FIGHT IS FATAL TO ODESSA MAN

CHAPMAN FOUND THE LEADER OF BANK ROBBERY

Identification Made By Officials Who See Pictures

ATLANTA, Tex., June 7. (U.P.)—A photograph of Charlie Chapman, Arkansas badman, was positively identified today as that of the leader of a bandit pair who stole $10,000 from the First National bank yesterday.

The identification was made by Cashier V. A. Clements and Bookkeeper Wilmer Hughes. Chapman's companion was believed to have been Heine Henderson, escaped Louisiana convict. Officers were hunting the pair in the Sulphur river bottoms.

PERJURY TRIAL ENDED TODAY

BRYAN, June 7. (U.P.)—E. Cole, charged with perjury as result of testimony given in the trial of Whitey Walker, Oklahoma bandit, was acquitted today.

Cole testified that Walker was visiting near Rogers at the time of a $10,000 jewelry store robbery last December. Walker was found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment.

MANY FACTORS GOVERN RELIEF

AUSTIN, June 7. (U.P.)—Due to relief fund shortage in Texas, it is impossible to make an allocation of funds to a given average family of five persons that would constitute an adequate relief budget for such a family, according to Director Marie Dresden of the Texas relief commission.

In Texas, the establishment of family budgets is based upon the volume of funds available for relief and upon the situation in which a given family of five, for example, may find itself.

The determination of such budgetary relief requirements is placed in the hands of the social service staff of the Texas relief commission. Case investigators, in determining the basis for the budget in a family of five, take numerous factors into consideration.

Geographical location of the family is important. Under normal circumstances, a family of five may be more sustaining—all else being equal—in the balmier South Texas area than in the drought stricken area of the Panhandle.

In winter, the utility expense in protecting the family groups from cold would increase the relief cost to a family of five residing in Amarillo in comparison to another family of similar size in Brownsville.

Should tragedy come into the family of five, afflicting children with tuberculosis or rickets, both of which are on the increase among destitute children, a special diet for these persons would increase the cost of relief.

Medical cost, dental treatment and hospitalization are other factors. Where acute or chronic illness makes professional services necessary, this gives cause to a disproportionate relief cost for which the state must pay.

Seasonal garden possibilities enter into budget making for a family of five. In certain regions of Texas, gardening is possible over a long season. In these areas, family budget reductions are the rule. At the same moment, in drought areas, a family of similar size may cost the state three times the amount of the former.

Rural and urban living conditions and requirements are an important factor to be considered in family relief costs. A family may be sustained more cheaply, as a rule, in rural areas than in large cities where rents and other living costs are higher.

Possibilities of periodic employment must be regarded. Many families are taken from a relief roll temporarily when even temporary employment is available to adult family members.

Family resources are an outstanding factor. Home-ownership, the presence of relatives with modest but independent income, and similar items are subject to close attention by relief agents.

In Texas, the average relief cost of maintaining a given family of five will vary in accordance with the above and other factors that effect a family budget. This will range all the way from $8 to $30 per month and it obviously becomes almost impossible to give a flat, artificial average relief cost per family under such circumstances.

The average cost of relief per family (not a family of five, but a family) throughout the state is $10 per month. Probably the average would be $12 for a family of five. This is not sufficient to give complete relief as would be given if additional funds were available.

MAKE BOND, RELEASED

J. F. Carpenter made bond of $1,000 in county court today on charges of auto theft and was released. The case will be submitted to the grand jury at the next session of district court.

The case grew out of the alleged theft of an automobile from L. D. Bayless recently.

The Last Word in Derbies

Mr. Isabel Dodge Sloan's three-year-old colt Cavalcade became the first horse in 45 years to take both the prized Kentucky and American derbies when, as shown below, he galloped over the finish line two lengths ahead of Discovery to capture the

BISHOP LUCEY THINKS NEW DEAL IS HELPFUL BUT IS NOT FAR REACHING

"The New Deal is excellent so far as it goes—but it does not go far enough," believes Bishop Robert Emmet Lucey of Amarillo, visiting parish in this section following the consecration last Thursday of Bishop O. M. Preclado at San Antonio. The bishop arrived at Midland Wednesday afternoon shortly before 5 o'clock and was greeted by parishioners and their friends on the mezzanine floor of Hotel Scharbauer.

