Vault storage system planned for airport; to replace old system

Leaking fuel from one of three underground storage tanks at the county airport did not penetrate the water system and the procedure for installing a new vault system will go on as planned.

The three underground fuel tanks were over 30 years old, and one was found to be leaking small amounts of fuel and chemicals into the ground when the county examined the tanks.

According to soil and water tests, due to Water Commission regulations, no chemicals reached the water supply.

According to Scurry County Judge Bobby Goodwin, all underground storage tanks must be examined every 10 years for any leakage. If a tank is found to be leaking, it must be replaced with a new system.

Farm and ranch underground storage tanks are exempt from the federal regulation, he said.

The storage tanks at the airport are being replaced with a vault system. A hole has been dug and will be lined, then a tank will be placed in the hole. After examining storage alternatives, it was determined that the vault system is the least expensive. The system will have a lower liability insurance premium than the old underground storage tanks, according to Airport Manager Darrell Mize.

The Water Commission oversees the cleaning of contaminated soil and verifies the leaks. Following the removal of contaminated areas, the soil was tested to be certain it is free of contamination.

Brandley may be released on $75,000 bond

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for Clarence Brandley filed a motion today asking that the death row inmate be released on $75,000 bond, and a prosecutor said he would not oppose the request.

The motion was filed this morning in state district court in Conroe, and State District Judge Lee Alworth was scheduled to decide on the request later today. Montgomery County District Attorney Peter Speers said he would not oppose the motion.

"If it's approved the judge can order his release," defense attorney Mike DeGeurin said. "And then we go pick him up. I contemplate we'll be picking him up" from prison.

DeGeurin has advised Brandley, who's been behind bars for some 10 years, to continue to be patient but he also indicated that the former high school janitor would be spending tonight with his mother.

Speers also was to announce today whether he intends to appeal the case to the U.S. Supreme Court. He has repeatedly indicated a retrial would be virtually impossible because of the time that has elapsed, lost evidence and what he terms corrupted witnesses.

Brandley remains on death row at the Ellis 1 Unit outside Huntsville.

Hermleigh man dies in accident

Services for Tommy Lee Richburg, 25, of Hermleigh will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Cate-Spencer & Gallagher Funeral Home Chapel in Sweetwater with the Rev. Champ Lamoin, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Burkburnett, officiating.

Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens in Snyder.

Richburg died Monday morning in a one-car accident 11 miles southwest of Aspermont on Farm Road 610. According to the Department of Public Safety, Richburg died from injuries suffered from a 3:30 a.m. accident in which his 1983 Oldsmobile left the road and collided with a bridge abutment.

Azerbaijan tense as militants and troops continue face-off

MOSCOW (AP) — Strife-torn Azerbaijan was tense today after rebellious lawmakers threatened to secede unless Moscow withdraws its troops, and two soldiers were reported killed as the occupying forces came under renewed fire.

The KGB today described the southern republic, where Soviet troops have killed dozens of people in trying to put down a nationalist revolt, as being on "the edge of the abyss."

Azerbaijani militants said they would keep up strikes in the republic's capital, the key oil-producing city of Baku, until the occupation ends. Some were said to be demanding that Russian residents leave or face attacks.

Radio Moscow said the situation in Baku remained "complex" — a Russian-language euphemism that can signify widespread unrest and even violence. It said Baku's military commander had vowed to stop any further attacks on city residents or their property.

On Monday, the republic's legislature defied Mikhail S. Gorbachev and declared void the state of emergency he decreed a week ago in Baku and regions of the republic where Azerbaijanis and Armenians were locked in bloody ethnic strife.

Hopes for an end to the bloodshed arose on Monday as Communist leaders from Armenia and Azerbaijan agreed to withdraw armed groups from along the republics' border and end clashes between thousands of heavily armed militants.

But activists in both republics said they doubted the truce would hold.

Anti-Armenian riots and killings in Baku on Jan. 13 touched off 10 days of ethnic bloodletting in the region and on Saturday Soviet troops smashed their way into the city to quell a nationalist uprising.

Soviet officials said the assault left 83 people dead, including 14 soldiers and members of their families.

On Monday, wailing, black-clad Azerbaijanis marched through the Caspian Sea port city of 1.8 million to mourn those killed when the Soviet troops moved in. Radio Moscow said anti-army and anti-Russian sentiments were being whipped up in Baku (see BAKU, page 8)

For March primaries...

