Town meeting to focus on educational issues

The first in a series of monthly town meetings concerning area educational issues will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at the JTPA office, 421 Main St.

Cheri Sparks, chair of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Education Committee, said the meeting will emphasize parent/student issues. Future meetings will involved educators and members of the business community.

The meetings are the result of the April 1991 challenge to Americans by President Bush to create a renaissance in American education. To do so, Bush unveiled a long-range plan called America 2000: An Education Strategy.

In conjunction with national goals, the Texas Business and Education Coalition developed 12 goals to enhance the national effort.

Persons wishing to offer input may do so by either calling the chamber at 263-7641 or contacting Sparks at Howard College at 264-5000.

K center preview set

Parents whose children will be in Anderson Kindergarten next fall are invited to a kindergarten preview Thursday evening.

Because of limited parking space, parents whose last names begin with A-L are asked to attend between 6:15-7 p.m. Those whose last names begin with M-Z are asked to attend between 7:15-8 p.m., according to Pam Moss of the kindergarten center.

Moss said attendance is not mandantory, but will be a good opportunity to preview what to expect when their children begin school in the fall. Official registration for kindergarten students will be Aug. 12-14, she added.

For more information, contact Moss at 264-4151.

Sadowski plans visit

Jeannie Sadowski, who is opposing incumbent Charles Stenholm in the 17th Congressional District election, will speak at the West Texas Republican Women meeting Thursday. The meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. at La Posada.

For reservations call 263-2413 or 263-3643. Buffet will be $5.50 per person.

The public is invited to attend.

COC slates bid procurement seminar

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Thursday's procurement seminar sponsored by the Small Business Council of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, is designed to help area businessmen learn to properly submit bids for federal, state and local projects according to Linda Roger, chamber executive vice president.

The seminar will be held from 1-4 p.m. at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Booth set-up begins at 11 a.m.

Those interested can register at the door. Each chamber member gets one free admission. Additional admissions are $10.

Admission price is $15 for non-chamber members.

Those who attend the seminar will have the opportunity to work one-on-one with 16 agencies, including those from the state and federal level, the City of Big Spring, Fina and the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Each agency will, in addition, have printed material available to serve as a tool for preparing a bid, Roger said.

Many more businesses can submit and be awarded projects let for bidding, she said. Some businessmen are unaware that all materials for a bid need not be in stock, but can be purchased after the bid is granted, as long as specifications are met, she said.

Roger told of one success story in which a man set up manufacturing in his garage after his bid was accepted for a project, and in one year had a $2 million business.

Agencies like to award bids locally, Roger said, and minority and women-owned businesses have an edge in securing state and federal bids, as they are required to receive a percentage of those bids.

The aim of the seminar is to further help area businesses and give area agencies the ability to grant bids locally.

Texas Department of Public Safety Corporal Gary Albus, right, talks to a truck driver who was one of 208 trucks that have been stopped as part of the annual Roadcheck '92 truck inspection program this week. The program is being conducted at the Big Spring Airpark and will continue through Thursday.

Roadcheck '92 cites 15 drivers

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Safety violations resulted in 66 transport trucks and 15 drivers being put out of service during the first day of an annual inspection program in Big Spring to get unsafe drivers off roads.

The program is an annual joint effort of the United States and Canada that began in 1987. Big Spring, a site for annual inspections by the DPS since 1990, is the only location in Texas where trucks are being pulled over.

There were 208 trucks pulled off highways by the Texas Highway Patrol in a 24-hour period since midnight Monday in Roadcheck '92, which will continue through Thursday. Three driving while intoxicated charges and 66 Class C misdemeanor charges were filed and 530 violations cited.

Drivers and trucks put out of service are not allowed back on roads until problems are corrected.

Among the worst violations found were brake problems, said Lt. Wendell Miller of the Midland office of the DPS. "Brakes have historically been the worst thing as far as accidents involving commerical vehicles."

Some drivers were apparently peeved at the half-hour to one-hour inspections but other drivers did not seem to mind.

"No problem," said Tony Wolf, 47, of Hamlin, who was cited with seven "minor" violations but was not charged. "They (were) nice as they could be as far as I'm concerned," said Wolf, who has been driving trucks about 20 years.

But not all drivers were happy, Miller said. "Some of them have got an attitude."

Nevertheless, the program seems to

Prices rise slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers prices rose a slight 0.2 percent in April, the government reported today, as falling grocery store prices eased concerns raised by a big surge in inflation the month before.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that retail sales shot up 0.9 percent last month, the third gain in the last four months. The pickup in consumer demand has been a key factor boosting this year's economic recovery and analysts were heartened by the unexpectedly sharply April sales advance.

The small increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index followed a 0.5 percent price spurt in March. That increase was the biggest in 17 months and raised questions about whether the fledgling recovery was beginning to trigger inflation pressures.

But in April, grocery store prices, which had shot up in March at their fastest pace in almost two years, declined by 0.2 percent, helped by big drops in the price of vegetables and fruit prices.

The better-than-expected 0.2 percent increase for April provided support for the prevailing view among economists that an extended period of sluggishness was keeping inflation under control.

So far this year, consumer prices are rising at an annual rate of 3.3 percent.

Council discusses qualifications for new city manager

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council voted Tuesday to approve the course for Heart of the City Festival Fun Run and discussed qualifications for the soon-to-be-vacant city manager position.

Most of the meeting was spent discussing qualifications for the city manager's position, which will become available in June after Hal Boyd resigns.

After discussing the benefits of hiring from outside the city, the council decided that any qualified applicant from within the city would be reviewed as well.

Reasons for hiring from outside the city include infusing the city government with new ideas and different experiences and assuring that their are no pre-existing political affiliations — ideas expressed by several council members.

The council agreed that applicants should have at least a bachelor's degree as well as at least eight years of "progressively responsible" experience in administration. At least three years at a level of assistant city manager or above is preferred.

Assistant City Manager Tom Decell and his staff will be advertising in trade journals and municipal league bulletins in Texas and the five surrounding states.

The council agreed to hire for the city manager position only, leaving Boyd's other duties, airpark manager and emergency coordinator, for later considerations.

Future sessions will focus on outlining a job description for the city manager, Mayor Tim Blackshear said.

Official sanction was given for the festival's 5-kilometer run, which will start at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, June 6.

The race is scheduled to begin at the intersection of Scurry and Fourth Streets.

Bush, Clinton cruise to Tuesday wins

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush was weighing riot-inspired urban aid plans and Bill Clinton's mind already was on running mates when voters handed them overwhelming primary victories in Nebraska and West Virginia.

Each man is still dogged by a token challenger. But "this is the time to put together your fall plans," said Mary Matalin, the Bush campaign's political director.

Tuesday's lopsided primary results seemed inevitable. Bush locked up his party nomination earlier this month, while Clinton now has 1,782 delegates — more than 80 percent of those needed to clinch the Democratic nomination, according to The Associated Press delegate count.

In Nebraska, Clinton had 48 percent of the vote to 22 percent for Brown, with all precincts reporting. In West Virginia, Clinton had 74 percent of the vote to 12 percent for Brown, with 98 percent of the precincts reporting.

Among Republicans, Bush had 84 percent in Nebraska to 14 percent for Buchanan. In West Virginia, it was Bush 81 percent and Buchanan 15 percent.

The president today was headed to a medical center and high school in Baltimore. He toured a troubled Philadelphia neighborhood on Monday and huddled with congressional leaders Tuesday on emergency aid to cities.

Clinton was campaigning today and Thursday in Oregon — where 47 delegates are at stake in next week's primary — and in California, which will close out the primary season June 2 with five other states.

Although the remaining primaries are sparking little interest — even the candidates have been campaigning sparingly — Clinton insisted Tuesday that voters are still eager to hear their arguments.

"I think for most people that it's just beginning," he said. "We're only now beginning to get into a phase where you can raise voter interest."

The Arkansas governor briefly referred to the Los Angeles violence at a Minneapolis rally Tuesday night, ridiculing Bush administration claims that 1960s programs led to the unrest. "They have been in too long when they have to go back 25 years for somebody to blame," Clinton said.

Texas billionaire Ross Perot, meanwhile, headed ever closer to an independent presidential run. Volunteers in 20 states say they have more than enough signatures to get him on general election ballots this fall. As of Tuesday he was certified in Delaware, Tennessee and Utah.

Perot called for unity Tuesday night in a speech in New York City to the American Jewish Committee and denounced "hard core haters" whom he said traffic in racism.

NASA to send three spacewalkers to catch satellite

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Endeavour's astronauts got the OK for the first three-man spacewalk in a go-for-broke effort today to bring in a wayward satellite.

"I have my toes, my fingers and my eyes crossed waiting for the mission," NASA Administrator Daniel S. Goldin told the crew Tuesday. "The one thing I ask you all to keep in mind is crew safety has got to be our first objective."

Never have three people walked in space together; spacewalkers usually go in pairs for safety. Spacewalking astronauts risk puncturing their spacesuits, which in the vacuum of space can be fatal.

Astronauts Thomas Akers and Richard Hieb were to help crewmate Pierre Thuot try to capture a $157 million Intelsat-6 satellite that was left in a uselessly low orbit by a miswired rocket two years ago.

On Sunday and Monday, Thuot failed to snare the slowly revolving satellite with a 15-foot tool called a capture bar. His efforts caused the 17-by-12-foot, 4.5-ton communications satellite to wobble dangerously close to the shuttle.

Today, on the count of three, each spacewalker was to grab onto can-sized projections on the side of the satellite and help wrestle it to a halt. Then Thuot and Hieb were to try to lock on the capture bar.

The operation was expected to take six to eight hours.

The satellite will be a total loss unless the astronauts retrieve it, attach a rocket motor and release it, boosting it to a working orbit 22,300 miles high. The shuttle does not have enough fuel for a fourth rescue attempt.

Randy Stone, NASA mission operations director, said the manual attempt became necessary because planners misjudged the satellite's sensitivity to the small amount of pressure applied in using the capture bar.

"It is probably still less than the optimum way to do it, but based on the previous two experiences, we felt like that we ought to go try something different," he said.

NASA chose Thuot, Hieb and Akers after finding they could squeeze into the shuttle's airlock, a closet-sized compartment that separates the cabin from space.

Those three and Kathryn Thornton, the only woman among Endeavour's seven astronauts, had trained for months to walk in space, and each has a spacesuit aboard.

