How's that?
Confusion

Q. Do we follow the Julian calendar or the Gregorian calendar?

A. We now follow the Gregorian calendar. The Julian calendar was prepared by astronomers under an order of Julius Caesar in 47 B.C. Under that calendar, every fourth year was a leap year. However, the calendar, which did not follow the solar year, became inaccurate over a number of years.

This was rectified by Pope Gregory XIII, and the Gregorian calendar was adopted in England and the United States in 1752, 170 years after its formation. Under the Gregorian calendar, every four years have 366 days instead of 365, except centennial years, which were made leap years only once in four centuries.

This is a leap year, and today, Feb. 29, occurs only once every four years.

"I live here, I work here and my son goes to school here," Russell said this morning. "I want to offer my services to people in the district."

Hart captures New Hampshire

Cranston withdraws from presidential race

By DONALD M. ROHBERG
AP Political Writer

Gary Hart and Walter F. Mondale were back on the campaign trail bright and early today, Hart rejuvenated by an upset primary victory delivered by "cantankerous" New Hampshire voters and Mondale demonstrating his vow to fight to the end for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Hart returned to an electronics plant outside Manchester, N.H., where he had received an enthusiastic reception earlier this winter — this time to thank the white-coated technicians for helping spring his New Hampshire surprise.

"We will win others in the South, in the West and elsewhere," declared Hart before flying to Denver for a triumphant homecoming.

Mondale headed out early for afternoon stops in Georgia and Alabama — site of two of the three Southern primaries March 13 in which the former vice president hopes to establish dominance over Hart, who thus far has made little effort in the region.

But he first took time out to greet commuters at a Boston subway stop while an Irish band played in the background. Massachusetts also has a primary March 13 — the Super Tuesday that will provide the next big political barometer.

Also early this morning, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, the first man to enter the race, became the first to bow out after a disappointing seventh place finish.

"I know the difference between reality and dreams," Cranston said. "I know when to dream and how to count votes."

Mondale, a limping front-runner at best, predicted he would win the nomination despite Tuesday's surprise.

"I am ready to contest every primary ... I am ready to run this race and win," a somber Mondale told supporters late Tuesday.

But Hart, appearing on NBC's "Today" show, predicted today he would go "head to head in very close contests" with Mondale. "Instead of eight candidates going state to state, it is now two candidates going throughout the entire country," he said.

Sen. John Glenn of Ohio finished third. He described the results as "not so hot" for him, but that he wasn't even considering quitting. He has been challenging Mondale in Alabama, as has Jackson — fourth place here.

"I'm quite happy with the way things look for Super Tuesday," said Glenn, also on the "Today" show. Mondale's second-place finish in New Hampshire "opens the whole race up again," he said.

President Reagan beat Harold Stassen in a non-contested Republican primary. And he polled more

Celebrating a birthday every 4 years

MICHAEL SHARP

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Sharon Minyard and Michael Sharp are celebrating birthdays today.

For most people, birthdays are an annual affair. For these two, however, the actual date of their birth rolls around only once every four years.

Feb. 29 appears on the calendar once every four years because the solar year cannot be divided evenly into months and days. Our forefathers, battling with the concept of a calendar, established Leap Year, a year with 366 days instead of 365 to try to bring the solar year and the calendar in sync.

So Leap Year babies, like Mrs. Minyard and Sharp, find themselves without a birthday on the calendar three years out of four.

Mrs. Minyard, who turns 52 today, has seen her birthday 13 times. Sharp, 28, has seen his eight times.

"It's no big deal," said Sharp, a defensive coordinator.

Permian group gets tax-exempt status from city

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Tax-exempt bond financing will be available to a group of out-of-town businessmen who plan to renovate the Permian Building downtown.

The Big Spring City Council last night passed a resolution designating a two-block section of downtown as a "blighted area." The designation is necessary so the businessmen, headed by Art Lish of Eidson, Wasson and Lish Realtors of Odessa, can apply for the tax-exempt bonds under the federal Development Corporation Act of 1979.

The development group, which has purchased the building, will sell the bonds.

The two-block section is bounded on the east and west by Main and Gregg, and on the north and south by First and Second.

Lish told the council that 76 percent of the buildings within the area are currently abandoned.

The developers plan a complete renovation of the Permian Building, with the building's first floor reserved for retail and office space and the other floors devoted to offices only, Lish said.

The developers hope to attract tenants such as attorneys, doctors, insurance agents and real estate agents, Lish told the council.

Council members told other local businessmen present at the meeting that the two-block section could be enlarged to include other buildings, provided 15 days notice is given to the Texas Economic Development Commission before a public hearing is scheduled.

Coahoma reports first filing

By JIM BROWN

COAHOMA — The first person has finally filed for city elections here this spring.

Four seats on the City Council and the mayor's position had failed to attract any interest until late yesterday, one week before the filing deadline.

City Secretary Cindy Langston told the City Council last night that Brian Jensen, the city's volunteer fire chief, filed late Tuesday for a council seat.

The council met in special session last night to confirm a new dental health plan, approve Mayor Jim Rackley's attending a Permin Basin Regional Planning Commission, and discuss the possible annexation of developer David Tubbs' new housing addition.

The council approved a Prudential Co. dental policy offered through the Texas Municipal League that will cost the city $81.60 per month. The policy covers all six city employees and their dependents.

Water department employee Shorty Hernandez told the council that he had checked with area dentists who said the policy is a good one.

Rackley told the council that the state Utility Commission had denied a request by the city to sell water outside of the city limits because of a question over who actually owns water mains within the city limits.

The council decided to reapply to the Texas Department of Community Affairs for a $22,000 dollar grant to fund a water study.

QUITE A HAUL — Michael Jackson holds six of the eight awards he won at the 26th Annual Grammy Awards in Los Angeles Tuesday night. Jackson's winings set a new record for the event previously held by Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel.

Jackson dominates Grammys

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Multi-talented Michael Jackson's eight-award sweep behind his smash album "Thriller" set one record and classical conductor Sir Georg Solti topped another in a night of firsts at the 26th annual Grammy awards.

"Thriller," which has sold 25 million records to become the best-selling record of all time, earned Jackson seven awards Tuesday night, including album of the year and record of the year for the No. 1 single "Beat It."

The eighth award, best children's recording, was for his narration and singing on the album version of "E.T. — The Extra-Terrestrial."

Jackson went into the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences ceremony with 12 nominations in 10 categories. The previous record for most Grammys won in a single evening was held by Paul Simon, who picked up seven awards for the 1970 Simon & Garfunkel hit album "Bridge over Troubled Water."

Solti, who had won 19 Grammys before the nationally televised awards show, received another four, including best classical recording and best orchestral recording for Mahler's "Symphony No. 9 in D Major." With 23 Grammys, Solti now has three more awards than film score specialist Henry Mancini, who previously held the record for most Grammys.

In another Grammy first, 22-year-old trumpet virtuoso Wynton Marsalis won one Grammy for a classical work and another for jazz. A modest winner, he declined comparisons to such greats as Miles Davis and Dizzy Gillespie.

"I'm still like Miles Davis and Dizzy Gillespie were when they were 22 — trying to learn how to play," he said.

Solti's four awards were matched only by Quincy Jones, who earned three Grammys as Jackson's co-producer on "Thriller" and one as producer of the "E.T." album.

"Of all the awards I've got tonight, I'm most proud of this one," Jackson said of the "E.T." Grammy.

His other "Thriller" awards included best male pop vocal for the album, rock vocal for "Beat It," rhythm & blues vocal and song of the year for "Billie Jean," and producer of the year.

Jackson did not perform during the telecast, but viewers did see him dance in two Pepsi-Cola ads. He suffered much-publicized scalp burns during filming of one of the spots last month, but the injury was not apparent at the awards show.

The British rock band The Police kept Jackson from winning the two other awards he was nominated for. The band's elegantly simple ballad, "Every Breath You Take," beat out Jackson and Paul McCartney's "The Girl Is Mine" in the pop group category.

Police lead singer Sting took new song of the year honors for writing "Every Breath You Take."

Boy George, lead singer of Culture Club, which won the award for best new artist, gave the otherwise placid show a comic touch with his acceptance speech, telecast via satellite from London.

"Thank you America," he said, sporting feminine makeup, a dress and long, braided hair. "You've got taste, style, and you know a good drag queen when you see one."

Another highlight of the CBS telecast, which ran about 15 minutes over its scheduled three hours, was veteran rock 'n' roller Chuck Berry's performance before accepting a special Lifetime Achievement Grammy.

Still duckwalking at age 57, Berry was asked when he'd quit rock 'n' roll.

"When I lie down for the last time," he said.

Missing driver in fatal accident sought by police

Police are seeking a car driver who apparently walked away from an accident that killed a man last night.

John Loyal Horttor, 23, was pronounced dead at the scene of the one-car accident by Justice of the Peace Louis Heflin. Horttor's address is unknown.

Horttor died from massive head injuries incurred in the accident, said police Lt. Jerry Edwards. A complaint has been filed against the driver of the black 1965 Ford Mustang for failure to stop and render aid, reports said.

The driver, whose identity is still under investigation by police, left the scene of the accident, Edwards said. Two other passengers in the Mustang were taken to the emergency room at Malone-Hogan Hospital by Schaffer Ambulance, police reports said.

According to reports, the car was traveling north in the 1600 block of Airbase, drove onto the grassy road median, struck a street light, spun around a least once and ended up facing south.

Treated and released at the hospital were Mark Wayne Reeves, 29, of 810 Johnson and Phyllis Klug, 30, of 704 Lorilla, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Reports said factors contributing to the accident were speeding and possible consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Two killed by Beirut car bomb

BEIRUT (AP) — A car bomb exploded in front of a 12-story apartment building in west Beirut today, and rescue workers said two people were killed and between 50 and 75 injured.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the blast, the first car bomb explosion since opposition Moslem militiamen and dissident army troops took control of mostly Moslem west Beirut earlier this month.

