Commissioners' action branded 'politics'

By LINDA HILL SCHAFFRINA

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. today lashed out at the three Democratic county commissioners who Monday voted to create a county court at law and appointed Democratic candidate Willie DuBose to be its judge.

DuBose filed as a Democratic candidate for that job Feb. 6, the last day for filing. He is the only candidate for the office.

Joining Angelo in his criticism was Republican County Chairman Bill Shaner who called DuBose the commissioners' "hand-picked dupe."

The court at law was authorized by the 1977 Texas Legislature and could have been activated as early as Jan. 1.

Commissioner Durward Wright, who made both the motion to create the court and the motion to appoint

DuBose, said action had been delayed until the matter was studied.

The court comes into existence Wednesday and DuBose's appointment is effective upon his acceptance of the position.

The commissioners are expected to meet with DuBose in a special session later this week.

Angelo characterized the move as "blatantly partisan politics."

"By waiting until their first meeting after the filing deadline to create the county court at law and then to appoint the lone Democrat candidate to fill that office, the commissioners have shown their contempt for the citizens of Midland," Angelo said.

"I know for a fact that at least three highly qualified attorneys declined to seek this office largely because the commissioners refused to create the court before the filing deadline so that everyone would have had full knowledge of the situation.

"I would not expect the Democrat majority to name a Republican judge, but I would expect them to have more respect for the people and for the judiciary," Angelo continued.

He said all three attorneys he referred to probably would have been Republicans.

During Monday's meeting, Win Brown, the only Republican commissioner, lambasted his fellow commissioners, calling the action political and charging that it was part of a political deal.

Brown noted that the commissioners had "pushed hard" to get legislative authorization for the court at law.

"I'm kind of damned upset, that we had to wait this long to activate the county court at law," he said. Brown said the court should have been created before the filing deadline.

"It appears to me that this is a political move. I don't believe if a Republican had filed (for the office) it would have been activated," he continued.

The Republican commissioner said he had "disturbing news" which "leads me to believe there was a promise made" to activate the court if DuBose would file for the office.

Of Brown's mention of an alleged deal, Wright said, "Mr. DuBose's office is next door to mine, and we have discussed many, many things over the years."

Wright said he told DuBose the commissioners would activate the court "in the near future."

"Obviously there wasn't any deal made, because he hasn't accepted (the job) yet," Wright said.

DuBose was not at the meeting because he was out of town on business.

Reached by telephone this morning, DuBose said he expected the position to be created from the beginning.

"Somewhere in there I talked to Mr. Wright after I decided to run, and he told me they expected to create the court sometime in the future," DuBose said.

DuBose said he had been asked to run by several people, including some on the Commissioners Court, whom he declined to name.

He said he had discussed the salary, currently budgeted at $22,000, with several people — "I don't think all of them were on the commissioners court."

"I told them that I didn't think it was enough. They said it (a raise in salary) would be considered," DuBose said.

Wright said the salary probably will be the subject of "negotiation" between DuBose and the commissioners.

Regarding Wright's disclaimers of political motivation of the action, Shaner's reaction was: "Oh come now Durward. Surely you believe the electorate in Midland County has more intelligence than that."

Shaner said he has no evidence of a deal, but "it's just rather obvious."

Democratic County Chairman Darrell Smith this morning said he would not "second-guess" the commissioners in their handling of the county's business. Referring to Shaner's remarks, Smith said, "I enjoy Bill Shaner's performances both on and off the stage."

Shaner frequently appears as an amateur actor as with the Midland Community Theatre.

Power cutbacks spread; workers facing layoffs

By The Associated Press

Power cutbacks were spreading and hundreds of thousands of workers faced layoffs as the national coal strike ground into its 71st day today with talks stalemated and President Carter refusing to order the miners back into the pits.

A White House official said Carter was likely to take some action shortly, but not an immediate back-to-work order. He said the action might come after Carter received an afternoon briefing from Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who met separately today with union and industry officials.

Any presidential action would be aimed at easing coal shortages and promoting a resumption of negotiations, said the source, who asked not to be identified.

Invocation of the Taft-Hartley Act, which would provide for an 80-day return to work should Carter believe the strike poses a national emergency, "is not the next step," the official said.

Marshall arranged to report to Carter following a mid-day meeting with leaders of the United Mine Workers union and a breakfast session with representatives of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the bargaining arm for mine owners.

Marshall emerged from the session with the operators saying he was optimistic about prospects for a resumption of joint negotiations later this week. He said he would be having further talks Wednesday with industry and union representatives.

Union President Arnold Miller, meanwhile, met with his bargaining council, which had rejected a tentative settlement Sunday.

Marshall said Taft-Hartley was one form of "executive action" the government could take if there is no progress in negotiations, but he restated the administration's reluctance to take such a step.

"There is no question in our minds that the situation is very serious," he said. "But whether or not that's

Valentine's Day began as a fertility festival

The message may be sentimental, yearning, comical, heartfelt or just farcical.

And whatever the message, short of out-and-out crassness, it's bound to be friendly. That's the intent, anyway. It's an expression of affection, however deep or fleeting.

The occasion for all of this note-passing via cards is Valentine's Day, which, lo and behold, is today.

The idea of chubby Cupid effecting passionate heart throbs with his sometimes errant arrow is probably older than the Roman fertility festival — Lupercalia — which eventually took on the name Valentine's Day.

Lupercalia, which fell on Feb. 15, paid homage to Juno, the Roman goddess of marriage, and to Pan, the Greek god of nature — the woods, fields and flocks. That was back in the B.C.'s.

Newsprint hike slated

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Southland Paper Co. will hike its price of newsprint by $20 a ton — from $300 to $320 — effective April 1.

J.W. Price of Dallas, sales representative for Southland, said in a letter to publishers that Southland's increased business costs makes the 6.7 percent increase necessary.

The price of newsprint has risen by more than one-third in less than four years: from $205 a ton to $225 in December 1974; to $240 in July 1975; to $265 in May 1976; to $281.50 in September 1976; and to the current $300 in March 1977.

And early into the A.D. era, so the legend goes, a Roman priest named Valentine was martyred by the pagans among the Romans. He was beheaded at the site of Juno's ancient altar.

Soon, Valentine was brought into sainthood and his martyrdom became reason for an annual celebration.

The predictable happened. Good churchmen, in their fervor to spread Christianity, coupled the festival Lupercalia to the saint's day and the result became Saint Valentine's Day.

Whatever its origin, however, Valentine's Day surely is worth its time. On a person-to-person basis, it is at least a gesture of good will, which always is in short supply.

Green plans inquest

ODESSA — The inquest into Larry Lozano's death in Ector County Jail probably will not take place until after March 1, Ector County District Attorney John Green said Monday.

Green issued a statement saying he welcomed "anyone into this investigation, whether it be the Justice Department, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or anyone else, and we will share our investigation and information with them."

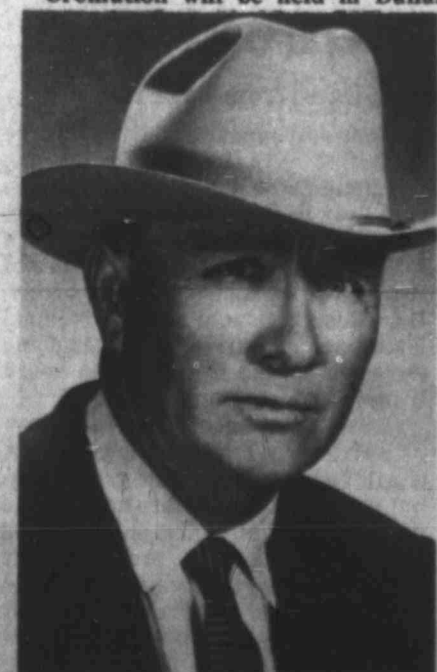

Peace Justice Virgil Lumpee revealed that all but three persons who will testify at the inquest have been subpoenaed. Between 30 and 35 with burial at a later date in Midland.

Floyd was born Nov. 21, 1904, in Midland. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timberline Floyd, a pioneer Midland ranching family. He was graduated from Midland High School in 1920 and received a degree in animal husbandry from Texas A&M University in 1927.

Floyd returned to the family ranch in Midland, where he raised cattle, thoroughbred horses and sheep. He was one of the city's first polo enthusiasts, organizing the first polo club in Midland. He played all over the country. During World War II, he served in the U.S. Army. He returned to his ranching and then entered the oil business in the 1940s as an independent operator. He was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Julia Floyd; two sons, Jay H. Floyd Jr. of Midland and Robert C. Floyd of Houston; a nephew, Jay Eugene Floyd of Midland; a niece, Mrs. D'Aun Cunningham of Fort Worth, and two grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be made to the Midland Heart Fund or the Midland County Library.

MCAA decides to keep its name

By MARLEEN RAY

"A rose by any other name is still a rose," Midland Community Action Agency board member Earl Booker said Monday shortly before the board voted unanimously not to change the agency's name.

The Board met Monday night in the Midland County Courthouse.

Board Chairman Alfredo Rey said, "I have gotten some feedback from neighborhood associations. Some people want to change it (the name of the agency). Some . . . don't see why we have to change it." He said that even those who would like to see the agency change its name don't feel strongly about it.

It wouldn't matter to them, Rey said, what the agency decided to do.

On the other hand, Booker and board member Al Hernandez said the majority of the people they've talked with in the neighborhood associations are "strongly opposed" to changing the agency's name.

In addition, board member Joy Bates said there is a "strong identification with the Midland Community Action Agency name" among the associations.

The agency in January had first considered changing its name in order to establish a new image. The members had decided to table their decision until they received some feedback from the neighborhood associations.

In other business, members heard a report from Charlotte Ward Williamson, a volunteer worker with Joint Action and Community Service of the U.S. Department of Labor. Mrs. Williamson is working with persons who are coming out of the Job Corps training centers and need to find a place to live, a job and other things.

She said "the most important thing" she has to do is to make contact with persons returning from the Job Corps to see that they have someone to turn to if they need help in finding a job or just getting used to their new environment.

She said once they are placed in a job, there is a need for a follow-up, including subsequent visits with the returned workers to see how they are doing. Mrs. Williamson has been assigned to work with returnees in the

Odessan killed in accident

ODESSA — Raul Diaz Garcia, 21, was pronounced dead at 4:26 p.m. Monday in the emergency room at Medical Center Hospital after a heavy metal beam fell on top of him in an industrial accident at 3303 West 2nd.

He was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Virgil Lumpee. Garcia lived at 2217 East 2nd.

Garcia and his brother were loading sheet metal on a trailer, when a piece of sheet metal hit the beam, said Lumpee. The beam knocked Garcia off the trailer and fell on top of him. He was taken to the hospital in a fire department ambulance.

'Indifference,' says Christie of opponents

By LINDA HILL SCHAFFRINA

Promising a "choice" in the November election, U.S. Senate candidate Joe Christie brought his campaign to Midland Monday.

Christie charged incumbent Sen. John Tower with "16 years of indifference... and 16 years of ineffective leadership."

And of Bob Krueger, his opponent in the Democratic primary, Christie said, "The only difference between him and John Tower is that he's a foot taller."

Both men are former professors, and "neither one met a payroll prior to being elected," Christie said.

"In the past," Christie told about 30 assembled Democrats Monday night, "we've tried to beat Tower by 'out-Towering' him." Instead, the Democratic Party should offer a true choice, he said.

Christie resigned as chairman of the State Insurance Board Sept. 1 to devote his time to the Senate campaign.

Talking about the inefficiencies of that board when he took office in 1967, Christie said the day he was sworn in, Gov. Dolph Briscoe told him, "Joe, if you don't do anything else, would you please see that they answer my letters."

After a study by a nationally known management firm, Christie said, he instituted sweeping reforms within the agency that allowed it during the last legislative session to ask for a budget cut.

Christie also said the insurance board, under his direction, "stopped

A Midland man was treated and released Sunday at Midland Memorial Hospital after receiving a gunshot wound in a disturbance.

Leroy Modkins Jr., 23, walked into police headquarters Tuesday to report he had been shot in the arm by a woman in a bar in the 800 block of East Texas Avenue.

Police said the shooting resulted from an argument between Modkins and the woman. No charges have been filed in the incident.

Power cutbacks spread sufficient to justify saying whether we have a national emergency isn't known."

The miners have ignored three Taft-Hartley court orders since 1948.

Mandatory power cutbacks were ordered in Indiana Monday and were put into effect in West Virginia last week. In both states, tens of thousands of workers faced the possibility of layoffs as early as this weekend.

Sections of northeastern Ohio expect power cuts of up to 50 percent by the end of the week, affecting the jobs of 300,000 workers.

