Collier Witness Is Arrested On Perjury Charge

Mrs. W. F. Mullins Is Out on $1,500 Bond After Arrest on Complaint Dis. At.

Mrs. W. F. Mullins of this city, called by the defense in the habeas corpus hearing two weeks ago in which former mayor Frank Collier gained his liberty, pending his trial for the murder of Elzie Robertson, was arrested late Saturday night by Sheriff Fred K. Smith on a warrant charging perjury. She perfected bond of $1,500 and was released.

The woman has been sought by the sheriff's department for several days following the issuance of a warrant by District Attorney James V. Allred. She could not be located until Saturday evening, however, and was found at Electra, it was learned.

Was Cross Examined.

Testimony on which the perjury charge was based was given by Mrs. Mullins during her cross examination by the district attorney at the time of the habeas corpus hearing. She had been called by the defense as a character witness against Mrs. Hattie Robertson, mother of the boy Mr. Collier is charged with having slain, and on the cross-examination was questioned by Mr. Allred. Statements she made in reply, Mr. Allred declares, have been thoroughly investigated.

Ready for Trial.

It is understood that Mrs. Mullins had been subpoenaed as a defense witness in the Collier trial which starts Monday.

The stage is set, it was announced last night, for the opening of the case before Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court at 10 o'clock this morning. Three hundred veniremen and over 100 witnesses will be on hand when court convenes. Whether the trial will really proceed remains to be seen, it being felt in some quarters that a continuance will be sought on grounds of absence of material witnesses.

"Where Buyer and Seller Meet"

If He's Dead, He's Keeping Awful Quiet

Question: Where's the dead man?

Answer: Wish we knew.

That, in brief, is the situation as regards a rumored, purported, supposed and alleged accident near here early Sunday morning. Reports were received that an inbound Wichita Falls and Southern train had struck an automobile south of the city and seriously injured, if not killed, the lone masculine pilot.

A frenzied search throughout the town failed to reveal word or sight of the victim. None of the undertakers had heard of him; he was an unknown quantity at the hospital; and the railroad itself disclaimed all knowledge of such a thing.

SCORE INJURED AS T-P TRAINS COME TOGETHER

But No Serious Results Follow Crash Near Dallas

DALLAS, March 15.—A score of persons were bruised and otherwise injured at Grand Prairie, Dallas county, early today, when Texas and Pacific passenger train number 6, eastbound, was partially wrecked in a collision with a gravel train. Only one person was sent to a hospital.

The accident occurred at 8 o'clock this morning.

Steel structure of passenger coaches probably saved loss of life in today's collision, railroad officials said. The passenger locomotive crashed into the rear of the gravel train, demolishing one car and thrust its nose fifteen feet into the second car before coming to a halt, and, leaving the rails, tumbled over on its left side.

Engineer H. G. Hansen and fireman R. C. Dean, both of Marshall, remained at their posts. Rail men said a switch had been left open, permitting the passenger train to swerve onto the same line with the gravel train.

Mrs. Jewel Scroggins, of Lancaster, Texas, injured on the nose and face, was taken to a Dallas hospital. Physicians said her condition was not serious. Mr. Scroggins sustained slight injuries.

TAX REDUCTION, MAYBE.

Solon Says He Sees Nothing to Prevent Big Drop for 1926.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15.—The outlook for a reduction of $300,000,000 in the nation's taxes for the fiscal year 1926 is "now favorable," Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee said today, adding that he saw "nothing to prevent" reducing the maximum surtax to 25 per cent, and general lowering of all other income rates.

2,000 SEE BIG MURAL PICTURE UNVEILED HERE

Painting Given By Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Johnson Up At College

CANTWELL ACCEPTS

Is Triumph for Hermann Who Spent Months in Fashioning It

The Wichita Falls Junior college formally acquired an art treasure unique in Texas, if not in the entire southwest, when the huge mural painting offered by Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Johnson and painted by Emil Hermann was unveiled in the college auditorium.

Over a year ago Mr. Herman conceived the idea of the 40 by 7 foot picture that Mr. Johnson intended to serve as a fitting gift to the Junior college are department. For months, in a room of the old Junior high school, the artist worked faithfully and yesterday afternoon over 2,000 Wichita Falls citizens attended the special services at the college at which time the painting was unveiled.

Tribute to Men.

It was a tribute to the donor, that meeting of Wichitans, another tribute to the art committee headed by W. B. Hamilton, and a still greater tribute to the artist himself.

Forty feet in length, the mural was constructed in three panels, all of which were finally put together and placed over the front of the stage, where it will remain, a testimonial to Mr. Johnson and Mr. Hermann.

On the right is seen the sea, contrasted on the left by fields and hills, indicative, as the artist explained, of travel. In the center, seated on her marble throne is the Goddess Minerva, symbol of learning. In her hands she holds aloft the vestal light of education. In her lap rests the Junior college, and surrounding the seated figure are other characters, symbolizing the various courses of study a student may take up.

On the right of the Goddess is "history" as depicted by the life sized figure of a woman, holding in one hand a parchment roll, and in the other an hour glass, denoting the passing of time and the imprints left behind.

Near her is "science," personified by an old man, on his knees mixing chemicals. Behind the kneeling figure is "industry," represented by a blacksmith with a hammer in his hand beating on an anvil.

"Agriculture" is on the extreme right of the painting and is shown by a farmer and his son, who are gathering the products of the har-

Staley Purchases Bank in Oklahoma

FREDERICK, Okla., Mar. 15.—Announcement was made Saturday of the purchase of the First National bank of Davidson by J. I. Staley of Wichita Falls, Texas, and R. L. Case of Frederick. The deal, which has been closed, discloses that these two men have acquired $20,500 of the bank's $25,000 capital stock.

Both Mr. Case and Mr. Staley are well known financiers, Mr. Staley being president of the Security National bank in Wichita Falls, and Mr. Case cashier of the National bank of Commerce in Frederick. Under the new ownership Mr. Staley becomes president, Mr. Case vice president, and R. S. Zeigler, who has been cashier of the institution for several years, will continue to serve in this capacity.

SOLONS ARE "FALLING OUT."

Madden and Byrnes Disagree on Accomplishments of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15.—Conflicting views of the financial accomplishments of the last session of congress were set forth today by Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee and Representative Byrnes of Tennessee, ranking democrat on the committee.

Mr. Madden said governmental appropriations have been reduced until they have "practically reached the post-war low water mark," and expenses have been so curtailed that "from this year on we are more likely to have increases than further decreases."

COTTON PALACE CASE UP

Will Probably be Postponed by Mutual Agreement of Parties.

WACO, Mar. 15.—The Cotton Palace injunction case, styled C. H. Brooks, et al vs. the city of Waco, will be called in the seventy-fourth district court Monday before Judge Prentiss Oldorf of Marlin, who will exchange benches with Judge Giles P. Lester of Waco court for the day.

W. L. Eason, attorney for Brooks, said tonight, however, that the lawyers on both sides had agreed to postpone the case, and that it would probably be reset again for the April term of court.

Wolf Pack Lays Seige To Village

VANCOUVER, B. C., Mar. 15. A large pack of starving wolves has besieged Vilna, a settlement northeast of Edmondton, Alberta, according to a special dispatch received here by Vancouver Sun, from Winnipeg, Manitoba.

The dispatch said reports of wolves around Vilna were sent to headquarters of the Royal Canadian mounted police at Winnipeg. All social affairs involving trips away from home at night have been cancelled because of wolves threatening the lives of several residents, the dispatch added.

The message declared that a pack of 20 wolves chased a party of merry-makers returning from a dance many miles on a lonely trail. The men in the party, desiring to save a single cartridge in their guns, used the butt of the guns on the wolves when they attempted to jump into the sleighs. On nearing Vilna, the wolves gave up the chase, the dispatch said.

ASK INDICTMENT OF SHEPHERD IN CHICAGO TODAY

Four Witnesses to be Called Before Grand Jury Today

CHICAGO, Mar. 15.—Four witnesses will appear before the grand jury here tomorrow in an effort to bring about the indictment of William D. Shepherd, foster father and heir of William M. McClintock, "millionaire orphan," in connection with the latter's death from typhoid. This action developed late today following a conference of attorneys and witnesses in the office of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

Girl to Return.

Coincident with this action, authorities conferred with John J. Healy and John Lee, attorneys here representing Miss Isabelle Pope, now in Los Angeles, and fiancee of McClintock to whom he gave an annuity of $8,000 in his will, and were informed that she will proceed to this city immediately to appear before the grand jury.

The four witnesses are Dr. George E. Fosberg, Dr. Charles C. Faiman, of the National University of Science, John P. Marchand, a former salesman for the university, and Chief Justice Harry A. Olson, of the municipal court.

FINAL BATTLE ON WARREN IN SENATE TODAY

Two Sides Girded for Struggle Over New Attorney General

REJECTION FORECAST

Observers Believe Demos Can Defeat Coolidge Preference

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Accepting President Coolidge's challenge of a recess appointment for Charles B. Warren as attorney general, leaders of the opposition in the senate lined up their forces tonight in a plan to bring about a second rejection of the nomination tomorrow and then attempt to hold the senate in session long enough to give the executive opportunity to submit another name.

Hasn't Helped Him

Leaders on both sides were agreed today that the president's latest move in his fight with the new senate had not served to increase strength for the Warren nomination, and its rejection by from three to six votes on the ballot to be taken at 2:30 p. m., tomorrow, was forecast.

Those directing the opposition forces take the position that the president's announcement late yesterday regarding a recess appointment in the event of a second adverse action by the senate raises a question of constitutional authority which transcends in importance the original issue.

Tit For Tat

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, was said to have voiced the sentiment of the opposition with his declaration that, while senators could not tell the executive when to nominate, the executive likewise could not tell senators whose nomination they must approve under the constitutional authority reposed in the senate to advise and consent with regard to presidential appointments.

Should Mr. Warren accept a recess appointment, he could serve only until the senate again assembled. His nomination then would have to be acted upon by the senate, and unless it were confirmed he could draw no salary for the period during which he had served.

Taps Blow For Texas' "Fighting Jew"; Soldier Makes Last Trip "West"

DALLAS, Mar. 15.—The "Fighting Jew of Texas is dead," Sam Dreben, 45, soldier and scout for General Pershing on the punitive expedition into Mexico after the Columbus raid several years ago, was a victim of paralysis at Hollywood, California, today. A telegram announcing the death of the former Dallas man was received today by Judge Royal R. Watkins of the 95th district court, friend and fellow soldier of Dreben in the world war. He will be buried in Hollywood.

Dreben was born in Russia and came to the United States when a mere lad. He served in the army throughout the Spanish-American war, participated in putting down the Boxer revolt in China, went into Mexico with Pershing and when the United States entered the world war enlisted in company A, 141st infantry, 36th division. As first sergeant he was in Meuse-Argonne drive and the allied Champagne offensive.

It was the latter drive, Oct. 9, 1918, Judge Watkins said today, that Dreben "put to rout with a platoon of men several German machine gun nests, killing and capturing about 85 men without losing any of his men."

For this act he was decorated several times.

He received the American distinguished service cross, the French medal militaire, the French Croix de Guerre, with two palms and the Belgian Croix de Guerre. He was cited by Marshal Petain, General Gouraud and General Mangin of the French army. Medal militaire was given him by the president of France.

Odd Fellow and Rebekah Delegates Flocking In For Convention Opening

Reds Revolt In Chicago Theatre; Loop Disrupted

CHICAGO, March 15.—A riot squad broke up a lecture in the Garrick theatre here this afternoon when a group of communists heckled R. Abramovitz, journalist and student of political science who sought to lecture on conditions in Russia.

Three police, Sergeants John Howe, Terrence Donohue and Lawrence McCarthy attempted to quiet the hecklers but were set upon and forced to call for the riot squad, which answered the summons from the loop police headquarters, a block distant.

At least 15 persons were hurt in a crush of curiosity seekers who followed the police, and the audience, which rushed into the street and met police, who swung their clubs and black jacks freely.

For 20 minutes officers patrolled Randolph street, the loop Rialto and scattered pedestrians who had blocked vehicular traffic.

Groups of supporters of Abramovitz attempted to give curbstone speeches but were dispersed or pulled from their temporary platforms. Others sought to mount the running board of stalled automobiles but were chased by communists.

Some one started singing the "International" the communist anthem, and 20 additional police rushed from their headquarters into the street to disperse the throng.

AUTO PLUNGES TO RIVER AND TAKES 2 LIVES

Foard City Man One Victim in Oklahoma Accident

WATONGA, Okla., Mar. 15.—Dallas Scrivens, a Watonga barber, and I. O. Weatherall, an implement dealer at Foard City, Texas, were drowned in the Canadian river near Eagle City, Okla., early today when the car they were driving plunged from the road into a channel cut across it by the river. Both men were about 25 years old.

The road, little used by residents of the community, was known as "crazy road," because of the pranks played upon it by the river.

A telephone message was received here Sunday afternoon by Fred C. Varner, local automobile man, from Sheriff McKay of Blaine county, Oklahoma, who sought information concerning the automobile in which Scrivens and Weatherall were riding. The machine was purchased in this city last December, according to Mr. Varner.

CIRCLES GLOBE AND SEES HOPE END IN BLAZE

He Brings Disease Germs From Africa; The Land In Furnace

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15.—The story of an East African scientist who journeyed 9,000 miles to give the department of agriculture a sample of hog blood containing the virus of a dread disease, only to have it tossed into an incinerator, was related today by department officials. A similar fate awaited the specimen of a virus of the foot and mouth disease, brought by a Swiss watchmaker who desired to experiment with it in the hope of discovering a cure.

Wants Experiments.

Success of the bureau of animal industry in combatting hog cholera in this country prompted the African scientists to ask the bureau to experiment with the virus he brought. He explained to Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau, that the disease has caused enormous fatalities among African hogs and gave him a bottle filled with the infected blood. Dr. Mohler took the bottle, stepped to an incinerator and threw it into the flames.

The scientist was told that the place to study the disease is East Africa, not in this country, where escape of the virus might cause great damage to the hog industry. The same explanation was given to the Swiss.

ROOM NEEDS ACUTE AS EACH TRAIN ARRIVES

Over 2,000 Delegates Registered Sunday Evening

MANY MORE COMING

First Sessions of Grand Lodge to Be Held Today

With the first business session over 12 hours away, delegates to the 85th state convention of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows flocked into Wichita Falls by train and automobile Sunday and overran convention headquarters in the Morgan building. The incoming horde Sunday was the forerunner of more that are to come today before the convention officially begins.

