How's that? Flashing light

Q. The traffic light at the intersection of 18th and Goliad has been changed to a flashing light. Why?

A. The city council changed the light at its last meeting because school at Goliad was out. The signal is now a flashing red light for 18th Street traffic and a flashing yellow for Goliad traffic. The light will change again when school starts in the fall.

Hijacked: Day 9

Shiites denounce America

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two American hijack hostages may be freed because of illness, officials said Friday. At the airport, near the TWA jet, hundreds of Shiite Moslem radicals shouted praise to the "heroes of Islam" who seized it.

The demonstrators chanted "Death to America! Death to Reagan! Death to Israel!" in a scene reminiscent of the Iranian hostage crisis that ended in 1981. Many carried huge posters of Iran's fundamentalist Shiite leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

People in the crowd stamped on American and Israeli flags and set them afire to a chorus of triumph-chants.

Friday marked one week since two young Shiite gunmen seized the Boeing 727 on an Athens-Rome flight, demanding the release of hundreds of Shiite prisoners Israeli forces took prisoner during their withdrawal from south Lebanon.

Israel has said it plans to release the prisoners when the situation is calmer in south Lebanon, from which it completed its withdrawal earlier this month. Both the United States and Israel have refused to negotiate with those holding the hostages.

All the 40 remaining hostages held are Americans. Three crewmen are aboard the plane and 37 passengers are held at various points in and around Beirut by members of the Shiite militia Amal.

Holy cow! Rain kills ranchers' beef

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

For once, the grass looks greener on their side of the fence, say area ranchers.

Area pastures are still short of grass, but are beginning to recover from a severe two-year drought, Howard County Agricultural Extension Agent Don Richardson said this week.

But rangeland may take two to four years to return to the shape it was in before the drought struck West Texas, according to agricultural officials and ranchers.

"We've had enough rain to fill up the tanks," said David Newton, who ranches in Howard and Sterling County. "The grass is continuing to come in. But it will take two to three years to be back to normal. That's two to three good years of rainfall."

Pastures along the Borden and Howard county line are "holding up real good," said Bill Wilson. "I've gotten 35 inches of rain since Sept. 25 last year. In the 11 months prior to that, I had 1 1/2 inches. One and a half inches!" Wilson's ranch is located 12 miles east of Vealmore, 16 miles south of Gail and 30 miles north of Big Spring — "in the middle of nowhere," he joked.

But ranches farther south in Sterling County received only enough moisture to "get the weeds up," said Russell Kott, the county agricultural extension agent there.

"We need rain real bad. We got a little last week, but we're still in a drought," Kott said.

Sterling County, now in its third year of drought, has received only 4 inches of rain this year; normally it would have 6 or 7 inches by this time, Kott said. "If we don't get some soon, we can pretty well say that's it until probably September."

Much of the county's livestock has been shipped into Oklahoma and New Mexico. Ranchers still have about half of their usual number of sheep on their land in Sterling County, Kott said. "The sheep are taking it a whole lot better. The sheep can eat weeds," he said.

Even in Howard County, where the rainfall is running about 3 to 4 inches above average, "it will take another year for pastures to recover," said Leland Wallace, who hosted an

Reagan roars at tax system

Tells Texas Lions convention laws are a 'Rubik's Cube'

DALLAS (AP) — President Reagan, campaigning for his "fair share" tax plan, said today the current tax system amounts to "the federal government's version of Rubik's Cube."

"It's a game that most of us never figure out and few of us win," he said in a speech prepared for the annual convention of Lions-International.

Reagan's plan would replace the present 14 brackets with three rates of 15, 25 and 35 percent. It would also double the personal exemption and eliminate or reduce a number of deductions.

"I like to think of our proposal as a fair-share tax because it will mean greater fairness and new opportunity for every income group in every region of America," the president said.

The president made no reference to the hostage crisis in his prepared remarks.

Noting the international composition of the Lions organization, Reagan said, "I hope those of you who are here from other countries will carry this message back to your people: We have no desire to live as an island of plenty. We will be satisfied with nothing less than a worldwide recovery."

In addition to his tax pitch, Reagan lauded the U.S. record of "helping the unfortunate in other countries," especially in drought-stricken Africa, and said the record of the Soviet Union in this regard is "a disgrace."

"It seems, with all their sloganeering, about the only things communist countries produce in quantity are misery, weapons and aggression," he said.

"The record of humanitarian assistance provided by the Soviet-bloc governments, even to their own allies, is a disgrace, and the world, especially the developing world, should know about it," the president added.

On Thursday, Reagan mostly declined to answer as reporters tried to question him about the hostage situation as he posed for pictures in the Oval Office before meeting with Alexandre Hay, president of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Oil tax pumps protest

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Energy Secretary John S. Herrington conceded Friday that independent oil and gas companies would be harder hit by the Reagan administration's tax reform plan than major oil and gas companies.

In testimony before a Senate subcommittee, Herrington said taxes for major oil companies would decline slightly under the plan while "independents will experience a slight increase from current law in the effective tax rate on exploration and drilling."

Before the same subcommittee, a spokesman for independent oil and gas operators said the number of drilling rigs had declined 39 percent nationally in the past seven months, largely in response to Reagan's tax reform plans.

Lloyd Unsell, executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said the drop in operating rigs amounted to the largest decline in history for the same time period.

"This is an indication of the sensitivity of investors in domestic petroleum exploration to the Treasury proposals to change historic tax incentives that have been imbedded in the industry's economy for seven decades," Unsell told the Senate Subcommittee on Energy and Agricultural Taxation.

The Treasury Department's original tax simplification plan last November would have wiped out almost all the industry's oil and gas tax incentives. Reagan's final plan, however, would keep the major incentives for oil and gas drilling deductions while eliminating the percentage depletion allowance except for small stripper well producers.

Independent oil and gas companies would be hurt worse than major companies by the plan primarily because of the elimination of most of the depletion allowance, available only to independents, Herrington said.

Friday's hearing before the subcommittee covered the broad range of issues related to the effect of taxation on all segments of the energy industry, from renewable energy sources to oil, gas and coal. The bulk of the hearing focused on the oil and gas incentives, considered one of the most controversial parts of the reform plan.

Herrington and a Treasury Department official defended Reagan's position on the industry's incentives, primarily on the basis of national security.

"The overriding issue on oil and gas is national security because of our dependence" on the petroleum industry, said Herrington. "This industry has to remain viable," he said.

Couple injured in collision

A San Angelo couple was injured Friday morning in a two-vehicle collision at the intersection of W. Third and Lancaster, according to police reports. Injured were Clyde Othell Webb, 71, and Edna Garvin, 69, both of San Angelo. Both were treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said. The driver of the other car, Jimmy Russell Davis, 42, of Lamesa was not injured, according to the police report.

Davis was traveling west in the left lane of the 300 block of E. Third in his 1985 blue Ford Explorer F-150 when the accident occurred at 10:44 a.m. The driver of the other vehicle, Webb, was headed west on E. Third in the center lane. He was driving a 1978 blue Pontiac Catalina, the report stated.