Two western Pennsylvania power companies — West Penn Power Co. and Duquesne Light Co. — will plead with state officials in Harrisburg today to be allowed to make mandatory electricity cuts.

Virginia's governor, John Dalton, warned he may soon have to order electricity rationed.

Two major automakers, Ford and Chrysler, warned of plant shutdowns within two weeks unless the coal strike ends immediately.

There seems little hope of a quick settlement. Bargainers thought they had a deal last week, but when UMW President Arnold Miller presented the pact to the union's bargaining council for preliminary approval, he was met with bitter — and almost unanimous — opposition.

In the coalfields, miners continued to show that they aren't going to make it easy for utilities to get what coal is being taken from non-union mines.

Mexican-American civil rights lag, state LULAC leader says

By BROOKS KELLER

Mexican-Americans are 10 years behind blacks in protecting their civil rights, and especially so in West Texas, Ruben Bonilla Jr. told The Reporter-Telegram Monday afternoon.

Bonilla, a Corpus Christi attorney, is statewide head of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Interviewed on his view of the investigative progress being made in the Jan. 22 death of Larry Lozano, Bonilla said he was gratified that witnesses have stepped forward and given statements that implicate law enforcement officials.

Pointing to the fact that four Mexican-Americans have died in custody in West Texas in the last 90 days, Bonilla attributed these deaths to what he called "Alamo mentality" on the part of many law enforcement officials in this area.

Bonilla said he requested help from Attorney General John Hill right after Lozano's death, and that Hill promised an immediate investigation which is ongoing now.

He said he spoke to Hill again last Thursday night and the attorney general told him the fact-gathering process was being pushed hard.

Bonilla said the cure for the rash of Mexican-American deaths while in custody in Texas is stiff prison sentences for lawmen who allow or cause those deaths to happen.

Rain chance in forecast

As the winter season continues in Midland, the weatherman predicts a 20 percent chance of showers this afternoon with a 30 percent chance of light rain possibly mixed with snow tonight ending Wednesday.

In the rest of the forecast, the weatherman said skies should become considerably cloudy tonight and Wednesday with a 20 percent chance of precipitation Wednesday. The low temperature tonight is expected to fall near 30 degrees with east to southeasterly winds at 5 to 19 mph. It should be colder Wednesday with the high temperature only rising to the lower 40s.

Monday's high temperature was 55 degrees, and the overnight low temperature was 27 degrees, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported.

All area towns reported clear skies and temperatures ranging from 22 degrees to 28 degrees this morning.

Another Pacific storm was expected to hit the edge of Texas today bringing a chance for more snow in the northwest and showers in the southwest.

Colder temperatures were predicted for all northern sections today. Afternoon highs were expected to range from the low 30s in the Panhandle to the mid 70s in the Rio Grande Valley.

Despite the storm's approach, skies remained clear over most of Texas during the night. The exception was El Paso, which was mostly cloudy with scattered rain showers.

He said Mexican-Americans statewide would be watching the sentences meted out to Chief Frank Hayes of Castroville for the killing of Richard Morales in custody and to the Houston policemen found guilty for the death of Joe Campos-Torres in Houston.

He said these convictions were "landmark cases" in the protection of the civil liberties of Mexican-Americans in Texas, but only so if stiff sentences are handed out.

Hayes, who could get up to life in prison, will be sentenced in a week or so, the Houston officers on March 27.

Bonilla said another tactic Mexican-Americans will use to strengthen their rights in Texas is a massive voter-registration effort among themselves, such as took place among blacks in the Deep South in the 1960's.

With 9 to 20 percent of the vote in most towns in West Texas, Bonilla said Mexican-Americans aren't strong enough to elect their own people, but could be a decisive vote for other candidates.

He said Lozano had been given "a blanket death," wrapped in blankets and beaten with heavy objects, a form of punishment which he said soldiers sometimes illegally use on one who has displeased the group.

Bonilla suggested a need for federal investigation and prosecution in cases like Lozano's death, pointing to the recent "no bill" returned by a Glasscock County grand jury in the Nov. 6 shooting of farm laborer Tiburcio Griego Santome.

"That was a terrible disappointment," he said. He hinted there might be a means to get that case into federal court, as there was no minority member on the grand jury. He said the law requires that a grand jury represent the ethnic makeup of community.

Of Mexican-Americans in this area, he said: "We are a sleeping giant in a land of the Dark Ages."

U.S.-Israeli bonds described as 'warm'

JERUSALEM (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis conferred with Prime Minister Menachem Begin today and told reporters relations between the two countries have not changed fundamentally despite intensified controversy over Israel's settlements in the occupied Arab territories.

But, said Lewis, close ties do not "preclude misunderstandings and disagreements from time to time." The ambassador described U.S.-Israeli relations as "close, warm, friendly and constructive."

The two-hour meeting followed an exchange of harsh statements over the past four days.

U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said Friday the Jewish settlements in captured areas "should not exist." Begin accused the United States of siding with Egypt but said he welcomed further U.S. mediation between Israel and the Arabs.

Lewis said today a possible meeting between Begin and President Carter "in the next few weeks or months" was discussed.

Begin is due to visit the United States privately in late March or April. But he said Monday he has not been invited to see Carter, who met with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in the United States last week.

Lewis and Begin also discussed the Jerusalem-Cairo shuttle Assistant Secretary of State Alfred Atherton will begin next week in an attempt to arrange resumption of Egyptian-Israeli peace negotiations.

In Cairo, Egyptian newspapers today expressed satisfaction at the impact of Sadat's recent visit to the United States and seven other countries seeking support for his demands on Israel.

"The Carter administration now faces the challenge of saving peace from those who want expansion," the semi-official Al Ahran said in an editorial.

It added: "The question now is: Will the Carter administration face its responsibilities or will they give in to Israeli blackmail?"

The mass circulation Al Akhbar said the next step "depends on what the United States can do."

Begin is to make a statement Wednesday in parliament on the state of U.S.-Israeli relations. He is expected to try further to ease the tension between the U.S. and Israeli governments without retreating from his insistence that the settlements must remain.

White House spokesman Jody Powell told reporters in Washington Monday that Vance's remarks were a "reiteration of a 10-year-old U.S. position."

persons will appear at the hearing, he said.

Among those subpoenaed, Lumpee said, was Richard Orr, correspondent for a San Angelo newspaper.

The inquest is awaiting a review of two autopsies done on Lozano's body. Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, Medical Examiner of Harris County, is doing the review, and has not been heard from yet, Green said.

Green's statement went on to say: "When our investigation is complete, it will be presented to the grand jury, but not until then. We are not going to do a half-way job on this and are going to make sure there are no stones unturned and would welcome anyone who can aid our investigation into this matter in any way."

Lozano died Jan. 22 in the Ector County Jail, 12 days after his arrest following a traffic incident.

Power output ordered cut by mid-week

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Four of Indiana's five biggest electric companies must cut power output by mid-week, affecting millions of customers in all the state's big cities.

The mandatory power cuts were ordered Monday because of shrinking coal piles and no end in sight to the nationwide coal strike.

Indiana Public Service Commission Chairman Larry Wallace said the cutbacks go into effect when a utility's supply reaches the 40-day level.

"At that stage now is Public Service Indiana, Southern Indiana Gas & Electric Co., and within 48 to 72 hours, Indianapolis Power & Light Co. and Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. will be following," said William Sorrells, director of the Indiana Energy Office.

Only Northern Indiana Public Service Co., which serves Gary and the steel mills of northwestern Indiana, appears safe from cutbacks in the near future. It reported a 67-day supply last Friday.

The cutbacks begin at 15 percent for residences and 25 percent for commercial and industrial customers. When supplies drop to 30 days, businesses and industries will be required to cut back 50 percent, residential users by 25 percent.

Electricity for hospitals, nursing homes, medical centers and fire and police service will be the last cut — and then only after all other customers have been totally shut off.

The first uses of electricity to go — when coal supplies reach 40 days — include heating about 65 degrees, most outdoor and display lighting and heat and light for evening sports activities, museums, art galleries and historic buildings.

Midland area.

Alexandra Morris, executive director for the agency, pointed out that Joint Action and Community Service is trying "to build a support system" for those just getting out of Job Corps training centers.

She said many of these persons are teenagers who have no parents and have little education. She said some have been faced with the choice of either going to the training centers or going to prison.

Agency Secretary Charlotte Winder said Joint Action and Community Service "could make the difference in whether a person is a success or not."

The agency also gave Ms. Morris the go-ahead to hire a new driver to operate the van used for transportation of the elderly, the handicapped and Medicaid recipients.

Ms. Morris reported to the members that the agency now has its own van, acquired from the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation. She said some modifications need to be made in the air conditioning system and in the wheel chair lift.

The members agreed to table their decision on approving these modifications until they received information on how much the changes would cost. Other changes, including adding two mobile radio units and one base station, already are included in the cost of the van, Ms. Morris said.

However, she said, the automobile manufacturer is recalling this type of van because of defects. She said she hoped the repairs could be done by a local auto dealer.

Because the van has been in three accidents in the past six months, Ms. Bates proposed that the agency see if a safety check list is posted in the van. If not, she suggested that the agency get one.

Ms. Morris said transportation costs are exceeding the amount allocated for traveling. She said there will need to be cutbacks, although the agency still will have to provide transportation for Medicaid patients to and from the doctor or hospital.

"Just because the money (for transportation) is there, that doesn't mean we have to spend it," she said.

The agency also agreed to give the Senior Citizens Center $100 to add to its account.

Survivors include his wife, Helen G. Jones; a stepson, Gilbert F. Deese of Morris, Ill.; a brother, Henry F. Jones of Pioneer, La., and two grandchildren.

Dr. H. J. Zinn

BIG SPRING — Dr. Houston Jackson Zinn, 60, died Monday in a Big Spring hospital after an illness of a few days.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in St. Mary's Episcopal Church here with the Rev. Harland Birdwell, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Beck Cemetery in Stotts City, Mo. Arrangements are being handled by Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home of Big Spring.

Zinn was born Sept. 29, 1917, in Stotts City, Mo. He earned a bachelor's degree in 1947 at the University of Missouri. He received a doctor of medicine degree in 1943 from Harvard University. He spent his surgical internship at Beth Israel Hospital in Austin. Zinn served in the U.S. Army during World War II as a major in the medical corps. He returned and did his residency in general surgery at Wadsworth Veterans Administration Hospital and the University of Kansas.

Zinn moved to Big Spring in 1950, where he worked as a surgeon and chief of surgery at the Veterans Administration Hospital until 1974 when he retired. He was a former associate professor of general surgery at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, a diplomat at the American Board of Surgery in 1952 and was named a fellow of the American College of Surgeons in 1953.

Zinn was a member of the King Solomon Lodge in Leavenworth, Kan., a 32nd degree Mason and was initiated into the Suez Shrine Temple in 1954. He was a member of the Royal Order of Jesters San Angelo Court.

Survivors include his wife, Beatrice Zinn; a son, Jack H. Zinn of San Francisco, and a brother, James Edward Zinn of Joplin, Mo.

'Carnival' cancelled

Performances of the musical, "Carnival," scheduled for tonight and Feb. 21 at the Midland Community Theatre have been cancelled, Rick Schiller, managing director of the theater, said Monday.

Persons who still have tickets for these two performances may exchange them at the theater box office at 2301 W. Indiana Ave. Schiller said the shows were called off because of conflicts in some of the orchestra members' schedules.

'The worst, except. . .

Like most of the radical groups in the country which seek to create violent confrontations and media events, the American Nazis in the Chicago area were not satisfied to parade their swastikas through the streets.

With provocative fanfare, they proclaimed their intention of marching in Skokie, a suburb populated predominantly by Jewish residents, many of whom survived the terror and torture of Nazi Germany.

As they undoubtedly intended, these American apostles of Adolph Hitler thereby posed a classic dilemma for America's democratic system.

Fearing a violent reaction by thousands of relatives of victims of the Nazi holocaust which murdered six million Jews, Skokie officials banned the Nazis, who then took their case to the courts.

The Illinois Supreme Court decreed recently that the Nazis share the First Amendment rights of other American citizens to express their political beliefs, no matter how abhorrent. In a ruling that the judges said they had made "reluctantly," the court said ".... One man's vulgarity is another man's lyric."

The court added that the citizens of Skokie were free to boycott the parade if they considered it offensive.

Impressive sight

Boy Scout Sunday was observed in various churches of the Tall City as a highlight of the community-wide observance of Boy Scout Week, and those church-goers who saw uniformed Scouts attending and participating in worship services are bound to have been impressed with the fine Scouts and their excellent conduct.

