Bush sends 'low key' letter to Gorbachev

By Terence Hunt
White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — President Bush said Friday he had sent a confidential letter to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on the crisis in Lithuania, assuring him "we're not trying to make things difficult" for either side.

White House officials indicated Gorbachev was under intense pressure to take a tough line toward the breakaway republic, and the administration continued trying to take a low-key approach.

In contrast, Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., warned that "all bets are off" if Gorbachev resorts to force.

"The Soviets will be in real trouble here — no trade agreements, no trade preferences and no more of the kind of relations the Kremlin is desperately seeking from Washington," Dole said. "It would be a severe blow to U.S.-Soviet relations."

The White House said Bush's message, sent through diplomatic channels Thursday night, emphasized U.S. hopes for resolving the conflict by peaceful dialogue. Bush declined to divulge exactly what the letter said, calling it confidential.

"I do not want to risk misunderstanding by failing to communicate," Bush said.

It was his first contact with Gorbachev since tensions began escalating with Lithuania's March 11 declaration to secede from the Soviet Union.

"I want to be sure that the Soviets understand our position and understand that we're not trying to make things difficult for Lithuania or the Soviet Union or anybody else," the president said.

He cited the importance of "staying in touch and being sure there is no disconnect because of misinformation."

The United States has repeatedly voiced support for Lithuania's right to self determination.

At the same time, the Bush administration does not want the dispute to lead to the removal of Gorbachev, who has championed reforms in the Soviet Union and paved the way for the flowering of democratic governments in Eastern Europe.

A senior administration official said Gorbachev appears to be under "considerable domestic pressure" because of the Lithuanian crisis.

Lithuania's secession, by itself, would not be a critical episode for Moscow, the official said, "but if that then becomes the symbol for a whole bunch of areas around the periphery of the Soviet Union, that would be very difficult."

The official, who commented on condition of anonymity, said, "It isn't in anybody's interest to have this thing blow up."

The White House has alternated between tough rhetoric and near silence about Moscow's response to Lithuania, first warning that use of force would backfire and disrupt superpower relations and then refusing to pass judgment on Soviet actions.

Bush has been criticized by some members of Congress for not being more aggressive in complaining about Soviet actions in Lithuania.

Court agrees to consider new law against burning flag

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said Friday it will decide by early summer whether Congress violated free-speech rights when it outlawed burning of the American flag.

The court's extraordinary move could inject the issue into this year's congressional and state legislative elections with renewed force.

If the justices agree with two federal judges and strike down a new federal law banning flag burning, President Bush and Republican leaders will push to amend the Constitution.

The court, granting a request by the Bush administration, put the politically charged issue on a fast track that will allow it to announce a decision by July in cases from the District of Columbia and Seattle. Federal judges struck down the law in both cases.

The justices said they will hear arguments in the cases May 14, marking the first time in nine years a court session will be conducted after April. The court heard arguments June 24, 1981, when it studied the legality of the agreement that ended the Iran hostage crisis.

On only two other occasions in recent times has the court held such special sessions — before allowing publication in 1971 of the Pentagon papers on the war in Vietnam and before ordering then-President Richard M. Nixon in 1974 to surrender Watergate-scandal tape recordings.

If the court strikes down the flag-burning law, House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., has said that within 30 days of that ruling the House will vote on a constitutional amendment.

Such an amendment would say a ban on flag burning does not violate free speech. It would require approval by two-thirds of the members of the House and Senate and then ratification by 38 state legislatures.

Arthur Kropp, president of People for the American Way, a civil liberties group, decried the court's timing.

"Depending on the outcome, we can expect that last year's favorite political football, a constitutional amendment, will be back to kick off a whole new generation of 30-second attack ads," Kropp said.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., hailed the court action.

"Flag burners have been having a field day at Old Glory's expense," he said. "The court's decision to put this issue on a fast track is great news for the flag, the American people and those of us in Congress who want Old Glory to have the protection it deserves."

The justices, voting 5-4 last June, struck down a Texas law barring desecration or destruction of the flag.

Board eyes solutions to controversy

Carol Lane residents seeking scaled map in their fight to gain 'buffer zone'

By Chris Van Wagenen
Staff Writer

A scaled map accurately representing the size of a proposed northeast junior high school in relation to Carol Lane is being sought by residents as part of controversy that erupted earlier this week.

School board building committee members met with about 12 residents for two hours Friday afternoon to hash out a compromise agreeable to both parties involved in the dispute.

Carol Lane residents have demanded some type of buffer zone be placed between their homes and the north end of the proposed 30-acre school. The school board has indicated that student population projections show that a new junior high school is needed for Midland.

"There's definitely a solution to this problem," commented Midland Independent School District Superintendent Joseph Baressi afterward. "We think we can work something out that we'll be happy with and that they'll be happy with."

While homeowners living in the area aren't as certain, they indicated they're at least willing to work with the board, leaving district officials their own list of concerns.

Group spokesman Doug Manz said residents are definitely worried about a controversial map of the 100-acre site — a majority of which was donated by the Abell-Hangar Foundation.

That map showed the school sitting on a greater percentage of land near Carol Lane.

Fort Worth architect Terry Harden said the degree of accuracy was clearly suspect, but added he had no current surveys to work with indicating the exact boundaries of the total acreage.

Baressi said the building committee will ask the full board next Thursday to immediately hire a civil engineer to work with Harden on getting to the bottom of that question.

A second issue involves a Chevron U.S.A. pipeline that runs from the northeast of the property to the southwest.

District officials are expected to talk with Chevron about moving the pipeline, which actually could benefit the energy company by reducing its liability in the area.

Because the district cannot build on top of it, MISD must locate the 145,000 square-feet building either to the southwest or the southeast.

TPW honors top communicator

By David Morris
Staff Writer

The Texas Press Women's Association broke with tradition Friday night and named a broadcast journalist its Communicator of Achievement for 1990.

Cindy Bradford, news director at KFDX-TV, the NBC affiliate in Wichita Falls, said she was "shocked" after her award was announced at a banquet Friday at the Midland Hilton.

"Texas Press Women started as a print organization and just within the last 10 years have the broadcast media gotten into it," said Ms. Bradford, who co-anchors the 6 and 10 p.m. newscasts at KFDX.

"I'm very exited and very surprised — being the first electronic media person to win the award."

TPW members from throughout the state are in Midland this weekend for their annual convention, which includes workshops, panel discussions and guest speakers.

McClures seek divorce, court records show

Associated Press

The parents of Jessica McClure, the Midland girl who was rescued from an abandoned well on Oct. 16, 1987, are getting a divorce, court records show.

Reba "Cissy" McClure sued her husband, Lewis "Chip" McClure, for divorce earlier this month, according to papers in a Midland County civil court.

The McClures could not be reached for comment Friday despite repeated calls to their home in the Greenwood community.

A former publicist for the family called the development "unfortunate." He said the couple filed for a no-fault divorce, but had no other details and emphasized he no longer worked for the McClures.

Jessica was 18 months old when she tumbled into an abandoned well in her aunt's backyard. She was trapped 22 feet underground for nearly 59 hours while rescuers drilled a side tunnel through solid rock to reach her.

Her ordeal drew international attention and her rescue was televised live by U.S. networks. A TV movie of the rescue aired last May.

Jessica turned 4 on Monday.

Second-grader explores world of inventions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It's a tough decision for a soon-to-be-8-year-old: whether to follow in the footsteps of great inventors like Alexander Graham Bell and Thomas Edison, or to turn away from the world of science, dress in black and become a Ninja warrior.

So, until it's time to make such career decisions, Rodney Fluker, a second-grader at Blanton Elementary School, continues dabbling in the world of invention.

His most recent creation — a sleep belt for the back seats of cars — won a blue ribbon and a certificate in the Invent Austin! contest.

For the second year, the event was sponsored by the Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp. and the Austin Independent School District's AIM High Program.

Rodney won first place in his grade level with an invention that allows a child lying down in the back seat of an automobile to be comfortable and safe at the same time. The V-shaped belt buckles at the bottom of the seat instead of at the folds of the seat.

"It's pretty ingenious," said his teacher, Mary Smallwood. "If a child rolls off, he'll be safe."

Rodney said he got the idea after his family was involved in a car accident. Rodney, who always wears his seat belt, wondered what would've happened to him if he'd been lying in the back seat without a seat belt.

"My mama's always talking to me about lying down," he said, adding that it's uncomfortable to lie down while wearing a seat belt. "So I wrapped the shoulder belt and wrapped it around me and then used the middle (lap) belt and wrapped it around me, too. Then I showed my mom and dad."

The award isn't the first for the budding inventor. He took first place honors at last year's competition with his car door umbrella holder.

Laurie Fluker, a journalism professor at Southwest Texas State University, thinks the youngster got his creativity from his father, Rodney, an administrator with Austin Community College.

"He (Rodney Sr.) is good with his hands," Laurie Fluker said. "But most of the family is involved in education, and I think that stimulates his thinking."

Their inventions can be viewed at the Austin Children's Museum beginning in late April. Winning inventions will compete at state, regional and national levels.

More rainfall possible

Staff Report

More clouds are in the weekend forecast as temperatures continue to climb.

It will be partly cloudy and warmer Saturday with 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms. The high will be 70. Winds will be out of the south at 10 to 15 mph.

Cloudy conditions are expected to continue through the evening, with a 30 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms. The overnight low is expected to be about 40.

Sunday will be cloudy changing to partly cloudy skies by afternoon. The high will be 70, with a 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms, according to the National Weather Bureau at Midland International Airport.

Friday's low was 44 degrees. The daytime high was 66. The record high for Friday was 94 in 1946. Today's record low was 16, recorded in 1931.

STATE

Scattered showers and thunderstorms dominated the extreme southeast part of South Texas, while showers lingered over north central Texas on Friday.

Cloudy skies prevailed over most sections, but skies remained partly cloudy in southwest Texas and parts of the middle coastal plains.

A ridge of high pressure continued to bring cool air over much of the state. A cold front extended from East Texas in the Pine Belt southwestward to south central Texas and farther west to the southern Edwards Plateau.

Temperatures at 3 p.m. were mainly in the 50s and 60s. But the coastal plains were mostly in the 70s with the interior sections of the far south in the 80s.

Extremes were 49 degrees at Amarillo in the Panhandle and 87 degrees at McAllen.

Northerly winds prevailed statewide except for south winds in far West Texas. Winds ranged from 5 to 15 mph.

There is a chance of showers Saturday over much of the state, especially in the eastern sections. Skies will continue to be partly to mostly cloudy. Saturday's highs will range from the mid 50s in the Panhandle to the mid 80s along the Rio Grande.

NATION

Rainshowers dotted much of the eastern half of the nation Friday, turning to snow in northern and higher locations but changing back to rain later in the day.

Colorado Springs, Colo., had a two-inch cover of new snow at daybreak, and the recent storm left as much as 6 inches of snow in the mountains near Flagstaff, Ariz.

Snow advisories were posted for the north central mountains, the northeast highlands, the northeast Plains, the central highlands and the Sandia-Manzano mountains of New Mexico, changing to rain with thundershowers in the lower elevations of New Mexico.

A flood watch was posted through for southeast Texas, where thunderstorms have produced locally heavy rain during the past two days.

Thunderstorms continued across southeast Texas overnight and during the morning, with half-inch hail at Cotulla and La Salle.

Morning snowfall across eastern New York and central New England generally turned to slush, but accumulations included 3 inches at Litchfield, Mass., and North Canaan, Conn., and 1 inch in the Massachusetts Berkshires.

DEATHS

Kenneth Guinn

ODESSA — Graveside services for Kenneth Guinn, 63, will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Sunset Memorial Gardens, with the Rev. Will Cotton of Asbury United Methodist Church officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

Guinn died Friday at a local hospital.

He was born Jan. 4, 1927, in Manila, Ark. Guinn served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and was a machinist. He married Anita Dawdy Sept. 20, 1958, in Alton, Ill. The Guinns moved to Odessa 20 years ago from Illinois. He belonged to Asbury United Methodist Church.

Guinn was a charter member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Cottage Hill, Ill.

Survivors include his wife of Odessa; two sons, Mike Guinn of Odessa and Rodney Guinn of Austin; three daughters, Beth Ann Goolsby and Susan Durbin, both of Odessa, and Becky Young of Midland; two brothers, J.W. Guinn of Odessa and Leion of Linton, Ind.; one sister, Lois Lawson of Missouri City, Texas; and eight grandchildren.

Thrift nominee wins approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Labor Department official chosen by President Bush to regulate the nation's savings institutions won a narrow endorsement from the Senate Banking Committee on Friday.

Two Democrats joined all nine Republicans on the panel to send the nomination of T. Timothy Ryan Jr. to the full Senate for confirmation as director of the Treasury Department's Office of Thrift Supervision. The vote was 11-10.

Committee Chairman Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., said he expected the full Senate to vote Wednesday, the day after it is scheduled to finish with the clean air bill.

Before the committee vote, Democrats spent 90 minutes complaining that Ryan, a 44-year-old lawyer who specializes in pension and employee benefit law, was unqualified.

"The nominee, in the judgment of many, ... falls woefully short of the kind of basic qualifications you need to do this job," Riegle said.

The administration has been under pressure to appoint a thrift director since March 21, when a federal judge ruled the agency lacked constitutional authority to seize troubled institutions.

The U.S. Court of Appeals has delayed the ruling until April 11 and the administration wants a Senate-confirmed thrift director in office before then.

Ryan would replace M. Danny Wall, who resigned under fire for his handling of the collapse of Lincoln Savings and Loan Association of Irvine, Calif.

Democrats, urging Bush to nominate someone else, said Ryan's inexperience would force him to rely on guidance from the Treasury Department rather than exercising independent judgment.

The administration countered by portraying Ryan as an experienced manager and tough enforcer who as solicitor of the Labor Department from 1981 to 1983 supervised 600 attorneys and helped clean up corruption in the Teamsters Union Central States Pension Fund.

Sen. Jake Garn of Utah, the senior Republican on the committee, conceded that Ryan lacked experience but argued that conflict-of-interest rules and post-employment restrictions have grown so tight that the administration had a very difficult time filling the position.

"We may reach a point where Mother Teresa is the only person we can confirm to any position in the federal government," Garn said.

Riegle predicted Thursday evening that his panel would reject Ryan. The nomination was endorsed with the support of Democratic Sens. Terry Sanford of North Carolina and Richard Shelby of Alabama.

Sanford told reporters Ryan was a personal friend whom he knew through the American Council of Young Political Leaders.

Shelby, who said he was prepared to vote against Ryan as late as Thursday night, said Friday that Ryan had done well in other jobs.

"The job needs to be filled," Shelby said.

Several senators said Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady had lobbied them before the vote.

Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., who had expressed doubts about Ryan, decided to put aside his reservations after Brady asked him to trust his judgment, said Mack aide Mark Mills.

Ryan served in the presidential campaigns of Richard Nixon in 1972, Gerald Ford in 1976 and George Bush in 1988. He was a legal counsel to Ronald Reagan's 1980 transition team.

Greyhound calls off scheduled talks

DALLAS (AP) — Greyhound Lines Inc. on Friday called off next week's talks less than 24 hours after agreeing to return to the bargaining table. It cited continuing violence in the 4-week-old strike.

"We cannot resume negotiations while the violence continues. Accordingly we will not be in Tucson next Monday for bargaining," said executive vice president P. Anthony Lannie.

In a letter to union president Edward M. Strait, Lannie said the company would agree to meet on April 9, "if there is no other violence in the meantime." Lannie is the company's chief negotiator.

The company reported Friday two additional shootings and a bomb threat at a Greyhound terminal in Chicago.

Federal mediators announced on Thursday talks would resume in Tucson, Ariz., on Monday morning.

Greyhound broke off earlier negotiations March 18 as violence continued and after a vice president of the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions was arrested in connection with an attack on a bus driver.

Jim Power, spokesman for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Washington, said director Bernard E. DeLury learned of Greyhound's decision while he was being sworn in Friday and had no immediate comment.

The union repeatedly has condemned the violence, said spokesman Jeff Nelson, who accused the company of using the violence as a pretense for refusing to negotiate.

"To use this issue as a reason not to negotiate would be similar to us using Robert Waterhouse's death to not negotiate. It is a smoke screen," Nelson said.

Waterhouse, a striking driver, was killed on March 3 in Redding, Calif., when he was crushed as a bus driven by a replacement driver was backing up. No charges were filed.

The agreement to resume negotiations had come after three days of secret meetings between the company, the union and federal mediators in Washington this week, according to sources close to the negotiations.

The meetings were kept secret at DeLury's request, said one source. The sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

The latest shooting occurred Friday morning when a bus was fired on just east of Tulsa, Okla., said company spokesman Steve Scarpino. No one was injured.