Oswald file released

Lee Harvey Oswald is shown at Dallas police headquarters on Nov. 22, 1963, after he was arrested in connection with the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. CIA Director Robert Gates told a Senate panel Tuesday that his agency will release a 110-page file on Oswald that predates the assassination.

Convicted murderer admits to 2 slayings

SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) — Before starting to serve two life sentences, a convicted killer wanted to tell his story.

Adam Scott Richards, 21, was convicted of capital murder in the October 1990 deaths of Dorina Marie Albrecht, 20, and Sandra Medellin, 16, both of Freer.

Richards had pleaded innocent, but changed his story Tuesday in a meeting with the victims' relatives.

Richards told Ms. Albrecht's mother and sister and law enforcement officials Tuesday that he shot both girls because they made insulting remarks about his girlfriend.

"I was angry, confused, upset," Richards said of his reasons for killing the women.

"I don't know how I was feeling. I can't explain it. When I turned the gun toward Dorina, Sandra moved down on the seat. And right after Dorina was shot, I shot her (Sandra)," he told the victims' relatives.

Richards was sentenced to life in prison for capital murder in connection with the women's deaths and 40 years for an unrelated rape of a San Antonio woman. The sentences will run consecutively.

Assistant District Attorney Rudy Gutierrez said Richards could be eligible for parole in 25 years.

For family members and law enforcement officials, Richards' confession provided a resolution to a frustrating case.

"At least now it's over with. He can go his way and I can go mine," said Ms. Albrecht's mother, Margaret Montez of Victoria.

Plea agreements reached Friday had failed to provide answers to the families' questions because Richards continued to deny shooting the women.

The bodies of Ms. Albrecht and Ms. Medellin were found Oct. 12, 1990, in a brushy area along Farm-to-Market Road 2359 north of Freer. Ms. Albrecht had been shot once in the forehead and Ms. Medellin once in the neck, according to autopsy reports.

Richards, who had been working in Freer for six months when the killings occurred, was indicted Nov. 16, 1990, for the double slaying.

For months, Richards has said he witnessed the killings but didn't pull the trigger. He named another man as the killer and said a third man engineered the slayings.

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — Fans wanted Garth Brooks to play a larger arena in neighboring Cedar Falls after his concert here sold out in 2½ hours.

But booking agent Joe Harris said the country star will keep his promise to perform at the 7,000-seat National Cattle Congress. The concert is Sept. 18.

"He told them he'd play it this year, and he's a man of his word," Harris said. "He was going to play it if it was 100 seats."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jim Varney, who created the rubbernecked rube Ernest P. Worrell, has a new look: a beehive hairdo and cheap jewelry.

Varney hasn't abandoned the toothy, wide-eyed Ernest, with his unseen friend Vern and trademark phrase, "Ya-know-what-I-mean?"

But Bunny will appear in regional TV ads in every major U.S. market in the next year. In one commercial, she gives a manicure with an electric bench grinder.

"Bunny is bubbly, but she's got a cruel twist," Varney said Tuesday.

Ernest has appeared in more than 2,000 commercial spots and starred in four movies — most recently, "Ernest Scared Stupid."

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Terry Anderson, soon to write a book about his experiences as a hostage, has won another journalism award.

He will receive the Carr Van Anda Award from Ohio University's E.W. Scripps School of Journalism next week, spokesman Bryan McNulty said Tuesday.

Last week, Anderson accepted a $245,500 award from Freedom Forum, a media think tank. He begins a yearlong fellowship next month to write a book.

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press when he was kidnapped in 1985, was the longest held American hostage in Lebanon. He was released in December.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The Red Hot Chili Peppers postponed its Australian tour until October because guitarist John Frusciante quit the band.

Frusciante quit last week while the group toured Japan. The Peppers canceled the rest of the Japanese concerts and flew a new guitarist to Sydney, where they have been rehearsing since Friday.

The Frontier Touring Co. said Tuesday that rehearsals were not going as well as hoped.

The Los Angeles-based band's latest hit is "Under the Bridge."

Pat Robertson bids $6 million for UPI

RUTLAND, Vt. (AP) — Religious broadcaster Pat Robertson successfully bid $6 million for beleaguered United Press International and said he won't convert it to a Christian news agency.

PAT ROBERTSON

A bankruptcy judge Tuesday approved the bid but accepted Robertson's condition that he be allowed 30 days to look at UPI's books, during which time he could lower the offer or back out altogether. Robertson promised enough money to keep UPI going in the meantime.

UPI, which sought bankruptcy court protection in 1985 and again last August, had said it would not meet Friday's payroll without a buyer.

"The thing I'm doing today is coming in as a white knight," Robertson said. "This company was down to its last minutes."

'I hope he can rescue UPI. But I have some doubts that UPI can find a niche that can bring it back to a full-fledged wire service.'

Steve Gerstel
Chief congressional correspondent

Robertson, who heads the nonprofit Christian Broadcasting Network and sought the Republican presidential nomination in 1988, would be UPI's fifth owner in 10 years.

CBN, based in Virginia Beach, Va., produces "The 700 Club," a talk show that gives him a nationwide audience for his message of Christian conservatism. Robertson and his son also have controlling interest in the commercial Family Channel, a cable operation.

Robertson said he did not intend to turn UPI into a religious enterprise. "I don't interfere in editorial policy of our stations," he said.

Asked whether Robertson's political or religious affiliations might bother the news staff, UPI executive editor Steve Geimann said, "I'm going to tell them we have to find out more about Pat Robertson if his bid succeeds."

UPI, which began life as United Press in 1907 and merged with International News Service in 1958, has won nine Pulitzer Prizes. Its alumni include Walter Cronkite and David Brinkley.

Once the nation's second-largest wire service after The Associated Press, UPI was never financially robust. Losses mounted as newspapers closed or bought only one wire service and radio stations stopped broadcasting news.

The staff was cut from 1,850 in 1984 to about 500 now, and many bureaus were closed.

"I hope he can rescue UPI," said Steve Gerstel, chief congressional correspondent since 1972. "But I have some doubts that UPI can find a niche that can bring it back to a full-fledged wire service."

Robertson said UPI's international reporting and its radio network are its strong points. He said he is interested in incorporating video into the radio and still-picture network.

He called the newspaper side the weakest link but would not say whether he would abandon it. He said it was too early to talk about personnel changes.

Robertson's holding company, U.S. Media, put down a $900,000 deposit Tuesday. He will get the money back if he backs out of the deal.

Acrobat Marc David of Baraboo, Wis., hangs with his trapeze on a crane performing a number from his one-man show, 200 yards over the city of Frankfurt, Germany, Tuesday. The stunt was performed to announce his show, part of the American Circus, which opens on May 15th.

Photos and videotapes subpoenaed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The FBI subpoenaed videotape and photos from news organizations as a crackdown on rioters gathered steam. Meanwhile, the governor ordered thousands of National Guard troops to begin pulling out today.

Some news organizations turned over information willingly; others said authorities were going too far.

Four black men with alleged gang ties were arrested Tuesday in the attack on white trucker Reginald Denny, whose beating was shown on live television and came to symbolize police paralysis during the riot's opening moments.

The four were identified in part from news footage and video taken by bystanders, said Police Chief Daryl Gates, who arrested Damian "Football" Williams himself.

Williams, 19; Henry "Kiki" Watson, 27; and Antoine "Twan" Miller, 20, were brought in by about 200 FBI and police SWAT team officers in a pre-dawn raid. A fourth man, Gary Williams, 33, surrendered at a police station.

News helicopters showed Denny, 36, being pulled from his rig and beaten unconscious at Florence and Normandie avenues soon after the verdict in the Rodney King case April 29. His attackers looked up at the cameras.

Damian Williams hit Denny in the head with a brick, Miller looted his truck, Watson stomped on his head, and Gary Williams kicked him when he was down and stole his wallet, Gates said.

Tribal member Wayne Shina walks in front of one of the earthmovers used to block the road to the Ft. McDowell casino after federal agents seized 300 video gambling machines from the Indian-operated casino in Arizona Tuesday. After an eight-hour standoff the seized gambling machines remained locked in trailers next to the casino and federal agents were allowed to leave.

Federal agents blockaded on reservatiom

FORT McDOWELL INDIAN RESERVATION, Ariz. (AP) — Indians held dozens of federal agents inside a casino during a gambling raid, but released them after eight hours when officials agreed to a 10-day cooling-off period.

About 100 Yavapai Indians used cars, trucks and heavy equipment Tuesday to block the road leading to a reservation casino, trapping between 25 and 50 heavily armed FBI agents and federal marshals.

The agents were trying to seize more than 300 video gambling machines that violate new federal rules on Indian gambling.

The machines were among at least 700 seized during early-morning raids at five Arizona reservations. The Fort McDowell reservation, 20 miles northeast of Phoenix, was the only place agents met opposition.

Gilbert Jones, the tribe's vice chairman, said the machines were worth about $3 million. He said the gaming operations at Fort McDowell brought in some $19 million between Oct. 1 and March 31, the first half of the tribe's fiscal year.

The center provides jobs for more than 100 members of the tribe and supports many of its social services, including its senior citizens center and preschool programs, Jones said.

"We're not just talking about machines," Jones said. "We're talking about a viable economic development that is desperately needed here."

Under the compromise negotiated by Gov. Fife Symington and Clinton Pattea, the Fort McDowell tribal chairman, the machines were left inside locked truck trailers in the casino parking lot, where they'll stay for 10 days.

Norway's watchdog for children hosts conference

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Trond Viggo Torgersen, hired by the government as the official watchdog for Norway's kids, often snaps at the hand that pays him.

"My job is to be a free-speaking person who works exclusively for children, with no other goal," said the 39-year-old father of three.

Along with Save the Children and the United Nations Children's Fund, Torgerson will be host to more than 600 experts from 70 countries attending a conference opening in Bergen today, titled "Children at Risk."

The conference, which ends Saturday, will cover topics including the sale of children, children in war, child marriage, and nutrition. It follows up the 1989 U.N. Convention on the Rights of Children.

Torgersen, who is a medical doctor, writer and entertainer, doesn't mince words when it comes to children. He expects the conference to do the same.

For example, he plans to pit Brazilian government officials against researchers in a debate about death squads murdering street children in the South American country.

"I didn't want people just to come and read papers," he said. "I wanted them to confront each other."

