Initial Meeting Local P.-T. A. Is Encouraging

An enthusiastic meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association was held in the high school auditorium Monday afternoon with about twenty present. Mrs. George Pepper, who is beginning her second year as president, presided.

Many things of interest to the organization were discussed, including health measures for the children, but no definite action was taken. For many years vaccination against small pox has been required in most school systems before children are permitted to enter. Some systems are now requiring that children be given the diphtheria antitoxin before entering school. With the admission of children six years of age, these health measures should be more rigidly enforced. The P.-T. A. asks that the parents think seriously about these measures that protect the health of the children.

Mrs. Walter Tinsley gave a good report of the use of the library during the summer. This is the second summer that the library has been kept open and the results are gratifying.

The treasurer's report showing a balance of $300 on hand at the beginning of the school year is encouraging. In this connection, it might be stated that Mrs. C. W. Atchison is chairman of the membership committee, and she has appointed Mrs. H. O. Denman as captain of the Blues and Mrs. Frank Patterson as captain of the Reds in a membership drive. These captains and their teams will give everyone an opportunity to become members.

The association decided to continue the room mothers during this session. All active members are familiar with the duties of these mothers.

Mrs. E. R. Borden is chairman of hte committe on the formation of rules on monthly attendance. She will have a report to make at the next meeting on the fourth Monday in September.

Mrs. Olney Patterson is chairman of the committee on the and the committee is considering the publication of a year book for the current year. This will be a great convenience and assistance to the members as it gives valuable information about the association and the programs for the whole year are before the members all the time.

This initial meeting promises great results for the association during the year. The members are enthusiastic and with a good enrollment much good should be accomplished for the schools and the community.

WEATHER REPORT

The weather continues dry in Kimble County. With the exception of a very light shower Saturday morning there has been no rain the past week. Ranges and feed crops are needing rain. The cool nights are helping cotton, but it is too late for some cotton. Goats are holding up fairly well, but the dry weather and poor range is hurting cattle and sheep.

Miss Margaret Oliver is in Denton this week to receive her degree from C. I. A. In last week's issue it was stated that she would receive her degree from the Teachers' College in Denton which was a mistake as she is graduating from the C. I. A. and will teach in Beaumont this session.

Mr. Carl Tibbett was brought home last week from San Antonio where he has been in a hospital several weeks as a result of an automobile accident in which he and Mr. Roy Skaggs were seriously injured. He is improving slowly and hopes before many weeks to be able to be out again.

Local Lions Invited To Visit Goldthwaite

Goldthwaite will entertain the next meeting of the Lions of this district on September 3. The business session will start promptly at three o'clock in the afternoon and this will be followed by a banquet. The business meeting and banquet will be held at the club house on tion piled up 325 to 27. Both six miles north of Goldthwaite.

The Goldthwaite Club extends a cordial invitation to all Lions and their ladies. The host club is anxious to know how many will attend from Junction so that they will know how to prepare.

Mr. W. C. Barnett, secretary of the Goldthwaite Club, asks that all visitors bring their bathing suits.

The following are the results of the two boxes:

Wright—Junction		311
	Evergreen	31
	Total	342
Hodges—Junction		291
	Evergreen	19
	Total	300

Two Good Addresses At Rotary Luncheon

The Roterians had the privilege and opportunity of hearing two of the best addresses ever delivered before the local organization. V. P. Emmons, local manager of the West Texas Utilities Company, brought an unusual message on "Safety First!" He gave the history of the movement and then made the application. It was a worthwhile message.

The second address was delivered by A. C. Baldwin of Austin who has been an active and enthusiastic Rotarian in the Austin Club. His son was an honored visitor of the Junction Club a few weeks ago, and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Baldwin have been here several days on a vacation trip. His address today was inspirational and made every member feel that it was good to be a Rotarian.

MRS. MATTIE E. MASSIE

Mrs. Mattie E. Massie, 75, died in Hamilton on August 15, and was buried on the following day. Her son, James Massie, of Junction was called to Hamilton on August 12 on account of the serious illness of his mother, and she died on Friday after he received the message.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Rankin and daughter, Miss Ruth, left Wednesday for a visit in Abilene.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Thompson and Mrs. Roy Britton of Beaumont spent Tuesday in San Antonio.

ROSS STERLING IS LEADING MRS. MIRIAM A. FERGUSON FOR GOVERNOR BY 91,600 VOTES

James V. Allred Is Nominated Attorney General By Largest Majority Of Any State Candidate

The cry for a business man for Governor has been realized. At least, a real business man has been nominated by the Democratic party and thus far the Democratic nominee has been elected in the general election.

Mr. Sterling is a business man. He is a little business man grown into a big one, with his title to the larger estate thus guaranteed. What is more—and must be better, in the estimation of those who have seen in the dominance of economic perplexities an imperative call for the guidance of business experience—Mr. Sterling is not a politician, nor even a lawyer.

In those respects, Texas has never had just his like as Governor. Governor Moody is not a business man, and if he was not quite a politician when elected, he was in the way of becoming one, though whether he has yet earned a diploma as such is something of a moot question. Mr. Ferguson was a business man, though much more a politician, one who delved into politics and only dabbled in business. Mr. Hobby, if not quite a politician, was more such than a business man, and more an editor than both. Mr. Neff was in no sense a business man and in some sense a politician. Mr. Colquitt was a politician, who turned business man. Mr. Campbell was accidentally a business man for a season; one into whose experience business came as an exotic. Governor Lanham and, next before him, Governor Sayers, were lawyers and politicians who would have repudiated the imputation of being business men, for in that day, thirty years ago, experience in business was regarded rather as a disqualification for the governship of a State whose preoccupation then was with problems which were as predominantly political as those of today are economic.