"I favor it insofar as it increases the distribution of wealth and income and the administration is to be supported and complimented by every good American," the bishop said of the New Deal's policy.

"But admiration of the efforts made to lift the nation out of the depression should not blind us to the fact that the program outlined is incomplete."

"The largest difficulty has been in writing of the various codes and the consequent strife and conflict because the laborer and the consumer had little or no part in the framing of them."

"To be sure there is a labor advisory board in Washington but both in theory and in practice a code may be written by those known as the leaders of an industry and the president may sign it regardless of what the workmen and consumers think about it."

"The present recovery administration is a step in the right direction but it is not extensive enough. We shall always have conflict in our industrial relations until those who labor are permitted to play their part in the framing of the regulations by which they are governed, or until those who write them intentionally or unintentionally give the laboring classes a fair deal."

Large Part of Population might mention, incidentally, that the laboring men and women with their families represent a large majority of the consumers of the country and that they are benefited by their employers are also indirectly benefited.

"The strikes going on at this time were brought about by the fact that leaders in various industries are still attempting to take more of the profits of industry than they may rightfully claim and therefore give less to the great masses."

"However, many big business men are at last beginning to realize that the buying power of millions of American citizens must be increased if we are going to dispose of a fair portion, even, of the production of our farmers and factories. One example of the havoc of underconsumption is the flooded cotton market in the face of millions of persons in all cities and states wearing rags because they haven't money to buy a decent cotton garment."

"Investors in our great industries, stockholders and owners of bonds must be prepared to accept a little less in interest and dividends in order that those who produced the wealth by their labor may have a living. There is no escape from that fact."

"In the future we all shall realize that man and his labor are more sacred than money and there must be less retained in capital and a larger share for labor."

"Human being will no longer tolerate the economic injustices which have crushed them in the past. At the very peak of our prosperity statisticians told us that probably half of the men in industry were not getting a living wage. This sort of thing must stop in a country of free and intelligent citizens."

"Fortunately many big business men now realize that good wages and fair salaries alone will bring prosperity to business," Bishop Lucey concluded.

At the afternoon reception for the bishop, which was served by women of the church, Misses Dorothy Cummings, Harriet and Audrey Ticknor presided at the table.

The bishop was a guest of the Rev. Edw. P. Harrison, O.M.I., resident priest of Midland, at a dinner given in the private dining room of Hotel Scharbauer. Others attending were the Rev. Theo Francis of Big Spring, the Rev. Austin Cubillo of Sweetwater, resident priest, Mr. Dickinson, who drove Bishop Lucey here, and Jack Harrison, brother of the Midland priest.

The bishop expressed himself as appreciative of the courtesies of Midland people in waiting for him in such large numbers, despite his being 45 minutes late. He praised the city highly and expressed himself as not having enjoyed any visit in Texas any more than that with Midland people. He left for Sweetwater and Amarillo, where he will rest several days before leaving for Chicago and a church conference.

The bishop, 43, appears younger. He has had a brilliant career, with the church and is widely known in Catholic and social welfare circles. He has been director of the Catholic Welfare Bureau since 1921 and is well versed on all matters of that nature affecting the nation.

Aphids Damage Grape Crop Here

Numerous complaints are coming in reporting damage to grape vines by leaf hoppers, or aphids, reports the county farm agent. These pests suck the juices from the leaves, causing them to turn white then brown, finally causing them to fall. This lowers the quality of the fruit and sometimes causes the loss of the entire crop.

Vines can be saved by spraying or dusting with nicotine or emulsion. The most effective method is to dust with nicotine dust made by mixing 2 per cent nicotine sulphate with lime. Control measures must be instituted at once if this crop is not to be seriously damaged.

THREE ARE DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

HICO, June 7.—Two men and a woman, all residents of Hico, plunged to their deaths in an airplane that crashed within the city limits early Wednesday night and burst into flames.

