HARDING LAID TO REST

LASH APPLIED TO 4 PERSONS BY GEORGIA BAND

Whippings Follow Kidnaping of Macon, Ga., Residents

NO ARRESTS ARE MADE

Charges of Traffic In Booze Made By Floggers

MACON, Ga., Aug. 10.—Police received reports today that four persons all white, were kidnaped by unmasked men last night, taken to the country in automobiles and whipped.

The names furnished by the police as victims in last night's kidnapings are: R. E. Bobo, proprietor of a small grocery store; Ollie M. Perry, under indictment in connection with alleged illicit liquor traffic; Gus Roberts, said to have been a friend of Perry's, and B. Goodyear.

The whippings of last night follow close on the heels of a chain of other whippings that attracted nation-wide attention because of the prominence of the victims. These included Dr. Eugene Schrieber, formerly of Boston, Mass., Dr. R. N. Mills, Lynwood, L. Bright and others.

In the Bright case, Mrs. Frederick Puse of New York also was kidnaped but she was not whipped.

As a climax to the events of last night, 40 members of the ku klux klan, wearing the white robes and masks of their regalia and carrying a fiery cross, stood about the grave of John M. Martin, performing a burial service here this afternoon attracting the attention of several hundred persons.

Bobo was carried about six miles into the country, where he says he was told to lie face downward on the ground. While in that position, he says, the lash was applied.

"They told me to tell my friends that they did a good job," said Bobo when he appeared in the downtown district today. Bobo called a taxicab and was carried to his home. He is under the care of a physician. Bobo insisted that he did not know why he was whipped.

Perry's wife said tonight that her husband was unable to leave his bed.

While the county and city officers have conducted investigations of all the whippings of last night and the ones that preceded, there have been no arrests. Dr. Mills promised to go before the grand jury but he left town instead.

NEGRESS ON WARPATH; SENDS OFFICERS WORD OF IMPENDING MURDER

If the officers find a negro man and a negress dead some of these mornings they can't say they weren't warned.

"Ise telling you laws if you don't get my man away from that woman Ise sho gwine to shoot 'em both daid," an angry negro woman told Night Chief Allen and Desk Sergeant Thomason at the police station late Friday night.

The officers told the woman she oughtn't to get the killing idea in her head over a man where there are so many more in the world.

"Dat's alright but Ise got enough money to buy a gun and if I find them together I ain't gwine miss none of them," the jilted one threatened.

City Pauses For Hour As Reverent Tribute Is Paid Late President

MEMORIAL

Granite for Suitable Masoleum for Harding Offered Free by New York Business Man.

By The Associated Press.

MARION, Ohio., Aug. 10.—Granite to erect a suitable mausoleum for the body of the late President Harding was offered free tonight to the city of Marion by Guy M. Walker of New York city. The only cost to the city will be that of getting the granite out.

Mr. Walker made his offer in a telegram to E. B. Wurfee, owner of Indian Mound, lying just east of the Marion cemetery, where Mr. Hrding's body is entombed, and which has been suggested as a suitable site for the erection of a proper memorial for the late chief executive.

Large Crowd Gathers At Church For Memorial Service.

With simple but impressive dignity, Wichita Falls Friday afternoon paid its final tribute to the memory of the late President Harding. In common with the nation at large, it paused for a brief hour to do homage to the departed leader and to meditate for a time on the passing of a great man.

The memorial services struck a keynote that, while tuned with regret at the passing of one leader, was filled with hope and confidence in the new. In the addresses, all appropriate to the occasion, this spirit was dominant. "The king is dead, long live the king," said Judge A. H. Britain. "Our beloved president has gone hence. We are still here. Let us catch his conquering spirit and finish our work ere the sun has set," said Rev. J. W. Loving. "He was a great man, but the nation still endures and prospers," said Judge Edgar Scurry.

Tributes Sincere.

Thus did the speakers eulogize him who has gone and at the same time laud him who has taken up the ardous duties of the presidency. Their tributes were unstinted and sincere. And they touched responsive chords among the great audience that was on hand to pay homage.

But while the name of the departed leader and that of his successor was brought prominently to the front there was one other that came in, perhaps, for as much attention as either of the others—that of Mrs. Harding. Her fortitude and courage during the grief stricken hours following her husband's death were touched on reverently. Each of the three speakers made mention of it and each accorded to Mrs. Harding that full measure of sympathy commensurate with her loss.

Church is Filled.

The auditorium of the First Baptist church was filled to overflowing when, at 3 o'clock, R. E. Shepherd asked that the audience rise and unite in singing "America." Prior to the opening and while the big room was filling, Mrs. F. R. Collard at the organ played the old, familiar hymns that were favorites with the dead president. "Lead Kindly Light," "Rock of Ages," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and others were played softly as the crowd filled in quietly.

Included in the throng gathered to pay homage were persons from every walk of life in the city. Business and professional men, merchants, laborers, those of means and those not so situated, rubbed shoulders in a desire to do honor to the dead president. City and county officials were on hand, civic organizations were represented, boy scouts and Camp Fire girls were out in uniform. A large number of klansmen in full regalia occupied seats in the balcony.

Portrait Draped.

A large framed portrait of Mr. Harding, draped in black, was placed on the pulpit and this, with a number of American flags, were the only decoration.

With the last notes of "America" fading away, Rev. S. M. Black, presiding elder of the First Methodist church, was called on for a brief prayer. He was followed by Rev. F. T. Datson, who read a scripture lesson from First Corinthians, fifteenth chapter, twentieth to thirtieth verses.

Shrine Quartet Sings.

"Abide With Me," sung by the Shrine quartet, came as a prelude to the principal address of the day, delivered by Rev. J. W. Loving, pastor of the Floral Heights Baptist church. Speaking earnestly, Rev. Loving passed rapidly over the loss the nation had sustained and dwelt at length on the terrible ordeal through which the bereaved widow had passed. He was unstinted in his praise of her fortitude and the courage she had shown through the trying week just passed.

With a sincerity born of conviction, Rev. Loving sketched into the picture the dignity, simplicity, kindliness and humility of a life that combined these characteristics.

In concluding, the speaker said: "In a word let me put the apex on all I've tried to say. It stands out again and again, but lest you fail to remember it, let me reiterate it once more. Let this occasion emphasize

FAILURE OF CUNO MINISTRY SEEN

Split With Socialists Is Regardsd As Ominous

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—The early retirement of Chancellor Cuno and his ministry seems foreshadowed in consequence of the decision of the united socialists to support the "no-confidence" motion introduced by the communists, which will come up for a vote in the reichstag on Monday.

Although the united socialists originally concluded that they would abstain from votig when the issue came up, the situation is fast drifting to a point where the socialists face the necessity of saving their political prestige with the workers in order to prevent the workers from deserting to the communists.

In Conference.

The socialist leaders tonight are confering with Chancellor Cuno in an effort to induce him to resign. In the event he sequiesces, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, leader of the German people's party, would be asked by President Edbert to reconstruct the government on the basis of a big coalition, which would include the united socialists, the panicky feeling which has marked Germany the past few days and which is being converted into political capital by the communists, late tonight seized the reichstag, where symptoms of a Cuno crisis developed because of the decision of the socialists to retire from their position of "benevolent neutrality" toward the present non-partison, or business men's cabinet.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 10—"Harding was a real friend of the south. He was one of the kindest men I have ever known. It must be a comfort to Mrs. Harding to know how deeply he is mourned by the people from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico and from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

This was the tribute of Gov. John M. Parker at memorial services held at Elks place today in memory of the dead president.

Georgia's Upper Crust To Pay For Hearing Opera As Solons Vote For Heavy Tax

"Silk Rattlers and Monkey Petters" Draw Fire In State Legislature.

By The Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 10.—New York, with its gay night life and Metropolitan Opera company, and so described as "luxury-rolling, silk-rattling, diamond-wearing, monkey-petting persons of the southland," today became a storm center in the Georgia house of representatives and when the heated debate had come to an end what was termed a heavy tax had been voted upon all opera organizations appearing in the state.

To Tax Opera

The house had under consideration the general tax act and amendments were offered to it so as to include the opera company amendment passed by a vote of 75 to 67 providing that all opera companies appearing in the state shall be taxed $2,500 for each contract in cities of more than 100,000 and $1,000 in cities of lesser population.

During the past several years, a group of Atlanta citizens has underwritten contracts to bring the Metropolitan Opera company to Atlanta. A tax on opera companies was levied two years ago after a legislative fight, but in presenting the tax act this year, the house ways and means committee excluded the assessment on the ground, the chairman declared, that the movement in Atlanta had been supported financially by public

Survivor of Battle With Moonshiners Reaches Safety

BOOZE BAND TRAPPED

Raiders Under Rifle Fire for Entire Day, Report Says

By The Associated Press.