The Scouts and their adult leaders, in some instances, attended worship services as a group. In others, the Scouts served as ushers and in other capacities.

It always is great to see members of youth organizations of all kinds attending and taking part in church services, and Boy Scouts certainly are no exception.

Ed Korry does his best to get the record straight

WASHINGTON — For two years now, Edward Korry, once a whiz-kid diplomat, has knocked his bald head on the wall to get the record straight on how rich and powerful Americans employed shady techniques to protect U.S. interests in Chile and covered up the story afterwards.

Korry, 54, is an exasperated man who, instead of closing his eyes to what he sees as the truth, has gone forth like Don Quixote, lancing such names as Carter, Mondale, Ford, Nixon, Kissinger, Rockefeller, Helms, Church and the Brothers Kennedy. Korry got into this fix many years ago. After a distinguished career in journalism, he was recruited by the Kennedy Administration to serve as a diplomat. He still regards himself as a liberal-Democrat.

As ambassador to Chile in the years when his government worked hard to thwart Salvador Allende, Korry was torn between his feeling that Allende was bad for the United States and his observations that his Administration had performed illegal acts to stop Allende.

It is possible that Korry's ardor to get his story out would have diminished when the Carter Administration took over in 1977, but the President's handling of the Helms case only fanned the old flames.

In the March issue of Penthouse, Korry charges that Carter covered up and lied in the Helms case, for the same reason others have — because full revelation would put a burning light on big-name corporations and politicians.

Helms pled "no contest" to the misdemeanor of not telling the truth to a Senate committee while under oath. His plea was arranged in secret by Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and Helms'

And the American Civil Liberties Union, which played the role of the devil's advocate and defended the Nazi right to march freely, aptly summed up the ruling's significance by saying that "every group wishing to express an unpopular point of view is freer because, in this most controversial of all cases, the court has upheld the principle that speech must be protected against hostile reaction."

While sharing the sense of outrage felt by Skokie citizens, and it must have been tremendous, it is felt that the Illinois Supreme Court, in ruling from the mind instead of the heart, strengthened our freedom instead of diminishing it.

Such a painful decision is but another indication of the heavy burden of discretion and vigilance which is imposed upon the citizenship of representative government, which remains, as Sir Winston Churchill once observed wisely, "the worst form of government except all the other forms that have been tried from time to time."

Ponder these words for a few minutes and perhaps they will ease somewhat the pain which is bound to be felt by most Americans at the decision of the Illinois court.

Yes, we yet have the greatest country and form of government in the world.

For the Scouts, it is part of their oath: "On my honor I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Laws; to help other people at all times; to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight." The Scout Law also says "A Scout is reverent toward God."

It is interesting to note that in the Chaparral (Midland) District, there are 1,632 Cub Scouts, Scouts and Explorers, along with 582 adult leaders.

These Scouts and their leaders, along with all youths and adults involved in Scouting throughout the Midland-based Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, merit the salutes they have received during the observance of Scouting's 68th anniversary.

Nick Thimmesch

lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, treasurer of the Democratic Party during the Carter campaign. Helms had threatened to spill the beans on U.S. involvement, particularly that of the CIA which he had directed, in Chilean internal affairs.

Korry writes that though Carter had publicly denied knowledge of the Helms deal, the President had discussed the case in the Oval Office with Vice President Walter Mondale and Bell, Mondale, as a member of the Senate committee investigating the CIA in 1975 — the way Korry tells it — teamed up with Chairman Frank Church (D-Idaho) to cover up the role of name Democrats like John and Robert Kennedy, President Johnson and former ambassador to Chile Ralph Dungan in the Chilean episode. (Readers offended by Penthouse, or distracted by its expanses of fresh tones, can clip the Korry article and send the remainder of the magazine to a recycling center.)

Anyway, Korry argues that while what Nixon and Kissinger did against Allende was reprehensible, it was President Kennedy who chose Chile to serve as "Camelot's alternative to Cuba," and that Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy supervised the funneling of

BIG GAME HUNTER

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

South Africa may be listening

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — South African agents slipped into closed congressional briefings and obtained unauthorized information twice last month.

On Jan. 18, an uninvited official of the South African embassy attended a State Department briefing. The session was restricted to members of Congress and their staffs.

Again on Jan. 31, an employee of a law firm representing South Africa posed as a congressional aide to get into another off-the-record briefing.

The first incident may have been inadvertent; the second was deliberate. One Justice Department source told us the second eavesdropping "could be a potential violation" of U.S. espionage laws. Another source called the incident "morally wrong," but said it didn't appear to violate the laws governing foreign lobbyists.

The first briefing was arranged by Reps. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., Andrew Maguire, D-N.J., and Edward Markey, D-Mass. After they learned about the uninvited guest, they joined in writing a sharp, private letter to South African Ambassador Donald Sole.

"We believe that your staff has seriously deceived the Ad Hoc Committee by attending our meeting," complained the congressmen. "We also believe that your staffer leaked portions of the meeting to pro-government press in South Africa. Both actions were reprehensible."

The ambassador responded that his aide "arrived at the meeting long after it started" and "heard no announcement that the meeting was closed." The details were furnished to South African newspapers, wrote the ambassador, "in response to enquiries" and "in good faith."

Two weeks later, the newspaper editor who fled South Africa, Donald Woods, appeared behind closed doors on Capitol Hill to testify about abuses by the South African government.

Because of the earlier security breach, extra precautions were taken. Access to the hearing room was restricted to one door, and a sign was posted at the door that the briefing was closed.

Inside, an aide to Rep. Downey noticed a young woman tape recording Woods' confidential remarks. The aide asked the woman to identify herself. She produced a congressional ID card, identifying herself as Eva Neterowicz from the office of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.

It was later determined that she left Rostenkowski's office in October 1977, and joined the law firm of deKieffer and Associates. The firm is registered as an agent for South Africa and is paid approximately $150,000 annually for legal and lobbying work. Neterowicz is assigned to the South African account.

A spokesman for the firm said that

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Latin American Marxists distort facts with fancy

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

Latin American Marxists are effective propagandists.

They seem to have convinced many influential people in the United States and Europe that their version of events in the Western Hemisphere is the truth.

How? By mixing a few facts with a lot of fancy and taking advantage of their audience's lack of current information on the target countries.

The result is that distorted versions of the situations in Latin America come to be accepted as accurate.

It is not just the newspaper-reading, television-watching public that is being misinformed. There is also ample evidence that the governments of the United States and the other major powers have been misled.

Some understanding of the Marxist technique may be gained considering the way one current propaganda theme is being developed.

According to the Marxists, President Jimmy Carter is worried about the way "popular movements" are on the rise in Latin America.

By way of proof that the United States is concerned, the Marxists point to the flurry of visits being made to other American republics by U.S. officials.

In truth, in recent weeks, Vice President Mondale, Secretary of State Vance, Assistant Secretary Tomman, Secretary of Agriculture Bergland and a steady stream of senators and representatives, among others, have been flying around Latin America, meeting presidents, talking to their local counterparts, holding press conferences and, then, hurrying on to the next country or returning home.

To judge by press reports from the various countries, not much is being accomplished by all this activity.

Of course, the visiting dignitaries do make personal contact with Latin officials and, for example, do take the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the administration and operation of the 64-year-old Panama Canal.

But, at the same time, they mostly limit themselves to restating their support of positions taken by the Carter administration, if they happen to be Democrats, or their opposition, be they Republicans.

However, the Marxists choose to interpret the official flights from the wintry United States to tropical or subtropical Latin America as evidence that Mr. Carter is concerned about "the crisis through which the military regimes established to defend the United States' urge for hegemony and its economic interests are passing."

One Chilean Marxist, writing in a left-wing Mexico City daily, cited Bolivia, Chile and Argentina as examples of the military-dominated governments for which the United States should be blamed and against which "popular movements" have risen.

What the commentator did not bother to mention is that a dozen of the 20 recognized governments in Bolivia in the last half century have been headed by military men, and that the current result of the call for elections issued by the current president, Gen. Hugo Banzer.

With reference to Chile, it was said that "political activity has been public and open" before and since the Jan. 4 plebiscite. That was when 75 percent of the Chilean voters registered their approval of the way Gen. Augusto Pinochet has been defending Chile against propaganda campaigns from abroad.

(The contrast between the Marxist estimate of the situation and that of the U.S. State Department is worthy of note. Washington objected to the plebiscite and sought to disparage its results alleging that political activity had been stifled. The Chilean Marxist hailed the political activity as a weakening.)

Argentina, of course, has been fighting Marxist subversion for years now and has earned the hatred of human rights activists in the United States and in Europe. But to suggest that the Carter administration is anxious for the survival of the Argentine military government is to stretch the truth.

What draws the attention of well-traveled Washingtonians to Latin America at this time of the year, is the good weather and the opportunity to stroll on the streets on a summer night, fearlessly.

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

1. Sinai and Horeb are two names for one mountain, meaning "the mountain of the sword." This mountain, literally "old as the hills," through the years was given other names: (1) Har ha Elohim (the mountain of God) (2) Har Bashan (with the teeth) and (3) Har Gabnunim (a mountain pure as cheese). Moses knew this place was holy. How? Exodus 3.

2. Elijah hid in this mountain. What wicked woman was he hiding from and how long was he there? 1 Kings 19 (K.J.) 3 Kings 19 (D.).

Telephone rate hike request hinges on high court ruling

DALLAS (AP) — Whether Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. files for another rate increase hinges on how the Texas Supreme Court rules on Bell's appeal of the Public Utility Commission's 1976 rate order, say company officials.

Bell told the PUC last November the firm was going to file a $231 million rate increase request, sources said at that time.

But informed sources said Monday that Bell executives recently told the PUC the company would not file until after the state Supreme Court ruling.

Use This Method To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, TEXAS — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss ... and grow more hair.

Have you faced the fact that you have a hair loss problem? Hair loss occurs so gradually that men and women often ignore it. Until it's too late. Even though you see yourself in a mirror every day, many of you won't admit to abnormal hair fall.

If you think, honestly, that you might be in this category, look at a picture taken a year ago — three years ago. Notice a difference? If so, now's the time to stop your hair loss. You could be going bald.

If it appears that you are already losing hair, whatever your daily hair routine is, if you continue to follow it, your hair will probably gradually thin away to nothing.

But it doesn't have to happen. Often hair fall is NOT normal.

Now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment that not only stops hair loss, but actually grows hair! And you don't even have to take their word for it. You can try their treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself. Naturally they wouldn't offer this opportunity unless it worked. But it's impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

If you have thinning hair, the Loesch treatment may be the answer for you. If you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair, do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days — at their risk — if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially by mail.

Bell is contesting the $58 million rate increase the PUC granted in December 1976. That figure is about $230 million less than the telephone company had requested.

Bell, claiming the new rates were so low they amounted to confiscation of property, appealed to the high court after lower courts upheld the PUC order.

"If and when it appears to me that our court appeal will not produce the additional revenues we need, it will become necessary to file another rate case," Doyle E. Rogers, head of Bell's Texas operations, said Monday. "A favorable decision in the court appeal could negate the need to file another rate case."

The state high court received the Bell appeal on Jan. 12, but has given no indication when a ruling will be made.

PUC sources also said the commission would have probably ruled in early May 1978 — about the time of the May 6 primary elections — on any Bell rate increase request filed in late 1977.

Bell decided to hold off to avoid any possible political repercussions, sources said.

Testimony proves contradictory

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The two key witnesses in a $1.5 million libel suit against "Blood and Money" author Thomas Thompson have contradicted each other during testimony in the federal court trial of the suit.

Longview policeman John Raymer, plaintiff in the suit against the author of the nonfiction best-seller, testified Monday that he never told Thompson he ran unsavory characters out of town.

Thompson, however, had testified earlier Monday that handwritten notes he took from an interview with Raymer contained such a remark.

Raymer claims a portion of the book dealing with his fatal shooting of Bobby Vandiver — portrayed in the book as the killer of Dr. John Hill of Houston — depicts him as forcing people out of town without giving them due process.

The suit was brought against Thompson and North Branch Corp., a company headed by Thompson that holds the copyright for the nonfiction best seller. U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice is presiding.

"I never told anybody that I ran anybody out of town," Raymer testified, adding that he knew it was against the law to do so.

"Have you ever run anyone out of town?" Raymer was asked by his attorney, Frank Supercinski of Longview.

"No, sir, not to my knowledge," Raymer replied.

DRILLING REPORT

ANDREWS — Hanley No. 1-25-B University; drilling 3,230 feet in anhydrite and salt.

Biel No. 1-14 University; drilling 7,490 feet in shale and lime.

ETA No. 1 Great Plains; drilling 4,830 feet in lime, set 9 1/2-inch casing at total depth, now waiting on cement.

