Mrs. R. L. McKnight Chairman Committee To Select Song From This Senatorial District In Texas Song Contest

Mrs. R. L. McKnight has received a letter informing her that she is chairman of the committee to select a song from this senatorial district to be submitted in the state contest for a Texas song, and September 1 has been set as the date for final judging.

In an effort to choose a song for the state, committees have been named in each senatorial district of Texas, and one song will be selected in each district to compete in a state contest at Austin this fall. The rules and regulations for contestants have not been received by Mrs. McKnight, but it is thought that one stipulation will be that those submitting songs must have been residents of Texas for the last five years. One may submit either words or music or both.

Other members of the committee with Mrs. McKnight are Mrs. R. W. Davidson of Plainview, Prof. C. W. Owsen of the Crosbyton city schools, Superintendent H. R. Winton of Brownfield, J. Ross Bell, president of the Paducah Rotary club, Senator W. H. Blodgett is in contact with the committee.

Each member of the committee is to receive entries and the group is to meet here on September 1 to make a selection, Mrs. McKnight said.

It's Hard To Gown The Fuller Chicly But You Can Do It If You Watch Lines, Designs And Colors

By HENRI BENDEL
For NEA Service
NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—This is undoubtedly the age of youth. That being the case, certain types of women have their own troubles in finding suitable apparel.

First and foremost come those older women, the ones who, as they approach the middle years, incline to stoutness. What shall they choose in this day of flat flippers, that will give them the dignified appearance they require, and still bear some semblance to the straight line silhouette?

In the first place let them choose dark colors. When fashioning a street dress for a fuller figure, select blue or black in preference to reds, yellows, or other gay colors, and I select cream georgette lace, instead of flesh or white to fashion her party frock.

Slenderizing Lines
Secondly, all emphasis in trimmings should be vertical. Tucks, ruffles and flounces, pointed yokes excel round square ones. Jackets or trimmings, when possible, should have pointed ends.

Thirdly, contrasting material, when introduced should inevitably fashion a panel from neck to hem line or in some way break the width, never in length. And all over figured materials should ever be the smallest patterned type—not the splashy flowers that tend to emphasize size.

Fourthly, one-piece models are slenderized effects achieved by three different methods: (left) by tailored chic in a café au lait chiffon; (center) by a coat dress designed with contrasting collar and revers and (right) by dark color, in a navy georgette with distinctive white touches.

The best I show today 'some of my most successful interpretations of slenderizing styles for the more mature figure.

The first is a dressy frock, one that owes its slenderizing effects to the manner in which hand tailoring perfects sheer chiffon. It just in the best tailored looking. Yet it relies entirely on tiny hand tucked design for trimming.

Brown chiffon fashions it, that becoming café au lait light shade, and its entire waist is tucked. The sleeves, too, to form a generous puff at the elbow, while a light cut counterpane any tendency the puff might have to suggest size.

Smart tucks scathe the hip line with their fullness rippled out in front to form an effective cascade. The belt is finished with a rhine stone buckle which dresses up the frock with its sparkling chic.

French Touch
A Belted hat in pink and red gives a distinctly French touch to the costume.

Next I show a dark georgette frock for street wear. It is a navy Molynex creation, effectively trimmed with white. Fullness is achieved by inverted pleats at front and both sides which are inserted where the pointed hem line turns up. The pointed way to chic is also sponsored by the add little white yoke, the white cuffs and the white tipped ends of the scarf which is a caplet in the back. The slightly bloused bodice of this frock is held in place by a silken corded belt which ends in a small sash on the left hip.

Pearls of course enhance a dark costume that features white trimming. And a sheer hat with a touch feather ornament gives a definiteness to the frock that a fuller figure appreciates.

Becoming Coat Dress
The third I display today is, in my opinion, the epitome of success for this special type of woman. For it is a coat dress. And the coat dress can give dignity and svelteness more easily than any other style.

Vinnet designed it, using black flat crepe in a heavy, luxurious quality. Most ingeniously does his deep collar fold into graceful revers that fall away to display a vestee of crepe with a tiny touch of Benz colored lace.

The tan flat crepe skirts the entire front width of the skirt and the sash that ties the frock shut. The back and front widths of this costume are fitted snugly to the hips, in order to give a slight blouse to the top. The sleeves are plainly tailored.

Because this coat dress does slenderize its wearer, she can choose a small hat. But most women whose figures incline to fullness should invariably choose a hat with a bit of brim.

The case had been pending for several months. All the testimony had been heard before a referee. The settlement of forty cents on the dollar was accepted by all the creditors. FOUR HOME RUNS WIN FOR CARDINALS AS OTHERS ARE HELD IDLE

CUBS NOW HOLD SLIGHT MARGIN ON TOP BERTH

PIRATES MEET BRAVES WHILE PHILS TANGLE WITH CUBS TODAY

(By Associated Press)

Four home runs in one game by the St. Louis Cardinals have impressed fans with the fact that the world's champions are still in the race for the National league championship. By knocking out a 12 to 1 victory over Philadelphia yesterday, Bob O'Farrell's Red Sox moved within three games of the leading Chicago Cubs. It was the only game played in the major leagues the two other contests on the schedule being rained out.

Three homers in fifth inning, Blades, Huffy, Sherdel and Schuler hit for the circuit and three of these drives came in the fifth inning. Two men were on the bases when Huffy and Schuler connected. St. Louis put over eight runs in the fifth frame, driving Jack Scott off the mound and continuing the attack on Decatur, his successor.