LINNUTT, Ky., August 10.—Wounded in the shoulder and the left leg and crawling and stumbling along, Alex Gayheart of Perry county, a prohibition enforcement officer in R. L. Stewart's force, made his way into the railroad station at Linnutt at the break of day this morning, reporting that he was the only man left of a party of four prohibition men headed by Stewart, who entered the mountains late Thursday afternoon to capture a band of moonshiners, said to be near Cockerill's Fork, on Lost creek.

The other three men in the prohibition party were Stewart, J. D. Carpenter, and C. D. Morrison.

Trapped in Valley.

Gayheart says they were trapped in a small valley by the moonshiners and surrounded in this, the most remote and inaccessible section of the mountains of Breathitt county, and widely known as a haven of moonshiners and fugitives.

The prohibition band was practically at the mercy of the moonshiners, Gayheart said, who were in the rear and on all sides of the mountains and who kept up a consistent fire until early this morning.

During the battle in which Gayheart lost track of all the remaining force with him, and at which time the moonshiners were attacked from the rear by a sheriff's posse the wounded man took advantage of the opportunity to escape.

He expressed little hope that any of the prohibition officers were left alive. Gayheart was taken to a hospital in Hazard.

U. S.-Mexican Conference May Close Tuesday

By The Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 10.—Despite declarations in the newspapers of Mexico City that the delegates of the United States to the recognition conference will leave for Washington on Tuesday at the latest, both the American representative, Charles B. Warren and John Barton Payne, declined today to admit that the negotiations were concluded or that their plans were settled enough to permit a statement that they would leave that day.

They admitted, however, that the understandings which have been reached are receiving finishing touch and final corrections. It is understood that instructions from Washington which would permit a formal closing and signing of the minutes of acceptances, revolutionary and mixed claims conventions have not been received.

DALLAS, Aug. 10.—Posting a retail price of 11 cents a gallon for gasoline at all filling stations of the Magnolia Petroleum company this morning that company met the minimum cash price of some of the stations served by other refining companies in effect here for the last two weeks.

New Prices.

At the same time the Magnolia announced the discontinuance of the former discount on sales to large consumers in the truck trade and a new wholesale price of 10 cents a gallon. The recent Magnolia retail price has been 13 cents a gallon, which with the discount to large consumers, gave a net price of approximately 11 cents.

TEXANS UNITE IN DOING LAST HONOR TO DEAD

Business at Standstill in Entire State for Afternoon

MANY TRIBUTES PAID

Eulogies Delivered By Many Speakers on Worth of President

By The Associated Press.

DALLAS, Aug. 10.—Memorial addresses for President Harding in many city parks, stilled from the usual clatter and frolic of children and sport-loving grownups, after sundown this evening reverently closed Texas' day of mourning.

Tribute to the late leader breathed gently over the state all day as the people met at churches, at one time at one city, at another at another, but all for simple prayer.

Business, for the most part, suspended all afternoon, was entirely abandoned at the funeral hour at Marion.

Sports Subside.

Golf, the southwestern tennis tournament, the Texas league baseball schedule, were discarded.

All activities at the Fort Worth stockyards ceased at noon when buying and selling halted until tomorrow morning. A special memorial service was arranged for presentation at 7 o'clock tonight at Marine park.

President Sleeping At Last Near Grave Of Mother In Native State

By The Associated Press.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 10.—Harding of Ohio is home tonight; sleeping time away near the mother at whose knee his first childish dream of greatness was prattled.

Before his tomb, as the chiming voices of the choir sang softly among the trees, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," another tender, brave woman stood with aching heart, her veiled face lifted to the sky. A moment later, she stepped a meagre moment into the dim vault where the dead husband's journey of life had ended. Then she turned away, brave to the last, to face the lonely years ahead. She waited not to see the iron gates close softly upon her dead.

Harding is home forever from life's high places, where the restless, heavy winds of ambition blow; home beneath Ohio soil, for above him the vaulted roof is mantled with grass grown sod; home among the friends and neighbors of his youth, the kindly people of a kindly town. Time is ended for him, and the shouting and clamour that surrounds the great is done.

Guards On Duty.

It was a long road to the silent vault above which there closed tonight a guard of the citizen soldiery of his own state. There was endless ceremony of the nation's and the people's making to mark the way. But it ended simply, clamly, and as the dead would have had intend.

Aside from the multitude that walled the long way from his father's home to the vault and those others close packed to make a living setting for funeral rites, there was not much to mark it as the burial of one who held the highest power in his grasp. There were the tanned men of his guard from the sister services of the nation, the admirals and the generals who formed his honor escort, and the friendland comrade who now is president in his stead the colleagues of his grief-stricken cabinet. That was all, except at 1 st, distant gun fire as he came to his tomb and the soft tones of a bugle sounding a soldier requiem as the gates close.

Services Simple.

Otherwise the funeral service was that of a simple and much loved citizen of Ohio. For all Ohio seemed to have come today to bid him farewell. Throngs whose number will never be known, passed beside his casket and looked their last on the dead face before the time for the last journey came.

From his father's house he went out again carried by the steadfast men who have stood constantly to guard a dead commander. No solemn music of bands or military pageant marked his going, save the great fag of the president drooping in mourning and carried before him to the gates of the tomb as he went.

Coolidge In Line.

In cars behind the simple hearse that carried now this honored leader came President Coolidge and the cabinet and friends and close kin. There, too, came Chief Justice Taft and General Pershing. Last to leave the memoried house was Mrs. Harding, in black, and with veil drawn close, and just ahead of her walked the old father his face plainly showing the agony of his grief.

Through the silent, face-walled street the cortege passed and around the corner to the quiet cemetery. As it came toward the gates the guns spoke afar in honor.

The vault stood ivy-wrapped and set back into the gentle hill with little

Marks At Premium In Berlin When Printing Presses Fail To Run

Shortage of Cash Is Keenly Felt After Strike Stops Things—Premiums Paid.

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—Premiums of 100 per cent were paid freely on the Bourse today for paper marks which now are so scarce that a man with a checkbook does not hesitate to pay for them at the rate of two for one.

The strike of the printers, which ended today, had complicated gravely the moneyless situation by tying up the uncounted batteries of the Reichs bank's printing presses, the Reichs bank and all the big and little private banks locked their gates at noon to escape the long lines of clamoring patrons.

While the current shortage situation is not void of humorous passages, nevertheless it is contributing to the prevailing nervousness and irritability since it is inconveniencing the workers and middle classes who are accustomed to ready cash.

The Prussian government today was unable to mobilize enough currency to meet its police pay roll and the officers are now in much the same plight as tourists, who are unable to lay their hands on sufficient currency to pay their hotel bills and railroad fares.

BOOZE FOUND IN APARTMENT

Cops Make Raid in House Friday Night; Five Held

When is a bachelor's apartment not a bachelor's apartment?

Several pints of prescription whiskey and a couple of gallons of "Choc" did not make the apartment raided by Detectives Scott and Jensen early Friday morning look anything less than a bachelor's rendezvous.

It was the presence of two young women who had been slipped into the fashionable apartment house, supposed to be occupied exclusively by bachelors, that made the landlady call the officers.

Three bachelors and two bachelor girls were brought to the police station in the wee sma' hours, put up cash bonds, forfeited them and went away in different directions.

PRESIDENT

space before it. So the funeral train was halted at a distance and the car, let lifted down to be carried to a resting place before the open entrance of the tomb. Already a group of senators who knew this dead president under the capitol dome before he passed to the white house were already gathered in waiting, in line across the roadway that runs before the entrance. With them stood the comrades of camping days, Ford, Edison and Firestone.

The cabinet family came to stand closest at the foot of the casket with their new chief standing sorrowfully among them. The admirals in gleaming white, lined the way to the left, the generals to the left, and beyond, behind the cabinet, stood the little party of intimates and friends who made the Alaskan journey that death broke so suddenly.

Father and Widow.

Then came Dr. Harding with the snows of his 80 years showing on his bared head, and then the brave widow walking to her place at the right of the casket with Secretary Christian and the members of the grief bowed family.

Within the shadow of the doorway of the vault, the churchmen took their place, and from the shrubbery that screened them the choir sang "Lead Kindly Light." The last service for Warren Harding had begun.