Ballot order selected

Marlin Terrell will be listed first on the ballot for Scurry County judge in the March 13 Democratic Primary election while Greg Crawford will top the list in the Republican Primary.

Both the Democratic and Republican parties have released their general primary certification reports, which list the order in which the candidates will appear on the ballot.

Terrell, retired Farm Bureau manager, is opposing incumbent Bobby Goodwin in the Democratic Primary while Crawford, owner of Texas Real Estate & Appraisal, is going up against 16-year county resident Bob Doolittle.

Several Scurry County races have one candidate. Incumbent Frances Billingsley is running unopposed for county clerk, incumbent Lealand (Pete) Greene is the only candidate for the unexpired term of county attorney and Hermleigh native H.M. Lomax is the lone candidate for precinct 2 justice of the peace. All are running as Democrats.

Also unchallenged will be John H. Thomas for county chairman of the Republican Party and Earl (Hassie) Sneed for county chairman of the Democratic Party.

Eloise Pruitt, chief deputy district clerk, will be unopposed in the Democratic Primary for district clerk. Patsy Williams, a county native and former teacher, is running for the office in the Republican Primary.

Two Democrats, incumbent Rita Staton and Polly Wadleigh Echols, a bookkeeper at Tri-State Construction, are making their bid for county treasurer. Staton will be listed first on the March 13 ballot.

Six men are vying for two county commissioner positions. In the race for precinct 2 commissioner, incumbent Tommy Pate will be listed first on the Democratic ballot, followed by Don H. Tucker, operator of San Andres Company. Roy L. Idom, a 15-year Snyder resident and a member of the county airport board, will run alone in the Republican Primary.

Three men, all running on the Democratic ticket, are going after the precinct 4 commissioner's post, which will be vacated by Ted Billingsley. Bill Kimmel, Jerry Gannaway and Jack Greene are challenging for the job and will be listed on the ballot in that order. Kimmel is a partner in Midwestern Vacuum Truck Co., Gannaway is an area farmer and Greene is owner-operator of Jack's Roadboring.

Billingsley has filed for precinct 2 justice of the peace, and will have opposition from Wanda Rushing in the Democratic Primary. Rushing, current clerk in the JP's office, will have her name listed first on the ballot. There is no Republican candidate for the office. (see BALLOT, page 8)

Insurance agency here catering to 'abstainers'

A large percentage of "Bible Belt" natives in Texas and neighboring states are non-drinkers, and longtime Snyder insurance agent Gaylon Boyd felt the time was right for an agency that caters to them.

His new Preferred Risk Group agency at 1802 26th St., at the southeastern corner of the downtown square, offers varying discounts for life, health, automobile, home and church coverage, with the biggest discounts going to people 45 and older who qualify for a "preferred abstainers" rate.

The Preferred Risk Group is based in Des Moines, Iowa.

"We felt like since we're in the center of the Bible Belt, we would be in a real good location," Boyd said. "About 35 percent of the people in this four-state area are non-drinkers, and here in Scurry County it's probably a little higher than that."

He said lower rates are offered even to cover homes "because a lot of the homeowner accidents are alcohol and drug-related."

Boyd, 35, is a Lake J.B. Thomas native who previously represented Metropolitan Life and in the late 1970s was the Farm Bureau agent for two years. He is the son of Ottus and Dorothy Boyd.

His wife, Deborah, is his secretary and office manager. She is the daughter of Franklin and Eloise Pruitt.

The Boyds have four children, Samantha, 13, Ben, 10, Matt, 9, and April, 10 months.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "History repeats itself because few people listen the first time."

Mike Post who has the dubious honor of being Jack Denman's favorite son-in-law, recently told us that we had been going too easy on Denman.

Even though Denman may question one of his daughter's decisions, he still thinks the couple produced two outstanding grandsons.

Denman was recently trying to help the youngest with his math homework. The youngster asked Denman to help him find the common denominator.

"Good grief, you mean they haven't found that yet?" said Denman. "They were looking for that when I was in school."

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

Post told us that Denman made the rounds to various holiday parties. During Christmas, Denman was telling the family his impressions of the festivities.

