Fast start for crops

"The crop look good to me," points out Richie Crow, county Extension agent-ag, adding, "I think we're off to a good start."

Crow told The Hesperian editor during a Friday interview that virtually all areas of the county have received significant rainfall. "Some places got better than three inches, and almost everybody had one to two inches from both rains."

The county agent notes that "much dryland (cotton) was planted between the two rains. They (producers) hit it about right."

Some cotton which stood in water "turned a little yellow," but Crow believes the young plants will be "okay if the dry weather holds."

More than one producer remarked after recent rains that "I'm ready for some sunshine."

MOST COTTON PLANTED

"I'm going to say that 90 to 95 percent of our cotton has been planted," Crow said Friday. He points out that some producers are "finishing up planting milo, particularly hybrid." He adds that "some Haygrazer, beans and sunflowers probably haven't been planted yet."

The county agent believes that moisture "came a little later this year," although he notes that the traditional Old Settlers rain was "right on schedule."

Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., shows the enrolled base cotton acres in Floyd County stand at 215,479. PCG places 1988 planting intentions for the commodity at 185,953 acres. (See article on farm page.)

CORN 'BEGINNING TO GROW'

After a slow start, corn is "beginning to come out of it," Crow believes. He blames cool temperatures for the slow beginning.

There is "light pressure" at present from thrip buildup.

"As we get closer to wheat harvest, it will probably get worse," the ag agent believes. Wheat is the host plant for thrip, although the insects move to cotton following wheat harvest.

Crow has heard of some Russian wheat aphids in milo, although this situation apparently is not widespread at this time.

SHORT WHEAT CROP

A combination of lack of winter and spring moisture and Russian wheat aphid damage has caused the wheat crop to be "short."

Crow says the wheat average across the county—a combination of irrigated and dryland—is "around 20 bushels." This year, "we're probably looking at 10-12 bushels (per acre average)," the county agent says.

He said Friday that "I'm guessing" wheat harvest will get underway "in about two weeks." Harvesting operations have started in the Munday area.

From a moisture standpoint, Floyd County has been more fortunate than some neighboring counties. Most areas in Crosby, Dickens and Garza counties, for example, need additional rainfall. Some producers in those areas say that moisture for getting good stands is "questionable."

Methodist pastor to move here next week

The Rev. William H. Wright and his wife, Peggy, plan to move early next week to Floydada, where he begins his tenure as pastor of First United Methodist Church.

Pastor of First United Methodist Church in Childress the past seven years, the Rev. Wright succeeds the Rev. Earl N. Blair as local pastor. The Rev. Blair is the new superintendent of the Plainview District after having pastored the local church for five years.

Although the changes have been known for a number of weeks, appointments were formerly announced Tuesday at the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church in Abilene.

A total of 47 new appointments were made in the conference, which includes United Methodist Churches in seven districts: Abilene, Amarillo, Big Spring, Lubbock, Panola, Plainview and Seymour.

The Rev. E. Bruce Parks, who preceded the Rev. Earl Blair as Plainview District superintendent for six years, was appointed to the Spur/Dickens church.

The Rev. Robert Kirk has been returned as pastor of FUMC in Lockney. Changes involving area churches include:

Dr. Andrew G. McCulley ends 34-year local dental practice

The Floydada dental practice of Dr. Andrew G. McCulley, spanning 34 years, has reached its conclusion. He practiced three years before moving to Floydada.

"Jane and I, and our new son, David, came to Floydada to make our home and join in the dental practice of Dr. C.M. Thacker in 1954," Dr. McCulley recalls. "And although we experienced the usual struggles of a young man getting his career underway, we received the support and encouragement we needed. So time, and the people of this area, have made the ensuing years good."

Ironically, his entire Floydada practice has been at 428 West California, "a building which Dr. Thacker had built." Another irony is that longtime friend Dr. Charles C. Craig and Dr. McCulley have been associates during most of their respective careers.

The two became acquainted "in dental school," where Dr. McCulley graduated a year prior to his friend. Dr. McCulley invited Dr.

Craig to join him at the Dental Clinic of the hospital in Amherst. They worked together "about a year" before Dr. McCulley entered private practice in Floydada. The following year he was joined here by Dr. Craig.

Andrew McCulley did his pre-dental work at the University of Oklahoma and Oklahoma Baptist University before attending and being graduated with honors from Baylor Dental College. Awards were given outstanding students in two categories, and Dr. McCul-

Initial load of wheat cut Battay Farms harvests first

Battay Farms has apparently produced the first load of '88 Floyd County wheat.

The 18,110 pound load reached the D&P Grain Co., Inc., Lakeview elevator about 7 p.m. Saturday. Moisture content was 13.4 percent and the wheat had a 53 pound test weight, according to Roger Poage.

"This field is better than we expected," Poage told The Hesperian. The yield apparently will be approximately 15 bushels per acre. The field is located south of the elevator where it was delivered.

It was dryland.

Battay Farms will receive a bonus from D&P Grain Co., Inc., for producing the initial load of wheat.

"LIGHT CROP" EXPECTED

Due to a lack of moisture and to insect damage, this year's crop is expected to be below average, according to County Extension Agent Richie Crow.

Babe Jones harvested a load of wheat Sunday afternoon, and it was delivered about 9:30 a.m. Monday to the Producers Cooperative Elevator facility in Floydada.

Produced dryland in the southeast part of the county, Jones' load weighed 24,160 pounds. The moisture content was 13.6 percent.

Next distribution of commodities slated sometime in August

"Caprock Community Action regrets to announce that we will be distributing commodities once every three months," The Hesperian was informed in a phone conversation. "Our next commodity distribution will be in August," a spokesperson says, "but the date has not been set."

The agency was informed last week by the state that commodity supplies are limited.

"CCA will attempt to keep the public informed when and if additional commodities become available," the spokesperson says.

Composition computers now in use

Composition of both The Hesperian and The Beacon for this issue is being handled "99 percent" by recently-installed computers.

The Macintosh desktop publishing system, which includes Macintosh computers and keyboards and an Apple LaserWriter IINT, are in operation. Most headlines and some advertisements have been designed in recent issues from the new system but the news content has been utilized on a very limited basis until this week.

"We believe our readers will enjoy the larger type we will be using," says Publisher Alice Gilroy.

"Computerization is the most modern form of newspaper composition," Mrs.

Gilroy adds. "Our computers have a much greater capability than our present system and, we believe, will make for neater newspapers, especially when our staff becomes fully accustomed to them. We are obviously still learning the capabilities of the equipment and familiarizing ourselves with the machines."

The publisher explains that the desktop publishing system should provide somewhat less expensive composition due to the fact that it does not require photoprocessing paper and developing chemicals is required by the former system.

Skunk found not rabid More distemper cases confirmed

The report on a skunk—which officials believed could have been rabid—was found to be "negative," according to City Manager Gary Brown, who received the report Friday.

"This is a relief for all the citizens of our community," Brown says.