Witnesses said a compact car parked in front of the building's main entrance blew up, shattering windows in a four-block area shortly after 4 p.m. (9 a.m. EST).

The explosion triggered a fire that destroyed at least eight other cars. It knocked metal railings from nearby balconies and threw shards of glass into the street.

dinator for the Big Spring High School Steers. During years which skip Feb. 29, "I just celebrate for two or three days in a row," he said with a smile. "I start around Feb. 27 and keep going until March 2."

Mrs. Minyard, who works for the Regional School for the Deaf program at Moss Elementary, said, "It's difficult to celebrate, because you really don't have a birthday." However, when she was growing up in Amherst, Mrs. Minyard said her family made sure she had a party, usually on Feb. 28.

Mrs. Minyard isn't sure when she realized she didn't have a birthday every year like most people. But she said she never felt left out.

write-in votes from Democrats than the final three finishers — Cranston and Ernest Hollings, and former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew.

Askew was another potential dropout. Hollings said he'd follow the election calendar South.

Hart polled about 40 percent of the vote to 29 percent for Mondale, who had been heavily favored until polls began detecting a sudden shift the day before the voting. Glenn had 13 percent with Jackson and George McGovern locked at 6 percent.

Hart and Mondale aides were surprised by the outcome, particularly the margin of the senator's victory.

"We saw the potential for significant movement, but we can't see how they could have moved so far so quickly," said Oliver Henkel, Hart campaign manager.

Hart added that "New Hampshire voters are cantankerous, they're independent, they make up their own minds. They're also smart."

John Reilly, a senior political adviser to Mondale, said, "We never stopped saying we worried about New Hampshire... It's too hard a state to predict."

The final vote totals, with just a few partial precincts left to be counted, looked like this:

Hart	39,062, or 40 percent.
Mondale	27,710, 29 percent.
Glenn	12,041, 13 percent.
Jackson	5,280, 6 percent.
McGovern	5,145, 5 percent.
Hollings	3,583, 4 percent.
Cranston	2,087, 2 percent.
Askew	1,023, 1 percent.
Others	884, 0 percent.

Reagan polled 5,032 write-in votes on the Democratic ballots, and rolled up 62,885 GOP votes; that was 97 percent. Perennial candidate Harold Stassen got 2 percent and others got the rest. If the write-ins are factored in, Hart's vote drops to 37 percent, Mondale's to 27 percent.

Even in triumph Hart faces problems maintaining his momentum. Without the financial and organizational resources of the Mondale campaign, he has been unable to file complete slates of delegates in some key states.

Fire destroys house on Main Street

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Juveniles may be responsible for a fire Tuesday afternoon that caused the total loss of a vacant, wood frame house at 1506 Main, Assistant Fire Marshal Burr Settles said yesterday.

"Whether it was done accidentally or on purpose, I don't know," Settles said.

Three units of the Big Spring Fire Department answered the call at 2:45 p.m. yesterday, Settles said. He said juveniles had been "run off" from the vacant house owned by Dorothy Hall of 310 W. 20th prior to the fire.

Firemen wet down the garage of a nearby residence at 1512 Main when sparks from the fire traveled to its roof.

Fire reports said that firefighters had to dig through 2 feet of trash to do salvage and overhaul work on the vacant house.

It was the second fire at the house in two years, firefighter Rodney Phillips said after the blaze had been extinguished.

No injuries were reported.

Hightower blasts farm policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — No commodity produced in Texas last year brought farmers a price higher than the production cost, according to Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

"That's a very simple bit of arithmetic for farmers, and it adds up to bankruptcy. But the administration's policy is based on holding the farmers' price down," Hightower told the U.S. House Agriculture Committee on Tuesday.

The state official testified at a hearing on the 1985 farm bill.

The nation needs "legislation that will set a price at least at the cost of production so farmers at least have a prayer of making a profit if they are good farmers," Hightower said.

"Last year, the cost of producing every single commodity in my state exceeded the average price the farmers got for it. The figures showed it cost about $6.40 to make a bushel of wheat in Texas, and our farmers are getting $3.20 for it," he testified.

Americans are willing to pay higher prices if they are convinced the money will find its way to family farmers, he added, saying that 65 percent of U.S. net farm income in 1983 went to 1 percent of the farmers.

Consumers "believe, and rightly so, that their food dollars and their tax dollars are going to benefit everyone but that small- and medium-sized family farmer," Hightower said.

He blamed the Reagan administration for keeping prices too low to support farmers.

Woman injured in wreck

A Big Spring woman was treated and released at Malone-Hogan Hospital following a one-car accident Tuesday morning in the 1600 block of 11th Place, a hospital spokeswoman and police reports said.

Brenday Hamill of 2907 Cactus was driving east on 11th in a 1982 Chevrolet pickup owned by Faye's Flowers of 1013 Gregg, reports said. Hamill told police the steering locked on the truck, causing it to jump the curb and hit a light pole.

Hamill was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital by private vehicle, reports said.

Jane Fonda ignores threats

NORTH MIAMI BEACH — Actress Jane Fonda says it was a "very personal decision" that prompted her to go to a department store that had canceled a promotional visit she planned.

Miss Fonda, 46, showed up Tuesday at a Burdines' outlet after the chain canceled appearances she had scheduled Wednesday at two Burdines stores.

Burdines acted in response to opposition from outspoken anti-communists and a weekend bomb scare at a south Miami store.

Spanish-language radio station WRHC urged its listeners to call Burdines' and complain about appearances by a "redfish leftist" who visited Hanoi during the Vietnam War.

During her brief visit Tuesday, the actress said she was exercising "the right to free speech."

"I'm here because I want to promote support for my (exercise) clothing," said Miss Fonda, whose fitness books have sold in the millions worldwide. "The store didn't know I was coming. It was a very personal decision on my part."

Last week, a New Orleans department store also called off a visit by Miss Fonda after receiving hundreds of calls protesting her appearance and some threatening her safety.

Brown's car sells for $25,000

SAN JOSE — The 1974 Plymouth Satellite that Edmund G. Brown Jr. used when he was governor has 190,000 miles on it, but for an old junker it still attracted a princely price — $25,000.

JERRY BROWN

The sedan, which became a symbol of Brown's austerity after he became state government chief in 1974, was auctioned off Monday night in San Jose for the benefit of the Crippled Children's Society.

The man who bought it, Steven Brown, owner of a construction company, says he'll put the vehicle outside his office building in downtown Sacramento as a monument to the "downtown Sacramento redevelopment that (the former governor) started."

"Boys, this ain't monopoly money," hollered the auctioneer as the bids rolled skyward.

Frazier may escape trouble

WOODBURY, N.J. — Former heavyweight boxing champ "Smokin' Joe" Frazier has been told he won't have to face a weapons possession charge if he stays out of trouble for six months.

The 40-year-old Frazier, best remembered for three fierce bouts with Muhammad Ali (Frazier won only the first one), was put in a pretrial intervention program designed for first offenders or people charged with minor offenses.

The charge was filed in January after a state trooper said he found a pistol in Frazier's 1976 Cadillac. Frazier did not have a permit to carry the weapon in New Jersey.

His lawyer said Frazier, who carried the gun for protection, had registered it in Pennsylvania, where he lives, and had forgotten he had it when he drove into New Jersey.

Superior Court Judge Norman Telsey ruled Monday that the charge will be dropped in six months if Frazier is not arrested again.

Frazier won the heavyweight title from Jimmy Ellis in 1970 and defended the title twice before losing to George Foreman in 1973.

Ebsen's stolen car returned

LOS ANGELES — Veteran actor Buddy Ebsen concedes his skills as television's "Barnaby Jones" had nothing to do with finding his stolen car, but he has praise for the deputy sheriffs who made the recovery.

The 1983 Buick Regal, taken Saturday afternoon from the underground garage at Ebsen's Marina del Rey home, was found in a shopping center parking lot by deputies acting on a tip.

Ebsen, 75, even got back the golf clubs given to him by pro golfer Lee Trevino. However, he lost a mobile radio that was in the car.

U.S. could stop strait closure

WASHINGTON — Any Iranian attempt to close the Persian Gulf to oil tankers can be blocked by the U.S. Navy, but the threat itself might be enough to slow the movement of ships, according to Pentagon officials.

Since the Iraq-Iran war began in 1980, Iran has repeatedly vowed to shut off the gulf if its oil facility at Kharg Island is attacked, noted the officials, speaking Wednesday only on condition they not be named.

No Iranian attempt to close the Strait of Hormuz at the mouth of the gulf has actually been made, the officials noted.

Both Iran and Iraq have made a number of unverified statements about the war, the latest being a claim by the Iraqis that they had damaged tankers at Kharg Island in the northern end of the gulf. U.S. intelligence found no evidence to support those statements, the officials said.

More than 20 percent of the oil used by the non-communist world flows through the 26-mile-wide Strait of Hormuz at the bottom of the Persian Gulf. President Reagan said last week that "there is no way we could allow that channel to be closed."

To back up that promise, the Pentagon has five ships in the gulf and 30 more in the Indian Ocean, including the aircraft carrier Midway and its four escort ships. They are on station in the northern Arabian Sea within easy striking distance of the Strait of Hormuz.

But even though "we could stop any actual attempt by the Iranians, Lloyd's might follow up by effectively doing the job for Iran," said one Navy officer.

He was referring to worries that Iranian attacks on oil tankers might force a large increase in rates charged by the London insurance syndicate. A rate increase combined with safety fears of tanker captains might slow the steady stream of oil shipments.

Jumbo jet slides off runway

NEW YORK — Passengers on a Scandinavian Airlines jumbo jet that slid off a wet runway and into a 12-foot-deep creek say they "didn't have time to be scared" — so they calmly jumped out doors, slid down chutes and swam or rafted to safety.

