

Broadway project to take summer, will start soon

Kerr Construction Co. of Lubbock plans to begin the Broadway street widening project here in about two weeks, weather permitting. The pre-construction conference at the highway department offices here Monday morning.

Kerr explained that all concrete curb and drive-ways will be removed on one side of Broadway at a time between Third and 15th streets.

Broadway, which carries 44,000 vehicles through Post, will be widened six feet on each side.

He plans to complete the project by September, Kerr said.

Plans call for single lane traffic on each way on Broadway throughout the construction period except for the final 1 1/2 inches of paving which will be done after the widening is complete.

He plans to complete half the widening before starting the widening of the other side and thus shifting traffic over to the completed side, Kerr said.

After the concrete has been torn out, a new base will be laid, new curb and gutter poured on top of it, and then a 3 1/2 inch base will be placed on top of the sub-base.

At this point we will shift the other side of the road to do the same

Final payment made center's contractor

The city council at a special meeting at 5 p.m. Thursday authorized the $1,000 payment to Lee S. Lubbock contractor, for the $102,725 remodeling of the former Parrish grocery store into the Post Community Center.

The $1,000 had been withheld pending completion of several small items listed on the contract.

All of this work was completed recently to the satisfaction of the city and Duane McManis, representative of the architectural firm, Whitaker and Duane, met with the council.

George Miller book is story of alcoholism

The Rev. George L. Miller's first book, which is on sale at The Dispatch today, is a story of how he became an alcoholic during his Presbyterian ministry in Post and found only a new outlook on life through Alcoholics Anonymous, but a new awareness of God as well.

In the book, Post is named "Hazel" (he lived here on Hazel Drive) and local people are given other names.

The book is basically an account of Miller's own problems with alcohol and the problems of the spirit world to most readers.

Primarily it is a book thing. When it's all done but the riding surface, the final 1 1/2 inch hot mix will be put on the whole street at one time.

Kerr promised that temporary access will be provided to all businesses on Broadway so that none would be denied customer access by the street widening and paving.

Kerr said he realized that Broadway, especially South Broadway is a drainage street in wet weather, but that "we'll work around it in wet weather as best we can."

He said maximum employment by his firm will be between 35 and 40 probably coming in July.

Kerr said as much local hiring will be done as possible.

Resident Engineer Julian Smith told the Dispatch that once the project gets under way "we will encourage Post people to stay off Broadway as much as possible to avoid traffic congestion themselves and to prevent greater congestion."

A lot of emphasis at the Monday meeting, which was attended by law enforcement officials as well as highway officials and the press, was placed on safety measures to be taken by all concerned through the entire construction period.

Post lake water contract talks may start soon

It may not be long now before Lubbock officials "start talking business" with White River water district officials on details of a water contract for the proposed Post Lake.

Al O'Brien, White River water district manager, told The Dispatch late Tuesday that he had been assured that day by the Lubbock water superintendent that

POSTINGS
Bryan J. Williams has his star sapphire ring back on his finger this week after a five year absence — and he considers himself mighty lucky at that.

The ring was an anniversary gift from his wife, Minnie, and has a considerable monetary value besides an important sentimental value.

In 1972, Bryan J. went bird hunting on Giles Dalby's 40-section Cross H Ranch east of Post and when he got home from the day's shooting the ring was no longer on his finger.

Since he and his hunting companions had stopped to clean quail at two large watering troughs on the ranch, Bryan J. assumed the ring had come off in the water.

So the Cross H cowboys drained the two troughs, but found no ring.

Bryan J. finally resigned himself to the ring's loss. Like a good insurance man. (See Postings, Page 10)

Trial scheduled May 17 in Snyder

The trial of Pat Walker and James Kennedy, charged with theft by exercising control, has been moved to the Scurry County District Court in Snyder and is scheduled to begin May 17.

The pre-trial hearing before Judge Holt is set for May 5.

Garza District Judge George Hansard denied the defense request for a change of venue Jan. 26 but then noting the state had no objection to moving the trial ordered that it be transferred to the Scurry County District Court.

Five requests for funding

The Garza County Commissioners' Court at its public hearing Monday on the use of 1977 federal revenue sharing funds received the following requests for consideration:

Southland School Supt. Tom Alvis, supported by H. C. Dunn, Valton Wheeler and Fred Perkins, asked for $15,000 to $20,000 for paving around the new Southland school now under construction.

Dunn also requested a cement slab across the river on the road connecting Southland to FM 207 and for a water storage facility in Southland for fire use and as an emergency supply for the schools.