An individual residing in the 400 block of East Grover killed the young skunk about 3 p.m. last Tuesday after the animal was observed "staggering and attempted to attack the property owner."

MORE DISTEMPER CASES

Brown says "We've had two more confirmed cases of distemper in dogs" since last Thursday. This makes a total of four distemper cases which have been confirmed recently in Floydada.

Dr. Paul Glasson of Lockney informed the city manager that distemper is transmitted in virus form. He believes that the illness could strike a number of other animals unless they are immunized.

Brown advises pet owners to have their dogs and cats vaccinated against distemper.

WHAT A MESS!—Jody Copp, 11, of Lazbuddie makes a muddy slide which would do a major league baseball player proud sliding into home plate. The youngster was no muddier than his cousins, Dusty Duke, 7, and Randi Duke, 5. The youngsters didn't have a clean stitch of clothing after playing last week in the mud puddles formed after rains. The site was behind the residence of the Randy Duke family at 721 West Ollie. See related photo on page three. Incidentally, The Hesperian editor was not a lot cleaner than the youngsters after the photography session.

Attracting new payrolls

Senator Gramm interviewed Saturday during county visit

"Almost every kind of business you can imagine" have been successfully started in Texas, Sen Phil Gramm told the Hesperian-Beacon editor during a Saturday afternoon interview.

The senator said two common denominators are essential for successful business, small or large.

"They are committed to quality, and they make workers feel a part of the company, listening to and following their ideas," Gramm said of successful businesses.

He has made a series of industrial visits throughout the state. Two of his stops on the South Plains have been for a glass-pack muffler company opening in Muleshoe and a tour of The Tye Co. in Lockney.

Sen Gramm says until "about 10 years ago" Texans took industrial development "very lightly." Now it is serious business for cities and towns alike to seek added payrolls. Various incentives have been offered in attempts to lure industry.

This is "broadening the state's economic base," the senator says.

However, he explains that "We (Texans) are in competition with every worker in the world. We must do it better...and we are doing it better."

HOME GROWN INDUSTRIES

He pointed out that "home-grown business, such as The Tye Co., are strengthening their home communities and, frequently, neighboring towns. He emphasizes that Tye and many other manufacturing firms are "coming back" following a recession which gripped the state.

The state's Department of Commerce is making a concerted effort to "help small towns put together" assessments of the feasibility of various commercial ventures within their communities. "It is obvious what small towns can do," he added.

The state presently is working with universities on industrial development in offering assistance to small towns. This helps point communities "where they should be looking."

Asked about discussions that processing facilities for agricultural products should be prime opportunities for farming communities, Sen. Gramm responded that with new technology, business can be located anywhere but it would be advantageous to be located near raw materials.

DESIRABLE ATMOSPHERE

One important ingredient for industrial development, he believes, is to "create an environment where people want to live."

Sen. Gramm also emphasized that "small towns have to go out and put their advantages in front of investors and businesses" in order to create additional payrolls.

He says that the growing theory of having several small towns bind together and "pool their resources seems to be successful." This practice, however, is not yet commonplace.

Again alluding to The Tye Co., the senator says such facilities obviously "create stability in small towns."

The state must "broaden its (economic) base" and when "oil comes back" — which the senator believes will happen — Texas' economy will be "stronger than ever."

Reiterating that "other parts of the country" sought industrial development long before Texas, Sen. Gramm reemphasizes that "the state is getting its program underway and I believe that's going to help" cities and towns who are searching for industrial growth.

On another vein, Sen. Gramm said he visited "probably 50 different cities" last week. "I enjoy coming back and being with and listening to the people I work for."

However, he said Saturday, when he returned to his Washington office Monday morning, he would be faced with "mounds of paperwork."

While admitting that he has no magic formula for a town or city seeking additional payrolls, the senator does not believe the task is impossible for those towns which create an environment whereby people choose to live there, get their message in front of potential investors and businesses and choose industries which could feasibly operate within their areas.

RARE VISIT

Approximately 40 Floyd County residents took advantage of a rare visit by a U.S. senator on Saturday to talk with Sen. Gramm at The Tye Co. in Lockney.

Both the senator and John Tye, president of The Tye Co., addressed the group briefly prior to a tour of the plant and a reception.

Sen Gramm was met at the Floydada Airport and accompanied to Lockney by County Judge Bill Hardin, Floydada Economic Development Corporation President Bill Hale, Mayor Parnell Powell of Floydada and Mayor Dan Smith of Lockney. He was returned to the local airport following the tour of the plant.

(Please turn to The Beacon front page for an article concerning Sen. Gramm's visit to The Tye Co.)

INTERESTING—Sen. Phil Gramm is intrigued by explanation of The Tye Co.'s manufacturing process, being outlined by John Tye (left), president of the firm.

Lake report

Glenn Maddox, Rod Haseloff and Curgis Lowe of Amarillo reeled in a 2 pound small mouth bass and nine black bass on May 31. The largest of the black bass weighed in at 2 1/2 pounds. The trio were using black charrtrouse worms and purple charrtrouse worms in the main part of the lake.

Richard Kimbrough of Tulia got the month of June off to a big beginning catching a 7 1/4 pound stripper on a charrtrouse jig near the dam.

Glenn Maddox repeated his earlier feat with a 2 1/2 pound large mouth bass using a top water chugger on June 2. The Amarillo man's catch was made on the main part of the lake.

Reports on June 4 included a 3 pound 10 ounce yellow cat on minnows up Tule Creek by Leo Criddle of Canyon. Dale Newton of Plainview landed a 3 1/2 pound large mouth bass on black lizard with yellow spots. He was angling up Tule Creek.

Steve Maddox of Amarillo used spinner bait to net a 2 pound black bass up the first cove at Mackenzie on June 5. Tule Creek yielded a 2 1/4 pound large mouth bass to Robert Buentello of Tulia. Buentello was using crank bait.

Lake spokesman stated, "We are still seeing a lot of Crappie reported up the creeks and fish averaging 1 1/2 to 2 pounds are being caught using minnows, jigs and rattle traps."

The water temperature on June 6 stood at 69 degrees with a lake depth of 108.2 feet at the dam.

ley was recipient of the special award in children's dentistry.

BEGINS PRACTICE

He began his dental career with a practice in Dallas in 1951. He then practiced two years at Amherst before moving with his wife and their young son to Floydada in 1954. He came here at the invitation of Dr. Thacker, who was retiring.

Unknown to a majority of his patients, Dr. McCulley's work at the clinic continued long hours after his patients and staff had departed each day. "He did much of his own lab work at night," his wife remembers.

The McCulley family grew to five members with the births in Floydada of two daughters, Nan and Laura.

Despite his active practice and the time it required, Dr. McCulley found time for his family, his church and his community. He has been a member of Floydada Rotary Club "almost since he came here."

He served for several years as a member of the Caprock Hospital District board of directors. His service came during the time in which physicians' building was erected.