In the National league Chicago and Pittsburgh play double headed, the Cubs tangle with the Phillies and the Pirates tackling the Braves. A double defeat for the Cubs and a brace of wins for the Pirates will put the Pittsburghers to within one half game of the top. A twin defeat for Pittsburgh will put the St. Louis Cardinals in second place by one half game.

Cards Get Real Test

St. Louis will get a real test when the team starts its next series against the Giants in New York. McGraw's club, five games out of first place, must carry the series if it is to retrieve ground lost earlier in the season. The Giants have won 19 out of their last 23 games. While the remainder of the schedule would appear to favor St. Louis, Chicago and Pittsburgh over the Giants, since New York leaves the Polo grounds September 5 for a long road trip, it may work to the advantage of McGraw's club. Pittsburgh has fewer games with first division teams, with only 11 scheduled against Chicago, St. Louis and New York. Chicago, winding up at home, must face first division teams 21 times, while the Giants meet their strongest competitors 18 times. St. Louis has 21 games with second division clubs and 13 with those of first division. St. Louis must play the Giants seven times, and they have two more with Pittsburgh and nine more with the Cubs.

Cubs Off Balance

Although the Cubs appear to be temporarily off balance, they are the only club that has not fallen into the periodic slumps. Barring their latest victory, they have not had a losing streak of 11 days ago, the Cubs have played fairly consistent ball all along.

Three Castoffs Supply Batting Punch As Cubs Drive Merrily On To The Championship Of National League

These three cast-offs are the run-producers for the Chicago Cubs. They are Hack Wilson, Earl Webb and Riggs Stephenson. They are the regular outfielders. Each failed to make good with another major league club prior to joining the Cubs. But their big bats are booming now—and how timely!

Strategy Failed In This Case As Records Indicate

Perfectly proper managerial strategy doesn't always work out as planned.

Recently Manager Donie Bush of the Pittsburgh club was the victim of such a happening in a game with Chicago, that sent the Pirates into second place after leading the National League for weeks.

Here is the way the stage was set:

Hal Carlson of the Chicago Cubs opposed Joe Dawson of the Pirates. It was a pitcher's battle worthy of the old days. When Pittsburgh went to bat for the last half of the eighth, the score was 2-1 in favor of Chicago.

Unless Pittsburgh could score a run to tie the score, the fine pitching of Dawson would be wasted. So when it came Dawson's turn at bat in that season, Manager Bush did the only proper thing under the circumstances, sent in a pinch hitter, who failed to come through.

This necessitated a relief pitcher for Dawson and once again, very properly, Manager Bush sent in one of his ace, Carmen Hill, to hold the Cubs, hoping Pittsburgh would be able to do something in the last of the ninth.

Unfortunately for Bush's very excellent judgment, Hill failed to hold Chicago, that team making two runs off the bespeckled pitcher. That made it 4-1 against the Pirates. In the last of the ninth Pittsburgh put over a run and had a man on third with only one out, when rain ended the game.

This made the score revert back to even innings, Chicago winning the game 2-1 and first place in the race. Had Dawson continued in the game and held the Cubs in the ninth or had Hill been equal to it, thereby keeping the Cub's total to two, the run scored by Pittsburgh in the ninth under those conditions would have counted and the game would have been a tie.

Thus the best of managerial strategy simply resulted in a costly defeat.

CHAPMAN MAY BE CHAMPION OF FEATHERS

HARD WORKER TO HAVE HIS CHANCE IN GO WITH CANZONERI

By JIMMY POWERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The long, long trail has finally come to an end for Red Chapman—maybe.

If ever one fighter has had to face the alternate heights of supreme joy and darkest despair it has been this earnest, good natured, serious eyed young nosebuster from Boston.

All his life he has yearned to be a champion. Long hard hours he spent perspiring in dank gymnasiums, puffing, tugging, punching, grunting, taking punishing blows, depriving himself of soft foods and softer life, just to attain the blue-toga.

Twice he has matched with the current king, Louis (Kid) Kaplan. Twice the money ran out on him. Only a month ago this writer came across him. His face was wreathed in smiles. He was clipping a punching bag right merrily, the rattat-tat of the leather and wood sending a gay tune that echoed in the camp rafters.

Chapman got "hot now" he grinned. It's Honey-boy Finnigan.

But that too faded like the rest.

Now the New York boxing commission has taken a hand and shifted the clutch that started its ponderous gears into action. A new featherweight champion will be crowned on the night of September 7 at Ebbets field here, the commission has decreed, when one Anthony Canzoneri of New York and our old pal, Chapman of the Boston Cardinals, engage in 15 rounds of fist-fuffs.

The commission has duly decided that after all is said and done the winner will positively be made featherweight champion.

Even the august commission has finally come of the opinion that the young man is willing to make any sacrifice to prove his ability.

Chapman and Benny Bass met at Madison Square Garden last winter in an elimination bout. Bass, who is seriously addicted to recurring tummyaches, fell to the floor in the second round and hollered all sorts of things, among which the word "foul" appeared in anguished succession. He has since refused to meet Mr. Chapman again.

Johnny Dundee, former champion, applied for permission to box Chapman who was willing to recognize the veteran's claim on the title and accept a small percentage. When the time came to sign the papers, Dundee changed his mind.

The commission wanted Bass to go in against Chapman for the title but Mr. Bass had another bad tummyache at the time and refused. So Canzoneri took him on.

