Funeral Services Held For George Will Locke

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon in the Main Street Church of Christ for George William Locke, 74, longtime resident of Olton.

G. B. Stanley of San Antonio, a former pastor, and Jack Sikes of Hollis Boys' Home officiated. Burial was in Olton Cemetery under the direction of Parsons Funeral Home.

Locke died Thursday afternoon in Methodist Hospital where he had been confined following a heart attack Monday.

Born Sept. 10, 1894 in Vernon, he moved as a boy to Oklahoma, living near Kiowa Indians. He was married to the former Allie Hicks June 3, 1917 in Hollis, Okla.

Locke taught school for six years and then began farming. The family moved to Tulia in 1905 but returned to Oklahoma after two years. They came to a farm west of Olton in 1929 and farmed until 1935 when they moved to Oregon, later to California and back to Olton.

Locke entered partnership with O. C. Armistead in 1945 to form Olton Auto Supply, later becoming sole owner.

For approximately 15 years the family has brought children from orphan's homes in Portales, N. M. and Tipton, Okla., to spend summer vacations in their home.

Locke was a member of the Main Street Church of Christ and served as elder for 25 years.

Survivors include his wife, Allie; two daughters, Helen Locke of the home and Mrs. Mardema Bundy of Lubbock; a brother, Roy Locke of Amarillo; four sisters, Mrs. Tommy Yoes of Elk City, Okla., Mrs. Audie Combs of El Dorado, Okla., Mrs. Parker Norton of Stillwater, Okla., and Mrs. Tom Skinner of Crocker, Mo.; and three grandchildren.

pallbearers were Bill Kemp, Bill Langford, Jack Edwards, D. M. Granbery, Harold Jordan and Roy Salas.

OWEN NORFLEET, president of the board of directors of the Olton Feedyards, Inc., does the honors of turning the first shovel of dirt during groundbreaking ceremonies held at the feedmill site Wednesday morning. Looking on is Percy Parsons, Martell LeVeque, Owen Jones, Frank Cornelius, Jack Straw, Earl Spruiell and Charles Koontz.

Official groundbreaking ceremonies were held at the site of the mill which will be located at Olton Feedyards, Inc. Wednesday morning at 9:30.

The board of directors, feedyard manager and the manager of the Olton Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture were present for the ceremonies.

President of the board, Owen Norfleet, turned the earth as directors, Jack Straw, Frank Cornelius, Earl Spruiell, and Owen Jones and feedlot manager, Charles Koontz, C-CA manager Martell LeVeque looked on.

Although the groundbreaking of the mill site was held Wednesday, work has already begun on other parts of the operation. An office building is under construction at the present time and electric lines have been installed as have gas and water lines. One well is being drilled and another will be drilled soon.

Koontz said the mill, which will be designed to produce steam-rolled milo and corn, will be a continuous belt process, automatically mixing the roughage, principal proteins and the supplements. Its capacity is over 300 tons every eight hours with built in potential to double when needed.

A staff of 30 or more skilled men and laborers will be employed for operation and maintenance of the firm. Annual payroll will exceed $250,000.

Land for the feedyards was secured by 20 individuals from Mrs. Valerie Combest and daughter, Joyce Jewel, former Olton residents.

The 320 acres is located four miles west and two miles south of Olton on the Fieldton highway. The site was formerly known as the "old Combest place". It has 75 acres in cultivation and the remaining acres are native grass on gently sloping hills, which makes an ideal location for the feedyards.

The mill, silo trenches and offices will be located on the highest elevations. Feedlot runoff will drain to the one play lake located on the land, thereby enabling the control of such runoff.

Initial plans are for pens which will handle 30,000 head of cattle with future plans for undetermined expansion, according to the needs of the area. An estimated 150,000,000 pounds of grain per year will be consumed, as well as silage, alfalfa and cotton seed products, all of which are being produced in this area.

The new industry, scheduled to be open by Nov. 1, was organized in April, after several months of discussion by members of the C-CA industrial committee and local businessmen and farmers.

Financial arrangements were completed for the facilities and operating capital through Production Credit Association.

The new manager and his family moved here from Roswell this month. He and his wife Betty have two children.

He holds a degree from PolyTech in California and has had a number of years experience in the livestock feeding business.

A custom feeding operation, persons interested in feeding cattle, may contact members of the board for pen reservations.

After 26 Years

School Days Over For Teacher

"I think teaching must be in my blood" said Mrs. John Campbell as she spoke of her years of teaching and her footsteps followed by a daughter, Mrs. Denny Barnett. Several of her maternal relatives have been teachers or school administrators.

Linnie Lyon Campbell completed her twenty-sixth year as a teacher when she closed her grade books for the last time just two weeks ago. Twenty-three of those years were spent in Olton schools, teaching first in junior high and moving into high school in 1959.

She is retiring because of the mandatory retirement policy of Olton schools.

Born at Granite, Okla., she attended a three-room school at Lone Wolf and college at Southwestern State College at Weatherford, Okla., and Oklahoma A&M at Stillwater.

Her mother died when she was seven years old and an older sister quit school to help their father care for the younger children.

Mrs. Campbell recalls her first years at school when she walked to school, carrying her lunch in a pail.

She remembers the little girl who'd cry when the days were so cold that her brother would say, "Let's not go on, let's go back home."

The days never held too much school for young Linnie who remembers, "We even played school during recess." Schooling wasn't easily attained then and Mrs. Campbell fervently believes that "only those who really had the desire" got their educations.

She was married to John Campbell Nov. 7, 1925. They came to Olton in 1928, living here three years before moving back to Oklahoma.

