

Along The Waterfront

Lots of redfish activity off Lone Tree Point and waters adjacent to Copano Cove. Pier fishing has been fair. Best catches have been late at night. Boats putting out from Copano Cove are returning with fair catches of trout and redfish. A few gafftop have been landed.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kelly of San Antonio went home with approximately 100 pounds of trout, drum, and gafftop.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Rich, who moved here recently from Pleasanton, caught several redfish off the 500' lighted pier.

Bruce Roberts of Austin and Harold Tanner of Buda, landed 35 pounds of trout.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Smith, recent guests in Copano Cove Cottages, went home with 85 pounds of nice rat reds, weighing three to four pounds each.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Priest, Copano Cove guests from Camp Wood, Texas, enjoyed three days of fishing. Their catch included about 70 pounds of redfish and trout.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Engle of Dallas caught several nice trout and flounder off the pier.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack North and son, Mike, of Corpus Christi, returned from boat fishing in Copano Bay with 22 trout and drum.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Quail of Rockport have caught approximately 60 pounds of trout off the pier in the past week.

Miss Ruth James, age 12, of Rockport is redfish champion in children's division. She caught a 3 1/2 pound redfish Monday night off the pier. (See The Cove and elsewhere in this paper).

Forty Episcopal Churches Hold Huge Barbecue

Forty Episcopal churches of the Southern and Eastern Convocations of the Diocese of West Texas held their third annual barbecue last Saturday at the Bishop Elliott Conference Center near Rockport.

The barbecue, open to the public, was served from 5:30 to 9 p.m. More than 1,000 pounds of boneless beef and other food prepared for the barbecue. There was also a booth for the sale of homemade candy.

More than 950 persons from as far away as San Antonio and the Valley attended the barbecue last year. Dr. James Sharp of St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Corpus Christi, said they prepared for 1,000 or more this year.

Sharp was in charge of barbecuing the meat with the assistance of Lloyd Askey, who has barbecued for the Episcopalians for years.

Charles A. Houston, first vice-president of Men of the Church of the Good Shepherd, was chairman of the barbecue. Co-chairman of the steering committee were the Rev. William M. Duncan III, priest-in-charge of Holy Comforter Church in Sinton and St. Andrews at Robstown, the Rev. Joseph Sheldon Jr., priest-in-charge of St. Matthews Church in Kenedy, and the Rev. Ronald Thompson, assistant rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Corpus Christi.

Others from Corpus Christi assisting in the preparation and direction of the barbecue were Starr Pope Jr., president of Men of the Good Shepherd; Howell Ward of Church of the Good Shepherd, and Noble O'Neil, senior warden of St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

The barbecue was attended by the Rev. Canon Gerald McAllister of San Antonio, representing Bishop Everett H. Jones and Bishop Earl Dicus, who are out of the state on church business.

Dove Season To Open Sept. 21 In South Zone

Hunting season on mourning doves in the South Zone, which includes Aransas county, will open on Sept. 21. The North Zone season will open Sept. 1.

The bag limit has been reduced to 10 birds this year. There will be no open season on white-wing doves this year.

YACHT CAFE CHANGES HANDS

The Yacht Cafe changed hands, and is now under management of Reggie Spinks.

Melvin Hull, former operator of the cafe, says he will now devote all of his time to his pest control business.

First Scrimmage Tonight At Mathis

The Aransas County High School Pirates started practice on Aug. 19 and are rounding into shape nicely, according to head coach, Dave Segler, who said that the first scrimmage of the season is scheduled for Thursday night at Mathis.

The first home game of the year is with Ingleside on Sept. 6, and as Ingleside was the pre-season pick for the Number 2 spot in Class A football this season, the Pirates are going to have to hustle. Segler says that the boys are displaying more willingness and desire this season than he has ever seen since coming here to coach, and that the team speed is somewhat greater than last year, although there are no outstandingly fast backs. He also commented that the team showed nice balance, although lacking in depth in several spots.

There are seven of last year's offensive starters returning and four other lettermen.

Co-captains are Alton Kinsel, Jr., senior tackle, and Abraham Sanchez, senior quarterback.

Lettermen seeking to return to their positions are ends Chester Brumley and Gary Stryker; tackle, Alton Kinsel; guards, Gary Tuer and Andy Everett; center, N. F. Jackson; quarterback, Abraham Sanchez; and backs Joe Hugenburg, Martin Garcia, Jimmy Anders and Tim Sanchez.

Dale Leisenheimer, Thomas Lewis, Lee Meador, Hugh Morrison, David Nava, Rudy Nava, Sammy Nava, Billy Ormand, Charles Picton, David Picton, Charles Roe III, Jody Rouquette, Bart Rozzell, Jack Russell, Steve Russell, Rocky Sanders, Robert Spielman, Joe Torres, John Warden and Printice Owen.

Charles Green and Larry Nelson are trainers. Following is the complete Pirate schedule for 1963:

Sept. 6: Ingleside	here, 8:00
Sept. 13: Bloomington	there, 8:00
Sept. 20: George West, here, 8:00
Sept. 27: Woodsboro	here, 7:30

Highway Use Tax Due September 3

Highway vehicle owners or operators must pay by Sept. 3 the Federal Use Tax on motor vehicles used on public highways, says the Internal Revenue Service.

This tax applies to most trucks and buses in operation in July of this year and covers the tax year beginning July 1.

Taxable vehicles range all the way from two-axled trucks to three or four-axled truck-tractor combinations. The Government advises all truck and bus owners to closely read Form 2290 and see if they must pay this tax.

Besides the Sept. 3 filing date truck and bus owners should also remember that any additional vehicles acquired after they have filed their 1963 return, are subject to the highway use tax this year. In these cases, a tax return must be filed by the last day of the month following the month the vehicle was put into operation.

FIRE DEPARTMENT AUXILIARY TO MEET IN LAMAR SEPTEMBER 3

Members of the Lamar Fire Department will hold their regular meeting Tuesday evening, Sept. 3, at 8 o'clock in the Goose Island Concession Building. Old and new members are urged to attend.

NO GARBAGE PICKUP ON LABOR DAY

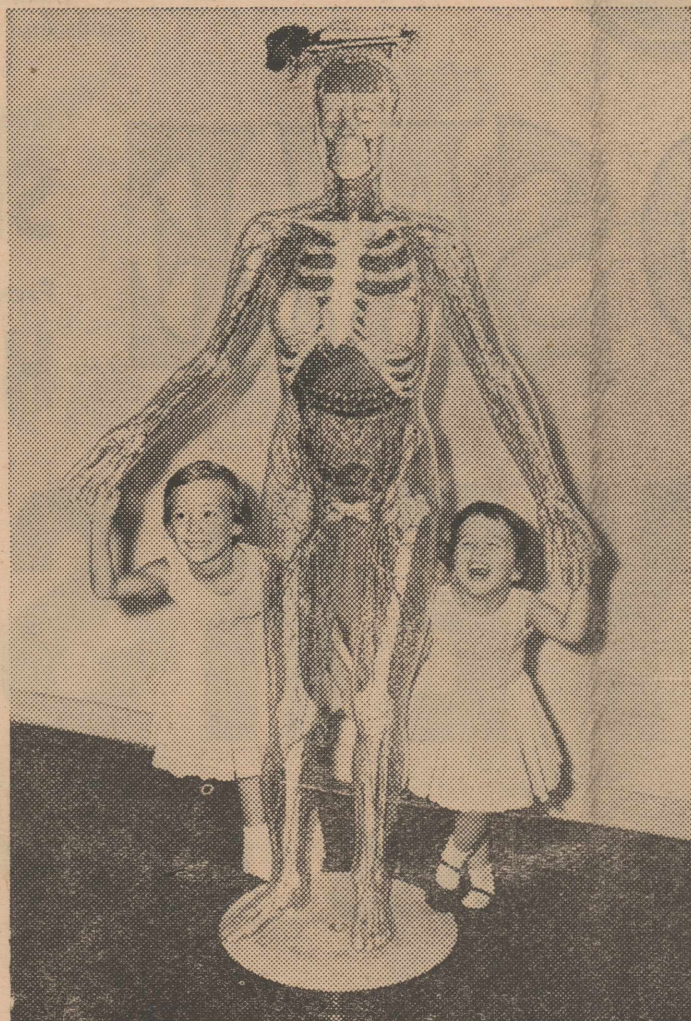

The city announced today that there would be no garbage pickup on Monday, which is Labor Day. Garbage will be picked up Tuesday instead.

BAND OFFICERS CHOSEN FOR YEAR

Officers have been selected to lead the Aransas County High School Pirate Band this year. New president is Nan Jackson; Steve Carleton is vice president; Becky Rouquette, secretary; Charles Cosby, travel manager; and Chuck Wilson and Darrel Lichte are librarians.

PRESBYTERIANS TO OPEN KINDERGARTEN TUESDAY

The Presbyterian kindergarten will open Tuesday, Sept. 3 at 8:30 a.m.

LOOK MOM! NO SKIN! Making her debut at the 1963 State Fair of Texas in Dallas October 5 through 20 will be Visi-Belle, center, in hat, the talking (naturally) Transparent Woman. Marla and Cindy Hill, left and right, thought it hilarious that they "could see right through that woman." Visi-Belle will star in the Dallas Health and Science Museum's special State Fair presentation, "The Story of Life."

Junior High School Opens Sept. 3

All junior high school students of Aransas County should report for the first day of school on Tuesday, Sept. 3, by 8:10 a.m.

Seventh and eighth graders should assemble under the covered walkway on the east side of the new junior high school building. This is the side nearest to Highway 35. Notices will be posted outside the doors showing which rooms students will report to.