On Thursday, a baggage handler in Kansas City, Mo., discovered three bullet holes in a bus that had traveled from Minneapolis, said company spokesman George Gravley. There were no injuries.

Pam Powell Wells wins TPW district honor

Staff Report

District II President Pam Powell Wells was the district's Communicator of Achievement Award winner and the district's nominee for this year's statewide award given Friday night by the Texas Press Women.

Cindy Bradford of KFDX-TV in Wichita Falls won the statewide award.

TPW's state convention is being held in Midland this weekend.

Ms. Wells has been a member of TPW since 1983. She has worked for KTPX-TV, Channel 9, both as a commercial artist and as host-producer of the talk show, "West Texas World."

She currently is on the boards of Odessa's Brand New Opree, the Girls Club and the West Texas Storytelling Guild. Ms. Wells has held a position on the board of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce's Boomtown Days, as well as on the chamber's tourism committee.

Acting and singing are two of her interests. Ms. Wells has performed in "Whenever it Rains," "The Bluebonnet Flour Radio Hour" and the Brand New Opree on the stage of Odessa's Globe of the Great Southwest Theatre. In 1986, she and her husband were named Globe Theatre "Volunteers of the Year." Ms. Wells also belongs to the Midland Community Theatre Singers.

She's a Texas-Ex Life Member and enjoys writing skits for Aggie roasts.

Ms. Wells also has been a Cub Scout leader, a Girl Scout leader, a Tiger Cub and Webelo activity leader.

TPW: Journalists conducting annual meeting

(From 1A)

said TPW is designed to give women a boost in the communications field.

"I think if we can help somebody else get a start, that's what it's all about," said Ms. Hunt, six-year editor of the Denison Herald.

Ms. Hunt said that while journalism has been dominated by men for many years, women have made significant inroads in the profession.

"When I started 30 years ago, we were very underpaid," Ms. Hunt said. "Men made much more than women did, and we weren't smart enough to try to make a difference. The attitude then was, 'well, she's got a husband to help her make a living.'"

Times have changed, and female reporters no longer receive the short shrift they once did, Ms. Hunt said. However, it has been difficult for women to penetrate the "old boy" network which seems to operate in the media field.

That, she said, is where TPW comes in.

"They know editors and writers from everywhere," she said of TPW members. "If I wanted to find a job somewhere else, the first thing I'd do would be to find out who in that area is in TPW."

Ms. Bradford, who has worked at KFDX for 12 years, credited TPW for "getting me involved with other people involved in mass media and broadcasting."

Documentaries on AIDS and special health segments at KFDX were the brainchild of Ms. Bradford, who has been the KFDX news director for three years.

"Television is moving toward more of an issue orientation rather than being event-driven," Ms. Bradford said. "Viewers are wanting to get more in-depth coverage of certain issues."

MISD: Site compromise expected

(From 1A)

But Wilson Heidelberg, MISD executive director of auxiliary services, ruled out the southeast because of its position in relation to the Midland Draw which floods during heavy rains.

Heidelberg said the district would be forced to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars more to elevate the site — an option he said wasn't cost-effective in terms of tax dollar use.

If Chevron decides against moving the line, the school will likely be built to the southwest of Carol Lane.

Manz said he doesn't much care if it's to the southeast or southwest as long as the district is willing to provide more breathing room between the neighborhood and the north boundary of the physical building.

Residents also rejected a suggestion reportedly made by Midland City Councilman Bill Williams to build a park between the school and the neighborhood, noting it would only contribute further congestion to the area.

What they would like is the district to have the bordering land located between their neighborhood and the school rezoned — land which MISD said it plans to sell off once the school is built.

Manz said he would like the neighborhood to be informed in the future about other board actions that might impact the area.

But Board President James Fuller took issue with that, stating the district held no less than 14 meetings on the school construction issue — meetings which Carol Lane residents chose not to attend.

"You were provided the opportunity to participate in the process," said Fuller. "Please quit painting the board as the bad guys here."

Border governors meet; Mosbacher denies trade talks

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. and Mexican border governors Friday agreed to work to increase trade and industrial development, but failed to address immigration and illegal drug trafficking.

The governors signed resolutions to increase trade by eliminating non-tariff barriers. The action prompted host Gov. Bill Clements to declare the eighth annual U.S.-Mexico Border Governors' Conference "our most productive to date."

Clements said the drug problem was of concern "on both sides of the river."

But Clements and New Mexico Gov. Garrey Caruthers said it was difficult to address the issue because Mexico handles it on the federal level while U.S. states along the border have their own jurisdiction.

Chihuahua Gov. Fernando Baeza Melendez was the only Mexican governor to publicly address the drug issue, saying, "Young people in the United States and the marginal farm workers on our side are not criminals but victims."

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, left, makes a point as he chats with the co-host of the Border Governors' Conference, Fov. Americo Villareal Guerra of Tamaulipas.

Several Mexican governors said immigration and poor working conditions of migrant farmers were also left out as trade improvements dominated the conference.

The governors agreed to promote tourism in neighboring states by touting a "vacation in two nations" program. They also called for further use of joint water and waste water treatment plants in order to clean up pollution along the border.

In an address to the conference, U.S. Secretary of Commerce Robert Mosbacher said he welcomed Mexico's steps toward eliminating trade barriers. Mexico is the United States' third largest trade partner.

"We believe in the Mexican people. They know the road ahead may not always be easy, but they also know they can't go back to the disastrous protectionist economies of the past,' Mosbacher said.

"We believe that Mexico can be a first-class economy by the turn of the century.' he said.

He said the presidents of both countries have directed himself and Mexican Secretary of Commerce and Industrial Development Jaime Serra Puche to examine ways to enhance trade.

But Mosbacher flatly denied there were negotiations on a free trade agreement.

The New York Times reported Thursday that preliminary discussions were under way that could lead to a pact similar to one last year that eliminated trade barriers between the U.S. and Canada.

Mexican Commerce Secretary Serra said development of the border area was important to the Mexican economy. "The border area is a basic element to strengthen relations between the two countries," he said.

Mosbacher voiced support of Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari and said Mexico was positioning itself to become a "newly industrialized nation rather than a developing nation."

"Mexico is undergoing vast political and economic transformation," he said.

Group won't offer painted Easter eggs

HOUSTON (AP) — A group that for 66 years has sold hand-painted Easter eggs is ceasing production on the advice of its lawyers, who fear that children may eat spoiled eggs and contract botulism.

The announcement by the Blue Bird Circle, an organization that aids children with neurological disorders, forced the cancellation of orders for 24,000 eggs from Houston country clubs and several retail stores.

For years, the eggs were intricately designed with colorful decals, trimmed in gold paint and dyed in many colors.

"We're very disappointed. The Easter eggs have been one of our most fun projects, but we certainly don't want to contribute to a child getting sick," said Bonnie McMillian, Easter basket project chairwoman.

"I'm sure we'll find another way to do it with a non-edible product."

Legislators urged to stick to funding

AP Laserphoto

Doug Rogers, left, of the Association of Professional Educators, and Joan Brindley of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association wear "Keep 22/1" buttons as they lobby legislators to keep the student-teacher ratio at that level.

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers should concentrate on making public school funding fairer instead of taking the potentially harmful route of trying to reform the entire education system, a new coalition of educators said Friday.

"We want them to stick to their task of school finance, which is why they were brought here in the first place, and not start taking an ax to programs that help kids," said John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers.

The Campus Educators' Coalition includes the federation, Texas Classroom Teachers Association, Association of Texas Professional Educators and Texas Elementary Principals and Supervisors Association.

Because lawmakers failed in a 30-day special session that ended Wednesday to address a Texas Supreme Court ruling that the school finance system is unconstitutional, they return Monday for another try at reform.

The court gave the Legislature lawmakers until May 1 to change the system after finding disparities in funding available to property-rich and poor school districts. The $13.5 billion-a-year system currently relies on local property taxes, state aid and some federal funds.

The educators' coalition expressed concern that the Texas House last week, before rejecting a school finance bill, added amendments that would have gutted some sweeping education reforms approved in 1984. One amendment, for example, would have eased the rule requiring a 22:1 teacher-student ratio in kindergarten through the fourth grade.

The Senate approved a bill that would have added $1.2 billion to schools in 1990-91 and made other changes in education administration.

Pantex airspace restrictions protested

AMARILLO (AP) — More than 2,500 people protested a Department of Energy proposal to expand restricted airspace over the Pantex nuclear weapons assembly plant, saying it could drastically reduce air service here.

"I think the Federal Aviation Administration and DOE representatives were really overwhelmed at the number of people that came out," Amarillo Mayor Keith Adams said today.

"From all of the people that spoke about all of the ways the whole city will be affected by the restrictions of the airspace, I think they have a better understanding of where the community stands on this issue," he said.

So many people showed up at the Thursday night meeting that officials were forced to relocate from a smaller conference room to the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium. The protesters braced together to form a human wall at one point.

City officials say the government proposal would shut down about 60 percent of the landing operations at the Amarillo International Airport by eliminating the use of Runway 22 under instrument approach conditions.

"There is no alternative," Adams said. "We must come to some sort of compromise."

DHS aides defend use of bonuses

AUSTIN (AP) — Department of Human Services officials are defending paying more than $900,000 in bonuses to employees, but acknowledge the timing was poor in light of the department's looming $550 million budget deficit.

The Austin American-Statesman reported in a copyright story Friday that the $923,000 in DHS bonuses amounted were more than the 29 other state agencies that gave similar bonuses under a new state law. In all, the agencies spent more than $1.7 million.

DHS officials confirmed Thursday they face a $550 million shortfall for the two-year budget period that ends Aug. 31, 1991.

DHS Commissioner Ron Lindsey defended the bonuses but agreed the timing was poor.

He said they were part of an administrative mistake in which DHS gave early raises last fall to hundreds of employees. The raises totaled more than $1 million, although that figure included some of the bonuses, Lindsey said.

"If I had known the full budget situation, I would never have approved (the bonuses)," Lindsey said. "I know how it looks. I'm responsible. I made the decision."

Lindsey said he stopped giving bonuses when the DHS budget crisis exploded last month.

But records obtained by the Austin newspaper under the Texas Open Records Act revealed that DHS awarded bonuses to 934 employees between Sept. 1, 1989, and Monday.

The lump-sum bonuses were allowed for the first time under a new state law, designed as an incentive to hard-working state employees who had reached the top of their pay scale and were not eligible for other raises.

Under the law, only one bonus a year can be awarded to any classified employee. Supervisors must document the recipients' top-flight job performance.

Bonuses cannot exceed 6.8 percent of the employee's annual salary. At DHS, officials said, each bonus was 3.4 percent of the worker's salary.

"There are eight steps on the pay scale, and only those employees who are at the top step were eligible for the bonuses," said Tom Phillips, personnel director for DHS.

The bonuses are a "two-edged sword" for the 14,000-employee agency, according to Burton Raiford, the department's budget chief.

"If we don't give out bonuses, we take the chance that our hardest-working employees may leave the agency for better pay — and they are the ones that have the best potential to do that," he said.

"If we award them, then we have to explain how we could do that when we are so short of money," he said. "That's a tough question."

The bonuses, according to state records, ranged from $529 to $1,662.

Motorists injured when train derails, knocks down viaduct

NATION

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A train derailed and rammed the supports of an aging viaduct today, causing part of the span to collapse and injuring three people driving on a roadway over it, authorities said.

One of the injured, an unidentified 39-year-old woman, was in fair condition with a chest injury, while the other two were treated and released, said a St. Joseph's Hospital spokeswoman who declined to give her name.

Union Pacific spokesman John Bromley said two switching engines were pulling nine cars when the third car, a covered grain hopper, apparently derailed and struck the support of the Locust Street bridge. At least one adjoining rail car also derailed.

Locust Street is a two-lane street that goes mainly through an industrial area. The accident occurred shortly before 11 a.m. about two miles southwest of Eppley Airfield, the area's principal commercial airport.

About 250 feet of the bridge collapsed. Afterward, two railroad cars were lying at an angle under the metal, concrete and aged white wood of the bridge.

A Union Pacific train derailed in Omaha, Neb., Friday, striking a bridge and plunging cars into the wreckage. Three persons were injured.

AP Laserphoto

Perry Soule, manager of Troll Auto Parts along the tracks, said he heard a noise and ran outside, adding, "It sounded like thunder."

He said he helped put out a fire in one of the three cars on the debris of the bridge. Rescue workers had to pry open the door of one motorist's car, witnesses said.

The accident occurred while during switching operations in northern Omaha, said Alex Tice, a Union Pacific Railroad spokesman. It was unclear what caused the derailment.

"We've got people out there right now," Tice said. "None of the train people are injured."

Gonzalez indicted in fire deaths

NEW YORK (AP) — The man accused of killing 87 people by torching an illegal social club in a jealous rage was indicted on 178 counts of murder, arson and other charges Friday.

A state grand jury indicted Julio Gonzalez on one count of second-degree murder and one count of murder in the commission of a felony for each person killed inside the Happy Land Social Club in the Bronx.

He also was indicted on two counts of arson and single counts of attempted murder and assault. The defendant wasn't present when the indictment was returned.

Gonzalez, 36, who is due back in court April 12, could face a sentence of 25 years to life if convicted on all counts in the case, said Assistant District Attorney Eric Warner. If a judge made the sentences run consecutively, he could receive a 2,000-year term.

"No case is open and shut," Warner said. "We have a very good case. The evidence is strong."

Bronx District Attorney Robert Johnson said it is "conceivable" that Gonzalez could be convicted of two murder counts for each victim, but he said a jury "probably would have to choose between the two."

Gonzalez, a Cuban immigrant, opted against testifying before the panel, said his court-appointed attorney, Richard W. Berne.

While the grand jury considered the charges, authorities released records indicating that one of the club's landlords was contacted by a fire lieutenant eight months before the blaze and told a vacate order was in effect against the building.

First California execution in 23 years stayed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals judge on Friday blocked next Tuesday's scheduled execution of convicted double murderer Robert Alton Harris, who would have become the first inmate executed in California in 23 years.

Harris, convicted of shooting two teen-age boys to death in 1978 to use their car in a robbery, may not have had competent psychiatric help at the time of his trial, said Judge John Noonan of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"It is reasonably arguable, and we cannot determine from this record, whether Harris received competent psychiatric assistance," said Noonan.

His order, issued after a 50-minute hearing, would spare Harris the gas chamber to allow arguments before a three-judge panel of the court on whether the convict should get an evidentiary hearing. That process normally takes several months.

In Sacramento, Attorney General John Van de Kamp said he would ask the U.S. Supreme Court to lift the stay.

"It's potentially possible to get it lifted before Tuesday," said Chief Assistant Attorney General Richard Iglehart.

Harris, 37, would be the first person executed in California since 1967. He came within four days of execution once before, in 1982.

Idaho's governor vetoes controversial abortion bill

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus, confronted with thousands of pleas and a threatened potato boycott by opponents of Idaho's abortion bill, on Friday vetoed what would have been the most restrictive state abortion law.

The veto ended the hopes of anti-abortion groups who wanted to use an Idaho law to challenge the U.S. Supreme Court's commitment to legalized abortion, embodied in its 1973 Roe v. Wade decision.

Andrus, an anti-abortion governor who said he agonized over provisions of the legislation, explained his decision by saying the bill does not provide a woman and her family any flexibility in cases of rape and incest.

"The bill is drawn so narrowly that it would punitively and without compassion further harm an Idaho woman who may find herself in the horrible, unthinkable position of confronting a pregnancy that resulted from rape or incest," he said in a written statement read at a 5 p.m. news conference.

The veto effectively killed the bill, since state legislators had conceded they did not have enough votes to gain the two-thirds majority needed to override the veto. In addition, the Legislature adjourned its session at 4:32 p.m. Friday, and can be called back only by the governor.

But Republican Rep. Gary Montgomery, one of the bill's main architects, said anti-abortion lawmakers would refine the legislation and press it again in the 1991 session.

The veto "is the most significant demonstration to date of the power, depth and intensity of the pro-choice movement," said Kate Michelman, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League in Washington, D.C.

But she warned that the abortion-rights movement remains vulnerable.

"Despite our victories, it only takes one anti-choice legislature to pass one anti-choice, test-case bill that is signed into law by one anti-choice governor for the right to choose to be stripped from every American woman," Ms. Michelman said. "It will only take one case to challenge Roe in the U.S. Supreme Court."

John Willke, president of the National Right to Life Committee, said:

"Gov. Andrus today abandoned thousands of unborn children who will continue to die needlessly in Idaho. He has bowed to the hollow threats and pressure tactics of pro-abortion extremists who insist abortion be available as a method of birth control."