John and Linnie Campbell had two daughters, Mrs. Eleanor Sudduth and Mrs. Denny Barnett, both of Olton. The family moved back to Olton in 1940 and farmed northwest of town.

Campbell stopped farming in 1946 and the family moved into town to the house on Eighth Street that Mrs. Campbell still calls home.

That September she began her 23-year tenure as a teacher in Olton schools. She taught that year in the sixth grade. She received her degree from West Texas State University in 1947.

Campbell worked for a while in a grocery store owned by Ralford Daniel and later as a carpenter for Harvey Maxey. He died of leukemia in November, 1967.

Through the years, she has served as a delegate to the TSTA State Convention and twice as a delegate to the TSTA District Convention.

She has been recording secretary of District XIII English Workshop and served on the TEPS, Legislative and Welfare committees for District XIII.

Three years she served on the executive board of Lamb County Teachers' Association and as president of the organization for one year.

She helped organize the Olton chapter of Future Teachers of America whose charter members voted to adopt the name "Campbell FTA". She has served as sponsor for the organization since its beginning in 1955.

A member of Delta Kappa Gamma Epsilon Delta Chapter, she has served as vice president and president, holding each office two years.

She has directed numerous class plays and directed Prose and Poetry Reading and Journalism in Interscholastic League.

Sponsor of the school yearbook, "The Mustang" she is also sponsor for the school paper, "The Mustang Tale". Mrs. Campbell has been an active member of Classroom Teachers Organization, serving as president three years.

A member of the First Baptist Church, she has taught Sunday School classes and is presently serving as assistant secretary of the Lydia Class.

She is a Past Worthy Matron of the Order of Eastern Star and a former member of Olton Garden Club.

The 1969 edition of "Personalities of the South" will carry a biographical sketch of Mrs. Campbell, chosen to be listed because of "distinguished and outstanding services."

Grandmother of five, Mrs. Campbell's philosophy of life is best summed up in her own words, "Greatness is not found in genealogy, office, wealth or education, but rather in service."

"The more important aspect of living is not what we get from the world, but what we give the world.

"In youth you lay a foundation for life's structure. So lay a foundation out of such basic elements of character as honesty, integrity, truthfulness, fairness, goodness, sympathy, faith, righteousness and devotion to duty. Then keep building with the best of material.

"As I leave the teaching profession, I feel as the Old Man in 'The Bridge Builder':

"There followeth after me today, A youth whose feet must pass this way. This chiasm that has been as naught to me To a fair-haired youth may a pitfall be. He, too, must cross in the twilight dim: Good friend, I'm building this bridge for him."

"I am proud to say I was a teacher. It has been an honor and a privilege to work with the boys and girls in Olton."

Many of the parents of those boys and girls who have been her students will agree, "It's been our privilege to have had you teach our children, Linnie Campbell."

Band Classes Being Held During Summer

For some 35 junior high school students, school isn't out officially as far as their band work is concerned.

Summer band classes, which began May 26, are being held each weekday for a period of five weeks.

Six of these students, Robin Spain, Stan Sampler, Steve Stockdale, Joanna Carlisle, D' Lynne Hall and Scott Roberson, are enrolled in one of the 40 minute classes.

They are students who are transferring from their "beginner" cornet to the French horn. They were selected by Fred Stockdale, band director, to play the horns in next year's junior high band.

Stockdale said that the French horn is not considered a "beginner" instrument and that it takes lots of patience and skill to master the French horn.

"Summer is the ideal time to start on these particular instruments, because of the individual attention that can be given to the pupils," Stockdale commented.

Students participating in the summer band classes are divided into five 40-minute classes, enabling the students to receive individual attention and instruction.

College Scholarship Awarded To 'Best Basketball Player'

Olton's "Best Girl Basketball Player", Pam Foster, has been awarded a scholarship at Temple Junior College at Temple for the school year 1969-70. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Foster of Hart Camp.

The scholarship was the result of approximately three hours of constant drilling on fundamentals, ball handling, drills, shooting and finally a scrimmage.

Pam was named best girl basketball player two years during her high school career and was named all-district three years and all-tournament guard two years.

Besides playing basketball four years, in which she lettered three, Pam was a member of the volleyball team four years, lettering three and she also played tennis four years.

She was named "Miss OHS", recognized as Best Citizen for a six weeks period and was candidate for basketball queen.

She was a member of the Future Teachers of America two years and a member of the Future Homemakers three years. She was a member of the pep squad two years and served as vice-president one year. She was a member of the band two years and choir four years.

Pam will major in physical education and plans to enroll in the fall. Coach of the team at the college is Frances Garmon, a graduate of the college.

PAM FOSTER, shown here with trophies and awards received during her high school years in athletics, was presented a scholarship to Temple Junior College for the next school year. She will enroll in the fall. Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Foster of the Hart Camp community.

Will Olton Disappear?

Trend across the United States in the past 20 years has been a mass movement from rural to metropolitan area. The one-time populace farm areas began to lose people as machines replaced individuals and families migrated to cities in search of employment.

Uncle Sam encouraged this movement in the belief that it could better care for persons in population centers.

While surveys reveal approximately 65 per cent of the nation's citizens would prefer to reside in small communities, the fact remains that more and more drift to cities. The theory exists among some individuals that not only gainful employment but a better life can be found in the city. They point to more conveniences and opportunities for recreation.

Undoubtedly, the city is "tailor-made" for some families. Others would prefer small town residences, if employment existed there. Oftentimes it is a mistake for persons reared in rural areas to make the move to urban surroundings.