Prayers followed, spoken by an old friend of the dead president. The scriptural passages that hearten man in sorrow were read and again the choir sang. The last hymn of this simple, reverent services was "Nearer My God, to Thee," and as the softly blending voices came to the last chords, Mrs. Harding slowly raised her veiled face and stood as though in prayer to Him above that the dead husband who in a moment would be shut away from her forever, might know that peace beyond understanding which God's mercy holds out to humanity at the last.

Benediction.

The voices died away, and with lifted hand, Bishop Anderson of the Methodist Episcopal church, pronounced the benediction:

"Now unto Him that is able to keep us from falling and to present us faultless before the presence of His glory, with exceeding joy, to the only wise God, our Savior, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and forevermore. Amen."

The funeral party and the hundreds who ringed them about stood motionless and silent a moment. Then the soldiers and sailors and marines who have kept the honor watch all the way from San Francisco and who alone have carried this casket, stepped forward. Facing the tomb, they lifted it slowly and slowly bore it in through the shadowy doorway. And at that moment the nation stood silent in sorrow.

Back to the dim depth of the crypt of stone and earth the bearer went with their burden, then turned to file out again and stand stiffly at attention in double line forming a corridor of honor.

Mrs. Harding raised her veil slightly and swept the moisture from her brow and lips. It was still and hot where the light breeze was shut off by the crowding, sorrowful people about her, but it did not seem that even now it was tears she wiped away.

As the bearers came out, she leaned to whisper to Secretary Christian. Then she stepped forward on his arm to pass just within the ivy-grown doorway beyond in which lay the flag draped casket, hardly visible in the dim vault. She halted but a moment in this final farewell, then turned to walk slowly down the roadway to the waiting motor car that rolled her swiftly away.

After she had gone, President Coolidge, with Mrs. Harding, stepped to her place within the doorway, the two standing but a moment. As they turned to pass out, the great iron barrier was swung softly shut and Warren Harding was at home forever in the town he loved.

Down beyond a green lawn stretched under the trees, the khaki tents of the guardsmen gleamed. As the sorrowing company before the vault moved away to the waiting cars, the guardsmen again took their places before the vault flaming with the beauty of the flowers that banked it about. And the hundreds who had stood to watch the simple ceremony that committed a simple American to the keeping of his God, drifted slowly away to leave him alone when dark fell for the sleep that will never end.

Flood Of Amendments

Representatives Stovall, Knight, Pope, Wood and others immediately objected and the clerks desk was flooded with amendments to provide the assessment.

"The people who attend grand opera are able to pay the tax," Mr. Pope stated. "I plead with you to tax these luxury-rolling, silk-rattling, diamond-wearing, poodle petting persons who attend grand opera. Why should we let them escape when we tax the poor, down-trodden farmer?"

COP WINS EIGHTEEN MILE CHASE

Evening Marathon Develops Thrills

The nocturnal marathon of Paul Revere may have the historical edge on the wild ride of 18 miles made last night by Officer Griffin of the police motorcycle squadron, but Paul didn't get more thrills than Griffin, the man the latter finally arrested will tell you.

The speeder in a Chevrolet coupe was out for air and a high rate of speed and to test out his new car. The motorcycle officer took up the trail and the speeder refused to stop. Over the city, through the factory district, up main streets and down alleys, the officer chased the fleeing car, and the driver merely laughed and stepped on the gas. After about 30 minutes of such play on the part of the autoist, Griffin lost patience.

When the speeder swung out past the church onto the Seymour road the matter had gotten far past the joke stage with the officer. Swinging within about 20 feet of the Chevrolet the officer drew his gun and began shooting at the tires. He didn't miss. The car stopped. The register showed 18 miles had been expended in the chase.

Griffin intimated he would recommend a fine for the speeder in police court this morning.

Heart and Home Problems Solved

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: Does henna dye gray hair? I know there are quite a number of dyes on the market. Which is the best? I am 20 years old and can't imagine why my hair is turning white so soon.

MARY DON.

Henna will dye gray hair, but I would not advise you to use it. Unless your hair is dyed by a most skilful professional you will not deceive anyone and the result will have an unnatural appearance. Gray hair is not unbecoming to youth and I would advise you to let nature take its course.

Since I cannot advertise in my column, it is impossible for me to recommend a hair dye. Besides, I so thoroughly disapprove of dyeing hair that I would hesitate to do so.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: Could you tell me what will take spots off a porcelain-top table?

I also have a mark on the top of my dining table from a hot dish. Will anything take that off?

My silverware and dishes that I have in my buffet have an odor of furniture polish and although I have washed and scalded them I don't seem to be able to get rid of it. Do you know of anything that will help?

YUNG HOUSEWIFE.

Try solution of potash on the pora dish mop or something which will celain top of your table. Apply it with keep the solution from touching your fingers.

The way to remove a white spot caused from a hot dish sounds most ridiculous. Apply boiling water to the spot and wipe it off immediately. The spot will disappear entirely and the table will not be injured in the least.

You might buy a deodorant at the drug store and put a samll quantity in the dish water when you wash your dishes. It would probably help, too, to put the dishes on the stove in cold water and bring the water to a boil. The trouble with the latter method is that the plates are apt to crack from the heat. In case you boil the dishes put them on a rack so that they do not touch the bottom of the pan.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I have just come to town. I am a good, steady man—never took a drink of hooch in my life. As I am a stranger and very bashful, it is difficult to meet people. I would like to get acquainted with some nice woman between the ages of 25 and 30 so that I can have someone to take to shows. It is lonesome to be at home all the time.

JOHN.

It is not advisable to let this column serve as a bureau for helping lonesome people get acquainted. Many disagreeable and tragic complications would arise because it is impossible to be discriminating through a correspondence column.

About the only thing for you to do is to attend church and tell the minister your problem. I am sure he will do everything he can to make you feel more at home, and he will see that you meet people.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a young man 21 years of age and am deeply in love with a girl one year my junior. I think she returns my love and I wish to become engaged to her. How can I propose so that she will accept me? Is it proper for her to ask me to take her to a show, and is it proper for her to have her sister accompany us?

BASHFUL JIM.

Simply tell the girl that you love her and ask her if she will marry you. If she loves you she will tell you so. It is not pro for the girl to ask you to take her to a show, or to ask to have her sister go along. The invitation should come from you.

Educated Drunk Calls For Water

The theory that really drunk men have no sense was refuted at the police station last night.

Night Chief Will Allen had what he termed an "educated drunk" in custody. The man muchly in the control of corn when carried to the police station in his own car, knew very little. When he was assigned a bed and was being escorted to his room in the jail the drunk man remembered something.

"Shey, boysh, gotta thermos bottle ish water in my car. Need it in the morning," the man said as he lapsed into insensibility again. The thermos bottle of iced Lake Kemp phosphate was placed in his cell and the drunk man proved he had some sense.

Bill to Protect Negroes Introduced in Alabama

By The Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 10.—Cullman, Ala., in the past said to have been renowned for unfriendliness to negroes, may be legislated out of its reputation under terms of a bill before the state legislature and one which has been reported favorably.

The bill by Senator Griffith of Cullman would impose a fine of $500 on any person frightening or attempting to frighten negro domestic servants into leaving any locality of the state.

Years ago a sign was said to have been placed in the center of Cullman reading: "Nigger, don't let the sun set on you here." The sign has stood for years and resently an anti-negro movement is said by members of the legislature to have been revived.

Bandits Take Things Easy In Effort to Loot Bank

FAIRMONT, Minn., Aug. 10.—Five bandits held approximately 200 citizens of Maple, Iowa, at bay early this morning while they leisurely attempted to rob the privately owned bank of Fred Reuf and B. Robinson, according to word received here.

Bandits attempted to blow the safe and the first detonation brought villagers pouring to the bank. Two of the bandits sprang to guard their companions with drawn guns, keeping the crowd in hand by occasionally firing into the air.

Serious Forest Fire

QUEBEC, Aug. 10.—The department of lands and forests received reports today of serious forest fires on the Brule river near Lake Commissaire at Manouan and at Wassanot, near Lake Flamand, and also near Holiday station in Edmonton. The flames at the latter place were menacing the tracks of the transcontinental railway.

the superlative grandeur, the high aristocracy of that glorious company washed in the blood of the lamb. Let us not suggest that our hero was perfect, that he had reached the greatest possible height of Christian character and achievement. No mere man ever has. But he was an humble follower of our Lord Jesus Christ.

