Tour of On-The-Farm Test Plots Slated September 8

A field day and tour of test plots in the On-the-Farm Demonstration Program will be held Thursday, September 8, when area farmers and business men can see for themselves studies that will improve farming here in the future.

Directing the tour will be County Agent Bob Lynch and Dwane Scott, farm demonstration assistant.

Lynch especially urges business men to support this year's tour.

"The research program is set up on a year-to-year basis, and if it appears that we are not supporting it, we are likely to lose the program," he explained.

The tour will be by school bus this year, leaving from the south side of the court house at 9:30 a. m. Refreshments will be served on the tour, and it will be over by noon.

The first stop will be at the Heber Brantley farm to see the cotton variety test plots. The group will see at least three varieties new to this area, Lockett 88A and Northern Star No. 5, new stormproof varieties, and Lockett 4789, a storm resistant cotton being tested for the first time anywhere.

At the Jack Aaron farm at Rolla, the group will see the results of fertilizer applications, and a study will be made of the different rates at which it is applied. The tour group will have an opportunity to learn which rates of application appear to be giving the best production.

The third stop will be at the grain sorghum variety test at the Cecil Shanks farm south of town. Eight varieties are on test, including Texas 611, Texas 608 and Pioneer 852, being grown for the first time in the county.

The last stop will be at the Marvin Clubb farm at Fresno, for a johnson grass control demonstration by the spot treatment method.

Here for the tour and field day will be representatives of the Experiment Stations and Extension Service of A & M College.

G. N. Scruggs, 85 Retired City Judge Dies

G. N. Scruggs, retired city judge and a long-time Wellington peace officer, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday, August 25, at 10 p. m. Mr. Scruggs was in failing health several years, and in recent weeks his condition weakened steadily.

He was 85 years of age.

Coming here from Clarendon with his family in 1925, Mr. Scruggs farmed for some years in the Rolla community. He retired to head the city's law enforcement work as chief of police, a place he held for many years. Later he was appointed City Judge, continuing in this until ill health forced his retirement.

George Nathan Scruggs was born at Honey Grove April 20, 1875, and grew up there. As a young man, he came to Memphis and was married there to Miss Bessie Pearl McRory May 31, 1903. Later they moved to Clarendon, where they lived until coming to Wellington.

He became a member of the Methodist Church in 1923. It was shortly after he moved here that remodeling the Methodist church building began, with building the new section. He was one of the men who gave his time and work gen-

Quarter Back Organization Set Tuesday, Sept. 6

Organization of a Quarterback Club to boost the Wellington Skyrockets during the coming season is slated for Tuesday night, September 6, at 8 p. m., in the American Legion building.

Plans for the club are being formulated by a group of local men, with Milburn Derryberry as their spokesman.

Officers of the club will be elected at the first meeting and other business attended to, Derryberry said.

After this, a film of one of the past Skyrocket football games will be shown.

"We want everyone who is interested in boosting the Rockets," Derryberry explained. The club is open to both men and women, and we especially urge the parents of all the boys to join."

One of the first projects the group will take up will be securing additional lights for Powell Field.

Derryberry pointed out that the club will in no way interfere with the operation of the athletic department of the school, but its projects will cover those things that are outside of the school's operation.

Most towns in this area already have quarterback clubs, it was pointed out.

School Board Sets Hearing on Budget

The Wellington school board, meeting Monday night, August 29, gave its approval to a $272,463 budget to cover expenses of the district for the coming year.

It then called a public hearing on the budget for Monday evening, September 12, when all patrons interested are invited to meet with the board to discuss it, Supt. Bennett Goodloe announced.

Final adoption of a budget will follow the hearing.

September 12 is the regular meeting date of the school board, Supt. Goodloe said.

In the same meeting, the

"We have received lots of requests for entry blanks from all over the country — Fredericksburg, Bryan, Wichita Falls and west to San Jon, N. M., along with Amarillo, Pampa and Carnegie, Okahoma, Small said.

Handsome prizes will be awarded, with blankets and ribbons going to first and second place winners in each division and ribbons to winners through sixth place. Trophies and rosettes will go to grand champions and rosettes to reserve champions.

Grand champions and reserve champions will be picked

Cain comes to Wellington from Dalhart, where he held a similar position. He holds the bachelor of music education and master of arts degree from West Texas State College.

Burglars Take $55 from Shop & Wash Laundry

Burglars who entered Shop & Wash automatic laundry Thursday night, August 25, removed the coin changer from its frame and after picking the lock, took approximately $55. Sheriff John Rainey reported.

The laundry, owned by Mack Saied Jr., and Fred Saied, is open all night, and it is believed the burglary took place between 9:30 and 10:30 p. m., the sheriff said.

The coin changer was found Friday morning on a turn row of the A. C. Shipley farm, a short distance south of Wellington. The owners told Sheriff Rainey they believe the machine can be repaired.

So far, there are no leads in the case, Rainey said. The same night, however, three news stands were robbed in Memphis and a coin changer similar to the one here was taken at Hereford.

Bishops to Mayo Clinic

Judge and Mrs. C. C. Bishop left Monday for Rochester, Minnesota, where she will enter the Mayo Clinic.

