."

Police said 16 people were killed and 60 wounded in battles overnight in central Beirut and at Souk el-Gharb, which overlooks the presidential palace and the Marine base.

Mondale expects win

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Democrats begin the process of picking their presidential candidate today with former Vice President Walter F. Mondale looking for victory in Iowa's precinct caucuses — the start of the long trail to the nomination this summer in San Francisco.

The candidates have all but wrapped up campaigning in the longest, most expensive "exhibition season" yet, as eight Democratic men fight for the right to challenge President Reagan in the fall elections.

Today, as the Rev. Jesse Jackson says, the "regular season" begins.

Mondale, leading in the polls both here and in New Hampshire where the first primary will be held next week, stopped short of claiming victory.

"I think we are doing well in Iowa," he told reporters in Jacksonville, Fla. "Iowans will now decide. I'm content we've done everything we could to deal with the issues."

To question look-a-like

DALLAS (AP) — Lenell Geter's defense strategy in his second trial on an armed robbery charge will include a lie detector test of a prison inmate who resembles him, Geter's lawyers say.

Ed Sigel, a Dallas lawyer representing Geter, said Jerry Jerome Stepney previously failed a polygraph test when questioned about the holdup for which Geter was convicted and given a life sentence.

Geter, 26, was freed in December after serving nearly 16 months of the sentence. Prosecutors said public pressure and allegations that Geter was arrested because he is black prompted them to agree to a new trial.

6th grade sing set March 1

The annual combined choir program for Snyder sixth graders is now scheduled March 1. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Worsham Auditorium at Snyder High School.

The elementary choirs are under the direction of Donna Smith at East Elementary; J.D. Smith at Central Elementary; Paula Howard at North Elementary; Dorothy Kayser at Northeast Elementary; Monette O'Day at Stanfield Elementary; and Mary Lou Scott at West Elementary.

The program will be open to the public at no charge.

Jewelry taken in burglary

Irene Garza of 219 35th St. reported some $300 in jewelry taken from her residence some time either Friday night or Saturday morning.

She reported the burglary incident at 1:36 p.m. Saturday. Police were told someone entered the house through an unlocked window sometime between 9 p.m. Friday and 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Farmers become inventive with water-saving ways

DALLAS (AP) — West Texas farmers are not waiting for technology while the water level in the Ogallala Aquifer slowly drops. They are becoming inventors, trying to find ways to save the precious moisture.

James Mitchell, 50, has tried developing more efficient sprinkler systems and coating the leaves of the cotton plants on his 1,600-acre farm in Lubbock and Lynn counties.

A sprinkler system that sprays the water closer to the ground instead of shooting it straight up "almost eliminates wind evaporation," Mitchell told the Dallas Times Herald.

He has experimented with growth regulators that shorten the leaves of the plants so they need less water. He has tried spraying a chemical on the leaves to keep water from evaporating from them.

"I got an extra 60 pounds of lint an acre," a 10 percent increase, Mitchell said. "It also looks like it's possible the plants will use up to 20 percent less water during the hot summertime."

The High Plains averages 18 to 20 inches of rain a year, but most of the water Mitchell puts on his crops comes from wells in the Ogallala Aquifer, a huge underground reservoir that dropped from 500 million acre-feet of water to 385 million from 1930 to 1980.

An acre-foot is the amount of water it would take to cover an acre of land with a foot of water.

The aquifer is being drained at the rate of about 10 percent a decade.

"Over 70 percent of the water used for irrigation in Texas comes from underground, and there's no question that it's being consumed faster than it's being replenished," said Dr. Wayne Jordan, director of the Texas Water Resources Institute at Texas A&M University.

Although only 25 percent of the state's 32 million acres of cropland is irrigated, the Texas Department of Water Resources says that 50 percent of the state's farm revenues come from irrigated land.

"In the next 30 years, we're probably going to see a decline in our agricultural sector; it may be as much as a 50 percent decline, but that's just a guess," said Jordan.

Some farmers are turning to growing grapes for wine. Although a labor-intensive crop, grape vines can survive on rainfall. Ranchers are planting knot grass in basins that fill with water during the summer rains. Knot grass is forage for cattle and can survive inundation.

"We don't miss a bet," said A. Wayne Wyatt, general manager of the 15-county district.

For seven hours...

Vietnam veteran holds base doctor hostage

AUSTIN (AP) — A Vietnam veteran who had been treated for mental illness walked into an Air Force base hospital with a submachine gun and held a doctor hostage before surrendering almost seven hours later, officials said.

Maj. John Smalley, Bergstrom Air Force Base public affairs officer, said the man walked into the hospital emergency room at about 2:05 a.m. Sunday, brandishing an Israeli-made Uzi 9mm submachine gun.

The man ordered the emergency room cleared and took Dr. Collin Manson-Hing hostage, Smalley said.

The gunman released Manson-Hing unharmed at 8:46 a.m. and gave himself up, authorities said. Base officials said no shots were fired and no one was injured.

Capt. Doug Brown, base security chief, said the man made no demands except to ask for cigarettes and to talk to his brother.

"He was rather upset and hyper, somewhat incoherent," Brown said of the man. "There is also some indication he was drinking. After a while, he began to calm down some. Apparently he was upset with the treatment he had been getting from the (Veterans Administration)."

