Acreage Reduction, Prohibition Touch Off Fireworks

Boos Heard As Resolution Is Made In House

Effort To Extoll Benefits Of Prohibition And Pledge The Support Of House To Enforcement Causes Flare-Up

Discussion Halted

Garrett Cotton Acreage Plan Voted Down As Opposition Is Developed By Members Favoring Reduction

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—Cotton acreage reduction and prohibition touched off the oratorical fireworks in the house today while the senate was threading its way slowly through the puzzling rules muddle.

The flare-up on prohibition came when Representatives Farmer of Fort Worth and Forbes of Weatherford introduced a resolution extolling the benefits of prohibition and pledging the support of the house to the enforcement of the 18th amendment. Several boos were heard while the resolution was being read and while Farmer and Forbes were speaking.

Discussion Halted

Discussion on the subject probably would have become heated had not the speaker sustained a point of order that the resolution could not be discussed because it was introduced after the time set for resolutions.

Both houses adjourned today until Monday, forestalling any action this week on the emergency tax bill to permit the semi-annual payment of taxes. The bill was considered by the house committee on revenue and taxation and will be reported to the house Monday. The bill would permit one-half of the taxes to be paid by February 1 with the other half carried over until June 30 without interest or penalty. It was passed by the senate yesterday with a rider to permit the county commissioners' courts to require the pay-

Would Permit Race Betting

Bill Introduced In House For Contribution System To Be Used In Texas Horse Race Betting; Opposition Seen

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—Betting under the contribution system would be permitted at Texas horse races under a bill introduced in the house today by Representative Pope of Corpus Christi, Dwyer of San Antonio and others.

The bill, a complicated proposal, would provide for administration of the system by a state fair board, composed of the president of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, the state agricultural commissioner, the president of the College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville and two others, one to be a member of the Texas national guard or the American Legion.

Representative Forbes of Weatherford immediately announced he was opposed to the bill and would "fight it to the last ditch."

Dwyer predicted its passage without much difficulty. A similar bill was killed in the 41st legislature on the floor by a few votes and since that time advocates of the bill, he said, have strengthened their position.

Dwyer said Texas would be an ideal place for raising race horses, due to climatic conditions which allowed horses to mature four months earlier than in the north, and that wealthy owners were anxious to come into the state.

The bill would give the fair bo the right to limit the betting to $ under the contribution system. Th system is almost identical with t pari-mutuel used in other state

JOHNSON INDICTED

BEAUMONT, Jan. 23. (AP) very L. B. Johnson of Port Arthur wa indicted by a grand jury here today on a charge of murder for the fatal shooting last week of Ottis Lee Adams, 23.

May Be Freed

MAHATMA GANDHI

Gandhi Likely To Be Granted Freedom Soon

End Of Eight Months Imprisonment Predicted; Matter Under Discussion By Viceroy And His Council

(By The Associated Press)

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 23. — Before another 24 hours have passed, Mahatma Gandhi, imprisoned leader of the Indian nationalists probably will be a free man, it was predicted here today.

The end of his eight months imprisonment appeared to be delayed only by a decision as to what other leaders of the congress party should be given their freedom with him. The viceroy and his council were discussing this matter today but it was believed they already had decided to restore Gandhi's freedom.

His liberation and that of his associates is bound up with the issue of general amnesty for all India's 50,000 or more political prisoners. At the close of the round-table conference in London Ramsay MacDonald said amnesty would be granted if order could be restored in India.

There appeared to be an excellent prospect that such general amnesty would be proclaimed soon. The viceroy has received appeals from all parts of India urging that political prisoners be released. Not only to enable the congress party leaders an opportunity for free discussion of the prime minister's Indian policy, but also a means of inaugurating an era of better feeling throughout the country and paving the way for internal peace.

BRADY LEAVES HOME

Convicted Slayer Expected To Surrender In Dallas

AUSTIN, Jan. 23. (AP)—John W. Brady, former civil appeals court justice, under a penitentiary sentence of two years and eight months for killing a stenographer, left his home here today, presumably to surrender to Dallas county authorities. His wife accompanied him.

After one trial in Austin had ended with the jury unable to agree, Brady was convicted in Dallas. His defense was insanity induced by chronic alcoholism. A higher court recently overruled his appeal.

NEGRO SUSPECT HELD

CORPUS CHRISTI, Jan. 23. (AP)—A negro who answered the description of the one sought throughout South Texas for an attack on a white girl at Brownsville was held at Robstown tonight for identification. He was taken from an early morning train from Brownsville.

Prohibition Is Put On Mat In Senate Friday

Thorough Theshing Out Of Controversial Issue Ahead For Senators; Howell Bill Made Order Of Business

Beer Proposal Up

Proposal To Provide Life Imprisonment For Dry Law Violators Draws Laughter; Wets Planning Test

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Prohibition was put on the mat in the senate tonight and a thorough threshing out of it is controversial issue is ahead.

By a vote of 39 to 29, the senate agreed to make the Howell bill establishing a drastic enforcement act for the District of Columbia the order of business.

Beer Amendment Up

Already amendments are pending to authorize a 4 per cent beer and to provide life imprisonment for dry law violators. Wets are planning to use the measure as a vehicle for testing many propositions including some recommendations of the Wickersham commission, but they concede they are hopelessly outnumbered.

A prelude to the prospective prohibition outburst was heard late today as Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, the author of the measure, pictured a flow of rum into the capital in asking consideration for his bill.

Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, told Howell that if his bill were put to a vote of the people in the capital they would reject it three to one. It was Tydings who proposed, amid laughter, that provision be made for life imprisonment of dry violators.

Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, offered the amendment to increase the alcoholic content of beer from one half of one per cent to four.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader voted against

Senate Passes Road Measure

Third Supply Bill In As Many Days Approved; Would Make $125,000,000 Available For Road Construction

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.— (AP)—Passing its third supply bill in as many days, the senate today moved abreast of its legislative calendar for the first time this session.

It gave its approval to the agricultural measure, carrying $125,000,000 to become available immediately for road construction, and sent the bill back to the house for approval of amendments, just as it had the first deficiency bill and the interior measure.

Quick passage of the agriculture measure brightened the hopes of leaders of getting through with the necessary work confronting congress by March 4, and thus avoiding an extra session in the spring, of the new and closely divided congress.

The bill provided $214,000,000 for next year's operation of the agricultural department. The senate added to it about $2,500,000 for reloaning to farmers in the state of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama the funds repaid on loans in those states from the emergency flood fund of last year.

Fast Donations Are To Extend Through Sunday

Lubbock Cafes And Restaurants Report Big Letdown In Business At Noon Hour

THE period for fast-day contributions will be extended through Sunday, it was announced Friday by representatives of United Charities, which will use money thus raised to buy food for the needy.

Several cafes and restaurants late Friday reported that they had experienced a big let down in business at the noon hour, although the usual number of customers were at counters and tables for dinner.

Milk bottles bearing labels calling attention to fast day have been placed on counters in shops, cafes and hotels, and in offices and at other vantage points. Object of the movement is voluntary abstinence from all or part of a day's meals and contribution of money which would have been spent for food to the fast-day fund.

Estimates were that from $1,000 to $3,000 would be obtained by that means to buy edibles for the poor. The fast is believed to be the first attempted in citywide fashion to aid the needy.

Coins placed in bottles and boxes at the churches Sunday—first day of a go-to-church campaign here—are expected to swell the fast-day total considerably.

Children and aged persons are not asked to participate in the fast.

State Assumes Two-thirds Of Pavement Cost

State Highway Commission At Austin Authorizes Part Of Cost Of College Avenue Paving; Maintenance Fund Set

The state highway commission at Austin yesterday authorized the expenditure of two-thirds of the cost of constructing 20-foot pavement of College Avenue, which borders Texas Technological college campus, according to an Associated Press report. College avenue is a part of state highway No. 7.

Expenditures of $1,905 for maintenance of 12.7 miles of state highway No. 24 from Lubbock to the Hockley county line and of $2,595 for maintenance of 17.3 miles of No. 24 from Levelland to the Lubbock county line also were authorized by the highway commission.

The engineer was instructed to take over the section of No. 24 from Lubbock to the Hockley county line for permanent maintenance.

AUSTIN, Jan. 23. (AP)—The state highway commission today authorized the expenditure of $1,696,407.93 for maintenance for the rest of the fiscal year and for special construction.

The commission authorized the state highway engineer to complete plans and advertise for bids on the construction of a bridge, costing approximately $185,000, over the Brazos river on Highway 10 in Hood county. Hood county was asked to furnish the right of way.

NO DALLAS PROBE

Kidnaping Investigation Will Be Left To Navarro

DALLAS, Jan. 23. (AP)—The kidnaping of Robert Cerf, 24, from Corsicana last December 10, and the subsequent payment of $15,000 ransom for his safe return by his father, Isaac N. Cerf, Corsicana banker, will not be investigated by Dallas county officials, District Attorney William McCraw said today. Cerf was released in Dallas by his abductors.

The Navarro county grand jury at Corsicana yesterday adjourned a special session until February 2 without returning any indictment in the case.

"If neither Mr. Cerf nor his son cared to go before the grand jury of their home county to tell what they know of the affair, that is their business," said McCraw. "They are the injured parties and we would not feel it our duty to investigate here something that happened in Navarro county, unless we were asked to do so."

Four Others Injured In Auto Collision Near Commerce

COMMERCE, Jan. 23. (AP)—Miss Lillian Brawner, student in East Texas Teachers college here, was killed late today and four other persons were injured when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another machine on a bridge eight miles south of here.

Miss Brawner was thrown from the automobile which fell on her. Her sister, Melba Lee Brawner, was seriously injured; a brother, Clifton, suffered a broken shoulder, and Roy Adkins and a Miss Swain were less seriously hurt. Occupants of the automobile, whose names were not learned immediately, were not seriously injured.

Herbert Quinn Is Extolled In Funeral Rites

Body Of Young Lubbock Publisher Sent To Indiana For Burial; Services Are Held Here Friday Afternoon

Homage was paid L. Herbert Quinn as a community benefactor and a private citizen when funeral services for the 33-year-old publisher were conducted at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church. Burial will be at Terre Haute, Ind., to which the body was sent by train Friday night.

Describing as "almost startling" Mr. Quinn's climb to the helm of the Avalanche-Journal newspapers in less than two years, Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of the church, extolled the man who first was affiliated with the Lubbock press early in 1927.

Flowers Bank Casket.

Floral tributes banked the soft gray casket from three sides as it rested before the pulpit in the auditorium of the church of which Mr. Quinn was a member. The requiem was by piano and eight mixed voices.

Pallbearers were members of the Avalanche-Journal staff. Personnel of the newspapers attended in a body, as did the Kiwanis club, to which the young publisher belonged.

Out-of-town persons representing the newspaper fraternity and friends and former associates from other cities attended the last rites. The downstairs auditorium and the balconies of the church virtually were filled.

Fiancee Attends.

Mr. Quinn's fiancee, Miss Frances Bagot, and her brother, Walter Bagot, came from their home at Anderson, Ind., to attend the funeral

SURE OF ACQUITTAL

Former County Judge Demands Early Murder Trial

ARDMORE, Okla., Jan. 23. (AP)—Confident of acquital, A. J. (Andy) Hardy, 45-year old former county judge, pressed today for an early trial and bail on a charge of slaying his wife.

After Judge Charles H. Champion had granted Hardy's request and bound him over for trial for murder at the conclusion of preliminary hearing, the accused man's counsel filed a district court habeas corpus action for his release on bond.

District Judge Asa Walden deferred decision on the application, which set out that evidence at the hearing did not justify a first degree murder charge.

A Lamesa bank having the reward on deposit also was named as a defendant. The Slaton police chief's petition held that Abel was entitled to the whole reward, that Mrs. Ray had refused to give it to him, and named A. M. Bennett as a defendant as deputy under the woman sheriff.

VICTOR SEYMOUR

Two Nebraska GOP Members Are Indicted

Victor Seymour, Republican Leader, And George Norris, Grocer, Charged With Perjury Following Probe

(By Associated Press)

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 23. — Two Nebraskans, one a republican leader, were under indictment for perjury tonight as a result of the United States senate's campaign funds investigation in this state.

A federal grand jury true bill named Victor Seymour of Lincoln former manager of the western headquarters of the republican national senatorial campaign committee at Denver, Colo., on eight counts. Another true bill returned two counts against George W. Norris, a grocer, formerly located at Broken Bow, Neb., who sought a place on the republican primary ballot last August as an opponent to Senator George W. Norris.

The indictments of Seymour was based on his testimony before the senate campaign funds committee headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, which last summer sought the sources of the financing of the primary campaign against Senator Norris. Norris was later reelected by a majority of 75,000 votes.

