MARKET HOUSE PLAN APPROVED

City Council Instructs Attorney to Act

TAX LEVY IS ANNOUNCED

Rate Will Be $1.75 on Each $100 for 1905—Separate Car Ordinance Passed

MARKET HOUSE PLAN ACCEPTED BY CITY COUNCIL

The market house proposition submitted by F. W. Axtell and associates is to give the city 100x125 feet at Houston and Bluff streets, provided the city will build a market house 120x152 feet and buy sufficient ground for a farmers' square adjoining. There is also a stipulation that the city shall permit the building of an auditorium over the market house. No stipulation as to the cost of the building is contained in the proposition, but it is understood such a building would cost from $20,000 to $30,000.

The special council committee, appointed to consider the market house propositions pending, reported to the first session of changed time Monday night, the report of that committee recommending that the proposition of the Fort Worth Market House Company through its president, F. W. Axtell, be accepted as soon as the city attorney shall be satisfied as to a clear title to the property and the proper arrangements can be made, and that the proposition of W. J. Bailey be not accepted. The committee asked for another thirty days in which to carry out the ways and means they have decided upon for the carrying out of this city's part of the arrangements. The report was adopted in full.

Tax Levy Fixed

An ordinance was passed levying a total tax of $1.75 on each $100 valuation for the year 1905, the levy being divided as follows: Interest and sinking fund, 60c; street improvement, 25c; school purposes, 25c; all other purposes, 65c. The rebate provisions of the tax ordinance are, 2* per cent if paid before Oct. 15; 2 per cent, Nov. 1; 1½ per cent, Nov. 15; 1 per cent, Dec. 1; ½ of 1 per cent, Dec. 15, and the penalty for all taxes not paid before Feb. 1, 1906, is fixed at 1 per cent per month until paid. Some question was raised as to the legality of giving a rebate of as much as 2½ per cent under the provisions of the charter and a motion prevailed to hold up the ordinance until the city attorney could decide definitely as to the matter. This was done by the attorney and, upon his report that the rebate was legal, the ordinance passed.

Light Ordinance Accepted

The Consumers' Heat and Light Company, through its president, George W. Armstrong, accepted the ordinance as adopted by the people in the election held for a referendum vote on the Armstrong franchise, and tendered its bond in the sum of $10,000, conditioned that all damages by reason of construction work by said company would be paid by it and that the city would be held blameless in the matters arising from such damages. Bond was referred to the city attorney.

Equalizers' Salary Raised

The board of equalization reported to council that it has been in session for eighty-six days and petitioned that it have an additional allowance of $2 per day, making the salary of each $5 per day, the total extra amount being $516. The report of the board shows a total of city rendition rolls for 1905 to be $26,220,725, an increase of more than $2,000,000 over last year. The work of the board shows that all conditions of property in all localities have experienced an increase in value. This increase is especially noticed in real estate, being $826,490 over last year. The total real estate assessment for this year shows a total of $15,975,495. In railroad property, the assessment of 1904 was a total of $1,248,973, and for 1905, $1,262,875, being an increase of $14,102. Assessment of personal property in the city shows a gain of over $1,000,000 during the year past. Bank assessments have increased $507,811.

Separate Car Ordinance

An ordinance dividing the white from the black races in riding on street cars and providing that whites shall take seats beginning at the front end of cars, the blacks taking seats beginning from the rear, or back end of the car, was passed and provides fines for street car companies allowing persons to ride cars other than provided for in the ordinance and making it a misdemeanor for any passenger to ride in any part of cars other than is provided for in the same. The ordinance will be presented for the signature of the mayor at once; if signed by him, as is thought will be the case, it will go into effect Saturday, Oct. 14.

Dr. Barber to Get $200

A petition was presented from Dr. Lyman A. Barber, city physician, signed by members of council, asking that moneys previously received from the issuance of health certificates (which amounts to $368) and turned over to the city treasury as provided by law, together with such other moneys to be received from the same source, be allowed the city physician. Discussion brought out the fact that it is quite likely that as much more money will be received from the same source—if charge is continued for health certificates—as has already been turned over to the treasury, making a total of approximately $736. Members spoke against allowing the physician to retain all this money even though it was known that he is compelled to engage some qualified person to remain in his office day and night for the purpose of issuing them. The matter of any charge at all was made the subject of satire and vigorous denunciation by Alderman Lehane, who opposed the making of any charge at all for health certificates, inasmuch as the laws in some states made certificates which were charged for, illegal and void in effect. The matter was finally compromised by the passage of a motion to allow the physician $200 in addition to his regular salary.

Plant Insurance Opposed

The report of the water works committee recommended no insurance on the new water works plant, $4,000 on the air compressor plant and $20,000 on the electric light plant. Alderman Lehane spoke as to the committee's report, saying that he had favored insurance on the new water works plant, but that the remainder of the committee were against it for the reason that a watchman was kept at the plant continuously. On motion of the alderman the whole report was returned to the water works committee with power to act.

Moreland Congratulated.

Alderman Lehane offered the following resolution, which was passed unanimously:

Whereas, Our esteemed colleague from the Ninth ward, the Hon. Q. T. Moreland, has lately taken unto himself a better half to share his joys and sorrows through life; therefore,

Be It Resolved, That the hearty congratulations of this council be tendered the Hon. Q. T. Moreland and the best wishes of the council be extended him and his wife for their future welfare and may their life be one long blissful dream of uninterrupted happiness.

Upon the passage of the resolution Alderman Moreland made in a few well-turned remarks expressive of thanks to members of council.

It was voted that $225 be paid Mrs. Jennie O. Johnson on her execution of a proper deed for a lot on Bluff street to the city, said land having been in use by the city several years, while the city has not held clear title.

The petition of Sanitary Officer Ike Cooper to move near the city dumping grounds was referred to police committee.

Ordinance Contract Referred.

Report of judiciary committee recommending that contract for revising and digesting ordinances of the city be awarded Theo Mack at $350, to be paid upon acceptance by council, was amended that, in view of the fact that the city attorney would have to pass on the work, city attorney should have extra compensation for the extra work involved and the matter was passed over two weeks to learn what extra services of city attorney would cost.

Several tax petitions were received and filed.

Aldermen Parker, Lehane and Lydon were appointed a committee to canvass returns of recent election on Davidson franchise, votes were counted and report made as follows: For granting of franchise, 223 votes; against granting franchise, 534 votes. The franchise ordinance was declared lost.

The petition of Clarence Ousley for consideration of the removal of an electric light pole standing on the corner of Fifth and Rusk streets and alleged to be an obstruction and a nuisance to the office of the Daily Record at that point, was referred to the street and alley committee and the city engineer.

The application of J. A. Rogers for several offices was received.

The bill of Dr. J. H. McLean for $50 for services rendered W. W. Parish, a man who was found by the police at the point of death and without medical attention over a year ago, was allowed and ordered paid.

Free Water Granted

The Salvation Army, the Christian Volunteers and the Y. M. C. A. having applied for free water for drinking purposes, the same having been granted the Y. M. C. A., it was moved and carried to allow all three organizations free water to the extent of 1,000 gallons per month, all water used in excess of that amount to be paid for at the rate of 20c per 1,000 gallons.

Claims were allowed in the amount of $15,628.21.

E. J. Thompson was allowed $1,263 for the erection of a frame fire hall in Chambers Hill.

City attorney reported that a case involving validity of city pound ordinance had been decided unfavorably to the city and recommended that an appeal be taken. The report was adopted.

Sewer committee asked for further time for consideration of contract in south side extensions. Petition was granted.

Contract of S. T. Leversedge with the city, for construction of reservoir for waterworks, was received and filed.

Southwest side addition property owners asked for sewerage accommodations in such parts of West Belknap, Julian, Malcomb and Valley streets as are not already supplied. Petition was referred to sewerage committee.

Fort Worth Public Library Association board of trustees petitioned that proceedings be instituted looking to the removal of a one-story building at the corner of Ninth and Houston streets, the property belonging to the city and having been set aside for library purposes. Petition was referred to public grounds committee.

Police Appointments Confirmed

J. H. Maddox, chief of police, submitted appointments as follows, which were confirmed: R. R. Foster, from first extra to regular patrol; W. M. Eagle, third extra and Vick Jossenberger and H. W. Sales as special policemen at Greenwall's opera house without pay from the city.

Alderman Lehane again brought up the petition of J. E. Mitchell asking the right to put in connection with an artesian well at 304 Taylor street a loading tank for water wagons, offering to provide a concrete floor to drain toward the sewer. Alderman Lehane favored the granting of said petition. Alderman Waggoman spoke against the petition and presented a counter petition signed by citizens of that vicinity. Mr. Mitchell was allowed to address the council on the matter. Harry Adams, who is a resident of the neighborhood, also addressed the council against the granting of the petition. A motion was finally carried to submit the matter to a special committee, but before adjournment Mr. Mitchell asked to be permitted to withdraw his petition, which was granted and the petition withdrawn.

Council adjourned.

ROOT ASSUMES CHARGE

Former Secretary of War Now at Head of State Department

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Mr. Root yesterday formally took up the important duties of the office of secretary of state. He came early to the state department, as did Mr. Bacon, the new assistant secretary, and presented the latter to Mr. Loomis, the retiring assistant secretary.

Naturally there was much for Mr. Loomis to discuss with Mr. Root and Mr. Bacon, as neither of these gentlemen had kept close watch on the rest of the developments in international relations, and it remained for the retiring officer to place them in possession of a multitude of facts connected with important pending diplomatic issues. It probably will require at least two days to complete the turning over of this class of business, and consequently Mr. Bacon has not yet taken the oath of office in order not to displace Mr. Loomis.

SENATOR FORAKER, SPEAKING IN THE OHIO CAMPAIGN, SAYS THE SENATE WILL NOT SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT IN RATE LEGISLATION

PACKERS' AGENT TELLS ABOUT R. R. REBATES

Says Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Received on Average $25 Per Car

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—B. S. Cusey, who is traffic manager for Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, and was recently fined $5,000 for conspiracy in soliciting and accepting rebates from railroad companies, testified yesterday before the interstate commerce commission regarding freight rates on live stock and live stock products from Missouri river points to Chicago.

Witness Cusey today, in his testimony, said the amount of damage or rebates which his company received from the railroad averaged about $25 a car. He explained that this damage or rebate was paid ostensibly for delay in transit and damage to dressed meat and packing house products in transit. He said that not more than 5 per cent of the output of the Kansas City packing houses was shipped to Chicago on the published 20c rate. He declared that nearly all of the output passed through Chicago on the way east and was shipped from Kansas City on an 18-cent rate.

H. P. Buell on Stand

H. P. Buell, president of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange and a live stock commission leader and shipper for twenty-nine years, was on the stand the greater part of the afternoon. He declared that under present freight rates Kansas City is a better market than Chicago.

"The best prices are paid in Chicago, but in shipping cattle from Texas, freight rates make it more advantageous to make them in Kansas City," said the witness.

"Up to ten years ago probably all the Texas cattle were brought to Chicago, but recently most of these cattle have gone to Kansas City. Chicago is the greatest cattle market in the world, because of the wide competition among buyers, and all the Texas cattle would continue to come here if the shippers were given the right rate. Under the present conditions, however, this city is discriminated against in favor of Kansas City."

"Have you heard of an alleged combination among the packers which arbitrarily fixes the price of cattle here in Chicago, and don't you think the shippers for that reason may prefer to send their products to Kansas City and other markets?" the witness was asked.

"I have heard of the alleged combination of packers here to control prices of live stock, but they cannot do it on all classes of animals," replied Buell. "They buy a great majority of a certain class of cattle, but there are other classes which they do not use, and for which there is always a market. For instance, the price of stock sold to export buyers and speculators is never influenced by anything the packers' agents may do."

INVESTIGATION BEGUN

Experts Start Work on Insurance Companies' Books

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Ten accountants yesterday began an investigation of the books of the New York Life Insurance Company on behalf of Insurance Commissioners R. E. Folk of Tennessee, Zeno M. Host of Wisconsin, Thomas V. O'Brien of Minnesota, H. J. Prewitt of Kentucky and C. C. Pierce of Nebraska. The work of accountants was directed by two actuaries, W. J. Graham, representing Tennessee, and F. S. Wolff, representing Wisconsin, Minnesota and Nebraska. C. F. Woffard of Tennessee and Examiner Kearn of Kentucky were in town to help the actuaries.

It was stated that the examination would occupy two months and that none of its disclosures would be made public until it was ended.

GOOD COTTON YIELD

Central Oklahoma Shows Increase in Some Places

GUTHRIE, Okla., Oct. 3.—Throughout Oklahoma cotton picking is in progress, with a plentiful supply of labor. Locally the picking is just beginning, pickers receiving 75 cents per hundred for their work. The crop is in good condition, with a better yield generally than heretofore, especially throughout central Oklahoma, where in some instances the yield per acre is a quarter of a bale increase over last season. According to local dealers, it takes less seed cotton to make a bale of lint than it did last season. The lint this season is long and the seed is light, the cotton being considered of a better quality. The decrease in the amount of seed cotton to the bale is about 10 per cent.

OPERATION CAUSES DEATH BY FRIGHT

Chicago Patient Succumbs to Heart Disease While Physicians Prepare Instruments

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—Fright over an operation he was about to undergo is believed to have caused the death of Andrew Peebles, 57 years old, in the Grace hospital yesterday. While the physicians were preparing their instruments and the operating table, the patient died suddenly, supposedly from heart disease. It is believed his fright was responsible for the paralysis of the heart. He had been in the hospital receiving treatment for a disease of the throat.

TRUTH OF INSURANCE SCANDAL THOUGHT NEAR

Says It Will Be Proven Companies Have Been Paying Too Much for Business

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Assemblyman John T. Rogers of the insurance investigation committee in speaking of the insurance developments said yesterday:

"The coming week will be an interesting one as in my opinion it may develop the true cause of the insurance scandal, which is the fact that the large insurance companies have been paying a great deal more for new business than it is worth. The developments will not be of a sensational, but rather of a statistical nature, but they will go a long way toward solving the problem. It is the purpose of the committee to investigate every insurance company in the state, large and small and close the hearing by Jan. 1.

WACO GIRL PLANS CAREFUL SUICIDE

Nervousness Caused by Continuous Work and Study Supposed to Be Cause

WACO, Texas, Oct. 3.—Miss Minnie Harris, after preparing carefully for the deed with a six-shooter, killed herself yesterday by shooting herself directly through the heart.

She was the daughter of Sam B. Harris, a well-known citizen of East Waco. The mother being dead, Miss Minnie was housekeeper for the family. She was alone in the house and Justice Wood, who conducted the inquest, could ascertain no cause.

She sat upon the edge of the bed, put her feet upon a chair and after firing the shot fell back and died instantly. She was a diligent student and may have been suffering nervously from close and continuous application to her duties and books.

BOYS AID BANDITS IN DARING TRAIN ROBBERY

Great Northern Train's Baggage and Express Cars Dynamited

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 3.—A special to the Oregonian from Seattle, Wash., says that the Great Northern overland train leaving Seattle at 8:20 last night was held up and the baggage and express car dynamited half a mile east of mile post 10, about five miles from Ballard, at 8:45 p. m. It was 11 o'clock before the train pulled in to Edmonds and the most meager reports sent to the local office. Three men are known to have done the work. Two boys, who got on the blind baggage here, as soon as the hold-up began, entered the passenger coaches and began holding up the passengers. They were captured. They say two of the men were on the blind baggage when they got on and the third got on at Ballard.

Express Messenger Hurt.