"The advice I would be most prone to give you tonight would be, 'Don't move to a metropolitan area.'" These were the exact words of John McKee of Dallas used in pointing out the striking differences between small cities and metropolitan areas of today at the Dimmitt Chamber of Commerce banquet.

McKee, Ford Motor Co.'s Southwest Region manager for cities and governmental affairs, went a step further, referring to an estimate that 40 percent of today's West Texas towns of 5,000 or less will disappear within 50 years, he said: "God help us if they do."

McKee's strong words were not idle talk. As a member of the Dallas Crime Commission, he realizes that the cities also have their pitfalls. Describing the metropolitan underworld, the Ford executive stated: "Assuming you move to Dallas this September, and have a daughter who will enter junior high or high school, your daughter will immediately be screened to see if she is acceptable to be brought into a prostitution ring. If so, her name will be turned over to several school students working with the ring, who will work to become her friend."

That is so much foolishness, you think; My daughter has had a proper upbringing and she would never become a part of such trash; Probably you are right . . . but 181 girls in Dallas were trapped by the Mafia last year, many of them from "good families." How?

McKee explains that "They (students on the underworld's payroll) will try to introduce her to marijuana - and likely as not, she'll take it. Then later they'll move to barbiturates. Then in six months or so, they'll try to induce her to take heroin by needle . . ."

"Then one of her friends tells her, 'look, you've got to have money. I know a man who will take care of you. Drop out of school and move into his apartment with him.' She does. Then it isn't long until she's forced into prostitution to keep up her drug habit. Then she's moved out of town to another market. She belongs to the Mafia now."

McKee interviewed more than 30 of these forelorn misses during 1968. He knows the situation . . . the dirty, unspeakable story which receives little publicity.

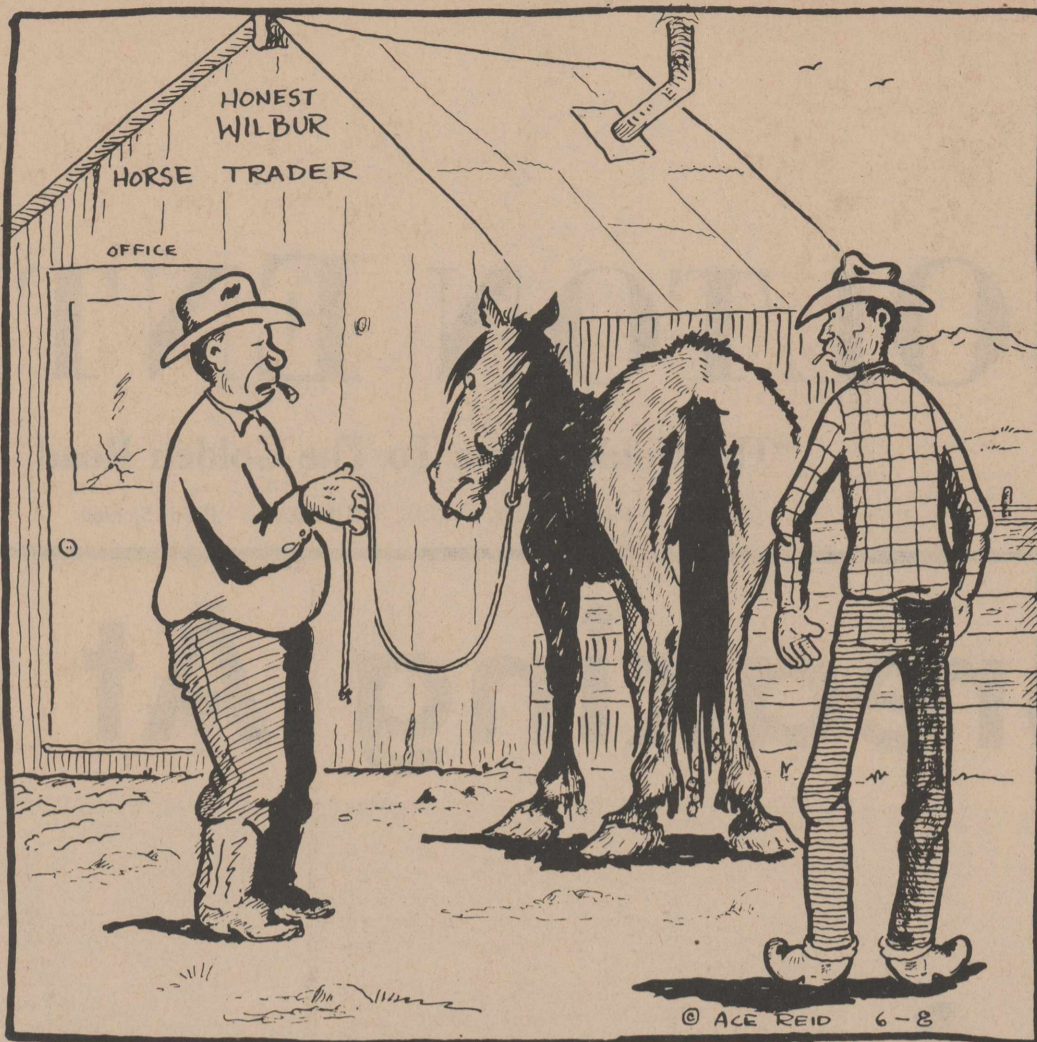

What are you doing to preserve Olton . . . to keep it from becoming among that 40 percent which fades into memory lone. God help us if the small town becomes obsolete.