Seymour told the committee he had not taken an active interest in the Nebraska senatorial campaign and that he had no knowledge of the filing of Grocer Norris until he read of it in the newspapers.

But Miss Esther M. Alton, formerly employed as a stenographer in Seymour's office, later testified before the committee that he had conducted a "straw vote" to ascertain the most popular candidate to oppose Norris in the republican senator primary. She also testified that the stateent announcing the entrance of Grocer Norris into the campaign was typed in Seymour's office.

SEARCH UNDER WAY

Buyer Of Furs Held Up And Robbed By Two Men

BURNET, Jan. 23. (AP) — Search was underway here today by Sheriff A. F. Ray for two men who stopped Hubbard Miller, buyer of furs for J. W. Thompson and Son of Belton and at the point of a pistol robbed him of 600 or 700 fur pelts while on the road betwen Burnet and Lampasas Wednesday night.

Miller was driving a car containing the pelts toward Belton. The men in a roadster passed him a short distance out of Burnet. He overtook his car and could not pass because of a bad hole in the road. When he stopped his car one of the men came up to the side of his car and asked for a match. The man drew a pistol. The man loaded the pelts into their car and then made Miller drive off toward Lampases.

Ex-Secretary Of Clara Bow Found Guilty

Jury Of Seven Men And Five Women Recommend Clemency In Passing Of Sentence On 26-Year-Old Defendant

Daisy Is Stunned

Girl Found Not Guilty On 34 Other Theft Charges; Next Monday Set For Announcement Of Sentence

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—A verdict convicting Daisy De Boe of stealing from the bank account of Clara Bow during the 18 months she lived with the "it" girl of the screen was returned at 3:42 p. m., P.S.T., today by a jury of seven men and five women.

The verdict was written on only one of the 35 counts of grand theft charged to the former secretary of the red headed film actress. This was count number 7 involving a check for $825 written on October 29th, 1930, two days before Miss De Boe was discharged from her position. It was issued for the purchase of a fur coat. On all other counts of the indictment she was found not guilty.

Clemency Recommended

The jury announced it recommended clemency in the pasing of sentence on the 26-year old woman. The penalty for her offense may be one to ten years in prison or she may be granted probation with a possible provision she serve part of the probationary term in the county jail.

The verdict stunned Miss De Boe. She burst into tears and collapsed at the counsel table where she had sat ever since the trial opened, January 13.

"Oh, for God sake," she wailed. "I'm not guilty. If they wanted to convict me on one count why didn't they convict me on all."

Becomes Hysterical

Her voice broke and she became hysterical. Friends at her side lifted her from her chair and carried the limp figure out of the court room and up a narrow hallway and into the jury chamber.

One juror explained why the jury was out so many hours.

"There were eight of us voting for an acquittal and four voting for a conviction. Neither would give way and as a last resort an agreement was reached to return a verdict of guilty on one count with the understanding that we would

Red Cross Is To Voice Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. —(AP)—Red Cross officials will be given an opportunity Monday to tell the house why they are opposed to the senate's $25,000,000 appropriation to finance their relief activities.

While Democratic spokesmen talked of "deliberate delay," Speaker Longworth today referred the proposal to the appropriations committee for investigation.

Representative Cramton, chairman of the sub committee entrusted with the inquiry, announced the hearings would begin Monday. He said Red Cross officials would be given a "full and fair" hearing and every effort made to expedite action.

Governor Murray Out To "Get" Wentz, Millionaire Highway Department Head

(By The Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 23.—The avidly awaited move of Gov. W. H. Murray to oust Lew Wentz, millionaire republican, from chairmanship of the state highway department, was brought into the open today.

The move was made hours before it became public property. Today it developed that an innocent-appearing measure introduced in the Oklahoma house by Representative Nat Henderson, democrat, Haskell county, empowers to the governor to designate board or commission chairman at will.

Murray and Wentz have long been apart on virtually everything. That the governor, ardent democrat, was out to "get" Wentz, oil magnate, has been no secret since a cotton belt landslide began forming to overwhelm Murray's opponents in the fall elections.

Appointed by Ex-Governor W. J. Holloway for a term of six years, Wentz has in his nearly two years of tenure given his services to the state without reward, paying his own expenses and turning his salary over to the state-supported crippled children's hospital here.

Moonshine Still, Working As A Soup Kitchen In Arkansas, Greets Rogers

(By The Associated Press)

ENGLAND, Ark., Jan. 23.—A moonshine still, working as a school house soup kitchen, brought a touch of humor to Will Rogers' motor trip through this section of the Arkansas drouth area today.

The flying humorist alighted from his car at the central rural school east of here at the noon hour. Several hundred children were in line before the big copper cooker.

Rogers turned from his grave observation of the "soup line," to say with a chuckle:

"Even the bootleggers donate down here."

With Harvey C. Counch, state chairman of the Red Cross relief, and other relief workers, he had spent the morning motoring through barren, drouth seared acres of farm lands in search of first-hand information for use on his southwestern tour to aid the Red Cross $10,000,000 relief fund.

Going to Pine Bluff late today, he took off with Capt. Frank Hawks in a navy plane for Fort Worth, Texas. The party left Little Rock in the morning.

The Wickersham Report

PRESIDENT HOOVER, it seems, has created more discussion over the Eighteenth Amendment, in the report of the Wickersham Commission released this week in Washington. The president, instead of securing a possible remedy for prohibition violations, has apparently loudened the hue and cry for repeal.

The Morning Avalanche is of the opinion that those twenty months spent by members of the commission in gathering data for their report were wasted. They could have written the report before starting their investigations in practically the same wording as they did when they finished their probing in December. Quoting Bugs Baer, noted newspaper columnist, "It took them twenty months to find out what an average man could in one night."

Prohibition has been one of the most important steps ever taken by the American people, yet there are those who are led to believe that it has been the worst detriment the United States has ever had. That is all the report could have and all that it did find out.

As long as there is people, there will be two sides to every question and arguments on the pro and con will be continually waged, as the Morning Avalanche sees it. No matter how many reports are issued by investigating commissions, things will continue. Look at the tariff question, haven't the two political parties of this great nation been divided on it for the past century or more and won't they still be divided during the next?

President Hoover evidently has created too many commissions in trying to run his administration and the Wickersham commission seems to have been one of the "too many."

MISLEADING APPELLATIONS

Among common forms of misrepresentation is the wrongful use of the terms "college," "university," "doctor" and "professor." Their application to institutions and individuals undeserving of the dignity and prestige commonly associated with the terms is more general than the public realizes. If the people were cognizant of the facts, the practice would provoke more universal condemnation.

In Pennsylvania it is illegal to use the words "college" and "university" commercially without permission of the state council of education. This is a step in the right direction.

Not every institution that calls itself a college or university is all that its prospectus claims for it. And when discovery of the deception comes too late, some innocent person is left holding the bag. It is unfortunate that anything, no matter how asinine, calling itself a college or university can get tuition in advance.

While legislating in this field the lawmakers might concern themselves with the too reckless use of the time-honored titles, "doctor" and "professor," which are too often pilfered by medicine show men, palmists and nickolodeon piano thumpers. Fraudulent appropriation of these titles fleeces almost as many lambs as wildcat securities.

Practical Health Problems

CORN SUGAR OR CANE?

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Few people realize today that there is more than one kind of sugar. Actually there are many substances which can be used to sweeten foods.

Among the common substances are cane sugar, honey, sirups of various kinds, and the chemical saccharin. Heretofore the administration of the food and drugs act has ruled that sweetening of packaged goods when brought about by any other substance than cane sugar should be indicated on the label.

The vast majority of people are unfortunately exceedingly careless about what they eat. They take for granted that anything sold through a recognized agency is a sound product. It is doubtful if one in every hundred women ever looks at the label on the package, can or bottle of food to see what ingredients it contains.

When such ingredients are especially declared on the label, it is taken for granted that they are probably not as healthful as other ingredients which need not be declared on the label. The result of this action has been to discriminate against corn sugar in favor of beet and cane sugar.

Twenty-five years ago corn sugar was not refined to its present state. Today it is difficult for anyone but an expert to tell the difference between cane sugar and corn sugar. Therefore, the government has ruled that it is no longer necessary to indicate on the label of canned goods which of these two sugars is used for sweetening.

Corn sugar is cheaper than cane sugar and a package of canned goods made with corn sugar should be cheaper eventually than the same material sweetened with cane sugar.

It is the belief of the secretary of the Department of Agriculture that his ruling will cause the use of an increased amount of corn sugar in packaged goods to the extent that anywhere from five to one hundred million bushels of corn will be required for this purpose.

Physiologists and authorities in the field of nutrition are convinced that it is just as healthful to eat corn sugar as to eat cane sugar. There is no public health problem involved. The one fact of importance is that corn sugar is a little less sweet than cane sugar and that one therefore will have to eat a little more of it in order to get the same amount of sweetness.

Benjamin Too Conservative

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—"Law offices of Raymond Benjamin," says the lettering on the glass upper half of the door.

The offices are three in number:

An outer room for waiting visitors, although, when I was there, I was the only visitor and, during the half hour I stayed, there was one phone call; an inner room, for the lone woman stenographer; an innermost room of all, for Raymond Benjamin, at his flat-topped desk, in his swivel chair.

They are small offices, each 12 or 14 feet square; light and pleasant, but very modest. At good second hand shops, I think I could duplicate their furniture for $150, not including the typewriter.

THIS suite is in the Transportation building, one of Washington's newer office structures and quite a large one, but, being rather outside the business center, hardly the one likely to be chosen by a tenant who wished especially to attract attention.

It is nicely situated, however—just a block from the picturesque little park known as Farragut square, on which fronts the Army and Navy club and (perhaps politically more important) the Barr building, home of the Republican national committee. Also, a couple of blocks to the south and eastward is the White House.

"Although I really can't imagine," says Mr. Benjamin, "why folk should see the least political significance in my presence in Washington—merely because I happen to be an old California friend of President Hoover and to have had some connection with Pacific coast G. O. P. activities."

MR. BENJAMIN senses that many people do have such fancies, nevertheless.

For example, there is the story that he is slated to succeed Senator Simeon D. Fess in the national committee chairmanship.

It is denied, to be sure, and, to my notion, convincingly. Mr. Benjamin's record, so I'm assured on what I believe to be reliable authority, has been of a conservatism too "ultra" not to be recognized, even by the present rather stand-pat group in control at Republican headquarters, as excessive for mass popularity.

There likewise is a guess to the effect that he is to be a kind of Republican Jouett Shouse, but personally I doubt whether he is scheduled for anything as official as that.

MY OWN THEORY is that Mr. Hoover simply will continue to think highly of Mr. Benjamin's advice.

And naturally it will be much more readily available with Mr. Benjamin right here in Washington, occupying offices about midway between the White House and G. O. P. headquarters, than in far-off San Francisco, as heretofore.

President Coolidge had his Frank Stearns.

President Wilson had his Colonel House.

But this is all guesswork. I defy anyone to trace a connection between Mr. Benjamin's offices and either the White House or the Republican committee—except that I did get in touch with him by way of the Barr building.

MR. BENJAMIN laughs at the idea of any connection.

"Why, my law practice," he explains, "has kept me in Washington about half my time for the last 10 years; now I find it convenient to open offices here.

"There's no mystery whatever.

"Of course," added the Californian, "if I can make myself useful to the administration, I shall be glad to do it."

IN CASE I should be taken to task for referring to Mr. Benjamin as an ultra-conservative, I will say that he admits authorship of his state's law against syndicalism, which the dictionary defines as "an economic movement aiming at the federation of workers in all trades for the purpose of enforcing the demands of labor by sympathetic strikes."

California is not the only state which prohibits its practice, but I believe it to be the only one which provides a long prison term for even thinking prosyndically.

I call this double-"ultra"-conservative.

IT IS AN utter mistake to assume that an ultra-conservative necessarily is hard boiled in appearance and manner.

NEVER TOO OLD

Prof. Edward L. Thorndike, widely known educator, is not one of those who believe there is an age after which people are too old to learn. He has made out a good case for adult education and lifelong study.

Ability to learn, this authority finds, reaches its height at the age of 25. From that point the curve drops until, at 45, it is about the same as at 18. There is, however, only a slight difference between the maximum and minimum capacities of learning between the ages of 18 and 45. Professor Thorndike concludes, therefore, that new studies may be undertaken profitably by persons who have reached the latter age.

This is scarcely a revelation to the thousands of adults availing themselves of night school and other educational facilities. There are many persons who have satisfied themselves that with them the process of assimilation of knowledge has been more rapid at 45 than at 25. In many cases intellectual curiosity and the capacity to satisfy it actually increase with the years.

