Yet There's Hope —

Agents Within U.S. Have Helped Reds, Speaker Tells C-C

"Fifteen years ago, the United States was at the peak of its power and prestige in the world. We alone possessed the ultimate weapon and communism was an alien philosophy to all but 150 million people. Today, the Communists control one billion people and another half-billion, who call themselves 'neutral,' tend to the position of the Communists," Dr. Robert Morris, president of the University of Dallas, told 175 people at yesterday's monthly Chamber of Commerce membership meeting.

Dr. Morris went on: "Three years ago, there was no particular threat in Africa. This great continent was oriented to the West but today, the Communists have a strong position and are getting stronger with our help through such actions as the United Nations is taking now in Katanga against the pro-western regime of Tshombe."

Dr. Morris, who was for several years chief counsel for the U.S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, gave several examples of how successful the Communists have been in influencing decisions in high places by the strategic placing of their agents and ideological accomplices. Time after time, Dr. Morris pointed out, the interlocking web found persons credibly identified as Communists being shifted from one position to another at the policy level. The story of our loss of China to the Communists was cited by the speaker as being engineered by a "conscious, articulate agent of the Communist conspiracy."

Harry Dexter White, Owen Lattimore, Alger Hiss and others were cited as those who held high positions within the government whose actions assisted the conspiracy.

Dr. Morris emphasized that our posture of retreat in the face of Communist expansionism wasn't something that we could blame on outside forces for elements within, were and are essentially responsible. Fidel Castro was cited as an example of a man who was catapulted into power with the active assistance of our State Department.

The international agencies, and the United Nations in particular, have become a prime area of activity for Communists and with the ascendant power of small nations oriented to the USSR, Dr. Morris said that the future bodes ill for the United States. Explaining how there is increasing pressure for the United States to abdicate its sovereignty in favor of international bodies, the speaker said that we can see how such bodies are being utilized to help trench the Communist position through the UN's present action in the Congo.

"We are rushing about the world seeking concord with the Soviets and there is no concord to be

Congo Proposal Called Shocking

Questioned after yesterday's Chamber of Commerce luncheon, Dr. Robert Morris, president of the University of Dallas, said that "political figures are using the death of Dag Hammarskjöld to bolster their particular political bias."

"I was shocked to read that Senator Jacob K. Javits, of New York, has recommended we send American troops to the Congo to fight for the extension of the authority of the central Congolese government which is, as of now, controlled by the Communists," Morris said.

"Gizenga controls the parliament which we restored. He has the minister of interior under his control and has been promised his man as the minister of defense by Adoula. Gizenga himself is the deputy premier and the pro-consul for Katanga is a Gizenga man. Can Senator Javits be serious in advocating that Americans die to extend this Communist hegemony?" Morris concluded.

found," Morris stated. The pursuit of any sort of accommodation with Russia is to live in a fool's paradise for our enemy will be satisfied with nothing but total victory.

Ending his talk with an optimistic note, Morris said that he had no doubt that the people of America have the resources and the basic faith that can defeat communism. Once the American people become aroused to the seriousness of the challenge, Dr. Morris said, the whole trend of Communist victories could be reversed for the power of a free people, dedicated to the ideals of their freedom, is a source of strength before which communism withers.

Club Plans One Day Storm Aid Program

The Pampa Key Club today announced a "crash" program to aid the Texas Coast victims of Hurricane Carla. They issued an urgent appeal to all residents in this area to contribute canned foods, children's clothing and children's shoes.

To speed collection the principals of all Pampa schools have offered to collect these articles in their offices Thursday. Every effort is to be made to have a truck load of food on the way to the Texas City - Galveston area late Thursday night or early Friday morning.

Dan Eddy, regional public relations director of the Salvation Army in Dallas told the Key Club of the urgency of this need by telephone yesterday. Eddy said, "We processed over 200 tons of clothing, bedding, and household goods through Dallas last week - end. Now, our men-tell us that food is the critical need. Food stores are unable to open for business due to the tremendous damage to buildings and stocks, as well as the lack of adequate utilities and safe water."

Wayne Denson, president of Pampa Key Club asked the help of Pampa's schools, and all principals immediately agreed to use their offices as collection points.

Families may send their contributions to any Pampa school by students, or take the articles to the nearest school any time during the day Wednesday or Thursday. Key Club will collect the supplies Thursday, pack and ship them via a Sears Roebuck truck to Dallas, where they will be transferred to other facilities for immediate shipment to the coast.

Wearable children's clothing and shoes are desperately needed. Any type material, color or size will be used.

The Salvation Army in Pampa will continue to receive clothing for all ages, food, household furnishings, and relief articles at the First National Bank Annex as long as there is a need. The Red Cross, City Hall basement, will receive cash or check contributions to be used to provide medicines, housing and other relief. "Operation Canned Goods" will operate just through Thursday, with pickup at local schools set for 4 p.m.

In a regular meeting of the Pampa Key Club Tuesday morning, members of the high school boys' service organization volunteered to aid in the collection.

Denson said, "We urge every Pampa family to send one can or a dozen to school with each of their boys and girls Thursday morning. Key Club members will take the gifts to the Sears store on South Guyler, sort and pack them in hampers brought from Dallas in a Sears truck. That truck will carry our contributions back to Dallas as soon as we are ready. From Dallas the items will be rushed on to the coast by Saturday noon. That is why this is a one-day collection."

Congo Ultimatum Handed UN

Army Units Joined With Air Forces

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Creation of a unified command for the Air Force's troop support units and the Strategic Army Corps underscores the military urgency the administration sees in the Berlin crisis.

The move is a step toward providing the joint training and single command needed for battle-ready air and ground units.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced the new command late Tuesday, and in a separate move he called 73,000 additional reservists, including two National Guard divisions, to active duty Oct. 15.

It brought to more than 150,000 the total of reserve troops now under orders to report for active duty next month. However, some professional military observers saw even more significance in the new air-ground command.

It will be headed by Lt. Gen. Paul D. Adams, now commanding the Third Army at Fort McPherson, Ga. Headquarters will be selected later.

"The new command will provide combat-ready land and tactical air forces which can be rapidly moved when required," McNamara said. "It will be responsible for the training necessary to weld these forces into an efficient land air team."

Joint maneuvers involving both the Army and Air Force have been rare in recent years, but McNamara said the new command would conduct regular training exercises on a joint basis.

The Strategic Army Corps, known as STRAC, includes the Army's two divisions of paratroopers — the 82nd Airborne at Fort Bragg, N.C., and the 101st Airborne at Ft. Campbell, Ky. — and the Fourth Infantry Division at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

The Air Force units are in the Tactical Air Command, known as TAC, with headquarters at Langley Air Force Base, Va.

Auto Workers May Halt GM Walkout Today

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers hoped to end a nine-day strike against General Motors Corp. today.

Both UAW president Walter P. Reuther and GM vice president Louis G. Seaton — meeting in an all-night bargaining session — were confident they could reach a final settlement before 2 p.m. when the union's national GM council was scheduled to meet.

Remaining to be resolved were local contracts at 35 plants and four national issues — union demands covering discrimination, foremen working UAW jobs, more union committeemen and an end to compulsory overtime.

New plant agreements began flooding in late Tuesday night. At last count, 94 plants had settled local contracts, but there still were almost 200,000 workers on strike and many of the plants where settlements were reached had not yet re-opened.

Prospects appeared good that a three-part package covering national economic, national non-economic and local plant issues would be approved this afternoon at the meeting of the 280-man GM council. In this case, all workers presumably would be ordered back to their jobs and any unsettled plant issues "washed out."

The first part of the package settlement was reached Sept. 6 when the UAW and GM agreed on an economic settlement providing for a 19-cent wage increase over three years, plus a host of fringe benefits.

Fateful Berlin Crisis Talks Begin Tomorrow

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States and Russia have agreed to begin their fateful Berlin crisis talks Thursday.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will start the discussions at a private lunch in Rusk's Waldorf Towers suite.

The U.S. secretary bears a firm mandate from President Kennedy and the chief Western Allies to warn Gromyko in grim terms against any further squeeze plays or unilateral acts against the West in Berlin. He also will urge an end to Soviet rocket-rattling in the tense situation.

The purpose of the Rusk-Gromyko talks, from the Western viewpoint, is to determine whether there is any honorable basis for full-scale East-West negotiations with Russia on Germany and Berlin. Rusk hopes to get some clear idea of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's real intentions in Europe.

Rusk and Gromyko also are expected to talk about the chaotic situation at the United Nations caused by the death of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld. Rusk plans to stress in strong terms the absolute refusal of the United States to accept Russia's demand that the post be abolished and executive power be given to a three-nation committee subject to Soviet veto.

Rusk took the actual initiative Tuesday by sending his Soviet affairs advisor, Charles E. Bohlen.

Katanga's Chief Calls For Plans To End Battling

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (UPI) — Katanga President Moise Tshombe gave the United Nations an ultimatum today to come up with new proposals by nightfall to end the fighting in his rebel province of the Congo.

Even as he spoke here after paying tribute at the bier of the late U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, a broadcast by "Radio Free Katanga" said Central Congolese government troops had moved into Katanga to help U.N. forces overthrow Tshombe.

"The United Nations must decide immediately," Tshombe told newsmen as he stood on the steps of the church where Hammarskjöld's body lay in state. "It is the body which has massacred my people. We are waiting now for counter-proposals from New York (U.N. headquarters). But I am returning to Katanga tonight whatever happens."

Tshombe's statement came at the end of the second day of cease fire talks with Mahmoud Khairi of Tunisia, the man who stepped in when Hammarskjöld was killed in a plane crash Sunday night just outside Ndola.

The claim by Radio Free Katanga followed unconfirmed reports that troops of Congolese Deputy Premier Antoine Gizenga had penetrated Katanga from his neighboring Oriental Province stronghold.

