Employees Get 7% Raise

Elected Officials' Salaries Are Same

By Sarah L. Durdin
During a tentative budget approval, Aransas County Commissioners approved a 7 percent pay increase for county employees, while elected officials will continue to receive their present pay.

At their regular meeting June 27, with County Judge John Wendell presiding, commissioners briefly discussed some engineering work needed at the county airport, then moved directly into an executive session to discuss the budget.

Judge Wendell stated that the Texas Aeronautics Commission would take care of necessary work at the airport for runway repairs.

Commissioners then went into an executive session to go through a check of the 1980 budget.

From January 1 through December 31, 1980, the county is expected to have $1,100,141.60 in incoming revenue, $1,055,794.47 in expenditures, and a balance of $44,347.13. The Road and Bridge

Fund is expected to have a balance of $25,098.00 after expenditures of $519,874 are taken from the revenue funds totaling $544,972.

Of the Road and Bridge Equipment Fund, there is a revenue fund of $19,437, expenditures are expected to amount to $19,244, and the balance will be $193.

The Revenue Sharing Fund will have $83,000. (See COUNTY on Page 6)

Local Agencies Take Holiday

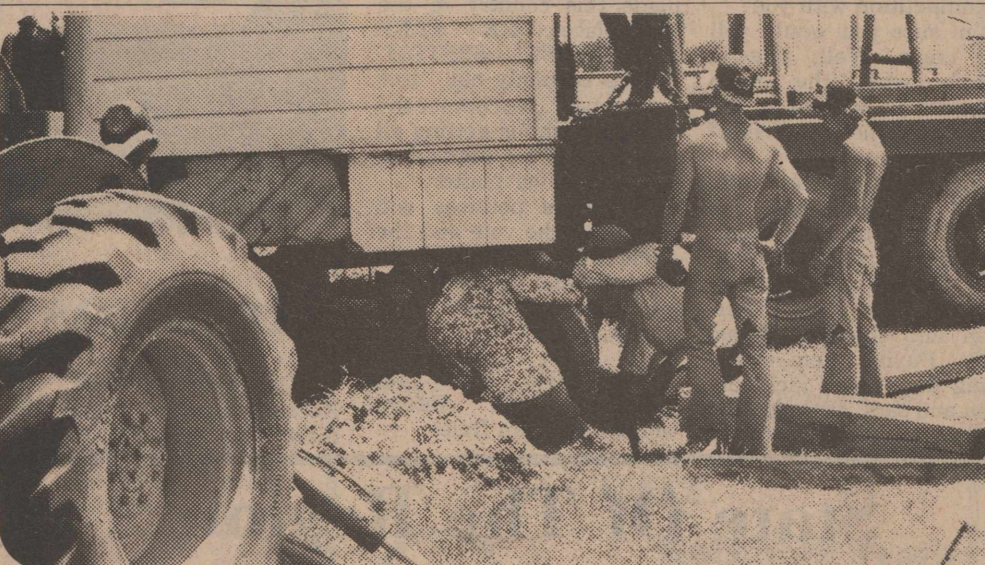

Most government offices and agencies will be closed Wednesday, July 4, but State parks will be open and local police and sheriff's units will remain on duty.

Rockport's City Hall will be closed and City Secretary Herman Johnson said there will be no Wednesday trash pickup that day. He added, "Everything normally picked up on Wednesdays will be picked up Thursday that week."

The Aransas County Courthouse and Navigation District offices will close for the day, as will the library. State offices closing include the Texas Highway Department and Texas Parks and Wildlife.

Two victims, one male and one female, say they met the men in the early morning hours of May 27. After a short drive with the suspects, the victims said they were forced to turn over their vehicle to the men, who then stabbed the male, and later raped the woman.

Waters and Bracewell are currently in custody in Las Vegas, awaiting transferral to Texas.

Surprise Awaits Rockport Woman In Germany

By Pat Blair

Imagine stepping off a plane in Germany -- and being greeted with a German magazine that has a two-page photo of Rockport's Seafair!

That's what happened to Iris Pendley, owner of B&I Cleaners and Laundry here in Rockport, a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Pendley went to Germany to visit her parents, and as she stepped off the plane, the family friend who was waiting to pick her up said, "I have a surprise for you."