John Poindexter, right, and attorney Richard Bexler arrive at U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., Friday.

Jury urged to 'ignore' Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prosecutor at John Poindexter's trial asked jurors in final arguments Friday to ignore former President Reagan's "biased" testimony and convict his national security adviser of Iran-Contra coverup charges.

But Poindexter's attorney said the defendant had merely gotten caught in a political battle between Congress and the White House and had done "his ever-loving best to give as much information as he could tell" rather than conspiring to hide the affair.

Poindexter had done his job for Reagan, "the driving engine behind his actions," said defense lawyer Richard Beckler.

Prosecutor Dan K. Webb said in his summation that there was "overwhelming evidence" that Poindexter lied to Congress and destroyed documents to cover up the diversion of Iran arms sale profits to help the Nicaraguan Contra rebels when aid was banned by Congress.

Webb ridiculed the defense's decision to call Reagan as its "star witness," calling it an attempt to persuade jurors to ignore the facts.

Reagan "didn't have the slightest clue" whether Poindexter participated in the crimes charged in the indictment, Webb said.

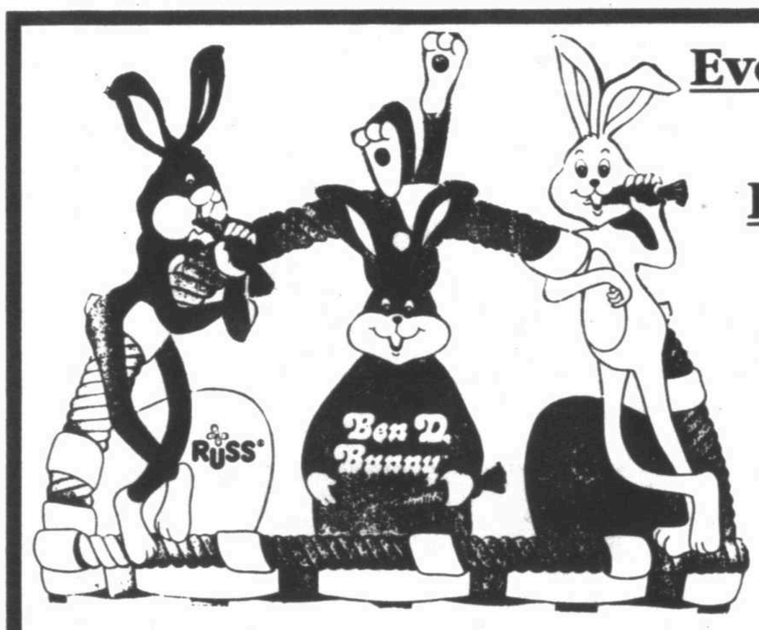

The defense hoped that "just because the president testified you ought to acquit John Poindexter," Webb said. "That defense is an insult to your intelligence."

Poindexter's attorney told jurors that Reagan resisted testifying and did not come "as a friendly witness." He defended the former president's value as a witness, saying: "the fact he forgot some things does not mean his testimony was not relevant."

The eight hours of Reagan's videotaped testimony, taken in February in Los Angeles, was played for the jury last week by the defense, which rested its case Wednesday without calling Poindexter to the stand.

'Fan' surrenders after standoff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A rifle-toting woman who allegedly harassed actress Sharon Gless for years surrendered peacefully Friday after a seven-hour standoff with police inside the "Cagney and Lacey" star's home.

Joni Leigh Penn, 30, who in the past had threatened to kill herself in front of the actress, put down a loaded .22-caliber semiautomatic rifle and surrendered to officers inside Miss Gless' Studio City home at 10 a.m., said police Capt. Dan Watson. Miss Gless was not home at the time.

"She surrendered voluntarily. She was tired. She was just kind of worn down," said Watson, who described Ms. Penn as an obsessed fan of Miss Gless.

A policewoman was instrumental in convincing the woman to surrender, but her name was not immediately available, officers said. "I don't know what she said to her," Watson added.

Ms. Penn was quickly handcuffed and led outside to a police car while dozens of reporters and neighbors watched. She walked out with her head down. She looked somber and did not speak.

She was taken to the Police Department's North Hollywood station, where Watson said she would be booked for investigation of armed burglary, a felony.

An hour earlier, Watson told reporters gathered outside the actress' home on a tree-lined cul-de-sac that Ms. Penn had threatened to kill herself. Another police spokesman, Officer C.K. Witkamp, said Ms. Penn had pointed the weapon to her head when officers arrived.

Miss Gless, who was in touch with police throughout the ordeal, issued a statement shortly afterward in which she said Ms. Penn had harassed her for several years.

"These are horrendous times that we live in, especially when disturbed people have such easy access to weapons that can be used indiscriminately," she said. "This has been going on for several years now, and I think has to be dealt with by the authorities."

Baker says communism's retreat shouldn't discourage U.S. policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III urged Americans on Friday to support a U.S. foreign policy based on "idealism plus realism" and not to withdraw from the foreign field now that communism is in retreat.

"The time of sweeping away the old dictators is passing fast," Baker said. "The time of building up the new democracies has arrived."

Baker spoke to the World Affairs Council in Dallas. Texts were distributed at the State Department where U.S. officials said one of Baker's aims was to combat "neo-isolationism" in America.

"Now that the adversaries of democracy are weaker, some say we should retire, mission accomplished, to tend our problems at home," Baker said in his prepared remarks. "I am not among them. In the new world struggling to be born, like the old world now rapidly passing away, there is no substitute for American leadership."

The speech was largely philosophical. There was no mention in it of Lithuania, where secessionists are seeking stronger support from the Bush administration.

Afterward, Baker said the United States was continuing to call for a resolution of the dispute through dialogue and independence.

"We've never recognized the incorporation of Lithuania into the Soviet Union in 1940," Baker said.

"We support Lithuanians in their desire to achieve self-determination. "The real issue is how do we best get there?"

Baker also praised the Soviet leadership for a commitment to reform that, he said, has brought about "remarkable changes" in Eastern Europe and other areas of the world.

The U.S. officials, who briefed reporters under condition of anonymity, said Baker preferred focusing on broader foreign policy issues.

One of his central themes was the surprisingly rapid trend toward democracy around the world.

When President Bush took office in January 1989 there was "a new breeze blowing for freedom," Baker said. Now, 14 months later, he said, "that breeze has become a gale-force wind."

Baker cited Nicaragua and developments in Central and Eastern Europe.

On the one hand, he said, Americans will not support a U.S. foreign policy that lacks support for humane values.

And yet, Baker said, "I am equally convinced that Americans will reject a policy based primarily on moral exhortation."

Tourists flock to see Walled City

HONG KONG (AP) — The notorious Walled City, a squalid enclave whose dark alleyways once were the domain of prostitutes, opium addicts and fugitives, is attracting tourists and students these days.

They wind through virtual tunnels made by buildings squeezed too close together for sunlight or vehicles to enter. They dodge open sewers and dripping pipes in the rancid air to see the sinkhole of vice before it becomes a park.

Hong Kong announced plans three years ago to raze the seven-acre district, just a short walk from the international airport, as soon as its 33,000 residents could be relocated. Officials believe it was the world's most densely populated area.

The city wall itself won't come tumbling down. Japanese occupation forces took it apart during World War II and used the stones for an airport runway.

Since the plans to make a park were announced, "we have had almost daily bus loads of tourists visiting the Walled City," said Herman Cho, an official of the relocation program. "You cannot deny the Walled City has unique features."

Many groups venture only to the perimeter to take pictures of the jumble of high-rise buildings.

Other tourists walk alleyways slick with water dripping from a canopy of overhead pipes for closer inspection of a slum that, despite its wretchedness, is rich in history.

"I've been in the worst slums in New York and they're not this bad," said Christopher Lok, 15, of Ridgefield, Conn., touring the neighborhood with his 10th grade classmates from the Hong Kong International School.

The enclave on the Kowloon Peninsula across the harbor from Hong Kong island once was a Qing dynasty fort and administrative center protected by a 13-foot wall.

In 1898, Britain leased Kowloon from China for 99 years along with Hong Kong, but the two countries could not agree on who would control the Walled City.

Few problems arose for half a century because the seven acres were sparsely populated.

Camouflaged 20-year-old Tharani is part of a deadly band of female rebels, the Female Tigers of Tamil Eelam, fighting for a separate homeland in northeastern Sri Lanka.

Tamil women guerrillas move into the open

TINNELVELI, Sri Lanka (AP) — Women guerrillas of the Tamil Tigers, cyanide capsules around their necks and assault rifles ready, have moved out of the jungles and into the towns since Indian peacekeeping troops went home.

The emergence of the Tiger women, who were talked about often but seldom seen, is jolting society in the Jaffna Peninsula of northern Sri Lanka, where the Tamil minority predominates.

Violence has been a way of life here since the revolt by Tamil separatists began in 1983, but warfare was considered men's work.

"Our social fabric and lifestyle have been completely destroyed," said Velupillai Kanapathipillai, a Tamil schoolteacher. "It will never be the same after seeing these young girls carrying guns."

Kanapathipillai was echoing traditional beliefs that Tamil women should be demure.

Lt. Imelda, a 26-year-old commander of the Female Tigers of Tamil Eelam, has little time for that. She and the other women in her outfit can handle T-81 Chinese assault rifles and machine pistols, rocket launchers and anti-aircraft guns, she said.

Stanley Dominic, district leader of the male Tigers, spoke with pride of the women.

"They do everything we do," he told an interviewer in Jaffna. "They man checkpoints 24 hours. They drive heavy trucks captured from the Indian army. They take part in active combat, and they are willing to bite their cyanide capsules to avoid being captured."

The Tigers say more than 300 of their men have used cyanide to commit suicide rather than submit to capture and interrogation. Imelda said she did not know how many women Tigers had used their capsules.

About 25 Tiger women in camouflage gear guarded her two-story headquarters during a recent visit. The women are segregated from the male Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, the largest guerrilla force, which has fought both the Sri Lankan army and Indian peacekeeping troops.

No men were in sight at the headquarters, and a male visitor was eyed with suspicion.

Imelda, who uses a code name like many male Tigers, said 26 women guerrillas died in face-to-face combat with male Indian soldiers in two years.

She denied periodic speculation that the female Tigers were created to fight Indian paramilitary policewomen who served in Sri Lanka along with the all-male army.

"No Indian woman soldier can fight me," Imelda said, eyes blazing. "They are powder puffs. I challenge them."

Neither male nor female Tigers will give the total strength of the guerrillas, who seek a separate homeland in northeastern Sri Lanka to be called Tamil Eelam. The militants claim discrimination by Sri Lanka's ethnic Sinhalese majority.

Getting out from under census not quite that easy for some

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The only clue for workers answering hundreds of calls in Spanish at Columbia Auto Parts was the word "census." The callers were trying to reach a special toll-free number for questions about the 1990 census. "Friday, it was amusing," said Bill Carter, who runs the business. "Saturday, it was funny. It's not even humorous today."

On Monday, the Census Bureau sent a Spanish-speaking employee to the shop to take down telephone numbers and tell callers that someone would get back to them. The employee took more than 100 calls dialed to 800-283-6826, Carter said.

Joe McNamara of MCI Telecommunications Corp., the long-distance carrier for the Census Bureau, theorized that callers held one button down too long, repeating the 8 in 283. Columbia Auto Parts' toll-free number is 800-288-3862.

McNamara said MCI checked the lines and found no problems, but Carter decided to change his number.

In Tennessee, a medical supply company was experiencing the same problem with its number, 800-228-3862.

Hogs hope to addle Duke guards

Arkansas attack hinges on running game

Associated Press

DENVER — Forty Minutes of Hell — that's what Arkansas calls its attack. And Duke?

"I guess we don't have a name for ours," Blue Devils coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "We play hard for 40 minutes, too. We just don't have a name for it."

The Razorbacks (30-4) and Blue Devils (28-8) meet Saturday in a Final Four semifinal that should be a showcase of basketball's two basic styles.

Arkansas likes to run, run, run, and Coach Nolan Richardson has taught a trapping, full-court press to fuel that fastbreak philosophy. Duke, on the other hand, stresses defense and a half-court offense that revolves around the playmaking of freshman guard Bobby Hurley and a powerful front line.

The winner advances to college basketball's national championship game Monday night against the winner of the Georgia Tech-UNLV semifinal.

Arkansas' rallying cry is the invention of Richardson.

"Many years ago, I read a Vince Lombardi quote in which he said that fatigue makes cowards of us all," Richardson said. "And I developed my philosophy from that. We try to pressure the guards extremely hard. We want to make a coach go to his bench — through fatigue, through fouls or just because he's dissatisfied with how his guards are playing.

"I worked extremely hard to get where I am, and I work out kids that way."

Arkansas is in its fourth Final Four but first since 1978. Duke, meanwhile, is in its third straight Final Four and fourth in five years. Neither team has ever won a national title.

"I think our approach to the tournament has been a good one," Krzyzewski said. "I know I haven't won a national championship, but we think we're doing things the right way."

Four of Duke's players — Alaa Abdelnaby, Phil Henderson, Robert Brickey and Greg Koubek — have been to the Final Four three times, but Krzyzewski says that only gives the Blue Devils "a marginal advantage."

One thing's for sure. Those four players aren't going to worry about 40 minutes of hell when they've already been through two years of frustration.

"If 40 minutes of hell is their focal point, so be it," Abdelnaby said. "We talk about defense as our focal point, and I don't think the players on either team pay too much attention to what the other guys say."

Arkansas came out of the Midwest Regional after beating Southwest Conference foe Texas 102-89. Duke was the East Regional champion after a 79-78 overtime victory over Connecticut, which also presses full court.

"The only way Arkansas and Connecticut are similar is that they pick you up full court," Krzyzewski said. "But their presses are different. Arkansas takes more chances, and Connecticut is a little more calculating in each stage of their press.

"We'll have to be able to handle that full-court press."

Todd Day, a 6-8 sophomore forward, is Arkansas' leading scorer at 19.3 points per game. Arkansas' other frontcourt players are 6-9 Oliver Miller and 6-5 Lenzie Howell, and that gives Duke a slight size advantage with 6-foot-10 Abdelnaby, 6-11 Christian Laettner and the 6-5 Brickey. Arkansas will try to compensate with quickness.

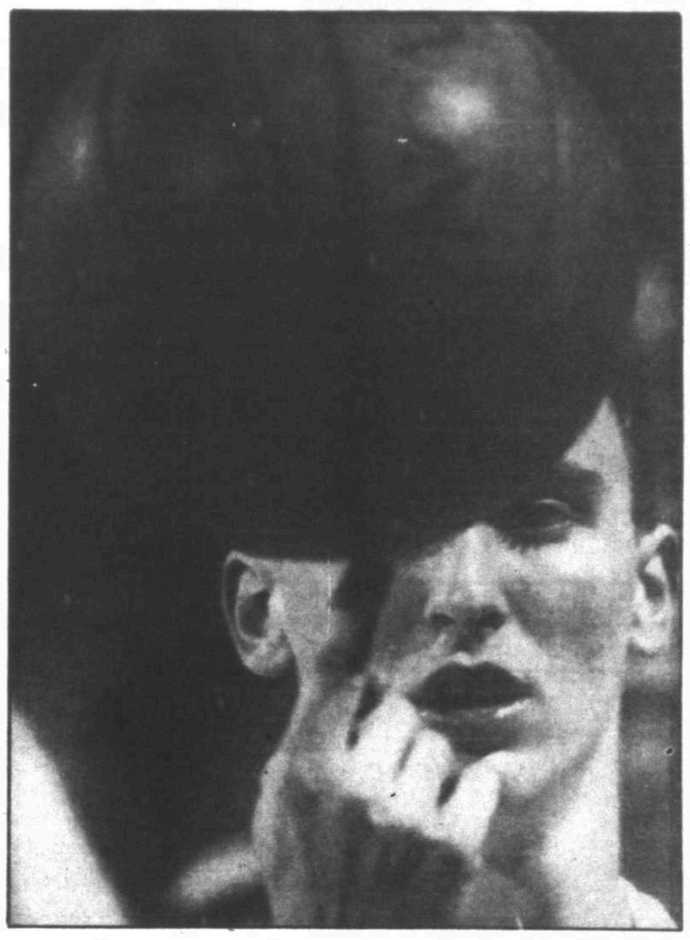

"I think they're a little better athletically than we are," Krzyzewski said, "a little quicker. But we're not slow, and we've got a good bench. They have some advantages, but they're not extreme. And we have some advantages, but they're not extreme."