"Kissing Cousins"

May relatives marry each other? A quaint clue to the law's attitude may be found in an old Latin phrase, "jus osculi," which means "the right to kiss." If the two relatives do have a right to kiss, like "kissing cousins," then they do not have a right to marry.

In more specific terms, marriage is usually forbidden between relatives closer than first cousins—and usually allowed between relatives more distant than first cousins. As for marriage between first cousins, the states split fairly evenly on that question.

Occasionally, as in the famous story of Oedipus, the two parties marry without realizing their close relationship. But in the typical

Filth

BY SUE CANNON

I, among others in this town, received some very, very disgustingly filthy literature through the mails this week and I simply cannot keep quiet about it!

In an effort to stop this sort of thing, I went to the postmaster and asked if there was anything that I could do.

He said the first matter to be taken care of is to get the form filled out to get my name off the mailing list. He took care of this immediately for me and then told me the next step to take would be to write to our congressman, representatives and senator.

We recently received a letter from John Tower, who said the largest percent of his mail was concern over the pornography that is being sent to unsolicited persons through the mails.

If you are among those who receive this type of mail, don't throw it away without first getting Doc Holt to help get your name off the company's mailing list.

Then . . . get a pen and paper and write a letter to your favorite political representative in state or nation. It's time that this terrible thing is stopped.

Although the letter I received was addressed to the business here, there are times when my children go through the mails and they could have very well got into this "innocent looking" piece of mail.

They are exposed to enough filth in some of the television shows and movies that are shown.

I am one of those "old fashioned" mothers who think that there are times when I must put my foot down and say what I think is best for my children.

And --- attending these movies that are rated MYA or at least part of them --- is not my idea of what is best for my children.

When I receive my show calendar from the local drive-in I look it over very well and decide which pictures my children should not see. Then I put that calendar up for future references. Then unless some unforeseen circumstance prevents it, I KNOW what my children are going to see when they go out to the drive-in.

I had one mother tell me that she was sure glad I kept up with it, because she didn't. And our children "run around" together.

If you read the "Olton Youth Speak Out" column in today's and last week's paper, you probably noticed where the young people are even against such movies as are shown some times.

This is a fine state of affairs when the youngsters have to rebel against things like this, when it should be the parent who stands up for what is right for his children.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

President Nixon's nomination of Judge Warren E. Burger as Chief Justice of the United States is heartening news for a nation deeply troubled over the course and character of the nation's highest court. Judge Burger, described as a "law and order" judge, give promise of providing a new direction for America's highest tribunal.

Certainly, a housecleaning at the Supreme Court is long overdue. The sordid Fortas affair shocked the American public. It underscored the wisdom of those conservative Senators who, when Abe Fortas was first nominated for the court, termed him a political fixer and wheeler-dealer unfit for judicial office.

The situation involving Justice William O. Douglas, another fiery "liberal" is equally shocking. The ramifications of his involvement with a foundation allegedly linked to hoodlum elements, should be examined in great detail by the Justice Department. It turns out that Justice Douglas was the paid president of the Albert Parvin Foundation and of the Center For the Study of Democratic Institutions, a "liberal" think tank in California that has kept up a drumfire against the Foundations of American society, including law and order.

The Fortas and Douglas affairs actually should be regarded simply as openers in any study of the judicial mess. Much remains to be uncovered by investigators. Congressman John Rarick, (D-La), already has revealed that Justices Fortas and Brennan, plus federal Judges Brazelton and Wright of the federal courts in Washington, have been engaged in business together in the nation's capital—a curious relationship indeed for jurists who are supposed to avoid even the appearance of impropriety.

Chief Justice Earl Warren's call for a code of ethics for federal judges amounts to closing the barn door after the cows have strayed away. Chief Justice Warren cannot escape responsibility that easily. He has supervisory authority over the federal courts, but failed to exercise it. Apparently he was so busy promoting his pet political theories that he didn't have time or the inclination to look for unethical behavior on the bench.

The problem of the judiciary is not simply in the area of ethics, however. The Supreme Court has been busily undermining authority in the nation. For example, in mid-May a unanimous Supreme Court threw out the conviction of Timothy F. Leary, former Harvard University researcher and drug experimenter. The ruling unquestionably complicates the U. S. government's ability to deal with the possession and use of marijuana, a profoundly hurtful mind-influencing drug.

The Associated Press, in reporting the decision, said that the ruling "seriously damaged -- perhaps fatally -- the marijuana laws." This surely would be a tragic development for the country. Marijuana, while not addictive in the manner of heroin and other hard drugs, upsets and deranges a user's personality and moral values. The Bureau of Narcotics of the Justice Department has pointed out that marijuana use is the stepping stone to hard drugs and to dangerous chemicals such as LSD.

In other words, the Supreme Court had a duty to be mindful of the social consequences of robbing the federal government of lawful authority over marijuana. But, as in so many other cases in the past 15 years, the court has been unmindful of the right of society to protect itself against known evils. Instead in the Leary marijuana ruling, the court said the government had denied Timothy Leary protection against self-incrimination.

Hopefully, Judge Burger will bring a new outlook to the Supreme Court. He is on record, in a 1967 dissent to a reversal of a narcotic conviction, saying:

"I refuse to join in what I consider an unfortunate trend of judicial decisions in this field which strain and stretch to give the guilty not the same, but vastly more protection than the law-abiding citizen."

The Burger philosophy is desperately needed, for the Supreme Court has not only eased the lot of narcotic violators but has opened the door to the smut-peddlers who are flooding the nation with hard-core pornography.

The rights of society need the protection they have not had under the Warren Court.

case, they go ahead in full awareness of the facts. Accordingly, neither one of them is likely to make any complaint to the authorities.