Torgerson has been fighting for children's rights ever since he was appointed to a four-year term as Norway's National Commissioner for Children in 1989.

"The ombudsman should resist his political leaders and decision-makers, when there are grounds for opposing them on the behalf of children," said Torgersen. "In a democracy, it is necessary to have a spokesman for those without voting rights."

More than 3,000 children a year call his toll-free "Children's Hotline," asking questions or stating problems that he addresses in a weekly national television program.

Torgersen is quick to use television and other news media to tongue-lash decision-makers.

When his boss, Minister of Families and Children Grete Berget, said she could do little against illegal day care centers that mistreat Norwegian kids, Torgersen responded:

"She knows what's happening, but is doing nothing about it. That is pretty frightening to hear from a government minister."

As children's commissioner, Torgerson has adminstrative superiors, but they cannot interfere in his work. But he has limits.

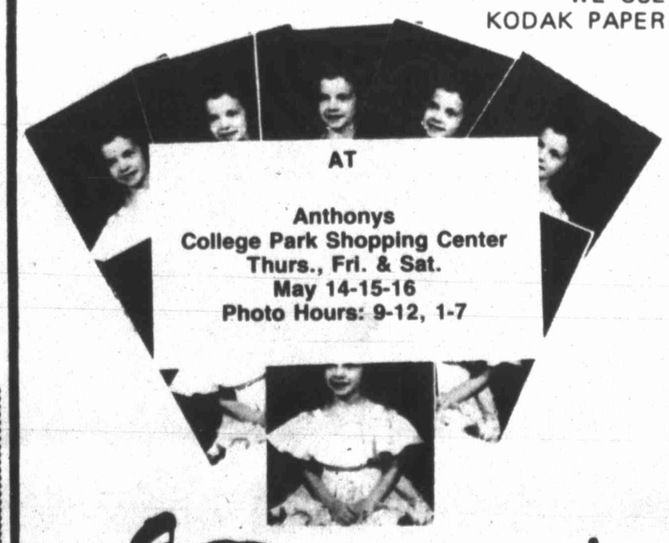

He cannot decide disputes, override government orders, or interfere in court cases.

Cosby's show was class act

As was the case throughout its eight-year run, the recent final episode of "The Cosby Show" drew criticism for airing a TV comedy while violence and anarchy held sway in the streets of Los Angeles.

In this case, the decision to broadcast seemed defensible, given the integrity of the program in question. And characteristically, Bill Cosby came on camera at the end to ask Americans to "pray for a better tomorrow, which starts today."

From its inception, criticism of "Cosby" came mainly from those who thought the Huxtable TV family wasn't "black" enough: They were too affluent, too removed from the grit of the ghetto, too happy and well-adjusted, too much like a blackface "Father Knows Best," a 1950s sitcom that has been criticized in retrospect for drawing a too-pristine portrait of middle-class white family life, as if comedy must always show family life warts and all.

The answer to that argument is that "The Cosby Show" transcended the black stereotypes that have been all too commonly portrayed on TV. If the portrait that emerged seemed somewhat idealized, the fact is that many black families have become affluent.

The Huxtables were legitimate role models, not only for their affluence and not only for blacks: Their humanity, their mutual love and respect, their devotion to education and to social tradition deserve praise and emulation in their own right.

Nor did "Cosby" neglect the uniqueness of black experience. Bill Cosby, a major benefactor to black institutions, saw to that — from the paintings by black artists that adorned the walls of the Huxtable home to the frequent references to black colleges and historical figures to the occasional inclusion of a race-oriented social problem. It was always subtle but always to the point and never preachy.

And beyond its sensitivity to real life, "Cosby" was a highly professional, very funny show, just what good TV ought to be.

Tiny Terminator goes for the Gold

Guest column

By JOHN LAIRD
El Paso Times

EL PASO — Marcos is the youngest and smallest Terminator. He's only 4 years old, but already he walks with that first-grade swagger. He's a Terminator largely because older brother Carlos is a Terminator.

In the second quarter — or whatever they call time periods in soccer — of a recent Saturday's game — or match or whatever — an eyebrow or two was raised on the sidelines when the coach told Marcos to take over at the goalie positions. Marcos had played goalie before, but Saturday was different. The Terminators were up against one of the best teams in the league. They had struggled valiantly against the taller and bigger Cobras. The Terminators were proud of that scoreless tie.

Here, though, was the Tiny Terminator going in at goalie. Uh-oh, it was time for the parents to review the basics:

They trust the coaches.

Parents know absolutely nothing about soccer.

Until Marcos realizes his full potential as an athlete, he relies on uncommon good luck. Once in the second period, he turned the wrong way and was looking into his own goal. But he turned back around just in time to pounce on an incoming shot and prevent a Cobra goal.

At halftime — or whatever they call it in soccer — Terminator parents sighed. The scoreless tie was holding up. On the sidelines, Marcos fought through the forest of first-grade sequoias and snatched an orange slice, sucking from it magic juices that would keep him invincible through the rest of this war against giant Cobras.

And after three quarters: Cobras 0, Terminators 0.

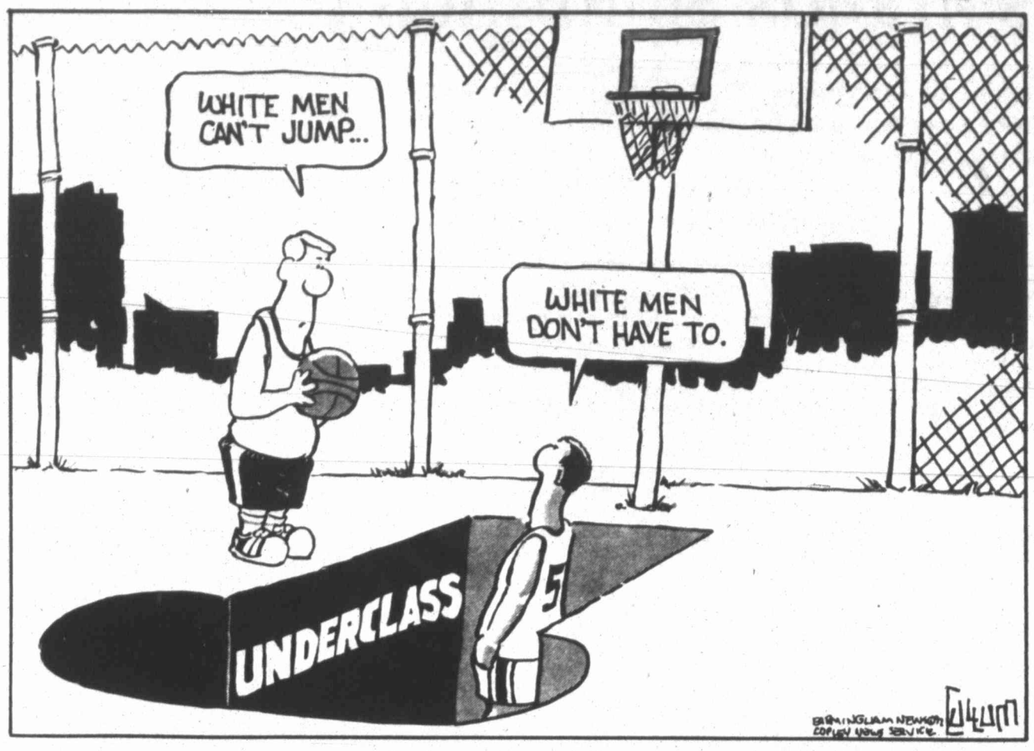

Midway through the final quarter Marcos slipped to his left for yet another save. He lost his balance. For an instant, the only sound was the swish of ball against net. Then Cobras roared and Terminators slumped.

The Terminators tried to rally in the closing minutes, piercing the Cobra defense and punching repeatedly but in vain at the enemy goal.

In the post-game huddle, there was no discussion of winning or losing. Coaches talked only about how the Terminators had tried their best. Then the head coach hoisted the one great prize about which every Terminator dreams nightly. It is a Most Valuable Player "gold" medal with a red, white and blue ribbon. Terminators stopped breathing as the coach spoke: "Everyone tried hard, but Marcos deserves MVP this week." Then the medal was draped around the dark, perspiring, reed-thin neck of the Tiny Terminator.

Marcos no longer looked confused. He knew he was valuable. It had to be true. The coach said so, and coaches know everything. Parents know nothing. The prize felt heavy as other Terminators patted Marcos' tiny shoulders.

Then both teams left the field, too tired to talk about winning or losing. Besides, those things don't matter to the Tiny Terminator. When you're 4, all that matters is for other Terminators to think you're valuable.

Encountering 'insolence of office'

James J. Kilpatrick

This is a story about John A. Strain of Junction City, Kan. The story is not yet complete — we are waiting to see if Strain gets hit with $10,500 in lawyers' fees — but the story is far enough along to merit your attention.

Strain is a certified public accountant — that fact is important to the story — but more to the point, he is an ordinary fed-up taxpayer. So are we all. He thought his local school district was recommending an unwarranted increase of 38 mills in the school levy for 1990-91. He complained about it. And he ran into what Hamlet termed "the insolence of office."

Dick Snider, a columnist for the Topeka Capital-Journal, picked up the story last month. Strain lives in School District 475. Until a few years ago, he actually served as auditor for the district, so that when he showed up at a school board meeting two years ago, he came with first-rate credentials.

He had come to state a grievance. He accused the board of using two sets of figures on enrollment. For one purpose the board claimed 6,732 pupils in average daily attendance; for another purpose the board claimed only 6,712 — a small difference, he said, but it caused the resulting tax levy to be nearly $100,000 larger than was necessary.

That was the least part of his protest. Strain charged that the board also had engaged in other forms of creative accounting. Specifically, the board had carefully omitted federal impact aid, amounting to more than $3 million, in its statement of anticipated revenues. This is the money District 475 receives to pay for children from nearby Fort Riley.

By neglecting to disclose this aid, the district was able to demand more from local taxpayers. Strain wondered aloud if any tax increase could be justified. His figures indicated that the district had amassed millions of dollars in funds invested in certificates of deposit.

One of the board members asked, "What's wrong with a school district having some CDs?"

Strain asked, "What's wrong with letting the taxpayer keep the money not needed and have some CDs of his own?"

Evidently that impertinence was more than the board could bear. Though Strain's figures were backed up by another CPA and by other taxpayers, the board ruled that except for one minor point he was out of order. And take your seat.