Brickey missed part of the Connecticut game in the regionals when he pulled a hamstring, but he said he has practiced for three days without problems. Koubek and Brian Davis, both 6-6, have subbed for Brickey.

"He's not 100 percent, but he's ready," Krzyzewski said. "He'll start, he'll play, no excuses."

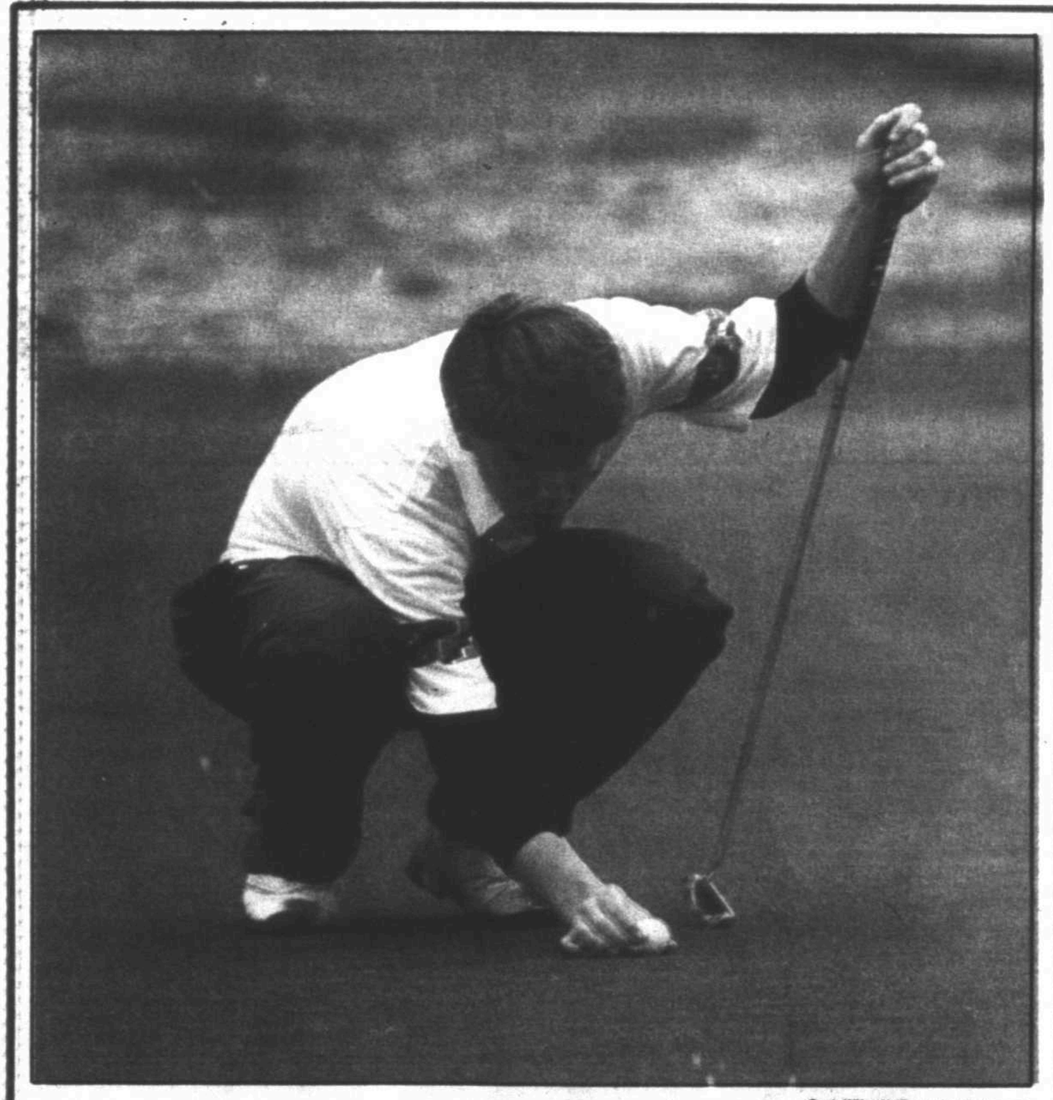

Arkansas is healthy and ready to run.

"My grandma used to tell me, 'It's not how big the dog is at the fight but how much fight is in the dog,'" Richardson said. "No matter how big you are, there's always somebody around who's bigger. That's why I try to play all 94 feet."

Midland High's Ty Kretzinger lines up a putt in the second round of the District 4-5A golf tournament Friday at Mission Dorado Country Club in Odessa.

Defending gold medalist takes individual lead in 4-5A tourney

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Ben Bangert moved into first place in the medalist race with a two-under-par 70, and Odessa Permian used that tally and three more in the 70s to take a commanding 23-stroke lead in District 4-5A golf Friday at Mission Dorado Country Club.

The Panthers, enjoying the home-course advantage for the second round of league play, unseated San Angelo from the top spot with a 295 and a two-round total 608.

The Bobcats had a three-stroke lead after the initial district round, but their 321 on Friday sent them reeling to a distant second, 631.

Midland Lee maintained a barrage of birdies late in the round, but the Rebels' 318 for 632 pushed them 24 shots behind the streaking Panthers.

"They (Panthers) did today what we needed to do last week," said Lee golf coach Ronnie Stephens, who had hoped to take similar advantage of the home-course during last week's 4-5A opener at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

"They just played great golf here," he said. "Our round at Ranchland is going to haunt us for the next two weeks."

Abilene Cooper shot a 330 Friday and remained in fourth place at 652, and the Abilene High Eagles slipped past Lee's No. 2 team and into a tie for fourth with their cross-town rivals. Lee No. 2 shot 340 and dropped from fourth to fifth, while Midland High sits alone in seventh place with 665.

Lee's Boyd Deramus, the district's first-round leader, fell from 73 to 83 and dropped into a tie for fifth with Permian's Larry Davisson at 156. And J.C. Hernandez of San Angelo carded a 79 and fell from second place to fourth.

All the while, Bangert, the defending 4-5A medalist, was posting the only sub-par round of league play. It was a round that could have been even better; Bangert bogeyed 15 and 16.

"I putted real well and that saved me today," Bangert said.

The Permian senior, who had six one-puts in the round, saved his best for last. Bangert canned a 30-foot birdie putt before an enthusiastic gallery at the 18th.

"I was really trying to two-putt," Bangert said. "It just fell in."

And right after Bangert's crowd-pleaser came one from Lee's J.J. King. The Rebels' three-year letterman, in a threesome that included Bangert and Hernandez, knocked down a 10 footer for birdie on the final hole. That stroke gave King a solid 74 for the day and a tie with San Angelo's Shawn Bishop for third place with 153, two taps behind second-place finisher Chris Dyer of Permian (75-for-151).

"I only used 28 putts today, and that's really satisfying on these greens," King refered to some of the toughest pin placements Lee players have

Dogs maul Cats 15-1 to go 2-2

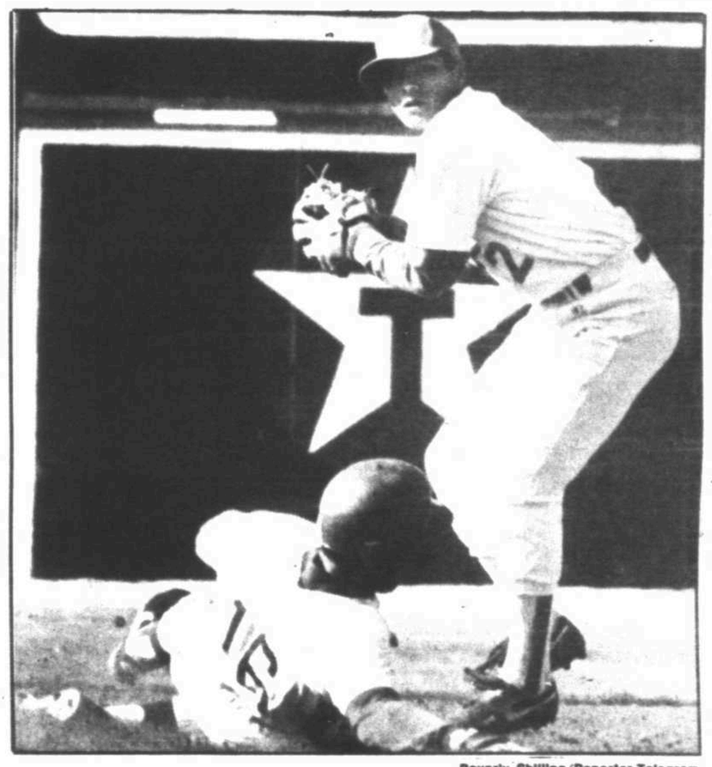

By Jimmy Patterson

The sunny, spring-like weather returned Friday afternoon, and with it, a return by the Midland High Bulldogs to the baseball win column. Midland High whomped visiting San Angelo, 15-1, at Angels Stadium in a game called after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

The Bulldogs put it away with much finality in a nine-run fourth inning when 14 men came to the plate.

San Angelo's weak pitching corps, combined with a pothole-filled Bobcat defense aided the Bulldogs in their efforts. The really telling stories, however, came in the form of the hot bat of Patrick Mowles and the even hotter arm of pitcher James Madrid.

Rebs eschew hype

DENVER (AP) — Pardon the heresy, but on college basketball's ultimate weekend, maybe they should change the rules for one game.

The Georgia Tech-UNLV semifinal in Saturday's Final Four would be much better as the conclusion to a 3-on-3 tournament.

Think of it.

Georgia Tech sends out Kenny Anderson, Brian Oliver and Dennis Scott, the trio known by name as "Lethal Weapon 3" and statistically as the Yellow Jackets' offense.

UNLV counters with Greg Anthony, Stacey Augmon and Larry Johnson, a group without a nickname but with a defensive reputation second to none.

Johnson, an All-American and UNLV's leading scorer and rebounder, isn't buying the three-man theory in any way.

"I really, truly don't listen to hype," Johnson said Friday. "This is Division I and you really can't find guys on teams like these who can't play the game."

Georgia Tech (28-6) has not been a creation of hype.

Scott, Anderson and Oliver each average more than 20 points and they scored all but four of the Yellow Jackets' points in their 93-91 Southeast Regional final victory over Minnesota.

"They're difficult to pressure because they have the great guards, the great point guard and the 3-point perimeter people," UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "It's a lot more fun for us against guards who don't handle the ball well."

Then Anderson is about as far from fun for the Runnin' Rebels as another visit from NCAA officials.

The freshman has been receiving plaudits usually reserved for those leaving college basketball for the professional level after a great career.

He used his length-of-the-court speed dribbles and eyeblink crossovers to dazzle the country in the regional. In the semifinal against Michigan State, his controversial buzzer-beater tied it in regulation and he nailed a 3-pointer in overtime.

Wayne, Mario battle backs

N.Y. Times News Service

Wayne Gretzky's back problem is more serious than first thought and could sideline the Los Angeles Kings' star for the beginning of the National Hockey League playoffs, which start next week.

Meanwhile, Mario Lemieux's back problem appears to be abating on schedule and he could even skate in the Pittsburgh Penguins' regular season finale against the Buffalo Sabres Saturday night.

Michael Barnett, Gretzky's agent, said in a telephone interview from Los Angeles Friday that the league's scoring leader was hoping to play Wednesday night when the Kings open at Calgary in the Smythe Division semifinals.

"If the Stanley Cup playoffs started tomorrow, he would not be ready," Barnett said. "The doctors are cautiously optimistic he will be ready to play in the playoffs. They have also said if there is no improvement before the playoffs, he can't play."

The injury, described by Barnett as "bad bruising of the lower muscles of the back," was incurred nine days ago.

Strawberry has a cherry of a game for NY

Associated Press

Darryl Strawberry is starting to find his stroke just in time.

Strawberry, who struggled a bit at the start of spring training this week, homered and drove in four runs Friday as the New York Mets outlasted the Los Angeles Dodgers 12-9 at Vero Beach, Fla.

Strawberry had two hits, including a three-run homer in the Mets' four-run second inning.

Astros 11, Twins 1

Mark Portugal, William Brennan and Xavier Hernandez combined on a three-hitter as Houston routed Minnesota.

The Astros scored five runs in each of the seventh and eighth innings, highlighted by Steve Lombardozzi's two-run homer in the eighth.

Chicago White Sox (ss) 13
Rangers 9

Rookie Craig Grebeck's grand slam highlighted a six-run ninth inning as the White Sox rallied to beat Texas. Rafael Palmeiro doubled, homered, and drove in four runs for the Rangers.

Angels 15, Cubs 7

Shortstop Kent Anderson went 3-for-4 with an RBI and rookie catcher Ron Tingley hit a three-run homer as the California Angels pounded out 19 hits to beat the Chicago Cubs 15-7.

Angels 10, Giants 4

Rookie first baseman Lee Stevens drove in three runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly, powering the California Angels to a 10-4 split-squad exhibition victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Red Sox 5, Reds 4

Jose Rijo allowed three hits and struck out five in four shutout innings as Cincinnati edged Boston.

Braves 9, Yankees 4

Jody Davis hit a two-run homer in a four-run fifth inning and Tommy Gregg added a solo shot to power Atlanta past the Yankees.

Blue Jays 8, Pirates 3

Pat Borders drove in three runs and Toronto had 17 hits en route to its victory over Pittsburgh. Borders hit a run-scoring single in the second inning and a bases-loaded single for two RBIs in the fifth.

Phillies 7, Cardinals 6

Sil Campusano's three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted Philadelphia over St. Louis.

Expos 3, Orioles 2 (11 inn.)

Larry Walker singled home Dave Martinez in the bottom of the 11th inning to lift Montreal over Baltimore. Walker, an outfield prospect, lined a ball just out of the reach of diving center fielder Steve Finley to score the winning run off reliever Jose Bautista.

Tigers 8, Royals 5

Tony Phillips, who left Oakland to sign as a free agent with Detroit, drove in two runs to lead the Tigers past Kansas City. Phillips' two-run single highlighted the Tigers' five-run sixth inning. Danny Tartabull hit two home runs for the Royals.

Indians 6, Brewers 3

Candy Maldonado ended a four-game hitless streak with two triples and a double, driving in the tiebreaking run with a triple in the eighth inning as Cleveland beat Milwaukee.

Padres 4, Mariners 3

Mark Parent snapped a 3-3 tie with a run-scoring single in the eighth inning to lead San Diego past Seattle. Darris Jackson added a two-run homer for the Padres.

Padres 4, Mariners 3

Tony Gwynn scored the tying run on a two-base throwing error and Mark Parent singled in the winning run as the San Diego Padres rallied in the eighth inning to beat the Seattle Mariners 4-3.

Final 4 Thumbs

Arkansas

Fayetteville, Ark., 30-4, Southwest Conference tournament champion. Arkansas is going to the NCAA Final Four for the fourth time. The last time the Razorbacks made it this far was 1978 when they lost to Kentucky 64-59 and beat Notre Dame 71-69 for third place.

Arkansas' road to the final four; edged Princeton 68-64 in the first round, then beat Dayton 86-84 in the second round, crushed North Carolina 96-73 in the Midwest Region semifinals, and beat Texas 88-85 in the finals.

The Razorbacks captured both the SWC regular season and tournament titles for the second consecutive year after beating Houston 96-84. Five players averaged double figures in scoring. Sophomore forward Todd Day averaged 19.8 points and 5.2 rebounds and sophomore guard Lee Mayberry added 14.6 points, led the team with 5.3 assists per game and shot 53.2 percent from 3-point range. Senior swingman Lenzi Howell scored 13.0 points and pulled in 5.2 rebounds per game. Senior center Mario Credit also averaged 9.5 points and 3.9 rebounds. Junior forward Ron Huery scored 10.8 points off the bench. Sophomore center Oliver Miller was the top rebounder and shot blocker with 6.2 and 2.6 per game respectively and added 11.4 points.

Duke

Durham, N.C., 28-8, At Large. Duke is going to the NCAA Final Four for the eighth time and has been there four of the last five years. It made the championship game three times, losing each time. The Blue Devils lost in 1964 to UCLA 98-83; Kentucky in 1978, 94-88; and Louisville in 1986, 72-69. Last year the Blue Devils lost to Seton Hall in the semifinals, 95-78.

Duke's road to the final four; crushed Richmond 81-46 in the first round, edged St. John's 76-72 in the second round, outlasted UCLA 90-81, and beat Connecticut 79-78 in overtime in the East Region.