Canzoneri fills all requirements. He is one of the best junior featherweights in the ring today and only recently hooked up to the Chicago title with Bud Taylor for the heavyweight. Canzoneri can still make 115 pounds (he says) and hopes to get Taylor again next winter over the 16-round mark in New York. Meanwhile he is getting heavier.

If Canzoneri beats Chapman he will have to confine his boxing to the featherweight class if he can not get another crack at Taylor.

Wanta Pass?

She knows her fight game, this Miss Naoma Lewensohn, secretary to Tex Rickard, and if you don't believe us, try to get a pass from her to the Tunney-Dempsey fight in Chicago. She's in the Windy City now to take care of more than a million dollars in receipts involving sale of 150,000 tickets to the fight.

JONES FIGHTS HARD BUT WINS TODAY'S MATCH

LOSES WIZARDRY TAKES 78 AFTER BEING ONE DOWN AT TURN

(By Associated Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 24.—Bobby Jones had to fight hard to win in his first round match today and survived for the title struggle in the national amateur golf championship, as George Van Elm did to survive the qualifying round yesterday.

He lost the wizardry that got him a 67 yesterday and when he slumped to a 78, taking 46 on the first nine, while Maurice McCarthy of New York was scoring better until the last three holes, he had to battle for his golfing life. The Atlanta was one down at the turn and after halving the next six holes was still one down and three to go.

There McCarthy faltered in his giant killing expedition and took one above par on each of the next three holes, while Bobby settled down to perfect golf and won all three to finish two up.

Gene Homans, New York, defeated Frank Dolph, Seattle, 5 and 4.

Don Carvick, Canadian champion, defeated Art Sweet, Chicago, 2 and 1 after having a much larger lead for a time.

Allen Moser, Los Angeles, defeated Dave Ward, Grand Rapids, one up.

Arthur Yates, Rochester, defeated Paul Haviland, Bridgeport, Connecticut up.

Phillip Finlay of New York, defeated Dr. O. P. Willing of Portland, 4 and 3.

Jimmy Johnston defeated Dick Jones, New York, 4 and 2.

Max Marston, Philadelphia, defeated Denmore Shute, Huntington, 4 and 2.

Clyark Car, Philadelphia, defeated George Rotan, one up.

Van Elm defending champion came through his first match round by defeating John McKinley, Jr. of Chicago, 2 and 2.

Harry Legg of Minneapolis defeated Rudy Knepper, of Chicago 2 and 2, and will meet Van Elm in the second round.

Roland MacKenzie, Washington defeated George Thomas, Chicago, in 19 holes.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 24 (AP)—Petitions to place the name of United States Senator George Norris on the republican presidential preference ballot in Nebraska will be filed with the secretary of state, it was announced today by C. A. Stoverson, Lincoln attorney.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre At Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Weyl's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Break for Robertson

Billy Evans Says:

Gene Robertson is to come back to the big show as a member of the New York Yankees. That's a mighty good break for him.

Let you have forgotten, Gene Robertson, after serving a half dozen years as a member of the St. Louis Browns, passed on to the minors last winter via the waiver route.

In the spring, as I watched the 16 major league clubs prepare for the season, I couldn't help but wonder why Robertson was ever waived out of the majors. It struck me that a majority of the clubs could have used so capable a player, the St. Louis Browns in particular, the team that had sent him on to the bushes.

I expressed myself very forcibly on that point but the ways of baseball are often mysterious. Incidentally I ventured the opinion that in the fall some club that had passed him up for the waiver price would be paying a fancy sum for his services.

Unable to play any position in the infield, also do a turn in the outfield and boasting a big league batting average of .289, there wasn't a chance for Robertson to remain long in the minors.

Best in That League

About a month ago I bumped into four of the American association umpires. In Chicago on an off day they journeyed out to Comiskey park to see athletes and arbitrators in action.

In discussing conditions in the association I asked who was the best ball player in the league and in a chorus from the four umpires came the same name.

"Gene Robertson!" He's easily the best ball player in the league. How did he ever get out of the majors?"

I assured them it was tougher than a cross word puzzle for me, for there didn't seem to be any logical way of explaining the deal that caused 15 clubs to waive on so versatile a player.

Umpirical judgment on Robertson has already been vindicated without waiting for the fall sales in baseball. New York has secured his services for three players to be delivered next spring as well as $20,000 in cash.

Manager Miller Huggins is certainly to find Robertson a most valuable player because of his versatility in the field and his ability at the bat. He's a great pinch hitter.

May Explain Release

The only plausible explanation I have ever heard of Robertson's passing from St. Louis has the atmosphere of a farce comedy. I am told it is the truth, but you can take it for what you believe it is worth.

Phil Ball, millionaire owner of the St. Louis Browns, is of the rough and ready type. He has made his way through hard work and earnest effort. He doesn't believe in coddling any one, a ball player least of all.

It seems Gene Robertson liked to have breakfast served in his room.

By Billy Evans

"Power-house baseball" is the way major league players now refer to the style of play so popular. It is just their way of saying brute strength dominates the game.

In the sensational rise of the Chicago Cubs to the top of the National league standing three cast-offs have supplied the power-house methods which, combined with all-right pitching have made the Cubs a strong contender from the start.

The Cubs, by the way, are a most unusual ball club. Of the four clubs conceded to have a chance in the National league it is the hitting aggregation.

