Justices hearing arguments in youthful defendent case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court was told today that under Texas' now-defunct capital punishment law some two dozen youthful defendants have been unfairly sentenced to death.

The justices, in a case to be decided by July, were urged to set aside the death sentence of Dorsey Johnson, who was 19 when he fatally shot a convenience store clerk during a robbery in Snyder.

Scurry County District Attorney Ernie Armstrong, who was in Washington to assist a representative from the Texas Attorney General's office, said the process "is going to write new law. It is an issue that has death row inmates waiting."

Johnson was found guilty of killing Allsup's convenience store clerk Jack Huddleston on March 23, 1986 by shooting him in the back of the head with a .25 caliber pistol.

Johnson and his accomplice, Amanda Miles, also took approximately $160 and two cartons of cigarettes.

Johnson was convicted of capital murder by a 132nd District Court jury in October, 1986 and received the death penalty. Miles

SHS students top the field at region

There were congratulations all around last weekend as Snyder High School took sweepstakes at the Region I 4-A UIL academic and one-act play competition in San Angelo.

"I believe this is the first time ever Snyder High School has won the Regional academic championship," said Gary Patterson, SHS principal. "It was a thrill to be involved and a tribute to every single student who went, and to their coaches and sponsors who worked so hard with the students.

"Mrs. (Kay) Hopper has done a tremendous job as academic coordinator. It was a lot of fun, and a wonderful accomplishment for our school."

Region I stretches from Pampa in the north to Pecos in the west, down to Stephenville and Brownwood and over to Dallas. Eight districts and more than 56 high schools were represented at last weekend's competition.

Snyder will be sending six students on to state competition in seven events, in addition to its one-act play, "Macbeth." The one-act troup advanced in competition Friday and the academic team followed with a fine showing Saturday to win the sweepstakes title.

The students combined to accumulate 142 team points. Wichita Falls came in second place with 135 points.

"To my knowledge, this is a first for SHS since I have been here. Under Dr. Ben Brock's leadership as principal in the early 1970s we got very close a few times, but never achieved the top position — Regional sweepstakes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dean of the House, Jamie L. Whitten, is credited with coining one of Congress' operating principles. "I've never seen a disaster that wasn't an opportunity," he said.

The Mississippi Democrat had in mind the hurricanes, earthquakes and droughts that helped him spur Congress into passing extra spending on farms, roads and waterways.

But even the fiery end to the siege in Waco, Texas, last week could serve as a tool for congressional members to further their causes. And they are moving swiftly to help frame the debate before public opinion sets.

The Republicans' broad goal is to keep President Clinton in the equation and the Waco carnage in the news to distract him from his economic program.

The fire was still burning at the Branch Davidian compound when the first GOP lawmaker, Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, issued the first call for hearings. Other Republicans, notably Rep. Henry Hyde of Illinois, were publicly questioning the wisdom of the operation.

All were careful to point out that they were not making any partisan accusations. That would appear unseemly, given the constant barrage Republicans have hurled at Clinton over his economic plan.

And partisan charges were unnecessary. Just left alone, it was another difficult situation for the new president as he approached the end of his first 100 days in office. Republicans were privately gleeful when Clinton first tried to distance himself from the operation, only later to stand up and take full responsibility.

But Democrats, too, saw political advantage in the wreckage. Advocates of gun control were quick to call a news conference on Capitol Hill to decry the huge cache of weapons found in David Koresh's compound.

Koresh and his followers apparently assembled their arsenal by legally buying the guns in pieces, and turning regular assault rifles into automatics.

"The key is rational, reasonable gun control," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. He called for passage of the Brady Bill, which would create a waiting period for handgun purchases, and enactment of a ban on interstate sale of gun parts and machine gun conversion kits.

But gun control opponents saw lessons in the Waco incident as well.

Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Mo., suggested the standoff may never have happened had the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms kept its agents reined in during the initial raid that escalated to a shootout.

The initial attack on the compound was part of a pattern of "Gestapo-like tactics" at the bureau, he charged. "I fail to see the crimes committed by those in the Davidian compound that called for the extreme action of BATF on Feb. 28 and the tragic final assault."

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a fiscal conservative, asked Attorney General Janet Reno for a thorough review of the federal operation — with an eye toward consolidating the ATF, which is a part of the Treasury Department, into the FBI, which took over the Waco operation.

Reno, who spent most of the week taking the heat for Clinton, declined to enter that turf battle. If there was advantage for her to be had in this disaster, she didn't seem to be looking for it.

Apparently, she saw herself as having enough battles already.

"The burdens of the office stagger the imagination and convert vanity to prayer," she told senators.

It's not easy

NEW YORK (AP) — It's not easy being beautiful. Just ask Cindy Crawford, who graces the cover of People magazine's annual list of the world's 50 most beautiful people.

"I don't want to have to be beautiful all the time," Crawford said. "I want to be able to look cruddy in my weekend sweats, with a pimple on my face and pimple cream on top of the pimple."

Dear Abby

Dad Tries to Teach Daughter Lesson in Money Management

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My unmarried, college-educated daughter is a high school teacher in her mid-30s. She hit me up for a $5,000 loan as the down payment on a house she wanted to buy. Knowing that she has a long history of improperly managing her financial affairs, I refused, and told her why. This brought on the tears, but I refused to give in because I feel strongly about subsidizing poor management.

