Aid Requests Outlined By Chrysler Officials

WASHINGTON (AP)-Executives of the financially ailing Chrysler Corp., are outlining for Treasury Department officials the company's blueprint for recovery and its requests for government aid.

Industry and government sources said Chrysler President Lee A. Iacocca and Board Chairman John Riccardo were to present detailed proposals today to Treasury Secretary G. William Miller.

A major part of their proposal was expected to be a renewal of pleas for government loan guarantees.

Iacocca told reporters this week that the nation's No. 3 automaker has all but abandoned efforts to get federal tax credits because of opposition from the Treasury Department and some members of Congress.

The administration has been waiting for Chrysler's detailed economic plan for several weeks. Corporate executives originally indicated it would be presented shortly after Labor Day, but then complications developed as Miller became increasingly adamant against tax credits.

Chrysler originally asked for $1 billion in credits on future taxes.

Executives have blamed much of their financial problems on what they called excessive regulation. But critics say the firm's financial woes also stem from reliance on large, fuel-inefficient cars.

President Carter, in various remarks during the past month, has indicated he might go along with a loan guarantee plan if government involvement were limited, if Chrysler employees and the company made certain moves toward recovery, and if any such government loans were given maximum security.

Congress, which has approved loan guarantees to Lockheed Corp. and New York City, has yet to decide on the Chrysler case.

"The situation is still very fluid," an aide said Friday in an interview. "It's very hard to get a reading on it," said another Capitol Hill staff aide knowledgeable about the Chrysler case.

Weekend update

Contamination Widespread

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)-Federal inspectors say they fear they haven't yet reached the end of a trail of food contaminated by toxic PCB, a chemical banned in this country five years ago.

The search for chickens, eggs, processed foods or feed contaminated by PCB - polyclorinated biphenyl - has so far spread from Idaho and Utah to Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota, regional Food and Drug Administration Director Leroy Gomez said Friday.

A million eggs, 75,000 frozen cakes, 350 chickens are among the foods scheduled for destruction.

Talmadge May Be Denounced

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate Ethics Committee's recommendation that Sen. Herman Talmadge be denounced for "reprehensible" financial misconduct completes only one step in the lengthy investigation of the Georgia Democrat's affairs.

Talmadge now must face action by the full Senate - an occurrence that probably is at least several weeks away.

For New Indian Manual ...

Researcher Studying Education

By JOHN LONG

Joe Ramey studies education like other men study math or history. It's his homework. Ramey is an educator, writer, and education diagnostician, and he and his family are currently residing in Hermleigh until their house on the Roby Highway is completed.

For 15 years he worked with the Bureau of Indian Affairs in New Mexico. Now, he and his wife, the former Jane Beeks of Hermleigh, have moved to Scurry County and Ramey is working primarily as an education consultant for the BIA.

Their solar-powered house is still under construction, and until it is finished they are living with his father-in-law, Orval Beeks of Hermleigh.

Presently, Ramey is doing education research for the BIA and is engaged in developing administrative manuals in connection with an Indian self-determination education act.

Among the things he is researching is the effectiveness of teacher aides on the achievement level of school children.

So far, his findings on that subject are inconclusive. I'm not far enough along to make a conclusion," he said.

JOE RAMEY
...attracted to education

The Oklahoma native began his career in education as a classroom teacher, a job he liked.

"I loved it," he said. In classroom teaching, Ramey cited "the satisfaction of seeing a kid develop as a result of you having worked with him."

He isn't sure exactly what it is about the field of education that attracts him.

"I don't really know," he said, "other than the fact that kids have always interested me from the time I left childhood."

Ramey said he is particularly interested in early childhood education.

He left his classroom teaching job in Oklahoma 15 years ago to go to work with the BIA, which then had a wide-open field in education. He has written two books, several articles for education magazines, and he has helped make several films for Navajo school-children.

He also worked Stateside with several educators from Australia in their efforts to create a program of education for the Aborigine of that continent.

Now, however, Ramey will be doing his work in education from Scurry County.

"I can write regulations as easily in my basement as anywhere else," said Ramey of the manuals he is currently developing. He noted that the actual data-gathering is done elsewhere, but the evaluation and assessment of that work can always be done at home.

Through it all, he maintains he has enjoyed working on the films more than anything else.

"Films have effects on a greater number of people, and another beautiful thing about films is the student sees something new, something different he didn't see before," he said.

He added that he liked the technical challenge of cutting down 17,000 feet of film into a movie of suit-

The SDN Column

It's not unusual for telephones to ring in tax offices these days, but Ray Peveler, the Snyder School District's assessor-collector, says the calls picked up considerably the past week after the new valuation notices were mailed.

Although most people probably were expecting their taxes to increase, they were not prepared for the projected figures on these notices. Happily--partially so, at least--the bad news is not likely to be as great as indicated this time. The estimates were based on last year's rate.

The school district is assessing on 60 percent of appraised value this time, instead of 30 percent, but the tax rate is due to be reduced considerably. Just how much, nobody can say until the board of equalization holds its meetings. Incidentally, that board is scheduled to meet at 9 a.m: Sept. 27 at the school administration building.

When it passes along the last word on valuations, the school board will be able to determine what is required to fill the budget needs for the current school year and set the tax rate accordingly.

Speaking of tax collectors, Doc Griffin, who holds that office at city hall, came up with an unusual problem Friday morning. He had lost his billfold somewhere Thursday night. Of course he is anxious to get it back, but found himself in the midst of an unexpected situation. His drivers license was in the billfold and the DPS office here was closed Friday, which meant that he could not apply for a duplicate and get an interim receipt before Monday.

He was about to pose his dilemma as a question for our "Ask Us" column when Police Chief Bill Stone came along, and the question was transferred to the chief.

"What should I do about driving between now and Monday?" Griffin asked.

"It's simple," said Stone. "You just stay our from under the steering wheel till Monday."

You Dallas Cowboys fans who thought Tom Landry's team looked worse than usual on offense against San Francisco last Sunday probably were right. It seems that the 49ers were using 12 men on their defensive team part of the time. It came to light when Ray Malavasi, coach of the Los Angeles Rams, was studying films of the Dallas-San Francisco game. The Rams play Frisco today. The Rams coach was puzzled by the defense, reports the Dallas News, and after rerunning some plays he discovered that there were 12 men on the field. It was not known how many times it occurred, but in one series of downs, the 12th man participated three plays in a row. This incident, coupled with that pathetic decision on a pass play in the Super Bowl last January, widens the credibility gap in Pete Rozelle's officiating corps.

Banquet Speaker...

Chiles Champions Free Enterprise

One of the country's leading exponents of the free enterprise system will be the principal speaker at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce banquet Thursday night.

Eddie Chiles, chairman of the board and chief executive of The Western Co. of North America, has become well-known for his political philosophy which basically is, "Remove from office politicians who are not responsive to the needs and mandates of their constituents and elect to office people committed to serve those needs and respect those mandates."

Tickets for the banquet, which will be held in the Scurry County Coliseum, are on sale at the chamber office at $10 each. Ticket sales were approaching the 300 mark at the end of the week, and they may be reserved by calling 573-3558.

Chiles, a native of Itasca, graduated from the University of Oklahoma in 1934 with a bachelor of science degree in petroleum engineering. After working five years for Reed Roller Bit Co. as a sales engineer, he founded the Western Co. of North America in 1939 in Seagraves. His company serves the petroleum industry with technical services required in the discovery and production of oil and gas.

EDDIE CHILES
...for responsive officials

The company began with three employes and today employs 3,000 worldwide. It owns and operates offshore rigs, which are leased to oil companies, and has three more contracted for and under construction. The Western Co. is headquartered in Fort Worth and occupies its own 10-story building, with a twin building planned for the future.

Chiles is active in a number of professional organizations. He also is on the Interstate Oil Compact Commission and is a member of the board of regents of North Texas State University.

Q--Why doesn't the City of Snyder create an animal adoption policy for strays that are picked up and put in the animal pound?

A--Such a policy exists now, said Chief of Police Bill Stone. Persons interested in adopting an animal should first go to the police station so arrangements can be made to have someone meet them at the pound. To adopt animal, a pound fee of $5 must be paid and the animal must be vaccinated.

Area Has First Taste Of Fall

Snyderites got their first taste of fall weather Friday night when the temperature dropped to a low of 49 degrees.

The low reading followed a cloudy, mild day when the mercury's peak was a mere 72 degrees. The cool spell continued Saturday and forecasts indicated that low readings would be recorded again Sunday morning.

The Gospel According To Khan...

Environemntal Rules Must Outweigh Costs

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - For 18 inflation-fraught months, Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, and other White House economists have preached the new gospel: environmental regulations must meet economic tests.

Their words have resounded through the bureaucracy.

Ozone standards would cost $19 billion, not $9.5 billion as the Environmental Protection Agency originally suggested.

Interior Department strip mining rules would be $325 million more than needed to assure environmental safety.

Regulations for drinking water, diesel engines and highly toxic benzene were not cost effective enough.

The dollars-and-cents strategy, generated initially by concern over skyrocketing inflation, has intensified with the newest energy crisis. President Carter's proposed Energy Mobilization Board is aimed directly at environmental rules the administration says contribute to costly delays of critical energy projects.

Environmentalists find themselves in temporary retreat, talking about the future in anxious tones.

"We find ourselves increasingly at the barricades," says Richard Rauch, a lawyer for the Environmental Defense Fund.

In the early '70s, engineers believed the right gadget would vanquish pollution. Politicians were convinced the right bureaucracy and set of rules would clean up air, land and water.

"As important as technology, politics, law and ethics are to the pollution question, all such approaches are bound to have disappointing results," says economist Larry Ruff. "They ignore the primary fact that pollution is an economic problem."

Environmental regulations, as never before, are perched on a precarious balance, weighted on one side by their costs and on the other by their economic benefits.

"It's relatively easy to tot up the cost of regulation," says Roy Gamse, an economist with the Environmental Protection Agency. "But it's damned hard to measure the benefits."

Environmentalists claim regulations stimulate the economy, create jobs, and conserve energy.

Businessmen say pollution controls cut productivity, create capital shortages, cause unemployment, fuel inflation, and stifle energy production.

Protest can be heard from coast to coast.

About 100 million tons of excess coal can't be burned because of clean air laws, yet the President's Commission on Coal wants a dramatic increase in use of the plentiful resource, says Carl Bagge, president of the National Coal Association. Regulations also keep 16,000 to 17,000 miners out of work, he contends.

Federal regulations of the auto industry could imperil the ability of Chrysler and American Motors to weather a recession, a federal study reports.

Ford Motor Company says it must spend the equivalent of $400 per car to meet 1981 emission standards.

Kaiser Steel Corp. in Fontana, Calif., estimates it costs $250,000 a day in lost production to comply with smog warning alerts.

Some economists estimate Los Angeles area industries may have to spend $200 million a year to meet clean air mandates by 1987.

Construction of a coal-generated plant in Montana has been delayed by court tests and environmental regulations since 1974. Montana Power Company claims the delay has pushed an original $500 million pricetag to $1.7 billion.

The Environmental Protection Agency says federal pollution control programs will cost about $290 billion between 1976 and 1985.

Last year, total public and private anti-pollution spending came to $13.1 billion, according to the Council on Environmental Quality.

Private industry spends 51 percent of current anti-pollution dollars; the federal government, about 13 percent; and consumers, a whopping 36 percent-mostly for auto emission controls, the EPA says.