All were well dressed with rain coats and slouch hats. So far as reported, no one has been killed, but it is reported that Charles Anderson, express messenger, is slightly injured. Manager Waring of the Great Northern Express company said last night he did not know the contents of the safe, but believes it was a small sum. After securing the contents of the safe, the three men started off in an easterly direction. It is believed other members of the gang are ahead of the scene of the hold-up and the robbers joined them. The train was flagged near the brick yard and as the engineer slowed up two men with raincoats climbed over the tender and presented revolvers to his head. When the train stopped the baggage and express car was uncoupled by one of the robbers and the engineer instructed to pull ahead, which he did for several hundred yards, when he was again commanded to stop. Two of the robbers then jumped off, making the engineer and fireman do the same and all marched to the baggage car door. The messenger was commanded to open the door and refusing, an extra heavy charge of dynamite was placed against it and exploded.

Car Torn to Pieces.

The explosion tore the car almost to pieces. The safe was then dynamited. The train was delayed two hours and a half, and then pulled into Edmonds, making a brief report before proceeding to Everett. The two boys say they never met the hold-ups until they got on the train and in no way connected with their work. The idea to hold up the passengers occurred to them after the explosion. Sheriff Smith has started out with a posse.

QUIET AT EDNA; NEGRO AT LARGE

Troops on Hand to Preserve Peace

CITIZENS ARE BITTER

Threaten to Discontinue the Search if Soldiers Are Not Recalled

Special to The Telegram.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 3.—The situation at Edna today is unchanged. Monk Gibson, the 16-year-old negro boy suspected of being implicated in the killing of Mrs. A. J. Conditt, her daughter and three young sons, last Thursday, is believed to be still at large.

There has been a persistent rumor that the negro has been captured and is now safe in jail without the knowledge of the citizens, but this report is as emphatically denied by the authorities.

Citizens Angry at Soldiers

Much bitterness is displayed on the part of the citizens of the Edna community at the presence of soldiers who were taken by Adjutant General Hulen to the scene of the search last night in order to protect Gibson in case he is caught.

The people say that the presence of the soldiers is a reflection on them and that there has been no outbreak. The soldiers are camped in town awaiting orders but it is believed they will be recalled Wednesday.

Threaten to Quit Search

The search for Gibson still continues in the bottoms of the Navidad, but it is barren of results. Some of the people are threatening to give up the search if the soldiers are not recalled.

GOVERNOR HAS NO WORD

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 3.—Governor Lanham has received no word today from Adjutant General Hulen and the troops who went to Edna last night. It is rumored here that the negro has been captured and is now in jail.

SEPARATE STATEHOOD MEETING ENTHUSIASTIC

Big Crowd Attends Gathering at Madill and Hears Addresses by Prominent Speakers

MADILL, I. T., Oct. 3.—The separate statehood meeting here yesterday brought out one of the largest crowds ever assembled in Madill, farmers from a radius of fifteen miles coming into town to hear C. N. Haskell and William Murray discuss the question.

In addition to Messrs. Haskell and Murray, Henry K. Allen, a prominent attorney of Ardmore, made an address, dealing exclusively with the Torrens land system, which simplifies the transfer of title, and urged the people to vote for the ratification of the Sequoyah constitution for this reason if no other and thus express their preference for statehood separate from Oklahoma.

Messrs. Haskell and Murray dealt with the general issue, pointing to the record of failure of the single statehood movement in the past, because the leaders ignored the Indians, calling attention to the provisions of the treaties, in which the United States government pledges separate statehood to Indian Territory. Mr. Haskell read from the report of Henry C. Rouse, chairman of the board of directors of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, to the stockholders, where he referred to "land grant and statehood."

The speakers were given the closest attention throughout and their speeches were frequently interrupted by applause. W. H. Franklin, who attended the Oklahoma City convention, introduced the speakers and while he still inclines to single statehood, says he indorses the Sequoyah constitution and will vote for its adoption.

PAT CROWE ARRESTED IN BUTTE, MONTANA

Friend Informed Police That the Fugitive Was Visiting His Brother There

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 3.—Pat Crowe, wanted by the Omaha police for the kidnaping of the son of the millionaire packer, Edward Cudahy, in 1900, was arrested in this city last night.

Crowe's identification has been made complete through photographs sent to the authorities by the Omaha officers. Crowe acknowledged he was the fugitive, becoming alarmed when he feared the authorities were going to shoot him.

Captain of Police W. F. McGrath and Detective McInerney made the arrest, placing the muzzles of their revolvers against his stomach as he emerged from a saloon in the tenderloin section of the city. Crowe declared he would return to Omaha without requisition papers. He cursed bitterly at his arrest, expressing chagrin at his apprehension in a town the size of Butte, where he, as he said, had traveled the world over and evaded capture in all the large cities.

Crowe has two brothers in Montana, one living in Butte and the other at Great Falls.

A friend of Crowe's informed the local police of Crowe's presence in the city and his arrest followed after photographs of the fugitive had been secured from Omaha.

COLD STORAGE CASE TO BE DECIDED

Much Interest in Result of Hearing Before Court of Criminal Appeals at Tyler

SHERMAN, Texas, Oct. 3.—Much interest is being manifested in a case appealed to the court of criminal appeals, which has convened at Tyler, in which the constitutionality of the new cold storage law, inhibiting the drinking of intoxicants in any place where the same are kept in storage for the owner thereof, is involved.

Louis B. Eppstein of Denison, whose connection in the very exhaustive appeals taken in the Grayson county tests has kept him in close touch with all such litigation, was in Sherman, and in reply to a question as to the status of the San Marcos appeal said:

"While not fully informed as to the matter, I am of the opinion that the matter will be taken up in the regular assignment of counties, which would bring it to the attention of the court about or possibly a few days before Nov. 1."

TO CATARRH SUFFERERS

Hyomei Guaranteed to Cure by R. A. Anderson or Money Refunded

The popularity and increase in the sales of Hyomei are unique in the annals of medicine. Such astonishing cures have been made by this remedy that the proprietors have authorized R. A. Anderson to sell every package of Hyomei under an absolute guarantee that it will cure catarrh. If it does not, the purchaser can have his money refunded by R. A. Anderson.

Hyomei is no ordinary remedy. It is the only method of treatment that sends by direct inhalation to the most remote part of the air passages, a balsamic air that destroys all catarrhal germs in the breathing organs, enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone, and makes a permanent and complete cure of catarrh.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh and is the only one that follows Nature in her methods of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

Breathe through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and your catarrh is cured. That's all.

If not cured, R. A. Anderson will refund your money.

THREE FAST BOUTS ON CRUISER TACOMA

Men from Ships in Brooklyn Navy Yard Engage in Scientific Boxing Contests

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Early last night the quarterdeck of the protected cruiser Tacoma, lying alongside her pier in the navy yard, presented a scene that would have delighted the hearts of the patrons of the manly art if they could have witnessed it. Beneath a brilliant cluster of electric bunch lights was a regulation twenty-four foot ring. Aft of it sat officers from all the ships in the yard and forward, tier upon tier, were the jackies, twenty-five from each ship, and all the Tacoma's crew. There were three fast bouts, the first between "Kid" Linsky of the Chattanooga and "Kid" Betham of the Tacoma. It resulted in a draw, as did the second bout of six rounds between Master-at-Arms Charles Ward of the Brooklyn and Seaman Hoskins of the same ship.

In the final bout of ten rounds were H. R. Domaratius of the Brooklyn and T. E. Shaefer of the Tacoma.

For the first three rounds the men seemed about evenly matched. In the sixth round Shaefer got in a left hook on the point of the jaw that knocked the Brooklyn's man out.

PAVING IS PEELING

Repairs in Houston Street Already Show Wear

Repairs made to the Houston street paving following the opening of that street for placing wires underground, though completed but a few weeks ago, are already becoming worn.

At one crossing near the south end of the street a layer of the repaving is peeling off, pieces many square inches in size being removable by the slightest pressure.

Condition of the street has been the occasion of much complaint. For many weeks after the opening of it, the repairs were unmade, application being finally made to council by the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Company to secure the repairs, averment being made that the Parker-Washington Company alone could make the repairs and that they had been unable to get them to do so. The matter was then referred to the city attorney, the repairs following.

Letters to The Telegram

SOME NEEDED PAVING

To The Telegram.

While you are doing such excellent work in way of encouragement, advice, solicitation and recommendation for the promotion and upbuilding of our splendid library, it would be a happy idea and profitable adjunct thereto if the street immediately in front was paved in conjunction with the Throckmorton and city hall improvement. Why not lend your valuable aid and influence by starting a crusade along this line? That short stretch left unpaved will not only be an eyesore to residents as well as transients, but will also be very unsatisfactory for driving after leaving Houston or Throckmorton in their smooth condition. Such a short link, too; it seems something might be done now, while teams and men are near at hand and the torn-up condition has become familiar to all, obviating another season of inconvenience some time in the future. I believe The Telegram can start the ball to rolling in such way this short space can be covered with paving. Hoping you will make the effort, I am yours for the improvement,

GEORGE F. ROBERTS.

JUDGE MOBBED FOR LECTURING MAYOR

Brighton, Colo., Citizens Force Him to Rescind Order of Arrest For City Officials

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 3.—The spectacle of a member of the judiciary being dragged about by a mob and forced to rescind an official order ended a day of turmoil at Brighton, Colo., the county seat of Adams county, adjoining the city limits of Denver.

A. P. Gunthiel, county judge, hauled the mayor, marshal and members of the town board before him yesterday and lectured them for their alleged failure to enforce ordinances against gambling and Sunday selling. Following this he ordered the sheriff and marshal to gather the slot machines in the town of Brighton and when they reported later that they had only found one Judge Guthiel deputized two men to arrest them for contempt.

The report of the judge's action concerning the two peace officers spread through the town and caused much excitement. Citizens began to gather on the streets and fearing for his personal safety Judge Guthiel boarded a Union Pacific freight engine as it was pulling a train slowly through the town. He ordered the engineer to uncouple the engine from the train, it is said, and run to the city with him. The latter refused to obey the demand and while they were discussing the matter a mob gathered around the engine and Judge Guthiel was dragged from the cab. He was told that he must rescind his order of arrest against the sheriff and marshal and upon being assured that he had already done so the mob released the judge and he was allowed to proceed to this city on a passenger train later.

TAFT IS HOME AGAIN

Makes Record Time from Yokohama to America

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3.—After an absence of more than three months, Secretary of War Taft returned to Washington at 3:27 o'clock yesterday afternoon, establishing a record from Yokohama to Washington by making the trip in fourteen days and arriving two days ahead of schedule time.

The trip from San Francisco was made over the Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Chicago and Northwestern and the Baltimore and Ohio roads.

Of the original members of the congressional party, only one, Senator Foster of Louisiana, returned to Washington with the secretary. Secretary Taft appeared to be hearty and vigorous and cordially greeted those who met him. He made a quick trip to his home and then proceeded to the war department. There he expressed gratification that the long journey was over and that it had been accomplished without mishap to any of the party.

In discussing briefly his trip, the secretary said the natives of the Philippines have reached the point where they can participate in legislation with profit to themselves, and that it will be a good education for them. There are, he added, a sufficient number well qualified to compose one branch of the legislative body.

DESDEMONA'S DEATH RESULT OF SHOCK

Doctors Supply Inquest Omitted by English Bard—Banquet Planned For Nov. 6

"The Death of Desdemona" was the subject of a paper by Dr. Ira Carleton Chase before the Fort Worth Medical Society at its meeting Monday night. The paper was also discussed at length by the members of the society, the conclusion being finally reached that the death of Desdemona was due to shock, rather than strangulation or suffocation. The opinion was also advanced that death was due to heart failure.

Drs. Bacon Saunders, W. R. Thompson and I. L. Van Zandt, the committee appointed to make necessary arrangements for the banquet to be given by the society Monday night, Nov. 6, made its report to the society. It was decided to invite many out-of-town doctors to attend the banquet. The place has not been decided upon, but the banquet will be given at a down-town hotel.

FEW DEATHS OR NEW FEVER CASES REPORTED

Rapid Reduction at New Orleans and Throughout Louisiana Encouraging

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 3.—With the center foci being wiped out and new cases falling in number, the list of sick being reduced and the death roll showing no appreciation, the fever situation is taking on a brighter aspect every day, both as to the city and country. Only one death occurred yesterday in the whole state outside of New Orleans and there was shrinkage in the number of cases everywhere, with perhaps the exception of Patterson. Advices coming to the state board of health from a number of points are favorable to President Souchon's suggestion of lifting the quarantines or at least a considerable modification of them by the middle of the month or perhaps a week later and if the improvement here is maintained there probably will be many communities willing to take the risk of reopening communication.

Railroad officials are receiving inquiries as to possibility of excursions into the city at the time of the President's visit, the date for which having been extended two days, makes it more probable at the time of his coming the fever will have been practically wiped out. In many sections of Louisiana frost ought to occur shortly thereafter.

Health Officer Kohnke in an interview today expressed the opinion by reason of the precautions that are being taken the children will be more safe in the school room than in their own homes. Federal authorities for a long time had great difficulty tracing infection at the banks at Dupree street. In spite of their efforts heretofore they have been unable to stamp out the vicinity as a center infection and from 35 to 40 cases come from the neighborhood. Dr. Blue finally discovered the house in which the original cases occurred. Late yesterday he quarantined it and then thoroughly fumigated it.

At the opening of the new real estate exchange last night United States Senator McEnery discussed the question of a national quarantine and while favoring considerable enlargement of the scope of the marine hospital service, said: "In framing a law for the federal control of quarantine there should be the utmost endeavor to preserve all positive rights remaining to the states. No calamity, however appalling, should induce us to surrender any of these rights. We are not yet ready to destroy states and make this government one great centralized power without any political sub-divisions. We have been drifting that way until the near approach to an imperial government is becoming alarming."

SPREADING AT NATCHEZ

Six New Foci Reported in Twenty-Four Hours

NATCHEZ, Miss., Oct. 3.—Yesterday's record shows a rapid spread of yellow fever in the last twenty-four hours, as six new foci are listed on the local map. Five of the new foci are scattered about and beyond the old infected neighborhood, but one case is in Factory Row, which is in the First ward, thus infecting every one of the four wards in the city. As the houses in Factory Row are close together, it is feared the sickness will spread rapidly in that neighborhood.

The county supervisors met in the country on account of fever in Natchez and requested the county health officer to establish a more rigid quarantine against Natchez. Residents of the city who have relatives in the country endeavored to induce the board to establish a relay station, so that they could be relayed to the country, but no action was taken.

Marian Taylor, president of the Louisville board of trade, authorized the local representative of his firm to draw on him for the benefit of the local relief fund and added that he would bring the matter before his board tomorrow.

ATTORNEYS DISPUTE IN CARTER HEARING

Attorney Erwin Tries to Bring in Testimony from Gayonr and Greene Case

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—Attempts on the part of the government attorneys to introduce portions of testimony of the late Robert F. Westcott, father-in-law of Captain Oberlin Carter, given at the Gaynor and Greene hearing in New York a year ago, caused a clash between counsel at the hearing of the Carter case before Special Examiner Wyman at the Federal building today.

Assistant United States Attorney General Erwin read from Mr. Westcott's testimony to show that Captain Carter lent his father-in-law $10,000 in January, 1895, prior to leaving for Europe.

"If Mr. Westcott gave this testimony did he tell the truth?" asked Attorney Erwin.

"He did not, because I did not loan him $10,000 in January, 1895," said Captain Carter. "If he gave that testimony in New York he testified falsely."

