Stenholm says he will not join Hance

By KEELY COGHLAN

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, will not join his former fellow "boll weevil" Kent Hance in switching parties, his aide said Friday.

Hance, a former conservative Democratic Congressman from Lubbock, Friday announced he is switching parties and becoming a Republican.

In a prepared statement read over the telephone by an aide, Stenholm "expressed keen disappointment that his long-time friend and ally... has decided to switch parties."

According to the statement, Stenholm and Hance had discussed whether to switch parties in the past, but each time Stenholm had advised Hance against becoming a Republican.

"This is a loss for the Democratic party and a gain for the Republicans," Stenholm said.

Stenholm, however, said he would remain in the Democratic party, although he did state that he would try to modify its positions to a more conservative stance.

"I continue to believe that there is a place at the table for conservative Democrats in the state of Texas and the nation," he said. "I have not lost faith in the future of the Democratic Party and I will continue to be an active and vocal leader in efforts to make necessary changes within the party."

Stenholm was nominated for the House Speaker's position early this term in an effort to force Democratic House leaders to pay more attention to conservative representative's views. He later withdrew after meeting with Speaker Tip O'Neill, D-Massachusetts.

CHARLES STENHOLM

Hance is the second of the highly prominent "boll weevils," conservative Democrats who sided with the Republican administration on budget issues, to jump parties.

Hance recently lost his bid to be the Democratic nominee for the 1984 Senate race by 140,000 votes in a primary run-off to the more liberal Lloyd Doggett, a former state senator from Austin.

During his announcement, Hance did not say he intended to run for governor in 1986 but did mention Gov. Mark White's name.

Another former "boll weevil," Rep. Phil Gramm, R-College Station, was said to be highly instrumental in Hance's decision. He was present at Hance's announcement Friday in a news conference in Washington, D.C.

Gramm switched parties two years ago when Democratic House leaders told him he would not re-

Permits may be sign of more construction

By KEELY COGHLAN

Staff Writer

A San Angelo development company, representing a fast food restaurant and a convenience store, received demolition permits in late April for two buildings on Gregg Street.

The demolition permits could be a sign of increased commercial construction. In March, the city granted a construction permit for a seafood restaurant.

And, another bright sign, April figures for building permits granted, permit fees collected and estimated construction costs almost have kept pace with figures from April 1984, according to city records.

But construction permits and estimated costs have fallen sharply from March figures and the year-to-date figures remain far behind 1984 figures, records show.

The City of Big Spring granted 23 building permits this April for an estimated $168,900 of construction and collected $556 in building permit fees.

Those figures were only slightly lower than figures from April 1984, in which the city issued 24 permits for an estimated $201,684 of construction and collected $614 in fees.

Statistics from both months, however, are drastically less than in March, when the city granted 12 permits for an estimated $395,593 of construction. That month the city collected $887 in fees, records show.

For the year-to-date in 1985, the city issued 89 permits, less than half of the 185 issued so far in 1984. Construction costs also were down: in 1985, the city has issued permits for an estimated $829,918 of construction, almost $6 million less than the $6.8 million estimated construction costs for 1984.

By this time in 1984, the city collected $11,821.25 in building permit fees. In 1985 to date, the city has collected $2,387.

The two demolition permits were granted to Larry Lumpkin and Associates of San Angelo, representing a Wendy's Hamburgers restaurant and a Cousin's convenience store.

The Wendy's restaurant would be located at 208 Gregg, where the old Big Cheese Pizza building is located. The convenience store would be located on the 400 block of Gregg, where a vacant gasoline station now stands, demolition permits show.

The city has not granted building permits to the company because the submitted plans did not have an engineer's seal, according to the building permits clerk.

Joe Bailey Johnson of 109 N.W. 12th also was granted a demolition permit for a house at 111 N.W. 12th.

In addition, the city granted four permits in April for mobile homes for an estimated value of $25,000, including a doctor's office in the parking lot of Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Others granted mobile home permits include Mahlon Tate of 1314 Lindbergh, Robert Fauver of 1620 Mesquite and Manuel Jara of 700 Creighton.

Permits granted for new construction include: an office building at 1324 E. Fourth, to Bill Pollard of 1606 Osage, for an estimated cost of $30,000; new office space at 408 E. Marcy, to

Birthday set for Mark Twain's home town

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — Later in life and far from Missouri, Mark Twain liked to daydream about his childhood days in Hannibal, a "town drowsing in the sunshine of a summer's morning, the streets empty, or nearly so."

But if Twain were to return this summer, he might find it difficult to find a room.

City officials hope that nearly 750,000 people will visit Hannibal to celebrate the 150th birthday anniversary of Twain, the first American author to achieve worldwide critical acclaim.

The town — which nestles in a valley between bluffs overlooking Twain's beloved Mississippi River — is staking big money that its most famous native son will lure millions of tourist dollars during the seven-month "Mark Twain Sesquicentennial," which begins Saturday.

"We really have three objectives in mind," said Mayor John Lyng. "Hannibal normally gets about 250,000 visitors a year. We want to double or triple that number. We also want to put Hannibal in the spotlight, nationally. And we want to leave the city with some permanent public improvements."

Considering the relatively short time that Twain actually lived in Hannibal, the bond between them is remarkable. Although Twain traveled widely and spent most of his later life in Connecticut, his major works centered on St. Petersburg, his name for Hannibal. Most Americans consider it his home.

Twain was born Samuel Langhorne Clemens in nearby Florida on Nov. 30, 1835. His father, a justice of the peace, moved the family to Hannibal, about 100 miles upriver from St. Louis, when Samuel was four.

He left town at 18 to become a printer in St. Louis, New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and other cities. He went on to be a steamboat pilot, a Confederate soldier for a brief period, a gold prospector, a newspaper reporter, a lecturer and, finally, an author.

His books about Hannibal were written while he lived in Hartford, Conn. He rarely returned to Missouri, and then only for short visits.

Twain died a relatively poor man on April 21, 1910. He is buried in Elmira, N.Y., alongside his wife, Olivia, daughters Jean and Susy, and son Langdon.

"The last time he was here was in 1908, when he stopped in while en route to Columbia, Mo., to receive an honorary degree from the University of Missouri," said Henry H. Sweet's III, curator of the Twain page 2-A was also charged with violating his parole.

Bittersweet reunion

Former American POWs gather in Colorado

DENVER (AP) — They've lost hair and gained weight since they were American POWs in Hitler's Germany, but friendships have endured for hundreds of former "Kriegies" who have gathered to commemorate the end of World War II and their own liberation.

All were members of the U.S. Army Air Corps, based mostly in England and flying B-17 and B-24 bombers into the heart of the Third Reich.

About 6,000 Air Corps officers from among the 90,000 U.S. fliers who were confined to German prisoner of war camps wound up in Stalag Luft III, the camp made famous by the tunnel breakout dramatized in the book and film "The Great Escape."

The American POWs began their reunion Thursday. One of their honored guests is Herman Glennitz, 86, a former German soldier whose duty was to stop the prisoners — known in German as "Kriegies" — from escaping, but who occasionally failed.