Business' bill has risen dramatically. In 1970, it spent $2.5 billion for pollution controls, 1.9 percent of its total capital investment. By 1984, it will pay out $8.4 billion, nearly 3 percent of its investment dollar, says Data Resources, Inc., an economic forecasting company.

This spending will cause a 1.4 percent drop in productivity in 1986, contributing to reduced profit margins, eroding corporate profits, and higher inflation, DRI says.

Bullock's Effort Nets $900,000

AUSTIN (AP) - State Comptroller Bob Bullock's war on former students who have not paid off their college loans has yielded about $900,000 in repayments.

Bullock, who is withholding paychecks from state employees who defaulted on college loans, now has expanded his effort to include non-employees.

Eighty-two ex-teachers, 50 welfare recipients and five business operators Friday became the latest to learn they won't receive state checks until the debts are paid off.

State law prohibits payment to persons in debt to the state.

The ex-teachers had sought refund of their contributions to the retirement system. The business operators, who sold goods to the state, will not be paid until a total of $7,207 in student loan liabilities is settled, Bullock said.

The collection effort began after the Texas College Coordinating Board reported in August that 24,685 former students owed more than $39.9 million on overdue loans.

"These loans aren't scholarships, and must be repaid to keep the program going," Bullock said.

More than 500 state employees whose paychecks were withheld have made loan repayments totalling $900,000, according to the comptroller's office.

The latest computer check of state records identified an additional 150 employees who are in debt to the state.

Promenaders Plan Dance

Burt Whitaker of Big Spring will be the caller for the Senior Center Promenaders square dance starting at 7 o'clock Monday night in the National Gurd Armory.

Whitaker will be calling for the Promenaders' dances on the first and third Mondays of each month. He is a member of the Permian Basin Callers Association and began calling about three years ago.

Senior Citizens interested in square dancing are invited to attend the Monday night get-together or to call the Senior Center office at 573-0104 for information, Mrs. Gloria Shaw, Senior Center director, said.

API Gives To Jaycee Project

1,000 FOR JAYCEE PROJECT-David Burkett (left) of the Snyder chapter of the American Petroleum Institute presents a check for $1,000 to Steve Gault, project chairman for the Jaycees. Snyder Chapter of American Petroleum Institute is donating $1,000 to the Jaycees Humble-Smith school project. Steve Gault Snyder Jaycee project chairman, accepted the check from David Burkett, API representative.

The Humble-Smith School is an educational facility for exceptional children. The Jaycees are in the process of remodeling the facility. The project involves carpeting, paneling and painting the entire inside. In addition, a new kitchen has been installed as well as modernization of the current heating and cooling system. According to Gault, the interior will be completely finished Monday.

"We plan to start on the outside next!" said Gault. "A wheel chair ramp will be built, the entire building will be painted, brick will be layed partially on the front, and a new sign will be professionally painted."

The Jaycees are seeking donations from the public to help defray the cost of the project. Donations can be mailed in care of Jaycee Humble-Smith Project to Snyder National Bank or West Texas State Bank. Further information can be obtained by calling 573-0253, 573-8941 or 573-8341.

"The Jaycees are striving to make Snyder a better place in which to live.....with the help of the people of Snyder, we will realize that goal", said Gault.

Bumbling Bandits Botch Robbery

SAN ANTONIO (AP)-Two robbers, wielding guns and wearing red bandanas over their faces, boldly walked through the door and announced a holdup. There was only one problem - the place they wanted to rob was next door.

The two bumbling bandits had intended to rob a loan company that shares a building in north San Antonio with an advertising company.

It took a few minutes, but startled employees at the advertising agency convinced the bewildered bandits Thursday that they were robbing the wrong side of the building.

With that, the robbers bolted out into the building foyer and fled. They did not stop to pay a visit at the loan company on their way out.

8 Elderly Die Enroute To Fair

The top of the van was sheared off in the predawn accident Wednesday.

Plainview Police Must Pay

LUBBOCK (AP)-Two members of a police narcotics team who raided the wrong Plainview apartment three years ago have been ordered to pay the people who lived there $10,000 in punitive damages.

A federal court jury also awarded Ted Hooks, Diane Hooks and Delia Gutierrez an additional $1,000 apiece for actual damages suffered in the raid.

The three were court-reporting students in Plainview and were sharing an apartment the night of March 19, 1976, when five officers burst in looking for a suspected heroin dealer.

The officers said they soon discovered they had the wrong apartment, but all the officers did not leave immediately.

The jury deliberated three hours, then found that Hale County narcotics agent Benny Clifton acted "maliciously, capriciously or arbitrarily" while they were in the apartment.

Prison System May Buy Site Anywhere In State

AUSTIN (AP)-The Texas prison system may use its construction money to buy a site for a new penitentiary anywhere in the state, Attorney General Mark White says.

He issued his legal opinion Friday to Chairman James Windham of the Texas Board of Corrections.

A rider in the 1977-79 general appropriation bill blocked purchase of acreage near Edinburg in 1978, but White said no such impediment exists in the state budget for the two years that began Sept. 1.

The Legislature appropriated over $46 million for prison construction in 1980-81 and added a rider authorizing the board to acquire "from the appropriation for prison construction, acreage for a prison site..."

The 1977-79 rider allowed purchase of land only from the proceeds from selling the prison system's Blue Ridge Farm and said the site had to be within 75 miles of Huntsville.

"That rider does not appear in the current appropriations act," White said.

He said the new rider specifically allows the prison system to use one or all of three sources - income from selling property, exchange of land and the building appropriation - to acquire a site.

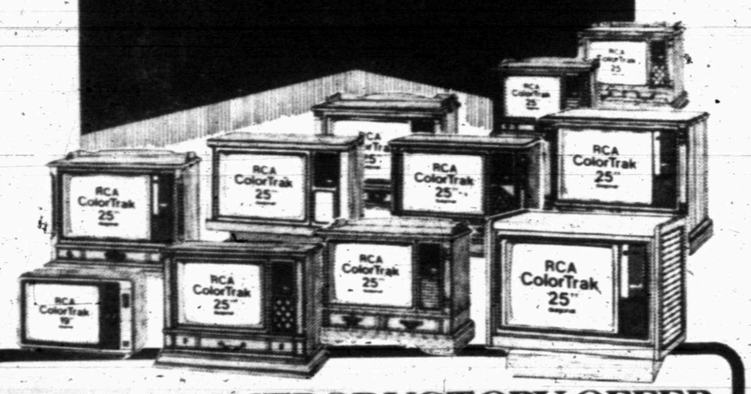

"Thus, the department is specifically authorized to utilize the appropriation for prison construction rather than the proceeds from the sale of the Blue Ridge Farm as the exclusive source of funds for the acquisition of a site for a new prison. The current appropriations act contains no geographic limitation on the use of the appropriation for prison construction," White said.

Former Attorney General John Hill cited the 1977-79 rider in an opinion last year that stopped the prison system from buying a 6,740-acre site near Edinburg for $8 million.

Local residents and the prison lobby, Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants, were among those opposing the sale.

Pre-Trial Set On Stacy Dam Appeal

Oct. 5 has been set as the date for a pre-trial in the appeal of a permit granted the Colorado River Municipal Water District for the Stacy Reservoir.

Appealing the decision of the Texas Water Commission are the Lower Colorado River Authority, the Garwood-Lakeside Irrigation District, the City of Austin and the Lake Travis Property Owners Association.

The commission granted a permit for the CRMWD to impound 554,000 acre feet of water behind a new dam on the Colorado River near Stacy, about 25 miles southeast of Ballinger.

The case will be heard in the 53rd District Court in Austin, with Judge Herman Jones presiding. Judge Jones is expected to set the date for the actual appeal on the basis of briefs submitted by the litigants. The Texas Attorney General will defend the Water Commission on behalf of the state, and the CRMWD will participate as a friend of the court.

O.H. Ivie, general manager for CRMWD, said attorneys for the water district are optimistic that the permit will be upheld.

General Motors Settles 3 Hours Before Deadline

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. says it tried to give the nation a small "shot of confidence" by agreeing to a new contract with the United Auto Workers union without a strike.

The two sides, meeting in a marathon bargaining session that began at 6 p.m. Thursday, announced tentative agreement on a new pact less than three hours before the Friday midnight strike deadline.

If ratified, it would be the first time in 15 years there has been no strike against the union's target company in national negotiations.

The agreement provides large pension increases, the make-or-break issue since talks began July 16. Autoworker pensions have been fixed by contract. The new agreement is the first to provide increases in the life of a contract.

No immediate average increase was available, but two examples worked out to annual increases of 8.5 percent and 9.3 percent.

Other details were withheld but it appeared the union had to accept the traditional wage formula that it wanted to improve. The UAW won more paid time off and, one report said, automatic recognition in new plants.

Noting a "general malaise and tremendous consciousness of inflation," GM's Vice President George B. Morris Jr., the company's chief negotiator, said, "The country needed a shot of confidence."

"I don't know if this is of that magnitude," he said, "but in our own little way it should serve to encourage people, despite all the predictions by people who didn't know anything about the situation, that there would be a strike and it would be of predictable duration."

The agreement will serve as a pattern for Ford Motor Co. and union officials said they foresaw no problems there. Normally, it also would guide a Chrysler Corp. settlement, but this year financially foundering Chrysler may get concessions.

Criswell Happy At Helm Of Biggest Baptist Church

DALLAS (AP)—A chorus of 200 voices backed by a full orchestra swells to a rousing finish. The audience bursts into applause punctuated by "Amen" and "Praise the Lord."

The man in white stands.

There is silence. He strides to a pulpit flanked by microphones and beams into four television cameras trained on his unlined face. He bows his head and 2,500 members of the congregation follow suit.

He's Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the largest Southern Baptist Church in the world, upholder of conservative Biblical doctrine, leader of a multimillion-dollar religious complex with more than 20,000 worshippers.

Evangelist Billy Graham has been a member of the First Baptist Church of Dallas since 1953. After converting from Catholicism, Dallas Cowboys placekicker Rafael Septien became the church's 20,000th member earlier this year. The same night, commentator Paul Harvey became the 20,001st member.

At 70, Dr. Criswell has been at the helm for 35 years and nobody expects him to retire.

"I believe in what I try to do. I want to do what I do all my life, I have just loved doing it," he says. "I would rather do what I do for nothing, than do what anybody else does for money."

Dr. Criswell announced five years ago that he would give back "every penny" he has ever earned at First Baptist - a figure he estimates at more than $600,000. He says he has been plowing his salary back into the church since then, and has "consummated my pledge in my will."

Income of $600,000 over 35 years, and perhaps over two years, would strike some members of his congregation as modest indeed, and it's modest, too, in the general aura of First Baptist's affluence. Business director Gene Clowe said the church already has gone over its $5 million budget for 1979, and projects the budget will exceed $6 million next year. In the latest of a series of building projects, the church is about to construct a parking garage with a price tag between $5 million and $6 million.

The 15 grades of Sunday School classes have an enrollment of more than 11,000. The classes are set up so that an expectant mother could enroll her unborn child in a Cradle Roll class, and that child could continue study through the Senior Adult, or over-65 level.

There are special classes for Japanese members, and the Chinese, Koreans, the underprivileged and the deaf have their own pastors. There are special classes for the mentally handicapped and for doctors, nurses and other medical personnel. There is even a special silent paging system in the sanctuary for doctors.

The church broadcasts services to overflow congregations via closed-circuit television and local stations have aired the Sunday services for years.

The church's fulltime music director, Gary Moore, coordinates an orchestra, a group that plays handbells and more than 15 choirs.