I am the son of a sharecropper who grew up during the Great Depression days. I learned to deny myself many material things I wanted in order to have financial security. This is something my daughter never learned. She impulsively buys anything that strikes her fancy, with no thought of saving for a rainy day.

She and her brother have had their own checking and savings accounts since they were teenagers. Their mother and I drove them on their paper routes, and they always had their own money for things they wanted. While we didn't lavish gifts on them, they never wanted for very much.

When she was in trouble at the bank, I offered to help her organize her financial affairs, but she informed me that her affairs were none of my business!

However, I still feel like a jerk of a father for not having loaned her the money for the down payment on the house, because I'm not exactly worried about where my next meal is coming from.

Well, her mother gave her the money without consulting me, and I am angry. Am I justified in being angry with both my daughter and my wife?

NO SUCKER IN ALABAMA

DEAR NO SUCKER: Don't waste too much energy being angry. Children have been playing that "Ask-Mom-if-Mom-says-no-ask-Dad" game for generations.

A schoolteacher in her mid-30s should be responsible for her own welfare without asking her parents to bail her out. Parents should present a united front.

I suggest you have a heart-to-heart talk with your wife about caving in to your daughter's requests for money, because this situation is likely to arise again and again — as the cost of maintaining a house is perpetual.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Lately we hear so much about birth mothers being reunited with the children they had given up for adoption years after those children were grown. Some even had families of their own.

Well, I am now a grandmother. When my husband and I married, we desperately wanted a family, and believe me, we tried, but after four miscarriages, we gave up. Subsequently, we adopted three beautiful newborn babies.

We let them know that they were "chosen" and it presented no problems. We also told them that they could have all the information we had concerning their birth mothers, and if they wanted to look them up, we would not feel hurt. So, we gave them all the information, including their mothers' medical histories.

Abby, not one of our three adopted children had the slightest interest in "looking up" their birth mothers. I wonder if our children are unusual? What do you think?

D.D.H. IN ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR D.D.H.: I think it's a wonderful compliment to you and your husband.

Largest jackpot due Wednesday

AUSTIN (AP) — Nobody picked all six numbers that match the ones drawn in Saturday's Texas Lotto drawing, meaning Wednesday's drawing will be worth a state record $25 million.

The numbers picked Saturday were: 9, 10, 15, 22, 35, 39.

Five numbers were correctly picked on 151 tickets, netting $1,917 each. Four matching numbers will earn $121 from 8,586 tickets sold; and 187,895 tickets hold three matching numbers, worth $3 a piece.

The jackpot in Saturday's drawing was estimated at $15 million. Total Lotto sales were $339.3 million since the Nov. 7 kickoff.

(Winning numbers: nine, ten, fifteen, twenty-two, thirty-five, thirty-nine.)

Actress struggling

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — At 40, Melanie Mayron says she's struggling to overcome Hollywood's negative attitude toward older women.

"I can't kid myself. Everybody's much younger," Mayron told TV Guide magazine. "I'm not Sharon Stone or Julia Roberts or Winona Ryder. Who's gonna hire me?"

New York now more security conscious

NEW YORK (AP) — Two months after a massive bomb blast rocked the World Trade Center's landmark twin towers, New York is a more suspicious city.

From the top of the 110-story towers down to the subway, from Manhattan's plush Plaza Hotel to its historic Empire State Building, security has been tightened.

But often the stepped-up precautions are so discreet that most people probably don't notice. And the more obvious precautions taken immediately after the Feb. 26 explosion that killed six people and injured 1,000 have disappeared.

In those first few tense days, says Metropolitan Transit Authority police spokesman Al O'Leary, authorities were ready to check every suspicious package they saw, including every "cheeseburger deluxe" carried by every hungry commuter.

Even a bowling ball left on a Brooklyn sidewalk prompted a panic when O'Leary said people feared it might be "one of those Boris and Natasha bombs" like the ones in the Rocky and Bullwinkle cartoons.

There was a time when plainclothes security guards swarmed the Plaza Hotel "like a Secret Service convention," one bellman remembered.

Two months later, only a few men in suits with perfect posture and discreetly pocketed walkie-talkies can be picked out among the hotel's clientele.

"It died down after the first weekend," said John Gibbons, who runs the chocolate shop in the lobby.

Elsewhere, stepped-up security has also faded from view. But it hasn't gone away.

At the Trade Center, tenants must now show ID cards before entering the elevators. At a long counter, 14 newly hired security workers check the identification of every business visitor. Trucks are inspected and drivers are photographed and issued certificates.

Trade Center director Charles Maikish said it will be months before officials decide to reopen the garage where the bomb was placed.

There are also more police officers keeping watch over the Trade Center, said police Capt. Joseph Martella of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates the center. But he wouldn't say how many more.

At the 102-story Empire State Building, which received a bomb threat three hours after the Trade Center explosion, side entrances were sealed and people going through the main entrance had to pass through metal detectors in the days after the blast.

That's no longer the case, but the building's normally loquacious spokesman, Joe Carella, says he can't discuss security these days — for security reasons.

The people who operate bus and boat tours around the city also declined to comment.

"We did take additional steps and they remain in place," said Ray Pellecchia, spokesman for the New York Stock Exchange, which gets 1,600 to 2,400 visitors a day. He wouldn't say what the steps were.