The people of Texas will watch with interest Mr. Sterling's activities as Governor. Every well meaning citizen is hoping that he will make a successful Governor and that the strife and bickerings will cease.

For the benefit of those who do not take the daily papers we are giving the latest returns of the election showing the votes in all the state races. The county vote is given in a table on this page.

The vote for Governor passed 850,000 when the Texas Election Bureau made its unofficial tabulation Wednesday. Only 38 counties had not sent in complete returns on Saturday's Democratic primary and but a few small boxes were missing in these counties.

The vote for Governor was 850,744, divided as follows: Ross Sterling, 471,172; Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, 379,572.

Other totals were.

Lieutenant Governor—Edgar Witt, 423,499; Sterling P. Strong, 257,313.

Attorney General—James V. Allred, 464,813; R. L. Bobbett, 356,566.

State Treasurer — Charley Lockhart, 412,700; John E. Davis, 353,200.

Commissioner of Agriculture —J. E. McDonald, 437,426; A. H. King, 306,514.

Railroad Commissioner— Pat M. Neff, 451,273; W. Gregory Hatcher, 330,262.

West Texas C. of C. Man Is Hefe Tuesday

Mr. J. E. T. Peters, Manager of the Service Bureau of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce with headquarters in Stamford, was a Junction visitor Tuesday in the interest of a publicity campaign for West Texas.

The plan is unique in that books of stamps are issued which tells the story of West Texas. They are to be used on envelopes and other phases of advertising. These stamps depict the oil business, cotton, cattle, sheep, goats, farming and other phases of the business life of West Texas. If the West will use these stamps consistently it will be a great advertising service for all this section.

Mr. W. M. Taylor is working in the post office this week in the absence of Mrs. Earl Tracy, who is in Corpus Chrisit on her vacation.

I. H. Robertson Is Hurt Wednesday Night

Mr. I. H. Robertson was brought to the Standifer Hospital about 10 o'clock Wednesday night and is in a serious condition. He lives on Bear Creek and had been over to see Mr. John Cowsert. His horse came home about 4:30 p. m. and a search for him was begun. He was found lying on his face which is badly bruised. He is unconscious and in a critical condition. It is not known whether he suffered a stroke of apoplexy and fell from his horse or was thrown.

Mr. Robertson has lived on Bear Creek several years and has many friends who will regret to learn of his serious injury.

Mr. Roy Skaggs is able to be at his store after being laid up for repairs several weeks following an automobile accident near Boerne in which he and Carl Tibbitt were injured.

Football Season Will Open Here Sept. 4th

Coach L. B. Martin and twenty-three of his "Shorthorns" from Marfa and Coach Earl Bowers of Junction and twenty-three of his "Eagles" are in training on the Wright ranch on the South Llano. Both squads are having a great time and getting ready for their heavy schedules. Each team lost only one game last season. Marfa scored 247 points against 37 during the season while Junction the shore of Lake Merritt about teams enjoyed good seasons.

On next Thursday afternoon at four o'clock these teams will meet on the local field for the first game of the season. Both have a nucleus of good men to begin the season and a good game is expected when they meet on September 4.

Walter Buck Is High Man In J. of P. Race

Leading in the July primary in the race for justice of the peace, E. M. Burt was unsuccessful in the August primary and Walter Buck, who has had the office the past two years was re-elected by a majority of 47 votes over Mr. Burt.

This race and the commissioner's race were the only local races the voters of the Junction voting box were called upon to decide. Mr. Burt led in the first primary by 32 votes.

The following is the result of the August primary:

Buck	328
Burt	281

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Joseph and Mrs. R. Barnes returned Sunday from an enjoyable vacation trip to Corpus Christi. Mr. Joseph says that he had a great time playing with the mermaids.

Junction School Opens Wednesday Institute Monday

Many children are happy that the long vacation season will close and that next week they will turn their faces toward the school buildings. In Junction the first two days will be given over to institute work by the Junction teachers. School proper will open Wednesday morning at nine o'clock when the high school will meet in the study hall and the grades in their respective rooms. There will be no general program Wednesday as the auditorium has been cut up into class rooms to try to take care of the increased enrollment.

All teachers in the high school this year have degrees and have been selected for their special positions, which insures the proper instruction of the pupils. All the grade teachers have had special training for their work and this is expected to be a banner year in the Junction schools.

The following are the high school teachers:

Guy C. Moses, superintendent.
Earl Bowers, H. S. principal and athletics.
M. B. Bethel, vocational agriculture.
Mrs. Effie Roy Felps, English.
Miss Nellie Bennett, Latin and Spanish.
Miss Inez Kelley, Mathematics and Commercial work.

The grammar school is being conducted on the departmental plan with the following teachers:

Mrs. Grady Kindrick, English.
Mrs. Guy Munn, Arithmetic.
Miss Cecelia Merchant, Geography and Art.
Miss Gussie Boone, History.
Miss Juanita Dickey, Reading and Science.

On account of the admission of children six years of age the number of teachers have been increased this session, and the following trained primary teachers have been employed:

Miss Georgia Gildhart, fourth grade.
Miss Elizabeth Kuykendall, high third.
Mrs. Earl Bowers, low third.
Mrs. Astor Wallace, second grade.
Miss Velma Owens, high first.
Miss Austin Durst, low first.