The dead are: Earl R. Lynch, 39, pilot.

Miss Lola Mae Williamson, 24, passenger.

Miss Elsie, 26, mechanic.

Almost the entire population of this little community, about 1,600 persons, gazed in horror as the ship suddenly went into a spin and crashed.

It grazed the top of a residence and crashed 100 feet back of the house in a vacant lot. Flames shot from the fuselage and it was 30 minutes before the local fire department had extinguished the fire and the charred bodies of the victims were removed.

A family occupying the house over which the plane passed before it nosed into the ground, dashed from the structure.

Crackling flames kept rescuers from attempting to remove the bodies until streams of water had been played on the plane for some time.

Lynch, a private pilot, had been flying about five years. Throughout the afternoon he had been taking Hico residents for joy rides in the plane and the fatal trip was planned as the last one of the day.

The plane was owned by Lynch and F. E. Blair, uncle of one of the victims.

12-Inch Rain and Heavy Hail Bring Big Sheep Losses

Hall the size of "inkbottles" last week drove 248 ewes and 104 lambs to their death by drowning in the High Lonesome draw near Stiles, Reagan county, 50 or 60 miles south of Midland.

The draw, in which form headwaters for the Middle Concho, was swollen by an estimated 12-inch rain. While only eight acres of the 14-section Robert A. Bishop pasture gave on the draw, it was that corner of the pasture where the sheep drifted for protection from the wind and hail.

Water climbed above the flood mark of previous years, and into the Bishop garage and house.

The wife of a former Regan county sheriff lost a part of her herd, it was understood.

KNOCKED DOWN, HEAD FRACTURE IS SUSTAINED

Paul Critton Is Freed On Bond of $1,000 This Morning

ODESSA, June 7. (Sp.)—Paul Critton, Penwell driller employed by Red Davidson, was released today after making bond of $1,000 following an examining trial before Peace Justice A. W. Moore at Odessa on charges of assault with malice in connection with the death of Joe Williams Wednesday afternoon.

The Hendrick mortuary, told substantially the same story, given below in substance:

Critton came out of the Wilson grocery store with his arms loaded with sacks. He was accosted by Williams, another driller, who began abusing him, swinging at him with his fists and kicking at him.

Critton asked to be left alone, asserting he didn't want trouble. He tried to avoid Williams by walking away, but Williams struck him in the back of the head with his first. Critton started to walk away again and as he straightened his hat which had been almost dislodged by bumping into an awning, Williams renewed the attack.

Critton asked to be left alone, asserting he didn't want trouble. He tried to avoid Williams by walking away, but Williams struck him in the back of the head with his first. Critton started to walk away again and as he straightened his hat which had been almost dislodged by bumping into an awning, Williams renewed the attack.

Williams with his foot and Williams fell down. He got to his feet and started the fight again.

Critton threw down his groceries and struck Williams with the chin with his fist, Williams falling to the sidewalk and not arising. His head struck the pavement hard.

Critton stood there beside Williams a moment, then picked up his groceries and walked across the street to his automobile and drove away.

Three bystanders picked Williams up and carried him to a doctor's office for treatment. Later he was taken to his room at the Shaw hotel, where he died the next afternoon of a skull fracture.

The Hendrick mortuary has the body. No arrangements had been made early this afternoon.

The offense, at first listed as simple assault, was changed to murder following Williams' death.

SLAYER PLAYS POKER IN CELL

EL PASO, June 7. (U.P.)—Antonio Carrasco, 38, ransacker, played poker in his county jail cell today to take his mind off the tragic deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Riley R. Smith, his employers, at the Van Horn ranch.

Carrasco will receive a preliminary trial Saturday on charges of slaying the couple. He will claim that he acted in self defense, and that the Smiths, who were found with their charred bodies were found, was fired accidentally.

"I am sorry for everything that I have done—it's like something that never happened," he said.

"I am very, very sad."

Carrasco stared blankly at the tank bars.

"I have no appetite—food does not taste good any more," he said.