Blair Exploration No. 1-4 King; drilling 11,435 feet in shale.

BORDEN — I. W. Lovelady No. 1 Wilson; drilling 1,580 feet in redbeds and shale.

BREWSTER — Union Texas No. 1 Silbey; drilling 13,837 feet, unable to recover, spotted cement at 13,823 feet, drilled to 13,882 feet, preparing to side track.

CROCKETT — Hytech No. 2 Montgomery; running 4-point test on Strawn zone.

James L. Lamb No. 1-13 Todd; drilling 140 feet in shale.

Stollis, Wagner & Brown No. 2-3 Johnson; drilling 9,861 feet, perforated strata 8,530 to 9,861 feet, acidized with 750 gallons, fractured with 40,000 gallons, 15,500 pounds sand.

Preparation to test.

Estoril No. 1-32 University; rigging up and preparing to drill 1,250 feet.

Estoril No. 1-23 University; drilling 8,130 feet, shut in, preparing to run 4-point test.

CULBERTSON — Avance Oil & Gas Co. No. 1 Caldwell; drilling 4,435 feet.

DAWSON — Coquina Oil Corp. No. 4 Huddleston; drilling 8,023 feet in lime.

Getty No. 1 Davis; drilling 11,415 feet.

Gulf No. 31 G. Wright Jr.; drilling 7,400 feet, shut in, waiting on cement.

Opposite Strawn, on initial potential test, pumped 74 barrels oil and 18 barrels gas in 24 hours, gravity 38 and gas-oil ratio 583-1.

EDDY COUNTY — Cities Service Co. No. 1-4 Polk; drilling 11,870 feet.

TEXAS PACIFIC No. 1 Hackberry; Federal, drilling 7,286 feet, shale.

GLASSCOCK COUNTY — Cities Service Co. No. 1-12 University; drilling 8,844 feet.

Gulf No. 1-4M Eddy; drilling 11,300 feet, shut in, waiting on cement.

Southland No. 1-19 State; drilling 11,100 feet, swabbing, no gauge; acidized with 100 gallons through perforations 10,865 to 11,085 feet.

The Eastland Co. No. 1-1 Harroun; Federal, drilling 8,415 feet.

J. M. Huber No. 1-4 Featherstone; Federal, cleaning out well 1,234 feet.

Mesa No. 1 Red Huff; drilling 11,130 feet.

Stearns Yates No. 1-23 Moki; State, plugged back to 1,822 feet, now at 1,421 feet, drilling out cement.

TEXAS PACIFIC No. 1-18C Maders; drilling 11,300 feet, sand, circulating.

Drilling No. 1-Y Cualeira Huff; drilling 8,880 feet.

Basic Enterprises No. 80-J Big Eddy; drilling 11,520 feet.

Delta Drilling No. 1-1 Willow Lake Unit; drilling 11,320 feet.

Fasken No. 2-24 Taylor; drilling 5,730 feet, acidized with 220 gallons.

Exxon No. 9 Exxon Fee; drilling 4,454 feet, ran 10 1/2-inch casing, 4,374 to 4,454 feet; acidized with 15,000 gallons; preparing to test.

Estoril No. 1-11, curing 4,307 feet.

TEXAS CRUDE & FLUIDS GAS No. 709 Norman; drilling 7,120 feet, shale.

I. W. Lovelady No. 2 Huddleston; drilling 5,058 feet, acidized with 220 gallons through perforations 5,008 to 5,042 feet, swabbed back 28 barrels of formation water with good show of gas, last run swab recovered 1 1/2 barrels of fluid, being 50 percent oil, still waiting.

I. W. Lovelady No. 3 Huddleston; drilling 6,980 feet.

Garza — Getty No. 1-A Kirkpatrick; drilling 8,230 feet, moving off rig.

GLASSCOCK — Belco Petroleum No. 2 Edwards; drilling 3,500 feet in lime and shale.

Estoril No. 1 Edwards; drilling 6,400 feet.

HOCKLEY — Gulf No. 1 Cooke; drilling 7,815 feet in lime and shale, casing 7,412 to 7,435 feet, acidized and recovered 35 feet, no description.

Harry Westmoreland No. 1 Sires; drilling 9,200 feet, preparing to plug and abandon.

IRON COUNTY — Gulf No. 1-4E State; drilling 1,036 feet, shale.

Patrick & Hilliard No. 1-10 University; drilling 7,500 feet in shale.

Delta Drilling No. 1-1 Marie Baker; ran four-point tests; calculated, absolute open flow potential 1,100,000 cubic feet of gas per day; 10,785, 4 1/2-inch casing 7,985, perforations 6,884 to 6,950; acidized with 2,000 gallons; fractured with 68,000 gallons, Upper Canyon.

Union Texas No. 3-56 Farmer; swabbed & flowed 145 barrels of load oil; 8 barrels of water in 24 hours; 9 1/2-inch choke; still recovering load.

Union Texas No. 3-57 Farmer; drilling 5,734 feet in shale.

John L. Cox No. 2-L Miss Rita; drilling 7,435 feet.

D. A. Metts No. 1 Mayer-Entoril; building tank battery.

Delta Drilling Co. No. 1 Kenneth Day; drilling 2,980 feet in lime, shale and redbeds.

LEA — Superior No. 1-1 Government; took drillstem test from 15,879 to 15,970 feet, used 5,000-foot water blanket, recovered water blanket plus 350 feet black sulphur water, now at 16,228 feet, lost circulation.

Hytech No. 1-1 Dalcio; drilling 4,540 feet.

Atlantic Richfield No. 1 Langley Deep; drilling 13,620 feet.

IT'S NOT EVERY day that a diver in the Cooper River near Charleston, S.C., stumbles across the fossilized lower right jawbone of a mastodon. But that is what happened to this member of a team of divers sponsored by the South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology working with a grant from Amoco Chemicals Corp. Amoco, in the process of building a plant near the river, sponsored the project to recovery more than 4,000 pounds of fossilized materials before it began dredging operations.

Three wildcat operations, two proven area wells announced

Three wildcat operations, a new field area well and three Cheyenne (Capitan reef) field area tests have been announced. And, another well has been completed in the Spraberry Trend (Dean-Wolfcamp) field of Glasscock County.

I. W. Lovelady of Midland announced plans to drill a 1,000-foot wildcat 45 miles northeast of Van Horn in Culberson County.

The location for No. 1-A Brooks is 660 feet from south and 2,000 feet from east lines of section 7, block 54, psi survey. There is no nearby production.

HOWARD WILDCAT

Fisher-Wells, Inc., of Abilene spotted location for a 7,900-foot wildcat in Howard County, four miles east of Luther.

It is 1,800 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section 13, block 31, T-2-N, T&P survey.

The project will be drilled as No. 1 Anderson. There is no nearby production, however the site is one location east of the depleted Nearco (Canyon reef) field.

PECOS TEST

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. saked an 11,700-foot Ellenburger wildcat in Pecos County, 12 miles west of Sheffield.

It is No. 1 Johnson-Slaughter, 1,600 feet from south and 3,300 feet from west lines of Glenn Schuler survey No. 12, Abstract 6589.

The location is 1 1/2 miles southeast of the depleted Leonard discovery in the Schuler field.

THREE TESTS

Gifford, Mitchell & Wisenbaker of Midland announced locations for three projects in the Cheyenne (Capitan reef) field of Winkler County, 13 miles northwest of Kermit.

Each of the projects will be drilled to 3,400 feet.

No. 2 Fox Tail is 1,667 feet from south and 1,000 feet from east lines of section 17, block C-23, psi survey.

No. 5 Little Wolf is 2,382 feet from south and 1,660 feet from east lines of section 16, block C-23, psi survey.

No. 6 Little Wolf is 1,573 feet from north and 1,600 feet from east lines of section 16, block C-23, psi survey.

WARD WELL

The Superior Oil Co. No. 1-28-18 University has been completed 1/2 mile west of the War-Wink, South (Wolfcamp) field of Ward County.

The new Wolfcamp oiler completed for a 24-hour flowing potential of 55 barrels of 42.5-gravity oil, plus 29 barrels of water, through a 9 1/2-inch choke and perforations from 11,267 to 11,325 feet. Gas-oil ratio was 182-1.

The well was drilled to 11,500 feet and plugged back to 11,422 feet. Five and one-half-inch casing is cemented at total depth.

The location is 2,000 feet from north and 933 feet from east lines of section 28, block 18, University Lands survey and 9.5 miles northwest of Pyote.

The producing zone was acidized with 3,000 gallons and fractured with 30,000 gallons.

GLASSCOCK WELL

Atlantic Richfield Co. No. 1-42 W. H. Lane has been re-completed as a Dean-Wolfcamp well in the Spraberry Trend Area of Glasscock County.

Originally completed as a Spraberry well, No. 1-42 Lane was re-completed for a 24-hour flowing potential of 139 barrels of 41.4-gravity oil and 20 barrels of water, through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 8,262 to 8,439 feet.

The well was drilled to 8,515 feet and plugged back to 8,477 feet. Three and one-half-inch casing is set at 8,439 feet.

The pay zone was acidized with 1,500 gallons and fractured with 80,000 gallons.

The location is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 42, block 36, T-4-S, T&P survey and 11 miles southwest of Garden City.

Krueger admits absence

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., admits he was not present for the final House vote on halting the use of foreign-made drilling equipment for offshore oil rigs, but he said he had already expressed his opposition on an earlier vote.

The admission came Monday in response to a challenge by Krueger's opponent for the U.S. Senate, Joe Christie.

Christie timed his announcement on Krueger's voting record for an Odessa news conference.

"Some of the American-made equipment is manufactured right here in the Odessa area," he told reporters.

In a statement released here, Krueger replied, "The vote centers upon the basic issue of protectionism versus free trade. And the basic, historical position of the Democratic Party has consistently been to support free trade over protectionism."

Krueger said such limits on foreign-made equipment would be an invitation for other countries to issue similar restrictions against the use of American-made equipment in their waters.

RRC opens new office

LAREDO — The Railroad Commission of Texas has opened a satellite office in laredo to handle growing oil and gas regulatory responsibilities resulting from greatly expanded drilling and producing operations in Webb, Zapata, Jim Hogg and Starr counties.

The four counties are part of District 4 of the commission's Oil and Gas Division, headquartered in Corpus Christi.

The Laredo sub-district office is only the second such activity of the commission.

Irion well potentials

Delta Drilling Co. No. 1 Marie Baker has been completed from the upper Canyon zone in the Baker Ranch (Canyon gas) area of Irion County, nine miles southwest of Mertzon.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 4,100,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 6,895 to 8,956 feet after 2,000 gallons of acid and 60,000 gallons of fracture solution. Total depth is 7,865 feet and 4 1/2-inch casing is set at 6,865 feet.

The location is 1/2-mile east of one of the four wells in the field.

Discovery potentials

SEATTLE, Wash. — ENI Exploration Co. has announced the successful completion and test of the No. 1 King Unit in Oklahoma.

Four point tests showed rates of gas flow between 3.7 and 8 million cubic feet per day.

The No. 1 King Unit is in Roger Mills County in the Anadarko region.

ENI said the discovery had a calculated, absolute open flow capacity of 34 million cubic feet of gas per day.

The well was drilled to a total depth of 15,524 feet and was completed in the Puryear sand of the Morrow formation.

New oiler completes

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 31 G. G. Wright Jr. has been completed in the southeast edge of the Felken (Spraberry) field of Dawson County, 10 miles southeast of O'Donnell.

The well finalized for a daily pumping potential of 74 barrels of 39-gravity oil, plus 19 barrels of water, through Spraberry perforations from 7,246 to 7,257 feet.

Gas-oil ratio was 583-1. Location is 2,580 feet from north and 1,750 feet from east lines of section 17, block 1, T-4-N, J. Poitevent survey.

Loggers to meet

The Permian Basin Well Logging Society will hold a luncheon meeting at Ranchland Hill Country Club Thursday. The event will get under way at 11:30 a.m.

Jim Conn of Gulf Energy & Minerals Co.-U.S. will present a talk on "Geology and Development of the Kingdom Abo Reef Field, Terry and Hockley counties, Texas."

Since development of the field began in 1975, more than 115 wells have been completed in this complex stratigraphic reservoir.

Conn was graduated from The University of Texas-El Paso in 1974 with a B.S. degree in Geology. He was employed by Gulf the same year in the Midland Exploration District.

He was transferred to the Goldsmith Production Area in 1976. He currently is assigned to the Mineral Wells Production Sub-Area.

Reservations should be made by Wednesday noon by telephoning Parks Tilly, 694-9561.