Had all men ceased to learn and study upon attaining the comparatively early age of 25, the sum of human knowledge would be but a fraction of its present magnitude. Of the philosophers the venerable patriachs seem to have been the most profound. And in business and industry miracles are being performed by men past the half-century mark.

Being a coward isn't worth half so much as it costs.

Like spring hats worn in winter, presidential booms which used to bud in the spring now burst forth in January.

Mr. Collidge says we need a better understanding between government and business. Why not a little of the same thing within the government?

Today's One-Minute Sermon

The Son of man indeed goeth, as it is written of him: but woe to that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had never been born.

And as they did eat, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, Take, eat: this is my body.—St. Mark, xiv, 21, 22.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

GENERAL JOSEPH R. C. WARD.—Gen. Ward, who was 16 years of age when the Civil war broke out, served three years in that war, and was discharged in 1864. That same year he enlisted in the National Guard, and was captain of a company in the labor riots of 1877. He recruited a regiment for the Spanish-American war, and rounded out his careers by serving in the Quartermasters Corps of the Schuylkill Arsenal during the World War. Gen. Ward was a colonel at the time the photo (from which I drew him) was taken, and in 1912, the Governor of Pennsylvania promoted him to the rank of Brigadier General.

JOAN WHISNANT CAN WRITE WITH HER TOES.—Little Miss Whisnant, age 7, who lives at 203 West Third street, Sand Springs (suburb of Tulsa) Oklahoma, was born without arms, but despite this handicap has learned to do practically everything any other little girl her age can do. She writes, cuts paper dolls, and eats with her toes, and by joyous and painstaking effort has learned to use them as she would fingers.

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN, author of "THE BLACK PIGEON," "THE AVENGING PARROT" and "MURDER BACKSTAIRS"

©1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

In the murder of JUANITA SELDEN there are six possible suspects all guests at her bridge party. JUDGE MARSHALL, owner of the gun and silencer with which she was shot, is one. JOHN DRAKE and FLORA MILES, who was in Nita's closet at the time of the murder, reading a note she thinks is from her husband, are two more. CLIVE HAMMOND, POLLY BEALE and JANET RAYMOND are the others. DUNDEE'S theory is that Nita' recognizing someone in a group picture, came down to blackmail, receiving $10,000 and a bullet and he warns DEXTER SPRAGUE to drop the scheme.

CAPTAIN STRAWN thinks that Nita was killed by a New York gunman. Dundee thinks the killer will return to look for papers, which Nita had burned, intending to drop the scheme and marry Hamond. At the office the next morning, PENNY CRAIN tells him of an impromptu bridge party at TRACEY MILES' home at which were all who had been at the murder, except CAROLYN DRAKE and Janet, and plus PETER DUNLAP. Sprague came uninvited, was treated rudely by everyone, and finally made a very tactless reference to Nita's death. Penny is interrupted by Strawn on the telephone who tells Dundee that there has been another murder.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

"Dexter Sprague has been murdered," Dundee answered the terrified inquiry in Penny Crain's eyes. "The body was discovered about nine this morning by one of the Miles' maids, in what you described just now as the 'trophy room.' . . . . Shot—just below the breastbone, Captain Strawn says."

"The trophy room-" Penny repeated, in a dazed, slow voice. "Then—that's where he was—all the time, after he disappeared so strangely last night—"

"Whoa, Penny!" Dundee cried, his voice sharp with excitement. "Get hold of yourself, darling girl. You'r shaking all over. . . . I want to know everything you know—as quickly and as accurately as you can tell it. Go right on with that story you were telling me!"

"Poor Dexter!" Penny groaned, covering her quivering face with her hands. "To think that he was dead all the time we were saying such horrid things about him—"

"Don't waste sympathy on him, Penny!" Dundee cut in, his voice very gentle but urgent. "If he had heeded my warning Monday he wouldn't be dead now."

"What do you mean?" Penny gashped, but she was already trembling less violently. "Your warning."

"I had a strong suspicion that he was mixed up with Nita in her blackmail scheme, and I took the trouble to warn him not to try to carry on with it," Dundee explained. "And no longer ago than yesterday afternoon I got what I was sure was final proof of my suspicion and begged Strawn to assign a plainclothesman to 'tail' Sprague, to see that he kept out of mischief I was afraid the temptation would be too strong for him, but Strawn wouldn't listen to me—still clinging to his theory of a New York gunman. . . . Feeling better now, honey? Can you go on? I want to get out to the Miles house as soon as I can."

"You're getting very—affectionate, aren't you?" Penny gave him a wobbly smile in which, however, there was no reproof. "I think I can go now— Where was I?"

"Good girl!" Dundee applauded and his heart was beating hard with something more than excitement over Sprague's murder. "You'd just told me about Sprague's warning Karen not to have the table when she became dummy after Judge Marshall's little slam bid in spades."

"I remember," Penny said, pressing her fingers into her temples. "But Karen did leave the table. When Sprague said that awful thing, poor Karen burst into tears and ran from the porch into the living room. Judge Marshall started to follow her, but Sprague halted him by apologizing very humbly, and then by adding: 'I'd really like to see you play the hand, sir, I believe I've got the cards to set you with.' . . .

"Of course he could not have said anything better calculated to hold Hugo, who as I said, is a regular fiend when it comes to bridge. . . . Well, Hugo played the hand and made his little slam, and then he again started to go look for Karen, but Polly, who was Sprague's partner, you know, told him in that brusque way of hers to go on with the game and give Karen a chance to have a little weep in peace. Probably Hugo would have gone to look for her anyway, but just then Flora came back. She said Betty was asleep at last and that her temperature was normal, and when she heard about Karen, she offered to take her hand until Karen felt like coming back."

"What did Drake do then? He'd been playing anagrams with Mrs. Miles, you said," Dundee interrupted.

"Don't you remember?—I told you Johnny had taken Peter's place at our table after Peter refused to breathe the same air as Dexter Sprague," Penny reminded him. "Ralph and I, Lois and Johnny were playing together, and just at the time I became dummy, Sprague became dummy at the other table. He rose, saying he had to go telephone for a taxi, and passed from the porch into the living room."

"Where is the telephone?"

"The one the guests use is on a table in the hall closet where we put our things," Penny explained.

Five Sign To Attend Confab

Attendance Of Others Reported Assured For Meeting Of Carlsbad Cavern Highway Association Monday

Although only five Lubbock men Friday afternoon had said definitely that they would attend the annual meeting of the Carlsbad Cavern U. S. No. 62 Highway association at Altus, Okla., Monday, attendance of several others was assured, those organizing the Lubbock delegtion reported.

Plans for the trip were outlined and reports pertaining to the Lubbock delegation were read at a meeting of the chamber of commerce highway committee at 11 o'clock Friday morning.

May Charter Bus

Those arranging for the convention visit asked that all those expecting to attend the highway association meeting notify the chamber of commerce as early today as possible, so that a bus may be chartered. Roundtrip fare for Altus to Lubbock and return will be $6. The bus will leave here Sunday afternoon and probably will return Monday night.

Lubbock men who have said that they will attend the convention include:

J. H. Hankins, president of the Carlsbad Cavern U. S. Highway No. 62 association and chairman of the chamber of commerce highway committee expect to join the delegation.

Meeting Important

"The Altus session will be probably one of the most important in history of the association," Mr. Hankins said, "and for that reason Lubbock should be well represented. Several matters of great importance to this city will come up for consideration and we are anxious to have enough members present to reveal our interest in the welfare of the association."

Personnel of the committee includes J. H. Hankins, Tom A. White, M. C. Butler, Chas. H. Read, C. A. Sheffield, J. A. Rix, B. Sherrod, E. L. Pitts, W. R. Blake and W. W. Royalty.

BLACK-DRAUGHT LONG IN USE

Georgia Lady Tells of Buying Her First Package of This Medicine in 1876.

Gainesville, Ga.—Thedford's Black-Draught has been in use for the relief of constipation, indigestion and biliousness, for nearly one hundred years, and many people tell of having taken it, when needed, all their lives.

Mrs. M. C. Barron, of 94 West Myrtle Street, this city, recalls her first use of Black-Draught, fifty-three years ago.

"When I lived in Forsythe, Ga., in 1876," says Mrs. Barron, "I bought my first Black-Draught at Mr. Jim Jay's store. He was selling it, and some one in the store recommended it to me for biliousness, and as I was having trouble and needed a purgative, I bought it.

"If I get constipated, I have headaches and feel so tired and sluggish, and such a bad taste in my mouth. But after I take a few doses of Black-Draught I get all right.

"In all these years, I have never found a better medicine of the kind. I am satisfied, so why change? I recommend it to old and young."

Sold in 25¢ packages.

Few Social Occasions Are Scheduled For This Week-End In Lubb

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

HERE'S a new sensation. Lily Pons, 26-year-old French woman, Metropolitan opera find of the season, weighs only 105 pounds, yet she sang the title role in "Lucia Di Lammermoor" a whole note higher than any colortura soprano since Mlle. Nau. She is described as straight and lithe, having dark hair, large dark eyes, pearly teeth, a quick contagious smile and shapely legs—in other words she is the romantic type of singer sought by opera for its romantic roles.

The asperations cast at opera for so long when the heroines were too large for romantic illusion cannot be employed when Lily Pons has the role. She meets, too, the old cry that one cannot have the strength to sing operatic roles unless she is large—very large.

That's a score, too, for my ilk of lightweights!

THE FEDERATION

THERE is no danger of the Lubbock City Federation dying, the president, Miss Mae Murfee believes even though regular meetings have not been conducted this year. The Federation is yet an active organization and one holding the interest of many women of the city, she states.

It is an organization in which many women are interested. It is the clearing house for affairs of city clubs and the concentration point for plans and other things which require the concerted efforts of all women in the city. There is no lack of interest, I am sure. Calls which come to this office each month inquiring about the organization indicate that interest is yet alive and that club women realize the value of this union in carrying out their co-operative plans. Many women want to attend the Federation meetings, but unless a definite program is prepared and announced beforehand, they will not attend.

As Lubbock has bid for the 1931 meeting of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs and probably will have the opportunity of entertaining that organization, it is more necessary than usual that the City Federation of Women's clubs shall remain an active organization.

Yesterday—the fourth Friday afternoon in the month—was the regular meeting date for the City Federation. Announcements concerning the meeting were sought by the Avalanche and Journal but, until after the last paper had been published, no word of a definite meeting could be had.

Another meeting date is forthcoming. February 27 is the next regular time for the Federation to meet. Women of the city, particularly delegates from clubs, should plan now to meet in February in a union gathering.

The board meeting for the State Federation, at which time the meeting place for next fall will be selected, is to be conducted on February 3 in Austin, so Lubbock women will know by February whether or not they are going to have the privilege of entertaining the State body of club women.

Hereford Breeder To Speak Monday

Stockmen, bankers and other interested persons will be addressed by John M. Gist, outstanding Hereford breeder and president of the Texas Hereford association, at a meeting at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning in chamber of of commerce offices. Mr. Gist is of Midland and Odessa.

Mr. Gist, who is widely known throughout Texas as a breeder of fine cattle, comes to Lubbock at the invitation of the local committee in charge of the Hereford sale to be staged here on March 27. The committee is composed of Dr. I. E. Barr, Tom Ivey and S. C. Arnett.

The Hereford sale to be held in Lubbock is in connection with the 4-H club calf, pig, ham, bacon and cured meat show.

Two Appointments Made By Sterling

AUSTIN, Jan. 23. (AP)—Governor Ross S. Sterling today sent two appointments to the senate for confirmation.

E. C. Tobey of Freeport was appointed a member of the prison board to succeed Fred Horton of Greenville, whose appointment was rejected by the senate in executive session yesterday. Joe S. Thompson of Waco was chosen tax commissioner.

Morning Fete Is Scheduled

Sans Souci Alumnae Are To Entertain Today For Club Members At Fred Snyder Residence

Although few social occasions were scheduled for the week-end in Lubbock, those that have been given were pleasant affairs.

Sans Souci club members are having probably the most memorable week-end of the year. Following an annual dance last evening at the Uptown Dance Palace, the membership is to attend a morning coffee from 12 until 1:30 o'clock today at the Fred Snyder home.

Alumnae members are entertaining with this latter event.

Few Parties Friday.

Few parties were given here yesterday other than club meetings and Sunday school class parties. A party which was recently postponed for members of the 1930 Friendship club was given during the afternoon in the Erle Thompson homes. Sunday school classes taught by Dr. Paul W. Horn and Dean A. H. Leidigh attended parties last evening. A number of guests were at each affair.