Nonetheless, there may still be serious legal consequences. Take this case:

Two first cousins were wed, in a state where this was forbidden, and lived together for several years. When the husband was killed in a job accident, the wife applied for workmen's compensation as his widow.

But in a court test, her claim was denied because they had never really been married in the eyes of the law. The court said the parties could not make valid what the law made invalid.

In another case, an uncle married his niece. Later, the uncle decided to seek an annulment on grounds of their kinship. Even though the niece pointed out that he himself had agreed to the marriage, the court granted him the annulment he wanted. Again, the court said such a marriage is simply null and void.

In most states and in most situations, courts continue to take this strict view of the matter. In part this reflects ancient religious restrictions, going back to the biblical Book of Leviticus. And in part it reflects the fear that the offspring of closely-related parents are more likely to be defective. As the poet Byron once put it:

"Marrying their cousins--nay, their aunts, and nieces, Which always spoils the breed, if it increases."

All-Cotton Shirts To Be Available To Consumer

Have you tried to buy an all-cotton shirt only to be offered a man-made fiber substitute or one made of cotton adulterated with a synthetic?

Frustrating, isn't it? But, according to Texas Trustees of Cotton Producers Institute, relief is on the way. The word comes from Howard Alford, Lubbock, vice president of CPI, who, along with Joe B. Pate, Jr., and Roy Forkner, Lubbock; J. D. Smith, Littlefield; and L. C. Unfred, Tahoka, represents the High Plains area on the CPI board.

"One of the top three shirt manufacturers (Manhattan) is making cotton the No. 1 object of a national sales effort," Alford explains.

"This is a result of a push by the Cotton Producers Institute and the National Cotton Council and is aimed at increasing availability and sales of 100 per cent cotton durable press and pure-finish shirts."

The manufacturer earlier had decided to discontinue its all-cotton durable press shirt. Now it not only is going to keep this shirt but also is going to: (1) add two new lines of pure-finish cotton shirts, and (2) unite its promotional and sales resources with those of the cotton industry in a national selling campaign.

Buyers for retailers across the country learned of the new shirt lines through a series of full-page ads in key trade papers last month.

"Newspaper advertising will help put the shirts on the backs of consumers in 141 markets this fall. Space costs will be shared by local retailers and Cotton Producers Institute.

National magazine advertising in full color also is scheduled," says Alford.

"The salesman who does the best job of putting cotton shirts into retail stores will win a trip to Hawaii for two. Color television sets and other prizes are being offered at the regional level.

"The cotton industry staff worked closely with company executives in setting up seven regional meetings where the cotton promotion plan and materials were explained to more than a hundred salesmen."

Cotton Producers Institute and the National Cotton Council also are working to develop coordinated promotion programs with other shirt manufacturers. This is a part of a $10-million CPI research and promotion effort for 1969. It is financed by cotton growers through $1-per-bale payments under the Cotton Research and Promotion Act.

LEWIS LLEWELLYN

Do We Want This To Happen Here?

Is sex education in our public schools part of a conspiracy to weaken our nation by degrading the morals of our young people?

This charge has often been made, but the proof offered to substantiate it has not always been convincing.

Recently, Congressman James B. Utt (R-Calif.) sent to his constituents a newsletter, in which he specifically mentioned SIECUS, the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States.

The newsletter said, "Obviously, SIECUS is not interested in morality, since its treasurer, Isadore Rubin, an identified Communist, is editor of the pornographic magazine 'Sexology.' SIECUS founder Dr. Lester Kirkendall and other officials also are connected with 'Sexology.'"

"Concerned"

Another Californian, Assemblyman Newt Russell, in a statement to the California State Board of Education, said:

"There are many of us who feel that sexual relationships in our country are based on the Judeo-Christian concepts which are found in the Bible and are taught in our churches. I am concerned lest the teachings of sex bring us to the point where Sweden finds itself, with the venereal disease rate running rampant and where the majority of young people experiment with sex before marriage."

It may be difficult—or impossible—to prove that there is a Communist conspiracy behind the current drive for sex education.

However, it is possible to review what has happened in a country which has had sex education for more than a dozen years and to see what has happened there.

Then we can ask ourselves, "Do we want this to happen here?"

Sweden has had national compulsory sex education since 1956. Recently, a survey was conducted to determine the attitudes of the people toward sexual conduct. The results of this survey are to be published in August in a book, "The Contraceptive Society," by Hans L. Zetterberg. Look magazine and the Reader's Digest have published articles, based on this information. "Never Teach Morality"

Today, 93 per cent of all Swedes, according to this survey, consider it acceptable for people who are engaged or "going steady" to engage in what is referred to in the Bible and in law as "fornication."