Records were produced showing that Captain Carter disbursed $29,000 to the Atlantic Contract Company, a Gaynor-Greene concern, in New York Jan. 17, 1895, and that subsequently $10,000 was deposited in the Union Trust Company to the credit of R. E. Wescott. This is supposed to represent Captain Carter's interest of one-third in the amount paid the contractors for government work on Savannah harbor. Deposits aggregating this sum were made Jan. 11, Jan. 16 and Jan. 21, prior to Mr. Wescott's departure for Europe. A mass of other documentary evidence, damaging to the defendant, was introduced later to refute the story told by Captain Carter that practically all the $100,000 in his possession when arrested he received from his father-in-law.

At the afternoon session evidence was introduced to show that Captain Carter held the power of attorney for his father-in-law while the latter was traveling in Europe. The defendant was closely questioned in regard to the financial transactions in New York June 1, 1905, when Carter paid Gaynor and Greene $59,000 on account. Bank accounts and records were exhibited to show that the same day this money was paid to the contractors Captain Carter deposited $9,000 to the credit of his father-in-law's account in the Union Trust Company and also purchased $9,500 worth of bonds. Later Carter deposited the interest coupons of those bonds to the credit of his personal bank account. Captain Carter explained the transaction by saying he was acting as the financial agent of R. F. Westcott, his father-in-law, and denied all connection between the payment made Gaynor and Greene and the bank deposits and bond purchases made in the name of Wescott.

BIGAMIST CARLTON GETS NINETEEN YEARS

Prisoner Is Mobbed Outside of Jail and Has Narrow Escape From Violence

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Frederick E. Carlton, who is convicted of three charges of bigamy and one of grand larceny in Brooklyn, was yesterday sentenced to an aggregate term of nineteen years in state's prison.

In sentencing Carlton, Judge Aspinwall said: "You are at heart a villain, a murderer, a swindler and a thief, and I am sorry that I cannot send you to the electric chair. Just remember that your mother was a woman, but you played with the love of women and when you were through with them you turned them out in the world with their shame upon them. You are one of the most dangerous men in the country."

As he left the court room, after the denunciation, Carlton was met by a young woman, who called him by name and began to weep, exclaiming:

"What the judge said was all true."

Carlton laughed in the young woman's face and passed on.

When outside the building he was mobbed by a crowd of men, many of whom had once been his neighbors, but who then tried to strike him. The mob numbered 500 and the deputies who guarded him had great difficulty in saving him from serious injury. They ran with the prisoner to a street car, and in this manner escaped from the mob.

FAMOUS WHITTAKER-CASE IS DECIDED

Contenders Win Before Secretary of Interior and Will Be Enrolled as Cherokees

VINITA, I. T., Oct. 3.—News has been received here from Washington that the famous Cherokee citizenship case of Joshua W. Whitaker and others has been decided by the secretary of the interior. The decision of the Dawes commission was reversed and the applicants were ordered enrolled as Cherokee citizens.

The Whitaker case has been pending for the last five years and its outcome has been watched with interest by the Cherokees. In this case the attorneys for the Cherokee Nation have been badly defeated, as they resisted this enrollment vigorously. Allotments will be made to the Whitakers as soon as their names are placed upon the final Cherokee rolls, now being prepared by the commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes.

PARALYSIS CURED

MR. JOHN KENNEY'S CONDITION WAS THOUGHT HOPELESS.

But the Disease Yielded to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—Some Details Given by Himself.

Mr. Kenney has actually escaped from the paralytic's fate to which he seemed a short time ago hopelessly doomed. The surprising report has been fully verified and some important details secured in a personal interview with the recent sufferer.

"The doctor," said Mr. Kenney, "told that if I wanted to live any length of time I would have to give up work altogether, and he told my friends that the paralysis which had begun would in time involve my whole body."

"Just how were you afflicted at this time?" Mr. Kenney was asked.

"Well, I had first hot, and then cold and clammy feelings, and at times my body felt as if needles were being stuck into it. These sensations were followed by terrible pains, and again I would have no feeling at all, but a numbness would come over me, and I would not be able to move. The most agonizing tortures came from headaches and a pain in the region of my spine.

"Night after night I could not get my natural sleep and my system was wrecked by the strain of torturing pains and the effect of the opiates I was forced to take to induce sleep. As I look back on the terrible suffering I endured during this period I often wonder how I retained my reason through it all.

"But relief came quickly when I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The very first box seemed to help me, and seven boxes made me entirely well. There can be no doubt about the thoroughness of my cure, for I have worked steadily ever since and that is nearly four years."

Mr. Kenney is at present employed by the Merrimac Hat Company and resides at 101 Aubin street, Amesbury, Mass. The remedy which he used with such satisfactory results, is sold by all druggists, or direct by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N.Y. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a double [illegible] and on the blood, and have cured [illegible] ration, St. Vitus' dance, [illegible], locomotor ataxia, anæmia and rheumatism, as well as simpler ailments such as headaches, insomnia and debility.

When young Roosevelt handed in his name as a candidate he gave his weight as 145 pounds, and stated that he had played four years at Groton.

TERRIBLE ECZEMA FOR TEN YEARS

Hands Raw Inside and Out—Spreading to Body and Limbs Despite Efforts of Three Doctors—Another Remarkable and Speedy

CURE BY THE CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I had eczema on my hands for ten years. At first it would break out only in winter. Then it finally came to stay. I had three good doctors to do all they could, but none of them did any good. I then used one box of Cuticura Ointment and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and was completely cured. My hands were raw all over, inside and out, and the eczema was spreading all over my body and limbs. Before I had used one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, together with the Ointment, my sores were nearly healed over, and by the time I had used the third bottle, I was entirely well. I had a good appetite and was fleshier than I ever was. To any one who has any skin or blood disease I would honestly advise them to fool with nothing else, but to get Cuticura and get well quicker than all the doctors in the State can cure you. Cured by Cuticura for $1.

"I am glad to recommend Cuticura Soap and Ointment for eczema. My baby's head and face was in a solid scab for about six months. The doctor said he could do nothing for him, so we sent one dollar for two cakes of Soap and one box of Ointment. We used the two cakes of Soap and the Ointment on his head and face and it cured him completely. After we began using the Soap and Ointment the eczema began to dry up at once. (signed) Mrs. C. J. NINTH STREET PAVING URGED

Short Stretch Fronting Carnegie Library Is Being Left Off While Present Work Is Completed

With the rapid completion of paving about city hall complaint is being made that the small stretch of street running from Ninth and Houston streets to the city hall should not be left unpaved.

It is pointed out that this small strip will be surrounded upon all sides by paved streets, forming a most unpleasant contrast. This street passing the Carnegie library is probably used more than any other stretch of similar length and it is being urged that it be paved while the work adjoining it is being done.

Property facing the street upon both sides belongs to the city. The entire cost of paving would therefore fall upon the municipality. Other paving about city hall has been done upon agreement of property owners to pay their share.

ALL RAILROADS MUST OBEY EMERGENCY RATE

Commissioner Mayfield Announces That None Will Be Exempted from Recent Order

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 3.—Railroad Commissioner Allison Mayfield has returned from Zavala county, where he has been the past ten days. He announced that he had turned down all petitions or applications from any railroad to be exempt from operation of the emergency order on dry goods. The commission was waiting until his return before any action was taken on the number of applications now pending. This practically means that no railroad will be exempt from the order.

STORIES of PEOPLE TALKED ABOVT

General Porter tells this story of his farewell to Mark Twain once when Mark was going away: "I said, 'Good-by, Mark; may God be with you always.' He drawlingly replied: 'I hope—em—He will, but I hope, too, that He may find some leisure moments to take care of you.'"

Jabez Swan of Connecticut, the noted and eccentric evangelist, was once attending a Baptist association meeting, when the moderator, a driving man for business, had cut the time for the speakers and for the business of the morning. "And now," he said, "there are just three minutes left that are unoccupied. Elder Swan, will you pray?"

The elder rose at the call and said: "Well, brethren, I never yet did pray at a mark, but I'll try," and he filled out the allotted time.

Robert Christy, a venerable Britisher now visiting in Washington, interestingly narrates reminiscences of his long acquaintance with the rPince of Wales, now King Edward. He says that on the evening of his christening all of the stores and public houses of the empire were illuminated, and Albert Edward's initials, "A. E.," were displayed in all windows; when one of the courtiers remarked:

"Before he wears the crown the lad'll have need of the other three vowels."

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire tells of an old-time New England preacher who stirred his congregation with a long and earnest sermon on "The Wrath of God." He depicted an angry God and an auxiliary old-time hell. So vividly did he tell the story that all of his hearers shuddered and imagined the smell of brimstone; and were ready to "flee from the wrath to come."

That Sunday afternoon the preacher was particularly entertaining and kind to his 8-year-old daughter, asking her into the garden, picking flowers for her and telling her interesting stories. As they entered the parlor the child ran to her mother and said:

"Oh, mamma, I wish God was good as papa is!"

Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard was describing at a banquet the absent-minded men he had met.

"We had once at Cambridge," he said, "a very absent-minded Latin instructor. This gentleman would walk the streets with an open book before his face, and every one had to get out of his way, as though he were blind. It is said of him that one spring day, as he was walking in the outskirts of Cambridge, with his usual open book, he stumbled against a cow, and, before he had time to collect his thoughts, mechanically took off his hat and murmured, 'Madam, I beg your pardon.' Then he perceived his mistake, and continued on his way, reading as before. Half a mile farther on he collided with a young lady, whereupon, in an angry tone of voice, he said: 'Is that you again, you brute?'"

Charles M. Schwab, formerly president of the United States Steel Corporation, tells the following incident of his experience as a promoter of study and investigation among the wage-earners in his employ:

He once delivered a lecture on the elements of metallurgical chemistry, with especial reference to the reactions of the steel furnace, before a company of young men employed in one of the mills of this company, and was much pleased with the interest and attention he received.

Feeling sure that the information he had imparted would be made more useful by an informal discussion, he offered, when his address was finished, to answer any questions the workmen in the audience might be disposed to ask.

The awkward silence which followed was at last broken by one of the workmen, who rose and asked: "Mr. Schwab, can you tell us what will remove warts from the hands?"

Henry Cabot Lodge is said to have told the following at a dinner not long ago:

An amusing instance of "literal-mindedness" was afforded some time ago by a bellboy in a hotel in Washington. One of the guests, a congressman from the west, had hurried to the hotel clerk's counter. He had just ten minutes in which to pay his bill, reach the railroad station and board his train.

When he had transacted his business with the clerk and had turned to dash out of the door it suddenly occurred to him that he had forgotten something.

"Here, boy," he shouted to a diminutive negro on the bench, "run up to room 48 just as quick as you can and see whether I have left a box on the bureau. But hurry, as I have only five minutes."

The boy rushed up the stairs. In two minutes he returned, out of breath.

"Yes, sah," he panted, "you left it, sah!"

Former Congressman Joy of Missouri tells a good story concerning ex-President Cleveland. During his first administration President Cleveland made an extensive tour of the west and northwest, the people, regardless of political affiliations, vieing with each other in their demonstrations of admiration for the man and respect for the office. On a very blustery day in St. Louis, after reviewing the first division of an immense parade, Mr. Cleveland was invited into the hotel to partake of a little stimulant, and cheerfully accepted, saying: "Under the circumstances I will be glad to have an opportunity to relieve the chill."

"Step from the balcony right through this window," said David Francis, chairman of the committee of arrangements; and the President did so, accompanied by several other distinguished guests. On a long table in the parlor about a dozen glasses of liquor were already poured out, with water on the side. Where President Cleveland stood there were two glasses, and he asked why he had been doubly supplied.

"One is for your secretary, Colonel Lamont," said Mr. Francis.

"Oh, very well," said Mr. Cleveland, with a broad grin as he poured the contents of both glasses into one, adding:

"Dan doesn't drink."

Congressman Sullivan was taking a well-known Englishman around Boston to see the sights. Taking his guest over to Charlestown, Mr. Sullivan showed him the monument and grounds surrounding it. When they reached the spot where General Warren was killed Mr. Sullivan said: "And here is where Warren fell."

The Englishman scanned the top of the monument and then the ground for a minute, and, turning to the congressman, asked: "Did it hurt him very much?"

Sullivan, in a surprised and somewhat sharp tone, said: "Why, good gracious, man, he was killed."

"Well, I should have thought it would kill him," answered the Englishman, still surveying the monument's height.

Bishop Mallalieu of the Methodist church always advocated paying better salaries to ministers. He told once of a capital young fellow, hopeful and happy in his pastorate, in spite of the small pay, of whom he lost sight for twelve or fifteen years. One day the bishop met him in Boston, looking prosperous.

"What church are you in?" asked the bishop.

"Oh," he said, regrettfully, "no church; the wholesale hat business."

"Why did you leave the church?"

"For seven reasons."

"What are they?" asked the bishop.

"One wife and six children."

Dave Browne tells several anecdotes concerning Montana's eccentric United States senator, W. F. Sanders, one of them being to the effect that when Sanders was going east through Dakota he was given a stateroom, the only available space on the sleeping car; the upper berth of which was already taken. Before going to bed Sanders laid his toilet set on the chair beside the wash stand; when he awakened in the morning, the upper-berth stranger was using his articles, concluding with vigorous use of Sanders' tooth brush.

The senator said nothing, but finally rolled out of the lower berth and prepared to dress himself. The first thing he did was to take his tooth brush, soap it well and begin to wash his feet with it.

"For heaven's sake, man!" exclaimed the stranger, "is that your tooth brush?"

"Not at all," replied the imperturbable senator. "This is my toe brush." And the fellow rushed out of the car, hid away in the smoker and Sanders saw no more of him on the trip.

Alton B. Parker, at a dinner in New York, characterized as illogical the position of two prominent financiers.

"These gentlemen remind me," he said, "of two sailors who were found one day, seated at a table before a cafe.

"One sailor had a letter before him and was reading aloud, while at the same time the other sailor held his hands over the reader's ears.

"It made an odd picture—the two sailors with their mild drink, one reading and the other holding his ears while he did so.

"The friendly waiter, impelled by an irresistible curiosity, paused before the table.

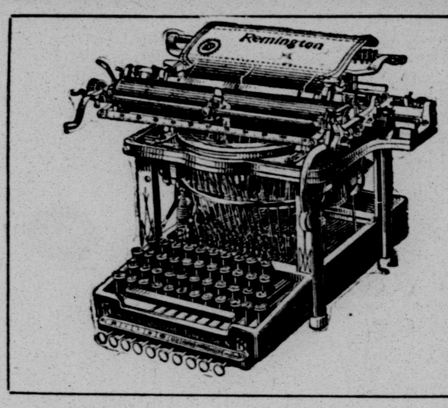

"'Why,' he asked, 'do you hold your hands over your friend's ears while he reads that letter out loud to you?'

"'Because,' was the dignified answer, 'the letter is from my sweetheart. Jack is reading it to me because I can't read myself. That is all right, but I don't want him to hear what is written.'"

When the town of Brunswick, Me., celebrated, some years ago, the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of its incorporation, there was a big dinner, and Tom Reed and Nelson Dingley were present, and were, of course, called upon to speak.

Dingley spoke first, and said, in conclusion, that he had made no preparation, and would now make way for a gentleman who had come with a prepared speech, meaning Reed, who got back at Dingley as follows:

"Mr. Toastmaster, I am sorry to begin with an apology. Some time ago I attended a celebration like this in Unity, in Waldo county, and there heard Governor Dingley refer touchingly to Unity as his birthplace. I afterward learned that the governor was also born in Durham, in the county of Androscoggin, and I know that nothing but my presence here prevents his claiming that he was born in Brunswick, too. And I feel like apologizing for being here, for it will hereafter be an honor to have even shared in the birthplace of Governor Dingley."