Mrs. Bishop has been in ill health for several years and has left her home but little during the past year.

They made the trip by car, and at the time of leaving, they did not know how long they would be away.

Helped Along, Unknowingly

Granite Reformatory Escapee Taken Here

Liberty was short-lived for J. A. Watt, trusty who escaped from Granite, Oklahoma, reformatory only to be arrested by Sheriff John Rainey a few hours later as he helped a local man unsaddle his horse.

Not knowing he was carrying an escapee, or even of the escape, Ray Peeples brought Watt from his ranch near Reed Saturday evening, August 27, Sheriff Rainey said.

The 21-year-old Watt, originally from Wichita Falls, was serving a two-year sentence for forgery. He refused to sign extradition papers and was held in Childress jail for Amarillo officers, who were seeking him for questioning on forgery and burglary charges.

Rainey said Watt was assigned as a trusty to drive a reformatory truck, but drove away instead. He abandoned the truck and was unwittingly picked up by a Greer county farmer, who upon learning the man wanted to come in this direction, took him to Peeples' ranch. When the Wellington man started home, he found Watt sitting in his pickup, Sheriff Rainey said.

Peeples stopped at the Milburn Gibbs farm to leave a horse and Watt was helping to unsaddle him when Sheriff Rainey and Deputy Kenneth Hodge arrived.

In the meantime, local officers were notified by the Greer county Sheriff after the latter had learned Peeples unwittingly had the fugitive with him.

As local officers were enroute to Childress with Witt, Sheriff Rainey arrested Arlie C. Cottrell, 54, of Ringling, Oklahoma, two and a half miles south of town and filed charges of driving while intoxicated.

He was taken to Childress along with the other prisoner and lodged in jail over the week end. Monday he paid a fine of $50 and costs in justice court here.

Issue Junior High Football Suits Saturday

So far, 56 boys have signed up to play football on the junior high teams, he said.

Bankers Study Group to Hold Courses for Two-State Area

The Greenbelt Study Group of the Panhandle Chapter of the American Institute of Banking will conduct two courses to be held in Wellington, for the personnel of approximately 30 banks in the eastern Panhandle and southwestern Oklahoma.

Plans were announced this week by Jack Aaron of City State Bank.

Classes for the bankers will be held at Wellington high school each Thursday night for 15 weeks, beginning September 8. They will begin at 7 p. m. and each session will be three hours with time out for a coffee break.

The courses are Principles of Banking, for those who have not taken courses offered by the Greenbelt Study Group in the past, and an advanced course, Credit Administration.

"While the courses are primarily for bankers, anyone who is interested may enroll," Aaron said. There will be an enrollment fee and tuition charge, and this will cover the cost of books and other materials used in the course.

H. W. Coffman, cashier of the First National Bank of Shamrock, will teach Principles of Banking, and O. R. Stark, Jr., vice president of the First National Bank of Quitaque, will teach Credit Administration.

Aaron explained that the course on principles of banking will stress the "why" of banking functions, banking services, controls of banks, and banking role in community life. It is designed to aid bankers in gaining a broad-gauged view of their prospects and responsibilities.

Credit Administration will cover the administration of credit, determination of a loan policy, credit techniques and other similar topics.

Those wishing more information may contact Aaron at the City State Bank.

The study groups have been held annually for several years,

Court House Closes Saturday

The Commissioners court, meeting Monday, August 29, passed a motion to accept a request of a group of county officials to close the office all day Saturday, due to the 40 hour week.

This action is effective Saturday, September 3, and is to be on a trial basis, it was announced following the meeting.

The motion was made by W. R. Breeding and seconded by Alfred Knoll.

Two Gallons, Says Lynch

Need Weevily Cotton for A&M Experiment

Two gallons of cotton squares, each square punctured by a boll weevil, are urgently needed by County Agent Bob Lynch.

He explained he has had a request for these from Dr. J. R. Brazzel, research entomologist at Texas A & M College, who is trying to determine to what extent boll weevil in this area have become resistant to poison sprays.

"I'd like for anyone who will to bring me some weevil punctured squares — just any amount," the agent requested.

Squares that have a boll weevil puncture will turn yellow or flare out slightly, or they may be picked up off the ground, Lynch explained.

If the square was bitten by a weevil, there will be only a puncture, but a boll worm will make a small hole, he explained further.

Lynch asked that these be brought to his office or left on the table by the door.

Other county agents in the area are also cooperating on Dr. Brazzel's study.

Boll weevil are becoming immune to some of the poison sprays that are being used for their control, and it is the purpose of the A & M study to determine to what extent the lower Panhandle weevil are resistant.

Come to the Fair—It's the Showcase of Collingsworth

The Collingsworth county free fair opens its two-day run Friday, and it is already definite that this third fair is by far the best so far.

The riches of Collingsworth are to be seen in one big showcase. It is heartening to drive the country roads and look at the crops, but it is indeed inspiring to examine at close range the products of our rich farmlands. What we will see as we stop at the community displays of cotton and grain and fruits and vegetables results from our fertile soil, which we are enriching year by year with natural and technical processes. We see, too, the results of plant breed and experimenting—varieties that grow best in this particular area—and we see the results of technical advances in farm equipment.