It is important that all new students to the public schools of Aransas County be registered before next Tuesday as there will be a full day of school the first day with all classes meeting a regular schedule.

C OF C ENTER BEAUTIES FLOAT IN SHRIMPPOREE

The Rockport Chamber of Commerce has entered beauties in the junior and senior beauty contests of the Aransas Pass Shrimpporee and a float in the parade.

Competing Friday evening at 5 o'clock, at the Lone Star Park Building in Aransas Pass, will be Miss Suzanne Keith in the Junior Division. Miss Sue Johnson will compete for the title of Miss Shrimpporee Saturday night at 8 o'clock, in Roosevelt Stadium.

The parade will be Saturday morning at 10 a.m.

Bid Let On Cove Boat Ramp

Elimination of the bottom table from the boat ramp planned for the Cove Harbor at Rockport, and a change in mud shell specifications saved Aransas County Navigation District approximately $4,200 as commissioners negotiated for construction of a boat ramp with Jack Sanders of the Laguna Construction Co. at a called meeting.

Sanders' company was originally the low bidder on the job, when bids were opened a couple of weeks ago, but commissioners were dissatisfied with the cost and asked the Navigation engineers, Lockwood, Andrews and Newnam, to revise specifications on the installation. The result was that Sanders was asked to give a new estimate on the work for the ramp only, and came up with a figure of $12,544, on which bid the commissioners awarded him the contract.

Besides elimination of the bottom table, the commissioners cut out an item of $1,780 for dumping and spreading three inches of mud shell around the ramp, stating that they could do this more cheaply with district labor and equipment.

In other action, the commissioners voted to accept Harold E. Wise's proposal to lease lots 50 through 57 at the Cove, for purpose of establishing a general marine operation.

The commissioners stated that the ramp was large enough to handle commercial vessels as well as smaller pleasure craft.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Haigood recently visited his parents in Silver.

Hot Check Law One of 350 To Take Effect

The new hot check law, one of more than 350 to take effect last Friday, will make it easier for merchants and other recipients to obtain justice, and certainly should have a salutary effect on issuance of such checks with intent to defraud, according to County Attorney Ellis Clark.

The law has been changed to require at least one day in jail and a $1 fine for conviction of passing a hot check in any amount. Business men will be required to send out a certified or registered letter, and if the check is not made good within ten days, he can take his claim to court. Failure to redeem the check within the specified limit of time, Clark said, will be prima facie evidence that the check was issued with intent to defraud, and will make conviction of the offender much easier.

For the first conviction of violation of the act, where the bad check was issued less than 50 dollars, the maximum penalty can be set at two years in the county jail and a fine not to exceed $2,000. On the second conviction, he can be confined not less than 30 days or more than two years, and the fine can be as great as $2,000. Third offense convictions carry with them a penalty of not less than two nor more than ten years in the penitentiary.

In case the original check is more than 50 dollars, the penalty is from two to ten years on the first offense.

Another law that should help local tourist court operators, according to Clark, is concerned with swindling and cheating or obtaining board and lodging by trick. Penalty for this, according to him, is a fine of not more than $100, or imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 30 days.

Other laws that went into effect last Friday, and of interest locally, number approximately 350.

For example, one law change (continued on page 8)

School Lists Books For 1963 Adoption

The following is a list of books which publishers intend to submit for adoption in November, 1963. The Commissioner of Education requests that this be given publicity and kept available for public inspection in review.

The State Textbook Committee will meet at 9 a.m. Oct. 16, 1963, in the Board Room of the Texas Education Agency to hear petitions regarding any of the books offered for adoption. Procedure Governing Appeals, approved by the State Board of Education, is enclosed and should be explained to any citizen making inquiry about it.

The Textbook Committee will make its recommendations from the list on Oct. 17. The responsibility for giving final approval to the State Textbook Committee's recommendations rests with the Commissioner of Education and the State Board of Education.

Textbooks adopted from the list will become available for distribution to Texas school children for the school year beginning Sept. 1, 1964. Local school officials may choose one or more of the text books adopted for each subject, which means that final decision as to the scientific texts that will be used in each school system will be made by local textbook selecting committees and local boards.

Areas in which adoptions will be made: Supplementary Readers, grade 4; Supplementary Readers, grade 5; Supplementary Readers, grade 6; Vocal Music, grade 1; Vocal Music, grade 2; Vocal Music, grade 3;

Arithmetic, grade 7; Arithmetic, grade 8; Spanish, grade 7; Spanish, grade 8; Texas Geography, grade 7; United States Geography, grade 7; Chemistry, high school; French I, high school; French II, high school; German I, high school; German II, high school;

Business Arithmetic, high school; Typewriting (beginning) high school; Typewriting (advanced) high school; Band, grades 1-12; World Geography, high school; Economics, high school; English Dictionaries, grade 12; Drafting, grade 7-12; Graphic Arts Trades, Vocational Industrial Education.

Any information concerning the above listed books may be obtained from the District's local textbook custodian, E. G. Brooks.

The Johnny Stephens family has been vacationing.

Miss Linda Kay Haug of Robstown is visiting her cousins, Carolyn and Charlyne Taylor, this week.

Bill Hooks and Jonathan Parker left recently for California, where Parker will attend school and Hooks has employment near Sacramento.

Fire Guts Jackson's Boat House Wednesday

Fifteen Boats Burned, With Loss Running Into Several Hundred Thousand Dollars As Pleasure Craft and Gear Are Consumed

Fire of unknown origin gutted Jackson's boat house Wednesday night between 9 and 11 p.m., destroying 15 boats along with the building and causing damage variously estimated at between $300,000 and $500,000.

James B. Jackson said that he had been at Jackson Marine Service earlier in the evening and saw nothing amiss, but that when he was called an hour or so later, the building was ablaze, almost from end to end.

The flames started in the east end of the building, and spread rapidly, feeding on paint and other supplies in the storage rooms at the end of each boat stall, and on the varnish and paint work of the boats, along with the fuel in their tanks.

Firemen from Rockport, Fulton, and Lamar answered the call, but could do little besides keeping from spreading to nearby buildings, and boats in the harbor.

At the height of the fire, a number of the boats' moorings burned through and they then drifted across the harbor to the area of the public docks, where they burned to the water's edge and sank. Others burned and sank in their stalls in the boat house, which was almost entirely consumed.

A list of the boats, compiled from various sources, and their estimated values follows:

Otto Goedecke, Inc., cotton brokers of Hallettsville, lost the Breakaway, Capt. Floyd Smith. This was one of the larger boats and was valued at between $40,000 and $50,000 new, exclusive of fish-gear and other equipment added.

Thomas M. O'Connor, Jr., of Victoria, had three boats housed in the boat house, the Louryn, a cruiser in the same class as the Breakaway; the Shotcat, a runabout, and a 19 foot fishing boat, specially built for shallow water and bay fishing.

The W. B. Barnhill Estate, Marble Falls, and Robert Woodward, of Sabinal, had two stalls in which they kept the Long John Silver, a luxury cruiser, and the Little John, a smaller boat.

Charles Balthrop, San Antonio, had the Chucka Luck, one of the smaller vessels, and the Clarke Transmixit Company of Waco had another. E. E. Hood and Sons of San Antonio, housed their boat the Hood in the boat house; T. A. Lambert, of the Southwestern Drug Co., San Antonio, had another.

A. H. Cadwallader, of the Mortgage Investment Co., San Antonio, also rented a stall in the boat house, but his boat the Cindy, was hauled out for repairs, and escaped the holocaust.

Lawrence Miller, local real estate dealer, lost his twin-engine fishing boat and much tackle; W. S. Bain, of San Antonio, had a runabout named the Miss Jet, belonging to Harold Decker of Houston, was another boat that was destroyed.

Others that were burned, a 30-32 footer belonging to L. A. Rhea of the Jenson Drilling Co., Abilene, and a second owned by J. E. Simmons, of Lovington, New Mexico. His was a 35-foot Higgins.

The boat house was originally built by Hugh Morrison over 20 years ago, but the Jackson Channel and Dock Co. had taken over operation of the facility a year or so ago.

This is the second disastrous fire to strike the Jackson holdings within the past three years. In May, 1961, a portion of their shipyard burned, causing heavy losses, and they also sustained heavy loss when Hurricane Carla hit the coast that same year.

Mr. and Mrs. George Keller, Kenneth, Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Max Keller and girls and Mrs. Jim Sparks attended a birthday barbecue in Tivoli, honoring Mrs. Keller's father, Max Appelt, who was 82 years old Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frankie Rowe and son Dee, returned home Tuesday after spending a week in Galveston with her parents.

Dale Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Turner was injured Friday when he fell from a tree, cut two toes and had seven stitches. He was admitted to the Aransas Pass Hospital and released.

A/1c and Mrs. William Orr and girls, of Sacramento, Calif., are visiting her parents and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kresta and son. Orr left Tuesday for McAllen Air Force Base and Mrs. Orr remained in Rockport for a visit.

WE INVITE—

This clipping when presented at the Cove Drive In box office will admit Fred C. Diederich and guest to attend the show on Sunday, Monday or Tuesday, of this week, free of charge.

Parents Night Held By Football Squad

With the first football game of the season set for Sept. 6, and with the first scrimmage set for Thursday night of this week, Coach Dave Segler and his assistants staged parents night to familiarize parents of the players with the equipment, players, drills, formations and training rules.

First on the program was a demonstration of the protective equipment which each player wears, and the method of its use, as portrayed by Alton Kinsel, Jr., and Line Coach John Outlaw Baker III.

Following this was introduction of all the players on the squad by Backfield Coach Gene Wilkins, and then the demonstrations of the various methods of training and drills by members of the squad under direction of the coaches.