"Most of 'em were pretty neat, but one funny thing happened," Denman said. "Because at one dinner party they must have run out of napkins, 'cause they had to use pieces of cloth."

Overheard two guys in the post office discussing "tough economic times."

The two men, while waiting for the mail, exchanged hard luck stories. Each tale became more poignant. Finally a nearby listener pointed to a poster on the post office bulletin board.

"You might try Los Angeles, bank robbers are wanted there."

Q—Is there a class in infant CPR being held in Snyder? If so, when and where are the classes?
A—There is no class scheduled at this time.

In Brief

Tamales only

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. military now says 50 pounds of a substance it seized at a house used by deposed Panamanian leader Manuel Antonio Noriega turned out to be tamales instead of cocaine as the Army initially said. The Washington Post reported today.

In a dispatch from Panama City, Panama, the paper said military and civilian officials said that although 450 kilos of cocaine and assorted other drugs have been seized since U.S. troops invaded Dec. 20, none could be directly linked to Noriega or used in the drug-trafficking trial against him.

In hot pursuit

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A convicted rapist jumped out of a dentist's chair and raced down the street, shedding some of his jail clothing as he ran, authorities said.

Sheriff J.B. Smith said Michael Rochelle Williams, 24, had been taken to the office of a Tyler dentist Monday with three other Smith County Jail inmates, who also were to get dental examinations.

Nicaraguan...

Rebels promised more aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are assuring the Nicaraguan Contras they can count on additional U.S. humanitarian assistance regardless of the outcome of next month's national elections in that country.

A $50 million aid program is due to expire just days after the Feb. 25 elections, but legislative ground rules allow aid deliveries to continue through March. The upcoming expiration of the program has produced speculation that aid to the Contras may finally end after almost 10 years.

If the opposition coalition led by presidential candidate Violeta Chamorro wins the election, it is widely expected the rebels will return peacefully to Nicaragua from their base camps in Honduras.

In that event, renewed U.S. aid would be designed to help the reintegration process, said the U.S. officials, asking not to be identified.

But, according to the officials, if President Daniel Ortega and his Sandinista Front win — either through a fair process or through fraud — the Contras are expected to continue on as a fighting force. Many are said to be committed to resuming the armed struggle against the Sandinista Army in the event Chamorro loses, even if the process is honest.

Whether the Contras are able to pose a credible military threat is another question. They have received no U.S. military aid for almost two years and none from any other source, so far as is known.

At present, the U.S. program of providing food, clothing, shelter and medical services is reaching just less than 10,000 Contras based at camps in southern Honduras and about 50,000 family members living there.

The Contra leaders have been told there is a "political consensus" in the United States within the administration and the Congress that the basic needs of Contras must continue to be met even after the current aid allocation runs out, an official said.

The form of any future aid package would be the subject of discussions between the administration and the Congress over the next two months.

Members of Congress have had little to say on the issue lately because they have been in recess for more than a month. But it is expected Democrats will generally insist any new aid program be linked to a process of reintegrating the rebels back into Nicaraguan society. The administration, on the other hand, likely will favor providing aid with few strings.

The administration has expressed strong doubts about Sandinista intentions regarding free and fair elections, citing what it claims have been repeated instances of violence and intimidation against opposition candidates.

The Sandinistas argue the incidents have been isolated and exaggerated by the administration.

The nature of the Contra presence in Honduras has changed considerably in recent months.

Anti, pro abortion groups gather to protest in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — While anti-abortion activists urged Texans to send thousands of baby rattles to lawmakers, pro-choice forces used the anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion to say they haven't given up their fight.

Texans United for Life, announcing an anti-abortion campaign Monday that would "rattle the conscience of Texas," urged residents who want legal protection for the unborn to send baby rattles to elected representatives.

Hundreds of pro-choice advocates turned out in Austin for a rally on the 17th anniversary of Roe vs. Wade. Meanwhile, the attorney who argued the case said in Dallas that pro-choice forces are here to stay.

The baby rattles, to be made available by Texans United, will include the words, "Baby's Best Friend," the group's president, Bill Price, said in Austin.

The group is calling on all Texans "who want legal protection restored to unborn children to send hundreds of baby rattles to their elected representatives, both in Congress and the state Legislature."

"We are here to say we won 17 years ago today, and we will win again," attorney Sarah Weddington told pro-choice advocates at a breakfast in Dallas marking the anniversary of the landmark case.