Over a few aisles in the community building will be the women's and girls department. The clothing, the food that is a sample of what fills our homes. More than at any other time, this is an invitation to step into the homes of Collingsworth, to see something of the way we live.

It is our belief that the two preceding fairs have stimulated the county's interest in the arts and crafts.

On Amarillo street, between 8th and 9th streets on what was a bare lot a few weeks ago is the new livestock barn. This is a long-held dream that has materialized. Hopes and plans for this livestock barn date back to the first Youth Project Show ever held in Collingsworth, when a few dollars were left over after expenses were paid and this was put in a special building fund account.

We owe a debt to the small group of business men who kept the project alive, who through the years encouraged the Youth Project Show, both when it was a spring event and since it has become a part of the fair.

Truly, there is something for everyone—an old settler's reunion if you are an old settler; a parade for the young at heart, and a big barbecue for us Texans, native and adopted.

But most of all, the Fair shows our resources and the productiveness of which we are capable.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where both big political parties have got very sanctimonious preachment in their platforms this year regarding us U. S. citizens' right to vote.

My unraptured neighbor says he appreciates the political fervor in favor of preserving his vote, even if it does seem like kind of an empty priviledge.

On account of, with maybe 60,000,000 Americans eligible to be elected President, by the time he gets to cast his rightful vote, the all-wise people-keepers have framed 59,999,998 of our prospects out of the race.

I see where the new census shows people in the U. S. are madly moving to the cities and away from farms and small towns.

And one reporter figures wild beasts will be taking over the vast uninhibited areas between cities in the years to come, so it will be dangerous to travel from one metropolis to another except in convoy.

But my anti-huddle neighbor says this cityward movement is Communist - instigated, on account of larger cities will make better bomb targets.

I see where some of our Washington people - pluckers think government is letting folks keep too much of the money they earn.

Seems that this indulgence leaves many noble social projects underfinanced, while the producing class fritters away billions on high-tailed autos, etc.

My riotous living neighbor says maybe he is not as shrewd as the squandercrats who have had plenty of other people's money to practice on, but he hasn't yet put out $106,786 to study about old age in octopuses.

I see where a merchandising expert says most people being right-handed, the supermarkets put their high-profit items on the right side of the aisles where they are easier to pick up.

My grocery-bill expert neighbor says he thought there was some kind of chicanery going on, and this spilled bean is going to enable him to save some money.

Says he hates to give her up, but business is business, so he has about decided to trade-in his wife on a left-handed model.

I see where a Texas citizen takes the Fifth Amendment on the question of how much money he makes, so the revenuers can't tell how much income tax to siphon out of him.

But my tax-quelled neighbor says this is a hopeless dodge, on account of in the Potomac Money Scouts' handbook, it's impractical to let minor things like Constitutional Rights interfere with getting in the gravy.

Says the Fifth may be handy for getting away with treason, labor racketeering and other sports, but it couldn't be let work for a real serious crime like tax dodgery.

I see where the economics scorekeepers say that us Americans will spend $43 billion this year in the pursuit of fun.

But my leisure-lousy neighbor says we can't afford to let any work-free time go to waste, even if we do get ulcers and have to go in debt hiring people to help us live it up.

Says if work weeks get much shorter and off-days more numerous, a man just won't have time enough on the job to get his strength back for the next fun grind.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baumgardner and family of Brownfield spent Sunday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Baumgardner and children.

Welcome to the Fair

It's a good chance to see the rich productiveness of our county.

It's the real wealth of Collingsworth that will be on display at the Fair. It is the products of our soil — the fine crops and fat livestock — that has made us a progressive, forward looking agricultural area. It has enriched our lives and broadened our outlook. It has made us what we are.

Without the fine farming and ranching people of this area, Greenbelt Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc. could not operate. Without Greenbelt, they could not operate their farms and ranches as easily or as profitably.

We advance together, and we will continue to do so.

Citizens Interested In Wildlife

There are several factors which we would like to put before the public.

Destruction by Predatory Animals

We wish to know the damage in dollars and cents that is caused by coyotes in Collingsworth County. Not just a statement that there are too many.

It is a known fact that these animals do good by destroying rabbits, rats, etc. which offsets some of their destruction.

The counties which have had such severe rat problems in the last year or two, are the ones that have practically exterminated the coyote.

Taxpayers Involved

All of the county taxpayers are having to help pay for a government trapper (poisoner) that will only benefit a few. Is this representation of the people or the special groups?

If a farmer has insects he has to pay for spraying. It pays off by doing so.

Now we say if a rancher has such comparable losses from wolves, it will pay him to control his own losses.

If the county finances are as bad as our commissioners say, why burden the people with more undue expense?

We are reprinting an article on the hazards of Formula 1080.

The Most Deadly Poison of All

By Marguerite A. Smelser
San Bernardino, California

Peddling poisons for killing something which somebody happens not to want around, from plants to insects to mammals, has become big business across the earth in less than half a lifetime.

The cranberry scandal was a blessing. The public, long suffering yet unaware, is beginning to learn a little about the widespread irresponsible use of economic poisons.