Coach Dave Segler also outlined the training rules under which the members of the football squad operate. Education comes first, he said, then football, and in this sentiment he is backed by members of the school administrative staff and of the Aransas County Independent School Board.

"There will be no smoking or drinking by any member of the squad," Coach Segler said, "and if caught, the boy doing either will be dismissed from the squad."

Boys are required to be in by ten p.m. on week nights, by 12:30 a.m. on weekends. Coaches are addressed as coach, with the use of their last name, and players are requested to answer "Yes sir" and "No sir", both on and off the field.

"You can be a football player and gentleman, too," Coach Segler explained.

"Gambling or profanity will not be tolerated at any time," the coach said. "Profanity is a sign of weakness, and we won't stand for it."

If a player is injured but still able to attend school, he will be expected to attend all meetings and practices. If a player has to leave school and is unable to attend practice, a member of the coaching staff must be notified before the player leaves, otherwise, this will count as a practice cut and the player's suit will be taken up.

No dating is allowed on the night before a football game. Players minds should be on the ball game rather than girls.

"As coaches," Segler said, "we will never ask or tell players to do anything we haven't done or anything we wouldn't have been willing to do if our coaches had said the word."

Library Schedule

To Change Sept. 1

After a most successful summer, with huge circulation, the Aransas County Public Library will return to its winter schedule of opening on Sept. 1.

Beginning on that date, according to Mrs. Val Jean Eaton, librarian, the library will be open from 2 until 5 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and from 9 until 12 a.m. on Saturdays.

Mrs. Eaton says that her recent appeal for paper backs was heeded by many people and that she is most grateful. However, she pointed out, these popular volumes are always in demand and she can use more.

Another book that is badly needed, she says, is copy of "Gone With The Wind." "Our copy has been read until it's falling to pieces," she said, "and I feel sure that there must be someone in town who has a copy with which they have finished and who will be glad to donate it to the library if the matter is brought to their attention."

The library's income from commemorative gifts has been low this year, Mrs. Eaton said. "Such gifts," she stated, "can be deducted from your income tax, and the money that we receive from them is an important source of new books for the library, which has a limited budget. We are always glad to get such gifts, or to have books with which people have finished and which we can use here."

ROTARIANS HEAR EUGENE T. WHITE

1964 AUTO INSPECTION STICKERS AVAILABLE SEPT 1 AT ALL STATIONS

Austin—Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, announced today that the new 1964 vehicle inspection sticker becomes available Sept. 1 at all Official Inspection Stations in Texas.

"During the summer months, the department has conducted intensive re-training schools for all owners and mechanics of inspection stations," Garrison said. "These men are now qualified and they are ready to serve the motoring public in their vehicle inspection needs."

More than five million vehicles registered in the state are required by law to be inspected at one of the 5,000 official stations between now and April 16, 1964. Operators of vehicles not displaying the new sticker by that date will be in violation of the law.

Garrison urged motorists to get their vehicles inspected at the earliest possible time and pointed out:

"Since the vehicle inspection program began in Texas, vehicle defects as causative factors in motor vehicle accidents have been reduced from 13 per cent in 1951 to five percent in 1962. We have every reason to hope that the continued voluntary compliance with the law, accidents can be further reduced."

New Books For Adult Readers Now In Library

A number of new books for adult readers are now in the library. Among them are the following: Elizabeth Appleton, by John O'Hara: As the wife of a history professor in a small college town, Elizabeth Appleton was not prepared to share her husband's intellectual enthusiasms or to cherish his friends, but these facts do not enable the reader to forecast her behavior.

The Sand Pebbles, by Richard McKenna: For years the U.S. Gunboat San Pablo, an absurd and ancient relic of the Spanish-American War, patrolled the far reaches of the Yang Tze Kiang River in China. This was in the 1920's. To her devoted crew of Sand Pebbles, accustomed to have an unofficial Chinese crew do all the work, the San Pablo had become a privileged way of life. Then suddenly everything was threatened by the Chinese revolution. . . . The tremendous climax brings each individual face to face with startling revelations about himself.

The Collector, by John Fowles: In this superb first novel by John Fowles, 37, a school teacher in London, evil has seldom found quite so many excuses for itself and for that reason has seldom been so sinister.

Frederick Clegg, a postoffice clerk, he has a harmless hobby: collecting butterflies. He lives in his dreams, especially one about a pretty girl, Miranda Grey, who is everything he is not: gay, warm and perceptive.

One day Clegg wins a small fortune in a football pool and his dream of confused chivalry becomes a possibility. Not knowing what to do with his money (he is intimidated by waiters, salesmen and humanity in general), he decides to use it to net Miranda—like a butterfly. He buys a secluded house with a hidden room in the cellar. One night he lies in wait for Miranda, chloroforms her and whisks her off to his cellar to be his "guest."

Eventually he lets her die in a peculiarly hideous way—an act, the reader comes to feel, that he intended all along without ever admitting it to himself. For his conscience is always clear:

Fowles got the idea for his plot from a true incident in 1957 when a young Englishman kidnapped a girl and kept her prisoner 105 days before she was rescued. This kind of perversion is not generally the stuff of high tragedy, but Fowles has made it so. Clegg is the perfect embodiment of modern evil: dull, implacable, without conscience because he is always rationalizing his cruelty.

The evil he does is all the more agonizing because his victim is so engagingly brimful of life; and Clegg is so heedless of individual life that before the novel ends he is already mulling over the choice of another victim.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Haynes, Mrs. Edwin Mundine, Jr. and children of Combes, Texas, spent the weekend with Mrs. John Weber and Hattie.

Editorial

Aransas County has become to the parting of the ways. We can either hide our heads in the sand as an ostrich is supposed to do, or we can face up to our responsibilities. If we choose the first course, we face eventual decay and oblivion; if we take the second, as we have in the past with the Navigation District, we can improve our situation enormously and have adequate water for continued growth.

Latest estimates show our population is probably in excess of 12,000 and still growing. Most of these people are permanent residents. In addition, we have new motels, marinas and other facilities aimed at caring for the tourist trade on which much of our economy is based. To expect this population to continue on our present water supply is ridiculous. Each day that passes sees the county nearer to a permanent water shortage. Each summer Rockport has just barely gotten by with its system of wells, but soon there'll be a summer when it won't be able to do so.

Many wells at Fulton are unsatisfactory, with a salt content far higher than that labeled as potable by the State Department of Health. More and more of them are becoming saltier and saltier. And, as the population continues to grow the danger of pollution of these wells becomes greater, because there will be more sewage, with less places for it to go. One of these days, that happens the area could wind up with a full-fledged typhoid epidemic, which would be no bargain in anybody's language. Just because grandpa got by with septic tanks, surface privies, shallow wells when the population here was comparatively small is no sign the present community is going to be able to make it, particularly as population growth continues.

Aransas County is unfortunate for it has no surface streams, no plentiful subsurface water supply, and no nearby source from which water in any quantity can be obtained. It is doubly unfortunate in that it has never got its name in the pot for a water allocation from any possible surface water source. No water from the Nueces, San Antonio, Guadalupe, Mission or Aransas rivers has ever been earmarked for Aransas County. Other nearby communities tended to this long ago, with the result that most available water is labeled with their names. Other counties have gone before the Texas Water Commission asking for water allotments that may mean the difference between existence and oblivion. Aransas County has never done this and, until this month, didn't even have a properly constituted authority to ask for such allotments.

Now it has the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District that can at least ask, and does have the authority to make surveys necessary to find out what we conceivably need, and in which direction we should look for our water supply. Of course, selfish absentee landlords hamstringing the District even before it had a chance to run with the ball. All that was asked in the beginning was a Board with somewhat similar powers to those of the Navigation District, that would have authority to take necessary steps to obtain a permanent water supply for the county. A bill was introduced into the legislature approximately two years ago, asking for the authority and legislative approval for the district to issue bonds for such funds as it might need, after people of the county had voted their approval of such bonds.

No one wanted a lot of money; no one wanted to raise taxes. But when the bill was first introduced, oil companies, caught unawares, fought it, and were instrumental in side tracking the bill in the first legislature. Later, in the legislative session just ended, they agreed that we did need a water board, and as county officials pointed out that no great amount of money would be needed, everyone was happy with a bill limiting taxation to no more than 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation for a district, and the oil companies agreed to go along with this. Then lawyers of one of the county's rich absentee landlords, who have consistently fought many county improvements and who have resisted school and county taxes for years, go into the act. At one legislative hearing on the bill, they informed the legislators that the land in question was poor land, incapable of supporting any but the poorest kind of stock, and totally unworthy of the assessment clamped on it by an unfeeling school board, county and other taxing agencies here. The thousands of fat purbed cattle that one can see from an airplane were barely scraping out an existence on the scraggly grasses that hardly grew on the land, and the place was a drain upon the millionaire's resources, as it did not return enough money to pay the sort of taxes that the unfeeling citizens of Aransas County were attempting to collect, and so on, far, far into the night. The same song was sung by the same people at various meetings of county and school equalization boards.

Nevertheless, a friendly sub-committee was named by the legislature, and it was hoped that bill would emerge in usable form, to form the basis needed by the county to obtain the water which it must have or wither. Not so, Balivia! Between the time that bill went to the sub-committee and the time the governor signed it, things happened to it that shouldn't happen to a dog, and when it finally emerged, Aransas County was left with a bottled horror that even its authors didn't recognize. Representative Leroy Wieting, who worked long and hard for the bill, was dismayed, and presumably Senator Bill Patman was interested, although apparently he did not express himself.

The only thing that can be done, of course, is to make the best of a thoroughly bad situation, and to try to get the needed water despite the opposition of a few people who care nothing for the community.