City Federation members met during the afternoon at the First Baptist church.

Youth Matter Of Skin Care

Wise Woman Knows Youth Is Not Matter of Years; One Who Is Charming Does Not Fear Age

"Don't wish you were just 20 years old." This is one of the unusual bits of philosophy of charm which Miss Nancy Earle will unfold in her series of five free talks in the Charm School which the Avalanche-Journal has arranged as a courtesy to its women readers. The Charm School will be held in the Uptown Dance Palace from January 26 to 30.

"To those women who are accustomed to measure youth by the calendar and to feel a sense of loss with the passing of the years, this may sound surprising. Miss Earle has a number of ideas which are surprising. That is one of the things which makes her Charm School so charming.

"Most women do not know how delightful it can be to be 30, or 40 or 50 years old," says Miss Earle, "and fewer of us, alas, know how very interesting and lovely a woman may be who has passed the first flush of the teeming twenties.

Youth Is Ageless.

"The clever woman never permits herself to grow old. But," and here Miss Earle grows most emphatic "she doesn't make the ludicrous mistake of trying to imitate the teens by using more rouge and trying to be coy. She knows that there is a youth of 30 and of 40 and of even 80 which, though it is quite as powerful a charm as the youth of 20, is subtly different. I am convinced that a woman has not begun to manifest the real possibilities of her charm until the years have brought their gifts of experience and wisdom and her personality has ripened in the sun of life.

"The woman of eternal youth never settles down into the middle aged slump. The beautiful symmetry of her figure is never permitted to be swathed in blankets of fat, nor does it wither into dry angles of skin and bone. Her body is elastic. She moves with lithe grace. She is energetic because she follows the simple rules of hygienic living and is therefore perfectly healthy.

Has Constant Care.

"She so carefully studies and so faithfully follows the scientific methods of caring for her complexion that the annual grim pilgrimages of Father Time leave no lines of dismay to mar the smoothness of her skin. The crow, with his menacing feet, perches in defeat upon the calendar—or decides to become a bluebird! Just the right kind of powder and rouge, and just the right amount applied in just the right way, continues to enhance her facial loveliness. She continues on and on with just the one single chin which the Creater thought was enough for her in the beginning.

"And this perenially young woman," continues Miss Earle, "never forgets that she is a distinct personality and she never ceases to be interested in the ways and means of expressing it. Her clothes are modish, and are of the colors and designs which she knows are best suited to her type, even though in the more mature decades she may adopt the passing vogue to her own requirements. Her perfume—that most exquisite way in which we may make our individuality more alluring distinctive—is still a delight. Her hair is well cared for, modishly coiffered. Her nails daintily manicured. Her total self meticulously groomed, and effectively adorned in that manner which is expressive of her own individual type."

New Fabrics And Cuts Favored By Business Women

By LUCIEN LELONG
Special Cable to Central Press

At first blush the new fashions may not seem very practical. The eye is dazzled by the wealth of sartorial diversity it meets and thus it may overlook the fact that though the current clothes make a point of stressing feminine prettiness, there are nevertheless many costumes quite as practically wearable as any evolved by the inspiration of more severe epochs.

Business women—like all women of taste for the matter of that — naturally shun clothes that depend for effect upon superficial ornamentation. They choose, rather, gowns whose intrinsic cut is its own adornment, and they will be just as original and much more chick than the fluffy-ruffles type of lily of the field. The new, dark colors seem dyed especially for the business girl, who is, thus, no longer limited by the strict demands of propriety to black and navy blue. The off-blacks in their negre, bordeau and myrtle green tones, are every bit as practical and much more apt to be becoming.

Fashionable Fabrics Adaptable

Broadcloth, velveteen and faille—all fashionable fabrics, par excellence, of the new season, are also specially fitted to make the adaptable costumes made necessary by business life, when one may go directly from the office to a fashionable luncheon, party, dinner and theatre.

Flat furs will be chosen by the smart business woman because she will tire of them less quickly than of the more florid long-haired furs. The vogue for fur sets will enable her to change the effect of a single costume by wearing it with a dark or light scarf, muff and so on.

Accessories are very important in simplifying or keeping up the sartorial scheme. The business woman will do well to use great care in harmonizing her gloves, shoes and furs with the cut, as well as the color, of her ensemble. Generally speaking, black shoes and gloves are good with black costumes, brown with brown; the reds, blues, greens with medium beige or gray gloves, and so on. White gloves are very smart for afternoon with a white bag or white furs.

The hat must also be considered in its relation to the general silhouette. Small hats will obviously be more comfortable in subway rush or downtown, and small hats continue to be the smartest ones. The vogue for wearing hats that contrast with the costume color permits the business girl to introduce a chic fantisie into her basic costumes. The new antelope turbans will particularly please her.

Her handbags and handkerchiefs will be comfortably large and plain. She will wear few jewels in the daytime, and only one or two good clips and bracelets in the evening.

The best daytime skirt length is ten inches off the floor, and the correct evening hem for the busy elegante will neither cover the instep nor rise higher than the ankle, and the vogue for wearing evening hats adds the ultimate touch to the practicality of our correct evening mode.

Following these rules the business woman will be sure to fit into the social picture, both in and out of her office.

CHARM CHATS

by Nancy Earle

Noted Authority and Writer on Health, Charm and Beauty.

(Miss Earle will be in Lubbock January 26 to 29)

Have you met Pansy?

Pansy is the young lady who might have been beautiful, but isn't just yet because she still has a few more of her original hundred and seventy pounds than she needs.

But she will be a lovely lady one of these days because she has made up her mind that she is to be rid of the very last ounce that she does not want, and she is going about it in the right way.

For one thing, Pansy is patient. She remembers (with a sad wagging of her head no doubt) that she was a number of years accumulating all those pounds, or at least many months. And she is giving herself the sportsman's chance. She is going to be as patient in her off-taking as she was in her on-putting. Fair enough, yes?

You see Pansy is a wise lady. She reasons that she wants to take those pounds off for two reasons, and for those two only. Namely, for her health's sake, and for her beauty's sake. And she knows she will defeat her own purposes if she hurries.

Her beauty will suffer. Her search o' youth will be voided. Those first and most obviously.

As those many pounds were being pyramided, the actual area, the actual number of square inches on the surface of the body, was materially increased. This means that the outer skin had to be stretched to accommodate the new volume. The skin was willing enough and very obligingly adapted itself to the gradual change.

Now if Pansy suddenly takes those paddings of flesh away from under the skin it will hang in wrinkles and folds that will add years to her appearance, and a haggard worn look to her that is anything but the loveliness she seeks.

If, on the other hand, she takes away the under padding gradually (as it was put on) it will be equally obliging and once more adapt itself to the area it is to cover. It will, if given the chance, shrink gently in conformity with the alterations of body bulk, and never show a wrinkle or an aging line.

The care of the face, the skin, is of course a matter which should be carefully guarded during the process of weight reduction. More than the usual care should be accorded it to preserve its texture and to prevent the development of any faint lines or any suspicion of sag to the muscles.

Much of this sort of thing is obviated if the general body tone is preserved at high standard by supplementing the corrective diet with vigorous exercise. Out of door exercise if possible, and specific gymnastics for weight reduction regularly practiced. When the muscle tone of the system generally is vibrantly good, all the muscles of the body including those of the face, show that smooth firm contour that means youth and beauty.

Local care should supplement these benefits, however. A good rich cream applied generously and regularly to the face will keep the tissues lubricated and pliable. This, in beauty terms, means youthful and smoothly beautiful. The ice massage is also beneficial. The ice should be applied for a brief half-minute to the skin, but not long enough to chill the tissues definitely. Too long an application is a shock to the tissues which will register upon them unfavorably.

The ice should be wrapped in a thickness of gauze likewise. It should not be applied in direct contact with the skin. Also the ice should not be held in one place, but should be kept continuously in motion. Used thus it exerts a stimulating effect upon the tissues, a bracing effect.

But the chief reason Pansy is so willing to be patient and reduce slowly is that she knows that her health will pay the penalty (even a heavier penalty than her beauty pays,) if she tries the quick method.

Conduct Of Judge To Be Investigated

AUSTIN, Jan. 23. (AP)—The senate today passed a concurrent resolution, previously adopted by the house, calling for a joint committee to investigate the conduct of District Judge L. J. Brucks of Hondo.

The resolution followed a communication addresses to the legislature by former Governor Dan Moody earlier in the week in which he reported on the alleged conduct of Judge Brucks.

The committee would investigate the matter with a view of determining whether it should recommend to the legislature that that body ask Governor Sterling to remove Brucks from office.

SCOTCH RELICS TO BE SHOWN

Many relics and heirlooms rich in tradition are to be lent by prominent Scotch families for the Exhibition of Scottish Art and Treasures in London in February. The Countess of Linlithgow is lending a jeweled stomacher and a rope of pearls which were the property of Mary Queen of Scots. The Earl of Airlie will lend the Garter Ribbon of Prince Charlie, and Lady Carmichael will supply the cap worn by Charles 1, when he went to the scaffold, a handkerchief, and his beautifully illuminated Prayer Book. One section of the exhibition will be devoted to weapons of different periods. Hugh Walpole, the novelist, is lending the death mask of Sir Walter Scott, and there will be relics of Robert the Bruce, John Knox and Burns.

Minnesota mines in 1929 produced more than half the iron ore output of the United States, according to the bureau of the census.

The University of Florida has added a department of psychology and philosophy.

CUSTARD DESSERTS WILL BAKE BETTER IN SMALL DISHES

Coffee is Also Better When Roasted in Small Lots — Hills Bros.' Method

The smaller the dish, the more evenly and quickly the oven heat can penetrate to the center of the custard. Such results cannot be counted upon when large baking dishes are used.

Applying this principle to roasting their fine blend of coffee, Hills Bros. found the way to develop uniform flavor in every ounce. A constant stream of green coffee is introduced into the roaster in automatically measured lots of about three pounds, and passes through in a steady flow, roasting a little at a time. There is accurate control of both the flow of coffee and the temperature.

This process, patented by Hills Bros.—Controlled Roasting—develops a delicious uniform flavor no other coffee has. The ordinary method—roasting in bulk—is virtually lacking in control.

Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee in the vacuum can that keeps it ever-fresh. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed from this can and kept out. Coffee packed in ordinary cans, even if air-tight, does not stay fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

an Praises Jurors For Convictions In Five Days

ays Of South Plains Jled By Judge Of 99th ict Court In Speech To y Friday Noon

stopping aside from his judicial sion as presiding justice of the district court, Judge Clark M. llican yesterday in dismissing the y for the week, took occasion to press his own thanks and those the county, for the work of the body the past five days.

"This is the first time that I have ever done anything of this kind," Judge Mullican explained in expressing his views on the record of the jury. "There have been 12 cases tried this week and 12 convictions. There have only been two suspended sentences, both long ones, one for three and the other for four years."

Three Cases Remain.

But three cases remain of the number scheduled for the week. Generally, he said, there are not more than three or four jury cases tried in a week.

"I never saw a jury work with more cooperation and more interest than this jury has done," he said in his opening remarks.

The whole country, he explained was "more or less in a turmoil. We read of it every day in the newspapers."

Judge Mullican recalled the early days of the southwest when the country was being settled up. Then, he said, a man had to go to the field and work "with one hand on the plow handle and the other on the handle of his rifle" because of the lawlessness from bandits, Indians and others.

"When the law came to this country, conditions changed" he explained. The lawless element left.

"The time was in this country out here when there was no lock and key. There might have been a lock but there was no key."

Change Cited.

He added that in the early days of Lubbock a man from the ranches could come to town, make his purchases, take as much home as the wagon would haul and leave the rest on the courthouse square for a second trip. "We cannot leave any property loose around with any assurance that it will be there when you come back," he added.

While Lubbock does not have a regular "crime wave" that some cities do, such as murders or other cases that draw attention of the big daily newspapers, yet there are a number of floaters here who do not work, he pointed out. These were the ones who are causing the most trouble, he added.

"I believe that if the juries of the county will pull off a week like this every once in a while, that the news will spread around and the crooks will steer clear of Lubbock county," he said in conclusion.

Sentences imposed by the juries ranged from a year to three years in nine cases, with one case drawing six months in the penitentiary. Two other cases drew suspended sentences.

A large number of persons heard the remarks of the court to the members of the jury. Durwood Bradley, district attorney; Burton S. Burks, his assistant; O. B. Conley chief deputy sheriff, and other court attaches heard the address.