Football Schedules Must Be Arranged By October First

More than 300 Texas schools have already signified their intention of participating in Interscholastic League football this fall, according to Roy B. Henderson, athletic director of the University of Texas League Bureau. October 1st has been set as the final date on which schools may file application blanks for participation, and by that date all contracts must be signed and all schedules filled out.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

The Parent-Teachers' Association and other civic clubs are anxious for everybody to have a general clean-up campaign at this time. School opens next week and before that time there should be a general clean-up. It has been dry so long that every fire hazard should be removed.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Durst and daughter, Nancy, and Mrs. N. S. Vaughan, left Wednesday for their home in Oklahoma City after an extended visit with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Pearce returned this week from a three weeks vacation with relatives and friends at Houston, Missouri. They brought back with them specimens of lead ore from Oklahoma. They also have a piece of ising-glass that is very interesting. They enjoyed their trip to their old home and met many old time friends.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

The "Mile of Pennies" committee, Mrs. B. B. Ragland chairman, brings the report that the final payment has been made on the church piano. This fund has been built up during the past two and a half years, and the work has proceeded so quietly that many knew nothing of the fund, yet so efficiently that two splendid pianos have been bought and paid for. The piano in the auditorium, a Kranich & Bach, has been pronounced one of the finest instruments in this section of the state. Mrs. Ragland has carried through this work with splendid success.

The pastor will preach next Sunday morning for the meeting of the Llano Valley Epworth League Union at Bethel. Arrangements are being made for the pulpit to be filled for the morning service and the evening service will be held at 8:30. Epworth League meeting at 7:30.

The Epworth League recently had the distinction of having one of its members selected as Treasurer of the West Texas Conference Epworth League. Mr. Ramsey Randolph holds this responsible position.

In the passing of Bro. J. W. Ragland the church as well as the community has lost one of its best members. Unable for several years to take an active part in the work of the church he was nevertheless, a tower of strength by reason of his fine courageous Christian spirit and attitude. He was a Southern gentleman of the old school and a sincere Christian.

The appearance of the church yard has been greatly improved by the placing of large quantities of black soil. Mr. Wilson Buster promoted the project, many contributed for loads of dirt, the hauling was done by Mr. Porter, while Mr. Boekhaus has levelled and arranged the dirt. A nice lawn and shrubbery are planned.

Annual conference is to meet this year in Harlingen in October, this meeting bringing the church to a close for the fifty thousand members residing within the bounds of this conference.

A fine interest has been maintained by the choir even during the summer months. Real progress has been made and splendid musical talent is being developed. The choir meets for practice on Thursday night and everyone interested in music and choral work is cordially invited to be present.

CITY TAXES DUE

Taxes for the City of Junction are now due and payable at the city offices in the basement of the Kimble County Court House.

COPPERAS CHURCH NEWS

The regular business meeting of the Copperas Missionary Society was held in the home of Mrs. Larkin Taylor and daughter, Miss Vinie. It was a fine meeting. Ice cold watermelons were served. The next business meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Elmer Harrison on September 11.

The literary program will be given at the Copperas Church next first Sunday morning at 10 o'clock to which everybody is invited. Rev. Milton F. Hill will preach at 11 o'clock. A basket dinner will be served and Brother Hill will preach again in the afternoon. Bring your basket and join us for a day of worship and fellowship.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

All the regular services Sunday. Bible classes will meet at 10 a. m. Preaching at 11 a. m. and at 8:30 p. m.

J. S. Newman,
Minister.

BETTER TIMES AHEAD

When conditions are flourishing most anybody can get along, but it is usually "slow music" financially for the man who combines bad judgment and hard times. In the livestock business it has always been outrageously bad judgment to use inferior sires. Our best three billies last year totaled $535. We are offering them this year at $50 each. Will you order them delivered or come over to Georgetown and pick them yourself?

We refer you to John Powell of Menard who bought No. 1 and No. 3 last year. Also to Henry Grobe, Tate Jarvis, Harry Northcutt, Mr. Smelser, Mr. Deats and others who bought our new blood billies last year.

IN MEMORIUM

"She doeth little kindnesses which most leave undone or despise—
For nought that sets one heart at ease,
Or giveth happiness or peace
Is law esteemed in her eyes."

It seems as if James Russell Lowell must have caught a vision of a beautiful life such as characterized the late Mrs. Mary Emma Pickett Stevenson when he wrote the above lines, for verily she lived to give happiness and peace—the motive power in her life always being love for others.

The passing of this good woman, who died in San Antonio August 19, 1930, when the crowning joy of motherhood had been bestowed on her but six days, was a great shock to her many friends in Kimble County and has touched our hearts in a most unusual way.

For "Miss Emma" was well known to us all and universally loved.

She held a unique place in our community inasmuch as she was a genius who invented more ways of helping folks than any other person we can call to mind.

Unselfish, generous and lovable, ministering always to others, Mrs. Roscoe Stevenson radiated sunshine wherever she went.

Everybody was welcome at her home—everybody was her friend—because her big heart included everybody when it came to saying kindly words, or doing unexpected kindly deeds, and her beautiful Christian character was made manifest each day and hour by joyous living.

But woven like a thread of gold through the fabric of Miss Emma's life was her tender devotion to her family—home ties being sacred to her—and at this time our very deepest sympathy goes out to the bereaved husband and kinfolks, and the little son, who will be precious to so many for his mother's sake.