Manson-Hing, a civilian doctor employed by the hospital, told reporters he did not want to discuss the incident.

Bergstrom officials said Travis County sheriff's deputies took the man to the V.A. hospital in Waco. They said no charges were filed.

Bergstrom officials said the man was an Army veteran wounded in Vietnam and had been treated for mental illness at the V.A. hospital in Waco and at a V.A. hospital in Temple.

Smalley said the man lived near Lake Travis, west of Austin.

Shortly before the incident, the hospital received a call from an unidentified "crisis center" that a veteran needed emergency medical treatment, said Smalley. He said hospital officials notified security police at the base's main gate.

The man showed a disabled veteran military identification card to police and was admitted to the base, Smalley said.

Skid row family in dream move

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's a long way from life in a seedy Skid Row hotel to the affluent estates near Pebble Beach, but for one Mexican immigrant family, generosity has reduced the distance to a simple 275-mile drive.

"I still can't believe it," Elia Pimentel, 24, said as she spent Sunday packing. "We thought we'd be here our whole lives."

She and her husband, Serafin, have lived for 3½ years in the three-room apartment with their four children, ages 1 to 6. Across the hall is a dried splotch of blood, where the building manager was murdered earlier this month.

The family leaves that dreary environment today for a two-bedroom, farm-style house on 1½ acres of a 300-acre estate south of Monterey. Three sisters who own the house have donated it for their use.

One sister read about the plight of Skid Row families in The Tidings, a Roman Catholic newspaper, and contacted Las Familias del Pueblo, an agency that tries to relocate families away from the downtown district.

"I told my sister, 'Listen, we're not using (the house) and I've heard about poor people with children living out of hotel rooms,'" she said. "It seems such a shame for a family not to start life out right."

The former ranch, complete with a stream, rolling hills and ocean view, was willed in sections to the sisters and other family members.

Dear Abby

Will 'Contract for Life' Encourage Teen Drinking?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was very disappointed to see you praise the "Contract for Life," an agreement signed by parents and their teen-aged children in an effort to reduce the number of deaths involving drunk drivers.

I totally disagree with this contract, which in reality gives the teen-ager who signs it permission to drink, and obligates the parents to pick up their child at any hour, any place—with no questions asked.

If my teen-ager called me at 3 in the morning from an hour's drive away to say he was smashed out of his mind and needed a ride home, I would tell him to stay where he was until he sobered up, and then take a bus home!

First of all, teen-agers are too young to drink, so why don't they sign a contract saying, "I promise not to drink"?

This co-called "Contract for Life" will not cut down on drunk driving; it will only increase teen-age drinking because they know their parents will provide taxi service for them if they are too drunk to drive.

DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: True, teen-agers are too young to drink. They are also too young to be parents, yet there are a million-plus babies born annually to unwed teen-agers.

We must deal with reality—not what we think should or should not be.

Also, the contract does not state that there will be no questions asked. It says: "I agree to come and get you at any hour, any place, no questions asked and no arguments at that time, or I will pay for a taxi to bring you home safely. I expect we would discuss this issue at a later time."

I am sure that every parent who reads this would rather pay for a taxi than an ambulance—or, God forbid, a hearse.

DEAR ABBY: The person who couldn't call his mother-in-law "Mother" or his father-in-law "Dad" sure rang a bell with us.

I am a father-in-law who got the same treatment from my new son-in-law. He always greeted me with "Hi ya" and avoided calling me anything at all.

I finally told him to just call me "Fil" (like Phil) for "father-in-law" and to call my wife "Mil" for "mother-in-law."

It's worked out perfectly after I reminded him a few times.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Esophageal reflux

DEAR DR. LAMB — I went to my doctor for a swallowing problem and he found a slight hiatal hernia. He prescribed an antacid, but I only took Rolaids.

I sent for your Health Letter on hiatal hernias and it has been very helpful. Now I only take an occasional Rolaid and I've eliminated the heartburn.

But I still have trouble swallowing food. The food builds up in the esophagus and I have to drink a lot of water, about three glasses with every meal. Is this due to the hernia?

DEAR READER — The fact that you had heartburn suggests you had esophageal reflux. The acid contents of the stomach leaked backward into your lower esophagus. The constant irritation of the lower esophagus can cause scarring. The contracted scar may make it difficult for food to pass easily into your stomach.

You also can have the same problem if the esophagus goes into a spasm. The food lodges in the lower esophagus. In some people, the amount of food that accumulates in the esophagus without passing into the stomach can provoke the vomiting of undigested food.

Anyone having trouble swallowing needs a careful examination. You must be sure there's no malignancy in the esophagus. A diverticulum (pocket) of the esophagus can cause similar problems. A doctor may need to put a scope down your esophagus to see directly what's there.

You also may need some dilatations if the lower part of the esophagus is contracted. That often helps to relieve the situation before the scar contracts further.

In any case, go back to your doctor for a follow-up examination. I'm glad the Health Letter 4-8, Hiatal Hernia: Esophageal Reflux, helped you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a small, innocuous sebaceous cyst on my back, which the doctors say I don't have to remove unless it becomes infected. I'd rather not have it removed, but my spouse feels I should.

What exactly is a sebaceous cyst? I know it has to do with sebum, but I'm not sure what sebum is.