First of all, we need to know what we may or may not have in the way of water resources in Aransas County. Once we know that, and have found out just how short we really are, the next thing needed is factual knowledge of possible, economical sources for the water we must have or perish. After this second step is taken, planning must be done on the best method to obtain the water; a fourth step is arranging for adequate financing; and a fifth is the actual construction of the necessary pipelines, etc., that may be needed.

Of course, the first step will take time, and the money must come from a bond issue in the bill passed by the last legislature. The exact wording of that bill in regard to obtaining this money is as follows:

"For the purpose of providing funds for an engineering study of the District's present and future requirements for fresh water and possible sources thereof, the district is hereby empowered to borrow money and issue its negotiable bonds to be payable from ad valorem taxes. It is provided, however, that the foregoing project shall be completed within the five year period immediately following the effective date of this act and at a total cost not exceeding $70,000 and it is provided further, that the amount of tax to be levied annually for this purpose shall not exceed 50 cents on each $100 valuation of taxable property.

"For the purpose of providing funds for purchasing or otherwise providing works, plans, facilities or appliances necessary to the accomplishment of the purposes authorized by this act, and for the purpose of carrying out any other power or authority conferred by this act, the district is hereby empowered to borrow money and issue its negotiable bonds payable from such revenue of the district, as are pledged by resolution of the board of directors. The district shall have no power to levy or collect taxes or assessments, or to issue any bonds or create any indebtedness payable out of taxes or assessments, except as provided for in section above, and nothing in this subsection or in any other section or subsection of this act shall be construed as authorizing it to do so."

It is true that the fact that only $70,000 in bonds can ever be issued and supported by taxes is a terrific setback for any orderly development of the magnitude necessary to obtain an adequate supply of water. But it isn't an insuperable one. Probably it will take a miracle to obtain the money necessary, but in the meantime we had better issue what bonds we need, and get the wheels rolling.

The Navigation Board, over a period of years, is an excellent example of what can be done by a body of men with a good plan. It is true that there is some local criticism from time to time. This is natural, in America, which we hope, despite legislative shenanigans is still free. But the fact remains that people from all up and down the coast come here and marvel at what we have done through that same Navigation District. No other small community on the Texas coast has an adequate system of harbors comparable to ours, or has been able to do as many things for the good of the community as this one through its Navigation Board. Visitors from other Navigation Authorities are constantly astonished at the magnitude of the works that have been accomplished, and they're even more astonished when they learn that all these things have been done by the community without one cent of Federal aid, and often in spite of terrific difficulties.

The same support for the conservation District as has been given to the Navigation Board in the past may well produce the miracle we need, in spite of those who oppose any community progress.

FIRE DEPARTMENT AUXILIARY MEETS

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Rockport Volunteer Fire Dept. met Tuesday, Aug. 27 for their regular meeting.

Cecil Cole met with the group to discuss plans for the District meet to be held here Oct. 6.

Gilbert Hill, Sr., and Coy True-love were present to give instructions for a ladies' racing team. Members present were Miss Sarah Belle Smith, Mrs. Gilbert Hill, Mrs. W. A. Ormand, Mrs. J. C. Gurley, Mrs. Royce Hamill, Mrs. Cecil Cole, Mrs. Eddie Ratliff, Mrs. Julius Malchar, Mrs. Coy Truelove, Mrs. Jimmy Ankele and Mrs. Elva Mullinax.

The next meeting will be Sept. 10.

Parents Night --

that rules are made to be broken, Coach Segler said that if players on the squad fail to follow the rules, they will be asked to turn in their suits.

"Players," the coach said, "shouldn't take these rules lightly, because the coaching staff certainly doesn't."

If players miss practice, they must follow this procedure:

They must contact a member of the coaching staff no later than noon of the day they must miss practice. If the player knows in advance the day that he must be gone, he should let one of the coaches know.

Members of the squad must understand," Coach Segler said, "that when they miss practice they have missed a great deal of work and conditioning and they will have to make this up. Upon return those players will be assigned extra work. Cutting practice without permission from the head coach or failure to notify a member of the staff in inability to attend practice brings penalties. If a player cuts practice without the permission of his head coach, he will be dismissed from the squad although failure to notify a coach that they are unable to practice (providing they have a good reason) will be left to the discretion of the staff."

Members of the squad, according to the training rules given each boy at the beginning of the season, are expected to attend all classes and do their work. "If they have discipline problems in class," Segler said, "they will have discipline problems in football and our advice to every member of the squad is to stay out of trouble."

Grades are checked at each grade check time (three weeks or less) and if players are not passing their school work they will not be allowed to play. Players who are not at school and have not notified a member of the coaching staff or principal why, will not be allowed to practice that day. On game days, players are required to attend their regular classes, unless they have been excused by their principal or coach.

"Players have been issued the best playing equipment money can buy," Coach Segler said, "and we ask boys to take care of their equipment so it can take care of them. We want to be sure all equipment fits snugly and comfortably and we have sizes for every one, so we ask players to be careful about this. They should never throw their headgear on the ground or floor, and they should hang their equipment up as they take it off."

"If equipment needs repair or replacement, this should be done immediately before practice. A player should not wait until he gets on the field to repair any equipment. Wet or muddy shoes have to be cleaned thoroughly and allowed to dry naturally."

The head coach then outlined proper care of injuries.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," he said. Boys are asked not to indulge in horseplay, as in so doing they expose themselves and their team mates to chances of injury. All injuries should be reported to the coaches when they occur. Players should always wear all protective equipment. Weak ankles should be taped before walking out.

"The best injury insurance a player can buy," Segler states, "is to go all out on every play. Aggressive, alert players are seldom injured."

All skin abrasions should be treated, no matter how minor they may seem, and if a player is injured, he must be taken to the team doctor. If players are at home, after practice or a game, and the player or his parents think he needs to see a doctor, one of the coaches should be called so he can make the proper arrangements.

When traveling for out of town games, players are requested to dress neatly; report ahead of time; to be sure they have all their equipment; and to refrain from taking any property or souvenirs. Boarding the bus, no loud talking or laughing is allowed, and no gambling of any sort will be permitted at any time.

"Members of the squad should remember," Coach Segler said, "that they are representing the school, their coaches and their parents, and everyone of these is judged by the behavior of the players."

On home game nights, players are requested to report to the field house on time and they will stay in the field house until time to go on the field. On the field, they will not talk to anyone but their coaches. After the game, they are expected to go straight to the field house and not stop to talk to anyone except to tell players on the other team, who may be told the game was enjoyed.

No one is allowed in the field house except coaches and school officials until players have had time to shower and dress.

JULY SHRIMP LANDINGS ON TEXAS COAST TRIPLE THOSE OF PRECEDING MONTH

Domestic shrimp landings in Texas during July tripled the production for the previous month and outran those for the same period a year ago by almost two million pounds.

Landings included 215,000 pounds of shrimp from Texas bays and 85,000 pounds of pink shrimp from Campeche.

Landings at Port Arthur-Sabine in July this year were 239,300 pounds compared with 93,000 in June, 1963, and 29,300 pounds in July, 1962, in the same order, landings elsewhere along the coast were: Galveston, 519,000 pounds, 323,800 pounds, 421,000 pounds; Freeport, 2,013,500 pounds, 1,046,100 pounds; Matagorda-Palacios, 88,100 pounds, 30,300 pounds, 39,000 pounds;

Port O'Connor-Port Lavaca-Seadrift, 115,300 pounds, 78,800 pounds, 145,000 pounds; Aransas Pass-Rockport-Corpus Christi area, 1,864,000 pounds, 494,000 pounds, 1,370,000 pounds; Port Isabel, 777,500 pounds, 229,500 pounds, 796,300 pounds; Brownsville, 704,400 pounds, 302,500 pounds, 607,900 pounds.

Trawlers from Texas ports working adjacent waters, according to Orman H. Farley, U.S. Fish and Wildlife statistician for Texas, concentrated during the month in waters between Aransas Pass and Galveston, within the 20-fathom line. Some culling was done at sea to increase the size count, but there was little of this compared to the same period in 1962. Trawlers working the brown shrimp fishery made good to excellent catches. Double-rigged vessels averaged about 500 pounds of heads-off per 12 hours effort for trips of eight days and longer. Vessels landing shrimp heads on returned to port every three or four days.

Texas waters from the seven-fathom curve inward to the shore, were opened to commercial rigs on July 15 after a short closed period to protect juvenile shrimp moving in and out of the major pass areas.

Bay systems were host to an ample supply of bait shrimp throughout July with brown shrimp dominating the catch from Matagorda south, and white shrimp in the Galveston area systems. Speculation ran high as to the prospect of the white shrimp season.

Landings of blue crabs during the month amounted to 344,000 pounds, or slightly above the previous month and about equal to the corresponding month in 1962.

George W. Fulton, Jr., Born In Pennsylvania

The Pilot, which has been running a series of stories on the Fulton family and other early settlers in this area, has recently obtained the biography of George W. Fulton, Jr., son of the man who built the Fulton mansion, and great uncle of Mrs. Gladys Gibson, daughter of Mr. A. L. Bruhl of this city.

"The younger Fulton was born at York, Pa., on February 2, 1853, and was educated at Kentucky University and Harvard College, graduating in the law department of the latter institution in the class of 1876. He successfully practiced law for six or seven years, but since then his duties as a financier have consumed all his time.

"He is (in 1891) the vice president and superintendent of the Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co., who owned 167,000 acres of land in San Patricio and Aransas Counties, all under fence, and having every modern improvement and convenience," says his biographer, L. E. Daniell of the book "Personnel of the Texas State Government, with sketches of representative men of Texas."