We have no adequate way of telling what inspiration to higher things is called forth by the home-going of this wonderful woman.

Miss Emma has passed to the Great Beyond, but her name is engraved in the hearts and memories of all who loved her as a monument of loving kindly deeds far too many to recount in these brief lines.

The world may sound no
trumpet, ring no bells
But God's own Book of Life
the shining record tells.

Mrs. Frank Wilson.

The R. T. Amberson birthday dinner, the 18th inst., was a decided success and uncle Tol sure did enjoy it. The out-of-county guests were Mrs. G. C. Amberson, James Amberson and family, Joe Amberson and family of San Antonio, Mr. and Mrs. Daily of Boerne. The number of guests present was between 40 and 50, who as one joined by those who could not attend, wished for Uncle Tol many more just such happy birthdays.

Miss Melbe Walton left the 19th for Lone Grove where she goes to spend some time with her sister, Mrs. Box, before the beginning of school.

Our gin began operations in earnest on the 19th. It sounds good to hear that old gin whistle, even if the crop is short.

Mrs. Mattie Allen and daughter and Mrs. Marguerette O'Lary of Miami, Arizona, Mrs. Marguerette Sheppard and Mr. Larkin Miller of Junction were guests in the L. E. Miller home Monday of last week. These people are all relatives of Mr. Miller.

Mr. Tom Horn was a pleasant visitor Wednesday of last week. Mr. Horn is a real interesting character when you can get him wound up started off smoothly. Come again, Mr. Horn.

It is better to pick cotton for 75c per hundredweight than to spend your time on the sidewalk cursing conditions over which you nor any other man has any control. The gathering of the cotton is honorable. The cotton is useful, and the small wage you earn will buy groceries for your table, then at night you can press your pillow with a clear conscience in the realization that you have "done your bit" in bringing about a better condition. On the other hand, if you spend your time in discussing men measures of which you know but little and over which you have no control, when you come to press your pillow you can only say: Another day of my life has been wasted, all the energy expended in criticising and boasting, cussing and discussing existing conditions has put no bread on my table, the things I could have done to help right the wrongs has not been done, the products I could have gathered, so far as my efforts are concerned, have gone to waste. No wonder you have bad dreams. King Solomon was wise when he declared, All is vanity.

There's a Better Show at the Cool Arcadia, Kerrville. 20c

Mrs. M. L. Howard of Brownfield, a sister to G. Lewis, and whom he had not seen in 26 years, walked into his office Thursday of last week. It was a pleasant surprise to him, and it seemed real odd to hear that lady tell those present that Guite was her baby brother. Then how old do you reckon she might be, calling Lewis her baby brother, and he partly as old as Methuselah. Mr. Jewel Howard, her baby boy, 24 years old, was driving her car. Mrs. Howard and her son left for their home this Monday morning.

Mr. J. H. Tomlinson of Coleman, brother to Mrs. G. Lewis, came in Sunday for a few days stay with his sister.

Mr. J. S. Goodman returned home Monday from a visit to his daughter at Eden. Mr. Goodman says between Menard and Eden they had a fine rain.

Mrs. Bill Sweet and baby, who have been spending several days with her mother, Mrs. I. W. Ellis, have returned to their home.

Miss Dorothy Pearson spent several days in the home of her uncle, Mr. Luther Walton, last week returning home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Andrews have returned to London, Clarence has come to fire at the gin, and he took charge of that old gin whistle just as though it belonged to him. It sounds good, Clarence.

Ye writer had a real pleasant trip Sunday to Brady, going over across the divide, returning over Nos. 9 and 29 highways. Good roads, sorry crops, short pasture along road going over; excellent roads, better crops and better pastures coming back. It is almost unbelieveable to note the improvements of Brady in the last 25 years. It has improved from a very common western county seat to a modern western city.

The revival meeting closed Sunday night with a wonderful sermon and a typical representation of the crucifixion of our Saviour. The writer was not there, but those present appreciated the scene and sermon.

The Arcadia Theater, Kerrville, is the shopper's haven of rest as it is conveniently located and is always healthfully cool and comfortable. 20c

It is tragic that custom has established the holding of only a ten day meeting for revival work. A real good preacher is generally able to work up a very good interest in ten days but anyone could accomplish much more in the next ten than they could in the first ten. Let's arrange for twenty days or more for our revivals.

SIX MILE MUSINGS

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Kirkpatrick had as their guests last week Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Kirkpatrick and family of Boerne. They were accompanied here by Mr. and Mrs. Luther Kirkpatrick and Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Kirkpatrick returned with them.

Mrs. Lum Smith was able to go to the polls Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Alexander spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cowsert.

Mrs. Charlie Bishop and children visited Mrs. R. M. Alexander Tuesday.

We are needing rain badly as it has not rained in a long, long time. We read about Roosevelt needing rain and sure hope that it comes.

WEST TEXAS UTILITIES CO.

One Town or Many

Electricity is required at different times for different purposes.

This simple fact explains why a widespread electric system, serving many communities over a wide area, can operate more efficiently than small plants each serving a single community. Serving a larger number of people, with a greater variety of demands, the widespread system keeps its facilities working over more hours of the day.

There is another important advantage of the widespread transmission system over the small plant serving a single community. The transmission system can meet increased demands at once. No delay is necessary for increased facilities, as so frequently is the case with the small plant.

Community growth is thus encouraged and hastened.

