Deadline due Tuesday for cotton ballot nominees

Individuals engaged in cotton farming in Scurry County have until Tuesday to file as candidates for a commodity board position related to the upcoming referendum election to decide a proposed assessment of cotton "at the gin."

The election to decide this issue is due Sept. 7. On the same ballot, cotton producers and land owners will vote for a 12-member board to oversee the assessment program if approved.

Tuesday is the deadline to have candidate names placed on the ballot for this commodity board.

To qualify, a candidate must be nominated by no less than 10 individuals who are either cotton producers or have an ownership interest in cotton land.

Candidates to the board must be cotton producers. All nominees must be submitted no later than 30 days before the Sept. 7 election.

Blank forms for the list of 10 names to nominate can be picked up at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce office. Once filled out, these nomination forms should be returned to the chamber also.

According to Fred Cross, president of the Scurry County Producer's Association, some 12 nominees have been received to date. The producer's group — which instigated action to call the election here — has provided 11 of these.

If elected, the board would both set the rate of assessment and oversee how these funds are spent for pest control related to cotton production.

Once formed, the 12 members would draw lots to determine who would serve one, two or three-year terms. After this, elections would be conducted yearly to fill expiring positions.

Persons wishing more information may call the county agent's office or producer group members Cross, David Kattes or Larry Schwarz.

SCHOOL PREPARATION — The Snyder school system's two new administrators are now in place after fulfilling contract obligations with their previous districts. New Snyder Superintendent Bob Hawes (right) is shown Friday morning talking with new Assistant Superintendent for Business Artie Butler. New superintendent arrives...

2 administrators now 'on the job'

New Snyder Superintendent Bob Hawes and Assistant Superintendent for Business Artie Butler were on the job Thursday for their first full day of work with the Snyder system.

Both were pledged to honor work contracts with their respective school systems through the end of July, and Butler notes he still will be "back and forth" until mid-August.

Hawes said Friday morning that work toward the 1984-85 school budget is his first priority. Work sessions for administrators and school board members will begin Tuesday following the regular August meeting for school trustees.

The new superintendent was named May 25 to replace the retiring Bill J. Hood, who served the system for 17 years.

The 52-year-old Hawes brings more than 23 years public school experience to Snyder — 18 of these in a superintendent's role.

He has been with Vidor ISD — located in Orange County along the Texas Coast — since 1979. Previous to that, he was the superintendent for the Hamlin system.

He has held other superintendent posts with the Huntington ISD (1970-72) and the Crockett ISD (1966-70).

He began his public education career as a teacher-coach at Lubbock Roosevelt public schools from 1961-65.

He was born in Port Arthur and was graduated from Port Neches High School. He served with the U.S. Navy from 1951-55, assigned to the Far East.

He then attended Stephen F. Austin State University, earning a general business degree in 1958.

He earned his teacher certificate in 1964 from Texas Tech University and a master of education degree in 1967 from Stephen F. Austin.

He also holds certification through the Texas Education Agency as a professional administrator, superintendent, secondary principal, supervisor and teacher at the secondary level.

His wife Barbara also has some 23 years experience as a school teacher and will join the local system as a fourth grade teacher at Northeast Elementary.

The couple has three children, Jeana Renee, age 24 and a teacher with the Vidor school system; Lisa Diane, age 20, who will be a junior in college this fall and who has been attending the University of Texas this past summer; and Randall Kyle, age 17, who will enroll at SHS as a junior.

Butler, age 36, will replace E.D. (Doug) Flynn, who is to retire Aug. 31 after 27 years as the head of the school's business operations.

Butler is a 1966 high school graduate of Colorado City, growing up on a farm near Westbrook. He attended Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, graduating with a bachelor of business administration degree in 1970.

He also holds a master of education degree in school administration from Abilene Christian University and is a certified teacher at the secondary level.

From June of 1970 through October of 1972, he worked as an accountant with a Midland accounting firm. In the fall of 1972, he

Civilian jobless rate up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment climbed to 7.5 percent in July, the first gain in 20 months, as 413,000 Americans joined the jobless rolls, the government reported today.

The 0.4 percentage point gain in the seasonally adjusted rate, the first increase since unemployment went from 10.4 percent to 10.7 percent from October to November 1982, increased the number of the unemployed from 8,130,000 to 8,543,000, the Labor Department said.

At the same time, the total number of Americans with jobs, which hit a record 105.7 million in June, fell by 353,000 to 105.4 million.

Deborah Klein, a Bureau of Labor Statistics analyst, said:

"What it seems to be is a reversal of everything which took place the month before, and took many people by surprise, which suggests that (June's) improvement was somewhat overstated."

"What is unclear at the moment is what this is really signalling," Ms. Klein said. "What it says is, we're not exactly sure of the trend."

In advance of today's report, several private analysts said the days of plunging unemployment were numbered and forecast only minimal improvement for the rest of the year.

In February 1983, when the nation experienced its first significant drop from high unemployment, President Reagan hailed the news, saying the nation was "on the road to recovery."

But the president cautioned then that "we may see some ups and downs on the way."

An alternative rate, which combines the 113.9-million member civilian labor force with the 1.7 million members of the military stationed in the United States, rose by 0.4 percentage point last month to 7.4 percent.

In testimony before the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Commissioner of Labor Statistics Janet L. Norwood said, "The July data are difficult to interpret. ... These are clearly not a consistent set of data for an evaluation of current labor market trends."

Mrs. Norwood noted a conflict between two separate measures of labor market health in today's report — a survey of households and a companion survey of payrolls.

Bert Lance...

Review strategy after resignation

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro were reviewing strategy after the embarrassing departure of Bert Lance as general chairman of their Democratic presidential campaign 19 days after he took the job.

The resignation Thursday of Lance — whose appointment was supposed to help the ticket in the South — tarnished a successful southern swing that the presidential and vice presidential nominees had completed earlier in the day.

Mondale and Ms. Ferraro were meeting today at Mondale's suburban Minneapolis home before she returned to New York for the weekend. Neither had public appearances scheduled through the weekend.

Mondale had issued a statement Thursday night saying he regretfully was accepting the resignation of his "friend and advisor," Lance, who was forced to step down as former President Jimmy Carter's budget director amid allegations of irregularities in his private banking business in Georgia.

"I regret Bert's decision, but I respect it," Mondale said in his statement. "In recent days he has been subjected to some very tough and adverse publicity."

Galveston Bay braces for expected oil slick

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Steered by shifting winds, a 65-mile-long oil slick was expected to ooze into Galveston Bay around noon today, endangering marine life and the island's tourism business.

A surveillance flight spotted one "finger" of the slick a mile or two off the north Galveston jetty this morning, said Jerry Galt, an oceanographer with the National Oceanic and Atomospheric Administration.