"I thought at first it was beer," Mrs. Pendley said.

"My mother always meets me with some good German beer."

But it wasn't beer. The friend had brought along a copy of "Bunte" magazine -- Germany's equivalent to "Life" or "Look" magazines here -- and inside, in a photo essay on Texas, was a two-page color photograph of the crab races at Seafair.

"It kind of tickled me," Mrs. Pendley said of the incident. "Here was our little town -- it may be small, but it becomes known!"

Then -- as if the first article wasn't surprise enough -- two weeks later, Rockport made another issue of "Bunte". This time the feature was on Warren Lynch's Alligator Farm located on Highway 35 just outside Rockport.

Seeing her hometown spotlighted in a magazine in another country was a thrill for a woman who once hoped she wouldn't have to live here.

Mrs. Pendley was born in Augsburg, Germany -- "in Bavaria -- that's the southern part," she explained -- and grew up there during the War years. "I was 15 when World War II started," she said, recalling "those were pretty hard times."

Germany during the war "was probably comparable to the Depression here," she said. She came to the United States in 1948 with her first husband, a serviceman.

"We moved quite a bit," she recalls: Maine, New York, Utah -- finally wound up in Texas. "In 1958, her husband was stationed at the Radar Base that was located at the Aransas County Airport."

"I was a city girl," Mrs. Pendley recalls, "and when I say this little bitty old town, I was scared -- I hoped I wouldn't have to live here!"

"Now," she added, "I wouldn't go back to the

Rockport "has grown so tremendously" since Mrs. Pendley first came here, she said. "It was hard to visualize how much it would grow in 1958." The city even then attracted tourists, she recalls, "but there are more now -- and more retired people moving here on a permanent basis."

Then she added, "I hope it doesn't grow too fast. I don't want it too big. I'm used to space, uncrowded areas -- you don't have that in Europe. I couldn't live in Germany anymore."

Mrs. Pendley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Treutel, and her aunt, Miss Bea Roessle, still live in Augsburg, and she visits them every year.

"They used to come here (to Rockport)," she said, "and people still remember them and ask me to tell them (her parents) 'hello'. My parents really liked it here. But dad had a stroke and they can't travel anymore." So, since they can't come to her, she goes to them.

This year, she added, she went alone to Germany for four weeks. But last year and the year before, her children and grandchildren accompanied her. Mrs.

Letters From Our Readers

All you citizens of this nation:

Let me ask you a question... "How would you like for your government to bring a native of a foreign country into your state... set them up in a business, just like the one you have worked so hard to own and operate... put it right next door to your place of business... give them capital to operate on... buy them a car and a place to live... give them all the things you have to do without and break your neck to obtain... and use your money to put them in competition with you?"

I'm sure you would yell like crazy. Well, that is exactly what the State Department is doing to the Texas commercial fishermen.

According to word from U. S. Congressman Joe Wyatt of Corpus Christi, this is what is happening. The State Department is bringing Viet Nam fishermen into the Gulf Coast area... Buying them everything they need, including boat and cars, clothes... and putting them right into the boat slip next to you... the one you pay a monthly tab to park in and putting them into direct competition with you.

I'm not hardhearted... I feel sorry for the Vietnamese people. But for the love of Mike, this is unfair. They are taking the taxpayer's money and putting aliens into a position to undercut you and eventually drive the natives of this nation out of business.

Here, again, is the great egalitarian dream of redistribution of the wealth. I say it is contrary to what made this country in the first place... THE FREE ENTERPRISE SYSTEM. This is certainly not "free enterprise"... except for the foreigner who is getting all you worked for handed to him on a silver platter.

Next, the politicians will give them the vote and the circle will be complete... if you rob Peter to pay Paul... you'll always have Paul to vote for you.

Humans Always Make Mistakes

COLLEGE STATION -- Accept humans as mistake-makers and you do a mentally healthy thing, says Jenny Reinhardt, a family life education specialist.

"People who accept mistakes as a fact of life are freer to brainstorm, dream up new ideas and try a new way," the specialist says.