The broadcast alleged that troops of the leftist Gizenga went into action "under the orders of an Indian commander" in the Kinzo-Nyunzu area of North Katanga.

The clandestine station also said Katangese troops still had a U.N. detachment of Swedish, Irish and Indian troops encircled at the strategic Kamina base in northern Katanga.

Premier Cyrille Adoula declared in a radio broadcast from Leopoldville Tuesday night that "as from now every citizen has to be prepared to answer the government's appeal to serve in Katanga."

He said the Congo's troops had been placed "in a state of alert."

Travelers reaching here from Elisabethville, capital of Katanga, reported that Katangese attacks on U.N. troops were growing in intensity.

They said morale among the Katangese soldiers, led by white mercenaries, was soaring because

Hurricane Esther Threatens Eastern Coast

HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI)—Hurricane Esther, packing 130 miles an hour winds and generating 33 foot waves, lashed the outer banks of North Carolina early today with gale force winds that were expected to reach hurricane force later in the day.

The fifth tropical storm of the season posed an ominous threat to the Eastern seaboard and sent Red Cross workers scurrying to open scores of shelters to care for up to 100,000 refugees.

Hurricane warnings were up from Hatteras to the Virginia Capes where 75 miles an hour winds were expected to hit late today.

Heavy rain was expected to extend about 40 miles inland and about 200 to 300 miles to the north as Esther churned up the coast. High tides swept in on many low-lying areas and from Whalebone Junction to Kitty Hawk, N.C., waves swept across sand dunes and threatened to isolate motels, stores and cottages.

Forecasters predicted a more northerly turn as Esther moved over the gulfstream.

A northerly turn by Esther Tuesday night apparently spared the North Carolina coast a direct blow although hurricane force winds were predicted for the outer banks.

The center of the storm was expected to pass east of jutting Cape Hatteras on a course paralleling the North Carolina and Virginia coasts.

Waves 20 feet high slammed into the beaches and shoreline on the outer banks. Tides were six feet above normal. Thirty-foot waves were reported at Diamond Shoals Lightship guarding lonely Cape Hatteras.

On the North Carolina coast, tides continued to rise and were expected to reach a peak of eight feet above normal. Flooding occurred in many places on the low-lying Hatteras Highway. Ferry service on the outer banks was suspended.

More than 5,000 persons already have sought shelter in Red Cross stations along the coast from Wilmington, N.C., to Delaware.

Churches, schools, theaters, armories and fire stations were designated as hurricane removal centers.

North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford urged as near total removal of residents of the outer banks as possible, but there were hundreds of hardy bank residents who chose to stay.

Stores and homes were buttoned up and many in low lying areas were sandbagged against possible flooding.

Military and naval installations in the area were on emergency hurricane condition and reported they were battened down.

home. He wanted to go to New Mexico. So he aimed a loaded shotgun at Alton Compton, 40, and forced him to get into a truck and start driving him west.

The trip ended outside of Weatherford, Tex. Compton distracted Ronnie's attention and jammed his fingers behind the trigger so it could not be pulled and wrested the gun away from the boy.

How does Compton feel about his youthful abductor?

"I think he's a nice kid," Compton said.

"I wish somebody would help him. I wouldn't want to see him go to Gatesville (the State School for Boys). Everywhere I asked him a question, he would say 'sir' when he answered."

Tarrant County juvenile authorities held Ronnie in custody today. They said they would study his case while longer before deciding what to do with him.

The only reason he gave for wanting to run away from his home in Arlington, Tex. was because of "too many chores."

His mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. John Stanford, were shocked. They said he only had about 15 minutes of chores a day — cleaning up the kitchen — besides cutting the lawn.

Sweeping Reforms In Post Office Sweepings Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government auditors have called for some sweeping reforms in the sweeping of post offices.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) reported Monday to Congress that an investigation of post office cleaning services turned up some poor record-keeping and several cases of possible overstaffing in the broom and mop brigade.

The Post Office Department spends $51 million a year and employs about 17,000 government and private workers to clean the nation's 38,000 postal installations.

Sheriff Indicted As An Embezzler

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Sheriff Art Wermuth of Jefferson County, Colo., known as "the one-man army of Bataan," was indicted today by a county grand jury for embezzlement, false pretenses, and conversion of public funds to private use.

The stocky, high-tempered sheriff of this Denver suburb had been the object of a months-long investigation by the statutory grand jury, which began its probe in early summer.

Warrants were served on Wermuth at mid-morning by County Coroner Ken Raynie. Bond was set at $1,000 on each of the four counts.

Raw Wheat In Letter Not Such A Bad Idea

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every business has its own jargon which is freely used in shop talk but which is more or less incomprehensible to persons who pursue another line of endeavor.

In the newspaper business, to cite a specific example, we refer to press releases as "handouts."

Possibly in the Salvation Army, handouts are referred to as "press releases." I don't know about that.

At any rate, I have here a press release from a congressman which is literally as well as figuratively a handout and which would be equally acceptable in a city room or a soup kitchen.

Appropriately enough, the name of the congressman who provided the double form of free load is Dole — Rep. Robert Dole of Kansas. Inappropriately, he is a Republican.

To a recent mimeographed letter distributed to his colleagues and to newspapermen, Dole attached a small plastic bag filled with grains of wheat, or to use his words, "superb Kansas hard winter wheat."

He did this by way of expressing his opposition to an Agriculture Department plan to store surplus government-owned wheat in target areas for use as emergency food in event of an enemy attack.

In an earlier dispatch, I called attention to the fact that a number of congressmen had doubts as to whether survivors of a nuclear war could continue to survive if they had to eat raw wheat.

One of them went so far as to suggest that the survivors would do better to stock their fallout shelters with cornpone.

Dole, further expounding the dissenting argument, said there was only one advantage to be gained by moving the surplus wheat to target areas. If missiles did fall, that would solve the surplus problem.

Beyond this dubious benefit, he saw little good in spending $47,200,000 to relocate surplus wheat. Frankly, he said, there is little demand among children, older people, or anyone for that matter for raw unmilled wheat.

Answering the Agriculture Department's contention that wheat can be eaten raw "if the people are hungry," Dole pointed out that "so can shoe leather."

He invited persons on his mailing list to sample the unpurified part of his handout and decide for themselves whether the survival plan would work.

Since my medical insurance is currently paid up, I took a few grains from the sack and chewed them experimentally. The printed part of the handout to the contrary notwithstanding, it wasn't bad at all.

In fact, I hope this starts a new trend in handouts, which will provide food for the stomach as well as the brain. Considering the nutritional value of most handouts, this would be an improvement both ways.

Death Of Hammarskjold Poses Big UN Problem

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the following dispatch, a veteran UPI correspondent who has covered the United Nations for more than a decade analyzes the impact of the death of the secretary general on the future of the world organization.

By BRUCE W. MUNN
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United Nations is a ship sailing through perilous seas without a captain today.

Dag Hammarskjold's untimely death in the jungles of Africa has made the world organization vulnerable to a crisis worse than any it has faced before — whether fostered by the Soviet Union or churned up by turmoil in Africa, Europe, Asia or Latin America.

For eight years and five months the United Nations has depended on the steady guidance of the silent, aristocratic Hammarskjold. Now, no one is at the helm.

And the prospect is that no one will be selected to don the mantle of Hammarskjold's real authority in the near future.

In short, the United Nations faces a grim and uncertain future.

Russia, which boycotted Hammarskjold as secretary general for the past year, shows no sign of backing down from its demand for a three-headed "troika" presidency to administer U.N. affairs.

The United States so far shows no indication it will take the lead and help guide the smaller nations on selection of Hammarskjold's successor.

For the time being, four of Hammarskjold's chief undersecretaries — two Americans, an Indian and a Russian — are taking over the "coordination" of the various U.N. departments. Each apparently will function separately until a new secretary general is chosen.

In the Congo, a Swede — industrialist Sture Linner — and an Irishman — Maj. Gen. Sean McKeown — are in charge of carrying out the political and military mandates voted Hammarskjold by the Security Council and the General Assembly.

A veteran South American diplomat came up with a plan to give the new president of the General Assembly administrative power over U.N. activities until a new secretary general is elected. It gained little momentum.

Russia, despite all its troika talk, is not expected to block selection of a single secretary general to serve out Hammarskjold's term, due to expire April 10, 1963.

Then, according to diplomatic information, the Soviets will go all out on their presidium plan which the Western powers rightly say would hamstring the U.N. out of the world political picture.

There is no succession procedure in the U.N. rules-ridden ritual.

A secretary general must be selected by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly upon recommendation of the Security Council — where Russia, the United States, Britain, France and Nationalist China can veto any nominee.

The real gauge of the world organization's survival chances will come when the council meets to consider a successor to Hammarskjold.

If there is no agreement on a new secretary general, that will paralyze the United Nations even more surely than adoption of Russia's troika system.

There is little doubt the plane crash that killed Hammarskjold played directly into line with Nikita Khrushchev's plan to reduce the United Nations to a meaningless nothing in world affairs.

Diplomats looking to the U. S. delegation for incisive leadership were disappointed.

The United States preferred to watch developments and see what steps other countries want to take. It had adopted no specific policy on recognition of any specific individual as acting secretary general and it had no definite line on what it wanted the General Assembly to do in the constitutional crisis touched off by Hammarskjold's death.

they appeared to have the U.N. forces on the defensive.

Informed sources said, however, that Katangese gendarmes suffered heavy losses — perhaps as many as 110 killed — trying to break an Indian roadblock near Elisabethville Tuesday in one of the bitterest battles yet.

There was no information on Indian losses but the reports said they still held the position after the attack.

It was feared here that Katangese victories would stiffen Tshombe's position on truce talks with Mahmoud Khari of Tunisia, the man who stepped into Dag Hammarskjold's shoes here after the U.N. secretary general was killed in a plane crash Sunday.