Move under or around the ladder

By Phillip Alder

You are walking toward a ladder that is straddling the sidewalk. Do you walk around the ladder? Or do you purposely walk under it just to show that you are not superstitious? As Francis Bacon pointed out, there is a superstition in avoiding superstition.

In playing a bridge hand, though, it is silly not to take precautions that cannot hurt and might save your contract. Today's deal is an example. How would you plan the play in four spades, West leading the club king?

North's bid of three spades was a limit raise showing at least four-card support and about 11 total points.

Whenever you have a king that isn't supported by higher cards, you should strive to keep off play the opponent who can lead through the king. Here that opponent is East.

To this end, you should duck the opening lead. Let's assume West plays another club. You win and draw trumps ending in the dummy.

Now you take a second precaution. You lead dummy's heart eight and run it. The finesse loses, but you are safe. No matter what West returns, you have 10 tricks: five spades, three hearts, one club and one club ruff in the dummy.

Note, though, that if you win the first trick, you will have to guess hearts correctly to make the contract. Suppose you misguess. West — if enjoying one of his more lucid moments — will underlead his club queen. East will win with the jack and switch to the diamond queen. The defenders will collect four tricks before you can cash 10.

Perot urges TV viewers to call White House, pressure Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's long-term economic package doesn't adequately address deficit reduction, former presidential contender Ross Perot said, urging Americans to demand tougher remedies for the sluggish economy.

The Texas billionaire returned to the airwaves Sunday night, appearing in a 30-minute, paid program on NBC. At the end of his remarks, Perot provided the White House telephone number and urged viewers to make a torrent of calls.

"You've got to keep calling until you get through because this is really important," Perot said.

And he asked each viewer to contribute $15 to his organization, United We Stand America.

"The money is spent on programs like this," he said.

Perot was critical of defense cuts and other administration policies. The program aired just hours after Perot appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" and slammed Clinton's economic plan, saying it would not adequately address the deficit and would create only temporary jobs.

He also said America must be cautious about military involvement in the former Yugoslavia because "you've got another Vietnam sitting over there." But he said aid to Russia should be increased.

Perot called the economic stimulus package — which failed last week in the face of a Republican filibuster — "a very poorly conceived" plan. He said it would have resulted in unneeded government spending and few permanent jobs.

Perot fended off questions on whether his economic proposals in the 1992 campaign would have required even higher and broader taxes than proposed by Clinton. He said that wasn't the issue.

"Nobody has taxed everybody better than the president is about to," Perot said, adding that Americans have shown a willingness to pay higher taxes to reduce the deficit but that Clinton's approach does not adequately address deficit reduction.

"We're not balancing the budget. We're not paying the debt," said Perot, who campaigned for a 50-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline to erase the federal government's red ink.

'Something terribly horrible went wrong,' fed agent says

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was all supposed to be over in 60 seconds.

On Feb. 28, the day it all began, three teams of Treasury agents were assigned to enter the Branch Davidian compound at different locations, catch cult members by surprise at a time when leader David Koresh was in his room and his cult's men, women and children were in separate quarters.

One team was to secure the arsenal; another would seize the men and the third would round up the women and children.

But as one federal agent tells it "something terribly horrible went wrong" at 10 a.m. when the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms tried to arrest Koresh and seize illegal weapons at the Mt. Carmel compound near Waco, Texas.

According to court papers, Koresh knew the agents were coming and told his followers that "Neither ATF or the National Guard will ever get me."

Agents were greeted by a fusillade of automatic gunfire from cult members who had somehow been forewarned. In 90 seconds, four ATF agents lay dead on the ground.

ATF officials face tough questions in Congress and from an inquiry ordered by President Clinton about the failed raid, which set the stage for the 51-day standoff that ended April 19 in an inferno of death.

The inquiry to be conducted by the Justice and Treasury departments with help from outside law enforcement professionals will delve into both episodes.

But it is the Feb. 28 raid, which critics argue was botched by ATF, that is the basis for all the subsequent events.

The ATF's plan to disarm Koresh culminated a nine-month investigation into the shipments of some $200,000 worth of gun parts, explosives and ammunition to the compound.

During the aborted search, ATF agent Bill Buford made his way briefly to the arsenal. He later reported to colleagues that "everything we suspected to be in there was in there," according to court papers unsealed this week.

Cult members tipped to the raid and dressed in all-black combat garb fired thousands of rounds of ammunition from that arsenal during the bloodiest gun battle in ATF history.

ATF agent Rob Williams died when he stood up to try to cover a team of fellow agents trying to enter the compound. Williams was struck in the side of the face by a bullet.

The fire fight lasted 45 minutes until ATF negotiated a cease fire so agents could carry off the bodies of their four deceased comrades and rescue 15 others who had been wounded.

The Texas Rangers are investigating how cult members learned of the raid as part of a broader probe of the murder of the four ATF agents.

ATF refuses to discuss how it believes advance word reached Koresh and at least 11 reporters who were also waiting when agents arrived at what came to be called Ranch Apocalypse.

Agent Robert Rodriguez, who had gone undercover to learn the habits and routines of the cult, was inside the compound a half hour before the raid started, according to court documents.

Rodriguez stood in a foyer outside a room where Koresh's associates delivered the warning.