DEAR READER — Sebum is an oily secretion produced by glands inside your skin. It's the same material that forms whiteheads, some of which change color and become blackheads. The oily material normally comes to the surface of the skin to work as a natural moisturizer and lubricator.

When the ducts that drain the sebaceous glands become obstructed, the material accumulates within the skin and forms a cyst. They usually contain this sebaceous material in a little sac. These cysts can be small or large. If they are unsightly or in a location where they might cause a mechanical problem, a simple incision can be made over the cyst and the entire cyst removed.

They aren't cancerous. As your doctor has told you, they are harmless unless they become infected.

Oswald: "Here is the sort of game contract that many players will be set at. Instead of blaming themselves, they will believe themselves cursed by the card gods."

Jim: "South takes the first diamond and sees that he should play on spades in order to develop a diamond discard. If South wants to indulge in luxury, he can precede the spade play by taking one round of trumps. The declarer I watched did just this by leading one trump to his hand and then playing his jack of spades. East took his ace and promptly led a second trump. South won, entered dummy with a spade and took his diamond discard. Then he tried the club finesse, which lost. West proceeded to cash his queen of trumps and eventually South lost another club trick, game and rubber."

Oswald: "If South had realized the danger of extravagance, he would have led a spade toward his jack at trick two. East's best defense would be to duck, but South should just play a second spade."

Jim: "From this point on, it wouldn't matter what East or West did. South would be able to ruff his five of clubs in dummy."

Oswald: "Suppose East leads a trump. South would take his ace, lead a diamond to dummy, discard his last diamond on the remaining high spade and take the club finesse."

Jim: "It would lose, but there would be no way for West to keep him from ruffing his little club, and the contract would make."

Western hosts Clarendon in key conference contests

It's a crucial time in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference, with teams vying for position in the upcoming regional tournaments.

That should provide more than enough incentive as Western Texas' Dusters and Westerners entertain Clarendon in Scurry County Coliseum tonight. The games are set for 6 and 8 respectively.

The situation was never more important for Clarendon's Lady Bulldogs, who come into the coliseum in fifth place in the WJCAC. The top four teams will qualify for the women's regional tournament. The Bulldogs are 6-5 in conference play, 14-7 for the season. The fact that WTC's Dusters are 7-3 and in second place by two games with four remaining, makes tonight's contest important for them also.

The men's situation is different, but no less important. For the men to qualify automatically for the regional tournament, they must finish either first or second. The other eight remaining teams go into a two-game playoff, with the team boasting the best record hosting the team with the worst.

Western, 8-6, 16-9, is currently tied for fifth place with Amarillo while Clarendon is in seventh place. Clarendon is 5-9 and 14-11.

WTC is 2-0 over the Bulldogs this season. The Dusters beat the Lady Bulldogs 65-54 and the Westerners won 72-60 in games played at Clarendon on Jan. 19.

Paula Dotson, 5-7 sophomore guard, paces the Ladies with 18.6 points. Other top scorers, all sophomores, are 5-8 Rosa Benson, 10.6 points; 5-6 Vanessa Calloway, 9.5 points; 6-1 Carleen Douglas, 7.1 points; and 5-10 Debbie Krumnow, 7.1 points.

Clarendon averages 73.9 points and is allowing 69.1. The Ladies lead the conference in field goal accuracy, hitting .545, and are sixth from the field with a .612 figure.

WTC's women are in second place in the WJCAC with a 7-3 record and are 22-7 for the season after falling to Odessa 71-66 last Thursday.

Other women's games tonight have Odessa at South Plains and NMJC at Frank Phillips.

Clarendon's men are led in scoring and rebounding by 6-5 sophomore Dean Jackson, who averages 15.9 points and 8.7 boards. Daniel Spivey, a 6-4½ sophomore, is averaging 15.1 points and 7.1 rebounds. Playmaker for the 'Dogs is 5-10 sophomore guard Richard Miller.

Clarendon is ninth in the conference in points scored (69.3) but second in points allowed (66.2). The Bulldogs are shooting .487 from the field and .659 from the line.

The Western men are 8-6 in the conference - tied for fifth - and are 16-9 on the season. The Westerners lost to Odessa, 65-53.

Other men's games have NMJC at Frank Phillips, Midland at Amarillo, Odessa at South Plains and Howard at NMMI.

Mahre brothers give U.S. a strong finish

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP)-- Lifted by comeback twins Phil and Steve Mahre, the United States closed out the 14th Winter Olympics on a flag-waving high and an eye toward Calgary in 1988.

As the Olympic flame flickered out Sunday, officially ending the 12-day sports carnival, winter athletes from 49 countries praded out of the flag-bedecked Zetra ice arena to the applause of 5,000 spectators.

"See you in Calgary," was the cry, in song and farewells, as the $135 million extravaganza ended on a snowy night.

As expected, the Soviet Union regained the overall medals title, edging East Germany 25-24. But the East Germans, who beat out the Soviets in the 1980 medals race at Lake Placid, headed home with the most goals - nine to the Soviets' six.

Finland, near-invincible in the Nordic events, was third with 13 medals, four gold, three silver, six bronze; Norway was fourth with three gold, two silver and four bronze, and the United States was fifth with four golds and four silver.