The West Texas Utilities Company places at the disposal of 116 prosperous cities, towns and communities in West Texas, the "Land of Opportunity", 100,000 horsepower of electrical energy —generated by three Major Generating Stations and 22 Auxiliary Plants, and distributed over a network of more than 2,500 miles of transmission lines.

PHILIP JOSEPH

FOURTEENTH INSTALMENT

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Standing on a New York street corner, a young woman suddenly discovers that she does not know her own name nor how she got there. Everything in her past is a blank. She knows only that her name is Eve. She meets a young man who lives at the hotel where she is registered as Eve Nobody of Nowhere, which she has written in French. Eric Hamilton calls in a nerve specialist, but Eve slips out of the hotel, goes to a little apartment house, where she meets a professional dancer who gets her a job in a cabaret.

As a cabaret hostess she meets many curious people. Then, one night, a man who claims to recognize her comes in. She is afraid of him and runs away, back to the hotel to Eric Hamilton. She has her hair dyed and changes her manner of dress, so that the stranger out of her old life will not recognize her. Then Hamilton persuades her to go through a marriage ceremony with him. As they return to the hotel the man she fears is waiting. Hamilton seizes her upstairs and turns to the other man, who says his name is Samuel Henderson, of Chicago.

Henderson identifies Eve to Hamilton. She is Eve Carrington, a famous concert singer and Henderson was not only her manager but had hoped to marry her. She had collapsed after trying to save four children of a friend from an overturned rowboat in Lake Michigan, two of them drowning before her eyes. She had slipped away from the nurse on guard in Chicago and completely vanished. The shock of the death of the two little boys coupled with her fear of Henderson had caused her loss of memory.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"She was just about off her head for ten days after the accident," he went on, "over the two boys she couldn't save. She had been awfully fond of those kids, and they'd gone through the whole thing so well. She had expected to bring them both in together; they'd been so plucky she was sure she could manage it. . . . She said she kept hearing Herman's good-by to her. It was always in her ears. Oh, well . . ." he repeated, and stopped for a minute, staring before him as if following the scene he had described.

"We thought she'd come around in a few days," he resumed philosophically. "We called in doctors and a nurse and kept her quiet . . . but she was terribly strung up. Could not forget the accident couldn't stand music . . . couldn't see anyone . . . couldn't eat . . . couldn't sleep. I made every allowance for her. What I can't forgive," he added heavily, "is her skipping out and leaving us in the lurch. I'd have bet a million she would never do that."

"Just how did she do it?"

Henderson peered at his companion with a faintly sardonic grin and rose, shaking his broad shoulders as if to cast off a weight from them.

"Here, hold on! You can't go yet. There's a lot I want to know," Hamilton urged.

"That goes for me, too. But it's simply amazing how little you know about your wife," Henderson muttered.

"We've certainly talked more about the future than about the past."

"I'll bet you have." Henderson took a turn around the room, plainly thinking out things. "Well, I'm the past, all right, and I'm the also ran, and a guess I'm the snows of yesteryear," he announced, returning to face his host. Then the faint grin left his lips and he added with unexpected dignity: "I thought you took on this call because you knew there was an explanation coming to me. Now I'm beginning to realize that you don't know a thing about Eve. I can understand why she didn't tell you about the tragedy or even about her breakdown after it. But why didn't she tell you about me and about her musical career?"

"Sit down again and we'll try to figure it out. But . . . did I understand you to say that Eve had promised to marry you?"

Henderson drew a chair forward and sat down facing him.

"That gave you a jolt, didn't it?—but it's true. Eve has been engaged to me for three years. You see, I sent her to Paris to study the piano when she was seventeen. Oh, yes, I sent her," he added in response to the listener's involuntary movement. "I've made that girl. She's a genius, as I've said, but she takes things hard, as geniuses do."

"When Eve got back, this July, I expected her to marry me right away. In fact, I had made all the arrangements. But she begged off for a year—said she wanted to make her American start first. She had earned a lot of money, and she wanted to repay more of the loan before she married. Of course I was disappointed. I didn't care anything about the loan, since she was to marry me, but I agreed to the delay. I always gave Eve her head. Had to, as a matter of fact."

He stopped and looked reproachfully at the dead cigar.

"I forgot to say that when Eve was at her lowest and couldn't see anyone but the nurse and doctors," he went on as if it had reminded him of something, "we let Mrs. Heckner come in. We knew she'd talk about Eve's saving the two girls, and we thought she might brace Eve up. But instead of that the two women fell into each other's arms and cried themselves sick, and Eve's nurse had her hands full with the pair of them. After that Eve was worse than ever. The visit had stirred her all up again just at the crisis, when she most needed to be kept quiet.

"I suppose we blundered a good deal," he admitted. "We were all at sea. To have Eve down and out was such an unheard of thing. Then I suppose I was the next to blunder. For when I realized that Eve's concert season was probably ruined for her, I brought up the marriage question again. I urged her to marry me right off, and I told her I'd take her abroad for six months and let her rest while I looked over the European musical field for new artists. Perhaps that was another mistake.

"She went all over the lot," Henderson wearily admitted. "She actually seemed to think I was applying pressure—trying to take advantage of the situation. In fact, she accused me of it and talked about being in my power because of the loan. That wasn't a bit like her, but, as I've told you, she was just about off her head over those boys. She was hearing that laugh of trust when she first reached them, and seeing the look in their eyes when he swam off with Mary and left them. . . . If she fell asleep for a moment she was wakened by hearing Herman's 'goodby.'