Incidentally, the three players who have furnished a goodly portion of the offense, Outfielders Wilson, Webb and Stephenson, have been turned adrift by other major league clubs as lacking big league class.

Just to give some idea of the relative difference in batting between Pittsburgh and Chicago, the two teams fighting each other for the lead, the last time I glanced at the National league averages the Pirates as a team were batting .322 while the mark of the Cubs was 11 points less, or .271.

Outfielders Wilson and Webb, who were both turned down by no less an authority than John McGraw, have contributed the home-run punch that has put the Cubs over in a number of close games.

In the first 72 games Wilson hit 15 homers to lead the league while Webb made 12 in the same number of games.

While Riggs Stephenson, who formerly played with the Cleveland Indians, has made only two home runs, he excels at the bat for the Cubs, with a mark of .338, further proof of the fact that other things aside from power-house baseball have kept the Cubs in the running.

Any critic who insisted the Chicago Cubs play a great ball club would be tempting fate and courtng plenty of criticism, yet it would cause no great surprise in National league quarters if it won the pennant in that organization.

There are no outstanding stars on the club outside of Pitcher Charley Root. The team is just a combination of capable performers who are giving their best efforts at all times.

A Chicago victory in the National league would be extremely popular, since it is nine years since the Cubs won a National league pennant.

Should the Yankees win in the American and Chicago in the National, it would provide a highly colorful series between the two big cities of the country and supply the customary inter-sectional rivalry between the east and west.

The last New York-Chicago world series was staged in 1917, when the Giants represented the National and the White Sox American, the latter winning the title.

WHOLESALE ALL-STARS TO MIX THURSDAY

FIRST OF THREE-PLY SERIES PUT OFF TO TOMORROW

Postponement of the first of a three game series, scheduled to be begun at Merrill park today, between members of the City league champion-Wholesalers and an all-star aggregation, was announced late last night when it became known that Manager O. A. Terry and some of his star players would be out of the city today. The first game of the series will be played tomorrow evening, followed by the other two tilts on Friday and Saturday.

When the rival teams clash Thursday afternoon a fast and hotly contested tilt is expected. "Preacher" Taylor, curve ball ace, will probably take the bill for the wholesalers, hurling his deceptive shots into the big mitt of Herschel Gayley, his regular battery mate. Moody Smith, Banker star, who defeated the Amherst crew here Monday, will be the likely selection for the all-stars with either "Tuba" Niehaus or Higgins behind the log.

Even before these two great merger applications there have been the Lorse application for a merger of southwestern roads, the New York Central application to lease the Michigan Central and the Big Four systems, the Lorse application to lease roads that would create a fifth trunk line in the east.

Industrially, there is rumor of a merger of interests between the General Electric and the Westinghouse Electric companies, and the Baldwin Locomotive works.

The so-called "chain store" movement has swept the country. The chain idea has also spread to the amusement field and moving picture producers, moving picture distributors, vaudeville circuits, and theater owners are now merging into several big strings which may in time dominate entertainment.

All these consolidations—proposed, rejected and completed—show in unmistakable manner that business is feeling its way towards the elimination of wastefulness through costly competition. With propriety at a high level, public fear of the trust and the giant corporation is being replaced by the old dislocation of the Standard Oil and the International Harvester combines—beginning to fade.

Is that banished fear justified? The I. C. C. refused several of the railroad merger proposals on the ground that they were not compatible with public interest. The Federal trade commission has taken a look into the theater and movie combines, and will investigate the steel-motors-du Pont alliance.

The main question to be determined is whether or not the super-big business can behave. It may be organized now with the best of intentions, but, drunk with the power of monopoly, it may fall from grace.

Corporations, like governments, are human. No organization can be better than the human beings who direct it. As the super-human seems a somewhat remote possibility, it is only sound precaution to go slowly before creating any combinations that shall be more powerful than the forces at hand to keep them in the paths of righteousness.

Tardieu is consumed with ambition. He dreams of being premier of France when Poincare gets tired of the job or is hit down by parliament, and then he is probably no better way to win the affections and the votes of his fellow countrymen than to tell the Yankees to their faces that France does not expect to pay us what she owes us.

THE PLAINSMAN

Says: Aimee Semple McPherson, press dispatches report, has been rebuffed in two efforts to gain for herself national-wide publicity at Des Moines, Iowa. The erstwhile evangelist first made an effort to be taken on an airplane ride by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, when the latter spends the day in the Iowa capital. Her request was summarily refused. Then she made application to be placed on the program to address crowds at the state fair on the day that John Phillip Sousa and his band are to play after a hasty conference the committee decided that the day's program was full enough without the aid of Mrs. McPherson. In The Plainsman's opinion the Iowans are showing in no uncertain terms, that Mrs. McPherson is not as important in their opinion as she is in her own estimation. Her attempts to gain personal publicity as radiated from really great individuals are too weak a swallow and she should be made to see, as most of us do, that she's already had too much publicity for her own good.

Dawes Has Chance To Build More Prestige To Aid Him In Presidential Fight, Dutcher Writes In Washington

IN NEW YORK. SEE-SAWING and BROADWAY. NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Young New York takes its love where it finds it.

Having no country lanes to depend upon, finding travel to a park a bit far off times, and the Hudson river walkway being somewhat congested, it invents strange lover's lanes.

The tops of Fifth avenue busses after nightfall provide an exceptionally popular, if precarious, resting place. Oblivious to bumping and lurching, young love carries on blantly, freely and, to some, vulgarly.