According to the court papers, Koresh came out of a room and announced that ATF and the National Guard were on their way to arrest him. "Neither ATF or the National Guard will ever get me," Koresh said.

"They are coming, the time has come," said the cult leader who constantly warned his followers of the coming Armageddon.

Rodriguez left the compound, walked 260 yards to a house that ATF had secretly taken over. The court papers don't say what Rodriguez told his fellow agents and ATF declines to release a statement the undercover agent gave the Texas rangers.

But ATF Director Stephen Higgins didn't take issue at a House hearing Thursday when Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas said: "You knew you were going to meet an ambush."

Higgins, however, did say that "there is no one in ATF I know of that would purposely lead ATF agents into an ambush."

ATF spokesman Jack Killorin says that what Rodriguez told ATF agents in the house, and what these agents understood and relayed to the ATF command post several miles away is "clearly a focus of the review" ordered by Clinton.

Was the raid compromised by calls an ATF press officer in Dallas made to local news organizations the day before the raid to give reporters a heads up about a possible story?

But Killorin says none of those calls drew any attention of news organizations to the Branch Davidian cult, which until Feb. 28 was strictly a local story in Waco.

Koresh told a social worker who visited the compound last April to investigate charges he was sexually abusing young girls, that he planned a "military-type" operation in Waco and that all the "non-believers" would suffer, the court papers said.

Killorin says ATF took seriously this threat, in which Koresh vowed that "the riots in Los Angeles would pale in comparison to what was going to happen in Waco."

ATF agents raided the compound because "when armed people have plans of violence, it is our job, as often as we can, to get in there and prevent the fruition of those plans."

NEW YORK (AP) — Dana Carvey pulled no punches in his final celebrity impersonation as a regular on "Saturday Night Live," climbing into large white tubing to play Prince Charles as a tampon.

The spoof was based on steamy published transcripts of secretly taped telephone calls between Britain's heir to the throne and his alleged mistress, Camilla Parker-Bowles.

Five-run rally lifts Snyder over Lobos

LEVELLAND — The Snyder Tigers rallied for five seventh-inning runs Saturday to take an 8-6 come-from behind District 2-4A baseball win over Levelland and give sophomore pitcher Reagan Key his second straight complete-game loop win.

"The kids played a good game," said SHS coach Albert Lewis. "They came in with a good attitude and they gave a good effort.

"We had to overcome the long ball," Lewis added, "but we did."

The Tigers did, indeed have to overcome the long ball.

The Lobos jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning when third baseman Blake Watkins slammed a two-out homer, driving in Mike Murillo and Chris Ochoa.

First baseman Cody Potter added a 2-run shot in the fifth, giving Levelland a 6-3 advantage.

Still trailing by three runs, Snyder came to bat for the final time Saturday and sent 11 hitters to face Ochoa.

Designated hitter Jimmy Henry, who was 2-for-3 from the No. 3 slot Saturday, started the rally with a single, followed by a walk to catcher Brad Hart.

Jason McAden was hit by an Ochoa pitch to load the bases with one out. Craig Lang walked and Curt Rinehart lined a 2-run single to tie the game at 6-all.

Chris Winter and John Clinkinbeard each singled, Raymond House walked and Henry, up for his second at-bat in the frame, took four balls forcing in Winter with the game's final score.

In all, Snyder slapped nine hits, four coming in the seventh inning.

Key scattered eight hits in going the full seven innings. He walked just four and struck out nine.

The loser for Levelland was Ochoa, who came on in relief of starter Josh Mancias in the sixth. Ochoa was touched for four hits and three walks before giving way to Potter in the seventh.

Mancias had limited Snyder to three runs on three hits and six walks in the first five innings.

The win lifts the Tigers to 8-16 on the season and a 2-5 mark in district play. Levelland slips to 9-12 and 2-5.

In other action within the loop Saturday, Estacado fell to Plainview, 10-6, and Frenship stayed on top of the 2-4A standings with a 12-2 victory over Lamesa.

Snyder visits Frenship Tuesday for a 4:30 p.m. game before winding up the year with back-to-back home games against Plainview and Estacado.

Tuesday's other games include Levelland at Plainview and Lamesa hosting Estacado.

Rangers top Brewers, 6-1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kenny Rogers pitched a three-hitter for his first complete game since 1988 in the Texas League, and the Rangers drilled Milwaukee, 6-1.

Rogers (2-1) struck out five, walked two and retired the final 16 batters. Jaime Navarro (0-2) allowed six runs on 10 hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Ivan Rodriguez drove in three runs and Jose Canseco drove in two.

'Stros tripped by Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Randy Tomlin (1-1) pitched five-hit ball for eight innings in his strongest start this season as Pittsburgh, which started the day under .500 for the first time in two years, beat Houston, 7-2, at Three Rivers Stadium.

WTC women earn H-SU title

ABILENE — While Western Texas College's men's rodeo team has been grabbing most of the headlines with its domination of the NIRA's Southwest Region, the women's squad from WTC has been quietly having a very solid year.

The cowgirls, currently third in the region, turned the tables on the men over the weekend, accumulating 130 points and finishing in first place at the Hardin-Simmons University Rodeo.

The men had a fair outing, as well, grabbing second place with a 220-point total.

Vernon, led by all-around winner Shane Hatch, racked up 330 points to win the men's division of the H-SU Rodeo.