"I still thought she'd come round," he resumed with an unconscious sigh. "So did the doctors. We had half a dozen specialists in before we got through. They said she'd be all right. She's strong as a pony. She had never been sick in her life. But instead of letting us get her back into condition, she simply eluded the nurse one night and lit out.

"We gave out that she had gone away for a rest-cure and we canceled her engagements. Everyone accepted the story without question, because of what she had been through.

"Even the Heckners think she's in some sanitarium and that we won't tell them where. Of course we engaged private detectives after the first day or so, and then I came on to New York, myself."

"What made you think she was in New York?"

"It was the obvious place she'd head for, and we were afraid her next step would be to sail for Europe. We had all the ships watched. We were honeycombing Chicago at the same time and following up alleged detective clues in half a dozen other cities. When I came to New York I was ready to cut my throat, for we weren't getting anywhere till we found you. At first that cheered me a lot, but I was beginning to get discouraged again. You've been watched wherever you went, these last days."

"How did you find her at Jake's?"

"Pure chance. I had dropped in to talk to a young fellow Jake has in his band—another genius that I suppose will drive me crazy some day—and there I saw her, sitting at a table with a couple of men she wouldn't have wiped her shoes on a year ago. I never was so upset in my life. I thought one or the other of us was crazy, but I was careful not to frighten her. However, she chased right down here to you, just the same, and my man spotted her . . . and the rest was easy."

He stopped.

"Well," he said, rising heavily, "I guess I've found the last page of the score, all right, but I can't read it even yet. And I must say you haven't helped me much. Still, this seems to be one of the swift romances we read about, so I suppose it's all right."

Eric wrung his hand. He liked the man and trusted him. But he must move warily. When Henderson's big figure disappeared through the hotel's door he went to the telephone and called up Doctor Carrick's office. The voice of the office nurse informed him that the doctor was at dinner.

"Fine," Eric said heartily. "Tell him to stop eating and come right down to see a patient at the Garland."

Then the bridegroom went up to his bride's rooms, feeling rather exhausted.

"It's all right," he reported in answer to the tense unspoken question with which she met him on the threshold. "The man says he knows who you are, and I think he is genuine. Everything promises to be beautifully cleared up and there's nothing you have to fear. But we mustn't talk about it till I've seen Carrick. I want Carrick to decide how and when to tell you about yourself. Now will you trust me . . . and him?"

"Of course. But . . . are you absolutely sure I have no reason to fear that man?"

"I'm certain of it dear. He's really a very good sort. Now, remember how patient and stunning you've been so far, and sit tight just a little longer."

Doctor Carrick's card was brought in while he and Eve were having their coffee. Eric glanced at it, put it in his pocket, and rose.

"He has come," he explained "and I'll see him first. If you will go on up to the sitting-room, we'll follow you in ten minutes or so."

He found Carrick pacing up and down the hotel hall and resolutely led him into the familiar writing-room. It was a time for word-saving and he made a brief but complete report of the facts of the case, with no side comments or surmises of his own. He had been impressed by the story of the rescue, and the report interested him.

His was the satisfaction of the physician who is shown to be correct in a difficult diagnosis about which inwardly he has had some doubts.

"It's just as I thought," he now reminded Hamilton. "There's no further need for secrecy, then, after we've verified all this?"

"Why not?"

"We know now who the patient is, and if Henderson is what he claims to be—"

"But there's another point," Hamilton interrupted. "Even if he is Henderson, by his own confession he's in love with Miss Carrington. He also admits that she hasn't any close friends in this country. If we confess that her marriage to me is a fake, and turn her over to him, how do we know how he'll act? How do we know she'd want to be turned over to him? There isn't much question that she ran away to get rid of him, is there? If she had a family or an intimate circle of friends, our duty would be clear. As it is, I think we ought to do what we're always telling her to do—sit tight."

"I believe you're right." Carrick admitted. "It looks as if his proposal had been the last straw. We'll stall him off for a few days, anyway. Meantime I'll do a little experimenting; but we won't make any explanations to Miss Crarington till we know all about Henderson and the Chicago end of the matter. That's the first step in any case, of course—to investigate Henderson's story."

"Naturally. As I've said, there isn't much doubt of it in my mind. It has all the earmarks of truth, but I'm not taking any chances. Tonight I'll put the matter up to an agency I know out there, and get a full report on Henderson and a verification of the Heckner drowning. That will be easy if it happened."

They found Eve walking the floor.

"Good evening, Miss Carrington," the psychiarist said briskly as he shook hands; and without giving her time to comment on the name he went on: "You're looking a good deal better than when I saw you last. I hear you've been doing some professional dancing."

"I had to earn money, and that was the only opening," Eve said in a low voice. "But, Doctor, won't you tell me—"

"Yes," he interrupted. "I'm going to tell you as much as I can. That's always my rule with patients, and everything we have heard is encouraging. It will be better for you to know what has been said than to imagine it."

"Oh, I'm sure it will!"

"The first thing for you to take in is that there's nothing in your old life to dread going back to when you recover—nothing for you to fear. Will you hold fast to that knowledge?"

MILLIONS RELEASED
FOR OTHER INVESTMENT USE
AS RESULT OF IMPROVED RAILROAD SERVICE

IMPROVED railroad transportation is enabling manufacturers in the state of Illinois alone, to successfully carry on their business with reduced inventories that total $420,000,000 annually. On the basis of a total value of approximately 80 billions of dollars—the estimated annual value of all manufactures in the United States—this means that improved railroad service is saving American business at least the equivalent of the interest charges on five billion dollars. The reduced inventories in Illinois were effected out of a total annual volume of business that is slightly less than six billion dollars.

