Bank Building One Year Old

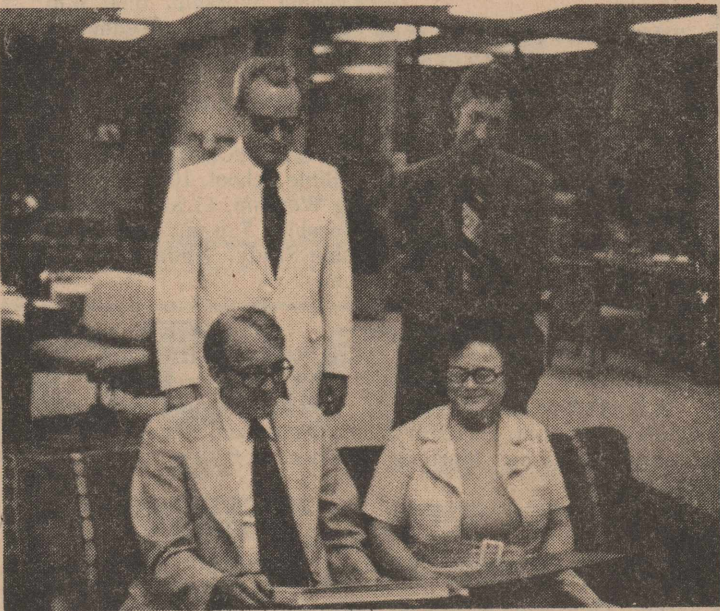

Wednesday, May 28, was a red letter day in the 85-year history of First National Bank of Rockport.

It marked the first anniversary of the opening of the bank's $600,000 new home at Number 1, Broadway Plaza. A year in building, its official dedication included a traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony at the bank's door. Participating in the ceremony were County Judge John D. Wendell, Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr., and James H. Sorenson, Jr., bank president.

There followed a four-day open house for customers and friends at which refreshments were served and organ music was played in the lobby. Also, seven savings accounts were awarded during opening week. There were six $50 accounts awarded during the first three days and a $500 account on Friday. This was won by Cindy Lynn Kowalik, age 14 months at the time.

Completion of the new bank building marked culmination of many years of planning and intensive study of probable needs of the community for financial services for many years in the future. Despite a number of construction delays due to shortages of essential building material and other factors, it all came together in time for the scheduled opening following the 1974 Memorial Day holiday.

On the occasion of the opening, President Sorenson said: "All of us at First National (Continued on Page Two)

This week Sorenson said: "Frankly, results during our first year in our new banking home have exceeded our fondest expectations. The number of our depositors has grown substantially and the dollar total has increased more than three million dollars in the past 12 months. This increase included all types of deposits -- checking accounts, savings accounts and certificates of deposit."

"Equally gratifying is the knowledge that our customers and friends seem to be very happy with the new banking house and its facilities and services. We continue to hear favorable comments on them," he added.

Expanded motor banking facilities are especially popular. Four drive-in windows and extended banking hours available at them -- 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday -- have elicited many favorable comments, according to First National officers. The spacious and restful lobby also has come in for widespread approval.

One of the most popular and most appreciated new services available since the move to the new building is Special Organizational Services. This department provides personalized help with financial and business problems without charge.

First National's new building is the third it has occupied since it was founded 85 years ago. A three-story brick building at Main and Water street housed the bank until it moved across the street to a one-story modern structure which was constructed specifically as a bank building. The bank occupied this building until it moved to the present structure a year ago.

Alpha-Omega Players Will Perform July 4

There'll be something new in the 6th Annual Rockport Art Festival this coming July 4th weekend. Already well-known for its large displays of paintings and crafts, the 1975 Festival will also feature the performing arts. On the evening of July 4, the Alpha-Omega Players will present Mark Twain's comedy "The Diary of Adam and Eve" at the Rockport-Pulton High School auditorium.

The performance, beginning at 8:00 p.m., is sponsored by St. Peter's Episcopal Church. Proceeds will benefit the Rockport Ministerial Alliance.

"The Diary of Adam and Eve" is a musical comedy version of Mark Twain's famous short story, with songs by the composers of "Fiddler on the Roof." Paradise was never so much fun. There are creatures to be named, a smooth-talking snake, and a case of mistaken identity concerning some forbidden fruit. Then there are discoveries to be made. Eve discovers that huts were made to be repainted, and grass was made to be cut. Adam discovers that the purpose of Monday is to rest up from the weekend.

A professional touring company now located in Rockport, the Alpha-Omega Players have given over 1600 performances of this comedy throughout the nation. Tickets are $2.50, and are on sale at the following locations: The Alpha-Omega office, 410 S. Austin St., the Chamber of Commerce, or from Jimmy Sorenson at the First National Bank. Tickets are also available from the following members of the Ministerial Alliance: Rev. Walter Clark, St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Rev. Tom McClung, First United Methodist Church, and Rev. John Bradshaw, First Presbyterian Church. For more information, call Dorothea Montgomery at 729-2164 or 729-2519.

STUDENTS STUDY HOME MANAGEMENT

Junior and senior boys and girls enrolled in home management class participated in a variety of learning experiences as they focused their attention on the three major resources of time, money and energy.

After learning that each of us has the same amount of time each day, but that the amount of energy and money vary, and that it depends on one's values, or what is important to each of us as an individual, as to how we use our time, money and energy. The students learned how to interchange the use of these three resources in order to help them to reach their goals. For example, if time is limited, it is more convenient to purchase something ready-made, rather than to make the item from basics.

Among their activities, the students learned about the nutrients, which are carbohydrates, proteins, vitamins, minerals and fats; and which foods contain these nutrients. After learning how to use these to plan a nutritious meal, the students were challenged to plan a balanced meal which was economical, costing one dollar or less per serving, which would only serve two people, and there could be no leftovers.

The students then narrowed down their choices of foods and selected a menu which met the requirements. They then prepared a shopping list which they used to select the groceries for their meal. They prepared a time plan to use as they prepared the foods so that all foods would be ready at the same time and could be served attractively. Each of the students had specific duties to perform in the preparation of the meal.

Terming this experience as a success the students made lists of the foods in each of the food groups - milk, meat, bread and cereals, and fruit and vegetables. They then went shopping to see which foods in each group were the most expensive, and continuing on down to the least expensive foods in each group.

Realizing that a homemaker or manager must always be conscious of the use of time, money and energy, the students then made lists of various commonly used food items and household supplies which are Races #3 and 4 of a six-race spring series were held the weekend of May 17 and 18, just off the Rockport Beach area in Aransas Bay. Some eight boats participated in the event sponsored by the local Sailing Club.

Saturday's results were as follows: First place, Gary Startzel in Karen-K. Second place, Travis Bailey in Fancye. Third place, Mark Watson in Quien Sabe.

Sunday's results: First place, Gary Startzel in Karen-K. Second place, Mark Watson in Quien Sabe. Third place, Travis Bailey in Fancye.

The combined results of the first four races of the series leave the Quien Sabe and Fancye in a tie for first place. The next races will be held on June 14 and 15.

The average weight of all trout measuring 20.07 inches long would be approximately 2.64 pounds.

available in different sizes, such as small, medium and large. They then went shopping to determine which size is the most economical and how to determine the best buy by comparing size and cost. Also included in this learning experience was a comparison of the prices of various kinds of shopping places.

From this unit, the students ventured into a study of housing and the cost of buying a house, appliances, and the selecting of home furnishings and how to care for them.

Also included in this quarter course, or twelve weeks, was the study of credit and child development.

The class was taught by Miss Frances Mutscher, local home-making teacher.

AGENCIES COOPERATING IN BROWN SHRIMP WORK

Austin -- Brown shrimp are some of the most sought-after -- and increasingly expensive -- seafood items along the Texas Gulf Coast.