Galt and U.S. Coast Guard officials said the oil may wash ashore at high tide, but shifting winds and current make firm predictions impossible.

"It's being moved by currents and winds, the winds are steering it," said Coast Guard spokesman Keith Spangler. "It's going to do what it wants."

The slick is from a 1.2 million gallon spill, which leaked out of a 609-foot British tanker Alvenus that ran aground Monday off the Louisiana coast.

Coast Guard spokesman Dale Puckett said today that the flow of oil from the ruptured tank had stopped.

"It's gone," Puckett said. "All the oil is gone."

Puckett said none of the 1.8 million gallons of oil could be salvaged.

Scientists and area officials were bracing Friday for the arrival of the slush in sensitive marine estuaries and choice fishing grounds.

"It is going to be nasty to clean up wherever it comes ashore," said Dr. Roy Hann, director of Texas A&M University's oil spill technical assistance team.

If the spill hits Galveston Bay, it could mean the temporary end of oyster harvesting.

"There are a number of shellfish beds in the bay under private lease, and if they go under oil, you can't harvest them," said Dr. Edward Ibert, pollution control director at the Galveston County Health District in La Marque. "If it does (enter Galveston Bay), probably no more oyster harvesting will be allowed."

The slick meandered off the coast Thursday, coming within three miles of High Island at one point, the Coast Guard said. A sudden shift in winds pushed the oil back out to sea and by Thursday afternoon, it was about eight miles from the coast.

Coast Guardsmen placed containment booms Thursday at Rollover Pass — a narrow canal that leads to Galveston Bay and other environmentally sensitive estuaries. But because of the currents and size of the area, the booms were expected to do little to stop the flow into the bay.

Contractors were also ready with loads of straw and dirt-moving equipment, anticipating they would have to begin mopping up beaches when the fork-shaped slick moved ashore.

Marine specialists at Texas A&M University were attempting to minimize damage to Galveston Bay.

"The areas we'll be watching are Rollover Pass, the salt marsh east of the North Jetty on the Gulf side, the Galveston Ship Channel and the San Luis Pass," said Dr. Steve Alexander, assistant professor of marine biology at Texas A&M University at Galveston.

"These commercially valuable areas are responsible for most of the fisheries, as well as shrimp, crabs and oysters. This is where they mature, inhabit and feed," Alexander said.

Three teens in custody

ANTHONY, Texas (AP) — Three of four teen-agers who killed dogs and damaged homes during a 90-minute rampage in this far West Texas town will remain at a juvenile detention center for at least 10 days, a judge has ruled.

El Paso County Juvenile Judge Henry Baca reviewed the cases of the boys Thursday and ordered that three remain in custody, while one was released because "he was not engaged in any of the aggravated offenses," said Assistant County Attorney Joe Lucas.

El Paso County sheriff's Capt. Chuy Reyes said the boys, three 16-year-olds and one 13-year-old, terrorized Anthony Wednesday afternoon before being taken into custody by police officers.

The teen-agers entered an Anthony home about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, killed two German shepherd dogs by stabbing them about 20 times each, "broke a microwave all over the floor, threw plants all over and even threw food on the floor," Reyes said.

They also burglarized two other residences, he said.

Nearly 30 law enforcement officers were called to Anthony, a small town on the New Mexico-Texas border near El Paso, to help end the disturbance, Reyes said.

He said the large number of officers responded because the first call that went out over police radios was that a police officer was being assaulted.

"They threw bricks at the first officer who responded and all the others came in after hearing that an officer was in trouble," Reyes said. "All the officers came in handy because we had a lot of people in the residential area and had to block off streets."

After terrorizing the area, two of the teen-agers tried to flee and were caught by police, Reyes said.

The other two boys barricaded themselves in a house, tossing bricks out at police. Officers had to flush them out with tear gas, he said.

"We had to forcibly fight them to take them into custody," Reyes said, adding that the boys apparently also had made small cuts on each other with small butcher-type knives.

"I just thank God that we were all gone when they came," said Alberto Lucero, who lives in the home where the two barricaded themselves in before police brought them out with tear gas.

"Technically, my wife and kids were supposed to be home," Lucero said. "So there are things to be thankful for. We just have to bounce back."

Lucero's home still reeked of tear gas Thursday, and the family had to stay at a relative's home until their home is cleaned up.

Lucero, who said the family had lived in the home for 26 years, said he has not been able to estimate the damage.

Anthony Mayor Adrian Baca said some of his town's residents were shocked by the crime spree.

"We regret what happened," he said. "They were small kids, but they really were out of their heads."

Reyes said the boys, two of whom were brothers, were under the influence of drugs and alcohol when the rampage began.

The three teen-agers held at the detention center were charged with burglary of habitation, cruelty to animals, criminal mischief and aggravated assault on a police officer, Reyes said.

Lucas said the cases of the three, two of the 16-year-olds and the 13-year-old, would be reviewed again in 10 days.

A tentative trial date of Aug. 17 was set by Baca for the 13-year-old, Lucas said. Trial dates for the other two boys were not set.

J. Tower criticizes mistakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress "simply cannot do its work" because of a committee system that duplicates effort and bogs down in "bickering" over jurisdiction, says U.S. Sen. John Tower.

Tower, R-Texas, who is retiring at the end of the year, made his suggestions Thursday during testimony before the Committee on Committees, which is preparing a report on ways to streamline the Senate committee process.

He said his suggestions would mean eliminating special-interest committees and diminishing the power of some senators.

"When all these practicalities are considered, it may well be that the system cannot be substantially changed," Tower said. "But if that is the case, then it is the country that is the loser, because we now have a Congress which simply cannot do its work."

Government programs which require federal money currently go through two processes, first, before the authorizing committee which approves the programs, and second, before the appropriations subcommittee, which approves the money for the programs.

Spending limits are supposedly set by the Budget Committee before the authorization process begins since the 1974 Budget Act was written.

"And if the fiscal discipline is imposed at the beginning of the process, there is no reason to have both an authorization and an appropriations process. One or the other can be deleted," Tower said.

"I fully recognize that there are 29 members of the Appropriations Committee," Tower said. "I fully recognize that each of those members has a plum of an assignment."

Disbanding the Budget Committee and letting the Appropriations Committee take over its functions was one of his suggestions.

Tower said two-year spending measures would allow departments and agencies to plan further in advance and give Congress time of to consider broader national issues.

"It has become increasingly apparent to me that we are obsessed with the budget," Tower said.

Number of poor Americans climbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats were quick to react to a Census Bureau study showing the highest number of American poor in 19 years, with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. calling it "the smoking gun of Reagan unfairness."