The office opened Sunday morning at 9 o'clock and in less than two hours several hundred visitors had signed up and been assigned rooms. At dark Sunday over 1,000 delegates had registered; other were turned away because of the crowd and asked to return Monday.

In addition to the many delegates who had registered from Texas, over 300 visitors from Oklahoma had signed up. These members from the neighbor state are not delegates to the convention and will have no part in the activities save as onlookers. Prominent among them is State President Higgins from Sayre, Okla., head of the Rebekah assembly in that state.

Over 2,000 Present

At a late hour last night registration officials at the Morgan building conservatively estimated the total number of visitors in the city as already well over 2,000.

As the numbers of delegates swelled throughout the day and night hotel and room accommodation shrank. Late last night fear was held of a shortage in rooms, unless more offers of places to sleep are made. All room accommodations in the city were gone early yesterday evening and cots that were brought in disappeared a short time later and were soon selling at premiums.

In order to relieve the situation as much as possible the American Legion hall on Ohio avenue was thrown open to the visitors and cots placed in the big room. The legion also provided a guard to remain on watch over valuables of the guests. An urgent appeal was also sent out for more homes.

First Activities

First activities of the delegates were held Sunday afternoon and evening, though business sessions do not begin until this morning. At 3 o'clock at the I. O. O. F. hall, Ninth and Travis streets, the 48 children from the Texas Odd Fellows Widows and Orphans Home at Corsicana were given a banquet. The guests were all from the home and are members of either the girls' glee club or the boys' band, brought here for entertainment of the guests.

Sunday evening Rev. John J. Bell directed special services held at the First Baptist church, exchanging pulpits for the evening with the pastor, Rev. O. L. Powers. The musical program for the services was rendered by the boys' band and the girls' glee club. A special number was a piano recital given by 13-year-old Venita Webb, private ward of the local Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges. Rev Bell chose for his subject, "The Three Links."

Preceding the services, the six grand officers of the state convention led by G. W. Hawkins of San Antonio, grand master, were escorted to the church by a special escort from the local grand lodge canton No. 6.

Business Sessions

First business session of the grand lodge will be held this morning at 11 o'clock, followed by another this afternoon at 2 o'clock. This meeting will be the most important scheduled by the Odd Fellows. At this session officers of the grand lodge will be installed for 1925, committees will be appointed and all past grand officers of any Texas lodge will be allowed to take the past grand degree which will allow them to hold a state office.

The Rebekahs will hold business sessions at the same time as the grand lodge but they will meet in the Labor temple, 703 Travis street.

The last of the day's meeting will be the special joint memorial of the two lodges held at the Wichita theatre this evening at 11 o'clock. At that time all members of the Texas lodges who have died since the last convention will be remembered with fitting ceremonies.

Mineral Wells Here

Campaigning was under way at as early an hour, even, as Sunday afternoon, when the delegation of 20 or more Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from Mineral Wells arrived with the avowed intention of gaining the 1926 convention for that city. Headed by Mayor K. McBrayer and George D. Barber, assistant manager of the Mineral Wells chamber of commerce, they promptly started a "Mineral Wells in 1926" movement. Twenty more are expected in this morning from the city.

No pronounced opposition has as yet come to the fore, but it is expected that at least two other cities will make bids for next year's sessions. Houston and Austin have both been mentioned in this connection.

Legislature Puts Amnesty Measures Behind It At Last

Succeeds in Shaping Up Some Definite Laws In Past Week

AUSTIN, March 15.—(AP)—The legislature this past week saw the last of the amnesty measure which has been hounding it for days and nights, and was able to shape into laws a number of important measures that have been on its calendars.

While amnesty was finally out of the way and safely in the keeping of the Ferguson family, the clearing of James E. Ferguson's name was not yet a dead issue, for it bobbed up in the senate the very next day after passage of the amnesty bill in the form of a resolution asking for an impeachment court to rescind the impeachment judgment of 1917. The resolution was introduced by Senators Moore of Cooke, and Fairchild. It was referred to the judiciary committee.

Appropriations Passed.

This week saw also the last of the important appropriation bills passed and sent to free conference committee, making a record in passage of financial measures that has not been equalled in almost 60 years.

The house passed the Teer bill relocating the statepenitentiary near Austin, carrying an appropriation of $500,000 for the purpose, and the measure has fair prospects of passing the senate, where the penitentiary committee has sent it out with a favorable majority report and an unfavorable minority report.

There is still before the legislature the rural aid bill carrying several millions, which in conference committee, must satisfy a number of departments which claim they were not given enough money to operate properly; must determine whether an appropriation of $600,000 should be granted to carry into effect the tick eradication bill; must decide on the penitentiary relocation and had innumerable bills to dispose of in one way or another for final adjournment, which comes at 6 p. m. next Thursday.

6 p. m. Dead Line.

No bills on second reading can be considered in either house or senate after tomorrow at 6 p. m. Monday and Tuesday will be the last of the suspension days, and until Tuesday at 6 p. m. any bill may be called from its place on the calendar, no matter how obscure, by a two-thirds vote. After Tuesday at 6 p. m. no bill can be considered out of its regular order, and the final time for passage of general legislation will be up to Wednesday at 6 p. m. During the last 24 hours, from Wednesday at 6 p. m. to Thursday at 6 p. m. the hour for sine die adjournment, both houses will consider concurrent resolutions, amendments to bills and adoption of free conference reports.

The house opens Monday morning with consideration of the proposed constitutional amendments, with the one to raise salaries of solons having precedence.

The last four days will be strenuous ones. The house and senate must finally pass the free conference report for the educational appropriation bill, which has been tentatively agreed upon by the committee.

Letter Saves Native Lad from Deportation

SAN ANTONIO, March 15.—Martin Garcia, 16, was on a truck at Bexar county jail to be deported to Mexico as an alien when a letter was being read at the sheriff's office which seemed to prove that the lad was a native born American. Acting Chief Deputy Sheriff Charles Peters read the letter and telephoned the jail.

The prison was without the jurisdiction of the sheriff. The federal charge of the deportation squad and Peters called for the officer in charge of the reportation part and explained the matter. The boy is being held.

The letter received by Sheriff James Stevens was from E. A. Hubien, city marshal of Converse, Sabine parish, La. The marshal declared the lad was well known to him and that he was born in Sabine parish. A check for $23 was enclosed asking that the sheriff buy the lad a ticket and send him as soon as possible. The money had been furnished by Garcia's mother who resides at Converse, the letter said.

Miner Files Petition Charging Misuse Of Funds by Union Association.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Mar. 15.—A. D. Broom, a miner, in a petition filed in chancery court here today charged officers and "unconstitutional appointees" of the United Mine Workers of America in district 21, with "wanton misuse and misappropriation" of funds in certain departments of the organization and asked that a receiver be named.

Broom's petition was filed as an intervention in the suit of Webb Covington against William McClachlen and more than 25 other defendants declared to be representatives of the mine union district.

WACO PERMITS CLIMB.

Building Activities for First Two Weeks Total Over $100,000

WACO, March 15.—Waco building permits for the first two weeks of March, as shown by the applications in the city tax collector's office, total $125,252. Of the 41 applications included in this amount only one, for improvements on the Provident Heights Baptist church, went over $8,000. It was for $27,000.

Prepare to Unearth First of Pharaohs

CAIRO, Egypt, March 15.—(AP)—Preliminary work on the tomb near the great pyramid at Giza recently unearthed by the Boston-Harvard expedition and believed to date back to the reign of Pharoah Seneferu, or about 3,000 B. C., is being completed, according to an official communication issued by the ministry of public works. It has been decided to close the tomb until the arrival of Dr. George A. Reisner, assistant professor of Egyptology at Harvard, who, although head of the expedition, was in America when the tomb was discovered, so that he may be able to see the burial place as it was when originally found and take charge of the long, difficult work of removing the objects it contains.

Meanwhile Allen Row who is in charge of the operations, and his assistants are taking steps to make the 90-foot shaft leading to the tomb more secure.

Forty feet south of the tomb shaft the foundations of a small stone pyramid have been found. The shaft and its stairway, together with the temple which originally existed between them and that pyramid were found to have formed a complete unit, and if this assumption is correct the official communication says the tomb dates back before the time of King Cheops known also as Khufu, one of the kings of the fourth dynasty coming after Seneferu.

Governor of Georgia Says Committee Enjoys Confidence of People.

ATLANTA, Ga., Mar. 15.—A statement from Gov. Clifford Walker in which he said the members of the executive committee of the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental association enjoy the confidence of "the best people of Georgia" was made public at the offices of the association today.

G. McClendon, secretary of the state of Georgia, said today that he had written Gov. A. W. McLean several days ago suggesting that the North Carolina governor undertake the work of nationalizing the Stone Mountain memorial movement. To this letter he has received no reply, he said.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

THE BUSINESS GIRL MAKES THE BEST SORT OF WIFE BECAUSE SHE HAS LEARNED TO CONTROL HER TEMPER, TO REALIZE THE VALUE OF MONEY, AND UNDERSTANDS MEN WELL ENOUGH NOT TO EXPECT HER HUSBAND TO BE A DEMI-GOD.

A young man wants to know what sort of wife the business girl makes.

The best sort of wife, son; the very best. It would be a good thing if every girl in the world had to earn her own living for at least two or three years before she got married.

In fact, there is no better preparation for matrimony than business is for a girl, because it teaches her so many things that she needs to know if she is to make a success in holding down the wife job, and that she can learn in no other way.

To begin with, it teaches her about men; and, so far as making a happy home is concerned, it is far more important that woman should be an expert in masculine psychology than it is for her to be a prize breadmaker. No woman who has worked under men and side by side with men goes into matrimony with the impossible ideal of husbands that the bride has who has only seen men when they had on their stepping-out clothes and their company manners.

The business girl knows men as they are—full of nobility and meanness; of generosity and stinginess; of egotism and altruism, and so she is prepared to deal with her husband as a human being instead of expecting him to be a demi-god.

He can't put anything over on her because she is wise to all of the tricks of his sex; but, on the other hand, she is never the grinding tyrant that the domestic woman is, because she knows from experience that after you have toiled all day in an office or a store you are worn out in body and mind, and need recreation and peace and quiet.

Therefore, the business girl when she marries doesn't expect her husband to put down carpets or hang curtains at home, nor does she meet him at the front door with a Jeremiahed account of her own troubles, and before he has time to get off his hat tell him a dozen unpleasant pieces of news.

She remembers how wired she used to be when she came home of an evening, and how she felt that just one word of nagging, or just one single more thing to do would be the straw that broke the camel's back. There is nothing like having been there yourself to make us appreciate the other fellow's troubles, and there is no doubt that the business woman makes a more sympathetic and understanding wife than the purely domestic girl does.

Business is a Spartan school that teaches a girl self-control. The first requisite of holding down a job is to hold down your temper. Hysterics, tears, sensitiveness don't get a girl anywhere in commercial life, and so she learns to bite back the tart retort when she is angry, and to cut out the weeps, and not to leave her precious feelings strewn all over the place for people to step on.

Any girl who has taken dictation from an irritable and grouchy boss, or got along with a dyspeptic head of a department has taken a post-graduate course in how to manage men without friction and can make her husband eat out of her hand and enjoy it.

The business girl is more reasonable about money than the domestic woman. No woman who has ever earned her own living ever looks at a dollar with the same eye as the woman does who has always had her money given to her. The one sees the money only as a means of gratifying her desires. The other sees it wet with blood and sweat, and toil and tears.

The domestic woman cannot see why she must deny herself a new c because her husband wants the money to go into the business, but the business woman understands. She is willing to make the sacrifice, knowing tha the rewards will come back to her tenfold.

Furthermore, she is never jealous, as most domestic women are, of her husband's business or profession. She doesn't speak of his "horrid old office." She thinks of his office as a battlefield on which he fights a never-ending battle to keep her and her children safe and warm

The business woman makes a wife with whom a man can chum, because she knows the things that he knows, and can talk intelligently about them. After all, the chief topic of interest to most men is the shop. That is what they talk about to other men; but when a man tries this line of conversation on his wife she generally doesn't know what he is talking about, and she is so bored she yawns in his face.

Not so with the business woman. She speaks that language herself.

She is keenly interested, and when a man can spend an evening discussing the grocery trade or the stock market with his wife and plan future deals with her, he isn't going to wander away from his own fireside in search of an affinity. He has found his soulmate.

Of course, it is true that the business girl generally knows very little about cooking or housework, but any woman who can learn how to be a first-class bookkeeper or a crackerjack stenographer can learn how to be a blue ribbon cook in three months.

And she generally does, because she has been trained in efficiency and accuracy, and she does things by the book after the most approved scientific manner instead of hit or miss.

Don't be afraid to marry a business girl, son. She is a safe matrimonial bet.

Music, Sculpture and Painting.

"Music" is seen on the left of Minerva, in a young woman playing a lyre. The arts of "sculpture" and "painting" are symbolized by the kneeling figure of a nude boy holding a statue and the larger figure of a woman, working at an easel.

Behind them is "travel:' a woman holding in one hand the staff of Mercury, the messenger of the gods and in the other the globe.

The landscape behind the kneeling, sitting and standing figures was painted, according to the artist who explained his sketch, "with the idea of carrying out the general theme that a student may prosper and become great if he will only apply himself to his work."

The painting is only one, the largest of several that will be presented to the college from the fund set aside last year by Mr. Johnson, who was absent from the Sunday afternoon program because of illness.

Cantwell A Speaker.

In accepting the gift of Mr. Johnson, and the masterpiece of Mr. Hermann, Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of schools, struck the keynote of the thoughts of all when he accepted with the words "I accept the gift for the college, knowing that it is the wish of one who has an interest in the school and the student body, and because I know that it depicts the true thought of life. I know that for years it will remain in this place here," and he pointed toward the mural over the stage. "as a fitting reminder to the students of today and tomorrow that they need only to work if they would master the arts."

The Junior college orchestra, directed by Miss Winifred Alvis, opened the reception with several selections.

"Art in Industry," a story of the part played by the ideals of those who think of things other than the drudgery of life, was told by John W. Bradley.

"Art is the expression of man's inner self.", Mr. Bradley began. "It belongs to all, and without it, in business, in life, in society, our tasks become mere 'bread and butter affairs' and not worthy of our full attention. What makes things beautiful—art, What makes people sing while they are at a task they dislike—art. What makes life what it is, what helps us to do the disagreeable tasks, with light hearts, what causes us to change in fantasy the things we dislike so that they represent the things we love. It is art, he ended.