Tshombe and Khari talked for five hours Tuesday night and scheduled another meeting for today in this Northern Rhodesian border town.

Travelers reaching here said Belgians in Elisabethville were boasting that they had been teaching Katangese to use bazookas effectively and that there was no evidence of U.N. reinforcements.

More Students Are Needed For College Classes

More than one hundred people from Pampa and surrounding communities met at the Pampa Junior High School Cafeteria, Monday evening with Hueyn Laycock and five faculty members from West Texas State College. The meeting was for the purpose of organizing adult extension classes to be offered by the college.

There was such a variety of requests for different courses that no classes were definitely formed. B. R. Nuckols, county superintendent of schools said.

Additional meetings have been called for later this week and next week. All those interested in a course in accounting, and those interested in beginning Spanish are asked to meet at the Pampa Junior High School Thursday Sept. 21, at 7 p.m. Everyone interested in taking an art course should meet at Pampa Junior High School Tuesday Sept. 26, at 7 p.m. There must be several more people sign up for these courses to complete classes of twenty in each class, or no courses can be offered, Nuckols said. The meetings will probably be the last opportunity for any classes to be offered during this semester in Pampa.

Persons desiring further information regarding the extension program may call Nuckols at MO 5-5281.

Peru's Prexy Visiting U.S.

MIAMI (UPI)—Peruvian President Manuel Prado began an official visit to the United States yesterday with a message of sympathy for Cuban political refugees, more than 1,000 of whom greeted him with chants and shouts of praise.

As Dr. Prado stepped from the chartered four-engine Panagra airplane, among the first to embrace him in welcome were Dr. Carlos Prio Socarras, former president of Cuba, and Dr. Antonio de Varona, prominent exiled Cuban front leader.

After reading a short message in English, Prado put aside his text, raised his arms and his eyes to the airport terrace where 1,000 or more Cubans waved banners and placards in his direction.

"I am on your side," Prado told them in Spanish. "All civilized men must respect your rights for your human causes."

"You can be assured Peru is sympathetic to your struggle for liberty," Prado declared.

Kiwanians Hear Anti-Red Talk

John McCausland, president of the Top O' Texas Kiwanis Club, spoke on the topic, "Communism," at last night's meeting held in Coronado Inn.

McCausland said: "The United States and Canada have been built upon three foundations, faith in God, constitutional form of government and privately owned property. For one hundred and fifty years these two nations have been a beacon of light to freedom loving people. Today they are still the hope of the free nations."

Following the regular meeting a Kiwanis board meeting was held.

Alan King Trial Video Show Not Found Alluring

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI)—It happens every year: A comic scores with good monologues as a guest star on the big-time variety shows and, faster than you can say George Gobel, is packaged.

It was Alan King's turn Monday night to tuck in his head and show us his package. King turned up on CBS-TV with a pilot film for what he and executive producer Bob Banner hope will be the initial impetus for a high-rated, sponsored, long-running comedy series. They should live so long.

The package? King portrays a harried father who lives in the suburbs of New York City with his wife and two small boys. Don't you wonder how come nobody ever thought of that one before?

The plot? Wife decides hubby needs a weekend vacation because she wants to get out of the kitchen. Off they go, with the kids. The resort the wife leads hubby and kiddies to turns out to be a nudist colony. Daunted, all hands move on to a glittering, expensive resort hotel nearby. Kids catch measles. End of vacation. Hubby and wife, at home recalling the fiasco, clinch. End of show.

King used this flabby story by Arnie Rosen and Coleman Jacoby to bounce one-line gags off his family of straight-men. And when he tired of roaring punch lines at the wife and children, King would turn to the viewer to unleash a few more gags about suburbia, kids, milkmen, lady drivers, lawn care and vacations.

While I usually enjoy King's monologues, I can't see that his material improves on lends itself to being acted out with a full cast of characters. George Burns, you will recall, tried this approach on TV and couldn't bring it off. And Burns had more going for him.

Denise Lor portrayed King's wife Monday night and again proved to be a cute comedienne. On balance, let's just say that King's package was tied together too tightly.

Dialing and Filing: Both CBS and NBC aired news specials Monday night that dealt with the death of U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

Boost In Beer Price Disclosed

AUSTIN (UPI)—A new beer price increase indicated today that the 25 cent brew may soon be as extinct as the nickel beer.

Wholesalers of the local brands such as Pearl, Lone Star, Jax and Falstaff have raised their prices 15 cents a case to $3.10 a case to taverns.

Many Austin taverns have upped the over-the-bar price of a bottle of beer from 25 to 30 cents. In taverns where the price of local brands was raised, owners also raised the price of premium brands such as Schlitz, Budweiser and Miller High Life from 30 to 35 cents, although the wholesalers of those brands did not increase the case price.

Wholesalers handling Grand Prize, a Texas beer, and Blatz, Pabst and Busch Bavarian, beer imported from other states, did not raise their case prices from $2.95. However, taverns that raised prices also started charging 20 cents for those brands.

Taverns were divided over the price increase. Many decided to absorb the 15 cent per case increase, while others elected to charge a nickel more and make a $1.05 more profit per case.

Scholz Garten, Austin's largest tavern and a place frequented largely by politicians and University of Texas students, kept its price for local beers at 25 cents.

Women More Serious Gushing Now Passe

By DICK KLEINER

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — After 20 years of talking to women on radio every day, Marian Young Taylor has reached the conclusion that the ladies are more serious today than they ever were.

Mrs. Taylor is known professionally as Martha Deane. Her daily radio program is probably the oldest of its kind in the country; before she became Martha Deane, the name was used by Mary Margaret McBride and Bessie Beatty. Mrs. Taylor has operated it for the longest period, since 1941.

She is well-qualified to report on the changing tastes and interests of her audience, 80 per cent feminine.

"A few weeks ago," she says, "I had an astronomer on one day, and a famous actor the following day. I received 250 letters about the astronomer's appearance and only two about the actor's. And this was an intelligent, articulate actor, too."

"Twenty years ago, I would have gotten the reverse. In those days, the women wrote gushing letters, all about how they envied me my job of meeting all the glamorous actors."

Mrs. Taylor says her mail is only one indication of the seriousness which has infiltrated the feminine mind.

"You can tell it at the hairdresser," she says. "Women under the dryer used to read movie fan magazines. But no more. My hairdresser told me he canceled his subscriptions to fan magazines and now just gets news and business magazines."

For the first three months of her 20-year radio career, Mrs. Taylor held down two jobs. She was hanging onto her post as a reporter for the Newspaper Enterprise Assn. in case the radio work didn't pan out.

It has panned out beautifully. Although there was a slump in 1953-54, when all radio looked as though it might collapse under the weight of TV competition, she survived. Today she can confidently report that fan mail, ratings and income are the highest ever, with the exception of one year.

She is madly in love with her job, which she characterizes as "the best job for a woman." Over the years, she says there has been a minimum of interference from station management and sponsors;

Marian Young Taylor

In fact, she has to call the sponsors to ask them what they want her to say.

In her two decades of interviewing five famous people a week, one person stands out in her memory. That one is James Thurber, "because he changed my life."

Thurber asked to come on the program years ago in return for the many hours of enjoyment he wrote that he had received from Mrs. Taylor and her guests. Since she had been trying to get him on the show through his publishers she quickly accepted his offer.

"I had never known anyone closely who was as handicapped as he is," she says. "His eyes were so bad that he told me he could only tell that the lights were on in the studio, nothing else."

He visited the program many times after that first interview and he and Mrs. Taylor became good friends. It is the personality of the man which, she says, changed her life.

"Despite his near-blindness," she says, "he is so outgoing and much more interested in others than himself. He's always cheerful. Some of that is bound to rub off. Today, if I'm irritated at some minor inconvenience — like why wasn't I invited to the party of where are the beads to go with that dress — I think of Jim Thurber and remember that he can't even tell if the sun is shining."

Sharp Group of First Christian Church met recently with Mrs. Don Elledge, 1020 S. Banks. Mrs. Jim Cunningham gave a devotional on character building and concluded with a poem, "The Bridge Builders."

"The Missionary Nature of the Church" was discussed by Mrs. Ford Herring, who offered some provocative thoughts regarding the work of the missionary. Included in her discussion were the remarks "The missionary is one who crosses any boundary between belief and unbelief. The 'ends of the earth', as spoken of in the Bible, are no longer 'there' but 'here' and 'everywhere.'"

"The missionary," Mrs. Herring said, "is a believer who crosses boundaries of culture, race, geography and belief, penetrating new areas of life with the Christian gospel. The church was meant to be sent to all spheres of life; not only to certain individuals. Every Christian is a missionary. God's mission proceeds on human feet."

During the business meeting, Mrs. Leon Howell, president, announced that the Christian Women's Fellowship is preparing a baby layette each month and all Groups are invited to help. Included in the business meeting was the appointment of a committee to select officers for the coming year and reports were given on calls made to the ill and shut-in.

The CWF benediction dismissed the group. Refreshments were served during the social hour. The next meeting will be in the church with Mrs. Howell as hostess on Oct. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Little Theatre Group Takes First Steps In Getting Workshops, Plays Underway

Homar West was named president of the Little Theatre group following a discussion meeting held Monday evening in the City Commission Room, City Hall.

New officers, elected to serve with him in getting Little Theatre activities underway, are Mrs. Buck Worley, vice president; Mrs. Marie Jones, secretary; and Mrs. J. C. Roberts, treasurer.

An interested group Monday night heard a discussion of former successes of the Little Theatre Group, which included the presentation of "The Male Animal" in 1956, led by W. L. Veale, chairman-pro tem.