According to the report, Webb attempted to make a left turn onto Lancaster from the wrong lane and the two cars collided.

Ballpark must be moved

The City Parks and Recreation Board will meet at 5 p.m. Monday to discuss efforts to relocate Johnny Stone Ballpark. Board members will hear a committee report on the relocation, which must be completed within a year. Also on the agenda are recommendations for new policies on reservations at the Figure Seven Tennis Center, large out-of-town groups at the Comanche Trail Golf Course, and new closing hours at Comanche Trail Park. The board also will discuss accessibility to the Old Settlers Pavilion, whether to grant special swimming pool and tennis center rates to the Girl Scout Day Camp and designation of two pavilions at Moss Creek Lake for reserved use.

Apartment burglars snatch TV

Burglars took a 13-inch color television set, valued at $269, from a rear apartment at 500 Young, according to police reports. Debora McKown told police the burglary occurred between 6:30 a.m. and 12:40 p.m. Friday. Burglars also damaged a window screen when they entered the house. Freda Dominguez of 1605 Canary told police a boy assaulted her juvenile son in a fight in a Big Spring High School hallway at 1601 W. 11th Place. The fight occurred at 11 a.m. Friday. According to the police report, the boy was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital, where he was treated for a cut lip and a bruised head. Police Friday morning arrested Danny Eugene Hull, 21, of 2911 W. Highway 80 at the intersection of Simler and Avenue C on suspicion of driving while license is suspended. Hull was stopped by a patrolman because of an expired inspection sticker, according to a report.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., co-author of a separate tax reform plan in Congress that would repeal all of the industry's tax deductions, accused the Reagan administration of taking an attitude on oil and gas tax policy of "draining America first." Bradley and a representative for environmental groups criticized Reagan's plan to retain the percentage depletion allowance for small stripper wells that produce less than 10 barrels of oil per day. "As a subsidy for uneconomic oil and gas wells, percentage depletion is in reality a Drain America First" policy which promises to make future generations more dependent upon foreign oil," said

Richard E. Morgan with Environmental Action. But Herrington strongly defended stripper well production and noted that stripper wells provide about 10 percent of the country's oil and gas. "If stripper wells lose the depletion allowance, 10 percent of our production would automatically shut down. That's not arguable," said Herrington. Deputy Assistant Treasury Secretary J. Roger Mentz described oil and gas provisions of the tax plan as "a very very important part of the president's proposal." He said Reagan "agonized" over oil and gas tax policy before making decisions on oil and gas last month for the final plan.

extension service rancher's breakfast at his place five miles north of Big Spring on Snyder Highway. "The grass is so thin," he said. "We're fixing to take all the cattle off and have them graze in fields. We'll graze them on winter wheat." But the cattle are a different story, he said. "The cattle are as fat as they've ever been in our lives. We don't recognize them." "The last two years you'd drive into the pastures and they'd come up to you. Now they've got so much to eat they won't recognize us," Wallace said. "We used to have them eat out of our hands sometimes (during the drought). It's nice to have them just look at you when you drive into the pasture. It's been dry so long," said Mrs. Wallace. Because many ranchers sold cattle or shipped them out of the area during the height of the drought, their herds are only half the usual size. Rebuilding is "very, very slow," said Richardson. "They can't rebuild too much or they'll be overstocked. They realize they don't have the grass." A lot of ranchers are grazing temporary, or stocker, cattle on their land this summer, he said. "They're trying to get the ranges to recover before going into a long-term cow-calf operation. Some will never get back into that again," Richardson said. Newton said his Hereford cow-calf operation in Howard County had 700 cows before the drought; his herd is down to 350 to 400 head. "It (rebuilding or restocking herd) is a slow operation," one that could take two to three years, Newton said. He plans to raise all of his ranch's replacements. "We had to sell a lot of cattle, cattle you don't feel like you can replace." Newton said he has spent his life raising Herefords, like his father-in-law and father before him. "It's hard to sell out and start over again." Like Newton, Wallace and Wilson are at "half stock," and plan to raise their own replacement cattle. Wilson said he had 500 mother cows; now he has 250 to 300 head on his 15,000 acres. Newton's sheep also are doing well, grazing on winter weeds that the cattle won't eat. "That helped carry the pasture," he said. The lamb market is good, he said, but all the ranchers and county agents said prices for cattle were not good. "The stocker calves are taking a ride (on price) because so many (farmers) are converting from cotton to cattle," said Wallace. "The market is sliding daily," said Richardson. According to him, the price for heavier calves, 600 to 700 pounds, has dropped 6 to 10 cents a pound. However, lighterweight calves — 300 to 400 pounds — are holding their own. Newton said stockers don't want to buy some of the bigger, fatter calves. "You've got to lose (weight), then fatten the cow back up."

They said Claude Whitmoyer, who is from Severn, Md., and in his late 30s, also might be freed for medical treatment, but they had no information on his illness. In the United States, the relatives of another hostage with a similar name — Simon Grossmayer, 57, of Algonquin, Ill. — said he has only one lung and his health could be at risk. Palmer was reported taken to a hospital. "The State Department called me and said he had been taken to American University Hospital and he was going to have a checkup," one of Palmer's sons, John, 21, said in Little Rock. Five of the hostages were brought to an airport news conference Thursday. They said all 37 were being well treated, they did not believe their captors intended to kill them, and beseeched the United States not to attempt a rescue mission.

Weather

Local

It's cool to have a pool this time of year, when hot weather causes Southern belles to develop a "case of the vapors." Temperatures flirting with the 100 degree mark have staked the Plains with the advent of the summer solstice. Highs and lows will be 98 and 65 on the average, but there's a 20 percent chance of rain Sunday night and Monday.

State

Rain and a few heavy thunderstorms Friday covered east and southeast portions of Texas, while skies were partly cloudy elsewhere in the Lone Star State. A weak cold front edging into the northern High Plains coupled with the heat prompted the National Weather Service to issue a severe thunderstorm watch Friday effective until midnight for the northeastern Panhandle. Temperatures mostly were in the upper 80s and middle 90s, except in Southeast Texas where readings were in the 70s. Thunderstorms also were reported in the Davis Mountains and the High Plains. The tropical disturbance spread across the South Texas coastal plains near Kingsville, the weather service said. Galveston had 1.40 inches of rain by 4 p.m. Friday, and it also was the coolest spot with 73 degrees, the weather service said. It was 99 degrees in Wink. The forecast for North Texas calls for partly cloudy skies with scattered showers and thunderstorms. It also should be warm and humid through Sunday. The overnight lows should be in the middle 70s, and the highs should be in upper 80s and lower 90s. South Texas should be partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday with scattered thundershowers. The lows Saturday night should be in the 70s, and the highs both days should be in the upper 80s to the mid 90s. West Texas should be partly cloudy through Sunday with isolated thunderstorms in the Panhandle on Saturday. The lows Saturday night should range from the middle 60s to the lower 70s. Highs Saturday and Sunday should range from the 90s to 104 degrees.