"In life, in business, in school, it is art that makes the difference, that marks the change from the cheap to the valuable," stated Mrs. W. W. Silk, in her address on "Art in Life." The speaker explained that it was the appreciation of art that made the cut glass vase worth several hundred times the small piece of pottery, not the value of of the material out of which they were made. She stressed the fact that it is art and not the material that makes the difference.

Preceding the introduction of Mr. Hermann by W. B. Hamilton, Miss Ottie Keeling and Miss Glenn Miles sang several selections. They were accompanied at the piano by Miss Erma Nala Voss, supervisor of music in the public schools.

Hamilton Also Speaks.

Mr. Hamilton explained briefly the ideals that prompt an artist to spend months on a work that in the end will bring him but a few dollars. He reiterated several times that the true artist has in mind an ideal which he desires to put on canvass, and considers not the material while he is engaged in the work.

Following the unveiling of the mural, Miss Vivian Bailey played two violin solos. She was accompanied by Mrs. Lucile Brooks Huff at the piano.

Many of the people who attended the reception later ascended to the third floor where they viewed the many beautiful paintings on exhibition there, many of them placed by the Taos Art gallery of New York.

TAKES TACK FROM LUNG

Ten-Year-Old Boy Will Recover After Operation at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—Ten-year-old Roedell Rowland of El Dorado, Ark., tonight is on the road to recovery after removal of a tack from his lung by Dr. Chevalier Jackson bronchescope specialist of the Jefferson hospital here. The tack had been lodged in the boy's lung for five years. During that time repeated efforts had been made to cure him of ailments induced by the tack and an effort had been made to reach the tack by cutting through his ribs.

ARREST ALLEGED HOLD-UP.

Release New Orleans Man on $3,000 Bond to Await Hearing.

NEW ORLEANS, March 15.—Hart Austen, arrested here last night on suspicion in connection with the holdup of a local homestead association a few days ago was this afternoon released on $3,000 bond to await hearing.

Austen is believed to be wanted in Texas and Utah for complicity in robberies there. His picture was identified by Salt Lake City officials as one of a trio of men wanted there for the holdup of a bank from which $1,800 in liberty bonds and $100 in gold was taken.

Officials of the homestead association which was robbed a few days ago failed to identify Austen as one of the pair staging the robbery. He has admitted serving four years of an eleven year sentence in Texas and claims to have been pardoned.

Car Hits Train; Man Is Burned to Death

FORT WORTH, March 15.—The charred body of Phillip M. Martin, 24 years old of Dallas, was held in the morgue of an undertaking company at Grand Prairie tonight, the aftermath to one of the most tragic traffic accidents in the town's history.

Martin was burned to death in his automobile when he crashed into a gravel train a half mile from the heart of the town. His gas tank exploded and while he struggled, pinned beneath the steering wheel of the automobile, pleading for help, the flames snuffed out his life.

He was identified by the license plate which was recovered from the wreckage of the burned automobile.

Martin is survived by a wife, Rose, his father, T. J. Martin of Dallas, two brothers and two sisters. His family had just returned from a moving picture show when notified of young Martin's death. They went immediately to Grand Prairie.

BANDITS ROB FUR STORE.

Armed Men Attact Customers And $20,000 in Cash and Furs.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Five bandits tonight held the proprietors and a score of customers at bay in the Superior Fur company offices on Broadway while they gathered jewelry, furs and cash amounting to about $20,000.

Several of those in the store who resisted were assaulted by the robbers, who escaped.

Before leaving the robbers bound their victims with wire. Pedestrians heard their cries for help and released them.

The victims told the police that one of the robbers who appeared to be the leader of the gang walked among the bound customers and frequently would strike one with his pistol saying: "I don't like your looks."

If Food Causes Stomach Trouble

If Bloating, Gassiness, Heartburn, Sour Stomach or Such Distresses Follow Meals be Sure to Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A good appetite for the savory dishes, come what may, or as they say, "from soup to nuts," is one of life's chief enjoyments. Then, on the other hand, stomach distress afterward is one of life's chief disappointments. To enjoy eating and feel perfectly safe one should follow meals with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They aid digestion, they stop sour fermentation, they take up the sour risings and gassiness, they sweeten the stomach by giving it the alkaline effect and they also stimulate secretions in the stomach and intestines.

Thus, whether you eat pork and beans, sausage and buckwheat cakes, mince pie and cheese, or the foods that most people complain of making the stomach uneasy and sour, you experience that happy state of enjoyable, solid comfort.

Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at the drug store. Then eat heartily of all the good things of the table. It is surely the best road to continued good health.

DAYS OF YORE WERE LEAN

Bare fists brought bare purses. The padding of the fist was a fortunate innovation for the fighting man. Figuratively speaking, the leather is upholstered with the "long green"—the coin of the realm. The fighter of today is in reality a business man who rakes in his fortune pounding human features with six ounce gloves instead of the familiar opponent of business sales resistance.

Now that Dempsey is again arriving at a fighting mood, it will not be long before the public prints reveal some astonishing figures of what he thinks his slugging services are worth. There is no question that Dempsey will demand and receive $500,000 for a joust with Harry Wills. At Shelby Jack put in an expense bill for $300,000 for competing against Tom Gibbons.

True, he did not collect the entire sum, but several banks were wrecked in the effort to do so. It is certain that the champion will quote something like this same figure for another tilt with the clever fellow from St. Paul.

A typical Dempsey dollar-earning bout was the Carpentier affair. Dempsey garnered almost $500 a second, unbelievable as it may seem.

Bare Fists Brought Bare Purses.

As we said before, bare fists brought bare purses.

John L. Sullivan, one of the greatest champions the ring ever knew, was handed but $10,000 for his three hardest mills. The gentlemen whom he encountered were Jake Kilrain, Charlie Mitchell and Jabes J. Corbett. Bare fists were used in all except the last named battle.

Then, take the case of Charlie Freeman, the first Yankee to hold a world's ring title. Freeman, known as "The American Giant," whipped Bill Parry, "The Tipton Slasher," in 108 rounds (London prize ring rules) December 14 and 20, 1842. Two days were required to settle this issue as darkness prevented the gladiators from fisticuffing more than 70 rounds in their first meeting. Six days later the combat was revewed . Freeman won after 38 rounds had been added to the first 70.

The slasher, who stood six feet, one-half inch, weighed but 182 pounds against Freeman's 250 pounds. The latter towered above his adversary, being almost seven feet tall. In all, the struggle lasted two hours and three minutes. Parry finally throwing himself down without being hit.

Freeman received the stake of $500—a huge amount for fighters in those days. So much for the first American champion!

Jim Corbett whipped John L. Sullivan for the world's title at New Orleans in 1892. Purse $25,000. Stakes $20,000.

Tom Sayers, one of England's greatest, whipped Parry for the title in 1857. The men fought for $1,000 a side.

Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall fought for $40,000 at New Orleans in 1893. Fitz, the winner, was swindled out of his earnings. He didn't receive a red cent for knocking out the dangerous Australian.

Tom Sayers of England and John Heenan, the American champion, waged their memorable ring classic in England, April 17, 1860. Interest in the combat was intense, albeit world-wide. Yet the incentive was but $1,000 in cash. After 42 rounds of desperate struggling (2 hours and 20 minutes) English "toughs" broke into the ring to save bets on Sayers, although Heenan was fightfully beaten, too. The battle was declared a draw, thereby dissolving the stakes.

110 ROUNDS FOR NOTHING

Andy Bowen and Jack Burke, lightweights, participated in the longest glove encounter on record — 110 rounds at New Orleans, April 6, 1893. The men fought seven hours and nineteen minutes, finally agreeing on a draw.

And neither combatant received a penny!

Jim Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons fought out in the Nevada sagebrush in '95. Fitz took the entire purse—$10,000—as the victor's spoils.

CAMP CONSIDERED ONE OF GREATEST BACKFIELD STARS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 15.—Walter Camp, who died in New York yesterday, was one of the greatest backfield players in his day in the opinion of those who have followed football at Yale for a third of a century. In Camp's student days the formidable contenders against Yale were Wesleyan, Rutgers, Tufts and Princeton. Harvard was not then regarded as a great opponent although the early games often were noted for remarkable feats. Camp is said to have come into unusual prominence in one of the Harvard games when he displayed skill in running through a broken field. He also achieved fame in college baseball as it was then played.

Hedge Fence Wins Tia Juana

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Mar. 15.—Hedge Fence, speedy whiskbroom colt, from the Greentree stable, New York, today captured the Tia Juana derby, a mail and an eighth by four lengths, under restraint from his nearest adversary, Martha Martin, from the Swing Along stables.

OUTGUESSING 'EM IN CLOSE GO GIVES CONTENDER MORE PLEASURE THAN OUTCLASSING

Big Thrill Lies in Mental Duel With Worthy Foe, Tilden, Leonard and Others Will Tell You

What was your supreme thrill in sports?

If you are a baseball fan, perhaps it was a ninth-inning rally, a home run with the bases ful:.

A boxing spectator probably would recall some spectacular knockout.

The tennis enthusiast may name one of Bill Tilden's cannonball services which bounced off his opponent's racket for match point or a "get" which appeared impossible.

A golf lover may nominate a 300-yard drive or a putt that dropped from the edge of the green.

Long runs in football would receive many votes. So would open-field tackles and forward passes.

Exhausting sprints down the stretch have furnished "supreme thrills" to thousands both in human and horse racing.

Here and there a fan would name some bit of clever strategy, but the great majority of spectators would select a physical feat as productive of his supreme thrill.

The spectators are impressed with physical acts, but the athletes, or most of them, find their thrills in mental effort.

The Boxer's Thrill

Leon Rains, former boxing promoter, gave a dinner in honor of Benny Leonard at the Locust club the other night. The actor-athlete, in one of his two-a-day denials that he will return to the ring, talked at length of the thrill of the game.

"I love boxing," he said. "There isn't a successful man in any line of work who doesn't love his game. This is essential to success. The game has a thrill that's gripping. It's not easy to break away.

"They talk of the punch as the big thrill. They mean the knockout. But the greatest enjoyment I got from boxing was not the punch which knocked the other fellow out, but the mental duel which preceded every punch, even if it was only a jab.

"Boxing is like fencing. No difference, except you have two fists instead of one foil. You feint with your left and strike with your right. You make believe you're going to hit here, but you strike there.

"You pretend you're off guard to make you ropponent open up, and as soon as he does you hit out. In fencing, a novice can score a touch if the opening is there and the novice is quick enough to take advantage of it. But it takes a real fencer to force the opening. It's the same in boxing.

"The thrill of the game as I got it was not in outpunching the other fellow, but in outboxing him, outsmarting him."

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

To those in the game, the thrill comes from mental more than physical effort.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

The Mental Duel

One day last season when we were chatting with Jimmy Ring, the Phillies' ace, we asked him what thrilled him most in pitching.

"I would rather strike out Rogers Hornsby than do anything else," he replied. "It's not that I'm jealous of him or that I dislike him—in fact, we're good friends—but I get a great deal of personal satisfaction from striking him out because he's a great hitter and a smart hitter.

"He feels the same way about it. Whenever he comes to bat it's not St. Louis against Philly; it's Rogers Hornsby against me. He likes to hit me. I think he'd rather get a hit off me than any other pitcher in the league because he knows how I try to strike him out. He doesn't want to walk; he wants to hit.

"It's not the hit to him and it's not the strikeout to me. The fun's in trying to outguess him. If I have him three and two and make him miss or keep his bat on his shoulder while I break one over the plate—oh, boy! there's the thrill!

"If he hits we both laugh about it, and I say to myself or maybe I'll tell him, 'I'll get you the next time.' If he strikes out we laugh, and he says to me, 'I'll hit the next time.'

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

"I strike him out a lot, I do, and he hits me a lot; believe me, he does."

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

Tilden's Method

Why does Bill Tilden carry a player to extra frames when it is apparent he could beat him in sequence sets?

There are two reasons. One is, he develops his game by improving new strokes in competition. The other is the production of thrills for his personal satisfaction.

For Tilden there is no joy in crushing a weak rival with cannonball service and lightning drives down the sidelines. He would rather play with his poorest stroke and make up for the deficiency with brain power.

In Tilden's game now there are no weak points, and so he softens his strokes and gains his victory by pulling the other fellow out of position, at the same time giving him a good chance of making a return.

Ted Meredith at his best would rather win with his head than his feet. He delighted in fooling the field by making the pace slow, at the same time compelling the pack to believe he was burning out his heart with speed.

Harold Lentz, the champion caster, told us there is no thrill in sports like the bite of a fish. It's not the landing, but the bite.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

We could go right on along this line. The star athlete in any sport finds his fun not in attainments, but in attaining.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

It's Not What You Get, It's Getting It.

There are certain points on the radio dials which bring in good concerts or good speeches. You could turn to them and enjoy an excellent program without the annoyance of the strange, weird whistles of static.

But they come from local stations and you pass them by. You sit by your dials and twist and turn and twist and turn and listen until it "hurts" for the faint voice you can scarcely understand and for the tuneless music of the distant station.

"I had England last night," says Radio Rex.

"Was it a good concert?" you may ask.

"I don't know," he replies, "I could scarcely hear 'em. But, by golly, I had 'em."

It's not what you get; it's getting it that counts.

Radio Rex's wife sat on the sidelines and demanded good music. There was no fun for her in the whistles that came from England. She wanted the clear tones of the local station. She wanted results. Rex wanted the effort.

The wife is the sport spectator who cheers results. Rex is the athlete who wants the satisfaction of overcoming obstacles.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

There's a thrill you get in playing the game that is never felt in the stands.

Stewart Issues Varsity Spring Football Call Coming Thursday

AUSTIN, Texas, March 15.—Not to be outdone by coaches Disch and Littlefield who held baseball and track practice at the University of Texas last fall, coach "Doleful" Doc Stewart has issued a call for football training to start next Thursday. At least 75 athletes are expected to respond to the summons for spring training.

In order to help assure the Longhorns of a first class football team next fall, freshmen athletes will be released from track and baseball practice in order that they may give all their time to football and have the opportunity to make rapid development in that sport. The university athletic authorities realize that upon the development of the new players will depend the Longhorns' chances for victory next fall. With such potential stars as Leo Baldwin, Max Saxon, John Estes, Ox Higgins, Joe King, and others in school, the coaches will leave no stones unturned in an effort to fully develop these aspiring youngsters.