"We just got in the life raft and paddled like crazy with our arms," said passenger John Marriage of Sydney, Australia, one of the 177 people evacuated from the plane Tuesday at Kennedy Airport.

Flight 901 was carrying 163 passengers and a crew of 14 from Stockholm, Sweden, via Oslo, Norway, when the DC-10 landed in drizzle and fog and skidded into the murky water up to its engines.

Despite the potential for disaster, only 10 minor injuries were reported, officials said.

Airline spokesman Herb Bauer said the cause of the accident "was most likely hydroplaning" — skidding on a wet surface. The National Transportation Safety Board was sending a team of investigators to the scene, and an airport official said the jet would not be pulled out of the muck for two or three days.

Bell won't appeal decision

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell has given up its plan to add $2.75 to residential rates while the company awaits a Public Utility Commission decision in a $1.3 billion rate case.

Paul Roth, Bell vice president for revenues, said Tuesday there will be no appeal of State District Judge Mary Pearl Williams' order against an immediate, temporary hike of $280 million.

Roth said Bell "urgently" needs the money because it has a "revenue shortfall" of $700,000 a day, but, "to pursue the point further would be time consuming, and it is highly unlikely the legal issue could be concluded before the entire rate case is resolved."

The PUC is expected to rule in April on Bell's $1.3 billion rate hike request.

The court fight was over bonded rates — the temporary, refundable rates that utility companies are allowed to set and collect while the PUC is considering a rate hike.

The commission, Attorney General Jim Mattox and Mrs. Williams said a law approved by the 1983 Legislature governs the Bell case. Under the previous law, which was in effect when Bell began filing its rate case in June, utility companies were allowed to collect bonded rates 125 days after filing.

The new law, which went into effect Sept. 1, added 60 days to the waiting period. Bell said the old, 125-day law should govern its case because the first filing was in June.

Utility commissioners and the state district judge said the new rule rules the case because Bell did not finish filing the case until Oct. 19.

Roth said the company still doesn't agree, but won't fight.

"We don't believe the law is being interpreted correctly. Other appeal steps could be taken," Roth said, adding that an appeal would take too long to pursue.

"Instead, we plan to abide by the district court's decision and look forward to a prompt final order by the commission in our case," he said.

Gemayel to meet with Assad

BEIRUT — President Amin Gemayel, seeking to save his government from a challenge by Syrian-backed rebels, flew to Damascus today to discuss Lebanon's future at a summit meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Assad led the official welcoming delegation as Gemayel, accompanied by Foreign Minister Elie Salem and other aides, landed in a chartered plane at Damascus airport. The two leaders then headed for talks at Assad's presidential palace.

As Gemayel arrived in Syria, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was flying to the Mediterranean to visit U.S. Marines now stationed on Navy warships off the Lebanese coast after withdrawing from Beirut last weekend.

Weinberger, traveling from Britain after a two-day visit, planned to meet today with Navy and Marine personnel on ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet, said Sigmund Cohen, spokesman at the U.S. Embassy in London.

Cohen said Weinberger might also go ashore to meet with U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew and the U.S. servicemen remaining in Beirut after the pullout of the Marine contingent of the multinational force.

Beirut newspapers had speculated that Weinberger might call on Gemayel and Defense Minister Issam Khoury before returning to the United States on Thursday.

The date of the summit meeting between Gemayel and Assad had not been made public in advance, although Syria's official news agency said Tuesday night that it was imminent.

Gemayel, whose army has been splintered by Syrian-supported Druse and Shiite Moslem rebels, has not visited Syria since he assumed power in September 1982.

Dr Pepper merger approved

DALLAS — Dr Pepper shareholders have agreed overwhelmingly with the soft drink company's assessment that a $647.8 million merger with Forstmann Little & Co. is in their best interests.

More than 71 percent of the company's shareholders approved the $22-a-share merger with the New York investment company at a Tuesday morning meeting.

W.W. Clements, chairman and chief executive officer of Dr Pepper, urged shareholders to approve the merger.

"The board of directors recommends that shareholders approve this merger," he told a crowd of about 500. "The board believes this is in the best interest of all shareholders."

The shareholders agreed, approving the measure 16,713,121 shares for and 652,596 against. Abstaining were 162,888 shares. The total number of shares eligible to vote was 23,296,217. The remaining shares did not participate.

"Instead of having 3,000 to 4,000 public shareholders, there are now 35 to 40 private shareholders," Ted Forstmann, a partner in the firm, said in explaining the new corporate structure.

The Dr Pepper purchase is five times bigger than any of Forstmann Little's previous purchases, which have included a pair of soda-bottling firms.

Forstmann Little & Co. was created in 1978 by Ted Forstmann, Nicholas Forstmann and William Brian Little, all of New York.

Forstmann said official transfer of the corporation would be completed late Tuesday and Dr Pepper shareholders would begin receiving checks within the next two weeks.

Clements said an organizational structure will be announced next Tuesday. Dick Armstrong, current president of Dr Pepper, is expected to leave the company, he said.

West Texas — Mostly fair and warmer through Thursday. Lows 20s north and mountains to 30s south. Highs 60s north and mountains to 72 south.

Crisp conditions over state

Clear skies and chilly temperatures were the rule across Texas early today as an area of high pressure extended from the central United States into the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Forecasters expected clouds to increase tonight and Thursday over southern sections of the state, along with a chance of scattered showers and thundershowers.

Pre-dawn temperatures were mostly in the 30s and 40s, while readings in the 20s were noted over portions of North Texas. Brownsville set a record low for the date when the mercury hit 38 degrees at 2:45 a.m.

Temperatures at 4 a.m. ranged from 22 at Amarillo to 46 at McAllen.

Northerly winds dominated the eastern half of the state, while westerly breezes were the rule across the western half. Wind speeds were generally around 10 mph.

The forecast called for mostly fair skies and warmer temperatures over North and West Texas through Thursday. Clouds were expected to increase over South Texas, where a slight chance of rain existed Thursday.

Isolated showers were possible Thursday along the lower coast. Some fog also was expected to develop late tonight and Thursday. Increasing cloudiness was forecast for the upper coast.

Elsewhere, much of the nation enjoyed fair weather today, but the Northeast and Midwest had enough bad weather for everyone, with a record-setting snowstorm that paralyzed several states with near-blizzard conditions and has been blamed for 38 deaths.

Many roads and interstate highways were icy or clogged by drifting snow and stalled or abandoned vehicles, making driving impossible or very hazardous throughout the region.

A Chinese trick for making nukes

China is offering to provide underground storage space in its remote desert regions for radioactive waste from nuclear power plants in Western Europe and Japan. This is an odd twist. Most countries worry about what to do with their nuclear waste. Why is China willing to take it off their hands?

Presumably the Chinese are interested in the foreign exchange they could earn by running a depository for spent nuclear fuel in an out-of-the-way place like the Gobi Desert. That may well be the motive, but the International Atomic Energy Agency would do well to keep its eye on these negotiations between Peking and countries of the West.

While the word waste is used to describe fuel elements taken from power reactors, they can be reprocessed to produce plutonium that could be used for nuclear weapons or as a fuel supply for breeder reactors. China has exploded nuclear weapons and has a nuclear power program of its own, so it is not a question of handing over these materials to a custodian who is not already a member of the nuclear club.

But China has not signed the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty. So far, it has not agreed to safeguards under the IAEA which provide for on-site inspection of nuclear facilities to assure that materials are not being diverted into weapons production. As a first step, West Germany and other nations dicker for a storage deal should insist that China show its willingness to go along with the full range of international safeguards.

Getting rid of nuclear waste is only part of the problem. Keeping track of it and making it accessible for potential retrieval and use in the distant future also are considerations. Those factors must not be neglected in any arrangement that turns nuclear materials over to a country whose intentions are unpredictable at best.

Nosy news

Get out the paper shredders, folks. Here come those nasty newspaper people from the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Atlanta Constitution.

Those nosy people ... why don't they leave our government alone? You'd think every inter-office governmental memo was addressed to the Fourth Estate, the way they carry on.

Maybe the press is too nosy at times. And often we can be too nosy on the wrong issues, creating scandal at the slightest whiff of wrongdoing.

But then, government agencies contain their share of too-nosy people, who also try to impose their views on the rest of us. They are secretive, and often with good reason — namely, self-preservation.

These are the people with the paper-shredders, the ones who learned one basic lesson from Watergate — destroy the evidence as fast as possible.

The U.S. Information Agency seems to have learned that lesson a little belatedly. First, its director, Charles Wick, was caught taping conversations with everyone in town. Wick has served as a lightning post for debate over whether public officials should be allowed to tape conversations without asking permission of the person being taped.

I think debate on that question is irrelevant. If you don't want conversations exposed to the light of day, watch what you say.

What is reprehensible about the USIA is its recent behavior to destroy lists of persons that it deemed too liberal to participate in overseas speaking engagements sponsored by the U.S. government.

Hide your children's eyes, now. Real left-wing bomb-throwing activists were included on these lists:

- Walter Cronkite. Sometimes goes by the alias of "The Most Trusted Man In America." A former anchorman for CBS. Known to believe in (gasp!) freedom of the press.

- Gary Hart. A Democratic presidential candidate and U.S. Senator from Colorado. Believes in freedom of association. That's why he belongs to the wrong party.

- Coretta Scott King. Martin Luther King's widow. Her husband was so dangerous that he espoused enforcement of our 14th Amendment, equal rights regardless of race.

- Ralph Nader. A consumer activist. Most famous for an expose of the safety (or lack of) of Detroit automobiles. Denied belief in the basic creed that what is good for GM is good for the country.

These are respected leaders in their fields, who could impart a great deal of information and certainly draw a crowd. Why are they barred from participating in a U.S.-sponsored overseas program called American Participation?