Now comes the remarkable part. Strain appealed the district's ruling to the State Board of Tax Appeals, known as "BOTA." Last October he had his hearing. Columnist Snider reported that he got hit with a double whammy.

"First, the BOTA branded his complaint as frivolous. Then came the real shocker. The BOTA suggested to the school board that it might want to ask the BOTA to assess Strain for the attorneys' fees it had incurred in defending against his complaint."

The local school board found this a perfectly splendid idea. It accordingly asked BOTA to impose a civil penalty on Strain of $10,500, representing 105 hours of an attorney's time at $100 an hour. On April 3 BOTA heard the motion. As of last week, it had not acted. Strain and his own lawyer, Doug Thompson of Abilene, are waiting for the shoe to drop.

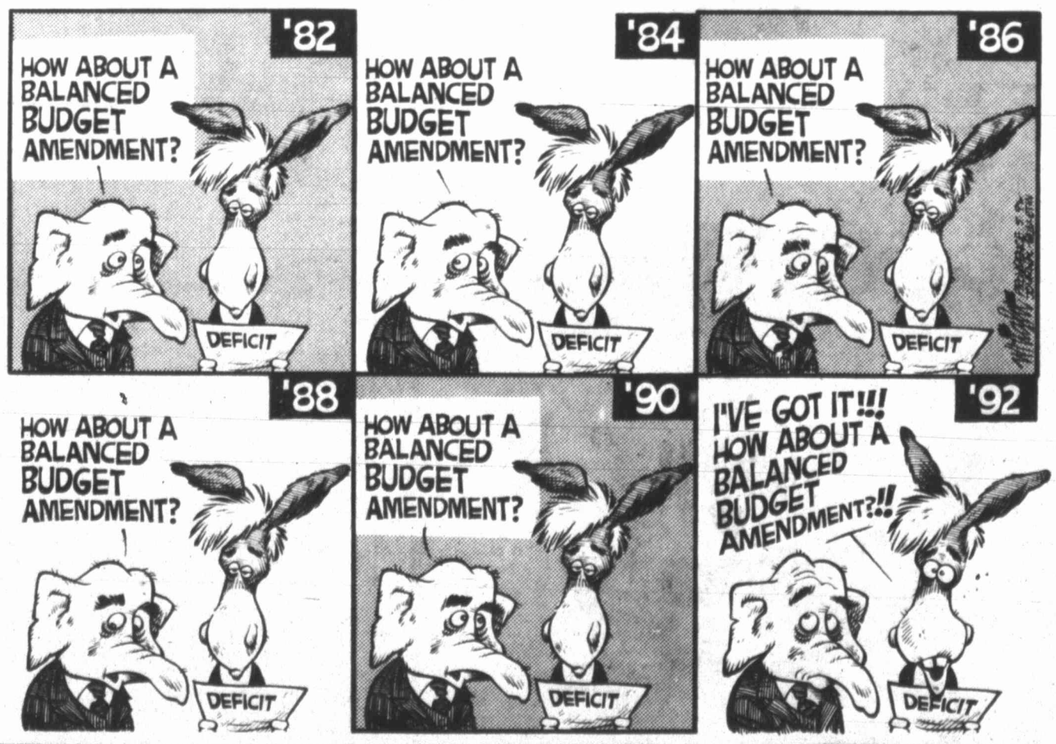

The school board and BOTA may have bitten off more than they can chew. The Constitution protects not only freedom of speech. More to the point, it guarantees "a right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances." The constitution of Kansas contains almost identical language.

If BOTA carries its arrogance to the point of actually imposing so outrageous a penalty, Strain will have plenty of help in suing everybody's socks off. The school board's legal fees in squelching this articulate pest may be only just beginning.

Implicit in the bizarre affair is the notion that the bureaucracy has power to punish a taxpayer for bringing a "frivolous" complaint. Bureaucrats cannot waste their precious time on frivolity. So audacious a taxpayer must be punished! Punished, do you hear! Fine him, penalize him, shut him up! Who will rid BOTA of this troublesome CPA?

In effect, the Kansas Board of Tax Appeals is claiming a power to punish for what it regards as contempt. In the hands of judges, such a power is awesome. In the hands of unbridled bureaucrats, it is terrifying. Shakespeare's Cassius asked the probing question: Upon what meat do these our Caesars feed that they have grown so great?

Sworn in and sworn out

It is perfectly clear to me that the justice system in our country should be revamped so normal white cops like the ones in Los Angeles can be acquitted when they are charged with beating up a defenseless black person like Rodney King.

We have seen what happens as a result of such a thing.

Young black people in Los Angeles, Atlanta and other cities were so enraged by this, they suddenly felt the urge to burn down buildings, which happened to put a lot of other black people out of work, but we're talking rage here.

These young people also had to deal with the unrelenting urge to beat people and kill people. All the victims were innocent bystanders, and some of them were black, too, but these people were really outraged here, so you can understand that.

Then there was the urge to smash store windows and go inside and loot. There was a picture in the newspaper of looters stealing clothes in Los Angeles.

Said the cutline under the picture: Two women smile as they carry away clothes . . . from a Los Angeles store.

Racists and bigots might ask, "Well, if they were so enraged, why were they smiling?"

Well, you rednecks, that's the way one eases one's rage in a situation like this. One steals some clothes or a television, and one would be amazed how this makes one all smiley inside.

A Los Angeles black policeman on television, who was trying to keep the enraged people from looting, said, "I haven't heard Rodney King's name mentioned all day."

OK, to revamp the American justice system: First, we have to do away with all-white juries.

"What can you expect from an all-white jury," said one bystander in a newspaper piece concerning reactions to the verdicts.

If an all-black jury had acquitted the four officers (which, it wouldn't have done in a million years) I don't think there would have been near as much burning, killing and looting.

So we write into law there can never, ever be an all-white jury again for any case. And if there is ever one by mistake whatever it decides in a case doesn't count.

It might be an even better idea if we write a law doing away with white jurors altogether, which would make an all-white jury an impossibility.

Let's say a white guy is found guilty of embezzlement by an all black jury. I just can't see his buddies back at work being so outraged they'd go downtown, smash windows and start stealing suits.

It should be clear even to a 10th-grade civics class we can no longer allow white people to sit in judgment when there is any sort of trial involving a black defendant or white defendants who are charged with doing something bad to a black person.

And I'm not the only one who thinks there shouldn't be a new system of justice.

Another bystander was quoted in the same reaction piece as saying, "I'm very upset about this verdict. And I say if we don't have no justice with this law system, we should not abide by it."

I couldn't agree more, which is why I think the no-whites-on-no-jury-nowhere-notime should be retroactive so the innocent verdicts against the four white policemen in Los Angeles are wiped out.

We try them again with no white people on the jury and let's see them dance out of this thing then. I know you can't go back and try somebody again after they've been acquitted, but that was under the old system.

And if you want my opinion I don't see why those four white cops were given a trial in the first place. We all saw that video tape. We knew they were guilty.

Forget due process. Lock 'em up and throw away the key. The old lynch mob mentality.

Burn, baby, burn, I think I'm on to something here.

Hawks begin title defense

By MIKE BUTTS

Three of the eight teams in the Texas Junior College State Baseball Tournament this week in Waco rank among the top thirteen teams nationally. Laredo Junior College is ranked number one, McLennan Community College number six and Texarkana College number 13.

Despite such impressive participation, Howard College coach Bill Griffin says any team, including his own, is capable of winning the double-elimination tournament.

Griffin's team goes to Waco as the defending national junior college champion. It has gone to the state tournament eight of the last ten years, all under Griffin's tutlelage.

"I don't think there's any team this year in state that's going to walk in and dominate," says Griffin, whose team plays Texarkana today at 7 p.m. at Baylor University's Ferrell Field. "I think it's gonna be a fair shake for everybody down there, (and) we have just as good an opportunity to go in there and do as well as anyone."

Howard's Hawks started slowly this year with an 11-12 record, but they go into the state tournament they won last year with victories in 29 of their last 32 ballgames.

Griffin says the turning point in his players' season came when Frank Phillips Junior College swept a three-game series from the Hawks at Big Spring in late February.

"That really woke 'em up," Griffin says. "Since then they've played extremely hard every game and they're at the top of their game now."

Howard had a strong year offensively. The team hit .358 with 100 home runs and averaged 10.5 runs a game.

Pitching has been the biggest difference between the '92 team and last season's national champions. This year Howard is without '91 ace Frank Martinez, now in the Boston Red Sox farm system. And they enter the state tournament without Jesse Armendariz, a thirteen game winner in '91. Armendariz was slowed by injuries in '92 and undergoes surgery this week to repair a torn muscle in his throwing arm.

Earlier in the season Griffin says the Hawks were "reaching for (pitching) help." They had 12 pitchers with decisions this year.

In the second half of the season Jay Maldonado (11-2) and Demond Thomas (4-1) have gotten the job done on the mound for the Hawks, and they will be the key to Howard's success in Waco.

The Hawks' potent offense, headed by shortstop Santiago Rivera's nation leading 82 RBI, does not guarantee Howard's success in the tournament.

"I know good pitching will shut down good hitting any day of the week," Griffin says. "And in the tournament we'll be facing teams' number one and two pitchers."

Texarkana plays in the state tournament for the first time in the school's history. The Bulldogs won the Eastern Athletic Conference with a 6-4 record and are ranked 13th nationally with a 46-8 overall mark. They finished their season April 25 and, says assistant coach Rob Childress, have been trying to stay sharp since then.

"We're just happy to go to the state tournament. We're glad we're playing the defending national champions," Childress says. "(But) we're going down to win. If we don't (go to win) there's no sense in going down there."

Childress says the team doesn't have any one player that is better than the others. The Bulldogs batted .336 on the year and will pitch Baylor signee Brent Bearden (7-1) against the Hawks.

"We've heard Bill Griffin always has his team ready to play," Childress says. "Hopefully our pitching keeps us in the game."