Spring practice last year at the university was not very extensive but coach Stewart intends to make both veterans and youngsters train this spring. Football is the major college sport. In fact, the other sports are maintained by the revenue derived from the grid game, it is stated. Students and ex-students alike feel that the athletic season has been a success if the football team wins most of its games, but if the football year is a failure they receive little comforts from wins in other sports.

PAAVO CATCHES COLD

Peerless Runner Will Race Hahn Ray Tuesday

NEW YORK, March 15.—Paavo Nurmi, peerless Finninsh middle-distance star and Olympic champion, has been suffering from a cold and his temperature was high on Saturday, it was learned today.

He will be in condition to meet Joie Ray and Lloyd Hahn in a mile race and Willie Ritola in a 5,000 mile meter event on Tuesday at the Knights of Columbus games in Madison Square garden, it was said, but has requested that the longer race be staged first, and the management of the meet has consented to this arrangement.

Hugo Quist, who has managed Nurmi's American tour, said today that he had a doctor's certificate to the effect that the champion's illness would not permit him to appear in Hartford, Conn., last Saturday night.

Temperament That Affected Yanks Missing In Champion Senator's Camp

By NORMAN E. BROWN.
Sporting Editor of Central Press.

TAMPA, Fla., March 15.—One noticeable thing about the world's champion Washington Senators, as they train here for the coming campaign, is the utter absence of temperament or "offishness" so often apparent in the camp of a championship ball club—which was noticeably apparent around the Yankee bailiwick each spring during their reign and still is somewhat apparent as they bask in the doubtful light of ex-champions.

The Senators are a happy family. The vets and rookies mingle on friendly footing.

There are three main reasons for this.

First of all, Harris, youthful manager of the team, makes himself one of the boys.

Secondly, there are no prima donna stars—no Babe Ruths—on the team.

Thirdly there is Nick Altrock.

Altrock earns his yearly salary before the team plods its way northward in the spring by his ability to get everybody "going." You'll find Nick most of the time playing "pepper" among half a dozen players. And there'll be a vet trying to keep pace with him on one side and a rookie on the other.

Stranger Is Welcomed.

The day I looked the Senators over there was a big lad working behind the plate. Brother, but he had size. It didn't worry him, however. He handled himself well. The regulars were taking their turns at bat. As the big fellow worked they talked to him.

"Atta boy. Under it!" they yelled when he went after a high foul.

"Shake the mask a little quicker," suggested the veteran Muddy Ruel. He had probably already told the kid never to stumble over it the way Hank Gowdy did in the last world's series.

I asked half a dozen players, "Who's the new man behind the plate?"

"Dinged if I know," was the usual reply. I became curious. I finally found out about him.

He had come into camp that morning "on his own." His name was Matt Hinkle (no relation, however, to the Cleveland fight promoter). He had asked Clark Griffith for a trial and the Old Fox explained that his roster was complete. "But there's no ban on my working out, is there," asked Hinkle. Griffith eased his mind on that point and the catcher got into a uniform.

Hinkle got a trial with Joplin in 1922 and then moved to Denver. He played with the Denver outfit until July last year and then drew his release. He was a free agent when he blew into Florida last winter and hooked up with the Lakework team in the winter league. He played first base with that outfit and led the team in batting. He is a catcher by desire, however.

The point is that the Nat regulars were for him—whoever he might be—because he was trying to play ball with them.

Then there is William Hargrave, catcher and brother of the famous "Bubbles" of the Cinci Reds. Hargrave has the earmarks of a catcher. The team's pulling for him in the hope that he may outshine his National league brother and get set to help fill Muddy Ruel's shoes when that veteran steps out.

Pitchers Aid Rookie.

Clise Dudley came into camp as a pitching rookie. Was tried out last spring and farmed out. His arm went bad on him. The Lincoln club, where he went from the Nats sent him to a South Atlantic outfit when he caught cold in his arm. It wasn't until the last few weeks of the season that he found himself in shape to pitch. He had given up hope of a big league trial this year when the Nats ordered him to report. Now you'll find "Zeb" Zachary, Walt Johnson and the other Senatorial vets giving Clise advise on how to bring his arm around to condition with the least chance of overdoing it.

Spencer Adams, booked to be the first man to break into the infield when the famous Judge-Harris-Peckinpaugh-Bluege combination is broken, is the target for a lot of "kidding" from the time he takes his post, usually at short, until he quits the field. It's the kind of "riding," however, that helps make a ball player.

The only fly in the ointment at this happy camp, as I see it, is the difference of opinion aroused over the disposal of Byron Speece, young pitcher to Cleveland for the veteran Stanley Coveleskie. And if some of the regulars figure that Manager Harris got "hooked" on the deal they aren't taking it out on Covey. They're all pulling for the veteran spitballer to deliver this year.

BLONDY CROSS

SPRING EXPERTING.

The bulging brow is wrinkled now.
The "experts" sing hosannas,
But soon the kids
Will hit the skids;
Again they'll move pianos.

* * *

Hearing skirts are to be higher in Los Angeles cafe owners have sawed two inches off chair legs. Off the chair legs, understand.

* * *

THUH SCOUNDREL.

Ping pilfers Pete's position, alliterative line we're forced to carry this morning, for he did just that. In fact, bouncing Mr. Bodie, Spudders' most colorful athlete, just about hooked every position on the inner works yesterday during infield practice, much to the joy and amusement of the six or seven hundred railbirds on hand to see Skipper Bud's adenines perform.

* * *

The rotund gentleman from the west was not outfielded with playing the port garden during a six-frames practice scrimmage between Bud's Yans and the regulars, but pranced in from the outer territory, and passed from position to position, shooing each cushion custodian from his regular job.

* * *

WORTH THE PRICE.

Ping-Pang-Pung wound up by sending Walt Golvin to the showers and taking possession of the initial station. There on the first base with only a fielder's glove, he razzed the boys into flipping the agate across the diamond with all kinds of steam. His antics made the workout worth far more than the price of admission, that is, if there had been any admission charge, which there wasn't.

* * *

Couldn't Burn Him Out.

One infielder, it seems, strongarmed the pill to Ping time and again, apparently taking great pains to see if he couldn't put the redoubtable gardner to rout. A thin outfielder's glove with a hole in it isn't much protection, you know.

* * *

After it was all over, discussing the whip of that particular player, Bodie sadly bemoaned the fact that he hadn't thought of throwing down the leather and catching 'em bare-handed just to show the infielder that he didn't have the chunking ability to burn out our Ping under any conditions. "Gosh, don't you know if I'd a done that it'd a killed that guy's soul?" laughed the outfielder.

* * *

Ping is figuring on having a great year. Feels like a million dollars, he says, and expects to wallop the apple far and often.

* * *

TWO BASES ON FOUR BALLS.

The keynote of the afternoon's entertainment came during the game when on his first appearance at the platter, Ping drew a four-balls donation. He jogged out in the general direction of the right field bleachers, took the turn at first base, then shifted gear to high, and absconded with the keystone sack standing up, all before Bow Wow Barker on the mound realized what was taking place.

* * *

There was a gob of pepper in that practice affair, and the Skipper with his Yans came very near to nosing out the first stringers. As it was, the two clubs battled to a six and a half innings 7 to 7 draw. And you can't make Bud's team believe that the scorekeeper didn't slick 'em out of a run.

* * *

BUD HIS NON-STOPPER.

There were a number of lively knocks poled out, also several scratch safeties. The Skipper set an example by whamming the only four-base clout of the affair, and one single.

* * *

Gallaghan came through for a double and single. Turgeon punched a one-baser. Coelho clipped a three-bagger and a single. Quincy rang the welkin with a resounding triple and a single. Hintel poked a one-baser and a double. Fitzgerald managed a triple. Bodie got a single. Gerber hit a one-baser. Metzler connected for a double and single. Dorman hit a single, as did Williams and Gelbert.

* * *

SISLER IS CAMP.

The fielding sensation was none other than Lefty Lloyd Brown. Lefty Lloyd handled first base for the irregulars in fashion so much like Hal Chase and George Sisler that some of the pang are calling him "Sisler" instead of Brown now.

* * *

Several stinging raps were gathered in by the center and right fielders of the regulars. Had it been anybody else out there other than Fitzgerald and Gallaghan the stands would have been brought to their feet by the plays. As it was the bugs merely sat back, nudged each other, and knowingly remarked: "There goes another out."

* * *

MERELY A MAMMY.

The only way Cal and Fitz can get cheers out of the fans is to do the impossible in fielding, because they've accomplished the nearly impossible so long that it's getting to be a habit. And who's going to get excited over a habit?

Would Save Husband But Dies Beside Him

SANTA ROSA, Calif., March 15.—A tragedy which took two lives and which was marked by the unavailing and desperate attempt of a wife to save her husband from electrocution was enacted late today on a ranch at Glenellen, 20 miles east of here. It was witnessed by two children who saw two men shocked into insensibility in their futile efforts to rescue the aged parents.

The victims were Peter Oehler, 54, and his wife, aged 50.

Oehler had been boring a well on his ranch. In removing a section of drill pipe from the well, it became bent and came into contact with a high voltage wire. Oehler dropped lifeless with his body pinned under the pipe.

The screams of the son and the daughter, aged respectively 20 and 17 years, who had witnessed their father's fate, summoned Mrs. Oehler, J. H. Murray, district fire warden, and T. Meglan, a rancher.

Murray and Meglan attempted to remove the charged pipe from Oehler's body and, unconscious were hurled several feet.

Mrs. Oehler, disregarding the pleas of her children, grasped the pipe in both hands and crumpled beside the body of her husband. She died a short time later at the Sonoma state home where she was removed after Murray and Meglan, upon regaining consciousness, had succeeded in breaking the contact between the fateful section of pipe and the charged wires.

MINISTER'S WIFE BURIED.

Services for Mrs. Julia Henderson Are Held At Oklahoma City.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 15.—Funeral services for Mrs. Julia Henderson Geissler, wife of Arthur H. Giessler, American minister to Guatemala, were held here today. The body was interred in an Oklahoma City cemetery.

Mrs. Geissler died in Guatemala several weeks ago. She was a resident of Oklahoma City until 1922 when her husband was appointed American minister to Guatemala and she accompanied him there.

Mrs. Geissler was the granddaughter of James Pinckney Henderson, first governor of Texas in 1846.

MARTIN DEFENDS CROWN AGAINST PHIL ROSENBERG

Many Bouts Scheduled on This Week's Fistic Program

CENARO MEETS LUCAS

Cannonball Defeated New Yorker By Slade Twice

NEW YORK, March 15.—With Eddie "Cannonball" Martin defending the world's lightweight championship against Charley Phil Rosenberg in New York; Tommy Milligan, middleweight champion of Great Britain fighting Ted "Kid" Lewis in London; Franklin Genaro, American flyweight king, meeting Joe Lucas, a newcomer in the ranks, in Detroit, and several near-champions engaged in battles that will spice up the card, this week's fistic menu is one of the best of the current season.

On three separate and distinct occasions Martin has fought Rosenberg, an all steel of scrap fistic duro. On two of these occasions the new leader of the hurlers has gained fair lime decisions and the other bout resulted in a draw. But they were of short duration, the two victories being six rounds each and the draw going ten. This time the mitts of fistiana are going to engage in a fifteen-round struggle to a referee's decision in New York Friday night—the crown that adorns the Little Italian being at stake.

Two Round Heroes.

There appears to be a feeling among the experts who follow ringdo gaudiestic that Martin is not going to hold first to the title very long. He gained it in a bout with Abe Goldstein, which was rather close, and there were hints after the scrap that Goldstein was not at his best. Moreover, it appeared to put a million crisps in the ring activities of the New York Hebrew. The chief reason for the doubt as to Martin's right to remain on the featherweight throne is caused by recent reverses. The first was at the hands of Carl Tremaine in Cleveland, the second in a bout with Pete Sarmiento in Milwaukee.

It appears that Martin is best at greater distance than ten rounds. What is why he accepted a return match with Tremaine off fifteen and has also offered to meet Sarmiento again if the battle is staged in New York. Tremaine outpointed Martin by a wide margin, while Sarmiento was awarded the verdict of a majority of the sports writers present.

Rosenberg Fears Rivals.

Against Rosenberg, however, Martin has been best at a short distance. Being faster than he is, he won both of the six-round battles and won leading by a safe margin after six sessions of the third contest. By a Garrison finish in the last four the Hebrew evened up the score. Friends of Rosenberg believe in fifteen he will win, thus lifting the crown from the dome of the conqueror of Goldstein. Their first meeting was November 29, 1923, their second, January 28, 1924, and their third exactly three months later.

Tremaine's followers are much concerned over the coming battle because they fear Rosenberg may beat Martin and thus spoil a Martin-Tremaine contest. They believe the champion is unable to outfox the Cleveland veteran.

Milligan May Come to U. S.

Tommy Milligan, who holds the middleweight championship of Great Britain, is a Scotchman. He is comparatively young in the game and he took the crown by beating Ted "Kid" Lewis. The latter demanded a return engagement with the result that they were enmeshed in London. If Milligan wins again he is going to come to this country to try his luck against Americans off his heath, although if he cannot beat Lewis decisively he will stand little chance against such fighters as Harry Greb, Jack Delaney, Paul Berlenbach and Jimmy Slattery.

Joe Lucas, who hails Genaro to Detroit, is a product of the Michigan city and is well thought of there as a contender for the title now held by Pancho Villa, but he is not apt to cause the Italian, who holds the American flyweight laurels, much trouble.

Barbarian Flays Beadles.

Sid Barbarian, a Detroit lightweight who refused to enter the championship elimination tournament in New York, although he is one of the best contenders for the throne vacated by Benny Leonard, will meet Joe Beadles in Baltimore. Beadles was beaten in the tournament that the decision was severely criticized by New York writers who saw the bout, some going so far as to say Beadles was robbed. Thus if Barbarian can beat the Baltimore fighter he will stand a splendid chance of getting a battle with the winner of the tournament.

Tiger Flowers, stylish the Tiger ruler of Madison Square Garden because of his habit of being in a horizontal position shortly after exchanging gloves with Jack Delaney on two occasions, will clash with Lou Bogash in Boston. Flowers has about run his string in the east because of some reverses there and if he loses to Bogash, who is a fourth contender in a ring, he will be seeking a new field for his fistic endeavors.

Young Stribling, the Georgia sensation has gone to California where he will fight Tommy Loughran. The latter is a good lawyer from Philadelphia who will give Stribling all the argument he wants for ten rounds.

Baptists To Hold Baseball Session At 7:30 Tonight

Church Expects to Turn Out Fast Nine This Summer

Athletes aspiring to play with the First Baptist church baseball club in the Sunday school league this summer are to meet in the basement of the church tonight at 7:30.