Sometimes it is the bench of the subway station, sometimes one of the old fashioned horse driven vehicles of the most crowded corners.

Visitors invariably comment on the open and brazen nature of the leading news event of the day. Now, as is always the case, time has healed the wound. Almanacs released for August, 1927, show August 22 as the first anniversary of Doctor Elliott's death. No mention is made of Valentino, who, in his fairness to him, was just as much of a leader in his line as the distinguished Massachusetts educator was in his. Like the newspapermen in the first place, the almanac publishers are in the right now. Valentino has been practically forgotten. The great constructive writings and work of Doctor Elliott have preserved his greatness.

They tell me that "Jim," Manhattan's oldest cabby, has retired at the ripe age of 82. For many years he was stationed just outside of Central park, refusing to drive in the hurry and scurry of busy traffic. If a fare insisted on going some place other than the park, Jim would refuse to drive. He would not submit his horse to the competition of taxis and the dangers of accidents. A cab held for him a dignity that reflected a dead generation.

In his time Jim had driven the Astors, the Goulds and the Belmonts. Almost every Fifth avenue church displays a sign reading: "Come in and rest."

Several times I have peered within during the height of a day's rush, but few seem to take advantage of the offer.

A constant surprise, however, is to be found in the number of shoppers who attend the "noon prayer services," also held daily in many of the avenue churches. Frequently I have seen the churches more than half filled while the bundles piled upon the pews indicated a busy morning's shopping.

There are "some" New Yorkers who still find time to go to church on days other than Sunday.

HE MEN. Now they are claiming that Lindy does not smoke, chew, dance or attend parties.—Honey Grove Citizen.

But still the young man is a high flier, and he is one of the most talked of youngsters in the country. The report above however we understand has been denied, and that "Lindy" a few days ago "smoked a cigarette," and some of the writers have actually been silly enough to say that Lindy did not want to be a sissy, and that he wanted to be a real "he man" and smoke. Lord help the little smoked brains of some folks. No wonder the little thumb full of substance that occupies the "place" where brains are supposed to be, have been so smoked and baked by the continual use of poison cigarettes, and cigars that they actually think that it is an indication of a real man to smoke. The only thing that we can say for a fellow like that, is that he is sincere in what he thinks, but his thinking is handicapped by the smoke screen that he has laid and he cannot see the real greatness in the man.

We would not go so far as to say that a fellow can't be a real man and smoke, but we would not be fool enough to say that a man cannot be a man and not smoke. We have just little enough sense to believe that a fellow is just a little stronger, just a little better clearer thinker, just a little more gentlemanly if he never smokes his brains with cigarettes and cigars or a pipe for that matter.

If Lindy never smoked till after he had made his famous fly across the pond, we think he is merely showing to the world that his will power is breaking, and that he is not as good a man as he was before he smoked the first cigarette, and instead of us thinking that he is a great "he-man" because he smoked a cigarette, we conclude that he is showing signs of a weakness, and if he yields to one habit he may yield to another, and another till he may yet go down to his grave, a moral and physical wreck. Now do not understand us to say that everyone that smokes and chews tobacco is such. We have known many men who did both that we thought were fine men, but at the same time we have not gotten our consent to believe that they are as good as they would have been had they never touched either.

Biographer Of "Death Valley" Seeking Divorce

(By Associated Press). LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 24.—The name of "Death Valley" Scotty, famous in news and fiction by reason of the mysterious flow of his wealth of gold from his desert, found its way into the court records here today in a divorce-complaint filed by Hans H. Jorgensen against his wife, Mrs. Midge Jorgensen, actress and writer and Scotty's biographer.

Jorgensen declared that when his wife began writing the life of "Death Valley" Scotty she found her work and her subject so enthralling that she refused to return home but preferred to remain on Scotty's death valley estate. Jorgensen decided on Christmas, 1925, to pay a visit to Death Valley home of his wife but he was invited not to come. Instead Scotty sent him a turkey.

Mrs. Jorgensen filed suit for divorce several weeks ago accusing her husband of falsely linking her name with Scotty.

Handclap Call For Pages To Be T

AUSTIN, Aug. 24. (By Associated Press). claps which called pages of house of representatives have frequently were mistaken for applause for some member's speech to be heard no more.

Under authority of the board of control, workmen have started installing electrical devices in the house which will enable each representative to call a page merely by pressing a button.

Three charged with drunkenness and one with fighting were found guilty and fined yesterday afternoon in police court before Sergeant J. T. Immon. The violations yesterday broke a spell of quiet which has dominated the city for almost a month.

Three cases charged with gambling were to come before the court this afternoon for trial.

President Calles issued a statement last night that he does not favor and will not favor any of the presidential candidates in the coming election, neither will he permit the country's money to be spent for political campaigns for anybody.

He declared those co-operating with the executive had agreed to maintain strict neutrality in the present campaign, and he believed their subordinates will act likewise, though, he adds, this does not imply that their political rights are curtailed.

FACILITIES IN HOSPITALS ARE EQUAL TO BEST

Patients Come Here From All Parts of Country

Lubbock is becoming recognized as the hospital center of the Plains territory, and local institutions are expanding facilities to meet the increasing demand. The number of patients coming to this city from all parts of Texas and eastern New Mexico is increasing.