Apparently for nothing less than opposition to the political beliefs in power, usually feared only by dictatorial or totalitarian governments.

The irony in this situation is almost unbearable. We preach about civil rights and freedom of speech and association, but when it comes to practicing our Constitutional rights, forget it.

After all, that's what the USIA did, and it's the agency entrusted with spreading freedom of speech to persons living under more repressive governments.

I'd like to say that the "liberals" — those rabble-rousing radicals who espouse freedom of speech — wouldn't blacklist William F. Buckley, George Bush, Milton Friedman and Lee Iacocca from speaking because they were "too conservative."

But I can't prove that. What I can say is that freedom of speech applies equally to all political views. If the Democrats or the Libertarians were in power, and they were caught in such a blatant violation of the spirit of the First Amendment, they too would deserve more than a slap on the wrist.

Every person in the United States should recognize that they shouldn't be limited in their expression of speech, with the obvious exception of yelling, "Fire!" in a restaurant. Just as every lawyer, such as USIA's general counsel Tom Harvey, should know that to destroy evidence of constitutional violations is obstruction of justice.

I, for one, would still like to know what the handwritten comments on those lists said.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

The high cost of moving Nixon

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon is moving again — and as usual, his itchy feet will cost taxpayers a bundle.

Although Nixon resigned in disgrace, he is still entitled to the same generous perquisites lavished on every ex-president, including round-the-clock protection by the Secret Service. His latest move will be the third time he has pulled up stakes since he left the White House of San Clemente in August 1974.

Every time Nixon moves, the Secret Service has to remove the elaborate security devices it had installed at his home and either move them to the new location or put in new equipment. The bill for all this paraphernalia around the country will run into the millions by the time his latest relocation is completed.

Nixon's decision to leave his estate at Saddle River, N.J., and buy a $1.8 million cooperative apartment in a fashionable section of Manhattan is turning into a nightmare for the Secret Service and the General Service Administration. Space for the Secret Service command post will be almost impossible to find in the high-rent district Nixon has chosen.

The agency will find space eventually, of course. But it's a landlord's market, and the cost will be steep. Obviously, the command post will have to be as close as possible to Nixon's new home. One official told associate Vicki Warren that the space "will cost a minimum of $50 a square foot, and they'll need at least 3,000 square feet" — or $150,000 in rent per year.

The overall cost of the Nixon relocation isn't known yet to the government officials in charge — and it will never be known to the American taxpayers who pick up the tab. That's because the Secret Service, for security reasons, is not obliged to make its budget public.

The expectation is that if the Secret Service doesn't have enough money in its general operating funds, it will just include the expense in the supplemental budget it is expected to submit to Congress later this year. More money may be needed because of the large number of presidential candidates entitled to Secret Service protection.

It's not the first time Nixon has created a headache for the Secret Service under similar circumstances. His first move as ex-president, to a Manhattan town house, left the agency scrambling for a place to put their command post. They finally had to refurbish an old furnace room. By the time they found adequate space in a former fast-food restaurant, Nixon decided to move to Saddle River.

Nixon could give the GSA and Secret Service a better chance to save money if he gave the agencies advance notice, allowing them time to scout out the territory before the move became known and the prices went up. But one official complained that Nixon's office generally discloses the ex-president's intentions one day and expects to have everything taken care of the next.

As with the move to Saddle River (more room for the grandchildren), Nixon has given a reasonable explanation for this move: Mrs. Nixon's poor health. But Nixon critics suspect it's all part of his persistent effort to gain greater media exposure in his chosen role as an elder statesman. A "salon" in New York City is better suited to this than a home out in the suburbs.

The only money game in town

WASHINGTON — The view that Paul Volcker is the "second most powerful man" in America is about to be tested. For the economy is moving rapidly toward the zone of inflationary danger.

When it comes to stopping inflation, the only game in town is the game being played at the Federal Reserve Board by Chairman Volcker. But a look at his hand shows potent constraints on arbitrary authority.

The latest numbers indicate that the slowdown in the economy discerned by many in the last quarter of 1983 did not take place. Personal income, retail sales, housing starts and manufacturing all continued to rise — and rise fast — in January.

Inventories have been lagging, and there is a possibility of an inventory explosion as retailers restock to catch up with sales. Many economists are predicting that the growth in gross national product will rise from 4.5 percent in the last quarter of 1983 to over 6 percent during the first quarter is not ruled out.

New entries on the job market — for reasons not well understood — are also running below par. So unemployment has been falling much more rapidly than anticipated. The jobless rate, already under 8 percent, could dip well below 7 percent by the end of 1984. At that point, labor becomes tight, and wage claims send prices rocketing.

The budgetary power of the federal government can normally be brought to bear against inflation at this stage of a recovery. Most officials in the Reagan administration, in fact, favor strong action — including higher taxes, if necessary — to close the huge deficits that stretch ahead.

There is, however, one very big exception — Ronald Reagan. The most the White House staff and the leading Cabinet members have been able to pry from the president is the proposal for bipartisan meetings with congressional leaders to work out a tiny "down payment" on the deficit over the next three years. The bipartisan approach is still on. But one sign of poor prospects is that the White House staff last week arranged a meeting between Chairman Volcker and President Reagan.

The purpose of the meeting was for Volcker to impress upon Reagan the dangers of inflation, and the need for action to close the deficit. What happened at the session is a closely held secret. The story that Reagan talked tough to Volcker is almost certainly a line designed to bind anti-Fed forces in the Republican Party to the president's side. More revealing is Volcker's comment that the meeting was "routine."

That suggests nothing happened and that Reagan is still set against the tax rise that is central to any closing of the deficit.

Besides the budgetary brakes on inflation, of course, there are also the monetary brakes. The Fed, by its massive buying and selling on the money supply. Tighter money causes interest rates to rise. Higher rates restrict consumer purchasing and business investment in a way that slows inflation.

A move toward tighter money and higher rates is now being urged by many private economists. It is being actively discussed within the Fed. But such action is much easier to talk about than to take.

Jittery nerves in financial circles in this country are one reason. Investors, mindful of the coming deficits, are very apprehensive. Big fluctuations in various markets have recently been precipitated by downbeat comments from Volcker, and reports that, first, Reagan would not seek reelection and, second, had suffered a heart attack. So any action by the Fed has to be taken in ways that do not occasion panic.

Moreover, investments from abroad are a main source of the capital flowing into American markets at this time. Foreign investors could easily have second thoughts if the stock market started to sink badly. In that case, funds would begin to flow out of this country, and capital would become scarce. Interest rates would soar to levels that could flatten the American economy.

The impact would be felt immediately by the score of countries — including Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, Nigeria and the Philippines — which have recently had to reschedule debts on a massive scale. Those nations are now trying to work back to solvency through austerity programs. But a rise in interest rates would knock those efforts haywire, with incalculable consequences for the world economy.

Finally come the political constraints. In the interests of his reelection, President Reagan wants the boom to continue unabated. So do almost all other Republicans. Most Democrats argue that the economy needs to be gunned harder to create more jobs. Thus in moving toward restraint, Volcker would have to go against the whole political establishment.

Maybe he will succeed — but not by virtue of brute force. If Volcker prevails, it will be by a quality that is rare, and in some quarters disparaged — political finetuning.

To a man who shaped our lives

To the editor:

We are writing this letter in gratitude to a man who has given so much to so many of us. Bill Bradley was our Band Director and our friend. He helped to shape our lives and to give us "firm ground" to stand on. During a time, when our teachers and schools are coming under such sharp criticism, it should be noted that there are exceptions and "Mr. B." was that exception. His positive outlook on life came through in his teaching. The love and understanding that he gave to his students was real. He gave his all to us because he wanted to, not because it was expected of him. He believed in our ability to be the best in everything we tried. His death has left many of us empty and grieving. "Mr. B." will live on in our memories.

It is our hope that you will reprint these excerpts from an article printed in your newspaper on August 9, 1979. It is what so many of us feel and remember about him and the ways he touched our lives.

"As students of 'Mr. B.' (one is never an ex-student, for he is always there if you need him) we would like to share a few things he taught us. He took the phrases 'I can't,' 'I have to,' out of our vocabulary and replaced them with such positive phrases as 'I can,' and 'I get to.' 'Mr. B.' showed us that it was important to have pride in the things we did and in ourselves. In all of the many activities and projects we were involved with, he helped us to live and work as a family. As our teacher, he took time to show an interest in all of us, and time to help shape our personal lives, many times picking up the pieces and helping us start over again."

"The memories he gave us made high school one of the happiest times of our lives. How can any of us forget the audience's applause as they enjoyed Campus Review, the time we rehearsed one halftime ten times over, until we got it right, the many hours spent preparing Homecoming floats, filling balloons at five in the morning in the band hall, the places and the people he showed us! All of the sugar-free Tabs we drank when he was on a diet, his never ending sense of humor, and the lasting friendships he helped us to achieve."

"How can any of us hope to thank him for all the time he gave to the youth of Big Spring, for by helping us, he helped to make Big Spring a better place to live."

With our love and respect, Bobby Mills, Shannon Mullen, Cliff Graham, Ben Walker, Tamera Hart Howell, Janet Ivery, Robert Rodriguez, Robin Jordi, Cecil Key and Jerry Clayton."

Dear Abby

Widower's letters may bear different message

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the widow who discovered her late husband's "unfaithfulness" when his secretary brought her the contents of his desk drawers. Among his personal papers were some "love letters" from other women.

I am reminded of an incident that occurred in our circle of friends a number of years ago in Kansas. A man in his mid-40s died suddenly of a heart attack after being happily married for many years.

His widow grieved for an unusually long time, so finally a family friend, who had also been her late husband's accountant, asked her why she was still so unhappy. She replied, "Why didn't you tell me that my husband had been supporting another woman all these years? You surely must have known." The friend said, "Why, that can't be right. How do you know? And who was the woman?" The widow replied, "When I took over his checkbook, I discovered monthly payments to a 'Marjorie Jones'—extending over many years."