Joan Smith, supported by Nelda Dalby, requested funding to help establish a vocational training program in Post Special School.

Lewis Herron, appearing on behalf of the city-county park board, asked $3,900 for repairs to the swimming pool and park.

Maxine Marks, supported by Ola Keeton, requested $1,200 funding for a Meals on Wheels program for the elderly.

Chaffin to state in headline writing

John Chaffin, a Southland senior, won first place in headline writing at the regional ULL competition at South Plains College in Levelland Friday and will compete in the state meet in Austin Friday, May 6.

Post gets twister scare, little rain

Post had a brief "tornado scare" last Wednesday afternoon when funnel sightings were reported west of Post.

Only 13 of an inch of moisture fell Wednesday and on Thursday in Post, but some rural areas reported considerably more beneficial moisture.

Historical group to meet Tuesday

The Garza County Historical Survey Commission will hold its May meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday morning in the bank community room.

Former Post woman patents twin tubs

(Editor's Note: Here's a story about a former Post woman, Mae Storie, a sister of Marshall Reno who was born and reared here and moved to the Brownwood area in 1969, and her unique invention she has patented. This is the story as it recently appeared in The Brownwood Bulletin.)

EARLY — Central Texas' latest inventor confides in a quiet way that she really doesn't feel like one.

And the idea that took her years to receive a patent for has yet to be put into production.

But B. Mae Storie, a resident of Hillcrest Dr., in Early, is anxious nonetheless to see it.

In the grand tradition of "his" and "hers" bath towels, pajamas and garages, comes the latest in a long line of companionship products: twin sunken bathtubs.

Mae Storie's idea consists of two sunken tubs placed side by side, with drains at opposite ends so bathers can face each other.

A built-in step is placed alongside each tub and a recessed ridge has been fitted in between.

The advantages for those (See Twin tubs, Page 10)

Our tornado warning system

A good many local folks got the "tornado jitters" last Wednesday afternoon after there were a variety of unconfirmed reports about funnels being sighted south and southwest of Post and another that the tornado siren was out of order.

This is to report the only known funnel sightings, as far as The Dispatch could learn, were west of Post by Southwestern Public Service employees. These funnels did not reach the ground.

As far as we could determine Post was not in any danger.

Second, the scouts were out, meaning the deputies in their cars with police radios to report any funnel sightings so the tornado siren could be sounded.

They didn't see any.

Third, the siren still works, although the dispatcher at the sheriff's office does have to go outside to hit the button. The siren means to take cover that Post is in danger.

Of course, lots of folks had some reason to be jittery after the twister which swatted

Monahans only the week before.

Fire Chief Neal Clary told us when we checked with him on the condition of the tornado siren that he planned to turn on the siren for a test run this week when there is not a cloud in the sky. That of course may be difficult. We hadn't heard it at this writing and more moisture is predicted for the weekend, which does mean clouds.

The Dispatch isn't one to scoff at the tornado danger, but at the same time we want to point out that Post does have its weather defenses up and ready.

If a direct danger to Post is sighted, that siren is going to blow.

For the next six weeks period there may be plenty of thunderstorms. They are a rather welcome fact of life in West Texas. It is from them that most cotton planting moisture comes.

Let's be on guard against dangerous weather, but let's don't get too skittish in the process.

Peeking into postal future

Remember six years ago when the "pols" took the U. S. postal service "out of politics" and established a governmental corporation to run our "rain or shine delivery service."

The corporation was to raise its postal rates if necessary but operate without a subsidy. A first class letter cost six cents then, but the subsidy to the taxpayer was something awful.

In six years, the cost of a first class letter has more than doubled to 13 cents, and the governmental subsidy is already back — at a maximum of 10 percent of the 1971 postal service budget.

So what's new in the postal service? Well, a postal report came out the other day after a good long look at the future. It was bad news for anybody or any business that depends upon the mails.

It predicted in another eight years, that is the way things are going now, a first class letter will cost about 28 cents for its stamp. Which figures up as a 466 percent rate hike for 15 years.

The postal experts declared if service is cut — including reducing deliveries to a five-day week — and higher taxpayer subsidies are permitted, first class postage in 1985 possibly could be "held" to 22 cents.

The present subsidy is pretty substantial — $1.6 billion of the taxpayers dollars because the department's budget was $16 billion in 1971 and the subsidy limit is 10 percent.

What is proposed is that the postal service be "permitted" a 10 percent subsidy of its current budget which happens to be $21 billion.