61 House races uncontested

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House races in 61 of 150 House districts will be dull, no-contest affairs this year, and six of the 15 Senate seats up for grabs also will go by default.

Another 16 senators won't have to stand for election until 1980.

Only 20 incumbent House members and three senators chose not to seek re-election, according to political filings tabulated by the Texas Legislative Service.

House filings were watched closely by Speaker Bill Clayton and two representatives who hope to unseat him, Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, and Bill Sullivan, D-Gainesville.

"He (Clayton) feels like he has 110 to 115 of the districts — solid," said Clayton's press secretary, George Works.

He said the speaker anticipates the turnover in the House will be "about average" — 35 or 38 members. This would anticipate the defeat of 15 or 18 incumbents.

A Temple aide, Clark Jobe, said only "two or three of our people" decided to drop out of the House, and the rest of the 20 incumbents who aren't returning "are Clayton's people."

Jobe said the race is close enough that Temple will devote most of his attention to candidates running for vacant House seats.

Works said Clayton counts 15 or 17 of his supporters among the non-returning representatives.

Clayton appeared to be strong among the 61 incumbent representatives who are running unopposed.

Senators who decided not to run are A. M. Aikin, D-Paris, who will retire after four decades in the Legislature because of poor health; Don Adams, D-Jasper, who quit to become Gov. Dolph Briscoe's general counsel; and Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, who is running for Congress.

Five House members are running for senator. They are Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, for Adams' old slot; Roy English, D-Arlington, and Mike Millsap, D-Fort, for the seat held by Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth; Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, against Sen. Frank Lombardino; and Joe Robbins, R-Lubbock, for the Hance seat.

Unopposed senators are Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler; Lindon Williams, D-Houston; Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin; Pete Snelson, D-Midland; Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg; and Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

Blake is unopposed for Adams' old post in the Senate.

Sens. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, and Lombardino have opposition only in the May 6 Democratic Primary. Sens. John Traeger, D-Seguin, and Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, are unopposed in the primary but have general election opponents; and Mrs. LaGrange, health and welfare; Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, intergovernmental affairs; Jerry Donaldson, D-Gatesville, financial institutions; Bennie Book II, D-New Braunfels, liquor regulation; Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, constitutional amendments; Joe Hanna, D-Breckenridge, energy resources; Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, criminal jurisprudence; Jim Nugent, D-Kerrville, transportation; Tom Craddock, R-Midland, natural resources; Craig Washington, D-Houston, social services; and Ben Reyes, D-Houston, rules.

Among those who will be returned without a contest are Reps. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, chairman of the appropriations committee; Tom Uher, D-Bay City, state affairs; Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, education; and Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, administration.

Heads of other committees who have no opponents are Ben Grant,

D-Marshall, judiciary; Sullivan, environmental affairs; John Wilson, D-LaGrange, health and welfare; Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, intergovernmental affairs; Jerry Donaldson, D-Gatesville, financial institutions; Bennie Book II, D-New Braunfels, liquor regulation; Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, constitutional amendments; Joe Hanna, D-Breckenridge, energy resources; Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, criminal jurisprudence; Jim Nugent, D-Kerrville, transportation; Tom Craddock, R-Midland, natural resources; Craig Washington, D-Houston, social services; and Ben Reyes, D-Houston, rules.

Democrats express optimism on start

By PAUL HOUSTON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — After a shaky start last year with President Carter, Democrats in control of Congress seem increasingly optimistic that they can salvage a large part of his legislative program and retain their overwhelming congressional majorities in this year's elections. "Carter and Congress have taken a measure of each other and I think we'll have the kind of cooperation and understanding that will be much improved over where we were a year ago," Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., said in an interview. "I think we'll have a more productive year." Senate Majority Whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif., agreed. "Carter got off to a good start with the State of the Union speech and the joint (bipartisan) breakfast with the (congressional) leaders," Cranston said. "I am hopeful things will improve. An example is the Panama Canal treaties. It now looks quite hopeful, whereas it didn't a few weeks ago."

Despite the Democrats' upbeat mood, a number of potential pitfalls could dampen enthusiasm considerably.

A lot hinges on the kind of energy legislation Congress passes. Some bill undoubtedly will emerge but whether it contains anything on natural gas pricing or energy taxes — two key elements of Carter's program — is uncertain.

Those issues have been stuck in conference for nearly four months.

And many other issues besides energy and the Panama treaties could erupt in bloody fights:

—Labor law revision, which probably will be embroiled in a Senate filibuster by conservatives.

—Size and distribution of proposed tax cuts.

—Budget money for defense and social programs, plus the size of the deficit.

—Federal funding of abortions.

—Welfare overhaul.

—A possible treaty on strategic arms limitation.

Though Democratic leaders are optimistic, the outcome on all these issues will depend on unpredictable forces.

There is the wide range of competing political philosophies and parochial interests among congressional Democrats, despite their seemingly overwhelming majorities.

There is the spoiler role that well-organized Republicans will attempt to play on some major legislation, both among themselves and in alliance with conservative Democrats, in seeking to make badly needed gains at the polls.

There is the growing desire, especially among junior Democrats in Congress, to work independently of the White House, not to mention Democratic leaders.

And, above all, there are the sensitive political judgments that all House members and senators who are running for re-election this year must make.

"The whole year will be affected by the obvious — there are primaries all over the place and a general election in November," Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., said. "That will have a very acute effect on what we do."

One effect is already clear: there will be tax cuts. Not just because economists say they will be good for the economy, but because the folks back home are howling about those big tax hikes Congress voted last year to keep Social Security solvent.

Furthermore, if Carter gets what he wants on his energy program, there will be even bigger tax increases as part of an effort to force conservation.

How big to make the tax cuts is another matter, though, and that will get wrapped up in the explosive issue of government spending and deficits — an issue on which some detect a shift in congressional mood.

"In my discussions with people who often come down on the side of government activism, I sense a growing skepticism, a growing mood to put the brakes on a little bit," Rep. Philip R. Sharp, D-Ind., said recently. "It's not a new expression but now you see it in the votes. The Carter budget helps."

EPA makes plans to change new car mileage estimates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is beginning to act on complaints from disappointed new car owners who say EPA mileage estimates stuck on the shiny, clean car windows are inflated by as much as 14 percent.

The EPA is ready to change the mileage estimates after conceding its figures are seldom achieved under normal driving conditions.

"The EPA ratings should reflect what drivers can reasonably expect to achieve on the road," EPA Administrator Douglas Costle said on Monday in announcing plans to revamp conceded errors of from 7 percent to 14 percent on the high side, and Costle said that is too much. Some individual car owners claim the errors are even larger.

"We've received a lot of consumer complaints that customers are not getting the mileage our tests indicate," said EPA spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

The agency is considering three proposals to bring figures into line with reality:

—Publishing only one figure instead of the three currently listed. Listings now give mileage estimates for city driving, highway driving and combined city and highway driving. The city driving figure is considered the best "since it most closely corresponds to the average mileage that most drivers are experiencing," the EPA said.

—Listing the three figures, but lowering the estimates by 10 percent to 25 percent for each category.

—Abolishing the estimates and substituting a comparison index, putting a car's fuel economy on a sliding scale from one to 10, with top performing cars receiving a 10 rating.

The new ratings would first appear on 1979 model cars, EPA said.

In the past, EPA has defended its figures by saying they are good for comparison purposes. A car listed as providing 20 miles per gallon will give a consumer twice the fuel economy as a car listed as getting 10 miles per gallon, regardless of driving habits, EPA spokesmen have argued.

Part of the reason for the disparity between EPA estimates and consumer driving experiences, EPA says, is mileage tests do not take into account cold weather, bad roads, higher-than-legal speeds and poor maintenance.

Regardless, said Costle, "We will do everything we can to adjust the testing procedures and the way we develop the miles-per-gallon ratings to make them as close as possible to real world conditions."

Winners needed luck in world tournament

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Dallas expert Robert Hamman, whose team won the world championship recently in Manila, needed a little luck to bring in the game in today's hand, played in the final match.

Opening lead — ♦ Q

Hamman's first response of two diamonds was a variation of the Stayman Convention, promising game-going values as well as asking North to bid a major suit of four or more cards.

Hamman ruffed the opening diamond lead in his own hand and led a low club. West played low to make sure of getting his two trump tricks; and dummy's nine of clubs won. Dealer then played dummy's ace of clubs, discovering that he was sure to lose two trumps.

AVOIDS FINESSE

Hamman now tried to make his contract without finessing in either major suit. He ruffed a diamond, cashed the ace of spades and led a spade.

West could take his two trumps and get out with a diamond, but then South would easily develop two diamond tricks in dummy to take care of his two losing hearts.

When West instead discarded a diamond, declarer took the king of spades, discarded a spade on the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. West discarded again, but South led a heart to the ace and ruffed dummy's last spade. West took his two trumps but then had to lead hearts to South's K-J.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: SQ109873; H75; DK932; C2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four spades. You can't really tell what you can make, but you should have a reasonable play for game opposite a typical notrump opening bid and you will score more points in the long run if you bid game on such hands than if you stop at a part score.

Today's smoker won't go mile for cigarette

WINSTON-SALEM, only cigarettes on the N.C. (AP) — Today's market until 25 years ago, when filtered brands entered the picture. Don Fought, marketing manager for Camel, makers of other short, strong, unfiltered cigarettes also report faltering sales and a no longer be profitable to doubtful future.

Manufacturer P. Lorillard held a secret retirement ceremony for "It's a very nice, Old Gold regulars in steady decline," Fought December, featuring the dancing packs that almost to the cigarette, peaked on "The Ted Mack Amateur Hour" year.

Unfiltered Camels now represent 3 percent of the overall cigarette sales market, said Fought. Comparative figures were not available on the market share of other unfiltered brands.

The reason that sale of Camel regulars is dropping is simple: each year more of the older smokers are dying off and health-conscious young smokers are not taking their place.

"We're in an evolution," Fought explained.

CORRECTION
On page 19 of Sears section in this issue of the newspaper the description of the mile of the number 3517 CB is incorrect. The description should state "detachable noise canceling microphone" instead of "power amplifier." We sincerely regret this error.

DEAR ABBY

Children need whipping in order to learn?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I just saw you on the Phil Donahue show, and I must say I think you are dead wrong to say that children do not have to be whipped to learn right from wrong.

I was one of 10 kids, and believe me, if our father didn't take us out to the woodshed when we lied or stole or even talked back to him, we never would have grown up to be honest, decent, law-abiding citizens. (Only one of us ever went to jail, and one out of 10 isn't bad.)

I raised my kids the same way, and it's not always pleasant to have to whip a kid with a belt. But if he knows what he's getting whipped for, he's not likely to do it again.

It's the results that count, Abby, and kids don't understand anything but a good firm hand, so please don't go on television anymore and say that violence begets violence and when you hit a kid it just means you've run out of words. Sign this—A MAN FROM OMAHA

DEAR MAN: My stand on hitting children brought an amazing number of letters from those who saw me on the Phil Donahue show, but the majority of letters were in agreement with me. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two small boys, and when the question of spanking came up on the Phil Donahue show and you said you were AGAINST hitting children, I was very happy.

I was spanked (they were more like beatings) by my mother when I was a child, and I can remember hating her and feeling guilty because I knew that children are supposed to love their parents.

I am still trying to work out my hang-ups from that, and I am trying hard not to repeat it with my children.

I am a lay-therapist to abusive parents, and I learned in my training that most parents who abuse their children were once themselves abused by their parents, and the cycle goes on and on.

With the Parents Anonymous program, we hope that cycle of child-beating will be broken.

I'm with you 100 percent: Physically abusing children only teaches them to fear, hate and desire to get even.

My hat is off to you!—COLORADO MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: There is no reason for doctors' waiting rooms to be constantly crowded with patients who sit for hours because they're afraid if they leave for a few minutes they'll lose their turn.

In Sweden they give numbers to patients as they come in. If your number is, say, 30, you know you have time to go out and do something else.

Why don't they do that here?—T. C.

DEAR T. C.: They do. In bakeries. (Smart cookies?)

Lee girls say happy birthday in style

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The Midland Lee Rebel's girls basketball team has more than a keen sense of history—they also like to celebrate birthdays.

The Rebs served both functions Monday night in the Lee gym with a 42-32 victory over Midland High. Lee became the first girls team to win a District 5-4A cage championship in the nail-biting finale, and just to top things off, the victory served as a birthday present for Coach Shirley Stephenson, who is celebrating her birthday today.

SHIRLEY IS not saying how old she is, but that is the prerogative of the first championship girls coach in the district.