Ms. Reinhardt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

SELF-TEST
How do you feel about mistakes? Take a self-test, she says.

Have you ever stopped to ask yourself if it's "ok" to make mistakes?

How do you feel when you goof?

Is it "ok" to "miss your mark" and try again?

Do you feel guilty if you goof?

"Unfortunately, there are many who have been taught that it's very bad to fall short of perfection," Ms. Reinhardt says.

"This belief can lead to much stress and frustration. It also stifles creativity."

ACCEPT, BE FREE
When we accept mistakes, we free ourselves of the "have-to-be-perfect" burden.

We allow for imperfection in others - in children, adults and older adults.

We no longer have to use energy and time worrying about being a super person, because if we believe humans are mistake-makers, we are included.

STAMP OUT MYTHS
Stamping out myths about mistakes makes it easier to accept them, Ms. Reinhardt says.

One myth says if it's "ok" to make mistakes, then people won't carefully consider their choices.

"Not true," the specialist says.

"Those who accept humans as mistake-makers still weigh the pros and cons of different choices when they make decisions."

Another myth says that if we believe mistakes will happen, we won't strive toward goals.

That isn't true either, Ms. Reinhardt insists.

"Instead, those who know mistakes will happen are freer to work toward goals."

"Rather than spinning our wheels worrying about making everything perfect the first time, we can relax and get to creating," she stresses.

TIPS FOR ACCEPTING
Ms. Reinhardt suggests five tips to help accept ourselves and others as mistake-makers:

MAKE ALLOWANCES AND EXCUSES -- It's mentally healthy to say, "It took several tries before I succeeded but the results were worth it."

Also, about another person's mistake, even when we can see the error clearly, it's mentally healthy to say, "Maybe she did not think of that idea."

REALIZE MISTAKES ARE PART OF LEARNING -- We learn from watching others, and we learn from our mistakes.

DISCOVER THAT MISTAKES DON'T WRECK SELF-IMAGE -- A mistake is negative only if we choose to view it that way.

DO AWAY WITH 'SHOULD'S' -- Accept what did happen and go on to look for options. Feeling badly about what "should" have happened is a "go-nowhere" approach.

WALK IN OTHERS'

SHOES AWHILE -- Taking time to understand another person often can bring us feelings of acceptance and comfort.

It can help us understand and accept ourselves better, too, Ms. Reinhardt says.

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

SENATOR HOWARD M. METZENBAUM (Ohio) "...I am submitting today a newspaper article which represents editorial opinion throughout the country on the subject of deregulation in the trucking industry...I ask that it be printed in the Record..."

(From the Chicago, Ill., Sun-Times)

FOR DEREGULATING TRUCKING
Deregulate the airlines, opponents said, and the industry would fly to hell in a handbasket. Nevertheless, the airlines and their unions have been dragged kicking and screaming into fare and route competition. The results: better load factors, lower fares, and record profits for the industry. Now it is trucking's turn.

Back at the Justice Department, antitrust lawyers are busy drafting a bill, that would repeal a law passed over President Truman's veto in 1948. It gave the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to exempt regional trucking rate bureaus from antitrust laws. As a result, trucking firms have formed a kind of over-the-road OPEC in order to fix prices.

Mr. Kahn is now chief administrator of the Carter administration's wage and price guidelines, and is advocating trucking deregulation. Some of the regulatory idiosyncrasies that drive up road hauling costs and that drive Mr. "gateway" and "empty backhaul" rules.

Take the case of a trucker authorized for service from Chicago to Madison (142 miles) and from Madison to Milwaukee (92 miles) but not authorized for direct service between Chicago and Milwaukee (92 miles). That trucker can lawfully serve Chicago and Milwaukee only by carrying cargo through the Madison "gateway," a route 192 miles longer than the direct one between the two cities.

The Justice Department figures that allowing truckers to operate on the shortest routes would not only increase competition but also save up to 51 million gallons a year in fuel and $139 million transportation costs annually.