Nation

Thunderstorms and hail pounded Minnesota and North Dakota on Friday, while at least five southeastern states reported record-cold temperatures for the first day of summer. Less severe thunderstorms and showers moved over New Hampshire, Maine, the Gulf coast and portions of Kansas and Missouri. Fair skies prevailed over the western third of nation, while clouds covered much of the Atlantic coast. Marble-sized hail pelted Grand Marais, Minn., and Kathryn, N.D. The storms brought sudden heavy rains to both states, with 2.15 inches of rain falling in Dickey, N.D., in 20 minutes. Record-low temperatures for the day were recorded in Asheville, N.C., where the low of 49 was below the 50-degree mark set in 1966; Athens, Ga., where 56 broke the 1926 record of 58; Greenville and Spartanburg, S.C., where 57 dropped the 1976 record of 58; Knoxville, Tenn., where 51 eclipsed the 1912 mark of 55 and Montgomery, Ala., where 61 broke the 1966 record of 63. The low temperature for the nation was 35 degrees at Jackson, Wyo.

Forecast

WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy through Sunday with scattered thunderstorms. Lows Saturday night in the 60s and 70s. Highs Saturday and Sunday in the 90s and 100s.

Gov. Hance, I presume?

DALLAS (AP) — An advance for President Reagan mistook former Rep. Kent Hance for Gov. Mark White Friday morning as they waited with other dignitaries at the U.S. Naval Station in suburban Grand Prairie to greet the president upon his arrival to Dallas. "As the advance man walked up to me, I stuck out my hand. He looked me straight in the eye and said, 'Governor, you'll be over here,'" Hance recalled later. Hance, who recently switched parties and said several days ago he is "95 to 98 percent sure" he will seek the Republican nomination for governor in 1986, said White didn't find the exchange as amusing as he did. "He wants to be, but I am," White interrupted, according to Hance.

Marines returned for burial; leftists claim attack

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A little-known leftist guerrilla group claimed responsibility Friday for the massacre of four American Marines at a San Salvador cafe. U.S. officials eulogized the Marines as fighting "a war we cannot lose."

The Mardoqueo Cruz Urban Guerrilla Commandos, one of several guerrilla groups fighting the U.S.-supported government of President Jose Napoleon Duarte, issued a statement saying it carried out the attack.

The Marines were among 13 people, including two American businessmen, killed Wednesday night when six to 10 men wearing Salvadoran army uniforms opened fire with automatic weapons on patrons at two outdoor cafes in San Salvador's "Pink Zone," a strip of restaurants and clubs.

Earlier Friday, the flag-draped caskets of the slain Marines were put on a U.S. Air Force plane for the trip back to the United States.

"You have served your country well. We are proud of you. We have come to take you home," Robert E. Lamb, an assistant secretary of state, said at a brief airport ceremony.

"It is a different kind of war but nonetheless a war," he said.

The guerrilla battle, he said, "has no front. It is not easy to win but it is a war we cannot lose."

Duarte attended the ceremony at Ilopango military air base and said: "For we Salvadorans, this is a moment of sadness, the delivery of the bodies of these four men of honor."

The Marines' bodies were put aboard a C-140 transport plane that flew to Panama before going to the United States. It was to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base, outside Washington, D.C., on Saturday afternoon.

The White House announced that President Reagan would interrupt his weekend at Camp David, Md., to be at the base when the bodies arrive.

Shuttle tests Star Wars

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A pencil-thin laser beam of blue-green light stabbed 220 miles into space from a windy Hawaiian mountain peak on Friday and found an 8-inch mirror on Discovery in a successful first "Star Wars" test using the orbiting shuttle.

What started as a quarter-inch beam was 30 feet wide by the time it reached the shuttle. It bounced off a many-angled, 8-inch mirror in a hatch window and was reflected to its source on Mount Haleakala, a 9,954-foot volcano crater on the island of Maui.

Auto union talks stalled

MILWAUKEE — Contract talks between the United Auto Workers and American Motors Corp. recessed Friday, with the union expected to offer the automaker some counterproposals during the weekend to prevent the threatened closing of the nation's oldest operating auto plant.

AMC has set a June 28 deadline for reaching an agreement, after which it will begin closing its Wisconsin plants. Ray Majerus, UAW secretary-treasurer and the union's negotiator, said the company had offered a full set of proposals and the union would offer counterproposals during the weekend.

Judge orders abortion

SANTA ANA, Calif. — A judge on Friday authorized an abortion for a brain-diseased 35-year-old woman who became pregnant after being raped while strapped to a bed in a convalescent hospital.

Her mother, Helen Stegmeyer said Friday she would seek the abortion "as soon as possible" for the woman, who was nearing her 20th week of pregnancy when the condition was discovered last week. Most doctors do not perform abortions on fetuses older than 20 weeks.

Justice linked to mob

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — The chief justice of the Rhode Island Supreme Court was suspended for four months and publicly censured Friday for bringing his office "into serious disrepute" by his friendships with reputed mobsters.

In an eight-point order by the Commission on Judicial Tenure and Discipline, Chief Justice Joseph A. Bevilacqua agreed to leave the bench for four months without pay starting July 1.

Body is Mengele's, experts say

Doctors claim tests prove Nazi 'Angel of Death' was unearthed

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — An international group of medical experts unanimously concluded Friday that a body unearthed two weeks ago belonged to infamous Nazi camp doctor Josef Mengele.

"We have a reasonable scientific certainty that the body is that of Josef Mengele," Dr. Lowell Levine of the New York Police Department told reporters packed into a federal police room.

Levine, a member of the investigating team, delivered the report to the Brazilian federal police in the name of the U.S. Justice Department and the Simon Wiesenthal Center, a Los Angeles-based anti-Nazi organization.

"It's him. There's no way it's not him," he told reporters. He said the report would be submitted to a U.S. court.

Mengele, the so-called "Angel of Death," was responsible for sending 400,000 Jews and others to their deaths and conducting sadistic experiments at the Auschwitz extermination camp in Poland during World War II.

Romeu Tuma, the chief Brazilian investigator, said the official findings would be released later but did not say when.

Five Brazilians performed initial tests, and further studies were done by a team of four Americans from the Wiesenthal center, three Americans sent by the U.S. Marshal's Service of the Justice Department and three West Germans. Israel sent at least one official to aid them.