Carrasco is served the regular jail menu of beans, bacon, macaroni, cheese and gravy, but he leaves his plate almost untouched.

Deputy Sheriff K. C. Shannon, his only friend and the man who obtained his confession, sent Carrasco a sack of tobacco today.

Yesterday he wrote Shannon a list of his personal property, and asked him to lock it in the sheriff's vault for safekeeping.

"I don't know what will happen," he said.

Death Ray Machine Inventor's Sensation

OMAHA, Nebraska, June 7.—A death ray machine, although not on display, stirred a wave of comment Wednesday at the National Inventor's congress.

The mysterious machine, capable of flashing an invisible lethal ray through the air and turning blood into water, has been suppressed by the government and will not be on exhibition. A. G. Burns, president of the congress, announced.

The inventor is Dr. Antonio Longoria, Cleveland, O., physician and electrical engineer.

"I witnessed a demonstration of the machine in Cleveland last October," Burns said.

"Dr. Longoria turned the ray on rabbits, dogs and cats. They fell over and died instantly. Their blood turned to water. The same thing happened to pigeons, unloosed and allowed to fly quite a distance. They fluttered to the ground and died."

So terrific are the machine's human annihilation possibilities that Dr. Longoria agreed to suppress it, Burns said.

Birds died, he said, when struck by the ray two blocks away.

THE SAME ENDING

No more humanly revealing story has come over the cables in many months than the one telling how Bertrand Russell, English mathematician and philosopher, has been sued for divorce, on the ground of infidelity, by Dora Russell.

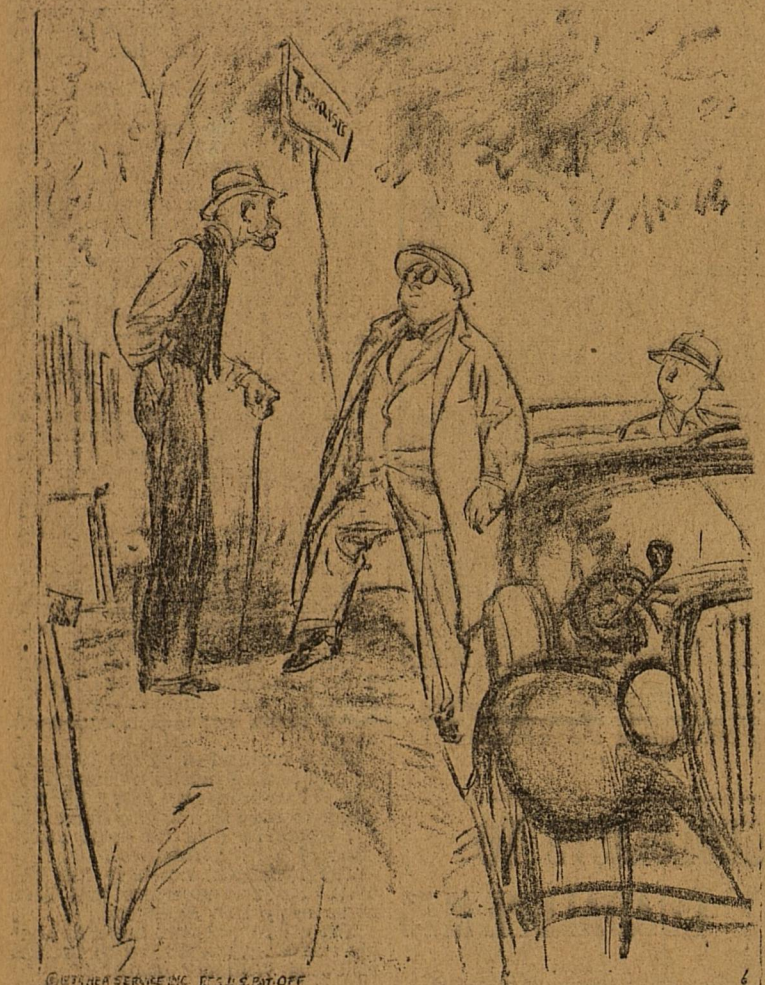

Here were the people who, perhaps more than anyone else, impressed on the modern generation the necessity for a sophisticated and "enlightened" attitude toward love and marriage. They made speeches and wrote magazine articles about it; Mrs. Russell declared bravely, "I will not insist upon absolute faithfulness after marriage."