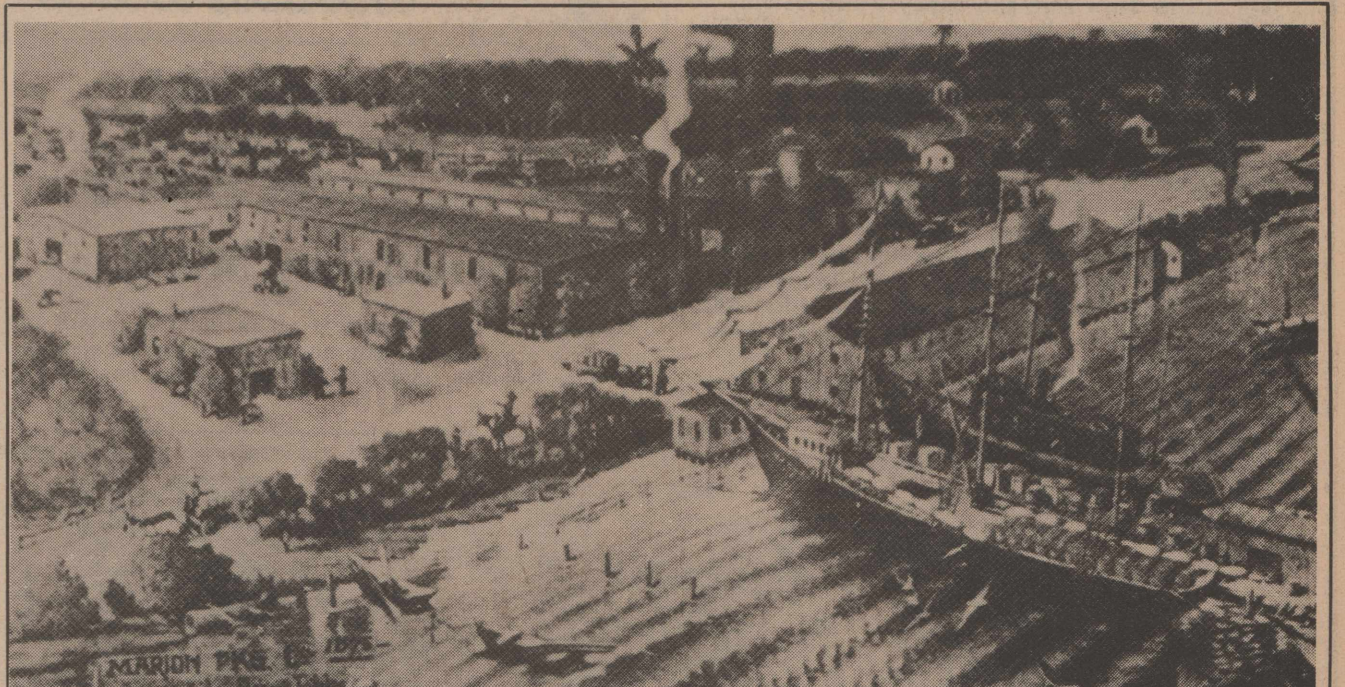

Similar savings can be expected if firms hauling goods from one market to another are no longer required to return to the first market empty.

The Teamsters union with its 2.3 million members carries more clout than the airline unions. The Teamsters fear that trucking deregulation will weaken the union, which will be negotiating a new contract with road haulers next year.

Packing Plant Supplied Free Meat

By Sarah L. Durdin
Seafood isn't, or rather wasn't always, the big production industry in the Rockport-Fulton area that it is today.

By the end of the Civil War, the Texas ranges were almost overrun with Longhorns. The herds were running wild by then, and had multiplied several times over. Trail drives were still about ten years in the future, so most cattle were shipped to markets in the north.

With all those Longhorns roaming the range, it was bound to happen sooner or later, and it happened just then: someone came up with the idea of using the Longhorns for products capable of being transported anywhere in the world. What was almost worthless before became moving, mooing gold.

W.S. Hall, a Yankee from Maine, saw opportunity in the meat packing industry, and opened a plant in Fulton in 1865. During his eight years of operation he slaughtered 40,000 head of cattle, 11,000 of them in one year.

The early packing plants could have been the forerunner of recent environmental conservation efforts, as every part of the slaughtered animal was put to use. Tallow was used by candle and soap makers in the east, the hides and horns were used to make shoes, buttons and combs, the bones were used in sugar refining, and any leftover meat was converted into fertilizer.