"Those who knew him most intimately bear this testimony. A great theological writer straying off into the fields of scientific speculation, trying to bend the teachings of our New Testament into conformity with his ideas of science, has written seriously, asking the question, 'Can we be Christians still?' Mr. Harding has shown us as others before him did that even in the high position which is the very pinnacle of American political ambition, under the great weight of duties and calls and cares that beset that high position, he yet could find joy in Christian service, in the fellowship of the saints. We believe he now understands this as by the grace of God we hope some day to do."

Choirs Sing.

Combined church choirs of the city under the direction of R. Vaughn Ray sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" at the conclusion of Rev. Loving's address and this was followed by a brief talk on "Harding, the Citizen" by Judge Edgar Scurry.

The kindly tolerance of the man, his love for humanity, his genial good humor and his splendid, Christian character, were glowingly praised by the judge. It was remarked that Mr. Harding was a plain, simple, human being, a typical American, a splendid leader and an individual whose loss was distinct to the nation and the world.

More music by the Si— quartet and then Judge A. H. Britain closed the service with an address on "Harding, the President."

Britain Gives Praise.

His steadfast devotion to duty was declared by Judge Britain to have been one of the outstanding virtues of Mr. Harding and also, probably, the chief thing that hastened his untimely end. The increasing duties devolving on the chief executive of the nation, brought about by the changes in the world, were outlined by the speaker and declared to be of a type that would test the mettle of any man.

In closing his remarks, Judge Britain said: "He has left a secure place in the hearts of America. He was not the president of the north or of any section. He was our president. The president is dead. Long live the president."

Rev. J. D. Pinkston, assistant pastor of the First Methodist church, pronounced the benediction and Wichita Falls' tribute to Warren G. Harding was at an end.

One Burned in Fire

By The Associated Press.

ORMULGEE, Okla., Aug. 10.—Charles Shaller, 30, was burned to death in a fire which followed an explosion in a group of stills at the Empire refinery here today. The blaze practically destroyed five high-pressure stills containing gasoline, a part of the "cracking" plant. The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

Bandits Shoot Man

By The Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 10.—Highwaymen last night shot and killed John Ran, 50, of St. Paul, while they were holding up a soft drink stand here.

The bandits obtained $85 in cash from the proprietor and $1,200 in jewelry from a customer before fleeing.

Homeless Pup Keeps Close Watch At Barred Door Of Harding's Tomb

ON BOARD SPECIAL TRAIN WITH MRS. HARDING, Mansfield, Ohio, Aug. 10.—When the iron gates had closed today on the vault where Warren Harding slept, a friendly fox terrier pup lay down before them undisturbed by the guardsmen who kept vigil around the tomb. The little dog had come uninvited to the great man's funeral, perhaps called through the love for animals this kindly man had always shown. In and out among the cabinet officers, generals and admirals standing reverently by the bier, he twisted his way, he wandered his way close to the casket as though he recognized presence there of a friend. Finally, in sleepy contentment, he laid down just inside the open doors of the tomb at watch with drowsy eyes as the funeral rites were concluded. And because Warren Harding loved dogs those who loved Warren Harding best were glad to see him there. No hand was raised to drive him away. Even the sorrowful widow had noted him there. His presence sent a little gleam of happiness through her gloom for she knew the dead president would have welcomed this little wanderer.

The time came when the casket must be carried into the vault and the little dog blocked the way. There was a motion to push him to one side, but Mrs. Harding would not have it so. At her wishes, Secretary Christian called softly to the guards to coax, not to drive him.

To Mrs. Harding it was a bright spot in a dark of her life.

NO SUCCESSOR FOR CHRISTIAN

Coolidge Not to Act Until Resignation Is Received

By The Associated Press.

ON BOARD PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN, Akron, Ohio, Aug. 10.—An expression of regret was forthcoming from the car of President Coolidge speeding back tonight to Washington, when newspaper men sent in word that George B. Christian, Jr., had resigned as secretary to the president after the entombing of Warren Harding's body at Marion today.

Those close to Mr. Coolidge said that he had not yet received the resignation, and therefore comment was withheld.

Another appointment awaiting action by the president is that of his personal physician, as it is the general belief that Brigadier General Sawyer will follow the course of Mr. Christian and retire from public life with the death of Mr. Harding, who elevated him. In this connection has been mentioned the name of Maj. James F. Coupal, an army doctor living in Washington, who attended Mr. Coolidge while the latter was vice president.

Labor Party in England To Change Business Methods

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Ramsey MacDonald, leader of the labor opposition in the house of commons, says the labor party is determined to change Great Britain's method of conducting business with other nations. In an article in the New Leader magazine he condemns "what he declares the bureaucracies as the British foreign office with its "queer mentality and subversive sections of agents, with its work in secluded rooms as though some pursuit in alchemy were being conducted by mystic signs at astral times."

HUGE THRONGS VIEW BODY

Countless Thousands At Marion Pay Last Respects

By The Associated Press.

MARION, O., Aug. 10.—How many of Ohio's and the nation's citizens joined with the 30,000 Marion neighbors and friends of Warren G. Harding never will be known. They could only be roughly estimated.

They came and came and came from everywhere until they litterally crowded every street and by-way which the late president knew and loved so well.

Back to Homes.

Tonight, they are going, each to his separate home, sad of heart for him whom they loved. Mingled with all the sadness, however, is a measure of joy that it is all over for the frail woman shrouded in black who is speeding back to the nation's white house to turn it over to its mistress.

Thousands were still strolling the streets tonight or were grouped about the little home in East Center street which had been the shrine of nation as sorrow since early yesterday afternoon when the body of the dead president was brought to abide among loved ones at home. They seemed unwilling to forget.

But as soon as the funeral cortege that was formed in San Francisco seven days ago and traveled across the continent and part way back again, had started on its last lap to the cemetery many who had been privileged to pass by the bier broke ranks and departed, leaving to the less fortunate a chance to at least get a glimpse of the departing coffin.

First Burkburnett Piggly Wiggly To Be Opened Today

Beginning today, Burkburnett will have its first Piggly Wiggly store. The store will open this morning and is offering special inducements to its prospective customers there. The Burkburnett store is located at 313 Third street, the former location of the Miller Furniture company.

C. S. Wyatt, owner of the two Piggly Wiggly stores operating successfully in Wichita Falls and the one which opens today in Burkburnett, extends a cordial invitation to the people of that town and residents of Wichita Falls to visit the new store on its opening day. A seven-piece orchestra will furnish music throughout the day and flowers will be given as souvenirs for the grownups, with balloons for the youngsters.

In explaining the system on which this store and 1,283 other Piggly Wigglys in the United States are operated, Mr. Wyatt said:

"There are well defined rules for the operation and management of Piggly Wiggly stores. Work is done more or less on schedule and there are certain things that must, can and cannot be done, all directed at reducing extra effort, speeding up and making it easy and simple for the customer to wait on herself.

"After the merchandise is placed on the shelves it is up to the customer to make her selection without physical assistance from a clerk except in the case of case-lot sales from the stock room. There must be no suggestion by the clerk to aid the sale of any particular commodity in the store except in the case of a demonstration.

"Arrangements are never made for deliveries of goods to outside points. Oral and written orders for merchandise are never taken and filled by clerks to be called for at a later time, prices are never quoted over the telephone to customers.

"The customer is always right' is the slogan of Piggly Wiggly stores, which is rigidly lived up to by the management."

LUMBERMEN MAKE MILLIONS ILLEGALLY

By International News Service.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 10. Illegal profit of $2,500,000 were exacted by 19 St. Louis lumber firms, against whom fines and ouster orders have been issued, according to a brief filed in the supreme court today by Attorney General Barrett.

Barrett's brief was an objection to application for modification of fines and ouster orders filed by the lumber companies which make up the St. Louis lumber trade exchange. He asserted they entered into a conspiracy to increase prices of lumber and that as a result the public was injured millions of dollars.

Coolidge On Way Back to Washington To Take Up Duties of Presidency

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Leaving behind him in Marion, entombed with tender care, the body of his late captain, President Coolidge tonight was returning to the capital to face the problems of office.

With him returned admirals and generals, members of congress, representatives of various states who had come with him to participate in the burial ceremony of Warren Harding.

The journey, the second hasty trip since he was called to take upon himself the guidance of the nation, was no light trial for the new chief magistrate, who has spared himself neither strain nor late hours in personally directing a nation's tribute to a stricken leader. But except for a slight fatigue, he seemed none the worse for the journey.

No Action This Week

Mr. Coolidge, who left Washington last night, expects to reach the capital early tomorrow. With the week-end facing him, it is probable that administration acts will not be forthcoming before next Monday, although facing him immediately is appointment of a secretary and personal physician.