My friend replied, "Good heavens! Marjorie Jones is the secretary at the country club. She handles the liquor pool in this dry state, and we all make monthly payments to her to settle our accounts."

DEAR ABBY: We have a neighbor who borrows eggs, sugar, milk etc. but never pays back anything. She calls us when she's locked out of her house or her car, or when she's stuck somewhere and needs transportation. I think you got the picture.

Well, over the Christmas holidays, she asked our 13-year-old son if he would feed the cats and fish and bring in her mail while she and her family were out of town. She said she would pay him. He agreed. My son took care of her requests, but as of this writing, he hasn't been paid. It's not the money; it's the principle of the thing.

My question to you: Should we just forget about it, or should she be reminded of her promise? Our son is too shy to ask her himself, so I think I should say something to her. She has no financial hardships. How should I put it? IRRITATED NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Put it this way: "You promised to pay my son for looking after your cats and fish and bringing in your mail while you were away last Christmas. It probably slipped your mind, so I'm reminding you."

Dr. Donohue

Tetanus germ is still widespread

Dear Dr. Donohue: What can you tell me about lockjaw? It is something I heard about when I was growing up. My mother constantly warned me about going barefoot for fear of stepping on a dirty nail and "getting lockjaw." Has this illness been wiped out? Is it the same as tetanus? — F.P.

Lockjaw is still around but we don't see the infection as often as we did years ago because of the effective vaccination programs that have limited it. And almost everyone has been vaccinated.

The tetanus germ is widespread as ever, especially in the soil. It's a germ which in the body makes a poison, or toxin, that stimulates the nervous system adversely, in such a way that muscles become rigid. This is where the name, lockjaw, arose. The jaw muscles become so rigid that the mouth cannot be opened and the person cannot swallow.

But it is not only jaw muscles that are affected. Other muscles act in a similar way, and the body is swept by waves of muscle contractions even a soft whisper, may trigger the violent muscle contractions in the person infected.

A person with tetanus must be kept in a secluded, quiet room, and often he must be paralyzed with drugs to prevent the contractions.

Jerry Wade speaks on antiques

A car becomes an antique when it is 25 years old, but furniture usually is not considered antique until it is 100 years old, said Jerry Wade during a program about antiques and collector's items. Wade spoke at a City Extension Homemakers Club meeting in the home of Lillian Dawson, Feb. 24.

Wade showed a collection of Tom Clark's Gnomes and Hill people. The name of the Gnome or person was on each piece as well as a logo. Each piece also had a date and edition number. Each piece had a coin in the pocket or hidden among the leaves. The coins are from countries where stories of little people are popular.

Thomas Fetzler Clark's shop is in Davidson, N.C. He makes his statues from nut shells, wood chips and resin.

If a collector wants to join the Cairn National Secondary Market, he must send a registration form naming the pieces he has and the "offer to sell price." The secondary market is the only means available to other interested collectors to purchase statues a person owns, should a person want to sell. The secondary market is of importance in establishing the market value of a collection.

The next meeting will be at 2 p.m., March 9.

tractions, some of which can be forceful enough to break bones. Eventually, the toxin is inactivated. The dirty nail is the perfect way to get the germ into the body. Tetanus germs thrive only if they get deep inside the body tissues, so a puncture wound, as from stepping on a nail, is the perfect way to get the germ to that point. And, of course, dirt on the nail is the home of the germ.

Some people still slip through vaccination, and others, who have been vacinated, fail to get boosters. People should be revaccinated every 10 years. If everyone were so immunized and periodical-ly protected we would see this dreadful illness disappear.

Underclassmen prohibition ruled in violation

Judgement comes against USFL, but NFL expected to feel affects

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge has ruled the United States Football League's regulation barring the signing of underclassmen violates the Sherman Antitrust act, a league attorney said Tuesday night.

Don Meyers of Phoenix, Ariz., who represented the USFL in the suit brought by a former Arizona football player, said he had been told of the ruling in a telephone call from the clerk of Judge Laughlin Waters, who tried the case in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

"I have no details," said Meyers, although he said he had been told that the judge had left the way open for the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals to hear an appeal and make a broader ruling.

A clerk for Waters said a decision had been reached, but would not be made public until Wednesday.

Bob Boris, who filed the suit, has since joined with the Oklahoma Outlaws of the year-old league, but a ruling in his favor could open the way for others to sign with USFL teams and have a bearing on a similar regulation in the National Football League.

Meyers said that although the ruling had "no direct legal impact on any other student athlete, the application of the court decision to any other student athlete is apparent."

An adviser to Marcus Dupree, a former Oklahoma University running back, said the ruling opens the way for Dupree to sign with the New Orleans Breakers before the end of the week. Ken Fairley, a Hattiesburg, Miss., businessman told RKO Radio he had learned earlier Tuesday that the ruling was favorable to Boris.

Meyers said Waters decision came as no surprise because he had been aware that the judge considered "the eligibility rule as used by the USFL and the National Football League a Section 1 Sherman Act violation."

"The judge ruled it would be unconstitutional for underclassmen not to be allowed to play professional ball," Fairley told RKO Radio from his office in Hattiesburg, Miss. He did not say how he had learned of the ruling.

"This, of course, has set a precedent and would allow us a chance to immediately sign a contract with New Orleans Breakers."

Dupree, a sophomore, dropped out of Oklahoma during the 1983 season, and subsequently enrolled and later dropped out of Southern Mississippi.

The Breakers received permission to talk with him from the New Jersey Generals, which have USFL territorial rights to Oklahoma players. Chet Simmons, USFL commissioner, has said that the league's regulation would bar Dupree from signing until his original class at Oklahoma is graduated.

Asked if the USFL regulation had been the only roadblock to signing with New Orleans, Fairley said: "I would think that $1 million per year for 5 years, would be too difficult to turn down."

Joseph Canizaro, owner of the Breakers, acknowledged that Dupree and the Breakers have agreed in general terms on a five-year contract.

"We won't have any idea until the commissioner decides what we can do and can't do," Canizaro told USA Today. "If it goes as well as I expect, I hope he will be in camp by the end of the week."

John L'Estrange, Jr., a San Diego attorney who has represented Boris in the suit filed last August, said he had received no word on the decision.

Boris, 25, of Sierra Vista, Ariz., didn't attend college immediately after high school, according to his agent, Ernie Wright, who said Boris attended Arizona for a little more than two years before leaving school in the fall of 1982.

Boris played three games for Arizona that season, Wright said, and ranked second in the NCAA in punting when he left school.

At that point, he signed an agreement with Professional Sports Management, Inc., making him ineligible for intercollegiate sports for the rest of his life.

It was at that time that Wright, a former offensive tackle with the San Diego Chargers and Cincinnati Bengals who runs Professional Sports Management, Inc., began serving as Boris' agent.

Wright said that he investigated playing opportunities for Boris in the Canadian Football League, but was told that his client couldn't play because his original college class hadn't graduated.

"It looked like we were out in the cold in Canada for a year at least," said Wright.

Appeals slated by NFL officials in Raider move

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National Football League officials say they will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court a federal appeals court decision upholding the move of the Raiders football team from Oakland to Los Angeles.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals handed the Raiders a significant victory Tuesday, ruling 2-1 that the NFL violated antitrust laws by conspiring to prevent the Raiders from moving to Los Angeles. It also ruled that the league has no power to block any future franchise moves.

"We're grateful for the decision by the federal Court of Appeals," said Raiders' managing general partner Al Davis in a statement issued through executive assistant Al LoCasale.

"Throughout this litigation, we knew we were right, that the National Football League operated in bad faith and unfair dealing as well as in violation of the antitrust laws. In fact, they have continued to act in bad faith, trying to drain us economically."

"The NFL has tried to maintain a cloud of uncertainty over our fans, which has hurt ticket sales and killed the building of luxury suites at the Los Angeles Coliseum," the statement said.

"The NFL continues to believe it should have the right to decide where it does business," said a statement issued by league Commissioner Pete Rozelle's office. "The league also believes it should be able, in making such decisions, to respect the loyalty of fans and communities that supported its franchises as well as Oakland did."

Rozelle's statement said the 2-1 split "emphasizes the need for Supreme Court clarification on the fundamental question of how the antitrust laws should be applied to sports leagues."

The ruling did not address the $48 million in damages that a Los Angeles jury awarded the Raiders' and the Los Angeles Coliseum. The court said it would rule later on that.

The three-judge panel said the lower court had correctly applied federal antitrust laws and the six-woman jury had sufficient evidence to decide that the NFL had conspired to restrain trade in its attempt to block the Raiders' move to Los Angeles.

"We believe antitrust principles are sufficiently flexible to account for the NFL's structure," the court said.

Greenwood chopped down in area play

BROWNFIELD — The Greenwood Rangers fourth quarter rally fell short in boy's area basketball action last night, and the Anton Bulldogs held on for a 35-33 win, propelling the Bulldogs into the Region-I Class A tournament in Levelland this weekend.

The contest was nip-and-tuck all the way with each team holding two to three point margins. Trailing 24-20 going into the final period, the Rangers rallied to take a 33-30 lead with one minute remaining in the contest.

Greenwood went up in the contest when Chad Longley, John Ellis and John Gilliam all hit both ends of one-and-one situations at the charity line. Gilliam, a 6-0 junior forward led all Rangers scorers with 11 points.

The Greenwood lead was short-lived as the Bulldogs cut the deficit to 33-32 on a basket following a missed free throw by the Rangers. Anton took the lead with 30 seconds remaining on a basket by Ronnie Cox following a Greenwood turnover.

Cox, a 6-3 post player for the Bulldogs led all scorers with 19 points. Following Cox's basket, Greenwood turned the ball over again, resulting in an Anton free throw.