The high school choir has traveled around the world and the music division cuts several records each year.

The church owns two gymnasiums, an indoor track, a sauna, steam bath, whirlpool, racquetball courts and a bowling alley.

"My idea of a church is one that reaches all aspects of a family ... all the interests, avocations in their life would be the church," Dr. Criswell says. "You can't do that without a tremendous outlay."

First Baptist is one of downtown Dallas' largest property owners, holding six blocks of prime land and multi-story buildings.

Two schools started by Dr. Criswell, the First Baptist Academy and the Criswell Center for Biblical Studies, pay no rent for the space they occupy in church-owned buildings.

First Baptist is funded wholly by member contributions, which have exceeded the budget every year since Criswell came to Dallas from Oklahoma.

"This year, the gifts, including tithing, the building fund and special gifts, will total close to $7 million," Clowe says. He says more than 5,000 church members turn 10 percent of their gross income over to the church.

Even so, the church is $4.7 million in debt, and that figure will more than double when construction begins on the parking garage.

First Baptist does count some of Dallas' moneyed elite among its members. The late billionaire H.L. Hunt, belonged. So does Mary Crowley, founder and president of Home Interiors and Gifts.

Two years ago, she gave the church $750,000, asking church members to match her gift for a new building. Members pitched in $1.85 million one Sunday night and the building was dedicated debt-free.

Loboes Almost Pull Upset, But...

Tigers Get Past Monahans

By BILL McCLELLAN

Snyder's Tigers made it into the win column here Friday night. But just barely.

With only 1:49 left in the class AAA schoolboy contest, Monahans quarterback Joel Faulkenberry turned pilot, picking apart Snyder defenses for 83 yards in nine plays. The jet-like air attack didn't come in for a landing until Faulkenberry found end Timmy Morton beyond the pay stripe from 16 yards out to put Monahans within a two-point conversion of victory.

The Loboes elected to go for the win rather than a tie, paying for the decision with a 14-13 loss when Tiger defenders stopped fullback Jimmy Rollins cold at the scrimmage line.

The big defensive play was characteristic of the night. Snyder dominated the game in first downs, passing, rushing and time of possession.

But the Tigers also dominated negative statistics, losing three fumbles and two interceptions. Five times the Tigers worked the ball inside the Lobo 25, only to be turned away with an empty hand.

With a 1-1 record now, Snyder begins preparations for 5-AAAA's Big Spring, hoping to work out the problems that have caused eight fumbles and three interceptions in just two games so far this season.

The Tigers meet the Steers Sept. 21 at 8 p.m. in Big Spring.

Snyder began Friday's game by giving up the ball three times inside the Monahans' 24 - twice inside the 12 - before finding the scoreboard switch.

With 2:30 remaining in the half, fullback Robert Rodriquez capped a 33-yard, seven-play drive by banging over from two yards out. His double-effort strike through the middle of the Lobo line came on fourth down. Sam Willis booted the extra point good.

Monahans tied the score with 5:18 left in the third quarter. Fullback Marvin Hogan collected the half-dozen points, crashing over from a yard out. His score ended a 34-yard, five-play march.

Snyder appeared to seal the victory with 1:49 left in the game when quarterback Mike Roemisch slid over his right side for six yards. Willis again kicked the point-after.

The 74-yard, 11-play drive was highlighted by an 18-yard pass from Roemisch to Dale Jenkins, and a 15-yard "roughing the passer" penalty.

With 1:49 remaining, Snyder's defenses fanned out, expecting desperation passing from the Loboes. Instead, Faulkenberry went to work like he'd been waiting for it all night. The senior quarterback lulled Snyder to sleep with a four-yard toss to Steve Fine, followed by an incompletion.

But on third down, Faulkenberry went wild. He rallied to hit Benny Hernandez on four of his next six tosses to send Monahans from its 21 to the Tiger 28. A penalty was tacked on to the final toss to Hernandez, giving the Loboes possession on the Tiger 16.

Again Faulkenberry zeroed in on his target, hitting Macon, who had gotten beyond Tiger defenders and into the end zone.

The score put the Loboes within a point, 14-13, and Coach Frank Krhut elected to go for the two-point conversion.

But Monahans' extra-points try was thwarted as soon as it began, as a crowd of defense caught Rollins at the line of scrimmage and hurled him backwards.

An on-side kick failed to go the necessary 10 yards, and Snyder took over possession at the Monahans 49, running out the clock.

Mistakes

While Snyder did win the ballgame, it was apparent it had more than its share of mistakes. The Tigers ground out over 300 total yards in offense, but couldn't capitalize on a handful of scoring opportunities.

The Cats ran a reverse on the opening kickoff - Bryan Vincent handing to Thomas Selmon - which got the ball all the way to the Lobo 46-yard line. Six plays later, Snyder had reached the 23, but on first down, the ball got away from fullback McClain, and Monahans' Mark Baker fell on it.

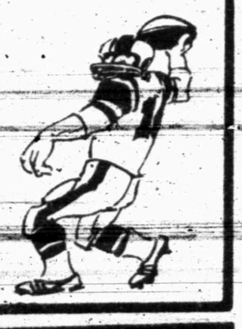

Late in the opening period, Selmon intercepted a Faulkenberry pass. Snyder again looked like a deadly offensive team, ripping 63 yards to the Monahans 1-yard line in 13 plays. But trouble began on third down, when the snap was fumbled and Snyder lost a yard to the 2. On fourth, Roemisch and Bobby Degrate missed connections, Snyder lost five yards, and the Loboes took over.

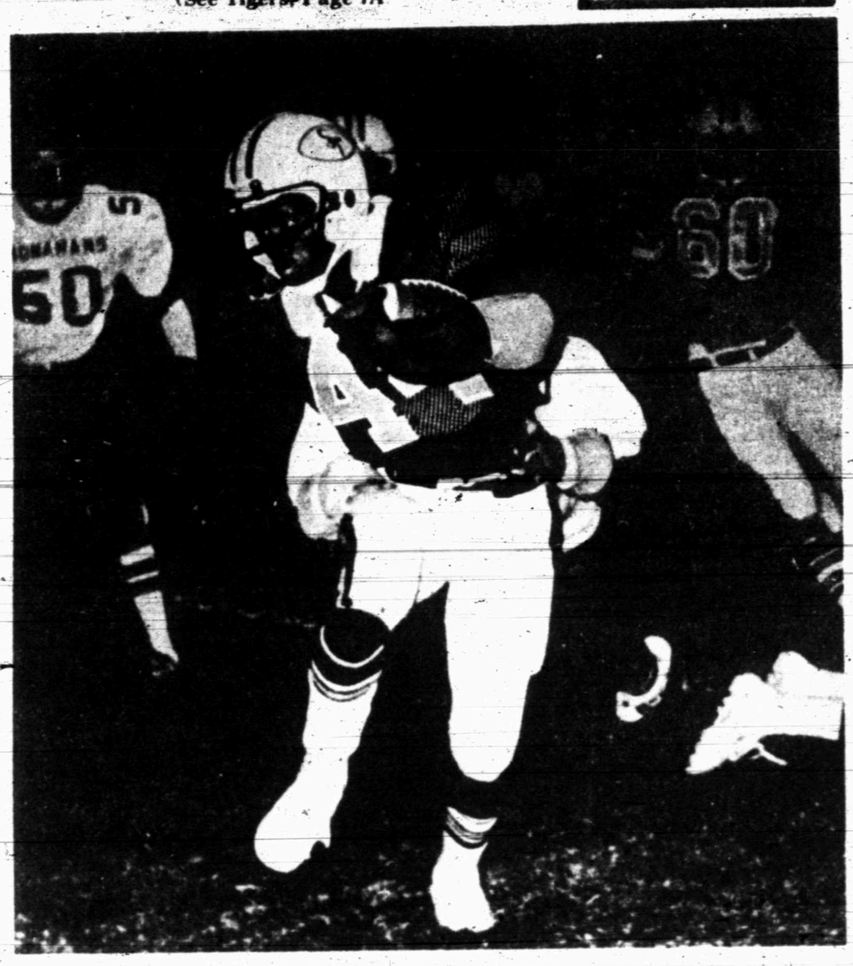

Still late in the first half, Roemisch hit Jenkins on a 34-yard pass play to the opponent 15. Degrate wrestled for four yards, but on the next effort, McClain took a strong hit and the ball sailed into the end zone where Macon came up with it.

Unfortunately, miscues were not to leave Snyder for the entire game. With just seconds left in the half,

Coyote Comeback Not Quite Enough

GAIL--With four seconds left in the game here Friday night, Borden County's Blane Dyess found Travis Rinehart 60 yards away in the New Home end zone. Dyess let the ball fly, Rinehart pulled it in and it appeared the Coyotes had broken a 12-game losing streak.

But it was not to happen that way.

One of those little yellow flags, which seem to fall like rain each Friday in West Texas, hit the Gail Stadium turf. Borden County was charged with an inelgible receiver downfield, and lost it's 13th contest, 13-12.

It was a frustrating finish for the Coyotes, who had scored 12 points in the final period of play to make a comeback against the New Home bunch.

New Home got a freebie - though well earned - in the third quarter when Mickey McClintock blocked a Coyote punt, picked it up and ran 12 yards to score. He added the PAT kick.

In the fourth quarter, McClintock paid off for New Home again, giving the visitors a 13-0 lead when he scored from two yards out. His kick failed this time.

Borden County didn't give up however. Craig Peterson - who toted the ball 23 times for 97 yards - capped a 65-yard drive moments later to put the Coyotes on the board. The PAT kick failed.

With only 48 seconds left in the game, Borden County scored again. Peterson crashed over from two yards away, sealing a 55-yard march. The two-point conversion attempt failed.

The the game wasn't over yet. Borden County was successful with a on-side kick try and took over possession again. With four seconds remaining in the contest, Dyess hurled a 60-yard bomb to Rinehart which was caught in the end zone, but officials negated the play with a charge of inelgible receiver down field.

The Coyotes, who travel to O'Donnell next week, picked up 230 yards offense during the contest. Peterson grabbed 97 of the ground yards, caught four passes for 62 yards, and made 17 tackles from his middle linebacker position on defense.

Early Scores Defeat Ira's Bulldogs, 25-14

GRADY—Grady's Wildcats continued their supremacy over District 2-B six-man teams here Friday night, stopping hopeful Ira 25-14. Last week the Wildcats trimmed Hermleigh.

Ronald Chee proved to be the main weapon for Grady, now 2-0 on the season. The senior all-around athlete scored four touchdowns, picking up 275 yards in the process.

Chee scored on runs of 65, 63 and 42 yards in the first quarter while adding another from 25 yards out in the second period. Larry Key tacked on one extra point run as the Wildcats built a 25-0 lead.

Ira turned the game around in the second half, stopping Chee and company, but made too many mistakes to overcome the large Wildcat lead.

Wade Pierson got the offense rolling by taking the second half kickoff five yards deep in the end zone and racing 85 yards for a touchdown. Keith Bryant booted the two-point conversion.

"The kids came back and did a good job," said Ira coach Gary Fox. "The first quarter got us

Payton Against The Cowboys; Another 100-yard Rushing Day?

IRVING (AP)—The unbeaten Chicago Bears and Walter Payton come prancing into Texas Stadium Sunday to meet the unbeaten and so far unimpressive Dallas Cowboys, who have never allowed the National Football League's leading rusher a 100-yard day.