Lee had to have a victory over Midland High Monday, or the two teams would have had to have had a playoff game for the right to represent the district in the state playoffs. Midland High and Lee were co-champs in the first half, but Lee won the right to move into the playoffs with a perfect 7-0 mark in the second half. Lee will carry a 24-8 record into the playoffs.

Lee draws a bi-district bye in the playoffs since District 6-AAAA does not have a varsity girls program. The Rebels will have a 17-day layoff before entering the regional tournament at Abilene Christian University March 3.

THE LOSS was a big disappointment for Midland High since the Pack had beaten the Rebels twice this season. The Bulldogs end the season with a 23-8 mark.

Midland High coach Jane Young was pleased with the season of her Bulldogs, but in an ironic twist, she was also happy for Shirley. They happen to be sisters. One way or the other, someone in the family was going to win it all.

"I know Jane is disappointed, but I'm glad it came down between our two teams. Midland High has been tough on us this year, but we enjoyed playing against them. This was just perfect for us," Coach Stephenson said. "We were worried before the game because Schilla McCallister was unable to play, but we just knew we could win."

"I KNEW Deborah Kittle would have to be hot, and she was the difference. I think she had her best game ever."

Kittle flipped in 20 points to lead all scorers, and there wasn't a spot on the floor she couldn't connect from. In fact, Lee just didn't miss too many shots. The Rebs connected on 20 of 35 shots from the field, and it was a good thing since they hit only two of 11 free throw attempts.

Dee Dee Poole added 15 points for the Rebels, nine coming in the second half when Kittle cooled a little. Kittle hit 10 of her 20 points in the second period to keep the Rebels afloat.

"Our kids never gave up, and I'm real proud of them," Coach Young said. "But Lee just hit a great percentage of their shots and that was the difference."

THE TEMPO of the game was set in the first period when Lee took an 8-3 lead by hitting four of seven shots. Midland High managed only one of nine offerings as the defensive unit of Leisha Watkins, Cindy Harrison and Jan Carnes kept the Bulldogs from getting the good shots.

Midland made its only threat of the night in the second period when Beth Thomason, who led the Pack with 13 points, converted a three-point play to cut the margin to 10-9 with 6:05 left in the half. Midland's Kim White then followed with a steal and fed Sandra Rock for the go ahead basket with 5:16 left. The 11-10 Midland High lead was the zenith of the attack for the 'Dogs.

Kittle roared back with six unanswered points and a Poole bomb from the corner gave Lee an 18-11 margin with 2:55 left, and the Rebs never trailed again.

TERRY DEAN and Rock had seven point performances and Karen Cook added five in a balanced scoring attack for Midland, but the Bulldogs hit only 13 of 53 shots from the field. They added six of 11 from the charity line. The defensive play of White, LaShelle Shrock, Susan Sloan and JoAnn Johnson helped Midland, but Lee's shooters were on target.

Deborah Ledbetter came off the bench to pump in six points for Lee, including a buzzer bucket to end the game and Patty Adams added the other point. Adams, Carla Goodley and Liz Hellinghausen also had good defensive outings for the Rebels. Defense was a strong suit for both teams.

MIDLAND HIGH swept both the sophomore and junior varsity outings. The Pack won the sophomore contest, 31-19, as Sandra Black led the way with eight points. Sandy Alvarado had six for Lee.

The Pack produced a 43-31 verdict in the junior varsity game as Jana Trolinder and Margaret Christian each earned 14 points. Lee was led by 10-point performances by Judy Taylor and Tana Parrish.

MIDLAND HIGH (21): Karen Cook, 2-1-3; Terry Dean, 3-1-3; Beth Thomason, 5-3-13; Sandra Rock, 3-1-0; Susan Sloan, 0-0-2; Kim White, 0-0-4; JoAnn Johnson, 0-0-1; LaShelle Shrock, 0-0-2. Totals: 13-44.

Dice loaded, Chaps roll snake eyes

BY TED BATTLES

The only question anyone had after Western Texas College's 110-94 demolition of Midland College was "What are these guys doing in second place?"

Going into Monday night's Western Junior College Conference game at MC gym, the Westerners were trailing league-leading Odessa College by a half game. In raising their record to 11-4 against a Midland team that only Thursday beat OC by nine, WTC looked like a team that should be four games out in front.

For MC, now 5-10 in WJCC and 14-14 for the season, it was a case of playing against loaded dice, and they didn't do too bad a job.

THE GAME was respectable until the last minute when the Westerners ran off 10 unanswered points to make it look like a pistol whipping.

It was a game of big men and the Westerners had a starting lineup that went from 6-4 to 6-8 and 6-7 and got bigger when Coach Nolan Richardson, whose sideline antics gave his team more trouble than the Chaparrals, substituted 6-9.

One guy didn't even start and scored 22 points.

And if size wasn't enough, the ball-hawking Westerners had the shooting ability to go with it. After all, how many times do you come from behind to beat a team that hits 24 of 35 from the field in the last half, huh, how many?

SIX-EIGHT JON Moorhead led the defending WTC champions, who don't even seem to know Larry Butler, last year's all everything, is gone, with 23 points, 10 of 15 from the field. But even more impressive was the 22 points of non-starter Adam Beadle, a 6-6 transfer from Texas Tech, who hit from outside, the corners and underneath when necessary. Some of his longies were so clean you couldn't be sure they went through until the officials gave the Chaps guards the ball under the basket.

Six-five Ricky Hudgins, two and three teamed, worked like a longshoreman for his 22 points to lead MC.

WTC jumped ahead 10-2 early and led all the way except for a brief moment early in the second half, and Richardson gave the Chaps the chance to catch up.

MC TRAILED 47-42 as the teams left for intermission. Richardson said something to one of the officials and got a technical. Cullen Davis converted both to start the second half and then Hudgins reeled off the post for two and Mike Denny, who had a 17-point night, hit from the corner to make it 48-47.

That only seemed to infuriate the Westerners who quickly rolled in front 58-48 with 15:39 left. It was 66-54 with 13:00 left and seemingly all over but the shouting. That's when 5-9 Cullen Mayfield began to perk.

First he hit from outside to make the WTC defense Mayfield conscious and then attracted a crowd when he drove the lane, which left Hudgins open underneath for the pass.

MC worked back to trail 73-67, but Moorhead underneath, Beadle outside always seemed to come up with the big basket that kept panic from setting in.

Mayfield's last-half antics gave him 15 points and five assists. Hudgins, who for much of the night looked like a man caught in the subway rush hour, still managed 12 rebounds. Henry White and Alvin Mayes each had 13 points and White also got 10 rebounds.

For WTC, six players were in double figures and 12 scored as the Westerners raised their season's record to 22-8.

WESTERN TEXAS (110) — Jon Moorhead 10-22; Robert Brown 1-4; Reginald Reid 3-6; Joe Mendoza 6-12; Melvin Pettigree 4-5-1; Julio Gallardo 3-6-12; Dwight Williams 6-12; Adam Beadle 10-3-22; Douglas Worthington 1-3-4; Wayne Jamison 1-0-2; Lonnie Nichols 1-0-2. Totals: 44-22-110.
MIDLAND COLLEGE (94) — Ron Jones 3-1-7; Henry White 4-13; Ricky Hudgins 4-12; Alvin Mayes 4-11; Cullen Mayfield 6-5-15; Luis Alvarado 2-1-0; Mike Denny 4-1-17; Richard Holland 1-0-2; Kelly Newsum 0-0-0; James Hicks 0-0-0; Rick Murdoch 0-0-0; Bobby Higgins 0-0-0. Totals: 37-20-94.
Halftime: WTC 47, MC 42. PF—WTC 23, MC 25. Fouled out: Ron Jones, Alvin Mayes, Luis Alvarado, MC. PG—MC 37-48, WTC 44-17. 20-38 MC, 23-28 WTC.

Three Rangers make squad

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Three members of the American League Texas Rangers have been named to the Caribbean Series all-star team by baseball writers covering the event.

Third baseman Kurt Bevacqua and pitchers Danny Darwin and Paul Miravella were the Rangers on the team.

Rogers keeps cool; wins rain-delayed Hope

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Bill Rogers will not soon forget the 11th hole at Bermuda Dune in the 1978 Bob Hope Desert Classic. For that matter, neither will Jerry McGee.

Rogers, a 26-year-old Texan, won the $225,000 tournament by two strokes with a 21-under-par 339. But the whole story was told Monday on the 371-yard, par-4 No. 11 on the final day of the rain-delayed five-round classic.

Rogers, a non-winner during his four years on the tour, led McGee by three strokes after 82 holes but hit his drive into the right rough on No. 11. His next shot caught a branch and fell 10 yards short of the elevated green and in front of a sand bunker, setting up what both players agreed was an impossible shot.

At that point Rogers said he was willing to just put the ball on the green and settle for a 2-putt bogey.

"Then I shanked my shift shot on the tour," he said, describing his third shot. "I got a good break because it rolled up against a man's foot and stayed away from the cart path. Now I got myself clear from the sand trap but I'm looking at another difficult chip shot, remembering the one I just hit."

McGee, at the time, was lying 25 feet from the hole, waiting for a try at a birdie.

"After looking at the shank I just performed, Jerry's looking at a 3-stroke swing," said Rogers.

Indeed, McGee said he was thinking: "I've got a 25-foot birdie putt and I'm three back. I know I'm going to be two back and, if I make it, I'll be one back."

"And darned if he doesn't hole it," said McGee. "He pitches it in."

"It was the turning point of the whole tournament. He probably thought at that point there he was no way for him to lose the golf tournament," McGee said.

Rogers later commented: "I'm not going to say I knew I was going to win. It was just like a strange type of feeling that came over me. It was just unbelievable. I was just elated. You can't believe how excited I was."

"And then I just calmed down and it was like starting all over again," he continued. "From then on I just tried to knock the ball on the green and 2 putt. If I made a putt, fine."

Rogers said things just happened for him during the tournament.

Going back home can be so hard

It's been three and a half years now since Doug Dennison packed all of his belongings into the back seat of his beat-up '69 Oldsmobile, said goodbye to family and friends in his hometown of Lancaster, Pa., and headed west in pursuit of a dream — to play professional football.

"I'll never forget that day I left for training camp," he said with a smile. "There must have been at least 30 people there in front of my house to see me off. I was really touched. And just as I was about to drive away, a neighbor of mine came up to the car window and said to me, 'Doug, you just remember one thing. You don't have to prove nothin' to nobody here. We'll always be proud of you whether you make it or whether you don't.'"

Dennison admitted getting a little misty-eyed after that, and if anything, those words back on that June day of 1974 made him more determined than ever to cut it in the National Football League.

As most everyone who has followed the Dallas Cowboys knows, Doug did cut it. He was just another number when he reported to the Cowboy camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif., that first summer as a free agent out of tiny Kutztown State College, but the 6-foot-1, 195-pound running back so impressed Coach Tom Landry and his staff with his enthusiasm, intensity and desire, he made the team.

As most everyone should also know, Dennison saw only limited action his first two professional seasons. But in 1976, his break came. Starter Preston Pearson went down with a leg injury in the exhibition season, and Dennison stepped into a starting role and led the club in rushing that year.

A MONTH after the season ended, Lancaster gave their native son a homecoming to end all homecomings. It was the classic story of the small town boy making good, and the people of this pleasant Pennsylvania Dutch community wanted Doug to know just how they felt about him.

"It was like nothing I had ever dreamed of," Dennison said of the experience. There was a parade through the streets of Lancaster, followed by one dinner after another. There were speaking engagements and television interviews. People were constantly coming forward to offer their congratulations and tell him they always knew he had it in him.

And then there were the children.

PAUL DOMOWITZ

Kids love Doug, and needless to say, the feeling is mutual on his part. As his former college coach Gil Baldwin said, "Doug has the extraordinary ability to communicate with kids like no one I've ever seen in my life. There's a special kind of magnetism between them and Doug." They flocked to him in droves last winter, and Doug never tired of their company. In fact, he relished it.

If we could but freeze time and live a single moment forever, that would have been Doug's moment. Those months in Lancaster were the best of his life and he didn't want them to end.

But they did. And those best of times were followed by the worst of times.

EVEN BEFORE he left for training camp that summer, Dennison knew that his brief bath in glory was slowly coming to an end. He read the papers and listened to the television and radio reports. The Cowboys' signing of Heisman Trophy winning running back Tony Dorsett was the big story in sports. And on top of that, Preston Pearson was healthy again. Almost overnight, Doug Dennison went from the Cowboys' leading rusher to a third stringer.

It's a funny thing really. When you've never actually had something, you don't really miss it. Like money for example. I mean, it would be a helluva lot tougher for a millionaire who has just lost his fortune to adjust than it would be for a ghetto man who's never had any money in the first place.