The West Hospital, Lubbock Sanitarium and Edgewood Hospital give all the facilities of a metropolitan city. Plainview, Hale, Abilene, Clovis, Levell, Littlefield, Brownfield, Tahoka, Dalhart, Spur, Coobyton, Floyd, Post, Snyder, Sweetwater, Big Lake, Colorado City and numerous other towns, send patients for special treatment and operations.

Equipped with modern laboratories with a corps of specialists, these institutions are endeavoring to render every service possible to meet the increasing demand. Many nurses trained here, most of whom remain in hospitals. Co-operating with Tech facilities of the institutions have been used for hundreds of students who receive treatment each year.

A survey of the personnel of the hospitals reveals surgeons, physicians and many specialists who are trained under Mayo Brothers, the hospital in St. Louis, Grace hospital in New York, Johns Hopkins, and the leading training institutions of the United States.

Human Driftwood Is Observer Of Crops

HOUSTON, Aug. 24 (AP)—Houston's human driftwood, which usually has an aversion for wood, apparently keeps well informed on crop conditions at the city farm as it relates to the probability of labor under compulsion after being sentenced to that institution. City Commissioner H. A. Halverson reports the cotton crop is a failure this year due to drought on the city farm where 35 prisoners have little to do but bask in the sunshine. Last year with a good crop on the 200 acre farm prisoners averaged only 7 or 8 during the crop season.

Jack Lockwill at Summer Camp

(Creator of Frank Merriwell)

Before turning to swim back across the lake, Jack talked a moment or two with Longpne. "You're a regular fellow, Tom," he said. "Only a thoroughbred would do what you did for a thug who had tried to give him a hiding." "Maybe I saved my cousin from going to prison for murder," returned the Indian boy. "Saunders, his head bandaged, was on the float when Jack reached it.

By Gilbert Patten

"Now you can see what comes from getting chummy with dirty humans, Lockwill," said Buke. Completely disgusted, Jack passed him without replying.

"Oh, you stuck-up snob!" muttered the bully, glaring at Lockwill's back. "I'll knock the high hat off you yet!" Then he went in search of Lizard Wattles.

By Gilbert Patten

But a change had come over Lizard. "I'm through, Buke," he told Saunders. "Lockwill saved me from drowning, and I couldn't be concerned in putting anything over on him after that." "Quitter!" sneered the big fellow. "You better quit too!" snapped Wattles. "You won't have any friends if you don't," Saunders slapped him with the back of his hand, knocking him over.

Cowboy-Peace Officer Shown Here Under Cowmen's Convention Tree

Jules V. Allen, a cowboy, patrolman and border peace officer, who was in Lubbock this morning. This picture was taken in Graham, Texas, under the tree where the first convention of Texas cattlemen was held in 1877, a meeting out of which grew the Texas Cattleman's Association.

Recalling the days when he drove a herd of cattle across the plains of Texas from El Paso to Amarillo, stopping in Lubbock at the old Stogrow Store and buying the only pair of boots in the town of 150 inhabitants, Jules V. Allen, of the vanishing race of cowboys, reminisced today in cosmopolitan Lubbock. The old cow trails have long been buried beneath hard surfaced roads over which passes a new industry, branded with license of ownership.

Machine Decorating
Traveling by automobile, the body of his machine is decorated with famous old Texas cattle brands, identical to the ones which were placed on one of the new half million dollar buildings at the University of Texas in an effort to memorialize the cattle industry of this state.

Reared On Border
Allen was reared on the Texas border, a descendant of the Hawkins family, first settlers of Ellis county, and also a descendant of John Neely Bryant, first child born in Dallas county.

Each winter Allen broadcasts over radio from El Paso, keeping alive the lore of cowboy folk song and stories of the West.

Dupont started the day a point lower.

Increase in revenue freight total was without early influence on the railway group, being in a measure offset by the fact that the figures showed a decrease from the same week of last year. St. Paul common moved up to a new peak, with a number of other low priced shares, such as Packard Motor, Associated Dry Goods, Great Western Sugar and Electric Power and Light, Bethlehem Steel and Childs. SWS made new peaks. Union Pacific made a fair advance despite yesterday's report of a sharp falling off in net operating income. Richardson Typewriter quickly jumped two points and Pressed Steel Cur.

WHAT KIND OF COUNTRY IS THE SOUTH PLAINS ANYWAY?

One time each year the Lubbock Newspapers, by greatly increased efforts and expense, attempt to impress the HOME PEOPLE with the industrial, commercial and agricultural advances and advantages of Lubbock and ALL the South Plains.

THAT TIME IS NEAR!

One time each year Lubbock newspapers, by increased circulation, without increased advertising rates, attempt to place before the strangers of the East, South and Southwest—a true story of Lubbock and the South Plains. On Sept. 25th—the annual South Plains Fair edition of Lubbock's newspapers will be issued.

WHAT KIND OF IMPRESSION WILL IT MAKE?

If the publishers expend their efforts in composition, increase their expenditures, increase their circulation, advertise throughout the Eastern section of Texas and Oklahoma for interested people to write for the FAIR EDITION—and furnish same without cost to the interested party—if the publishers do those things they are intensely interested in the KIND of impression the edition will make.

What kind will it make? That depends now on the co-operation of EVERY business and of EVERY business man of Lubbock and the South Plains. Never before did a South Plains publishing concern throw aside thought of expense and make such elaborate plans in order to reflect the South Plains in its Annual Edition.

If it's an uphill pull to prosperity all should-ers should be put to the wheel. If you think it will come ANYWAY, give it a push and speed it along!