CHURCH TEACHER

At First Baptist Church, Dr. McCulley was a teacher and served as a member of the Building Committee when the new sanctuary was erected.

Two of Dr. Andrew and Jane McCulley's three offspring reside in Lubbock and the other lives in Missouri.

Son David is a systems engineer for IBM in Lubbock. He and his wife are parents of two sons.

Nan McCulley Shirley, who resides in Lubbock with her husband and son, is an obstetrics nurse at Lubbock General Hospital. She is a registered nurse.

The other daughter, Laura McCulley Chittenden, has followed in her mother's footsteps as office manager for a dental office in Springfield, Mo. She and her husband have one daughter.

During the past 10 years, Dr. McCulley has been assisted as office manager by his wife, Jane.

"About August 1, my successor, Dr. Randall Griffin, will arrive in Floydada and commence his practice," Dr. McCulley says.

He adds: "I want to conclude my dental practice by saying a special 'Thank-You' to all those people who have honored me by letting me help them with their dental needs through these many years."

Burglary of habitation case reported to police

Burglary of a habitation in the 200 block of East Jeffie was reported to the police department about 11 a.m. Thursday.

A brown vinyl handmade woman's purse containing checks, credit cards and money was reported taken.

Police Chief James Hale says that "any tips or information" to police in the matter would be appreciated.

A Hispanic male, who frequents Ince Oil Co. #15 at 401 South Second, reportedly walked away with $10 last week.

An attendant told police that the man entered the store and asked her to change a $10 bill for $5 and five $1 bills.

The suspect then asked for cigarettes, placed the $10 bill (which he should have given the attendant for the change) into his pocket and pushed the $1 bills to her. The clerk asked for the $10 bill, but the man "just turned and left."

A description of the vehicle driven by the man and a license number were given to police. The car was a '79 Ford two-door sedan, registered to a Lamesa individual.

No traffic accidents were reported to police during the week.

Letters to the Editor

We live in a thirty year old wood frame house eight miles from the nearest fire department. In the past three years our insurance premium has increased from $350.00 a year to $850.00, with steadily reduced coverage.

We have never filed a claim in the eighteen years we have lived here, but are down to only one company that will offer us any insurance. If this company decides not to renew our policy next year, the Federal Land Bank will probably demand the balance due on our loan on the house.

I have written the chairman of the State Board of Insurance, the chairman of the House Committee on Insurance and my state senator for help in reversing the trend for rural insurance.

I have suggested to them that a rural home owner's insurance pool be established similar to the pools for high risk automobile drivers or workmen's compensation coverage. If a policy holder does not file any claims for some period of time — say five years — the premiums could be reduced as an incentive not to abuse insurance coverage.

With the insurance industries' position on rural coverage, I would not build a new home in a rural area and will advise anyone else not to. They may insure a new home now, but they are presently free to drop coverage whenever they think the risk is too great.

I urge all rural residents to write Austin in support of the insurance pool or suggest your own ideas to improve the rural insurance dilemma. Gentlemen:

My cousin A.B. Watkins sent me part of the May 26th issue of The Floyd County Hesperian featuring an article about my grandfather, Arthur B. Duncan, who was inducted into the Floyd County Hall of Fame. I would very much like to see the rest of the paper, dated the 26th of May. I am therefore sending a dollar bill with the request for a copy of this entire issue, with the hope that all things considered this will cover the cost of mailing and so on. At your convenience will you please comply with this request.

At some time in the foreseeable future I am hoping to come back "home" to Floydada and see if there is anything left there I knew a long time ago! On that occasion I hope to come by your office and make your personal acquaintance! Many thanks for all considerations!

Editor,

Would you please run this note of appreciation in your paper.

To everyone who made the South Plains School reception possible:

Thank you for your work and planning that made Sunday, May 29, 1988 special in the lives of many.

No matter where we go or what our station in life, we will always cherish the memories of our childhood. And I feel sure, much of our success comes from the great start we got at South Plains.

Thanks so much and let's do it again in 1993.

To the Editor:

Most insurance companies consider any place over twenty years old, and over five miles from a fire department, too great a risk to insure.

Three arrests during week

A "real quiet" week was experienced as only three arrests were made by county law agencies, two of which came in Motley County.

A 63-year-old anglo male was arrested in Motley County for DWI.

The same day, also in Motley County, a 53-year-old anglo male was charged with DWI and failure to yield one-half of the roadway.

On May 31, a 21-year-old Hispanic male was charged with revocation of probation.

Have a good week!

State senate candidate Bobby Albert discusses issues during Floydada visit

Bobby Albert of Wichita Falls, Republican candidate for the Texas State Senate from the 30th Senatorial District, bills himself as "a private citizen" seeking to serve in public office rather than being "a professional politician."

Albert told The Hesperian during a Floydada visit last Wednesday that the race is a "clear cut decision between the liberal (Democratic candidate Steve) Carriker and the conservative, myself."

"You want a senator who will fight reckless increases in state spending, a state income tax, crime and drugs," Albert says of his candidacy. "You want a senator who will stand up for the preservation of traditional family values."

During an address announcing his candidacy, the Wichita Falls businessman stated: "During last year's legislative session, State Representative Carriker voted for every increase in spending, for every increase in taxes and against every attempt to cut the budget. If Steve Carriker had his way, Texans would be paying $9 billion more in taxes—or about $1,500 for every family in the 30th District."

"It's clear to me that the Steve Carriker tax and spend way is not the North Texas way—and we should ask ourselves if he hasn't fought for our values in the House, how can we count on him to fight for them in the Senate?"

Concerning his candidacy, Albert says, "I feel like this is something I'm supposed to be doing."

Why is he running, he has been asked. His answer is: "Two reasons: '10 and 7.' This is in reference to his two sons, ages 10 and 7. "I am interested in their futures in Texas," concerning education, drugs, pride and "traditional family values."

Albert feels that he knows many persons throughout the 30th District because, "Recently, I've driven over 30,000 miles—visiting 22 of our district's 30 counties as the world's youngest Rotary (International) district governor. I've worked closely with civic and business leaders, Republicans and Democrats, in each of these counties to help them improve the quality of life in their own communities." He is immediate past president of Rotary International District 579.

The Wichita Falls man claims to be "really enjoying campaigning" for one of the same reasons he enjoyed his service as a Rotary district government: "The opportunity to meet people."

Albert foresees education as the number one issue before the next legislature. District Judge Clark of Travis County "wants absolute equality" between the poorest and richest public school districts in the state. Albert believes the legislature should decide this issue which "covers money, taxes and local control." He foresees a possibility of this leading to a situation whereby local school boards could be eliminated.

Other important issues Albert expects to come before the next legislative session are: 2. budget, 3. workmen's compensation reform and 4. criminal justice reform.

Born and reared in Wichita Falls, both Albert and his wife are graduates of Midwestern State University. He was graduated from MSU at the age of 20.