Brazilian police had said from the start that they were "90 percent sure" the body belonged to Mengele.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

SUNDAY, JUNE 23, 1985
GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very exciting and potentially difficult day and evening, and you would be wise to really live and not just think the Golden Rule. Side-step a brewing argument.
ARIES (March 21 to April 18): A good day to study your environment and make any improvements you feel are necessary, and you will be happier.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): There are obstacles against your having a grand time today, so be content with simple and wholesome pleasures that are best.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You have to be calm, cool and collected at home if you want to maintain harmony there today. Not a good day to entertain.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Study further into the philosophy of life you profess and you can make the future much brighter thereby.
LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21): Study your financial status well and know how to cut down on expenses so that you can build a reserve quickly.
VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): There is very little you can do about conditions today, so accept them and carry on wisely.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A good day to work on odds and ends so that you make time for bigger things ahead. Blave off tension at home.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You may meet with a disappointment where a friend is concerned today, so postpone making a favor.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Avoid the limelight today and steer clear of an encounter with a bigwig. Get busy at new interests.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You want to get into some new interests, but need more data before you can do so successfully.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You have to be patient today when many irritations may arise so that you do not lose your equilibrium.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Try to please a partner who is in a bit of a turmoil and show you are loyal and understanding. Not a day to discuss future agreements.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to solve any problemal affair very wisely and can easily find the flaws in any situation and get them right. Teach early to pay compliments instead of looking on the negative side and more can be accomplished. Prepare now to send to college so that your progeny can be equipped for life.

 "The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

MONDAY, JUNE 24, 1985
GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day for starting the specifics of whatever plans are in mind and being able to get them done in a highly efficient and operative manner.
ARIES (March 21 to April 18): Ideal day to make your environment more charming and functional and to add great efficiency to your regular work.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Make a frontal attack on your career work and get great results at this time. Also get your entertainments set up for the week.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Make sure that you get home conditions nicely improved this evening, after a busy day at home.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get in touch with those who are successful and work out a plan with them which can also make you more prosperous.
LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21): You have the right practical method through which you can become more successful, so start putting it to use now.
VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): If attended properly you should arise in a most happy frame of mind and can make a fine impression on those who count.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Being with your closest tie and establishing greater harmony between you is wise. Show that you are able to do the right thing.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Go to see friends you admire an show that you want to see more of them in the future. You can enjoy some social pleasure.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Get deeply involved in your finest activities and you can improve your status easily.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A day for expansion in business so that you can command a greater income in the future.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Doing what will please the one you love is wise. Make arrangements for occasional fun in the days ahead.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Get in touch with outsiders who can be of assistance in gaining your finest aims. Then handle crowd matters.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she can do almost anything right, so be sure to give an fine education as you possibly can, and send to college. Teach to study the motives behind any undertaking before becoming involved with it, and thereby stave off possible trouble.

 "The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Charles Bell, president of Federal Savings and Loan displays the birthday cake prepared for the financial institution's 50th anniversary at the Chamber of Commerce community luncheon on Friday.

First Federal Savings turns 50

It started 50 years ago with $5,000 and was operated out of a file cabinet drawer as a sideline operation in the Big Spring Petroleum Building. Now First Federal Savings and Loan Association of 500 Main boasts over $185 million total assets and is celebrating its golden anniversary.

included an open house which has been going this week and will continue tomorrow afternoon from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., said Charles Bell, president.

First Federal Savings and Loan dated its charter on June 25, 1935. The accounts were insured to $5,000 and the first meeting drew 36 members.

First Federal also sponsored the Chamber of Commerce Community Luncheon yesterday in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum East Room as part of its anniversary celebration.

The institution is now equipped with modern facilities and diversified services that can allow an individual to design his complete financial portfolio, Bell said.

Montford busy in Austin

Last week we reviewed the record of state Rep. Larry Don Shaw and his accomplishments on our behalf in the 69th Legislature. Today, the focus will be on state Sen. John Montford.

Montford authored 78 bills and was a sponsor of another 31 bills for a total of 109 pieces of legislation. In the final tally, 39 bills were passed and signed by the governor or incorporated into other bills in the form of amendments. This gives a total success rate of 54 pieces of legislation for an average of 49 percent. Shaw had an average of 44 percent, while the overall legislative average is only 10 percent. That means BOTH of Howard County's legislative representatives have been effective in their efforts.

In addition, Montford served on the Economic Development, the Jurisprudence and the Natural Resources committees, and was chairman of the important Senate subcommittee on water.

Texas Monthly, in its annual survey of the best and worst legislators, named Montford No. 11 in the top 20 list of the best. Writers for the magazine had this to say about his work in the 69th session: "Pity John Montford, the hard-working Senate sponsor of the water plan. No one should have had to spend so much time with that awful quintet, the House sent to negotiate the final package. Their inflexibility sabotaged Montford's chances of making the Ten Best list; give him a Purple Heart instead."

This is the second time, in his two terms, that John has made the prestigious Texas Monthly "best" list. The magazine's criteria for the selections rest on personality rather than ideology and on the "constants" of politics: intelligence, integrity, open-mindedness, fairness and the desire to find a way to advance the ball. Bad legislators are judged as having no constructive purpose, who elevate partisanship and emotional issues above the business of the state because "there just isn't time for that sort of thing in a 140 day legislative session."

Montford and Shaw worked together on two bills: one, authored by Shaw, had to do with transferring certain duties relating to the administration of an appraisal district from the county clerk to the chief appraiser and revising certain procedures in the appointment of an appraisal district. The second, authored by Montford and sponsored also by Shaw, was the important and successful bill that reduced the tuition charged at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

Montford's major thrust was his work on a state water plan and in that line submitted or helped-sponsor 11 bills relating to water resources. Local Colorado River Municipal Water District officials said, "Truthfully, the Senator worked harder than anyone, particularly pertaining to matters of water, and although we didn't always agree on the wording of all bills, we have to credit his supreme diligence and conscientious effort."

The Dallas Morning News listed John as the top legislator citing his intelligence and patience.

Law and order legislation also took up a large chunk of his time. He worked on no less than 38 pieces of legislation that had to do with our law enforcement or criminal courts system.

Montford, Shaw, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, and Gov. Mark White will be in Big Spring July 10 for a special reception and dinner sponsored by the Colorado River Municipal Water District. A press conference will be held at that time on matters that pertain to the state water plan and to other matters of particular interest to Howard County residents.

Tom Peters on Excellence

Large scale love affair

By TOM PETERS
Our nation of paper-driven, report-driven and staff-driven enterprises is having a love affair with the concept of "large scale."

On paper, big always wins. Cases are made for giant plants to achieve the lowest cost production, centralized purchasing to achieve the best deals with vendors, centralized personnel to achieve system equity, centralized MIS to buy the biggest and fastest computer, and so on.

The problem is that what wins on paper often loses in the real world. Mysteriously, the giant plant never achieves the promised efficiency. Central purchasing gets a price break (although not always, as evidenced by the fact that, until recently, giant auto makers paid full list price for steel), but delivery schedules for 100 decentralized facilities and vendor quality are constant thorns in the side of line operators. The company owns a mega-computer, but salespeople in outlying operations must wait at least six weeks to get the simplest special data on their customers.

In these columns, I have written several times about Gen. Bill Creech, who turned around the giant Tactical Air Command of the U.S. Air Force in five brief years. When he arrived in 1978, Creech felt victimized by big-scale policies and attendant centralization, residues from the heyday of former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara.

The fallout was both technical and human. On the technical side, complex systems often break down and fail to live up to their advanced billing. Thus, Creech was invariably without critical parts, not because of procurement problems, but because the parts simply were not in the right place at the right time. On the human side, there is no sense of job "ownership" without human (smallish) scale and the necessary tools, at a local level, to get the job done. Creech's response was to create decentralized units for flying, maintenance and supply. He gave these units previously unheard-of control over scheduling.