In two games against Dallas, Payton has carried the ball 36 times for 101 yards or a 2.8 average. His longset run against the Cowboys has been 13 yards.

"We'll find out what kind of a team we have," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "Payton is just so strong. He just runs right through defensive linemen. They hit him and he doesn't even rip- ple, just knocks 'em back. "He has incredible balance. He doesn't care how he gets his yards. He just knocks you down."

Payton has averaged 5.2 yards per carry in piling up 307 yards in the young NFL season.

The Cowboy defense has yielded 300 yards at a 5.4 yard per carry average.

Chicago Coach Neill Armstrong has a team leading the NFL in defense in victories over Minnesota and Green Bay.

"I feel good about the team right now," said Armstrong. "They have confidence and better talent than last year's team. You need confidence to play Dallas, and execution, too."

Armstrong added "At this point I don't know how good we are, but we'll find out some things in a hurry."

Both starting quarterbacks are nursing injuries.

Chicago quarterback Vince Evans has a bruised left knee and Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach has been bothered by a sore elbow.

The Cowboys hope star tailback Tony Dorsett will round into form for the soldout, nationally televised 3 p.m. CST kickoff in Texas Stadium.

"How well we do depends on stopping Payton and getting our running game going," said Landry.

Dorsett rushed for 54 yards in 19 carries in a 21-13 victory over San Francisco Sunday in his first game since he broke a toe in July by dropping a mirror on it.

The Cowboy rushing game has averaged a paltry 3.4 yards per attempt.

Tigers Hang On

Snyder took over on the Monahans 32. On the first play a missed pitchback lost six yards. Roemisch hit Selmon for a 12-yard gain on second down, but Faulkenberry intercepted his next effort as the clock ran out.

In the fourth quarter, Snyder took advantage of a 29-yard punt return by Selmon and a 25-yard pass from Roemisch to Barry Tubb to advance to the Lobo 18. A five-yard penalty was the first Snyder mistake. The second was the futile one however, an interception by Ricky Munoz in the Monahans end zone.

In all, Snyder found moving the ball only semi-tough against the 0-2 Loboes. Unofficial statistics give Bobby Degrate 80 yards in 20 carries, Roemisch 65 yards in 16 carries and McClain 48 yards in 8 carries. Roemisch completed 5 of 11 passes for 98 yards, one interception.

Defensively for Snyder, Vincent and Selmon intercepted passes. Tony Degrate recovered a fumble. With the exception of the two touchdown drives, Monahans was in Snyder territory only twice; once to the 48, the other to the 45 when Snyder fumbled, but intercepted the following play.

Panthers Win, 40-14...

Hobbs Batters Bryson

HOBBS—Wayne Jones ran for five touchdowns to lead the Hobbs Panthers past Bryson in area six-man football action here Friday evening.

The Panthers, now 2-0 on the season, will play host to Leuders-Avoca, 1-1, Sept. 21 at 8 p.m.

Hobbs scored the first four touchdowns of the game here, all in the first half as Jones ran for scores from 4, 1 and 50 yards out. Perfiero Milano kicked two extra-points trys to give the Panthers a quick 22-0 lead.

The fourth TD came on a Walter Cave catch from quarterback Jeff Anderle from five yards away. The conversion failed.

Bryson got on the tote board near the end of the second quarter when Joe Woodly ran over from the 1-yard line. Woodly converted for a single-point play moments later, finding Frank Bailey along in the end zone to make it 22-7.

Jones got Hobbs going again in the third quarter, scoring from 20 yards out. Again the PAT kick failed.

Bryson came right back as Ken Howard scored on a 1-yard power play. Woodly hit John Braddock in the end zone this time, for another single-point conversion.

Hobbs tacked on the final touchdown in the fourth quarter. Jones was the ball carrier again, taking it in from a yard away. The conversion attempt failed.

Hobbs led in first downs 17 to 14. The Panthers managed eight penatrations while Bryson came up with four.

Bulldogs

in trouble. We came back and held them all of the second half, and most of the second quarter. I feel like we learned a lot from the game. We discovered that we are capable of coming back after another team has scored on us. This game will help us be a lot stronger as the season goes on."

The Bulldogs had one touchdown called back in the third quarter, and sputtered offensively on at least one occasion after reaching the Wildcat 10-yard line.

Pierson also added the second Ira touchdown, capping a 55-yard drive from four yards out. The PAT try failed.

Ira fumbled 11 times in the game, losing five. The Bulldogs recovered two Grady fumbles. Cited as playing good second-half defense for Ira were Robert Mitchell, Jeff Murry and R.D. Phillips.

Ira, 1-1 after thumping Divide a week ago, will host Loop 8 p.m. Sept. 14. Loop plowed past Western Hills 57-8.

Wellman Hands Cards A Second Defeat, 28-22

WELLMAN — Hermleigh's Cardinals, district 2-B six-man champs a year ago, lost their second ballgame in a row here Friday, 28-22 to Wellman. Despite the loss, Hermleigh Coach Clarence Spieker wasn't too unhappy with what he saw.

"We're young and improving," he said. "I said before the season that it would take a few games to get everything together. Just the difference from last week until this week has shown a lot of improvement.

"I don't feel like we were beaten physically. Mostly we stopped ourselves. We made too many mistakes, both offensively and defensively."

Ty Paris, tailback, scored all four of Wellman's touchdowns, the first on a 2-yard plunge which capped a 60-yard march. The conversion failed.

Hermleigh took the lead away when quarterback Chip Roemisch kicked a 2-point conversion boot after finding Asension Fuentes on a 7-yard touchdown pass play.

Wellman went back in front in the second quarter with Paris scoring on an 8-yard run to complete a 40-yard drive. The PAT kick was good. The hosts made it 22-8 as Paris went over from two yards out in the third quarter. The point-after try failed.

Hermleigh trimmed the lead in the third period as Roemisch located Kenny Riley on a 52-yard scoring pass. Roemisch's conversion try failed.

Again Wellman scored with Paris doing the honors from two yards away. Hermleigh got the final points of the game on a Roemisch to Riley pass for 47 yards and a touchdown. Roemisch kicked the points-after.

The Cardinals, 0-2, will travel to Blackwell on Saturday (Sept. 15). Blackwell, which will be celebrating its homecoming at 8 p.m. is also 0-2.

Houston Defeats San Francisco 7-0, Closer To Cincy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)- Vern Ruhle won for the first time since coming off the disabled list two weeks ago, pitching a four-hitter as the Houston Astros beat the San Francisco Giants 7-0 Friday night.

The victory moved Houston within a half-game of first place Cincinnati in the National League West. The Reds lost to Los Angeles 2-0 Friday night.

Rafael Landestoy and Jeff Leonard had two hits apiece off San Francisco starter Ed Halicki, 5-6. Landestoy, the Astros' second baseman, scored two runs, drove in two and also stole bases.

Houston scored in the third inning when Landestoy led off with a single, stole second and came home on Terry Puhl's two-out single. The Astros added three runs, two of them unearned, in the fourth.

Leonard doubled and scored on Landestoy's single in the fourth. The other two runs scored on a two-out throwing error by Giants third baseman Darrell Evans.

COTTON GROWERS —

Don't take chances

Ambush
INSECTICIDE
Restricted use pesticide

When bollworms or tobacco budworms infest your cotton fields there's no time for half way control measures. That's why thousands of growers rely on a new insecticide AMBUSH for dependable control.

AMBUSH insecticide is applied only when insect pressure begins to build up. So you must check your fields on a regular basis. As you know, each area will vary by climate, soil type, type cotton seed variety - so check with our representative in your area, he will give you instructions on the best method of application for your particular cotton operation.

Here are some of the important advantages you get with AMBUSH insecticide: effective control of budworms and bollworms, healthier plants, earlier maturity and bigger yields. Don't delay, order your supply today.

Water District Okays New Contract For AM

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District have approved a new water sales contract with American Magnesium Co.

The board authorized the CRMWD president, P.C. Harbour of Odessa, to execute a contract with a rate the same as that for the city of Snyder, plus a set surcharge.

The CRMWD has been furnishing water for American Magnesium for the past 10 years, but the original contract was due to expire on Nov. 1.

The board also authorized an amendment to the CRMWD employees pension trust and retirement plan, which will lower the amount of contributions required of the district each year which will not decrease benefits due employees under the plan. The amendment calls for changing insurance contracts held on employees by the retirement trust from ordinary life to term insurance.

O.H. Ivie, general manager, was named as investment officer for the district for the purpose of investing funds held by the district. A new law requires all political subdivisions in the state to give written authority to an officer or officers to make such investments and also to provide written guidelines governing the investment of all funds.

The general manager also was authorized to file an application for a permit to conduct weather modification activities the next four years. CRMWD has had an on-going weather modification program for the past nine years and the present four-year contract expires Dec. 31.

The CRMWD board of directors is made up of four members from each of the three member cities. Each city council appoints its members for two-year terms. Snyder's members of the board are Dr. John Blum, vice president; R.D. Fields, Russell Yorgesen and H.W. Cargile.

Odessa's members include P.C. Harbour, president, H.S. Samson, Clyde Yarbrough and Charles R. Perry, while Big Spring is represented on the board by John L. Taylor, vice president, John Currie, Clyde McMahon and Ken. W. Perry.

Rabid Skunk Found Here

A skunk killed in the east part of town was found to have rabies, it was reported Friday.

Dr. Charles Church, veterinarian, said he sent the animal to Austin and Friday received word that tests for rabies were positive.

It is the second animal found to be rabid in Scurry County this year. Another skunk produced a positive report last spring.

State Health Dept. tabulations reveal that dogs involved in rabies tests from over the state show that 38 had been vaccinated for rabies, while 37 percent had not been vaccinated, and it was not known whether the remainder had current immunization. Among cats, 95 percent had not been vaccinated.

Skunks are one of the best-known carriers of rabies, and people are being warned throughout the state to beware of skunks, or any other wild animals that act friendly to human beings, or behave strangely.

Mishap Hurts Cycle Rider

A Snyder man was injured Friday afternoon when his motorcycle was involved in a collision with a pickup truck at the intersection of the Clairemont Road and a U.S. 84 access road.

Tommy Huddleston, 2604 25th St., was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Galyean Ambulance Service for treatment. He was reported to have received a broken leg in the mishap when his 1974 Kawasaki motorcycle collided with a 1974 Dodge pickup truck driven by Dave Mills of Hermleigh at about 4:00 p.m.

At 7:20 p.m. police reported that a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Thurman Massingill, 3112 Ave. A, was in collision with a parked 1977 Dodge owned by Glenn Strong at 307 31st. St. Both vehicles sustained considerable damage.

MR. AND MRS. DARREL LESTER

Clinta Annette McCowen and Darrel Olan Lester were married Aug. 18 before an altar flanked by brass and candlelight. Bob Rhodes, pastor of Northside Baptist Church, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clint McCowen and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lester.

Escorted by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of organza and Chantilly lace designed by Mori Lee Bridals. The high neck of her gown was enhanced by princess embroidery on a sheer yoke. Lace bishop sleeves accented the lace bodice. The chapel length train of layers of ruffles fell from the full skirt of the gown. To complete the ensemble, the bride chose a waltz length veil bordered in Chantilly lace. She carried a cascade of white silk roses and small blue flowers entertwined with blue and lace ribbon.

Following tradition, for something old the bride carried pennies minted in the year of the couple's births. Something new was her gown. She borrowed pearl earrings belonging to her mother and something blue was her garter made by Carolyn Russell.