Questions which callers in the temporary white house already have placed before Mr. Coolidge include the most need for an extra session of congress, the fact that his predecessor had planned to call another conference of governors to discuss prohibition enforcement and the coal situation.

Uneventful Trip

Mr. Coolidge, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft, General Pershing and other notables, arrived in Marion about 1:30 p. m. after an uneventful journey.

Just after leaving Akron, Mr. Coolidge, received in his private car all the members of his traveling party. Then he changed his traveling suit for frock coat and high silk hat.

After reaching Marion, the new president, wishing to leave to Marion as long as possible, its own dead, did not leave his car until it was time to drive to the home of Dr. George T. Harding, father of the late president and take his place at the head of the funeral procession.

It was a sad journey that Mr. Coolidge took through that long line of mourners who knew Mr. Harding by his first name and it was not with Mr. Coolidge that the heart of the crowd rested.

Ford, Edison And Firestone On Long Trip

By The Associated Press.

MARION, Ohio, August 10 — A wondering caravan, composed high in the nation's ranks of scientists and manufacturers, left Marion tonight for a destination unknown even to the members.

In the party were Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and H. S. Firestone. They are off for their annual frolic in quest of recreation. They came to Marion to bury one of their partners in frolics of former years, the late President Harding.

Mr. Ford, who is acting as host this year, said the first stop will be at Milan, in northern Ohio, the birth place of Mr. Edison. From there the party will go to Mr. Ford's country home near Detroit, whence it will meander through northern Michigan and Wisconsin.

There is no definite itenerary, however, and according to Mr. Ford, the party will "just wander aimlessly for the next two weeks." They will camp along the way, but wher thy will stop and how long they will before breaking camp, is enirely up to Mr. Edison, ho has been designated "commander-in-chief."

Vernon Honors Harding

VERNON, Aug. 10.—This little city today is paying tribute to the memory of Warren G. Harding. All business houses were closed during the hour for the funeral and appropriate services were held on the public square with Judge James V. Leak of the Forty-sixth district court, making an address. Taps was sounded at 3:30 o'clock.

Pretty Screen Star and Estranged Mother May Be Reconciled, Report

By International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—Despite the possibility of a reconciliation being as far distant as ever between Mary Miles Minter, film star, and her estranged mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, the pretty actress was expected to visit her mother today at a Los Angeles hospital, where she is seriously ill.

Miss Minter repeated today her intention of filing suit against her mother and sister, Margaret Shelby, for $1,000,000, which she claims is rightfully hers.

"Mother has made up her mind about me," Miss Minter said. "If I go see her, as I probably will, there will be no reconciliation."

On the other hand, Mrs. Shelby issued a statement from her sick room that no matter what her actress daughter had to say about her she will be glad to see her.

What will occur at the meeting between the actress and her parent, who have been at outs since Miss Minter became of legal age several months ago, was a matter of much conjecture.

Miss Minter has said she did not believe her mother was seriously ill, as she had been in touch with attaches at the hospital where she was operated upon three days ago.

PHYSICIANS CONFER AT DAVIS BEDSIDE

By International News Service.

TOPEKA, Kans., Aug. 10.—A consultation of local physicians held at the mansion of Governor Jonathan M. Davis, ill with typhoid fever here today, but, according to Dr. L. M. Powell, this did not mean that the governor's condition had become worse.

In his opinion, Dr. Powell said Davis is considerably better, but still a "sick man."

The executive had the best rest last night he has had since becoming ill and his condition today is considered encouraging, it was learned at the executive mansion. Governor Davis' temperature last night was 103. No medical bulletin have been issued today.

TODAY WE MOVE ON AS BEFORE.

Wichita Falls paid tribute to Warren G. Harding in a manner which is a credit to the individuals who make up this city's commercial and social life. In the quiet hour wherever possible, everything paused to pay respect to the dead president.

It was so in every city and village of the country. It was expected everywhere and the program was followed through without question. While this was only a passing tribute to the memory of the country's former chief, it was symbolic of American life, and the unity of action which has built a powerful nation.

Today we move ahead as before. A new leader has taken up the task where Harding laid it down. There will be other leaders, and while their plans of operation will differ, and ever varying views be presented, the country as a whole, will go on until the end of time, ever respectful of the mighty power which lies in our government and which is the gift of the people themselves.

COTTON.

Cotton is the money crop of the South. A crop of eleven million, five thousand bales is the forecast for America for 1923. There is a forecast of four million bales for Texas and the minimum Texas crop should not go below three million five hundred thousand bales.

Experts say the boll weevil during the last five years cost the southern cotton farmer one billion five hundred million dollars exclusive of the several hundreds of millions spent for the seeds that went to waste and this too on a valuation of fifteen cents a pound.

The crop value of 1922-23 for the United States was $1,571,299,839 and the average price was 24.06 cents per pound as compared with 17.78 cents in 1921. According to the experts the quantity of cotton carried on July 31 was 2,573,000 bales against 4,879,000 the previous year, a decrease in the carry-over supply of 2,306,000 bales.

Southern consumption was the largest of any year yet recorded. To be exact, the consumption of American cotton in the south was 4,488,000 bales and in the north 2,503,000 bales, at total of 6,991,000 bales, including linters. This shows the tremendous progress of the textile industry in the south and is a faint forecast of what is coming in future years. Some day every pound of cotton grown in the south will be consumed by southern mills.

Exports of cotton during the year to foreign ports were 4,850,795 bales against 6,322,470 last year, or a decrease under the year before last of 946,795 bales. This shows that the cotton manufacturing industry in foreign countries was severely hit or that the high price of American cotton, compelled foreign spinners to purchase the cheap grades or inferior stocks grown in other cotton producing nations.

Cotton, as has been said, is the money crop of the south. In Texas, as in other southern states, its sale means the intrusion of new money in the channels of commerce and finance. More than two million southern families are growers of cotton. More than five hundred thousand Texas farmers are growers of cotton. A cotton crop based on a twenty cents per pound average price will place a half billion dollars in Texas this year and twenty-five cent cotton would let loose a tide of prosperity such as Texas has never known.

Financially speaking, Texas should be basically very strong this fall and Texans should enjoy a degree of prosperity greater than the people of any other American state. Some day the cotton grown in America will be manufactured into the finished product in the mills of America, but until that day comes there must be a world market for the surplus cotton crop and that market must be found beyond the war stricken zone of Europe until the sorely distracted nations and peoples return to normalcy and forget the passions and the jealousies and the hatreds and the horrors of the past.

INDUSTRIAL TEXAS.

Industrial Texas is to be given an inning. Burt C. Blanton is making an industrial survey of the commonwealth. He had discovered there are now fifty-seven classes of industry in the state, representing a total investment in excess of six hundred million dollars with a total approximately 6,520 manufacturing plants.

There is only one tannery plant in the state. This plant is located in the city of Yoakum and was established five years ago. Texas produces more hides than any American state. They are shipped to the tanneries of New England. Then the shoes are made from Texas hides and reshipped to the southwest and sold to the five millions of Texans.