Not only have the interest charges been saved. The amounts not needed in inventories at both the originating and receiving ends of the line and in transit are released for constructive investment. Without a doubt this has been an important factor in our sustained prosperity. It is one of the most important reasons the country did not suffer from panic conditions following the readjustment of security values last winter. Very few if any businesses were caught with large stores of materials or stocks of goods on hand; consequently it was not necessary to "write off" huge losses as formerly happened. It will be remembered that there was virtually no readjustment of commodity prices to accompany the lowered security values.

So-called "hand-to-mouth" methods of doing business now are vital factors in our entire industrial and economic scheme of things. The entire system is dependent on exceptional railroad transportation and the railroads are justly entitled to a share of credit for the benefits that have resulted. That there are real benefits no one denies. And we know now that over any period of time the volume of business transacted is as great or greater under the present system as under old methods.

Sometimes it seems that the public is so accustomed to the conveniences of modern railroad service that it seldom, if ever, recognizes the fact that even the most simple purchase contains the romance of industry, commerce and human progress. There is hardly a commodity in daily use that does not reflect the combined services of a great many people and few realize how much of that service is performed by the railroads and what a small portion of the consumer's dollar ever goes to the railroads for their services.

A case in point is the consumer's dollar spent for bread. Some interesting figures have just been compiled showing that the producer gets 28.1 cents of the dollar. Transportation of the wheat represents 2.6 cents. The elevator margin is 2.8 cents. The flour manufacturer gets .6 cents. The transportation of the flour represents 4.4 cents. The bread manufacturer gets 12.3 cents. The selling cost is 16.4 cents, the "overhead" chargeable to manufacturing is 8.5 cents and the profit accruing to those engaged in manufacture of bread is 5.7 cents. The operating cost to the retailer is 15.7 cents and the profit margin to the retailer is 2.9 cents.

Super-service on the part of the railroads is an essential necessity today. The Missouri Pacific Lines appreciate this and will continue to exert their best efforts to this end that the public may have the reliable, dependable railroad transportation that it needs and must have.

I solicit your co-operation and suggestions.

EAGLE LAKE EDITOR TELLS ABOUT PLEASANT VACATION ON THE LLANO IN KIMBLE CO.

Mr. B. C. McCarty, editor and owner of the Eagle Lake Headlight, spent his vacation this summer on the classic Llano in Kimble County. The following is an article that he sent his paper about the time he left:

The Eagle Lake party at the V Bar H Ranch on the South Llano River, nine miles from Junction, has broken up. Mr. and Mrs. S. S. White, his sister, Mrs. H. A. Douglas, and daughter, Dorothy Dell, and Simon, Jr., were the first to leave. Mr. and Mrs. Vic Engelhard turned their car homeward Sunday morning, at which the McCarty delegation headed for the Davis Mountains. Mr. and Mrs. Justin Smith are still here, but expect to start home during the early part of the week. "Judd" has proved the champion fisherman at the ranch. Saturday morning he brought in three blue cats that weighed about six pounds. He caught them on three throw lines of two hooks each (all the game laws in this county permit a fisherman to use). Tonight he has put out twenty-eight throw lines and expects to treat the entire camp to a fish dinner tomorrow, Sunday. He says he's just now got the hang of throw line fishing in this river. The river is very deep in places, as deep as forty to fifty feet. It is close to the bank in this deep water, where caves run far back into the rock walls, that he is having his success.

This V Bar H Ranch is a splendid place to spend a quiet vacation visit. Mr. H. F. Bossman, owner and manager of the ranch, has twenty-three screened cottages along the banks of the river. They are equipped with cooking quarters and are always occupied during the months of July and August, and to secure one you must make reservation in advance. Mr. Bossman is very courteous to his guests and tries to see that everyone is comfortably situated.

The climate here is dry and invigorating. It is warm in the middle of the day, but not near so warm as it is at home, and the nights are always cool and comfortable. We usually reach for a light blanket before morning.

The bathing resort at the camp here is one of its chief assets. The water is cool and refreshing and clear. There are two swimming places near the camp. One has water from ankle-deep up to your neck. The other is thirty feet deep, with no shallow water, and if you are not a good swimmer you haven't got any business in it, for there's no shallow water—it is all deep swimming. Guests at the ranch here are in the water at all times of the day. In fact, some of the women who are evidently trying to grow sun-tans, are in their bathing suits pretty much all day. And they are putting on some excellent sun-tans, having reached the Mexican color stage—and they don't look so bad at that!

There are a great many little camp resorts all along the river here, but I have seen none, in my estimation, that come up to Bossman's V Bar H. Everything is "posted," and you get run out just about as quickly as you enter any place along the river here if you haven't got permission. However, you can buy camping privileges most anywhere along the river. But you can't blame the owners for posting their places, for automobile tourists are as thick through this country as fleas on a dog's back. You see cars from all over the state here, and summer tourist business has grown to be a big thing for Junction.