So it was with Dennison. If he had never been given the opportunity to play so much the season before, maybe what happened this year would have been easier to accept. Maybe Doug could have been happy just being on a professional football team, waiting for his chance. But he HAD been given the opportunity and

Midland High, Lee end cage campaigns tonight

The 1977-78 basketball seasons comes to an end tonight at 8 p.m. for the two local high schools: as the Midland High Bulldogs host Midland Lee's Rebels.

Neither schools can earn a playoff berth tonight, but both schools will end with winning seasons. The Pack carries a 20-11 mark against the Rebels' 21-10 reading.

The District 5-4A title goes on the line tonight in Abilene when Abilene High faces Abilene Cooper. Abilene High can vault into the playoffs with a victory. Cooper can force a district playoff with a win. Abilene won the first half championship and can go to the playoffs with a tie in the second half. Cooper can win the second half title with a victory.

The two Abilene schools set up the Key City showdown Friday when the Eagles defeated Lee and the Cougars downed Midland High to knock both local teams from a possible playoff berth.

Lanier continues to produce

DETROIT (AP) — Bob Lanier wonders what's ahead for the Detroit Pistons.

"What bothers me is that I've probably been playing as well or better than at any time in my career," said Lanier. "And we're struggling to win."

The star center continued his blazing scoring pace Monday night with 31 points and 17 rebounds as Detroit snapped the

New Jersey Nets' three-game National Basketball Association winning streak, 125-115.

The game, the only NBA contest of the night, marked the eighth time in the past 10 games that Lanier has topped the 30-point mark.

"I can't conceive of myself playing any better," Lanier added. "But like the other night, I scored 44 points and we still had to struggle to win the game."

The Nets have won only 12 of their 45 games this season and were trying for a club NBA record for consecutive victories.

But even with Lanier's best efforts, the Pistons had a rough fight on their hands until the fourth quarter. The Pistons remain four games under .500 and well back in the Western Conference playoff race.

New Jersey led by as many as 11 points in the first half, and the Nets were in front 76-75 midway through the third period when a three-point shot by Lanier kept the Pistons in the game.

Lanier had 13 of his points in the third period, and he added four more in the fourth while guard Jim Price connected with four baskets and two free throws.

Price and Gus Gerard each had 20 points and Eric Money 18 for the Pistons, who won their second in a row.

John Williamson had 22 points and Bernard King 19 for the Nets.

"We played poorly in the second half after we had shot very well in the first half," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery. "Foul trouble also hurt a lot. We got good shooting off the bench and played well in the second half."

Hogs play like No. 1, because they are No. 1

By The Associated Press

There was a very good reason why the Arkansas Razorbacks were razor sharp Monday night.

"We wanted to play like we are the No. 1 team in the nation and not slop around," explained Sidney Moncrief, who scored 20 points and led top-ranked Arkansas to an 82-56 rout of Baylor in a Southwest Conference basketball game.

"We have a great deal of pride. We wanted it to look like we are the No. 1 team and that we aren't a fluke," added forward Jim Council.

The top-ranked team to a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, as well as Baylor Coach Jim Haller. "Arkansas is No. 1 and they deserve it," said Haller. "They were as good as we were terrible."

Moncrief scored 15 of his points in the first half, helping the Razorbacks to a 45-32 intermission lead. Poor shooting by Baylor, which made just 32 percent of its shots in the contest, helped Arkansas raise its record to 24-1 and extend its homecourt winning streak to 27 games.

The triumph also boosted the Hogs' conference mark to 12-1, keeping them even with Texas in the sectional race.

Elsewhere, third-ranked Kentucky beat Mississippi 64-52; the 12th-ranked Longhorns kept pace with Arkansas by placing Texas A&M 90-66, and North Carolina-Charlotte upended No. 14 Florida State 88-79.

Ron Brewer added 16 points to the Arkansas effort while Vinnie Johnson led the Bears - 5-8 in the SWC and 11-12 overall - with 16.

Kentucky made 67 percent of its second-half shots to open a 49-32 advantage and cruise to its 18th victory in 20 games. Jack Givens scored 18 points for the Wildcats, who improved their Southeastern Conference record to 10-2 while dropping Mississippi's marks to 9-13 in all games and 4-9 in the conference.

Jim Krivacs scored 24 of his 34 points in the first half as Texas pummeled A&M and improved its record to 20-3. The Longhorns, who hadn't won 20 games in a season since 1963, also got 16 points and 16 assists from John Moore. A&M, which totaled 15 assists, made 27 turnovers while sagging to 10-14 and 3-11.

Chad Kincaid collected 32 points and helped N.C.-Rochester Institute of Technology force 24 turnovers.

In other games, Melvin Davis poured in 32 points - including a 25-foot shot at the buzzer - to give North Texas State a 90-89 victory over Lamar and Cedric Oliver scored 27 points in leading Hamilton College to its 28th consecutive homecourt triumph, a 96-73 decision over the Metro 7 despite falling to 18-4.

Call this one the 'Sphynx Fight'

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — As the champion trains, the only noise comes from the jangling bells in the casino nearby.

"We request that everyone be quiet while the fighters are working," comes an announcement over the loud speakers.

Call it the "Sphynx Fight."

Muhammad Ali, 20 pounds leaner than three weeks ago, dourly goes through his routine, dons his robe and heads for the dressing room — alone.

NOT EVEN Angelo Dundee, the faithful trainer who has been with him from the beginning, goes along. The huge Ali entourage — always fawning at his heels before — stands uncomfortably at ringside and watches.

Not one dares to follow.

Ali the Loudmouth has taken a monastic oath of silence. The place seethes with rumors — an internal war among the Muslim clan; Ali is getting old and tired and doesn't want to play games any more; it's a publicity gimmick by boxing's masters showman.

Take your choice.

Guests of the Las Vegas Hilton, their arms weary from feeding the insatiable appetites of the slot machines, pay $2 at the door and take seats in the Pavilion, site of the next heavyweight title fight Wednesday night.

THEY WATCH quietly. Now they can go home and tell their friends they saw the heavyweight champion up close. They can't say they heard him. When the 24-year-old challenger, Leon Spinks, (not Sphynx), an Olympic gold medalist with only seven pro bouts under his belt, appears on the scene, most of the some 200 curious go back to their onearmed bandits.

There have been a lot of bizarre heavyweight title fights. This one will rank with any of them.

In the bare-knuckle days of John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain, they fought in barns, clear patches in the woods and even on Mississippi River barges to escape the eye of the law. Boxing, like cock-fighting, was illegal. Old-timers still talk of Jack Dempsey's fight with Tommy Gibbons in Shelby, Mont., when Dempsey's manager was accused of blowing town with all the miners' loot.

Ali has been involved in some corners himself — the second fight with Sonny Liston in a high school gym in Lewiston, Maine, where all spectators were frisked at the door because of death threats; the unbelievable bout with George Foreman at 4 a.m. in Zaire, heart of the Congo, a near-hurricane sweeping in after the fight was over, and the early morning slugfests in Manila and the cauldron of Kuala Lumpur.

THIS ONE is just the opposite. Instead of the slums and bamboo huts of

The Philippines and Africa, this one is wall-to-wall carpeting, glistening chandeliers and an audience of heavy rollers paying between $50 and $200 a seat.

The Hilton Pavilion, just off the lobby, seats about 5,400. There are still some unsold seats. Don't grieve for Ali. He gets $3.7 million. Spinks is guaranteed $300,000.

The fight could set a record for dollars per minute. Spinks' chances are rated "slim to none."

Ali's silence has baffled some of his closest friends.

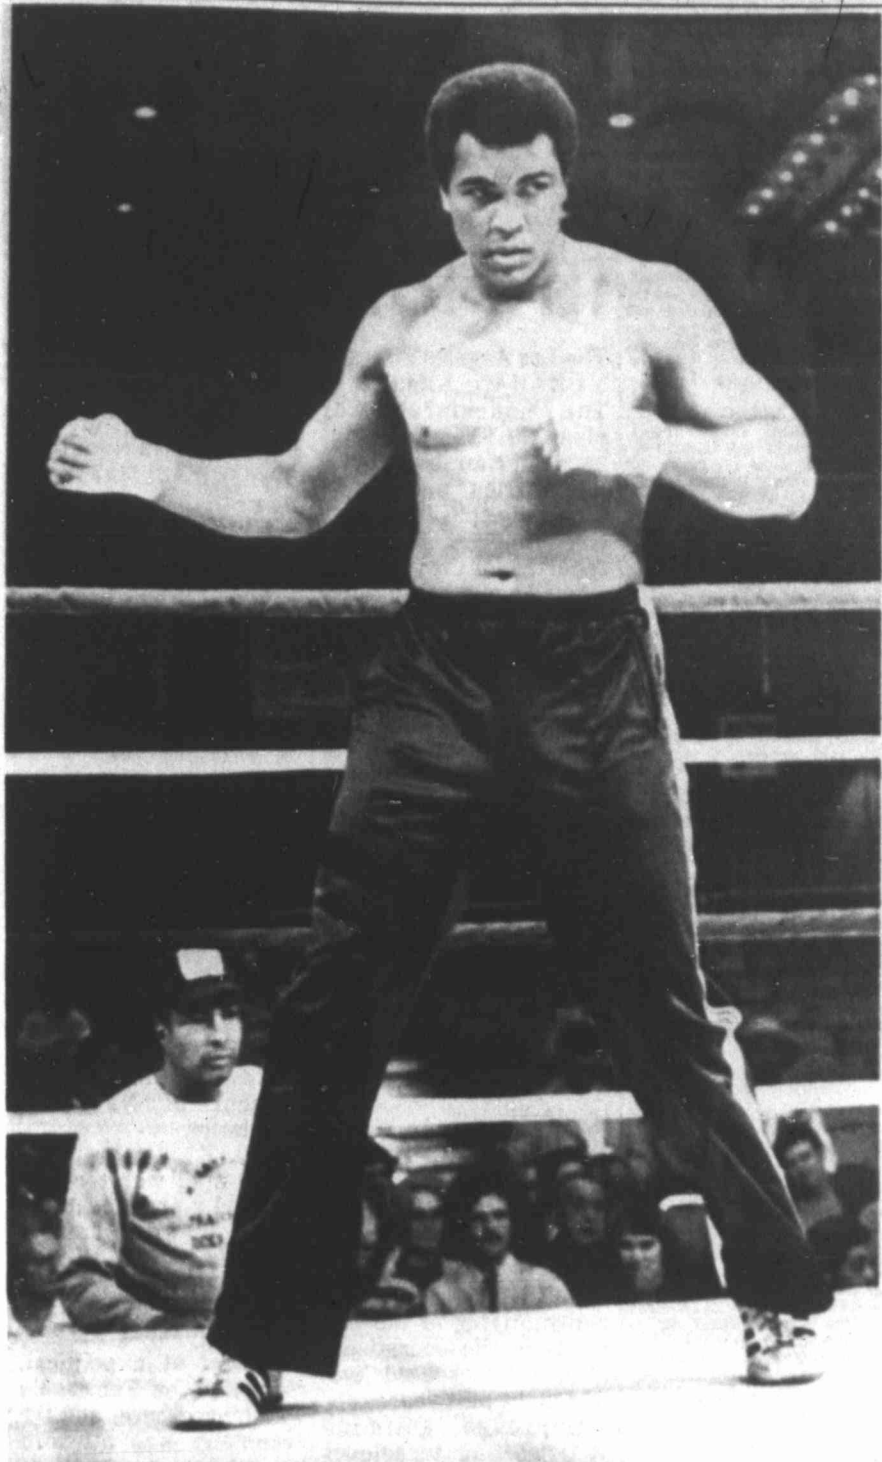

"He's serious," says Dundee. "I remember back in 1963 when he fought Doug Jones in the Garden. I taped his mouth at the weigh-in."

THE BESPECTACLED, low-key trainer from Miami Beach is enjoying his new role as Ali's alter ego.

"Nobody ever noticed me before — all they wanted to do was listen to Ali," Dundee said. "Now I'm constantly surrounded by people who want to interview me and put me on television. It's great."

A close associate of the champion was asked about the rumors of a split in his Muslim camp.

"Are you kidding?" he replied. "Everybody's scared to death of Ali. He's boss. Look at him. He whispers something and everybody jumps."

Muhammad Ali, for one reason or another, has decided mum's the word for Wednesday's fight with challenger Leon Spinks. Since early December, the heavyweight champion of the world, known for his bark as well as his bite, has played it silent, hardly speaking to the public or the press. (AP Laserphoto)

WEST TEXAS HUNTING AND FISHING

Texas deer hunting just can't be beat

By JON CHASE

Texas has the largest whitetail deer population in the United States. California is number two on the list, and if one year's deer harvest from Texas was taken from California, there wouldn't be a buck, doe or fawn left in the entire state. The point is that Texans and out of state hunters kill more deer every year than there are deer in any other single state.