Within a month of his graduation, his father succumbed to a heart attack. This left the 20-year-old and his mother to operate the family business, founded in 1938. This is now a successful business, or actually three different businesses: moving and storage, interior decorating and furniture rental.

The senatorial candidate became active in politics while a high school student, "helping in a state representative race." He has since worked in campaigns of Sen. John Tower and Gov. Bill Clements and was a co-chairman in Sen. Phil Gramm's campaign.

Floyd County is the western boundary of the district.

Hospital Happenings

Many community folks attended the appreciation coffee given for Aldine Williams and Claude Weathersbee. Plaques were presented to each of these men for recognition of the many hours of service.

Work is almost completed on the nurses' station and lounge area. The old counter has been replaced, the table has a new top, wallpaper is up, and the painting has been done. The new chart rack and chairs are in place. The color theme is mauve and navy blue. "The nurses spent a lot of time and effort doing this work themselves. Bill Tye and Alan Roy spent many hours building counters and putting new formica on the cabinets and table. We appreciate all their effort. This project would not have been possible if we would have had to pay for all of the labor which was donated. Those who contributed to this project were: Marge and Mac McElyea, Rena and Cecil Baxter, the Hospital Auxiliary, the Grace Sunday School Class of First Baptist Church, Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Fulton, Wynona Willis, Mr. and Mrs. B.P. Sandefur, Mr. and Mrs. John Lyles, Marie Tardy, Juanita Henry, Mrs. Jess Shurber, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wylie.

The 1956 Study Club furnished the paint for the renovation. The nurses held a bake sale on Old Settler's Day and were very successful. We appreciate everyone who purchased the goodies and contributed to a major project. Please come by and see the wonderful improvements.

We still have three rooms to be redecorated. We would appreciate anyone who would like to help with the wallpapering in these rooms to call or come by the hospital. We will put you to work.

We have been busy the past week or two. Several of our staff members were able to enjoy an extra day or so off over the Memorial Day weekend. Leroy Schaffner, administrator, has returned from some vacation time in Colorado, visiting with his family. Molly Stringer, DON, attended a nursing administrative meeting in Lubbock last Friday.

We are glad to welcome Monty Seymour to our hospital staff. He had finished lab school in Amarillo and has moved back to Floydada. Monty graduated from FHS in 1981. He is working in our lab.

Also coming to work part-time in our lab is Holly Farnsworth. She is a junior at Texas Tech majoring in pre-med with plans to go on to med school after graduation. She is the daughter of Hal and Sue Farnsworth.

Working in our lab for the past several months is Tim Lipham. Tim is the son of Julian and Joyce Lipham. He graduated from Daingerfield High School and attends Texas Tech. He is a junior at Tech majoring in pre-med with plans to go on to med school after graduation. We are glad to have these young people in our lab.

Another of our local young people working at Caprock Hospital is Tammi Galloway. Tammi is an LVN who works most weekends and fills in on other shifts as well. She is working on her nursing degree and will graduate in December of 1989. We are hoping she will stay at home and work full-time as a shift supervisor when she graduates. She is the daughter of Jerry and Winola Galloway.

Leroy Schaffner and Molly Stringer gave a program for the Good Sams Club Monday evening. They talked on Home Health Care, Swing Bed programs, Valucare, and Medicare.

Mammograms were done on May 24th with 16 signing up. We already have received these films back and reports have been mailed to the physicians. Results have been reported to the patients also. The next scheduled mammograms is July 26. Please contact the hospital for an appointment.

Helen Teeple had a good turnout for her first diabetes class with 14 in attendance. The next class will meet Thursday, June 23 in the dining room of the hospital. Please plan to attend if you or a family member have diabetes.

Come by the hospital and visit us anytime.

HEALTH TIP

Cigarette smoking temporarily elevates blood pressure; it also makes the heart work harder. While no scientific evidence directly links smoking to high blood pressure, smoking is a risk factor for heart disease. Cigarette smokers are two to three times more likely to have heart attacks than are nonsmokers. And following a heart attack, a smoker has a poorer chance of recovery. The simple truth is that people should not smoke cigarettes, especially if they have high blood pressure.

Auditions for 'God's Country' prairie drama slated June 16

Want to get involved with some great music, exciting action, and fantastic fun this summer? Becoming a cast member of the original prairie drama of "God's Country" is the place to find such action!

Auditions for the "God's Country" will be held Thursday, June 16, at 7 p.m. at the Pioneer Memorial Building, Crosbyton.

A partial listing of characters needed includes four males (two cowboys, a sheriff and a lawyer), a male and a female singer, Indian children and dancers. Behind-the-scene volunteers are also desired.

Rehearsals will begin July 5. "God's Country" production is scheduled for the first two weekends in August.

Previous acting experience is not required. Desire and determination are two of the most important qualifications.

"Take this excellent opportunity to get acquainted with surrounding community members as well as to learn more about the history of the South Plains by coming out to the auditions," officials say.

FmHA county committee election set for June 30

Farmers in Floyd County will have an opportunity to choose one person from candidates running for the Farmers Home Administration county committee in the June 30 election, FmHA County Supervisor Becky D. Via says.

Any person who has an interest in a farm in the county as owner, tenant or sharecropper is considered a farmer and is eligible to vote, Ms. Via explains. Spouses of eligible farmers also are considered farmers for voting eligibility.

Ballots for the election are published in this week's edition of the Hesperian and also are available at the FmHA county office at 104 E. California in Floydada. If they cannot be returned to the county office in person, ballots may be mailed in, Ms. Via says.

Among other duties, county committees help determine whether an applicant is eligible for a FmHA farm loan. Two of the three members are elected by county farmers, and the third is appointed by FmHA.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) county committee this year will be held on June 30, 1988. The ballot below must be filled out, detached and mailed and received or returned in person to 104 E. California, Floydada, not later than June 30, 1988. If you do not vote in person you should mail your ballot inside a blank envelope marked ballot to ensure a secret ballot. Your name and address must be legible on the outer envelope. Failure to provide this information will render your ballot invalid. Only one ballot may be voted in person by any voter. Votes in envelopes containing more than one absentee ballot will not be counted. Ballots and envelopes may also be obtained from your local FmHA office.

The slate of nominees for Floyd County are listed in the ballot below. The qualifications or persons voting are described in the "Voter Certification Statement." For further information regarding voting and voter eligibility, see the County Office listed above. FmHA elections are open to all eligible voters without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, political affiliation, marital status, sex, and/or handicap.

The fire department received no calls for the week which ended at Tuesday noon.

Firemen held their monthly business meeting Monday, June 6, at 7:30 p.m. Twenty-one fire fighters attended this meeting.

Paul Moore, regional director of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, met with the group. He discussed various fundraising activities the firemen might do for MDA. The Labor Day Pledge Center will once again be held at the fire hall.

Van Ligan with Big Country Supply also met with the group. He showed a line of Morning Pride bunker equipment. The department has decided to use the safer fire coats and pants with knee boots instead of the old coats with hip boots. All volunteers will be equipped with the new gear in approximately 12 weeks.