To be able to culture shrimp in ponds and breed them like beef cattle would be a boon to every shrimp lover in the state.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, National Marine Fisheries Service and Texas A & M University's Sea Grant project are cooperating in culture work with the brown shrimp.

Using the Parks and Wildlife Department's trawler "Western Gulf," fisheries workers collected some 108 adult brown shrimp April 15-16 from Gulf waters between Port O'Connor and Port Aransas and another 84 shrimp April 22-23.

Transported to the NMFS labs at Galveston, of the first batch six gravid female shrimp produced some 230,000 first-stage larvae.

From the second group of shrimp 21 females produced 760,000 larvae.

According to Bruce Hysmith, P&W coastal fisheries biologist at Palacios, this is a rather low production.

"During peak spawning periods," said Hysmith, "one adult female brown shrimp can produce up to 200,000 larvae."

"We had difficulty capturing gravid females since it is late in the spawning season."

NMFS biologists predict larvae survival rate of from 90 to 94 percent.

The shrimp produced will be divided between the three Agencies.

At the Galveston labs, the NMFS plans to conduct nutrition and maturation work to "domesticate" the brown shrimp and develop a breeding stock for production of shrimp in controlled situations.

The Sea Grant project will do pond study work at their Angleton and Corpus Christi facilities.

"We plan to use the Parks and Wildlife Department portion of the shrimp for salinity work," said Hysmith. "We are interested in what effects droughts or large volumes of fresh water in bays have on shrimp production."

When first spawned, the larvae in the initial stage depend on yolk sacs for nourishment.

As they develop into the second larval stage they are fed on marine algae.

The algae are cultured in labs and then separated from the water in cream separators much like the ones used in dairies. The algae are then frozen for future use.

When needed, the algae are thawed in distilled water and placed in 500-gallon tanks used for shrimp culture.

Shrimp in the third larval stage require more animal protein and are usually fed brine shrimp.

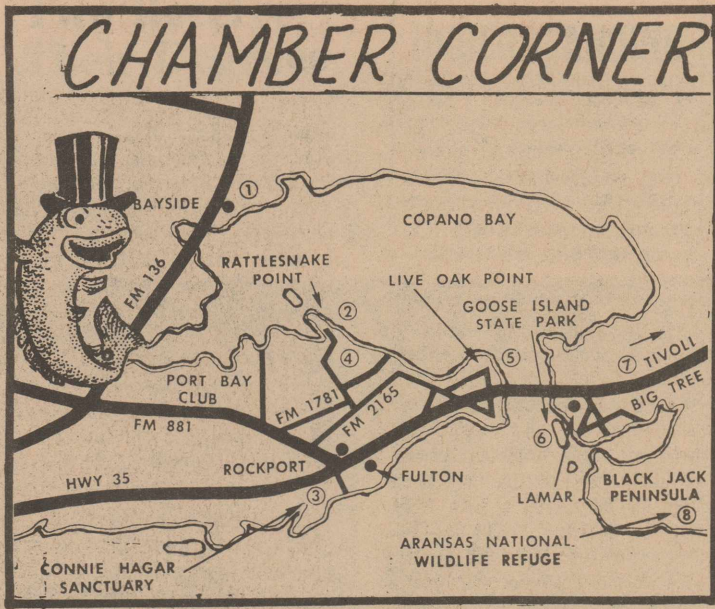

Little Split Peas Big In Nutrition

College Station--Good things often come in small packages--and this is especially true of dry split peas, one nutritionist noted this week.

"Dry peas are an excellent source of protein. And when combined with protein from meats and other animal origin foods, they make an unbeatable 'protein team,'" Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System, said.

Green dry peas and yellow dry peas may be used in the same way. The small difference in their flavor isn't enough to change the recipe ingredients, she explained.

"Consumers often wonder how split peas get split. When specially-grown whole peas are dried and their skins are removed, the peas have a natural break which splits them apart," she said.

#1. Does the Chamber of Commerce have plans to solicit industry for Rockport?

#2. Does the Chamber know the pitfalls as well as the peaks of Rockport?

#3. What progress is being made in business in Rockport?

#4. What goals does the Chamber have for 1975?

Loaded questions aren't they?

This is feed back to our office from many of our Rockport people. We welcome the opportunity to supply some answers. We appreciate your interest in your community. If all answers are not conclusive -- we can enlighten you on the foundations we are laying and the direction in which we are going. Your awareness is necessary for our efficiency and support.

#1. Inquiries regarding businesses are coming to the Chamber regularly. If the need is here -- they are encouraged and supported in every way. If our area is already having difficulty supporting present catagorized businesses; we do not encourage additional businesses locating here at the present time. Our need is for selective industry and a variety of businesses at this stage of growth. With discretion we can grow as Rockport citizens hope to grow -- non-polluting, clean, small industry would be helpful for our economy. As Rockport reaches another plateau, plans for an Industrial Commission are not out of reach. We had 14 new businesses in Rockport in 1974.

#2. Matured thinking has to encompass a total analysis. Applying this to Rockport we should be proud and commend our little city for: The nice accommodations we offer our people. We have excellent motels, restaurants, grocery stores, churches, schools, banks, laundry services, hunting and fishing facilities, boating, shrimping, crabbing, etc. Our access to the Gulf of Mexico gives us an ideal location. Organizations and citizens interest and support in community projects is a tremendous asset. Tourism; voluntary efforts contributed willingly; friendliness; natural beauty and birding; favorable climate; non-polluted area; no problem with rapid growth and congestion (so far). On the other side of the equation our attention is focused on the following for your consideration: Pitfalls - lack of unity and communication; lack of medical facilities; need for more employment; need for executive promoter of area; need for stop lights (requested from Highway Department; rejected - not enough traffic as reason); lack of funds to keep city, streets and highways clean; ordinance or control of stray dogs; local support of business. This is a condensation of main objectives we should concentrate on.

#3. Present progress report in business: 1975 figures have not been reported to City Hall but will be available in June. A comparison will be made when 1975 figures are posted. 1974 figures show retail sales and profits on a quarterly basis: March 1974 $19,266.79; June 1974 $24,319.51; September 1974 $26,461.24; December 1974 $23,687.66. Above figures show summer to be better business season. June and September quarters show a rise of over $10,000 above December and March quarters. Total tax receipts based on 1 1/2 of total volume of business for city only. New businesses in Rockport calendar year net 147 for 1974. Retired people listed in county over 65 - approximately 800. School children total enrollment 2,130. Registrations in motels in 1974 - approx. 31,957 (registered by cards - 4 to family). Trailer spaces occupied - approx. 1200 and over. 3,000 visitors registered in Chamber.

#4. Goals for 1975. Boost economy in Rockport with various promotions during slow season of activities. Plans in the making presently: SeaFare scheduled in October. Promotion of Tennis Tournament to draw tourist as well as possible permanent residents. Efforts to build Hospital Foundation Fund. Promotion of Shop at Home and local business. Beautification of Rockport (tree planting and clean-up campaign). Promotion of Art Festival. Advertising. Promotion of small conventions. Promotion of Bi-Centennial.

As the Father of all Organizations and Area we pledge to cooperate and work in every way possible to put the betterment of our community first. The C of C's function is to help build a good area for everyone, certainly not to compete with other organizations or individuals. Can Rockport unite and overcome our pitfalls? This is our primary goal.

Mildew Can Be Defeated

College Station -- Damp, muggy weather makes ideal conditions for mildew problems. Mrs. Doris Myers, family resource management specialist noted this week.

But with a little effort, consumers can prevent mildew in their homes, the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System, said.