Greenwood got the ball back one last time with 15 seconds left in the contest. But a tight defense employed by Anton prevented the Rangers from getting a final shot off.

The Rangers trailed 7-4 after one quarter of play. They edged their way back into the contest in the second quarter, and finally took a 16-14 lead with five seconds remaining in the half.

Anton then heaved the ball the length of the court and got off a shot, which went in, and Greenwood was whistled for a foul on the play. The free throw was good giving Anton a 17-16 halftime lead.

Troy Wallace scored nine points for Greenwood. Wallace and Wil Wilman hauled down five rebounds each. The Rangers, under the direction of coach Roger Goldsmith end the season with an impressive 23-7 mark.

Gastineau inks for 4 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Gastineau won't be going the way of four other New York Jets veterans who were sent to other National Football League teams in exchange for draft picks.

Gastineau signed Tuesday a five-year contract with the Jets for an estimated $4 million, a sum his agent says will make him the highest-paid defensive lineman in professional football.

"I'm thrilled, very happy," said Gastineau, who had one year remaining on his old contract. "I'm happy we've reached this agreement and confident that it is fair to both sides."

Leigh Steinberg,

Gastineau's agent, said the new contract will keep Gastineau with the Jets through the 1988 season.

Four veterans — quarterback Richard Todd, defensive linemen Abdul Salaam and Kenny Neil and linebacker Stan Blinks — have been traded by the Jets in recent weeks for draft choices.

"There have been some changes," Gastineau said. "Abdul Salaam is no longer with us. He was a very close friend of mine. But the Jets have a game plan of what they think should be done."

"Richard Todd is another big loss, but Ken O'Brien is an exceptional athlete. I'm positive and confident the Jets know what they're doing and I'm behind them 100 percent."

Gastineau has created some controversy and ill feeling around the league with his sack dance — an arm-waving leap into the air after sacking an opposing quarterback.

The agent added that he had some discussions with the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League, "but it never was totally serious. We were flattered that they talked with us but the feeling on Mark's part was that he had invested five years with the Jets and it made sense to continue there."

Virginia politician could follow Kuhn

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Richard J. Davis of Virginia, acknowledging he is under consideration for the job of commissioner of major league baseball, says his chances of getting the job "are somewhat remote."

"My name has been submitted along with others for consideration," he said Tuesday.

Davis, 62, an unannounced but hard-working candidate for governor in 1985, said he was "very flattered."

But he said "my principal pursuit is to run for governor of Virginia. Anything else is secondary."

Davis, a former chairman of the Virginia Democratic Party, was defeated by Republican Paul S. Trible Jr. for the U.S. Senate in 1982.

Bowie Kuhn has been commissioner since 1969, but his term expires Thursday.

Davis said it was not entirely surprising that he is being considered as Kuhn's successor.

"I've been involved in baseball for over 20 years. They're looking for someone who is a lawyer, who has been in business, who has been in baseball and who is devoted to the sport. I'm all of those," he said.

If offered the job, "I'd consider it," he said. "I'm always interested in new opportunities and challenges."

Davis, a mortgage banker, is president of the Tidewater Tides in the Class AAA International League. He also is secretary of the International League and has been its legal counsel for 10 years.

Davis said whether he would consider the job depended "entirely on the parameters of the authority of the office."

"I would like to know precisely what authority the selection committee would be willing to endow the office with," he added.

Camacho wears crown with air of confidence

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

He is a neon sign coming down the street, flashing on and off, blinking its message loud and clear.

Hector "Macho" Camacho.

World Champion.

"It is my time," says Camacho. "It is macho time."

Just in case you don't recognize the World Boxing Council's super featherweight champion right away, he's the one with the gold chain around his neck and the word "Macho" spelled out in gold letters six inches big.

The one in the black leather pants and matching jacket, collar turned up.

The one with rings on his fingers and gold on his wrists.

The world champion.

"I've got all it takes to be great. I'm strong. I've got good moves. Good defense," he said.

Then he winked.

"And I'm good looking, too."

A philosopher once suggested that if you've got it, flaunt it. Hector Camacho is taking the advice. He lights up a room when he walks into it. The Macho Man is not shy. He is a pint-sized Muhammad Ali.

The World Boxing Council gathered some of its champions at Madison Square Garden Tuesday, honoring middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler as its fighter of the year and light heavyweight king Michael Spinks as champion of the year. The man who stole the show was Camacho.

"I am too quick, too smart for them," he said. "The kid is fresh. Now is macho time. This is happening. I love it. I'm for real. I'm the best fighter in the world right now."

Just then, Jose Sulaiman, president of the WBC, handed the fighter of the year award to Hagler. In the back of the room, Camacho never broke stride.

"I am the fighter of the year," he said.

"I am cocky enough to say that. What time is it? It's macho time."

From the podium, Sulaiman continued with the introductions.

"... And now, a young man with charisma, style and class ..."

Camacho grinned at the description.

"They're talking about me," he said.

The Macho Man won his crown Aug. 7, 1983 when he stopped Bazooka Limon in five rounds. He defended it November 18, knocking out Rafael Solis. The title has not changed his life, he says.

Not much.

So he drives around in a Corvette with his name on the door. Doesn't everybody?

"Being champion is everything to me," he said. "I always dreamed of that. When you come down the street, everybody is looking at you. It's showtime. I love the image."

"This is my school. I'm just beginning. I'm not flying yet. But I will be. There are a lot of things I want to be. An actor. A dancer. I can be in commercials. I want to be comfortable. Happy. I will get it all."

Certainly the title has made him a hero in his New York ghetto neighborhood, where he still lives.

"Maybe more people know me now. Maybe I get more respect. I am like Mayor Koch up there. I am an example. Here is somebody who made it."

For the future, he is planning an over-the-weight bout in April, perhaps against Kenny Bogner. "Got to keep fighting," he said.

Sutter wants better stats during 1984

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals know they will need the relief pitching of Bruce Sutter this season and Sutter said that he plans to be ready despite a mediocre outing last year.

"If I get the split-fingered pitch going good and if I get my good rhythm, that should be enough said Sutter, who acknowledged that nothing fit together too well last season.

"I don't think I ever had it going for more than four or five days in a row," said the right-hander who had what was to him was a disappointing 21 saves and nine victories.

"But that's like Mike Schmidt hitting 25 home runs," said Sutter. "If he did that, they'd boo him out of Philadelphia."

Sutter said there was little chance that he was on his way out at the ripe old age of 30.

"Look at (Kent)

Tekulve," Sutter said. "He's 38 (actually 37) years old and got a four-year contract. (Rich) Gossage is 33, and nobody says he's done."

"It's not like I'm pitching 200 innings every year and wearing out my arm. After a little while in the bullpen, you learn how to warm up."

Pitching coach Mike Roarke said he believed Sutter could have a good season, especially if the other Cardinals pitchers do their jobs well.

"I see no reason why he can't come back," said Roarke. "His arm is sound."

Appetizer, snack and pie among recipes featured

Rene Eyskens has submitted a recipe for Buttermilk Pie for this week's Recipe Exchange. Potato skins are a favorite restaurant appetizer for many people. Also, we found another recipe for Fried Cheese Snacks.

If you have recipes to share, or are looking for some, let us know by writing to Herald Recipe Exchange, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

BUTTERMILK PIE

Rene Eyskens
2 cup sugar (I use 1½ cup)
3 eggs
¾ stick butter
3 Tbsps. flour
1 tsp. vanilla and lemon extract
1 cup buttermilk
Mix ingredients. (Mrs. Eyskens use a blender.) Place in unbaked pie shell. Bake one hour at 325 degrees or until knife comes out clean.

CRISPY POTATO SKINS

4 baking potatoes
½ cup mayonnaise
2 Tbsps. grated Parmesan cheese
1 tsp. minced onion
Preheat the oven to 425 degrees. Wash, then dry, the potatoes and prick them all over with a fork. Bake for 50 to 60 minutes, until the potatoes are soft. Cool the potatoes slightly, then slice each one into four lengthwise sections. Scrape out the pulp of each potato, and place the skins skin-side-down on a baking sheet. Bake the skins for 10 minutes, or until crisp. In a small bowl, combine the remaining ingredients. Spread this mixture over the insides of the baked potato skins, then put the baking sheet of skins under a broiler, about four inches from the heat. Broil two to three minutes, until golden brown. Serve immediately. Makes 16 skins.

CHEESE STEAK

1 Tbsp. oil
½ red pepper, sliced
½ green pepper, sliced
3 slices American cheese
2 frozen slices beef sand-

SNACKS — Fried Cheese Snacks can steal the show at your party and make you the star of the evening. New kinds of appetizers and snacks can be delicious and will be enjoyed by your guests.

wich steaks
1 hero roll, sliced lengthwise
Heat the oil in a large skillet. Sauté the peppers until soft, then remove them from the skillet and set them aside. Cut each slice of cheese in half and set aside. Cut each frozen beef sandwich steak into three pieces.

Place the pieces in a preheated skillet over medium heat. Cook about 45 seconds, turn to the other side, and place a piece of cheese on each piece of beef. Allow the cheese to melt (this should take about 10 to 15 seconds), then, using a wide metal spatula, scoop the beef and cheese onto the hero roll. Top with sautéed peppers (or you can add fried onions or lettuce and tomato.) Makes one cheese steak.

FRIED CHEESE SNACKS

½ pound Mozzarella cheese
½ cup original pancake mix
½ cup milk
1 egg
1 Tbsp. dried parsley flakes
Vegetable oil
Cut cheese into 3½ by 1½ by ¼-inch strips. Combine remaining ingredients except oil in small bowl. Heat ½-inch of oil in 9 or 10-inch skillet over high heat. Reduce heat to medium. Dip three cheese strips in pancake mix batter, coating evenly. Cook in oil until bottoms are golden brown. Turn; cook second side until golden brown. Repeat with remaining cheese strips. Serve with warm pizza sauce and Parmesan cheese, if desired. Makes six servings.