Coach Mike Krzyzewski has led Duke to its seventh straight 20-win seasons and NCAA appearances. Senior guard Phil Henderson led the Blue Devils with 17.8 points per game, including 62 3-pointers. Sophomore forward Christian Laettner led the team with 9.6 rebounds and added 16.4 points per game. Much improved senior center Alaa Abdelnaby added 14.3 points and 6.3 rebounds per game. Senior forward Robert Brickey bounced back from a mid-season injury and scored 12.2 points per game and pulled in 5.5 rebounds per game. Freshman point guard Bob Hurley handed out 7.8 assists and scored 9.4 points per game. Junior forward Greg Koubek and freshman Billy McCaffery, 7.3 points per game, have been effective off the bench.

Georgia Tech

Atlanta, 28-6, Atlantic Coast Conference tournament champion. This is Georgia Tech's first appearance in the Final Four.

Georgia Tech's road to the final four; ran down East Tennessee State 99-83 in the first round, outscored Louisiana Tech 94-91 in the second round, edged Michigan State 81-80 in overtime in the Southwest Region semifinals, and beat Minnesota 93-91 in the finals.

Georgia Tech beat Virginia 70-61 to capture its first ACC conference tournament. Bobby Cremins has led Georgia Tech to six consecutive NCAA appearances after a 15-year absence. Largest margin of defeat was only five points this year considering weak front line. Junior forward Dennis Scott averaged 27.6 points and 6.6 rebounds led the team with 105 3-pointers. Senior guard Brian Oliver averaged 21.9 points and 6.5 rebounds. Freshman sensation Kenny Anderson scored 20.5 points and dished out 6.8 assists per game. Freshman forward Malcolm Mackey led the team with 7.1 rebounds and added 7.5 points per game. Senior forward Johnny McNeil grabbed 5.0 rebounds and scored 5.3 points per game.

UNLV

Las Vegas, Nev., 33-5, Big West Conference tournament champion.

This is the Runnin' Rebels third appearance in the Final Four. Their first appearance came in 1977 when they lost in the semifinals to North Carolina 84-83 and ended up third by beating N.C. Charlotte 108-94. In 1987, they lost in the semifinals to Indiana 97-93.

UNLV's road to the final four; outscored Arkansas-Little Rock 102-72 in the first round, defeated Ohio State 76-65 in the secodn round, edged Ball State 69-67 in the West Region semifinals, and outscored Loyola Marymount 131-101 in the finals.

This is the Runnin' Rebels eighth consecutive NCAA appearance. They beat Long Beach St. 92-74 in conference final. Junior forward Larry Johnson led the club with 20.9 points and 11.2 rebounds per game. Senior center David Butler followed with 10.6 points and 7.5 rebounds. Sophomore guard Anderson Hunt chipped in with 15.7 points, including 84 3-pointers. Junior forward Stacey Augmon had 13.5 points and 6.7 rebounds per game. Junior guard Greg Anthony added 11.1 points and handed out 7.6 assists per game. Senior forward Moses Scurry added 8.2 points per game off the bench.

NBA ROUNDUP

Jordan proves he's mortal with 'only' 49

Associated Press

Michael Jordan followed a career-high 69-point game with 49 more but the Chicago Bulls needed Stacey King's in-close basket with 12 seconds left in overtime to beat the New York Knicks 107-106 Friday night.

Jordan drove the baseline on the left side and tossed up a short air ball which King grabbed and laid in. After two New York timeouts, Maurice Cheeks' shot from 20 feet was way short and the Bulls won their third straight contest. It was the Knicks' 11th consecutive loss in Chicago Stadium despite overcoming a 14-point halftime deficit.

Gerald Wilkins scored six of the first eight points for the Knicks in overtime,but Jordan and Scottie Pippen countered with two baskets apiece to tie the game.

Eddie Lee Wilkins gave the Knicks a 104-102 lead. With 1:44 left, Pippen hit one of two free throws and the Bulls trailed 104-103. Jordan then hit a short bank shot with 1:05 left for a 105-104 Chicago lead and Cheeks hit from the top of the key with 34 seconds to go, giving New York a 106-105 lead.

The Knicks lost for the first time in six overtime games this season.

Timberwolves 84, Mavericks 82

Sam Mitchell's follow shot at the buzzer while falling gave the Minnesota Timberwolves an 84-82 victory over Dallas and snapped the Mavericks' six-game winning streak.

It was the second win in a row and 20th of the season for expansion Minnesota, who are 4-30 on the road. The Mavericks played without starting forward Sam Perkins due to an ankle sprain suffered in San Antonio a night earlier. It was only Dallas' second loss in 21 games against expansion teams.

Sixers 149, Nuggets 131

Charles Barkley scored a season-high 38 points as the Philadelphia 76ers won their sixth straight game, beating the Denver Nuggets 149-131.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Nuggets, who have lost their last seven road games.

The 149 points was the 76ers' highest total of the season. They jumped out to a 47-33 lead at the end of the first quarter behind 18 points and eight rebounds from Barkley.

Cavaliers 105, Heat 104

Mark Price hit three outside jumpers in the final three minutes and set up John Williams' winning free throw with 2.9 seconds left as the Cleveland Cavaliers rallied in the fourth quarter to beat the Miami Heat 105-104.

With the score tied at 104, Price drove into the lane and fed underneath to Williams, who started to go up for a shot and was fouled by Tellis Frank. Williams missed his first free throw but made the second. Miami's Sherman Douglas tried a 50-foot shot that caromed off the rim at the buzzer.

Celtics 123, Pistons 111

Larry Bird scored 33 points, including two technical foul shots and a 3-point basket in a 10-0 fourth-quarter run that carried the Boston Celtics to a 123-111 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

The defending NBA champions Pistons played their third straight game without their leading scorer, Joe Dumars, who has a broken left hand. They have lost two of the three.

Suns 126, Nets 119

Tom Chambers and Kevin Johnson scored four points apiece in a decisive 10-0 third-quarter run as the Phoenix Suns blew an 18-point lead and then rallied to defeat the New Jersey Nets 126-119 in a game that had 10 technical fouls.

Johnson had 32 points and 11 assists and Chambers had 31 points. Nets coach Bill Fitch was ejected for the second straight game, along with New Jersey forward Purvis Short and Suns guard Mike McGee.

Bullets 143, Magic 115

Bernard King and Jeff Malone each scored nine points in the third quarter, helping the Washington Bullets to a 143-115 victory.

Stanford rolls in semis

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Katy Steding scored 18 points and Trisha Stevens had 16 Friday night as Stanford rolled into the NCAA women's championship game with a 75-66 semifinal victory over Virginia.

The Cardinal led 42-38 at the half and used an 11-2 run, keyed by five points by Steding, to build a 59-46 lead with 8:35 left.

The victory was the 53rd in the last 54 games for the Cardinal, which will carry a 31-1 mark into Sunday's championship game.

Auburn 81, Louisiana Tech 69

Auburn hit Louisiana Tech with its inside-outside combination of Linda Godby and Carolyn Jones and shocked the previously unbeaten Lady Techsters to move into the NCAA championship game for the third straight year.

Operating its full-court press and collapsing zone defense to perfection, ninth-ranked Auburn (28-6) built a 20-point halftime lead and held off a second-half comeback.

Horgan holds lead in rain-shortened PGA event

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — The Independent Insurance Agent Open was reduced to a 54-hole event after two rain delays and P.H. Horgan III retained a 1-shot lead with a 6-under-par 66 after the first round finally was completed Friday.

Horgan held his slim lead over seven players at 67.

Twenty-four players had not completed the first round at 9:08 a.m. CST Friday when PGA Tournament Director Mike Shea suspended play shortly after three groups had started the second round.

Angels win 4-1

Staff Report

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — The Midland Angels took a 4-1 exhibition victory over the Shreveport Captains here Friday with three Midland pitchers combining for the victory and allowing just six hits.

Glenn Carter pitched four innings, giving up the one Cap run on three hits and three strikeouts. Luis Merejo (three innings) and Rafael Montalvo (two innings) finished out the game in scoreless relief.

Scott Cerny had two hits, including a double, while Beban Perez had two hits and an RBI. Jeff Gay had a two-run single.

The Angels will play today in Mesa against Williamsport, Seattle's AA franchise.

Seay wins 100 breast

Staff Report

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Midland's Matt Seay made his fourth trip to the Junior Nationals Shortcourse swim meet one to remember Friday, winning the 100 breaststroke at the University of Iowa pool.

Seay posted a 56.91 to win the event and it was the first time he had ever qualified for the finals. Seay qualified for the finals Friday morning with a 53.81, equalling the time he posted in the state swim meet last week when he placed third.

Midland Matt Houston was seventh in the 100 butterfly with a 51.04. This was also the first time for the sophomore to qualify for the national finals. He had a 51.03 qualifying time Friday morning and that was six tenths slower than he had in his third place at the state meet last week.

"The kids really swam well," said City of Midland swim team coach Brad Swendig. "This pool is probably slower than the one they swam at in the state meet at the University of Texas."

Mojo invades Lee field today

Staff Report

Midland Lee may be coming off a big 12-10 win over Abilene High in District 4-5A baseball play, but the Rebels will truly have their mettle tested at 2 p.m. today when they take on district leader Odessa Permian.

In other district games today, Midland High travels to Odessa High while Abilene High takes on San Angelo. Abilene Cooper has today's open date.

Permian is unbeaten in 4-5A action, owning a 4-0 league record while going 10-2-1 overall. Lee (7-6 overall), will try to put the stops on a Panther team that is coming off a 12-2 dismantling of Abilene Cooper. That was the first time Cooper, which has won the Class 5A title twice in the past four years, had been the vitim of the 10-run rule in more than eight years.

Suffice it to say, Mojo is powerful and on a roll.

MHS is also coming off an explosive performance, as the Bulldogs pasted San Angelo to the tune of 15-1 in five innings Friday.

NOTE: The Lee baseball booster club is sponsoring a hamburger feast prior to today's game at 1 p.m., at the Lee field.

DOGS: MHS gets an 'easy one'

From 1B

For Mowles, threes were wild, as the senior catcher went 3-for-3, drove in three and scored three. He also tripled in the third.

Madrid has a beauty of a breaking ball, and it worked to perfection against the Bobcats. Madrid stifled San Angelo batters, allowing only two hits and striking out six in his five inning stint.

"He's got a good breaking pitch," MHS coach Tim Whalen noted afterward. "Sometimes he'll lose some concentration, but today's performance was pretty typical for him. He throws a lot of good balls."

In the telling fourth inning, leadoff hitter Keith Gilbreath had two hits and scored twice while Mowles and Salazar, too, reached base twice. Also in the inning, San Angelo went through three pitchers who combined for five hits, four walks, seven earned runs, a wild pitch and one hit batsman. Two Bobcat errors also played a role. Second baseman Scott Melzer provided another offensive highlight with a triple.

MHS opened the game with a three-run first and three-run third. In the only inning the 'Dogs didn't score, the second, they were put away three up, three down.

"We finally got an easy one," Whalen said. "(San Angelo's) real young. And they're going to make some mistakes."

Whalen said he is "toying with the idea" of starting Gabriel Salazar, 1-1, when MHS travels to Odessa High today at 2 p.m.

Odessa High was set to play at Abilene High in a makeup game Friday, but that game again fell victim to the rainy weather.

In Saturday's other games, Lee hosts Odessa Permian and San Angelo travels to Abilene High.

RE-ORIENT YOURSELF TO CHINESE KITCHEN
15 ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

WE'RE celebrating our 15th Anniversary by giving you something new! A new, expanded menu featuring a variety of new chicken, beef, seafood, and pork entrees. A brighter, more fun atmosphere. Balloons for the kids. And –who knows–you might even find a surprise in your fortune cookie! Come see for yourself. It's time to start another 15 years of enjoying great Chinese food and time to re-orient yourself to Chinese Kitchen!

IMPROVE YOUR FAMILY FORTUNE!
With atmosphere, selection, quality, and value designed for families, you can't go wrong when you bring your clan to Chinese Kitchen. We bring you delicious, nutritious food at prices everyone can afford.

HOLY COW!
Caring about nutrition doesn't necessarily mean giving up beef. We prepare our beef entrees with lean cuts, combined with crisp vegetables or healthy seafood. Meat our newest entrees: Orange Beef, Beef Szechwan Style, and Kung Pao Beef, just to name a few!

MAKE WAVES!
We certainly are, by adding new delights like Shrimp with Ginger Sauce, Kung Pao Shrimp, and Shrimp with Broccoli and Snowpea. Come sea for yourself how healthy and delicious our seafood entrees are.

IN A FOWL MOOD ?
Chinese Kitchen has hatched a few new chicken items that you're going to love! You'll be nuts about our Almond Chicken, and our Shanghai Chicken will delight those who didn't even know they liked Chinese food.

YOU'LL BE TICKLED PINK!
When you try our delicious Sweet & Sour Pork, Yu-Shang Pork, Mar Po To-Fu, and Shredded Pork with Garlic Sauce, you'll be tickled pink!

WHAT A CHOICE!
Everyone's favorite decision just got tougher. Our Combination Specials now let you choose from eight delicious entrees instead of six. You can also choose your price. Select one, two, or three entrees for just $2.95, $3.25, or $4.25! But don't worry. With food this good, any decision you make is right.

TAKE IT ON THE RUN!
When you're in a hurry, there's no need to give up a healthy, delicious meal. Order the Combination Specials or your favorite entrees with fried rice, eggrolls, and fortune cookies for your whole group to share. We'll serve the same nutritious, hot, and fresh food to go!

Because your Graduate's Future is so Bright...

The IBM® Personal System/2® Model 25

The IBM® PS/2® Model 25 is not only our most affordable computer, it's also a great first computer. It's got enough power to handle term papers and reports, spreadsheets for accounting or finance, formulas for engineering and science, and graphics for budding artists.

The Model 25 has a unique one-piece design that will fit on the smallest desktops. But its compact size doesn't cut down on the number of features that come standard, including graphics capability, two expansion slots and built-in attachments for a printer and a mouse. The complete package includes computer, keyboard, and built-in MCGA graphics display.

Mole Hole eggsperts agree...

"The Yolk's on Us!"

MIDLAND...A recent survey conducted by the Mole Hole, Midland's finest gift store, found that their selection of painted, porcelain and glass eggs for Easter was by far the finest available in Midland. Four of the so-called 'eggsperts', pictured above, were quoted: "This contest was over easy." "My vast eggsperience in the field (actually the nest) qualifies me to call this collection eggsquisite!" "Eggsactly!" "I hope we'll no longer be compared to a human brain."

The same eggsperts discovered the Mole Hole's incredible selection of Easter goodies, including (but not limited to): Bunny sachets, bunny soaps, beautiful centerpieces for your Easter table, figurines in Easter finery, delicious chocolate truffles (4 flavors), egg-shaped snowglobes, ornaments and decorations for your Easter tree, plus customized Easter baskets, and cards!

Houston lawyer convicted for catnapping in jury room

HOUSTON (AP) — An attorney who tried to catch 40 winks in an empty jury room instead caught a 10-day suspended jail sentence by a federal judge who called the nap contempt.

Attorney John O'Quinn has admitted to the November catnap in the room on the federal courthouse's eighth floor, but says he didn't think he was violating any rules.

U.S. District Judge David Hittner disagreed, saying the attorney's decision to doze in the room violates an order the judge issued Nov. 21 prohibiting the use of certain eighth-floor facilities. The catnap took place Nov. 30.

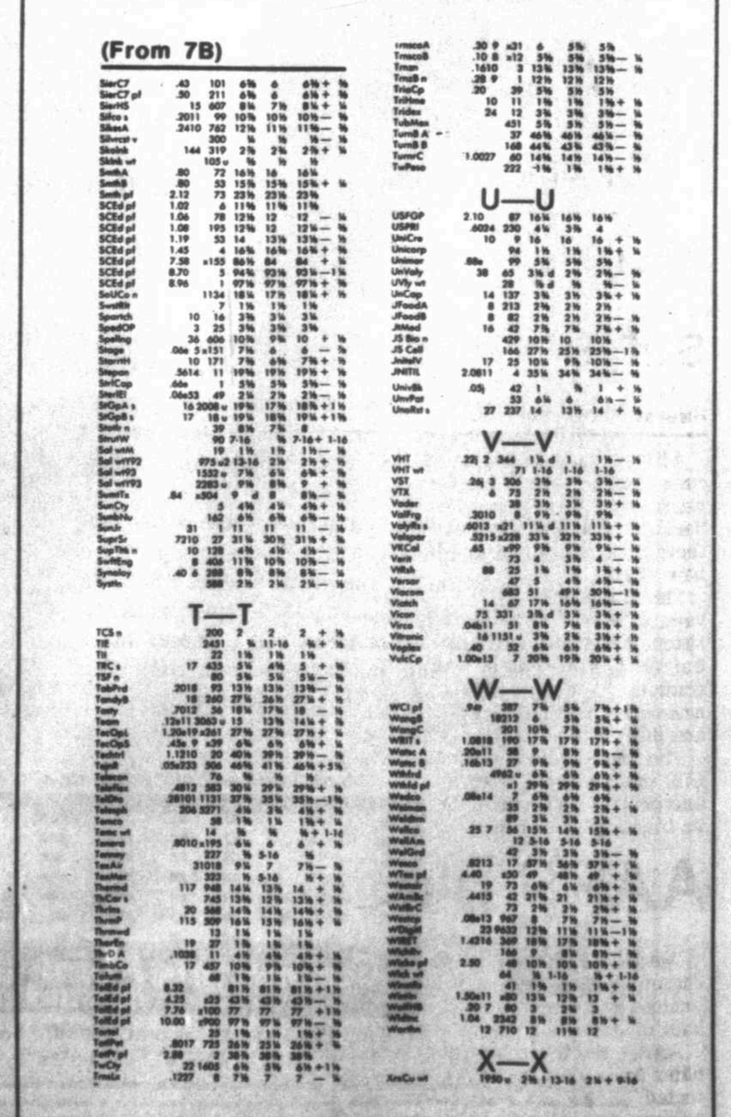

After a day-long hearing Thursday, Hittner found O'Quinn in criminal contempt. The jail sentence will remain suspended if O'Quinn performs 60 hours of community service during the next year. O'Quinn also paid a $500 fine Friday and, the same day, filed an appeal of the contempt ruling.