"On this property," Daniell continues, "there are 43,000 head of cattle and 1,700 fine horses. The paid up capital of the company amounts to $883,000. His father is president of the Coleman-Fulton Pasture Company."

"George W. Fulton, Sr., is perhaps the only surviving officer (1891) who held a commission in the Texas revolutionary army. John P. Borden, first commissioner of the Texas Land Office, employed Fulton to collect the archives, a work he performed with his characteristic business skill.

"After leaving the land office, the elder Fulton was employed as collector of customs at Aransas Pass. (Editor's Note: For a time in those years, Rockport was renamed Aransas Pass by the land promoters of the area, leading to great confusion among latter day historians. The present town of that name wasn't founded until about 1912).

"In 1846 he removed to Baltimore with his family, and for some time was a member of the editorial staff of the Baltimore Sun. He was then, successively, general superintendent of the York and Cumberland, Illinois and Wisconsin, Central Ohio, and Steubenville and Indiana railroads.

"Fulton then returned to journalism and accepted a position on the editorial staff of the Cincinnati Commercial. His family is one that has produced a number of distinguished journalists. His brother, C. C. Fulton is editor of the Baltimore American (1891), and four other brothers are newspaper men. During the (Civil) war the elder Fulton was superintendent of the Kentucky Central Railway, and was an actor in many stirring scenes.

"After the war, he was an assistant engineer to John A. Roebing, in construction of the Covington (Kentucky) Bridge, which spans the Ohio River. It will be remembered that later Roebing planned and commenced construction of the famous Brooklyn Bridge, which, after his death, was completed by his son. He returned to Texas in 1863, and settled in Aransas County where he has since resided with his wife and children."

When the family returned, Geo. W. Fulton, Jr., was 15 years old. Daniell continues:

"The subject of this sketch was united with Mrs. Leonora Caruthers in marriage, at Rockport, Feb. 22, 1877. The have (in 1891) three daughters, May, Jewell and Ella.

"The Democratic nominating committee for the 85th Representative District, composed of Nueces, San Patricio, Bee, Live Oak, LaSalle and McMullen counties met at Beeville in August 1890. Col. N. Gussett, of Corpus Christi, F. L. Church of Live Oak, and John J. Rhodes, of LaSalle, were placed before the convention. Eighty-four ballots were cast without either of the candidates receiving the requisite number of votes to secure his nomination. The name of George W. Fulton was then placed before the convention, and amid the greatest enthusiasm, he was unanimously nominated, and in November was elected to the 22nd Legislature.

"He was a member of the Committees on penitentiaries, live stock, stock raising, and commerce and manufactures. Fulton was one of the brainiest men in the 22nd Legislature, and, although a new member, soon ranked with the ablest men in the house. He has always been an active Democrat, but has never sought office. Should he consent to enter the arena of politics, he would undoubtedly attain a high position, and enter upon a brilliant career. It is more than probable, however, that he will not desert his congenial business pursuits, as he has never manifested any desire for political honors."

So ends Daniell's sketch of one of the pioneers of Aransas County, one of his daughters still lives.

MRS. J. C. HERRING RETURNS FROM TRIP

Mrs. James Clark Herring has returned from vacation, after spending the past three weeks visiting members of her family and friends. She spent ten days with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Herring and their family in Houston, and was joined there by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sneed of Refugio and Mrs. W. B. Brittain of Sinton.

From Houston Mrs. Herring, Brittain and the Sneed went to Biloxi, Miss., to attend the biennial meeting of the Sneed family, held at the Broadwater Beach Hotel.

They were joined there by Mrs. Herring's two sisters from Dallas, and toured the Louisiana bayou country and visited in New Orleans and Lafayette, La., before returning home.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS HAS SWIMMING PARTY

Those attending the outing were Mary Kathryn Gray, George Corbett, Mary Lou Johnson, Andy Everett, Sue Johnson, Eddie Steele, Janice Garrett, Joyce Johnson, Betty Ganis and the Dannellys.

TAYLOR OAKS NEWS

The weekly get-together dinner was held in the recreation hall of Taylor Oak Trailer Park, Tuesday, Aug. 27.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ted Giese, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Randle, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Whitfill, Mr. and Mrs. Al Smith, Mrs. John Ketchum and John Ray Bennett.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Whitfill and their two children.

SPOTS OF INTEREST—

Turtle Cannery

One of the strangest tales in this area is that of Texas' first and only turtle packing plant. It was built in the eighties on the shore of Aransas Bay, and known as the Holden Brothers Packing Co.

The turtles, weighing from 200 to 600 pounds, were caught right out of the bay and were kept, while waiting, in huge wooden pens that extended the length of a city block into the water.

The turtles provided the men of Rockport with plenty of jobs, and the boys with lots of fun. The favorite sport of the younger set was riding captive turtles bareback in the big enclosure.

Mostly, the youngsters stuck to riding the green turtles, which were easy-going, good-natured, and most important of all, not inclined to bite. Yellow loggerhead turtles also caught in the bay were known to take an occasional nip at a displaced jockey.

Aransas Bay was filled with turtles in those days and the turtle packing business thrived. Many turtles went into soup, canned and shipped to all parts of the country. Others were sent to Texas towns, like San Antonio and Houston to be sold to gourmets of the era.

But, as the years went by, turtles became scarcer and scarcer and as they disappeared, so did the packing plant. Today its site is the very center of one of the recreation and resort areas. And where the turtle pens once reached into the water is a sandy beach and the neatly-dredged Fulton boat basin.

No one knows why the turtles disappeared, but many people believe that they were blocked off from the bays by the great stone jetties at Port Aransas.

Ground Water Available In Texas Gulf Coast

Texas' Gulf Coast region as a whole could support additional ground-water withdrawals, according to a report released this week by the Texas Water Commission. The report covers the magnitude of ground-water supplies potentially available in the various parts of Texas' Gulf Coast region, how much of these supplies are presently being used, and the general quality of the water.

Total area covered by the report is about 35,000 square miles, all or parts of 51 counties, stretching from Louisiana to Mexico and extending inland from the Gulf an average of about 100 miles.

Pumpage of ground water in the region was given in the Commission's bulletin at about 920,000 acre-feet in 1959—about 820 gallons per day. Most of this pumpage was for irrigation, about 55 percent; 23 percent was for industrial use and 20 percent was for public supply. Only about 3 percent was from domestic and livestock wells, miscellaneous small wells, and flowing wells.

About 126 million acre-feet of fresh to slightly saline water was found stored in aquifers beneath the Gulf Coast region, the most favorable areas for development of ground water being in the northeast half of the region, north of the Guadalupe River. The report notes that the areas of intensive pumpage have generally been in the areas of greatest availability.

Published as Water Commission Bulletin 6305, "Reconnaissance Investigation of the Ground-Water Resources of the Gulf Coast Region, Texas," the report may be obtained without charge from the Commission's office, P. O. Box 2311-Capitol Station, Austin.

The report was prepared by U. S. Geological Survey personnel under a cooperative agreement between the two agencies.

Numerous maps in the report, showing the areal extent of the fresh-water sands, the net sand thickness, transmissibilities of the sands, and depths to the base of the fresh-water strata, were prepared from a study of several thousand electric logs of oil and gas-test wells and pumping tests of about 300 wells. These indicate that the most favorable areas for availability of ground water are in the northeast half of the region in a band extending northeast from Victoria County to Newton County. In places, sands in the fresh to slightly saline water zone were found as thick as 1,400 feet, the base of the fresh to slightly saline water extending to as much as 3,600 feet below sea level.

Referring to this area of ground-water abundance, the report states "The problems that would be encountered with more extensive development in the next 50 years are those of salt-water invasion and land surface subsidence rather than excessive depths of pumping levels."

The report is the second in a series of reports which will cover the entire State with data on the occurrence, quality, utilization, and availability of ground water. The remaining reports will be presented by river basins and are scheduled for publication by the Texas Water Commission during the coming year.

It is possible to leave Wake Island on January 21 and arrive at Midway Island on January 20.

Old Fort Davis Is Being Rebuilt

Ruins of this frontier fort, which became a "National Historical Site" last January, are being preserved. More than 25 old buildings of the 65 or so that made up the original fort are being stabilized and some of them will be completely restored, as plans drawn by architect Charles Woodbury, of Petaluma, Calif., are implemented by the National Park Service.

In addition, a museum is to be built, in which the long and dramatic history of Fort Davis will be perpetuated.

It was established on land leased from John James, a San Antonio lawyer who claimed the land, in 1854, and named after Jefferson Davis, then U.S. Secretary of War and afterwards president of the Confederacy.

First known as "The Painted Camp on the Limpia," Fort Davis was the hub of a line of forts reaching out along the western mail route from San Antonio to El Paso by way of Fort Clark at Las Moras Creek, Fort Hudson on Devil's River, Fort Lancaster on a tributary of the Pecos, and Fort Bliss, near present El Paso.

Lieut. Col. Washington Seawell and eight companies of the Eighth United States Mounted Infantry founded it on October 7, 1854. After being stationed in lonely outposts up and down the Texas Texas frontier, the eight companies had gathered at a camp on the Pecos, from whence they marched as a unit to the site of their new post. They arrived at Limpia Creek and for three days fought their way up the canyon, finally arriving at the site chosen by the War Department for its "salubrious aid and pure water."

The wife of the late Maj. Gen.

Frank D. Baldwin, who saw it some time later, wasn't impressed by the choice which, she said, was against the good judgment of the Quartermaster's Corps and contrary to common sense was located at the mouth of a canyon.