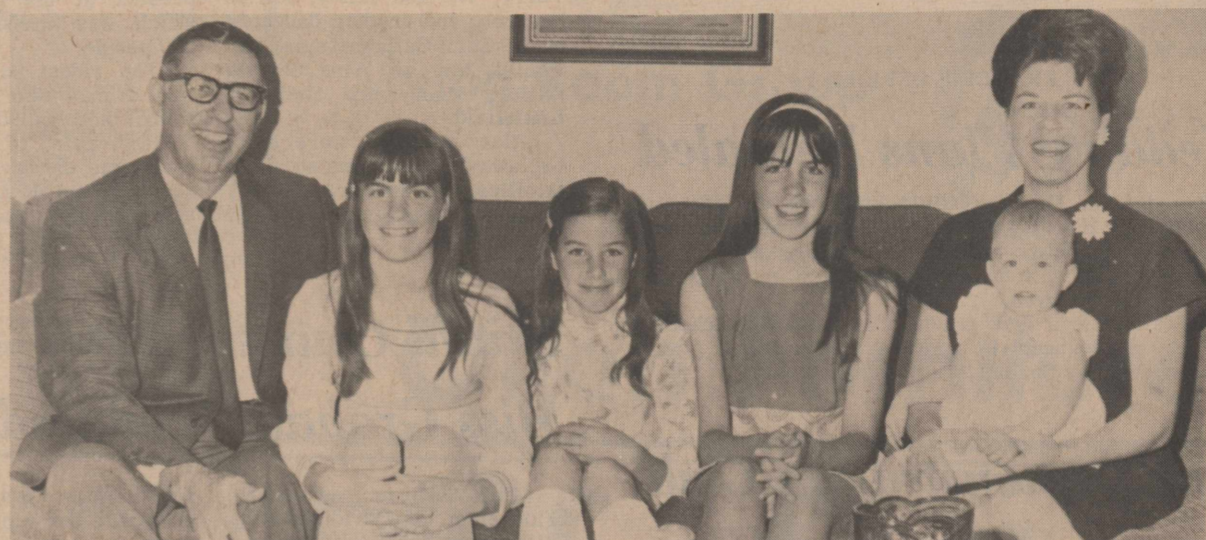

One third of Swedish brides are pregnant on their wedding days. Dr. Maj-Briht Bergstrom-Walan, internationally known Swedish psychologist, says, "We should never teach morality, but we should present different attitudes."

This is the opposite of what the Bible teaches.

The Bible says clearly, "Be not deceived. Neither fornicators nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind . . . shall inherit the kingdom of God."

The question is, Whose advice do we want to follow? What kind of chances should we take with our children?

Cook Of The Week

Sharing recipes with Enterprise readers this week is Mrs. Kenneth McCool, wife of a career navy man. The Banana Cream pie is a favorite of her husband, Engineman 1st Class McCool, who is stationed at Nha-Be, Vietnam.

Joan Buckner McCool grew up at Olton, graduating from Olton High School. Her husband is a native of Lockney. The two met when he visited in Olton with her cousin.

McCool's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James V. Ellis of Lockney. Joan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Buckner, now of Springlake.

Stationed in Hawaii the first two years of their marriage, the couple spent their "second honeymoon" there last month when they were reunited for McCool's R and R leave.

Joan returned from Hawaii with a treasured keepsake, a plaque with a small map of Vietnam and the words, "With All My Love, To Joan McCool, For commendable and faithful service in maintaining home and family during her husband's tour of duty in South Vietnam, Sept. '68 to Sept. '69. Presented by her grateful and loving husband, Kenneth McCool."

The couple's first child, eight year old Pam, was born in Hawaii. They have a second daughter, Nancy, seven years old and a son, Ken, two and a half. McCool will complete his year's tour of duty in Vietnam in September. His next assignment might be Tennessee, Alaska, Alabama or Florida. At present, they are hoping the choice will be Alaska.

Joan's hobbies are sewing and cooking. Being mother and father to three children leaves her little time for other interests.

The family attends the First Baptist Church.

Miss Blackwell Wins Trophy In 'Space Ball' Tournament

The athletic department of Midwestern University at Wichita Falls has entered the space age and offered, this year for the first time, a new sport - space ball.

Lynda Blackwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Blackwell and sophomore at the University, signed up for the new sport and emerged the winner of the intramural tournament and possessor of a large trophy which will become hers to keep if she can win for three consecutive years.

The newest game at Midwestern is an individual sport played on a huge trampoline. Two players compete in the game which has traits taken from volley ball and basketball.

A double net divides the trampoline "court". Above the players' heads is a circular opening through which the "space ball" is thrown.

Speed and ability to propel the ball through the opening with enough force that the opponent is unable to get the ball before it touches the trampoline or protecting "backstop" are important to the game.

Miss Blackwell also received two small trophies which are hers to keep regardless of whether she continues to win the school trophy.

The physical education major was also a member of the basketball team which won first place and she won second place in the free shot contest. She was a member of the second place relay team.

Olympic Star Praises Little League, Says Parents Are Half Of The Problem

Excerpts from Keynote Speech Delivered by Rev. Bob Richards at the 10th International Congress Little League Baseball Detroit, Michigan March 30, 1969.

I can think of nothing more ominous for a nice group like Little Leaguers, opening up their convention, than to invite a preacher who used to be a philosophy teacher. You must be aware that philosophy teachers can go down deeper and stay longer and come up with less than anybody else. I used to be a pole vaulter and some people used to call me the "vaulting vicar" or the "deca-thon deacon", or as one cynic put it, "the only preacher he knows of trying to get to heaven on his own strength."

I am a great believer in Little League.

I have two fine sons who I think were molded quite a bit by the experience of Little League. I used to go watch them play and I am so proud of what they went through in Little League. Some people criticize Little League. Listen, there isn't anything wrong with Little League--you just get rid of the parents and you solve half the problem. Some of these experts who want to throw the baby out with the bath water better throw out the guys in the stands who haven't learned the great lessons the kids have. I have watched it, I think it's one of the greatest programs in America today. I can't push you enough in what you are doing. The kind of thing you are doing is so great for these kids. I can't help but think of my youngest boy pitching. Well, he wasn't pitching, he was playing center field. Now Little League rules specify that a guy can only go six innings or something like that. The score was dead even and so they had to take out their good pitcher and they put in my son. Well, he walked up there--you know--with all the hopes and dreams of a boy, and there I was in the stands. "Come on Paul, strike them out." He threw one pitch, the batter hit it for a home run and the ball game was over.