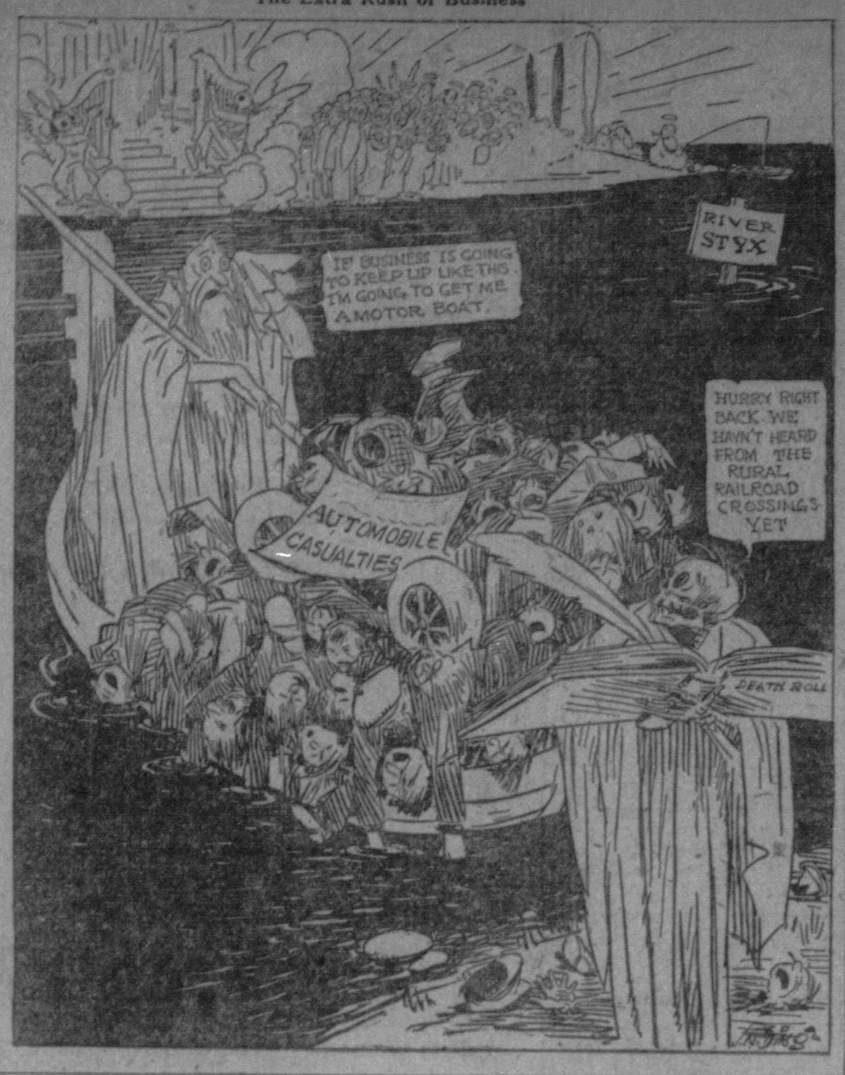

There are only two knitting mills, twenty cotton textile mills and two cotton textile mills under construction in Texas. This year Texas will produce more than a third of the cotton crop of America and after the cotton has been turned into the finished product the millions of wearers of cotton garments in the southwest and Mexico will buy goods made from Texas cotton from New England mill owners.

In their relative order cotton gins lead with a total of 3,611 plants; saw mills rank second in number with a total of 731; power and light plants rank third with a total of 325; central generating stations serve a total of 629 cities and towns in the state; ice and cold storage plants rank fourth with a total of 321 plants; cotton seed oil mills rank fifth with a total of 161.

There are 61 by-product cotton plants. Brick and tile and pottery manufacturing plants rank sixth with a total of 145 plants and ice cream manufacturing plants rank seventh with a total of 115. Texas is without a woolen mill. Texas is the largest producer of wool of any American state. And speaking of mohair, Texas supplies the demand of American mills. None of these mills are located in Texas.

This is not a criticism. This is a reflection. Texas is a billion dollar agriculture state. Why not get full value on the potential wealth of the commonwealth?

The Extra Rush of Business

THE SOUL-SCAR

By HELEN DUFF

"I don't know why." She was trembling.

"You do! Only, you won't admit it. You're awake at last, but you are still fighting—fighting yourself—child!" The mouth that she had mistrusted had now a whimsical droop that made it almost tender. "I know how hard it is to give in," he went on. "I fought myself for years—fought step by step—through hell. Every one believing the worst of me, every one damning me, and now you—you of all people, when I least expect it, treat me like a human being. Natalie Mallinson, don't you know, can't you see what it means to me?"

He stopped. A strange expression crossed his face and he freed her abruptly. "I must be mad—as mad as all the rest of the mad people in this madhouse"—the old sidelong, twisted grin as he stepped back, leaving her path free. "Thank you for shielding me. It was corking good sportsmanship, and I hope you won't live to regret it." His hand went up in a half-mocking, half-deferential salute and he was gone.

Meanwhile, Mr. Burby was having his hands full. Miss Merilda Tillinghast had demanded a private interview. The summons puzzled him. He was not exactly sure whether public officials, like doctors, could visit ladies' bedrooms unchallenged, but he wasted no time in getting there.

Leaving the door discreetly open, he took a seat on the edge of the chair farthest away from the bed.

"Shut the door," she snapped. And, as he hesitated: "What are you afraid of? You're safe. When people get one foot in the grave, they've no business to act as though they were in a French farce . . . Now to business. Would you like to be the one to catch this murderer?"

Like the born melodramist that she was, Miss Merilda paused to let the thrill get across. Then, in a whisper: "Ask Miss Pringle. SHE KNOWS. He's hidden in her room!"

The coroner rose and gathered his dignity about him like a cloak.

"I regret, ma-am, my profession is such I cannot indulge in wit and humor. Murder is a serious business. As for Miss Pringle, she's a woman of character—a woman who has been coming to these parts for years. I've searched it from top to bottom—every room."

The door slammed. Mr. Burby stamped downstairs.

Miss Merilda lay for some time staring at the ceiling—her imagination, a peculiarly juvenile imagination, busy with a new idea. Why not play the leading part? Discoverer the murderer? Get all the credit?

She sat up hastily and consulted her watch. It was four o'clock. Almost time for another meal. When the dining room was full, the upper part of the house would be empty. Backing cautiously out of bed, she went to the closet and took out her wadded-silk dressing gown and a pair of bedroom slippers.

CHAPTER XVII—THE RUBY EARRINGS.

While Miss Merilda busied herself with plans for personal aggrandisement, Natalie turned round and round in the squirrel-cage of doubt.

Her interview with Jones threw her back to her original starting point. Was he innocent or guilty? If he were innocent, why not explain himself?

Reaching the flat rock where she had spent part of the morning, she resolved to wait until sunset before going back.

Presently she saw Sammy coming up the hill on the other side. Half way up he slumped down and dragged himself until he was under the shelving point of rock on which she sat. She heard him burrowing like a fox in his hole. Soon he emerged and stood, all unconscious of her presence, clutching something which he now smoothed, now fondled, now held above his head with the exultation of a religious devotee.

It was the ruby earrings of the "princess-woman!"

Natalie flung her arm across her mouth to smother a cry. The scene in the hall the night before flashed before her. Had the boy been so carried away by the glitter, the fascination of those trinkets that he had—

She shuddered, and then, with an overwhelming relief, realized what it would mean if Sammy Todd were the murderer. Jones—Jones would be free, his name cleared of suspicion!

But, oh, she must be so careful.

Leaning over the rock, she called:

"Sammy—Sammy Todd!" As the boy looked up, her hands went out to him. "Come here," she invited.

Suspicious, yet flattered, he grimaced.

"Sammy," she said. "I have something for you." She slipped off a small seal-ring and held it out. "I want you to have it."

Though his eyes glistened, he shook his head.

"Show me what you have, and the ring is yours." Natalie promised over and over again. Her nerves were twitching before he surrendered.

The feel of the rubies was to the girl a joy such as she had never known. At that moment she believed Jones to be innocent. The evidence was only a slender thread, to be sure; but it could be—must be—made secure.

Slowly she went about her questions, coaxing, bribing, but discovering little. At last, with an inspiration born of desperation, she fastened one of the hoops into her own ear and turned, shaking her head.

"See! Do I looke like her?"

With a sudden whimper, the boy backed away.

"No, no!" he cried. "Not like her! Take it off! Take it off!" A white horror seemed to fall upon him. "I told her she must give them to me. I told her loud, but she wouldn't. And then I took her by the neck and I——"

Before the girl realized his intention, he had snatched the earrings and, leaping from the rock, was off the way he had come.

CHAPTER XVIII—THE SWEDISH LION.

It was Bill to whom Natalie carried the story of Sammy Todd and the earrings. He happened to be the first person she met, and her heart was bursting. The chauffeur listened in moody silence.

"Don't you understand?" she urged, "it will clear everybody else."

Bill shook his head.

"Sammy's a nut, all right," he said; "but he wouldn't hurt a fly. I know who done it."

"I wanted to tell that old fool Burby, but he wouldn't listen."

"Will you tell ME?"

Bill hitched at his collar.

"Well, why not?" he said at last. "I don't owe Ole Peterson nothin'."

"Ole Peterson—Tillie's husband?"

"Aw—you're as bad as Burby, but—every one round the Bridgeport circus lot knows the 'Swedish Lion.' He's a killer when he's tight. Besides, he's sore at Tillie and he's sore at me."

"At you?"

"Sure!"—with a shrug. "Tillie come to the mission class with Miss Pringle, and didn't say she was married, and I got to walkin' out with her and——"

"I see—you and she became friends."

"That's one of the reasons I come up here. And then Tillie, she got Miss Pringle to bring her, too. Some crust I'll tell the world—and me just after givin' her the gate. Ole got hep, I guess. Anyway, yesterday he come off the boat at Mink Harbor all lit up—swearin', fightin'-mad drunk—telling everybody he'd come to find his wife and bash her on the coco."

"But this other woman—why should he touch her? She had nothing to do with Tillie."