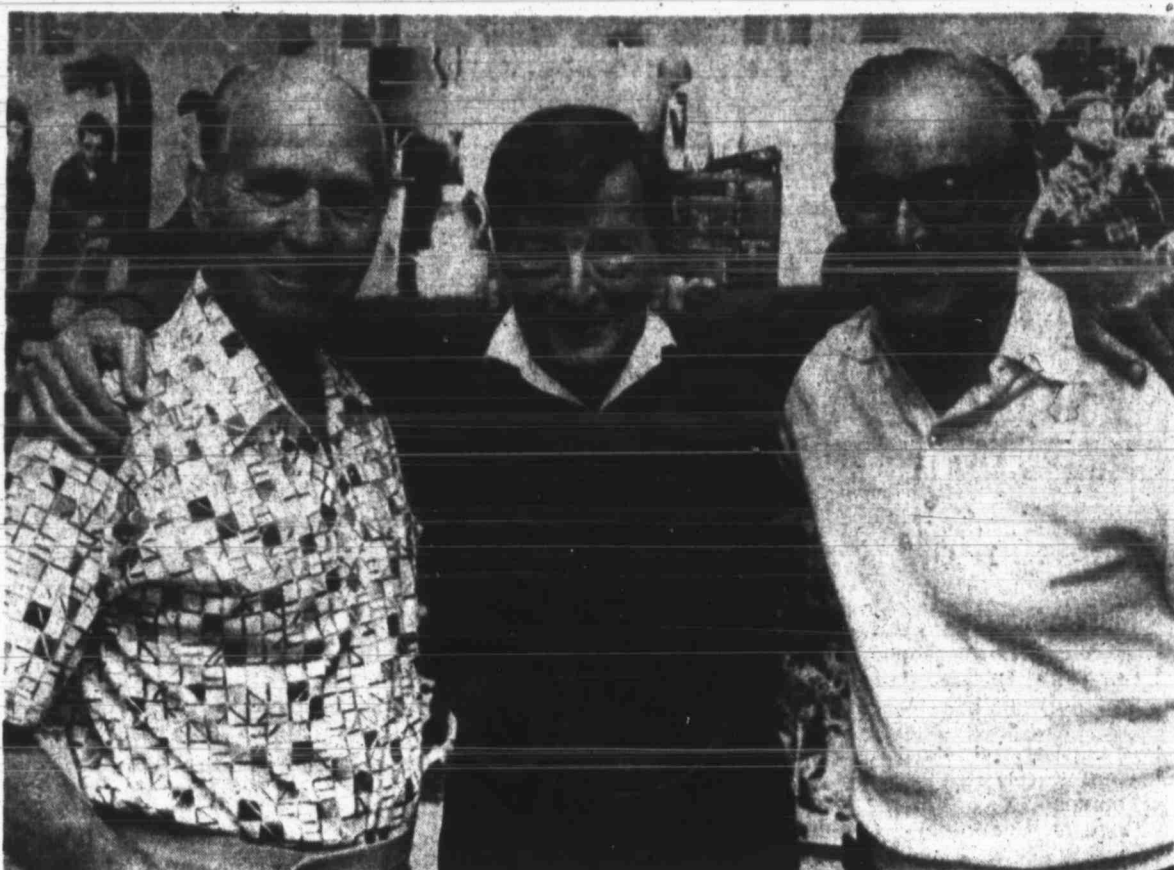

Former U.S. Army colonel and OSS officer Jerry Sage said Glennitz "threw me in the cooler three times for trying to escape, but we each had our jobs to do. I've never hugged him, but I've shaken his hand."

Sage said he believed President Reagan's planned visit to a West German military cemetery at Bitburg, site of the graves of 49 SS troops, "is a fine idea."

"I say it's time to heal wounds, not keep them open," Sage said. At Thursday night's gathering, there was plenty of food and drink, the air was hazy with cigarette smoke, and the facilities were plush.

It was a far cry from the stark surroundings of Stalag Luft III, where starvation was always around the corner and insanity was an unspoken threat that lurked in the darkened corners with rats and Germans who spied in the night.

"The foremost thing in all our minds most of the time was food," recalled Gordon A. "Bud" Summers, 65, of Topeka, Kan. "We used to sit around making up menus of all the food we'd eat after the war. "I was obsessed with chocolate. I once wrote a check for $25 to a guy for his Red Cross chocolate bar. After the war he cashed the check, written on a scrap of paper, and the bank honored it."

Maurice "Rosey" Rosener, 66, of Harlingen, Texas, and his brother Neil, 62, of Estes Park, Colo., were both B-17 pilots shot down over Germany, Maurice on his first mission and Neil on his last.

They were reunited at Stalag Luft III and became roommates. They remember their determination to live.

"Ninety-five percent of the men accepted the attitude they were going to get out one day, and they made the best of it," recalled Maurice. "But a few individuals just gave up. One guy went to sleep and slept for a year and a half. When he left camp he was a vegetable."

Rod Rawlinson, 67, of Denver was blown out of his B-17 after a direct hit from an enemy fighter. The other crewmen died.

His memories include the good care of a German doctor and an enemy interrogator who shocked him by knowing details about Rawlinson's wife back in Texas, and showing him a picture taken of him before he was shipped overseas.

"Their intelligence apparatus was incredible," said Rawlinson, who spent much of his POW days in internal security within Stalag Luft III, protecting men working on escape plans that never worked.

On the agenda during the next two days are speeches and luncheons, sightseeing tours and even a dinner dance. But beneath all the glitter and glitz, the laughter and the singalongs, is an underlying memory of what brought their lives together in the first place.

One old warrior, his face grave, stood alone in front of a poster of that deadly metal widower, the B-17 bomber. Silently, he raised his glass in a salute to fallen friends, a clear victory, a lost youth.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said he was disappointed by Hance's move.

"Kent Hance has been my friend for many years," Bentsen said. "His decision disappoints me. I think he made a serious mistake, but that doesn't affect my feelings of friendship."

Nancy Dorn, a spokeswoman for Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, said Loeffler was "down in Texas exploring the possibilities of running for governor" and issued a statement from the congressman.

"I welcome Kent to the Republican Party and believe this is yet another step toward making the Republican Party the majority party in the state of Texas," Loeffler said in the statement.

Mark Twain museum.

"The town has grown since then, of course, but it has expanded to the west, and left much of the downtown area intact," Sweet said. "Twain would recognize much of the old area today."

Young Sam Clemens' experiences in Hannibal provided the inspiration for the actions of Tom Sawyer. Huck Finn was Tom Blankenship, one of the author's mischievous companions. Becky Thatcher was Clemens' childhood sweetheart, Laura Hawkins, and Aunt Polly was his mother. Other literary characters such as Injun Joe and the slave, Jim, had counterparts in real life.

Most experts agree that it was Twain's ability to capture the times, the places and the conditions of his subjects that made him such a popular writer. He didn't always give the reader what was expected. Visitors to Hannibal today can still climb "Cardiff Hill," which is really Holliday's Hill, and Lovers' Leap. They can explore the cave in which Tom and Becky got lost. Young boys still swim and play pirate on Jackson's Island.

When Twain lived in Hannibal, 3,000 people lived here, most in small houses on unpaved streets. Today, there are 20,000, supporting an economy weakened in recent years by the loss of the railroad, a cement plant and shoe factories.

Lyng said the town made some difficult choices in deciding to go-for-broke with the celebration. "There are some who say there are better ways to spend our money," Lyng said.

Mayor-elect Richard Cerretti, who takes over from Lyng on Tuesday, is one of them. Cerretti has demanded to know the project's financial status before the city continues pumping money into it.

The bike was taken between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Thursday, the report stated.

Jerry Jones of Texas Auto Sales at 1108 E. Fourth told police someone stole the right taillight lens, valued at $100, from his 1982 maroon Ford Mustang between 5 a.m. Thursday and 9 a.m. Friday.

Police Friday arrested Joseph Watkins, 32, of 1304 Sycamore at his house on a warrant for theft of services.

Police Friday also arrested Terri M. McCarty, 20, of Gail Route at 501 Birdwell on suspicion of theft.

Bases may close

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration will propose shutting down some military bases next year if Congress gives the Pentagon a freer hand in eliminating unnecessary facilities, the Pentagon says.

But there's no use making such proposals now because Congress has made it extremely difficult to close a base, Lawrence Korb, assistant secretary of defense for installations, said Thursday before the Senate Armed Service military construction subcommittee.

Anniversary observed

KENT, Ohio — The Kent State University campus observes the 15th anniversary of the killings of four students by Ohio National Guardsmen this weekend amid signs that students have grown weary of the annual event.

"I try to put myself in the place of the four students who died," said Lisa Sanders, a 19-year-old sophomore and a member of the May 4th Task Force. "I feel some sort of moral obligation to them, even though I did not know them and I did not come from their generation."