The WTC women were led by all-around winner Leslie Greer. Greer captured second in the barrel race with a two-trip 36.09, trailing only event champion Kasey Hall of Sul Ross, who wound up with a 35.76 time.

Greer also flashed a 19.4 on two head in goat tying here, good for a third-place tie with Odessa's Latisha Whitfill.

Former WTC standout Lisa Meloy won the event, posting a 9.1 in Saturday's finals for a 19.5 combined clocking.

In the other women's event, breakaway roping, Eastern New Mexico's Amy Best topped the field, turning in an 8.2 time, including her 4.2 in the finals Saturday night.

As usual, the WTC men were led by roughstock specialists.

This week's heroes were bareback winner Travis Whiteside and Thad Little, who captured top honors in saddle bronc riding.

Whiteside scored a 73 in the short go Saturday to go with his first-round 72 for a 145 tally.

Little earned a rodeo-best 84 in the finals for a 163 combined score, outdistancing runner-up Kolt Dowdy of Vernon Regional JC by nine points.

None of the five bull riders who advanced to the championship round here were able to stay aboard for the full eight seconds in the short go.

The event winner turned out to be Les Mayo of VRJC, who carried a 77 into the short round. WTC was second with Dewayne Evans' 76.

Western Texas will wind up the [illegible] Saturday in Stephenville at the Tarleton State University Rodeo.

The Westerners appear to be a lock for the top spot in the region and, as such, ready to claim a berth in the College National Finals Rodeo in Bozeman, Mont. in June.

Cowboys select two more Hurricanes

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The world champion Dallas Cowboys got some more help from that football factory down south, the University of Miami Hurricanes.

Coach Jimmy Johnson couldn't work a blockbuster trade so he dropped down Sunday in the NFL draft for two second round picks to get players he had recruited out of high school, wide receiver Kevin Williams and linebacker Darrin Smith.

"It's fortunate for us nobody else got them because these are two outstanding players who will contribute immediately," Johnson said. "We know what they can do. Our theory is 'if you like 'em, take 'em.'"

They will join four other Miami players on the Dallas team.

Williams, a game-breaker at 5-foot-9, 190-pounds and 4.28 speed in the 40, will be the Cowboys third down replacement for Kelvin Martin, who signed with Seattle. He'll also be the starting punt returner and bring back kickoffs.

"From the first day of practice I can tell you who our punt returner is," Johnson said.

The 6-0, 228-pound Smith, who runs a 4.49 in the 40, will play outside linebacker and be a contributor on the special teams.

"We knew both players very well," Johnson said. "Williams is the most exciting kick returner I've ever been around. He has tremendous speed and was the fastest player at Miami. He offsets the loss of Kelvin Martin to free agency."

Johnson said Smith "is the fastest linebacker I've been around. He will also be an outstanding special teams player. Both these players will contribute to our team this year."

Dallas drafted 46th and 54th in the second round after trading its first round 29th pick to Green Bay.

Dallas drafted last in the third round and took defensive back Mike Middleton, a 5-10, 209-pounder from Indiana who could possibly be converted to safety.

In the fourth round, Dallas took running back 5-foot-9, 195-pound Derrick Lassic of Alabama, and offensive lineman Ron Stone of Boston College.

"Winning a national championship was great and this ranks next to it," said Lassic.

"I was surprised he was still available," Johnson said. "He could be a very productive player for us behind Emmitt Smith."

The Cowboys had to wait six hours and 35 minutes before they made their first pick.

Williams, who played high school football at Dallas Roosevelt, averaged 12 yards per punt return and will join the Cowboys kickoff returning corps with his 20.8 yards per try average.

Owner Jerry Jones said both players had agreed to terms.

Defensive coordinator Butch Davis said Smith "will be fabulous on the special teams. He's a great athlete with a tremendous work ethic. He's similar to Russell Maryland.

Jones said teams were reluctant to get on the phone with the world champions to work a trade.

Journalists, senators lined up for camero spots in film

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Paul Simon dons his trademark bow tie while his Republican colleague Alan Simpson spins off a stinging one-liner about a liberal president.

Another day on Capitol Hill? Not really.

Several familiar Washington faces make their Hollywood debuts in the motion picture "Dave," a farfetched comedy about a look-a-like who is forced into the duties of U.S. president when the real officeholder is felled by a stroke.

The Warner Bros. movie, starring Kevin Kline and Sigourney Weaver, premieres Monday in the nation's capital. There's no shortage of Washington hands making cameos.

Joining Simon and Simpson are Sen. Chris Dodd, radio talk show host Larry King, National Public Radio reporter Nina Totenburg, White House press corps dean Helen Thomas of United Press International, and the entire cast of the McLaughlin Group news show. Tonight Show star Jay Leno also has a role.

In the view of at least one sneak-preview audience, Simpson — the lanky Republican whip from Wyoming — steals the show. The plot calls for Simpson to react to a new jobs bill put in place by Dave Kovic, the impostor president.

The real president, also played by Kline, is on life support in the White House basement after suffering a stroke during a dalliance with a secretary.

Conniving, power-hungry White House aides convince Congress and the press that the president has recovered from his stroke. The only problem is that Kovic is a tad more liberal than his incapacitated predecessor.

"We're up here trying to carry the water for him. I've carried more water for him than Gunga Din for God's sake, and now to say something like this ... the lights are out and nobody's home," Simpson lashes out during the movie.