Lubbock Druggist Is Chosen President Of Retail Association At Meeting Of The Directors Friday

A druggist, E. L. Robertson, was elected president of the Retail Merchants association at a meeting of the board of directors Friday morning at city hall. Mr. Robertson succeeded J. C. Anderson, who had served as head of the association during the last year.

Other officers elected at the meeting included A. G. Hunt and John Halsey, vice presidents, and B. Sherrod, treasurer. New directors of the association were selected by the membership last week.

Retiring oficials, in addition to Mr. Anderson, were E. L. Robertson and Paul Sherrod, vice presidents, and J. A. Raley, treasurer.

Plans for the year's work were briefly outlined at the session and chief among the projects to be taken up during 1931 is entertainment of the state convention of the association, which is to be held in Lubbock during May. Discussion also was made and decision reached to carry on the work of the advertising committee in keeping out of the city fake and worthless advertising schemes.

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: Jesus Tempted: Scripture Lesson: Luke 4:10-13.

Luke 4:1. And Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan, and was led in the Spirit in the wilderness.

2. During forty days, being tempted of the devil. And he did eat nothing in those days: and when they were completed, he hungered.

3. And the devil said unto him, If thou art the Son of God, command this stone that it become bread.

4. And Jesus answered unto him, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone.

5. And he led him up, and showed him all the kingdom of the world in a moment of time.

6. And the devil said unto him, All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for that is delivered unto me; and to whomsoever I will I give it.

7. If thou therefore wilt worship before me, it shall be thine.

8. And Jesus answered and said unto him, It is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

9. And he led him to Jerusalem, and set him on the pinnacle of the temple, and said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down from hence:

10. For it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee, to keep thee:

11. And, on their hands they shall bear thee up, lest haply thou dash thy foot against a stone.

12. And Jesus answering said unto him, It is said, Thou shalt not tempt the trial of the Lord thy God.

13. And when the devil had completed every temptation, he departed from him for a season.

Golden Text:—He is able to succor them that are tempted.—Heb. 2:18.

Time:—January and Perbuary, A. D. 27.

Place:—The wilderness of Judaea; traditionally, at Mt. Quarantania near Jericho.

Introduction

"In studying the temptation of Jesus it is necessary that one should accept at once their reality. He was tempted in all points like as we are. One can ask questions about his temptations that cannot be answered. There are many things in the inner experience of Jesus that are beyond our explanation, as his personality is beyond our understanding. But, although we cannot analyse and chart him, we know enough to trust him. We know that he abhorred unreality. His was not a make-believe life. He suffered and tempted. He faced alternatives of good and evil, and was under the necessity of choice. He was truly and gloriously human—tempted, but sinless. There is little profit in debating whether he could be tempted or could sin. There is wonderful hope in the fact that he was tempted and did not sin. In the reality of his fight with sin, we behold his unity with humanity; in his perfect victory over sin, his unity with God."

Scene of the Temptation

"Tradition points to a wild, rocky hill, or mountain, called Quarantania (" forty days"), a few miles west of Jericho, as the "wilderness" of the temptation. It will thus have been near the scene of his baptism. The forty-day period seems ever to have been associated in the Jewish mind with seclusion, revelation and peril (Exod. 34:18; 1 Kings 19:8; Num. 14:34). The Jews peopled wild places with evil spirits; even located one of the mouths of Gehenna in a wilderness. The moral has often been drawn that when we are in solitary places, alone, we are especially susceptible to temptation —easy prey for the devil."

There will always be a difference of opinion as to the precise nature (modes) of the three temptations. "The subject, from its nature, calls for guarded interpretation, great modernation in conjecture, and willingness to remain ignorant when we have no means of knowing" (Broadus.)

The Baptism of Jesus

"Before this struggle with Satan, our Lord received strength for the struggle. This strength came to him by way of the opened heaven. It reached him from the eternal home which he had left for the blessing of mankind. With Peter, Andrew, James, John, Nathanael and perhaps other friends from Galilee, Jesus had walked from Nazareth to the fords of the Jordan, about seventy miles. He had heard of the powerful preaching of his cousin, John the Baptist. Probably he had never seen this cousin, but his mother must have told him about the wonderful circumstances of his birth. Very likely Jesus had heard that John was proclaiming the near appearance of the Messiah.

John recognized Jesus at once as the Messiah, declared that he had need of baptism for Jesus, and baptized his Lord only after Christ's insistence upon it (Matt. 3:14, 15). Then, after witnessing the descent of the Spirit upon him, John loudly and repeatedly proclaimed Jesus as the Lamb of God, the Savior to whom all the temple sacrifices for generations had pointed."

Jesus Strengthened for Temptation

"This assurance of his mission from the great prophet must have been a strong reinforcement to our Lord. But his chief strengthening for the trials that lay before him came from the parting of the sky, the descent of the Holy Spirit in the form of a radiant dove, and the voice of the Father from heaven announcing beyond mistake, "Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased." This is the beginning of Christ's work, the inauguration of his mission of salvation. "The temptation is hell's prompt response to heaven's challenge in the inauguration." — President B. H. Carroll.

Jesus Tempted "During Forty Days"
V. 2.

"During 40 days." The loneliness of the wilderness must have been most oppressive. "We must be on the outlook for Satan when we are alone, in solitude, like Christ in the wilderness. No monastic or convent life can save us from the fierce assaults of the devil. Stand clad in your fullest armor when alone."—Rev. William Evans, Ph. D. "Being tempted of the devil.' "To deny the personality of Satan is to deny Scripture. If there be no personal devil, then all the evil things that blot the page of human history are the outcome of human nature. This is not possible of belief. Evil is not a natural product of God's humanity. It is not a process of evolution. To hold that, in the last analysis, is to make God the Author of sin." —Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, D. D.

THE APPEAL TO APPETITE
V. 3.

"And the devil said unto Him, If Thou art the Son of God." "If" is one of the Satanic words. "After the manner of the tempter, the devil makes the truth problematical. He disparages the Sonship of the Saviour, as in paradise he had said, 'Yea, hath God said?'" Sir W. Robertson Nicoll. Forty days before, our Lord had heard His heavenly Father say, "Thou are my beloved Son." "If that is true," Satan craftily says, insinuating doubt. We must remember that this account is a piece of autobiography. As there were no witnesses of this experience, the record must be ultimately derived from Jesus Himself. "Command this stone that it become bread." "Christ's body was subject to all sinless human struggle, He hungered. Then came the suggestion at once to gratify His appetite and to prove His divine Sonship by calling forth His supernatural powers."—Bishop A. C. A Hall.

THE APPEAL TO AMBITION
Luke 4:5-8.

Luke inverts the order of the second and third temptations as given by Matthew, but the difference is of no importance.

"And he led him up." Matthew adds "unto an exceeding high mountain. And showed him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time." This temptation was constantly repeated during Christ's ministry. "The tempter whispers, 'You are to be the Great Deliverer. Take a lesson from me. Seize the sword, and summon your countrymen; they will follow you gladly madly. With such a band of Gideon you can destroy the Roman army, and rouse all subject peoples to revolt, and seat yourself triumphantly on the imperial throne. And with Rome as your capital and Jerusalem as your sacred city, you can spread the worship of Jehovah from the Euphrates to the Pillars of Hercules.'" — Rev. William Bancroft Hill, D. D.

"And the devil said unto him, To thee will I give all this authority, and the glory of them." That is, of the kingdoms. The devil is "The father of lies." He knew well enough that the kingdoms were not his to give, to Christ or any one else. "And Jesus answered and said unto him, It is written.' Matthew inserts Christ's emphatic and indignant command, repeated in later days to Peter under quite similar circumstances, "Get thee behind me, Satan" (Matt. 4:10; 16:23.) "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve." Our Lord quotes freely Leut. 6:13. Christ might have told the devil about his own great and all-inclusive kingdom of love, the kingdom that was and is to be supreme, but He would not cast pearls before swine.

THE APPEAL TO SCRIPTURAL PRIDE—V. 9.

Satan's temptations were appeals to "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life." The devil being what he is, these temptations must have seemed to him absolutely irresistible, and he must have been surprised indeed that our Lord was able to reject them. How many men he had seen fall beneath their baleful appeal. "And he led him to Jerusalem, and set him on the pinnacle of the temple, and said unto him, If thou are the Son of God, cast thyself down from hence." Said Satan, "Your countrymen, whom you hope to save, are looking for a Messiah that is a great miracle-worker. They are expecting one who can show such wonder-provoking signs from heaven as will compel universal recognition and the following of all the Jews."

SATAN QUOTES SCRIPTURE,
Vs. 10, 11.

"For it is written.' Satan, who is quick to take up any weapon and use it for his evil purposes, now grasps Christ's weapon of the Bible, quoting Ps. 91:11. "He shall give his angels charge concerning thee, to guard thee." Satan does not choose to give the rest of the line, "in all thy ways," because the psalmist's ways were God's ways, and it is only for those ways that God's protection is promised. "And on their hands they shall bear thee up, lest haply thou dash thy foot against a stone."—Ps. 91:12.

Once more, and for the third time, our Lord quotes from Deuteronomy, this time from 6:15. "Thou shalt not make trial of the Lord thy God."

SATAN DEFEATE—V. 13.

"And when the devil had completed every temptation.' "He had shot his last dart."—Bengel. He had used every sort of temptation that could possibly appeal to Jesus. "He departed from Him for a season." Satan never gives up, and he renewed his attacks from time to time; but "this was a decisive struggle; he was thoroughly beaten back and his power broken at its heart. Milton has indicated this by finishing his Paradise Regained at this point."—James Stalker.

How foolish it sounds
"Some toothpaste please"

Everybody buys toothpaste by name nowadays because everybody has a favorit brand. If your druggist offered you any kind but your favorite, you probably wouldn't accept it.

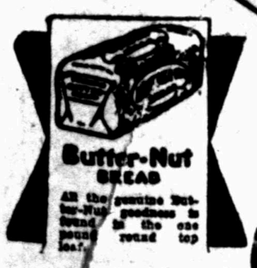

What has toothpaste to do with bread? Just this: that your bread, like your toothpaste, should be bought by name. If there's any food that's more important than all others, it's bread. And in justice to your family, you cannot afford to be careless about how you buy it.

It's just as easy to say Butter-Nut Bread to your grocer as not to say it. And by taking this simple precaution, you make sure that the bread your family eats is pure—wholesome —tasty.

Say Butter-Nut Bread—easy to remember—easy to say.

Tech Matadors Drop Fast Contest To Cowboys, 42-30

Westerners Meet Childress Tonight

McCollum Boys In Lead Roles On Tech Floor

Fast Breaking Offense Good For Victory Late In Game As Brethren Score Freely For T. C. Leaders

There was quite a bit of Crimson and Black on the Texas Tech gymnasium floor last night, but there was quite a bit more Purple and Gold, and the striped-jersied Cowboys of Sommons university won another ball game over the Tech Matadors. The score was 42 to 30, and resulted from the hot shooting of the McCollum brothers, Bob and Gene. The kindred spirit of these brothers alone was responsible for 23 points. They simply couldn't miss.

A somewhat delayed offense, then a quick break for scoring grounds made the Cowboys of Coach Les Cranfill popular with an almost packed house and their well-formed defense was a little too much for the Matadors to cope with. The Matadors, fighting with all their energy and with fury incensed by the desire for revenge, were at a loss, and when the opportunity came to score it was met with an over-emphasized rush and the result was the missing of many shots, otherwise described as crips. Captain Clarence Hodges failed to get into his old time scoring stride and was beaten out for his own side's scoring honors, looping only three field goals and failing to place a single charity point on the records.

Tech Takes Lead.

Tech took the lead at first and held on for about 10 minutes, but the Simmons' offense took form and the half found the Cowboys leading, 19 to 15. Until the last few minutes of the first half the battle was nip and tuck, with only a point or two difference in the score.

In their game last night the Punchers showed why they are hailed as leaders of the Texas Conference on the painted court. They have speed, color, ability and a yen for winning. Captained by Uncle Joe Smith, who scored nary a point himself, but who ruled the game all the way and told the others how to do it, the Cowboys let loose a volley in the closing moments that swept the desperate Matadors off their feet and left them wondering what kind of a defense to use next. Twice they shifted the defense, and the man-to-man idea seemed to work about as well as any.

Matadors Fight Stubbornly.

Ranging some taller than the Matadors, the Cowboys were on the offensive more than were the Matadors, though Golightly's men put up a stubborn defense all the way, fighting harder than the visitors urged on by a thirst for revenge after bowing to the Abilene contingent for several years in several branches of sport. A week ago tonight the Matadors were in Abilene and the Simmons outfit took the first scalp. The Scarlets were in fighting humor last night, but they took many chances, and still showed a weakness in following up long shots.