Well, it was all clear-sighted and intelligent, no doubt; but the marriage seems to be ending precisely as thousands of others have ended, for all these fine words.

And the whole business is an enlightening commentary on the way in which human emotions refuse to be bound by the slogans of modern sophistication.

The Irish Free State has taken a step closer toward being a republic by abolishing the Senate. There's an idea for us, only here we'd have to abolish the House, too.

It's Agarita Berry And Not Algerita As We've Thought

West Texans thought for years that the pretty, tasty red and pink berries they had been gathering and eating from those stickered bushes on their ranches were "algerita berries"—but they were wrong.

The berries are "agarita" berries (pronounced ag-a-rifa with the "g" as in "gag"), also known as "agrito" berries, Miss Myrtle Miller, county home demonstration agent, has been advised by the biology department of C. I. A. at Denton.

The berries common in this section are wild currants, berberies, it is further pointed out. The scientific name is berberis trifoliata.

The "algerita"—that's almost what we've been talking about all these years—is a chaparral berry, not common in this section, Miss Miller learned further.

Ice Cream Flavored with Your Favorite Candy Is a Delightful Summer Dessert

Ice cream for dessert! The children shout the gleeful news and the whole dinner, even the spinach, shares in the glamor of the treat in store. So why not serve this happy ending often since you can do it these days without making extra work for yourself?

That is if you make delicious and simple candy ice cream you can concoct all sorts of different flavors as easily as you'd make a plain junket or custard pudding. Any favorite recipe can be used for the foundation cream. Junket custard, mousse, parfait, ice cream and sherbet may be flavored and sweetened with the candies. All the hard varieties of candies, chocolate coated or plain, can be used without additional sugar, but some of the cream candies may require a little extra sugar.

One-half pound of candy is enough to sweeten and flavor one quart of custard or other foundation mixture.

If the candy is thoroughly crushed and allowed to dissolve in the foundation cream before freezing, an even color is produced. An attractive, mottled effect is obtained if the candy is rather coarsely crushed and added to the cream mixture just before freezing. There will be bits of undissolved candy which retain their color sprinkled through the frozen mixture.

Following are two basic recipes which can be varied by the use of different candies.

Peppermint Stick Cream

One pound red and white peppermint stick candy, 6 cups thin cream, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

Scald cream in double boiler. Remove from heat and add salt and finely crushed candy. Cool and turn into freezer mold. Pack in six parts ice to one part ice cream salt and let stand several hours. Serve plain or with hot chocolate sauce, as preferred.

If you want to use this recipe in a mechanical refrigerator, stir 1 tablespoon softened gelatine into the scalding hot cream, stirring until gelatine is thoroughly dissolved.

Marshmallows can be quartered and dissolved in the hot cream.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder pressures with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and diseases. If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

Home Brewed

BY R. C. HANKINS

"Sonny Boy" Rose, four year old son of the Colts' ace hurler, may be sent in to relieve "the old man" soon if he continues to show improvement with his pitching arm. The only concern his parents have is that he is improving too fast, with speed, distance and direction. They dislike to have to pay for any window glasses, windshields, etc. The youthful pitcher finds it an easy matter to throw a baseball from the pitcher's box to the home plate. He throws rocks with equal ease. His parents operate the Shady Lawn cottage where several ball players room and board. Sonny Boy has requested permission to sleep with the ball players, believing that will make him a better player.

Becoming incensed at having First Baseman White call him Ug (short for ugly), he suggested to the latter that they address each other as Mr. Rose and Mr. White. They maintain this dignified relationship at present.

Spencer Tracy and Jack Oakie Teamed In Yucca offering

Spencer Tracy and Jack Oakie have some highly exciting adventures into danger, love and comedy in "Looking for Trouble," the 20th Century picture which opened at the Yucca theatre today.