Moreover, he permitted the units to purchase small computers to keep track of parts locally, in direct contravention of the Air Force's centralization-consolidation policies. By specializing jobs, Creech did away with overspecialization, another negative consequence of centralization. Small, non-specialist teams became responsible for the accomplishment of entire tasks. For example, a sergeant (a "dedicated crew chief," as he was called under Creech) and his men were given responsibility for making one plane fly within a day; previously, that sergeant had been responsible for a narrow speciality task covering hundreds of planes.

The results were astounding. My favorite indicator of the success of Creech's policies is the increased availability of critical parts. In 1978, when a plane was down for lack of a necessary part, 4.3 hours were needed to obtain the part. By 1983, with less money available for spare parts and a less-experienced work force, that time had been reduced to 7.8 minutes — a 96 percent reduction. And all this within a system of more than 100,000 people. "Large-scale" wins on paper because the arguments in its favor are invariably technical and precise, with lots of hard numbers and the ring of higher truth.

Drugstore to fill 30-year void

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Something's been missing from Coahoma for more than 30 years.

Two Big Spring pharmacists plan to fill that void next month when they open a pharmacy and drug store here.

Partners in the new store, Coahoma Drug, are Neal Roberts, owner of Neal's Pharmacy Inc. at 600 Gregg, and Kenneth Johnson, a Big Spring pharmacist.

The store, which will open before Aug. 1, will have an unusual twist.

Coahoma Drug also will operate as a "general mercantile-type store" that will carry a variety of products and some of the newest "energy-related" items available, Roberts said. Included in its energy-related stock are wind generators, new styles of wood burning stoves and photovoltaic cells to harness solar energy, he said.

"They're the thing of the future," Roberts said. A demand for the energy-related products exists in the Coahoma area, he said. The store itself will have its electricity supplied by a wind generator, Roberts said.

Johnson and Roberts are locating their pharmacy in Coahoma because the town is "the largest trade area in Texas without a pharmacy."

Their first emphasis, however, will be on answering the need for a pharmacy, Roberts said. "There's no sense in them having to run to Big Spring every time they need something," he said.

Coahoma Drug was in the planning stage for several years. The two men had hoped to open the store a year ago, Roberts said.

Johnson built most of the store himself on his own land, and because of specifics involving the construction, the men were forced to wait to open the store, Roberts said.

The opening date has not been set, but the store should be operating by Aug. 1. Store hours will be from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays.

Junk mail Iowa city thinks it's first class

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa (AP) — Mailboxes crammed full of "junk mail" may cause you to complain, but this small southeastern Iowa city has an 80,000-square-foot warehouse full of the stuff — and no one complains.

Metromail Corp. is one of Mount Pleasant's largest employers, with 325 full-time workers out of a population of 7,320. It sends out 400 million pieces of mail a year, generating more than $20 million for the city's post office.

Every day three or four post office trailers, laden with up to 40,000 pounds of third-class mail, roll out of Metromail's plant. And every day up to 90 trailers filled with brightly colored brochures, sweepstakes cards, free samples and mail-order offers arrive at the plant to be processed for mailing.

Keith Koch, vice president and plant manager for Metromail, wants it known first and foremost that his company is not in the "junk mail" business. The preferred term, he said, is "advertising mail."

"We feel very strongly that we're servicing a large part of the advertising industry with a product that is not junk, with a product that is very expensive material," Koch said.

George O'Brien, vice president of the Mail Advertising Service Association in Washington, said the term "junk mail" was coined by newspapers when advertising mail cut into newspaper revenues.

"Obviously, a piece of mail may be more or less valuable to you than it is to me, but if you can reach the right person, which direct mail tries to do, it can be very valuable," said O'Brien.

"We're not interested in sending mail on a particular product that would be of no interest to the recipient. For instance, if you're selling lawn mowers, you don't try and sell them to people in an apartment house," he said.

Metromail is in the business of targeting markets for specific products.

The targeting is conducted at the company's headquarters in Lincoln, Neb., where a computer stores information on 75 million households and 85 million individuals, which may be the largest mailing list in the nation, Koch said.

Advertisers can also target people to receive their mailings based on age and income, and whether they own homes or regularly buy by mail.

Rose care in Howard County

This article is third in our series of care of roses in Howard County. Although this is not the season to be pruning most varieties, our climbers are about through now and it is the time of year to start pruning these roses.

Pruning improves the quality of the blooms, regulates the size and shape of the plant, and removes diseased or damaged parts. As you prune, cut out dead and diseased wood, thin out weak and crossing canes, and head back the vigorous canes.

There is always a question about how much to cut back a rose bush. The time and amount to prune depends upon the type of rose, its use, variety, location, and vigor. Healthy canes produce blossoms for four to six years or even longer, but canes one or two years old usually produce the highest quality, longest stemmed blossoms. When canes fail to produce good blossoms, remove them by cutting back to the ground and allow new canes to replace them. If old canes are left too long, it may be difficult to get new ones to develop near the base of the plant.

Climbing roses are pruned to develop new vigorous canes and to adjust their size to the trellis, pergola, fence, or place where they are being grown. These plants blossom on one- and two-year-old wood. Prune climbers in late spring, after the first heavy crop of blossoms have faded. Excessive dormant pruning removes the flower buds.

Plants that have not been pruned for several years are usually thick and bushy with new and old and perhaps even dead canes. Prune these while the plants are dormant, when it is easier to see the canes and laterals that should be removed. At this time, prune sparingly, leaving some of the strongest canes that may need to be removed after the first spring flowering.

Immediately following the first heavy spring bloom, remove the older gray-colored canes and save the healthy green ones. Laterals can be cut back to 8 or 10 buds. Train the long canes by arching or tying them in a horizontal position. This makes every bud send up a flowering branch.

Never prune the hybrid perpetuals, such as Paul's Scarlet, Blaze, Silver Moon, and American Pillar, before they bloom, and even then, do not prune them severely.

Large bush roses such as Harrison's Yellow, the rugosas, Austrian Copper, and other species grown for large bushy effects need little or no pruning. Remove any dead wood. If the plants become thick or too large for the allotted space, cut out the excess growth to reduce the plant size. If the canes are branched, they may be cut back to laterals. Never remove just the tips of canes.

SEAL CUT ENDS. When the pruning job is completed, all cut ends of the canes larger than a pencil should be covered with a sealing compound. A sealing compound with an asphalt base is best. This keeps cane borers and cane blight from entering the ends of the canes.

Canes terminate with a flower bud, after the flowers fade, one or two new shoots develop from the lateral buds in the axils of top true leaves — those with five or seven leaflets. Remove the flower stalk at the second or third five-leaflet leaf. If the flower stalks are not removed from hybrid teas, multiple flower heads develop, producing weak short-stemmed rose buds.