Regular business was carried out and the meeting dismissed.

FIRE TIP OF THE WEEK

Every household should have a fire escape plan. Parents are encouraged to implement a workable plan where all family members get out of the house in case of fire and meet at a pre-determined location.

Also, family members should know two exits from every room in case one exit is blocked by fire. For more information on developing a fire escape plan, contact the Floydada Fire Department.

Among women taking all three drugs, after three years, 16 percent of the women suffered a recurrence, down substantially from the one-third of women who did not have additional therapy and had their cancer return.

The side effects were also worst among the women who had the most aggressive therapy; half of them had nausea or vomiting, half lost some hair and a third gained some weight, usually less than 10 pounds.

Despite these side effects, experts said the results were greatly encouraging.

"I think it's terrific," said Dr. Bruce Chabner, director of the division of cancer treatment at the National Cancer Institute. "These results affect a tremendous number of people."

Until now, doctors had been advised to routinely give chemotherapy or hormonal therapy only to women whose breast cancer had spread into underarm lymph nodes.

The presence of cancer cells in these lymph nodes indicates that other cancer cells may have spread throughout the bodies and could be destroyed with chemotherapy, which kills the rapidly growing cells, or with hormonal therapy, which prevents them from growing.

Large studies, involving thousands of women, have proved that these drugs prolong the lives of women whose cancer had spread to their lymph nodes.

with the institute's decision to recommend a change in treatment strategy.

"This is exciting and important," she said. "We can't keep it under wraps."

Breast cancer specialists noted, however, that the new research provided no guidance for women who have had surgery for early breast cancer in the past but who did not have additional treatment.

DeVita said that he would advise women with early breast cancer who had surgery six months ago or less and who did not have additional drug therapy to consider drug treatment now. But, he added, "It's a judgment call."

The new data are from three studies in this country, and they bolster recent data from European studies, De Vita said. Two of the American studies were directed by Dr. Bernard Fisher of the University of Pittsburgh as part of the National Surgical and Adjuvant Breast and Bowel Project. The third was a collaborative effort by the Eastern Cooperative Oncology Group and the Southwest Oncology Group, consisting of cancer researchers at a variety of medical centers.

The studies used three different treatments, including two chemotherapy regimens and a hormonal therapy. In all three studies, the women who had additional therapy were less likely to suffer a recurrence of the cancer within three or four years of its removal.

DeVita said that such results have always translated into an overall survival advantage as the patients are studied for longer periods.

Women and their doctors still will have to decide which drug regimen to use.

In the studies, the most striking results were with women who received the most aggressive chemotherapy, involving a combination of three drugs. Other approaches using two instead of three drugs, or using the hormonal therapy, were only half as effective in preventing recurrences.

REMEMBER THESE SAFETY TIPS

- Watch for power lines when climbing in trees.
- Do not climb electrical poles, towers or structures.
- Do not trim trees near power lines.
- Do not set ladders or scaffolds near power lines.
- Do not shoot at insulators on poles, towers or structures.
- Never climb on or go inside a substation fence. Call SPS to help you retrieve anything thrown into the substation or caught in its fence.
- Avoid using electrical tools like lawn mowers or hedge clippers when grass and leaves are wet.
- Be careful when digging. Call SPS to find out if there are any buried electrical lines in the area.
- Electrical cords should not be spliced or taped. Repair by shortening them or replace them entirely.
- Beware of exposed wires.
- Don't touch portable appliances (coffee makers, radios, hair dryers, etc.) with wet hands or while standing or sitting in water.
- Don't post signs on utility poles. A lineman hitting a nail with his cleat could slip and fall. Also, nails can snag protective gloves and destroy their insulation value.

Mammoth display could take calendar year for completion

It took only four days last month to excavate the skull of a prehistoric elephant from its grave about 60 miles from Plainview.

But it may be a full year before the two-ton skull goes on display to the public in Wayland Baptist University's Llano Estacado Museum.

The skull, believed to be that of an Imperial Mammoth, was unearthed by Museum Director Eddie Guffee — with the help of countless volunteers — from a barrow ditch near Easter, a tiny community in Castro County.

Excavators encased the skull in a plaster cast, then built a wooden platform around it in order to lift it intact from the 10-foot — deep hole.

It could take more than a year, Guffee says, to get the cast off.

"We'll have to do it a little at a time — with tin snips and knives — and stabilize the bone as we go to prevent further deterioration," he explained.

"And," he added, "Patti (his wife, who is assistant museum curator) and I are the only people here who know how."

The discovery is already being called one of the most significant ever made in West Texas.

"I can't think of a museum that has a mammoth skull which came out of the ground intact," said Guffee, a member of the Wayland staff since 1976.

The imperial mammoth migrated to North America during the late Pleistocene era (11,500 to 25,000 years ago) and became very numerous in the southern Great Plains.

It stood 14 feet high and weighed as much as 40,000 pounds, according to Guffee, and normal life span was about 125 years.

If not an imperial mammoth, the skull is probably that of another prehistoric species, the woolly mammoth, which grew to the same height of the modern Asiatic elephant — 10 feet — but generally was found farther north.

"We should be able to determine what we have from the tooth (encased in the cast)," Guffee predicted.

The skull measures approximately four feet long and 34 inches high, with curved tusks an estimated five feet long.

Asked how it compared in size to today's elephant, Guffee said, "You could cradle a modern-day elephant skull across this one's tusks."

Almost 5,000 persons visited the excavation site during the dig May 13-16, and a steady flow of traffic has been witnessed at the museum since the skull arrived in Plainview on May 17.

Guffee says that additional bones are likely to exist in the area surrounding the site, but lack of funds will prevent further excavation.

"The rest of the skeleton probably eroded away from the skull and is up in the pasture somewhere. We just can't afford to do any additional digging," Guffee said.

The skull has found the perfect home at the Wayland museum, since the basic purpose of the museum is a re-creation of the history of the "Staked Plains."

In fact, it already houses an exhibit of the Pleistocene era featuring mammoth tooth, bone and tusk fragments excavated in the Silverton, Quitaque and White River areas.

A new Pleistocene exhibit will be erected in the same part of the museum as soon as work on the skull is complete, according to Guffee.

"We will create an environmental display, set the skull at a normal angle, and include pictures of what the animal looked like," he said.

No doubt, thousands of prospective visitors to the museum are already anxiously awaiting its completion.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

How much is a billion dollars? Officials of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., now have their own answer to that question. It's about $6 million less than the farm-level income created by the 1987 cotton crop from the organization's 25 High Plains counties, they say.

Figures just released by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service (TASS) show production for the area at 2,668,550 bales. Using an estimated 55.5 cents per pound average price, PCG puts lint value at $710,901,720. Seed, at $75 per ton for 1,134,134 tons, was worth another $85,060,050. Another $210,740,573 in target price deficiency payments brings the total value to $1,006,302,343.