"Molds causing the whitish-to-purplish or gray growth are present in the air at all times. They grow on any surface that is damp, warm, poorly aired and poorly lighted. Mildew causes a musty odor and often leaves stains."

Mrs. Myers named a few precautions that can keep the home free of this problem.

--Keep things clean.

--Get rid of dampness by finding the cause and correcting it. Air conditioners and dehumidifiers will dry the air.

"Sometimes it's necessary to heat the house for a short time, then let the moisture-laden air out by opening doors and windows. Also an exhaust fan can be used to drive the moist air out," she said.

Various chemicals sold by stores and by building supply dealers will absorb moisture too.

--Have adequate ventilation throughout the house--but especially closets, bathrooms and laundry rooms.

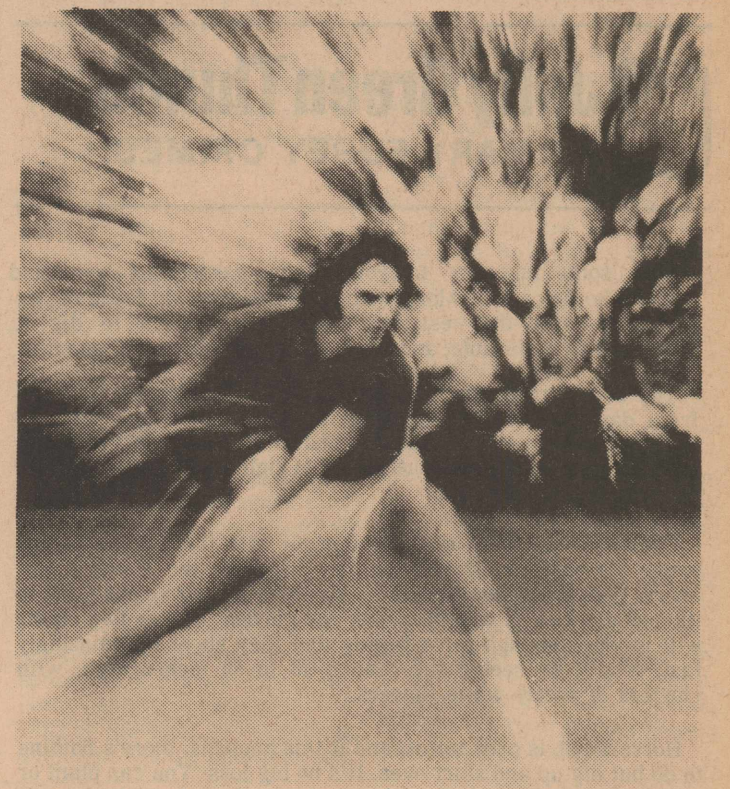

--Get rid of musty odors. On washable surfaces, use a solution of 1/2-1 cup liquid household bleach to a gallon of water. Rinse with clear water and rinse well.

--Keep fabrics dry and clean. Always clean before storing and use a mildew inhibitor in storage.

The Quiz Shows?

Commercial television sold the quiz show to a glib America twenty years ago. It was found to be shot-through with crookedness as so much else in New York City is--the police department, the welfare system, transportation, docking, the meat industry, various distribution systems, etc.

Now quiz shows are back in a big way, the networks having waited long enough for the bad taste among the public to go away. The question is again, however, whether these shows are completely honest. Too much money is given away to avoid the question, and suspicion.

ALL EYES are on tennis star Jimmy Connors as he slides into the ball during a title match against Sweden's Bjorn Borg in Indianapolis. The odd photo effect was created by changing the camera lens' focal length.

Jolly Green Thumb BY MARY FUREY CRIMES

The "something new" for your kitchen garden this year could well be horse radish. Along with tried-and-true old faithfuls, experiment with the zesty root and you'll learn to dig it. Horseradish is storable, and offers plenty of enjoyment potential.

The home-grown kind differs from the storebought as night from day. A taste will awaken the most jaded appetite. It's usable in salads, sauces, relishes and to add zip wherever needed. You start with a root cutting six to eight inches long from the nursery or garden shop.

Plant this in moist, rich soil upright with the top two inches below the surface. Mound the dirt and keep the plants a foot apart. Watch it when sprouts appear and nip off strays. Left to its own devices, it will take over the garden. One or two plants will produce enough for a family and they shoot up amazingly fast. You'll be seeing tall stalks, 18 to 30 inches high, with clusters of pretty white flowers.

Horseradish is prey to rot, and if this happens, there's nothing to do but dig up and start over. It's no big loss. You can plant or harvest any time. And, if you leave pieces of good root in the soil, you'll soon have the same number of plants. Old roots become woody and tough, so you may want to start each planting season with new cuttings.

Harvest on windy days, because the stuff makes onions seem like roses when it comes to producing tears. A stiff breeze carries the fumes away. Store it in root form, or grate right away. To do this, scrub root, peel off the brownish outer skin and put grater and root inside a plastic bag. This cuts out the self-induced crying jag.

If you want to see a family sit up and take notice, pass around the horseradish with cold beef or any meat. It's a real zinger you can start right now in your kitchen garden.

Snakebites Need Rapid Treatment

Austin -- To a person bitten by a poisonous snake, the 30 minutes following the bite could be the most important half hour of his life.

Even though few people are killed by snakebites, proper first aid immediately after the bite can save the victim much suffering and reduce the chance of a crippling injury.

There always has been considerable controversy on first-aid treatment for snakebites, even among the scientific community. Treatments in favor one year are often discarded the next or debunked by professionals and sportsmen.

Officials at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department say that three things should be done following the strike of venomous snake: apply a constriction band above the bite, keep the victim calm and secure the snake.

The constriction band should be applied two or three inches above the bite. A shoelace, handkerchief, rubber band or torn piece of clothing will make a suitable constriction band.

Snake venom moves through the lymphatic system just beneath the skin. The band should be tight enough only to reduce surface circulation. It should be loosened for two-minute periods every 15 minutes.

The band should be moved upward as swelling progresses. A constriction band should never be used for more than four hours.

Keep the victim calm. If possible, make him lie down. Assure him that snakebites, while painful, are seldom fatal.

Like any poison, the more you get, the more serious the problem. Approximately 30 percent of snakebite victims receive no venom and do not require treatment. Another 30 percent do not get enough venom to worry about but eventually require treatment. Only 40 percent require extensive and rapid treatment.

If several people are around they can find and capture and kill the snake while initial first aid is administered. Capturing or killing the snake is necessary for proper identification. Different kinds of snakes can require different kinds of definitive treatment.

A snake can bite several times and even snakes which have been freshly killed can still bite through reflex action. Carefully pick up the snake with a stick and put it in a cloth bag or box to have it available for reference.

If the snake is identified as non-poisonous, treat the wound like any other puncture. Non-poisonous snakes usually leave several teeth marks; the fangs from a poisonous snake will leave two major punctures, sometimes one.

If the snake is identified as a poisonous one and you are within 15 to 20 minutes of a hospital, immobilize the affected part of the body with a splint or strap and take the victim to a hospital.

Pain itself is not a good indication of a poisonous snakebite because the shock of any bite can cause both real and imagined symptoms.

More Reliable symptoms of a venomous bite are swelling around the affected area, drowsiness, weakness, dripping of watery fluid from the wound or no tingling sensations from the muscles within a few minutes after a bite.

Incision and suction are two of the most debatable treatments for snake bite. Often the treatment is more serious than the snake bite.

But according to Dr. Findlay Russell of the University of Southern California School of Medicine, in the treatment of some 104 rattlesnake bites over a period of 12 years, "... the proper application of a constriction band or tourniquet, and incision and suction have been found to be of definite value as first-aid measures."

This is especially true for the first-aid treatment of bites from large rattlers or cottonmouths when it has to be assumed that the victim received large amounts of venom or when the accident happened far from a hospital.