"President Reagan denies that his policies are unfair. He denies that his policies make the rich richer and the poor poorer. Today we have facts from the Census Bureau that this is exactly what is happening under Reagan," O'Neill, D-Mass., said.

"Today we have the smoking gun of Reagan unfairness," he said.

The report showed 35,266,000 Americans, or 15.2 percent of the population, below the poverty line in 1983.

It is the most Americans officially listed as poor since 1964, before President Johnson launched his Great Society programs to attack the problem. The total that year was 36.1 million.

White House response to the report came from deputy press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, with Reagan in Santa Barbara, Calif., who said it showed "poverty has leveled off from the disastrous increases of 1979 and '80 ..." when "high interest rate-high inflation policies of the last administration sent economic growth into a four-year stall."

"More than 5 million new jobs have been created since this report was written and the prospects for a drop in the poverty rate appear very good," Fitzwater added. He said the administration has "every expectation" that the poverty level will go down, but he could not estimate when or by how much.

But Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., who heads the task force on domestic hunger, said "everywhere we have gone — whether it is Cleveland or Birmingham or Los Angeles or Chicago or Miami or rural Mississippi or San Francisco — we have heard that hunger is on the rise."

Anti-poverty and senior citizen groups picketed outside the Commerce Department as the new figures were released.

Salad bars

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Salad bars have become a popular addition to fast-service restaurants now that customers are eating more vegetables than previously, according to William Welter.

Welter, executive vice president of Wendy's International Inc., said his fast service chain expected to use 75,000 tons of fresh vegetables in 1984, an increase of 21.3 percent over 1983.

Potato salad most versatile side dish

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

Americans have strong feelings, I've discovered, about potato salad.

Some want the potatoes cubed, not sliced.

Some want the salad to be dressed with oil, vinegar, salt and pepper.

Some want their potato salad warm with a bacon dressing.

Some want the salad to be made with mashed potatoes.

And some say potato salad must be made with a combination of French dressing and mayonnaise.

And some, especially Southerners, want sweet pickles in their potato salad. This time around we have a recipe — and very good it is — for this group.

POTATO SALAD

6 to 8 medium (2 pounds) potatoes
1 cup thinly sliced celery
1 medium (4 ounces) sweet red pepper, seeded and slivered (¾ cup)
4 small scallions, thinly sliced (¼ cup)
¾ cup drained sweet pickle slices, halved
¾ cup mayonnaise
3 tablespoons sweet pickle liquid
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
Pepper to taste

Scrub potatoes and cut each in half; do not peel. In a saucepan barely cover potatoes with boiling water; boil until tender when pierced in center with a fork — about 25 minutes. Drain at once. Cool slightly. With the help of a small knife, strip off skins and discard. Cut potatoes into ½ to 1-inch cubes; turn into a large bowl; add celery, red pepper, scallion and pickles; toss together.

In a small bowl whisk together mayonnaise, pickle liquid, salt, mustard and pepper; pour over potato mixture and stir lightly to coat. Cover and chill for at least a few hours to allow flavors to blend.

Makes about 2 quarts.

Beauty Tips

Summer shampoos

If you think your favorite shampoo isn't working so well, you may need a seasonal change. In summer, the scalp produces more oil; perspiration also compounds the problem. So an "oily" hair shampoo may work better during warm weather, although you normally use a "normal" or "dry" formula in winter.

Many new specialized shampoo formulas are available, such as those for tinted or damaged hair. So spend some time in your drugstore checking labels for shampoo to combat summer damage to hair.

Removing hair

Wearing bikinis or high-rise leg swimsuits can mean doing hair removal in body areas you haven't previously considered. A new cream depilatory and finishing cream duo are made especially for hair removal in sensitive areas.

The depilatory used by many hospitals for pre-surgery prep contains soothing aloe, as does the aftercream, a moisturizing formula.

A third item offered is a leg depilatory for those with sensitive skins.

Caught napping

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Hugh Kelsey's book "101 Bridge Maxims" (Devyn Press) has good advice for every bridge player. Today's hand warns against defending like an automaton.

The opening heart 10 is ducked in dummy, East plays the queen and South wins with his king. South then leads a low spade toward dummy's jack and West plays low. Declarer can now run five clubs and cash his A-J of hearts to score his vulnerable game.

Seeing all four hands tells you that West should not have let South steal an early spade trick. Instead, West should have gone up with his ace in order to switch to diamonds. How should West know what to do? Here is what should have occurred to him.

East's play of the heart queen denied possession of the jack, so declarer is going to get three heart tricks. The fact that declarer did not try a club finesse at trick two probably means that dummy's ferocious-looking clubs are five tricks in the bank. If South can take an early spade trick, the contract is unbeatable.

Acting on these observations, West must win his ace of spades at trick two and lead a diamond. Which diamond? West can't allow South to establish dummy's diamond queen and so must lead his jack, hoping that East has A-10-x or A-9-x-x. South can cover in dummy or not. Either way, the defenders get four diamonds and a spade to set the contract down one. Kelsey's maxim for today's hand is: Don't duck if, by doing so, you concede the game-going trick.

Dear Abby

Young Guests' Odor Poses Sticky Problem for Hostess

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last summer, a very dear friend of mine who lives in France sent her two daughters, ages 16 and 17, to be my houseguests for the summer. They were very intelligent, good-looking girls. Although they showered every day, they used no underarm deodorant, and their B.O. was noticeable.

Without making an issue of it, I gave them some deodorant and told them what it was for. They thanked me politely, returned the deodorant and said, "We never use it." The friends I had introduced them to were put off because of their B.O.

The girls are returning soon for another visit. Should I mention it again? And if so, how can it be done without offending them or their mother?

NAMELESS IN FLORIDA

DEAR NAMELESS: By all means mention it again—only this time call or write their mother, and inform her that in the United States, underarm deodorant is essential to good grooming. Tell her that last summer when you noticed her daughters needed a deodorant, you offered them some, but they rejected it.

Your friend should be grateful, not offended. Far better to risk offending your friend than to have your young houseguests offend others and be avoided.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: "Frustrated in Maine" asked how to make her son-in-law wear a shirt when he came to the dinner table shirtless.

She may want to try my solution: The first time my newlywed husband came to the table shirtless, I promptly left the table and returned topless!

However delighted he might have been, he got the picture, even though it was a double exposure.

TAN IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

DEAR TAN: You're lucky. He might have been titillated to the point of no return.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I'm 25, have been married and divorced and have dated a lot of men. The man I'm dating now has many good qualities. He's kind, generous and very loving. We get along great and have talked of marriage.

Now for the problem: "Igor" needs to know the names of every man I've been to bed with. He wants to know how many times, where, and all the intimate details. Not that there were that many, but he keeps pressuring me for this information.