This would give the "mail corp" another half billion or a total subsidy of $2.1 billion.

The report also proposes that a decision be made within two years whether electronic message services should partially replace the traditional letter service.

The report points out that first class mail, which is the largest and most lucrative of all mail classes, faces growing major competition from electronic communications systems which transport messages by electronics station to station and delivery the messages next day at the receiving station via mail.

The report also wants strict limits established on when the postal services could close a rural postoffice to save money.

Oh yes, the report said the commission making the report generally found the public satisfied with its postal service.

It gives The Dispatch the jitters to consider the postal service getting into the electronics message business. The cost and operation — and the losses — we fear would be appalling.

What we don't understand is that if private electronic companies say send a message from Boston to San Francisco electronically and then mail the computer printout in the West Coast city for delivery in next day's mail, what did the postal service lose in revenue?

They sold a 13 cent stamp, delivered a letter across town instead of paying to transport it across the country. It seems to us they should make a lot more money on that electronic delivery than if they had set up an electronic system and handled the cross-country message.

Maybe that operation could prove profitable to somebody, but with their record we don't think it is the postal service.

What we're wondering about first class mail is whether a letter delivery two blocks down the street should cost the same as one flown to Alaska (they fly most first class these days without airmail stamps).

The postal service zones packages as to charges.

If you like to read magazines you should realize the big reason for the spiral in subscription costs is mail delivery rates. They are going so high they are threatening to put national magazines out of business.

Of course it is easy to criticize and to point the faults. The postal service is one of the world's biggest businesses. Managing it today must be a horrendous job.

The Dispatch agrees with the report on postal service as far as local postal service is concerned. There are no real complaints here in Post. Our postal workers are intelligent, cooperative and courteous. They do a good job.

We read the other day about an investigation being launched in Italy concerning the postal service in Rome. It seems that their "social security" and "welfare checks" are all mailed so a lot of people are economically dependent upon prompt mail service.

But in Rome it often takes months, the story went, for a piece of mail to travel from one part of the city to another, without even leaving town.

For all its problems, America's postal service is still one of the best, if not the best, in the world today, considering the tremendous job it has to do.

DEFINING CREDIT CARD

There are four kinds of money: paper money, minted money, bank account money, and credit account money. The difference between them is that you don't have the credit card money unless you spend it, and when you spend it, you owe it — which is to say that the credit card is an empty purse full of other people's money.

Tips on preventing food poison danger

COLLEGE STATION — Food poisoning poses a serious threat to Americans' health — estimates of actual food poisoning cases range from 2-10 million annually, Frances Reasonover, a foods and nutrition specialist says.

Homemakers have the potential of causing food poisoning while handling, preparing and storing meat and poultry.

For example, leaving cooked meat or poultry at room temperature for more than two hours carries a high risk of food poisoning. Cooked meat and poultry left out at room temperature are a haven for bacterial growth that can cause illness, the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System said.

"Another hazard is cross-contamination of bacteria from raw meat and poultry — possible hosts to harmful bacteria — when such items are prepared with other foods. Washing hands immediately after handling raw meat will help prevent cross-contamination to side dish ingredients.

"Storage of food in the refrigerator may not be safe, because temperatures of 45 degrees F. and above are not cool enough to check bacterial growth. Refrigeration at 40 degrees F. is a safer temperature," she said.

The specialist said that homemakers can follow these suggestions in food preparation to avoid the possibility of causing food poisoning.

Cook hamburger well done.

Refrigerate cooked beef roast, pork roast, turkey or chicken as soon after cooking as possible, preferably within two hours.

Refrigerate tuna, chicken, turkey or egg salad-sandwiches within two hours if possible.

Be sure refrigerator keeps beef roast, turkey, pork or chicken leftovers cooler than 45 degrees F.

Stuff a turkey immediately before roasting. Cook a turkey completely at one time.

Punch, buttermilk, party nuts and a double-hearted cake accented with daisies, with the inscription 'Jodie and Jerry' was served by Mrs. Penny Sappington.

Special guest for the occasion was Mrs. Gerald Norman, mother of the bride-to-be.

The couple will be united in marriage May 14 in the First United Methodist Church here.

Youththoughts

By TRACY McALISTER

The school does need a new auditorium. Not only for the plays, but for the other local functions that have to use the primary as well.

The one that we have now is quite out of date. The acoustics are bad, the lights don't work half of the time, and there is not enough room to put on a big production.