A sharp instrument should be sterilized and one cut made through each fang mark. Each cut should be no more than

Consumer Food News

1/4-inch in length and depth and in line with the long axis of the limb (no cross-cutting).

Suction should be applied with snakebite suction kits, or by mouth if these are not available. Much of the venom can be removed in this fashion within the first few minutes after the bite. The "cut and suck" treatment is of little value if not used within 30 minutes.

Bites from coral snakes are very rare and, in spite of its reputation, there are no recorded deaths from the coral snake. Get the victim to a hospital at once.

Snakebites should not be packed in ice for long periods of time. Wet rags or ice packs might be useful in reducing pain if used briefly.

Frozen hands and toes have made amputation necessary in some cases.

Alcoholic beverages are of no value in treating snake bites. The application of kerosene or raw chicken are strictly in the realm of folklore and other home remedies not based on scientific fact.

Fortunately, most people live despite snake bites and hazardous treatment.

Two Receive Their Degrees

Some 3,500 students, candidates for degrees or diplomas from the University of Houston for the Fall 1974 and Spring 1975 semesters, celebrated their graduation at commencement ceremonies Saturday, May 17 in Hofheinz Pavillion on the UH Central Campus.

Among those receiving degrees were Rockport youth, David Danie Frazier, BA History, and Thomas Boney, BBA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Boney of Peninsula Oaks.

Dr. Duncan Wimpers, president of Trinity University in San Antonio, delivered the commencement address.

Dr. Philip G. Hoffman, president of UH, presided, conferred degrees and diplomas, and presented teaching excellence awards.

Dr. Emmett B. Fields, UH executive vice president and dean of faculties, presented candidates for degrees and recognized honor graduates.

UNDERSTANDING MENTAL HEALTH

a health column from the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Delinquency in Small Towns

Teenage boys in small towns are much less likely to get into trouble with the law than boys in big cities. Right?

It isn't necessarily so. Studies made in recent years have found no firm basis for this common assumption. Small town youths may have just about as many run-ins with the law as metropolitan youths.

And the causes of these confrontations are often of roughly equal seriousness in both towns and cities.

Dr. Kenneth Polk of the University of Oregon is one of the investigators who have studied teenage delinquency outside cities. Because the roots of delinquency are intertwined with those of mental and emotional disorders, Dr. Polk's work has been supported by the Center for Studies of Crime and Delinquency of the National Institute of Mental Health.

The Institute is a part of HEW's Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration.

Dr. Polk and his colleagues studied the careers of a group of boys in 14 high schools in one of Oregon's nonmetropolitan counties to see what patterns of delinquency developed in the group.

By comparing his findings with those of a similar study of deviance among Philadelphia high school boys, Dr. Polk showed that there were remarkable similarities between teenage delinquency in his towns and the big city.

Of his boys at ages 16 to 18, Dr. Polk found that fully one in four had an official record with the county juvenile department.

"This statistic, even with minor traffic offenses excluded," he said, "is still considerably larger than one might have expected for rural and small city populations, and not much less than the 35 percent reported for the Philadelphia group in which traffic offenses were included." The similarity was even greater when the nonwhite segment of the Philadelphia teenagers was excluded to match the racial characteristics of the two groups more closely.

Then, 25 percent of the Oregon boys and 29 percent of the Philadelphians had some record of delinquency.

Dr. Polk found that the most deviant of his boys were two or three times more likely to drop out of high school, and that those who became delinquent revealed a much weaker commitment to family life.

The findings reported here may not hold true for some parts of the country. Obviously, factors other than metropolitan versus nonmetropolitan area are involved.

Predictably, one factor contributing to teenage delinquency anywhere appears to be weakening of the family.

SMILES

Only Advisory
Bump: "Has your wife learned to drive the car yet?"
Bumper: "Yes. In an advisory capacity."

Highly Competent
A man of six feet, eight inches applied for a job as a lifeguard.
"Can you swim?" asked the official.
"No, but I can wade to beat the band."

Smart Scotchman
Two Scotchmen tossed to see who would pay for the dinner. The winner called, "heads." The loser called, "Fire!" and escaped in the confusion.

Preference
A girl, filling out a form before going to college, came to the question: "What is your denominational preference?" She wrote: "I like to be called Betty."

In The Neck
Two men went duckhunting. They crouched in a small punt waiting for the birds to appear.
"Duck!" said the first.
"Where?" said the second, as he stood up in time to be shot in the neck.

PUBLIC NOTICES BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW

Editor's Note: Public Notice advertising plays a unique role both in American history and in the process by which this country's democracy is preserved. Its one premise is that people must be informed if they are to govern themselves competently. Public Notice advertising first came into being with the Congress of 1792. That body, recognizing its responsibility to the people, required the Postmaster General to advertise for bids for the construction of new post offices. From that inauspicious beginning to the complex publication requirements in federal, state and local laws today, government officials have come more and more to understand their obligations to inform the public through Public Notice advertising. Newspapers over the years have been the vehicle by which these obligations have been fulfilled. They will continue to be as long as the public demands that it be informed frequently, and by the best means possible.

The Kinsey Report

A nice young couple recently bought a home and moved into our neighborhood. They are friendly people and the wife is the type who loves to work in their yard for hours at a time, planting flowers, cutting the grass and keeping everything looking great.

She also is quite an athlete, being a fine softball player and golfer. My wife played golf with her a few days ago and reported that the young woman hit several drives that were in the 200-yard range, including one that went over the ditch on No. 7 at Live Oak Country Club, an achievement that not too many men accomplish (except the really long hitters).

Not only does this young lady obviously enjoy lots of exercise to keep in good physical condition, but she sort of keeps a lookout on those of her neighbors who now are in the "senior citizen" bracket, and she worries when she sees the gentleman across the street cutting his lawn.

Recently she decided to help him in a tactful way since she and her husband already have become good friends with these folks.

She knew that if she offered to cut his lawn, he would decline the offer. So she walked across the street and asked him if she could use his lawn mower.

Thinking that she had no mower of her own, he said, "Why certainly. Help yourself."

So she removed the mower from his garage, started it, and began mowing his yard. He rushed up to her and said, "What do you think you are doing?"

She replied, "I'm going to cut your lawn because I need the exercise, so go sit down and relax."

He protested a bit but saw that she was a determined young lady, who intended to do just what she said.

Since learning this, I have devised a scheme to get her to cut our lawn instead of doing it myself with a lot of help from my wife.

I'm going to dig out an old cane I acquired when I had a minor operation on my back several months ago. Then, when I see the young neighbor working in her garden, I'm going to walk slowly past her home, maybe limping a bit.

She'll come rushing out and say, "Why, Mr. Kinsey, what's wrong? Why do you have to use a cane?"

I'll say, "Oh, my back's been bothering me again, so before starting to cut the grass I thought I'd take a little walk and get limbered up..."

That ought to do it. I'll protest when she offers to cut our lawn, but not too long.

Of 1,217 female and sponge crabs tagged in the Gulf of Mexico, none were recaptured in the bays.

A beautiful view of the bay, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, H/A, carpet, custom drapes, and all new furniture. Only $39,000.00.

A 2 bedroom furnished cottage, neat as a doll house. Ready to be lived in, for only $19,800.00.

Extra pretty, custom drapes, custom living room furniture, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, lots of deck, and a boat house. Furnished $61,000.00 or unfurnished $48,500.00.

We have a few nice wooded trailer lots. Utilities available, adjoins city limits. $975.00. Owner financed.

FOR RENT - A nice 3 bedroom, 2 bath furnished house available for vacation rental. Month or week.