Her first experience of the place might have influenced her judgment for, said she:

"Almost without warning on a mild and quiet afternoon rain descended in a deluge; sheets of water fell as if let loose from a mill sluice. . . . Floods swept through back yards and open doors of quarters . . . carrying away all small buildings, chicken houses, poultry, and even a young calf . . ."

In addition to its primary function of guarding the San Antonio and Chihuahua trails, both of which passed through the Davis Mountains, in a canyon of which the post was built, soldiers at the fort were also supposed to afford protection to the few settlers in the area against the frequent Indian raids into surrounding territory.

The soldiers who manned the remote outpost led full and exiting lives, for the nearby Davis Mountains were the home of the Mesquero Apaches, who were fighting to turn the white men away from their traditional hunting grounds. There were frequent raids by these fierce tribesmen upon caravans traveling the San Antonio and Chihuahua trails. The army was called out to give chase to the marauding bands. Travel was heavy, both on the westward route to the gold fields of California and into Mexico by way of the trade route to Chihuahua. Death frequently lurked over the next hill for many of the early soldiery.

There were frequent attacks on the fort itself, like the one in early years during which a young Indian girl was wounded and captured. Taken into the home of the mother of Lt. Tom Easton, she was nursed back to health and fell in love with Easton himself. When he became engaged to an eastern girl she disappeared, only to reappear under dramatic circumstances. The legend on her tombstone reads:

"Here lies Indian Emily, an Apache girl, whose love for a young officer induced her to give warning of an Indian attack. Mistaken for an enemy, she was shot by a sentry, but saved the garrison from massacre."

By the time the Civil War broke out, the Indian menace had subsided, and wagons and stages were traveling without much interference. The fort was surrendered, with all its supplies, to Col. John R. Baylor and his men, who remained until the supplies ran out and then moved on to El Paso.

With their passing the Indians returned to use the wooden parts of the buildings for fuel and to almost destroy the adobe building. Later came outlaws, thieves, gamblers and men dodging war service. They lived in rags and filth, killing, raiding and pillaging the few homes and ranches left.

This perhaps the most sordid part of the fort's history for these men remained only so long as there was any possible food supply. When the people had been robbed, their cattle butchered, and finally themselves forced to leave afoot, the cutthroats went their way, leaving the fort to be rebuilt after the war, in order to serve as an outpost to control the Indians, who were once more overrunning the land.

By 1875, eight years after the fort was reoccupied, the Indians were once more under uneasy control, and a town, Fort Davis had sprung up around the fort. It soon became the most important settlement between the Pecos River and San Elizario, near El Paso. In 1890, the fort was ordered inactivated, and in 1891 the last soldiers left it.

During the ensuing 70 years, sun, wind and rain have done their work. Many of the buildings crumbled in and their adobe bricks crumbled away, despite the fact that Judge D. A. Simmons, of Houston, acquired ownership in 1946 and soon after, began reconstruction of some of the buildings. Several of the houses of the Officers' Row were rehabilitated as a tourist court, and there is a sutler's store or commissary, which sold souvenirs and curios.

Upon Judge Simmons' death a number of years ago, the property passed to his wife, who later became Mrs. John C. Jackson, of Houston. It was from Mr. and Mrs. Jackson that the site was purchased, under authorization of the 1961 bill passed by Congress, which authorized the Secretary of the Interior to pay up to $115,000 for land acquisition.

The site consists of about 447 acres, and it has been estimated that cost of developments will be $1,055,000, spread over five years.

First Federal personnel to report at the site were Michael J. Becker, superintendent, who moved to Fort Davis in January. National Park Service Historian Erwin N. Thompson is another concerned with the restoration, along with Woodbury, and Robert D. Dunningan was the first Park Ranger to be assigned to the site.

SPOTS OF INTEREST—

The O'Connor Seminary For Young Ladies

Between the Mother House of the Schoenstatt Sisters of Mary and Goose Island State Park are two crumbling ruins made of shell cement.

One of these—the largest—was Mrs. Jane P. O'Connor's Seminary for Young Ladies where, for $35 a month, they were given board and room and taught the Three R's with the niceties or deportment. Families living away from Lamar sent their children to board in the town, either with Mrs. O'Connor or with friends. Some families even moved to Lamar while their youngsters were completing their education.

Mrs. O'Connor was undoubtedly a cultured woman and an excellent teacher. Though the doors of her Academy passed scions of practically all the first families of the area, whose children still take an important part in the life of South Texas.

Those girls that lived with Mrs. O'Connor are reported to have done the work of the Academy as part of their training in how to become good housewives as they grew up, and there is a tale that a couple of them out after the cows one evening, were kidnapped by Indians and carried away, only to be rescued some years later.

But, according to the late Mrs. Ella McRae Clay, it was one of her neighbors in later years who with her sister were the victims. "Mrs. Eve Kroeger," she once said, "had a terrible experience. She and her sister were looking for the cows. Their father saw the Indians coming and blew a horn for the girls to come home, but the Indians knew what that meant and circled around and captured both. An old squaw could not make Mrs. Kroeger stay on her horse, and they left her on the prairie, thinking she would die, as they scalped her and left her full of arrows. Her brother, John Thomas found her next morning. They took the other little girl to Indian territory. Later she was rescued and lived to tell the tale to her grandchildren."

Mr. and Mrs. John Warden and son Hays spent the weekend in Harlingen and Mexico. They also visited Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Winkle.

ICE CAPADES TICKETS ON SALE LABOR DAY WEEKEND

Ice Capades tickets will remain on sale at the Corpus Christi Convention Bureau office over the Labor Day weekend, Sunday and Monday, Sept. 1 and 2.

The box office will remain open for the convenience of out-of-towners who may want to pick up tickets to the all new "Go!" Edition of Ice Capades when in Corpus Christi during the Labor Day week.

Ice Capades, with six productions and 20 acts, starts at the Corpus Christi Memorial Coliseum Wednesday, Sept. 4, for four nights and two matinees. Evening performances are Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8:15 p.m. and matinees are Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Tickets by mail are available by writing the Coliseum and stating price of tickets ($2, $3 or $3.50), and performance time desired.

Headlining the 23rd "Go!" Edition of Ice Capades are Barbara Wagner and Robert Paul, 1960 Olympic Pair Champions and five-time Canadian, four-time World, and twice North American Champions.

Featured stars of the ice extravaganza are the Old Smoothies, twice World's Champion Aja Zanova, and Norwegian Champions Per Larsen and Grete Borgen.

Comical aspects of the show include "The Bouncing Ball" Freddie Trenkler, "The Clown Prince of Ice" Eric Waite, and Demko and Ben Gee in "Rube Farm Boys."

The six productions in the show include "Fantasia Mexicana," "Rachmaninoff's Concerto," "West Pointettes on Parade," "Showboat," "Babes in Toyland," and Salute to George M. Cohan.

Special attractions of Ice Capades include Jimmy Grogan, 13-time international contender who sketches to music and lyrics written by himself; Jet Propelled Richard Garrett; and Starlett Sara Sue Gleis.

This clipping when presented at the Cove Drive In box office will admit Clifford Dietrich and guest to attend the show on Sunday, Monday or Tuesday, of this week, free of charge.

that will affect anyone who drives a car is the new authority of the State Highway Department to raise automobile speed limits from 60 to 70 miles an hour.

Another change makes it against state law to take or distribute sea turtle eggs. Legislators did not say how many that will affect.

The speed limit law was one of many "major" laws enacted by legislators during their 136-day session which ended in May.

One major legislative change already in effect is the sales tax revision. This law, which became effective July 1 by a special provision, takes its main effect by taxing clothes costing less than $10—items which used to be exempt before the legislature found out it needed more money to finance state operations.

State banks are also freed from paying the Texas franchise tax, a tax not paid by federal banks, and another tax break the legislature thought necessary to balance competition in the banking industry.

Other major proposals which become law Friday include:

Padre Island — The state land board can convey submerged state-owned lands to the federal government for the creation of a National Seashore Area along the narrow sandy island.

Tourism — A new state agency comes into existence to help bring tourists to Texas. Its name—the Texas Tourist Council.

Sportsmen — The Game and Fish Commission and the State Parks Board merge into a new agency called the Parks and Wildlife Commission to oversee fish and game matters and take up maintenance of state parks.

Lawbreakers — Game wardens are given authority to arrest persons for trespassing, instead of the present limitation of arrests for game law violation only. The law means that the warden can find and arrest a hunter or fisherman on a person's property without the owner's permission.

Loans — A new agency, the Loan Regulatory Office is now in existence to regulate those lending $1,500 and less. The interest limits on the loans were set out by the legislature.

Bowlers — It is legal to bowl on Sunday, a practice formerly prohibited under 19th century Texas Sunday closing laws but seldom enforced.

Veterans—Veterans Land Board was authorized to raise the top loan limit to Texas veterans from $7,500 to $10,000, and increase interest, if voters approve a constitutional amendment on this Nov. 9.

Discrimination — State agencies and political subdivisions are prohibited from refusing to hire persons sole because of their age.

Womens rights — Women are no longer required to get separate and private acknowledgement to sell their personal holdings.

Cities will have authority to regulate pool halls and levy a $5 a table tax. The law will give cities the right to say such halls are a nuisance and close them down.

City limits — Cities and towns are limited in the amount of area they can take into their boundaries each year. The larger the city, the more area it is authorized to take in, providing it renders the necessary services such as lights and water.

Courts — Tyler and Corpus Christi get the state's 12th and 13th Courts of Civil Appeals.

Bomb scares — It is against state law, as well as federal, to make a bomb threat.

The state hospital board is authorized to set up a school in Corpus Christi for the mentally retarded, and look for a location in West Texas to start another one.