The Mahre brothers' stunning 1-2 finish in the men's slalom kept the United States from suffering its lowest medals harvest in 20 years. Using walkie talkies to coach one another between runs, the 26-year-old twins from Yakima, Wash., gave the highly successful U.S. Alpine team a crowning finish.

"I gave him comments after the first run," Steve said. "After his second, he said, 'OK, here's what you've got to do to beat me.' We believe in one another. He's my best coach and I'm his best coach. If I don't win, he'd better."

Phil Mahre had another reason to celebrate. His wife gave birth to a son in Scottsdale, Ariz., on Sunday, but he didn't learn of it until after the race.

The Soviet Union's hockey team, rebounding from its 1980 loss, its first in the Winter Games in 12 years, swept through the tournament in awesome fashion, outscoring the competition 48-5. Sunday's 2-0 shutout over previously unbeaten Czechoslovia gave the Soviets a perfect 7-0 mark.

Also on Sunday, Sweden blanked Canada for the bronze to end up 4-2-1. Canada finished 4-3.

The biggest disappointment was the U.S. hockey team, which fell from a gold medal finish in 1980 to seventh, lowest placing ever for a U.S. Olympic hockey team.

Glowing brightly was the strong performance in the Alpine events. Three of the four U.S. golds came on Mount Bjelasnica and Mount Jahorina, including 1-2 finishes in the women's giant slalom and men's giant slalom.

Debbie Armstrong and Christin Cooper captured gold and silver in the women's race with the Mahre twins duplicating that on the final Alpine run Sunday.

In between, Bill Johnson of Van Nuys, Calif., became the first U.S. man to win an Alpine gold when he triumphed in the downhill.

On ice, Scott Hamilton won the men's figure skating gold medal, the first American to do so since 1960. Hopes of duplicating the gold medal double of Squaw Valley 24 years ago were dashed when Rosalynn Sumners of Edmonds, Wash., took a pair of jumps out of her routine and finished second to East Germany's Katarina Witt in the women's figure skating competition.

Girl's boosters meet tonight

Women win rodeo title

FORT STOCKTON -- A total team effort by Western Texas College women's team pushed them to the championship of the Sul Ross NIRA Rodeo here over the weekend.

Western will compete in the Howard College Rodeo in Big Spring on April 5-7, followed by the WTC Rodeo April 12-15 in Scurry County Coliseum.

Cantia Cass finished first in the breakaway roping. She took third in the long-go with a 3.7, then came back with a 4.0 to win first in Sunday's finals. Her teammate, Kellie Kyle, had come into the finals winning first with a 3.1 in the long-go, but a no time took her out of the average.

However, Kyle moved up from fifth in the barrels and ran the second fastest time in the finals, moving her up to second in the average. She also made the finals in goat tying, but failed to place in the top four.

Teammate Judy Cox took up the slack as she won second in the long-go in goat tying. She was fourth in the short-go but her two combined times kept her second in the average. Cox was also just out of the average in the barrel racing.

If the rodeo had been over Saturday night, WTC men would have walked off with the team trophy. However, after a dismal Sunday afternoon, the men were left with fifth place. It was not "a bad day at bedrock" for all of WTC's men, according to Coach Bob Doty.

Gary Rowe won first in the long-go in calf roping and came back to win fourth in the short round and second in average with a 21.4 total. Mark Mauldin teamed with Texas Tech's Mike Macey to win fourth in the long go, fourth in the short go and fourth in the average of team roping (8.2, 8.8, 17.0). Dale Gideon came into the short-go of the bull riding winning seventh with 70 points. He scored 75 in the finals to finish third. Shane Smith had thrilled the crowd Saturday afternoon with his 77-point bareback ride. He had a bad draw in the short round but managed a 67 for third in the average.

It was downhill from there. Todd Whatley and Randy Bomar finished fourth and third in the long round but Whatley finished out of the money with a 12.3 in the short go and Bomar missed his out. In the saddle bronc riding, Van Hale, John Hedrick and C.J. Urbanek all made the short-go but none were able to scratch out enough points to place in the average.

Jeff Waldrop had won the steer wrestling long-go with a 4.5 but took a no time in the short-go. A broken barrier kept Urbanek from winning the short-go and the average.

Eastern New Mexico University took first place in the men's division. Sul Ross was second.

SWC cage race comes down to Sunday game

by The Associated Press

Finally, the big game is next.

It will be Houston's Akeem (The Dream) Olajuwon vs. Arkansas' Joe (Big Red) Kleine in the middle; Soooiiieeee Pig vs. Phi Slama Jama.

It will be Houston's Guy V. Lewis and his checkered towel vs. Arkansas' Eddie Sutton and his lucky flower.

All you have to do is wait until Sunday.

And all the Razorbacks have to do to keep the suspense is beat Texas Tech in Lubbock Thursday night.

Houston is 12-0 in Southwest Conference play and Arkansas is 11-1 with its only loss to Rice.

The Cougars and Hogs will tangle again March 4 in Fayetteville.

Winning in Lubbock won't be easy.

"We always have a tough time out there," said Sutton.

Should Arkansas survive, then it can take the Cougars head-on Sunday in a nationally televised joust in Houston's Hofheinz Pavilion at 3 p.m. or so for the league leadership.