The Texas case that Ms. Weddington argued cleared the way for legal abortions.

About 450 pro-choice advocates rallied at The University of Texas at Austin. Demonstrators also denounced the more recent high court ruling that allows states to regulate abortion.

Legislative and community supporters of the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision said at the rally that last summer's Supreme Court ruling in the Webster vs. Missouri case poses a threat to a woman's right to have an abortion.

The Supreme Court's Webster decision in July 1989 opened the door for states to impose some restrictions on abortion.

Pro-choice forces have been mobilized by the Webster decision, said Danalynn Recer, president of the National Organization of Women at UT.

Grandma Pleads for Punishment To Fit Her Grandson's Crimes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am 58 years old, and raised my grandson from the time he was 2 years old until he was 7. "Alvin" is 11 now and living with his mother and dad.

Four months ago, they told me that I could have Alvin for the weekend, so I drove 35 miles to pick him up. After I had packed his bags and we were ready to leave, his father said Alvin couldn't go because he had cursed at his mother!

My contention was, "Punish the child, not me." I think his parents should have allowed me to take the boy, then punished him after he returned.

Well, it happened again. Last week, Alvin got a failing grade on a test, so his parents refused to let him come to spend the weekend with me.

I would like to know what you think of this.

DISGUSTED WITH THE PARENTS

DEAR DISGUSTED: Obviously you are being punished as much as (or perhaps more than) your grandson. Have a heart-to-heart talk with the parents and ask them to please find a way to punish Alvin without punishing you. But be aware that his parents will have the last word, and it's their prerogative to use the form of punishment they find the most effective.

DEAR ABBY: I have always heard that 13 at a dinner table was bad luck. Where did that superstition originate?

SUPERSTITIOUS
IN WATERLOO, IOWA

DEAR SUPERSTITIOUS: I suspect it signaled bad luck for the hostess who had service for only 12 in china, stemware and flatware, and her finest tablecloth had only a dozen napkins — not to mention a dining-room set with 12 chairs. She had planned a formal dinner for 12 when a guest called at the last minute to ask if she could bring a friend.

Or perhaps it had something to do with the Last Supper.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are season ticket-holders of the San Francisco Opera and Ballet; we truly enjoy the magic of each performance. One problem has become increasingly irritating. The majority of women who attend apply offensive amounts of cologne or perfume. Often the fragrance clouds are so thick, one can taste them!

The strongest allergy pills are useless in preventing the fumes from penetrating and causing me to have highly uncomfortable sneezing fits. Echoing throughout the house, other poor unfortunate souls can be heard, afflicted with the allergic sneezing attacks.

Might I suggest that in consideration of others, a little dab of perfume on each wrist, or behind each ear, or on each ankle — but not all at once!

What do you think, Abby? For a fragrance to be effective, is it necessary to bathe in it? Please help.

AH-CHOO!

DEAR AH-CHOO: An overpowering fragrance on a woman (or man) defeats its purpose. An effective fragrance should cause others to come a little closer for a better whiff. Unfortunately, users of fragrances do not realize that in a crowded theater, the natural body odors of hundreds of people who had used only toilet soap would smell better than the costliest French perfume.

Official: proposed cuts would result in the death of children

AUSTIN (AP) — Doctors, parents and child-care advocates said proposed budget cuts to a program for severely ill, poor children will result in deaths, but state health officials said their hands are tied without help from the governor and legislative leaders.

"They're aware," Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein said when asked if he had discussed the funding problem with state budget leaders. "At this point, there is no promise of financial assistance," he said.

But lawmakers said they want health officials to answer questions about the Chronically Ill and Disabled Children's Services Program, which was criticized, in a recent state audit, for poor planning and general disagreement over the program's objectives.

Sheila Beckett, director of budget and planning for Clements' office, said the governor is searching for funds to direct to the agency within the next month.

The Texas Board of Health on Saturday will consider cutting the program, which funds last-resort medical needs, by $9.1 million in order to keep the service going at a minimum level through the end of the fiscal year.

The cuts would reduce hospital and rehabilitation services to all eligible children and would bar some 4,100 children from the program who receive Medicaid.

These proposed cuts come after a Nov. 1 decision by the Health Department to remove 1,707 children from the medical coverage program based on family income.