That marks the first time in history that area cotton has achieved billion-dollar-crop status, and tops the previous record of $900 million set by the 2.9 million bale crop of 1973, PCG notes.

TASS reports planted acreage for the 25 counties at 2,819,800, harvested acres at 2,599,000 and an average yield of 494.7 pounds per acre. That yield is about 18 pounds short of the area's best, 513.2 pounds per acre in 1965, and is the fourth highest ever, behind 1965, 1973 (498) and 1968 (496).

Total 1987 production also ranks fourth in records kept by PCG back to 1928, trailing the all-time record 3.522 million bale crop of 1981, 3.22 million in 1977 and 2.89 million produced in 1973.

The chart below shows 1987 planted and harvested acres, yields, per harvested acre and total production in 480 pound net weight bales for each of the 25 PCG counties.

To break the flea and tick cycle treat pet, home, yard

Dog and cat owners can end their annual frustration in attempts to control fleas and ticks if they combine the best pet-care methods into an organized treatment that breaks the life cycle of the insect.

"You need to break the flea's life cycle — egg, larva, pupa and adult — if you're going to control these pests," explains Wayne Biasetti, director of Product Development for a product supplier of flea and tick control system. "And you can't treat the dog alone, or just the carpeting and furniture. You must treat pet, home, and yard."

Here's a comprehensive care regimen recommended by Biasetti.

Start with the pet. To kill larvae, pupae, and adult fleas and wash away any eggs, bathe the pet with a natural pyrethrin-based shampoo, giving special attention to areas in and behind the animal's ears, near its nose, or under its belly.

Then isolate the pet while you treat the house.

Spray furniture and carpeting, again with pyrethrin-based materials. For an extra measure of protection, respray pet bedding every week. After spraying, thoroughly vacuum carpet, rugs, floors, furniture and draperies, and immediately dispose of vacuum cleaner bag. Get into crevices and corners to remove the eggs, which otherwise will hatch and mature into adult fleas.

Begin outdoor treatment by raking and mowing the lawn. Then thoroughly treat the yard and other areas frequented by your pet with a flea spray for yards recommended by your hardware store or home center. Respray twice, at two-week intervals, to break the flea's life cycle.

"After that give your pet a quick spray with a pyrethrin based flea spray each time it returns from outdoors, and you should remain free of fleas and ticks for weeks," adds Biasetti.

Unfortunately, you can't eliminate the resilient flea or tick. But with the help and guidance of the pet-care experts at your hardware store or home center you can control them.

Nancy Bishop receives 25-year pin and certificate from ASCS

One of the reasons Nancy Bishop enjoys her work at the Floyd County ASCS office is because she "knows just about everyone" in the county, especially farmers.

Born and raised in this county -- her dad, Syd Brown, farmed at Cedar Hill -- Mrs. Bishop has been assisting farmers through the ASCS office for years.

She was presented with her 25-year pin and certificate during the May 27 open house at the ASCS and SCS offices in their new location, the former Texas A&M University training center. Bob Lotspeich, ASCS county executive director, made the presentation.

Actually, Mrs. Bishop will complete 25 years with the Floyd County ASCS office in August.

Graduating from Floydada High School at the age of 16, the former Nancy Brown immediately joined the ASCS staff. She spent 3 1/2 years before "being out 12 years to raise my family." She returned on "a parttime basis" and later "it turned into fulltime."

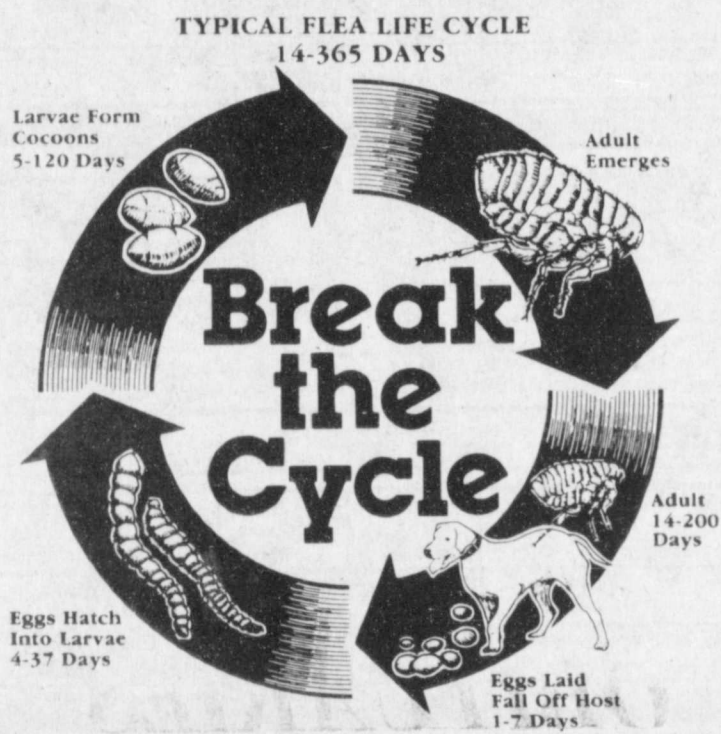

Mrs. Bishop presently serves as chief program assistant.

Her 25 years have been spent under four county executive directors. Ray McEntire held this position during her first 3 1/2 years. She worked "about a year" under Tom Hutchins, and "the rest of the time was under Tom Moore" until his retirement in 1986 and Lotspeich became county executive director two years ago.

Howard and Nancy Bishop reside in the Lakeview community. They are parents of two sons.

Mike Bishop is a local entomologist. He and his wife Rozann -- an art instructor in the Ralls school system -- reside in Floydada with their two sons. The other Bishop son, Greg, resides near his parents and farms in the Lakeview area.

The Bishops are members of First Baptist Church.

PLAQUE OF APPRECIATION — Don Green, who recently retired from the city council after having served from 1982 until 1988, receives a plaque of appreciation, presented by Mayor Parnell Powell (left). The plaque's wording: "Distinguished Service Award presented to Don Green, Council member 1982-1988, City of Floydada, Texas." Mayor Powell said that he could not remember Green missing either a regular or called meeting. Green, however, said he missed one meeting, due to illness, during his tenure as a council member. The ceremony was held in the council meeting room last Wednesday. — Staff photo

Poison Prevention

Remember, the best way to avoid accidental poisoning is to take preventative home safety measures.

Prescription medicines can be helpful when taken as directed, but can cause accidental poisoning in the hands of small children. Fifty percent of all accidental home poisonings involve medications, followed by cleaning products, cosmetics, and household plants.

Keep all household chemical products out of the sight and reach of children.

While using these products, never leave your child unattended, even to answer the doorbell or telephone.

Store all medicines and products away from food.

To avoid confusion, refer to medicine as "medicine" and not "candy" when administering it to your child.

Never give or take medicines in the dark.