I have told him it's all past history and it's none of his business. He keeps saying he "needs" to know all the facts, then he can forget all about it and we can go on with our lives.

I've never asked him about the women he's been intimate with before he met me. (I'd rather not know.)

Why does he need to know these things about me?

PRESSURED BY IGOR

DEAR PRESSURED: He may need to know in order to throw it up to you at a later date. Or perhaps he gets a vicarious thrill hearing the details. In any case, you were right to tell him it's none of his business. If "Igor-Beaver" continues to pressure you, insist that he get professional help to find out why he needs to know the names and numbers of all the players.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: You recently toyed with the name "Chuck" in reply to a reader's question. (You told the reader to "chuck Chuck.")

Well, my name is Chuck, and I object to your taking liberties with us Chucks. We're tired of chuck it, chuck-a-luck, woodchuck, upchuck, downchuck—you think of it, we've heard it.

I wouldn't dream of calling you "Blabby Abby" or "Gabby Abby," nor would I say, "Can Abby see de E-F-G?" That would be unkind.

This type of treatment—like buying a goose—gets us down. I think you owe us Chucks an apology.

CHUCK WILCOX, RICHFIELD, MINN.

DEAR CHUCK: Sorry you're down. Please accept my up-ology.

Braniff offering special discounts

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff Inc. is cutting fares on many of the airline's long-haul routes in an attempt to stimulate lower-than-anticipated summer passenger loads from the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, airline officials announced.

The company is offering two discount fares, one that requires passengers to stay over a Saturday night and another available only on "off-peak" flights — early morning, evening and Saturday.

"This is not a change in strategy. This is an enhancement," said Braniff vice chairman J. Patrick Foley. "We have done very well in our business cabin up front, and fares there will not change."

Foley said Wednesday Braniff's July load factor — the average percent of airplane seats filled during the month — was about the same as June's 50.4 percent.

"That was a little disappointing to us," he said.

Under the discounted fare, a stay-over Saturday fare to New York City will be $250 round-trip, $290 off-peak. The lowest non-stop fare in that market currently is $339, requiring advance purchase, minimum stay and travel midweek.

Since it resumed service from bankruptcy March 1, Braniff has been having weekly discounted fares on certain routes. Last week, the "super special" fare to New York was $278 round-trip.

The new fares do not have a predetermined expiration date, Foley said.

A spokesman for American Airlines Inc. said American will match the Braniff fares.

Muse Air Corp. on Wednesday announced that effective Sept. 15, it will introduce new mileage-based fares on its short-haul routes of less than 800 miles. Under the new program, most Muse fares will be increased slightly, but some will be reduced.

Dallas to Houston, for example, will be $39 on off-peak flights and $59 on peak flights, compared with the current $30 and $45.

Muse officials also said beginning Sept. 15, they will offer capacity-controlled, three-day advance purchase fares on longer-haul flights to the West Coast.

Officials from Southwest Airlines, Muse Air's main competitor, could not be reached for comment on the new fares.

2 local motels listed in latest travel guide

Two Snyder motels, the Purple Sage and the Travelodge, have again been listed in the latest edition of the "Mobile Travel Guide."

These businesses were personally visited by a specially trained field representative, who followed a stringent checklist of more than 100 items under the major categories of service, decor, landscaping, maintenance, food, and hospitality. Thousands of letters and comments the "Mobil Travel Guide" receives each year from the traveling public are also considered in the ratings.

All guide ratings are updated annually. This means an establishment's star rating can change from one year to another. And in any given year, about five percent of the establishments are dropped from the guide while about an equal number are added.

When the guide was first published in 1958, it covered only the Southwest. During the next five years, coverage expanded to 48 states; today it includes California and the West, the Great Lakes area, the Middle Atlantic States, Northeast, the Northeast and Great Plains, Southeast, and South Central States. In addition the guide now covers 72 of the most traveled to cities and towns in the Canadian provinces that border the United States.

Travelers can save as much as 50 percent off the regular price to museums, cruises, and other attractions with the 24 discount certificates included in each regional edition of the guide. Each guide also has discount coupons for several motel chains.

Both the Purple Sage Motel and the Shack restaurant have guides for sale. They may also be purchased at bookstores.

Paul Harvey

Wise weather forecasters predict more bad weather than good for good reason. They figure you are happier when you are pleasantly surprised than when you are unpleasantly surprised.

Perhaps economists are traditionally gloomy for the same reason.

Not one economist, far as I know, anticipated the dimensions of our present boom.

Our nation's economy expanded the first quarter a whopping 10.1 percent.

Now the second quarter numbers are in--our economy grew another 7.5 percent.

And these numbers are adjusted for inflation.

Both figures exceeded anything government economists had projected.

Alan Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman-American Express, admits he's underestimated you.

Now, says Sinai, "we have strong growth, low inflation and stable interest--the best of all possible worlds."

President Reagan is able to campaign for re-election this fall with a record of economic achievement unparalleled by any president in this century.

Never has any president taken over an economy as weak as ours was and turned it 180 degrees in the other direction in four years. No, not even FDR.

Consumer prices between 1967 and 1983 multiplied 300 percent.

Our present inflation rate is between three and four percent.

For the first time in a generation our nation's economic growth is outpacing that of Germany and Japan.

During the Reagan years interest rates have declined by one-third.

Per capita hourly income of American workers--inflation-adjusted--has increased 1.5 percent.

The projected scenario for 1985 is a continued growth rate of 3 percent. Goldman-Sachs guesstimates 3.9 percent.

But other blue chip analysts are already hedging on the high side, with conditional predictions of double that growth rate.

The Federal Reserve has been properly concerned that our economy is growing too fast, overheating, stage-setting for another boom-bust cycle.

But the Fed, dutifully, has effectively checkreined any runaway.

The bottom line, as they say on Wall Street, is this: "Happy New Year."

Seven killed in collision

DAMON, Texas (AP) — Seven people, including five children, have died in a head-on collision north of this rural Southeast Texas community, the Texas Department of Public Safety says.

The identities of the victims were withheld pending notification of relatives, said a DPS spokeswoman who refused to give her name.

The collision occurred Thursday about 3:30 p.m. on Texas Highway 36, less than one mile north of Damon, about 30 miles southwest of Houston, the spokeswoman said.

Comal River now declared unsafe as swimming place

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — High bacteria levels have led officials to declare the the Comal River unsafe for swimming, and Mayor Barbara Tieken wants Comal County declared an economic disaster area.

Signs warning swimmers of "high bacteria levels" will be posted along the river route as soon as they are printed, city officials said Thursday.

The New Braunfels City Council, during an emergency meeting, also decided against chlorinating Landa Park Pool, closed for a week because of high fecal coliform bacteria levels, the San Antonio Light reported.