Dr. N. J. Ellis, a member of Amarillo Little Theatre, who had a lead role in that group's presentation of "The Girl Friend" last fall, reported on the organizational set-up of ALT. He brought out that three facets go to make up a successful amateur theatrical organization as 1) active membership, which incorporates behind the footlights assistance with staging, scenery, costumes, make-up, etc.; 2) sustaining memberships, which includes those wishing to actively participate in productions in acting roles; 3) and "angels," who make contributions to Little Theatre, but participate no other way.

Dr. Ellis stressed the hard work that must go into any production to give it a "polished" performance that will attract the public to attend.

A second meeting of the group has been set for Monday, Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. in Lovett Memorial Library at which time, the new group of officers will present a revision of the former by-laws.

A workshop session is being planned by Mrs. Jack Miller. Following an election of a board of governors, a director will be named and theater workshops and plays will get underway.

It has been announced by the group that memberships are open to those interested in any phase of theatricals and those people are invited to the Monday evening meeting. Student memberships are also available to junior-high and high school students.

Dear Abby...

Nosey Neighbors Referred To Mother

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My eleven-year-old daughter is very friendly with everyone in the neighborhood, and frequently visits the neighbors. She gets along well with adults, as well as with children, and everyone welcomes her into their homes.

My problem is one nose neighbor who makes it her business to know everybody else's. She asks my daughter questions about who visits us, what we served, what we talked about, and so forth. You know, Abby, 11-year-olds don't always have the best judgment. Therefore this old buttinsky gets a lot of information I would rather she didn't have. Should I call on this busybody and set her straight? Or should I tell my daughter not to go over there any more?

PROJECT DWELLER
DEAR DWELLER: Tell your daughter that it isn't "nice" to tell neighbors what goes on at home. And if this neighbor asks questions that are none of her business, your little girl should avoid her or reply, "Why don't you ask my mother?"

DEAR ABBY: I am a bachelor and I have heard that marriage is a 50-50 proposition. I would like to know if the bride has to match bank books before the marriage, since the husband has to support her for the rest of her life?

POOR FISH
DEAR FISH: She doesn't, and she shouldn't. But a woman contributes more important things than money to marriage. I'd like to see a man have a baby!

DEAR ABBY: I recently lost my precious mother. Although she was ill a long time, when she finally passed on I was shocked and heart-broken. Out of respect to my mother's memory I want to wear

Luncheon Plans Made At Meeting

Plans for the coming year were discussed at a recent meeting of the Friendship Class of Church of God held in the classroom.

Attending the meeting were Mmes. L. R. Brumfield, Arthur Pfeil, Earl Kyle, Wayman McPherson and James Rigsby.

Parents To Learn Children's Activities At Lee PTA's "Back To School Night"

Robert E. Lee Junior High PTA will sponsor a "Back To School Night" on Thursday from 7:15 p.m. until 9 p.m. at the school. An invitation is extended by Mrs. J. T. Cornutt, unit president and Jack Nichols, school principal, for all parents of Lee students to attend.

The "back to school night" is designed to show parents how their child spends his day at school.

The PTA, the faculty, and the student council of Robert E. Lee urge every parent to come to school and follow his child's schedule. Teachers will conduct classes to acquaint parents with their child's studies and activities.

The "back to school" night will enable teachers and parents to become acquainted. A nursery will be provided and films will be shown in the film room in the eighth grade hall.

Coffee, tea and doughnuts will be served in the cafeteria at the end of the "school day" for those who wish and will serve as the Little hands have a way of pushing against the screening to open an outside door. To remind them that the horizontal strip is to be used rather than the actual screening, one young father tacked a six-inch strip of black pegboard across the screen door. On it were painted three tiny hands in different color with an arrow pointing to the latch. A subtle, good-looking solution that really works.

Dear Polly: We are refurbishing our living room and have bought a much-needed sofa bed. This couch is covered with a tweed fabric in cobalt blue, light blue, light green and black threads. Walls are off-white. We are thinking of white lamps and shades, two blue chairs, white rug and drapes with a print on white. We have two small children. Would appreciate any suggestions you have—Mrs. T. L.

Dear Mrs. T. L.: You call my attention to the two small children but your own idea for a white rug and light blue chairs doesn't seem practical. Cobalt blue for the chairs, or a light blue in a leather-like material and a black- and white tweed rug might prove wiser. White curtains with a print in greens, blues and perhaps some amethyst would look smart. Natural wood bases with tailored black parchment shades would be prettier silhouetted against the off-white walls than all-white lamps.

Dear Polly: Please advise what color to paint my large living room. I like pumpkin. New rug is three shades of orange. Tables, TV and so on are blond wood. What color for couch and two chairs? Would like to use white drapes across one wall with odd window. Do they do this? Do they paint?

It's easier to remove door knobs and other hardware before painting than to try to paint the surrounding area without smearing the metal. To avoid filling screw holes with paint, insert wooden match sticks into the holes. Remove the sticks after the paint has dried.
Making the most of what you have saves time and money in the kitchen. Recipes calling for chocolate, for instance, bring out the potato peeler. Use this to shred the chocolate. It's fast, safe and easier to wash than a grater.

Dumas Labeled 'Tough'

Scout Norman Phillips labeled the Dumas Demons as fast and tough and a real good ball club. Pampa's Harvesters journey to Dumas Friday night to tangle with the 1-AAA title favorite at 7:30 p.m. Both teams are winless with Pampa dropping two straight to Ysleta Bel Aire 7-0 and Phillips 3-AAA toughies, Palo Duro 21-16 and Berger 21-0.

"Dumas," said Phillips, "has lots of speed and good size. They hit average 178 on offense and 180 on the defensive unit."

The three whom Phillips referred to were fullback Dale Vick, halfback Ray Casas and quarterback Mike Boxwell, a triple threat to er and all state candidate. John Whiteside holds down the other halfback post.

Dumas will have approximately a 10-15 pound weight advantage over the Harvesters. The Demons hit average 178 on offense and 180 on

Phillips described Carter as the best lineman on the team and one of the best in the area. "He's really tough and he plays both offense and defense," said the Pampa scout.

Dumas runs a balance T offense and does a lot of throwing with Boxwell pitching to Baker. However, the Pampa coaches feel like they can stop Dumas if the Harvesters line can contain the speedy Demons backs and not let them break into the secondary.

Three boys rejoined the Harvesters Tuesday after dropping from the team earlier for various reasons. The return of Quarterback Butch Crossland, halfback Robbie Robison and guard Jimmy Hoyler will definitely strengthen the Harvesters depth problem.

Coach Weldon Trice also was welcomed by the return of junior fullback Jerry Glover and junior center Jackie Nichols, who had been on the injury list with arm injuries.

Sophomore quarterback Ricky Stewart continues to lead the team. Stewart turned in a creditable performance against Phillips.

Pampa Pigeon Club To Hold Race Event

The Top O' Texas Racing Pigeon club will hold its second flight of the 1961 Young-bird season, Saturday, Sept. 23rd with a flight from Fredrick, Okla.

The object of the contestants is to let the pigeons loose in a selected site—this week, Fredrick's—and let them fly home. The race is timed, but the winning time may not win, because the time is considered with the distance flown and the average time determines the victor.

Bill Dycus, a member of the Pampa club, said, "We calculate the rate by the average yards per minute flown."

There are nine members in the Pampa branch of the Racing Pigeon club. They held the first race of the season last Saturday with the birds flying from Eldorado, Okla. to Pampa, an airline distance of approximately 110 miles. The birds return to their own homes.

Two novice flyers in the club swept the top three positions from the older members with near record performances. Delbert Thurman, flying his first season in competition, captured the first position as his bird finished in 2 hours and 28 minutes. Arnel Bryan, also in his initial year of competition, took second and third positions behind Thurman. Bryan's second place winner was clocked

Orioles Hurlers

Shackle Roger

By United Press International

The Babe is still the champ — unless brash young Roger Maris can produce a near-miracle.

That's the situation as the 27-year-old New York Yankee slugger goes into tonight's game with the Baltimore Orioles needing two homers to tie and three to break Ruth's 34-year-old mark of 60 homers in a season.

Maris, who once was 25 games ahead of the record pace set by Ruth in 1927, had only a single, a walk and seven "record-killing" outs in nine trips to the plate Tuesday night. He went hitless in four tries in the first game won by the Orioles, 1-0, and contributed only a single to the Yankees' 3-1 victory in the nightcap.

The second game provided some consolation to Maris and the teammates rooting for him because it enabled the Yankees to clinch a tie for their 11th American League pennant in 13 years and their first under Ralph Houk. The next Detroit loss or New York victory officially wraps it all up.

Steve Barber, a 22-year-old, left-handed fireballer, stopped Maris and the Yankees cold with a four-hitter in the first game. Bud Daley won the second game for the Yankees with the aid of Bill Skowron's homer but Maris couldn't connect against either Hal Brown or Hoyt Wilhelm.

The Tigers managed to stay alive when they beat the Los Angeles Angels, 6-2, in an afternoon game behind the four-hit pitching of Don Mossi, who scored his 15th victory. Bill Bruton drove in two runs and Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito one each for the Tigers while Eddie Yost and Steve Bilko homered for the Angels.

The Cincinnati Reds took a giant stride toward their first National League pennant since 1940 when they beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 10-1, and the Chicago Cubs downed the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers, 7-3. The Reds now lead the Dodgers by five games and have only eight to play.

Jimmy O'Toole pitched a seven-hitter for his 17th victory behind a 15-hit Cincinnati attack that included two homers by Gene Freese and a two-run triple by Vada Pinson. The win was O'Toole's sixth in a row and 11th in his last 13 decisions.

Ernie Banks hit a triple and a homer and Billy Williams, Bob Anderson and Don Zimmer also homered for the Cubs, who dealt

3 Starters Out For Razorbacks

By United Press International

The way Arkansas coach Frank Broyles tells it, the only chance his Razorbacks have of beating Mississippi this Saturday will be to flail the Rebels with their crutches.