An urgent request that every player be at the meeting has been sent out by team officials.

The Baptists expect to turn out one of the strongest teams in the Sunday school conference. There is much material to select from. Prospective infielders include Motley, Henderson, Gibbs, Kinzer, Duncan, MacKechney, Ellis, the Powell brothers, Berthelton brothers and Butler. Outfielders: Bennett, Duncan, Dubose, Daniels, and many others who have not as yet given their names.

PLAN BIG TRADE TRIP

San Antonio Men Will Visit Twenty-six Towns En Route.

SAN ANTONIO, Mar. 15.—Twenty-six towns from Beeville to Eagle Lake will be visited by San Antonio business men April 8 and 9 on the first of the 1925 trade trips sponsored by the trade extension department of the chamber of commerce.

The territory to be visited is ably competitive and has not been exploited by trade trippers in recent years, chamber of commerce officials said.

WICHITA FALLS IS GREAT

SOMETHING THE CROWD CAN'T RESIST.

Those of you who know your Dickens probably will recognize this observation:

"To surround everything, however monstrous or ridiculous, with an air of mystery, is to invest it with a secret charm and power of attraction which to the crowd is irresistible.

"False priests, false prophets, false doctors, false patriots, false prodigies of every kind, veiling their proceedings in mystery, have been, perhaps, more indebted to that resource for gaining and keeping for a time the upper hand of truth and common sense, than to any half dozen items in the whole catalogue of imposture.

"Curiosity is, and has been from the creation of the world, a master passion.

"To awaken it, to gratify it by slight degrees, and yet leave something always in suspense, is to establish the surest hold that can be had, in wrong, on the unthinking portion of mankind."

Here, in a few sentences in "Barnaby Rudge," Dickens has given us the secret of the popularity of so many present day fetishes.

Read Dickens and know humans. His works embrace every phase of humanity. He views life from all angles, with humor, satire, pathos and tragedy.

It was typical of Dickens to write (in the preface to "Oliver Twist"):

"I have yet to learn that a lesson of the purest good may not be drawn from the vilest evil. . . . .

"No man's imagination can overstep the reality."

Here is a point our present day good gentlemen, in their zeal to purify literature, the movies, everything, would overlook.

Dickens had no respect for moral humbugdom. His description of Mr. Pecksniff, as he appears in the pages of "Martin Chuzzlewit," is a familiar portrait of a large section of society in our own times:

"Mr. Pecksniff was a moral man. . . . Perhaps there never was a more moral man than Mr. Pecksniff, especially in his conversation and correspondence. It was once said of him by a homely admirer, that he had a fortunate' purse of good sentiments in his inside. In this particular he was like the girl in the fairy tale, except that, if they were not actual diamonds which fell from his lips, they were the brightest paste, and shone prodigiously.

"He was a most exemplary man,—fuller of virtuous precept than a copy book. Some people likened him to a direction post, which is always telling the way to a place, and never goes there; but these were his enemies, the shadows cast by his brightness: that was all.

"His very throat was moral. You saw a good deal of it. You looked over a very low fence of white cravat (whereof no man had ever beheld the tie, for he fastened it behind), and there in lay, in a valley between two jutting heights of collar, linen and whiskerino before you. It seemed to say, on the part of Mr. Pecksniff, 'There is no deception, ladies and gentlemen; all is peace, a holy calm pervades me.'

"So did his hair, just grizzled with an iron-gray, which was all brushed off his forehead, and stood half upright, or slightly drooped in kindred action with his eye lids. So did his person, which was sleek, though free from corpulency. So did his manner, which was soft and oily. In a word, even his plain black suit, and state of widower, and dangling double eye-glass—all tended to the same purpose, and cried aloud, 'Behold the moral Pecksniff!'

A FLEA AND AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

At the annual meeting of the Westminster bank, Walter Leaf, chairman of that institution, speaking on the re-establishment of the gold standard by Great Britain, made the following statements, combining at once a plea and an acknowledgment:

"It does not follow that because we have arrived at parity we can at once remove the embargo on the export of gold. This is due to expire at the end of 1925 and one may at least confidently hope that it will not be renewed. Indeed, it is not at all improbable that before the end of the year we may see a flow of gold back to Europe, and that the question of export may for the time being be of purely academic interest. But it will be necessary to look forward and assure ourselves that we have the power to keep the gold when it comes to us. There is no doubt that we are at present somewhat dangerously dependent on the current of opinion in the United States, and it is necessary to be assured of their good will in maintaining as well as in establishing the gold standard on this side of the Atlantic."

Great Britain has always experienced more or less difficulty in maintaining the gold standard because she has kept open a world market to which merchants from every part of the globe send their drafts. The proportion of foreign to domestic trade and the excess of imports over exports have kept the gold reserve in Britain at a low ebb. High taxation combined with the after-the-war slump in trade made necessary the surrender of the gold basis. In the struggle to repair her finances and set her economic house in order, Britain needed much more from the world than she could afford to give in return, for exchange on the export of gold. The United States drawing power alone would have been sufficient to deprive her of her stores of the precious metal. But now that this country is sending out gold as well as receiving it, and there is every prospect that the late movement to our shores will reverse itself, Britain can think of returning to the gold standard.

But it is only with the greatest hesitation and the greatest caution that Britain can do this. Should the United States call for gold, or cease their present practice of making tremendous investments abroad, the tide would turn back to us and Britain once more would be stranded. She would have need then for all the protection with which she could surround herself. Since we lead the world in financial matters, it is not so much what Britain or any other country can do, as it is what we will do that determines the course of events. Our disposition, clearly reflected in the conduct of both public and private business, to positively aid in the rehabilitation of European currencies, has had much more to do with returning confidence in gold as a monetary basis than anything accomplished by the individual countries abroad.

If we hold unwaveringly to our present policy, the re-establishment of the gold standard by all leading countries of the world is a foregone conclusion, and will probably be brought about automatically, without the adoption of any method other than that which is presently being pursued. Hence the wisest course for Britain to follow is to base her policy on developments in America. The frank confession of her dependence upon us should be reassuring to those American pessimists who have never ceased to predict a return of the world's financial center to London, leaving New York to decline to its pre-war status.

PROVING THE EXPECTED THING.

In the most complete naval maneuvers ever conducted in the Pacific ocean, the submarine instead of the airplane has come into special prominence. Fragmentary reports received from battleships taking part in the defense test off the Mexican coast have given a glowing description of the work of submarines and have been significantly silent about the effectiveness of airplanes. This of itself does not prove that the airplane has failed. Perhaps the conditions of the maneuver did not permit the plane to demonstrate its usefulness. But its failure to figure conspicuously in the maneuvers does not show that it is not the decisive factor in major naval engagements that some of its advocates have contended.

Although the submarine took precedence over the airplane, it is not to be supposed that the under water craft inherits the extravagant promises of the plane. The submarine seems to have shown up unequally well in the Pacific maneuvers because of the monster type of boat employed and because the attacking fleet was running close in to shore. It is related that the boats of the defending fleet penetrated the lines of the invading one before warning was given, and this, combined with a rear attack of scout cruisers, completed the invading fleet's rout. But the dreadnaughts engaged had no opportunity to display their superior strength. It was an affair for the smaller craft and among these the submarine is naturally supreme in defense, when near land.

THE MIRROR OF MAN.

The large sale of such biographies and autobiographies as those of Walter Hines Page, Edward Bok, Mark Twain, General Gorgas and Samuel Gompers is only more evidence of Carlyle's assertion that man's sociality of nature evinces itself in the unspeakable delight he takes in biography.

It is written, "The proper study of mankind is man," and "Man is perennially interesting to man." Carlyle had these observations in mind when he wrote:

"How inexpressibly comfortable to know our fellow creature; to see into him, understand his goings-forth, decipher the whole heart of his mystery: nay, not only to see into him, but even to see out of him, to view the world altogether as he views it; so that we can theoretically construe him, and could almost practically personate him; and do now thoroughly discern both what manner of man he is, and what manner of thing he has got to work and live on!"

A scientific interest and a poetic one alike inspire us in this matter.

A scientific: because every mortal has a problem of existence set before him, which, were it only the problem of keeping the soul and both together, must be to a certain extent original, unlike any other; and yet, at the same time, so like every other; like our own, therefore; instructive, moreover, since we are also indentured to live.

A poetic interest still more, Carlyle observed: for precisely the same struggle of human free will against material necessity, which every man's life, by the mere circumstance that the man continues alive, will more or less victoriously exhibit—in that which above all else, or rather inclusive of all else, calls the sympathy of mortal hearts into action.

"Looking with the eyes of every new neighbor, he can discern a new world different for each: feeling with the heart of every neighbor, he lives with every neighbor's life, even as with his own.

"Of these millions of living men, each individual is a mirror to us; a mirror both scientific and poetic; or, if you will, both natural and magical—from which one would so gladly draw aside the gauze veil; and, peering therein, discern the image of his own natural face, and the supernatural secrets that prophetically lie under the same!"

TRANSFORMATION.

"How do you who?"

This was the salutation given to me by a dignified, elderly gentleman the other day as he locked arms with me and walked along the street.

People might have thought he was crazy, for he talked in the fruniest fashion. He wanted to know "where I was whoing, and dot I was whoing to goo?" (Where I was going and what I was going to do?)

I satisfied him on this point as we went into a restaurant and had lunch together. He was in town for an engagement at three o'clock and was at my disposal until then.

"People have all forms of vice," he said. "Mine is transformation. Vice is not necessarily wicked; it is what is different.

"All criminals are not bad men. I suppose the Pharisees thought our Savior was a criminal.

"He was doing what a great many men have tried to do since without success. He tried to be different.

"Human law is not an effort to make people do right; it is an effort to make people conform. Those people get along the best who live about as do others.

"Consequently, for those of us who feel our responsibilities enough to live like others, it is a great pleasure now and then to break loose in some mild way and innocuously have a good time."

For my friend was not crazy, but he was a bishop in a nearby diocese, and really quite a solid and esteemed personage in his community.

It must be hard to be a bishop. No man can retain his sanity and stand on a pedestal all the time. He has to break loose some way, either in the privacy of his own chamber or more luridly abroad.

Every man has to discover a way in which to gratify the instinct for play that abides in him.

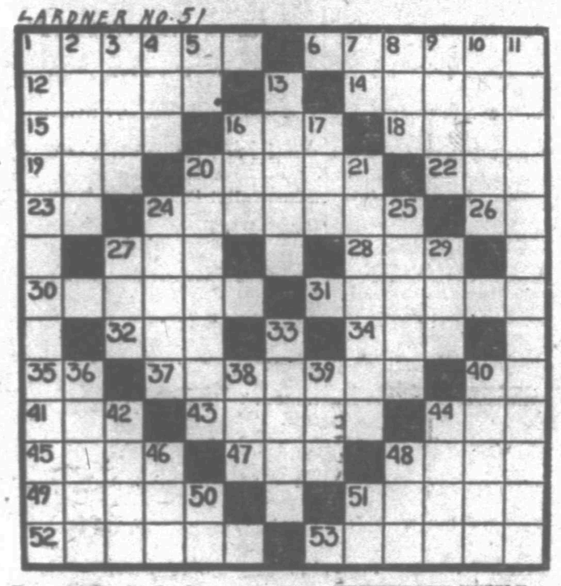

I suppose there is no one of us, no matter how old, who does not want to play once in a while and who does not have some form of silliness in which to indulge. If it is harmless, so much the better. He has tinstrung his bow and can shoot next time with a stronger chord. In other words, he can go back to his sanity and seriousness and be more sane and serious than ever because for a while he has diverted himself.

Speaking Of Smashing Up The Models

Cross-Word Puzzle

GARDNER NO. 51

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The same number may of course begin both a horizontal and a vertical. The definitions for the correct words to fill the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those on the form. Run through the definitions till you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This will furnish several cross clues to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions.

Horizontal

1. Calm.
6. Debated or discussed.
12. Flexible appendages.
14. First name of a popular Christmas character.
15. An invisible particle.
16. To bleat like a sheep.
18. To intone.
19. A part of tennis equipment.
20. Any serious fluid, normal or pathological.
22. A Greek letter.
23. One who has studied medicine (abbr.)
24. Approached game stealthily or under cover.
26. A Japanese measure.
27. Atmosphere.
28. A mythical bird that fed its young on elephants.
30. To pay as due.
31. To smile in a silly affected manner.
32. A beverage.
34. Thrice.
35. I am (contraction).
37. Daubed.
40. A river in Italy.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE Answered.

HOW IT STARTED

Junk

So popular has this term become to describe something regarded as negligible or worthless that we hear it used for anything from an actual "junk shop" where old metals are salvaged to a flawed diamond or an unbecoming hat.

The first use of the term in this sense was with reference to inpalatable food. This was the hard salted beef which on trading vessels of the old days constituted the main item of diet for the crew and which they called "junk."

The direct application was doubtless from the fact that junk was the commonly used nautical term and indeed it is the legitimate word for it for old cordage. The association between hard dried meat and old cordage is of course, easily comprehensible! And it was not many steps to other things that were held in light esteem or altogether despised!

POEMS THAT LIVE

RECESSIONAL.

God of our fathers, known of old,—
Lord of our far-flung battle line,
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine,—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The captains and the kings depart:
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,—
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far-called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire.
Lo! all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not thee in awe,
Such boasting as the Gentiles use
Or lesser breeds without the law,—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding, calls not thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord!

—Rudyard Kipling.

MATTERS OF HEALTH

Folks who sneez in public places—
In the movies—at the races—
Blowing germs in people's faces,
Spread a lot of deadly "flu;"
We like the lad who deftly smothers
Infectious sneezing 'round the mothers,
Wives and sweethearts of his brothers—
That's what sneezers all should do.

Another cross road puzzle is the fellow who says "I can beat it"—but doesn't.

Man is the only animal that indulges in artificial stimulation—and pays the price.

The farmer, thoughtful, rubbed his chin—
"I think," he said, "it is a sin
That Ma's afflicted with these spells."
Then up spoke the farmer's daughter,
"Ma's affliction's caused by water
From these shallow, surface wells.

Though everyone has a sure cure for a common cold, each year ninety per cent of us have from one to three, lasting from two to five days each.

A couple of hours and a few dollars a year spent in a physical examination beats a couple of years and several thousand dollars spent in search of health.

That man who dons his working breeches
And drains his yard by digging ditches
Scratches not the bump that itches
From the skeeter's toxic sting:
The time is ripe for this proceeding,
While winter frost is fast receding,
For undrained ponds wil soon be breeding
Little skeeters in the spring.