With gold selling at $285 an ounce, meat now seems to be worth its weight in gold. But during the packing house's heyday most of the animals went for $4.50 apiece, with an occasional $8 sale.

The only necessary point in selling was to pass the brand inspector, a young boy who earned 25 cents for each animal he inspected, passed the brand on, and wrote the bill of sale for. With the daily sales often numbering in the 400's, his take-home pay usually ran as much as $100 per day. Pretty good wages for a kid not old enough to vote yet, then and now.

Once the Longhorns passed inspection, the packery operation was an easy task. The cattle were driven into a pen with a platform over it, and a worker with a lance walked over the cattle to sever the spinal cords with the lance. The hoofs and horns were then cut off, and the hide was stripped off by a mule yanking a steel hook inserted in the skin of the neck.

A marker sectioned the carcass, and an ax man cut the bones at the marks. "Mess beef," so-called because the army used so much of it, was then made from the choice sections.

Mess beef was made using a process called the "three-fours." The meat was cut into big chunks and pickled in a steel vat using four pounds of brown sugar, four pounds of salt and four ounces of saltpetre. Once pickled, the beef went to ports all over the world.

Any meat left over by then was thrown out, and people were free to take as much as they wanted, at no charge. Try and imagine that happening today!

Arthur Bracht, at one time an owner of the area where the plant was located, said in a telephone interview "The plant played out after the 1890's. By then they could ship the cattle, and there was refrigeration, and that put the cattle business in Fulton out of work."

"Of course, they were using Longhorns, and they were tough son-of-a-guns. But tough or not, the meat was there for the taking," he added.

Bracht, now living in Houston near his two sons, said it was the changing times that the packing houses couldn't keep up with, eventually causing them to become so outmoded as to be useless.

He did, however, mention that he'd like to see meat priced at what it cost when the packing company threw it out to be carted away.

Don't we all? Oh, don't we all wish that?

State Of The Region

Juliet K. Wenger
Costal Bend Council of Governments

Gaining an understanding of the stress that police officers work under gives us a sound basis for expressing support of police, which a great many people really want to do. John Messer, a police training officer who has worked on several forces in the Costal Bend including Alice and Corpus Christi, provides ingredients for that understanding.

Messer says that when a young officer begins law enforcement work, he is unable to believe that he will be a different person within six months. It is even more difficult for his wife and children to believe that and to find out that it has happened.

What causes such radical change? Messer suggests several things. The officer only sees people at their worst. He is not sent out to commend a husband who doesn't beat his wife or a mother who does not abuse her children. He probably will not meet a man who has for years done his job well, contributed to his community, been generous with his family until the one time this respected citizen drinks too much and is involved in something which violates the law or disturbs order. The officer begins to stereotype all people other than police, just as some people stereotype all police.

Seeing the criminal and corrupt so exclusively influences a young officer to feel that the salvation of a miserable world is on his shoulders alone. He has to shape himself into a person who can carry this tremendous load. Messer says these phases are explained to cadets in training, but they are still difficult to avoid.

Perhaps the thing that tends to isolate the policeman most completely is the difference in viewpoint of contending with situations on the street from the viewpoint of analyzing the same situation in a classroom or office. In the latter situation, you can be logical and take your time in deciding what would be best to do. On the street, there is always an element of fear, and the officer, no matter how inexperienced, must make life and death decisions instantly.

The man or woman the officer is dealing with on the street is, in many respects, a completely different person than the same individual known to his colleagues or neighbors, or seen by a jury as he sits quietly in a courtroom. Violent emotions may surface infrequently.

So it is that the police officer is seen to be unnecessarily authoritarian. Only a posture of authority can accomplish what must be done in many instances. Polite suggestions could uselessly fill the seconds that an officer has to act in certain crises.

The law abiding citizen may resent an officer stopping him or her for questioning and feel the policeman is unfairly suspicious. But the officer is trained to observe many things that the average citizen does not see. What caused him to question may be enough reason to do so, yet may not be evident to the citizen involved.