"We've got more injuries than I've ever had before an opener," Broyles said. "We have more key injuries. Things are all mixed up. I'm low, low, low."

The Razorback training camp was all gloom Tuesday as Broyles counted his walking wounded. He ticked the injured off on his fingers:

—Billy Moore, fiery alternate first-team quarterback, still out with an injured right knee.

—Darrell Williams, rugged defensive specialist, still limping on a bad left leg.

Broyles said all three are doubtful starters for the war with the Rebels at Jackson, Miss. The game will be on national television starting at 2:30 p.m. CST. Arkansas worked on defense Tuesday to try to find the key to stopping Mississippi's vaunted offense.

At Waco, fullback Ronnie Bull, halfback Tommy Minter and quarterback Bobby Ply clicked with precision in a goal line drill.

Coach John Bridgers worked his Bears on developing a scoring punch from 10 yards out. Baylor plays Atlantic Coast Conference Wake Forest at home Saturday.

Ronnie Goodwin, first string Bruin end, missed practice because of the flu but is expected to be ready for the Deacons.

Texas A&M head football coach Jim Myers doffed his hat to the players on the bench at Tuesday's workout.

"The A&M coaching staff realizes the importance of every one of our squad members," Myers said. "Naturally the starting 11 have to be put on the field. But where would the team be without that second or third string?"

Myers said the news media always publicize the starters the most. "But don't ever take away my second or third teamers," he said.

Southern Methodist whipped through its last heavy drill before Saturday's game with Maryland in the Cotton Bowl. Mike Rice, co-captain and first string fullback, worked out after being sidelined several days with injuries.

Texas coach Darrell Royal learned Tuesday that California quarterback Randy Gold may not play against the Longhorns first-string at Berkeley Saturday because of an injury.

At Houston, officials are expecting a crowd well in excess of 60,000 for the Rice-LSU clash. The Owls ripped through a fast pace drill Tuesday touching all points of the game.

Texas Christian worked on defense but did not scrimmage, preparing for Saturday's encounter with the potent Kansas Jayhawks at Fort Worth.

Texas Tech polished its offense in drills at Lubbock. The Red Raiders play Mississippi State at Jackson, Miss., Saturday night.

THE DAY BABE BELTED NO. 60 — Lou Gehrig, next up, was first to congratulate a beaming Babe Ruth when he established the seasonal major league home run record at 60 by belting a Tom Zachary pitch half way up the right field bleachers at Yankee Stadium, Sept. 30, 1927. The batboy was next to extend his hand. The Washington catcher was Bennie Ttate, the umpire Bill Dineen. Note that players were not yet wearing numbers.

Ted Williams Marries Chicago Model

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) —

Retired Red Sox slugger Ted Williams was married in a secret ceremony Tuesday to a Chicago divorcee and model.

Williams, 43, typically attired in a sports shirt with no tie, and blonde Lee Howard, 38, entered a rear door of the Cambridge District Courthouse, were married in 10 minutes by a justice of the peace, and left by the same rear door.

Justice of the Peace Lawrence F. Viola said he did not know the couple was coming to his office.

"I just happened to be there," he said. "They had all the papers. They were in order. They wanted to get married — so I married them."

"She is a very beautiful girl and he seems like a very nice guy. I have never met the fellow before."

Marriage intentions had been filed Friday, but were not published as is customary.

Williams, who retired from baseball last year, gave his address as Matecumbe, Fla., and his occupation as "public relations" on the marriage certificate. He is engaged in publicizing fishing equipment for Sears Roebuck.

It was the second marriage for Williams, six times American League batting champion, who was divorced in 1955 by Doris Soule. They had one child, Barbara, 13.

Miss Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howard of Riverside, Ill., was divorced in 1948 after three years of marriage to William Charley, a wholesale food merchant. Her two children, Judy, 16, and Michael, 15, live with her parents.

The new Mrs. Williams, who in 1943 appeared in several Hollywood movies, is a free-lance model in Chicago. In 1955 she was voted one of the 12 most beautiful models in the country.

A comprehensive survey taken in 1960 indicated that nearly 5 million people in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona tune in to at least one of the Humble Company's football broadcasts each season.

Below that, the voting dropped off to put Fort Worth Paschal in fifth, Baytown in sixth, Cay in seventh, Abilene in ninth and Ysleta and defending champion Corpus Christi Miller tied for 10th, Dallas Kimball and Amarillo Tascosa dropped out of the top 10 to make room for San Angelo and Ysleta and the return of Abilene.

Just about the same situation prevailed in AAA where Lamar Consolidated edged into second place with 89 points, followed by Carthage with 79. San Benito with 76 and Corsicana with 74. Monahans headed up the second five with 66 points, followed by Angleton with 53, Cleburne with 47, Lamesa with 26 and Nederland with 24.

Sweetwater, Dumas and Breckenridge dropped out of the Top 10 to make room for Angleton, Lamesa and Nederland.

With previously high-rated Corpus Christi Ray being solidly knocked out of the No. 2 spot in AAAA by San Angelo's 15-6 upset, four teams were virtually deadlocked for the runnerup spot behind the all-conquering Coyotes.

San Antonio Jefferson, with victories over Abilene and Austin S.F. Austin, slipped into second place with 97 points, but San Angelo was close behind with 95 points, followed by Galena Park with 92 and Odessa Permian with 91.

... Yankee Slugger Faces Big Task

Roger Maris Aims At Record Tonight

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Roger Maris gets his last "official" crack at Babe Ruth's record to night, and with possible gale-like winds on one side and Ford Frick's edict on the other, he admits "it would take a Houdini to do it."

"I'm no magician, so you can draw your own conclusions," said the dead-weary New York Yankee slugger, who needs two homers to equal Ruth's mark and three to break it tonight in the 154-game deadline imposed by the baseball commissioner.

Complicating Maris' monumental task in the game against the Baltimore Orioles was a forecast by the Weather Bureau of approaching winds of from 20 to 40 miles per hour, possibly increasing to gale-like proportions as Hurricane Esther chews its way along the Atlantic Coast. If the game is rained out, it will be rescheduled as part of a double-header Thursday night.

Maris, who failed to add to his total of 58 homers during Tuesday night's two-night doubleheader with the Orioles, has no desires to get into any hassle with Frick. Yet, without showing any rancor, he indicates he disagrees with him.

"As far as Mr. Frick is concerned I've got one more game to do it in," Maris said. "But as far as I am concerned my body has to go out there for nine more games. He sees it one way, and I see it another."

The way Maris sees it—and the way many others do, too—he feels it will be just as much a record to go out there for nine more games. He sees it one way, and I see it another."

"Certainly, I know that tonight is our 154th game," Maris says each time someone asks him to evaluate his chances of smashing Ruth's record within the time allotted by Frick.

"But if you think I'm gonna worry about it you're dead wrong. The schedule says we play 162 games? Ok, then. That's why I'm going by."

Albany Tops Class A List Of Favorites

By United Press International

Albany and Anaheim, the fast-moving pre-season Class A schoolboy football favorites, appear in little danger of losing their glamor this week, but the division's list of 34 perfect record teams and nine others with tie blemishes is certain to be in for a trimming.

Albany's Lions, who have rolled up 100 points in two outings, hit the road against Class AA Winters, a strong outfit despite the fact it has lost two of three starts to powerful Anson and Brady.

Anahuac also leaves home base to face Hitchcock, a Class A team which has lost one and tied one in two starts.

Actually, only one game on this week's card matches unbeaten Class A teams—Kerens at Hubbard, but another game sends perfect record McLean against unbeaten but tied White Deer in a Panhandle feature and four other games pit unbeaten Class A clubs against AA foes with untarnished records.

In this latter group the two standout contests find George West hosting powerful AA Sinton and Waller entertaining potent Katy-Little Shiner also entertains unbeaten-untied Yoakum in another contest in this category.

Farwell, one of the nine tied teams, plays perfect record Morton of Class AA in the other game involving unbeaten records.

The other undefeated-untied Class A outfits are Stratford, Gruver, Springlake, Kress, Wink, Sonora, Santa Anna, Clyde, Henrietta, Burleson, Honey Grove, Celina, Forney, Emory, Brownsboro, Kerens, Gaston, Judson, San Augustine, Garrison, Thrall, Hull-Daisetta, Warren, Boerne, Pettus, Rio Hondo and Port Isabel.

'A Two-Fold Liberty'

John Winthrop, who was born in 1587 and died March 26, 1649, was the first governor of Massachusetts Bay. In 1645, after he had been accused of seditious libel when he was a magistrate, he was tried and acquitted. After the verdict he made a short, but famous, speech on liberty, defining two kinds—natural and civil, and the nature of the offices of the people's elected representatives.

"Christian History of the Constitution of the United States of America" quotes this famous speech on page 262. It is under the heading of "There is a Two-fold Liberty." This is the way Winthrop explains it:

"There is a twofold liberty, natural (I mean as our nature is now corrupt) and civil or federal. The first is common to man with beasts and other creatures. By this, man stands in relation to man simply, hath liberty to do what he lists; it is a liberty to do evil as well as good. This liberty is incompatible and inconsistent with authority, and cannot endure the least restraint of the most just authority. The exercise and maintaining of this liberty makes men grow more evil, and in time to be worse than brute beasts; omnes sumus licentia deteriores. This is that great enemy of truth and peace, that wild beast, which all the ordinances of God are bent against, to restrain and subdue it.

"The other kind of liberty I call civil or federal; it may also be termed moral, in reference to the covenant between God and man, in the moral law, and the politic covenants and constitutions, amongst men themselves. This liberty is the proper end and object of authority, and cannot subsist without it; and it is a liberty to that only which is good, just and honest. This liberty you are to stand for, with the hazard (not only of your goods, but) of your lives, if need be. Whatsoever crosseth this is not authority, but a distemper thereof. This liberty is maintained and exercised in a way of subjection to authority; it is of the same kind of liberty where with Christ hath made us free."