Away to a lead when Hodges sunk a pretty one from the side, the Matadors held sway for several minutes. Baker dropped in a crip for a four-point lead, but it was not to last. Along came Bob McCollum to sink a nifty one, and after Fisher tossed a free goal, Seed, starting forward for Simmons, rammed in a crip. Thus it stood for a few minutes and the next thing was a free one by Bob, who followed up on the next scirmmage to sink a field goal, taking a one-point lead. Hodges and Fisher got in scoring action again and made it hard for the visitors to keep up. Just before the half ended, Bob and Gene sunk one each from under fire and the rest period found the Punchers leading, 19 to 15.

Gene McCollum scored shortly after the second half started. Hodges made a neat run after catching a pretty pass and was under the basket alone, but shot too hurriedly and missed.

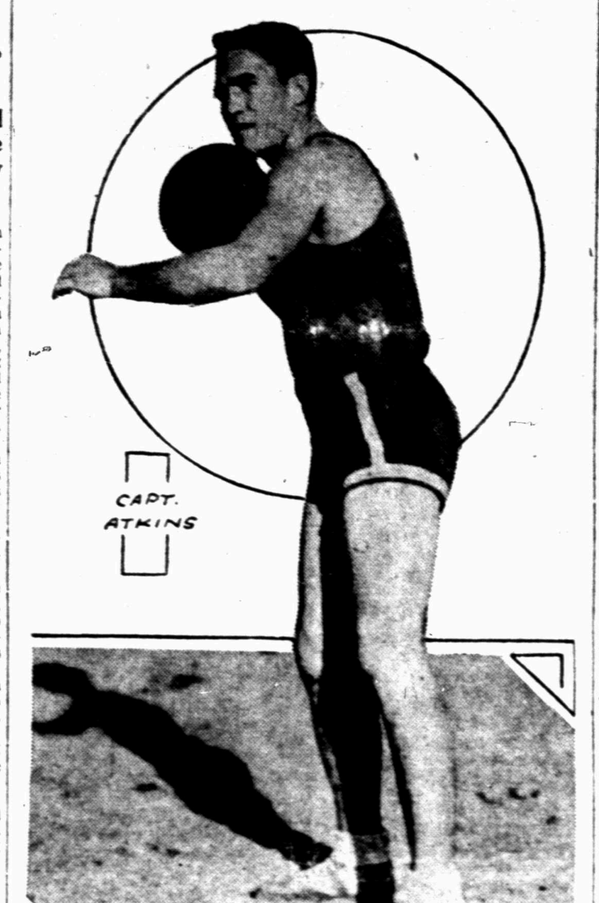

Crews, going in for Baker, who had played a nice game all the way, took a chance and scored from a distance a little later on, bringing the score to 22-19. Neely and Seed then scored and Crews sunk another one. Two more by Gene McCollum and Kerr, substituting for Tadlock, off with four personals shot a long one that never touched the ring, but swished through the mesh. Basil Hill went into the game late, but thrilled the crowd with a field goal almost from mid-court. But the jig was up, and the Texas Conference boys scored a few more times to get far ahead as the bell jangled.

Bobcats Play At 7:30 With Keeling Crew

Tech Gym Is Scene Of Battle Between Class A Teams Of Lubbock And Childress Here Tonight

"Jew" Keeling's Lubbock High school Westerners and the Childress High school Bobcats are to furnish the basketball entertainment for Lubbock fans this evening. The game starts at 7:30, and will be played at the Texas Tech gymnasium.

The Bobcats, one of the strongest Class A teams in District 1, arrived here yesterday and appeared on the card at the gymnasium last night, doing a preliminary to the Tech-Simmons game against the Texas Tech Picadors.

The Childress team is always a rater in the winter sport, playing teams of different points of the state, and this season promises to be no exception. Last week the Bobcats thoroughly trounced the Wichita Falls Coyotes at Wichita and in most of their other games have come through unscathed.

L. T. "Brack" Barnsdale, former Southwest Conference star cager, now coach of athletics at Floydada, will referee the game tonight. Since leaving college he has called several Southwest Conference games and many lesser contests.

Captain Knight and Quinlin at forwards, Brown at center and Payne and Thompson at guards probably will constitute the Westerner lineup tonight.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23. (AP)—Two youthful members of America's Davis Cup squad the last two years—George Lott, of Chicago, and John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia—meet tomorrow in the finals of the Canadian indoor tennis championships for the crown Lott now wears.

They won their matches in the all-United States semi-finals today in straight sets, Lott defeating Berkeley Bell, of Austin, Texas, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4, in one bracket and Van Ryn disposing of Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., in the other, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Both Davis Cup youngsters were in nice stroking from today and won without difficulty.

Hall made Van Ryn fight for every point while Lott maneuvered Bell around the court almost at will.

Plans Maturing For Texas Relays

AUSTIN, Jan. 23. (AP)—Plans for the seventh annual Texas Relay Games to be held here March 27, took on a business-like appearance this week when invitations were mailed to 88 universities, 99 colleges, 59 junior colleges, and some 900 high schools.

The invitations went to practically every part of the United States, announcing both the Texas games and the Rice Relays, which will be resumed this spring after a lapse of two years while Southern Methodist university sponsored the event. The Rice Relays are set for March 28.

For the last two seasons the southwestern games, which are the first major outdoor sporting event of their kind each spring, have drawn upwards of 1,000 of the best athletes in the nation, and this year officials have started early in an effort to boost the attendance record even above this figure.

Officials at Texas have announced there will be a slight change in the relay program, calling for some of the high school events to be run off in the morning and leaving most of the afternoon for competition between universities, colleges and junior colleges. Formerly the games began at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Big Leaguers Fail To Return Papers

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 23. (AP)—The number of recalcitrant Cleveland Indians crew to five today and reminded the management that the joy of winning in the summer often turns pale in the winter.

Wesley Ferrell, one of the league's best hurlers; Eddie Morgan, home run hitting first baseman; Johnny Hodapp, second baseman; Earl Averill, slugging outfielder, and Catcher Luke Sewell—the nucleus of the club—have returned their contracts unsigned although, excepting Sewell, all were offered increases of $1,000 to $6,000, and Dick Porter, another swatting outfielder, has not been heard from.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23. (AP)—The city of Miami took the Primo Carnera-Jimmy Maloney heavyweight fight, scheduled for March 5, under its cloak today at a meeting of municipal officials, the Miami Boxing Commission and Frank J. Bruen, promoter.

The fight will be sponsored by the local post of the American Legion, units of the Florida national guard, the University of Miami and the Y. M. C. A.

"Why Don't You Try Wrestling," Says Jack To Babe; Sports Becoming Tame

Masters Of Maul In Retrospection At Hospital Room

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—"Hi, Jack, how's the kid?"

"Hello, Babe, how's the old man?"

The masters of maul, Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth, surveyed each other in a room on the ninth floor of the Polyclinic hospital—the one a temporary patient, the other a well-wisher and associated in the great business of furnishing sport personality to the American public.

For inspection, Dempsey's infected and badly swoolen left hand was produced from its encased solution. They compared notes on operations, the Babe exhibiting the scar left from the accident that damaged his left hand and put him out of action last season. They kidded each other about getting old.

"You're younger than I am, why haven't you got a sock or two left for some of these birds they call heavyweights nowadays?" asked Ruth.

Why Don't You Wrestle?

"With that left?" retorted Dempsey. "But say, you are getting old. Why don't you look into that wrestling racket, Babe? It would be great stuff for you after you're through with baseball."

The two great hitters became reminiscent. They lifted the cover off the "good old days."

"Trouble with baseball, like boxing, it's got kind of tame," remarked Dempsey.

"Why, say," agreed Ruth, "things are getting so polite out there on the ball field now, I expect we will have to put on stiff collars and ties next.

"The boys are hustling but the fighting spirit has cooled off.

For more than an hour, between phone calls and telegrams, Ruth and Dempsey talked of ball games and fights, referees and umpires, Tex Rickard and Judge Landis. They agreed it gets tough when the old legs start to slow up. They talked of the younger generation of athletes like a pair of gray-haired old men. They parted like a couple of fraternity brothers.

Dempsey, his swollen hand responding rapidly to treatment, expects to leave the hospital tomorrow and board an evening train for New Orleans, where he is booked to referee the Canzoneri-Parr fight next week.

Razorbacks Out Of Picture As Habitual Champions Of Southwest Conference; Frogs Take Big Lead

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23.—Staging a spirited rally in the final period, the Texas Christian University cagers added another victory tonight by administering a 35-26 defeat to Arkansas University, Southwest Conference champions for the last five years. The contest was a rough and tumble affair.

The triumph marked the first win for the Frogs over the Razorbacks on the court since the last game of the 1926 season and was the third out of 13 games played since 1924. The two quintets meet again tomorrow night.

After being soundly outplayed in the opening half and the first few minutes of the second period, the Frog machine began to click and the lead of the visitors melted away rapidly. The Razorbacks' led 18-12 at the intermission and held on to the advantage for another five minutes but the loss of important players on personal fouls affected their chances materially. After being stopped effectively in the previous play, Ad Dietzel began to come into his own, locating the basket repeatedly on tap plays and follow up shots and with the entire purple quintet showing more aggressiveness and activity, the Frogs began to pull away.

BASKETBALL PLAYS and PLAYERS

By EVERETT S. DEAN
Basketball Coach, Indiana U.

Branch McCracken, All-Conference center from Indiana during the season of 1930, established an all-time scoring record for the Big Ten Conference. The accompanying chart shows one of his best plays.

Upon receiving a pass from the forward he would return the pass or pivot around his guard to drive in for a short shot. Many followup baskets were made by McCracken from his excellent position on the foul ring.

McCracken was a fine leader and besides his responsibilities as captain he carried the burden of the Indiana offense. His height of 6 foot 3 inches made him a valuable follow-up man and his speed always gave him a big advantage over his guard. Last year McCracken was the finest all-around player in the Western Conference.

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN author of "THE BLACK PIGEON," "THE AVENGING PARENT" and "MURDER BACKSTAIRS" ILLUSTRATION FROM A NEA FILM

"You can shut the door and hold a perfectly private conversation. . . Well, we never saw Dexter Sprague again!"

"Good Lord! Another bridge dummy murdered!" Dundee groaned. "At least the newspapers will be happy! . . . Didn't anyone go to look for him after the hand was played?"

"Not straight off," Penny answered, with an obvious effort to remember clearly every detail. "Let's see— Oh, yes! That hand was played out before Ralph had finished playing his, at our table, so I was free to pay attention to the other table. Flora said that since they couldn't play another hand until Dexter came back, she thought she'd better hunt up Karen, who hadn't come back yet."

"How long was Mrs. Miles away from the porch?" Dundee asked quickly.

"Oh, I don't know—10 minutes, maybe. She came back alone, saying she had found Karen in her bedroom—Flora's room, of course—crying inconsolably. Flora told Hugo he'd better go up to her himself, since she evidently had her feelings hurt because he hadn't followed her in the first place. Tracey, who wasn't playing bridge, you remember, because he had given up his place to Sprague, asked Flora as she'd seen Sprague, and Flora said, in a surprised voice, 'No! I wonder where he is all this time, and Polly said that probably he'd gone to the lavatory, which opens into the main hall and is next to the library. . . . Well, pretty soon Judge Marshall and Karen came back—"

"Pretty soon?—Just how long was Judge Marshall gone?" Dundee pressed her, his pencil, which had been flying to take down her every word, poised over the notebook he had snatched from her desk.

"I can't say exactly!" Penny protested. "I was playing again at the other table. I suppose it was about 10 minutes, for Ralph and I had made another rubber, I remember. . . . Anyway, Karen was smiling like a baby that has had a lot of petting, but she said Hugo had promised her she wouldn't have to play bridge any more that evening, so Flora remained at that table, playing opposite Hugo, while Tracey played with Polly. As soon as Tracey became dummy, Flora suggested he go look for Sprague."

"And how long was he gone from the porch?" Dundee asked.

"Less than no time," Penny assured him. "He was back before Polly had finished playing the hand. He said he'd gone to the hall closet, where Whitson, the butler, would have put Sprague's hat and stick, and that he had found they were gone. Tracey said he supposed Sprague had ordered his taxi and had decided to walk down the hill to meet it, and he added that that was exactly the kind of courtesy you could expect from a cad and a bounder like Sprague—walking in uninvited, making Karen cry, then walking out without a word, leaving the game while he was dummy. Flora spoke up then and said it was no wonder Dexter had left without saying goodby, considering how he'd been treated. Then Tracey said something ugly and sarcastic about Flora's being disappointed because Sprague had decided not to spend the whole evening—"

"A first-class row, eh?" Dundee interrupted, with keen interest.