Miss Sanders, however, said she is an exception among Kent State students, many of whom were toddlers when the shootings occurred during a campus protest of the U.S. invasion of Cambodia during the Vietnam War. "A big question we get from the students is, 'Why don't you leave it alone?' or 'Why not put it to rest?'" she said. "Well, we're just trying to give them the facts and help them decide for themselves what really went on."

Doctor arrested

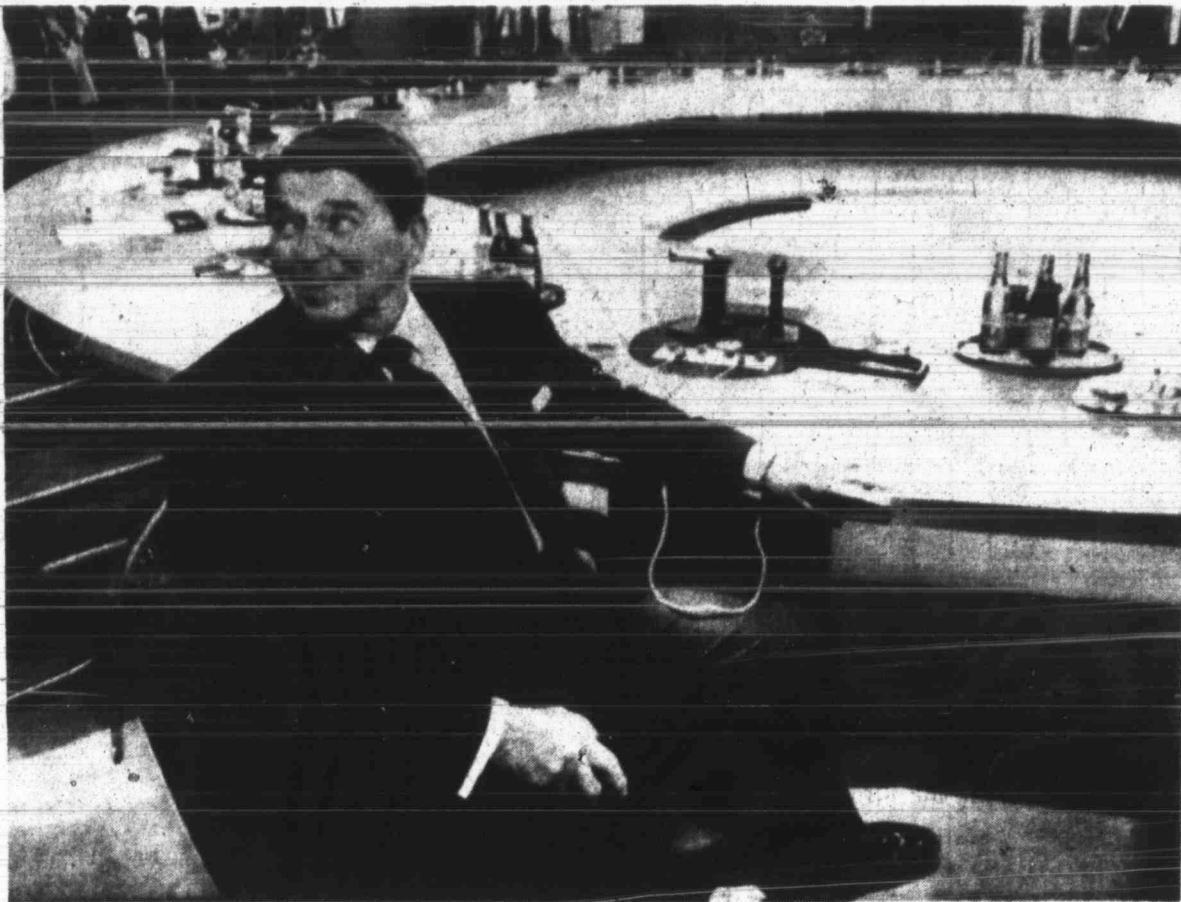

PITTSBURGH — A doctor arrested for allegedly firing on a police officer has also been charged with threatening to shoot two patients — including one who tried to push ahead of other patients in his office, police said Friday.

Dr. John Conway III, 53, of suburban Mount Lebanon, was arrested Thursday at the Allegheny County Jail, where he was being held in connection with Sunday's assault on a police officer.

He was arraigned before District Justice Albert Belan on two counts each of terroristic threats and recklessly endangering other people in the incidents at his Duquesne office. Bond was set at $50,000.

According to Duquesne Police Chief William Yunn, one patient, Arthur Walker of Clairton, said the physician pulled a gun on him April 20 following a scuffle involving a $25 fee for a physical examination.

The second patient, Robert Roth, 44, of McKeesport, told police that Conway had threatened to "blow my head off" with a shotgun March 29 following a scuffle in the doctor's office between Roth and other patients.

Ronald Reagan turns to talk to someone behind him as he sits at the session table in the Bonn NATO room.

Circular conference

Reagan wins some, loses some at summit

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Reagan won endorsement from summit partners Friday for his strategy in nuclear arms control talks, but allied leaders steered clear of his prized "Star Wars" plan and registered disapproval of the trade embargo he clamped on Nicaragua.

With the summit to close today, there was no agreement on U.S. efforts to begin new trade talks in 1986.

A political declaration approved by leaders of the world's seven industrial democracies welcomed the resumption of arms talks with the Soviet Union in Geneva, Switzerland. "We appreciate the positive proposals" of the Reagan administration, the document said.

"We urge the Soviet Union to act positively and constructively in order to achieve significant agreements there," the statement said.

One U.S. official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said this endorsed the U.S. rejection of a Soviet attempt to link talks on curbing strategic and medium-range missiles to "concessions by the United States in the space and defense area."

The leaders of West Germany, France, Britain, Japan, Italy, Canada and the Commission of European Communities sat down with Reagan at a circular conference table at the Palais Schaumburg for the 11th annual summit conference.

Under grey skies, they stood together in chilly temperatures on a deck for the traditional "family portrait," a photograph of the gathering.

There was no official public discussion of the controversy over Reagan's planned trip Sunday to lay a wreath at German military cemetery in Bitburg, the gravesite for 2,000 German soldiers including 49 Nazi SS troopers. But Reagan's schedule showed the president and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl would spend no more than 10 minutes at the cemetery and make no remarks there.

Reagan and Kohl both will make remarks earlier Sunday at the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp near Hanover. White House aides speaking privately say Reagan's address there will be highly emotional.

The Bitburg trip has been criticized by majorities in both houses of the U.S. Congress, and by Jewish, veterans and other groups. On Friday, plans were announced for 500 students from 17 nations to go to Bitburg to protest Reagan's visit. Fifteen New York state legislators arrived in nearby Luxembourg with a similar plan.

On Thursday, Reagan and Kohl added relatives of Nazi resisters to their Bitburg delegation in what one West German official called an attempt "to make Bitburg more popular... to get rid of the disharmony."

But the only relative who has been identified is a West German army officer who said Friday he was asked by his military superiors to go and indicated he was not happy about it.

"It was a command — no, let me say a request — that came through normal channels, from the Ministry of Defense," said Col. Berthold von Stauffenberg.

Leaders released

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A provincial supreme court Friday released on bail 16 leaders of the country's largest anti-apartheid organization, who had been held since mid-February for alleged treason.

Police, meanwhile, said a black mob beat a 35-year-old black man to death Friday near Port Elizabeth, and gangs of blacks looted delivery vehicles and stoned cars in black township of Soweto. Rioting by blacks was concentrated around Pretoria and Johannesburg.

The 16 leaders of the United Democratic Front were set free on bail ranging from $2,500 to $7,000 by a three-judge panel of the Natal Province Supreme Court, headed by Justice A. Milne.

Iranians ship guns

WASHINGTON — A shipment of Iranian arms and ammunition has arrived at the North Korean port of Hungnam and is awaiting delivery to Nicaragua, U.S. officials said Friday.

The shipment is reported to contain more than 9,000 Soviet-made AK-47 rifles, "several million rounds of ammunition," rocket-propelled grenades and landmines, the officials said.

According to the officials, who spoke on the condition they remain anonymous, much of the weaponry is believed to have been captured by Iran in its war with Iraq.