The two telephone girls who are their sweethearts, and incidentally the cause of many of their more humorous escapades, are played by Constance Cummings, who appeared recently in "Broadway Thru a Keyhole," and Arline Judge.

Tracy and Oakie have a series of thrilling adventures as telephone linemen when they run afoul of wire-tappers and gangsters engaged in engineering a bank robbery. It is also a part of their "job" to keep the communication lines open during an earthquake when they find themselves perched precariously on tottering telephone poles amid a tangle of high-voltage wires, while sidewalks buckle and streets crack open beneath them.

"Looking for Trouble" was produced by Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck for United Artists.

Texas Ranger Held In Marfa Slaying

MARFA, June 7.—F. W. Hale, Texas ranger, was charged with the slaying of Pablo Prieto and J. S. Weatherby, prominent Marfa ranchman, was charged with assault to murder Gregoria Prieto in complaints filed here Wednesday.

Officers said Gregoria Prieto was wounded when Weatherby and Hale went to his home to investigate the source of a stray bullet. They returned with more Texas rangers and Pablo Prieto was killed in Pinta canyon on the Rio Grande.

Gregoria, 15 bullet holes in his body, is in a critical condition at a hospital here.

Bond had been set at $1,000 each for Hale and Weatherby pending action of the grand jury.

The Prieto ranch adjoined the Weatherby ranch.

Negroes May Get Voting Privilege

FORT WORTH, June 7. (U.P.)—Negroes may be allowed to vote in a Tarrant county Democratic primary election for the first time on July 28.

Democratic Chairman Hugh Small is considering the question, after a delegation of negroes called on him. Small will place the matter before the county committee when it holds its next meeting.

"Personally, I do not see how we can exclude negroes any longer, in face of the United States supreme court decision holding that negroes have a right to vote in a primary," Small said.

Small was referring to the Nix case which went to the higher courts from El Paso.

In 1932, the first election year after the decision was handed down, the local committee stepped after the negro voting question by ignoring the petitions of the negroes.

Candidates in the past have opposed the negro vote. Small pointed out, claiming that to campaign among them would complicate matters. Many candidates also fear negroes would vote in blocks instead of expressing individual choices.

Small doubted this. He estimated the negro vote would be negligible, that out of about 1,500 qualified to vote in Tarrant county, only about 500 would do so.

It was indicated the Tarrant county committee would request the state Democratic executive committee to authorize county committees to use their discretion in handling the negro vote question.

'Slow Train' Writer Dies of Bullet in Temple Wednesday

MINERAL WELLS, June 7. (U.P.)—Friends of Thomas William Jackson attended the funeral today for the former railroad brakeman who gained fame by writing of his experiences "On A Slow Train Through Arkansas." The body was sent to Chicago for burial. The humorist committed suicide yesterday.

MINERAL WELLS, June 7. (P.)—Thomas W. Jackson, humorist and author of the book, "A Slow Train Through Arkansas," was found fatally wounded here Wednesday. He died at a hospital a few minutes after he was shot. A bullet entered his temple.

He had been in ill health for some time, having been stricken in Florida, and had been confined to his home. Mrs. Jackson had just left their home for a walk about the yard when she heard a shot and hurried back, finding her husband mortally wounded in the bathroom. He was survived by a son, Harry Jackson, in Chicago.

Born with a yen for the open road, he ran away from school, became a freight train brakeman, wrote "On A Slow Train Through Arkansas," sold more than 6,000,000 copies and for the last 25 years has indulged his wanderlust.

Inquiries made of Jackson about his hobby, his friends, his greatest desire, plans for the future, very Heaven itself, all elicited the same reply, "Travel."

He got out and seen the world," said the man who became famous after writing "On A Slow Train Through Arkansas" and has since written 12 books of humor. "I've been in every state in the United States and part of Arkansas," he said. "The railroads advertise 'See America First.' I contend when you see it right you'll be too old to go anywhere else."

He was 37 when he wrote "On A Slow Train" and the book has sold steadily for 25 years, a testament to the enduring appeal of his American copyrighted book.