Now, I pride myself on being somewhat of a psychologist, so I went up to my son and I thought: "I'll know just the right thing to say" and very confidently, I threw my arm around him and said, "That's O. K. Paul, I'm really proud of you anyway." Well, it was the worst thing I could have said; he had held this thing for just so long and all of a sudden--boom--the tears started running down his cheeks. He could hardly take it. I threw my arm around him and I said "Now that's o. k. Paul, you have to learn to take the bitter with the sweet. Even the best of them are bombed out." But no matter what I said, I couldn't console him. He felt he had lost the whole game for his team. But about five hours later when he walked in, I said "Paul, how do you feel about it now?" He looked at me and laughed and said "Well, Dad, I pitched a one hitter anyway."

This is absolutely a true story and it illustrates for me what these kids learn going through the experience of baseball. We're so worried about them having emotional traumas. We're so worried as parents about our kids getting a bump or a bruise or tasting blood in their mouth, and frankly, that's one of the great problems of America today. We've great guys who went through hell in World War II who are afraid for their children to get a bump or a bruise and its one of the reasons we are facing such a gigantic problem with our young people today. We are afraid for them to experience life.

I love baseball; I love football; I love any sport that can teach a kid that life is bumps and bruises. It's blood in the mouth. It's defeat. It's victory. It's moments of triumph. It's moments of despair. I love the world of sports, gentlemen, because I think indirectly it can teach a kid more about life than anything else there is. I have often said give me a gym rather than a pulpit. Give me a gridiron. Give me a diamond. Let me play with the kids. Let me run with them and I'll teach them more about the game of life this way than I ever will through abstract phraseology from a pulpit or a lecture. I believe that sports are indispensable in teaching young people about life. That's why I think the work that you are doing is so tremendously important. I want to direct my remarks to this theme tonight.

The sports world reveals life. You can see the issues of life. There is a great Bible verse that says this: "Out of the heart come the issues of life." Well, you can see heart in sports. You can see kids battling against the odds. You can see things that called fight. I love that cheer "You gotta fight, you gotta fight, you gotta fight, fight, fight."

Life is a battle, gentlemen, you know it as well as I. You don't get through school without fight. You don't build a business without fight. You don't defend a nation or principle without fight. The sports world is for me because it teaches a boy he has to stay in there and do battle. You must fight down to the last inning. Down to that last out; that last hit; you got battle until the last second. That relates to life, because nothing great happens without fight. You don't accomplish anything in life without sweat and I know we spend a billion dollars in America to get rid of sweat.

A favorite colloquial expression is "no sweat". Well, I love the sports world because you perspire. Kids learn to sweat--to know that its the result of effort. That you don't get anything without work. In a day when people are trying to get the state to take care of them--in an age when people are disavowing the value of work, the sports world lives because it says nothing great happens unless you sweat. What Edison had in mind when he said "Genius is 1% inspiration; it's 99% perspiration"--this country was built in the concept of sweat. Ninety-nine per cent of the genius of America is in the people who are willing to work to make this nation great.

I am old fashioned enough to believe that its still the answer to many of our problems. You talk about something relating to America today--you learn the most important thing there is in community living--you learn to play a position in juxtaposition with someone else. I love the sports world for this. The world is crying out for teamwork as never before. Just before Bishop Emrich left he said: "Bob, what do you think about kids competing? Everywhere I go, whenever there is an open session, you always get a teacher or a parent who will ask you: Do you believe in young people competing? Well, you see, I don't believe we emphasize competition enough. I think we should teach children competition as soon as they are able to walk."

I would be willing to bet that most of the emotional traumas come from kids who haven't learned to compete and who face their first frustration in life. My personal conviction is, we need more competition. You want to know the sports where we are great in the Olympics? --Where we've got competition. You want to know where we are lousy in the Olympics? --Where there is no competition. Children must learn to compete. They will compete in school. They will compete in love. They will compete on the street corners in fighting. They're going to compete in life.

Gentlemen, teach them how to compete according to the principles of sportsmanship. Teach them to take defeat and victory equally well and you have done something for them because all of life is competition.

Now, I happen to believe that what America needs is more of the kind of thing you are trying to do. I would give anything if the principles of organization, the motivation that you men have in Little League, I'd give anything if we could get it in, say, Junior Olympics or Soccer or Junior Gymnastics or cycling or wrestling. I'd give anything if the same kind of ingenious orientation that you have in Little League were spread throughout the entire United States.

What you are doing, gentlemen, is incalculable in terms of the American character and the American heritage.

I asked a man the other day, "What would happen if all of the men and women who were volunteering their services in the great sports programs of America like Little League, what if they were not done?"

"What would happen to America?" We glamorize the criminal and the crook and the rioter. Why don't we glamorize these people who are doing so much to prevent crime, to prevent riots? I say to you, that the work you are doing is the most important work that can be done in America today. It is working with young men. It is giving them values and I can tell you, indirectly, you can give values in sports.

My son jumped 16 feet a week ago in the pole vault. Went over it six inches. He's going to make 17 feet this year, and I don't want you to think I'm pushing him in pole vaulting or anything like that, but I thank God for coaches like Ken McCurdy in Little League, who gave my kid a belief in himself. I think the most powerful force in the world is a coach, a father, a teacher saying to a kid "You can do it", "You can do it." You hold that kind of rule, but say, I hope and pray we will start getting positive about America. We've got preachers and professors and politicians and writers who are all negative. Their whole bent is to tear America down, to criticize it, to knock it, to point out its weaknesses. Listen, this is the greatest society the world has ever known.