Naturally, Democrats like Dodd of Connecticut and Simon of Illinois are delighted with the change in the "president."

Most of the shots were done in Senate offices and all the lawmakers were paid the standard union rate of $400. Simpson said he donated his payment to the University of Wyoming.

Police note three arrests

Snyder police made three arrests, wrote up three reports for family violence and another for attempted overdose during the weekend.

Police arrested a 28-year-old man for no driver's license and no insurance in the 2900 block of Avenue Y at 4:45 p.m. Sunday.

At 5:50 p.m., police were called to a disturbance in the 2000 block of Avenue N. They arrested a 30-year-old man for possession of marijuana, less than two ounces, and disorderly conduct, and a 27-year-old woman for disorderly conduct.

At 3:35 a.m. today, police were asked to check on the welfare of a possible overdose victim at the Field Crest Apartments. The man was transported to Cogdell Hospital by Snyder EMS where he was treated and released. A report for attempted overdose was filed. Officials with MHMR were contacted to visit with the man.

A man notified police at 8:14 a.m. Saturday that some windows had been broken out at 1615 26th St. A report for Class B criminal mischief was filed.

A second Class B criminal mischief report was submitted at 9:26 p.m. Saturday in reference to coin-operated machine having been damaged at City Laundry.

Some doubt effectiveness of Henry Cisneros' visit

On Sunday, he was standing in the colonia where HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros had just said he will seek aid for the impoverished housing subdivision and others like it. And Madrid was noting he's heard many other promises before.

"The people that come out here give people hope," Madrid said, "and then it diminishes."

Madrid was not convinced Cisneros' visit to the area would be the same. Though the colonia shop owner did set his own deadline for continuing to hold out hope.

"If I see change from here to ... October then I think he's definitely here to help," Madrid said. "If I don't see change by October, then it's going to be another eight ..."

Cisneros was in El Paso Sunday on a fact-finding tour to assess the area's housing problems.

The visit included stops at a tenement and the colonia where Madrid owns a store.

Oklahoma homeowners return to mop up

CATOOSA, Okla. (AP) — Crews began sweeping debris from the streets today, the first stage of picking up from a tornado that killed seven people and paralyzed this Tulsa suburb.

School was called off for the week, and possibly for the rest of the semester, as residents began coping with the destruction and contemplating how to put their homes and lives back together.

Mayor Ron Berry said search teams believe all residents have been accounted for. Homeowners were allowed back in their neighborhoods late Sunday for the first time since Saturday night's tornado.

The city of about 2,500 has only two trucks to help with cleanup, and Berry said he would be asking nearby counties for help, as well as volunteers with pickups.

"Trying to clean up with two trucks is like taking a spoon to drink out of the ocean," Berry said.

The Post Office had roof damage, and Berry said a mobile post office was being set up.

The tornado killed a 7-year-old girl, a 77-year-old woman and five other people. About 95 people were injured.

The tornado that roared down Interstate 44 into Catoosa left a path of destruction a half-mile wide and six miles long. At least 22 homes, 60 mobile homes, a church and several businesses were destroyed. Cars were overturned, utility poles splintered and huge electrical towers buckled.

Most of the seven who died were in their cars, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said. Witnesses said many people fled into the shelter of roadside truck stops or jumped out of their cars and into ditches as the twister hit with little warning.

"Everybody was pulling over, people running, and one of the motorists, Jeanne Aust.

Scott Webb, who was returning home to Joplin, Mo., with his wife and two children, said his pickup was tossed 25 feet through the air, but landed wheels down. He and his family escaped unhurt, but Webb saw people lying on the ground and other vehicles overturned, smashed flat or left stacked on top of each other.

"It looked like everybody was going to be dead," he said.

On Sunday, tow trucks began hauling away the wrecked cars and big-rig trucks.

The twister struck a few minutes after Tulsa's tornado sirens sounded, but the National Weather Service in Norman said the first signs of potential for a tornado were visible on its radar 35 minutes before the warning.

Johnson appeal heard

Michael Tigar, Dorsey's lawyer, said dating back to ancient Rome even those in their early 20s were regarded in the legal system as youthful and impulsive.

"It's not an idle stroll through antiquity" to argue that a 19-year-old — while legally an adult — may be deserving of mercy, Tigar said. Under the since-replaced Texas death penalty law, he said, jurors were precluded from giving full weight to a defendant's youthfulness when deciding for death or life in prison.

At stake is the fate of Johnson and perhaps 22 other Texas death row inmates, Tigar said. There is no similar death sentencing provision in any other state.

Assistant Attorney General Dana Parker of Texas said nothing prevented the jurors who sentenced Johnson to die from giving full consideration to his youthfulness as a mitigating circumstance weighing in favor of life in prison.

The jurors, in the sentencing phase, were told to consider two "special questions" — whether Johnson acted deliberately and whether he posed a danger to society.

In deciding another Texas case in 1989, the Supreme Court said sentencing juries must be free to consider all mitigating evidence — including "the defendant's character and background and the personal moral culpability of the defendant."

Today, some justices questioned whether the jurors who sentenced Johnson to die were barred from making "a reasoned moral judgment" in part because the defendant's youthfulness could be viewed by them as an aggravating circumstance calling for his execution.

The jurors might have decided that his youthfulness made him a threat to society for some years, said Justice David Souter.