During the Thursday hearing, Hittner rejected a request to excuse himself from the case because of alleged bias against O'Quinn. The judge also refused to testify.

O'Quinn took a catnap during a break in a trial involving allegations of gross negligence by the Houston law firm of Sewell & Riggs in its representation of two local real estate developers.

Baldness, motherhood linked to coronary risk

By Lee Siegel
AP Science Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Baldheaded men and mothers who bear five or more children develop blood cholesterol patterns that might raise their risk of heart disease, according to studies released Friday.

In a study of 872 electronics factory workers in Italy, Dr. Maurizio Trevisan found blood cholesterol and blood pressure levels rose with age among the 278 men with "male-pattern baldness." They defined that as a receding hairline and a bald spot on the crown of the head.

The small but significant increases weren't found among the 321 men with full heads of hair or the 273 with receding hairlines but not a balding crown, said Trevisan, an epidemiologist at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

The study, released at an American Heart Association meeting, is "reason to lose one more hair," John Capps, founder of Baldheaded Men of America, said by phone from Morehead City, N.C. "Maybe we need to put our heads together on it and work out a solution."

Trevisan and colleagues at the University of Naples plan research on whether elevated cholesterol and blood pressure levels actually make bald men more prone to heart attack and stroke.

"If these data are confirmed, they could be at higher risk," he said. "Right now, I have no idea. ... These (elevated levels) are not numbers that place these men in a very high-risk category for developing coronary heart disease. But this may change as the men age."

If elevated blood pressure and cholesterol also are found in other populations, Trevisan's study would be considered "a breakthrough observation," said Dr. Elizabeth Barrett-Connor, chairwoman of community and family medicine at the University of California, San Diego.

Barrett-Connor co-authored the study of multiple pregnancies.

In her study of 1,275 women in Rancho Bernardo, near San Diego, she found that the women who had at least five pregnancies had a nearly 8 percent drop in levels of high-density lipoprotein, which is believed to protect against heart disease. There was no drop in the so-called "good" cholesterol among women with fewer children.

"Pregnancy may be another risk for heart disease, but it does not show up until five or more," said Barrett-Connor's colleague Donna Kritz-Silverstein.

Like the bald men, the women with five or more kids haven't been followed long enough to know if they actually will develop higher heart disease rates. They were studied for 10 years since their most recent pregnancies.

"I'm not going to recommend women do family planning based on this" single study, said Barrett-Connor. "I would tell a woman who had five or more kids her HDL is the least of her troubles."

Kritz-Silverstein said, "Several, but not all studies have reported an increased risk of cardiovascular disease among women who have been pregnant," and decreased high-density lipoprotein levels may be one explanation.

Also Friday, University of Iowa scientists said they found sixth- through eighth-grade children had significantly lower "good" cholesterol levels if one or both parents smoked at home daily or if the child chewed tobacco weekly or smoked cigarettes monthly.

Aside from lung disease, the possible heart disease link "is another reason for parents who smoke to think seriously about the toxic effect their habit has on their children," said Dr. Paul Pomrehn, the study's author.

High-density lipoprotein, or HDL, hooks onto cholesterol in blood, carrying the fatty substance to the liver for disposal so it won't clog arteries and cause heart attacks and strokes.

In the baldness study, all the men had similar cholesterol and blood pressure levels when the research started in 1975, but those with male-pattern baldness developed high levels as they grew older and lost hair. By 1987, they averaged blood cholesterol levels of 214 milligrams per deciliter, compared with 208 for non-bald men and men with only receding hairlines.

Trevisan and Barrett-Connor speculated hormone changes accompanying balding and pregnancy might cause the cholesterol patterns they found. Those patterns existed even after accounting for individual differences in age, weight and obesity, and cigarette and alcohol consumption.

State Department nixes Soviet's Lake Tahoe visit

By Larry Maatz
Hearst News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — While international politics would often play well as improvisational theater, the most recent attempt by the U.S. State Department to punish the Soviet Union by denying one of its officials a chance to speak at a tiny Lake Tahoe college has been characterized as, well, "terminally silly."

It all started out innocently enough, said Mark Hurtubise, dean of Sierra Nevada College, an academic bastion of 165 full-time liberal arts students at Incline Village, Nev., population 7,000.

The college had invited Gennady I. Zolotov, the Soviet Union's deputy consul in San Francisco, to address the student body on perestroika, glasnost, Lithuania and related subjects.

Zolotov had said yes. The State Department (which has to approve Zolotov's travel outside a 25-mile radius of San Francisco) had said yes. The Hurtubises readied the guest room and got out the good silver; the Zolotovs got ready for a few days in the snow.

Then the State Department said no.

It was, said Kim Lamberty of the State Department's Soviet section, all very simple. An American consular official in Leningrad, desiring to view the current unpleasantness in Lithuania, had been denied a travel permit. So, quid pro quo, the next Soviet trip within the United States would have to be denied or canceled. Zolotov was next up, so Zolotov had to stay home.

"It's so terminally silly it's almost difficult to take it seriously," Hurtubise said. "But what's so strange is that these people are really serious about this.

"I would have liked to think that we (Americans) would be able to set an example for them in situations like this," he said. "We should be playing the role model here, not just showing them that we can be as silly as they are. Besides, I was looking forward to having the Zolotovs for dinner."

Evgueni Fokine, Soviet vice consul, said Zolotov had been looking forward to the trip as well, but was philosophical about the denial. "It's a matter of reciprocity," he said. "It happens.

"Travel in Lithuania is being restricted because of the turmoil there," he said. "Foreign diplomats have been ordered out because of the danger. Is there turmoil and danger in Incline Village?"

But, he repeated, it is all a matter of reciprocity; here the Americans tell the Russians where they can travel, there, it's the other way around. And, he said, it doesn't always make a great deal of sense.

"We (Soviet consular officials) can travel freely within he city (San Francisco). But we can't go to South San Francisco ... We can go to Sausalito and Mill Valley and San Rafael, but no further north in Marin County.

"And we can go to Oakland and we can go to Berkeley, but we can't go to Richmond. What is it that you have in Richmond?"

New study indicates blacks still suffer from segregated housing

Hearst News Service

Affluent and middle-income black Americans, unlike their equivalents among other races, tend to live in poorer neighborhoods because housing segregation has prevented them from moving elsewhere, according to a new study.

The study done by Douglas Massey, a University of Chicago sociology professor, and Mitchell Eggers, a research associate at the university's Population Research Center, contradicts the widely circulated notion that increases in poverty in inner-city neighborhoods are due to the flight of high-income blacks.

The study, which examined the 60 largest U.S. metropolitan areas, found that affluent and poor blacks in the 1970s were likely to live in the same neighborhoods, except in cities with relatively low black populations, such as Anaheim.

"Because of persisting segregation, middle- and upper-class blacks are less able to separate themselves from the poor than the privileged of other groups," said Massey.

The authors contend that inner cities are poorer – not because of rich flight but because the number of impoverished people increased dramatically during the 1970s.

"There was mobility downward, but not much physical mobility," Massey said. "A substantial portion of what was the middle class was harmed by economic trends and became poor in neighborhoods that were already poor."

Massey and Eggers contend that blacks in Western U.S. cities and Hispanics in the Northeast are not subject to segregated housing.

AARP closing credit union

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Association of Retired Persons said Friday it plans to close its 2-year-old credit union because of a lack of interest from its members.

AARP, the nation's largest organization for older Americans, said all savings would be protected in the phase-out, which still must be approved by the credit union's 90,000 members. The credit union's board of directors voted Thursday to recommend that it be closed by June 30.

AARP spokesman Bob DeFillippo said the credit union offered its members three services — credit cards, certificates of deposits and savings accounts — of which only the credit card attracted much interest.

"The other two just weren't that popular," DeFillippo said.

Church sets meeting for hearing-impaired

The ministry for the hearing-impaired at Golf Course Road Church of Christ is hosting a Gospel Meeting Sunday through Tuesday.

Guest speakers are Jamie and Larry Schwarz of Albuquerque, N.M. Schwarz has attended several schools including Colorado School for the Deaf, Oklahoma School for the Deaf, East Central University at Ada, Okla., Christian School of Evangelism and Birmingham Bible School for the Deaf.

After graduating from Birmingham Bible School, he began his ministry at Montgomery Blvd. Church of Christ in Albuquerque and now is the full-time Deaf Minister.

He has preached at workshops, retreats, Vacation Bible Schools for the deaf, teacher's workshops and gospel meetings. His wife, Jamie, assists him by interpreting and teaching.

Mrs. Schwarz has been interpreting for her husband since 1976. She earned a certificate of sign language and Bible in Chattanooga, Tenn., at the Christian School of Evangelism. She now works at Del Norte High School as a teacher's aide in the hearing impaired department.

The meeting kicks off with a continental breakfast at 8:30 a.m. Sunday. A potluck lunch will be served at 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

The night meeting will be held at 6 p.m. followed by fellowship at 7:15 p.m. The meetings Monday and Tuesday will begin at 7 p.m.

For more information call 694-4528 or 694-5608.

Lenten concert scheduled at St. Luke's Methodist

A Lenten concert will be presented at 6 p.m. Sunday at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave.

Included on the program, which will be performed by the church's Chancel Choir and guest artists, will be the music of J.S. Bach, Amadeus Mozart and Franz Schubert.

The program will begin with Bach's "Sanctus No. IV in G," one of four which Bach composed for four-part mixed chorus with instrumental accompaniment that is scored for two oboes, strings and continuo.

The "Regina Coele," K. 276, by Mozart is an exuberant work for four-part mixed choir, four soloists, two violins, two oboes, two trumpets, tympani, bass and organ. Composed in 1779 in Salzburg, this is one of several settings Mozart made for this text. The prevalence of "alleluias" marks this as a work of joy and excitement.

Schubert's "Mass in G" concludes the program. This work was written in 1815 and is set for four soloists, chorus, strings and organ.

Soloists for the evening include sopranoes Vivian Moss, Tish Deffenbaugh, Linda Fox and Carolyn Larson; alto Marge Savage; tenors Bruce Peeler and Frank Stowers; and bass Don McCartney.

The choir will be accompanied by 16 members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony. Directing the concert is Bert W. Bostic, minister of program/music at St. Luke's UMC.

No admission will be charged.

The church's minister, the Rev. Jarrell H. Sharp, invites the public to attend.

Evangelist to lead 'Old Time Revival'

Evangelist, singer and composer Wesley Putnam will lead the worship when St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason, hosts "An Old Time Revival" April 15-18.

Putnam

"Putnam's ministry includes preaching, drama and music woven together to create a fresh approach to renewal," says a release from the church. "His clear call to commitment through both word and song has impacted the lives of people of all ages from all walks of life."

Putnam holds a bachelor's of music degree from Northeast Louisiana University and a master of divinity degree from Asbury Theological Seminary. He pastored local churches for over eight hours before becoming a full time evangelist in 1981.

A prolific songwriter, Putnam has recorded six albums, two of which are being distributed nationally to radio stations and book stores. In addition, he has produced audio and videocassettes of one of his dramatic presentations.

"Attired in authentic Hebrew costume, he recounts the lives of various Old Testament characters as though they were alive today," the release says. "He animates James, brother of Jesus, to relate New Testament stories."

Putnam is in demand for revivals, concerts, youth camps and retreats. He has presented special music at many national United Methodist gatherings. He serves as president of the National Association of United Methodist Evangelists.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Tenor will sing at Lent luncheon

The "Lunch Hour for Lent" concerts continue Wednesday at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

Marshall

This week's program features tenor Bobby Marshall. A graduate of Trinity University, San Antonio, Marshall has done graduate work at the University of Texas at San Antonio. He has appeared in Midland Community Theatre productions of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," "Les Miserables" and "Pippin."

The Wednesday program will include a portion of Schumann's "Dichterliebe" as well as works by Aaron Copland and Richard Strauss.

The 30-minute programs are free and begin at 12:05 p.m. Lunch is available for a nominal cost in the Fellowship Hall 30 minutes before and after each performance.

Child care is available. All concerts are held in the church's recently remodeled sanctuary and are free and open to the public.

Gospel study offered

"Jesus Christ the Son of God ... The Man and His Plan" is the focus of the adult classes being offered at the North A & Tennessee Church of Christ this year.

"A textural study of the life of Christ as it is taught in the synoptic Gospels — Matthew, Mark and Luke — is being taught on Sunday mornings and the eternal Jesus who has shown us the father as revealed in the Gospel of John is being taught on Wednesday nights," says a release from the church.

The public is welcome to attend these studies which follow last year's "Look at the Book" study.

The church is celebrating its 60th anniversary at this location this year and will have a special program celebrating this on the week of Sept. 2-6.

Center soon to be built

First Christian Church of Midland is constructing a new Family Life Center. Groundbreaking ceremonies are set for 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

The 12,000-square foot multipurpose building will offer facilities to church members as well as the community.

"After several years of planning and fund raising, the congregation has committed to meet the growing needs of First Christian Church," says a release from the church. "The Family Life Center will expand ministries through youth programs, community outreach, athletic and recreational activities, group fellowship and special church activities."

The public is invited to attend a coffee fellowship at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, followed by church services at 10:30 a.m.

The church has served Midland for 100 years.

Holley to lead singing

Ranchland Heights Baptist Church has chosen Dub Holley to lead the singing for the April 15-22 revival.

Playing the piano will be Hazel Pierce.

Holley, a local businessman and member of Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, is a "gifted " musician and experienced in church music leading, says a release from the church.

Mrs. Pierce, a member of First Baptist, has played piano for numerous churches in the area on various occasions. She formerly was church pianist at First Baptist.

In preparation for the revival, the church is conducting two cottage prayer meetings each week, along with training sessions and visitation programs. The church's pastor, Lucian Rudd, invites the public to attend. For more information call 684-6544 or 683-1947.

Christian writers sought

The American Arts Association is seeking Christian writers interested in getting their works published at no cost.

"The American Arts Association is a group of Christian literary artists from Maine to Washington, North Dakota to Texas who enjoy the relating of God's word in the form of poetry and prose," says a release from the association.

Currently, the group is working on a poetry book for Easter, "My Lord Lives," and a collection of short stories and testimonies relating faith and love for Jesus Christ, "In His Name."

Those with poetry or poems are asked to send the material to American Arts Association, Dept. E, Rt. 2, Box 159B, Poplar Bluff, Mo. 63901.

Ministry celebrated

ODESSA — Celebrating 35 years of ministry to restricted and threatened countries, "Open Doors with Brother Andrew" will be conducting a banquet to commemorate the past and look to the future.

The banquet is set for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Odessa Hilton, 5200 E. University.

Featured speaker will be Gloria Duncan, a Bible courier to China, USSR, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Cuba.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling Doris Thompson, 1-333-5706 evenings, or Allen Poldson, 1-333-2372 days and 1-332-9025 evenings.

'Joy Connection' to sing

Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, will continue its celebration of the Lenten season with special music by the Joy Connection.

This singing group is composed of junior and senior high students in the church. They will be singing "Love is Surrender," under the direction of Gary Groves, associate minister.

The morning worship service begins at 10:50 a.m. Sunday School begins at 9:30 a.m. During the worship hour a special sermon for children will be presented.

The church's youth groups meet at 5 p.m. Sundays. For more information call 694-5321.