Houston has a warmup for the Razorbacks with a Wednesday night game against crosstown rival Rice. The Owls can be tough in Autry Gym, having defeated Arkansas in those confines earlier in the season.

While Houston and Arkansas continue their lively scrap for No. 1, Southern Methodist and Tech keeping shooting it out for the coveted third place position.

SMU, which outlasted Texas A&M 60-58 in overtime at College Station, is a half-game ahead of Texas Tech in the struggle the third spot in the standings. SMU is 9-4 and Tech 8-4.

The top three places get byes in the SWC postseason tournament at The Summit in Houston March 9-11.

SMU hosts TCU Saturday afternoon in a regionally televised game while Tech plays at Baylor.

The two teams meet March 3 in Lubbock in a game that could decide third place. SMU defeated the Red Raiders earlier in the campaign in Dallas.

Houston's victory over Virginia made the SWC 3-1 against ACC teams this year.

SMU defeated Duke in December and Arkansas upset No. 1 ranked North Carolina a week ago.

In bi-district...

Levelland whips Mustangs

For 25 minutes, Sweetwater played even with No. 2 ranked Levelland here Saturday night. It was the other seven minutes that made the difference.

Levelland's Loboettes outgunned the Lady Mustangs 16 to 2 in a little less than a quarter's time and that was enough as the District 1-4A champs pulled off an impressive 59-42 bi-district victory.

The Loboettes, 27-3, now advance to area competition against Mansfield. Sweetwater, in the playoffs for the first time in its program's six-year history, ends the season at 24-7.

In other action Friday, 2-4A champion Andrews defeated Dumas 53-44. Andrews will play Stephenville at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the San Angelo Central High School Gym.

Levelland took advantage of a dismal shooting performance from Sweetwater to take an early 11-4 lead. After the Mustangs finally scored again, the Loboettes got the final three buckets of the period to push the margin to 17-6.

Sweetwater's points, coming with about two minutes left in the quarter, were two of only four the Mustangs would get until Sharon Cain scored a pair of freethrows 2:41 before halftime.

In the meantime, Kami Schonerstedt led the Loboettes on a 16-2 spurt. The 5-4 senior scored six of the points and came away with two steals as her squad ran up a 27-8 advantage.

Levelland never led by more than 22 points after that, but the damage had been done. Sweetwater's usually effective outside game was negligible on this night, and the Mustangs had to rely too much on 6-0 senior Alice Smith.

Smith scored eight of Sweetwater's first 12 points. By halftime, her teammates had only contributed eight points and four of those were from the freethrow line. The Texas Tech recruit ended the night with 21 points and 11 rebounds.

Sweetwater's sister tamdem of Sharon and Deborah McCain had only four points between them after two quarters and ended the night with 8 and 6 respectively.

The Mustangs' lack of success can be attributed to some tough defense on the part of the Loboettes, combined with their first playoff showing ever. Sweetwater forced the ball early and hit only six of 26 field goal tries in the first half. The shooting improved only slightly in the second half.

Levelland, the defending state champion in Class 4A, had better fortune. The Loboettes canned 22 of 38 shots on the evening - 13 of 22 in the first half.

If Coach Don Weese's girls had a weak spot, its was holding on to the ball. The Loboettes turned the ball over 18 times, and that probably kept them from building an even larger lead.

Frances Williams led the well-balanced attack with 12 points. Schonerstedt put in 10, while Darla Isaacks and Sibly Goldlightly added 9 apiece. Melissa Caviness scored 8.

Despite her 5-6 size, Goldlightly led Levelland on the boards with 9 rebounds. Brenda Kemp had 5.

Malone puts 76ers in 2nd spot again

by The Associated Press

Moses Malone may not lead the Philadelphia 76ers to another championship, but for the time being he's got them back in second place in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division.

Playing in his second game after sitting out nine with a sprained ankle, Malone was the catalyst in the 76ers' 101-97 victory over New York on Sunday that ended the Knicks' five-game winning streak and dropped them one game behind Philadelphia.

Julius Erving led the 76ers with 25 points, but Malone collected 20 points -including a pair of free throws with six seconds left - 14 rebounds and blocked two shots. Bernard King of the Knicks was the game's high scorer with 40 points.

In other games, the Boston Celtics defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 107-101, the Milwaukee Bucks trimmed the Chicago Bulls 113-103, the Detroit Pistons edged the San Antonio Spurs 142-140 in overtime, the Indiana Pacers nipped the Utah Jazz 106-104 and the Seattle SuperSonics whipped the Denver Nuggets 132-120.

Changes due for schools

number now under consideration by the state board.

Under this proposal, the minimum requirements for graduation would be identical to the current SHS requirements except for the addition of one math course — bringing the total years of math required from two to three.

Administrative officials are expected to recommend to the school board that a third mathematics course be added next year as a graduation requirement at SHS.

The addition of this math course will mean the deletion of an elective for SHS students, leaving them a maximum of seven for their high school career.

But the state proposal has another aspect — one which might result in a far greater impact on local education.

And from the long range perspective — and because it is long range, school officials caution is it only being discussed — this proposed plan might entail in Snyder an expansion of the school day by some 50 minutes.

The proposed idea is to offer high school students two educational routes — a basic study plan and one which would earn them an "advanced" diploma.

Rather than 21 credits for graduation, it would require 22. And of this total, only two of the specified courses during a four-year high school career could be electives.