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

One of the most productive pieces of legislation ever passed by the Texas Legislature, from the standpoint of public health, was the 1971 compulsory immunization law. This law, with adequate funding provided by the Legislature, has produced dramatic results in reducing disease among school-age children and influencing a downward trend in immunizable diseases in all age levels.

Today, from one end of the state to the other, the average immunization levels for all school children are above 95 per cent, reports the Texas State Department of Health.

Many people doubted that the Texas law would be effective. And, there were those who thought a compulsory law for school children would cause pre-school immunizations to lag. But these doubts have long since been dispelled.

Along with school immunizations, the Texas State Department of Health has conducted a sustained educational campaign, operated an Infant Immunization Surveillance Program among parents of newborn, scheduled additional clinics and expanded outreach work by immunizations division staff. In addition, a companion law provided for immunizations of children enrolled in day care centers and child care institutions.

The Texas school immunization law requires protection against smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus, poliomyelitis, rubella (measles) and rubella. The requirement for smallpox has since been deleted. Exemption to the law may be granted for religious reasons or medical contraindication, but religious exemptions may be set aside by the State Commissioner of Health in time of emergency or epidemic.

Individual and combination immunizations are given. Individual protection is given for polio, measles and rubella, while the combination shot is given for diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis.

School immunization levels reported to the Texas Education Agency in these various categories--for the top 20 major cities in Texas show these figures: DPT/Td 96 per cent; polio, 95 per cent; measles, 97 per cent; and rubella, 97 per cent.

One city--Arlington--reported 100 per cent immunization among its school-age population, while Pasadena showed a perfect mark for all but the combination shot--registering 99 per cent in that category.

Success of the school immunization program, plus intensification of the pre-school efforts, resulted in another drop in reported disease during 1974, according to the Bureau of Communicable Disease Services.

The State went through an unprecedented second year in 1974 without a case of paralytic polio being reported. Only nine cases of diphtheria were reported. Measles dropped to just 212 cases and rubella to 317 cases, while 99 cases of pertussis (whooping cough) and four cases of tetanus were reported. Figures can be compared with those of 1970 showing: 234 cases of diphtheria during a bad outbreak; measles, 8,494; rubella, 8,409; polio, 22 cases in a relatively high year; and tetanus, 14 cases.

An unusual aspect of the school immunization program has shown up during 1975 with outbreaks of rubella in some parts of the state.

The effectiveness of the immunization program was reflected in a recent rubella outbreak in Beeville. Among 15 to 18-year-old high school students (too old for immunization) more than 100 cases occurred. Among the 1800 younger children who were almost completely immunized, only three cases were reported.

Those who are now 15 years and older were above the recommended age for rubella immunizations when the compulsory school immunization law went into effect in 1971. Rules were established then for immunization up to the 12th birthday.

Beeville had only four late arrivals among its 1,861 elementary students under age 12 who weren't immunized. The 15 to 18-year-old population--in which the outbreak occurred--numbered 745 students.

The county health officer, Humberto Enriquez, M.D., who reported the original cases took immediate action when the outbreak started to urge immunization of pre-school children and to warn pregnant women to check in with their doctors. Birth defects can result if pregnant women contract rubella.

FIELD TRIP

The third grade classes of Live Oak Elementary School took a field trip to the Marine Lab and Aquarium on May 20. L.D. Nuckles served as host and guide where the pupils got to view a large variety of marine life and saw a film on man's effect on marine life. This field trip completed a unit currently being studied in science. It was interesting and enjoyable to all. Third grade teachers are Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Roatan and Mrs. Shirey.

Presbyterian Kindergarten Graduation

The Presbyterian Kindergarten held graduation on May 23rd. They opened the program singing "Good Morning to You."

All gave the "Pledge to the Flag," with Donna White and Nathan Taggart holding the flag, after which they sang "Fifty Stars are on our Flag." They remained standing in giving the prayer.

They introduced themselves and spelled their names. They sang other songs and each one gave a nursery rhyme and explained some of the work they learned during the year.

The Pre-Kindergarten sang "My Little Playmate" and the kindergarten sang "On Top of Old Spaghetti."

The tables were decorated in the "Wizard of Oz" theme - napkins, cups, cookies, suckers, balloons and a Wizard of Oz coloring book at each place.

The children receiving their diplomas for pre-kindergarten were Joey Garcia, Kevin Calam, Joe Robles, Jr., Bryan Hatcher, Robbie Hewes, Michelle Stengel, Gene Garcia, Mark Solis, Craig Kirkpatrick and Johnny Shutz.

For kindergarten were: April Hill, Samuel Canterbury, Emilio Rinche, Jr., Donna White, Joe Guerrero, Nathan Taggart and Danny Adams.

Donna White received a gift for keeping her material the neatest for the year. Nathan Taggart entertained with a special number on the guitar.

After the program refreshments were served to everyone.

Karen Bracht Is Honored

Guests at the luncheon included Karen Bracht, Mrs. James Bracht, Mrs. Greg Stephens, Mrs. Alan Bracht, Beverly Barnard, Pat Brown, Beth Evans, Jo Ann Freeborn, Pat Stevens and Joan Wesch.

Local Youths Get Degrees

Jonathan and Jeffrey Teague of Rockport were among the twenty-three seniors receiving Bachelor of Arts degrees from President Richard D. Weigle at Commencement exercises at St. John's College in Santa Fe, New Mexico on Sunday, May 18. Jonathan received his degree magna cum laude.

This was the eighth commencement on the New Mexico campus in the two hundred and seventy-ninth year of the College. St. John's, which is non-sectarian and co-educational, is the third oldest college in the United States, the Annapolis, Maryland campus having been founded in 1696. There are no departments and no majors and all students pursue a single four year course of study. The lecture system has been largely replaced by seminars, tutorials in language and mathematics, laboratory periods, a Friday evening lecture series, and tutorials in music during the sophomore year.

R.H. WARNE DIES

Robert Harold Warne, 52, a native of Zanesville, Ohio, and resident of Rockport for five years, died May 20 at his residence.

New flu vaccines are safer than ever. But natural immunity is better for most people and longer lasting, say doctors.

Who says pediatricians are just for babies? Many teenagers prefer to stay, during these sensitive years, with the doctors they know. And many pediatricians are well attuned to teens and their special needs.

A University of California coffee study indicates that people who drink two or more cups a day have a 72% greater chance of developing ulcers. And a cigarette with coffee -- wow!

A general discussion at a meeting of this committee indicated that annual gifts to such organizations as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, American Cancer Society (local chapter), two polio drives and similar campaigns took in about $10,000 per year and, generally speaking, the same people contributed to each drive.

"Follow That Car!"

Suppose a policeman jumps into the back seat of your automobile and shouts:

"Follow that car!"

Are you obliged to obey? Generally speaking, you are indeed. Under the ancient "hue and cry" doctrine of the common law, an officer may commandeer any vehicle that he needs to catch a fleeing felon.

As Judge Benjamin Cardozo once put it:

"The horse has yielded to the motorcar as an instrument of pursuit and flight. Still, as in the days of Edward I, the citizenry may be called upon to enforce justice, not faintly and with lagging steps but honestly and bravely and with whatever implements and facilities are at hand."

You may even be obliged to help in making the actual arrest (at least, say some states, if you are an "able-bodied male over 18 years of age"). To refuse, without good reason, could make you guilty of a misdemeanor.

On the other hand, in the event that you do lend a hand, the community owes you certain legal benefits in return.

For example:

A man was called upon by the sheriff to help in arresting an armed fugitive. In the ensuing gunplay, he suffered a bullet wound in the shoulder.

He was therefore entitled, a court ruled afterward, to collect workmen's compensation—just like any county employee injured in the line of duty.

In another case, a clerk in a store helped a policeman make an arrest that turned out to be an error. In short order, the clerk found himself facing a damage suit for "false arrest."