"Right you are! But when Ole once gets started, he'd hit anything that got in his way. Say; do you know how this dame was killed? She had all one side of her head stove in. No one but a big guy could have done it."

Natalie went slowly into the house. Jones was a "big guy." Straight to the office she went.

"I have made a discovery," she announced to Jones. Perhaps you can tell me whether it is important."

"Yes?"

"Sammy Todd has the earrings this—this woman wore."

Jones' brows contracted. She hastened on with her story. To her amazement, Jones was as skeptical as Bill. He even vetoed with some heat her proposal to carry the information to the coroner.

"You'll only be laughed at. The first thing he'll say will be, 'Where are the earrings?' Without them, don't you see how fishy it all sounds?"

"No, I don't." Natalie's color was rising. "Why shouldn't he be interested? It may be a clue. You want the murderer to be found, don't you?" And then, seeing the expression her companion's face: "Oh, why don't you tell me what you're afraid of? Is there someone in the room on the top floor?"

The ink-well that Jones had been fingering slipped, sprinkling the papers on the desk with black polka-dots.

"What do you know about that room?" he demanded. "Have you been there?" There was a sharper note with every rising inflection. "Have you?"

INSTALLMENT NO. VII.

CHAPTER XIX—SAMMY'S GRANDMOTHER.

"No; but——" A pause with deliberate intent. "My aunt——" Jones' fist crashed down among the ink-stained papers. "Has SHE been there?"

"No; we haven't either of us been there; but, after all, why shouldn't we be free to move about in any part of the house? Can't you see—don't you realize what all this mystery will lead to?"

Tomorrow's installment tells of a wild fight.

So Goes It

By B. H.

It is the nature of some women to have their hair bobbed, and during the operation, to shed tears when they see their tresses leaving them.

By the same token it is the nature of other women to have friend husband arrested when he begins throwing the furniture around, and then to rush into police court the following day and pay his fine.

We fear that the Wobblies are going to have hard going with Mr. Coolidge. It develops that the new president was born on July 4, when flags were waving, guns booming, firecrackers cracking, and all that sort of thing. He believes in the flag and he was, so to speak, born under it.

Marie Louise Hartje Woods, daughter of a millionaire, is working as an "extra" in the movies to prove that a poor little rich girl can achieve success in filmland. We didn't know anyone had started that argument. Probably her press agent.

At the present writing Marie is getting $7.50 per day. Which isn't a bad salary for an "extra," and which, incidentally, probably is more than she is worth.

Honesty is the best police protection.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A Trick Dessert

One mother says:

Two or three apricot halves left from dinner's dessert formed the basis of a dish the next day which the children enjoyed as a surprise. With three-fourths cup of milk, one tablespoon of cornstarch and one-fourth cup of sugar, I made a blanc mange. When cool, this was spread thinly on a plate. Then I placed the apricots on it to look like eggs. A sprinkling of cinnamon resembled pepper.

More Truth Than Poetry

SYMPTOMS

Whenever a statesman gets up to declare
(The while he represses a groan)
That it moves him to bitter and cloying despair
To see how debased men have grown;
When persons will mingle in public affairs
For no higher motive than pelf,
And no one who figures in politics cares
For the people—excepting himself,
You view him askance, for you see at a glance
That the fellow would graft if he got half a chance!

Whenever a gentleman says that in trade
The honest are crushed to the wall,
And that fortunes can never be possibly made
Save by trickery, buttressed with gall,
When he says that rascality highly is prized
As a business man's cleverest trait,
And that men of ambition should all be advised
That they cannot succeed and keep straight,
You won't trust him a lot, for you'll know on the spot
That given the chance, he would steal all you've got!

Whenever the lad at the desk next to yours
Says that merit counts not for a rap,
And the man that the quickest promotion secures
Is the scheming and soldiering chap;
When he tells you his years of hard gruelling work
Have earned for him nothing at all,
And he knows he must always plod on as a clerk
Till they force him at last to the wall,
You will probably see that hard labor and he
Are a pair that can't possibly ever agree!

WHAT TODAY MEANS

LEO

August 11

The planetary conditions are extremely good throughout the day and evening. In business, care must be used not to be extravagant and undertake more than you can handle. There will be a strong inclination to go to extremes in pleasure-making, however, today is one that will bring good times and happiness, in numerous ways.

A child born today will be affectionate but erratic, and will respond only to love and to trust.

If this is your birthday, your interests will be diverse and varied, as your personality is versatile and original.

Your mind is naturally quick and scintillating and you have given it free rein to lead you where it will, and just where it will you cannot tell. Your hindsight nor your foresight can penetrate what fate has in store for you!

To you, the world is a stage and you do not care particularly what role you play, just so long as you get into the show. You are equal to any situation and thrive best on constant excitement.

You are witty and humorous, in spite of occasional periods of melancholy and fond of gadding about in society. You should certainly be the life of every party you attend, and you probably register a complaint if you are not.

But underneath the gaiety of your external self there is a deeper, finer nature worth some consideration. You have a clear mind and an unusual sense of logic, and you, with your talent for expression, should have a great career in public life.

Of course, you probably won't, as you are too fond of the immediate reward for any prolonged effect, and you are likewise too fond of living to make any unnecessary sacrifice.

Emotionally, your nature is both spontaneous and responsive. You should be more or less entangled in love affairs most of your life, as you have little discretion and even less caution. You will also be taken much more seriously than you take yourself. This will be a constant source of amusement, but one day the joke will be on you, and you will find yourself married before you realize it.

Successful people born on your birthday are:

Gifford Pinchot, forester and governor of Pennsylvania.

Robert G. Ingersoll, lawyer and orator.

Burt Green Wilder, scientist.

Kaiser's Coffin Adrift

Like our great Sarah, the imperial woodchopper who was once the German kaiser, always took his coffin with him wherever he went, especially when he went to sea. When the war came the kaiser seems to have neglected his coffin. While the though of death must have been his constant companion evidently his own death was not considered probable or even possible. So the imperial casket remained on the Bremen, one of his favorite boats.

The wanderings of the Bremen have been varied and that vessel was last reported as being implored by the Red Cross for ferrying Russian, Greek and Levantine refugees across the Atlantic. The former war lord's casket is a heavy, pretentious affair of wood, which looks too short—too short, that is, for a man who aspired to such heights—and still bears traces of the imperial arms and decorations of gold and silver. Most of the precious metal, however, has been pried away from time to time by covetous and irreverent hands.

The kaiser's casket, indeed, has done a god deal of knocking about in odd corners of the world. It was last reported in Constantinople and may today be on its way to America. Doubtless it will end at some musty auction sale, or else a brawny sailor, tired of such macabre ballast, may take a notion some day to heave it overboard.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. McPHERSON

INTO WHAT SIZED FARMS SHOULD LANDS ON THE IRRIGATION PROJECT BE DIVIDED?

Peach Production Under Irrigation

As mentioned in yesterday's article, the leading producing state is California. California's production in 1921 was over one-third of the total production of the entire nation.

Practically all the peach trees in California are irrigated. This would tend to show that there is but little question of successful peach growing under irrigated conditions.

However, peaches are grown only to a limited extent under the irrigation projects of the reclamation service. Below we give the records of yield of peaches on the various reclamation service projects in 1921:

Orland, Calif.—22 acres; 46,200 lbs.; yield per acre, 2,100 lbs.

Uncompahgree, Colo.—98 acres; 133,300 lbs.; yield per acre, 1,360 lbs.

Boise, Idaho—105 acres; 840,000 lbs.; yield per acre, 8,000 lbs.

Rio Grande (Texas-N. M.)—80 acres; 75,725 lbs.; yield per acre, 950 lbs.

Umatilla, Ore.—38 acres; 59,840 lbs.; yield per acre, 1,250 lbs.

Strawberry, Utah—186 acres; 2,640,067 lbs.; yield per acre, 10,970 pounds.

Okanogan, Wash.—14 acres; 55,400 lbs.; yield per acre, 3,950 lbs.

Yakima, Washington—1,437 acres; 7,082,505 pounds; yield per acre, 4,950 lbs.

The most impressive and illustrative fact shown in the above tabulation is the wide variation of yield. The Strawberry project in Utah, located in the foothills of the Wasatch mountains, is in the heart of a country noted for its wonderful peach fruits generally do better in a mountainous or hilly country, but that production. The Boise project, with its excellent production, is also located close to the mountains and on a high mesa.

It is hard to explain the low production of the Rio Grande, except that it is probably the result of a late frost. Peaches, as we have noted, are particularly subject to late frosts on account of their early blooming habits.