The entire river has been contaminated with fecal coliform, City Sanitarian Rick Lane said, with counts ranging from between 200 and 1,700 bacterial colonies per 100 mililiter sample.

"We are not a public health menace, but we do need to take precautions," Tieken said. "We have a moral obligation to post these signs."

Tieken said she will ask Comal County Judge Fred Clark to begin the process of having the county declared a disaster area by Gov. Mark White.

New Braunfels' all-important tourist industry has been hit hard by the summer drought, with area businessmen reporting a 25 percent to 80 percent drop in revenue.

The Light said the signs, affixed with the city's seal and posted at six to eight locations along the two-mile route of the Comal River, will read: "Warning – Swim at your own risk. High bacteria levels. – Health Department."

The council acted on the recommendations of City Manager Joe A. Michie, who met for more than two hours with Texas Department of Health sanitation officials before Thursday's emergency meeting.

State health officals have already issued a warning that many bodies of water in drought-stricken Texas, because of low levels, sluggish flow and high temperatures, can promote the growth of dangerous organisms.

Mexico's president plays helpful role

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Instead of the spectacular worldwide globetrotting his predecessors favored, President Miguel de la Madrid has placed his foreign policy emphasis on his Latin American neighbors.

The quiet approach now is gaining Mexico praise on the international diplomatic scene.

No example shows it better than the U.S.-Nicaraguan talks, which started in June after a long refusal for the two nations to talk about their strained relations. The third in a series of meetings between Harry Shlaudeman, U.S. special envoy to Central America, and Nicaraguan Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco ended Wednesday night in Mexico's Pacific resort of Manzanillo.

The talks at the exclusive Villa Santiago Club, 524 miles northwest of Mexico City, are taking place under tight security and in complete silence about their progress.

The first session was held in Manzanillo June 25-26 and the second in Atlanta, Georgia, July 16. The latest was held Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mexico describes its host role as taking place "in order to lead to a bilateral understanding contributing effectively to regional peace."

Although Mexican officials doubt that the meetings will lead to any solutions in the tense relations between the United States and Nicaragua, there is some satisfaction that at least the two sides are talking again.

The U.S. State Department said last month that Mexico is playing an "active and positive role" in the diplomatic effort to bring peace to Central America.

The statement by deputy spokesman Alan Romberg was prompted by a published account noting Mexico recently backed away from its strong support for Nicaragua and the Salvadoran insurgents.

De la Madrid, in a recent interview with the major Mexico City newspaper Excelsior, issued a rare criticism of Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government by saying it should diversify its international contacts.

He also referred to the East-West conflict as playing a part in Central America, a variation from the usual Mexican insistence that violence there is due to social and economic inequality. The Reagan administration maintains Soviet and Cuban influence is the main cause.

Yet Mexican officials strongly resist any attempt to categorize their actions as any fundamental change in foreign policy, that they say always will emphasis self-determination and non-intervention.

Although cynics suggest the government's global diplomacy can be a useful distraction from domestic problems, what one analyst described as its independent "homegrown nationalism" has deep roots in Mexican history.

Mexico takes pride in its international role. De la Madrid has spoken, for example, of the country's "distinguished and effective" international presence.

The Latin American emphasis, which de la Madrid announced from the start of his term, was certified last spring when he made his first trip abroad since taking office in December 1982.

It was a trip to Brazil, Argentina, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama. The last three are the countries that along with Mexico formed the Contadora group in January 1983 in an attempt to find a peaceful solution to Central American tensions.

De la Madrid followed that with trips to Canada and the United States.

During their six-year presidential terms, Luis Echeverria and Jose Lopez Portillo sought leadership positions in the Third World and often made strong statements that irritated Washington.

Under Lopez Portillo, Mexico took an often outspoken role linked to its newfound oil wealth. Most notably, a joint Mexican-France declaration issued in 1981 recognized as a political force the leftist guerrillas fighting the U.S.-supported government in El Salvador.

A Western political analyst, who did not want to be identified, said de la Madrid's administration is in contrast "activist ...but in a way that's more subdued. It's not flamboyant."

During de la Madrid's May meetings in Washington with President Reagan, according to U.S. officials, the idea was planted for Secretary of State George P. Shultz's surprise June 1 visit to Managua, Nicaragua.

The same day as the Shultz visit — the first high-level contact between the United States and Nicaragua since December 1981 — Mexican Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda attended the inauguration of President Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador.

Mexico had maintained a clear distance from the U.S.-supported Salvadoran government almost from the start of its 4½-year civil war, and Sepulveda's presence was considered a major step towards reconciliation.

Judge orders rancher to pay Seattle bank

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has ordered millionaire rancher Clinton Manges to pay more than $2.2 million to a Seattle bank as part of the bank's $45 million lawsuit against the rancher.

U.S. District Judge Edward Prado ruled Manges, his wife Helen Manges, and their Duval County Ranch Co. must pay Seattle First National Bank the $2.2 million, which includes $93,000 in interest.

The ruling Thursday came as a result of the bank's motion seeking partial summary judgment on a letter of credit obtained by the defendants in 1983.

Manges' attorney Marynell Maloney called the ruling "terribly wrong."

Mrs. Maloney said Manges' counterclaim against the bank alleges the institution overcharged her clients by misstating the prime interest rate.

A spokeswoman in Prado's office said the judge's ruling is final on the letter of credit.

Prado in December ruled Manges owes the balance on all five notes at issue in the lawsuit. However, the amount of interest on those notes is still in dispute.

Ant colonies are female societies, and all worker ants are female. The only job of the drone males, when they mature, is to mate briefly with a young queen ant.

Jobless rate rises, surprises experts

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas unemployment rate showed a sharp rise in July, jumping from 4.8 percent to 6.1 percent in a month.

"The news is not good," said Nick Santangelo, the chief economic analyst for the U.S. Department of Labor in Dallas.

The latest government statistics, which were released Friday, show that 495,000 Texans out of a total labor force of 8.1 million, were without jobs.

"We're surprised by the amount but I'm not ready to attach any significance to it," Santangelo said.

Overall, Santangelo said, the economic picture is still good. He said there there are 566,000 more people working and 115,000 less unemployed than in July 1983.

"The unemployment rate has fallen 1.9 percent since same time last year," he said. "On the whole the Texas labor market continues to show improvement over the long-term."

Santangelo said the last rise in the Texas unemployment rate was in April, when it rose .3 of a percent to 6.8 percent from 6.5 percent in March.

"Month to month there is a little volatility in the Texas numbers," he said. "You just cannot place any economic significance in those kinds of ups and downs."

The Texas rate took the same upward path as the national rate, which rose to 7.5 percent in July, the first national increase in 20 months.