But the court held him not liable. The court said making him pay damages for an innocent mistake, in no way his fault, would be shabby thanks from society to a good citizen.

Celebrity Parade
BY CATHY POST FIELD

I've got a bet going. Wasn't John Wayne the first movie star to enlist during World War II, and didn't he win many honors? C. Biggs, Brentwood, Calif.

Neither John Wayne nor any of his sons has ever been in the service of our country. James Stewart was the first star to join up. He rose to Brig. Gen. in the Air Force and received the U.S. Distinguished Service Medal and Croix de Guerre (from France).

I caught the Dave Brubeck Quartet recently and noted the name of three in his group was Brubeck? Did they adopt his last name or are they related? D. Close, Jones, Kan.

The famed jazzman has three sons, Darius, 27, Chris, 22, and Dan, 19, playing with him. He admits the combo isn't as potent as the group he had back in 1960, but their popularity is growing "and we're having a damn good time together," he adds.

Could you tell me if George Abbott, the famed Broadway producer is still alive? C. Cowan, Reno, Nev.

Very much so. Abbott, who'll be 88 on June 25, is currently writing the book and will do the staging for "Music Is". It will be the 17th show with which he has been associated as either an actor, author, director or producer.

As a child I recall reading about all the beautiful stars Cesar Romero dated? Did he ever marry one or is he still single? J. Gonzales, Metairie, La.

Cesar never married and is known as Hollywood's perennial bachelor. He says he's never married because "I like different things in different women." He's as popular as ever with the ladies and is still called upon by many to be a courtly escort. His 40 years in the business have taken him to locations all over the world. "So maybe it's as well I didn't have a family and become an absentee father," Cesar adds.

Would you ask Deborah Kerr, who has always had the "Perfect Lady" image both on and off screen how she feels about the label? G. Cowles, Metcalf, Ga.

"Well, it's served me in good stead," she laughs. "But my idea of a lady is different from what the word means in America. Here it means you're a bit of a prude. I believe a lady can smoke, drink and swear, and still be a lady. Some of the nicest ladies I know have the foulest tongues."

Is it true that Alan Alda is related to actor Robert Alda who starred on Broadway years ago in "Guys and Dolls"? If so, is his father pleased his son followed in his footsteps? G. Joyce, Galveston, Tex.

Alan is indeed Robert Alda's son. Alda senior is now proud of Alan, but he did not encourage him to be an actor. In fact, he insisted he go to college. Alan deliberately flunked his chemistry exam in a pre-med course at Fordham University so he could go into show business.

'n things

by

The extension biologist service, started in September 1973 by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, is getting to be a popular program.

This service utilizes five wildlife biologists, stationed at strategic locations around the state, to provide technical assistance to landowners who are interested in making better wildlife habitat on their lands. Sportsmen who have leased the hunting rights on ranches also utilize the expertise of these biologists in determining such things as proper harvest quotas. This is especially true of companies who have long-term leases where they take their guests to hunt. They are interested in maintaining good hunting over the years.

The assistance furnished by these men takes many forms. Ranchers who plan to do some brush clearing on their ranches to provide better grazing often ask the help of one of these extension biologists. Incorrectly done, this brush clearing can ruin the land as habitat for many kinds of game birds and animals. When done correctly it can remain good wildlife country and still provide better grazing.

Some ranchers have demonstrated that they are willing to furnish a helicopter and pilot to fly the biologist in an aerial survey of their ranch, or to conduct a census of game. In this way the biologist can see exactly what there is in the way of habitat, or he can make rather detailed harvest recommendations.

It might be that the landowner has a small place where he is interested in having more quail. The biologist, after surveying the place, will draw up a plan which includes every feasible improvement of the land as quail habitat. From this written plan the landowner can set out to improve his land, either all at once or as he can afford it.

These men also conduct seminars, where they discuss game management as a routine part of ranch operations. These seminars, initially set up by the biologists, have become so popular that now they are being requested by the ranchers who make arrangements for the meeting place, issue the invitations, and handle all the other administrative details. Not long ago one of the biologists was asked to conduct a seminar in Austin for a state-wide meeting of the Texas Cattlemen's Association.

If you have some land, or know someone who has, that needs to be improved to make it a more productive tract for wildlife, contact one of these men:

George W. Litton, Box 153, Sweetwater, Texas 79556.

Tommy L. Hailey, Ivan Star Route, Breckenridge, Texas 76024.

Jimmy R. May, Route 10, Box 532, Tyler, Texas 75701.

Dennis L. Brown, 1702 Airline, Victoria, Texas 77901.

Murphy E. Ray, Jr., 17 Fenwick, Laredo, Texas 78040.

These are highly trained biologists who were picked for this job because they were eminently qualified in all phases of wildlife management. Their only job is to assist anyone who is interested in producing more wildlife.

AARP Dance Big Success

On May 21 the Recreation Building at the airport was the scene of one of the liveliest parties for Senior Citizens that has been sponsored by AARP. Over 50 couples assembled at 7 p.m. and had a real ball dancing to the music supplied by Gene Rickles and his fine musical equipment. The floor was filled almost to capacity for each dance.

This dance was sponsored by the entertainment committee of A.A.R.P. with Mrs. Irene Hopper as chairman. She was assisted by several members of the organization who helped in the selection of the prize-winning dances and the refreshments of punch, cookies and coffee.

Present were Clara and Ted Olson, who are king and queen of the Golden Age Club in Corpus Christi; Mrs. Edna Koonze, Corpus Christi, president of La Armada Recreation Hall, and all other officers but one; Paul Moran, president of the Saturday Night Dance Club in Corpus Christi which is associated with several other clubs also; Marvin C. Adudell and wife, Mari, president of Portland Senior Citizens Recreation Club. There were a number of members from all these clubs who also came with the above officers and they helped make a very nice crowd. Everyone had fun.

Next dance has been scheduled for same place on the 11th of June at 7 p.m. with Gene Rickles coming back with his music. So keep this date in mind.

RECEIVES DEGREE

Texas Taxes

By BOB BULLOCK
State Comptroller

Austin—Common sense is one of the least expensive things around, and government should use more of it.

That is exactly what we are trying to do with tax collecting in the Comptroller's Department. The sales tax particularly is an area where common sense should come into play.

One significant improvement we have made in sales tax handling is to clear up the very unfair bond situation which had been giving many businesses fits for the past year.

The problem was that the previous administration required existing businesses to post bonds whenever the business underwent any technical change in legal status such as a small business incorporating or a single ownership becoming a partnership.

Common sense should dictate that something as simple as a name change doesn't affect a business' taxpaying trustworthiness topside nor bottom when there hasn't been any substantial change in ownership and management. Therefore, I decided we should take into account a business' previous taxpaying record before deciding whether or not to require a bond.

That's the system we are using now. Businesses who think they may have been unfairly required to post bond during the past year should contact their nearest field office of the Comptroller's Department.

We have also recently put a stop to what had been arbitrary and mistaken enforcement of sales tax on food sold under certain conditions by such groups as volunteer firemen's associations and similar civic groups.

To be nontaxable it is necessary that the food sale--such as a pancake supper--is not professionally catered, is not held in a commercial business place such as a restaurant or hotel and is not a regular affair (again, common sense tells us that once or twice a year is not "regular").

Past enforcement of such food sales was a hit-and-miss proposition so in cutting it out altogether the state won't be losing any great amount of money.

As hard as we try to use common sense, sometimes we just get boxed in by things beyond our control.

The recent problems the Camp Fire Girls have had with the sales tax is a good example. The Camp Fire Girls Council of Fort Worth is now going to court with it because they think it is wrong for the candy they sell to be taxable while cookies sold by the Girl Scouts are nontaxable.