ADD workshop offered

A workshop for parents on "Attention Deficit Disorder" is planned from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. today at The Golf Course Road Church of Christ, 3500 W. Golf Course Road.

The workshop, organized by Midland's Attention Deficit Disorder Association of Parents and Teachers, will be presented by Jim Huggins, Dr. Phillip LoPiccolo, Sheila Morrow and Edna Copeland.

Hosted by the Family Ministry of the Golf Course Road Church of Christ, the workshop is free and open to the public. Pre-registration is required for child care. For more information call 694-8836.

Oklahoma author to talk

SAN ANGELO — Faith Teaching Ministries is sponsoring teacher and author Rick Renner of Tulsa, Okla., in a conference Thursday and Friday.

The conference is being held at the Days' Inn Convention Center, 333 Rio Concho Drive. Time is 7 p.m.

Renner is the author of "Seducing Spirits and Doctrines of Demons," "Living in the Combat Zone" and "Merchandising the Anointing."

No admission will be charged. For more information call 944-2075 or 944-7406.

Baptists sponsor mission

Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800 Mogford, is sponsoring a new mission which meets at Bush Elementary, Wadley Avenue and Loop 250, every Sunday.

Sunday School for all ages begins at 9:45 a.m.

Fannin Terrace Baptist Church is a member of the Southern Baptist Convention and Midland Baptist Association.

Those interested in supporting the new mission are invited to attend. For more information call 682-5272.

Life Unlimited offered

ODESSA — A new quarter for Life Unlimited School of the Bible begins Sunday.

Registration will be received prior to the 6:30 p.m. Sunday class.

The school is designed to give students a Bible School education over a 10-year period, says a release from Life Unlimited Church.

Certificates are issued for each quarter completed and a diploma will be issued upon graduation.

Life Unlimited Church is located at 4224 E. Loop 338.

Lamesa church honored

LAMESA — The first Baptist Church of Lamesa will be celebrating its 85th anniversary April 28 and 29.

A reception is set for April 28 from 3 to 5 p.m. in the church parlor. Lunch will be served in the Fellowship Hall following the morning service April 29.

All former staff, members and friends are invited to attend.

For more information call (806)872-5451.

Comedian comes to area

ODESSA — Christian comedian Mike Warnke will be holding a concert at Ector County Coliseum at 7:30 p.m. April 21.

A $3 suggested donation will be accepted at the door. Also performing will be Rose Hall Warnke, a concert pianist, who will perform her debut instrumental album, "Other Voices."

Warnke is a former Satanist high priest and the author of "The Satan Seller."

Unitarians host speaker

Margaret Thomas-Mouton will speak during Sunday's 10 a.m. Adult Forum at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland, 3301 Neely St.

Ms. Mouton is with the Permian Basin Child Abuse Prevention Program. She will explain PBCAPP and show a video, "The Next Volunteer."

The public is invited to attend.

Calvary holding meetings

Calvary Baptist Church, 1001 S. Main St., has been holding weekly Cottage Prayer Meetings in preparation for its "Here's Hope, America" revival April 22-25.

The next meeting will be at 7 p.m. Thursday at 3701 South County Road 1184.

For more information, call 682-8392. All interested individuals are invited to attend.

Bible Way hosts revival

The Bible Way Church of Jesus Christ, 1201 E. Spruce St., is hosting a revival Sunday through April 7.

The speaker will be the Rev. Glen Gergory of First United Pentecostal Church, Midland.

Services will be held at 7:30 p.m. The church's pastor, the Rev. E. Mitchell, invites the public to attend.

Broadcasters eye Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. religious broadcasters are turning their eyes toward a new market — the Soviet Union.

At the recent meeting of National Religious Broadcasters, both Robert Schuller and Pat Robertson announced new Soviet ventures.

Robertson said he has received permission to open a ministry center in Moscow and that his program, "Superbook," a cartoon series based on the Old Testament, "is the first Western religious program to air regularly in the Soviet Union."

New shelter opened

NEW YORK (AP) — The 110-year-old Bowery Mission, widely known for its care of needy men, has opened a new shelter for homeless women and children.

"A growing number of homeless women and children have been coming to the mission for help, but until now we've had no place to put them," said the Rev. John Willock, head of the mission on lower Mahhattan's Bowery Street.

Colson knocks system

PHOENIX (AP) — Charles Colson, head of Prison Fellowship, says the American prison system "does not rehabilitate" prisoners, "fails to restore the victim" and fails the government's purpose of deterring crime.

At a convention of the National Association of Evangelicals, he said evangelicals err in not recognizing the church's role in society at large. They should exert influence in all areas, he said, but are losing ground.

He said the country is becoming "less Christian in its value structure."

Oklahoman will speak to Aglow groups

Raye Noah of Gracemont, Okla., will minister in 7 p.m. services Thursday and Friday at Midland Center.

In addition, Mrs. Noah is the guest speaker for the Midland and Odessa Women's Aglow meetings this week. The Midland meeting will be held at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Royal Inn (formerly Rodeway Inn), 3601 W. Wall Ave., and the Odessa meeting is set for 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Holiday Inn Parkway, 3001 E. Highway 80.

Mrs. Noah and her husband, Claude, pastor Agape Fellowship in Binger, Okla, founded Agape Drug and Alcohol Abuse Center, Noah Christian Academy and Women of the Harvest. She is heard daily over KWJY radio in Woodward, Okla.

Mrs. Noah was an abused child and, before her divorce, a battered wife.

She has conducted meetings and ministered in the Midland-Odessa area for the past five years.

The public is invited to attend the Midland Center services.

For more information on the Midland Women's Aglow meeting call Pat Jones, 682-8386, or Jannie Linney, 756-3688. A buffet meal will be served at 6:30 p.m. for $6.50.

For more information on the Odessa meeting call 694-2896 or 332-2575.

Aglow is a non-denominational group of women who meet for ministry and fellowship.

'Gospel Mass' concert Sunday

The Chancel Choir of First United Methodist Church will present Robert Ray's "Gospel Mass" in a benefit concert at 7 p.m. Sunday.

"The 'Gospel Mass' represents an attempt to combine 2,000 years of liturgical tradition with the more contemporary music of the Afro-American church," says a release from First UMC. "For centuries composers have taken the texts of the 'ordinary' of the Mass and given them musical settings with each setting leaving the listener with a different feeling about the worship experience."

Guest soloist will be Ruby Moultrie of Levelland. Her educational background includes a bachelor's of music education degree from West Texas State University, a master's of sacred music and a master's of music in vocal performance at Southern Methodist University. She is working on a doctorate in music from Texas Tech University while serving as a voice instructor at South Plains College, Levelland.

Following the concert, the Adult Sunday School classes of the church are hosting a Dessert Fair in the church's fellowship hall. Concert-goers are invited to attend and sample the various desserts, leaving a monetary contribution to the ones enjoyed most.

Admission to the concert is one can of food per person. All food and money collected go to Area Methodist Outreach Services, a local mission effort sponsored by the United Methodist congregations in Midland and Greenwood.

First UMC is located downtown at the corner of Main Street and Illinois Avenue.

Wednesday Night Live classes offered

First United Methodist Church, Main Street at Illinois Avenue, has announced a new series of classes for its Wednesday Night Live programs.

The new series begins Wednesday and runs April 18, 25 and May 2. Class session are from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m., preceeded by a meal served in the Fellowship Hall beginning at 5:15 p.m.

Registration fee is $3 per person at the registration table in the Fellowship Hall prior to class time.

All classes are open to the public.

The new classes are:

- "Using Children's Literature & Picture Books to teach Bible Lessons to Your Children," taught by Patricia Maurer and designed for parents and workers with children age 4 through third grade;
- "Golf Tips," taught by Aubrey Culley, a PTA golf pro for 20 years;
- "Learn to Love Opera," Jane Ward will provide an entertaining and informative survey of the development of opera with emphasis on the stories, music and background of three Santa Fe operas scheduled this summer;
- "When Bad Things Happen to Good People," a lively discussion of the issues presented by Harold Kushner in his book by the same title, led by Jane Schulte; and
- "Woodworking," taught by Rod Stephenson in his shop.

For more information call the church.

Tall City Baptist celebration scheduled

Tall City Missionary Baptist Church, 3500 Anetta Dr., will celebrate the 21st anniversary for its pastor and the beginning of the church Sunday.

On Easter Sunday 1969, the church started as a Mission in the Carpenters Hall on Florida Street. Since moving to Thomason and Anetta, the church has completed two building programs.

In addition, West Texas Baptist Institute-Seminary is completing its third year May 4. The institute has more than 25 students, part time and full time.

The pastor, the Rev. W.R. "Bill" Simpson, has been pastor since the church's beginning. He will be honored with a 21st anniversary party.

Simpson, after completing five years at the Missionary Baptist Seminary at Little Rock, Ark., came to Midland in 1963. His two pastorates here have been Oaklawn Baptist Church and Tall City.

The church will conduct regular services Sunday. A covered dish luncheon will follow for the members and friends who attend. After the luncheon, a time of special singing will be held for those who wish to participate.

Simpson will be speaking for the first time since his heart surgery March 1. The celebration includes "Friends Day." All members, former members and friends who wish to attend are invited.

Stalin takes over

Joseph Stalin became head of the Soviet government on May 6, 1941.

Jews for Jesus speakers explain links to Passover

Steve Katz, a staff evangelist for Jews for Jesus, will speak on "Christ in the Passover" at 10:30 a.m. April 8 at Midland Christian Fellowship, 200 Baldwin.

In Odessa, Rob Wertheim, also with Jews for Jesus, will present a similar program at the Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord, 1603 N. Grandview, at 7:30 p.m. April 9. For more information call 1-362-2549.

"The purpose of the 'Christ in the Passover' presentation is to enhance the Christian understanding of the New Testament by showing the Jewish background for the Communion celebration," says a release from Midland Christian Fellowship. "Ancient and modern Jewish customs are discussed and described with an emphasis on the aspect of redemption that Christ accomplished at Calvary."

A table is set with the traditional Jewish Passover items, including representative foods which are explained, but not eaten. Members of Jews for Jesus have given this demonstration over more than 1,000 churches. The presentation was originally written in 1956 by Moishe Rosen, founder and executive director of Jews for Jesus. It was abstracted from the writings of the late Rabbi Leopold Cohn, who came to faith in Jesus in 1894 and died in 1936.

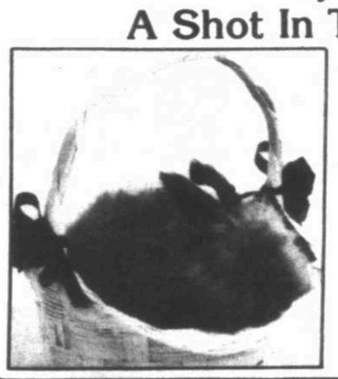

"Our message is not new, but we're telling it in a new way," Rosen says. "For too long the Jewish roots of Christianity have been forgotten. Gentile cultural trappings have often been confused with what the biblical religion teaches. The Messiah was born in Israel, not Greece or Rome. His mother's name was Miryam, not Mary. And she was told by an angel, 'And thou shalt have a son and call his name Y'shua, for he shall save his people from their sins.' Y'shua is the Jewish way to say Jesus."

In keeping with the Jewish context of Christianity, Rosen and his wife have co-authored a book entitled "Christ in the Passover." As with the presentation at Midland Christian Fellowship, this book focuses on Passover to demonstrate the continuity of the Old and New Testament Scriptures. Jews for Jesus has published a colorfully illustrated, hardbound edition of a messianic "Haggadeh." This service book enables Christians to experience a traditional Passover celebration while also expressing their faith in Jesus.

Those attending the program at Midland Christian Fellowship will have the opportunity to examine this literature.

The public is invited to attend.

Will Dana Carvey continue tradition?

By William Arnold
Hearst News Service

The step between "Saturday Night Live" stardom and movie stardom has proven to be a very short one over the past 15 years, as the careers of virtually every major comic film star of the period from John Belushi to Eddie Murphy will attest.

In "Opportunity Knocks," Universal Pictures is betting it will happen one more time with another of the television series' more recent headliners, Dana Carvey. And Universal is backing its confidence in Carvey's future with one of its heaviest advertising and pre-screening campaigns of the year.

Universal may be right. The comedian comes off rather well in this funny, if uneven and predictable, situation comedy. It's a lot gentler and more ingratiating than most of the rowdy and anarchistic initial vehicles for "SNL" stars.

A small-time Chicago con man (Carvey) is on the lam from vengeful gangsters. He breaks into a house in the affluent suburbs, where he is mistaken by the owner's father (Robert Loggia) as his son's best-friend house-sitter.

Carvey assumes the identity of the young Harvard-educated business hotshot, and over the course of a few days is accepted by the father as a surrogate son, is taken into his bathroom-accessories business as a vice president, and falls in love with the man's daughter (Julia Campbell), all the while straining to keep up the pretense.

It's a one-joke premise at best, and a number of the routines fall flat, especially in the shaky beginning. But to its credit, the film never really tries to be a non-stop laugh riot and generously leaves room for other comic characters, including the hero's con-artist uncle (Milo O'Shea), his no-good best friend (Todd Graff) and a gullible gang leader (James Tolkan).

Director Donald Petrie and scriptwriters Mitchel Katlin and Nat Bernstein seem less interested in the usual car crashes and bathroom humor than in skillfully developing the film as a showcase for the distinct persona of Carvey, who might be described as a less street-wise version of Eddie Murphy, with a dash of Danny Kaye.

Without intruding on the plot, the writers also allow Carvey space to do his forte: a range of dialects from Japanese to East Indian, as well as a routine that contains half a dozen imitations of famous rock 'n' roll stars (the movie's best moment), and another that shows off the fact that the likable comic has the best George Bush impression going.

Little Richard believes his color kept him in Elvis Presley's shadow

NEW YORK (AP) — If it weren't for skin color, Little Richard says, he — not Elvis Presley — could have reigned as the king of rock 'n' roll.

Richard

"If I was white, do you know how huge I'd be?" Little Richard asks in the April 19 issue of Rolling Stone. "I think Elvis was more acceptable being white in that period. I believe if Elvis had been black, he wouldn't have been as big as he was."

The rock pioneer, who recorded classics such as "Tutti Frutti" and "Lucille," says he can recall being upstaged only once during his flamboyant 43-year performing career. The man who did it: the late Jimi Hendrix.

"He was my guitar player, and you know, we didn't know he could play with his mouth. One night I heard this screaming and hollering, and they were screaming and hollering for him!" says Richard. "I thought they were screaming for me. But he was back there playing the guitar with his mouth."

DALLAS (AP) — Rhythm & Blues singer Regina Belle says adopting a newborn girl four months ago has thrown her headlong into the war against drugs.

Ms. Belle said having a child in her life made her realize that other children needed someone to help them learn to say no to drugs.

When she is not touring, Ms. Belle, 26, helps with a fund-raising project in Harlem called the Children's Storefront Program, which sends underp..vileged children to college.

"I think the biggest problem in America today is not drugs; it's misguidance, no guidance and illiteracy," said Ms. Belle, whose current single "Make It Like It Was" is getting video play on cable television.

Allen

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Americans could get smarter by watching nothing but the Public Broadcasting Service on television, but viewers prefer less intellectual programming, says entertainer Steve Allen.

In an interview published Friday to promote a performance in Nashville, Allen said "you'd have a more literate, intelligent populace" if television viewers tuned in only to PBS.

But he said that most people "when given a choice between true quality and garbage ... are likely to head for the garbage."

He discussed television while commenting on his new book, "Dumbth," which concerns what he calls the ineptitude of the American citizen.

Allen, 68, is a musician, comedian, songwriter, author and former host of the "Tonight" show on NBC.

Eisner

MORAGA, Calif. (AP) — Michael Eisner, the entertainment wizard who's turned around the Walt Disney Co., should feel like a man on top of the Matterhorn.

Eisner didn't sound sky-high during a speech Thursday night at the St. Mary's College 33rd annual Executives Symposium.

"How do I feel about all this good fortune?" Eisner asked. "In a word, panic."

In an interview published in Friday's Contra Costa Times, Eisner, 48, said he rarely rests easy.

"We always think the sky is falling, that our last movie hit is really going to be our last hit, period," said Eisner. "I tend to run scared. I always like to think that there are two outs in the last of the ninth inning and we're three runs down."

Disney has to stay on its toes, Eisner said, because "ours is an unpredictable and often irrational business that generally defies logic.

"There is no sure-fire formula for success in the entertainment industry. But there are any number of interesting ways to fail," said Eisner, who became one of the highest-paid U.S. executives when he became Disney's chairman in 1984.