What's the cause of indigestion?
You don't know and neither do I,
That brings up the ulcer question,
Or, perhaps it's too much pie.

Railroads employ track walkers to prevent accidents, but the individual directors don't anticipate physical wrecks.

And another good policy to pursue is one that your window can cash for about ten thousand dollars.

FREDERICK BOY IMPROVED

Ebb Flynt, Jr., Reported Slightly Better from Accident Injuries.

FREDERICK, Okla., Mar. 15.—Ebb Flynt, Jr., 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ebb Flynt, Sr., of this place is reported to be slightly improved at his home following injuries sustained Friday afternoon, when he was run down by a car driven by a farmer living near here. The boy's injuries are painful, though not serious.

More Truth Than Poetry

NOT FOR THE OLD PERSON

Back in the time when divorce was regarded
As a little too rough for the theme of a play,
When hectic affection was always discarded
For feat it might keep the dear public away;
In the days that were nicer—albiet far duller—
Before the producers had lifted the lids,
You said of a play that was somewhat off color:
"I'd like to see that but I can't take the kids."

But since Mr. Freud has discovered that passion
And all sorts of urges fill all of our dreams,
And throb in our consciousness, dramatists fashion
The bulk of their work on these tropical themes.
They wander through history, cross over oceans,
In quest of new subjects to set us agape,
They show that the feelings we thought were emotions
Are those of the cave man, the gnu, and the ape.

Love no more is love, but a cosmic attraction,
As old as the dawn of primordial law,
But it sets us to thinking, when put into action
And served—as it's served in the theatre—raw.
We find we possess not regenerate features;
We merely are morons or rascals or rakes,
Uncivilized, wicked and primitive creatures
With the hearts of hyenas, the morals of snakes.

Today, when a drama casts off inhibition,
And shows how abysmally brutish is man,
And how his debased and degraded condition
Is according to nature's unchangeable plan.
When people are sent through the same sort of capers
As the beasts in the field and the fish in the sea,
You sigh, as you read the reviews in the papers;
"I'd like to see that, but the kids won't take me."

NOW DAWES IS THERE

It looks as if it would be necessary to install a seismograph in the chamber of the United States senate.

A NEEDFUL LESSON

Congress ought to learn that when Mr. Coolidge says: "I want economy," the right answer is not "try and get it."

PRETTY TOUGH

If all the law violating night clubs in New York are to be padlocked, where will the bandits spend their money?

Irrigation

OVER PRODUCTION POSSIBLE.

One of the factors which controls the price of any given farm product is the amount produced in a year.

An over production of anything tends to a reduction in the price unless something is done to set aside temporarily the law of supply and demand. Government price setting and other so-called remedies for the farmers' ills are simply temporary expedients for modifying the workings of supply and demand.

It is well for the farmers here to keep these facts in mind in their plantings of different crops. A large acreage of some crops planted here might so glut the market that the price would fall far below the point where the farmer can make a profit.

Let us take onions as an example because they are a crop which seem naturally adapted to our climate and soils. Under normal conditions they are a profitable crop to many growers.

Onion production in the U. S. for a period of years was as follows:

1918—19,329,500 bushels grown on 64,690 acres.

1919—14,202,000 bushels grown on 53,047 acres.

1920—23,435,000 bushels grown on 64,650 acres.

1921—12,652,000 bushels grown on 55,829 acres.

It will be noted that while the acreage planted does not vary a great deal from year to year the yield does. In 1920 the number of bushels was almost twice that of the following year.

It would seem that onions must be subject to a considerable variation in price from season to season.

Now suppose that the farmers on the project decided because onions grew well here that they should plant them heavily. Say that 20,000 acres were planted. It would amount to an increase of the total acreage in the U. S. of about 33 per cent. Unless there was a poor crop in other sections this would certainly result in great over-production and a consequent low price.

No doubt it is just such things as this that Dr. Youngblood had in mind when he advised the farmers here to grow only those crops with a safe market.

POLICE ARREST MANY

Waco Officers roundup burglars, Bootleggers, and Gun-toters.

WACO, March 15.—Burglars, bootleggers and gun-toters were rounded up in the police drag net Saturday, according to the officers charged, during a day of fast work in which federal, state and county officers participated.

The only shooting that was done during the day's events was when two negroes mixed on the public square, one getting a finger clipped off by the bullets which the other let fly across the negro corner of the square near the old court house.

Twenty quarts of Johnny Walker whiskey were claimed by officers in one raid and seventeen gallons of corn whiskey in another. Saddles being sold at a very cheap price brought one arrest and discovery of a quantity of merchandise said to have been stolen in Corsicana. A Waco man was brought into court and fined $50 for contributing to the delinquency of a girl under 18 years of age. A negro held for burglary confessed officers say. Two white men held for burglary were jailed in default of $500 bond.

POLICE CHASE YOUTHS

Finally Overtake Alleged Holdups; Charges Are Filed.

NEW ORLEANS, March 15.—After a thrilling chase down St. Charles Avenue, police overhauled the car in which three youths, alleged to have been the trio that staged a payroll robbery on the river front this morning were taken into custody late this afternoon.

The youths gave their names as Anthony Pellgrini, 19, Chester Toushard, 22, and Leroy Kowen, 19. A woman giving her name as Mrs. Barnes was arrested with the youths, but was later released. She stated that she had been picked up to go riding with the boys.

Specific charges against the youths are "assault and robbery." They have been identified as the trio that escaped with the $8,500 payroll of the Southern Stevedore company, this morning.

League Council Ends Session in Harmony

GENEVA, March 15.—(AP)—Closing the most important meeting in its history with what is generally admitted to be a constructive move of great significance for the future harmony in Europe the league of nations council tonight after expressing a sincere wish to see Germany assisted in its labors by joining the league and thus play in the the organization of peace apart corresponding to Germany's position in the world.

If the council was unable to approve Germany's request for an exceptional place in connection with the obligations imposed by the covenant, it did by voicing the above sentiment, pay her a great and unprecedented honor, for no country has ever been bid to take a seat in the league and a place around the council table. Everybody agrees that Germany can have a permanent seat in the council.

Today's action is deemed significant because it represents the first word addressed to Germany by the allies on a basis of perfect equality. Germans here following the council proceedings are openly pleased at the phrasology of the letter which the council has sent to the Belgian government.

Though the document fails to share Berlin's views that because of her enfeebled military condition she is exempt from the sanctions duty fixed by the covenant, the hope was expressed tonight that the conciliatory tone of the note will enable Germany to find a road leading to the league which does not involve sacrifice of either her national pride or what she conceives to be her national interests.

The next act in the international play the desired climax in which is the discovery of a solution to the great problem of security, will be presented at Paris, for thither many statesmen are bound tomorrow to confer with Premier Herriot on the problem of a pact of guarantees.

South Plains Road Promises Turkey Aid

TURKEY, Mar. 15.—Turkey is at last assured of a railroad. For years this small community in Hall county has had no possible way to advance even though it lay in the middle of one of the richest farming sections in the state, because of its distance from any rail line.

This trouble will be eliminated, however, in the near future, as the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains road was granted a charter in Austin last week for a line through Hall, Briscoe, Floyd, Hale, Swisher, Lubbock and Crosby counties. The new road is certain, according to officials to run through Turkey.

Actual work on this new road has already begun, starting last week when the chief engineer established a survey camp near Childress.

Scouts of Iowa Park to Reorganize Troop

IOWA PARK, March 15.—Boy scouts of this place have been notified to meet at the First Christian church Monday evening for the purpost of reorganizing the scout work.

Rev. James Wright has agreed to act as scout master for the first troop and F. B. Creighton, district scout executive of Wichita Falls will be present at the meeting to assist in the initial work.

At the present time there are 69 scouts in Iowa Park, eight of whom are Merit Badge scouts, but for the past year little has been done in the way of scout activities.

"TEXAS HISTORY IN SONG"

First Epic of State Ever Written to be Presented at San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, March 15.—"The valorous heroes of Texas—the land of my pride," Texas history in song, said to be the first ever written, will be presented in San Antonio soon by the author, A. C. Carrano, formerly of New York.

Carrano said this is the first attempt ever made by anyone to write a condensed history of a country or state in song. He presented it recently before the Texas legislature and resolutions were passed approving and sanctioning it.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitagraph Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog in an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

Baree, son of Kazan, a dog, and Gray Wolf, was nearly three weeks old when first he wandered away from home. His first adventure was a fight with an owl, in which both were badly torn and mauled. Growing hungry, he succeeded finally in catching a crayfish in a creek. Soon he came upon Wakayoo, a huge black bear, which puzzled him but which disappeared at his approach. Wandering through the forest Baree grew hungrier. The dog in him wanted to die but the wolf spark burned stronger.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

In the forests as well as in the great cities fate plays its changing and whimsical hand. If Baree had dragged himself in the timber half an hour later he would have died. He was too far gone now to hunt for crayfish or kill the weakest bird. But he came just as Sekoosew, the ermine—the most bloodthirsty little pirate of all the wild—was making a kill.

As Baree lay under his tree, Sekoosew was creeping on his prey. His game was a big fat spruce-hen standing under a thicket of black currant bushes. The ear of no living thing could have heard Sekoosew's movement. He was like a shadow—a gray dot here, a flash there, now hidden behind a stick no larger than a man's wrist, appearing for a moment, the next instant gone as completely as if he had not existed. Thus he approached from fifty feet to within three feet of the spruce-hen. That was his favorite striking distance. Unerringly he hunched himself at the drowsy partridge's throat, and his needle-like teeth sank through feathers into flesh.

Sekoosew was prepared for what happened then. It always happened when he attacked Napanee, the wood-partridge. Her wings were powerful, and her first instinct when he struck was always that of flight. She rose straight up now with a great thunder of wings. Sekoosew hung tight, his teeth buried deep in her throat, and his tiny, sharp claws clinging to her like hands. Through the air he whizzed with her, biting deeper and deeper, until a hundred yards from where that terrible death thing had fastened to her throat, Napanee crashed again to earth.

"And Nepeese, aiming carefully at Baree, pressed steadily with her brown forefinger upon the trigger."

Where she fell was not ten feet from Baree. For a few moments he looked at the struggling mass of feathers in a daze, not quite comprehending that at last food was almost within his reach. Napanee was dying, but she still struggled convulsively with her wings. Baree rose stealthily, and after a moment in which he gathered all his remaining strength, he made a rush for her. His teeth sank into her breast—and not until then did he see Sekoosew. The ermine had raised his head from the death grip at the partridge's throat, and his savage little red eyes glared a single instant into Baree's. Here was something too big to kill, and with an angry squeak the ermine was gone. Napanee's wings relaxed, and the throb went out of her body. She was dead. Baree hung on until he was sure. Then he began his feast.

Baree ate a third of the partridge, and the remaining two-thirds he cached very carefully at the foot of the big spruce. Then he hurried down to the creek for a drink. The world looked very different to him now. After all, one's capacity for happiness depends largely on how deeply one has suffered. One's hard luck and misfortune form the measuring stick for future good luck and fortune. So it was with Baree. Forty-eight hours ago a full stomach would not have made him a tenth part as happy as he was now. Then his greatest longing was for his mother. Since then a still greater yearning had come into his life—for food. In a way it was fortunate for him that he had almost died of exhaustion and starvation, for his experience had helped to make a man of him—or a wolf-dog, just as you are of a mind to put it. He would miss his mother for a long time. But he would never miss her again as he had missed her yesterday, and the day before.

For another day and night Baree remained in the vicinity of his cache. When the last bone was picked, he moved on. He now entered a country where subsistence was no longer a perilous problem for him. It was a lynx country, and where there are lynx, there are also a great many rabbits. When the rabbits thin out, the lynx emigrate to better hunting grounds. As a snowshoe rabbit breeds all the summer through, Baree found himself in a land of plenty.

And this was straight into the trapping country of Pierrot, the halfbreed.

Pierrot, until two years ago, had believed himself to be one of the most fortunate men in the big wilderness. That was before La Mort Rouge—the Red Death—came. He was half French, and he had married a Cree chief's daughter, and in their log cabin on the Gray Loon they had lived for many years in great prosperity and happiness. Pierrot was proud of three things in this wild world of his: he was proud of Wyola, his royal-blooded wife; he was proud of his daughter; and he was proud of his reputation as a hunter. Until the Red Death came, life was quite complete for him. It was then—two years ago—that the smallpox killed his princess-wife. He still lived in the little cabin on the Gray Loon, but he was a different Pierrot. The heart was sick in him. It would have died, had it not been for Nepeese, his daughter. His wife had named her Nepeese, which means the Willow. Nepeese had grown up like the willow, slender as a reed, with all her mother's wild beauty, and with a little of the French thrown in. She was sixteen, with great, dark, wonderful eyes, and hair so beautiful that an agent from Montreal passing that way had once tried to buy it. It fell in two shining braids, each as big as a man's wrist, almost to her knees. "Non, M'sieu," Pierrot had said, a cold glitter in his eyes as he saw what was in the agent's face. "It is not for barter."

Two days after Baree had entered his trapping ground, Pierrot came in from the forests with a troubled look in his face.

"Something is killing off the young beavers," he explained to Nepeese, speaking to her in French. "It is a lynx or a wolf. Tomorrow—" He shrugged his thin shoulders, and smiled at her.

"We will go on the hunt," laughed Nepeese happily, in her soft Cree.

When Pierrot smiled at her like that, and began with "Tomorrow," it always meant that she might go with him on the adventure he was contemplating.

Still another day later, at the end of the afternoon, Baree crossed the Gray Loon on a bridge of driftwood that had wedged between two trees. This was to the north. Just beyond the driftwood bridge there was a small open, and to the edge of this Baree paused to enjoy the last of the setting sun. As he stood motionless and listening, his tail drooping low, his ears alert, his sharp-pointed nose sniffing the new country to the north, there was not a pair of eyes in the forest that would not have taken him for a young wolf.

From behind a clump of young balsams, a hundred yards away, Pierrot and Nepeese had watched him come over the driftwood bridge. Now was the time, and Pierrot levelled his rifle. It was not until then that Nepeese touched his arm softly. Her breath came a little excitedly as she whispered:

"Nootawa, let me shoot. I can kill him!"

With a low chuckle Pierrot gave the gun to her. He counted the whelp as already dead. For Nepeese, at that distance, could send a bullet into an inch square nine times out of ten. And Nepeese, aiming carefully at Baree, pressed steadily with her brown forefinger upon the trigger.