True, there are two ideas about what liberty means, just as there are many ideas of what right is. The communists, socialists and welfare staters seem to think that the state is supreme. Others, however, rest their case on eternal laws.

Foreign Aid Pressure

Rep. Otto E. Passman, a Louisiana Democrat who is the Congress' most effective opponent of foreign aid programs, claims that the Kennedy administration launched an "absolutely unprecedented" campaign of propaganda and lobbying to promote its foreign aid program in Congress in 1961.

Passman, whose Appropriations Committee Foreign Operations Subcommittee has slashed huge parts off the Eisenhower and Kennedy foreign aid requests, says that the Kennedy Administration foreign aid lobbying "made the Eisenhower foreign aid propaganda campaign look amateur."

Here's the shape of the administration's foreign aid lobbying campaign as described by the anti-aid Passman:

"First, the administration requested an excessive amount for foreign aid. They pulled Douglas Dillon out of the Treasury to testify for the program with his usual smile and personality, overstating the case, as usual.

"Second, the Democratic party was brought in with (National Chairman John M.) Bailey sending wires to Democratic officials all over the country trying to get them to exert pressure on Congress in behalf of the program.

"Third, an epistle from D. O. and Dean (Secretary of State Dean Rusk), blowing up the reasons for the program, was sent to all Members of Congress.

"Fourth, the program was talked up at State Department briefings for editors.

"Fifth, the President of Pakistan (Ayub Khan) was invited here by (Vice President) Johnson to give a pep talk for foreign aid.

"Sixth, the Citizens' Committee for International Development was organized to exert further pressure.

"Seventh, I was interviewed on 'Meet the Press' by hostile questioners who, I think, tried to make me look silly.

"Eighth, (House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (D-Mass.) was elected to write 2,400 mayors across the U.S.A.—including some in my own district—on behalf of the program.

"Ninth, Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver made a personal visit to every office on the Hill. He was coming in behalf of the Peace Corps, but foreign aid was mixed in.

"Tenth, when we were ready to mark up the bill in Subcommittee I jotted down some figures to show my thinking. A Republican Subcommittee member leaked the figures to the President a few hours before Subcommittee action. But despite terrific pressure from downtown, the Subcommittee backed me up.

"Eleventh, the White House kept contacting business groups all over the country until 2 a.m. in the morning of full Appropriations Committee action (Sept. 1), asking businessmen to pressure committee members to reverse the subcommittee cuts. While I was presenting the subcommittee report in the full committee, administration officials continued to place telephone calls to committee members in the room. During the same meeting, letters from an assistant secretary of state to committee members, all calling for more funds, were actually slipped under the door."

Passman indicated that other pressures, including patronage threats and promises and an implied threat to purge him from his subcommittee chairmanship because he refused to endorse the Kennedy-Johnson ticket in 1960, had all been part of the Administration's effort.

But Passman said he had won his fight to make major cuts in the "uncontrolled and uncontrollable" foreign aid program because he had been "fortified with facts throughout." Without the facts, he said, "no country boy like myself" could persuade the subcommittee, the full committee and the full House that Presidential requests were inflated and in need of paring.

Passman is a zealous exponent of the theory that through foreign aid the U.S. is squandering its wealth abroad in a vain attempt to buy friends. He fears the multi-billion dollar programs may push the country to the brink of financial disaster.

The foreign aid programs of both the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations have run aground on the shoals of his subcommittee, forcing both presidents to make all-out appeals to Congress to restore the heavy cuts in foreign aid inflicted by Passman's "countryman's axe."

Since 1955 Passman has chipped more than $5 billion off Presidential foreign aid requests and despite intensive rescue operations by both administrations the final figures approved by Congress have always been substantially below what the White House has asked for.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Soviet Russia is now believed to have moved into the position of being able to conduct an international trade war in sugar, controlling world prices and markets. The situation is being closely watched by U.S. sugar interests.

The development arises through Russia's barter purchase of four million tons of Cuban production and through the still more important fact that Russia is now the world's largest sugar producer. Its output this year is believed to be seven million tons. Cuba will be second with six million tons.

Accurate figures are not available, but there are industry reports that Russia built 50 refineries last year and has plans to build another 100. This indicates a growth potential.

Sugar is a high heat and energy food considered desirable in cold Russia. Sugar is not rationed, except by government control of prices. These have run as high as 50 cents to $1 a pound. This yields a nice capitalistic profit to the Communists, particularly on the sugar Russia gets from Cuba.

There has been some speculation that Russia finances much of its agricultural expansion on sugar profits. Any oversupply it can dump on world markets at ruinous prices.

In what is unquestionably one of the worst deals the Castro-Guevara regime has made, Cuba gets paid in cash for only 20 per cent of the sugar Russia gets. For the other 80 per cent, Cuba must take in barter whatever Russia wants to supply—jet planes or caviar—at prices determined by Russia.

The ineffectiveness of this deal may be shown by Castro's desire to trade prisoners for U.S. tractors. It was an open admission Russia wasn't supplying what Cuba wants most.

One other sore spot for Cuba is that some of the sugar Russia takes may be leaking to the world market through Czechoslovakia at reduced prices. This violates the agreement. Cuban white sugar is now obtainable in Europe at prices below Cuba's raw sugar price.

If the Russians are thus double-crossing Cuba, it would explain Castro's and Guevara's repeated overtures to the United States for a resumption of sugar sales.

Just what's going on in this tremendously complicated business may be revealed in part at the forthcoming International Sugar Council meeting which opens in Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 12. U.S. government and sugar industry representatives will attend. ISC is a U.N. commodity subsidiary of 29 exporting and nine importing countries or with many observers.

Exporting and importing countries have relatively equal votes and its decisions are usually unanimous. Russia with 95 votes, Hungary with 15, and Czechoslovakia with 245 have been exporters for 12 years. They have been generally cooperative though they haven't given much information on their own production and consumption.

The United States and Britain are principal importing countries, with 245 votes each. Russia, importing four million tons this year, could qualify as the biggest importer, but prefers to be designated an exporter.

ISC negotiated a five-year agreement in 1958 but provided that it could be reviewed after three years. This job will be complicated by world market changes resulting from the Cuban situation, new high levels of world sugar production, currently depressed prices and uncertainty over future U.S. sugar policy.

Existing U.S. sugar law expires June 30, 1962. Before that time, Congress must determine what to do with the three-million-ton allotment formerly given to Cuba but now distributed to 21 other producing countries.

A further complication is that the community stabilization program of the new Inter-American Alliance for Progress may produce some recommendations of its own on how the U.S. sugar market is to be supplied and what price it pays.

Also, there must be a determination of whether U.S. sugar beet and cane growers will be subjected to acreage limitations next year because of increased production and imports. A hearing on this was held in Denver not long ago. The domestic industry is divided on what to do to get its prices higher, but Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman must make recommendations to Congress early next year.

Report:

Hoffa Pacts With Red
Unionists To Produce Headlines at Senate Probe

ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The upcoming Senate investigation of Teamster Boss James Hoffa's close ties with some of the most influential Communists in the U.S. is going to make sensational headlines.

As a starter, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee is examining the mutual assistance pact signed by Hoffa and the Communist-influenced International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

In this agreement, Hoffa and the officers of the union agreed to a broad range of cooperation on union matters as well as on "political activity beneficial to each other."

Hoffa made the agreement at a meeting with three of the Union's top officials, all of whom are under a red cloud as a result of federal prosecutions.

For instance, Congressional records show that John Clark, president of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, and A. C. Skinner, western vice president, two of the officials that met with Hoffa, took the fifth Amendment before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee in 1952 when questioned as to whether they were members of the Communist Party.

Sworn testimony before the committee says that Skinner was a former leading official in the Communist apparatus in Illinois and that Clark was an ardent cooperator with known Communists.

Justice Department records show that Skinner and Irving Dichter, secretary-treasurer and the third union official that met with Hoffa, have been convicted of charges of filing false non-Communist affidavits with the Labor Department under the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Skinner and Dichter were among fourteen key officials of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union who were indicted in 1955 on charges growing out of the filing of the non-Communist affidavits. They received three-year prison sentences and $2,000 fines. They are now out on bond pending appeal of their convictions.

POINTING THE FINGER—The Senate probes plan to call Hoffa to quiz him about the secret details of the mutual assistance pact and his association with other known Communists.

Also, they want to know the role that a known Communist played in getting a "misleading" article about the "Pact" published in the Teamster Union's official magazine.

This article, which appears in the September issue of "Teamster," pictures the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union as being persecuted by Congressional committees and the Justice Department.

Significantly, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee is receiving full cooperation in their investigation from the Justice Department and Senator John McClellan's racket investigating committee.

Hoffa has been under fire by the McClellan committee for his financial aid to Communists and former Communists. Their report charged that the Teamsters Union has been aiding persons who were expelled from the AFL-CIO because of Communist influence or domination.

The committee's investigation will also touch on Hoffa's close association with Harry Bridges, boss of the Communist-influenced International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), and with the racket-ridden International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), which controls a large share of the East Coast docks.

In 1958, the Committee issued a report charging this alliance was a "definite menace to our nation's security both economically and militarily."

"Economically and militarily the U.S. is unprepared for a general transport strike by these unions since such strikes, especially where Communist leaders are involved, have been known to occur with lightning suddenness."

The report stated: "The racketeering leaders of the Teamster Union have displayed an utter lack of concern about the Communist records and activities of the dominant officials of the ILWU."

On another front, Attorney General Robert Kennedy is making new headway in trying out a strategy to topple Hoffa from his position as head of the 1,800,000-member Teamster Union.

His nation-wide investigation into the financial affairs of a score of Hoffa's associates in the Teamster organization, the underworld, and business is starting to pay off.