The old flowering heads should be removed to permit the new laterals to develop into healthy flowering wood. Do not delay with this kind of pruning. When flowering clusters are not removed for a year or two, thinning becomes a major job.

In pruning rose bushes, examine the sucker growth. If suckers come from below the bud union, remove them entirely as soon as they develop.

Floribunda roses are pruned differently than hybrid teas. The plants vary in height from 12 inches to five or six feet. The bushes are usually more compact and are grown for mass effect of flowers, rather than for the individual flowers. The canes are smaller, and less should be removed in the pruning process.

Floribundas are more effective when planted in groups of a single variety. Prune beds or hedges of one variety to a uniform size and height. Thin the tops, remove the old flower heads, and cut back just enough to encourage vigorous development of new shoots.

Floribundas produce many flowers. After flowering, thin these to permit new ones to develop throughout the season. In time, remove the older canes so that new ones can take their place. If there is no need to control the height, little pruning may be necessary for these roses beyond the removal of old flower heads.

Hybrid tea roses should be pruned in late winter. Bushes pruned in late fall or early winter may be injured by cold and require further pruning in late winter, resulting in more severe pruning than desired. Early pruning also tends to induce early cane growth that is subject to spring freezes.

With varieties that tend to grow very upright (Talisman, Sutter's Gold, President Herbert Hoover, and others), thin in the center and cut back the remaining canes to outside buds. It usually takes a rose gardener several years to learn how to handle each variety properly. With new varieties, prune carefully until you learn their habits of growth.

Since roses love sunlight, they should be pruned so as to develop open center. Cutting canes back to buds that point outward causes a bush to spread. For a more upright plant, prune to inwardly growing buds. Pruning cuts should be made at approximately 60 degree angles, with the top of the cut a fourth of an inch above the bud or lateral. In general, properly pruned and managed hybrid tea bushes develop several new canes from the crown each year. Select three to five of the one-year-old canes that are located so as to form a bowl. It is best to leave no lateral branches, and remove all small twigs. Cut canes back to 18 to 24 inches on moderately vigorous plants. Shoots on extremely vigorous plants may be cut to 24 to 36 inches if they have space to grow large. For exhibition roses, cut canes back to 6 to 10 inches.

Plants often fail to produce new canes annually from the crown. When this happens it becomes necessary to select laterals on older canes in lieu of new canes from the crown. Removing soil and mulch from around the crown to expose it to the sun usually induces a new can growth. The vase, or open-center, system of pruning induces cane development from the crown by permitting more direct sunlight to the center of the plant.

Texas high in health fraud advertising

Texas, California and New York lead the nation in the number of advertisements for fraudulent health items carried in publications, according to a recent Food and Drug (FDA) study.

As a result of a survey of the nation's newspapers and magazines, the FDA identified advertising for fraudulent items in publications ranging from the small weekly newspapers to multimillion-circulation magazines.

According to the FDA, weight-loss products are the most popular items being promoted by fraud artists. Body wraps, sauna suits, waist wraps and vibrating belts are among the items heavily advertised.

Yet, there is no scientific or clinical evidence to support the use of these devices for controlling weight. There also is no data to back up promoters' claims that these products will eliminate cellulite and bulging fat, make spot reduction possible or control appetite.

Diet pills are another widely advertised health fraud. The "grapefruit pill" diet accounted for almost half of the weight loss ads surveyed in the FDA study.

Hair restoration schemes for restorers or clinics are next in popularity to diet hoaxes the study shows. However, the FDA has advised consumers that no product has ever been approved as safe and effective for preventing baldness or restoring hair.

Other advertisements included those for wrinkle removers, hypnosis plans, and offers of quick ways to treat heart disease, arthritis, alcoholism, depression and high blood pressure. In addition to wasting millions of dollars on these products, consumers may not be receiving the legitimate health care they need.

The FDA is now listing product recalls, seizures and other regulatory actions in its weekly Enforcement Report. In addition to taking regulatory or legal actions against the promoters of these products, they hope to do a little advertising on their own to warn consumers about health frauds.

Protecting Consumers From Dietary Fraud

Three federal agencies have some jurisdiction over all advertising and labeling, and the merchandising of mail-order products. They are the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), and the U.S. Postal Service. All three agencies handle complaints on a case by case basis.

The FDA can block interstate commerce of unproven drug products. It can also seize products which are hazardous or misbranded with false healing claims. But the FDA has been stopped by Congress and the courts from requiring that high-dosage vitamin supplements be labeled and regulated as drugs.

Although the FDA is empowered to prosecute when false claims occur on product labels, it has no power to prevent the making of false claims through broadcasts and publications. These claims are protected by the U.S. Constitution's First Amendment provision for freedom of speech and expression.

Both the FDA and FTC also have difficulty in regulating printed matter because manufacturers are careful in their claims. They know the loopholes in the regulations and consumers don't. In addition, for the FTC to follow-up on a complaint, the agency must deem it "within the public interest."

The Postal Service investigates mail fraud and mail-order complaints on an individual basis. They have been successful in halting some diet schemes, such as the grapefruit pill diet, while the regulators and the manufacturers go to court. But their authority extends only to dietary products sold by mail.

The government can help some, but for the consumer, the motto "let the buyer beware" still applies to all diet products. Before starting any new diet, consult your physician or a registered dietitian. Protect yourself from fraudulent diet schemes.

SOME OF THE GREATEST THINGS IN AMERICA NEVER CHANGE.

SOME DO.

U.S. Savings Bonds. Paying Better Than Ever.

Back in 1872, San Francisco's first cable cars were called "Hallidie's folly." Today, they're America's only mobile historic monument.

Some things never change. But one great American tradition has changed—U.S. Savings Bonds. Now savings Bonds pay higher variable interest rates like money market accounts. That's the kind of change anyone can appreciate.

Just hold Savings Bonds for five years and you get the new variable interest rates. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more, but never less than 7½%.

You can purchase Bonds at almost any financial institution. Or easier yet, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Buy Savings Bonds. Like the cable car, they're another part of our proud heritage.

For the current interest rate and more information, call toll-free 1-800-US-Bonds. U.S. SAVINGS BONDS Paying Better Than Ever

Ueberroth keeps Pirates at home

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said Friday he would veto any attempt to move the financially troubled Pittsburgh Pirates to another city and warned cities in search of major league franchises not to "raid other communities."

"I would not approve the sale (of the Pirates) if outside groups want to move it to another city," Ueberroth told a news conference at Three Rivers Stadium.

"I've been telling other cities who want ballclubs, 'Don't be walking around trying to raid other communities,'" he said. "We're not going to move moving vans to baseball teams."

When asked about the possibility that he could prevent a strike this season, Ueberroth replied: "I think I can stop a franchise from moving, but I don't have the power to stop a strike. And if I had it, I wouldn't use it."

"The books have been opened, they're beyond opened. If there's something else I can do, I will."

Ueberroth said he is "still not discouraged, because there seems to be quality ... and integrity on both sides of the negotiating table." And he added: "A strike is a failure."