CHAPTER V

As the Willow pulled the trigger of her rifle, Baree sprang into the air. He felt the force of the bullet before he heard the report of the gun. It lifted him off his feet, and then sent him rolling over and over as if he had been struck a hideous blow with a club. For a flash he did not feel pain. Then it ran through him like a knife of fire, and with that pain the dog in him rose above the wolf, and he let out a wild outcry of puppyish yapping as he rolled and twisted on the ground.

Pierrot and Nepeese had stepped from behind the balsams, the Willow's beautiful eyes shining with pride at the accuracy of her shot. Instantly she caught her breath. Her brown fingers clutched at the barrel of her rifle. The chuckle of satisfaction died on Pierrot's lips as Baree's cries of pain filled the forest.

Burkburnett Has a Population of 5,000

BURKBURNETT, March 15.—With a community survey of this city almost complete Burkburnett is certain to have a 5,000 population.

There have been 965 reports sheets filled out in the survey work, 852 of whom were families totalling 3,146 persons; 113 were single people not members of families in the city. The chamber of commerce reported that over two-thirds of the population had been reported but that no reports of the rest by committees had yet been made.

REVIVAL AT IOWA PARK

Presbyterians Will Continue to Hold Services Throughout Week.

IOWA PARK, March 15.—The congregation of the First Presbyterian church of this place are having a very successful revival which began last week and will continue throughout the present week.

Rev. Moore, pastor of the Vernon Presbyterian church, is conducting the services.

Masked Men Attack Former Walters Man

WALTERS, Okla., March 15.—Found in the streets of Wilson early last week with his body cut by knives and beaten and bruised from kicks and blows, Al Musgrove, former Walters resident, is reported in a serious condition at his home in Wilson, where he has been a garage owner for the past several years.

Only an inherent tale has been told by the sufferer. He had driven out into the country Wednesday evening to where a telephone call had informed him that he would find a stalled car. He had no sooner alighted than eight masked men sprang on him and in a short time had reduced him to unconsciouness.

The next morning he was found delirious in the street where he had managed to drag himself.

Officers stated that they have as yet, found no clue to the identity of any of the assailants. No cause for the attack has been found.

CHICAGO FLU IS BAD.

One Hundred and Forty-eight Cases Are Reported in Single Day.

CHICAGO, Mar. 15.—One hundred and forty-eight cases of flu and pneumonia were reported in the twenty-four hours ending at nine o'clock this morning together with eighteen deaths from the diseases, it was announced by the health department tonight.

Reports that the city is in the grip of an epidemic were forcefully denied by Dr. Herman L. Bundesen, health commissioner.

"I want to impress that to the public especially," he said, "that there is no epidemic, but a serious outbreak of colds, which if neglected, result in pneumonia and possible death.

COLORS WELCOME.

Red, white and purple of the grand lodge and green and gold of the Rebekahs will decorate the streets of Wichita Falls for the 35th annual state convention of Odd Fellows, March 16-17-18.

The local chamber of commerce agreed to decorate the streets with bunting and flags and have been busy for the past several days in making good their promise.

Approximately 20 business blocks have been draped with the many colors of the I. O. O. F.

Appropriation Of House Padded As Senate's Is Cut

Committee Makes Report On Educational Bills Sunday

AUSTIN, March 15.—(AP)—Tentative report of the free conference committee upon the educational appropriation bill, issued today, shows that approximately $580,000 has been added to the total of the house bill that was passed, and approximately $1,500,000 reduced from the senate bill.

This is the last of four major appropriation bills and is the largest. The revised bill carries no appropriations for dormitories, the free conference committee agreeing to take out the proposed funds for such buildings at the North Texas Agricultural college and for the Southwest Texas Teachers college.

There are several appropriations for academic buildings, engine buildings and other equipment.

The total of the report is approximately $14,345,726. This represents an appropriation of $7,640,242 for the first year and $6,705,484 for the second year.

The list of appropriations which are yet subject to revision, include:

Institution	First Year	Second Year
North Tex Teachers..	$438,725	$411,460
West Texas Teachers..	452,564	240,550
Col. Industrial Arts ..	552,710	388,620

Rain a Big Help to Okla. Farmers

FREDERICK, Okla., March 15.—The rain which fell over most the entire state of Oklahoma Friday night will be worth a million dollars to the farmers of the state it was said by several of the leading agriculturalists Saturday. Northern Oklahoma received the greatest amount of precipitation, according to reports received here. Central Oklahoma was visited by enough moisture to season the ground well.

Although the southwestern part of the state received only an average of about .25 inches, it was enough to freshen crops greatly, and will furnish enough moisture to carry them over until such time as a good rain will come.

Saws For The Goose

By VIOLA BROTHERS SHORE

1. Some women take marriage like a tonic—not from any real yearnin', but because they think it will be best for them.
2. There's some'm feminine in all men. That's what makes 'em lovin', understandin' and gentle. And petty.
3. Every human bein' should have the right to speak their mind, but some women abuses the privilege.
4. Some people pride themselves on havin' a sense of humor when all they got is a trick of rememberin' jokes and a knack of tellin' 'em.
5. Advice to brides: Train him early to help with the housework. Remember, new grooms sweep clean.
6. In the land of the black-eyed, the blue-eyed is a queen.
7. It used to be easier to get a perposal out of a man in the old days. By the time he sat one one of them horsehair sofas long enough, the poor guy had to have some outlet for his feelin's.
8. Women likes the raw recruits to fall in love with them. But they fall in love with the trained campaigners.
9. There's one woman that always thinks the bride is doin' well and that's the groom's mother.
10. When a feller serenades you, it might on'y mean that his father just give him a new ukelele.

Saws For The Gander

1. Women don't always love the men that can do things for 'em. But they hate to give 'em up.
2. These days a handful of wise cracks seems to get you further than a bushel of real learnin'.
3. A cheap way to get rid of a guy that wants to borrer a hundred dollars off you is to give him a present of ten.
4. A cat has nine lives. But even a cat's got more sense than to try and lead two of them at once.
5. It don't pay to be so cautious that you keep your mitts on even when you're holdin' hands.
6. A woman might like the feelin' of bein' out with a guy that tips a head waiter ten dollars. But she'll prefer the feelin' of four nice pairs of gloves.
7. Gettin' over injuries ain't necessarily a sign of weakness. It might only indicate a good, healthy liver.
8. A moron is easy to lead. A philosopher is even easier. But it takes an earthquake to budge a guy with a smatterin' of learning.
9. A fortune is like a wife. You ain't gotta worry about 'em until you you got 'em.
10. Anybody might go out on a surf board. But on'y a fool would go to sleep on one.

Didn't Like House Work; He Kills Self

CINCINNATI, March 14.—Despondent because of the routine of household drudgery which he had assumed in caring for his father and two younger brothers since the death of his mother a year ago, Joseph Essex, 14, shot and killed himself at his home near here today.

The boy's father, whose duties as a track walker kept him away from home all day, cooked the meals, washed the clothes of the family and performed daily tasks beyond his strength. All the while he longed to play with the other boys and to go to school and study to be an engineer, friends said.

Today he took his little wagon and made the regular trip to the grocery store for supplies. When he returned to his home he methodically collected old school books, papers which he cherished, and a few toys, piled them in a heap and watched them burn. He explained to his 11-year-old brother that "I'm burning these because I'm leaving and won't need them any more."

A few minutes later his brothers, playing outside, heard a shot. They found Joseph on the floor and called a physician. The revolver with which the youth shot himself through the heart, dying instantly, was found lying near him on the bed.

TO ANALZE TAXES

Revenue Department Will Inspect Income Tax Returns at Once.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—With all income tax returns for 1924 due to be filed by tomorrow night, treasury department officials are making plans to undertake an immediate analysis of the results of the new revenue law with its reduced tax rates. They expect to be able to calculate the funds the law will produce by the end of this week.

Officials contend while the law was under consideration that reduction of rates in the higher tax brackets would encourage business was said today, however, that this phase of the law's effect could be hardly observed fully in the returns now being filed.

PENS A DEMOCRACY TEST

University Professor Says Manner in Which They are Handled Reveals It.

DALLAS, March 15.—The test of democracy is to be found in handling of the country's prison problem, said Prof. Max Handman of the University of Texas, addressing the Dallas Open Forum today. He advocated sale of the Texas penal farms and relocation where "an eye may be kept upon the system." He blamed an indifferent citizenship for the exisiting situation in Texas prisons.

Assistant Takes Life; Cashier Is Arrested

NEW BOSTON, Texas, March 15.—A warrant charging embezzlement was served today on J. E. Thompson, cashier of the State Exchange bank of New Boston, which has been closed since Thursday night, following the suicide of Marshall N. Morris, assistant cashier, and admission by Thompson that there is a shortage in the funds of the bank.

The bank now is in the hands of John Wrightman, state bank examiner who will conduct a thorough investigation of its affairs.

Thompson was in custody when the warrant was served having surrendered voluntarily soon after the death of Morris, and having declined to accept release under bond, although many persons offered to go on his bond. He will be given permission to attend the Morris funeral tomorrow.

New Candy Firm to Open in City

The Collins Candy company, Wichita Falls' newest wholesale concern, opens for business this morning. The company, whose storage house is located in the rear of the Allison Drug store on Indiana avenue, will carry a full line of the toothsome sweets, and will enter to the retailers of Wichita Falls and its trade territory.

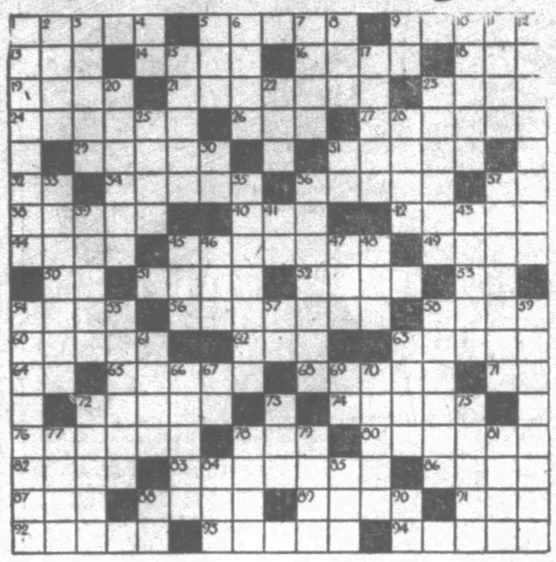

The company is headed by J. C. Collins, for the past several years one of the leading salesmen of the city. Mr. Collins has for the past four years had charge of this territory for the J. A. Folger Coffee company, and prior to this was connected with Carroll, Brough, Robinson and Gates, wholesale grocers.

Fall To Testify For "Short Time" In Teapot Trial

Former Secretary Expected To Use Constitutional Rights

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Mar. 15.—The first intimation as to whether Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior will or will not testify for the government in the Teapot Dome suit here was made today by Mr. Fall's personal attorney, Henry A. Wise.

Asked by newspapermen if Mr. Fall would have any statement to make when he arrives here late tonight, from Denver, Mr. Wise declared nothing would be forthcoming until they had conferred.

"Will the government have Mr. Fall on the stand for any length of time, or will his examination be brief," Mr. Wise was asked.

"The government will have him on the stand, but not for long," was the attorney's reply.

This was taken by Mr. Wise's hearers to mean the former secretary might stand on his constitutional right and refuse to testify on the ground that he might incriminate himself. Mr. Fall now is under indictment in Washington in connection with his explanation of the Teapot Dome lease to Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth oil company.

Frederick Schools to Receive Help

FREDERICK, Okla., March 15.—Frederick school will get assistance from the $500,000 special fund, recently appropriated by the state legislature for the aid of the weak schools of Oklahoma, it was learned yesterday from the state board of education.

It has been learned that the bill as finally passed and enacted into a law provides that no school district shall share in the disbursement of the money whose estimates provide for an expenditure of more than $1,300 per teacher. The Frederick estimate provides for over $1,400 per teacher.

Grandfield and Tipton, other Tillman county schools who applied for the state funds will also fail to share in the disbursement.

Consolidated No. 2 will receive $738, Consolidated No. 9 will get $887 and district 158 will get $217.

Three applications of other schools in the county have been returned and will be acted upon by the state board of education after they have been corrected and returned.

"Don't Have To Understand All We See," He Says

C. I. Francis Speaks At Kay Bible Class Sunday

"You don't have to understand everything you see and hear in the world today," C. I. Francis declared Sunday morning in an address to the Kay Bible class on some of the miracles that science is performing and also some that were performed by Biblical characters. The local attorney spoke in the place of Judge John C. Kay, the regular teacher, who was unable to attend.

Mr. Francis' lecture was heard by 355 and was as follows:

I feel rather like apologizing in undertaking to stand in the place which is occupied by the distinguished teacher of this class each Sunday morning. If some man of you wants to assure himself of a fair return in his old age and a present spiritual blessing, I believe that if you would take a little time and collect some of these talks which you are privileged to hear each Sunday morning in the form of lectures by Judge Kay, would bind those into a book, it would guarantee you both of those things. I wish he were here this morning to discuss this lesson, because of the fact that it is one of the great outstanding corner stones of the Christian religion.

Can't be a Christian

A man whose faith doesn't arise to an acceptance of the things which are here written about by St. John, things which St. John actually saw, can't classify himself as a Christian.

I was interested in reading some time ago the comment of a modern skeptic who said that in this age of reason no man can accept the doctrine of the resurrection of Christ, because it is illogical and incomprehensible to the reason of man. That is a strange doctrine to me. That is an awfully strange doctrine in a world in which every activity of any importance calls for more faith from its adherents than the Christian religion demands of its followers. Why, even in business, the smallest details must be founded and rock-bottomed upon faith. Ninety per cent of our bank deposits are in checks, the faith of man in his fellowmen. Seventy per cent of our wholesale business is transacted by giving checks and fifty per cent of our retail business is transacted by means of checks. If we can have faith even in the small things of life, is it illogical to have faith in the bigger things of life? Why, certainly, if we have faith in those things material, we ought not to censure religion, which deals with those things spiritual and which requires the exercise of faith by its adherents.

Isn't it a strange thing to you, if you believe in a great spirit ruling the destinies of this earth, if you believe in a great Creator as the beginner of all things, is it a strange thing that that great spirit should seek to reveal itself to man, the object of its creation? Why, it would be a stranger thing to me if there were some great spirit, as the Creator of all things, who would not, in the course of the progress of the world, seek to reveal Himself in any manner or way to the highest creatures of creation, which is man.