The officer is no more immune to mistakes than anyone else. But it is disheartening to a policeman to take an action that he feels is risking his own life for you, only to discover that you resent those actions as failing to recognize you as above suspicion.

Messer says there often develops an "us against them" attitude. This is aggravated by the fact that it is hard for police to be a part of off-duty life with other people. They work shifts and are on call. At a social event, people either want them to fix tickets and discuss police business or show themselves to be uncomfortable with a policeman present.

It's a good idea to call police quickly when you need them but to be slow in judging, sure of the facts and circumstances when you hear criticism.

Thomas-Rogers

Recite Wedding Vows

Judy Kay Thomas and Thomas Peden Rogers were united in marriage on June 16, at the First Presbyterian Church in Rockport. John Bradshaw officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Leroy Thomas, 1914 Johnson, in Rockport. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Monroe Rogers, 1141 Broadway, in Rockport.

Given away by her father, the bride chose to wear a white dress with an empire waistline, flowing into a full skirt with triple flounces, and a chapel train. Flounces at the scooped neckline gave the look of a shoulder capelet.

Miss Jane Irmanda Rogers, Corpus Christi, was the Maid of Honor. She wore a pale blue Qiana gown with a blouson top and slender straps, overlaid with a chiffon cape. She carried three yellow roses. Wearing similar gowns and carrying single roses were the bridesmaids, Nancy Catheline Hicks, Ellen Louise Weese and Valerie Kay Ovendon, all of Rockport.

Davis Stewart, Houston, was the Best Man, and groomsmen were Scott McCasky, Victoria, and John C. Vick and Fred Bell, both of Rockport.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony.

After a honeymoon trip to New Orleans, Louisiana, the couple will reside in Houston.

The bride has attended Southwest Texas State University, and will continue her studies during the fall semester at the Houston Baptist College. The groom is a graduate from Southwest Texas State University, and is presently employed as a payroll accountant for Brown and Root.

Mrs. Thomas Rogers

Cooling-Peters United In Marriage

Lorna Gail Cooling and Kenneth Ray Peters recited their wedding vows at Peace Lutheran Church in Rockport on June 16, during an afternoon wedding. Reverend Wayne Palk officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred D. King, Christine, Texas. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Peters, 625 King, Rockport.

Given away by her father, the bride wore an ivory dress with lace trim and a cape overlay. An ivory hat with matching ribbons completed her outfit, and she carried a cascading bouquet of daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Shirley Anders, sister of the bride, was the Matron of Honor. She wore a long apricot dress with a flowered cape, and carried a single yellow carnation.

Best Man was Taylor Blocker, wearing a brown tuxedo, and ushers were Mickey Anders and Anthony Farmer, all of Rockport.

Mrs. King wore a pale blue dress, and Mrs. Peters chose a royal blue dress. Both ladies wore white carnation corsages.

Mrs. George Rinche, Rockport, played traditional wedding selections on the organ, and sang "You Needed Me" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall in Rockport.

After a honeymoon trip to Galveston, the couple will make their home in Rockport.

Lion's Club Barbecue

The Rockport Lion's Club will hold its annual barbecue July 4 at the Lion's Club pit located at the Rockport Harbor. This annual event is one of the major fund-raising activities of the club, with proceeds going to support Lion's Club projects.

Past projects have included the Lion's Cripple Children's camp in Kerrville, providing eye examinations and glasses to needy Rockport children, awarding an annual scholarship to a high school senior, funding support to ABC Learning Center, Little League and Toys for Tots.

The barbecue will also feature the cooking of a hamburger supper for the Rockport Rotary Club for selling the most tickets for the dance to aid the area fire departments. The Lion's Club will cook and serve this supper, at the same time showing good sportsmanship, serving the Rotary Club members at 12 midnight, July 3. All local Rotary Club members are invited.

The Rockport Lion's Club, as a dedicated service organization, invites all the people of Rockport to its annual barbecue.

Charter Article III Creates Seven-Member Council

By Pat Blair

Rockport's new city government will have a seven-member City Council and the mayor may vote on all matters, if Article III of the new City Charter is adopted in its present form.

Under this article, which provides for the form and duties of the Council, the mayor and two council members will be elected at large. The remaining four council members will be elected, two each, from Rockport's 2 wards.