"Rather! Flora almost cried, said Tracey knew good and well that she had only been playing up to Sprague before Nita's death, in the hope of getting the lead in the Hamilton movie, if Sprague got the job of directing it, and Tracey said, 'So you call it playing-up, do you? It looked like high-powered flirting to me—or maybe it was more than a flirtation!' . . . . Then Flora told him he hadn't acted jealous at the time, and that he knew he'd have been glad if she'd got the lead. . . . Well, just then along came Janet—"

"Janet Raymond?" Dundee ejaculated. "I thought you said she had refused the invitation when Mrs. Miles phoned her."

"So she had, but she said she changed her mind, had been blue all evening and needed cheering up."

"How did she get in?"

"She walked over from her house, which isn't very far from the Miles', and simply came up the path to the porch," Penny explained. "Tracey asked her if she had seen Sprague on the road—it's the same road Dexter would have had to take going down the hill to the main road —and she acted awfully queer—"

"How?" Dundee demanded.

"Exactly as she would act, since she was in love with him," Penny retorted. "She turned very red, and asked if Sprague had inquired for her, and Flora quite sharply told her he hadn't. Then Janet said she was very much surprised that Sprague had been there, and that she couldn't understand why he had behaved so strangely. Then Lois said she might as well go fetch Peter from the library, since Sprague was no longer there to contaminate the atmosphere. She came back—"

"After how long a time?"

"Oh, about five minutes, I suppose," Penny answered wearily. "She came in, her arm linked with Peter's, and laughing. Said she had found him reading a 'Deadwood Dick' thriller. . . One of Tracey's hobbies"—she broke up to explain —"is collecting old-fashioned thrillers, like the Nick Carter, Buffalo Bill and Deadwood Dick paperbound books. Of course he didn't take up that hobby until a lot of other rich men had done it first. There was never anybody less original than poor Tracey. . . . Well, Flora gave up her place to Janet, and again played anagrams with Johnny, Peter taking his original place at our table. Suddenly Polly threw down her cards—she'd been having rotten luck and seemed out of sort—and said she didn't want to play bridge any more. So poor Flora had to be the perfect hostess, and switch from anagrams to bridge."

"And Polly played anagrams with Drake?" Dundee prompted.

"No. She said she thought anagrams were silly, and wandered off the porch and down the path, calling over her shoulder that she was going to take a walk. Tracey asked Johnny if he'd mind mixing the highballs and bringing out the sandwiches. Said Whitson had left a thermos bucket of ice cubes on the sideboard, some bottles of ginger ale, and a tray of glasses and sandwiches. Told him he'd find decanters of Scotch and rye, and to bring out both."

"So Drake left the room, too," Dundee mused. "Oh, Lord! I knew I'd find that every last one of the six had a chance to kill Sprague, as well as Nita! . . . How long was Polly Beale gone on this walk of hers?"

"She came in with a pink water lily—said she'd been down to the lily ponds, and that Flora had enough to spare her one," Penny answered. "She couldn't have been away more than 10 minutes, because Johnny was just mixing the highballs, according to our preference for Scotch or rye—or plain ginger ale, which both Ralph and I chose. After we'd had our drinks and the sandwiches, we went on with bridge. Polly and Johnny just wandered about the porch or watched the game at the two tables. And about five minutes after 11 Clive Hammond arrived, coming up the path to the porch, just as Janet had. After he came, there was no more bridge, but we sat around on the porch and talked until midnight. Clive said he was too tired to play bridge—that he'd been struggling all evening with a knotty problem."

"I can sympathize with him!" Dundee said grimly, as he rose. "I've got my own knotty problem awaiting me. . . . When that call comes through from Chicago, tell Sanderson the bad news, and say I'll telephone him later."

MORE LONDON ART UNDER FIRE

With criticisms of figures on the subway mansion still in the air, art critics of London have turned their heavy fire on the sculpture representing the "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street," which has just been uncovered on the pediment at the summit of the new Bank of England. "Hideous" and "grotesque" are some of the epithets cast at it. The figures is that of a burly woman in loose draperies, seated in a very awkward position. Her muscular right arm is beside her head, while on her lap she holds in her left hand a model of a pillared building. To her left the drapery blows out in stiff folds, resembling a wing. "She is the strangest 'Old Lady' I have seen," declared one critic. "She looks for all the world as if she had sat on a needle by accident and was rising in agony. I cannot imagine a pose less likely to suggest stability."

Cotton Trade Is Active In Cotton Market — Livestock Active Trading In Livestock Market — Grain Lower Values On All Grain Friday

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23. (AP)—Cotton again developed a fair degree of activity in today's trading but price fluctuations were rather narrow although generally tending upward. As Liverpool was lower than due at the start, the market here declined 4 to 5 points in the early trading but soon rallied on the rather bullish ginning total of 13,492,104 running bales issued by the census bureau. Another advance in stocks and indications that England soon will grant autonomy to India, coupled with a better demand for spots caused trade buying and short covering and prices rallied 6 to 10 points from the early lows. The weekly statistics were rather languish but did not exert much market influence. Despite a reported firmer basis for spots, prices eased off 3 to 6 points in the late trading due to realizing and the market closed steady net unchanged to 4 points down for the day.

Liverpool came in 3 to 4 points worse than due. Private cables stated the local trade realized on long contracts and there was some hedging. Manchester reported an improved cloth demand from India, Egypt and South America. First trades showed losses of 3 to 5 points and prices continued to ease off in early trading until March traded down to 10.41 and May to 10.56 or 8 to 7 points down from the previous close. The market soon rallied on the rather bullish ginnings report and continued to improve with higher stocks and a better spot demand until March advanced to 10.49 and May to 10.74 to 8 to 10 points up from the early lows and 3 points above the previous close.

NEW YORK COTTON
NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (AP) — A slight early decline promoted by easier Liverpool cables was followed by advances in cotton today on continued covering and trade buying. Increased offerings were encountered as prices approached the 10 1-2 cent level for March contracts, however, and later fluctuations were irregular with late months relatively easy under realizing or selling against near month purchases. After selling up from 10.40@10.50 March closed at 10.49 with the general market closing irregular net 5 points higher to 5 points lower.

Reports of firmness in the stock market encouraged the optimistic view of the general business prospects which was considered largely responsible for the advance, but the market met increased offerings at the higher levels and late months sagged off in the late trading when it looked as if some short hedges were being transferred from March to the new crop positions. After the advance to 11.21, October closed at 11.13 or 4 points net lower.

taking up the Howell measure which had been given privileged status by the Republican steering committee. He said he saw no opportunity for its passage at this session.

While the wets generally voted against considering the bill, such prohibitionists as Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Smoot, of Utah, joined in the opposition. They urged that the senate proceed to relief legislation.

The Howell bill includes a provision permitting search and seizures in homes under conditions to which Attorney General Mitchell has objected. Senator Watson said this conflicted also with the recommendation of the Wickersham commission.

Howell replied it would not "because that was a recommendation concerning the entire country; this would be merely a police regulation of the District of Columbia."

The contest may bring into action for the first time the two new advocates of repeal in the senate—Senators Morrow, Republican, New Jersey, and Bulkley, Democrat, Ohio.

Stock Market So Cheerfully Disposed That Trial Balloons Sent Up For Test

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (AP)—The stock market was so cheerfully disposed today it sent up some trial balloons to test the bullishness of the speculative wind.

Willingness of the shorts to cover was the chief contribution to the day's advances, which averaged nearly 2 points. Utilities rose rapidly at the close, outstripping the other groups, but there was substantial strength in the industrials and rails. It was the most active day of the year, for sales totaled 2,868,150 shares, a million more than yesterday.

Fortified by the conservatively expressed optimism of two men whose opinions Wall street highly respects, operations for the advance saw to it that the bears got no rope. Traders still short of the market, sensing that the recovery, even though technical, meant to go further, because buyers of stock, ready to ride with the rally. Profit-taking halted the rise early in the afternoon, halving gains of 1 to 3 points, but the climb was resumed during the later trading and prices finished at the top.

Wheat eased fractionally in response to easy foreign cables and increasing stocks. Corn lost 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 in Chicago, reflecting lower southwest markets. Cotton was irregular, 5 points net higher to 5 lower.

Foreign exchanges firmed. Sterling cables recovered to $4.85 1-2, comfortably above the gold point, and there was a small but general improvement in the continental rates.

Legislature

ment of all county taxes.

The house committee considered substitution of a bill by Representative Weinert of Seguin to postpone collection of all taxes until October 15 and directing tax collectors not to compile the delinquent tax roll until after that date.

Opposition Voiced

The Garrett cotton acreage plan, sponsored by the Southern Cotton Acreage Reduction association, encountered strong opposition, even from members who favor cotton acreage reduction. Under the plan, farmers refusing to cut acreage 25 per cent the next five years would be refused credit by banks. It was introduced by Pope of Corpus Christi who claimed it was the first forward step toward acreage reduction. It was voted down, 89, 57.

The opposition, led by McGregor of Austin, claimed the bill would work a hardship on the poor farmer and permit rich planters as much cotton as they wanted. McGregor charged it was an attempt to "shackle" the poor for the benefit of the rich.

Westbrook of Waco, chairman of the house agriculture committee, spoke favorably for the resolution, claiming it would have a good moral effect on cotton farmers.

Loudly Applauded

McGregor was applauded loudly when he said the best policy for the legislature to follow was to "leave the other fellow's business alone." Legislative attempts to improve conditions usually result in disrupting economic stability, McGregor said. The resolution, he charged, would countenance conspiracy and would deprive a man of the right to do with his own property as he pleased. "I would rather be poor and free than broke and a slave," McGreggor said in expressing the belief the plan would not produce results.

The prohibition resolution probably will bob up again Monday in the regular order of business, proponents indicating they would push the proposal for a record vote.

Forbes made a vitriolic attack against opponents of the 18th amendment and prohibition, said that Al Smith would have been elected president had it not been for his stand on this question and that Smith had written defeat for the Democratic party when he sent his telegram to the national Democratic convention at Houston setting out his ideas on prohibition.

The resolution opposed showing drinking scenes in moving picture shows. Farmer addressed his remarks more to this than to prohibition, predicting passage of the movie censorship bill as a step in safeguarding the morals of the youth of the nation. Farmer asserted it was a moral detriment to pictures "where every other scene portrayed drinking from bottles filled with red liquor and carousing." The suggestiveness of the moving picture scenes was described by Farmer as detrimental to the enforcement of prohibition and demoralizing youth.

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN
FORT WORTH, Jan. 23. (AP)—Lowered values were quoted for all grains on the cash market today, following the break in contract markets. Demand continued slow, wheat was off 1-2 with No. 1 hard probably worth 78 1-2@80 delivered Texas common points. Estimated receipts were: Wheat, 8 cars; corn, 12; oats, 2, and sorghums, 10.

Quotations on coarse grains, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid, ranged as follows:

Corn, 2 to 3 1-2 lower; No. 2 mixed 76 1-2@78 1-2; No. 2 white 76 1-2@77; No. 2, 96 per cent white 78 1-2@78; No. 2 yellow 76@76 1-2.

Oats, 1c lower; No. 2 red 44@45.

Sorghums, 5 lower; No. 2 milo per 100 lbs. 1.25@1.35; No. 3 kaffir 1.25@1.26.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, Jan. 23. (AP)—Corn led an all around drop of grain prices today. The tumble received much of its momentum from a trade summary which said that barring crop failure or war conditions world prices of major farm products would at best rule but slightly higher than current levels, and that no general increase of farm land values was looked for. Indications of urgent pressure to sell Australian wheat abroad had a further bearish influence.

Corn closed unsteady, 1 1-8 to 1 1-2 cents down, wheat at 3-8 to 1 decline, oats 1-8 to 3-4 off and provisions showing 5-10 cents fall. Unsettlement of grains showed itself right from the start. Corn was affected early by notable absence of shipping demand here and by sighns of preference for cheap feed substitutes. Bear traders made much of asserting that North American coarse grains were subjected to competition from cheap Argentine corn and oats and from cheap Russian and Danubian barley.

Daisy De Boe

recommend to the court, in passing sentence, that the defendant be given clemency."

The court set Monday, January 26 for the passing of sentence.

Miss De Boe, a half hour after the verdict became known, had regained her composure to a slight extent and on the arms of friends and a watchful matron of the county jail near her was led to a cell where she must remain until sentence is passed, the court ruling he could not allow her bail of $1,000 to stand with the sentence still unpassed.

As the verdict was returned, the courtroom was filled with a crowd that overflowed inside the railing and profound silence fell over everyone while Judge Doran methodically thumbed through the counts before giving them to court clerk to read the verdict.