I have been to a lot of other school auditoriums, and Post has to have one of the worst in the district.

If the school board is thinking of investing in anything, why not a new auditorium? It would be well worth the money.

The one-act play 'Impromptu' lost last week. It was really a blow to all of us. In our minds we did quite well and that's the way it's supposed to be. But we have shown the town that the athletic department is not the only department that is worth a lot of value in this town.

The next day of school was not easy either. But when you have a friend like I have that can brighten your darkest day with a few words, then you don't feel so bad. Thanks Jen.

The one-act will be presented next Tuesday, May 3, in the primary auditorium at 8:30. Tickets will be sold at the door. The money will go into use for the Academy Award Banquet which is to be held May 10.

HECE banquet is tonight

The Home Economics Cooperative Education class will have their annual employer-employee banquet tonight at 7:30 in the community center.

There are approximately 65 people coming along with the advisory committee which is made up of Mrs. Mattie Collier, who has served on the committee for five years, Mr. Billy Hahn, Mr. Jack Alexander, Coach Lane Tannehill, Mrs. Carolyn Sawyers and Mrs. Marion Wheatley.

The speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Charles McCook. Entertainment will be provided by Nancy Gandy who will read a poem and Steve Shedd who will sing a song.

The theme for the banquet is "All of Our Tomorrows Depend on You."

Kids worried about grades

School is about over and the kids are really starting to worry about their grades. Especially the seniors.

School takes a lot of effort. You can't go three and a half years and then decide to work. High school is a sort of process of elimination. The workers get out and the ones who just sit and talk all day usually don't make it.

If you're a freshman this year and are not working hard in school, please start. It could mean the difference between being a "graduate" or a "senior" the rest of your life. Think about it!

"Impromptu" to be given

"Impromptu," the one-act play, lost at regional competition Thursday, but the Post group was very pleased with their performance. The two winning plays were: "Luther," by Boys Ranch, and "Taming of the Shrew," by Kermit.

Terry Smith and Tracy McAlister made the all-star cast along with five other competitors. Donna Josey received recognition for playing Lora by honorable mention. Mark Kirkpatrick did not receive an award, but everyone thought that he really deserved one.

The cast and crew of the play have decided to put the play on for the public. The time will be at 8:30 next Tuesday in the primary auditorium. Tickets will be sold at the door.

So come and see the one-act. The first play to ever advance beyond area competition from Post. It will be well worth your while.

The director for the play is Miss Jane Tice.

Those in the cast are:

Karen wins WTC cage scholarship

Karen Williams, Post's high scoring all-district forward, has been awarded a basketball scholarship for 1977-78 by Western Texas College at Snyder.

She becomes the first girl athlete from Post to receive an athletic scholarship.

Athletic Director and Coach Sid Simpson of WTC signed Karen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Williams, this week.

Coach John Morrow, who coached Karen through her high school career, told The Dispatch that Simpson has "a good program going" at Western Texas College.

Karen had a 28.6 points per game scoring average her senior year.

She scored 1,935 points in her high school career in 101 games, including her 21.2 point average in 17 games for the freshman team. The rest of it was with the Doe varsity.

She rang up 803 points in 28 games her senior season with a high of 53 here against Floydada Dec. 14 in which she set an all-time Post Doe scoring record.

Little League tryouts set

Little League tryouts have been set for 6 p.m., Thursday, May 5 for 9 and 10 years olds, Friday, May 6, for 11 and 12 year olds and Monday, May 9, for make up for those who missed either day.

Players must bring a Little League form signed by both parents and with correct birthdays on form. The forms will be distributed at Post and Southland schools on Tuesday, May 3.

Any child who does not reach their 13th birthday before August 1, 1977 is eligible to tryout for Little League.

The district Little League meet will be in Post for the first time this year. The field must meet certain requirements in order to do this. A field work day has been set for Friday, April 29th at 6 p.m.

Brenda third in regional

Post didn't qualify any entries for the state girls track meet in the regionals at Lubbock Friday and Saturday.

The closest any of the three Post girls came was Brenda Price's third place finish in the 220 yard dash Saturday.

Post's other entrants were Donna Baumann in the high jump and Danna Giddens in the 80 yard hurdles.

Baumann underwent knee surgery Tuesday morning in Methodist hospital in Lubbock for a knee injury suffered earlier in the track season which sidelined her for several weeks.

Teenage team meeting Sunday

Youngsters interested in playing on the Post Senior Babe Ruth baseball team in the inter-city teenagers league are asked to meet at the Babe Ruth park at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 1.