Santangelo said the jobless rate normally rises in the summer, when youthful and parttime jobseekers enter the labor market.

ATTENTION RETAILERS!
...are co-op advertising dollars slipping through your fingers?

Are you missing out on co-op advertising funds that are available to you? Did you know that co-op advertising help from many of your manufacturers and suppliers can pay anywhere from half to all of your advertising costs? Every year manufacturers and suppliers make millions of dollars available to retailers, yet a good part of that help is lost because many retailers are not even aware of the fact that this money is available to them. Our advertising staff has been especially trained to help you locate hidden co-op opportunities. They will help you prepare your ads, supply you with attractive, attention compelling art, write your copy and put it all together in an eye-catching layout. Our staff can produce results for you, and best of all, the co-op available to you can pay as much as 100% of the costs. Don't let co-op money slip through your fingers. It is really your money and if you don't use it, you'll lose it and all the potential sales that it can produce. Call your local newspaper advertising representative now and take advantage of the hard-hitting results this paper can generate. If you're not already advertising and using valuable co-op dollars, we'll show you how co-op can stretch your promotional budget and, at times, pay the entire bill.

Your Birthday

Aug. 4, 1984

This coming year you will be very successful in situations where you are strongly motivated to provide more for those you love. Place the needs of others above your own.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you entertain at your place today it will be the warmth of your hospitality that will count, not how much money your feel you must spend on food or drink. Major changes are in store for Leos in the coming year. Send for your year ahead predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Normally, when you start something, you're inclined to follow it through to a successful conclusion, but today this worthy trait may be ignored.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A friend may come to you today with a proposition that initially sounds sensational, but when studied in detail, it may prove to be silly or expensive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Persons with whom you pal around today will have a considerable influence over your spending. If they're extravagant, you'll follow suit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Success may elude you today because you'll be too easily distracted from pursuing goals to which you should give your full attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not permit your pride to cause you to pretend you know something about a subject when, in truth, you know little. You'll be embarrassed if challenged.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to keep something confidential today, it may be, necessary for you to avoid the company of a friend who has an insatiable curiosity.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Two of your pals may have a dispute today. Don't be placed in the awkward position of having to side with one against the other.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you hope to reap rewards from your work and efforts today, make haste slowly. Select patience as your partner, not speed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Move cautiously in joint ventures today, especially if the control of matters is not directly under your supervision. Keep an eye on your partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friction is a possibility on the homefront today if your promise to do things for your mate and then fail to carry through. Keep your word.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best today that you don't play around with tools or gadgets you can't operate to well. You could create more work than your accomplish.

Officials: inmates will stay locked in cells for safety

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — As violence spread in the state's prison system, a prison spokesman said 700 inmates at the Texas Department of Corrections' Coffield Unit will remain locked in their cells until officials determine its safe for them to come out.

"We're going to try to get that place clean," TDC spokesman Charles Brown said Thursday, a day after four Coffield inmates were stabbed. "We have an obligation to protect inmates," he said.

The 700 inmates locked down Wednesday were in one of two cellblocks where guards discovered 346 homemade knives and 143 other weapons in an overnight search July 19 and 20.

Two inmates were stabbed in other incidents Thursday, Brown said.

Inmate Bobby Wiley, 27, was stabbed in his right shoulder and the upper part of the left side of his back in a fight over a missing kitchen knife Thursday morning, Brown said. He said Wiley was not seriously injured.

A 29-year-old inmate serving a 10-year burglary sentence was being questioned, he said.

The fight in a kitchen of the Huntsville Ellis II Unit occurred about 9:45 a.m., Brown said. It broke out when the second inmate accused Wiley of taking a kitchen knife assigned to him. Wiley, serving a 45-year sentence for aggravated sexual assault, was also being questioned about the fight, Brown said.

Brown said officers did not know what started a fight at the Eastham Unit near Weldon at 9:05 a.m., but said it left 28-year-old Thomas Howard with stab wounds in his stomach and arm. Brown said Howard was transferred to the Huntsville Unit infirmary. He was stabbed with a weapon which appeared to be made from a fan guard, Brown said.

Howard is serving a 25-year sentence for theft from Hopkins County. A 22-year-old inmate serving a five-year term for two years of aggravated robbery was being questioned in the incident, Brown said.

The four inmates stabbed at Coffield were black and seven prisoners being questioned about the attack were Hispanic. Asked if the stabbings were racially motivated, TDC Director Ray Procunier said, "It looks like it. I don't know."

Three of the four men were hospitalized and another treated at the unit for stab wounds, Brown said.

Procunier said Wednesday "there's a hell of a potential for more violence" at the Coffield Unit. He said the inmate weapons problem is "astronomical."

Brown said the lockdown at the troubled Coffield Unit would continue indefinitely until warden Jack Garner is satisfied the prison is safe.

He also said 67 inmates were under severe restrictions at the Ferguson Unit, near Lovelady in Crockett County, after a prisoner who refused to go to classes punched guard Oscar Tisdale in the mouth.

A wing of the Ferguson Unit was partially locked down after Tisdale was punched by a prisoner, Brown said. One of the guard's teeth was knocked out and two others were chipped, he said.

Why some foods hurt the stomach

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a bad hiatal hernia and also ulcers. Do you have a diet that I can follow? Some people tell me I should not eat any lettuce, celery or cabbage or any things that are fibrous. My doctor told me that salads should not bother my hiatal hernia at all. I would like to know what you think. I just came home from the hospital a week ago because my hernia was bleeding into my stomach.

DEAR READER — Many doctors do believe that if you have an ulcer, that you should not eat fibrous material. The roughage is thought to be hard on the ulcerated area. Your bleeding from a hiatal hernia may mean that you had a small ulcer in the lower esophagus because of the chemical irritation from the backward leak associated with your hernia.

When the stomach herniates through the hole in the diaphragm, there is often an associated backward leak of stomach contents into the lower esophagus. This may cause "heartburn." This area, like the duodenum outside the stomach, is not well-protected against the acid contents of the stomach.

But I don't think a reasonable amount of salads or bulk will harm your esophageal irritation or ulcer. It is more important to take measures to neutralize the acid from your stomach and to follow a lifestyle that minimizes any backward leakage into the lower esophagus.

I'm sending you The Health Letter 4-8, Hiatal Hernia: Esophageal Reflux, to help you with this. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It is important to eat small meals and to give your stomach time to empty before lying down. And you should be propped up to minimize any leakage of stomach contents. Your last meal of the day should contain very little fat. Fat slows stomach emptying, and you want your stomach as empty as possible when you lie down.

Of course, you should avoid foods that irritate your stomach or those that increase acid production. Coffee, tea and colas are often offenders and should be avoided. So should alcohol and cigarettes.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My problem is that I am oversexed. I am 76 and have a good heart and normal blood pressure. Usually my wife and I keep our sexual relations to once a week, but at times I get the urge after two or three days.