The mayor -- who has no vote except to break a tie under Rockport's present city government -- will be able to vote on all matters that come before the Council under Article III. The mayor will not, however, have any veto powers.

The mayor and all Council members will serve two-year terms -- "unless removed through the provisions of this charter," according to Section 1A of Article III -- with the exception of the first Council elected.

Council members, except for the mayor, will be elected under the place system. Under this system, Council members in places one and six will be elected at large, places two and three will be elected from City Ward One, and places four and five will be elected from City Ward Two.

At the first city election after the Charter is adopted, Article III provides for part of the new

City Council to be elected to two-year terms and those remaining to be elected to one-year terms initially and two-year terms thereafter.

Under this system, the mayor and Council members in places two, four and six will be elected in even-numbered years and Council members in places one, three and five will be elected in odd-numbered years.

Article III also limits the terms a Council member may serve, stating, "No person shall be elected to the City Council for more than three consecutive terms under this charter."

In addition, a Council member who files as a candidate for nomination or election in any public office other than the City Council must resign his Council position.

This article also provides for a mayor pro-tem to be elected by the Council from among its members, to serve in the mayor's place if he is disabled or absent. If a vacancy occurs in the mayor's place, the mayor pro-tem will succeed to that post.

In addition to establishing the Council's form and duties, proposed Article III also:

--will require three readings of all proposed ordinances.

Except in the case of an emergency, budget or tax ordinance, all ordinances brought before the Council for adoption must be read at three Council meetings, with a lapse of at least one week between meetings.

A proposed ordinance may be amended at any reading, but, according to Article III, "any ordinance amended in substance shall automatically be placed again on the first reading at a subsequent meeting."

Emergency ordinances may be adopted under this proposal only to meet "public emergencies affecting life, health, property or the public peace." Such an ordinance may not be passed to levy taxes, grant, renew or extend a franchise or regulate public utility rates. Such an emergency ordinance will automatically become repealed as of the 61st day from its effective date, but the ordinance may be re-enacted.

--will require codification of all general city ordinances.

The City Council must provide for codification of ordinances within three years after adoption of the

--will require at least one Council meeting each month.

The City Council may fix, by ordinance, the date and times of regular City Council meetings and may hold special meetings at any time on the call of the mayor or a majority of the Council members. But the Council may not meet less than once each month.

Other provisions under Article III include:

--any vacancy in the Council, other than mayor, will be filled by a majority vote of the remaining council members, provided the successor possesses all qualifications for the position. The appointment will be for the remainder of the unexpired term only.

--the mayor and Council members may not hold any other city office or city employment during their tenure on the Council, and they may not hold "any compensated appointive city office or city employment" within one year after expiration of their term on the Council.

--the City Council has "the power to inquire into the official conduct of any department, agency, office, officer or employee of the city" and for those purposes may administer oaths and subpoena witnesses.

In addition to other powers granted, Article III also requires that the City Council "require bonds" of all municipal employees who will receive or pay out city money. The amount of the bond will be determined by the Council and the city will pay the bonding costs.

Third Of A Series

COUNTY

The Mosquito Control Fund is expected to have expenditures totaling $39,796, from a revenue fund of $48,430, leaving a balance of $8,634.

In the County Library Fund there is a revenue of $18,208, expenditures are expected to be $16,778.08, leaving a balance of $1,429.92.

The Law Library Fund will have a revenue fund of $1,330 and expenditures will be $1,600, leaving a balance of $270.

In the Airport Fund there will be $41,250, with expenditures expected to be $104,578, leaving a balance of $63,328.

Judge Wendell said later in the day, that there are other areas of revenue for the airport, so the county won't be going into the red by budgeting more expenditures than the revenue covers.

In reference to the disproportionate amounts in the revenue and expenditure funds for the law library, the judge said the county would take on the expense, but added that law books were getting too expensive for the county to continue the practice. He added that he felt area attorneys should take at least some of the responsibility for the cost of the books.

Because the courthouse will be closed in observance of July 4, the next regular meeting of the county commissioners will be held July 9, 9 a.m., at the county courthouse.