HOW THE NEW YORK GIANTS WON THE PENNANT

Captain Dan McGann's interesting story of the fight for the flag in the National League

Written for The Telegram by Dan McGann, captain of the New York National League Baseball Club.

To begin with, you can't expect me to have any graces of composition. I'm not a writer. I'm a ball player, and having your fingers all bunged up by stopping hot throws does not make them deft with the pen. But if you'll stand for my rough style, I'll try to tell you why the Giants won the pennant.

There are no stars on the team. Each part is the ninth part of a unit, working whole.

If you ask me to what one thing more than any other is the success of the Giants due, I have the answer: McGraw!

There are many strings that have contributed to make us champions, but they are all gathered in the hand of McGraw.

Ball players are naturally pretty rugged in disposition. The gentle manners necessary in a parlor would be somewhat too delicate for the ball field. And this is just as true o college-bred men as it is of those who never ate their grass with a fork.

McGraw got us together, developed us and made us champions. McGraw has his way, with the emphasis on "his." He stands for no contradiction, no return argument. It's never "will you do this?" It's "do it."

And it's done, done McGraw's way.

His men have perfect confidence in his judgment. They know that he has every trick of the game wrapped up and ready for delivery. They know what kind of a ball player he is himself, and if they can be like him they consider their ambition satisfied. It may seem a trifle, but a manager in uniform on the field has one in store clothes faded to a frazzle.

The fine art of McGraw's hand is seen to particular advantage in his guiding of pitchers—and pitchers are a most important factor in a ball game.

An illustration will show this better than any other way.

The first game home last year. You know what kind of a crowd packed the Polo grounds. Christy Mathewson asked McGraw to let him work. This was unusual. His players do not butt into McGraw's plans.

"I'm good today," said Mathewson. "I'll put it all over the other fellows."

McGraw looked at Matty. He knew that Matty had nothing. He knew better than his pitcher how good he was.

"Go in and work!" said McGraw.

Matty worked. He was pounded all over the lot. McGraw kept him in. The crowd yelled to take him out. It was a new experience for Matty. He looked appealingly at his manager. Still McGraw kept him in.

Matty had to stick and take what was coming to him. McGraw paid no attention to the screaming of the fans.

But he took him out before the game ended. He waved him away in the middle of an inning. Matty did not come back to the bench. He walked to the club house. It was pitiful and everyone of us felt sorry for him.

McGraw lost that opening game. But what was one game to the Giants? He had saved the greatest pitcher that ever faced a batter.

The lesson was sufficient for Mathewson.

Catching a ball and making a base hit are very small parts of the national game. The average spectator knows very little of the real work a team may be putting up to win.

You will hear a fan criticise a catcher, for instance.

"That guy can't throw to bases anything like so and so."

"There's a foul that so and so would eat."

Maybe. But the critic forgets that the catcher, who may be a bit slower of foot and arm than another happens to be the one who is guiding the pitcher to victory. Without his steadying mind that boy on the slab would look like Lou Dillon hitched to a wheelbarrow.

Getting runs is obviously the main thing. The Giants work continually and always collectively toward that end.

Get the run in. That's McGraw's shiboleth.

McGraw, team work, harmony among the personnel of the men and McGraw, are responsible for the success of the Giants.

DAN McGANN,
Captain of the New York National League Baseball Club.

SENATOR PLATT HOME

Declares Opposition to Higgins for Governor

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—United States Senator Thomas C. Platt, who arrived from Washington yesterday, said in the course of an interview:

"I am against Governor Higgins for another term under any circumstances."

He declined to say who his candidate for governor would be.

Senator Platt said that the selection of a public printer had not been decided on.

"Who is your candidate for United States district attorney?" the senator was asked.

"I am for Robert C. Morris," was the reply, "first, last and all the time."

Senator Elsberg has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the district attorney's office.

"What do you think of him?" the senator was asked.

"The President told me last night that Elsberg was not a candidate. The only other name I heard mentioned is that of James R. Sheffield."

The senator was asked if he had heard of the meeting between Odell and Woodruff, where Woodruff was said to have been promised the republican nomination for governor next year if he would make the run for mayor this year. To this the senator replied that he had not, and added:

"It is a question whether Mr. Odell could guarantee that, and even if he could, whether he would keep the guarantee."

CRUDE OIL GAS AT 7 CENTS A THOUSAND

Remarkably Cheap Process Said to Have Been Discovered by Indiana Company

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 3.—The perfection of a process for extracting gas from crude oil bids fair to work a revolution in the gas business of the country, owing to the small cost of crude oil as compared with coal. While processes have not yet been attempted for using the gas thus extracted for lighting, the fact that tests show that it possesses double the heat units of natural gas makes it exceedingly valuable for manufacturing and domestic use.

So promising is the new process that in the cities of the Indiana gas belt, where natural gas has been exhausted, and where there is such an abundant supply of oil, companies heretofore furnishing gas are preparing to utilize their pipe lines for the new fuel.

Careful calculations show that gas thus extracted from oil can be produced and put in the mains at a cost of 7c per 1,000 feet.

The problem which confronted the seekers after an oil gas was that of securing a dry product that would not clog the pipes through. It is this difficulty which the Chicago pipe line companies have overcome, and, it is said, are now transporting oil gas to Chicago, where it has been found to meet every condition and possesses every advantage that came from the discovery and application of natural gas.

SIX BARRELS OF BEER CAPTURED

Hillsboro Constables Walk Two and a Half Miles to Make Successful Raid

HILLSBORO, Texas, Oct. 3.—Sunday night Constable Dalton and Deputy Constable Glasgow arrived with a search warrant and raided two cold drink establishments at Walling, on the International and Great Northern railroad, in this county, kept by August Schultz and Sam Breder, respectively, and captured six barrels of bottled beer; also placing the dealers under arrest.

The officers walked from Malone to Walling, a distance of two and a half miles, and went in their shirt sleeves to avoid identification.

The beer was shipped here by express and Monday the men arrested plead guilty in the county court, the penalties assessed against Schultz being $150 and eighty days in jail and against Breder $75 and twenty days in jail.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

Grover Cleveland twice president of the United States, and renowned angler that he is, has some well defined views on the subject of woman suffrage, and is brave enough to advance them in the face of the fact that he realizes such action will bring down upon his devoted head the wrath of every woman suffragist in the country. In the current issue of the Woman's Home Journal he says:

"No standard of advanced civilization can receive intelligent sanction that fails to yield to genuine womanhood the highest place among the social agencies that refine humanity and make the world better, and, of course, it is equally certain that the nearer social conditions approach perfect excellence, the more tender and careful will be the homage and consideration accorded by all decent men to unperverted womanhood.

A few months ago I ventured to publish some views I entertained touching women's clubs and their tendencies. I desire to make a statement here which I am willing to have regarded somewhat in the light of a confession. In my former article a reference was made in the following terms to the movement on foot to secure for women the right to vote and otherwise participate in public affairs:

"Let it here be distinctly understood that no sensible man has fears of injury to the country on account of such participation. It is its dangerous undermining effect on the characters of the wives and mothers of our land that we fear."

I am willing to admit that it was only after a more thorough appreciation of what woman suffrage really means that I became fully convinced that its inauguration would vastly increase the unhappy imperfections and shortcomings of our present man-voting suffrage and that it was only after a better knowledge of the spirit and disposition that stand behind it gained from recent experience and observation, that I was entirely persuaded that its especial susceptibility to bad leaderships and hurtful influences would constitute another menacing condition to those which already vex and disturb the deliberate and intelligent expression of the popular will.

It is sometimes claimed that woman suffrage would have the effect of elevating and refining politics. Neither its short trial in four states, containing in the aggregate a population very slightly in excess of one-third the population of the city of New York, nor our political experience or observation support this claim. The states in which full woman suffrage prevails are Colorado, Utah, Idaho and Wyoming. In the first two of these states the proportion of woman voters is considerably greater than in the others, and yet the voters of Utah lately have elected through their legislature to the United States senate a man whose fitness is now the subject of a pending senatorial investigation, and not long ago they elected to congress another man whom that body rejected. These incidents may not go far toward discrediting woman suffrage, but they certainly do not indicate its invariably refining and elevating tendency.

The Telegram is of the opinion that the matter of woman suffrage will never cut much figure in the south, from the fact that our gentle southern women have no desire or inclination to enter politics. The very idea of the thing is intensely repugnant to them, for they have been educated to the idea that politics and things political pertain altogether to the masculine gender. They are willing that the men shall exercise the privilege of saving the country while they make the homes. And in that idea they are eminently correct. The womanly woman, north or south, is averse to the idea of getting out and mixing with the rabble on election day, and taking part in something that is clearly not within their province.

It is true that there are so-called advanced women who are strenuous advocates of women in politics, and the idea is continually shoved to the front that feminine participation has an elevating influence upon the political situation. Grover Cleveland very truthfully exposes the fallacy of this line of argument, and shows that those states which have conferred the right of suffrage upon its women has gained absolutely nothing by such action. Take the state of Colorado for instance, and the conditions that prevailed there in the last state election and the result is just exactly the reverse of what is claimed for the elevating influence of women in politics. It is probable that Colorado would have been just as rotten and corrupt politically without the women participating, but the fact that they did participate without the expected purification goes to prove that the mere presence of women at the polls is not a guarantee against political rascality.

Here in Texas the matter of woman suffrage is never seriously considered. Texas women do not desire to vote and would not vote if the opportunity was extended them. Texas women are too busy making happy homes, rearing healthy Texans and reigning in big Texas hearts to sigh for the advanced idea of walking up to the polls and casting a ballot just like a man. The Texas woman has a higher conception of woman's sphere and woman's real object in life to care for these kind of things. She is a queen among women—the choicest flower in the bouquet of life, and she is too womanly to ever care for these things. The eastern woman may demand the ballot as her privilege and prerogative, and it may be extended, as it has already been done in some isolated instances in the west. But down here in Texas our women are wiser and more womanly. They prefer to go along the old and well beaten way without turning either to the right or the left, conscious that their lives and their happiness are perfectly safe in the hands of those whose legitimate duty it is to run the politics of the country.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

Hail to the chief who in triumph advances!
Saw all the sights in the Philipine isles;
Looked with surprise on the Orient's dances,
Wore on his face most embarrassed of smiles!
Taffy, you took the Jap
Nation right in your lap!
Hear how you're welcomed from mountain to shore;
Hear patriotic men
Shout, and shout yet again;
"Taffy's come home—and weighs fifteen pounds more!"

Yours no junket for spending of dollars;
Yours to show forth our power and might
To queens minus corsets and kings without collars,
And all the far east that we're keeping in sight.
Taffy, you made a joke
Most every time you spoke.
'Rah for an envoy who's never a bore!
Who says the time was lost?
Who cares about the cost?
Taffy's come home and weighs fifteen pounds more!

MILLIONS OF MISCHIEF

By HEADON HILL

Copyright 1905 by The Newspaper Enterprise Association

"Then came my masterpiece," added Herzog. "I induced him to consent to take me down with him, so that I might avail myself of the opportunity of keeping out of the way in Spain for a time. I also persuaded him to allow me to wait in his rooms while he went out to give secret information at the home office as to the fugitive's whereabouts. The result you know. I successfully ransacked his rooms with the aid of a bunch of skeleton keys, and later on prevented his designs on you with a knock on the head."

"But," I said, fired with instant alarm, "if he was at the home office yesterday afternoon, the search for Arthur will commence this morning at the latest."

Herzog's story made me realize how everything depended on the Nightshade for the next few hours. A hundred things might happen to cause a fatal delay. Her rattletrap engines might break down; her captain might get drunk and rebellious; ominous clouds, heralded by a spiteful breeze, were banking in the western sky. The weather might upset all Herzog's calculations and send Arthur to his doom.

Antonio came presently to announce that breakfast awaited us in the cuddy, and before going below I was rejoiced to see that we should soon be out of those lonely stretches of stagnant water. The steamer was threading her way between the low shores of the most seaward creek, with the sandy beach of Hayling islands visible on the port bow. Once clear of the shallows, Captain Belcher could put on full speed if he so willed it.

"ALL RIGHT, BELCHER, A FLESH WOUND IN THE CALF WON'T DO YOU ANY HARM."

"Not so," was the reply. "The object of the Marskes, and certain other interested persons, is to allow as little time as possible to elapse between his capture and execution—to minimize the remote chance of anyone paying attention to what he would say. It was arranged, so Marske told me, that he would not be locked up till the afternoon, so that he might be hustled off to Winchester in the evening and hanged at dawn tomorrow. You should take comfort from the fact that they believe him to be still in the lodgings at 'Springthorpe.' I took care to impress that fiction upon Master Roger. They do not know that their quarry is hidden away in an empty house, and that a hunt is in store for them."

He did not appear at the breakfast table, but when we returned to the deck it became evident that the captain's abstemiousness in the matter of food did not extend to liquid refreshment. He had been supplied on the bridge with a square flask of Hollands, to which he frequently applied himself in the intervals of giving instructions to the man at the wheel. His face was already flushed, and his speech, as he bellowed foul-mouthed orders to the crew, was thick and inarticulate.

"We shall have trouble," I heard Herzog mutter. "The fellow is fortifying himself for a purpose."

And turning to me, he added aloud but in a low tone, "It is asking a good deal of you in the way of swallowing noxious air, Miss Chilmark, but I really think that you would be better in your cabin—for the present, at any rate."

"Thank you, I shall remain on deck," I replied.

Herzog's shrug and grimace denoted that he accepted it as such. "Then," said he, "let us intrench ourselves to the best advantage. Ah, the very place."

He led the way to a small deckhouse, built at the side of the vessel, flush with the bulwarks and about ten paces aft of the bridge. There was a similar structure opposite on the other side, and I was told afterwards that the signal flags were kept in one of these houses and spare ropes in the other. Herzog's use of the one he selected was soon to be made plain.

"Now, if you will kindly stand there, you ought to be all right," he said, indicating the angle which the deck house made with the bulwarks—a spot where I was entirely screened from a view of the bridge and could see nothing of the ship but the afterpart of the deck with the house for the second wheel, behind which we had conversed earlier in the morning, in the background. Herzog came and leaned over the rail beside me, taking advantage for the moment of the same shelter. His keen gaze was directed at the rough water of the open sea ahead, into which the steamer was steadily plowing. Already we were beginning to pitch uncomfortably.

My companion pointed to a blue line that rose at a great distance in front of us as the steamer wore round to the left, clear of Hayling island.

"It is a very little matter—simply the difference between inside and outside that is worrying me," said he. "Those are the cliffs of Bembridge, in the Isle of Wight. If Belcher steers for them we shall know that he is for going outside the Wight, straightaway down channel for Spain, instead of shaping a course inside it, down the Solent, according to orders. Which will mean that he has kicked over the traces, and that there are squalls ahead in two senses, for it is going to blow a summer gale by all the signs. The elements we cannot control, but we shall know all about the Belcher part of the program in less than two minutes."

I waited with my heart in my mouth for the first indication of the course to be steered, and it came quickly enough. Disdaining the narrow waters between the Isle of Wight and the Hampshire coast, the vessel's head swerved further to the left, leaving no doubt that Belcher was making for the English channel, south of the island.

Gently but firmly Herzog pushed me further behind the shelter of the deck house, at the same time drawing a revolver.

"It is not likely that the captain will have firearms on him, but I want you to be out of harm's way in case there is shooting," he explained. Then he stood boldly forth and leveled his pistol at the bridge.

"If you do not alter your course and run for the Solent inside thirty seconds, Belcher, I will drill a hole through you," he cried.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Shipwreck

The thirty seconds allowed in Herzog's challenge seemed to have been multiplied by ten before there was any result. I could not but admire the attitude of my unscrupulous ally during that period of suspense. His aim never wavered, nor did he show the slightest apprehension for his personal safety, great as were the odds he had taken upon himself to confront. I tried to read upon his face signs of what was passing on the, to me, invisible bridge, but his expression remained sternly impassive.