Would such frequency be detrimental to my health?

DEAR READER — Whether it is detrimental to your health or not may depend on what your wife thinks about it. Frequency varies widely at all ages. Often one partner is more interested in sex than the other one. That can lead to conflicts that are resolved when each person considers the other's needs.

From a health point of view, there is no way that having sex more often could be harmful to you if you have no problems in having relations once a week. You prove each week that your heart and circulation is ot adversely affected by it. Many healthy people your age have sex more often than once a week.

Even after a man has lost his ability to have sex for any number of reasons, he doesn't lose his desire. It becomes a situation of the mind being willing but the flesh is weak.

Unless you develop some medical problems I wouldn't worry about it. Enjoy life and your marriage.

SCS staff might be cut back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soil Conservation Service is considering moving about a third of the employees in its state offices into 10 regional offices in order to save about $2 million a year, agency officials say.

But Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Texas, who is organizing congressional opposition to the plan, argues that, "It just gets back to that old axiom, if it ain't broke don't fix it."

Lee Shields, acting information director of the Soil Conservation Service, said the study was the result of recommendations from the Grace Commission appointed by President Reagan to come up with ideas for improving federal cost efficiency.

The Office of Management and Budget recommended consolidating the agency's administrative employees in the 10 existing federal regional centers, Shields said. But he added that, "we haven't necessarily bought off on that."

The Soil Conservation Service, created in 1935, provides technical and financial assistance to farmers, ranchers and local governments for programs to increase agriculture productivity, reduce soil erosin and preserve water quality. The programs are carried out through 2,950 conservation district offices within the states.

Personnel director Ken Novak said of the approximately 2,500 employees now working in state offices, about 800 would be asked to move to regional offices under the proposal.

He estimated the change would save about $2 million a year because fewer employees would be required to handle contracts, personnel and property management. He said no one would be fired, but "we know that some people are not going to be able to move" and others would opt to retire.

Leath says the change would result in "false economy" by trading cheap office space in smaller cities for more expensive space in big cities, and would unnecessarily uproot employees.

'Hill Street Blues' earns nominations

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After NBC's "Hill Street Blues" scooped up 18 Emmy nominations, executive director Steven Bochco laughed and asked, "How do you spell whoopee?"

The show which nabs Emmy awards as readily as its roughhouse cops collar suspects won another lopsided victory Thursday as it dominated the nominations for the fourth straight year.

Since 1981 the gritty police drama has gotten 77 nominations and collected 20 awards, making it one of the most honored series in the history of television.

"The Day After," ABC's nightmarish story of nuclear holocaust that drew a record TV movie audience of 100 million, received 12 nominations from the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, as did NBC's witty barroom comedy "Cheers."

NBC, third in the ratings, once again led all the networks with 98 nominations. CBS had 87 nominations and ABC had 72. PBS received 30, 25 went to syndicated shows and one to Operation Prime Time, which produces special programs for independent stations.

Three shows each got 11 nominations: NBC's medical drama "St. Elsewhere," ABC's remake of Tennessee Williams' steamy drama "A Streetcar Named Desire," and "Fame," the singing, dancing drama that found new life in syndication after it was dropped by NBC.

Ann-Margret of "A Streetcar Named Desire" and Jane Fonda, in her first television drama, ABC's "The Dollmaker," were in one of the tightest races for best lead actress in a limited series or special. Also vying for the award were Glenn Close of ABC's "Something About Amelia," JoBeth Williams of NBC's "Adam," and Jane Alexander of CBS' "Calamity Jane."

The Emmy awards will be presented in ceremonies at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium on Sunday, Sept. 23, to be telecast by CBS. Carol Burnett, a five-time Emmy winner, will be the host.

Rains won't ease water conservation

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Despite six consecutive days of rain that have eased effects a drought in this thirsty city, the amount of precipitation is not enought to lift a mandatory water conservation plan, officials say.

Early Thursday 1.55-inches of rain were recorded, the largest since Oct. 20, 1983 when the city had a 1.73-inch downpour.

Gold winner beat cancer too

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Peter Vidmar wasn't quite the Golden Boy he hoped he'd be. But Jeff Blatnick, living a nightmare only two years ago, achieved the dream of his life.

Vidmar was hoping to match the U.S. men's gymnastics team feat of a gold medal with one of his own Thursday night. But the 23-year-old blond from Los Angeles settled for silver instead as Japan's Koji Gushiken won the individual all-around championship. Gushiken was in tears as he completed his performance.

Blatnick was in tears, too — but he had much more to be thankful for than just a gold medal in superheavyweight Greco-Roman wrestling. The 27-year-old from Niskayuna, N.Y., who celebrated his birthday just a week ago, climaxed a journey which began when he battled back from Hodgkin's disease, a form of cancer.

After five days of competition, track and field, the keystone of the Olympics, gets under way today. Carl Lewis and Edwin Moses, a pair of American medal favorites, make their first appearances, Lewis in two 100-meter heats, Moses in a 400-meter hurdles preliminary.

The 20-kilometer walk and women's shot put medals will be awarded tonight, as will be the gold in the women's all-around individual gymnastics championship. Mary Lou Retton of Fairmont, W. Va., leads Romania's Ecaterina Szabo 79.05-78.75.

The gold will also be handed out today in the 1,000-meter sprint cycling, and an American will get it — either Mark Gorski of Costa Mesa, Calif., or Nelson Vails of New York. They won their semifinal heats Thursday to set up the first all-American final in the history of Olympic cycling.

The United States began today's competition with 37 medals, 22 of them gold. China is second with 15 medals including seven gold.

U.S. swimmers resumed their competition Thursday and, although not nearly as dominating as they were when they swept all five of Tuesday's available golds, they did win three races, setting a world record in one.

Mary T. Meagher of Louisville, Ky., won the women's 100-meter butterfly in 59.26 seconds to the 1 minute, 0.19 seconds by runnerup Jenna Johnson of La Habra, Calif. George DiCarlo of Denver captured the men's 400 freestyle in 3:51.23. And Rowdy Gaines of Winter Haven, Fla., won his second gold, anchoring the men's 400 freestyle relay team to a world-record 3:19.03.

Victor Davis of Canada and Petra Van Staveren of the Netherlands applied the brakes to the American gold rush, Davis breaking his world mark with 2:13.34 in the 200 breaststroke and Van Staveren winning the women's 100 breaststroke in an Olympic-record 1:09.88.

U.S. swimmers now have won 14 gold medals in 19 events. With 10 golds to go, they have a good shot at eclipsing their Olympic record of 21 golds, won in the 1968 Mexico City Games.