With the six-class per day schedule, local school officials say students trying to earn an advanced diploma would almost be precluded from taking more than one elective study area.

In the words of Superintendent Bill J. Hood, "We'd be forcing all freshmen students to choose their first year in high school if they wanted to be in the choir, in band, in athletics or other elective study areas. I'm afraid they'd only have time for one."

To address this, the proposal is to expand the study day with another 50-minute period. With a seven-class day, SHS students could take a maximum of 28 classes in high school.

As a result, they could still fulfill requirements for an advanced degree with sufficient classroom time remaining for electives.

School officials stress, however, that any final decision regarding an expanded school day hinges on the finalized state plan. This decision is not expected until statewide public hearings are concluded.

For this area, a regional meeting is scheduled Wednesday at the Region 14 Education Service Center, located at 1850 State Hwy. 351 in Abilene.

(Tuesday's article will outline one aspect of the proposed state plan which has prompted considerable discussion. It involves setting a school year limit of five absences from class for high school students involved in off-campus school activities that are not "academic curriculum-related." Unexcused classroom absences would involve such activities as athletic, band and choir trips.)

Four minor wrecks occur with weekend

Four minor traffic mishaps were reported in Snyder Saturday and Sunday.

The weekend's first mishap was at 12:28 p.m. Saturday in the 3600 Block of College Ave. Involved vehicles were a 1981 Ford driven by Brandt Beights of Colorado City and a 1984 Buick driven by Katherine Weber of 4012 College Ave.

Involved in two weekend accidents was a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Velia Heredia Perez of 4100 Brick Plant Rd.

According to police reports, the Perez vehicle struck bridge railings in the 1300 and E. 800 Blocks of 37th St. between 12:30 and 12:50 a.m. Sunday.

No visible damage was reported to the bridges, one owned by the City of Snyder and the other by Scurry County.

The 500 Block of 37th St. was the scene of another mishap at 2:28 p.m. Sunday.

Involved in it were a 1975 Ford driven by Ollie Raymond Phariss of Colorado City and a 1981 GMC driven by Ronald Ray Rosas of 102 Peach St.

No injuries were reported in any of the accidents and damage to all vehicles involved was rated minor to moderate.

Trespassing charge filed

Snyder police arrested a 24-year-old local man Sunday on a charge of misdemeanor criminal trespass.

Officers on routine patrol around 8:30 p.m. Sunday said they spotted a man in a fenced-in area at Wilson Motors. The suspect was taken into custody and charged with the one count of criminal trespass.

Nothing was reported missing from the car dealership.

In other routine action, city officers jailed a total of six suspects on various misdemeanor charges also.

Three persons were jailed for DWI, two for driving with a suspended license and another for disorderly conduct. One of the DWI suspects was also charged with driving with a suspended license.

President Cleveland proclaimed an amnesty in 1894 for Mormons who had indulged in polygamy.

The steamship Arctic, bound from Liverpool to New York, sank off the coast of Ireland in 1854 with a loss of 300 lives.

Gas theft is reported

The theft of some $100 worth of gasoline was reported to police at 2:02 p.m. Saturday.

A church spokesman said the gasoline was stolen from two vans and a bus parked at the Faith Baptist Church between 4 p.m. Thursday and 2 p.m. Saturday.

Man allegedly kills partner over money

DALLAS (AP) — A fight between two alleged robbers over a money pouch ended with one of the men fatally shooting his partner and then being shot and seriously wounded by the robbery victim, police said.

Police said the bizarre chain of events began shortly before 4 a.m. Sunday when two men pulled a gun on a 20-year-old man and climbed into his car at a stop sign.

One man seized control of the car while his partner held a gun to the victim's head and demanded money, police said. The man gave them a money pouch and the suspects began fighting over it.

During the fight, police said, one of the men was shot in the face and throat with a gun the suspects found in the car. Immediately after the shooting, the 20-year-old wrested a gun from one of the assailants, causing him to lose control of the vehicle.

The car collided with another car and came to a halt, police said. It was then that the 20-year-old shot the other assailant in the chest and arm. As he fled, the assailant got the gun back and fired at the victim, but the gun was empty.

Police found Jem Jacker, 28, dead at the scene. His alleged partner was found nearby bleeding from two gunshots and was arrested.

The 20-year-old, who was not injured, returned to the scene and was arrested for investigation of aggravated assault and released pending further investigation.

Two fires occur Sunday

Snyder firemen extinguished a car fire and a grass fire Sunday.

At 5:35 a.m., firefighters doused the car fire at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop east of the city on U.S. Highway 180.

According to reports, a 1973 Buick driven by Pala Christian of Snyder sustained extensive damage from the blaze which apparently broke out in the engine compartment.

The day's second fire call came at 3:45 p.m. and local firefighters extinguished a minor grass fire in the 1600 Block of 40th St. No property damage was reported.

'Big spenders' not needed in Washington

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — President Reagan, ridiculing Democrats in general and former Vice President Walter F. Mondale in particular, declared today it was his moral obligation to keep the "big spenders" out of power.

"If the big spenders get their way, they'll charge everything on your 'Taxpayers Express Card.' And believe me, they never leave home without it," the president said in remarks prepared for delivery to several thousand Republicans.