Reese jets fly low over NE Garza

LUBBOCK — Air Training Command Northrop T-38 Jet trainers from the 64th Flying Training Wing at Reese AFB here, have begun flying two low altitude training routes in West Texas.

The high speed, low level training routes will be flown during daylight hours only at altitudes of 1,000 to 15,000 feet above the terrain at subsonic speeds of between 415 and 460 miles per hour.

The routes will be used for navigation training in the Undergraduate Pilot Training program.

The requirement for high speed low level navigation training for air force pilots is based on operational needs of the air force to perform both tactical fighter operations and strategic bomber operations at low altitudes and high speeds. Approximately 50 percent of all students completing T-38 training at Reese will transition into bomber or fighter type aircraft.

The new training routes were coordinated with and comply with Federal Aviation Administration requirements and Department of Defense regulations. Selection of the routes was additionally based on two considerations: (1) the avoidance of any potential adverse affects on people, domestic animals, wildlife sanctuaries, crop growth and occupied buildings on the ground; and (2) to avoid the location and activity on all public and private air traffic strips, currently existing and planned for the future.

After careful study, the new routes were chosen to overly sparsely populated rangeland and will have only minimal impact on the aforementioned planning considerations.

(EDITORS NOTE: A map of the two routes shows that one route begins at a point in southeastern Lubbock county and continues south-east through northeastern Garza County, passing slightly to the west of Calgary and continuing to a checkpoint between Clairemont and Hamlin before returning back to the north, northwest.)

George Miller-

The autograph party which had been scheduled Saturday morning in the Post Public Library was called off when a shipment of the books failed to arrive by Wednesday of last week.

The Rev. and Mrs. Miller and their son, Andy, came for a weekend visit with friends. The book shipment arrived Friday. Mr. Miller has autographed all copies of his book The Dispatch has received since he will be unable to return to Post until June.

Mr. Miller has already completed the first draft of his second book which compares the religious experience in Alcoholics Anonymous with the religious experience in a church. He calls it "Gospel of the Prodigal Brother."

Mr. Miller also has an article, "The Loaded Cross," in the April issue of A. D., the magazine of the United Presbyterian church, and is writing other religious articles for publication.

He is now pastor of two Presbyterian churches in the Cordell, Okla., area.

Alexander still head of Community Action

Jack Alexander was unanimously reelected as chairman of the advisory board of Garza County's Community Action program at a meeting last Thursday evening in the Lorenzo Alexander Community Center. Other officers named for the new fiscal year, beginning in the fall, are Henry E. Hunter of Southland, vice chairman; Miss Alice Cruse, secretary; and Mrs. Madie Johnson, treasurer.

Other principal action taken by the board Thursday night was to canvass the April 15 balloting for five target area representatives to the board and one to the South Plains Community Action board.

Miss Consuelo Flores was elected the Garza representative to the South Plains board and will serve on the Garza advisory board as well.

The five elected to the advisory board in the April 15 election, as certified by the advisory board last Thursday night, were Miss Alice Cruse, Mrs. Louisa Valdez, Paul Quinonez, Mrs. Madie Johnson and Mrs. Patricia Cruse.

The Garza advisory board requested that the South Plains headquarters at Levelland send a representative to the May meeting to discuss housing program plans.

The summer recreational program plans also will be made at the May meeting. Johnny Alvarez will be the summer youth program director.

In the auditorium, parents will receive forms and general information.

All kindergarten and first grade pupils now attending classes will be dismissed at 2 p.m. May 6 to make room for the Spring Round-Up.

Alexander said kindergarten students attending classes this year do not need to come in to the registration. They already are on the first grade roll for the 1977-79 school year.

Now sitting quietly in the living room of her modest Early home, Mae Storie says she cannot really offer any advice to other potential inventors.

"I don't feel like an inventor," the former restaurant owner confides. "I don't know how one feels."

The idea came to her in a flash in 1972, she explains, though at the time she never bothered to do anything about it. Eventually she spoke to her lawyer who explained the difficulties involved in procuring a patent. But he and a few select others who were told of the idea thought it was great.

Finally, Mae Storie talked to an engineer with the John Deere Co. who had procured a patent for an invention. He looked over her drawings, was impressed, and suggested she obtain a patent.

That proved to be the needed impetus. In 1975, Mae Storie drafted a letter about the concept to the Raymond Lee Organization, a New York based company that solicits ideas from potential inventors through magazine advertisements. They, too, were impressed, and had their engineers construct plans. Under the company's advice the containers were changed from regular bathtubs to the sunken pits.