The State Department and the Nicaraguan Embassy had no immediate comment on the reported Iranian-Nicaraguan arms deal.

Demonstrators clubbed

WARSAW, Poland — Riot police used clubs to break up demonstrations Friday night by thousands of Solidarity supporters in Warsaw and Krakow following Roman Catholic Masses marking the anniversary of Poland's 1791 constitution.

Police chased and beat dozens of demonstrators, many chanting "Solidarity," in dispersing a march by an estimated 6,000 people in Warsaw's old town. There were no reports of any serious injuries.

In the southern city of Krakow, police used clubs to scatter protesters marching after a Mass attended by 7,000 people, Solidarity supporters in Krakow said.

The clashes came two days after pro-Solidarity demonstrators staged protests in five cities on May Day. Police used clubs and water cannon to disperse the protests in four of the cities but did not use force against a march by 15,000 Solidarity backers in Warsaw.

The most violent clash came in the northern city of Gdansk, where thousands of youthful demonstrators hurled stones at police who chased them with clubs.

Wheelchair-bound man robs hamburger stand

HOUSTON (AP) — A wheelchair-bound man allegedly robbed a hamburger stand, rolled to a discount store parking lot and shot a woman, then took two hostages and forced them to hail him a taxi, police said Friday.

The gunman, whose legs were amputated above the knees, released the hostages after they helped him in the cab, police said. The 62-year-old woman who was shot after she refused to help him flee was hospitalized in serious condition.

Edward Gale Crawford, 33, of Baytown, was arrested late Thursday and ordered held on suspicion of participating in the crime spree, Detective Sgt. Brian Foster said.

Investigators said the handicapped man rolled up to the hamburger stand Thursday and pointed a .38-caliber revolver at owner

Mary Ann Rowell.

"He just said, 'Don't say anything to anybody. Just give me the money,'" Ms. Rowell said.

She gave the man about $80, and he left the restaurant.

"It took him about 15 seconds to wheel across (the street)," she said. "Nothing stopped him."

Ms. Rowell said she called a discount store across the road and warned employees that an armed man in a wheelchair was in the parking lot.

Meanwhile, the man pulled the gun on Jennifer Westerhoff, 21, and ordered her to let him in her car.

"I had time to think about what was happening while he got his wheelchair into the car," Ms. Westerhoff said. "It decided it would be a lot more dangerous to have him with a gun to my head."

Ms. Westerhoff said she jumped out of the car and it rolled to a stop after knocking over a trash container.

The suspect got back into his wheelchair, rolled across the parking lot and confronted Roberta Rose Hinkle as she walked to her car, Foster said.

When Ms. Hinkle refused to give him a ride, the suspect shot her once in the chest, the detective said.

"He shot her, took her purse and reloaded his pistol," Foster said.

The suspect then took a man and woman hostage, abandoned his wheelchair and commandeered the couple's car, Foster said. The couple drove him to an intersection in another part of the city, where he ordered the couple to hail a cab. The couple helped him into the cab and he rode away, Foster said.

Senate votes to cut Medicare, Medicaid payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate voted overwhelmingly Friday to slash $17.5 billion from Medicare and Medicaid spending over the next three years, then refused on a tie vote to recommend a symbolic 10 percent pay cut for members of Congress.

"I think we ought to think about this over the weekend," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said after his bid to cut congressional pay fell short. "Here we are asking everybody to accept cuts... and we come to the question of our own compensation, and we come up with a 49-49 tie."

The move to cut congressional pay of $75,100 by $7,510 was a surprise, and was denounced afterwards by Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W. Va., as "frivolous." Rockefeller, a multi-millionaire and heir to a family oil fortune, voted to sustain the current salary.

The vote to preserve congressional salaries over, the Senate ended its budget debate for the week in time to allow several senators to catch early afternoon airplane flights to Louisville, Ky., site of the weekend running of the Kentucky Derby.

Many Democrats supported the motion to cut Medicare and Medicaid because the proposal called for less of a cut than an original Republican budget, backed by President Reagan. They also said they would seek to restore additional funding next week.

By a margin of 93-6, the Senate accepted a recommendation that would freeze Medicare payments to most hospitals and doctors for one year, and gradually increase premiums for beneficiaries over the next five years. Under Medicaid, which provides health care for the poor, states would be expected to make up for a reduced federal contribution.

In addition, the Senate rejected a move by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, to abolish the Legal Services Corp., and use the money to beef up soil conservation programs. The vote was 71-27.

The rapid-fire series of votes on domestic programs came as Reagan criticized the Senate's decision on Thursday to trim the administration's military buildup by $17.7 billion over three years.

"It's an irresponsible act," said the president, talking to reporters in West Germany, where he is attending an economic summit meeting. "We've already made reductions we could make in military spending without reducing our ability to maintain the security we must have."

The Medicare and Medicaid vote marked the apparent beginning of a new phase in efforts by Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole to protect the three-year package of budget cuts that was shredded earlier in the week with the defense vote and a successful move to cancel proposed curtailment in Social Security cost of living increases.

The initial GOP budget called for $20.1 billion in domestic cuts, but in private negotiations with dissident Republicans, Dole and administration budget director David Stockman agreed to restore $2.6 billion. The agreement included elimination of a proposed cap on Medicaid patients that many states had lobbied vigorously against, as well as cancellation of some of the recommended increase in Medicare beneficiary fees.

Those concessions brought votes from many Democrats, even as they also made it clear they will seek next week to restore more funding for the two programs.

"By adopting this amendment, we will be making a down-payment on our commitment to decent health care for the elderly and the poor — and we shall be back with a Democratic amendment to do the job correctly," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Helms' move was supported by 16 Democrats and 33 Republicans.

For Mother

It was a time-honored tradition among the early American families that when someone deserved special praise or attention they were served dinner on the Red Plate.

The Red Plate is the perfect way to acknowledge a family member's special triumphs...celebrate a birthday...praise a job well done...reward a goal achieved...or simply say "You are Special Today."

The Red Plate is designed and crafted to become a family heirloom as it is cherished and passed from one generation to the next marking life's important milestones.

Modifications reduce calories

Recipes don't always have to be followed exactly. A number of substitutions can be made to reduce calories without significantly affecting a basic dish. Relatively small reductions in amounts of fat and sugar can reduce the total calories in many favorite recipes.
Change cooking techniques. Prepare soups and stews in advance; let cool, then remove the accumulated fat from the top before reheating. Instead of frying meats or other foods, steam or broil them.
Reduce the amount of a high calories ingredient. Many recipes call for more fat or sugar than is required for good taste. By experimenting, you can learn how much you actually need. For example, you can reduce sugar by as much as 3/4 and never miss it in some recipes. Often fat can be reduced by 3/4 without affecting the recipe. Spices can be added to increase flavor.

Substitute a low-calorie ingredient for another high-calorie ingredient. For example: skim milk for whole milk, yogurt for sour cream, and ground chuck for hamburger.
ORIGINAL BRAN MUFFINS*
(153 calories per muffin)
1 egg
1/2 cup sugar (3/4 cup)
1 1/4 cups milk (1 1/4 cups skim)
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
* Modifications are in milk)
2 tablespoons melted margarine (1 1/2 tablespoons)
1 1/2 cups bran cereal (not flakes) parenthesis.
1. Grease 12 muffin cups (or line with paper bake cups)
2. In a small mixing bowl slightly beat egg with sugar; beat in milk and cooking oil. Set aside.
3. In large mixing bowl stir together the bran, baking powder, and salt.

4. Make a well in the center.
5. Add egg mixture all at once.
6. Stir just till moistened (batter should be lumpy)
7. Spoon into prepared muffin cups, filling each about 3/4 full. Bake in 400 degree oven for 20-25 minutes.
8. Remove from pan; serve warm. Makes 12 muffins.
Reduce fat and sugar by about a 3/4 keeping the new modified amount within the range of typical proportions. Make lower-calorie ingredient substitutions where appropriate.
The modified recipe contains 123 calories per muffin.
Contact the Extension Office for a copy of typical recipe proportions and functions of ingredients to help you modify your favorite recipe to reduce calories.