The answer from the enemy came at last, not in a bullet, but in a string of oaths. And with the answer came relief, for almost simultaneously the Nightshade's bows wore round for the other course—that between the mainland and the Wight.

Herzog did not lower his revolver, but after a reassuring nod at me he addressed himself to Beicher:

"I give you credit for that act of wisdom, captain," he shouted. "You and your crew have nothing to fear from me so long as you obey orders. But I shall shoot any man who attempts to come aft of the bridge, and I shall shoot you and put the mate in charge if you don't keep up a good speed—ten knots at least."

Another volley of blasphemy flew back but the vessel plodded on to the westward in the teeth of the fast rising gale.

"I am afraid that, for a stout man who loves his ease, I have taken on rather a large order," Herzog half turned his head to say to me. "At the mildest computation we cannot be off Totland for another three hours, and I must keep watch and ward all that time on a deck that bids fair to become slippery. Luckily, my legs are fairly seaworthy. Before I became a surveyor of taxes I had the honor to care for her late majesty's revenue as an exciseman in Belfast harbor."

As the steamer edged further into the Solent, our chief foe for the moment, the weather, had its flank turned by the island barrier, and we steamed past East Cowes, with is anchorage full of sheltering yachts, in less discomfort. Still the wind and the waves were against us, and the old fruit tramp made but poor time. It was past noon when we were off the mouth of Southampton Water, and then something happened.

Herzog preserved his original position at the corner of the deck-house, with his pistol in his hand poised ready for use, and with his gaze focussed on the forepart of the ship, which I could not see. I myself was impatiently watching the island shores, and thinking how slowly they seemed to slip by, when a yacht, anchored inshore off West Cowes, attracted my attention. I thought I recognized her as one which had been lying at Totland a fortnight before. In order to prolong my scrutiny of the yacht, when we had passed, my eyes turned further astern, and in doing so encountered a sight which drew from me a warning cry.

AMONG EXCHANGES

I agree with the Houston Post that "the words of Mr. Colquitt are sound to the core" but the people want to know is Mr. Colquitt sound to the core? It is the opinion of the Democrat that if Colquitt is ever elected governor of Texas, he will have to climb harder and farther than a man ever did before.—Bell County Democrat.

It is not what a man says, but what he does that gives us the right to judge him. But there is no reason why we should lose much time discussing Mr. Colquitt, as Charlie Bell will be the next governor of Texas.—Killeen Messenger.

Judge Bell is developing strength all over the state, and the conservative element of Texas democracy is rapidly climbing into the Bell band wagon.

About the coolest job we have heard of recently was that accomplished yesterday by a boy, who for a quarter, undertook to sit on a cake of ice five minutes. The time-keeper got mixed on his count and held the lad on the ice 25 minutes, but squared it by giving him half a dollar. The boy, when he got up, declared "it didn't hurt;" but declined to repeat the performance under slightly different conditions.—Temple Tribune.

The boy earned his money, even if it didn't hurt, and evinced discretion in not going up against it the second time. It was a very cold-blooded proposition.

In 1861, when hardly more than a boy, George Clark responded to the call of his country and served four years in Virginia, shedding his blood for the southland. The writer has known George Clark from boyhood and knows that he is ever ready to answer the call of duty. Every pulsation of his heart beats in harmony with the interests of his country, and however much some may have differed from his views in the past, no man can truthfully impeach his patriotism, impugn his motives or question his ability. When Texas drafts such men as George Clark, Henry Marsh, Horace Chilton, Cone Johnson, Jim Hogg, Dick Wynne and others of like ability into public service, her parliament will be as dignified and able a deliberative body as has assembled on the continent since the convention which framed the immortal Declaration of Independence.—Tyler Democrat.

Judge Clark has proven himself a patriot in more ways than one. His willingness to serve in the state legislature is an evidence of patriotism that cannot be controverted, and he should be promptly elected. Texas needs his services, as well as those of the other good men named.

The insurance disclosures warrant action by Governor Lanham, in the judgment of The Post. The New York Life, through its responsible officials, in response for information demanded by the state, made false affidavits. It was not only a monstrous crime, but was an insult to the dignity of the state.—Houston Post.

If Texas dignity has been trampled upon by any insurance company steps should be promptly taken to right the wrong.

Mr. Bryan declared that a syndicate of insurance companies and other large financial concerns brought about his defeat in 1896. Mr. Bryan's declaration was scouted by the republicans at the time. The New York Life investigation has proven that Mr. Bryan spoke the truth.—Bowie Blade.

These big corporations have exerted a baneful influence on the politics of the country, but the publicity given their manipulations ought to exert a salutary effect in future.

Land Commissioner Terrell has already struck a rocky place in his road to the governor's mansion, demonstrating that little boats should keep close to the shore.—Corsicana Sun.

Commissioner Terrell is said to have designs on a third term as land commissioner, but he is going to have a hard time getting over the democratic precedent, which says two terms in office is a sufficiency.

Verses That Ring

FRIENDSHIP

When the sun is bright and the sky is blue,
And calm is the wind and weather,
Then plenty of friends will stick by you
And walk down the ways together.
For easy the path where the flowers grow
And the grass in the wind nods to and fro,
So many a friend with you will go
On the way o'er the sunlit heather.

But if clouds grow dark and the way grows steep,
And the hush wind blood is chilling,
But few you'll find at your side will keep
With hearts that are warm and willing.
For hard is the path where the sharp thorns hide,
Where the rough rocks hinder on every side,
And you see the wraiths of the loves that died.
When your life with woe was filling.

Fair weather friends by your side will run
When yours is the path of pleasure;
But cloudy the sky and obscured the sun,
Their love lacks the needed measure.
For love like theirs is mere selfishness
That withers away in the storm and stress.
For 'tis rooted in pleasure and takes no less
Than a self-willed meed of pleasure.

So here's to the friend who stands by you
Tho' foul be the wind and weather;
Whose eyes look love and whose hear beats true
As you tread dark ways together.
For he lends you strength from his strong right arm,
And you build new faith on his heart beats warm,
While you laugh at fate and its threat of harm
On your way o'er the storm-swept heather.

STOCK ORDINANCE DECLARED VOID

Justice Declares Dissimilar Penalties Makes City Regulation Ineffective

Charles T. Rowland has rendered a decision in the case tried before him several days ago to test the constitutionality of the stock ordinance in effect in this city. The city poundkeeper, Robert Miller, had impounded stock belonging to E. L. Thielman and was sued for the purpose of testing the validity of the law. That part of the law that provides a minimum fine of $50 for allowing stock to run at large is questioned in the test trial. Judge Rowland held that this portion of the law is void.

The opinion rendered by Judge Rowland is as follows:

"In this case E. L. Thielman sues Bob Miller, city poundkeeper, and the city of Fort Worth for the possession of a certain horse. The admitted and undisputed facts show that the plaintiff's said horse was loose on a vacant lot owned by the plaintiff and in the corporate limits of the city of Fort Worth. That while said horse was thereon the horse was seized and impounded by said poundkeeper. There is no evidence before the court that said horse had on said occasion been off said lot or had been on, over or across any street or alley of said city. That immediately thereafter plaintiff made demand for said horse and was informed upon the payment of impounding fees to the amount of $1.25 that said property would be surrendered to him. This the plaintiff declined to do, hence this suit.

"It is admitted that the stock law recently voted on in Tarrant county was then in effect in said county. That the city ordinance making it a crime for any person to permit horses and other animals therein mentioned to run at large in this city was in nearly all respects similar to the penal statute where the stock law was in effect except that the city ordinance fixed the punishment at a maximum fine of $50, when the penal code fixes the maximum punishment at a fine of $200.

"Plaintiff contends that said penal ordinance is void because of the disparity in the punishments fixed by the city ordinance and the state statute. On that point I am inclined to the opinion that plaintiff's contention is correct. That the section of the ordinance preventing and punishing the running at large of animals mentioned in the said ordinance in said city being void, the sections providing for the impounding and the collection of fees therefor is also void, because one statute is dependent upon the other. On this point I do not desire to express an opinion.

"That the ordinance authorizing the impounding of such animals and the sale and collection of fees therefor is void on the ground that same operates to deprive the citizen of private property 'without due process of law,' or, in other words, deprives the citizen of his property without his day in court.' On this point I do not express an opinion.

"I accordingly hold that under the facts in this case that the impounding of plaintiff's horse on his own vacant lot was unwarranted and illegal and that the plaintiff is entitled to the possession thereof. Judgment is accordingly rendered for plaintiff for the possession thereof."

Albert Taylor and his excellent company of players will appear in three first-class plays. Friday night Mr. Taylor presents his latest success, "A Country Lawyer." Saturday matinee "College Chums" will be presented and on Saturday night an elaborate presentation of the beautiful heart story play "The Prodigal's Return" will be given.

Mr. Taylor has many admirers here and this season he brings the largest and most complete organization he has ever carried. The prices during the engagement will be 25c, 35c and 50c. Friday night one lady will be admitted free with each 50c ticket secured before 6 p. m. Box office now open.

OPIE READ AND LEE

Among the ten attractions to be brought to Fort Worth this season by the Popular Lyceum there are two new figures that stand out in conspicuous contrast. Opie Read, who has entertained the millions with his stories, is a conspicuous and interesting figure as an entertainer on the platform. His commanding personality as he stands, six feet four, his kindly face, his inimitable style of story telling, together with his wit, wisdom and pathos, make him one of the greatest of platform entertainers. On the other hand Guy Carleton Lee, nothing of the entertainer, furnishing scarcely if any fun for an audience, with equal power holds his audiences by his depth of thought and matchless oratory. Hon. George R. Wendling, who has been so often heard by Fort Worth audiences and who is considered by many to be the most finished orator of the day, has these flattering words to say of Mr. Lee: "There is not within the range of my acquaintance a more accomplished scholar, a more fascinating writer, a more graceful speaker, and I do not know anyone whose resources, in the way of entire familiarity with the best of ancient, medieval and modern literature, equal those of Professor Lee." His subjects are, "The Man of Sorrows" and "The True Jefferson Davis." Both these distinguished men will be in this city in November.

BIRTHDAY OBSERVED

NEW SYNAGOGUE PLANS

Orthodox Congregation to Build in Taylor Street

Erection of a new synagogue has been decided upon by the Orthodox Congregation in this city to replace the present structure built about twelve years ago.

Plans for the new building, to cost about $6,000, have not been prepared as yet. It will occupy the site of the present building.

A committee consisting of I. N. Mehl, L. S. Shanblum, B. Z. Friedman, W. Goldstein and S. Simon has been appointed to arrange for necessary funds for the building.

FOUND RIGHT PATH

After a False Start

"In 1890 I began to drink coffee.

"At that time I first noticed no bad effects from the indulgence but in course of time found that various troubles were coming upon me.

"Palpitation of the heart took unto itself sick and nervous headaches, kidney troubles followed and eventually my stomach became so deranged that even a light meal caused me serious distress.

"Our physician's prescriptions failed to help me and then I dosed myself with patent medicines till I was thoroughly disgusted and hopeless.

"Finally I began to suspect that coffee was the cause of my troubles. I experimented by leaving it off, except for one small cup at breakfast. This helped some but did not altogether relieve my distress. It satisfied me, however, that I was on the right track.

"So I gave up the old kind of coffee altogether and began to use Postum Food Coffee. In 10 days I found myself greatly improved, my nerves steady, my head clear, my kidneys working better and better, my heart's action rapidly improving, my appetite improved and the ability to eat a hearty meal without subsequent suffering restored to me. And this condition remains.

"Leaving off coffee and using Postum did this, with no help from drugs, as I abandoned the use of medicines when I began to use the food coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

FORGERY CASES PASS GRAND JURY

Warrant Issued and Detective Detailed on Alleged Bank Fraud Case

It was definitely learned Monday that the grand jury of the Seventeenth judicial district last week returned two indictments against Jerry Smith, charging him with forgery, the specific allegation being that he signed the names of persons to drafts amounting to several thousand dollars.

As a result of these indictments a warrant was issued Monday from the sheriff's office for the arrest of Smith and turned over to City Detective Al Ray, who has been working on the case.

Ray recently returned from a several thousand mile trip through the south part of the state and in Mexico looking for Smith, and he believes that he has the man located.

Smith, according to the indictments, forged the names of several prominent business men in Hill and Johnson counties to checks on Fort Worth banks and on persons in Dallas for large sums of money aggregating, it is reported, $14,000.

When last heard from Smith was 150 miles from San Antonio engaged in boring an oil well. The case is being watched by both the county and city officials here, but to date nothing definite has been heard from Smith.

DOCTORS DECLARE CHARGES LEGITIMATE

County Physician Writes State Health Officer for Explanation of Statements

Health doctors of Fort Worth and this county resent the statement made in the newspapers by Dr. Tabor, state health officer, that charges should not be made for health certificates.

Dr. West, county physician, has written Dr. Tabor a letter in which he asks an explanation of his published letter regarding the situation. To say that Dr. West is exercised is putting it mildly. No reply has been received from the state health officer, but one is expected today.

The gist of Dr. Tabor's view on this matter is that no charges should be made for health certificates. He contends that the charge is not just and should not be made.

Remuneration for this work in this city is authorized by ordinance, and health officers maintain that charges for certificates are perfectly legitimate and does not constitute a "graft."

The stand taken by Dr. Tabor on this question has aroused the ire of the county health officials and has led to the correspondence between them and the state health officer.

SECRETARY LYTLE NAMING DELEGATES

Representatives of Texas' Association at Commerce Law Convention Being Selected This Week

Selection of delegates from the Texas Cattle Raisers' association to the interstate commerce law convention to be held in Chicago during this month, has been delegated by President Turney to Secretary John T. Lytle of this city, who is at present preparing the list.

In order that the association may have full representation at the important meeting, Secretary Lytle is addressing letters to those whom he may name, to become assured they will be able to attend the meeting. Delegates will not be announced until replies are received.

SWIFTS TO OWN RAILROAD LINE

Packers Back Mexican Project Now Being Surveyed by Engineers

Swifts are to be interested in a railroad project under way in the Republic of Mexico. A statement comes from the City of Mexico that a representative named R. J. Kerr is now in Mexico, looking after his firm's interest in a deal which means the construction of a railroad from Toluca to Puente de Iztla.

Engineers are now running a line and stakes are being driven as they progress. It is said that in two months every foot of the road will be laid out and soon thereafter the work of grading will commence.

G. H. T. Shaw, constructing engineer of the company, has made the statement that the Swifts of Chicago are behind the deal and have placed sufficient money in the enterprise to carry it to a successful conclusion.

FLANAGAN IN MEXICO

Texas Railroader on Way to Begin Canal Work

J. W. Flanagan, recently general passenger agent of the Cotton Belt in Texas, is in the City of Mexico, where he will remain a short time before going to the Isthmus of Panama, where it is understood here that he is to be employed under the Panama canal commission. Just what his duties are to be have never been made public, but it is understood that he is to have charge of the employment of labor for the commission.

Mr. Flanagan was once located in the City of Mexico, where he represented the Southern Pacific. Later he went to Cuba and was general agent for this company at Havana, which position he held up to the time he was made general passenger agent for the Cotton Belt. He remained with this road only a short time, when he resigned to go to Panama.