In January, Mae Storie received news that her concept had received a patent for both the United States and Canada.

"It was great," she recalls. "When they got into this, they had to check to see that there was not a patent. Whenever I found (there wasn't), I was happy."

There is nothing in her past to suggest she was an inventor. B. Mae Storie came from Post to Central Texas in 1969. Eventually she opened the Chaquita Inn in Early, though she eventually sold the enterprise after a few years.

"It was too much for one person to handle," she explains. Now, however, she calls herself a cashier and waits patiently for the royalties that would be hers if and when the idea is accepted for manufacture by a company. Acting as her agent is the Raymond Lee Organization which is attempting to market the concept.

Once the product hits the market, Mae Storie says she will be among those getting the tubs installed.

"Oh sure, I have to," she explains. While she has seen the drawings, she has yet to see a finished product. Such a product could work well in beauty salons, health spas, hotels, and of course, master bedrooms in today's spacious homes.

And now that the patent is complete, Mae Storie says she will tell some others of the concept, including her son who still resides in Post.

"I kept it quiet because I wanted to finish it first," she said.

But she adds, "I'm very proud of it now."

Postings-

To tell the story in its most understandable fashion, the lost ring had actually been found by a Midland hunter shortly after Bryan J. lost it. The ring apparently had been stepped on near a bunch of empty shotgun shells and was barely visible.

The Midland man thought it to be one of those "cheap mood rings," put it in his pocket and forgot about it.

When he got home and was emptying his pockets out popped the ring. He tossed it in his jewelry box on his dresser - and there the ring lay for virtually the next five years.

This spring the Midland man's grandson, who was a high school senior, was prowling through his grandfather's jewelry box, saw the ring, asked what it was, and then asked if he could wear it.

There was no objection of course.

Now we come to the punch line. How did the ring get back to Bryan J?

Well, the grandson went down to the jewelry store to pick up his class ring. The jeweler noticed the star sapphire ring on the boy's finger and asked him why he was wearing such an expensive ring.

The boy immediately went and told his grandfather and the jeweler had said. The grandfather picked up the telephone and called Judge Dalby to inquire if a sapphire ring had been lost five years before on his ranch.

The next day after Dalby had assured the man that just such a ring had been lost by a Post friend while hunting on his ranch, Williams received the ring back through the mail.

Now all Bryan J. has to figure out - good insurance man that he is - is the procedure for returning the money he received on his insurance claim on the lost ring.

Oh yes, one Midland senior has already been sent one mighty nice graduation gift from a man in Post he doesn't even know.

Sports banquet---

They included Ronnie Bouchier of Houston, Donald Carpenter of Fort Worth, Maurice Fluit of Bowie, Barry Ford of Amarillo, Cleatus Graves of Lubbock, Buddy Hays of Austin, Junior Malouf of Plainview, Bobby Pennington of Phoenix, Jimmy Puckett of Ropesville, Maurice Stelzer of Grants, and Carter White of Hale Center. Head Coach Bing Bingham of Slaton, and Ronald Joe Babb, Giles Dalby, Roy Josey, Jack and Kay Kirkpatrick, A.J. McAlister, George Pierce, and Roy Teaff, all of Post.

Of the group, Malouf and Storie were named all-state in 1948. Malouf as a halfback and Storie as a guard.

Also introduced by Redman were Mrs. Lanette Clary, who was the PHS football queen in 1948, and two of the 1948 cheerleaders, Mrs. Janet Hall and Mrs. Geraldine Graves of Lubbock.

Coaches of individual sports introduced 1976-77 athletes who gained all-district, all-tournament, or other individual recognition, or in the case of track been regional qualifiers.

Mark Kirkpatrick, FCA huddle group captain, gave the invocation. Tracy McAlister provided dinner music on the piano during the serving of the meal by freshman athletes. The meal was catered by Jackson's Catering Service.

A reception for the 1948 PHS bi-district champion team and their wives was held at 5:30 p.m. in the smaller back room at the community center. At that time, the film of the 1948 game between Post and Littlefield for the district crown was shown. Post 'again winning' 14-0. In those years the district was divided into northern and southern halves with the winners of each half meeting in a playoff for the district crown.

Post won the south half of the district and Littlefield the north.

The Antelopes' record that year was 11-1.

After the banquet, the 1948 team members and their wives were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kay Kirkpatrick for more reminiscing about that 29-years-ago season.