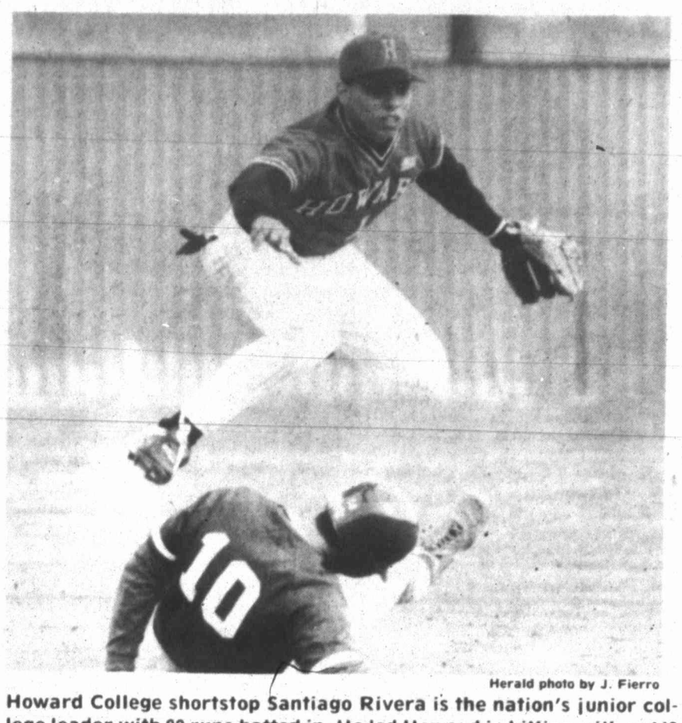

The schools have never faced each other before, and the Bulldogs are something of an unknown quanity to Griffin. But the coach says he knows several people in Texarkana's conference who can give him scouting reports.

"I think Texarkana will have to play extremely well to win, or (they may) come in scared to death and blow it," Griffin says. "Who knows who will rise to the occasion in this ball game."

Northeast Community College hired Griffin earlier this year to start a baseball program at the school next fall. That lends some irony to the game because Northeast plays in Texarkana's conference next season.

Griffin says the rivalry between him and Texarkana may have already started.

"I've signed a couple of players they were going to get over there," Griffin says. "They're not going to be too friendly (at the tournament)."

SWEETWATER — Call it luck or call it a well-deserved break. Either way the Big Spring Steers baseball team secured a playoff berth and a district co-championship Tuesday despite losing to Sweetwater 4-3.

The Steers got all the help they could get from Lake View and Monahans, which won games against district contenders Andrews and Pecos Tuesday after the Steers lost. Big Spring and Sweetwater finish the year tied for first with 7-4-1 District 3-4A marks. They play a game to determine which team will come out of the district as the number one seed, which Steer coach Bobby Doe said is tentatively scheduled for Friday in Snyder.

"I guess we kind of deserved a break," Doe said of his team's circuitous route to the playoffs. "It seems like (breaks) are going against us and we finally got some going for us."

Sweetwater pinch-hitter Chris Gomez drove in a run in the bottom of the seventh inning to give the Mustangs the win over Big Spring and put them in post-season play.

Gomez's hit spoiled the heroics of Steer senior pitcher Gerald Cobos, who threw a solid game against the Mustangs and tied the contest, 3-3, with a two-out base hit in the seventh.

But Big Spring couldn't overcome the pitching of Mustang fastballers Brian Mitchell and Terry Klemmer, who combined for a two-hitter.

"We usually hit fastballers well," Doe said. "For some reason we just didn't (today)."

Cobos went the distance and allowed three earned runs on six hits, but it was the last two of those hits that killed the Steers.

Sweetwater's number eight hitter, right feilder Toby Stephens, doubled off Cobos with one out in the seventh. Mitchell was thrown out at third on the play, but it set up the winning run. With two down Gomez lined a single to left to plate Stephens for the win.

With the score tied going into the last frame, Doe could have used reliever Luis Bustamante, who has thrown well lately. But the Big Spring skipper said he was saving his ace reliever for the next inning.

"With the bottom of the line-up coming up I thought we'd probably get them out," Doe said. "I was going to come with Bustamante in the eighth."

The Mustangs went ahead 3-2 in the sixth on back-to-back hits by Stuart Houston and James Moore. The Steers tied the game when designated hitter John Kennedy led off the seventh with a walk and was driven home by Cobos's do-or-die hit.

Doe said he and Sweetwater coach Bart Pursley agreed to approach their playoff game as preparation for the bi-district playoffs. Doe said that seeding as the first or second team from the district should not be important because he expects the teams his and Pursley's squad will face are about the same in ability. He said he expects the Steers to go against Frenship or Lamesa.

"I'm going to look at other pitchers (against Sweetwater) and let Gerald rest," Doe said. "We're not going to treat it as a (district) championship playoff game."

Dunleavy leaves Lakers to return to Bucks

MILWAUKEE (AP) — From Beer Town to Tinsel Town and back. Mike Dunleavy's here to stay for a while.

As the new coach of the Milwaukee Bucks, he's got a whopping eight-year contract that's one of the longest in NBA history.

Dunleavy said goodbye Tuesday to the Los Angeles Lakers, turning down a lucrative contract extension with the team he'd coached the last two years. Milwaukee's offer was too good to pass up for Dunleavy, who'd been both a player and an assistant coach for the Bucks.

"They always say you can't go home. I feel like in this case I have come home. One of my boys said this was our third time back in Milwaukee," said Dunleavy, his eyes bloodshot at a late-night Bradley Center news conference, nearly eight hours after he'd held one on the West Coast.

"I think the biggest thing is the security it gets for my family. I probably would not have left Los Angeles to come to any other city than Milwaukee. It was because of the friends and relationships over the years."

Dunleavy took the Lakers to the NBA finals in his first year as a head coach. But what he did in his second season was more remarkable. The Lakers, stunned by the retirement of Magic Johnson and beset by injuries to key players, still managed to make the playoffs.

But if that was a challenge, the one he faces with the Bucks is an even greater one. He takes over an aging team coming off a 31-51 record, one that will participate in its first NBA draft lottery Sunday.

"I never backed away from a challenge in my life. It started as a player coming out of South Carolina as the 99th pick," said Dunleavy, who played in parts of 11 NBA seasons and twice was activated while an assistant with the Bucks from 1987-90.

"People were telling me I was crazy that I should go to law school and I was saying, 'No, this is what I always wanted and I'm going after it.'

Mitchell, Epley top Forsan athletes

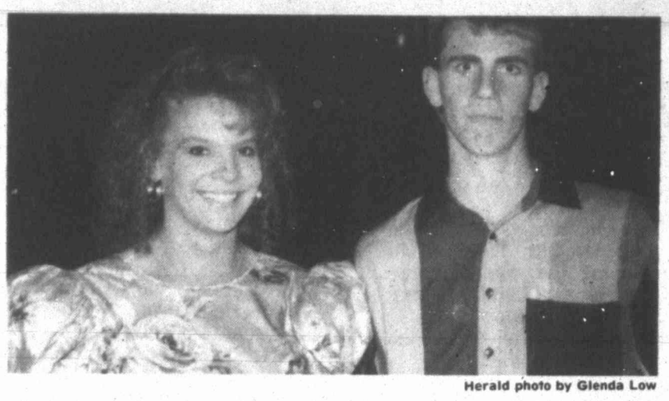

By GLENDA LOW
For the Herald

FORSAN — Top athletic awards at the Forsan High School UIL Banquet went to seniors Barbara Mitchell and Micah Epley Tuesday night.

They were named the Outstanding Female and Male Athletes.

Mitchell helped lead the Buffalo-Queens basketball team to the playoffs. She led the team in assists, three-pointers and was an All-District, Academic All-District and All-Crossroads Country selection. She also participated on the track team, running on the 400, 800 and 1,600 meter relay teams.

Epley was a four-sport letterman, participating in football, basketball, golf and track.

Jordan puts the hurt to New York Knicks

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Though Michael Jordan took another beating Tuesday night, it was the New York Knicks who left Chicago Stadium hurting.

Jordan scored 26 of his 37 points in the second half, including a clinching three-point play with 35.9 seconds remaining, to lead Chicago to a 96-88 victory over the Knicks and put the defending NBA champion within one victory of advancing to the Eastern Conference finals.

Jordan scored 15 points from the free-throw line — his reward for being repeatedly hammered as he tried to drive for the basket.

The Bulls went ahead 20-18 in the first quarter and didn't trail again despite being unable to shake the Knicks. New York stayed close until the end, only to be held off by Jordan.

Xavier McDaniel led the Knicks with a playoff-high 26 points and Gerald Wilkins had 19.

Patrick Ewing finished with 14 before fouling out with 3:33 to play and the Bulls leading 84-78. The closest the Knicks came after that was 89-86, and Jordan responded with his decisive three-point play.

Jazz 89, SuperSonics 83

The Jazz got 24 points from Jeff Malone and 22 from Karl Malone to earn their first playoff road victory in more than a year.

In the lowest-scoring game of the series, the Jazz got six crucial free throws from Tyrone Corbin in the final minute.

NBA Playoffs

Utah is one win away from reaching the conference finals for the first time ever. Game 5 will be played Thursday night at the Delta Center, where Utah has lost only four games this season.

Ricky Pierce led Seattle with 21 points.

Utah had lost seven straight playoff games on the road since a 129-90 victory at Phoenix on April 25, 1991.

Celtics-Cavaliers

A quiet, 30-something forward named Larry is playing a key role in the Boston-Cleveland series.

The surprise is that it's Larry Nance, not Larry Bird, who in unassuming fashion is responsible for a lot of excitement in the series that's tied 2-2.

Nance was 13 for 16 from the floor in Sunday's 114-112 overtime win at Boston Garden, while the 35-year-old Bird returned from back problems to score 2 points on 1-for-5 shooting in 17 minutes.

Suns-Trail Blazers

The Blazers go for the clincher at home after surviving the highest-scoring playoff game in NBA history on Monday night, a 153-151 victory by Portland at Phoenix in double overtime.

"They're in the grave, but there's no dirt on them yet," Danny Ainge said of the Suns

Wall Hawks take advantage of numerous Coahoma errors

WALL — The Coahoma Bulldogs committed nine errors and the Wall Hawks took advantage of them to take an 11-4 win Tuesday to win the District 6-2A baseball championship.

Coahoma will go into the playoffs as the runnerup. The 10-6 Bulldogs will play Eastland, May 23, at 2 p.m. at the Hardin-Simmons University diamond.

"We played terrible," said Coahoma coach Doc Rowell. "We didn't have our minds into it. If you've ever seen Wall's baseball field you know it's hard to get excited about playing there. It's like playing in a pasture. But that's no excuse, we just didn't play well. We're looking forward to the playoffs though."