I have had out of state hunters tell me that Texas has quantity but not quality when it comes to deer hunting. These characters are invariably those who have hunted the overpopulated Hill Country and have gone home with a 55-pound field dressed buck with antlers that looked like the hands and outstretched fingers of some poor soul who recently died of starvation.

THE HILL Country bucks just don't grow massive racks or achieve the body weight that goes with trophy bucks that end up in the Boone and Crockett (the national record for trophy game animals) listings.

There have been notable exceptions, but as a general rule, the trophy bucks don't come out of the Hill Country.

This area probably receives the most intense hunting pressure of any in the state, and if huge racks were to be had, they would eventually show up in the meat locker. If you want to kill a deer, then the Hill Country is your best bet since the deer population is large.

THE FACTS prove that Texas hunters have quality along with quantity. The huge racks and large bodies are found on South Texas whitetails.

Field dressed 200 pounders are not unheard of and right around this weight usually wins The San Antonio Light's annual big deer contest. The deer of 200 pounds or better are few and far between, but 140 to 190 pounders are commonplace.

New York signs Vitas

NEW YORK (AP) — New Yorker Vitas Gerulaitis, the colorful Italian Open champion, signed a one-year contract to play with the New York Apples of World Team Tennis, it was announced today.

In a complicated deal, the Apples got Gerulaitis from the Golden Gators in return for longtime doubles partner Sandy Mayer.

Gerulaitis, 23, played for Indiana last season, but his rights had been dealt from Indiana to Los Angeles to the Gators during the off-season.

Mayer has had more success the team tennis circuit, gaining the league's most valuable player award in 1977. But Sol Berg, owner of the Apples, hopes that Gerulaitis' flamboyant off-the-court image will attract fans at Madison Square Garden where the Apples will play their 22 home games.

The real story comes from the pages of Boone and Crockett. There are more listings of trophy racks from single South Texas counties than can be found listed for most states. Dimmit and Duval are just two of the South Texas counties that have placed many trophy racks in Boone and Crockett.

SOUTH TEXAS is the best bet if you want a trophy, and the Hill Country is a more likely area if you want to make sure you put a deer in your freezer.

There are no guarantees, but the odds are in your favor if you hunt one of these two areas, depending on your particular wants.

The hunter success ratio in Texas is incredible and not believed by hunters from more populous states. Texas consistently comes up with a 75 to 90 per cent ratio of numbers of hunters versus number of deer killed.

If ten hunters go on a deer hunt, ideally nine hunters have a good chance of killing a deer. Of course, a lot of times it ends up that three hunters kill three deer each and seven hunters stay in the cabin and play cards and drink firewater.

TO EACH his own, and the success ratio is still 90 per cent. In a situation like this, three generous hunters and a poker player, who hates venison, is the ideal combination.

The success ratio in Texas is a far cry from that of other states. In Michigan for instance, a 10 per cent ratio is considered a good year and there are a lot more hunters in the woods than deer.

Michigan is an excellent state in which to get shot by a drunk auto worker from Detroit if you happen to stumble upon public hunting land in certain areas.

A lot of folks up there take what they call "sound shots." This is a unique form of hunting that calls for shooting towards unusual sounds (kind of like jungle warfare), and then proceed to the sound to see if you hit it.

IF YOU killed a hunter instead of a deer, you say, "OOPS" or something to that effect. At any rate, National and State lands are a dangerous place to hunt in Michigan, or in any other heavily populated state.

Fortunately or unfortunately, depending on the thickness of your wallet or on whom you know, Texas has very little public land available for hunting.

This puts a real financial burden on the working man, who must pay for a deer lease when he doesn't know any landowners that will allow him to hunt for free.

I CAN see the inequity in this situation, and this is the only area where I can find fault with out present deer hunting situation in Texas. It is debatable whether public hunting is a blessing or a curse.

The whole point, even if deer season is a long way off, is to brag on what I think is the best deer hunting in the United States.

In my opinion, Texas is a hands down winner in all categories, and I think we Texas deer hunters are fortunate folks.

Will Lou Holtz follow Woody?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Woody Hayes, Ohio State's football coach of 28 seasons, turned 65 today.

Although Hayes indicates he will keep right on coaching until he reaches the university's mandatory retirement age of 70, reports have been circulating about his successor.

One of the frontrunners must be Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz, who served as Hayes' defensive backfield coach in 1969. Holtz was asked about the possibility he is the No. 1 choice to replace Hayes.

"I have two reactions," replied Holtz, in town to receive the Columbus Touchdown Club's College Football Coach of the Year award.

"One," he said, "I've never worried about another job. I'm just worried about keeping the one I have."

"Two, my wife already has orders that when I die she is to have Coach Hayes as one of my pallbearers — unless it's on football Saturday and then I know he'll be coaching and won't come."

HOLTZ FOUNDLY remembers the one season he spent helping Hayes with the Big Ten power.

"Everything that happened to us was real good," he said. "Our youngest daughter was born there. We did not lose a football game. We went to the Rose Bowl and won the national championship."

"And we didn't have any snow."

When Hayes does retire, his recommendation is expected to carry considerable weight. He knows Holtz very well.

HUGH HINDMAN, Ohio State's athletic director, will head a search committee. He will need no job prospectus from Holtz. Hindman was the Buckeyes' offensive line coach at the time Holtz was on the same staff.

Footballers arraigned

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Two starting defensive players for the Oklahoma State football team were to be arraigned this afternoon on burglary charges, District Attorney Charles Headrick said.

Sophomores John Coker of Miami and Mike Robinson of Glenview, Ohio, were accused by a woman here of taking a $600 stereo set from her apartment early Sunday.

Police said OSU student Cynthia Z. Aldridge noticed an open window when she came home Sunday about 1:15 a.m. She looked out the window and saw two men loading the stereo into the trunk of a car, police said.

Officers said they later found the suspects transferring the stereo to another car.

Gottfried wins opener

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Defending champion Brian Gottfried scored a one-sided first round victory, and Manuel Orantes, Roscoe Tanner and Jaime Fillol also advanced in Monday's matches of the $225,000 Tennis Games at Mission Hills Country Club.

Gottfried defeated Jim Osborne 6-2, 6-3. Spain's Orantes ousted Brian Fairlie, New Zealand 7-6, 6-2. Tanner defeated Ted Williams 6-1, 6-2, and Chile's Fillol defeated Byron Bertram, South Africa, 6-4, 6-2.

Atlanta peasants shun Braves

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate Baseball is a typical monarchical structure, like Louis XVI's France or Czar Nicholas' Russia, gaudy and glittering at the top, rotting with poverty and unrest at the bottom.

You go to Dodger Stadium or Yankee Stadium or Riverfront and it's Versailles at the height of the empire, or the Winter Palace at St. Petersburg. Flags fly, bands play and it's all uniforms and evening gowns. You go to Atlanta and the peasants are in revolt.

Perhaps you noted in the public prints the other day that Ted Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves, chided the populace for not coming out and supporting his product. This is a first in American industry. Henry Ford never blamed the public for not liking the Edsel. He put the blame where it belonged: on his engineers and designers. Darryl Zanuck never blamed moviegoers because "Wilson" flopped. He blamed Wilson.

YOU MIGHT have a sacred duty to shoulder arms for your country or to give to the Red Cross. But nobody has the sacred duty to go out and watch the Atlanta Braves miff ground balls.

The Braves may be a doomed franchise anyway. They are three-time losers and, under the penal code, maybe they should be locked up forever. You see, the Braves started the all-purpose franchise shifting back in 1953. Bill Veck, the only man who really understands baseball the way Barnum understood suckers, had been lobbying to move the weakest franchise in the history of all baseball — the St. Louis Browns.

The baseball moguls threw their hands in the air in horror. They sternly told this ruffian that baseball geography was as sacrosanct as the Vatican. Nobody moved franchises. Why, that would be trifling with the loyalties and affections of the fans!

A YEAR or so later, the owner of the Boston Braves, Lou Perini, a man considerably richer than Bill Veck, wanted to move the Braves to Milwaukee, one of the territories Veck initially coveted.

This was different. Perini was no Veck. Perini was a member of The Club. Perini could do whatever he wanted with his team. Because, you see, he had the money to hire the lawyers if you tried to stop him.

Once Perini broke the rigid geometry of big-league baseball, it was like the spring thaw in the Klondike. Franchises began swirling around like freed logjams. Perini was wildly successful in little old Milwaukee. So, Connie Mack's Athletics moved from Philadelphia to little old Kansas City. The Browns, minus the bad boy, Veck, moved to Baltimore. Then, the blockbuster move: Brooklyn to Los Angeles, the Giants to San Francisco. Perini was directly responsible. Brooklyn Owner Walter O'Malley served notice on the city fathers of Brooklyn and the state fathers of New York that there was no way he could compete with Perini's Milwaukee Braves unless they helped him build a new ballpark in a better location. The politicians told him to take a hike. He did. All the way to California. He took the Giants with him.

WHEN THE music stopped, baseball thought it was set forever. But, as any abandoned housewife can tell you, wanderlust is addictive. Every time you hear a train whistle, you want to disappear. Particularly when things are going bad. The Giants narrowly missed becoming the third team to make a second move last year when they wanted to move to Toronto — at least. This year, Oakland bid to become the first team to make a third move — and win the all-time desertion award — when it tried to get down the fire escape without paying the bill. The bus was double-parked at the door when the Oakland shams caught them.

So, the A's are still in Oakland under shotgun-wedding conditions, still casting calf's eyes at Denver. The Giants are still in San Francisco trying to prove you can play baseball in weather that would make destroyers run to port. The Braves are still in Baltimore, but the town fathers have the key and are steaming open the mail.

PRO FOOTBALL can subsist at the small-town level because it needs to fill the ballpark only once a week seven times a year. Baseball needs people in the seats 81 times a year. It needs a town of 1 to 2 million with not much else to do.

This is why the lights are on in all the top floors of baseball, why the balloons are swaying and the lanterns winking and the music playing in the penthouse. Underneath are all the broken windows, the dirty light bulbs hanging from the ceiling, the cracks in the plaster and the water in the cellar. The trouble is, if this collapses, the top floors go with it. And the grand old game can't say "Let 'em eat cake," either. Or the ultimate franchise shift will be to the guillotine.

SHERIFF'S SALE
THE STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF MIDLAND

WHEREAS, on the 14th day of February, 1978, in Cause No. 32,384, in the District Court of Midland County, Texas, wherein Midland Independent School District, City of Midland, Texas, the State of Texas and the County of Midland, Texas were Plaintiffs, Impleaded Party Defendants, and Intervenor, and recovered judgment against Charles J. Atchison, Defendant, for taxes, penalty, interest, and cost against the hereinafter described property:

WHEREAS, on the 14th day of February, 1978, by virtue of said judgment and the mandates thereof, the Clerk of the above mentioned District Court of said county did cause to be issued an Order of Sale commanding me as Sheriff of said county to seize, levy upon, and sell in the manner and form as required by law, the hereinafter described property:

WHEREAS, by virtue of said judgment and said Order of Sale and the mandates thereof, I did on the 14th day of Feb. 1978, seize and levy upon the following described property, situated in Midland County, Texas, to-wit:

Lot 1, Block 5, Cowden Addition, an addition to the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas as shown by deed from Leo Dall Atchison recorded in Vol. 482, Page 388 of the Deed Records of Midland County, Texas as dated 5-5-67.

Lot 2, Block 5, Cowden Addition, an addition to the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas as shown by deed from Leo Dall Atchison recorded in Vol. 482, Page 388 of the Deed Records of Midland County, Texas as dated 5-5-67.

And I will, on the first Tuesday in the month of March, 1978, the same being the 7th day of said month, at 2 p.m. at the South entrance to the Midland City Courthouse to the highest registered bidder for cash, provided, however, that none of said property shall be sold to the owner of said property directly or indirectly or to anyone having an interest therein or to any party other than a taxing unit which is a party to this suit for less than the amount of the adjudged value of said property or the aggregate amount of judgments against said property in said suit, whichever is lower, subject also to the right of the Defendant to redeem same in the time and manner provided by law and subject also to the right of the defendant to have said property divided and sold in less divisions than the whole.

Said sale is to be made by me to satisfy the judgment rendered in the above styled and numbered cause, together with interest, penalties, and cost of suit, and the proceeds of said sale are to be applied to the satisfaction thereof, and the remainder, if any, to be applied as the law directs.