Scattered over millions of acres in rodent control and so-called predator control operations, is the most spectacularly deadly chain-reaction poison known to man—sodium fluoroacetate, commonly called "Compound 1080."

It is used in one way or another in every state in the USA. It has wiped out wildlife in wide areas, yet not one person in 100,000 has heard of it. And the government agencies and agriculturists are not going to let you hear about it either, if they have their way. In fact, they have done all in their power to keep carefully hidden the wildlife tragedies resulting from their use of 1080. As one noted biologist stated, "It is unfortunate that 1080 was ever discovered."

Poisons are classified from one to six, number six being the most toxic. Not only is compound 1080 in class six, but it has qualities which make it the perfect poison for murder, whether the object be human or animal. It is colorless, odorless, tasteless. It can be swallowed, inhaled or absorbed thru the skin. No matter by what means you take it, physicians—even if they are able to diagnose what ails you—can do nothing for you. Just call the undertaker.

A 1080-poisoned rodent or other animal in the field is lethal bait to other animals, including birds, which might eat it. The magazine Sports Afield recently reminded hunters of the cases on record of human deaths from eating 1080-poisoned animals bagged before the poison had taken its full effect.

Tragedies to wildlife have occurred and are occurring even as you read this, yet job-holders in the various state divisions of wildlife and agriculture, and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Predator Control Division, continue to belittle any significant danger thru 1080 to wildlife or to humans. During the destruction by poisoning of thousands of ducks, geese, pheasants and mammals during the 1957-58 fiascos in Washington, Oregon, and California, federal and state officials continued to write sanctimoniously about how "selective" is the compound 1080, and how "restricted" its use. There are biologists within these state and federal agencies who do not approve of the poison policies of their department heads, but they are never heard.

Misinformation, scare propaganda about rabies and bubonic plague, and depection are used to support these biologically unsound wild animal control programs. Who pays for it? You do—twice! Your money supports the programs, and it is your wildlife which is destroyed.

Already irreparable losses have occurred on both private and public lands—your lands and mine. For example, it is a matter of record that in one year alone, in the forests of Arizona, a total of 1387 stations of 1080 meat-bait were set out by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. In Montana, 1080-poisoned bait continues to be spread in spite of the fact cattlemen complain of an increase in rodents since the coyotes have been practically eliminated by it.

For those of you who are aware of the vast ecological and esthetic importance of the nation's wildlife—including the persecuted "predators" — to your children, and to your children's children, now is the time to control the "controllers" from poisoning an already dwindling wildlife population; and don't be hood-winked by official pseudo-defense of the ill-conceived poison programs.

Truly, as Montana's state Senator Arnold Rieder writes, "The use of compound 1080 is a national disgrace.

This advertisement published by Collingsworth people who are interested in conserving both wildlife and domestic animals.

Unique is a fairly common phrase in Texas. But even in unique Texas, it's the most fitting word to describe Devil's River in West Texas.

Here is a most unusual river, from the very moment it emerges as a fast-running stream in Val Verde county, until it pours its crystal-clear waters into Devil's River Lake, some meandering thirty miles away.

It's a genuine thrill to follow the swift-moving waters as Devil's River winds through the beautiful mountainous country, descending at the rate of some seven feet per mile.

Your first thought is—"This couldn't be West Texas. It's more like Colorado or Montana."

True, there are no mountain trout in Devil"s River. But there are plenty of catfish, perch galore, and a bountiful supply of four-pound-plus bass.

Most Texans aren't used to fishing waters of this type. In fact, they will find it difficult at first. But when they catch on—watch out.

Fly fishermen will have a run for their money, as the perch scramble for their hackles and hooks. Spin fishermen also find the perch eager for their small diving lures, Abu spinners and midget spoons.

Catfish are reputed to be abundant in these waters, but our angling endeavors attracted none except in the lakes below the river.

But—the big bass—these are the tricky ones. These lunkers stay in well-protected holes between or close by rocks and underwater ledges.

Biggest problem for the fisherman is that the rippleless water is so clear that the fish can see the angler readily—and from great distances. When they spot you they scatter quickly.

Actually, you have to stalk your game here, more like a hunter than a fisherman. You will do a lot of wading, too. You won't necessarily need waders, as you won't be wading in very deep water, and you'll have plenty of trudging around to do. But you will need rubber-soled shoes that will give you a good footing on the smooth rocks and in the swift current.

We found our inexpensive Dura-Hyde low cut shoes ideal for the occasion. They are made of a synthetic material, instead of leather, and have heavily-ribbed rubber soles. They took the rocks without scuffing or bruising the feet and held a firm grip wherever the foot was planted. Frankly, we were surprised to discover that they were not harmed one bit by the continuous soaking.

Pardon the digression, but shoes in a place like this are mighty important.

Now, let's get back to those bass.

Because of the clear water the fisherman can spot the deep holes in the water quite readily, as he walks along the bank. But by the time you find the deep holes where the fish abound, you've spooked the fish. So, of necessity, you must know the river.

Actually, one should survey the river for a few hours before fishing, to locate the lunker holes. Then, do your fishing by means of long-distance casting.