"A reasonable juror could give the evidence (of youthfulness) an aggravating effect," Souter told Mrs. Parker.

Major accident sends 3 to CMH

Sheriff's deputies were advised of several incidents over the weekend.

A major accident was reported to the sheriff's office at 12:40 early Saturday morning. The fire department, emergency medical service and the highway patrol were called to the scene five miles east of Snyder on U.S. Highway 84. Three persons were injured in the accident, involving an 18-wheeler and a Pontiac Firebird.

Jimmy Gibson, 34, driver of the truck, and Clara Owens, 31, passenger, both of Abilene, were admitted to Cogdell Hospital and are to be released today. Gibson had a cerebral concussion and injuries to the right knee. Owens had a separated left shoulder.

Tammy Marricle of Hermleigh, driver of the Firebird, was also admitted to Cogdell for a cerebral concussion. She had to be freed from the car with the jaws of life and has no release time listed.

Brandon Sokora, 15, of Lubbock was transfered to a Lubbock hospital early Saturday morning. Information from employees at Cogdell indicated he had a accident on a four-wheeler. He had lacerations to the chest and abdominal pain.

Saturday at 4:11 p.m., Mary Clay, of Ave. N and Lear, advised deputies that someone had come into her house and tried to take things from a man that was in her trailer. She said he ran out the back and climbed over the back fence. The police department located several subjects but they were released because Clay said no one could identify them.

The sheriff's office was also advised of a van and trailer on fire one mile north of Hermleigh. The fire department responded. They were able to extinguish the fire and reported no injures.

The court also approved County Treasurer Charlie Bell's first quarterly report. "We are in excellent shape," Bell told the court as he submitted handouts of itemized revenues. The balance for the county is currently $5,374,460.81.

The court also named some 14 people to a county safety committee at the request of Julie Strunk, the county's loss control coordinator.

She explaind that this committee would write a policy for the county and hold quarterly meetings concerning safety. She said she has been talking with representatives from the Texas Association of Counties (TAC) concerning the program and they are willing to help.

"There will be someone down here in two weeks from TAC and they will walk us through it all," Strunk said. She also said that, as she understands it, this should save the county money on its worker's compensation plan.

Commissioners were to discuss a request to advertise for bids on rural area trash collection at 2 p.m. today.

How to treat colon inflammation

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from inflammation of the colon. My gastroenterologist doesn't know what causes the condition, although I understand it is not cancerous and isn't due to polyps. What can I take that will prevent the condition from recurring?

DEAR READER: There are many causes of colon inflammation, ranging from low-grade infection to severe ulcerative colitis; all cause diarrhea, gas, weight loss and — in severe cases — malnutrition. The treatment is governed by the cause.

For example, some forms of colitis are caused by bacterial infection for which antibiotics are appropriate. Other types may require cortisone enemas or steroid pills to reduce inflammation.

Ask your doctor to identify the cause of your colitis. Once you have a diagnosis — which can be made by stool analysis and/or intestinal biopsy — you can be given suitable therapy.

To give you more information about various colon disorders, I am sending you a free copy of my new Health Report "Constipation and Diarrhea." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You've mentioned that elderly men should take calcium, just like older women. About 1,500 to 2,000 mg per day was the amount mentioned, yet I've also heard that too much calcium causes kidney stones. So how much is too much?

DEAR READER: On occasion, in susceptible individuals, a high-calcium diet may predispose a patient to kidney stones. This is far from being the rule, however. Elderly men and women are at far greater risk of developing osteoporosis, which can be helped by regular exercise, hormone therapy (in women) and additional oral calcium. The range of 1,500 to 2,000 milligrams is not excessive.

However, if you have had kidney stones, you should confirm with your doctor that this level of supplemental calcium is not excessive FOR YOU. Moreover, if you are concerned about kidney stones, you can inhibit or prevent their formation by maintaining a high fluid intake: the equivalent of six to eight glasses of water a day. In my view, additional calcium is more liable to help than to harm older people.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had rheumatoid arthritis for years. For the past two years, it has affected my eyes that are now always red and painful. Is there any known treatment?

DEAR READER: Some patients with rheumatoid arthritis develop red eyes as an unusual manifestation of the disease. This may be severe enough to justify the use of cortisone eye drops or pills.

Because this complication is so rare, I recommend that you be examined by an ophthalmologist to rule out other causes of eye irritation, such as infection or glaucoma. Also, the specialist can advise you regarding treatment, if need be.

Gang initiation involves exposure to AIDS

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Several 14- and 15-year-old girls have boasted about a dare they've taken to join one of San Antonio's largest gangs: having sex with male gang members who have tested positive for the AIDS virus, Planned Parenthood officials say.

Planned Parenthood counselors in San Antonio here have tested five girls over the past several months for acquired immune deficiency syndrome. The girls bragged of the dare while being tested, Planned Parenthood spokeswoman Jo Ann King-Sinnett said.

"The girls said they were dared to sleep with someone who said they were HIV-positive," King-Sinnett said.

"If the test came up negative, then it was like they were brave enough to have unprotected sex and they were tough enough and their body was tough enough to fight the disease."

None of the girls has tested positive yet, but the virus can sometimes take months after a sexual encounter to show up on a test.