Aides report that union officials, including some of Hoffa's closest associates, are telling tales on their boss at such a rate that Justice Department officials are having trouble working all the "informers" meetings into their tight schedule.

Already, federal grand juries are hearing witnesses and studying financial records in Detroit, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington, D.C.

HOW TO SURVIVE—The Defense Department's Civil Defense office is ordering two million additional copies of its brochure on fallout shelter and survival information. More than three and one-half million already have been passed out.

Tax treatment of home bomb shelter costs is uncertain. Internal Revenue Service specialists say there is no provision for a deduction. But at least one member of the House Ways and Means Committee, the body that handles the tax laws, says the cost of home shelters can be written off as a contribution—to the federal civil defense program.

Representative Wilbur Mills, D. Ark. chairman, says Congress will settle the issue next year, probably by permitting deduction of part of the costs.

BERTINORO, Italy—What is the farthest you have ever driven for a free meal?

Up until today my record was 113 miles, but now it stands at 245, which is the distance from Rome to this centuries-old little town of 9,000 and a few more.

What family in Bertinoro sets such a good table that I was happy to drive 245 miles to share a few hours pleasure with knife, fork and spoon? I haven't the foggiest idea.

I have no invitation, but there will be a wonderful meal for me tomorrow in a home that, for one day of the year at least, is dedicated to hospitality for the stranger. The same would have been true had I arrived a hundred years ago, of two hundred, or three or four.

Tomorrow Bertinoro celebrates its annual Feast of Hospitality. This festive day had its origin in the 14th Century, and the passing of time has altered it little.

In those days, long before America was discovered, travelers arriving in Bertinoro did not seek lodging and food in an inn. They tied the reins of their horses to rings on the Column of Hospitality in one of the town's numerous little squares.

Each ring, and there are many of them, belonged to a family who offered a friendly meal and hospitality to the weary visitor.

The Column of Hospitality and the custom have survived the centuries. On the day of the festa, tourists who reach Bertinoro make for the Column and symbolically tie their automobiles, motorcycles, scooters, or bikes to a ring of the Column.

There they find an invitation to a meal from a local family whose name is written on an envelope hung on a ring. There is an envelope for everyone, and a gracious welcome awaits all who come.

I am playing it safe. I am here a day early because I want to be sure to get a ring. I wasn't the only one to take precautions against getting shut out, so to speak. The little town is filling up, and by tomorrow there is sure to be a scramble round the Column of Hospitality.

I have already picked my ring, but I do wish the envelopes were put out ahead of time. I would like to take a quick peek to see the name of my family and perhaps check around town on the cooking abilities of the wife and daughters of the house.

I'll be happy no matter what family I draw, but I do hope I don't get a newlywed couple where the bride is just starting out with the stove. I can tolerate burned toast, but burned spaghetti would be something else again. Or, I hope I don't draw a family whose members are crazy about stuffed eggplant, tripe, and brains.

Maybe I'll be real lucky and hitch my car to a ring belonging to the Castello di Polenta family. Dante used to stay with them, and I am sure that food good enough for Dante would be more than good enough for me.

Pegler Says:

Veneration for High Officials Deprecated

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

During the second Administration of Woodrow Wilson my mind got infected with a superstition that Americans owe reverence and awe to the President and his office. This sickness was complicated by a similar idiosyncrasy concerning the Chief Justice and his office. I am now cured.

In the first impulse of my emancipation, I was tempted to hate the incumbent President and Chief Justice. I rejected this, however, and instead hated myself for submitting to the arrogant incantations of people along our northern seaboard who never will understand that their political squallor was contrary to American ideals. These people succeeded in imposing on our country and much of our press the proposition that Eleanor Roosevelt was First Lady of the land and, by motion of Clare Luce, First Lady of the world.

The President at the time of my cure was Harry Truman. The Chief Justice was Fred Vinson. They were so amusing that they provided their own antidotes to massive emotional errors about their godship. Truman had been chairman of Tom Pendergast's Board of County Commissioners in Kansas City's brazenest days. A man of astonishing personal virtue, he nevertheless gave loyal service to a revolting "old toad."

So, when Truman was President, although I denied him idolatry which tradition asked of me, I did not hate him as I had come to hate the melodious, un-m-a-n-l-y mama's boy from Hyde Park.

Vinson was an easygoing, old-line Kentucky horse player who died broke out of devotion to a tradition that all horse players must. Vinson was more Lincolnian than even Carl Sandburg and without a shawl or any artificial shagreening. It was in his marrow and blood. For years he had hooked his bets with acknowledged runners who then held franchise in all government departments including the White House. They in turn looked for the mysterious thing called the syndicate. It was an established situation. Doc Matthews, the historic fellow traveler who started the great continuing anti-Communist agitation, once interrupted solemn proceedings of the House Committee to make an important official phone call by consent of the chair. It went as follows:

"Please give me the sixth at Laurel."

A girl I used to know in the Interior Department under Ickes used an infirmary where she was nurse as her office for such business. She was a beloved criminal writing slips for a commission of X per cent on win bets and H per cent on lose bets. She was only human, dear soul, so now and again she bucketed a long shot. Thus, she dumped a bet of mine I had slipped into her pretty hand under the table at Harvey's Steak House, not failing to press her fingers. It won. It was more than a year until I saw her countenance again across a crowded room. But I had lost only $10 and we washed it all down in a pot of that sheep-dip called Maryland corn which came to our door in a mason jar within fifteen minutes after a phone call to any of a dozen reputable purveyors. She was much relieved.

Calvin Coolidge was the best President in my life. His moral standards were impeccable. No honest person can deny that F.D. Roosevelt was the worst. The scandals of the brief Harding term were petty by comparison with the conduct of the Roosevelt family alone in marital and fiscal matters, ignoring the vices of Harry Hopkins and others of the intimate household cult. Hopkins used White House long distance lines at public expense to phone the California tracks for tips and to get down bets he notoriously failed to cover when he lost.

The people of George Washington's first Administration probably had the most reasonable opinion of both the President and the Chief Judge. They had no newspapers pulling and hauling at their opinions and, anyway, few of them could read, and actors were regarded as swine, not political oracles.

The alarm over the proposal to impeach Earl Warren would be less ominous if it were false. But being on the level this alarm speaks a crazy belief that the Chief Judge is a sacred officer.

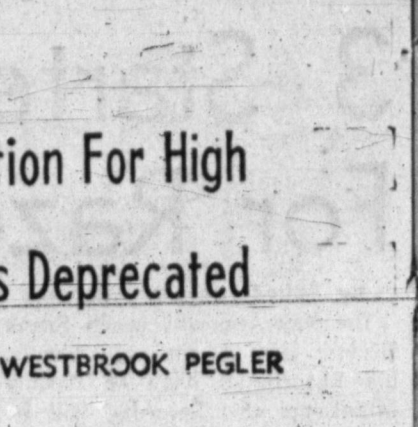

The Doctor Says:
By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN—Q—"You contended recently there is no harm in drafts," writes one gentle critic. "You are wrong. I'm just now suffering a disagreeable experience from a draft. At a Washington function, I was seated in a draft. I had on a low-neck dress and without a scarf. Protocol seated me where I was and I couldn't move. In less than a week I had a chill and am just now recovering from pneumonia. And you say drafts are harmless?"

A—"Were you alone at this function? Isn't it just possible that you were seated near someone who was harboring infective organisms in her upper respiratory passages? And couldn't your pneumonia have been the result of the transfer of those organisms to you when your neighbor coughed or sneezed in your general direction?"

Q—"I resent your satirical comments about drafts. Let me remind you that plants, as well as people, suffer from drafts. A steady draft can kill a plant. But perhaps you don't number any hypochondriac plants among your acquaintances?"

A—"It's true that I have no hypochondriac plants among my friends and acquaintances. But, for years, we've had plants in our entrance hall where they must have draft exposure every time the front door was opened or closed. And they thrived. And wasn't Gracie Fields' 'biggest aspistra in the land' situated right next to the old hat rack, just behind the entrance door?"

"The frankness you display in your column is most refreshing," writes another. "Keeping the public in the dark seems to be the order of the day in most services and professions. So it is with sincere admiration that I salute columns such as yours on acetylsalicylic acid and the more expensive preparations in which aspirin is the important ingredient. Thanks to you I'm going to have cheaper headaches from now on."

A midsummer outing at the zoo is an American custom. The Romans enjoyed exotic animals too, in a strange way. In their outdoor arenas, they staged "hunts"—fantastic mass slaughters of animals. In one great "spectacular" Romans witnessed a death struggle between 1,000 pairs of gladiators, 60 lions, 32 elephants, 30 leopards, and assorted tigers, hyenas, giraffes, hipopotamuses, wild asses, zebras, and wild horses.

Movie Makers In Italy Launch 'Space' Picture

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Hollywood film makers also lost the race into space. The Italian launched "Space Men," filmed in Rome, will be in theaters before the month is over.

Yvette Mimieux won another five-year contract at MGM. The four stars of TV's "Bonanza" — Lorne Greene, Pernell Roberts, Dan Blocker and Michael Landon — will play themselves in a gag sequence of Jerry Lewis' "The Errand Boy."

Natalie Wood is helping Warren Beatty forget Joan Collins. George Gobel has $10,000 of his own money invested in his Broadway-bound show, "Let It Ride."

All those crazy silent two-reel comedies, produced by Hal Roach and Mack Sennett back in 1919-29 are headed for TV under the title, "Comedy Capers." Some of the stars in the slapstick include Ben Turpin, Harry Langdon, Andy Clyde, Will Rogers and Laurel and Hardy.

George Jessel and George Raft are opening a travel agency. They've been around, you know. The long "Mullay on the Bounty" location in Tahiti must have left some of the MGM crewman still crazy. One hotel there finally barred them from its bar with a sign: "Off Bounds to 'Bounty' Crew."