If your child does swallow poison, call your doctor or a poison control center immediately. Keep emergency telephone numbers available. TMA suggests to remain calm, but get help quickly so the poison has less time to be absorbed into the blood stream. Save the poison container and its label so your doctor may determine the exact contents and appropriate treatment.

Wheat allergy can create special food needs at home

When someone in the family is allergic to the wheat in bread, cookies, cakes, pastas and other foods, home baking becomes a must.

The substitutes for wheat flour include rice, soybean, oat, rye and barley flours, or potato starch. Knowing how to make best use of these flours can add variety to the allergy diet.

"The strong gluten in wheat flour helps to form the structure of breads and cakes," says Mary Kinney Sweeten, a nutritionist with Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service.

"Since nonwheat flours or starches contain weak gluten, or no gluten at all, baked products made with these flours tend to be heavier and more crumbly than the same foods made with wheat flour."

"Oat, rye, barley and buckwheat flours contain small amounts of gluten and should be avoided by people with a severe intolerance. Commercially baked rye and oatmeal breads will also usually contain some wheat flour," cautions Sweeten.

According to the nutritionist, the non-wheat flours have distinctive characteristics:

* Soy flour is light yellow and has a strong nutty flavor, so it's best mixed with other nonwheat flours. Nuts, spices or chocolate will also help mask the flavor.

* Rice flour is less strong in flavor and has a slightly grainy texture. Since rice flour takes on other flavors well, it can be used in a variety of baked products.

* Corn flour is similar to cornmeal, but ground much finer. It's not available in all areas.

* Rye flour has a dark color, distinctive flavor and a slight amount of gluten. It's often sold in combination with wheat flour, so check the label carefully.

* Oat flour has a mild flavor. It's available commercially or you can make your own by grinding dry-rolled oats in a blender or food processor.

* Potato starch is a bland, white starch made from raw potatoes. It works best in baked products that have eggs to provide needed structure, such as sponge cake.

Sweeten says you'll get best results baking with a nonwheat flour if you stir it thoroughly before measuring. Non-wheat cookies or cupcakes will have less of a crumbling problem than layer or sheet cakes.

Nonwheat flours also work best in baked products when two or more are combined to make the most of the qualities of each, she explains.

"Cover nonwheat baked products tightly and store at room temperature for a short time or freeze for longer storage. These foods tend to become dry and pick up odors when stored in the refrigerator," she notes.

If you're having trouble finding nonwheat products, Sweeten suggests contacting your County Extension office for information on ordering products for special food needs.

Choose credit cards with taxes in mind

For years, many consumers simply shrugged their shoulders at the amount of interest they paid on credit spending, saying "at least we can take it off the taxes." But no more. As part of the federal tax reform package, only 65 percent of consumer interest was deductible on 1987 income taxes and only 40 percent of interest paid will be deductible in 1988. By 1991 the deduction will be eliminated.

"With the phase-out of consumer interest deductions on federal income taxes, people are starting to look more closely at the way in which they use their credit cards," according to Nancy L. Granovsky, a family economics specialist.

"For some families, this may mean cutting back on credit card purchases or paying the bills in full each month. For others it may involve shopping around for the least costly credit card alternatives," she says.

Unfortunately, comparison shopping for credit cards isn't always easy, notes Granovsky, a home economist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

"Comparing the annual percentage rate (APR) of interest charged is a good place to start, but it doesn't tell the whole story," she says.

"The amount of annual fee, the method used to determine the balance on which finance charges will be based and whether or not the company allows a grace period are also important."

Take the example of one bank card that has no annual fee, charges 14% APR, but doesn't provide a 25-day grace period before you start paying interest on your purchases. Contrast that with another bank card that does allow a grace period, but charges a $20 fee and 19.8 percent APR. Which is the better deal?

Granovsky says, "It depends."