Other sections of the South Plains have voluntarily reserved space in the 1927 Fair Edition. It's now time for you to do so. The quicker—the better the newspaper.

Clothes Fewer

STONY BROOK, N. Y.-The Rev. F. B. Meyer of London declares that women are wearing "few and fewer" clothes. Giving his ideas to the general Bible conference he proceeded: "They tell me that at a fancy dress ball women wear less than they wear on the street."

Fundamentals Right

ATLANTA-"The girls may wear exaggerated clothing," says Bishop Warren A. Candler, Methodist. "They may even misbehave a little, but I cannot believe they are fundamentally wrong."

Correct Dancing

NEW YORK-By good dancing or none the dancing masters of America now in convention hope to confound Puritans who would do away with dancing and the dissipater who would dance about as he pleases. Thereafter they propose to distribute 20,000 booklets to show young folks what correct dancing is.

Preparedness

PHILADELPHIA-The cure for unhappy marriage, in the opinion of the Rev. Charles Mooman of Pittsburgh, lies in pre-nuptial preparation. "We can't expect young women to be employed until the day before marriage and then be good wives without any training," he told the Catholic central convention of America.

Don't Know Girls

NEW YORK-From the stage Katherine Young Wilson is to head straight for Beverly Hills and domesticity when she becomes Mrs. Richard Balthasar, if he has it right. "She doesn't want to be half actress and half wife, but just a wife," he says. But he does not know the color of her eyes. He thinks they are green.

More Delicacies

NEW YORK-Seems if the marital troubles of George W. Rector, famous restaurateur, should be a boon to housewives. He says he's got to reveal some more of his famous recipes, cash in on them, sell them, in order to pay $500 a month alimony, even though they may surfeit the nation on delicacies.

Some Apple Tree

GLEN COVE, N. Y.-A tree here, 20 feet high and 12 feet in diameter on top, bears 34 different varieties of apples. It is the pride of James Holloway, 70.

How To Lose $1,000,000 Every Day!— A New Kind Of High Finance Story About J. Ogden Armour's Worries

F. Edson White, president of the packing house of Armour & Co. who is directing the vast property left by Armour.

REDS MEETING

est men I ever knew. Some day you will understand what I am about to tell you. That your father has sacrificed everything dear and sacred to the human heart for his faith in liberty and justice for all. That day you will be proud of your father, and if you become brave enough you will take his place in the struggle between tyranny and liberty and you will vindicate his (our) names and our blood.

The letter said Vanzetti was being denied his "American rights," which the letter did not otherwise identify.

Joint Letter Given In a joint letter to the defense committee, Sacco and Vanzetti were told "only two of us will die. Our ideal, our comrades, will live by millions."

A last case of Boston ordinances on protesting and loitering is to be made by Arthur Garfield Hays, New York attorney, by appealing the cases of six persons fined $10 each for congregating in front of the Star theatre in a death watch.

Refused Use of Hall Plans of the committee to have the bodies of the two men in jail were temporarily halted when the owner of the hall which the committee desired for the occasion refused permission for its use.

COMANCHE, Aug. 24 (AP)—An average set almost solid in Johnson county has had seen no cultivation for three years in succession, is now producing 400 worth of grapes to an acre for a Comanche county farmer.

In August, 1925, J. B. Albers, with a handful of cuttings and a heart full of hope, set the vines which were to become the basic stock of his vineyard, five miles west, etc., were some of the things mentioned in connection with the present day evils.

Hemphill-Price Co.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Many stories have been written telling how to make a million dollars. Here's one that tells you how to lose a million.

Perhaps nobody wants to. Still—When the average American, to whom $5,000 looks like all the money in the world, reads of some rich man who has dissipated a fortune of $10,000,000 or so, he is apt to lay his paper down and say: "When a man gets ahead of that much money, why in thunder can't he hold on to it?"

It's Easy to Lose

Money is easy to lose. To learn how it's done just study the life history of the late J. Ogden Armour, Chicago meat packer, who died in London the other day after seeing one of the largest fortunes in the world dwindle to a fraction of its former size.

Armour's wealth was once stupendous. He had properties valued at one time for more than $100,000,000.

And it went. All but a small fraction. How? J. Ogden Armour entered the financial world in 1881, leaving Yale university to enter his father's meat packing business.

He succeeded admirably. The great Armour packing house grew larger and larger. It became an international institution. Annually it did more than $100,000,000 worth of business.

Armour was not satisfied with activities in one field. In the late nineties the Armour family had established a brokerage concern to deal in futures on the Chicago wheat market. Armour became a skilled market manipulator. He became the largest owner of bank stock in Chicago. His father had bequeathed him an interest in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway; Armour added to this, at one time owning 150,000 shares of that road's stock.

And still he continued expanding. He and E. H. Harriman formed a $50,000,000 stock company to finance a subway freight system for Chicago. The Kansas City Railway and Light Co. passed to Armour's control. He became director of many banks and other financial institutions.

Then came the outbreak of the world war. Europe had not been a very good market for American meat products. But under the wartime conditions it did as Europe's purchasing power went down and the disappearance of substitutes made Australian and Argentine beef cheaper once more. Prices began to drop.

In the United States business began to slacken. The unheard-of prosperity that had caused so many business men to think a trifle too big of themselves changed color and became somewhat pallid. There were even symptoms of a "buyers strike"—which is a way of describing what happens when people find the prevailing prices too high for their purses.