That's where the heavy lure comes in handy. You need a heavy lure that can give you the long cast.

Devil's River bass seem to prefer top-water lures above all else. Also, they have their preference as to the kind of top-water attraction.

Our host for the trip, Stanton Bundy, publisher of the Devil's River News at Sonora, uses one top-water lure and only one. It has proved to be the most successful lure in this water, year in and year out, for Stanton and his fishing buddies.

It's name?

Oh, yes, it's the Bass-Oreno. South Bend makes it. The color of the lure didn't seem to make much difference. However, the green and black, frog-colored lure, seemed to have a slight edge over all others. Second choice was the red and white.

As he uses only one lure, Stanton doesn't take along any tackle box.

To me, this was unique in itself, for seldom have I seen anglers so sold on one lure they will use it and no other kind or brand. As one who likes to experiment, I couldn't conform to this practice. But I'll admit it catches the big ones for them.

These boys know their waters, though, and they are dead right about the Bass-Oreno for the big bass, at least for the week end we were there. Not one single lunker was caught on anything but a Bass-Oreno during the two days of fishing, although other good lures took more than enough small bass and perch.

This points up the importance of listening to the lure and bait recommendations of the local anglers when you're away from home on a fishing trip. You may be a good fisherman. You may know what to do in your favorite fishing waters, but the same kind of fish don't always react the same in different waters.

Five Steps to Greater Dairy Profits

COLLEGE STATION. — A five-step program that can increase milk checks is recommended by A. M. Meekma, dairy husbandman for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The plan includes the keeping of production records. There's a choice of official testing—AR, HIR, DHIR, standard DHIA, owner-sampler, and the weigh-a-day-amonth. Using information from such records, herds have been able to return in excess of $1 for labor above the average for the state.

Secondly, develop a good breeding program. Make sure your cattle have inherited ability to produce large quantities of milk and fat according to their feed. Breed cows to proven sires. If proved sires aren't available, use a young bull with an ancestry of proved sires and dams. Research shows it may soon be possible to "insure" 10,000 pound producing cows by following good breeding and management practices.

Thirdly, choose a good feeding plan. Make sure cows get enough energy, protein, minerals and vitamins. Home-grown feeds, pastures and other forages are the cheapest and best feeds for dairy cattle. That's true if they are harvested and stored to save a high percentage of the nutrients. Early cutting, for example, increases net energy of hay by 24% over late cutting.

Fourthly, manage carefully. Labor, machinery and equipment must be used efficiently these days. Self-feed hay and silage whenever possible. Practice sanitation. Wash and wipe the udder before milking. Use a strip cup to check on abnormal milk. If you see signs of mastitis, milk that cow last. Give the cows a 6-8 week rest period between lactation periods. Such a rest can boost production 10% over no dry period.

And finally, maintain milk quality. Cool milk immediately after milking to 40 degrees or below. Feed storng-odored feeds, such as silage, only after milking. Keep pastures free of weeds and seeds that cause objectionable flavors in milk.

Only 16 States Require Safety Inspection

Although the number of passenger automobiles in the United States has more than doubled since 1940—the total is now nearly 70 million—only sixteen states and the District of Columbia require vehicle inspections at least once a year, according to Changing Times, the Kiplinger Magazine.

Results of last year's National Community Vehicle Safety Check, reported in the current issue of the magazine, indicate that every fifth car a motorist meets on the highway is a potential menace. In fact, the motorist himself may be driving the one-in-every-five cars that failed to pass the mechanical check-up.

Anticipating the increased traffic ahead during the vacation season, the editors of the magazine recommended the following list be checked the next time the car is lubricated (and again at least every six months).

Lights: Front, parking, rear, license plate, backing, stop — all should be checked. Check all bulbs, whether headlights work on both high and low beam, headlight focus, whether turn signals are operating.

Brakes: Is there at least a 2-inch clearance between pedal and floorboard when they are fully applied? Does the brake pedal sink under constant pressure? Do brakes fade or grab in a quick stop?

Tires: Are treads wearing thin? Do treads and sidewalls have any cracks or cuts? Are there any boots or patches—they are not safe at highway speeds.

Steering: Are there more than 2 or 3 inches of play when the steering wheel is turned? Are front tires worn unevenly? Does the car shimmy at any speed?

Exhaust system: Are there cracks or holes in the muffler or exhaust pipe?

Windshield wipers: Is the rubber deterioriated or dried out?

Glass: Are there cracks or discolorations in the window glass, especially the windshield? Is the rear view mirror cloudy or cracked?

Checking the whole list takes about 15 minutes.

OLD BAPTIST CHURCH

Sam Houston was converted and baptised in Rock Creek in 1854, 18 years before they built the Old Baptist Church that now stands at Independence, in central Texas.

A monument stone on the bell tower by the church reads: "She sleeps within its sound." Reference is to Mrs. Nancy Lea, mother of Houston's wife. She donated her silver service to be melted into the bell.

The tower was erected with stones from the ruins of the original Baylor building. Judge Baylor's hearthstone is said to be included in the tower.

Mrs. J. B. Baumgardner is visiting in Adrian with a daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jacobson and family.