I love sports because it puts a kid in a situation of challenge. Its 3-2, its the last of the seventh. The kids must come through. That is life. You're at the end of the runway at the Olympic games--its once

The Kitchen Sink

BY MOZELLE TROTTER

School's out and our First Born is home for the summer. Gee, I wonder if we're ever going to get all his possessions put away.

It certainly was a good thing that he wasn't twins, we'd have had to leave one of them down at College Station -- there just wasn't any room left in the old flivver.

Flivver -- doesn't that date me? Oh, well, everyone knows I'm at least 29 anyway.

Someone said to me, "I'll bet your son's glad to get back to home cooking."

Now that's a laugh!

We've had a pretty steady diet of cheese and baloney the few days he's been home.

For instance, the "news editor" isn't a good enough manager to get dinner ready, eaten and the mess cleaned up, all in the space of an hour. So there goes dinner.

O. K. there's supper. But then, that's out too. The "official scorer" of Babe Ruth baseball league has to get to the games a tiny bit early in order to get the line ups. Him-m-m. Sandwiches, maybe?

And it seems my "larder" is always empty. You can't tell it by the amount of the checks I write at the grocery store but I'm one of those super-efficient shoppers who can put away three big sacks of "groceries" and then not have anything to cook for supper.

So, I rather imagine he's beginning to appreciate the old dining hall at the campus. Yea, that desperate.

Back to the subject of baseball. (I've got a one game mind).

The very first game this year, a stranger heard me say, "I'm official score keeper, I HAVE to go to the game."

She said, "Oh, is your little boy playing?"

I think she thought I'd been hit by a "bean ball". Say, maybe that's what's wrong. I can remember when I was in junior high everyone played soft ball at recess. (I'm sure we still had recess cause I was real disappointed we didn't have them in high school) I must have been hit in the head one time.

And anyway, all those Babe Ruthers are my boys.

Boss Lady was out to the games Tuesday night getting pictures and her little seven year old (who talked all year about playing ball to the extent she threatened to give him to me) came up with a little goodie. During a break in the action, when the home plate umpire went to his pick up for a jacket, young Gregg announces, "Hey Mon, there's one of those vampires."

Oh, the poor umpire! What he doesn't get called on purpose, he gets called by accident.

One more thing about Tuesday night. You people who went to the games -- did you notice it was so cold the mosquitoes weren't working? I think it was because all that blood of mine and other victims was no near frozen that they couldn't fly! If we could just develop a mosquito that transmitted intelligence or wealth instead of encephalitis or some other disease, I'd sure be fixed up!

Olton Youth Speak Out

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Buddy Brock, History teacher at Olton High School, recently asked his students to write two paragraphs - one beginning with the words "I support" and one beginning "I protest". The following is the second in a series of comments written by the students.)

I protest the riots that are going on in the United States. I think those should be a stop to this because it doesn't get the rioters anywhere and it causes hatred between the people. I think all people should have the right to voice their opinions but they should do it in a civilized way and not by rioting.

I support the right that is given us that all people are equal. This means everyone, no matter what color or creed. Everyone should have equal chances, just because one person has more money than another doesn't mean that he should be praised or that he is better than the other. Everyone should be given equal rights.

I protest the protest of the college kids. I protest the use of marijuana and other drugs. I'm against the way the movies are all about sex now. I'm against the head of colleges because they don't stand up against the kids. They give in to them too easily. These kids should be taught that not everything's gonna go their way. I protest the burning of draft cards. I'm against higher taxes because we can't afford anymore taxes! I'm against hippies, they remind me of ignorant dogs.

I support drafting. If I were a boy I'd be proud of fighting for freedom. I support the law. I think that it should be respected by all because it is put for our good. I am for sending killers (first degree murderers) to electric chair. So far they've gotten by easy and killing a president has become a game.

I protest having daylight savings time because your day is so much (it seems) longer and nights seem shorter. I have to stay on a tractor that much longer also or work in the shop longer.

I support the Vietnam war but I also think we should just drop the A-bomb over there and get it over with even if it causes a larger war with China or Russia.

I protest against the Supreme Court for always letting people get away with murder. They always say they're insane and give them maybe five years. If they do get a life sentence their out in five years because of good behavior. I think if a man has killed somebody on purpose, then they should be killed the same way.

I support the bill for Tech to have a medical school. I think that Tech should have a medical school because it has just about everything else. It needs a medical school.

I protest against the way we the students have to come to school wearing our clothes the way the authorities want us to. The authorities of O.H.S. tell us how to wear our clothes and how long our hair should be and how to comb it. We come to school to get an education not to be told how to dress. If the authorities would worry more about what we learn than worrying about our hair and clothes, things would be a lot better.

I support football because I like it. When a person supports a sport in the school it is like supporting the school.

I protest the long haired hippie protestors. I don't think this is the way to get something changed. I think the head of the colleges should tell these people to either get their hair cut and quit using drugs or go home. And when they start using guns to take buildings they should be put in jail.

I support the means by which the police are stopping the riots. They can use tear gas, and clubs, and guns. If they use these, the rioters will think twice before they riot again.

I protest the Supreme Court. I think they are unfair many times. They announce a man insane after he has murdered people. I think, in most cases, that they are given the easy way out and aren't punished like they should be.

I support our armed forces. In times as these, it is very important to support our men. Not that anyone likes to fight in wars, but we, as a allied country must help because it is our duty. I think it is the finest thing we could do.