In the next decade, Disney intends to build second theme parks in Southern California and Tokyo, expanding Disneyland in Anaheim and Disney World in Florida and building a Euro Disneyland near Paris.

When the company's first European theme park is complete in 1992, Eisner said, a Disney ride will be operating somewhere in the world every minute of every day.

Other projects include a new record company, 15 network TV pilots and a restaurant chain called Mickey's Kitchen. "As I think of all these developments, I get very excited," Eisner said. "Just before the panic sets in."

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (NYT) — A letter filed as proof that Zsa Zsa Gabor completed her 120-hour community service sentence for slapping a police officer does not detail the work actually performed and will be rejected by the judge, a prosecutor says.

Deputy District Attorney Elden Fox said Friday that the judge who sentenced Gabor last Oct. 17 for slapping Beverly Hills traffic officer Paul Kramer will ask the executive director of the shelter where Gabor was ordered to work to prove that the celebrity actually completed the mandatory sentence.

Beverly Hills Municipal Court Judge Charles G. Rubin was unavailable for comment, court clerks said. But Fox said he talked to Rubin Friday afternoon.

The Los Angeles Daily News reported Monday that Vera Davis, who oversees the shelter for homeless women, said the former Miss Hungary had worked at the facility about 50 hours and spent the rest of the time at events benefiting the shelter and in planning a June 8 auction to raise money for the facility.

Ivy Leaguer leaves it behind to join 'New Kids On Block'

By Jonathan Yenkin

BOSTON (AP) — One week Cathy McLaughlin was planning lectures for distinguished Harvard alumni, the next she'd started a new life with the New Kids, rock idols she now shepherds past thousands of screaming girls.

That's what can happen when someone makes a job switch that is, well, totally radical.

"It's absolutely crazy, it's 18 hours a day," McLaughlin said. "It's a big change in lifestyle, you can imagine."

Until last year, McLaughlin was director of alumni affairs at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government. She traded in that lofty title to become assistant road manager for one of pop music's latest sensations, New Kids on the Block.

So she bid farewell to the life of academia and joined a world where the greatest joy is finding a quiet place to sleep.

"Every 14-year-old girl would like to meet the New Kids," McLaughlin said in a telephone interview this week from New Jersey, where the group concluded a recent tour.

AP Laserphoto

Catherine McLaughlin, formerly with the John F. Kennedy School of Government's Alumni Office at Harvard University, now is the assistant road manager for the rock group "New Kids On The Block."

"They live and die for them," she said. "And when you go to the concert, the screams are louder than the music."

But how does someone go so quickly from the quiet halls of the Ivy League to the ear-splitting crowds at rock arenas?

Strangely enough, it was quite logical.

McLaughlin, 28, worked with two presidential campaigns, in 1984 for Walter F. Mondale and two years ago for Gov. Michael S. Dukakis. Her job as an advance person required her to go to cities ahead of the candidates and plan for their arrival.

Her work eventually got the attention of Dukakis' son, John Dukakis, who works for the New Kids' business manager. So when the group was looking for another road manager last year, Dukakis gave McLaughlin a call.

"Anybody who's done political advance work would have the skills and stamina to work with rock 'n' roll on the road," the younger Dukakis said.

McLaughlin, who had been directing the Kennedy School alumni office for about 18 months, took a leave of absence last June to join the band.

Death penalty popular in theory only

Associated Press

Each time the U.S. Supreme Court issues a major capital punishment ruling, a blood bath is predicted at the nation's death houses. But execution statistics do not bear out those fears.

California, which has the country's third-largest death row population, is preparing for its first execution in 23 years, set for April 3.

Capital punishment opponents say the prolonged period between executions is indicative of Americans' ambivalence about the death penalty: They support it in theory, but not in practice.

A recent survey indicated 79 percent of Californians polled favored the death penalty in general. But 67 percent preferred the option of life in prison without parole combined with a work program, an alternative not currently available in the state.

Texas has executed 33 convicts, Florida 21, Louisiana 18 and Georgia 14, said Karima Wicks, research director of the capital punishment project of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund in New York.

The South is by far the deadliest region for condemned killers, she said.

Street-gangs will flourish, juvenile experts caution

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — White racists who use heavy metal music to lure youths into the foul fold. Gangs for every ethnic group — including Samoans. These were among the perils being discussed at a conference on juvenile delinquency.

Some of the issues raised at the 17th National Conference on Juvenile Justice, which closed Wednesday, give the impression that America is not a great place to raise your kids.

"Gangs are coming to a community near you," Ronald Stephens, director of the National School Safety Center in Encino, Calif., told the conference. His center is a project of the U.S. Justice Department and Pepperdine University.

The number of gangs are growing, Stephens said, with total membership exceeding 100,000 in the nation's three largest cities: Los Angeles has 800 gangs, Chicago 120 and New York 50. The average age of a gang member is 23.

There's a gang for everyone: both sexes, many ages and every ethnic group, including Samoans, Stephens said. The members are violent, enterprising and often free of remorse, he said.

"Kids are coming into gangs at an earlier age and staying in a longer time," he said. "Female activities are growing. Many are mules, carrying drugs or weapons."

At the "Gangs in School: Breaking Up is Hard to Do" seminar, a Los Angeles Police Department videotape showed five teen-age girls as they fussed with their hair, put on eye makeup and giggled in front of bedroom mirror.

Then they traveled to a grassy field — where the girls began pummeling one of their gangster sisters in an initiation ceremony.

A New Jersey prosecutor said that skinheads, white supremacists and neo-Nazis are recruiting young members at rock concerts by groups like The Klansmen, Skrewdriver, The New Storm Troopers and Indecent Exposure.

The Klansmen have an album entitled "Fetch the Rope."

"There is a huge group of children out there learning their messages from heavy metal musicians, not from teachers, not from parents," said prosecutor Alan A. Rockoff of Middlesex County, N.J.

> 'In incident after incident, we find...it is the (music) lyrics that are designed to shock and create a triviality out of death, destruction.'
>
> — Alan Rockoff, Prosecutor, Middlesex County, N.J.

Bias crimes in New Jersey have been affected by such communal hate groups, he said.

"The perpetrators of hate crimes do not just attack a human being. They attack the fabric of society," he said.

"Unfortunately these kids are looking for a sense of belonging ... and the only place they may find it is in gangs or hate groups," said Ernestine Gray, a juvenile court judge in Orleans Parish, La. She said the U.S. Justice Department has documented 5,000 hate crimes directed at minorities in the past decade.

Rockoff said as New Jersey investigators explore the range of hate crimes, th common denominator is music that riles the worst instincts.

"In incident after incident, we find the evolution of the pollution. It is the lyrics that are designed to shock and create a triviality out of death, destruction," he said.

Alienated teen-agers attracted to the dark symbolism of heavy metal music are sucked into a culture of intolerance, satanic images and anger, he said. Some become ripe for indoctrination by groups preaching Aryan supremacy that produce a raunehy form of music called boot boy, Rockoff said.

"We advocate protest, boycotting by aware parents and professionals. Why allow these people to make a buck polluting the minds of our children?" Rockoff said.

Reach out for diplomacy

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas restaurateur wants Americans to join him in thanking Mikhail Gorbachev — just leave your name at the beep after the message.

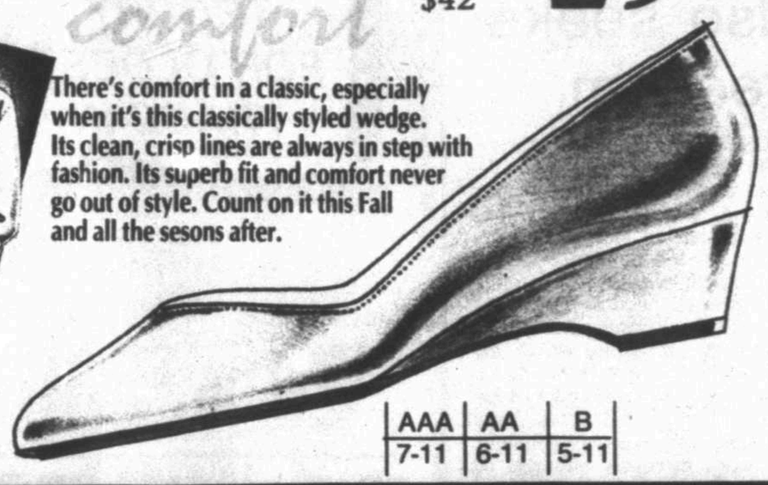

John Tinsley of Huntsville has assembled a message to Gorbachev that says, in part:

"For your courageous leadership which has brought life to hope for the future, we thank you."

The call, to 1-900-988-TIME, costs $3.

Soviet soldiers take building in Lithuanian capital

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R (AP) — Soviet troops took over the building housing the Lithuanian chief prosecutor's office Friday after staff members refused to work with a new chief prosecutor appointed by the Kremlin.

It was an abrupt reversal after two days of relatively conciliatory statements from both the Soviet government and the leaders of Lithuania, who declared their republic independent March 11.

It also was the first time Soviet troops had taken control of a Lithuanian government building since March 11. They have occupied some Communist Party buildings.

Egidius Bickauskas, a Lithuanian legislator, said on Lithuanian television that the Soviet troops occupied the building with the help of an employee. He did not elaborate.

A foreign journalist rushed to the scene and said he saw a truckload of Interior Ministry soldiers enter the building.

Earlier, Moscow tried to force Lithuania to adhere to Soviet law by firing Lithuania's chief prosecutor, Arturis Paulauskas, and announcing he would be replaced by Antanas Petrauskas. The chief prosecutor is basically a republic-wide district attorney.

WORLD

Soviet deputy prosecutor Alexei Vasiliev made the announcement in a conference hall of the prosecutor's building in Vilnius. He ordered the 100 staff members to enforce Soviet law.

Staff members began arguing and shouting at Vasiliev and then walked out.

Hours later, the Soviet soldiers moved in.

A Lithuanian Interior Ministry spokesman confirmed that soldiers were inside the prosecutor's office.

A duty officer at the Lithuanian Interior Ministry said soldiers also had arrived at a Communist Party building, the Institute of Party History.

Other buildings under military control are the Institute of Marxism-Leninism, the Higher Party School and Communist Party headquarters. All are Communist Party buildings.

The Presidium of the Lithuanian Parliament was called into an emergency session about an hour after soldiers took over the modern multi-level building.

Deputy Premier Kazimieras Motieka, speaking to reporters, accused Vasiliev of bargaining in bad faith when he met with Lithuanian officials earlier. Motieka attended that meeting.

Vasiliev spoke politely of compromise with the Lithuanians when "there's no question at that moment they already had this planned," Motieka charged.

He said soldiers had told Lithuanian Interior Minister Marijonas Misiukonis that they were "taking it (the buiding) over to enforce security at the request of Vasiliev."

Before the occupation, Vasiliev indicated in an interview with reporters that there was room for compromise.

Estonia also seeks freedom

MOSCOW (AP) — The Baltic republic of Estonia on Friday declared the Soviet Union to be an occupying power and pledged to join neighboring Lithuania in restoring full independence.

The move put Estonia on the path toward a possible confrontation with the Kremlin, but not as directly as Lithuania, which declared independence on March 11.

The three Baltic republics of Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia have been under Moscow control since they were forceably annexed 50 years ago on the eve of World War II.

Estonian legislators set no independence date. They agreed to establish full independence only at the end of a still-undetermined transition period. During the transition, Estonia would work out its own future government structure and settle differences with Moscow.

Soviet annexation of independent Estonia in 1940 "did not end the existence of the Estonian Republic," said a resolution passed by a vote of 75-0, with three abstentions.

"The Estonian Republic is still occupied today."

The Soviet news agency Tass said Estonia "proclaimed the beginning of restoration of of the Estonian republic, announcing a transitional period which will be completed with the formation of the Estonian republic's constitional agencies of state power."

Independent deputy Mart Laar said the session was broadcast live on television and radio. He said streets of the capital, Tallinn, were nearly deserted because everyone was indoors following the proceedings.

Laar said in a telephone interview that deputies in the 105-member legislature who represented mainly Russian-speaking districts did not take part in the vote, but did not walk out of the hall.

He did not know how many deputies refrained from voting, but about a quarter of the Supreme Soviet is made up of Russians, Ukrainians and other non-Estonians who generally oppose independence.

The resolution required a two-thirds margin to pass the Supreme Soviet.

The parliament was elected on March 18 in competitive voting that gave pro-independence forces a strong hand in this small republic of of 1.6 million people, on the Gulf of Finland.

Estonia's Communist Party declared its independence from the main Soviet Communist Party on Sunday. It said the split would be formalized in October.

Laar said many deputies support declaring independence from Moscow at about the same time.

He said the length of the transition period will be set and new leaders for the republic will be elected when the Supreme Soviet resumes work on Monday.

The Supreme Soviet also agreed to cooperate with the informal Estonian Congress in restoring independence. The Congress is a gathering of 500 representatives elected in Estonia and abroad from people who were citizens of the independent Estonian republic, or whose parents were citizens.

The Estonian Congress met the same weekend Lithuania declared independence and demanded that Moscow set a deadline by which it will allow Estonia to become independent.

Estonia took the lead in the drive by the three Baltic republics for greater autonomy from Moscow by declaring its right to veto Soviet laws in November 1988.

Since then, it has been overtaken by Lithuania's approach.

Estonian activists say they want Estonia's economy and government to be organized before independence is declared.

Lithuanians make up 80 percent of their republic, but only 60 percent of Estonia's people are ethnic Estonians. Latvia, wedged between Estonia and Lithuania, is only about 50 percent ethnic Latvian and is proceeding the slowest.

Grim testimony.

A volunteer of the East German army unearths a skeleton in a mass grave found near Oranienburg, East Germany, of Friday. Hundreds of human skeletal parts were found near a camp where Soviet soldiers kept Nazi prisoners after World War II, authorities said. There have been widespread reports for years that large numbers of Nazi prisoners died in the Stalin-era prison camps.

Lebanese cease-fire collapses

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — After weeks of sporadic clashes, a cease-fire between rival Christian forces collapsed Friday in thunderous battles that killed at least 38 people and left Beirut and the surrounding hills in flames.

The fighting began at daybreak and continued without letup past midnight.

Residents of the Metn region overlooking Beirut reported heavy shelling. The residents, reached by telephone from Cyprus, said they had been in bomb shelters since dawn.

"It's all-out war again," said a police spokesman, who cannot be named under standing regulations.

A cease-fire had been in effect since March 3 between Gen. Michel Aoun's troops and the rival Lebanese Forces militia. It had been violated repeatedly, raising fears of renewed warfare, but none of the previous fighting was as serious as that Friday.

The Christian forces have been battling since Jan. 30 for control of the Christian enclave. Aoun began the warfare in January by moving to crush Samir Geagea's militia, the main challenger to Aoun's authority in the Christian region.

Police said at least 38 people were killed and 65 wounded in savage combat Friday in the central sector of Christian east Beirut and in the mountains of Kesrouan province, 20 miles northeast of the capital.

Since Jan. 30, at least 814 people have died in the battles. Most have been civilians.

Thunderous blasts reverberated across Beirut.

Schools, churches, apartments and shops were set ablaze in the city and across Kesrouan, and flames lit the night sky over Beirut. Police said scores of houses collapsed on their tenants.

Patriarch Nasrallah Sfeir, spiritual head of the Maronite Catholic community of which Aoun and Geagea are members, threatened both men with excommunication if fighting did not stop.

"This horrific, destructive shelling which the army and the Lebanese Forces blame on each other ... has forced people to flee their homes and take shelter in forests."

Factions still fighting; ANC cancels peace rally

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Zulu fighters supporting rival black factions clashed with guns and knives Friday in Natal Province, and the African National Congress persuaded Nelson Mandela to cancel a peace rally in the region.

The sudden cancellation angered the leader of Inkatha, whose followers are pitted in the battles against supporters of the ANC-supported United Democratic Front.

The fighting this week has left at least 37 dead, sent thousands fleeing their villages and prompted the white-minority government to threaten a crackdown.

It also has kept Mandela from forging black unity before preliminary talks with the government on dismantling apartheid. Those talks are scheduled April 11.

Mandela had planned to join Inkatha leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi in a rally Monday in the war-torn Edendale Valley of Natal.

Inkatha favors a Zulu-based state in Natal, while the United Democratic Front favors a united South Africa under democratic majority rule. Both groups have been fighting for control of black townships since 1983.

"The atmosphere is not yet ideal for a joint rally in Natal," the ANC's cancellation announcement said. It did not elaborate.

The statement said, however, that Mandela will go to Natal on Monday and Tuesday to visit the affected areas and that arrangements were being made for a private meeting with Buthelezi.