Motorists — The minimum liability auto insurance requirement will increase on Jan. 1 from the present $5,000 and $10,000 for death to one, or more than one person, to $10,000 and $20,000, respectively.

PORT ARANASA ARTIFICIAL REEF ENLARGED AGAIN

Another load of tile and concrete pipe has gone to sea in order that Texas fishermen may enjoy better fishing, closer to shore.

On August 20, two tugboats moved a barge loaded with about 400 tile pipes to the site of the artificial fishing reef near Port Aransas and dropped the pipes on the reef. Each pipe was from 4 to 6 feet long and approximately 20 inches in diameter. They were cabled together in lots of three.

Fifty sections of concrete culvert, each weighing about 5,000 pounds, were placed on the site in June. Both the tile pipe and the concrete culvert were arranged for by the Port Aransas Boatmen's Association and they were placed on the reef by the Parks and Wildlife Dept. The W. S. Dickey Clay Manufacturing Co. of San Antonio donated the tile pipe to the project.

"The efforts of a live-wire group of citizens and state agency with the knowhow have been combined to restore this artificial fishing reef which was practically destroyed by Hurricane Carla," said R. G. Mauermann, director, region V, Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. "The reef now consists of about 500,000 pounds of concrete and tile which will be more durable and, we hope, better than ever."

Sportsmen can find the reef by starting at the Bell Buoy in front of Port Aransas and steering a magnetic course of 131 degrees for about 8100 yards. The reef is marked with a silver and yellow buoy topped by a blinking white light.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN ILLINOIS

Funeral services for R. W. (Bob) Wright were held Monday, Aug. 19 at the Gregory Baptist Church of Chouteau, Okla., at 10:30 a.m.

Mr. Wright, a retired Inola grocer, living in Chouteau at the time of death, passed away Wednesday, Aug. 14 in Arrowsmith, Ill., while visiting a daughter.

Born in Alabama and coming to Oklahoma before statehood, Mr. Wright operated a grocery store and filling station, west of Inola, for 24 years before retiring. After retirement he spent most of his time fishing and traveling.

Survivors include the widow of the home, Esther; one son, Roy, Chouteau; four daughters, Mrs. Mildred Ronkainen, Monrovia, Calif., Mrs. Lauria Bohlander, Tulsa, Mrs. Esther Hougham, Arrowsmith, Ill., and Mrs. Marie Riggs Inola; three brothers, Fred Houston, Tex.; Richard, Wooster, Ark.; and John, Adair; four sisters, Mrs. Emma Hanna, Burleson, Tex.; Mrs. Mazie Robinson, Petrolia, Tex.; Mrs. Lella Hodges, Oklahoma City; and Mrs. Elizabeth Ellis, Los Angeles, Calif.; nine grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

Burial was in the Woodlawn Cemetery in Chouteau, under the direction of Kennard Funeral Home of Broken Arrow. Mrs. Wright was employed by Glass, Sorenson and McDavid, 1953 to 1956, and have spent many winters in Rockport.

PNG's HONORED AT REBEKAH MEETING

The committee for August, Mrs. Jewel Mikeal, Mrs. Pearl Beckham, assisted by Mrs. Ella Mae Ebert, honored the Past Noble Grands at the regular meeting of the Rebekah Lodge at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 22.

Just before the meeting opened, Mrs. Mikeal had each PNG chair for the office she would fill that night and a scrambled meeting followed with Mesdames Myrtle McLester, N.G.; Edith Baugh, P.N.G.; Martha Mundine, Chaplain; Nora Casey, L.S.N.G.; Miss Ruth Lipscomb, Conductress, etc.

It is surprising how many charges the P.N.G.'s have forgotten but all enjoyed the meeting.

Mrs. Betty Fausey read a tribute to the PNG for their service in the Order, and a pink and green arm corsage, centered with a silver bell was presented to everyone. The table was beautiful.

Mrs. Mikeal had painted a border of pink roses and green leaves on a linen table cloth, and an oblong arrangement of pink roses and leaves in the center.

The bowl of pink punch was on one end of the table with a silver tray of white cake on the other.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Nesbitt and his parents, who have been visiting here, have returned to Myrtle Beach, North Carolina, where the younger Nesbitt is stationed with the Air Force. The elder Nesbitt's then went on to their home at Elizabethtown, North Carolina.

FOUR MORE TOURIST MARKERS ERECTED

Austin—Authorization today for four more Texas Tourist Markers means that travelers through the Lone Star State will learn still more about Texas from legends permanently etched in metal.

The Texas Highway Commission gave the nod for the erection of the aluminum tourist markers to commemorate:

Pilot Knob in Travis County, the only example of an exposed submarine volcano in Texas; the Geographic Center of the State in McCulloch County; the Llano Estacado in Garza County, that mesa-like area that is one of the world's most perfect plains regions; and Old Tascosa in Oldham County, famed for its Boot Hill Cemetery and known as the Cowboy Capital of the Texas Panhandle.

These four markers, the Commission said, will round out the Highway Department's 1963 participation as a member of the Texas Tourist Marker Committee whose membership also includes the Texas Game and Fish Commission, the State Parks Board, and the Texas State Historical Survey Committee.

The four markers approved today make a total of eight purchased by the Highway Department this fiscal year. Markers approved earlier are to commemorate:

Guadalupe Peak in Culberson County, Texas' highest mountain at 8,751 feet; Galveston Island in Galveston County, whose varied history has played one of the most exciting roles in the life of Texas; the Law West of the Pecos in Val Verde County as handed down by the legendary Judge Roy Bean at Langtry; and the Highways Paved With Gold sections of U.S. Highways 81 and 287 literally studded the precious metal.

All eight markers, the Commission said, will be erected before the end of the year. They will be placed in safety rest areas (roadside parks) or in tourists along the highway for the convenience of the traveling public.

The Texas Tourist Marker Committee was formed in January, 1959, to set up a unified program for marking sites of scenic, historic, and recreational interest in Texas.

Officially, the program was launched on Jan. 14, 1962, when the first Texas Tourist Marker was erected to commemorate Camp Ford, the Confederacy's largest prisoner of war compound west of the Mississippi River and located near Tyler in Smith County.

A survey taken by the Texas Highway Department last fall showed that each marker will earn more than $6,000 a year in added tourist revenues—more than ten times their original cost.

In addition to their earning power, the markers serve another useful purpose: They are a safety factor. By pausing in safe parking areas provided by the Highway Department to read the markers, travelers may rest momentarily from the strain of driving and go on refreshed.

Virtually all tourists queried considered the quality of the markers "excellent," felt they added to the pleasure of traveling in Texas, and asked for more of them.

ROSE MARIE HEASLEY CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Mrs. H. D. Heasley entertained her daughter Rose Marie on her fifth birthday Friday, Aug. 23, 3:30 p.m., at their home in Little Bay Shores.

Indoor games were played and Mellinee Landrum won the prize for pinning the hat on the donkey. Favors were given the children.

Refreshments of cake, ice cream and punch were served to Blane, Diane and Rosa Lynn Hunt, Mellinee Landrum, Cindy Silberisen, Cindy Haigood, Larry Anderson, Steven Perry, Gary and Ronnie Heasley, Mrs. Frank Hunt, Mrs. Jerry Anderson and Mrs. James Silberisen.

Japanese Scientist Develops Method
For Raising Shrimp

Japanese Ichthyologist Motosaku Fujinaga was still a senior in Tokyo University when he decided on his life's work: a study of the life and loves of the six-inch, shrimp-like creature known as the kuruma prawn. Dr. Fujinaga's selection was more than an exercise in esoteric biology. Kuruma prawns are Japanese delicacies and are usually kept alive until the very moment when they are either deep fried as tempura as skinned alive and eaten raw as sushi.

Trouble is, demand has drastically diminished the kuruma supply. Japanese fishermen working home waters last year netted only 3,000 tons; another 4,000 tons were imported. But the imports were far from fresh by the time they arrived. The price of local prawns soared to $5 per pound. Then Dr. Fujinaga announced that he was about to ease the culinary crisis. After 30 years of study, he has finally learned how to raise captive kuruma prawns in commercial quantities.

Brutal Female. Before his experiments began to pay off, Dr. Fujinaga had to go back to the beginning—he had to pry into the prawns' most intimate secrets. For reasons known only to themselves, the little creatures mate only between midnight and 3 a.m. on perfect summer nights in calm, untroubled water. Night after night Dr. Fujinaga waded hip-deep in his experimental salt-water pond wielding only a flashlight. Not until 1940 did he see the first prawn mating ever witnessed by man.

However, his scientific window-peeping taught him little of practical value, so Dr. Fujinaga continued to spy on his prawns. After testing countless kinds of marine micro-organisms, he found that during the first four days after hatching, larval kuruma prawns eat only microscopic Skeletonema costatum, a kind of diatom. When he learned how to grow his own Skeletonema in glass-covered tanks his prawns survived their infancy. But Dr. Fujinaga could not manage to keep them alive longer than that.

In 1955, as head of Japan's Fisheries Agency Research Department, he went to a fisheries conference in Washington. There he heard about brine-shrimp eggs, on which American fanciers feed finicky tropical fish. When he fed the eggs to infant prawns back in Japan, he brought them safely through infancy into reasonably hardy youth.

Plankton & Clam Larvae. In 1959, modestly financed by fisheries companies, Dr. Fujinaga set up a pilot prawn ranch in abandoned salt-evaporation ponds at Ikushima on Shikoku Island. He now has 30 employees, and the place is jumping with prawns. The tiny just hatched kurumas are coddled in the indoor tanks and eat yellowish-brown Skeletonema plankton that have been grown in filtered sea water doped with chemicals. Other kinds of plankton, also specially cultured, carry them through the next stage. When they are one-quarter-inch long, they graduate to outdoor tanks and are fed clam eggs and larvae or brine shrimp eggs. Then they move to the salt ponds, where they grow to delicious maturity on chopped trash fish and are fit for conspicuous consumption at elaborate geisha parties.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mullinax returned Friday after two weeks vacation. They visited Six Flags Over Texas and with Mrs. Mullinax's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Garrett and son, at their summer home in Port O'Connor.