PAN-AMERICAN WORK

Rainy Season Retards Work on Isthmian Line

After spending several weeks in the United States on business, J. M. Neeland, vice president and general manager of the Pan-American railroad, has returned to Mexico. While in this country Mr. Neeland made arrangements for commencing the work of construction on the southern end of the line. This road is to run from San Geronimo, on the Tehuantepec railroad, south to the Guatemala border. About one hundred and seventy-five miles of the road to Tonala is already in successful operation. South of Tonala work is being actively pushed, a considerable portion already being graded and much of it laid with steel. It is Mr. Neeland's intention to now start work northward from the Guatemalan border.

All this work is waiting for the rainy season to end, when active construction will begin all along the line. It is believed that the entire line will be completed within eighteen months. The rainy season and labor shortage has retarded construction for some time, but both these troubles have been overcome. The company is now experimenting with 300 Chinese laborers and if they prove satisfactory others will be put to work.

CAPITAL STOCK INCREASED

Mexican Central Adds $100,000,000 to Figures

At a recent meeting of the stockholders of the Mexican Central railroad it was decided to increase the capital stock to $100,000,000 in conformity with the new by-laws. The stockholders also affirmed the action of the directors to devote $10,000,000 of the collateral trust notes to pay off the sum borrowed for the construction of new mileage and for new improvements.

The new directors of the company are: Charles A. Browne, John D. Johnson of St. Louis and Charles R. Hudson and Carlos Rivas of Mexico.

OFFICIALS WORK

Grand Trunk Men Take Place of the Strikers

As a result of the switchmen's strike on the Grand Trunk road in Chicago, railroad officials went into the yards and made "full hands" for Sunday work.

It is said there is likelihood that the trouble will be extended. The strikers, less than fifty in number, are framing up a demand that will be sent the officials of the company at once in an effort to secure a settlement of the pending trouble.

NEW TURN TAKEN

State Gets First Blood in Gross Receipts Fight

There has been an unexpected turn in the injunction proceedings which have been brought by the railroad companies of Texas against the state authorities to restrain the collection of the 1 per cent tax against gross receipts. Attorney General Davidson appeared before Judge Brooks and opposed the issue of a temporary restraining order. The case was set down for hearing Oct. 11, and until that time there will be no temporary injunction in effect.

In local circles the railroad attorneys have nothing new to give out on the situation.

CHARTER ISSUED

A charter has been issued for a railroad five miles long and is to run along the south side of St. Louis. It is capitalized for $3,000,000. The line is to be known as the St. Louis, Lakewood and Grant Park.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS

No Action Taken Regarding Diphtheria in City

Members of the city school board Monday afternoon discussed the overcrowding of school buildings in certain parts of the city, plans for transfer of pupils as made by Superintendent Hogg being gone over carefully and considered.

Professor J. E. Ginsinger of the Normal and Industrial school, St. Petersburg, Fla., was elected instructor in manual training.

Offer of the Fort Worth Telephone Company to install free telephones in each school was accepted.

Attention was called to repairs needed at the Fourth ward building and they were ordered made.

Monthly pay rolls were approved and allowed.

SPORTING SALAD

The Minnesota eleven has been strengthened by the return of Oech and Sanborn, two of the heavy men of last year's team. Oech won his "M" at tackle last year. Sanborn is a guard; he weighs 230 pounds and is six feet four inches tall.

Joe Corbett, the pitcher, is talking of returning to the game. He threatens to sue Manager Henion and the national commission, which ruled that he must respect his contract with Brooklyn.

Billy Clymer is under inspection by several major league club owners who have realized that the Columbus man is one of the successful handlers of baseball talent. Clymer knows a promising player when he sees one and he has a faculty of developing new material that puts him in a class almost by himself.

Amos Rusie, who once drew $1,000 a season for pitching for New York, is getting $1.50 a day working in a lumber yard at Vincennes, Ind. His throwing arm has lost its strength. He says he can throw one ball and then his arm feels as though it were paralyzed.

If a pennant were given for exhibition games the Cincinnati Reds would in all probability carry off the bunting.

There were too many letters in Hoelsketter's name to suit St. Louis fans and so they shortened it to "Holey."

That's an inspiring race for National League batting honors between Cy Seymour, Cincinnati, and Hans Wagner, Pittsburg. At the last tabulation Seymour was leading Wagner by 1 point, his average being .371. In 502 times at bat Seymour has laced out 187 safe hits.

Practice at Northwestern has been very unsatisfactory thus far. The line lacks strength and the backs are slow. James, the much-touted guard, could not make good. Coach McCornack is discouraged.

William M. Armstrong, 1907, Oakmont, Pa., has been elected track captain for the coming year at Princeton.

Effort is being made to bring Marvin Hart and George Gardner together in a bout for heavyweight honors within an hour's ride of Louisville. Hart and Gardner have fought twice. Gardner won the first battle in twelve rounds and the second was a draw after fifteen rounds of hard fighting.

Enterprising but unscrupulous individuals have gotten out a set of fake fight pictures of the Britt-Nelson go. It is probable the Britts will ask for an injunction to prevent the fraud from being perpetrated upon the unsuspecting public.

Jack McCormick, former heavyweight pugilist, has quit the ring and is presiding over a damp emporium in Chicago.

Frank A. Hinkey, the greatest end who ever made a tackle, will be one of the main coaches on the Yale football team this year. With Foster Sanford, Burr Chamberlain, Ralph Bloomer and Jack Owsley to drill the men, Yale should have one of the best drilled and scrappiest elevents in the country.

Football is the great leveler. On the Harvard scrub team a Russian and a Japanese play side by side. The Russion is a sturdy end and the Jap a fleet tackle.

Chicago bowlers are trying to arrange for an intercity match with New York experts.

Billy Delaney's claim that he has a successor to Jeffries is receiving more consideration since Kaufman defeated Harry Foley in 'Frisco the other night. Kaufman weighed in at 184 pounds and Foley at 171. The fight was to be twenty rounds. After one minute and twenty-five seconds Kaufman sent a short right hook in, and Foley sank to the floor as if hit by a hammer. He tried to rise at the count of seven, but fell back helpless.

OF INTEREST TO THE CATTLEMEN

THE COLORADO COUNTRY

Ben Van Tuyl, one of the best-known West Texas cattlemen and a prominent Hereford breeder of Colorado, Texas, is in the city.

He reports an abundance of rain in the Colorado country and prospects better for winter than for a number of years.

Shipments of fat stock to market have been unusually heavy for the past month, with the prospects good for a continued heavy movement until late in December.

There is complaint of low market prices, but the cattle having been held back for some time must come.

Mr. Van Tuyl has been buying 1 and 2-year-old steers to hold until spring and has completed the purchase of about fifteen hundred head at an average of about $14 for yearlings and $18 for 2s. He says practically all the steers in his section have been sold to parties with grass sufficient to hold them until spring.

The number of steers in the country is much less than at this time last year and he is among the number who expect much better prices in the spring.

Some ranchmen are holding their yearlings and 2s at $15 and $20.

Speaking of those Texas ranchmen who shipped cattle to Kansas for grass in the spring, Mr. Van Tuyl says the operation has not been very successful on account of the prevailing low market prices.

LOOKING FOR FEEDERS

R. M. Wagoner of Vernon was here Monday and expressed his intention of remaining the balance of the week, yatching the market for feeders and if prices are not too high, intends to buy heavily.

He is well pleased with prospects for winter feed and water and reports cattle to be in excellent condition, but that they are very scarce.

His report of future grain crop is most favorable, as he says there is plenty of wheat sown and up and a good crop of volunteer oats.

Mr. Wagoner reports plenty of rain in his vicinity; that they had a few showers Monday afternoon, and that at about 6:30 o'clock it began in real earnest and rained several hours.

WILBARGER COUNTY CATTLE

I. G. Shower, a leading cattleman from Vernon, has been watching the market for good feeders and hopes to be able to buy extensively. He has just bought in a shipment of 1,400 head of steers and says that while they cost him a good price, he was still able to clear up a nice profit on them at this market.

He is well pleased with the outlook for grass, feed and water, and does not anticipate much trouble in wintering his stock.

He reports plenty of rain in his vicinity, also a good grain crop, and says that while there has been no extensive buying or selling in that country, that the prices are hoding out above the average.

WILL BUY FEEDERS

V. O. Hildreth, a prominent Shorthorn breeders of Aledo, was in town Monday, watching the market for some good feeders, and intends to buy heavily. He reports a fair demand for good young bulls, but also says that there are but few with which to fill the demand.

Mr. Hildreth says that the feed and water prospects have never been better and says they will be able to winter their stock with less trouble and less loss than for a long time. Cattle in his vicinity are in excellent condition and he is in every way well pleased. He says that there are a good many transactions in both land and cattle and that prices are very satisfactory.

HILL COUNTY FEEDERS

S. H. Frazier, a prominent cattleman of Hillsboro, was in town Monday, looking for some good deals in the shape of feeders for this winter's business, and while he says that there is no feed being brought in yet, that they have excellent prospects in his country and he thinks there will be a large number of cattle fed in that vicinity.

CLAY COUNTY CATTLE

Percy Webb, widely known to be a shrewd cattleman from Clay county, was in town Monday and is delighted with the prospects his country presents for feed and water this winter, and says that his stock never looked better. He says there is not a finer cattle county in the world than Clay county. His observation is that there are but few young steers in that section for sale this winter.

SHACKELFORD COUNTY CONDITIONS

J. H. Loven, from the Knot ranch, twelve miles southeast of Albany, Shackelford county, with W. F. Chaney from an adjoining ranch, Monday brought in a shipment of butcher cattle from their ranches.

Mr. Loven says that the condition of cattle in his section of the state and especially in his immediate neighborhood, is excellent; never in his experience having been better, and that they are in such good condition that he is forced to turn down about two-thirds of the offers made him on account of the exorbitant prices demanded.

Mr. Loven was successful in unloading his shipment to a good market here and says if prices hold up he will make another shipment as soon as possible. He also reports that the pecan crop is better in his country this year than it has been before in twenty-five years and that the demand will be as big accordingly.

NEW INDICTMENTS IN COTTON LEAK CASES

Cover Same Ground as Former Bills But Are Thought More Specific

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The eFderal grand jury has reported new indictments in the cotton crop reports leakage case against Edwin S. Holmes Jr., former assistant state statistician of the agricultural department; Edwin A. Peckham and Moses Haas of New York. They cover the same ground as the other indictments, but are believed to be more specific. They have been prepared at the instance and with the co-operation of former District Attorney Beach, now holding the position of special attorney for the department of justice in the cotton leak cases.

38 OFFICIALS PLEAD IN MILWAUKEE COURT

Believed Two or Three Years Will Be Required to Get Rid of Indictments

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 3.—Thirty-eight indicted officials against whom are hanging 172 indictments returned by the last grand jury before Judge Brazee in the municipal court, have entered pleas in nearly every case of not guilty. Included in the list were thirteen former supervisors, eleven supervisors, three members of the fire department, two newspaper reporters, a state senator, a state assemblyman, an alderman and an ex-alderman and nine business men. The work of arraign the defendants was not concluded until a late hour. Several of the defendants demanded an immediate trial. The cases pending together with the list returned by the previous grand juries it is believed, will require two or three years to dispose of.

NORWEGIAN TREATY NOW WITH RIKSDAG

Swedish Parliament in Special Session Receives King Oscar's Recommendation for Ratification

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3.—A special session of the riksdag summoned to deal with the treaty of Karlstadt assembled in the throne room yesterday and listened to the king's speech, which, in the absence of King Oscar was read by Christian Lundeburg, minister of state. The members then repaired to their own chambers, where the treaty was submitted to them in the form of a royal proposal, attached to which were the cabinet's recommendation for ratification.

These recommendations pointed out the riksdag's conditions and were all fulfilled as modifications reached in the course of the Karlstadt conference, all within the scope of riksdag's terms for giving assent to the dissolution between Sweden and Norway.

The distance of the fortress of Kongavinger from the frontier, it is asserted, is so great that it does not menace Sweden, so it will be allowed to remain.

SALVATION SOLDIER ALLEGED BIGAMIST

Man Arrested During Prayer Service at Birmingham Said to Have Three Wives

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 3.—J. Walter L. Franklin was arrested here Sunday night by detectives while taking part in the services of the Salvation Army, on the charge of bigamy. Franklin is alleged to have three wives. His first marriage was in Newport, Ky., and the wife's name is Mrs. Cora Franklin.

About three years ago he came to this county and married a relative of Deputy Sheriff Reeves at Toadville, La. A short time ago he brought his second wife and child to Birmingham, but soon sent them home to visit relatives.

Soon after their departure he is alleged to have married Miss Peachie Jones, a pretty 18-year-old Salvation Army girl of this city. He was with the latter wife when the arrest was made, and it was in the midst of a prayer service when the officers appeared.

THE FORT WORTH TELEGRAM

"WHEN IT WAS DARK"

What Clergy of All Creeds Say of this Book

"WHEN IT WAS DARK" the tremendously powerful new religious novel which was made the subject of a remarkable sermon by the Bishop of London at Westminster Abbey, in which he advised every one to read it, has now stirred the American clergy as no work of fiction has ever stirred religious sentiment before.

The Texas rights to print thisowerful story in serial form have been obtained by The Fort Worth Telegram. The first instalment of the complete novel will appear in next Sunday's issue, by arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, owners of the American copyright.

On this page appear expressions of opinion of the book's great moral value from leading American clergymen who have read it.

"Worthy the Pen of a Shakespeare"

THE REV. JOHN MERRITTE DRIVER, Pastor People's Church, New York.

For vastness and daring of conception, originality of treatment, dramatic surprises and denouements, rush and thrill of recital, passionate and blood-red fervor, yet never becoming perfervid, and in the main brilliancy of literary arrangement and execution, "When It Was Dark," the story of a great conspiracy, is a great book.

I read the 391 pages of the book at a single sitting. It is so vivid, realistic and passionate one could easily believe it was flung off at a single writing. Much of it is as swift, virile and furious as anything that came from Byron and Shelley, though with none of their occasional coarseness.

At least one chapter is worthy of the pen of a Shakespeare. The argument ad hominum excoriation of Mrs. Humphrey Ward, as Lucy Armstrong, is one of the keenest and fiercest pieces of polished invectives we remember to have read. The veiled reference to Bradlaugh, Gladstone and other English notables remind one of the political novels of the younger Disraeli.

The leading characters are real flesh-and-blood people and not wire-worked automata; especially Gortre, the author the book, Spencer, Father Ripon, Llewellyn, Schaube, Sir Michael Manichoe, Gertrude Hunt. From necessity "liberals" and Unitarians are severely dealt with, but never roughly or uncouthly. The rejoicings of Unitarians over the discrediting of Christ and the downfall of Christianity is a lurid and immensely suggestive bit of writing.

The portrayal of the results upon the pagan world and upon the social, philanthropic and business life of the Christian world of such a discovery is the work of a master hand. Strangely enough, ever and anon in the onward rush and wavering retreat of this Titanic struggle between gigantic persons and principles, there creep in occasional light gleams and music notes that are most restful and delightful. Those who are familiar with London, Dieppe and Jerusalem will be charmed with the author's descriptive searchlight flashes and hurried but true to life silhouettes.

Should the book be widely read, as it probably will be, it will give great offence in certain circles and there will undoubtedly be many heated indignant rejoinders, all of which will be very illuminating and by no means unprofitable. After all is said, "When It Was Dark," the story of a great conspiracy, is a great book, a genuinely great book, and we believe its publication in serial form by the American and Journal and other papers and its circulation among the people will result in great good.

"Nothing Less Than Wonderful," Says the Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady

BY THE REV. CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY.

I have just finished reading "When It Was Dark."

Contrary to my practice, which is to give no public commendation of books unless they are sent me for review by some literary paper or magazine, I write in behalf of this story.