I agree that it's wrong and I would like to do something about it but my hands are tied by the law. The sales tax law passed by the Legislature specifically spells out that candy is taxable, so I have no alternative but to enforce it. On the other hand, cookies are not mentioned so they are considered tax free food.

The Camp Fire Girls, besides going to court, are rightly asking the Legislature to change the law. I hope it is changed--and if the Camp Fire Girls are as good at selling this idea as they are at selling candy, I think it will be.

Incidentally, the Fort Worth Council is the only Council in the state which hasn't regularly collected and sent in its sales tax over the past several years.

Common sense in sales tax enforcement is critical because the sales tax is the single largest source of state revenue and is a major source of revenue for more than 800 of our cities.

Lamar News

The Lamar Woman's Club had their annual "Family Night" on May 22, and it was a great success.

With forty-four in the party, a moonlight ride on the "Whooping Crane" was enjoyed by everyone.

A fried chicken box dinner was served and termed delicious by everyone.

Hostesses for the boat trip were Mrs. J.B. Greeson, Mrs. W.D. Heldenfels, Sr., Mrs. Allen DuBose and Mrs. L.A. Hagy.

Buying Baby's First Shoes

College Station -- Many mothers may wonder just exactly when a baby needs his first pair of shoes.

Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist, pointed out that hard soled shoes aren't really needed until a baby is truly walking.

"Shoes for the crawler or just learning-to-stand baby should be primarily for protection from hard floors," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System, said.

"One of the most important facts to remember is never to hand down shoes from one child to another--even if the shoes look new. After a shoe has been worn, it conforms to the shape of the original wearer's foot, and that's why it should never be worn by another child," she explained.

Even soft-soled foot protection such as socks, booties, or footed-pajamas can restrict a baby's foot growth if they are too short or tight, according to this specialist.

"A baby's feet grow rapidly in size, though full development takes years. So it's best to check the baby's or toddler's shoes once a month to make sure they haven't been outgrown," Miss Vanderpoorten advised.

SOCIAL SECURITY REPRESENTATIVE TO VISIT ROCKPORT

A representative of the Social Security Administration will be at the Courthouse in Rockport on Tuesday, June 3, at 9:00 a.m.

You may obtain information about your rights and duties under the Social Security Act. Eligible persons can secure assistance in applying for old-age, survivors, or disability insurance payments, and for Medicare benefits, from the representative at that time.

MOTHER GOOSE LAND GRADUATION HELD

Mother Goose Land personnel submitted the following information regarding graduation:

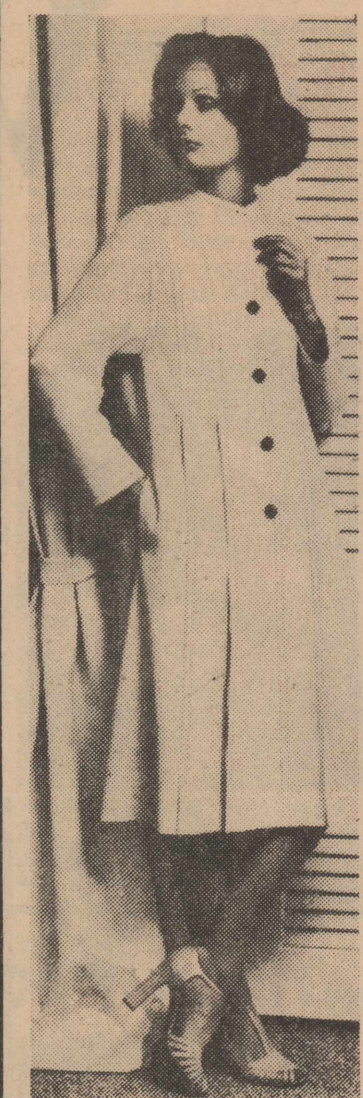

"Our country is in its Bicentennial year so we chose our graduation program theme to help celebrate our country's birthday.

"Twenty-four children participated in the 'Salute to our Country' which consisted of Columbus, Pilgrims, Indians, pioneers, minute men, George Washington, Martha Washington, Betsy Ross and Abraham Lincoln.

"Songs and poems were acted out by the children fully dressed in bright costumes. A short intermission was given while the '1775 graduates' changed into their clothes with white graduation caps to march down the aisle to the tune of the "Freedom Song" to receive their diplomas from their teacher, Mrs. Pat Martin.

"The graduates were Stacy Edwards, Tommy Ormand, Cindy Ochoa, Jimmy Don Wright, Tracy Kinsel, Steven Sbrusch, Paula Sawyer, Michael Shirley and Dawn Hughes.

"The program brought tears and laughter to the audience as they enjoyed their children Friday night, May 23, at the Parish Hall. Mrs. Jean Olenich, Miss Diana Benavidez and Mrs. Pat Martin all gave the graduates a farewell into another phase of their life--our future Americans."

DEPARTING from the uniform look to fashionable coattresses for employees, Helena Rubenstein department store personnel will wear this "fashion white" creation by British designer Jean Muir. Made of ivory gabardine, it features chocolate brown stitching, drop shoulders, hidden seam pockets and a mock turtleneck.

PORTS OF CALL

... For Travel And Adventure

By Edward H. Sims

For those who like to study old battlefields, or just ride among them, the next few months are the best of the year. And of all the wars Americans have fought none compares in interest, pathos or nostalgia with the War Between The States.

When visiting battlefields now stilled but which roared with life and death a hundred years ago, it should be remembered that the great battles were fought in summer in those days. It was impossible, in winter weather, to move supplies and big guns and wagons.

The campaigning season usually began in April or May, depending on the severity of the winter and spring's rains, and the great field battles almost invariably took place in summer. Gettysburg came on July 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Antietam came in late summer, on September 17th, 1862.

Vicksburg fell July 4th, 1863. Other battles which still stir emotions over a hundred years later dot the Virginia countryside all the way from Fredericksburg to Richmond and especially too, in the Shenandoah Valley. And if one would visit Appomatox, where it finally ended on April 9th, 1865, that is a bit further south, in Virginia.

At Gettysburg and at many other battle sites there are national parks. At others there are state parks or parks. One can see the reconstruction of the Battle of Atlanta in Atlanta and can stand on the mountains guarding Chattanooga and see where the Confederate lines finally broke in 1863.

In Maryland, at Antietam, one can visit the scene of the war's most bloody battle, preserved just as it was for more than a hundred years. That battle was one of the most decisive of the war for it ended Lee's first invasion of the North.

The Confederate Commander had divided his army to capture Harper's Ferry and its 11,000 troops and stores (which he did) but in the dangerous process of division a copy of his exact orders and plans was lost--and found by Union troops who rushed it to General George McClellan.

McClellan moved and in the first skirmish defeated Lee's half of the Confederate Army.

Frederick is the little town one visits to view Antietam's battlefield. The local gentry have guarded the site with care. The same can be said for battlefields, at Fredericksburg Virginia, and at Richmond, Petersburg and many other Virginia sites.

Advantages Offered by Veterans Group Life Insurance

Less than 120 days remain for veterans discharged since 1970 to take advantage of the new low-cost Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI). Applications and first premium must be received before August 2, 1975.

Veterans Administration Regional Office Director A.A. Hunter issued the reminder April 3, and it applies to all veterans who were discharged between April 3, 1970 and August 1, 1974.

The new program offers up to $20,000 for a monthly premium of only $3.40 for veterans under 35, and for those 35 and over, the maximum coverage is $6.80 per month. It is a non-renewable policy designed as interim protection during readjustment to civilian life, Mr. Hunter explained.

Another important advantage of buying VGLI, Hunter pointed out, is that it reinstates the veteran's right to convert his Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Policy to an individual policy at standard rates regardless of his health or physical condition. Normally, this privilege terminates 120 days after discharge. Those covered by VGLI can convert on termination of the five year VGLI policy.