David Wayne Perry, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Perry, is now at home and doing nicely after undergoing surgery three weeks ago.

SPOTS OF INTEREST—

Our Lady Star of the Sea

On June 22, 1854, Ebenezer Allen, William G. Hale and James W. Myrre, for the sum of $200 sold to Bishop John Odin, of Galveston, the land on which the little chapel is built.

The population was small—only a few hundred inhabitants — of whom a great majority were Irish Catholics, with a few Protestants and negro slaves. Old timers said the whole team helped defray the cost of building the church. There was complete harmony between the Protestants and the Catholics, and many years later, when the Presbyterian Church was constructed at Lamar, the Catholics pitched in and helped build it.

The tiny white chapel of Our Lady Star of the Sea was built of cement made entirely from oyster-shell taken from the bay, near which the building stands. During the Civil War it was shelled twice by Union vessels, which made several appearances off the town of Lamar, and landed sailors on St. Mary's and raided that place. As it passed Lamar, Captain Upton's men, of the home guard, fired on the vessels which retaliated by firing several cannon shots into town. No one was hurt.

This was on February 11, 1864. About 75 men landed and tore down a large warehouse, removing all the lumber and loading it on a large scow which they brought with them. The men were then turned loose for indiscriminate plunder and entered nearly every house, taking whatever they desired. Attached to this church was the lost cemetery of Lamar, rediscovered in recent years.

Misses Betty and Bertha Rosse of Kingsville spent the weekend with their cousin Miss Ann Smith.

The publishing of a book which is being widely advertised as containing exclusive information and "tips" on "How to get twice as much social security," states that this book has been cleared for accuracy "with the highest legal authority on the subject of Social Security Benefits claims."

This book, H. M. Cleveland, Corpus Christi Social Security district manager, said today, has not been cleared by the Social Security Administration.

The book, which is offered for sale at prices ranging from $1.99 to $5.00, contains advice which, if followed, might place a person in a worse rather than a better financial position. Cleveland said also that taking some of the "tips" the book offers might lead to delay in the payment of social security benefits, because all of the facts would have to be investigated before social security benefits could be paid.

"Responsible publishers of privately published books and pamphlets about social security," Cleveland pointed out, "make sure that their materials are technically accurate and up to date. They do not try to promote sales with advertising materials which indicate that the information they offer is not available elsewhere. It is misleading to state or imply that a person might lose money by not buying the book they offer for sale."

Anyone who has a question about social security may ask his social security office and get exact information.

INSURANCE COMPANIES OFFER SENIOR CITIZENS NEW HEALTH INSURANCE

One of the several laws passed by the 58th Texas Legislature that will take effect Friday, Aug. 23, will be one establishing an association of insurance companies in Texas through which Texans 65 years of age and over may purchase health insurance with no questions asked.

Enabling legislation establishing the Texas 65 Health Insurance Association was passed by the legislature without a dissenting vote. The bill was signed by Governor John Connally on May 14.

At the time he signed the bill authorizing Texas 65 Governor Connally stated he felt the plan was a sound step forward in Texas' continuing effort to care for its own people.

The unique health insurance program will offer the state's senior citizens two plans.

The basic plan will pay a maximum of $12 a day for a hospital room up to 31 days, part of the costs of the doctor's hospital visits, surgical fees up to $200 and miscellaneous hospital charges up to $125.

Premiums for this basic plan will be $9 per month.

The major medical plan will pay hospital expenses up to $5,000 during any calendar year, or about 80 percent of all hospital, surgical and nursing home expenses after the first $75.

Monthly premiums for this latter plan will be $10.

The first enrollment period for the new health insurance plan will be Oct. 1-31.

During the first enrollment period all Texans who are 65 years of age or over, as of Oct. 31, will be eligible to purchase the health insurance without physical examination and regardless of physical condition.

The plan will be available through all insurance agents in the state.

It is expected that additional enrollment periods will follow about every eight months.

H. Lewis Rietz, chairman of the Texas 65 steering committee, and vice president of one of the several insurance companies underwriting the plan, has called the health program an insurance industry effort to attempt to make available insurance coverage to a generation of people that did not have a chance to buy health insurance during their working careers and can't now because they have passed age 65.

Rietz believes that Texas 65 will do much toward ending the predicament faced by many senior citizens and their children. A future filled not only with fear of serious illness but fear of financial inability to cope with the health hazards that follow old age.

Rietz states that about 13 percent of the Texas population is made up of citizens 65 and past. That's about 755,000.

Sons and daughters may enroll their parents in the plan without the parents having to sign the enrollment form. Anybody may enroll any eligible person in the program in fact.

Only qualifications for enrollment are that one must reside in Texas and be 65 years old or over. If one person 65 or over is enrolled in a family then the spouse, regardless of age, may be enrolled also.

An extensive advertising and educational program will begin immediately in an effort to familiarize Texans with the plan fully by the October enrollment date.

The Texas 65 plan is patterned after similar successful plans already established in Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York.

The Texas plan has the backing of not only the Governor the Lt. Governor and the legislature, but many state organizations as well.

These include the Texas Medical Association, Texas Hospital Association, Texas Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, Texas Life Convention, Texas Legal Reserve Officials Association of Mutual Insurance Agents and many more.

Officers of the Texas 65 Health Insurance Association have been established in the Southland Life Insurance Building in Dallas.

Miss Linda McLester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McLester of Tia Juana, Venez. S. A., is spending the winter here with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. McLester and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Prophet. Sr. Miss McLester is a freshman in the Aransas County High School.

Parkhurst-Lowery Wedding Celebrated

The Reverend Glenn Eckols officiated at the double ring ceremony Saturday at 7 p.m. at Central Methodist Church in Galveston which united in marriage Miss Kathleen Lowery of Galveston and Joe Franklin Parkhurst of Orange, Texas.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lowery of Galveston and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Parkhurst of Orange.

Traditional wedding music was presented by Miels Nilson at the organ. Vocal solos by Kay Dell McCharen of Houston were "Whither Thou Goest," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Mr. Lowery gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's gown was of silk organza over taffeta, an original design by Marie. It was created with a portrait neckline and traditional long bridal sleeves, ending in petal points over the hand.

Semi-princes lines were enhanced with Alecon lace appliques re-embroidered with pearls over the bodice and extending into the skirt. Soft fullness introduced at the hip-line, formed a chapel length train.

The two tiered bridal veil of illusion was held by a pill box of silk organza trimmed with lace medallions accented with pearls.

The bride's bouquet was fashioned of white carnations and gardenias in a cascade design.

Miss Cheryl Lowery of Corpus Christi, cousin of the bride, attended as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lynn Fontille of Galveston and Mrs. Wayne Fredrick, sister of the groom, of Orange.

Peau de Soie in mint green created their floor length gowns which were designed with scoop necklines and cap sleeves. Their headpieces were of matching peau de soie in demi-coif fashion, holding shoulder length veils of silk illusion. Each carried a bouquet of pale yellow carnations in colonial design.

Serving as best man was John Tande, or Orange, cousin of the groom. Groomsman were Charles Crim of Bridge City and Jack Mong of Orange, Donald Ray Parkhurst, cousin of the groom, of Baytown, Roger Bethard and James McDaniel of Orange.

The banquet room in Stokes Hall provided the setting for the reception which followed the religious ceremony. Tables covered with white net held the three tier wedding cake, punch bowls and rice tapers graced each table.

Miss Charlyne Koeing registered the guests. Included in the house party were Mrs. Floyd Rich-ard of Texas City, Mrs. Lee Lowery Junior, of Bryan, sister-in-law of the bride and Miss Nancy Haley.

For the wedding trip, the bride wore a two piece crepe suit in bright coral, with black accessories. Her corsage was of white gardenias.

The bride is a graduate of Ball High School and is a senior at Sam Houston State Teachers College in Huntsville.

Mr. Parkhurst is a graduate of Bridge City High School. He is a Senior Journalism major at Sam Houston, a member of Pi Kappa Alpha and Sigma Delta Chi fraternities and the Press Club.

Guests from Rockport attending the wedding were Mrs. Charlyne Hunt, aunt of the bride; Joe Earl Hunt, cousin of the bride; and Mrs. James B. Dietrich, Sr., grandmother of the bride.

MR. AND MRS. BAUGHMAN RETURN FROM VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baughman returned Sunday from a week's vacation in Boston, where they had gone by jet plane to visit their son and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. James Porter Baughman, and to meet, for the first time, their grandson, John Frederick Baughman, now five months old.

While in Boston, the five Baughmans made numerous side trips to interesting and historic places in the area, including Lexington, Saugus, Cambridge and the Harvard campus, New Bedford, Salem, and Rockport, Mass.

Dr. Baughman is Managing Editor of "The Business History Review" and also Assistant Professor of Business History at the Graduate School of Business Administration of Harvard University.

TEX-ARK-ANA, 3 IN 1

Called "The Pleasure Crossroads of the Gulf Southwest" it's officially named Texarkana, Texas.

Texarkana lies right on the Texas-Arkansas border. But it derives its name from three states—Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana. It might well have added a fourth state in its name, it's located just 26 miles south of the Oklahoma border too.

Texarkana is truly a composite of four states and is the great recreational center for the Northeast Texas area.