Eddie Fisher will collect $3,000 a day for a week's warbling at the Eden Roc in Miami. With Liz Taylor a ringside, of course. Dwayne Hickman says he'll quit as TV's "Dobie Gillis" in two years because: "I've never liked acting. I'm not a good actor. My heart isn't in it and it never was."

After 10 years of TV stardom — first on the Bob Cummings show — Hickman can afford to quit. He says he'll have a million bucks in the bank. Van Johnson's big hit in "Music Man" in London is raising the blood pressure of his Hollywood career. He's forming his own film company.

Arthur Godfrey may return to "Talent Scouts." — Ira Cook said it: "Ideas are like children — your own are always the best." Drive-in theaters, according to trade surveys, now supply 23 percent of all movie rentals in the U.S. Their business this summer has been up 15 per cent over a year ago.

Martha Raye will be the doll shot out of a cannon in a film version of "Jumbo."

No-Roach Given High Praise In Woman's Letter

Almost every day the makers of Johnston's No-Roach receive unsolicited letters of praise from pleased housewives all over the country. Here is a typical letter:

Gaston Johnston Corporation
Long Island City 3, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:

I want to send you a word of praise... and of thanks... for such a wonderfully effective product as your Johnston's No-Roach.

I had tried every product I could find and yet the roaches seemed to just live and breed on.

Then the clerk in my favorite store recommended liquid, brush-on No-Roach.

I bought a bottle and applied it with a brush in just a few minutes. The next morning... the most amazing thing! There was not a roach anywhere. I said to my husband just a couple of nights ago, "This doesn't look like our house! No bugs when you turn the lights on!"

Thanks again for inventing No-Roach. It worked a miracle when I'd given up all hope of ever getting rid of roaches!

Mrs. S. W. Baltimore, Maryland
Johnston's No-Roach in the 8 oz. bottle — only 89 cents; pint — $1.69. Those who are discouraged because of failure with other products are urged to make one simple, easy application of No-Roach. Actual use has proved it is safe, sure and economical. It also is easily available at your favorite drug store or supermarket.

Armored Division Head Says Unit Has 30-Day Wait

DALLAS (UPI) — Maj. Gen. Harley B. West, commander of the 49th Armored Division, which is being called to active duty, said today that members of the division will have at least 30 days after the callup before they report to a training camp.

He had no idea where the division will train; he expected that to be announced later today. Fourth-ninth division members live in 74 Texas cities and towns, mostly in northeast and South Texas.

"The news was not particularly unexpected," West, an official of Blue Cross-Blue Shield medical insurance, said. "The Division is a well-trained one. Morale is high. But we need more personnel and we need equipment."

The major cities from which the division's personnel come are Dallas, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, San Angelo, Paris, Marshall, Terrell, Temple, Austin, Bryan and Texarkana.

The 49th Division is a new outfit activated after World War II. Its commanders, in order, were: Maj. Gen. Albert Sylney Johnson of Dallas, Clayton P. Kerr of Dallas, J. Louis Thompson of Houston, and West.

The 49th was activated in late 1946 and early 1947. The division was not called up during the Korean War. However, some of the individual units of the division served during World War II before becoming a part of the 49th.

The division is one of two national guard divisions in Texas. The other is the 36th Infantry Division. The 36th has not been called up.

On Sept. 6, the 49th was alerted for possible callup. The Army ordered the division to step up its training on two Sundays a month, whereas only one day a month was spent in training.

The 49th Armored went to Fort Hood this summer for its annual 15-day summer training.

Court To Reset Case Involving Catholic Priest

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI) — The assault with intent to rape trial of Roman Catholic Priest John B. Feit will remain on the court docket in Austin pending a new trial date. Atty. Robert Lattimore said Monday.

Feit is accused of attempting to attack Maria America Guevara, 21, as she knelt in prayer in an Edinburg Church in March, 1960. The first trial ended Friday with the jury deadlocked at nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

Lattimore said he asked for an early setting for another trial immediately after the jury was discharged.

Fred Semaan, Feit's San Antonio attorney, said he would be so busy with criminal cases that he couldn't represent his client in a re-trial before January.

"I have no occasion to lose faith in the case," Lattimore said. "Certainly a nine-to-three stand by the jury wouldn't cause me to lose faith."

The case was transferred from Edinburg to Austin on a change of venue.

Wildlife Refuge Not Damaged By Hurricane Carla

AUSTWELL, Tex. (UPI) — It appears that Hurricane Carla was constructive as well as destructive at least for the rare whooping cranes.

H. J. Johnson, manager of the Arkansas National Wildlife refuge where the whoopers make their winter home, said Monday the 47,000-acre refuge came through the storm unscathed.

He said even the two lookout towers used to observe the whoopers escaped damage.

And when the nearly extinct birds return from their summer quarters in Canada, they may like their winter home even better, Johnson said.

That is because the hurricane has formed several new beaches along the lagoons where the birds live.

Record Fallout No Health Peril, Agency Asserts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Radioactive fallout, borne on cold winds from Russia's Arctic proving ground, has risen to a record high in the nation's capital and some other northern and eastern cities.

But the Public Health Service said the new levels, recorded over the weekend, posed no health threat unless sustained over "A long period of time." It didn't say how long that would be.

Health service officials announced the record radiation figures after Russia touched off its 13th fallout — producing nuclear device. It was equal to about one megaton — a million tons of TNT.

Radiation over the weekend surpassed the high set in 1958 in Washington, D. C.; Hartford, Conn.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Baltimore, Md.; Lansing, Mich.; Trenton, N.J.; Albany, N.Y.; Gastonia, N.C.; Harrisburg, Pa.; Columbia, S.C.; and Richmond, Va.

But in many other cities, radiation remained infinitesimal compared to the 1958 readings, when both the United States and Russia were testing above ground.

The 1958 record in Los Angeles for example, was 453 micro-microcuries compared to 2 last weekend, and in Salt Lake City it was 617 in 1958 compared to 1.7 last weekend.

Winds from Canada, the health service said, swept the fallout into some cities and not to others.

Texas Coast To Overcome Disaster, Johnson Avers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson returned to Washington yesterday shocked by the devastation he saw in his home state but prouder than ever he is a Texan and confident victims of Hurricane Carla will take the nearly half-billion dollars of damage in stride.

"As always, Texans are arising to a challenge," Johnson said. "We have suffered hurricane, tornado and floods, but we in Texas are a bold and brave people... and we will close ranks and federal and local government will cooperate in the recovery."

Johnson said he made the trip to Texas Monday "at the direction of President Kennedy."

He and his party met with officials from 18 storm devastated Texas counties in a high school auditorium and received preliminary reports on storm damage from 14 counties.

He learned that the bill will be at least $459.8 million and probably higher. County Judge Pete Lavalle said the worst damage was to Galveston County where damage is going to run $260.7 million.

"I have been deeply touched by what we have seen in this area," Johnson said. "I have seen sorrow and loss reflected in the faces of these people, but I have also seen there a bold determination to rebuild and recover."

Hurricane Carla and the tornadoes it spawned took 29 lives in Texas. Johnson congratulated the Civil Defense, Red Cross and armed services for the "tremendous efforts in helping keep down the loss of life."

"It is evident that because of preparedness completed in advance of the hurricane that we do not have 6,000 deaths like the 1900 hurricane that hit Galveston," Johnson said.

With him on the tour were Gov. Price Daniel of Texas, Texas Congressmen Bob Casey and Albert Thomas of Houston, Jack Brooks of Beaumont, Clark Thompson of Galveston and Jim Wright of Fort Worth.

The party also included Charles Murphy, under secretary of agriculture; Gen. Alfred Gruenther, head of the American Red Cross; John Horn, administrator of the Small Business Administration; and Frank Ellis, administrator of the office of civilian defense.

"We shall roll up our sleeves and move forward to see that your homes and buildings are repaired and put back into working order," Johnson promised.

He flew to Houston by jet plane from Washington and then flew over Galveston by helicopter. Then he and his party transferred to automobiles for a closer look from the ground at damage in Galveston, not only from the hurricane but from a tornado that followed it.

He also inspected damage at Texas City, Palacios, Port Lavaca, Victoria and Corpus Christi. One of the victims he met and shook hands with was Robert Dunn, 14. The boy was the only survivor of two families totaling 12 persons that took refuge in a house at Angleton and were killed in the hurricane.

Johnson and his party saw miles after miles of once beautiful lawns littered with debris and water-soaked and muddy furniture. Sides of brick homes were caved in, others were swept or blown from foundations. Over the entire area was a dirty brown coating of silt.

At some points military police stood guard against looters. Jeeps crawled through the area and bulldozers were busy moving tons of rubble.

The Red Cross gave Johnson a report that said the hurricane affected more than 50,000 Texas families. A preliminary report covering 25 Texas counties and three Louisiana parishes showed a total of 48,535 homes destroyed or damaged.

Stock Equities Are Desirable, Brokerage Says

NEW YORK (UPI) — Common stock equities remain desirable investments against the background of inflationary potentials and the rising business cycle, according to Standard & Poor's "Outlook."

Under existing circumstances, the publication says moderate cash reserves may be held for buying opportunities that may unfold, but "we do not see the need for large permanent reserves."

Investors Research Co. says it continues to recommend to subscribers that they utilize periods of minor softness in the market to acquire positions in securities of the favorable industries.

John H. Lewis & Co. says the intermediate term outlook is for extension of the recent advance, subject to the usual short-lived corrections.

Studying "as coldly as possible" current vital business statistics, Hornblower & Weeks finds scant reason for pessimism or for considering sale of sound common stocks even at historically high prices.

The Wiesenberger Investment Report believes the long term trend of stock prices is upward and suggests that most investors have as full a complement of equities as is consistent with their investment policy.