Not for a long time have I read anything at once so strong and so enthralling. There are many criticisms which might be made, the chief being that the means is not adequate to the end. I cannot imagine that such a discovery with such an indorsement could produce such consequences in the world; but granted that it might do so, the author has worked out and developed the resultant appalling catastrophe with a skill and force which is nothing less than wonderful. It moved me profoundly.

I have no interest in the sale of the book, of course, but if what I have written shall serve to promote its wider circulation among men I shall feel that I have done humanity a service.

THE REV. WILLIAM B. LEACH, Pastor Fulton Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Chicago.

"When It Was Dark," to my mind, is one of the most remarkable books of the century. The story is a most powerful one, dealing as it does with some of the most tremendous facts in Biblical lore. And it is certainly most interestingly written.

THE REV. W. R. CARWARDINE, Pastor Ada Street Methodist Church.

"When It Was Dark" is a story truly daring in its conceptions and one well worthy the serious consideration of every student of the Bible and believer in the Messiahship of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. It is a book that cannot be read by either a believer or unbeliever without being much benefited thereby.

THE REV. JOHN D. PICKLES, PH. D., Pastor of St. John's Methodist Epispal Church, Boston.

I have read "When It Was Dark" with absorbing interest. It is marvellously conceived and as remarkably developed. It is powerfully written and is a great book.

REV. ALBERT E. GEORGE.

The book is truly fascinating. To make a theological atmosphere interesting and attractive in fiction has been accomplished by the author. The book will give hope and instill confidence in the realities of the Christian faith. It is well worth reading, and the shifts in its scenes are always interesting—in fact, spectacular, but Christianity is a deeper reality in human life than it has aimed to teach.

HENRY CORNELL WILSON, Christian Science Reader and Chairman State Publication Committee of the Church of Christ, Scientists.

The book which has so excited England and caused the Bishop of London to refer to it in a sermon tells in many graphic chapters what Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy has said in a brief sentence in "Science and Health":

"There is but one way to heaven and harmony, and Christ shows us the way."

THE REV. RUFUS A. WHITE, Pastor People's Church.

For the preacher this book, "When It Was Dark," will be found full of sermons of the most practical, vitalizing kind. And for all classes of readers the story, as it will appear in the newspapers, will be found full of pathos, tragedy and love.

This is a book that, in my opinion, is destined to accomplish much good, and I am glad to know that permission to publish it in serial form has been granted. It should be read and owned by every Christian minister and be found in every Christian home.

FIRST INSTALLMENT OF

"WHEN IT WAS DARK"

Will Appear

In The Telegram Next Sunday!

¶ All England is excited over this marvelous story, without doubt the greatest religious novel since Ben Hur

¶ Less than a dozen American newspapers have secured the right to print this story serially. The Sunday Telegram will be the only paper printing it in the entire State of Texas

¶ Everybody will be talking about this story from the first installment. The furore created by "In His Steps" in the United States some years ago is nothing to the sensation "When It Was Dark" has created in Great Britain

"The most powerful argument for Christianity ever put in form of narrative fiction"

HOW THE REV. MR. GORTRE DISCOVERED THE CONSPIRATOR

"You speak according to your lights, Mr. Gortre," he said. "I am no Christian, but there is much good in Christianity. My words and writings may have helped to lift the evil of superstition and hereditary influence from the eyes of many men, and in that sense I am an enemy of the Christian faith, I suppose. My sincerity is my only apology—if one were needed. You speak with more harshness and less tolerance than I should have thought it your pleasure or your duty to use."

Gortre arose. "Man," cried the priest with sudden sternness, "I know! You hate our Lord, and would work Him evil. You are as Judas was, for tonight it is given me to read far into your brain."

Schuabe rose quickly from his chair and stood facing him. His face was pallid, something looked out of his eyes which almost frightened the other.

"What do you know?" he cried, as if in a swift stroke of pain. "Who—?" He stopped as if by a tremendous effort.

Some thought came to reassure him.

"Listen," he said. "I tell you, paid priest as you are, a blind man leading the blind, that a day is coming when all your boasted fabric of Christianity will disappear. It will go suddenly and will be swept utterly away. And you, you shall see it. You shall be left naked of your faith, stripped and bare, with all Christendom beside you. Your pale Nazarene shall die amid the bitter laughter of the world, die as surely as He died two thousand years ago, and no man or woman shall resurrect Him. You know nothing, but you will remember my words of tonight, until you also become as nothing and endure the inevitable fate of mankind."

He had spoken with extraordinary vehemence, hissing the words out with a venom and malice, general rather than particular, from which the Churchman shrunk, shuddering. There was such unutterable conviction in the thin, evil voice, that for a moment the pain of it was like a spasm of physical agony.

Schuabe has thrown down the mask; it was even as Gortre said, the soul of Iscariot looked out from those eyes. The man saw the clergyman's sudden shrinking.

The smile of a devil flashed over his face. Gortre had turned to him once more and he saw it. And as he watched, an awful certainty grew within him, a thought so appalling that beside it all that had gone before sank into utter insignificance.

He staggered for a moment and then rose to his full height, a fearful loathing in his eyes, a scorn like a whip of fire in his voice.

Schuabe blanched before him, for he saw the truth in the priest's soul.

"As the Lord of Hosts is my witness," cried Gortre loudly, "I know you now for what you are! You know that Christ is God!"

Schuabe shrank into his chair.

"Antichrist!" pealed out the accusing voice. "You know the truth full well, and, knowing, in an awful presumption, you have dared to lift your hand against God."

Then, there was a dead silence in the room. Schuabe sat motionless by the dying fire.—From "When It Was Dark."

The Tremendously Powerful New Religious Novel Which Has Thrilled All England, and is Now Stirring the American Clergy

Bishop Fallows Urges Clergy and Laity to Read This Epoch-Making Book

By THE RIGHT REV. BISHOP SAMUEL FALLOWS, Presiding Bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church.

This is a remarkable book.

It is thoroughly original in its conception. It graphically portrays the social, moral and spiritual darkness which would ensue were essential Christianity proven to be untrue.

But it will be severely criticised by the truly Protestant portion of the Church of England. It will be forcibly resented by the Unitarian wing of Christendom as being utterly antagonistic to the real position assumed by them.

But the book will be widely read and will provoke active thought.

The setting of the story is in the very vicinity where I was born. In the parish school of one of the Church of England edifices I received my first instruction. Hence the story has a peculiar interest for me.

I do not wonder at all that the Bishop of London advised his hearers to get the book and read it. I would certainly echo his admonition and earnestly advise the clergy and laity to read this epoch-making book.

I shall refer to it in the prelude to my sermon next Sabbath morning and urge my parishioners to read it.

Its publication by the American newspapers can only result in great good to those who take advantage of this opportunity thus afford them to read it.

"The Literary Sensation of the Century"

THE REV. R. KEENE RYAN, Pastor Garfield Boulevard Presbyterian Church, Chicago.

I have read "When It Was Dark," and in humble judgment it is bound to prove the literary sensation of the century.

I do not wonder that its publication in England has stirred the British empire as no other book has done in years, for it is an epoch making book and one that will inevitably attract world-wide attention.

In wonderful colors, it depicts what would result to the world if for six months the religion of Jesus Christ should lose its hold on the people and His resurrection should in any way be disproved.

This is a story that will appeal powerfully to the women of the land, for the reason that the book goes to show the power of Christ and the truth of His resurrection over her life and destiny, the unalterable love of womankind for Him and the resultant effect upon her and her position in the world should the resurrection ever at any time be disproved.

The story is exceedingly well told and is extremely fascinating throughout.

Constantine Schaube is the central figure of the story.

He is a very wealthy man, highly educated, deeply versed in Biblical lore, but with an inherent aversion for religion, especially the New Testament, and that part of it dealing with the divinity, resurrection and ascension of Jesus.

This man resolves to overthrow the whole Christian structure by disproving the resurrection and consequent claims of Christ.

The suggestion that Schaube and his co-conspirators desired to implant in the minds of all Christians was that the body of Christ had been stolen from the original tomb in order to keep it out of the hands of Christ's enemies and to further fulfill His prophecies.

In this they were highly successful for awhile, and for the space of six months a pall of darkness fell over the entire Christian world, which is most vividly described by the author, Guy Thorne.

Crime increases, morality wanes, the churches become deserted, the clergy lose heart, the marriage relation becomes lax, and all society is demoralized. Chaos and anarchy hold their saturnalia in every city and nation, men forget God and a flood of wickedness and impiety is poured over the earth in a deluge. The flames of battle and revolution light the heavens with a lurid glare.

Then the trick is discovered through the unflagging faith of Basil Gortre. The deception is discovered; the conspiracy is revealed and the pure and undefiled religion of Jesus Christ once more resumes its sway.

The story is graphically told. You cannot forget it. It will haunt you, and yet in a pleasing way. The interest is admirably sustained throughout, and there is not a dull page in it.

The faith of Basil Gortre is sublime and the heart of the reader is moved to admiration and to tears by his heroic spirit.

Never once does he waver in his faith and allegiance to his Lord and Redeemer.

It is a book that is destined to provoke wide criticism and to do incalculable good.

Already it has been the means of awakening deeper piety in England and the continent, and has caused a tremendous revival of religion to sweep over many parts of the British Isles.

The publication of the story by the American newspapers in serial form will promote interest in the Christian faith and cannot help but aid the cause of true religion throughout the nation.

It should be read by every man and woman in America, and should receive the serious consideration of the clergy of this city.

Ministers all over England are preaching sermons concerning the work, and the same thing should be done here, and such will no doubt prove to be the case here.

R. KEENE RYAN.

THE REV. DR. ROBERT B. BAGNELL, Metropolitan Temple.

A profoundly interesting subject. Such a book can only be a tonic and a stimulant to Christianity, or rather to the people whose Christianity is of the weak and wavering sort.

THE REV. DR. LEWIS L. PARKS, Calvary Church.

If the theme worked out by Mr. Thorne is accepted in the true spirit, "When It Was Dark" becomes a masterpiece, and, in its vivid word-picture of a world without Christ, one of the most powerful aids to Christianity and religious thought ever put on paper.

THE REV. DR. WILLIAM T. CROCKER, Church of the Epiphany.

Avowedly a work of fiction with a strong set purpose. It will serve to arouse a fervor and an enthusiasm among Christians of the "indifferent" sort. Altogether a fine conception.

THE REV. DR. NATHAN A. SEAGLE, St. Stephen's Church, No. 120 West st Sixty-Ninth Street.

"When It Was Dark" seems to be one of the strongest stories in literature. Any work which attracts thought to the real blessing of Christianity is necessarily valuable.

THE REV. DR. WALLACE McMULLIN, Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

The picture of a world plunged into darkness because of the temporary destruction of a belief in the divinity of Christ, of the ultimate righting of a stupendous wrong, and of the gradual emerging of poor, lost, wavering humanity out of darkness into light should teach a lesson never to be forgotten.

SUSPECTED FORGER DECLARED A TOOL

Sister of Young Man Charged With Securities Theft, Says He Is Shielding Others

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Miss Katherine Leonard, sister of Harry Leonard, the young man who confessed to the theft of more than $350,000 worth of securities from the National City Bank, declared today young Leonard was the victim of another man that he was trying to protect, a man and a woman.

Miss Leonard declared she had given the woman's name to the police, and that she believed the unrestored portion of the securities were placed in a safe deposit vault by the woman.

Miss Leonard said: "I don't know the name of the man who has used Harry as his tool, but I do know the woman."

Miss Leonard denied the police story that part of the securities were found in the Leonard home.

Lawyer Abraham Levy has been retained to defend Leonard.

NO TARIFF PERFECT SAYS SECRETARY SHAW

Tells Virginia Republican Party's Claim Is Only for Perfect Principle

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 3.—Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, last night addressed a large republican gathering at the Academy of Music. Judge J. L. Lewis, republican nominee for governor, presided at the meeting. Mr. Shaw said:

No Tariff Law Perfect

"You must bear in mind that there never was a tariff law enacted that was perfect, or that anyone claimed was perfect. No two congressman would ever enact the same bill. Every tariff law is an aggregation of compromises. All the republican party ever claims for any tariff law is that the principle is perfect. The rate will be too high here and too low there, but protection will be found in its every feature. The opposition party never claims that their tariff measures are perfect. They only claim that the principle of free trade, on which they profess to construct their tariff laws, is the correct principle. They claim to eliminate every element of protection from all their tariff laws, as England eliminated protection from her tariff laws. England provides a tariff for the sole purpose of revenue, and the democratic party professes to do the same. It has openly and repeatedly denounced protection as robbery; they strike at the principle.

"While the republican party never claimed for any tariff law that it was perfect and never promises to enact a perfect tariff law, it does claim that all its tariff laws are builded on the principle of protection. It has never sacrificed one industry for the sake of building up another, and never will. Neither will it prejudice one locality in the interest of another. It will be national and not provincial. It will protect the south as well as the north, the east as well as the west, and the west as well as the east."

FIRST CITY TAXES PAID THIS MORNING

General Peers Gets First Realty Receipt for Fourth Time—W. L. Ligon Gets First Poll Tax

Fort Worth citizens are not backward in paying taxes. First receipts were issued by W. J. Gilvin, city assessor and collector, this morning immediately upon the opening of the office.

General J. M. Peers, who has been the first to pay city taxes for four years, was again the first this year.

W. L. Ligon, member of the board of equalizers, was first to pay poll tax, General Peers being exempt in this respect.

Business remained brisk throughout this morning in the office of the collector, the ready response upon the part of citizens being made the subject of much favorable comment.

Appeals from decisions of the board of equalizers have been taken by but two persons, H. C. Edrington and W. R. Edrington.

SEVEN MEN IN HOLDUP

Conductor Says Robbers Used Thirty-Six Sticks of Dynamite

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 3.—Conductor Grant's account of the hold-up of the Great Northern passenger train near Ballard last night shows that at least seven men were engaged in the robbery. The conductor believes there were other men further down the track, but they did not take any part, possibly because the train had stopped too soon. When once inside the car the robbers began dynamiting, the first explosion being six sticks, the second twelve and the third eighteen. While the robbers were engaged on the safe, two boys who had been riding on the blind baggage, slipped off and went through the train attempting to hold up the passengers. They had no revolvers, but took advantage of the timidity of the passengers while the shooting was going on outside.

The boys, who gave their names as Frank Alfred and Roland Gibbs, are now in jail at Everett. A passenger on the train says their method while going through the coaches consisted more of a begging character than a holdup. No one was injured seriously, although a continual fire of revolvers was kept up. Stories differ as to the number of robbers engaged in the job. There were at least three. There may have been four or even more. The express messenger says he does not know how much was obtained by the holdup. The local safe was not molested.

IN THE COURTS

An effort will be made during the afternoon to have T. W. Stafford released on bond, several of his friends of the Webb vicinity being here for the purpose of becoming his bondsmen.

Stafford is indicted on a charge of threatening to destroy property by fire and perjury. He was arrested and placed in jail Sunday. Others are thought to be connected with the matter.

There is also a chance of the Federal government taking a hand in the prosecution of Stafford on a charge of sending a threatening letter through the mails, and District Attorney Atwell of the Northern district of Texas will be advised of the case.

The letter alleged to have been sent is as follows:

"Mr. W. W. Pinyon, Esq.—Dear Sir: I understand you have rented for the third all around. You had just as well rent again. You and that other fellow had just as well quit now. We are going to see you and him don't cultivate it. I have been in that country and find you and that other fellow rented in the same way. You know the sun shines—just that shure we will blow your houses into hell with dynamite. You had better take warning if you all want to live. We mean to do it. We expect to do the same to that widow's houses. We don't want to kill them women and children, but it will be done if they move in the houses. Take warning. This will be done just as certain as the sun shines.