Dutch Barr was the losing pitcher for Coahoma. He only allowed two earned runs and six hits. The Bulldogs collected eight hits.

Wall scored twice in the first inning on no hits and one Coahoma error. The Hawks put the game away with a six-run fourth inning. In that stanza Coahoma made two errors and a Wall player hit a three-run homer.

Coahoma scored a run in the third inning when Brent Elmore singled and scored from third on Mark Arguello's ground out to shortstop.

Coahoma added another run in the fourth when Kenny Lowery doubled and scored on a single by Brandon McGuire.

The final two Bulldog runs came in the fifth inning. Arguello walked and Bryan Sledge singled. Arguello scored on the catcher's bad throw in a pickoff attempt at third. Mike Mendez, running for Sledge, scored on Lowery's base hit.

The Bulldogs will be in action Monday when they host District 7-3A champion Reagan County at 4:30 p.m. at the Coahoma diamond.

Larry Johnson named NBA's top rookie player

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Larry Johnson didn't plan on being the NBA Rookie of the Year, and when he was late for the Charlotte Hornets' training camp, most people felt he wouldn't have to worry about it anyway.

"I downplayed it all year," said Johnson, who on Tuesday was named the league's top first-year player. "I didn't get serious until the last month when people started telling me I had a chance to win it. That made me think about it."

The Dallas native, who averaged 19.2 points and 11 rebounds a game, got 90.5 of a possible 96 votes in a poll of sportswriters and broadcasters to join such NBA greats as Michael Jordan, Patrick Ewing and Larry Bird, who also were named the league's top rookie.

Denver's Dikembe Mutombo, an early favorite for rookie honors after a great start and All-Star recognition, received 3.5 votes and Billy Owens of the Golden State Warriors got two.

Few people were thinking of Johnson as a contender for the title last November when he finally appeared in the teal-and-white uniform as the Hornets opened their season at Boston.

Even within the Charlotte camp, there was debate over whether the No. 1 pick should be used for Johnson or Georgetown's Mutombo or even Syracuse's Owens. Once the season began, Mutombo showed every sign that he would take the rookie title and that Johnson wouldn't be a factor.

"I wasn't really thinking about rookie. No, I take that back," he says. "Every guy thinks about rookie. But when I missed training camp, a lot of you guys (reporters) were writing me off."

Even when Mutombo played well in the early part of the season and made the All-Star team, the Skyline High graduate said he didn't get discouraged.

the Most Valuable Player award. He led the Wranglers with 70 RBI and had a .385 batting average and 62 stolen bases.

Rivera led the nation in RBI with 82, led the Hawks with a .449 batting average and hit 16 home runs. He also paced the Hawks in hits and runs scored with 80 and 79.

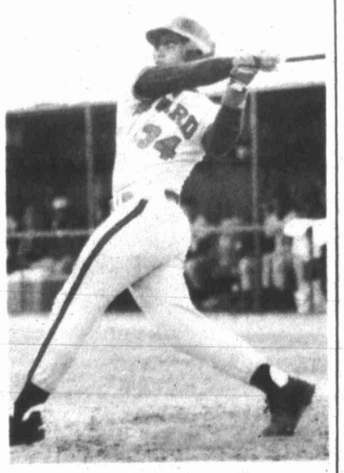

"I felt Rivera probably should have won the MVP," Howard coach Bill Griffin said. "But usually the MVP goes to the school that wins the conference."

Maldonado joins five other pitchers selected to the team. The San Antonio freshman went 11-2 for the Hawks this year while compiling a 2.75 ERA. He struck out 100 batters.

Thomas, one of six infielders named to the all-conference squad, hit .414. Martinez batted .442 and led the Hawks in hits (80) and stolen bases (10). He joins three other outfielders named to the team.

Honorable Mention first baseman Suarez was the Hawks home run king with 19 long balls on the year.

Third and fourth place conference finishers New Mexico Junior College and Frank Phillips Junior College also had multiple selections on the squad. NMJC had five players and Phillips had four. New Mexico Military Institute, which won one conference game, was not represented.

Howard College freshman pitcher-infielder Jay Maldonando was a first team All-Western Junior College Athletic Conference selection.

Riley rescinds previous memo

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The notice of possible termination to tenured faculty at Howard College has been rescinded by President Bob Riley.

In a memorandum in April, the tenured faculty members were given notice that their contracts might not be renewed in one year.

Riley said today that, according to HC board policy, tenured faculty must be given a year's notice before any change in employment status.

In a recent memorandum, Riley said, "In response to the onslaught of information from the Texas Higher Education Board and Legislative Budget Board, I made some very difficult decisions this past month.

"Following a Coordinating Board directive 'to prepare for the worst circumstances' in respect to state funding and recognizing our current financial condition, I sent you the memo pertaining to your employment status. I had no intention of any non-renewals for tenured faculty, but felt I had to follow college policy in case of a worst case scenario. I hope the financial picture improves next year and programs and personnel will not be affected.

"After conferring with the Board of Trustees, I am now reciding that memorandum."

According to the Howard College Instructor's Policy Manual, tenured positions can be deleted only "if declining enrollment, either actual or projected, would indicate a probable reduction in staff, or if the phasing out of instructional programs requires reduction of faculty, or in cases of bona fide financial emergency."

Riley today voiced objection to an earlier Herald article, which refered to the possible one-year notice of termination as "soon." "That caused a lot of confusion," he said. "We had no intention other than to follow the board's policy."

In closing the memo, Riley said, "The phone calls and letters in your behalf have been very supportive. I regret the anxiety and uncertainty the April 15 memorandum has caused."

be working, said Miller, who is one of about 50 highway troopers and DPS workers from three regions conducting the inspections.

"We've probably placed fewer of them out of service this year than last year," he said. "I think as a whole we're seeing better equipment across the state, mostly because of the regulations and because we're forcing them to and because of voluntary compliance."

The number of trucks meeting safety requirments in the inspections here increased from 76 in 1990 to 182 in 1991, according to DPS.

Emphasis in the inspections is being placed on Level 1 — "North American" — standards, of which 128 were given by midnight Tuesday. Information is being collected on radar detection devices, commercial driver's licenses, seatbelts and medical cards.

Baby safe

Three-month-old Matthew Murray of Millbury, Mass., in car seat, is surrounded by, from left: his mother Deanna, father Michael and sister Alicen at their home Monday. Matthew was strapped into his car seat Sunday by his father who placed the seat on the roof of the car before tend ng to Alicen and then driving off. The baby rode on the roof for almost a mile before sliding off and landing upright and unharmed.

Groups want more choke warnings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents of precocious 2-year-olds may be tempted to buy toys marked "ages 3 and up" for their gifted children.

But even the smartest 2-year-old needs protection from choke hazards, and that's the unwritten message of the age label.

Federal rules require any toy labeled for children from birth to 36 months to pass a test that assures none of its parts can cause choking. Toys for older children aren't held to the same standard.

Since most people don't know this, consumer advocates and health officials want warning labels about possible choking hazards on toys for 3- and 4-year-olds.

Congress is considering such legislation, but the Bush administration opposes the idea.

David Meelheim pulled a box of foam blocks from a shelf at the Red Balloon toy store he co-owns in Washington. The bathtub toys, which were labeled for ages 3 and older, were too large to go all the way into a child's mouth, but "a bite out of it could be deadly," he said.

In fact, on the side panel, small print said, "adult supervision is required for children from six to 18 months" because "young children may be inclined to bite pieces from the blocks."

Meelheim said he'd like to see a similar label required on all toys that pose a hazard.

Between birth and age 6 or 8, a child's airway is short and narrow, making it easily blocked, said Maggie Huey, nursing director in the emergency medical trauma center at Children's Hospital in Washington.

Additionally, small children also can't cough their air passages clear very well because their thoracic muscles aren't well developed, she said.

Children age 2 and younger are in particular danger because they don't understand "large or small or the concept that this toy is not part of me," Huey said.

She said she sees 2-year-olds who take small bottles for baby dolls like one of their own and "suck those baby bottle tops down their airway."

Balloons are another problem, she said. Little kids often suck them in instead of blowing on them.

Two months ago, the Consumer Product Safety Commission rejected a staff recommendation for choke warning labels on toys for 3- and 4-year-olds, including a special warning for balloons.

Commissioner Carol Dawson said there had not been enough injuries to warrant the warnings and there was no evidence that such labeling would reduce deaths or injuries.

Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., was so enraged that she got her House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on consumer protection to attach a labeling requirement for 3- and 4-year-olds to the bill that authorizes the safety commission's budget for the next two years. The full committee is expected to act on the bill soon.

Such labeling is supported by consumer groups and the Washington-based National Safe Kids Campaign, a pediatricians' organization.

Meantime, the states are starting to create their own laws. A toy warning bill was sent to the governor in Connecticut last week.

David A. Miller, president of the Toy Manufacturers of America, called Collins' and Connecticut's action "legislative micromanagement."

"It sounds nice, but it wouldn't do anything in a substantive way and it would put manufacturers in the position of cluttering up packaging and making all messages less identifiable."

"If a parent doesn't perceive the risk all the labels in the world are not going to help," Miller said. "There are certain things that are obvious in life and this is one of them."

OMB Watch and Public Citizen — two organizations that grew out of Ralph Nader's work — said the Consumer Product Safety Commission's refusal to require toy labels is a "senseless decision" stemming from the Bush administration's effort to help the economy through a moratorium on federal regulations.

A U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission worker holds up a cylindrical device in Washington Monday that is used to test toys for children under the age of three. The cylinder, called a small parts tester, has a small opening to determine whether they're safe for the tiniest children.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Because of typographical errors, Tammy Jo Davidson's poem, which ran in the May 10 Herald, is being re-run in its entirety.

MOM

I've heard it said: Time will heal broken hearts of pain.
But the kind of love I have shall never change.
I'll reach for the phone — no one will answer.
I'll drive to your house — no one can open the door.
I can close my eyes and hear your laugh.
I can see your smile in my head,
like a thousand times before.
Memories will pass my mind
for now.
I know you're resting so well,
That's why I can feel peace within my heart.
But, oh how I'll miss you
while we are apart.
It's only that I'll miss you
so much,
And can't help but call
your name,
For my life without you
Shall never be the same.
I can almost feel your
hug,
I can almost feel your hand,
But God holds you
so close to His side,
In a better place called heaven.