The president's political journey to Iowa occurred in time to split the headlines with Mondale, the heavy favorite in tonight's precinct caucus voting, which provides the first public test of the eight major Democratic presidential candidates.

In his first political trip since declaring his intention Jan. 29 to run again, the president used some of his harshest rhetoric to retaliate against the Democrats who for months have criticized him on the campaign trail.

"Let others appeal to greed and envy, pit group against group, treat people as helpless victims and seek to weaken our national defense," Reagan said.

In words obviously designed as an attack on Mondale, the president added: "Let them promise the moon, they'll deliver green cheese...They are captives of an anti-growth, dinosaur mentality that offers nothing for the future but repeating their failed past."

After the Waterloo event, the president was flying to Des Moines for a second pre-caucus rally.

it was perhaps symbolic that Reagan and his political strategists chose Iowa to demonstrate that even though he's an incumbent with high popularity in the polls, he plans to campaign in 1984.

In 1980, Reagan spent little time campaigning in Iowa and lost the precinct caucuses to George Bush, now vice president. The vote, 30 percent to 33 percent, surprised Reagan and led to a change of campaign tactics.

"We want Republicans around the country to understand that this can be a tight election," Reagan's campaign press secretary Jim Lake said shortly after the visit was announced "We don't want our folks to think that Ronald Reagan thinks he can sit back in he White House and not campaign."

The trip was "political--start to finish," in the words of presidential spokesman Larry Speakes. That means the Reagan-Bush '84 committee will pick up the tab, not the taxpayers. John Buckley, a commitee spokesman, said he had no estimate of the cost, although presidential trips rarely cost under $20,000.

The nine-hour tour today was Reagan's first, and perhaps only, visit to a state engrossed in a political contest. The president's political strategists generally plan to keep him out of primary election states and let administration stand-ins campaign in those places instead.

Initially, the announcement that Reagan was visiting Iowa drew outraged indignation from David Nagle, chairman of the Iowa Democratic Party, who complained the president was simply trying to steal the thunder of Democrats, especially Mondale.

Auto industry recovers

DALLAS (AP) — General Motors Chairman Roger B. Smith says the automobile manufacturing giant has made an impressive recovery from the dog days of the late 1970s and early 1980s, but faces future challenges as it designs new small cars and ventures into other fields.

GM, which reported a $3.7 billion profit in 1983, appears to be in good shape now, Smith said.

"We've got about everything running about flat out right now," Smith said in an interview published Sunday in The Dallas Morning News.

"We have the production schedules up. We are going to build 45 percent more cars in the first quarter this year than we did in the first quarter of '83," Smith said. "To tell you the truth, I don't know how we could build any more cars right now."

Blockade in 5th day

PARIS (AP) — Road blockades by protesting truckers continued for a fifth day in some regions today as the government prepared to negotiate with the drivers who had created some of the worst traffic jams in French history.

The National Highway Information Agency reported that blockades remained in 17 of France's 96 departments, or administrative districts.

The protests, which started Thursday and spread from the Atlantic to the French Alps, were to demand lower fuel taxes, changes in border crossing procedures and relaxed safety regulations.

Most of the blockades came down Sunday night after the president of France's largest independent truckers' organization called on his members to halt the strike.

Maurice Voiron, president of the 23,000-member National Truckers Federation issued the plea after Transportation Minister Charles Fiterman agreed to schedule negotiations with the truckers Tuesday morning.

Blacks endorse Doggett

EL PASO (AP) — U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett defeated Democratic primary foe Bob Krueger by a 77-56 margin in a straw poll of the Texas Coalition of Black Democrats.

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, the third major Democratic candidate in the race, failed to receive a single vote Sunday.

Doggett, a state senator from Austin, won on the strength of overwhelming support from the El Paso host delegation, according to both Doggett and Krueger supporters.

In a coalition poll of the eight major Democratic presidential candidates, the Rev. Jesse Jackson won by a 105-27 margin over former Vice President Walter Mondale. U.S. Sen. John Glenn of Ohio did not receive any votes.

Jewelry is stolen

DALLAS (AP) — An Italian jewelry salesman says he'll "never be back again" to the United States following the theft of his sample bag containing $140,000 in jewelry.

Roberto Coin, of Vicenca, Italy, was registering at the Wyndham Hotel Saturday night when someone stole the suitcase, police said.

"I lost my livelihood," Coin said Sunday. "Those people were waiting for me. My suitcase was right beside me when they took it. It was a professional job."

Police said they had no suspects in the theft.

Investigators said Coin was registering about 9:15 p.m. Saturday and placed his bag about five feet away. When he finished registering about 15 minutes later, the suitcase was gone.

Coin, who was making his first trip to Dallas, said the bag contained 241 pieces of 14- and 18-carat jewelry. He planned to show the samples at a jewelry trade show at the Market Center on Sunday.

"This is my third time in America, but I will never be back again," Coin said.

15 inmates escape

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Authorities on both sides of the border continued the search today for 15 inmates, including six convicted murderers, who broke out of a prison.

Mexican officials originally reported that 16 prisoners escaped Friday evening, but one inmate was accounted for at the penitentiary, according to Raul Terrazas, agent-in-charge of the Juarez Police Special Services division.