A pamphlet prepared by the VA insurance center in Philadelphia gives complete information on the program. The pamphlet and application forms can be obtained from local VA offices or by writing - Office of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance, 212 Washington Street, Newark, N.J. 07102.

Fix-It Tip

When your floor squeaks, understanding how a floor is constructed will help you understand the repair procedures. The floor consists of two parts - a subfloor of wide boards that are nailed to the joists and, on top of this, a finished floor made of narrow strips of hardwood. Joists are wood beams that support the floor.

If the squeaking is slight you might be able to slam the floor back to where it belongs. Use a block of wood (to protect the floor) and a hammer and pound the boards wherever they squeak. Often this will reset the original nails.

ART DECO STYLE MODERNE OF THE TWENTIES

Buffet and Base (walnut and oak), American, 1927. Designer: Eugene Schoen.

Art Deco has been coming back since the mid-sixties and may be considered the art fad of the seventies, by many. There is a knowledgeable group, however, who are assessing the "tour de force" of the twenties as one of the serious art movements of the century. Specialty shops, galleries and individual collectors have been scrambling for objects in this highly decorative form of Style Moderne. Art Deco takes its name from the 1925 Paris exposition, L'Exposition Internationale des Arts Decoratifs et Industriels Modernes. The comeback of this Jazz Age fusion of arts, crafts and industrial know-how gained respectability about the time a major museum, The Minneapolis Institute of Arts, held the first retrospective show in 1971. (The University of Southern California had an exhibit in 1969.)

Paris Art Deco was a definite break with the fussy style of the Edwardian era. Over-stuffed furniture was replaced by the simply elegant furniture designs of Jacques-Emile Ruhlmann who decorated the French Line's Ile de France. Influenced by cubism, Jean Puiforcat crafted handsome, squared silver services which are prized examples of Art Deco. Rene Lalique, renowned for his frosted glass, created crystal eagles as gifts for Adolf Hitler to give his marshals. These elegant glass birds decorated the radiator caps of a chosen few Mercedes-Benz limousines in the heyday of the Third Reich. The Brooklyn Museum recently acquired the study of Mr.

and Mrs. Raymond Worgelt—an Art Deco masterpiece—created, in toto, in Paris in 1928.

Although the Art Deco movement began in Paris, as did almost every other movement in the twenties, it quickly spread and the modern look permeated every facet of life—from toasters to skyscrapers. Bookends, appliances, vases, paintings, radios, jewelry and hundreds of other items exemplified or imitated the geometric or curvilinear suavity that was Style Moderne. The look of burnished and brushed steel and aluminum were startlingly new but the designs recalled basic pyramidal designs of ancient Egypt and Assyria and the beautiful geometry of primitive Indian shapes.

Architecturally speaking, Art Deco may be the youngest decorative style to suffer significant losses at the hands of demolition crews. The Chrysler Building, San Francisco's Sutter Building, Rockefeller Center, Radio City Music Hall, The Empire State Building and the Cincinnati Union Terminal Building (demolished) are examples of this style. Art Deco style buildings, until recently, have been fair game for the wrecking ball. Now efforts are being made, through landmark commissions, to preserve these fine examples of another era in the history of art and design.

BEWARE OF POISON IVY

"You're gonna need an ocean... of calamine lotion. You'll be scratchin' like a hound... the minute you start to mess around... with Poison Ivy..." or so go the lyrics of a 1950's song appropriately titled, "Poison Ivy."

You may have handled poison ivy last year and escaped without an itch, but don't press your luck. No one is permanently immune to poison ivy, oak or sumac.

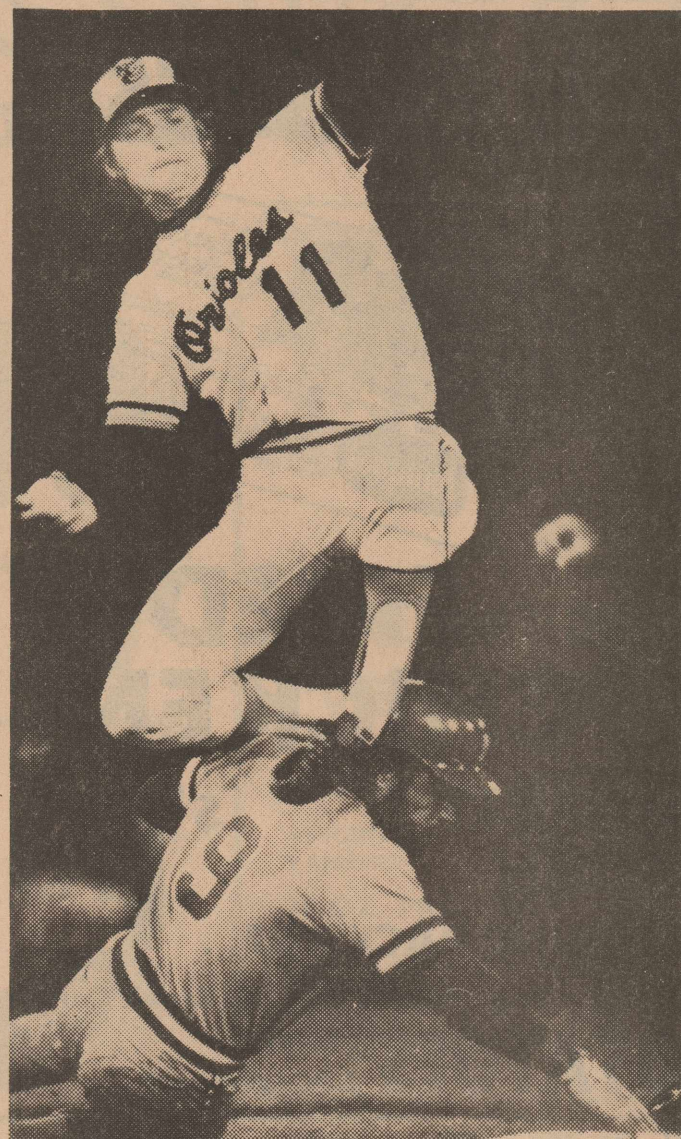

The Texas Medical Association reminds that your next meeting with this pesky plant could take place in your own yard, as well as in the woods and fields. Poison ivy, poison oak, and sumac have appeared in city gardens and have been known to form beautiful growths up the sides of houses. But beware and don't touch. Poisonous oils from these plants can also come your way in the smoke from a neighbor's burning trash or on your dog's coat.

If you are able to detect poison plants, you can often avoid them. Poison ivy and its close kin, poison oak, are three-leaved plants which may grow as low bushes or climbing vines. They may be mixed with honeysuckle and other climbers. Poison sumac, an eastern swamp plant with seven to thirteen leaflets and small white berries, usually grows as a shrub.

If you even suspect that you have been exposed, wash thoroughly all affected areas with warm water and soap. Sponge with a strong alcohol solution. Using rubber gloves, clean your clothes in an oil solvent and soapy water.

Ivy, oak and sumac poisoning start with itching and redness within a few hours to several days after exposure. Then watery blisters appear. There is no cure for the "big itch". But wet dressings of boric acid or Epsom salts solution bring some relief. Calamine lotion also reduces itching. If the inflammation is extensive, it is best to call your physician.

If you know that you will be near poison plants or working with them, have your druggist prepare a 10 percent sodium perborate ointment and apply this on exposed skin. After contact with the plant, wash off the ointment and wash all you clothing—even your shoelaces.

OUT BUT NOT down, Pedro Garcia of the Brewers is tagged at second but prevents Orioles' Doug DeCinces from making a double play by upsetting the second baseman during their recent game.