Norma Velasco, a counselor at the organization's clinic, said she has encountered the initiation rite in only one San Antonio gang. However, that gang is believed to be the largest in the city, with hundreds of members.

"It just goes to show you their mental capacity, that they think they are invincible and it won't happen to them," said Norma Velasco, a counselor at the organization's clinic.

"I think there are probably more (teens involved), but they aren't specifying why they came in for the test."

Others who deal with teen-age gang members say they know of no other gang practicing the initiation. All agreed, however, that unprotected sex with multiple partners is rampant among gang members.

Congress and health care: some push timetable back

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's effort to enact health care reform legislation this year is beginning to run into an increasing number of lawmakers, the result of the sheer enormity of the task, its controversial nature and inevitable turf struggles in Congress.

"I refuse to give up hope. ... But if we can't do it this year, we'll do as much as we can and wrap it up next year," said Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health.

"It's going to be difficult," said House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill. "If it involves an increase in revenue, it's tough."

Clinton's measure is widely expected to call for higher taxes to finance health coverage for 36 million uninsured Americans.

Clinton is expected to unveil his health care plan in May — later than his initial target date of May 1 — although the administration has yet to say when formal legislation will be drafted.

The president was emphatic in a nationally televised speech to Congress on Feb. 17 about when he wanted it passed.

"All of our efforts to strengthen the economy will fail" if action is not taken this year, he said. "Not next year, not five years from now but this year."

Since then, however, several senior administration officials have acknowledged Clinton is unlikely to get his wish. The officials, speaking privately, said the White House hopes to generate public demand for action this year when Clinton unveils his package and travels the country promoting it.

On Sunday, Clinton vowed in a speech to newspaper publishers to "bust a gut" fighting for enactment of a far-reaching national health care program. "We cannot go on ignoring the fundamental problems," he said.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, initially wanted to make the health bill part of this year's tax bill in the hope of speeding it through Congress.

But two key lawmakers, Rostenkowski and Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, objected. The idea was swiftly dropped.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole told reporters last week: "It's not going to pass this year. Nobody has the votes. They don't have the votes."

Dole, who led the GOP filibuster that killed Clinton's jobs bill, has called for a bipartisan measure on health care.

Democrats are reluctant to be quite as blunt, at least on the record.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

April 27, 1993

In the year ahead, you might do some weeding in order to clear out the deadwood where your group interests are concerned. The result could be happier associations of higher quality with fewer people.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you're able to grasp the essence of ideas rather quickly, but today your judgment might not be up to par: You might only hear what you want to hear. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be a bit more careful than usual with your possessions and valuables today. For example, don't leave costly items on the seat of your parked car, visible to all passers-by.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your audience will take you at your word today, so think twice before you make promises. What you consider an expeditious comment could be a binding commitment to them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) People whom you deal with today could be a trifle confused by your behavior, because what you say and do might be two different things. Be consistent in both words and deeds.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Financial tips from well-intentioned friends should not be taken as gospel today. Before buying or investing, check the information against other sources.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to be a good listener today instead of addressing topics you know almost nothing about. Your spurious facts might be challenged.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be wary today if someone tries to pump you for confidential information about someone else. This individual's motives might be more devious than curious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It might not be a good idea to share expensive pas times today with friends who are reluctant to pay their fair share when the bill is presented.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have trouble making an important decision today, seek advice from more than one source, because your counselors might not have the whole answer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Achievements might not come as easily as you expect today. A concerted second effort might be required to accomplish your initial purpose.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An acquaintance with ulterior motives might try to manipulate you today to do his or her bidding. If your guard is down, this person could be successful.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In matters of small consequence, you might not handle yourself too skillfully today. What you do or say will be mendable, provided you are not disingenuous.

Hillside Memorial Gardens has been serving the Snyder area for many years

Hillside Memorial Gardens, located on the Colorado City Highway, has been serving Snyder and the Scurry County area for many years.

Hillside Memorial Gardens is a perpetual care cemetery governed by the State Banking Department. The one price you pay for perpetual care is the only one you ever have to pay. There are no yearly dues necessary for the upkeep of the property.

The staff at Hillside Memorial Gardens is committed to serving your best interests. W.C. and Greg Graves will be glad to help you with any of your pre-need planning. Everyone plans for the future in one way or another whether with savings or insurance to take care of something that might happen. Why not prepare for the inevitable? Making the decision to purchase a Family Memorial Estate plan now ensures that the decision is made together and one is not left to make it alone. Statistics show that these decisions are made 67 percent of the time by widows and children and 33 percent of the time by husbands. The purchase of a Family Memorial Estate plan can also be a savings plan because the deed is the equivalent of a paid up insurance policy.

Lots at Hillside Memorial Gardens are reasonably priced and they offer a pre-need financial plan of only 20 percent down and small monthly payments without interest or carrying charges. If the only time you have is on the weekends, Greg can be contacted at 573-5864 and will be glad to help you anytime.

Granite and bronze memorials are available at Hillside Monument Works and Greg goes to great lengths to see that the finished product is one that pleases the family members and reflects the individualism of the loved one for whom the monument has been created.

The staff at Hillside realizes that they provide an important service to the community and work hard to maintain the trust and confidence of the people. They will be happy to counsel with anyone at anytime concerning their present or future needs. Give them a call at 573-5251 or go by and visit with them at Hillside Memorial Gardens and Monument Works on the Colorado City Highway.