The breakout took place as the prisoners were being transferred from workshops to their cells by one unarmed guard. The men fled through a service gate and were whisked away in a white pickup truck, police said.

The pickup truck used in the escape was rented from an El Paso Chevrolet dealer Thursday by the wife of one of the escapees, according to an El Paso police report.

Mexican officials reported Sunday that one of the escapees, identified as David Lee Johnson of San Diego, was shot while being apprehended by El Paso police Saturday. Johnson was jailed on a marijuana smuggling conviction, authorities said.

Singer plans Snyder show

Debbi Johnson and her Sounds of Nashville band will appear March 3 in Snyder at the National Guard Armory in Towle Park.

The appearance is sponsored by the J&M Production Company.

The singer will perform songs she has written herself as well as old country favorites.

She has a new single now in release, "Drink Your Drink," and plans to make five more records before the end of May.

Tickets for the March 3 appearance are on sale at Bar H Bar Western Wear, Art Style Beauty Salon and KSNY Radio. Tickets are $6 in advance and $8 at the door for adults. Student tickets are $3.

For more information, call Lillie Raschke at 573-3461.

A record 15,815 Jaguar cars were sold in the United States in 1983, according to the company. The autos sell for upwards of $31,000. The previous year's total was 10,349.

Ed O'Farrell was shocked by the numbers.

Ninety percent of all traffic fatalities involve a drunk driver.

States pass laws against drinking-driving yet allow taverns on highways where the only access is by car.

So Ed O'Farrell began going door to door in New Philadelphia, Ohio, promising, "If you will elect me as the judge of your Municipal Court, I will do something about drunk drivers!"

They did and he did.

When a drunk driver is brought before Judge O'Farrell there is no plea bargaining. As a result he presides over many jury trials, more than any other one-judge court in the United States. He starts courts at 7:30 in the morning and works six days a week.

First conviction, 15 days in jail, $750 fine, plus a six months license suspension.

That is for the FIRST conviction.

Convicted a second time a drunk driver gets 30 to 60 days in jail, a thousand dollar fine and a one-year license suspension.

Some drivers must surrender their license plates.

All Ohio judges have the authority to seize license plates but few use that authority. Judge O'Farrell has seized 85 sets.

While 18-year-olds are technically "adults" under Ohio's justice system, Judge O'Farrell offers them an option. For the first offense — assuming no accident was caused — the teen-age driver is offered the standard first-offense penalty of 15 days in jail. But with three days off for attending a drinking drivers' rehabilitation course.

The teen-ager is allowed to drive to work during that time, but with special "family plates" on his car which identify the driver as having been convicted of DWI.

The school-ager's second offense gives him an option of three days in jail, three days at a drinking driver's program, 50 hours of community service, a 60-day 7-to-7 curfew, a six-month license suspension and he must attend a hospital emergency room for eight hours on a weekend night, witness one autopsy, and write a 1,000-word essay about the experience. So there have been NO teen-age second-offenders!

Inevitable opposition is eroding as New Philadelphia, Ohio, sees the results:

In 1981 there were 21 traffic fatalities in the county, 15 related to alcohol.

By 1982 those numbers were down to nine and seven.

Last year, 1983, only three alcohol related fatalities.

It was in law school that a best friend, a brilliant student, was killed by a drunk driver. It was then and there that Ed O'Farrell's mainmost mission became "Preventive justice."

Consultant says TDC job should be split

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Dallas firm studying the management of the Texas Department of Corrections is recommending that the job of TDC director be divided between two people because the duties and responsibilites are too great for just one person.

"No one person can no longer manage this institution," George Norsig, a spokesman for McKenzie and Co., told the TDC board today. "There are too many functions covering too many areas and too many things to do."

Norsig, detailing a progress report on a study of the TDC started last month, said a chief executive officer could develop policy, deal with legislators, oversee the changes and select and develop a management team.

A second person, a chief operations officer, could deal with security, monitor compliance with court orders and oversee the inmate services program, he said.

Norsig said the job of director has become too complicated and much more difficult than it was during earlier administrations.

"If the board doesn't recognize that, if there is not enough support for change, there will be an irreversible loss of control over the destiny of the TDC," he said.

McKenzie's study, made at the request of the TDC board, is about one-third complete and today's testimony was intended as a progress report with some recommendations, another company spokesman, Lee Walton, said.

TDC Chairman Robert Gunn said the board wanted to change the department's image and that the problems they are encountering are not new, saying they were pointed out in legislative study in 1972.

"The only thing new is that we're now trying to do something about it," Gunn said. "This is really one complicated institution. It's overwhelming."

The board was expected to go behind closed doors later to discuss a series of investigations that could lead to a major reorganization of management within the state prison system, the nation's second largest.

Investigations by the state attorney general's office and at least four other state agencies and the TDC have uncovered fiscal mismanagement, improper purchasing practices, questionable hiring of professional consultants, excessive architectural and engineering fees, construction cost overruns and brutality.

David and Anne Foster are parents of a baby boy born at 1:15 p.m. on Feb. 19 at Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring. He weighed seven pounds and has been named Jeffery Dale.

Supporters rally in the capital

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Tens of thousands of government supporters rallied in the capital's main plaza to support legislation that would reorganize labor unions controlled by the Peronists for nearly 40 years.

Local news agencies estimated the crowd at 50,000 people.