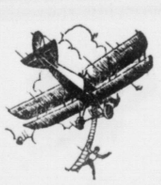

There are plenty of game wardens around these hills, too. I don't think a day has passed since we have been here that there hasn't been a couple nosing around up and down the river here. We haven't gone out with a minnow bucket yet that a game warden hasn't stopped us to take a look through it. And the first time, he threw out about half of our minnows. You are not allowed to have them over three inches in length. One of the wardens told us that if he wanted to be hardboiled like some of them working this stream, that he could have stuck us $13 for every minnow we had in the bucket over three inches. But we haven't been bothered about measuring our fish. We have caught a good many, all under the eleven-inch limit, only to be thrown back. You can see just hundreds of bass swimming around in clear waters of this river. They all appear to be about the same size, just a little under the required length. Next year ought to be a wonderful fishing year on this river.

We have visited "Seven Hundred Springs," one of the beauty spots of this section, eleven miles up the river from here. I didn't count the springs to see if there are really seven hundred of them, but they gush out of the canyon walls and rush across the rocks to the river with a roaring noise. There were a great many tourists at the springs the day we were there, and we were told that there is scarcely a day during the summer season when a hundred of more cars do not visit this beauty spot of nature. The clear, cold running waters from the springs have cut deep channels in the rock walls all the way to the river. If you come to this section, "Seven Hundred Springs" are surely worth your trip up to see them.

To give you some idea of the dryness of this climate, when you come out of the river at dark and hang you bathing suit on a tree it is perfectly dry within an hour. You can open a package of post toasties and leave it open indefinitely here. And they'll get crisper the longer they stand. It is a wonderful climate. I like it, but not wanting to spend all of time in one place, we left Sunday morning for the Davis Mountain country.

Mr. Rankin Kothmann returned last week from Waco where he has been attending Baylor U. Mr. Kothmann is to be superintendent of the London school this year.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Buster of Llano were week-end visitors with their sons, W. B., Ovie and Royce. They were met here by another son, J. D., and family of San Marcos.

RESOLUTION OF SYMPATHY

At a meeting of Mountain Camp W. O. W. No. 434, the following resolutions were adopted, and spread on the minutes of the Camp, and a copy of same to be published, and one copy to be sent to the widow of our deceased sovereign.

Whereas, on the 31st day of July, A. D., 1930, the Almighty and the Supreme Ruler of the universe, in His infinite wisdom took from his toils of life, our Sovereign, J. N. Maddux, a beloved and loyal member of our Camp, a loving and faithful husband and father, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the members of Mountain Camp No. 434 Junction, Texas, do hereby assure the loved ones of our departed Sovereign, that we are ever mindful of their deep sorrow, and extend to them our sincere and heartfelt sympathy.

We cannot say and we will not say
That he is dead—he is just away,
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
Its needs must be, since he lingers there.
And you—O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and glad return,
Think of him faring on, as clear
In the love of there as the love of here.
Think of him, as the same, we say,
He is not dead, he is just away.

This item may interest pecan growers: "The Bureau of Entomology for two years has been breeding an insect parasite in its laboratories at Brownwood and soon will send the almost invisible mite to other part of the country to be liberated in pecan groves in the hope that it will aid in controlling the insect pest known as the nut case-borer." These parasites, it is said, nourish themselves on their hosts and gradually devour them.

Six Months Ford Sales Gain Over Same Period 1929

According to figures just released Ford sales for the first six months of this year totaled approximately 700,000 cars as compared with approximately 400,000 cars for the nearest competitor.

As compared with the first six months of last year, Ford's nearest competitor lost about 30,000 car sales, while the Ford sales figures indicate an increase in business of slightly more than one thousand cars.

Ford is the only car that shows a gain in sales for the first six months of 1930 over the first six months of 1929. ALL others have fallen behind of 1929.

Other low priced cars have fallen far behind their 1929 records. One has fallen from 127,000 last year to 44,000 this year. Another one has fallen from nearly 100,000 last year to approximately 45,000 this year and another has fallen from approximately 100,000 last year to 13,000 this year.

The industry's sales have dropped from about 2,100,000 last year in the first six months to 1,600,000 this year. Ford was the only manufacturer to show any gain.

THINK! There IS a REASON. Buy a FORD and SAVE the DIFFERENCE.

Crockett Co. Ranchers Ship Range Lambs To Kansas Feed Pens

Ozona, Aug. 20.—Refusing to take the market prices now quoted for range lambs, Crockett County ranchmen have decided to take their chance with the feed lots.

Approximately 18,000 head of Crockett County lambs are now being shipped to Emporia, Kansas, where they will be placed in feed lots by the Santa Fe railroad, fed and later marketed as fat lambs on the Kansas markets.

The Santa Fe has agreed to ship the lambs, feed them and market them as fat lambs, remitting to the growers what is left after the freight and feed bills have been paid.

Among local ranchmen who have agreed to ship their lambs to the feed lots are Joe Pierce, Jr., Vic Pierce, Massie and Wayne West, Ralph Watson and Ad Harvick. Joe Pierce recently purchased about 1400 head of lambs from Alvin Harrell and these will also be shipped.

CONSERVE FEED

There has never been a time in the history of Kimble County when there was a greater need to conserve feed than at the present time. The continued drought has limited the supply of feed. Many farmers and ranchmen have stubble of various kinds that will make some feed with proper care, if early fall rains come as they usually do.

By planting all available ground in wheat and other cold resisting grains much valuable pasturage can be furnished during the winter. These feeds can be planted late in the fall and make good pastures during the months when grazing is needed most. By conserving the available feed supply and supplementing in every possible way between now and winter farmers and ranchmen will be better prepared to tide over the winter months.