Symphony closes season with doubleheader

By Lea Whitehead
For the Herald

The Big Spring Symphony Association closes out its 1991-92 season Saturday with a double header — a family-oriented evening that includes a picnic at Comanche Trail Lake and a concert by the Big Spring Symphony Orchestra at the Municipal Auditorium.

Fried chicken and a variety of salads and desserts will be served at the "Barefoot in the Park" picnic, a fund-raising project for the Big Spring Symphony Orchestra. The picnic will last from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m., with the concert immediately following at 8 p.m. Featured will be dual pianists, Jerry and Paul Stephens who will play Broadway show tunes.

Concert goers are encouraged to wear casual clothing to both events.

The Big Spring Sumphony Orchestra will open the concert program with Bizet's "L'Ariesienne Suite No. 2" (Intermezzo and Farandole). In their first appearance of the evening, Jerry and Paula Stephens will play selections from "Westside Story", including "I Feel Pretty," "Maria," "One Hand, One Heart," and "Tonight." Other selections are "Memory" (Webber), from the Broadway show "Cats," and a medley of tunes from "The Sound of Music" (Rodgers and Hammerstein).

The orchestra returns after intermission to play two pieces, followed by the dual pianists for the evening's finale — a medley of George Gershwin tunes, including "Rhapsody in Blue," "I Got Rhythm," "Swanee," "O Lady Be Good" and others.

Tickets for the picnic, payable at the event, are $6 for adults and $3 for children under 12. Tables and chairs will be set under a tent in a grassy area overlooking Comanche Trail Lake. Parking is available at the Figure 7 Tennis Center off Whipkey Drive. In the event of rain, the picnic will be moved to Garrett Hall at The First United Methodist Church.

Tickets to the concert are $10 for adults and $7.50 for seniors and students (with ID). Tickets are available at Artifacts, Accent Shoppe, Blum's Jewelers, Dunlap's, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, and at the door that evening.

Season tickets for the 1992-93 season will be available for purchase at the concert.

Tonight in transition: The end of Carson's 30-year era

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The desk is small, and looks cheap. The couch is tiny, but movie stars, comedians and even former presidents have scrunched their egos onto it for 30 years, perched side-by-side like birds on a telephone wire.

The bandstand seems bigger, with rows of armless chairs facing ledges that, in some inside joke, have been decorated with glued-down pennies, dimes, matchboxes and unsmoked cigarettes.

It doesn't matter that the 500 audience seats rise at an angle that encourages vertigo and nosebleeds; ticket supply never could keep up with demand.

This is the house that Johnny built. Small and worn at the edges, parts of Stage One at NBC's sprawling Burbank studios are as familiar to millions of Americans as their own living rooms.

For three decades, Johnny Carson — tugging at his tie and tapping his pencils — has presided over the nocturnal institution called "The Tonight Show," launching thousands of careers while serving as America's favorite late-night guest.

It is fitting that when the 66-year-old Carson steps down May 22, he will take the contents of Stage One with him. Intensely private, most of what America knows about this man has been gleaned from this set.

Seated behind a desk measuring 59 inches long and 20½ inches wide, Carson has given viewers glimpses, laden in self-deprecating humor, of four marriages, of million-dollar divorce settlements, of trying to kick a lifetime addiction to cigarettes.

In more poignant moments, viewers also were privy to sincere but never maudlin reactions to tragedy. Carson's 39-year-old son, Ricky, was killed in a car accident last year. A month later, longtime friend Michael Landon lost his battle against pancreatic and liver cancer.

"Johnny's the best at what he does," Jay Leno said shortly after being anointed as Carson's replacement. "I don't think we'll ever see the likes of it again. No one will ever hold an audience for 30 years the way Johnny has."

John F. Kennedy was president when Carson took "The Tonight Show" mantle from Jack Paar on Oct. 1, 1962. The new host was introduced by Ed McMahon, but it was Groucho Marx who stepped onstage and delivered a rambling, opening monologue about mice, sex and cheese.

Fifteen minutes later, McMahon returned. "From New York, 'The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson!' " The guests that night were Marx, Joan Crawford, Rudy Vallee, Tony Bennett, Mel Brooks and The Phoenix Singers.

When Carson arrived, "The Tonight Show" ran for one hour and 45 minutes. In 1967, it was reduced to 90 minutes. In 1980, it was further shortened to an hour.

But besides fiddling with the show's length and moving it to California in 1972, Carson tinkered with little else. His opening monologue remains a daily time capsule of political and social events.

Associated Press photos

Ed McMahon hands an envelope to Johnny Carson, a.k.a. Carnac the Magnificent, during a skit on NBC's "The Tonight Show" in this recent photo. Carnac is among the retinue of humorous characters that Carson portrayed on the show over the past 30 years. He steps down as host on May 22.

Carson has said he never shows the monologue, culled from jokes provided by himself and eight staff writers, to anyone before taking the stage — not even to Fred de Cordova, his trusted 81-year-old, chain-smoking executive producer, who came on board 22 years ago.

Politicians quickly learned that nightly blasts during Carson's warm-up mirrored the mood of voters. His skewering of Nixon's actions during Watergate, for example, has been credited with helping to cement the former president's downfall.

When Carson moved his show to Burbank after 10 years in New York, more than his monologue had become popular. By then, a retinue of characters including Carnac the Magnificent, Aunt Blabby and the Mighty Carson Art Players had been introduced.

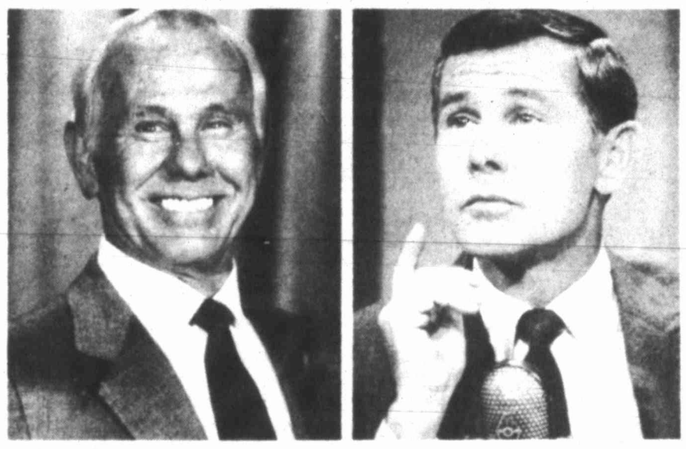

The show also already had earned what remains its highest rating — the December 17, 1969, live, on-stage wedding of Tiny Tim and Miss Vicki, seen by more than 45 million viewers.

Though Carson often poked fun during his monologues — "Sometimes I worry about Vice President Quayle. Today, he said, 'If we can defeat Iraq in six weeks, we ought to be able to put a man on the moon' " — he was not a mean interviewer. Instead, he seemed self-conscious and asked questions so obviously written beforehand that they sounded stilted.

At one point during his 30-year reign, besieged by reporters, he took to distributing a list of 10 answers, to be used with questions of the journalist's choice.

Among them: "Yes, I did," "Only twice in my life, both times on Saturday," and "No. Kumquats."

"In Los Angeles, the big story is that Police Chief Daryl Gates announced his retirement," Carson joked in a monologue after announcing his own departure last year. "It will be sometime next year. Why can't a guy just retire without making a big deal out of it?"

Johnny Carson is shown at right as he appeared when he premiered as host of "The Tonight Show" in 1962. At left Carson smiles in 1991 after being the undisputed late-night television leader for 30 years.

Jay Leno, right, will become host of NBC's "The Tonight Show" on May 25, with Branford Marsalis, left, as music director. Leno has been guest hosting the show for five years, but says he is not anxious to take over.

Texas Beef Cook-Off gives prize to "Real McCoy"

A food lover's "Real McCoy" — beef and potatoes — won the 1992 Texas Beef Cook-Off April 24 at Wichita Falls. The award-winning recipe was entered by Merline McCoy, a housewife in Village Mills. The championship recipe featured marinated, broiled top sirloin surrounded by new potatoes.

The contest's panel of five judges rated "The Real McCoy Steak" tops among 15 finalists. They praised the recipe as a return to the comfort foods of days-gone-by with the nutrition, convenience and flavor for the 1990s.

"I'm always playing in the kitchen to make good-tasting, low calorie, healthy foods," McCoy said. "My husband likes beef, and so I focus on that. We feel if you have a good meat, you can add the other accompaniments easily."

The recipe takes five minutes to prepare, two hours to marinate and 25 minutes to broil to medium-rare doneness. Its nutritional analysis shows it has 192 calories, 7.3 grams of fat and 77 milligrams of cholesterol per serving.

THE REAL McCOY STEAK

Preparation time: 10 minutes
Marinating time: 2 hours or overnight, if desired
Cooking time: 30 minutes

2 pounds top sirloin, cut approximately 2 inches thick
2 tablespoons blue cheese
1 large clove garlic, chopped fine
1 teaspoon coarse black pepper
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 heaping tablespoon powdered instant coffee
1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce
¼ cup cooking oil, plus oil for brushing on potatoes
Vegetable cooking spray
Red potatoes, cut into 1-1½ inch wedges
Onion flakes, salt & pepper (or your favorite seasonings to taste)
Parsley

To prepare marinade, mix cheese, garlic, pepper, salt, soy sauce,coffee, worcestershire and oil in food processor or blender. Pour marinade over steak and rub into the surface; refrigerate excess for basting. Marinate steak several hours or overnight in the refrigerator. Prepare potatoes by brushing with oil and seasonings. Spray rack of broiler pan with vegetable cooking spray. Place steak and potatoes on the rack and broil 6 inches from heat. Cook for 30 minutes until steaks are medium-rare (150 degrees F) and potatoes are tender, turning once. Carve steak across grain into thin slices. Serve with red potatoes. Garnish with parsley. To complete the meal, add green beans and sliced tomatoes. Serves 8.

Another winning recipe was Waikiki Ribs in Fruit Orchard.