Senior Fireman Honor Goes to Alton Wilkins

Fireman Alton Wilkins has been awarded the Senior Fireman Award in the Wellington Volunteer Fire Department by the Allstate Insurance Companies. The Award, presented by Chief Hiram L. Cudd for representatives of Allstate, is in recognition of long and devoted service by safe guarding the lives and property in the Community.

Wilkins' outstanding dedication to duty merits the appreciation of all the fellow citizens in Wellington. He started with the Department in 1926 and has continuously served faithfully ever since.

Allstate began its search for the Senior Fireman in Texas about two months ago. A winner has not yet been selected as all fire departments in the State are being contacted and recommendations are still coming in. The State's Senior Fireman (length of service), when determined in the next few weeks, will be a guest of honor at a function either in Dallas or Houston and will receive a weekend expense paid vacation for him and his immediate family at the Lost Valley Ranch in Bandera, Texas.

Johnsons Tour 17 States

Mr. and Mrs. Troy Johnson of Quail, joined by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Birkey and little son John Edward, of Jolly, Iowa, recently toured 17 states, through the middle west, and New England.

In New York City, their tour included the Statue of Liberty, Empire State Building and other points down town.

Visits to the capitol, museums and art galleries highlighted their stay in Washington, D. C.

While in northern New York they crossed into Canada and visited Niagara Falls from that side.

Square Dancers to Jamboree

The Dukes and Duchesses square dancers of Wellington attended the big jamboree in Amarillo Saturday, August 27. While there, they joined the Panhandle Association of Square Dancers and participated in the business meeting in the Crystal Ballroom of the Herring Hotel. The business meeting was from 2:30 to 3:30 p. m. From 3:30 to 5:30, new square dance material was introduced, as well as couple dancing, all conducted by various callers throughout the Panhandle.

The Wellington Club members were guests of Richard and Penny Mann of Amarillo for dinner before the big dance at Ellwood Park. The Manns are popular in Wellington, calling for dances at the American Legion Hall twice each month. Along with Milton and Mary Sue Beaseley, of Lakeview, they will be calling for a gigantic dance on the square in Wellington on the 3rd of September, beginning at 8:30 p. m. Dancers from throughout the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandle will be in Wellington on that date for the Grand March and dancing.

Making the trip to Amarillo from Wellington were Helen and A. J. Fires, Janell and Millard Brown, Lucille and Lloyd Wooldridge and Virginia and Eli Wolf. Dora Fern and Velman Warrick were returning to Wellington from Ruidosa, New Mexico Saturday night, when they happened to remember the dance in Amarillo. They were at the Park in time to begin the Grand March. Such is the enthusiasm for Square Dancing. The Presbyterian Minister in Amarillo delivered the invocation, the Chamber of Commerce gave the welcoming address, the immense crowd gave their roar of approval and the dance was under way. A special invitation is extended to the entire Panhandle to attend the Square Dance on the Square in Wellington on September 3rd.

Voters to Determine Four Amendments

Texas voters apparently look beyond their immediate vote to the results or consequences of their decision. At least that's the indication if the last election on Constitutional Amendments can be taken as an example.

While past actions at the polls indicated a tendency by Texans to approve rather than reject changes in the Texas Constitution, Legislators nevertheless were handed a rebuff at that time when voters said "No" to a pay raise request.

While a similar amendment (No. 3) is on the ballot this year, it is considerably different from the previous version. Two years ago a proposed amendment suggested annual sessions of the Legislature, virtually unlimited expenses, etc.

Amendment No. 3, on the Nov. 8th ballot, confines itself to a more modest pay raise and "per-day" expenses for Members, and also sets up other limitations. Voters are asked to approve an annual salary for Members of the Legislature of not to exceed $4800 per year, and a per diem allowance of not more than $12.00 per day for the first 120 days only of each Regular Session, and for 30 days of each Special Session. Regular Sessions would be limited to 140 days.

Many voters have already discovered that Amendment No. 4 is actually a "two-part" amendment. The first half devotes itself to classifying loans and lenders, licensing and regulating lenders. The second half has been the great "bone of contention" in all hearings on the loan problem in Texas.

At the present time the Constitution of Texas holds the ceiling on interest rates at ten per cent. Although the proposed amendment to be voted on Nov. 8th provides " a maximum rate of interest of ten per centum (10%) per annum in the absence of legislation fixing the maximum rates of interest," indications are that the legislature will not long be absent in fixing this maximum rates.

A three (3%) per cent monthly limit is one alternate proposal for Texas. If the voters "OK" Amendment No. 4 the Legislature will be empowered to adjust this rate up or down as the need is indicated. Thus the maximum rate would no longer be ten (10%) per cent annually as it is now, but thirty-six (36%) per cent annually. One State Banking official has been quoted as saying 36 per cent a year would be enough for a fair lender. The final opinion on this, however, will come from the voters.