My friends, do not say you will not believe that which you do not understand, for, if you do, you will prove yourself a liar in every day of your actual existence.

An Illustration.

I take an acorn in my hand. A tiny acorn. And, the acorn says to me: "Bye and bye, birds will come and build their nests in me. Bye and bye, I will furnish shade for the cattle that graze on the hot prairies. Bye and bye, I will be fuel for the fire at the hearth of some peasant or some king. Bye and bye I will be a home shelter from the wind and the storm. Bye and bye, I will be the bulwark of some ship, the strength against the waves that rise against the boat on some far ocean voyage." And I say to the acorn: "Will you do all these things?" And, the acorn says: "God and I." Don't tell me that you believe in only these things which you can comprehend. Man cannot comprehend all the mysteries of God—either in nature or in science.

Take for instance the radioscope. A small, tiny thing, scarcely an inch in length, scarcely one-half inch in width At one end of it is a magnifying glass, at the other end, is a piece of yellow paper upon which there are some small microscopic particles, called sulphide of zinc. In front of that background, there is a little pointer, like the small second-hand of an ordinary sized watch.

I take that little instrument in the daylight, look down into it and see nothing. I take it into a darkened room, look through the magnifying glass, and I see on the end of that little pointer a shower of sparks. Will those sparks, which are radiating forth into space like tiny raindrops, will those sparks cease going in an hour, in a day, in a year, in a thousand years, or in ten thousand years? No. Radium—a tiny spark, not to be seen by the naked eye, but, under the magnifying glass, throwing forth sparks in waves of light, scientists say will take thirty years to exhaust. These tiny particles of light fly at the rate of two hundred thousand miles a second. As you look at these little sparks, they go through your head as a beautiful bird would fly through the forest trees, its wings touching nothing.

Tell me that you believe, Mr. Scientist, only those things which you can understand, I will tell you that you believe as a fool. Why, mankind, with all boasted power, mankind with all his ingenuity, mankind that has built this civilization to where it is, stands back and wants to proudly boast that he lives in the age of reason, can't take the tiniest particle of glass and take the most powerful engines of science and destroy it. He can only alter its form. The tree that springs from that acorn and stands there, a giant, for a number of years, is only made of a little air, a little sunlight, a little water and a few mineral substances from the bosom of the earth. And, if you should burn it, and caught all the waste of that tree, all the gasses that would escape in the air, you would have just as much substance as you had to begin with, or had in any part of the process of the growth of that tree. There is not a thing here in earth that man can destroy, but man can only alter its form. Ah, he can take the oil and change it into gas. He can take the gas and change it into power. He can take the power and change it in to many other intricate things which we have in our modern civilization, but, not a hair of his head can man destroy. Not a thing in all this great universe which God has created, can man obliterate. He can only change its form.

Do you believe, then, that if there is no death for material things of this world, that that which is higher than dirt, or wood, or material substances, the soul of man, is born to die? Not at all.

A Fundamental Fact.

Here in today's lesson, St. John tells us of a great fundamental fact of Christianity, that that God which created this world, made all that is in it, sought to reveal himself to the highest object of His creation, which is a natural thing to do, in the person of His son, Jesus of Nazareth. That Jesus of Nazareth lived for a season, taught for a year in obscurity, as most men do in their work; taught for a year in a season of popularity, as most men do in their work; taught for a year in that season of opposition, as most all great men must do in their work, and then die.

On the third day, he arose again from the dead; and, among those who were there to verify that fact, was the man who wrote of today's lesson, the apostle St. John. And, my friends, when Christ had risen from the dead, and it was verified by those who visited the tomb that he was no longer there, to whom was He first revealed? To Peter. To Peter, that man most loved of all His apostles? No. To John, that man whose broad sympathy with the purposes of Christ made him close to the heart of Jesus? No. Mary was walking out into the garden, near the tomb in which Christ had been buried. She was weeping. She saw coming through the trees one whom she did not recognize, thinking that apparently this man was the gardener. And, she didn't recognize the Master until He spoke, saying: "Mary." She recognized Him through the spoken word. That is the first time Jesus made Himself known, according to John, after the resurrection. According to Luke, and I will digress from the account of the resurrection, as given by John. According to Luke, there were two men making their way from Jerusalem down to Emmanus, a small village a few miles away—disciples, probably — when Jesus appeared to them. He walked with them along the highway, discussed with them the recent events, including the crucifixion of Christ. His burial, expounded to them the scriptures, for hours, along the wayside. They did not recognize Him until He had gone down with them to eat, and break bread to feed them, and they recognized their Master.

My friends, there is a machine. Science calls it the X-ray machine. You have read accounts about it recently. Not through the direct light generated through that machine, is man enabled to utilize its vast powers but through the indirect rays. So it is with Christianity. The power which Christianity has, its force and effect, its possibilities to change the world cannot depend on the preaching of any particular doctrine, but it depends upon its practical effect, upon how you and I reflect in our lives the spirit of those principles proclaimed by the Nazarene. The reflected rays in our lives are the most important things.

The great value of Christianity is not its direct rays, but those rays which come from you in breaking bread with your fellowmen, those rays which come from you by the spoken word, bringing to others a knowledge of the savior. those indirect rays which are reflected from you as a follower of Jesus of Nazareth.

Don't Scoff at Faith.

My friends, don't ever let any man, in your presence, scoff at faith. It is a fundamental in Christianity. It is used in all the sciences, art and literature. If we step over into the realm of religion, a man is a fool who denies Christianity the right to call from its adherents for some faith. This resurrection is tested as fully and as certainly as was Napoleon's defeat at the battle of Waterloo, by those who saw it—some 400, 500 or 600 who saw the risen Christ. It is attested in the work which has resulted in this world by the efforts of those who believe in the risen Christ. You don't have to understand everything. You don't understand everything you see in the world today. Neither do I. Do not expect to understand everything in religion. Judge it by its results.

Christ made a wonderful statement one time, when He said: "Come unto me as little children." What did He mean? Just this:

One time there was a mother sleeping beside her little child, who rested in a cradle close to the bed. About three o'clock in the morning the little child awoke, started crying for mother. "I am afraid. It is so dark." And mother reached her hand over to the cradle, placing it on this baby, saying: "Go back to sleep, my child, it will soon be light. After a while, the light will come." And the little child turned over and went to sleep, confident in the mere word of his mother, that the light would come after a while.

That is true with us. We may not understand everything now, but, after awhile there will be light.

Financial

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Trade irregularities continued to spot the general business picture last week but failed to undermine the wholesome position of industry. With the approach of spring, increased seasonal buying was reported in many lines of trade with an attendant stiffening of prices.

Signs of new life were notably manifest in the steel industry. Coincident with the February increase of nearly 250,000 tons in unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, which far surpassed expectation a broader demand for rail and structural steel was reported and expanded automobile productions promised further buying from this quarter. The weekly trade reviews explained that under-surface developments gave signs of price stability at prevailing levels.

Despite the general uneasiness over the financial difficulties of the St. Paul railway, which is faced with heavy bond maturities in June, the railroad field supplied several favorable developments. Foremost of these was the transfer of control of the Gould's Cotton Belt railway to Rock Island interests, an indication of progress in the involuntary consolidation of southwestern carriers. Generous cash and stock payments were declared by the Western Pacific as a sequel to settlement of the Denver & Rio Grande litigation. Further encouragement was derived from the January earnings report of the class one railroads, showing net income more than three per cent greater than a year ago.

Some uneasiness was caused by the convulsive break in wheat prices, which dispelled visions that the $2 a bushel level could be maintained.

Conditions in the oil industry showed little change. A slight increase in crude output was reported and price readjustments in both directions were made by several companies.

The general progress of trade found reflection in the record of the country's bank clearings, which continued to show an increase over the preceding week as well as the corresponding period last year.

Early Fight On Hoppers May Be Asked In County

Grasshopper Invasion to Be Met With Prompt Repulsion

Belief that many sections of Texas will be visited again this summer by the grasshopper infestation that caused serious damage in 1924 has been expressed by T. O. Walton, director of the Co-operative Extension department of Texas A. & M. college. In a letter received here by County Farm Agent Guy R. Jones, Mr. Walton has outlined his ideas on the hopper plague and, incidentally, has justified the opinion expressed several weeks ago by Mr. Jones.

Expect Them in April.

First traces of the destructive pests, Mr. Walton says, can be expected about the middle of April when the "differential" and "jumbo" species begin to hatch. Some hoppers have already hatched but these, entomologists assert, are of a more or less harmless variety that need cause no undue alarm at present.

In Wichita county last year the hopper horde was one of immense proportions and one which caused no end of trouble before it was subdued by incessent war with poison bran mash. The presence of the hoppers then, it is said, practically assured that they will be back again this summer. Whether or not the infestation will be as severe as formerly remains to be seen.

Need Early Start.

It has been suggested that an early start be made here this spring toward poisoning the pests before they attain full growth. This can be done by the same poison mash method which has proven very effective when properly applied. Mr. Jones believes that application of the mash in the middle or latter part of April may be the means of saving much of the expense, trouble and loss that will follow later in the summer.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, March 15.—Although the general trend of cotton prices during the past week has been reactionary and there were at times heavy liquidation of accumulated long interest, that liquidation considering its volume has been accomplished with a surprisingly small net decline in prices. Although it is true that the low point for May contracts reached on Friday, 25.32, represented a decline of 9 points compared with the high point of recent advance reached on Monday when May reached 26.32, the market finally closed on Saturday but 17 points below the closing level of the preceding Saturday.

The midweek liquidation was due partly to fear that the drouth in the southwest was about to be broken as indications and government forecasts warranted the hope that there would be rain. Another reason assigned was the apparent falling off in the spot demand, following the completion of the filling of February commitments and still a third reason was the belief of traders that the technical position of the market had become impaired and that a reaction was due to correct the situation. Whatever the actual cause it became apparent on Saturday that the heavy liquidation of the two previous days had actually corrected the technical position by eliminating the weak long interest and that fact materially helped the rally which took place in the short session at the week's close although the large domestic mill consumption of 550,132 bales shown by the census bureau, and the failure of the predicted rains to materialize in the west were undoubtedly strong contributing influences.

Not only did the predicted rains fail to materialize in Texas and elsewhere in the west but there also developed a decided cold wave accompanied by freezing weather which will not only further postpone the breaking of the western drouth but may do damage to cotton already planted in south Texas. Exports were again liberal during the past week, totaling 206,549 bales and the total exported for the season to date namely 8,434,000 makes it reasonably certain that the final exports for the season will be close to 8,000,000.

Big Well Extends So. Liberty Field

BEAUMONT, March 15. — The South Lierty Oil field was extended a half mile today when the Gulf Production company brought in its Van DeVenter No. 1, at about 3,600 feet. Late tonight the well was flowing at the rate of four thousand barrels of pipe line oil of 22 gravity daily. Earlier in the day the Humble company brought in its number 1, Sallie Chambers at 3,630 feet. This well is flowing 1,800 barrels of pipe line oil daily. These two wells bring the total production of the South Liberty field to about 11,000 barrels daily. The discovery well was brought in on Jan. 1. About 30 more wells are in the course of drilling.

Camp Fire Girls Give Fireplace To City Sunday

Is Presented by Goodner and Accepted By Shepherd

Wichita Falls yesterday acquired a new and attractive community fireplace when the Camp Fire Girls of the city formally presented such a utility to the municipality. It was accepted on behalf of the city by Mayor R. E. Shepherd following the presentation address by E. S. Goodner, chairman of the Camp Fire council.

The ceremonies, held in the picnic grounds of Scotland park where the big chimney has been built, were elaborate and impressive for the large crowd that turned out. In addition to the presentation the occasion marked the close of the grand council meeting and brought awards to a number who have attained proficiency in various branche sof Camp Fire work.

Artistic Addition

As yet incomplete, the fireplace even now is an artistic addition to the park equipment. It has been built of brick furnished by the Texhoma Oil and Refining company; transportation was provided by E. C. Thurber of Iowa Park, and the work was done gratis by members of Local No. 4, brick masons union. When finished it will be a large stucco affair, properly adorned.

Before the ceremonies, a blaze was lighted on the hearth and invocation pronounced by Rev. Milo Atkinson, pastor of the First Christian church. The Camp Fire candle lighting ceremony in which the candles of work, health and love were lighted was performed by Florine Angell, Ruth Sloan and Cliftine Butler. Tiny red tapers were brought to the three candles by Pauline Coombs and Anna Clark.

Awards Made

Awards of certificates of graduation in the training course just completed were made to Misses Alma Richardson, Edith Crump, Viola Chewning, Froline Angell, Cliftine Butler, Jewel Berry, Corrine Elrod, Ruby Leverage, Vallie Fern Lowry, Florence Redwine, Pauline Coombs, Ruth Sloan, Mesdames Glenn Stockton, J. F. Hyland and Elry Lynn. Awards were also made to the following who took advanced work: Mrs. A. W. Ayers, Mrs. Anna Barnhill, Mrs. M. E. Ritican, Mrs. S. H. Walton, Miss Mary McIlharen, Theresa Kauffman, Norma Rawlins, Dorothy Rowlins and Nell Smith.

A rack of wood gathere was conferred on the following: Marjorie Vincent, Maxine Ferguson, Agnes Mae Turner, Kathleen Colligan and Mary MacGoodner. Fire maker's rank was conferred on Mrs. M. E. Ratican, and torch bearer on Mesdames Anna Barnhill, A. W. Ayers and S. H. Walton and Misses Viola Chewning, Nell Smith, Edith Crump and Pauline Coombs.

The candle extinguishing ceremony was performed by Alma Richardson, Mrs. E. Lynn and Mrs. J. F. Hyland.

Goree Fire Loss Is Estimated $15,000

GOREE, Texas, March 15.—Fire that broke out in the warehouse of Johnson & Heard hardware company here threatened to wipe out two blocks of business houses until the arrival of detachments of the Munday and Seymour fire departments. The work of a bucket brigade kept the situation in hand until the arrival of the fire truck from Seymour. The loss is estimated at $15,000.

Planes Will Figure in Hawaiian Battle

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Mar. 15.—(AP) — Great bombing airplanes manned by five men, but capable of carrying fifteen, speedy fighting planes, scout planes, torpedo planes and observation planes will be in action during the grand army-navy maneuvers at the Hawaiian Islands April 25 to May 1. It will be one of the most comprehensive yet held on the utility in maneuvers of the air services of both the army and navy. There will be some 80 odd airplanes of the naval sea forces and 15 airplanes of the naval forces stationed at Hawaii. In addition there will be a considerable number of army planes.