Armour caught with tremendous stocks of meat on hand, fought desperately—so desperately that the federal trade commission began to evince considerable interest in the way the price of meat refused to come down. But sooner or later the break had to come. It came, and the good old days were over.

Just how much Armour lost probably will never be known. At one time, over a period of four months, he lost $1,000,000 a day. He narrowly escaped a complete smash.

A $25,000,000 loan tided him over one bad period; then he had to sell all of his bank stocks to meet that loan. The bankers reorganized his packing business, the Kansas City Railway and Light company nearly went bankrupt, and Armour suffered heavily.

Prosperity had deserted the northwest completely—and the northwest was the territory served by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road. The road went into the hands of a receiver, and Armour took no one knows how big a loss. His Chicago freight subway project collapsed utterly. Armour had to sell his magnificent $5,000,000 country estate on the lake shore north of Chicago.

Then, to top the climax, his $25,000,000 wheat trading organization took a dive. Early this year its complete withdrawal from the grain trade was announced.

Still Rich—But—To be sure, as a stated before, Armour did not die a poor man—not by any standard. Many a multimillionaire would be glad to exchange his own fortune for the estate Armour left.

Yet, compared with what it was seven or eight years ago, the Armour fortune has shrunk amazingly. It is no longer one of the great fortunes of America. Ogden Armour made a great deal of money, but he lost a great deal.

And, out of that fact, the great American citizen, saving money by painful stages to make a down payment on a $10,000 home may get what comfort he can.

If somebody could be found big enough to hold down the Manua Loa lid, he would make many people in Hawaii happy.—Canton Repository.

Lolita Mitchell, Armour's daughter, chief heiress to his shrunken estate, who made a hurried trip to London from California during his last illness in order to be at his bedside.

RIOT DAMAGES

were injured, ten of them badly by knife thrusts, and 200 manifestants were arrested.

Guards Augmented

Monday night's disturbances in Geneva, when windows of the League of Nations palace were smashed and much other damage done, prompted the authorities to augment the guards wherever trouble was likely to develop. Notwithstanding this, however, a large crowd gathered before the American consulate last night to protest against the death of the two men. The shouts were increased when it became known that detectives had arrested several men believed to have been responsible for Monday night's rioting. Shortly after a 10 o'clock however, a severe thunder storm and a heavy rain sent the manifestants scurrying for cover.

U. S. Flag Burned

An American flag was burned at Johannesburg on the steps of the town hall in the course of a demonstration by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers. One of the speakers called for a boycott of American goods.

A boycott of American wares has also been suggested in Finland, by the executive of the trade union congress.

In Amsterdam a stone was thrown through a window of the American consulate, but no one was injured. Although foreign newspapers generally report the executions, and there is strong condemnation by radical organs, the Morgan Post of Berlin, deprecates the criticism of the United States. It compares the executions with those of the Czeka in Russia, saying that organization has executed scores of persons when the same doubt existed in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, but "the world passed them by."

Judges Are Upheld

The local Ansbacher of Berlin upholds the American judges, saying they acted in the belief they were doing their duty.

The Giornale d'Italia of Rome says that executing Sacco and Vanzetti, the "free democratic republic of the United States," proved that it did not hesitate "to carry out its sentences even against the protest of the entire civilized world."

This horrible martyrdom is unprecedented in the history of nations.

Blame for "accepting the transference of the question from one of right and justice to one of prestige and political decorum" is placed on Governor Fuller by the Observatore Romano of Rome, the Vatican organ.

"That the jurors at Dedham seven years ago condemned for political reasons is uncertain," it adds, "but it is uncontested that the federal government is placed on an unfortunate and unjustly dangerous character, always fatal in facing and solving any problem severely and objectively."

Flotation Is Big Aid In Resources Engineers Told

(By the Associated Press) SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 24.—Flotation process of separating metals from ores has been the greatest conservator of the nation's natural resources, Ernest J. Gaylord of this city today told the mining engineers and metallurgists in convention here.

In the flotation process, the speaker said, the ore is first ground, after which there is a wet concentration of the ores in which the metals are separated from the gangue by causing the mineral to float on the surface of a body of liquid pulp, the gangue or ground rock remaining submerged.

This process," the speaker added, "has converted the zinc content of ores in Utah from a liability to an asset."

Los Angeles was chosen as the 1928 convention city and western district American mining congress officers were chosen as follows: Philip Wiseman, Los Angeles, chairman; F. W. McLenner, Miami, Ariz., vice chairman; Robert L. Kerr, San Francisco, secretary.

FRIVOLITY OF CHRISTIANS IS TAKEN TO TASK

SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CHURCH PEOPLE IS GIVEN BY HOGG

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, etc." was the basis of the sermon preached this morning to a good sized audience at the tabernacle. Rev. Hogg's sermon was principally for the church people this morning, and it contained a wonderful quantity of good practical thought. He endeavored to show the church people where they were falling down on the job, and assigned as the reason for this that too many of them were at ease with the world. He condemned in no uncertain terms the playing of cards and other worldly games by church people, and while he did not care to convey the impression that people were meant who engaged in such amusement, he did contend that it had an influence on their life; that caused them to neglect many of their duties to the church and to their family, and there in he found that it was hurtful to the cause of christianity.

Tonight's Program

Tonight he will preach on "How Shall We Escape?" This is recognized as one of the best sermons, and you will want to hear what he has to say about it.