Von McDaniel Out for Season

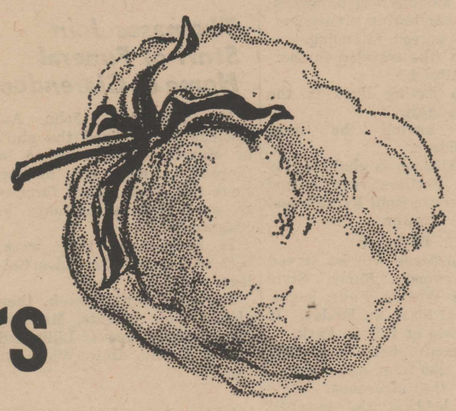

Von McDaniel who has been playing third base for the Winnipeg Goldeyes of the Class C northern league is apparently out of baseball for the rest of the season.

The former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher was felled recently when he tried a barehanded catch of a throw from the outfield and suffered a couple of broken bones in his right hand.

McDaniel started the 1960 season with Tulsa but came to the Canadian team later on.

Lea and Gail Burks of Leggitt have been here two weeks visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Squyres, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cason Jr., and other friends. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Burks came for the week end and returned them home.

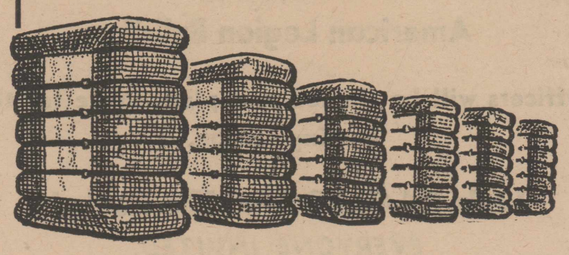

Cotton and County Fairs

We extend sincere congratulations to those men and women who are responsible for the Third Annual Collingsworth County Fair that opens Friday.

We believe that every person in this area should attend the Collingsworth County Free Fair. On display will be the best of those crops that are the backbone of our farm economy. We hope you will give special attention to those displays of cotton. They forecast the crop we will harvest this fall.

Your gin is a part of that cotton crop — the part that in the end determines largely how much each bale brings you. The Farmers Co-op Gin works at all times to see that all possible advantages come to its customers — whether it is by installing the latest machinery in our plant, or discussing with you cotton varieties that are best suited to this part of Cotton growing Texas.

Come to the County Free FAIR September 2 and 3

Be a part of the biggest community event of 1960!

As you have fun at the Fair, don't forget that you are looking at the wealth of Collingsworth. Agricultural entries reflect the richness of our soil . . . fat cattle and hogs remind of that traditional base of our economy. The women's departments show strength that comes from our homes, and the fine arts reflect our cultural progress.

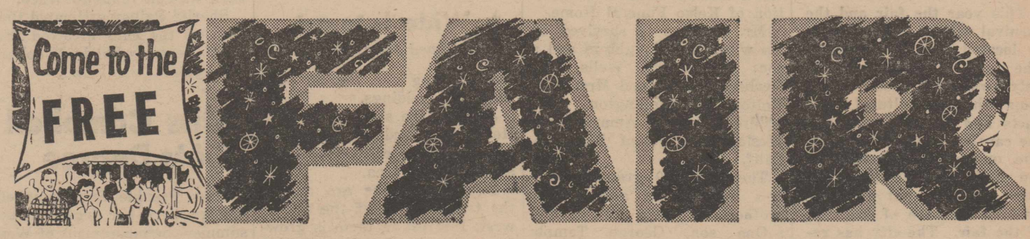

But the richest resources of all are the men and women who will be at the fair, and in the boys and girls who will proudly show their livestock and homemaking projects.

All this is community wealth, and it is responsible for the stable economy and the financial soundness that has marked the history of the Wellington area in the 50 years we have served you.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Fair time is here, school time is here and harvest time is here, and soon our whole pattern of life will change from what it has been for the past three months. Busy young mothers will experience that vague but keen nostalgia as they get the youngsters off to school, but they will also heave a sigh of relief as they kick off their shoes and sit down for the first quiet solitary cup of coffee they have enjoyed in ninety days. Soon the gins will be humming through the night and the elevators will be swamped with bright red grain. Old folks who stay at home will hear the roar of the football crowd booming out over the still night air. The smell and the feel of fall is in the air and they are good sensations that should be savored each day and treasured in memory.

It won't be long until the most beautiful sunsets in the world will be on dispay right here on the rolling plains below the Caprock. They are even superior to those the people see on the staked plains. I went to West Texas State two regular terms and one summer and never did I see sunsets like those we have in Collingsworth in September and especially in October. The people on the table land do have us bested in the beauty of their summer clouds (cumulus humulus) little white lambs playaround in the brilliant sky from ten in the morning until well in the afternoon. The high prairie is also slightly superior in the magnificense of their mirages even if some of ours are unbelieveable.

This seems to be a lot of words considering that I started out to write about the free fair. This is also something that should be enjoyed while it is here. A lot of the pleasure in life comes from anticipation and memory, but to have either in abundance you must appreciate the immediate present. You live only this second.

This year the fair and the carnival will be more centrally located than ever before. The new livestock barn is only two short blocks away from the agricultural products and the fine arts and the carnival is on the square. The quarter horse show at the ball park is the only thing that is not in easy walking distance of the rest of the fair. The city has repaved the block where the livestock barn is located. There will be more entries in every department and more boothes than ever before, so get on your glad rags and come to town. The Welcome Mat is out.