The commissioner said he met with Pittsburgh Mayor Richard Caliguri and a group of "12 to 15" corporate leaders led by Westinghouse Electric Corp. Chairman Douglas D. Danforth to discuss ways to keep one of baseball's oldest franchises in Pittsburgh.

Ueberroth said he encouraged them to organize a number of local investors to buy the team, which reportedly lost $6 million last season and had the worst attendance showing in the National League.

A successful franchise, Ueberroth said, "needs to have fan base, total government support and local ownership with roots in the community."

"This is a franchise that doesn't necessarily have all those ingredients right now," he said.

After more than a decade of waning attendance, the Pirates were put up for sale in November 1984 by team President Dan Galbreath, whose Columbus, Ohio, family has owned the franchise since 1946.

The most fans the team has ever drawn since the team moved to Three Rivers Stadium 15 years ago was 1.65 million in 1980, the year after its last World Series.

Last season, the Pirates drew 773,500 fans at home, the worst in the National League and behind only the Cleveland Indians in the majors. Attendance this year through 31 home dates is 319,797, down about 15,000 from this time a year ago.

Ueberroth said the city's threats to sue to protect its long-term lease at the stadium, which it owns, were "counterproductive and not very smart."

"The only ones who win in those situations are the lawyers," he said.

Pate leads rookie charge

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Pate led a strong surge by four rookies Friday and bolted into the second-round lead in the $500,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic with a 6-under-par 66.

Pate, who has made only six cuts in 13 previous events this year, had a 36-hole score of 133, 11 under par on the 7,008-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

"I've had trouble putting everything together," the 24-year-old Californian said of his professional experience. "I'll have one or two things going, but everything else stinks."

Pate, no relation to tour veteran Jerry Pate, held a one-shot advantage over Danny Edwards, who fired a 65-134, and was two strokes ahead of another rookie, Andrew Magee, who had a 65-135.

Veteran Ray Floyd, who won at Houston earlier this year, had his second consecutive 68 and was tied at 136 with three others, including another rookie, Brad Fabel, who fired a 65.

Also at 136 were Loran Roberts after a 67 and Bob Eastwood after a 66.

First round leader Tony Sills struggled to an even par 72 and fell four shots off the pace at 137.

Former U.S. Open and Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, second after Thursday's play, took a double bogey 7 on the 18th and fell back to 73-139.

Charles Coody, winless since capturing the 1971 Masters, moved within range with a sizzling 64 that left him five behind Pate.

"I only hit four fairways, but I hit the ball closer to the hole," Pate said. "There isn't that much rough out there. I've hit the ball closer the last two days than I have all year."

Pate, who played at UCLA, chipped in from 40 feet for a birdie 2 on the third hole, but scored the remainder of his five birdies from the 5-10-foot range. He saved par after driving into a fairway bunker on the 10th and again when his tee shot at 17 carried about 30 yards into some woods to the left.

Pate said he was playing aggressively because "I've got nothing to lose. You've just got to keep doing it. It's tough to shoot more than one under playing defensive golf."

"It's nice to be playing well but nothing to get excited about," he said. "There's two rounds to play yet. If I'm in this position Sunday, I'll probably be a little nervous."

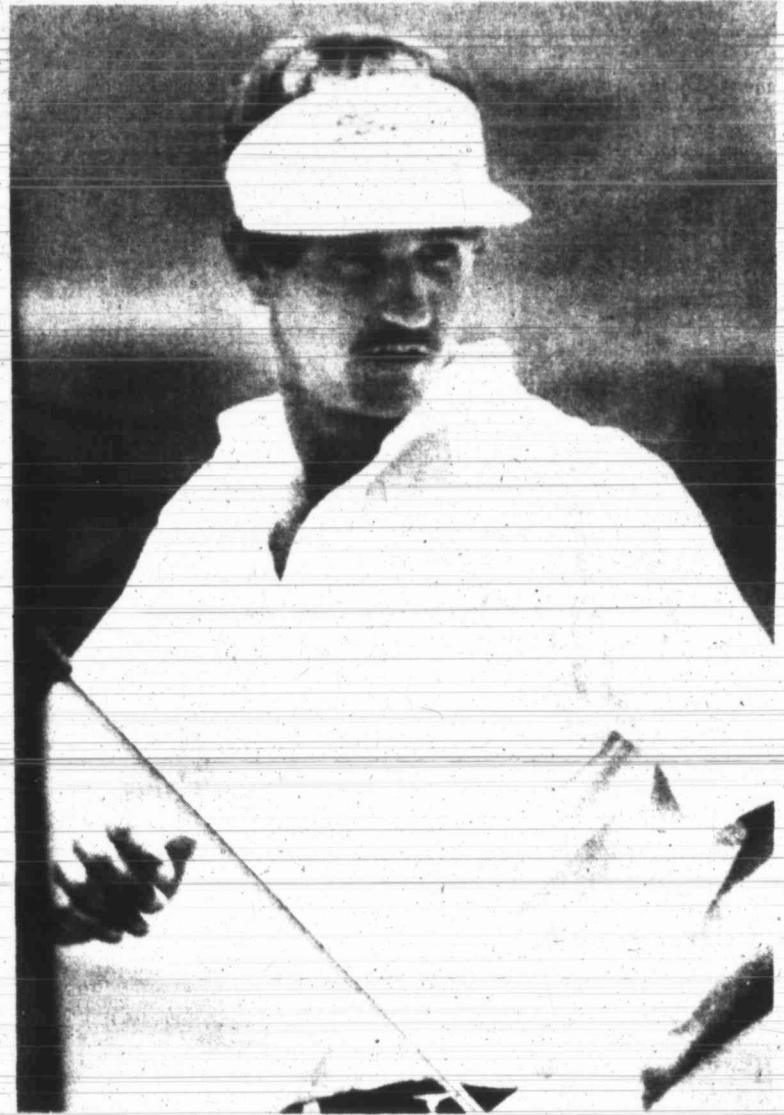

Edwards, a four-time winner in his career, scored five of his seven birdies from inside 10 feet in what he called "just a very solid round."

"Just another day at the course," quipped Magee, who then called it his best round as a pro, despite going one shot better at 64 in the opening round of the Byron Nelson Classic.

"I didn't have to work that hard and it was an enjoyable day," said Magee, who was born in Paris, France, where his father was based with an oil company.

Magee, 23, started his round at No. 10. He also scored most of his birdies from inside 10 feet, although he did sink a 20-footer at No. 2 and lipped out an 18-foot eagle putt on the 18th green.

Tze-Chung Chen of Taiwan, who led the U.S. Open for three rounds before falling into a second place tie last week, was one of the victims of the 2-under-par cut of 142. Chen skied to a 75 and had a 143 total.

Rookie sensation STEVE PATE looks determined in his bid to win a PGA tournament. PATE is among three rookie leaders after the second round at the Atlanta Classic.

Coaches, athletes under fire following special NCAA probe

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — College coaches and athletes were put under the gun Friday when the NCAA's special convention on integrity overwhelmingly passed legislation that could cost a coach his job and an athlete his eligibility if they violate the rules.