Peach tree borers are a problem

Peaches and plums are the most popular fruit trees planted in Howard County, with Apricots being close behind. These trees do quite well when good management practices occur but even under best of conditions about 10-15 years is the lifetime expectancy of a productive tree in West Texas.
Older trees, particularly peaches, become less thrifty as they mature and as such become more susceptible to invasion of borers. Younger trees, when in stressed conditions, such as drought, freeze-damage, poor root establishment, etc. Also are susceptible to such borers.
This past year, because of all these factors, including stress from one of the worst droughts on record, made many trees victims of borers.
The peach tree borer is probably the most important enemy of peach trees. Nearly everyone who has grown peach trees has had problems with this pest. However, peach tree borers often get blamed for the death of trees damaged by freeze injury, crown gall and other diseases.
The first borer symptoms are masses of gum exuding from around the tree trunk base. This can usually be found from about 1 foot above to 3 inches below the soil surface. There are usually bits of brownish frassor sawdust mixed with the gum.

These insects not only attack peach trees, but may also attack wild and cultivated cherry, plum, prune, nectarine, apricot and certain ornamental shrubs.
This insect passes winter in the larval or worm stage. These larvae can vary greatly in size. Some larvae may be more than 1/2 inch while others are small, in some cases not over 1/4 inch long. The size difference of these larvae is accounted for by the fact that adult borers lay eggs over a considerable time period. This causes an overlap of the larval developmental periods. Larvae become active in spring as soon as the soil is warm enough. In West Texas area, larvae will complete their growth about the middle of May. They can be found under the tree's bark, close to the ground. The larvae are about 1 inch long, whitish with dark-brown heads and a plate behind the head. Deadened areas in the bark, where these larvae have fed, can cause the death of the tree in many cases.
The larvae change or pupate in closely spun, silken, dirt and gum covered cocoons. These cocoons can be found on the surface of their burrows or in the soil around the tree trunk. Just before the moth emerges, the pupa will force its way out of the cocoon. The empty pupal case usually remains attached to the cocoon.

The first adults appear in July. Peak emergence is usually during August, but emergence can continue into October. Adult female moths are blue-black with clear hind wings and an orange-yellow crossband on the abdomen. Both wings on males are nearly clear and there are several yellow bands on the abdomen. The moths closely resemble some larger wasps in flight. Unlike most moths, they are active in daylight.
Female moths can lay from 200 to 300 eggs, mostly on tree trunks or in soil cracks close to the tree trunk. The moths seem to be attracted to trees that have previously suffered mechanical, weather or disease damage. Eggs hatch in about 10 days. The newly hatched worms work their way into the bark and feed during summer and early fall months. Because eggs are laid over a period of several months, it is easy to understand the great variation in the larval size found in trees in late fall. However, there is only one generation a year.
These insects can kill a peach tree within a few seasons if they are not controlled. Borers can be controlled with Thiodan 40W at the rate of 1 lb. in 100 gallons of water or Lorsban 4E at the rate of 3 quarts in 100 gallons of water. Three applications are necessary for Thiodan and are best applied in mid-June, mid-July and mid-

August. Lorsban needs to be used only once, in late May. Spray the tree trunks from the ground line up to the larger branches (1 1/2 to 2 feet above the ground). Do not spray the fruit with Lorsban.
Another good control measure consists of placing a small amount of crystalline para-dichlorobenzene, referred to as PDB, on the soil surface around the tree trunk during fall. When applying this material use the following rule of thumb: for trees under 3 years of age, use 1/2 ounce per tree; for trees 3 to 6 years old, 3/4 ounce; and for older trees, use 1 to 1 1/2 ounces of crystals. The crystals should be applied in a ring around and completely encircling the tree trunk. Make the ring at least 1 inch and no more than 3 inches from the bark of the trunk. Cover the crystals with several shovels of dirt to confine the PDB gas. Don't apply this treatment in mid-summer, because the borers are not in the tree, and do not apply when the soil temperature is below 60 Degrees F. Crystals applied in warm soil quickly volatilize into a heavy gas that penetrates the soil and kills the borers.

Business

Bill Cleveland is the store manager at the J.C. Penney's store in the Big Spring Mall.

New manager joins staff at local J.C. Penney store

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

The new manager of the J.C. Penney store in the Big Spring Mall has a sense of humor.

"My name is Arthur Lee Cleveland III," he says with a smile. "That's why I go by Bill."

Bill is an unpretentious name that seems to fit well the outgoing businessman. Cleveland, 48, says he is glad to be in Big Spring. "I'm looking forward to becoming part of the community."

His first official day on the job was Monday. He received word that he was being transferred to Big Spring only days before he arrived here.

Before moving here, he was a manager of a San Antonio store similar in size to the Big Spring store.

J.C. Penney has been Cleveland's business address for more than 30 years. He began his career with the chain in 1953.

"I started working with Penney's in the stock room" of a store in Galveston. "I put up toys at Christmas time."

Cleveland was in high school at the time. He graduated in 1954 and went to the University of Houston. "I worked in the old downtown Houston store."

Cleveland soon found himself attached to the Penney's chain. He worked in stores in Pasadena and San Antonio before accepting the store manager's job in Navasota. He stayed at that store for 13 years before returning to San Antonio to work as manager of a store in the Terrell Plaza. He stayed there for seven years before moving to Big Spring.

"This opportunity came open, and here we are," he said, motioning to the store around him.

Cleveland is in the process of moving to Big Spring. His wife, Sylvia, is still in San Antonio. The couple has two grown children.

Cleveland is quick to point out that, "Both my children are married to Aggies." And he's proud to add, "I'm a grandpa."

He says it has been difficult to leave each store every time he has accepted a transfer with the company.

"We become like a family within the store. I've always hated to leave. We develop genuine feelings for each other."

The businessman admits that Big Spring has suffered through some serious times during the past two years due to a shaky oil economy and a lengthy drought. But his humor breaks through again when he discusses recent rains.

"I like to believe that I brought the rain. The first day I was in town there was a torrential downpour and two hail storms, and there were tornadoes around. It was a spectacular welcome," he says.

But bad economic times didn't deter him from accepting a position with the local store.

"The economy has suffered, but I think things are on the way up," he said. "The rains will bring a crop up. Big Spring has a good labor market. We've got people who want to work. I'm very positive that business is on the upswing."

Bill Bartlett named 'Manager of Year'

Bill Bartlett, manager of Dunlap's, located just east of the Highland Mall, has been named Manager of the Year for the Dunlap's chain.

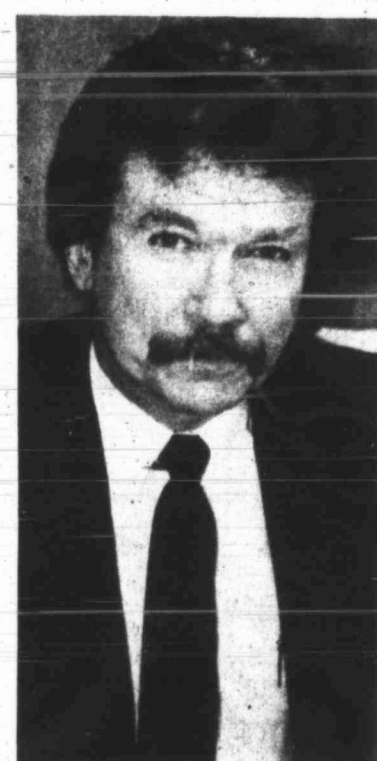

Bartlett received the award from Chairman of the Board Rick Martin in Fort Worth Monday. Dunlap's includes 36 stores. The corporation is headquartered in Fort Worth.

Bartlett's wife, Jenny, said the award is given each year to a store manager who has noted increased percentages and volume at a store.

"We had a very good, excellent year," Bartlett's wife said. Bartlett's wife said of the last 12 months, "We've had the best year since we've been here."

The Bartletts have been in Big Spring for 10 years. The store first opened on Main Street in 1975 before relocating to the Highland Mall area in 1979.