WAIKIKI RIBS IN FRUIT ORCHARD

Preparation time: 30 minutes
Marinating time: 6 hours or overnight, if desired
Cooking time: 1½ hours

4 pounds lean beef chuck short ribs, cut into 4 inch long pieces
Marinade*
1 package (16-ounces) fresh ripe pineapple
2 medium oranges, unpeeled, cut crosswide
1 pint ripe strawberries, hulled
3 kiwis, peeled, cut crosswide
Fruit Dressing
1 Bunch curly green leaf lettuce

Prepare Marinade*. Trim fat and lightly score meat. Put beef ribs and remaining marinade in a 9 x 14 inch baking pan. Cover tightly with foil. Marinate in refrigerator 6 hours or overnight, if desired, turning occasionally. Move ribs to the oven and bake at 400 degrees F for 30 minutes. Turn beef, cover again and bake another 30 minutes. Uncover and bake 15-30 minutes more. While ribs are cooking, prepare fruit and Fruit Dressing*. To serve, line a 16 inch platter with lettuce leaves. Place beef in center. Arrange fruit around beef. Spoon any remaining dressing over pineapple. Serves 6.

MARINADE

Preparation time: 15 minutes

4 tablespoons concentrated pineapple juice, thawed
6 tablespoons dark soy sauce
4 tablespoons dry sherry
2 teaspoons grated garlic
2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds
½ teaspoon baking soda

*FRUIT DRESSING

Preparation time: 5 minutes
Cooking time: 10 minutes

2 tablespoons orange flavored liqueur
4 tablespoons confectioners sugar
1 teaspoon fresh grated gingerroot
½ cup water

Simmer liqueur, sugar, gingerroot and water until sugar dissolves and liquid reduces to ⅓ cup. Toss with fruit. Loanne Chiu, Fort Worth, Texas

TOPS, SHORTS

It's spring and the gardens are producing their bountiful harvest of vegetables and it reminds me of my childhood days. This was the time of year that my mom said that our blood needed purifying. So, horrors of horrors, she stuffed us, not with laxatives, but with a purgative. After this came the fresh vegetables. What a treat!

But let's face it. Most of the time we cook the same old vegetables the same old way. So today, let's be creative. Let's do something different and produce a couple of masterpieces.

First, we will start with the most common green vegetable of all, the head of lettuce. We'll call this:

MEXICAN STUFFED LETTUCE

Lettuce (1 large head)
Gelatin (1 tsp. unflavored)
Cold water (2 tsps.)
Cream cheese (4 oz.)
Onion soup mix (1 pkg.)
Vegetable oil (1 tbsp.)
Salt and pepper to taste
Chili sauce (1 Tbsp.)
Lemon juice (1 Tbsp.-fresh)
Kidney beans (1 cup)
Frito's (½ cup crushed)

First, you remove the core from the lettuce and rinse with cold water. Then turn it upside down and drain thoroughly. Add the gelatin to cold water and then dissolve over hot water. Next, mix together the onion soup mix, cream cheese, oil, salt and pepper, chili sauce, lemon juice and the dissolved gelatin. Now, fold in the beans and half of the crushed frito's. Pack this mixture into the hollow of the lettuce. Cover and refrigerate for about 2 hours. Cut into slices to serve. You also can garnish with the remaining frito's, cucumbers and radish. A delight to behold and delicious to eat, and it will help purify the blood.

And now, how about the lovely eggplant. Most people eat it fried, and of course it's delicious. But let's try something different today.

How about:

EGGPLANT SUPREME

Eggplant (1 large)
Sausage (⅛ lb.-bulk-hot)
Green Onion (1 chopped)
Celery (¼ cup-chopped)
Corn bread stuffing mix (½ of a 6¼ oz. pkg.)
Salt and pepper
Cheese (½ cup-cheddar-shredded)

First, peel and dice the eggplant and then cook in salted water until tender. Drain and set aside. Saute the sausage in skillet until well done and remove to paper towel and set aside. Next, saute the green onion and celery in skillet until transparent and set aside. Saute the sausage in skillet until well done and remove to paper towel and set aside. Next, saute the green onion and celery in skillet until transparent and set aside. Now prepare the stuffing mix according to the package directions, combine the eggplant, sausage, onion celery mixture and stuffing mix. Salt and pepper to taste. Transfer to a shallow baking dish. Top with the cheese and broil until cheese is melted. Be sure to serve hot. This dish can be garnished with fresh tomatoes.

Now for dessert, let's have a good old:

PEACHES AND CREAM CHEESECAKE

Flour (1½ cups)
Salt (1 tsp.)
Eggs (2)
Milk (1 cup)
Baking powder (2 tsps.)
Vanilla pudding (2 small pkgs.-regular)
Peaches (1 can-20 oz.-drain and reserve juice)
Cream cheese (2 8 oz. pkgs.)
Sugar (1-cup)
Peach juice (6 Tbsp.)
Cinnamon (1-tsp.)
Sugar (2 Tbsp.)

Combine the flour, salt, eggs, milk, baking powder and vanilla pudding and beat with mixer for about 2 minutes at medium speed. Pour into a greased 9 by 13 inch pan. Now arrange the peaches over the top of the batter. Next, combine the cheese, sugar and peach juice and beat with mixer for about 2 minutes. Spoon this mixture over the peaches. And last, mix the sugar and cinnamon together and sprinkle over the top. Bake at about 350 degrees for about 35 minutes. The family will love it.

Papa Joe's Kitchen Tip: Flour should be sifted once before measuring. Fill the cup without packing.

International beef

Wilma Ackerman, right, president of the American National Cattle Women, Inc., checks Chie Yuamashita's recipe during the Japan Beef Cook-Off in Tokyo recently. Yamashita's original recipe, "fried beef and yam rolled in dried bean curds," won the first prize in the annual contest established in 1989 to promote American beef.

One man's secret for barbecue

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Here's rib cooker David Cox's recipe, winner of the grand championship at the annual barbecue cooking contest in Memphis last year:

Use hickory wood, choice cuts of meat and plenty of patience.

Cox, a businessman from Little Rock, Ark, cooks his ribs about five hours, putting the heat at 300 degrees for the first 45 minutes. That way, he says, the bones get hot and help cook the meat from the inside.

After that initial blast, he cuts the heat to 200 to 210 degrees for four hours, turning the ribs twice. He bastes with a homemade "finishing sauce" and cooks the ribs for 20 minutes more.

A seasoning rub is applied prior to cooking.

The rub is made of four tablespoons of paprika, two of salt, two of onion powder, two of garlic powder, two each of black and white pepper and one of cayenne pepper.

His "serving sauce" is six tablespoons of salt, six of sugar, six of black pepper and six of chili powder, four cups of ketchup, four cups of white vinegar, four cups of water and one large diced yellow onion.

Cox brings that mixture to a boil, reduces the heat and cooks for 1 ½ hours, stirring every 10 minutes. The sauce is then poured into jars, sealed and allowed to sit for two to six weeks.

The "finishing sauce" for basting is the serving sauce cut about 50 percent with distilled water.

Money is what's standing between man and teeth

DEAR ABBY: Will wonders never cease? First they tell me Santa Claus is a phony, then Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy was a liar, then the Soviet Union is gone. Now the cruelest cut of all is that Dear Abby is off her rocker.

Just because I have a couple of gaps where I used to have teeth has nothing to do with neglect, ignorance or lack of pride. It could be that I am poor, have always been poor, and probably will always be poor, unless I hit the lottery.

When I had teeth, I took care of them (no neglect); when they got cavities and needed fillings, it was cheaper to have them pulled — so it wasn't ignorance; it was lack of money. Pride? What is pride — combing your hair to cover a bald spot? Having silicone implants to make your breasts bigger?

Bull. If God wants me to have teeth, he will make them grow back. Or maybe you will send my dentist the $1,000 he wants up front to make me a bridge.

I am 68 and can eat what I want and have been married for 33 years, so I am not looking for a new girlfriend. True, I would probably look better when I smile if I had more teeth, but be assured that it is the lack of money —not lack of pride — that's standing in my way. — ROY L. PARK, SEATTLE

DEAR ROY: I just received your letter and got back on my rocker. Call your dentist and ask if he would consider accepting his fee in several more affordable installments. It's worth a try. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I have had something on my mind for a long time, and I would like to hear what you have to say on this subject.

When a man is found guilty of rape or child molestation, why would it not be proper to have a doctor perform a little operation, so the man would not have the "urge" to commit that crime again?

They do it on young cattle. It would help the man, and maybe save a lot of lives and free up a lot of jail cells. — B.W. IN LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR B.W.: The "little operation" you suggest is called castration, which is not performed in civilized countries. The reason is obvious: Assume that a man is found guilty of rape or child molestation and is castrated. Then later, another man comes forward and confesses to the crime — then what? Does the law say, "Oops ... sorry"?

FOR THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Curb your natural inclination to force major issues. Both time and public opinion are on your side. Beginning in August, you will make record progress! By late fall, you will have gained your objectives. Show children how to work their differences out peaceably. A financial situation will not improve until you control spending. Put your foot down. Creative ideas are the key to tremendous career success in 1993. Work closely with those who share your vision of the future.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: rock star David Byrne, actress Season Hubley, opera star Patrice Munsel, movie director George Lucas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Curb your temper when dealing with the younger generation. Persuasion proves more effective than coercion. Sharing a special search with loved one could revitalize your relationship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone influential gives you inside information, but there could be strings attached. Return a new friend's hospitality. A casual supper can be just as much fun as dining out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): This could be your lucky day financially. Good fortune develops in ways you least expect. Useful information comes to light. You know exactly what you want to say, especially to family members.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You seem to be on solid ground where romance is concerned; the future looks bright. A job problem could arise later today. Encourage your colleagues to cooperate with each other.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Yesterday's favorable financial trends continue. A partner will think of something you overlook. Show your gratitude. The afternoon is a good time to tie up some loose ends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Key relationships continue to be rewarding. A constructive decision will have long-lasting results. Pursue a legal matter in a timely fashion. You might have to work overtime.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An early morning about-face may stem from an unexpected business or community development. As things turn out, this new course of action proves lucky for you financially.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): After adjusting to a sudden change in plans this morning, you will find alternative arrangements even more appealing. Be flexible. An encounter with a VIP enhances your standing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may have to mask your real intentions when pursuing a business or career matter today; secrecy gives you a big advantage. A friendly overture will surprise you. Be polite but wary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You could find yourself marching to a distant drummer today. Confine your creativity to business and career projects. Spreading gossip or revealing secrets could harm your reputation. Tell the ones you love how you feel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Short trips or meetings can be more trouble than they are worth today. There are no clear answers to your questions. Thankfully, you and your partner are on the same wavelength tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You have plenty of adrenaline today and tackle your job with zeal. The fast pace produces excellent results. Meanwhile, your loved ones find you very persuasive.