"It's about time," Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said after the NCAA delegates, including 198 college heads, resoundingly approved proposals that provide stiff penalties for athletes and staff members alike and could suspend a particular sport for up to two years.

"The presidents feel responsible to athletic programs, which have a very visible impact in a university's existence," Paterno said. "They made up their minds to step in and correct some of the things that are most unpopular to an academic institution."

Taking effect immediately is a requirement that restrictions imposed upon a coach by the NCAA's Committee on Infractions or as a result of a show-cause provision of the enforcement procedure be applied to a coach even if he or she changes schools. The proposal passed 281-1-1 in Division I (Texas A&M cast the lone 'no' vote and Texas abstained), 89-0 in Division II and 61-0 in Division III.

"This is obviously a step forward in cleaning up recruiting," said Mack Brown, Tulane University's head coach and athletic director. "A coach carrying infractions to another school is a major step and will keep him from running away from a problem."

Another piece of legislation authorizing specific disciplinary or corrective actions against staff members found in violation of NCAA regulations was approved 424-4, with Alabama, Bryn Mawr, San Diego State and Texas voting against it.

By a 436-0 count, the delegates approved a resolution affirming the presidents' desire to assure that suitable penalties are placed on an athlete who is knowingly involved in violations. The resolution directed the NCAA Council to develop such legislation for the January 1986 annual convention.

"When you start talking about taking away a coach's future and a young man's future, that will stop violations in recruiting," Brown said.

Jackie Sherrill, Texas A&M's head coach and athletic director, said coaches "are going to have to educate prospective student-athletes. They're going to have to know much more about what they can and can't do. But it won't affect us at all the way we recruit and coach."

Another proposal, which passed 406-27 with four abstentions, requires athletes and head coaches to sign a one-time affidavit detailing all sources of their financial support.

"We'll have to talk to each individual player this fall, and I don't know where the time is going to come from," Sherrill said. "Hopefully they'll change it and we can go to a group meeting where we can talk to the whole squad at one time."

The 'no' votes were cast by Boston College, Cal-Davis, Delta State, Duquesne, East Carolina, Florida A&M, Hawaii, Houston, Mercer, Messiah, Michigan Tech, Northeastern, Oakland, Oregon, Quinnipiac, Randolph-Macon, Rice, Richmond, Salve Regina, South Florida, Stanford, Texas Southern, Texas Tech, UCLA, Washington State, Washington & Lee and Wayne State. Abstaining were the Ohio Valley Conference, Smith College, Texas A&M and Texas Christian.

Sherrill said that coaches, athletic directors and faculty representatives in attendance "were just here for the ride. Every institution where the chief executive officer is involved and in control of the athletic program ... those are the successful ones — and you can put that in bold print."

Whether the new legislation can effectively curb overzealous booster and alumni groups remains to be seen. The delegates passed 422-14 an amendment requiring an annual outside audit of all expenditures for an institution's athletic program.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, said the legislation "can be effective in bringing under inspection the financial records of booster groups and it gives the chief executive officer a tool into those records that he doesn't have now."

"But," he added, "I know of very few, if any, occasions when a booster went to recruit a prospective athlete without knowing that the coach wanted that athlete. Getting a student-athlete the coach doesn't want simply doesn't happen."

One of the few concessions in the get-tough legislation came when the policy-making NCAA Council modified its interpretation of the "repeat violator" section of the so-called "death penalty" amendment.

The Council had said Thursday that any "major" violation within the five-year period following the starting date of a "major" penalty (i.e., at least one year's probation with bowl and TV sanctions) would be considered a "repeat" violation and could force the suspension of a sport for up to two years.

On Friday, however, NCAA President John R. Davis said that since the effective date of the legislation is Sept. 1, any violations prior to that date would not be considered as repeats and would not carry a mandatory suspension.

The main beneficiary of the new interpretation is Southern Methodist, which has been on probation within the last five years and is currently appealing another sentence, the details of which will not be announced until the NCAA Council hears the appeal in August.

More than 20 schools have been on probation in the last five years, including such football powers as Florida, Illinois, Southern Cal and Clemson.

Florida President Marshall Criser said the new interpretation "still has a negative aspect for the 23 or 24 programs that have been guilty of major violations in the last five years."

"Instead of a three-year probation, we now have a five-year probation (as of Sept. 1)," Criser said. "So be it if that's the price of getting some of these problems solved. At least now we know that as of Sept. 1 our people can be told that any one of them could jeopardize an entire program."

Minnesota Twins manager BILLY GARDNER was fired yesterday after the Twins had lost 20 of their last 25 ball games. GARDNER had been the Twins coach since 1981.

Twins can Gardner

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Twins Manager Billy Gardner, who has been with the team since 1981, was fired Friday and Ray Miller, pitching coach for the Baltimore Orioles, was named to succeed him, team officials announced.

The Twins, who have lost 20 of their last 25 games, ended a disastrous series Thursday night in Kansas City, losing three of four games, the first two by scores of 10-3 and 10-1.

Miller, 40, becomes the Twins' 10th manager. Twins President Howard Fox said Miller's contract extends through 1986.

Since Miller became the Orioles' pitching coach in January 1978, the team has produced five, 20-game winners — Jim Palmer in 1978, Mike Flanagan in 1979, Steve Stone and Scott McGregor in 1980 and Mike Boddicker in 1984.

Miller spent 10 years pitching in the minor leagues after signing with San Francisco in 1964.

In 1974, he became Baltimore's minor league pitching instructor. After four years in that position, he was appointed major league pitching coach at Texas following the 1977 season, but rejoined the Orioles in that capacity in January 1978.

Tigers advance to Little League finals

Tigers 20, Pirates 5

The Texas League Tigers roared to a convincing 20-5 victory over the International League Pirates behind the solid pitching of Charlie Garcia and a potent hitting attack in a Little League City Championship semifinal game Friday night at the Texas League field.

Garcia was nearly flawless in picking up the complete game victory. The righthander fanned 12 Pirates and walked only two as the Tigers were never seriously challenged after tying up the score 2-2 in the first inning.

The Tigers collected eleven hits and took advantage of 10 Pirate errors to score 5 runs in three of the five times they came to the plate. Losing pitcher Felipe Saiz was plagued by control problems in the first two innings, and eventually surrendered 10 walks in five and a half innings of pitching.

The Pirates came out strong in the first inning scoring two runs on a Santos Martinez triple that drove in Ben Islas and a single by Saiz driving in Martinez.

The Pirates scored two more in the top of the third inning to pull within 3 at 7-4 after the Tigers burst for one of their three run innings in the bottom of the second.

The Tigrs scored 5 more in the bottom of the third inning to pull to a comfortable 12-4 lead. The victory raised the Tigers team record to 13-5 on the year after finishing second to the Texas League champion Red Sox.

The Tigers will meet the winner of the Red Sox-Colts semifinal game at 8 p.m. tonight at a sight to be determined in the City Championship game.

The International League champion Pirates season ended with a 17-4 record on the year.