Bartlett began his career with Dunlaps at their Midland store in 1970. He is a native West Texan, having grown up in Lamesa. His wife is a native of Ackerly. They have one daughter, Christina.

Governor for a day

By JOHNNIE LOU AVERY

Today a Big Spring delegation is in Austin for the special activities surrounding the Governor-for-a-day traditional ceremonies. It begins at 11 a.m. in the Governor's office with the swearing in of state Sen. Ray Farrabee to the honorary position. That is followed by a barbecue on the Capitol grounds and a formal reception at 2 p.m. in the Governor's Mansion.

The T&P Railroad Federal Credit Union had open house last Wednesday to show off the new facilities at 101 Main. It is the former Thomas Office Supply space across the street from the previous RR Credit Union Office. Helen Stanley, manager, and Sherry Roman, assistant manager, welcomed a steady stream of guests. The credit union, established in 1947, now has $4 million in assets and more than 1,000 members.

R.T. Texadillo, a whimsical armadillo character, has been created for the Texas Sesquicentennial. This little mascot (the initials R.T. meaning Republic of Texas) will also be in a live version to visit all over the state helping promote and unify events.

National Hospital Week is May 12-18. The V.A. Medical Center will recognize the various workers and volunteers that assist in improving the quality of life for the veteran.

The Heritage Museum, under its new curator, has prepared an exhibit to parallel the Heart of the City Festival. Stop by between now and June 1 to see the old downtown scenes and antique merchandise.

If you want to save energy, you need to take control.

Over the years, the electric company has helped you conserve energy in lots of ways. We've helped with tips on things you could do yourself — all the way from caulking and weatherstripping, to installing just the right amount of insulation for your home.

Now you can take even more control.

The electric company has information that shows you the cost of operating your electric appliances. And knowing what electricity costs makes it easy for you to decide how much to use. There are also tips on many other ways to use energy wisely, like maintaining the most economical setting for your thermostat.

And remember, when it comes time to replace your old air conditioner, one of the best ways to control the amount of electricity you use, and still stay cool and comfortable, is to replace it with one that's more energy efficient.

Your electric company has lots of helpful information available. Take control and get things running your way.

Tom Peters on Excellence

Look in the mirror

By TOM PETERS

A continuing theme of my work has been the need for more "look in the mirror management." Ever since OPEC pricked the bubble of American managerial infallibility a dozen years ago, management has had a knee-jerk tendency to cast blame for industrial problems on external forces — for example, the oil cartel, MITI, OSHA and EPA. Seldom does management shout "mea culpa" and look in the mirror to discover internal deficiencies.

In recent weeks the flags of a "trade war" with Japan have been flapping with a vigor unparalleled in 30 years. The American battle cry is "equal access" to Japanese markets for American vendors. (It is apparently easier for Japanese vendors to get a piece of our business than for us to get a piece of theirs.)

I've concluded that much of the problem is self-made. The giant American home market has been too good for too many for too long. We are not internationalists despite sizable exports for many American companies. Tired of hearing the complaint "It's not a level playing field," I recently played a trick on 35 technology executives. My pointed exchange with them is instructive:

Me: "How many of you import extensively from Japan?"

Them: Thirty of 35 raised their hands.

Me: "How many of you have dealings with a senior Japanese official stationed permanently in the U.S.?"

Them: All of the 30 previously raised hands went up.

Me: "How many of these Japanese officials speak English?"

Them: Twenty-seven (of the 30) hands went up.

Me: "How many of you export on a large scale to Japan?"

Them: Eight hands went up.

Me: "How many of you have a fairly senior American assigned permanently in Japan?"

Them: Six of eight who had answered the previous question affirmatively raised their hands, along with two others, for a grand total of eight.

Me: "How many of your 'permanent' Americans speak Japanese?"

Them: No hands went up.

In my ceaseless litany about putting customers first, I stress above all courtesy, attention, listening, and care. Yet how attentive and courteous are we, if we don't even bother to insist that our people stationed abroad learn the local language? Sure, language facility is the first step on the road to simple courtesy.

English may have indeed become the world's language, especially the language of commerce. That was before all-out global trade competition. If we're serious about meeting — and beating — the competition, we'd better start with learning our competitors' language. No American business schools, however, have a Japanese language requirement. In fact, Japanese studies are offered in only 6 percent of colleges and universities in the U.S., with an estimated enrollment of a mere 11,500 (up just 2,000 since 1974).

Another indicator of the seriousness of American companies as multi-national competitors is the composition of their boards of directors. Any truly superior worldwide competitor would surely want multi-national board membership. But do we find it? No. Of America's top 25 exporters, 14 have no non-U.S. board members. Less than 3 percent of their collective 415 directors represent other nations (14 non-Americans: six European; six British Commonwealth; and two others). Not surprisingly, the lone Japanese director sits on Hewlett-Packard's board.

Many agree that the two truest multi-national companies in the world are Royal Dutch Shell and Schlumberger. (Schlumberger is the oil field service company which usually ranks No. 1 among the world's top 2,000 companies in profitability.) Both have heavily multi-national boards. And below the board level, four of the top officers at Schlumberger are American, four French, one Scottish, one British, one Lebanese, one German, and one Argentine.

Business schools reflect (and all too infrequently, affect) the state of business in the real world. The level of skill in teaching multi-national management in U.S. business schools is unfortunately, extremely low. I recently conducted a "Man on the Street" survey of business executives. I asked them which of a dozen business schools had the best programs in international management. American schools (which otherwise dominate business education rankings) received no votes. France's INSEAD, the European Institute of Business Administration, was far and away the winner according to my poll.

Some American companies are, of course, doing well in Japan. Among them are Coca Cola, IBM, Schick, Procter & Gamble, Avon and McDonald's. The winners unfailingly share these traits: they are patient, and they listen. Coca Cola went 12 years in Japan before turning a profit. Moreover, it did so only after reformulating, according to its customers' preferences, every product except Coke itself. American companies shouldn't expect to receive favored treatment in Japan. Both Japanese companies starting operations in the U.S. and U.S. companies seeking to enter the Japanese market must spend a long time getting to know and understand the business (and non-business) practices of the local people before making sizable commitments. (On the other hand, once the courtship has resulted in marriage, a capricious cut-off over a 2-cent price dispute is unheard of.)

As it is in so many other areas, IBM is a pacesetter, in multi-national marketing, and a hugely successful one. (IBM's Japanese sales were $3.2 billion in 1984; and total non-U.S. sales were $18.6 billion.) The key is long-term commitment.

T.J. Watson, Sr., IBM's founding father, was a staunch advocate of free trade in the 1920's and 30's, when free trade was a distinctly unpopular position. He hung in so long with his German partners that in 1940 one American business publication charged him with being "the American Fuhrer." The company has never changed its stripes; early on, it invested heavily in offshore R&D. (By developing products offshore, American companies tailor the products to the needs of the foreign customer — a form of true listening.) Today it reaps the rewards of a self-made non-level playing field, tilted by decades of patient investment.

Unlike IBM, most American companies have not taken seriously what it means to be a true internationalist in a world which is now characterized by less than wholesale American commercial dominance. We are spoiled. We are insular. The only long-term solution is patient investment in our relationships with the Japanese. That relationship can be forged only by common courtesies such as learning the Japanese language and listening to the needs of the Japanese customer. In the meantime, I hope we will not ruin our chances of developing a lasting relationship by launching a full-scale trade war because we're peeved at not being accepted by a culture that is different from our own."

NEW YORK (AP) — E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc. agreed to pay a $2 million fine and pleaded guilty to charges it wrote checks for more than it had on deposit at banks, a scheme the government said gave the brokerage interest-free use of up to $250 million a day.

Hutton, the brokerage unit of E.F. Hutton Group Inc., the nation's fifth largest investment concern, entered its plea Thursday in U.S. District Court in Scranton, Pa., where a grand jury had been investigating the case.

Hutton said it agreed to pay a fine of $2 million to settle the case, and thus agreed to plead guilty to 2,000 counts of mail and wire fraud because each of those counts carries a maximum fine of $1,000.