Mrs. Mike Banks of New Home served as matron of honor. Her attire consisted of a baby blue formal length gown accented by a blouson bodice, square neckline and elbow length sleeves. She carried a basket of mixed blue and white silk flowers accented by a blue lace ribbon.

Neika McCowen, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kelly McCowen of Abilene, Lisa Dennis and Carolyn Russell both of Snyder. All wore gowns and carried bouquets identical to that of the matron of honor.

Jennifer King, niece of the groom served as flower girl. The groom wore a baby blue tuxedo complete with a dark blue velvet trim and tails. His boutonniere was a white silk rose.

Scott Crenwelge served as best man. Groomsmen were Shawn McCowen, brother of the bride, Danny McCormick, Greg Thompson of Midland, and Sambo Kitching of Bay City. They wore baby blue tuxedos trimmed in dark blue velvet. Ushers were Jesse King II of Deer Park and Max Drum.

The bride's mother wore a street length dress of dusty rose quiana and the groom's mother wore a crimson street length dress of qiana. Both wore corsages of silk roses.

Carla Mashino of Spencer, Neb., registered guests.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the fellowship hall. The bride's table featured a four tiered cake topped with a Fostoria bride's bell, a gift from the David Lester family. An antique pitcher and bowl served as the centerpiece. A ceramic handpainted bucket held punch. Pam Gerald of Lubbock and Mrs. Tim Leuerets of Abilene served.

The groom's table held a two tiered chocolate cake. A brass cuspidor holding a floral arrangement centered the table. Coffee was served from a brass coffee service. Mrs. Jesse King II of Deer Park, sister of the groom, and Pam Kohl of San Angelo served.

Members of the house-party were Mmes. Robby Robinson, Dewey McAnear, Eldon Perry and Billy Prince.

Rice bags were passed out by Enock Dalhbert and Ahlona Dahlberg of Lynch, Neb.

The bride chose for her going away attire a vest and skirt set of rust suede cloth.

The couple will reside in Lubbock where both are junior students and Texas Tech University. The groom is majoring in mechanical engineering technology and the bride is majoring in medical technology. Both are 1977 Snyder High School graduates.

Out of town guests were from Nebraska, California, Deer Park, Bay City, Post, Abilene, Odessa, Lubbock, Midland, Hermleigh and Slaton.

A luncheon honoring the bride was given in the home of Mrs. Robby Robinson Aug. 18.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner in their home Aug. 17.

KEEPING FRESH FRUITS FRESH:

To people with unripened fruit that birds have been threatening, perhaps these suggestions will help even those who purchase their fruit from the grocery store.

Taking proper care of fresh fruits helps keep them firm, fresh and delicious.

"As fruits ripen, they increase in sugar and decrease in starch and acidity. Protopectin, a large pectin molecule, characteristic of underripe fruit, changes to a smaller molecule, pectin, which promotes jelling for fruit jellies. In overripe fruits the pectin changes to an even smaller molecule causing softness in overripe fruit.

To keep fruit exactly ripe, there are several principles to remember. Most fruits, except bananas and pears, are of highest quality if ripened before they are picked. Because of nationwide distribution, it is often best to pick fruits when they are underripe. These fruits may then be ripened by the use of ethylene gas. Ethylene gas is given off by fruits during the normal process of ripening and therefore is a natural means of ripening.

Sort and either discard or use immediately any damaged druits. Fruits, except berries, cherries and thick-skinned fruits, should be washed and dried before storage.

Berries and cherries should be put immediately into the refrigerator in a shallow container so that air can circulate around them. Do not wash before putting into the refrigerator.

Any unripe fruits should be left to ripen in the open air away from direct sunlight, because they will not ripen in the refrigerator.

Bananas are best when stored at room temperature. The cooler temperature in the refrigerator turns this fruit dull brown.

Citrus fruits can be kept at room temperature for several days but will keep even longer in the refrigerator. If held too long at cold temperatures, however, the skin may become pitted and the flesh discolored.

Underripe melons can be stored at room temperature but should be refrigerated when ripe and used within a short time.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The bidding in the box is taken direct from the Sommerville book. The two-spade response was reasonably correct 50 years ago. South's three hearts and North's four hearts were also normal. Then came the fireworks!

South decided that he would be sure to make the heart slam provided he could stop a diamond lead. So he bid five diamonds! North just bid five hearts. He had run out of constructive bids when he jumped to two spades.

Confident that he had stopped a diamond lead, South went on to the slam in spite of North's sign-off and West dutifully opened his fourth-best club whereupon South had no trouble making all 13 tricks.

That diamond bid by South was a bit of deceptive bidding that was popular in the early days of contract and is still in use today although this particular five-diamond call should have acted like a red rag to a bull and produced a diamond lead from West even if he did not hold the ace. We will discuss various fancy attacking bids next week.

MR. AND MRS. JAY W. JONES
(Photo By Ted Bigham)

Miss Lora Sutton became the bride of Jay W. Jones in a candlelight ceremony Aug. 9, at 8 p.m. at the Saint John's Episcopal Church. Rev. Monte Jones officiated the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sutton. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, all of Snyder.

Miss Patricia Halford greeted the guests and presented them with rice bags.

The church was decorated with window candles for the candlelight ceremony. At the altar two brass vases arranged of white carnations completed the setting for the formal ceremony.

Organist, Mrs. Monte Jones presented the traditional wedding selections.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown, made of creped satin which featured an empire waistline which formed a long train. The scoop neck accented the bodice. The lace fitted sleeves were accented at the wrists with pearl buttons. The shaped finger-tip veil completed the bridal attire.

She carried a bouquet of split white carnations accented with baby's breath with cascading love knot streamers.

Carrying out tradition, something old was a cross necklace given to her by a friend, something new was her dress made by her mother, something borrowed was a set of pearl earrings from Mrs. Mike Welsh, and something blue was her garter.

Becky Welsh of Snyder was maid of honor. Sharon Halford and Leesa Claxton were bridesmaids. The attendants wore floor length gowns made of crepe knit. The dresses were a floral print with apricot and brown blended colors on a mint background. The dress skirt gathered to the bodice above a normal waistline was accented by a silk ribbon. These dresses were also made by the bride's mother. The attendants carried nosegays of split white carnations tipped in mint green, accented with baby's breath and mint green ribbon streamers.

Serving as best man was Gary Hamilton, cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were Eddie Veretto and Jack Fulford. The usher was Dude Jones, brother of the groom.

The groom wore a formal toast brown tuxedo featuring a mint green ruffled shirt and boutonniere made of green tipped white carnations. Both fathers and attendants wore toast brown tuxedos with ruffled shirts and carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Sutton chose a multicolor floor length gown. Mother of the groom wore a floor length gown of apricot silk organza. They both wore white carnation corsages.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the couple's parents in the Church Parish Hall.

Mrs. Reagan Williams of Lubbock and Miss Nona Sutton, both sisters of the bride served guests from the bride's table holding a three tiered wedding cake decorated in mint green and white. They served punch from a crystal punch bowl. Appointments of crystal were used. The bride's bouquet and the attendant's nosegays centered the table.

Miss Ruthie Bozeman and Miss Carla Jones, sisters of the groom served at the groom's table. A devils food cake and coffee was served from crystal and silver appointments.

Special guests at the wedding were the bride's grandmother, Ruby Sutton, and the groom's grandmother's Mrs. Bertha Coy and Mattie Morris.

Out of town guests registered from Rankin and Lubbock.

Following their wedding trip to the Brownwood Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Jay W. Jones are living in Snyder, where the bride is attending Snyder High School and the groom is employed by Grimmett Brothers.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Smorgasbord. The bride's chosen colors of mint green were carried out in arrangements.

Mrs. Thomas Speaks To Eagle Forum Group

The Eagle Forum meeting opened with the pledge to the flag, and the group Singing "America," and prayer. Wanda Justice, vice president, presided in the absence of Mary Gill, president.

Following the installation ceremony, Nina Jones, accompanied by Mrs. Watts, pianist, sang "Take My Hand, Precious Lord". In a short business session, the group agreed to join in a coalition of organizations in a nationwide day of prayer on Oct. 14. This is the day a march on Washington, D.C. is planned by homosexual organizations.

The October meeting has been scheduled with Jay Newsom, pastor of Agape Christian Fellowship, speaking on "A Conspiracy in America." The public is invited to attend all meetings.

Barbara McCormick, program chairman, introduced the speaker, Clydene Thomas, vice president of Lubbock Eagle Forum.

About two years ago, she attended an Austin meeting in which the role of mother and homemaker was degraded and ridiculed. This has caused her to attempt to inform people of the goals of feminists.

Mrs. Thomas says the words "International Year of the Child" (IYC) bring to mind poor, hungry, abused children. But this is not the case, according to Monday night's speaker. Mrs. Thomas gave a brief background of the IYC movement. Many of the goals of IYC were formulated as early as 1970 by such women as Betty Friedan and Gloria Steinham, as part of the International Women's Decade. She pointed out that in appointments by Presidents Ford and Carter, committees were slanted toward the feminist movement, in one case, by 44 who were pro-ERA, with no conservatives. Other goals of the feminist movement are to promote a belief in humanism, which teaches that man is responsible only to himself, not God; a one-world government; an end to capitialism and free enterprise; and redistribution of wealth. Bible religion, the traditional family, and different roles for men and women are held to be undesirable, and as such should be done away with, using any means possible.

In a March 1979 conference, the Texas Family Institute endorsed the goals of the IYC: 24-hour, Federally-funded day care centers; total disarmament; national health insurance for children with Federal supervision; and children's rights. This would give children the right to make any decision they choose, instead of parents directing and guiding them. However, Texas was one of four states which did not vote to endorse the IYC goals.

Mrs. Thomas also pointed out that the U.N. pushed sales of the book "Children's Rights Movement" in conjunction with IYC. In this is "A Child's Bill of Rights", which states that a child should have the right to live where he wishes; should be able to choose his education--or no education, should have any sexual rights adults have, should be able to vote, and should live in a society which is designed to accomodate children on their level. Also, the document calls for no physical punishment for children. The speaker pointed out that Sweden now has a law of this kind, and a nine-year old boy was the first child to file suit against his parents for spanking him.

"Over two hundred non-government organizations support IYC. But the plan for 'a new generation' is for increased Federal involvement and control in child rearing. Our children are more precious than any possession; shall the family continue to shape a child's life, or shall professional educators and social workers, paid and directed by the Federal Government, take the place of parents?" Mrs. Thomas concluded.

Enjoy Lobster On A Budget

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

A small amount of frozen rock lobster tail can make a very impressive main course. This recipe using coconut and sliced mushrooms requires less than an hour in the kitchen. And its price is right.

Serve this rich concoction with hot rice and a pineapple-mandarin orange salad.

ROCK LOBSTER COCONUT

- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 4 large onions, chopped
- 2 carrots, shredded
- 12 ounces of frozen South African rock lobster tails
- ½ cup flaked coconut
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 (13-3/4-ounce) can chicken broth
- 2 (4-ounce) cans sliced mushrooms, drained
- Salt and pepper
- Hot cooked rice

Heat butter in saucepan. Saute onions and carrots slowly over low heat until very soft but not brown, about 20 to 25 minutes.

Thaw rock lobster tails by holding under warm running water for several minutes. With scissors, remove underside membranes and pull meat out in one piece. Cut into 1-inch crosswise slices.

Add rock lobster pieces and coconut to onions. Saute 5 minutes.

Mix cornstarch and chicken broth. Stir into rock lobster mixture. Cook, stirring, over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens.