In Thursday's other events:

— A flotilla of American rowers reached the finals and the French team's eight-man shell, apparently sabotaged, was given a berth in Sunday's final.

— Cheryl Miller of the University of Southern California scored 16 points to lead the U.S. women's basketball team to an 84-47 thumping of South Korea.

— The U.S. water polo team beat Brazil 10-4, the American baseball team plastered Italy 16-1 as Shane Mack of Cerritos, Calif., Will Clark Jr. of New Orleans and Oddibe McDowell of Hollywood, Fla., homered in a nine-run first inning, and the U.S. men's volleyball team swept South Korea 15-13, 15-9, 15-6.

Pass-catch act give south 'stars win

HOUSTON (AP) — South quarterback Shannon Kelley and receiver Kevin Nelson will continue their pass-catch act this fall at the University of Texas.

But they gave a sneak preview in the Astrodome Thursday night of what Longhorn opponents can expect as Kelley threw two touchdown passes and Nelson caught two TD throws as the South defeated the North 27-7 in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star football game.

Kelly, from Spring Branch Memorial, hit touchdown shots of 27 and 14 yards to future University of Houston receiver Mike Rhodes of Aldine and Nelson hauled in scoring catches of eight and four years from Mark Motley of Ore City.

"The way everything was clicking in practice I knew everything would be good come game-time," said Kelly, who completed 15 of 25 passes for 173 yards and earned the game's most valuable back honor.

Kelley, from Spring Branch Memorial, said he and Nelson kept in touch during recruiting season.

"We wanted to know what each one was going to do," Kelley said. "We wanted to load the bus and take it to Texas and win the national championship."

Nelson, from Stafford Dulles, caught nine passes for 67 yards

"This offense was kind of like a run and shoot offense," Nelson said. "We did a lot of hard practicing this week. I was reading the defensive backs and going the opposite way."

Cowboy exhibition won't give answer

IRVING (AP) — Hometown homecoming of sorts. The former fans get their first look at this Cincinnati Bengals head coach who signed on with Green Bay after Bart Starr was fired was born in Birthright, Texas, about 90 miles outside Dallas, and played football for both Southern Methodist University in Dallas and the Cowboys.

year's version of the Dallas Cowboys quarterback controversy Saturday night, but Coach Tom Landry says his decision on a starter won't rest on one exhibition game.

The Cowboys open their exhibition season against Green Bay in the debut of the Packers new head coach, Forrest Gregg.

Throughout training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif., all eyes have been on the two contenders for the Cowboys starting quarterback job — incumbent Danny White and challenger Gary Hogeboom.

Last year, Landry declared White the winner of the competition, a decision some players who favored the strong-armed Hogeboom openly criticized. The starting job went to White after the second pre-season game.

"I don't know how important a game it is for them," Landry said of the Green Bay game. "If I would make a decision on a quarterback, it would come sometime down the way. It won't be a play-by-play or game-by-game description."

Landry said his decision won't be based on statistics, but on what "looks best for the team at that moment."

The Cowboys, who lost nine veterans to retirements and trades during the off-season, have been without veteran All-Pro defensive lineman Randy White, a contract holdout and training camp no-show.

White's absence, too, has brought controversy to the team. Players have staged protests on his behalf during training camp.

For Gregg, the game is a homecoming of sorts. The former Cincinnati Bengals head coach who signed on with Green Bay after Bart Starr was fired was born in Birthright, Texas, about 90 miles outside Dallas, and played football for both Southern Methodist University in Dallas and the Cowboys.

Gregg, who played most of his pro years with the Packers, said his team is still adapting to the new offensive and defensive systems he has put in place.

"As a team, I think we've made progress but we still have a long way to go," Gregg said. "We're starting to get a feel for our personnel but, in a lot of cases, we can't make decisions on backups. By no stretch of the imagination is it clear right now who will be here."

The lineup Gregg will put on the field for the start of the 8 p.m. CST game will be essentially the same as last year, with veterans Lynn Dickey at quarterback, James Lofton at split end, John Jefferson at flanker and Paul Coffman at tight end.

Shares Memphis lead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Willie Wood had a share of the lead and some more familiar tools when he set out for the second round of the $500,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic.

Wood, the slightly-built rookie called "Wee Willie" by his fellow tourists, got maximum mileage from a backup wedge and a borrowed putter when he scrambled to a 5-under-par 67 and tied Loren Roberts for the first round lead Thursday.

Using those unfamiliar weapons, he got up and down for par five times, chipped in once and made but a single bogey.

"I didn't hit the ball all that well, but I scrambled real well — and that's a surprise considering I thought I'd lost my sand wedge and putter," said the 5-foot-7, 135-pound Wood.

But Willie's putter and sand wedge, were not lost, only misplaced. They were located in the locker room shortly after he completed first-round play on the longer, tougher Colonial Country Club course and were happily returned to his bag.

"I've used 'em for seven years and I'm glad to get 'em back," said Wood, a runner-up in the recent Anheuser-Busch Classic. "I'm surprised I scrambled as well as I did with a new putter and wedge."

The wedge, he said, was a backup he carries with him and the putter was borrowed from a member's bag.

Ump's family can't collect

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Survivors of a baseball umpire killed in a June 1982 traffic accident in Texas cannot collect workmen's compensation benefits in Arizona, the state Court of Appeals has ruled.

The court ruled unanimously Tuesday that although Lou DiMuro of Tucson had umpired spring-training games in Arizona, the state was not the principal place of his employment.

DiMuro, 51, an American League umpire for 19 years, died June 6, 1982, after umpiring a Texas-Chicago game in Arlington.

His survivors had asked the Court of Appeals to overturn an Arizona Industrial Commission ruling that denied their claim for benefits.

Top recruit jailed

DALLAS (AP) — A top schoolboy football player recruited by the University of Texas was jailed here today following his arrest in connection with the armed robbery of a gasoline station in suburban Mesquite, police said.

Charles Washington, one of the state's top schoolboy players of last season, was being held in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center in lieu of $10,000 bond on two counts of aggravated robbery, according to Mesquite Detective Gary Westphal.

Judge George Boyce set bond at $5,000 on each charge for Washington and Charles Bowman, 17, who was arrested with Washington.

Westphal quoted a station employee as saying a young man came in, pulled a pistol and demanded cash. Westphal said the employee gave the man $3,600.

Westphal said several witnesses gave detailed descriptions of Washington. The service station attendant, who was not identified, had been active in high school athletics and recognized Washington, Westphal said.

Washington and Bowman were arrested about seven hours after the robbery.

Westphal said police recovered about $2,400 in cash and found a receipt showing that a $655 car stereo had been installed earlier Thursday in the car in which they were driving.