BATTER FRIED CORN-ON-THE-COB

Oil for deep frying
¾ cup corn meal
¾ cup flour
½ tsp. garlic salt
¾ cup milk
2 Tbsps. oil
1 egg
1 pkg. frozen half-ears corn-on-the-cob, thawed
1 cup corn flake crumbs
In deep fryer, heat oil to 375 degrees. In medium bowl, combine corn meal, flour, garlic salt, milk, oil and egg; mix well. Dip corn-on-the-cob ears into corn meal batter to coat; roll in cornflake crumbs. Fry for two to three minutes or until light golden brown. Place on paper towels to drain. Serve immediately. Makes six servings.

CHICKEN PIZZAS

¼ cup catsup

1 tsp. ground oregano
1 package (12 ounces) chicken patties
1 can (2 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
¼ cup shredded mozzarella cheese
2 English muffins, split and toasted (optional)
Combine catsup and oregano. Spread on patties. Top with mushrooms. Bake on cookie sheet in 375 degrees oven for 20 minutes. Sprinkle cheese on top and bake an additional ten minutes or until cheese is bubbly. Serve on English muffin halves, if desired. Makes four servings.

CHICKEN IN A BASKET

2 packages (4.5 ounces)

each) refrigerated biscuits (12 biscuits)
1 package (12 ounces) chicken sticks
1 jar (5 ounces) pasteurized process sharp cheddar cheese spread
1 jar (5 ounces) pasteurized process bleu cheese spread
¼ cup milk
Separate biscuits and flatten out slightly. Wrap a biscuit around the middle of each stick leaving the ends of the stick exposed; pinch tightly at the top to seal. Bake on lightly greased cookie sheet in 375 degrees oven for 20 minutes or until golden brown.

Meanwhile, in small sauce pan over low heat, melt cheeses and milk, stirring occasionally. To serve, pour warm cheese sauce over sticks. Makes four servings.

HADDOCK STEW

4 Tbsps. butter
1 medium onion, chopped
4 Tbsps. flour
1 tsp. celery salt
¼ tsp. white pepper
3 cups frozen non-dairy creamer
1 cup water
1 Tbsp. salt
1 quart water
1 pound frozen haddock, thawed
3 carrots, sliced
2 potatoes, diced
1 10-ounce package frozen peas, slightly thawed
In a 1½-quart saucepan, sauté onion in butter until tender. Add flour, celery salt and white pepper, stirring until mixture thickens. Gradually, add non-dairy creamer, then water, stirring constantly, until mixture simmers. Set aside.

In a soup kettle, heat one quart of water with one tablespoon salt to boiling. Add haddock, and return to boil. Reduce heat and simmer until fish is tender, about ten minutes. Using a slotted spoon, transfer fish to a platter. Set aside. Add carrots to soup kettle. Boil for five minutes. Add potatoes to soup kettle and boil until vegetables are tender, about 10 more minutes. Add peas and cook about three minutes. Adjust seasoning. Add creamer mixture to soup kettle and blend thoroughly. Flake haddock into small pieces and return to soup kettle. Heat through and serve.

WILTED LETTUCE SALAD WITH PEAS

10 ounce package frozen sweet peas with butter sauce in a pouch
2 Tbsps. sugar

2 slices bacon, fried and crumbled
2 Tbsps. vinegar
2 ounce jar sliced pimiento, drained
2 cups shredded lettuce or 4 cups torn assorted greens
Place unopened pea pouch in vigorously boiling water in saucepan. Do not cover. Bring water to a second vigorous boil and heat for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, in medium bowl, combine sugar, bacon, vinegar and pimiento. Add lettuce. Stir in peas. Serve immediately. Makes four to five servings.

Follow rules when buying frozen foods

One of the conveniences that the modern homemaker most appreciates is the home freezer and its accompanying companion, frozen foods. Here are a few simple rules to follow when buying these foods in order to get the greatest value.

Check your freezer space before leaving the house. Don't purchase more frozen food than your freezer can handle.

Shop the freezer section last. Don't have frozen food lying in your shopping cart while you mull over the remainder of your food needs.

Study the freezer case for new products and ideas. You will find many time-saving ways for the busy cook to use these quality frozen foods.

Select food packages which are in perfect condition. Torn or crushed packages will allow the food to dry out and lose taste and quality.

Make the grocery shopping your last stop before going home. Don't allow the frozen food to thaw in your car while you make further stops.

Do put frozen food in your freezer immediately upon arriving home. Remember to label and date packages so you will be sure to use first the food which have been there longest.

Purchase a refrigerator/freezer thermometer and place it in your freezer. Keep the temperature at Zero degrees F. Your frozen foods will keep up to a year at this temperature.

If you follow this method you can be confident you will be serving nutritious, delicious, quality food. Your proper handling of frozen foods continues the care which the industry uses in producing its products.

Effect of snacks on children tested

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — Officials aren't sure whether a mid-morning snack of nuts and raisins makes Madera elementary school children smarter, but it does seem to make them nicer.

The district gave mid-morning snacks of donated raisins and nuts to 200 students during the 1982-83 school year and compared them with 200 students who didn't get the treats.

The study was based on theories of pediatrician Lendon Smith that children who eat sugar-based breakfasts have high blood sugar levels at the start of the school day, which dissipate by mid-morning.

Called "Project Nibble," the Madera study involved students in grades two through six. Results reported to trustees recently showed "no significant differences" in mathematics learning between the two groups. However, it was noted that 20 percent of the youngsters didn't have math lessons immediately after the snack.

Scores on the California Test of Basic Skills showed that math achievement improved in four of the five grade levels but not by enough that the gains couldn't be credited to chance.

However, primary-level children who ate the nuts and raisins developed "significantly better attitudes" than the non-snack group, said the report prepared by Superintendent Duane Furman and Howard School Principal Pamela Noli.

"The intervention of a mid-morning snack of nuts and raisins does have a positive effect on the attitudes of primary students, particularly as those attitudes relate to their teachers and school in general," they added.

They weren't sure whether attitudes of fourth-through sixth-graders improved as much.

Take the salt out of canned foods

Substantial amounts of salt in many canned and packaged foods are a problem for people trying to reduce their sodium intake because of high blood pressure and other illnesses.

But draining and rinsing the food often helps, says dietitian Carol D. Courser of the University of New Hampshire. For example, draining, rinsing, and heating canned green beans in plain tap water reduces their sodium content by 41 percent. Draining and rinsing canned tuna reduces sodium by 75 percent.

Martin Solis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vicent Solis, 704 N.W. 10th St., will represent the East Texas State University Student Activities Board at the National Association for Campus Activities Convention in Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 26-30.

Nearly 2,000 delegates from universities all over the United States are expected to attend the conference, which is held in conjunction with the National Art and Lectures Conference.

Solis, a ETSU junior, is a history major.

Three students from the Big Spring area have been named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the fall semester at Abilene Christian University.

They were among 673 undergraduates who earned at least a 3.45 grade point average for at least 12 hours during the semester.

The students are Leslye De Overman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Webster Overman, Jr., 2719 Larry; Bradford Carl Small, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Small, 1800 Brent; and Thomas Andrew Spell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Spell of Coahoma.

The United States Achievement Academy announced today that Brad Roberts has been named a 1984 United States National Award winner in history and government.

This award is a honor few students can attain.

The Academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students. Roberts, a student at Goliad Middle School, was nominated for the award by Ben Neel, a Goliad history teacher. Roberts' biography will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

The Academy selects winners upon the recommendation of instructors or other school sponsors and upon the standards of selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from an instructor or director.

Roberts is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Roberts, 2104 Merrily, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Parnell, 3202 Cornell, and Mr. and Mrs. M.O. Roberts, 618 Ridglea.

held at the Municipal Auditorium, Feb. 18.

Norman received $15 as second place winner. Letters of recognition were presented to Iris Cervantes, Sheri Johnson, Alvin McVea and Shane Shelton.

The essay contest was planned as an annual event during Black Heritage Month.

Borger and Panhandle.

Jennifer Poe, Runnels Junior High student, was among the top 10 individuals in a regional science and math competition at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin recently.

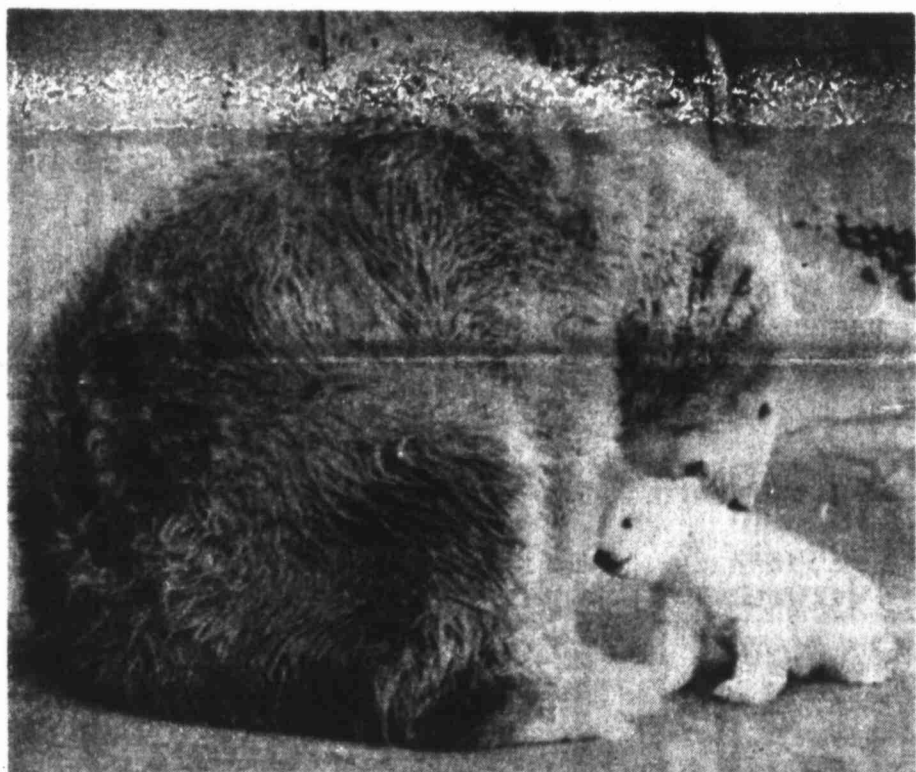

A team of Runnels Junior High students competed with 11 other schools throughout the Permian Basin in the regional MATHCOUNTS competition.