Stir in mushrooms. Season to taste with salt and papper. Serve spooned over hot rice. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Force a decision

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I am a 28-year-old divorced woman with two children. I am in love with a married man. He says he loves me too.

At first he told me he couldn't leave his wife because she had recently had an operation. Later he gave other excuses. He doesn't have children so that isn't what is stopping him.

He shows me so much respect and concern. My children really adore him. He spends much of his time with them and they already think of him as their stepfather.

They ask me when we will all be a family. I'm at a loss for words because every time I ask him that question, he says, "It won't be long."

I want to know the truth even if it hurts, but he refuses to commit himself. I just hope I don't get devastated like I did in my first marriage. I lived in fear then and took many needless beatings.

Should I wait a little longer or am I wasting my time?

DEAR READER — Make up your mind that the only way this man can show you respect and concern is to put his money where his mouth is.

You do not need empty promises. You need — and deserve — action.

Whether you realize it or not, you are in another relationship in which a man is hurting you. Though these beatings are not physical, they are just as painful.

Force the man to show his true colors by making some specific demands.

Don't you agree that he should at least have spoken to his wife by now about the possibility of separation? After all, that is the least to ask of a man you are hoping to marry.

If he has not brought up the subject with her yet, tell him that you expect him to do so within a month if he has any serious intention of marrying you. If that fails, suggest that he see a professional counselor to work out his ambivalence.

He may make these moves if he really feels he is in danger of losing you.

He will probably make some decision once he realizes his days of having his cake and eating it too are over. Be prepared for things to go either way.

Also be ready for his anger at your change in behavior. He may even accuse you of becoming demanding like his wife. Don't let him trick you into backing down. Your request is legitimate.

You might also begin preparing the children for the possibility that all this might not work out. Be as honest with them as you can. They have a lot to lose too.

And please let me know what happens.

Wash in the shower as you usually do, then step out from under the shower and smooth baby oil or one of the fragranced oils all over your body. Then step back under the water and rinse. Dry with a fluffy towel and your skin will be as satiny as if you had soaked for hours in bath oil.

Tammy Farmer presented tradifional wedding music and accompanied Julie Roemisch who sang "More" as the candles were lit by Hayley Vineyard, cousin of the bride and Larray Farr. Their dresses and headpieces were identical to the flower girls'. Miss Roemisch sang "Color My World" after the bride was given in marriage by her father, and "You Light Up My Life" as the memory candle was lit by the couple.

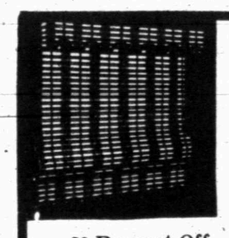

A reception was held in the Hermleigh Community Center. The bride's table was covered with a pink cloth and white lace skirt. The table featured two double tiered cakes joined together by a staircase. Punch was served from a crystal punch bowl. Serving were Shehala Holder and Andrea Killian.

The groom's table held a German chocolate cake and coffee served from a silver service. The centerpiece was a blue candle. Kathy Wells, aunt of the groom and Trenda Gray, cousin of the groom served.

Out of town guests were from Fort Worth, Midland, Sweetwater, Odessa, Roanoke, Justin, Commerce and Ontario, Canada.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a pink organza dress trimmed with white lace and accented with a white orchid corsage.

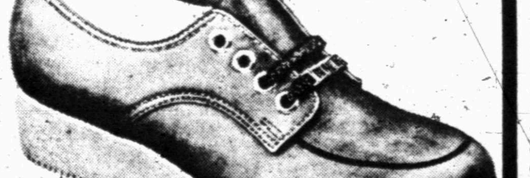

The couple resides here where the bridegroom is employed by Lease Equipment and the bride is a student at WTC and employed by C.R. Anthony Co.

scientist's rebuttal

Dr. Edward Teller, "the father of the H-bomb," professor emeritus at the University of California and senior research fellow at Standford University's Hoover Institution, has lashed out at Jane Fonda, Ralph Nader "and their kind." In a two-page advertisement placed by Dresser Industries in the Wall Street Journal, Dr. Teller's published message decried using propaganda to frighten people away from the nuclear energy the country needs for survival.

Dr. Teller said, "On May 7, a few weeks after the incident at Three-Mile Island, I was in Washington. I was there to refute some of the propaganda that Ralph Nadar, Jane Fonda and their kind are spewing to the news media in their attempt to frighten people away from nuclear power.

"I am 71 years old, and I was working 20 hours a day. The strain was too much. The next day I suffered a heart attack. You might say that I was the only one whose health was affected by the reactor near Harrisburg. No, that would be wrong. It was not the reactor. It was Jane Fonda. Reactors are not dangerous."

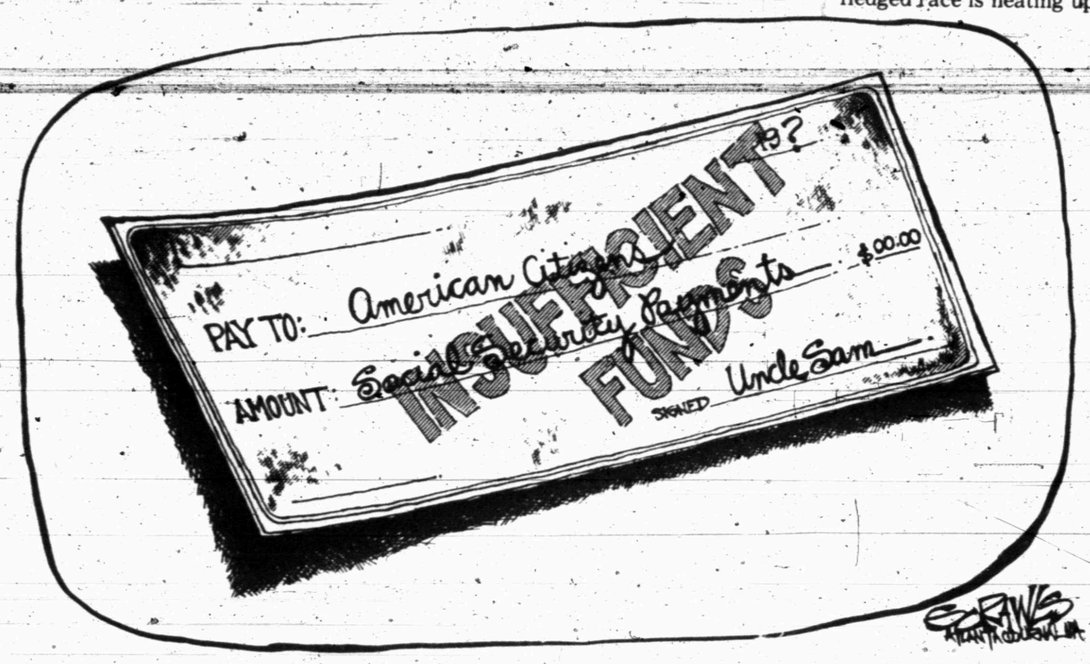

This prestigious scientist says that the greatest present-day threat to the prosperity and even the survival of nations is a lack of energy. "Nuclear power is part of the answer to that problem, only a part, but a very important part," He says that high gas prices, growing gas lines and electrical brownouts are only minor irritants. "They are nothing compared to what may lie ahead. In a struggle for survival, politics, law religion and even humanity may be forgotten. When the objective is to stay alive, the end may seem to justify the means. In that event, the world may indeed return to the 'simpler' life of the past, but millions of us will not be alive to discover its disadvantages.

"When our existence is at stake, we cannot afford to turn our backs on any source of energy. We need them all," he said.

Teller states flatly that nuclear power is the safest, cleanest way to generate large amounts of electrical energy. He says, "This is not merely my opinion - it is fact. Due to the lessons learned at Three-Mile Island, the nuclear way will be made even safer."

The scientist said that questions raised in relation to nuclear use are problems because of political indecision or public fear. "Technically, they are non-problems, because the dangers they imply do not exist or else we have the knowhow to solve them.

"I am absolutely convinced of this, after a lifetime of work as a nuclear scientist," Teller said. "I believe we have reached a turning point in history. The anti-nuclear propaganda we are hearing puts democracy to a severe test. Unless the political trend toward energy development in this country changes rapidly, there may not be a United States in the twenty-first century," he said.

commentary

donald f. graff

WASHINGTON (NEA)— An undeclared but full-fledged race is heating up in the House of Representatives as Republicans prepare for the likely departure of their minority leader, Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona.

The contest would pit a colorful GOP partisan who has spent years traveling across the country on behalf of Republican candidates against a steady but unspectacular House veteran who has made his mark as an effective legislator. It would be the classic match of Mr. Outside versus Mr. Inside.

Rhodes has not yet announced his campaign plans for 1980 but insiders have noted his silence on many House issues in the past few months and reluctance to immerse himself in party squabbles.

The tipoff is his likely retirement came in June when he told a Phoenix reporter that he thinks seven years is long enough for anyone to serve as minority leader; Rhodes, who took the post when Gerald R. Ford became vice president in December 1973, will soon begin his seventh year.

The already emerging campaigns of the two candidates most likely to succeed Rhodes could be called off if he chooses to run again, but neither of the hopefuls think the prospect is very great.

Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan believes his party's image and rhetoric need a boost. His closest associates say that Republicans have not been aggressive enough in telling the public they are the party of reduced spending and taxes.

To a large extent, they blame Rhodes for not setting a tough tone or constantly stressing how GOP control of the House would differ from the current Democratic leadership.

Vander Jagt believes that Rhodes - like Ford before him - has been an adequate referee for intraparty disputes and can set an agenda of party positions but that he lacks the will to be the national spokesman for House Republicans.

His considerable support comes from both the recently elected Republicans because of the campaign help he gave them, as well as the more conservative party activists, some of whom has been impressed by his fiery attacks on Democratic policies and proposals. One drawback may be that he has relatively modest record to show for his 13 years in the House.

Vander Jagt's almost certain opponent, Rep. Robert H. Michel of Illinois, is a more traditional lawmaker who does his homework and has demonstrated his effectiveness on behalf of his pet projects - particularly limiting the growth of the federal food stamp program and trimming wasteful spending at the Health, Education and Welfare Department. In the last two years, he has succeeded in cutting $1.5 billion from the HEW budget.

As a member of the minority party, he was able to attract the necessary Democratic votes to gain passage of his proposals. As the second-ranking House Republican leader since 1975, he also has helped forge consensus among his party colleagues on most major issues.

However, he has found his minority whip post confining at times because he has not wanted to upstage Rhodes, the party leader, when they disagree. In addition, Michel is a press secretary's nightmare; he has done little to promote himself publicly or to convince others of his leadership ability.

Michel's low-key style could hurt him as Vander Jagt begins to line up pledges of support for his candidacy while Michel continues to wait for Rhode's official retirement statement. One Michel supporter said that if Michel does not soon discuss with Rhodes their respective plans, then he doesn't deserve to be minority leader.

The December 1980 race for party leadership could take on added importance if Republicans increase their House strength, as strategists in both parties believe could happen. Since their 159 seats leave them 59 short of a majority, a switch in party control of the House probably won't happen next year but it could transpire in the following four six years.

If he performed well as minority leader, the winner would then be in line to be speaker of the House.

car magazines

I've never advertised anything I don't use.

A car-maker expressed an interest in sponsoring some of my broadcasts and his was a make and model vehicle I had never used.

"But ours is best," he insisted. "You can confirm that by reading Car and Driver."