Hutton said its illegal actions occurred between July 1, 1980, and Feb. 28, 1982, and that the practices, which Hutton Chairman Robert Fomon said also violated Hutton's own policies, were stopped immediately after they became known to senior management in early 1982.

"We do not believe anyone realized he was violating the law or violating company policy," Fomon said.

No charges were brought against Hutton's parent company or any individual employee, and Hutton said the actions "did not involve or jeopardize customer or client funds."

The companies said Omaha-based InterNorth would launch a cash tender offer of $70 for each of Houston Natural Gas' common shares outstanding.

Houston Natural Gas also gave InterNorth an option to buy 5.9 million shares of its stock at $70 a share and an option to buy two-thirds of the stock of certain of Houston Natural Gas' Texas intrastate pipeline subsidiaries, including Houston Pipeline Co., for $867 million.

The definitive merger agreement, approved by directors of both companies, was announced Thursday by Sam Segnar, chairman and chief executive of InterNorth, and Kenneth L. Lay, chairman and chief executive of Houston Natural Gas.

InterNorth would operate under the name HNG InterNorth upon completion of the merger. Segnar would be chairman and chief executive of the combined company.

GM says a computer will decide where plant is built

DETROIT (AP) — A computer will make the initial decision on where General Motors Corp. should build its coveted, high-technology Saturn Corp. manufacturing complex, a GM official says.

The automaker already has fed data into the computer from communities and states competing for the project, said Alexander A. Cunningham, GM executive vice president for North American operations.

"It's a highly complex computer model which contains in it all the upfront and ongoing costs associated with a new plant development," Cunningham said. "There's everything from local taxes, inbound and outbound freight, the cost of getting material in and out, electricity costs, availability of labor — all of these things are plugged into the computer."

If the computer selects more than one area as appropriate for the plant, Cunningham said GM officials will make a choice.

"Then you look at the more subjective things such as relationships to the community, the availability of higher educational establishments for training, all of those things which are a little more subjective, you can't hang dollars and cents on them," he said.

Cunningham said preliminary computer data should be compiled "pretty soon," and then will be submitted to the corporation's executive committee and board of directors.

The announcement of the Saturn project spurred a steady stream of officials seeking to lure the project to their areas. Early in the competition for the plant, Big Spring was among communities seeking to lure the plant to Texas.

By Wednesday, half the U.S. governors had either visited GM headquarters in Detroit or Saturn Corp.'s temporary headquarters at the GM Technical Center in Warren or had spoken with GM Chairman Roger Smith out of town.

GM says it hopes to have a site decision within several weeks. However, a tentative May 1 deadline was missed and no new deadline has been set.

GM has said it must locate near a community that can absorb the 25,000 increase in population that the 6,000 Saturn jobs will generate.

Saturn is GM's plan to make a significant profit on a subcompact car through use of high technology and flexible work rules, thus competing with the Japanese.

Stanton duo advances to regional semifinal play

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

Stanton's district champion girls doubles team headed the list of competitors who reached the semifinal round during the first day of matches in the Region I-2A tennis tournament Friday at Figure 7 Tennis Center.

Lady Buffs Kim McReynolds and Julia Todd, the District 8-2A representatives, defeated the doubles team from Hart in opening round action, 6-0, 7-6, and came back in the afternoon to defeat the Clint doubles squad of Brenda Burner and Judi Engle 1-6, 6-4, 6-0 to reach the final four.

"We played real well in the first set of the Hart match, but we lost our concentration in that second set," commented McReynolds. "The junior duo used an effective baseline game from McReynolds and steady net play by Todd to register the two convincing wins. Todd and McReynolds, who are seeded third in the tournament, will take on the top seeded Memphis doubles team this morning at 9 a.m.

"I really think Kim and Julia can beat the girls from Memphis if they play their game and keep their concentration," said Stanton tennis coach Kevy Alred. "They played real well at District and have played well so far in this tournament, but it's going to take their best effort to beat the top seed."

In their second match against Clint, the Stanton pair got off to a poor start when they dropped the first set 6-1. But they came back strong in a crucial 8th game of the second set to tie the set at 4-4 and eventually win the set 6-4. "They started getting frustrated after the second set," said Todd. "Our heads were in the match the first set, but we got it together in the last two sets and played pretty well," added McReynolds.

In boys singles action, defending 2A champion Ken McAfee of Wall cruised in his first two opening round matches to advance to the semifinals against Smith of Stratford. In the other semifinal matches, Pham of Stratford will play Castillo of Hart.

In the girls singles semifinals matches, Ferris of Memphis will play Nance of Plains and Willoughby of Eldorado will play Livingston of Marfa in the other match.

In boys doubles, Spearman will take on Haskell in one semifinal. Abernathy will play Eldorado in the other match.

Play will begin at 9 a.m. All finalists will advance to the state tournament in Austin next week.

Hamlin girls, Panhandle boys head Region I 2-A track action

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

The Hamlin girls and the Abernathy and Panhandle boys teams seem to have the upper hand in the Region I 2-A track and field meet after last night's prelims.

The Hamlin Lady Pied Pipers showcased their overall team speed by qualifying all three relays and sending two individuals to the finals. Charlotte Bolden in the 200 meters and Laverne Shelton in the 100 hurdles are Hamlin's top hopefuls.

West Texas rival the Rotan Lady Yellowhammers, led by sprinter Kathy Conner, qualified two individuals along with the 400 and 800 relays. Spearman could be in the thick of the team race today as it qualified three individuals and two relays to the finals. Janet Risley led the way by advancing in the 400 and 800.

The Panhandle girls sent five individuals to the finals along with their 1600 relay. The Panthers qualified two individuals each in the 400 and 800 races. Memphis sent two individuals and two relays to the finals.

Crossroads Country hopefuls Lorrie Jansen and Kody Newman of Stanton, both qualified for the finals. Jansen easily made the cut in the 800 while Newman had the sixth best time in the 200.

BOYS RACE WILL BE CLOSE
The boys team race for the championship shapes up as one that might go down to the wire. Abernathy, Panhandle, Memphis, Anson and Clarendon led all teams with competitors going into the finals.

Abernathy seems to have the upper hand as it has both relays and three individuals, led by 200 meter specialist Darrell Young. Panhandle, who qualified three individuals, is led by hurdler Wes Wood and both of its relays. Memphis, which qualified two individuals and both relays, saw some of its hope fall when sprinter Roy Henderson jumped the gun in the 100. Henderson came back and easily won his heat in the 200.

The Anson Tigers, led by halfmiler Mike Garcia and hurdler Lou Mays, qualified its 1600 relay and four individuals. In the 400 relay the Tigers had one of the top three times going into the meet, but failed to make the finals.

Clarendon also qualified its 1600 relay and four individuals. Trent Sharp paced them by making the cut in the 400 and 800 races.

In the only finals of the night, Tammy Menchaca of Hart and Jesse Castro of Lockney won their divisions in the 3200 run. Menchaca won going away over second place finisher Sabrina Morrow of Shallowater while Castro set a new region record of 10:00.35 as he nipped Paducah's Junior Alafa at the

76ers hang on to win versus Bucks

By The Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A pair of field goals by Julius Erving in the final 56 seconds after Philadelphia had blown an 18-point lead gave the 76ers a 109-104 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Friday night and a 3-0 lead in their best-of-7 National Basketball Association playoff series.