The top team, representing Midland's Trinity School, will compete statewide in Austin April 7. A team from Wink-Loving placed second; Midland's San Jacinto Junior High placed third and a team from McCombs placed fourth. MATHCOUNTS, sponsored by the Permian Basin Society of Professional Engineers, is a nationwide math competition which turns the learning of mathematics into a team sport.

Dr. James Nickel, professor of mathematics and chairman of the computer science department at UTPB, said the program was initiated by a consortium of engineers, educators, businessmen and government agencies, including the National Aeronautic and Space Administration and the National Science Foundation in an effort to combat declining interest and achievement in math and the sciences.

MOTHERLY AFFECTION — Ursula Minor, a 19-year-old female polar bear, introduces her 2-month-old cub to the world for the first time last week. Both bears had remained in their den at the Worcester Science Center in Massachusetts.

Jerry J. Crawford of Midland was appointed branch manager of the Metropolitan Insurance Cos.' Permian (Midland-Odessa) office.

Crawford will be responsible for the sales and service activities of Metropolitan sales representatives serving the Midland-Odessa area.

Attorney Johnny Roy Phillips has been named a director of Seminole State National Bank as well as a director of the First Seminole Bank Shares.

McMurry slates Women's History Week activities

McMurry College in Abilene has a full week of activities scheduled this week to commemorate Women's History Week.

The event got underway earlier when representatives of the college were on hand for Abilene mayor Elbert Hall's signing of Women's History Week proclamation, Feb. 23. The activities are being coordinated by Dr. Fane Downs, chairperson of the History Department.

A juried art exhibit was held Sunday with a reception for artists in the gallery of the Ryan Fine Arts Center. The exhibit will remain for public viewing until March 9.

The exhibit consists of work entered by women artists from the Abilene area. The artwork was judged by Maureen Stewart, chairperson of the art department at Howard Payne University in Brownwood. Catherine Benson, art instructor at McMurry, coordinated the exhibit.

Tuesday, McMurry welcomed Melissa Hield, deputy assistant to the state treasurer of Texas, as a guest speaker. Ms. Hield, a scholar in women's history, addressed students, faculty, staff and the public in a college series presentation at Radford Auditorium. She conducted a presentation for faculty members at a luncheon the same day.

Two events, involving speakers and the reading of prose and poetry, were scheduled for today. At noon, three Abilene business women were on hand for the Wider Opportunities for Women program. Abilene attorneys Janis Reinken and Jane Varner, and Claudine Woodridge, vice president at Abilene First National Bank, addressed the program.

A prose and poetry program titled "Voices of Women" was scheduled for 4 p.m. The program consisted of readings from the works of noteworthy women of the past.

A reception honoring the women of McMurry who have served the college over the years and serving the college today will be held tomorrow from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Ryan Fine Arts Center. During the reception, the "Unsung Hero Award" will be presented to a woman currently at McMurry and "Trailblazer Awards" will be presented to honor women who have shaped the history of the college.

Activities will conclude with a women's concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in the recital hall of Ryan Fine Arts Center. Coordinated by Dr. Sally Reid, chairperson of the music department at Abilene Christian University, the program will feature works to be performed by local and area women composers and musicians.

All events are open to the public. No admission will be charged. The events are being conducted with the support of the college and the Abilene Cultural Affairs Council.

McMurry prepares for Phon-a-thon

The sixth annual McMurry College Alumni Association Phon-a-thon was held Feb. 26-28.

The event, in which members of the 12 social clubs on campus call their alumni for contributions to the college, raised a total of $31,500 last year. That's an increase of some 400 percent over the $7,720 that was raised the first year of the Phon-a-thon.

The social club raising the most funds receives a prize of $300, while second and third place winners take home $200 and $100 respectively. Each club participating received a bonus of $50.

Janney Taylor, director of Alumni Services, notes that students calling their alumni request pledges of contributions. She adds that all funds pledged are not always paid, however, there are many alumni who answer the caller with "undecided" and later send in a contribution.

A personalized marbel paper weight will be given to contributors.

Annual Rattlesnake Run scheduled

Buoyed by publicity in various running publications, it appears the Texas Rattlesnake Run is off to a booming future.

Using the Sweetwater Jaycees Rattlesnake Roundup as a strong background, local directors are expecting as many as 100 entrants for the second annual Texas Rattlesnake Run to be held Sunday, Mar. 11.

Besides the many festivities of the Rattlesnake roundup, the sponsors of the 10 kilometer road race and two-mile fun run have laced their run with many extras. Because of traffic, Sunday is the most opportune time to hold the contest. An answer-a-chapel service will be conducted before starting the race by James Considine, a local Episcopal minister in Sweetwater.

Rest stops are sponsored by one of Sweetwater's local banks. Festivities afterwards include a post-race party, snake handling demonstrations, a calligrapher and a chance to have pictures made with a stuffed snake.

The race is directed by a myriad of volunteers. Almost 500 participants ran through the city of Sweetwater last year. A time of 33:27 was run by Rickey Lopez in the 19-19 age group. The women's winner among that age category was Carol Gephart of Midland in 39:44.

Entrants are divided into male and female groups of 12 and under; 13-19; 20-29; 30-39; 40-49; 50-59; and 60 and up. A fun run-walk starts before the 10 kilometer run for those runners or walkers who wish to participate in a "just fun" event.

For more information about the Texas Rattlesnake Run call 915-235-4461 or write: Texas Rattlesnake Run, P.O. Box 1081, Sweetwater, Tx., 79556.

Starting time for the fun run is 9 a.m. while the 10-K race gets started at 9:30 a.m. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. except for those runners who wish to register early.

Registrations done through the mail will require an $8 fee and early registration with packets being picked up at Sweetwater Mercantile is $7. Registration on race day will cost $10. The starting point is the Sweetwater Country Club.

Military briefs

Marine Cpl. Ismael Zorola, son of Clemencia and Jose Zorola Jr. of Lamesa, has been meritoriously promoted to his present rank while serving at Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center in Twenty-nine Palms, Calif.

He received the accelerated promotion in recognition of outstanding performance, duty proficiency and demonstrated professional abilities.

Whether they "go Navy" or go elsewhere, junior high school students are being urged by Navy recruiters to get ready academically for the high-technology job market.

In a unique public service action, the Navy has directed its recruiters to reach young people well below recruitable age, and the only thing the sailors are selling is math and science.

"We are showing young people the jobs of tomorrow," explains Rear Admiral J.D. Williams, commander of the Navy Recruiting Command, "and we are telling them that the ticket is a well-rounded education which must include mathematics and science."

The Navy states that the 15-minute audiovisual presentation is being delivered to 6th through 9th grade students, because those students can still shape their high school academic regimen.

"The presentation is strictly 'no-sell,' Williams states. "We just want to give America's youth a realistic glimpse at tomorrow's jobs. We want them to see that they will not serve on the assembly line but behind a computer key board which drives a robot on the assembly line."

Thus far, the presentation has been pretested in several schools with extremely favorable response. Among the groups that have watched the Navy's glimpse at the future include the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics which endorses the project and Bill Aldridge, executive director of National Science Teachers Association.

"It is an excellent presentation," comments Aldridge, "which emphasizes the important aspects of science and technology in education. Start Now is remarkably consistent with the message that NSTA believes ought to be conveyed to young people about math and science."

The local recruiting district headquarters located in Albuquerque, N.M. is equipped with a limited number of the slide-script presentations, titled "Math and Science: START NOW." The Navy expects that a number of junior high school students will have seen the presentation by the end of this year, and more presentations are planned to commence in September 1984. Junior high school educators are being asked to request the presentation through their local Navy recruiter or calling 505-766-2399.

Award-winning sculpture comes to show

The "Possible Dream/Cindy's Carriage," an award winning, one of a kind sculpture in sterling silver, diamonds and hand blown glass will be an exhibit at the 15th Annual Gem and Mineral Show, Saturday and Sunday, at the Doré Roberts Exhibit Building.

The carriage was designed and built by Les Fisher. It has 84 ounces of sterling silver, 127 diamonds covering the interior seat and floor, a hand-blown mouse driver holding silver reins, four hand blown Belgian crystal horses and riding on the rear of the carriage, and a glass mouse footman to open the door for Cinderella. Fisher spent 1 1/2 years (1700 man hours) to complete the carriage and everything on it works.

The carriage has received 41 honored "Exhibitor Awards," 65 1st place ribbons, plaques, trays, and three "Honored Exhibitor" awards at International shows. It also was displayed at the Smithsonian for a year.

The play deals with an outbreak of arson and the perils of communication. More than 30 students make up the cast, the chorus of firemen and the stage committees.

Miss Seright also has been in three previous German plays while at Texas Tech. They are: "August, August, August" in 1981, "Marat/Sade" in 1982 and "The Caucasian Chalk Circle" in 1983.

The 1984 play will be directed by Professor Theodor W. Alexander who began the annual

The play begins at 8 p.m. in the Qualia Room of the Foreign Language Building. Admission is $2. The audience will receive an English synopsis of the play.