Wrote at End of Layovers

He ran away from school in Sherman, to which his parents had moved from Tennessee. His first job was call boy on a railway train. He became freight brakeman and when "On A Slow Train Through Arkansas" was written he was a passenger brakeman between Spokane, Wash., and Pendleton, Ore. But the idea first came when he was a "brakie" on a train running from Texas to Pine Bluff, Ark.

"That train was so slow the engineer and conductor didn't carry watches, they used calendars," he reminisced, "and saloon keepers proved the age of their whisky by shipping it over that road."

Copy for the now famous book was prepared "at the end of my layovers," he related. "I'd write a page and stick it in my pocket and take it out next morning to show to the boys, the news agents, conductor, brakeman, traveling men. They laughed, so I kept on until I had enough for a book."

"I had it typed but after that I didn't have an idea in the world how to go about having it published. First I had 5,000 copies printed there in Spokane. I gave them to the news agents on the trains to sell and the whole 5,000 was gone in a week. I thought that was pretty good so I ventured 20,000. They were sold in two weeks. That settled me for railroading. I got a relief of absence and went to Chicago to get me a publisher. Since then I've sold more than 6,000,000 copies, which is more than any American copyrighted book."

"Collected" Material

"People always ask me if my jokes are original," Jackson often related. "Put a man on a desert island and see how many jokes he will tell. Of course I don't invent them all. I go around the country collecting material. I go to California and find that the first three words every child is taught are 'mama, papa and unusual.' In Yuma, Ariz., they tell me, 'This is the hottest place you'll ever be in.' And I am grateful for that consolation. You can see how it goes. I go from state to state, I've been in them all traveling by automobile. From the people themselves I get all the humor that goes into my books. Give it a little embellishment to be sure, but there you are, simple enough."

Jackson didn't hobnob with writers or artists of any kind. He didn't read very much, preferring to be doing. He traveled to his heart's content and kept himself busy at it.

STOPPED IN MIDLAND DURING 1923

The author stopped in Midland in 1923, at the J. M. White Hudson agency, for getting repairs to his car. The interview, taken in shorthand, was one of the most ever carried by a Midland newspaper.

HERE'S ONE REASON WHY LONG DISTANCE CALLS

are fast

Vast network of long distance trunk lines, operated by A. T. & T., parent organization of the Bell System, makes possible split-second journeys for your voice.

● This company, like each of the 24 Bell System associated companies, operates its own long distance system within its own boundaries, (shown by shaded area on map). But A. T. & T. trunk lines link these 24 separate systems into a nationwide unit, over which your voice can flash almost with the speed of a local call to the remote reaches of the country.

● With thousands of miles of wire at their finger tips, operators at widely separated switchboards along these trunk lines must use perfect team-work in sending your voice on its split-second journeys. Working with equipment tested to the same high standards, these girls do the job in the same way, wherever they may be. In the last decade, they have reduced the average time needed to complete a call to any part of the land from 10 to a little less than two minutes.

● At intervals of 50 or 100 miles throughout this vast system of voice-highways, skilled attendants keep constant vigil in telephone "repeater" stations. Here, powerful tubes similar to the tubes in your radio infuse new life into failing voice currents. Without the "boosts" given by these repeaters, your voice would dwindle and die within the space of a few score of miles.

FOR YOU . . . Good Service at Fair Cost

NATION-WIDE telephone service would be virtually impossible without equipment built from the same designs and used in the same way . . . without operators trained in the same methods . . . without, in short, a nationwide organization behind it.

How effectively the Bell System meets this need is shown by the fact that long distance today is as clear as a local call; by the fact that 9 out of 10 long distance calls go through while you hold the line; by the constant pushing back of the frontiers of the voice, until 92 per cent of the world's telephones are now within your reach; by four reductions in long distance rates, made voluntarily in recent years.

Here you may see the workings of a fundamental Bell System policy . . . to give you constantly improving telephone service, at low cost to the user.

This policy has been adopted because we believe it is a policy that works. In an organization planned like the telephone service for the long pull, we feel that what is best for the telephone user becomes in the end the course that will bring us the sounder, more certain success.