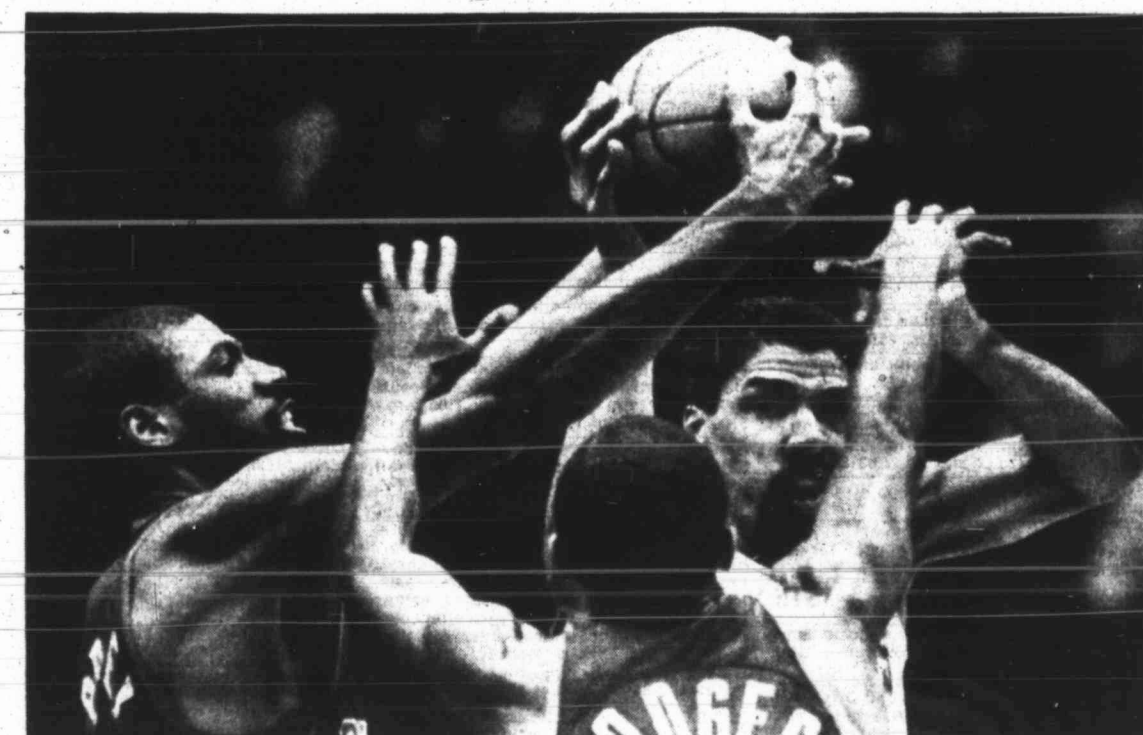

The Bucks led 104-102 with 1:20 to play after breaking the seventh tie in the final period on a basket by Alton Lister. Erving then hit a long jumper about a foot inside the three-point line as the 24-second shot clock was about to expire, tying the score with 56 seconds left.

The Bucks then came downcourt and Philadelphia guard Maurice Cheeks stole the ball from Terry Cummings and passed to Erving for a layup that put the 76ers ahead to stay at 106-104 with 38 seconds remaining.

Milwaukee had two more chances to tie the score again, but jump shots by Lister and Ricky Pierce failed to connect.

Andrew Toney led the 76ers with 20 points, while Erving and rookie Charles Barkley each had 19 for the Philadelphia, which has a chance to finish a 4-0 sweep here in Game 4 Sunday.

Cummings had 21 points, 17 of them in the first half, while Paul

Philadelphia 76ers JULIUS ERVING attempts to make a pass through a sea of Milwaukee Bucks defenders, PAUL PRESSY, (left) and CRAIG HODGES.

Pressey collected 20 and Sidney Moncrief 17 for the Bucks.

The Bucks trailed 85-77 at the start of the final period, but scored the first eight points of the quarter to tie it with 9:53 left.

The score was tied five more times, the last at 97, before a field goal by Cummings at the 2:48 mark sent Milwaukee ahead 100-99, the Bucks' first lead since the first quarter. Pierce dropped in a pair of free throws for a 102-99 edge. But Barkley made a three-point play at 1:35 to tie it again at 102-101. Lister's field goal gave the Bucks their last lead, but they didn't score again.

76ers hang on to win versus Bucks

By The Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A pair of field goals by Julius Erving in the final 56 seconds after Philadelphia had blown an 18-point lead gave the 76ers a 109-104 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Friday night and a 3-0 lead in their best-of-7 National Basketball Association playoff series.

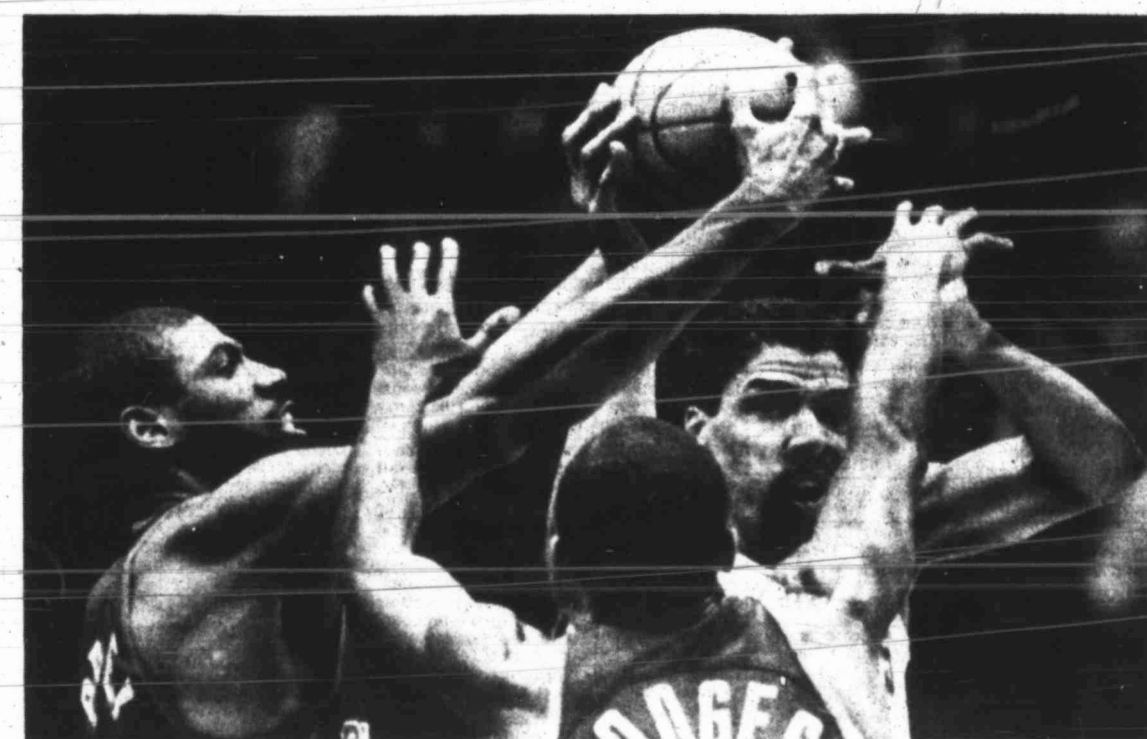

The Bucks led 104-102 with 1:20 to play after breaking the seventh tie in the final period on a basket by Alton Lister. Erving then hit a long jumper about a foot inside the three-point line as the 24-second shot clock was about to expire, tying the score with 56 seconds left.

The Bucks then came downcourt and Philadelphia guard Maurice Cheeks stole the ball from Terry Cummings and passed to Erving for a layup that put the 76ers ahead to stay at 106-104 with 38 seconds remaining.

Milwaukee had two more chances to tie the score again, but jump shots by Lister and Ricky Pierce failed to connect.

Andrew Toney led the 76ers with 20 points, while Erving and rookie Charles Barkley each had 19 for the Philadelphia; which has a chance to finish a 4-0 sweep here in Game 4 Sunday.

Cummings had 21 points, 17 of them in the first half, while Paul

Pressey collected 20 and Sidney Moncrief 17 for the Bucks.

The Bucks trailed 85-77 at the start of the final period, but scored the first eight points of the quarter to tie it with 9:53 left.

The score was tied five more times, the last at 97, before a field goal by Cummings at the 2:48 mark sent Milwaukee ahead 100-99, the Bucks' first lead since the first quarter. Pierce dropped in a pair of free throws for a 102-99 edge. But Barkley made a three-point play at 1:35 to tie it again at 102-all. Lister's field goal gave the Bucks their last lead, but they didn't score again.