Correction: The peach named in this column last week is named Sungold and is sold only by one nursery in Iowa. The flesh is firm, golden yellow, full of juice, fine quality, extra good for canning and it is a heavy regular bearer. If they have not become too ripe in the refrigerator I intend to exhibit five of them at the fair.

I did buy some Polly peaches at the same time, but they must be out at Hayden Williams. It is a white meated peach and is the one that withstands 20 degrees without kill in the wintertime.

There is an ad in this issue of the paper that excited my interest. It was paid for by men who like to hunt coyotes. In part it concerns the use of formula 1080, sodium fluoroacetate, sometimes used to kill the varmints. I asked Bob Lynch about it, and he said: "Yes, it is deadly. There is no antidote for it." However, he observed that strychnine, traps and cyanide bombs are the most commonly used means of destroying coyotes. Oran Starkey says that formula 1080 cannot be put out without the land owners permission, and that was one of the reasons for publishing the ad — to acquaint land owners with the nature of the poison.

I can't get it quite clear in my mind just what connection there is between tea and politics; but if the number who went from this county was representative there sure must have been a tremendous flock of cackling dressed up women in Amarillo Wednesday. Regardless of what the ladies did they couldn't have been one tenth as silly as what we saw on TV when the two parties held their national conventions. There is as much democracy in the Congo as was shown at these recent political melees.

OLD SAYINGS—

When a cowboy wanted to praise a man for his ability and honesty, he was appraised as having been "measured a full sixteen hand high".

A cowboy who was completely disgusted was described as "lookin' for a dog to kick."

The dreaded season in the cattle country, from the middle of February to the middle of April, when the insects are at their worst is often called "heel-fly time."

Square Dance to Close Fair Saturday Night

Closing out the Collingsworth County Free Fair Saturday night will be a big square dance to be held on one of the downtown streets, Eli Wolf, chairman, has announced.

A platform will be put up and anyone who wishes to square dance is invited to join in, for it's all free, Wolf declared.

The event is sponsored by the Wellington Square Dance Club. Dancing will begin at 8 p. m. and continue until around 11, Wolf said.

Square dancers from many parts of the Panhandle are expected, but he emphasized that it is open to all those wishing to dance, and those who want to come and look are invited to come.

Two callers have definitely accepted invitations to be here, Milton Beasley of Lakeview and Richard Mann of Amarillo. Others are expected.

Arrangements are being made by Wolf, Bob McAlister, vice president; Mrs. Millard Brown, secretary-treasurer of the Wellington Square Dance Club.

Members will serve as hosts, wearing their traditional square dance costumes, the women red bandana squaw dresses and the men in matching shirts.

11 Escape Injury in Two-Car Crash Mon.

Lucky Corner chalked up another accident to its record Monday, August 29, about noon, but 9 members of a Wisconsin family escaped with only bruises and scratches as their car was involved in a collision with that driven by a local youth.

Sheriff John Rainey said that Mr. and Mrs. Upton C. Taylor, and their 7 young children were traveling south on Highway 83, when their 1955 Pontiac collided with the 1950 Studebaker driven by James Fields, which had entered the intersection from the east. Neither Fields nor the youth with him was injured, Rainey said.

A charge of failure to yield right of way and another of operating a car without a drivers license was filed against Fields in justice court, on a complaint filed by Highway Patrolman Martin Exum, who with Rainey investigated the accident. Fines of $1 and cost in the first case and $5 and cost in the second were assessed by Judge Raymond Horton.

The Taylor family, on vacation, was en route to Waco.

Sheriff Rainey estimated that each of the cars involved received several hundred dollars damage.

GOD'S WORD

Bible question: Can you prove the Bible is God's word to man? That the Bible is God's word to man is much more reasonable to believe than that man wrote the Bible. Its prescientific accuracy demonstrates this well. Who knew six thousand years ago that all the seas had but one bed? (Gen. 1:9,10 Was this knowledge or inspiration? Which scientist discovered germs and knew the advantage of a gauze mask in Moses day? (Lev. 13:45) Who had observed the empty space in the north in the time of Job? (Job 26: 7). It is far more reasonable to believe God revealed these things than that man knew them at the time of their writing.

University to Change Entrance Test Program

AUSTIN.—The University of Texas will discontinue its own admission tests after the 1961 Fall Semester opens.

Thereafter, entering freshmen who have not previously taken the University admission test will be required to submit scores made on the College Entrance Examination Board's scholastic aptitude test as part of admission requirements at the Main University.

CEEB tests are available nationally and are required by many outstanding universities.

During the past five years entering freshmen have had a choice of the University's test or the College Board test.

The Testing and Counseling Center has administered the University test on a statewide basis without cost to the student. The College Board tests cost each student $4.

The Board of Regents approved the change to the College Board test after the Association of Texas Colleges recommended a uniform system of testing prospective students.

The University's agreements with other Texas junior and senior colleges regarding transfers will remain unchanged, Dr. L. D. Haskew, University vice-president for developmental services said. The Main University accepts transfer students who have made acceptable scores on any one of several approved scholastic aptitude tests given at other colleges.