There is no question but what does not mean that certain varieties may not be profitably grown under prairie conditions.

Tomorrow we will discuss peach growing as it may affect the size of the irrigated farm unit here.

Ready for the Question

Little Louis, having been invited out to dinner with his mother, was commanded not to speak except when he was asked a question, and promised to obey the command.

At the table no attention was paid to Louis for a long time. He grew very restless, and his mother could see that he was having a hard time to "holdin." By and by he could stand it no longer.

"Mother!" he called out. "When are they going to begin asking me questions?"

Gallant.

A really polite Frenchman can be complimentary in the face of unkind remarks.

Such a man, who had ben bestowing upon a lady many compliments, asked her why she kept a large and apparently savage dog which had just entered the room.

"I bought him only yesterday," she answered, flippantly, "and I am going to keep him in my front hall to eat up all my admirers."

"Ah, the por beast!" exclaimed the Frenchman, "to die of indigestion!"

The Verschoyle No. 2, which was completed Monday, bids fair to rival the initial producer which created such a sensation a few weeks ago. The second test has been put on the pump and is making 450 barrels.

In the same area the well of Shaw & Rathke is reported to have struck a new sand at 1,778 feet. The well is ready to be brought in, according to reports received Friday. It is an offset to the orinignal Varschoyle test.

CATTLE PRICES SAGGING LOWER

Short Trading Session At Fort Worth Pens Friday

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Aug. 10.—Active trading characterized the day's session on the cattle division Friday, but the market was uneven and where they was any quotable change prices sagged to lower levels. All buying ceased at noon in honor of the memory of the late President Harding. At the same hour the packi houses closed for the day. Steers averaged 25 cents lower, but cows, heifers and mixed cattle cleared at rates that were generally steady. Calves also sold at prices that were called unchanged. Receipts were estimated at 1,800 head of cattle and 1,500 calves. Some good steers were here, but most of the cow supply lacked quality and the offering of calves was of an inferior sort.

Bidding Lower.

Fed steers sold with less freedom than other classes of cattle. Buyers were bidding lower from the outset and when sales were made they were called around 25 cents lower. Some good cattle went at a range of $7.25@7.75.

One consignment of fat cows was good enough to bring $5.00. Most of the decent kinds went at 2.50@3.25. Canners were taken at 1.50@1.75. Only a few small drafts of yearlings were around and the bull supply consisted of odds and ends.

Good Car.

Only one car of calves was good. The remainder of the supply lacked quality and was classed as an undesirable sort. The market was about steady, however.

Buyers and salesmen differed as their opinions as to the extent of the decline on hogs, the selling interests were of the fee that the loss amounted to 25 to 35 cents. Good hogs were only 25 cents lower Nothing choice was here and on that account the full strength of the trade was not developed.

GOTHAM PAYS QUIET TRIBUTE

City Strangely Hushed As Dead President Is Buried

by the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Hushed with a reverent stillness unparalelled in her history as a metropolis, New York today paid sorrowful tribute to the memory of Warren Gamaliel Harding.

Her great banks, her brokerage house, her stores, her harbor deserted, the city turned to her myriad churches where the sad ceremonies at Marion, Ohio, were being echoed.

It was more than a Sunday hush that fell.

Sunday, to New York's millions, is a day as much for relaxation as for worship. It is a day for the beaches, the parks and the country. A day for motoring, car rides and golf.

Sorrow Everywhere.

Today it was almost as if there was a funeral in every home. Broad thoroughfares were stripped of their traffic. Subway and elevated trains, running on reduced schedules, were sparsely occupied.

The apex of the day of mourning came at noon when, with millions assembled in the city's churches to do sorrowful homage to the dead president, with the guns of the surrounding forts and military posts booming the presidential salute and with hundreds of church bells tolling, the city's transit lines ground to a halt and her connections with the outside world were temporarily snapped.

Sub-way, elevated and railroad trains, trolley cars and automobiles stood motionless for two minutes. Telegraph and cable instruments were stilled for a like period. Radio ceased. Telephone operators sat motionless at their switchboards. All thoughts turned toward Marion.

Another climax came a few minutes after 5 o'clock when the wires of The Associated Press, connecting the nation with Marion, flashed "Taps," then subsided for two minutes into an unaccustomed silence. A vast hush filled the city. Crews of ships and tugs in the harbor stood at attention. Foreign vessels dipped their colors. The Stars and Stripes of the American liners fluttered sadly at half mast.

FORD TOURING CAR BLAZES UP FRIDAY

A Ford touring car parked on Lamar avenue near Eleventh street, caused considerable excitement Friday noon, when it burst into flame. The cause of the blaze could not be ascertained but for a time it threatened to ruin the entire machine.

An alarm to the central fire station brought apparatus promptly to the scene, however, and the damage was confined to the loss of upholstering.

The name of the owner of the car could not be learned.

Whiskey Charges Filed After Raid

A charge of manufacture and possession of whiskey was filed in Justice Gibbs court Friday by the sheriff's department against a man whose home on Red river was raided late Thursday night by the sheriff's department and 25 gallons of mash and whiskey confiscated.

The man told officers he had the whiskey for his private consumption. He waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury by Judge Gibs on bond of $1,000.

SHERIFF GRABS "CHOC"

"Choc" beer to the extent of 75 gallons was captured by Sheriff Pat Murphy and Deputies Hawkins and Belcher, Thursday night at the home of a man three miles east of town on the Petrolia road.

A part of a still was also taken in the raid. This was the third of three raids and arrests made by the sheriff's department Thursday.

Stolen Ford Recovered

A Ford car stolen from Wichita Falls Wednesday night, was recovered at Medill, Oklahoma, Thursday as a result of the local sheriff's department, who wired a description of the car and of the persons stealing it.

Old Home Town Stuff

THINGS YOU SAY, DO AND SEE AND SOME YOU DON'T

Marvin Smith of McClurkan & Co. returned yesterday from a buying trip including New York, Chicago and St. Louis. He reports heavy fall buying in New York and predicts a good fall trade.

Judge Gibbs began on a new ledger yesterday, having already used up one and the year not nearly gone.

Someone remarks that if the midnight courthouse bootlegger would change his hours he would get more patronage. Cruel words those.

If the city park car had really been stolen from in front of the city hall and the courthouse bootlegger not have been caught, the critics would be getting in some bad work about now.

Not a single district court holding forth at the courthouse now. This possibly implies that all those who make litigation so profuse have gone to Colorado on vacations and there's no need of courts until they return.

Things we can do without this kind of weather:
Grasshoppers.
Overcoats.
Jellybeans.
Radiators.
Steam heat.

Town Stuff takes credit for one thing. He believes he is the only alleged newspaper man in the country who has not attempted to write a poem on the death of the president.

Again Wichita Falls gets in the limelight with Burl Bryant being appointed one of the educational commissioners for the state.

Style note says official jellybean head-gear for winter will be Mexican sombrero with long red strings hanging down the shoulder. Consistency? If old Villa was a jellybean just what is a jellybean?

All the first bales of cotton for this season seem to have arrived.

BOOZE SOLD IN COURTHOUSE

Bootlegger Jailed After He Delivers

Here's the prize booze story of the season.

Making a delivery of a half gallon of whiskey to a customer in the basement of the court house is what happened about midnight Thursday.

In the very temple of justice where three district courts, two county courts, a federal court and two justice courts are housed, a rum runner slipped in and sold whiskey.

While Jailor Fitzpatrick was sitting on the court house lawn late Thursday night, he noticed a stealthy figure creeping through the shadows. The jailor kept still and watched the figure, with a package under his arm, walk boldly down the basement steps and disappear. Suspicioning something unusual, the jailor placed himself at one of the basement exits.

In a few minutes a man came out and Fitzpatrick placed him under arrest. Demanding what he had carried into the court house, the prisoner told Fitzpatrick he had sold a half gallon of whiskey. The jailor took the prisoner back into the court house and found the whiskey in the possession of a janitor.

Friday morning charges of possession and sale of whiskey were filed against the man. The sheriff's department then raided his home here and got 12 jars of whiskey.

MERCHANTS ARGUE

Two local clothing merchants who argued the respective merits of their individual brands too indiscreetly, Thursday night, were brought into the city police court Friday morning to stand charges of disturbing the peace. The arguments almost started anew there but was quelled before any damage was done.

It seemed that the fight had taken place on a busy street corner and is said to have been over business matters. A debt of six dollars, alleged by one of the combattants to be owed him by the other, also figured in the deal.

After hearing evidence in the case, Judge George fined the agressor $10 and dismissed the charges against the other.