In other action Monday night, members of the council listened to a presentation by Gene Bardwell and Bob England of Dallas, representing a company that designs and manufactures on-site sanitary sewage treatment units.

England told the council that the units -- which eliminate the need to transport solid wastes to a central plant for treatment -- have been approved by the State of Texas and the system has been adopted by the Aransas County Commissioners Court.

The system treats sanitary sewage from homes or businesses at the site, discharging clean oxygenated water, England told council members. He added that it is bacteriological treatment that works on the same principle as the large central waste treatment plants. The cost, per unit, is around $3,250.

Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr., indicated he would like the city's engineering department to look at the proposal.

Following a closed session in which the council looked at the Zoning Ordinance, Section XII, Subsection Six dealing with construction of fences in front yards, the council asked City Attorney Allen C. Lee to enforce the ordinance as it is written.

The council also discussed pending litigation involving the city during the closed session.

During the open session, the council asked Lee to draw up a contract with International Systems, Incorporated, for the council's consideration.

International Systems, Inc., is a company that works with cities helping them to obtain federal grants. At this time, the contract is for consideration only, so that the council can determine if it wants to participate in this program.

The council voted not to participate in the Statewide Housing Assistance Payments Program and asked Johnson to get information on another program that would help homeowners in upgrading and restoring substandard houses.

HOLIDAY

(Continued from page 1) and loan associations will be closed for the day, as will the Rockport and Fulton post offices.

Law enforcement agencies and emergency services will be on duty as usual, officials said.

Two of Rockport's pharmacies will be open, although one will be observing special hours on July 4. The Prescription Center will be closed, but in event of emergency, the night number, 729-5545, will bring response.

Roatan Drug Store will be open from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. July 4, and Johnson's Drug will observe its usual hours.

FIREWORKS

And like other officials who have seen the damage fireworks can do, Craigmile doesn't like them. "I discourage their use altogether," he said.

Aransas County Fire Marshal Elva Mullinax said, "Fireworks are dangerous to anyone who doesn't have experience handling them." One factor that makes them so dangerous, he said, is the amount of powder that is in them.

Another thing he cautioned against is putting the firecracker in a glass container after lighting it.

If the glass explodes--and it can--he continued, the child can be seriously injured by glass fragments. There's always the chance of serious burns from firecrackers, and Mullinax observed that, in addition to danger to the person setting off the fireworks, there's the danger of grass and brush fires.

"And they (fireworks) can cause house fires," he added. "I noticed they just lost a house in Corpus Christi. Some kind of rocket -- a new thing -- came down on the roof of the house and started a fire."

Johnson said the City of Rockport does allow fireworks to be set off in the beach area, and Chief Craigmile elaborated that these must be set off in the direction of the bay -- away from the city.

And, he said, if people are going to set off fireworks, "do it right." Children should have adult supervision and everyone -- adult and child -- should be aware that they are dealing with something potentially dangerous.

The serving line for barbecue will open at 11 a.m. the next morning, and activities for the day will begin at 2:30 p.m.

After the opening ceremonies, the Miss Fourth of July beauty pageant will take place, followed by the frog jumping and horse-shoe pitching contests.

Activities throughout the day will include an egg-toss, a three-legged race, a cake walk, the women's rolling pin throw, a greased pole climb, and lots of free watermelon.

The celebration will be topped off with a display of fireworks at sunset.

Pendley has two children, a daughter, Veronica Camehl, who lives here in Rockport and helps part-time at the laundry, and a son, Larry LaBorde who lives in Houston. She also has two grandsons.

She and her second husband, Bill, bought the laundry in 1961, naming it "B&I" for the first letters of their names. She later bought her former husband's interest in the establishment but retained the name. "It was a good, established business -- why change the name?" she asks.

She bought the big white house at 204 Live Oak behind the laundry because of the convenience. "It's kind of handy," she said. "I go out one door and in the other."

When she's away, her daughter and employees keep the cleaning establishment open -- 24 hours a day. Her employees have all been with her many years, she said, "and are very reliable. If they weren't, I couldn't leave."

And that means she wouldn't be able to visit her family in Germany.

And she wouldn't be able to read about Rockport in a magazine published in a country an ocean away.