What in the world was Car and Driver, I wondered.

Now I know -- and exploring that publication and the several related periodicals exclusively about cars -- old, new, classic, race, off-the-road, and just-for-fun cars -- has given me a new perspective on motors and motor cars and motoring.

I had neglected my car.

I'd filled it with gas, sometimes barely in time. I'd had the oil changed more or less at 3,000-mile intervals.

But the filters I had neglected, and since break-in it had never been properly retuned.

After reading some of those automotive magazines and learning of the pleasure a driver derives from a properly responsive car, I had my neglected '78 model gone over -- thoroughly.

The engine was tuned, filters changed, jets cleaned, wheels aligned, shocks replaced, and I don't really know what all else -- but, sure enough, the difference is significant.

Now it's less like wrestling and more like dancing with a good dancer.

Some of those newsstand magazines are exclusively for Corvette owners, some for the owners of four-wheel-drive vehicles, some for sports cars and others for the owners of recreation vehicles -- but all of them teach the reader about torque and drift and compression ratios, about slip angle and understeer, about turning radius and aftershock oscillation and roll and pitch and yaw.

But mostly, what you glean from an inside-out understanding of modern cars is that they are supercars by the standards of yesteryear.

Professional detractors of U.S. manufacture have tried to brainwash us with the notion that anything new is purposely flimsey junk, predisposed to self-destruct.

That is a lie large enough to sound convincing but it is not so!

No industry competes more exhaustively with engineering and technological advances than does the automotive industry.

And thanks to that competition and despite government mandated modifications, you and I are now able to buy an automobile which each year accomplishes new highs in performance and reliability.

Let's stop mean-mouthing ourselves.

One car now has a "thinking" detonator sensor in the ignition system -- a tiny transducer -- which listens for the onset of pre-ignition and automatically signals the distributor to retard the spark timing, thus using every bit of octane in the fuel.

And such is the competition for excellence that what's now "experimental" promises a whole bunch of Happy New Years!

my turn

by roy mcqueen, publisher

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There has never been a person with an inflated ego who wasn't full of hot air."

Every town has its share of characters. Characters are different from personalities -- they are unique.

When we grew up in Andrews, there were several characters brought to the town by drilling and other oil activity.

One such fellow was a Dutchman named Albert Sybesma. For years we never knew how to pronounce his name and we avoided any conversation with him because our West Texas ears made him sound difficult if not impossible to understand.

His humor, also was different, and in our youth we just didn't understand how to appreicate it. We viewed him as a very black and white sort of fellow. He ran the local Hillcrest Motel and fed and educated three children in the local schools.

That didn't impress us much then, but supporting a family with a modest motel in Andrews, Texas, in the late 1950's, was quite an achievement.

We didn't know what the word conservative meant then, but Albert was one of the original. In fact some folks viewed him as an aginner.

More and more people grew to respect his opinion, and the doctors in the community later invited him to become their clinic business manager -- a job that he did with great competency. A few years later, he was made administrator of a pretty successful community hospital.

That brings us to the reason to remember Albert Sybesma. It all revolved around a conflict with the government in trying to do his job.

At the hospital, it is his duty to answer most of the questionaires that come from HUD, OSHA, Medicare and all the other various federal agencies.

Albert got a bellyful the other day and struck back -- in a beautifully written answer with irrefutable logic.

Here's what the hard-headed Dutchman had to say:

Daniel L. Galvan
Director, Health and Human Development Division
1200 Main Tower Building
Dallas, Texas Dear Sir:

I received your questionnaire. Instead of answering all of your questions to save time, I am informing you that so far we have had no problems. Ten percent of our employees are Latin-American and are bilingual.

If there is a language problem we call in one of our Spanish employees to help with the problem. With the blind and hard of hearing we haven't had any problems either.

We will forward the questionnaire and the letter to President Carter and our senators and Representative Kent Hance and to the T.V. Station in our area for comment, to let them know what H.E.W. is doing to hospitals.

It is questionnaire after questionnaire; we have to take care of patients, that is our job. Bureaucrats worry too much about the welfare and comfort of their subjects.

In our community we have Vietnamese, Hebrews, Phillippinos, Japanese, Dutch, Germans and Italians, Indians from Bombay. Why is it that you are only worried about Spanish interpreters. In America we speak English and all those mentioned above have learned to speak English. You should have interpreters for all these people in your office if you don't want to discriminate.

Those who want to live here and enjoy all the benefits should be willing to learn and speak English. I will finish my letter with the Dutch language to show if each minority had their way, how chaotic the U.S. would become.

A man came to his minister, literally crying: "I'm completely ruined."

He had borrowed on every possession and insurance policy he had to go into business with several other men. The company just didn't go because of some bad breaks and a few mistakes. The man was not only out of a job now but he owed over $150,000.

He was telling himself he was completely ruined. Part of this was actual fact — he did owe $150,000 and he didn't have a job at present. Part of this was an opinion of the fact — "I'm ruined." It was his opinion that was worrying him sick.

The minister had him take pencil and paper and helped him make a list of his assets. He had good health. He had an understanding wife and two high school youngsters. He was still alive. He had the brains to make money once and he still had the same brains.

Soon his opinion of the facts changed. He saw there was a great difference between the facts and his opinion of the facts. He put his worry to work for him. His worry, now under control, motivated him to get up and walk, explore his possibilities and God's probabilities and get busy making himself productive.

Worry isn't the problem. It is how we handle our worry.

GAYLA JENNINGS
...she's in there swinging

Cooking School Leader Enjoys Today's Exciting Competition

There's a spirit of competition growing and home economist Gayla Jennings is right in the middle of it, swinging spatula and cookbook, full throttle. Gayla is part of Progressive Farmer Southern Kitchens Cooking School. As home economist with the school, she presents demonstrations in many Southern cities throughout the year.

"I believe that hard work pays off," she tells you determinedly. Gayla likes to set goals and wants to be as good as she can at what she's doing with Southern Kitchens -- and what she's doing involves plenty.

Gayla organizes, tests, and prepares recipes for food demonstrations that make up a two-hour stage show she and her partner, Joan Powell, choreograph in step-by-step details. Dishes actually evolve from scratch to finish in the course of the show. Members of the audience complete the ritual by coming on stage to taste the results of her efforts.

Before joining the Cooking School, she represented a major power company as consumer advisor. Gayla, who took a degree in home economics from the University of Texas, has worked in fashions and interior design as well. But since coming to Southern Kitchens in October of 1978, Gayla has discovered a new excitement in doing the shows.

"I'm never tired the night of a show," she says with a laugh despite the many obvious hours of preparation. Going over every little item prior to curtain takes a lot of time, Gayla acknowledges. "But you have to feel like you're in control," she says. The extra attention pays off in other ways. For one, it allows her to take an artistic approach to her preparations by adding garnishes to dishes that might go unnoticed otherwise.

Traveling for Southern Kitchens takes Gayla to many different communities each month, but she describes this on-the-go routine as "terrific!" She enjoys the travel -- especially since so many of the towns she visits remind her of her own home in Texas.

"My home town (Graham) has about 9,000 people," she explains. "In school you grow up with everybody. I can relate to so many more people because of my background--it's natural."

Co-sponsored by the Snyder Daily News, the Cooking School will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 25 in the Snyder High School Auditorium.

Admission is free, but a ticket is required because of limited seating. Tickets may be picked up at any participating Snyder merchant. Last year, some 975 persons attended the cooking school.

Tickets are now available at Furr's, Roe's Furniture, Lone Star Gas, Texas Electric Service Co. and Goodyear. Tickets are available just for the asking.

Persons attending will be eligible for a variety of door prizes including a microwave oven and 10 sacks of groceries. Every person attending will receive a gift pack filled with recipes and valuable coupons.

Rabbit-Attack Policy Formed

WASHINGTON (AP)-In the wake of President Carter's aquatic run-in with a panicked rabbit, the Defenders of Wildlife has unveiled a seven-point plan for "enlighted, nolethal policies on predators, including rabbits."

The much-publicized rabbit swam frantically toward Carter's canoe during a fishing trip last spring, prompting him to frighten it off with a paddle. In a letter to the president, the environmental group recommends that next time a rabbit tries to climb into his canoe, the president should "stand up, wave arms, and yell 'hoo:"

Group official Toby Cooper also suggests that presidential canoes could be equipped with padded paddles, to avoid hurting frantic bunnies; that bells, rattling pots and pans, or recordings of hawks and owls may help keep rabbits at bay - and the presidential party should keep moving in case the noise-makers don't work.

Dear Abby

A Gentle Hint, Tough Customer!

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: I am a salesperson selling women's wear in a large department store. We make the minimum wage and no commission. We take great pains to be polite and helpful regardless of how rude or inconsiderate the customer is. I'm sure thousands of salespeople encounter the same problems that I face daily. As a favor to all of us, will you please print this:

HOW TO MAKE A SALESPERSON'S DAY

If you are approached by a salesperson who offers to help you, ignore her.

Ask if you may take more than the permitted number of garments into the fitting room.

If you are refused, sneak in with an armload and leave the rejects on the floor.

If your makeup soils a garment, don't tell the clerk so she can have it cleaned.

Let your children pull off price tags and chew on your fitting room number.

If you normally take a 14, try to squeeze into a 12. (What do you care if you split the seams? It's not yours.)

Should you accidentally break a zipper or pull a button off, keep quiet. Let the next person who tries it on mention it.

If there's a NO SMOKING sign in the fitting room, light up anyway, and say you didn't see the sign.

If the salesperson is sufficiently conscientious to carefully compare your signature to the one on your charge plate, act insulted.

If you return anything, throw away all the tags and receipt, and demand a cash refund!

HAD IT IN BUFFALO

DEAR ABBY: I believe that nursing a baby is a private affair. If a nursing mother wants to return to her job, she should pump her breasts and put the milk into sterile bottles and place them in the refrigerator for the proper dispensation by the sitter. What do you think?

ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW

DEAR POINT: If the mother can have her child brought TO her for nursing (at her own expense) and forego her coffee break for her baby's milk break, I'd go along with it. But demanding that employers provide a special set-up for nursing mothers would be a costly accommodation for which the consumer (or taxpayer) would have to pay, and I'm opposed to it.

DEAR ABBY: My parents were hitters. They never actually beat us viciously, but were quick to reach out and slap when angered, whether punishment was warranted or not. Anger was expressed verbally in our household, too; not rationally, but loudly and often cruelly.

My problem is that I grew up learning this kind of behavior and I can't seem to control myself. My husband, who is fairly even-tempered, is horrified when I reach out and slap his face during an argument. (The rest of the time we have an excellent relationship.)

I also can't control my tongue and often say things in the heat of anger I'm later ashamed of.

We're not sure yet if we want children, but I know I'd better clean up my act if we ever have them. Can you tell me how to break these terrible habits?

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Habits are learned behavior. And what has been learned can be unlearned. When you feel yourself becoming angry—and BEFORE you lose control—leave the room and cool off.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SWINGING IN THE TOWERS": Your suggested 11th commandment, "Thou shalt not get caught," is very catchy, but if you obey the first 10, you won't need an 11th.

Sierra Club Members In Love With Nature

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)- Before the turn of the century, a small group of men gathered in the downtown office of Warren Olney, a San Francisco attorney. They shared a common goal - the conservation of the lands they knew and loved.

So they sat down and wrote the Articles of Incorporation for their small explorer group: "To explore, enjoy and render accessible the mountain regions of the Pacific Coast, to publish authentic information concerning them, to enlist the support and cooperation of the people and the government in preserving the forest and other nature features of the Sierra Nevada mountains."