"A FRIEND TO HIS COUNTRY."

COTTON

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The monthly government report of the condition of the cotton crop proved to be the important feature of today's market, although the opening was at a decline of 7 to 8 points, and the market exhibited a weak undertone before the report was issued. This was as nothing compared to the slump which set in immediately after the estimate of 71.2 per cent against 75.5 last year was given out, from this time until the close the scene on the exchange was one of the wildest confusion. All support seemed to have been withdrawn and speculators on the long side of the market were eager to dispose of their holdings at almost any figure which was offered, and in conjunction with this the prominent bear operators put out large lines of short cotton and the little effort which was put forth by the bullish element to stem the tide was but as chaff before a cyclone, the market finally closing at a net decline of 35 to 37 points or a loss of almost $2 a bale on the day. Spots lost 30 points, closing at 10.35c. Receipts were 95 bales with 530 to arrive; 5,500 bales were delivered on contract.

A local authority came out with a circular estimating th etotal crop at 12,128,000 bales.

TUESDAY'S REVIEW AND SALES

NORTH FORT WORTH, Oct. 3.—Cattle receipts [illegible] around 2,100, making 5,978 head for the first two days of the week. The light run resulted in a trifle of added strength to the cow market, steers and calves remaining steady.

Steers

Beef steers were not very numerous today, the 14 loads on the market coming from Indian Territory points. None of the supply was choice, all being grassers. The market easily absorbed all in sight prices being held to be steady. Top steers sold at $3.30, bulk $2.85. The feeder steer trade was rather slow.

Cows and Heifers

The short run deprived the market of its usual supply of butcher cows. This gave some strength to the market, and bidding was a little more active. Hardly a load of good cows was in the pens. Some driven-in Shorthorn cows sold up to $3.50, but they were extra choice. The bulk of the common to medium cows sold from $1.40 to $1.70. Top car lots, $2.20. Sales:

Calves

Calves were short of their usual numbers, something like 600 being in the pens. The quality was not choice by any means, and bidding was slow. The short run served to work off the supply finally at about steady figures. Top, $4.25; bulk, $3.00@3.50. Sales:

Hogs

The hog run was down to respectably small proportions, close to 700 being in sight when bidding began. Other markets came in strong to lower, but buyers began bidding stronger here. Fat, heavy hogs sold at $5.37½ and pigs were 10c to 25 cents higher, selling up to $4.35. Stocker pigs sold steady around $4.00. Sales:

TRADE NOTES

Let the pigs clean up the grain field. They will save much waste and gather most of their living for some time.

Feeding an excess of corn not only creates too great a heat in the blood of the sow but makes the milk rich and constipating.

If possible when weaning the lambs, the ewes should be placed in a field out of hearing of the lambs.

It is doubtful if it is good for the colt or the crop to have it follow the mare all day, while she is at work. He better be in the stable.

Mr. Joe Short of Iowa, a well known breeder of Poland-China and Duroc-Jersey hogs, claims that the best preventive for hog cholera is smoke, made by burning straw, hay or refuse of any kind several times during the year in the pens and over the ground in the feed lots.

Beef type steers carry higher percentage of valuable cuts. Beef type steers furnish heavier, thicker cuts; they are more evenly and neatly covered with outside fat, show superior marbling in flesh, are of a cleaner white color in fat, brighter red in the lean meat; but there is little difference in fineness of grain.

A WORD TO THE WISE

For fancy business suits the great demand this season is for WORSTEDS. That don't mean cotton, it don't mean wool, it don't mean a mixture of both. The prices on worsted yarns have advanced greatly and the consumer must decide whether to pay the advance or do with a substitute.

We show hundreds of styles in worsted—genuine worsteds—and price them as low as possible. For those who don't wish to pay for worsteds, we show hundreds of styles of smooth faced cassimeres and cheviots, which look well and wear well.

THE WOMAN MOCKER

Smiles of Fortune and Public Approval Poor Recompense for Mental Depravity

(Copyright, 1905, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

A woman sat in a stage box, one white hand resting on the plush parapet, her eyes scanning the gaudy act-drop a little listlessly. She had not been in a theater for ten years.

She sat in the pit then, a young lover by her side—a lover with the fire of genius in his eyes and the flush of ambition on his forehead. She glanced down at her rich black silk, and sighed as she saw herself across the decade, a lithe, sharp-featured girl in a shabby frock, with a faded blue kerchief at her throat. Heigho! what a long time ago it was, and what a lot had happened in it! She had parted from her lover, had shot up into an eager capable woman, had earned her own living with her pen, written half a dozen successful novels, and stepped into a foremost position in a great modern movement.

"TAKE ME AWAY," SHE SHUDDERED.

The band was playing a medley of familiar airs, and a bar of "Annie Laurie" fell on her ears. She wondered what had become of her lover, and Memory struck in with a hard, metallic echo like a voice in a phonograph—"We should not understand each other, dear, I want somone with —with—you know——" That was what he had said to her, and she had known, or thought she had. So they had parted.

As the curtain rose something flashed across her brain a picture of the play they had seen together that night ten years ago. A poor little play it had been. Virtue had been righted at the last and the villain had been hissed to the scaffold. She had hissed, too, with her teeth set tight and anger in her heart, as the cruel betrayer slunk across in front of the curtain, and she had waved her handkerchief and cheered involuntarily when the two lovers came hand-in-hand behind the glaring footlights. But her lover had lifted his young shoulders and laughed at it cynically. That was not life, he said.

As the corps de ballet tripped down the stage, and sank into the voluptuous poses of an eastern dance, Naomi Clifford remembered the object of her visit. She was to sit through and criticise a burlesque by a writer whose work, while enormously popular, had yet been described to her as corrupt and degrading to a degree almost Satanic. She was the editor of a woman's journal, and she had come, dispassionately enough, to see if these things were so.

When the action of the burlesque began to develop, Naomi turned her program to the light and looked at the name of the librettist. "Adolf Carr"—a mixture of French and English. She set him down, with a bias of patriotism, as the former, for the play—so far as there was play—was thoroughly morbid. It was difficult to put her finger on a sentence or situation that was gross enough to shock the languid English public, yet the atmosphere of the thing was noisome to the nostrils of a good woman. The men in it were coarse and sensual, yet wittily wicked as a Stuart courtier; the women were loathsome to her, yet quick of repartee and stinging jibe. Good women were held up to mockery, good men distorted into hypocrites.

* * * * * *

In the box opposite sat a man with a keen, saturnine face—a face that had in it all the lines of wisdom and physical beauty, though each delicate curve and angle was trrust askew into evil by a restless selfishness that had stamped itself upon him from head to finger tips. He lay back in his chair and stared at Naomi through his glasses, while the tremors of some subtle emotion flickered across his face.

When the curtain fell he went round to the door behind her and tappped gently.

Naomi started from her reverie.

"Come in," she said.

He stepped into the tiny room, a graceful aristocratic figure enough in his evening dress.

"Pardon me," he began slowly, "but I though I recognized——"

She looked gravely into his face for a second and then held out her hand.

He took it and she felt his fingers quiver as they touched hers.

"You have altered greatly," she remarked, speaking as slowly as he had done.

"Life has not been too sweet in my mouth," he replied.

An hour before he had fancied himself a favorite of fortune, now all his pleasure had turned to bitterness at the sight of her.

"Then you have not been successful, after all?" she said.

She could not for her life have helped the virtual taunt.

"No," he conceded somberly, "I have not been successful—after all."

"You have been happy?" His eye fell on her dress and traveled meaningly to the plush walls around them.

"Yes." She made the admission naturally enough.

"You are married?"

"No," she said simply, "I shall never marry. I earn my living by my pen."

"You always were a clever girl," he murmured thoughtfully.

She smiled at him, half-amused, half-saddened by her recollection of their parting.

"What do you think of this piece?" she asked, with a motion of her program toward the stage.

"I—I hardly know," he stammered. "How do you like it?"

"It is a deadly insult to all women everywhere." She answered him with her brows knit in stern condemnation. "Do you not think so?"

"There is the curtain," he said.

He turned to her abruptly.

"I wouldn't stop for this act," he faltered. "I—I have seen it before; it isn't nice."

"I must see it through," she decided steadfastly, but with a sudden womanly flush.

He laid his hand on the door.

"Don't go," she urged, "unless you have some friends here."

"No," he told her, "I am quite alone here and in the world."

"Then stay," and she drew in her gown.

He stepped to the front of the box and sat down. The curtain rose and the second act commenced.

It was a trying ordeal for Naomi. Her purity revolted from the unpleasant situations and the hideous jargon of the piece. At last a scantily attired TWO ..THE HELL OF A WOMAN woman came down to the footlights and began to sing a song. There was a haunting chorus to it and both song and chorus brought the red blood to the cheeks and ears of Naomi Clifford.

She rose abruptly and turned to the man at her side.

"Take me away," she shuddered, putting her hands to her face.

As he pushed back his chair the door opened and a man in evening dress entered.

"Ah, Carr," he observed, bowing to Naomi, who resumed her seat. "I thought you were alone. They said this was your box. They want you behind."

"I—I am engaged," protested the other, with pale lips.

Naomi looked at them both; a wild surmise in her reeling brain. She raised the program to her dazed eyes.

"Adolf Carr!"

That was the author's name. She crumpled the program with a convulsive gesture of disgust and tossed it over the parapet.

"I—I'll come now, Bartley," said 'Adolf Carr.' I—— Good night, Miss ——"

But Naomi sat gazing at the stage, while the house rippled with the daintily shameless chorus and the dancing girl posed in the lascivious glare of the limelight.

"Good-night, Miss——"

There was no answer.

And "Adolf Carr" opened the box door and stepped out—into hell.

TRUCE IS VIOLATED

Bearer of White Flag Victim of Enemy's Bullets

If any one doubts that animals—or some of them, at least—have imagination, they should watch the little elephants that appear in the battle scene during the performance of the Barnum & Bailey circus in Fort Worth, Wednesday, Oct. 11.

This is one of the most remarkable trained elephant acts ever seen, and never fails to evoke a great deal of applause. There are eight little Singapore elephants in the herd and they give a realistic representation of a battle in India—marching, countermarching, advancing, retreating, firing cannon, simulating injury and death; and finally when the captain, impersonated by the trainer, falls apparently with a mortal wound, two of the elephants pick him up and preceded by an elephant bearing a flag of truce, carry the injured officer out of the ring, down the track and into a place of safety. Those who have seen this act marvel at the intelligence of these strange beasts; wonder at the patient persistence that has made their training possible, and rub their eyes and question whether, after all, it is not a dream—a figment of the imagination.

The real climax of this act, however, is never seen by the audience. It occurs in the elephant corral in the menagerie tent. In the performance the elephant that carries the flag of truce has apparently been wounded, and he hobbles away on three legs. One foot is held in the air. Instead, however, of dropping it as soon as he reaches the door of the menagerie, the elephant continues to hobble on three legs until he arrives at the corral. Even there he does not drop his "wounded" leg until his trainer, H. J. Mooney, speaks soothingly, and rubs the "injured" member.

"He really thinks he has been shot," says Trainer Mooney, "and if I didn't rub his leg he would hold it up all night."

ANOTHER HAPPY MAN
Professor Maximilian H. Bauer Has Treated Himself to a Beautiful Parlor Grand Piano of the Henry F. Miller Manufacture From
Ross & Heyer Company's Warerooms

It gives us great pleasure to announce the sale of a Henry F. Miller Parlor Grand to Prof. Maximilian Bauer. Professor Bauer has been in the market for a grand piano for some time, and as he wanted this piano for his home it naturally had to be the best.

He has had the opportunity of examining all the leading makes of grand pianos, which he is capable of doing critically.

Certainly Fort Worth does not need an introduction to Professor Bauer, as he is known throughout the city to be a teacher and a pianist of great ability, and the fact that he has selected a Henry F. Miller Grand Piano in preference to all other high-grade grand pianos speaks more for the Henry F. Miller than anyone could ever tell in words, and it naturally follows that the Henry F. Miller piano has no superior.

We invite all artistic musicians to give our Miller Grand a critical examination. The price of the Parlor Grand is $800.00, the Lyric Grand $650. For further particulars kindly call at our warerooms, 711 Houston street, between First National Bank and Famous Shoe Store, Fort Worth, Texas. All pianos marked in plain figures.

One Price to All.

SEPTEMBER RAINFALL FAR BELOW AVERAGE

Less Than One Inch Precipitation Is Local Weather Bureau Record

The rainfall reported for last month was less than any other September since the organization of the weather bureau here, with the single exception of September, 1898, when only .29 of an inch was reported. The total precipitation for September of this year was but .83 of an inch, notwithstanding the fact that rainfall was reported on six days, and a trace, or less than a hundredth of an inch, on one other day. The rainfall for last month was a little more than a third the usual amount that has occurred here during the past eleven years. The average rainfall for the month has been 2.28 inches, making a deficiency for last month of 1.45 inches. The heaviest rainfall of the month occurred on the 11th, when .52 of an inch fell. The September average is high, however, because of 9.12 inches reported in 1900.

The highest temperature of the month was on the tenth, when the thermometer mounted up to 96 degrees. The lowest was on the twentieth, when 54 degrees was all that was recorded. Sixteen days had a maximum of 90 degrees or over. The mean temperature was 78 degrees, in comparison with the past eleven years, in which the mean temperatures has been 77 degrees. The absolute maximum for September for this station is 104 degrees.

The average wind velocity was 8.6 miles, while the maximum was 29 miles on the eighteenth. The number of clear days was 18, partly cloudy 11, and cloudy 1. Fog was reported on the thirtieth and thunderstorms on the second, third, eighth and eleventh.

August of this year showed a rainfall of but .56 of an inch, a deficiency of 1.15 inches, making a total deficiency for the two months of 2.60 inches. The highest temperature in August was 102 degrees and the lowest 62 degrees. The average wind was 8.2 miles and the maximum 36 miles.

The accumulated excess of rainfall thus far this year is 8.80 inches.

Auditorium Notes

A meeting of the Auditorium Musical Association was held this morning in the Board of Trade rooms, presided over by J. W. Spencer.

The organization was put upon a complete working basis and by-laws adopted for its government. Various committee reports were heard and progress noted.

A meeting of the committee to select an opera for production this fall will be held this afternoon. Consultation will be held with Rowland D. Williams, director, before the choice is made. Rehearsals will be begun within a short time.

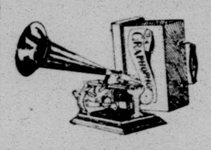

A well-attended meeting was held by officials of the county Monday afternoon, in response to the invitation of Brown Harwood, secretary of the auditorium committee, which were heartily indorsed in resolutions adopted at the meeting.

LIVELY INTEREST IN COMING STORY

Telegram's Announcement of "When It Was Dark" Causes Much Interest

Lively interest has been displayed by readers of The Telegram since the announcement was made Sunday that the first installment of the new religious novel will appear in The Telegram next Sunday, Oct. 8.

The book has proven the literary sensation of the century in England, where it was discovered by the Bishop of London after having been published several years and having attracted only passing interest.

The Bishop of London, having read the book, was struck by the wonderful dramatic force of the story and in the course of a sermon advised his hearers to purchase "When It Was Dark" and read it.

The advice was followed with the result that already the book has had one of the greatest runs ever enjoyed by a novel in England.

The story is a powerful argument for the Christian religion in the form of a novel and is based on the attempt of a wealthy atheist to prove Christianity false. The results of this attempt and the matter in which the opponent of Christianity was finally exposed form the basis for many dramatic situations.