Cameramen Active

The verdict came with such suddenness baliffs could not be summoned in time to control the crowd and, much to the joy of cameramen, they wormed their way in the courtroom and took pictures of the actual scene, one of the few times of such an occurrence here.

Judge Doran stared in surprise but with a sigh of resignation made no attempt to halt the photographers.

The trial was one of the most sensational ever brought to court here from the film colony. Daily, crowds which sometimes numbered more than a thousand milled about the courtroom, drawn there by hopes of hearing a real life story of Hollywood and seeing one of its most famous figures, the red-headed "it" girl of flaming youth fame.

Wild Life Barred

The testimony was startling with recriminations flung by both women from the witness stand about boy friends, love affairs, drinking parties, gambling and clothes and jewelry of the most expensive sort. Most of this testimony was stopped abruptly when Judge Doran, exasperated at the tales, delivered a stern ultimatum to the attorneys in which he said he would have no more "mud slinging."

Testimony opened with a bombshell January 13, overriding a defense objection, the confession of Daisy, which she later repudiated on the witness stand, was read by the state. Daisy claimed it was obtained by "third degree methods."

The document quoted her as saying she overheard Clara and Rex planning to discharge her late last October. She said she wanted no trouble because she loved Clara and knew "one more slam in the papers and Clara is through."

She related that on numerous occasions Clara got very, very drunk and once "threatened to kill me." At another time she said Clara got drunk at her beach home and lost a valuable watch. An insurance company paid Clara for it and when they found it later Daisy said she told Clara she should return the money. "'the——I got to'" she quoted Clara. "'put that watch back in the safety deposit box and keep your mouth shut'."

Reads Into Records

The love affairs of Clara were read into the court's records when the state introduced a batch of telegrams sent to her by Harry Rishman, New York night club figure, Dr. Earl Pierson, Dallas, Texas, physician, and Gary Cooper, film star. The prosecution claimed Daisy stole them from Clara when the alleged theft came to light and tried to "blackmail" her for $125,000 in an attempt to hush up the charges.

The courtroom crowds grew after that and for them the endearing remarks of the missives, "My sweet heart dear darling baby," "My love flies back to you," "be a good girl," "such an elegant gift as yourself," and so on were the apex of the trial.

Clara Has Statement

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23. (AP) — Clara Bow, red haired "it" girl of the films, was content with a ten word statement today concerning the grand theft conviction of her ex-secretary, Daisy De Boe.

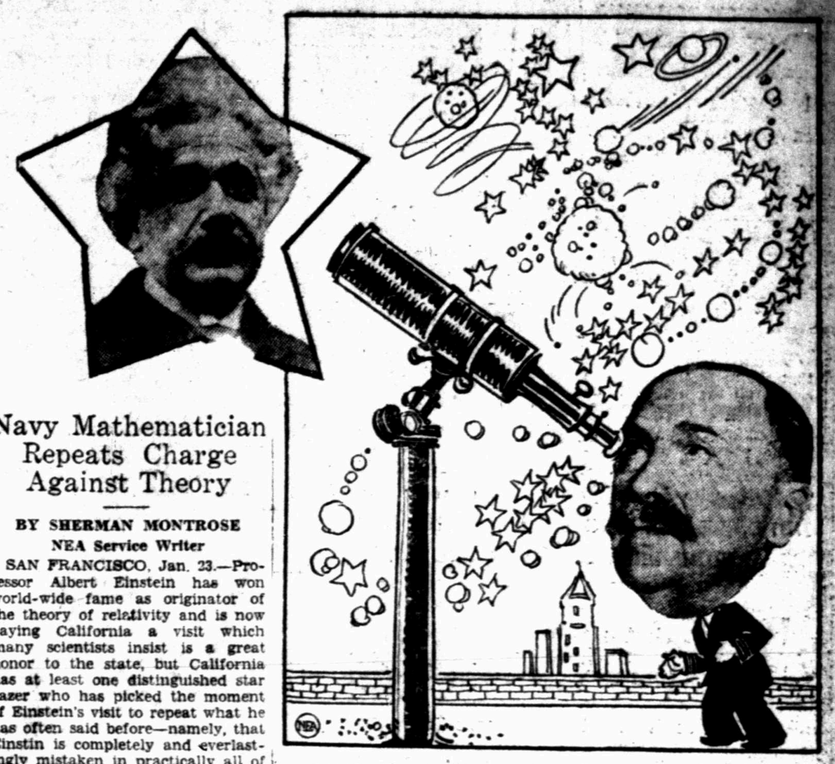

"For Daisy's sake," she said, "I hope the court will be lenient."

Einstein's Relativity Theory All Wet, Says Captain See, Who Can't See Famous German Astronomer At All

Captain Thomas Jefferson Jackson See, veteran U. S. navy astronomer, turns his telescope on Professor Einstein's theory of relativity—and what does Captain See see? "It's the bunk!" says Captain See, who has made an intensive study of more than 200,000 stars, not including those in Hollywood.

Navy Mathematician Repeats Charge Against Theory

BY SHERMAN MONTROSE
NEA Service Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—Professor Albert Einstein has won world-wide fame as originator of the theory of relativity and is now paying California a visit which many scientists insist is a great honor to the state, but California has at least one distinguished star gazer who has picked the moment of Einstein's visit to repeat what he has often said before—namely, that Einstin is completely and everlastingly mistaken in practically all of his theories and beliefs.

This dissentor is Capt. Thomas Jefferson Jackson See—six feet and four inches tall and 64 years old—former director of the U. S. naval observatory at Mare Island, senior mathematician for the U. S. navy and soon to take charge of a government observatory at Acapulco, Peru.

"Einstein," says Captain See, "is neither astronomer, mathmetician nor physicist. He is a confusionist. The Einstein theory is a fallacy. It is based on a glaring error of which Einstein is aware but which he refuses to recognize. I know of not one truth in the whole mass of relativity literature, and thus, for the good of science, not a line of it should have been published.

"It has simply added to the darkness and confusion of a superficial and unthinking age, in which quantity production of inferior literature is injuring the public mind.

"Increased the Darkness."

"Einstein is shown to have tinkered with Newton's law without understanding it, which thus increased the darkness of this difficult subject, without adding a ray of light."

Having delivered this broadside, Captain See goes on to add a final salvo:

"The Einstein theory that the ether does not exist and that gravity is not a force but a property of space can only be described as a crazy vagary, a disgrace to our age."

As it happens, Captain See does not stand alone in his views. Other American and European scientists have agreed with him. But thus far Einstein himself has never taken the trouble to answer him. Einstein's supporters have, but Einstein has simply ignored the naval officer.

Captain See insists that Einstein is perfectly aware of the fallacy in his theory of relativity but won't admit it.

How About That Two?

He declares that there is a glaring error in Einstein's formulas for the bending of a ray of light as it passes by the sun. Einstein, says Captain See, carelessly failed to multiply his result by two, and therefore got only half the value he should have got. And furthermore, that half-value itself was not new; Captain See declares that it was obtained by a Dr. Soldner, another Germany physicist, nearly 130 years ago.

As Captain See explains it:

"Einstein began his calculations by an erroneous differential equation for the bending of the path of light. By careless geometry he omitted a multiplier, two, for the angle, and hence when he integrated (or rounded out and summarized) the expression to finish his calculation of the bending of the ray, he gets only half the value required by correct physical mathematics."

As far as Einstein's later theory on the relationship between gravity and electricity is concerned, Captain See says that he himself was a year ahead of Einstein on this. To prove it he points to his article in the German scientific publication "Astronomische Nachrichten," of Oct. 22, 1922. The title of that article is "New Theory of the Aether," and a sub-title explains that it deals with the "discovery of the cause of magnetism and of a remarkable connection between magnetism and universal gravitation."

"I Found the Error."

Finding the error in Einstein's theory was a tough job, the captain admits.

"By persistence, however," he goes on to explain, "I finally succeeded in Einstein's own special field, so that he and the other relativists are now required to learn correct physical mathematics from an old-fashioned disciple of Newton."

That disciple, of course, is See.

See has done considerable work in the field of astronomy. He's going on 65 now, was a brilliant student at college, studied in Berlin, organized the department of astronomy in the University of Chicago, helped build the Yerkes Observatory and observed stars at Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., until he went into the navy.

He was professor of mathematics and was stationed at the Naval Observatory at Washington for a time until he was transferred to take charge of the Mare Island Observatory. Now he's preparing to take charge of the government observatory of Peru.

Captain See Sees The Stars.

Captain See has examined more than 200,000 fixed stars, discovered 600 new stellar systems and measured 1,400 double stars. And he's advanced new theories, too, beside that one on gravitation and magnetism. For instance—

That "people live wherever stars twinkle"; that Venus is inhabited; that the craters in the moon are dents made by collision with other planets; that the earth may become uninhabited 3,000,000 years from now, and that planets were not parts of larger bodies thrown off by centrifugal force but that they were originally independent bodies "captured" by the sun and made to revolve around it.

Three Are Heard By Science Club

Three speakers were heard at a meeting of the Tech Science club in room 103 of the Texas Tech administration building Thursday night. About twenty-five members attended.

Dr. Elizabeth Stafford, Tech math professor, spoke on "Algebra with Variations."

Dr. M. A. Stainbrook, college geology professor, gave a report on the recent meeting of the American Geological association at Toronto to which he was a delegate.

Professor Charles Mahoney of the Tech horticulture department reported on the recent session of the National Association for Horticulture Science.

Briand May Be Next Premier

Task Of Forming Government To Succeed That Of Steeg, Defeated In Chamber Of Deputies On Thursday, Faced

PARIS, Jan. 23. (AP)—Political observers were looking tonight to Aristide Briand as a likely candidate for the task of forming a new French government to replace that of Theodore Steeg which fell by ten votes in the chamber yesterday on the issue of price fixing for wheat.

The experts, however, believe that if Briand should be asked to form a cabinet he would declare, partly because of ill health but principally because he believes he can serve France better by continuing his fight for international peace. He has refused to become prime minister three times in the past year and a half.

Briand was still at Geneva tonight, taking an active part in the meetings of the League of Nations council, and the experts at home seem to believe that Pierre Flandin probably would be called by President Doumergue to build a cabinet.

His would be a slightly revamped version of the Tardieu cabinet which was succeeded by Steeg's.

If Flandin should not accept the job it was thought the appointment might fall to Pierre Laval, whose product would be a twin brother of the Steeg cabinet, leaving the situation just as confused as it was before.

Met Tragic Death.

Mr. Quinn's body was found late Tuesday afternoon on the sandy wastes of a Yoakum county ranch, tragic aftermath of a pleasure trip on which he and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Guy had set out in the Guys' automobile early Sunday afternoon. Mr. Guy is editor of the Avalanche-Journal publications.

When the automobile became stalled in sand, Mr. Quinn left the car with the promise that he would not come back until he had obtained help. Two cowboys found the prone body of the young publisher, who had become lost and wandered aimlessly, about six hours after a ranchwoman had found Mr. and Mrs. Guy.

Mrs. Guy did not attend the funeral, as a result of a physician's orders that she remain in bed because of her extremely nervous condition.

The postoffice, virtually all retail stores, banks, offices and in several instances cafes were closed during the hour of the funeral. Headquarters of the Retail Merchants association at city hall also were closed and the scheduled credit meeting of the association, of which Mr. Quinn was a member, was not held.

League Plans Next Meeting

Nations Of World To Gather In Conference For Reduction Of Arms On Land, Sea And In Air In 1932

GENEVA, Jan. 23 (AP)—The nations of the world will gather once more, in the last week of January, 1932, in a general conference for reduction of arms on land, on the sea and in the air.

The council of the League of Nations set that time for a general disarmament conference tonight after four days of debate during which the German demand for a meeting in November of this year was overruled.

No Decision Made

No decision was reached as to the man who will be chairman. During the public and private meetings of the council the name of Dr. Edvard Benes, the Czechoslovakian, has been proposed, but the Germans objected to him and there was a suggestion, so far purely informal, that Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes, be asked to accept the job.

The British and the French held out for a conference next year instead of some time later this yer and the majority of the other delegates held to the opinion that at least twelve months would be necessary to prepare for a successful conference.

Place Not Settled

The council did not decide definitely where the conference would be held, but Arthur Henderson, the British foreign minister, said it probably would be at Geneva. This and the selection of a chairman will be decided next May when the league council meets again.

The task of preparing for the conference is still a formidable job even after the past decade of activity paving the way for it. A draft disarmament convention has been prepared, but this is only an outline and the most difficult part is to fill in the actual figures.