The Sierra Club was born and John Muir, well known conservationist, explorer and writer, was elected president. That was in 1892.

At that time, the group worked to establish national parks, national monuments and wilderness areas in California and surrounding areas.

Now, the organization has grown tremendously - from 200 to 180,000 members, from a meager treasury to an $8 million yearly budget, from one state to all 50 and several foreign countries.

The club has expanded its political and environmental scope, taking on developers, corporations, and anyone it considers hostile to its efforts to keep environment pristine and wilderness areas wild.

The club wields its substantial influence through an organization embracing 8,000 local chapters, a lobbying force in Washington, a national headquarters in San Francisco and an international headquarters at the United Nations building in New York.

The club has its critics, many of whom don't oppose its objective but feel the club often fails to draw a reasonable balance between environmental and economic concerns.

"They have a blind love affair with the concept of wilderness and don't care how it affects the residents of the state," says Rep. Don Young, a Republican from Alaska, where the club has been involved in much controversy.

The basic philosophy of the group has not changed from its humble beginning. Besides legislative efforts, the club gets its message across through publications, organized outings and other services.

"I inherited the American dream and I wanted to see my children inherit that same dream. Berkeley Hills was my wilderness. Now my children can no longer see them," says David Brower, the Sierra Club's first executive director and later the founder of Friends of the Earth, another conservationist organization.

Under Brower's leadership, which began in 1952, the club developed a professional staff, a strong lobby and expanded publishing programs.

Eventually, Brower, 72, resigned as director in a dispute over location of a controversial nuclear power plant in California.

Sudden infant death

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 18 years old and recently my four-month-old baby daughter died. The doctor said it was a crib death but nobody can tell me what a crib death is. She wasn't sick or anything. She played and laughed the night before she died. The doctor said she was perfectly healthy. If she was, why did she die? I've got to know what a crib death is, so please help me.

DEAR READER — This problem goes by several different names. It's also called sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS). I'm sorry to tell you that no one knows for certain what causes these deaths.

They're most apt to occur during the first year of life. There are over 10,000 infants who die from this problem each year. It's the most common cause for infant death in the first year of life.

Old Testament accounts refer to such deaths and it seems to have been just as frequent in the 18th and 19th century as it is today. So it's not exactly a product of modern civilization.

There have been an infinite number of theories presented as to what causes the sudden death in an apparently healthy baby. No doubt there is more than one cause. The most prevalent view now is that it's associated with the immature development of the vital centers in the brain, particularly those that control respiration. Research in recent years has shown that certain sleep patterns, particularly those associated with periods when the baby may stop breathing temporarily, may be associated with SIDS.

Perhaps the most important thing I could do for you is to tell you that the baby's death has nothing whatever to do with anything you did. It is quite common for such a baby to be carefully examined by a very competent physician and pronounced to be in good health. In most cases there is nothing you can see on an ordinary physical examination that would lead you to think that the baby had any problem at all. Autopsy examinations fail to show anything that would be responsible for the child's death.

Such unexplained sudden deaths have led to real human tragedy where parents were accused by law enforcement officers of mistreating the baby which doesn't help.

You should also know that your baby did not suffer. The usual pattern is for such infants to die in their sleep although sudden death has been known to occur in other situations even immediately after breast feeding.

You and other parents might want to know that there is a National Foundation For Sudden Infant Death. There might be a chapter in your community. If not, headquarters for the National Foundation for Sudden Infant Death is 310 Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60604; their phone number is (312) 663-0650. You may be able to get additional information from this agency or if you have problems or questions, they may be able to direct you to the right place.

THERE ARE many causes of diarrhea and there is new information on how to treat and prevent some common causes. Readers who want more information on this can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 13-8, What You Need To Know About Diarrhea. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

FBI Started Rumor About Jean Seberg

WASHINGTON (AP)— The FBI has acknowledged that in 1970 is was responsible for spreading a rumor that Jean Seberg, the actress who recently committed suicide, was pregnant by a black activist.

Earlier this week, Miss Seberg's former husband, Romain Gary, said that as a result of the news story planted by the FBI, Miss Seberg's life was destroyed.

The FBI released a memorandum dated April 27, 1970 from its Los Angeles office to then FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover requesting permission to publicize the pregnancy.

The memo said FBI agents "felt the possible publication of Seberg's plight could cause her embarrassment and serve to cheapen her image with the general public."

The memo suggested that the best way to publicize the rumor would be by having a fictitious person send a tip to Hollywood gossip columnists.

FBI headquarters responded:

"Jean Seberg has been a financial supporter of the BPP (Black Panther Party) and should be neutralized. Her current pregnancy by (blank space) while still married affords an opportunity for such efforts.

Nixon Says He Botched Watergate

NEW YORK (AP)—In one of the strongest statements he has made on the subject, former President Richard M. Nixon says history "will justifiably record" that his handling of Watergate was "an unmitigated disaster."

The admission is contained in a new introduction to his 1962 book "Six Crises," which will be reissued next month.

Nixon says that since he wrote the book he has "gone through another crisis, the Watergate ordeal, the longest lasting and by far the most grueling of all ...."

"History will justifiably record that my handling of the Watergate crisis was an unmitigated disaster," Nixon writes. "After going through the six crises described in this volume, I failed to apply the lessons of the past to the problems of the present and the future.

"I trust that those who read this book will not make that mistake."

The introduction, however, is not the first time that Nixon acknowledged mistakes in his handling of Watergate.

He told television interviewer David Frost in 1977 that "it was botched up; I made so many bad judgments."

Feds Plan To Bankroll Angel Dust Experiment

AUSTIN (AP)—A federal agency plans to bank-roll experiments with "angel dust" on human beings, and a University of Texas scientist says the government is taking an "immoral" risk of destroying minds.

"The National Institute on Drug Abuse in Rockville, Md., invited grant proposals in April for human experimentation with phencyclidine - commonly called PCP or "angel dust."

Several research organizations responded by the June 4 deadline. Nancy Coleman, a contract officer for the institute, said it could be December or later before a grant is awarded.

The research planned by the institute also envisions human experimentation with marijuana, valium, librium, methaqualone and other abused drugs. But the institute wants answers on PCP first, within a year of the contract date.

"I think this is an immoral proposition. The risk to the human subjects of the experiments is greater than the possible benefits," said Dr. Alan Combs, a pharmacology professor at the University of Texas at Austin.

But Dr. Gene Barnett, a research chemist for the institute, said morality is on the side of the federal agency.

"It's the moral issue that got us involved ... I believe it (the research) will have a substantial contribution to make in the treatment of the overdose patient," he said in a telephone interview.

Dr. Marvin Snyder, the institute's research director, said time is the only treatment now available for persons suffering psychotic reactions to "angel dust," and it can be a very long time, 30 days or more in some cases," he said.

The institute, a branch of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, wants to know what happens to phencyclidine after it enters the body - both orally and by injection.

Whoever gets the three-year federal grant will try to learn how rapidly the body processes the drug, how long it remains in the body, in which organs it concentrates and how the body reacts to it.

Snyder said the cost would be "substantially under $1 million for one year ... I doubt it will be over $1 million for three years."

PCP was found in the bloodstream of Ira Attebery, who killed two and wounded dozens of people when he opened fire on the Fiesta parade in San Antonio on April 17.

Combs said it is impossible to know whether the drug caused Attebery to kill but it is known that hallucinogenic drugs such as PCP are "linked to people trying to fly and looking at the sun for three hours and burning their retinas out."

A 1978 article in the American Journal of Hospital Pharmacy said persons using PCP might become combative, appear catatonic or show symptoms of paranoid schizophrenia.

"Deaths attributed to phencyclidine intoxication are usually the results of accidents. Drownings, jumping off cliffs, automobile accidents or inability to flee from fires far outnumber deaths occurring as a direct result of the drug," the article said.

Snyder said human volunteers for angel dust experiments would be fully informed of "the potential for toxic reaction and psychological reaction."

But Combs said, "The risk is it can totally destroy somebody's mind. Can you even give informed consent for that? He said PCP is tremendously unpredictable and can cause flashbacks in users.

"Because it (PCP) does one thing when a person receives it this time does not mean it will do the same thing the next time. ...He could get totally blown away," Combs said.

Snyder and Barnett said risks will be minimized by the use of small doses, although the institute's invitation of research proposals imposed no limits.

Snyder said researchers "really don't know" the minimal dose for a bad reaction but "with the small doses we propose, there are no psychological effects and no flashbacks."

'Eischied' Debuts Sept. 21...

Baker Identifies With Character He Portrays

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Television detective Earl Eischied isn't one to coddle criminals. Neither is Joe Don Baker, who stars in NBC's "Eischied."

Eischied doesn't break heads, as Baker has done in past roles, such as Sheriff Buford Pusser in "Walking Tall," but he breaks rules to get at his man.

"They don't really ask me about it when they write a script," says Baker, "but I agree with a lot of it - like breaking a law to defend people. Eischied is honest. He wouldn't break a law for his own profit. Although in the movie 'To Kill a Cop' we did have him taking a suit for his son."

"Eischied" - pronounced Eye-shyed - is one of television's new corps of cops and detectives. He's chief of detectives in New York City - Baker's Texas accent notwithstanding - and is based on the book "To Kill a Cop" by Robert Daley, a former New York deputy police commissioner.

Baker says, "In this country, the only people who get punished for crime are the victims. Criminals should be made to pay their victims back."

Eischied isn't following his course because of Baker's philosophy, however. It's because research ordered by executive producer David Gerber shows this is the mood of the country. It's what Gerber calls the "Death Wish" syndrome, named after the movie about a man who avenges the murder of his family.

Gerber, who formerly produced "Police Story," says he found that people think the police are too restricted in fighting crime.

He says, "People want to see cops protecting people and not just worrying about the right of criminals. Eischied will get into situations where he not only has to bend the law but break it to protect people."

Like Telly Savalas' lollypop-sucking detective, Kojak, Baker will develop his own characteristics. Like his accent, and his habit of saying, "You done good."

Baker says he sees Eischied as a loner. "The only thing he really has is the Police Department and his cat. His social life is rare."

"Eischied" premieres Friday Sept. 21 on NBC following "The Rockford Files." Baker's tough, independent chief should be a good complement to James Garner's laidback, slightly seedy private eye. In competition, it faces CBS' "Dallas" and the ABC movie.

Baker will also be seen this season on NBC in "Power," a movie from the same team that did "To Kill a Cop." Gerber produced and Ernest Tidyman wrote the screenplay. Baker plays a union leader named Tommy Vanda who rises to power in a trucking union.

The theme of the show is about the corruption that comes with power. Baker says, "I started out a basic, decent guy. But the more power he gets, the more corrupt he becomes because he has no moral fortitude. Eischied and Buford had that. He built the union then used the union to better himself."

Gardeners To Be Compensated

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) —St. Regis Paper Co. has agreed to pay damages to 164 eastern Maine gardeners whose vegetable gardens may have been contaminated by drifting forest herbicides this summer.

St. Regis executive John Gould refused Wednesday to divulge the total payment, but a claims adjuster indicated the sum involved was about $90,000.

Soon after the forest was sprayed, residents in Dennysville complained that their garden plants were turning brown and wilting. The state warned residents not to eat their homegrown vegetables.

Benito Juarez, the founder of modern Mexico, died in 1872 at age 66. Juarez became governor of Oaxaca at 41 and was active in the military and political turmoil of the mid-century.