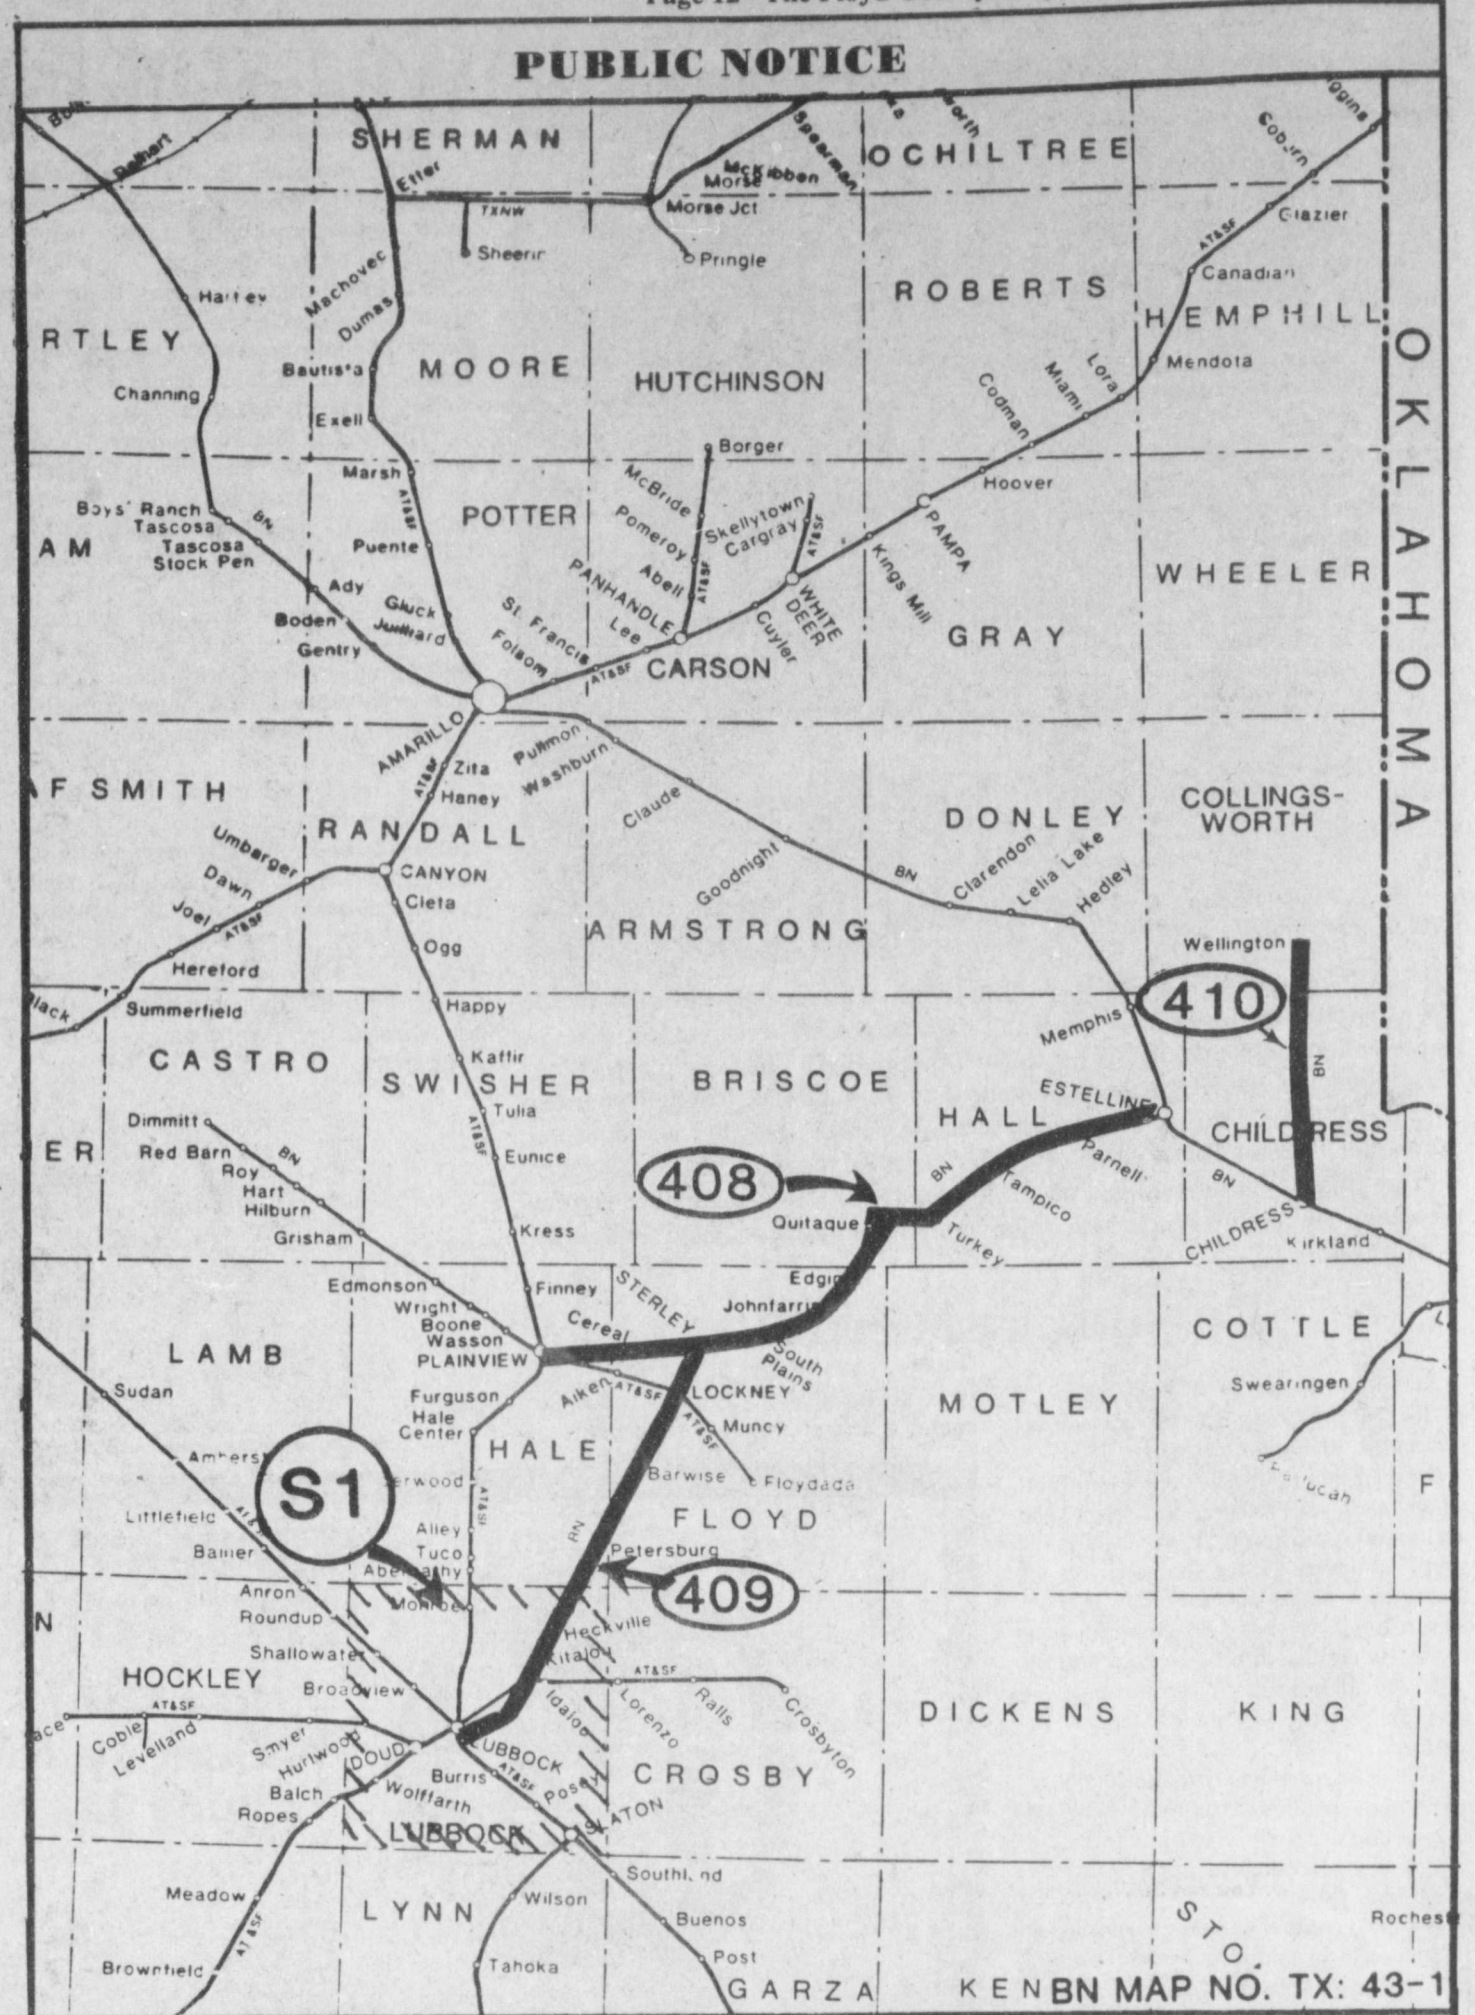

"The best credit card choice will depend on the size of your typical account balance, your timing of purchases and payments and whether you typically pay in full each month, avoiding all finance charges, or pay only part of the balance."

If you tend to run large balances and make partial payments each month, the specialist advises shopping for the lowest possible annual percentage rate (APR).

But she says, if you pay in full most of the time, then the grace period becomes very important.

Granovsky, who develops adult education programs on family financial management which are offered through county Extension offices, says the changing tax laws may change attitudes toward credit spending as well.

"Having to bear the full cost of interest expenses may encourage consumers to weigh convenience against the cost of having now and paying later," she says.