The program serves children with severe ailments such as heart disease, cystic fibrosis and cancer. In 1988, the program received $39 million and provided medical service in 14,739 cases.

Sherry Irwin of Garland said her son, Robert, 6, would lose treatment under the cuts. While between jobs and during a gap in her medical coverage, Robert was diagnosed as having cancer, she said.

She added that Robert became eligible for the program just before the income eligibility was reduced. "If my child hadn't gotten care that day, he would be dead," Ms. Irwin said.

Dr. Arthur Garson Jr., chief of pediatrics at Texas Children's Hospital in Houston, said reducing the stay at hospitals for some children will have severe effects.

"If we have to throw them out of the hospital, that translates very directly in an increased risk of sudden death," Garson said.

Saralee Tiede, a spokesman for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, said budget leaders may consider the funding problem during a Wednesday meeting of the Legislative Budget Board.

The authority of the pope was declared void in England in 1536.

ues as minimal. Then, when North went back to three hearts after partner had doubled three diamonds for penalties, South bid game, in effect pleading guilty to having underbid with the earlier jump to two hearts. Such inconsistencies are the norm rather than the exception, sad to say.

The inconsistency carried over into the play. Declarer won the heart lead in his hand and led the 10 of spades. When West played low, South guessed right to go up with the king. The contract can now be made by playing ace and ruffing a diamond. Later another diamond can be ruffed and a diamond trick given up so that the last diamond in the South hand becomes the game-going trick. Unfortunately declarer was in a fog. He played a club. East won the 10 and returned a heart, won in dummy (another error). Now declarer cashed the diamond ace and crossruffed clubs and diamonds. At the end, out of trumps, he was left with a losing spade and two diamonds in his hand. So the defenders took the last three tricks to set him one trick.

None of East's bidding made sense. The way to compete when an opponent has made a takeout double is to ignore the double. Thus, had East responded with one spade, he would have reached two or three spades. But when South got to four hearts, it was bad judgment to double.

Cattlegirls begin year

Tejas Cattlegirls met Jan. 9 at 10 a.m. for their first meeting of the year at the Villa Restaurant in Colorado City. Two new members, Lois Cave of Snyder and Mary Margaret Cox of Colorado City were introduced by Lucille Sterling.

Tejas Cattlegirls is a group of women from Borden, Howard, Mitchell, Nolan and Scurry counties which is part of both state and national organizations, organized for the purpose of promoting beef.

February is Heart Month and the club is joining with the American Heart Association to promote better eating for the heart. The Texas Beef Cook-Off will be held during the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo Feb. 16-17.

Tejas Cattlegirls, along with the Beef Industry Council, sponsors the event each year. The top three contestants win prizes, with one being awarded a trip to the National Beef Cook-Off later in the year.

Luck of cards decides winner

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — The newly incorporated town of West Wendover settled its first council election in true Nevada style.

The winner outdrew the loser. Larry Lisk and his brother-in-law, Ron Green, each received 66 votes in the Jan. 10 election for the Ward Three council seat in the northeastern Nevada town, which voted last year to incorporate.

The two men pulled cards from a deck Monday in County Clerk Karen Vasquez's office. Lisk drew a jack to Green's 10.

Family togetherness...

Weekends allow for breakfast planning

By Nancy Bial
Better Homes & Gardens
Magazine Food Editor

Weekend mornings are the best times of the week. You can sleep late or be up at the crack of dawn — it's your choice. And you can enjoy breakfast in ways there's no time for during the week. Try these ideas for great weekend a.m. dining.

PREPARING THE MEAL

— Get your whole family to help. Kids can mix fruit and pour fruit juice, prepare cocoa, make toast and pour pancakes.

— Do as much as you can the night before: Prepare fruit, fix omelet fillings, stir up refrigerator muffin batter.

— Hike or bike to the park for breakfast. Make sandwiches with thinly sliced deli meats on homemade biscuits. Add fresh fruit and beverages.

— How about cooking breakfast on the grill? Try breakfast sausages or a ham slice. Cook potatoes or eggs in a skillet over the coals. Wrap bread in foil and heat over the coals. Grill wedges of fresh pineapple.

EASY BREAKFAST IDEAS

— Flash Fruit: Chill one 20-ounce can peeled, cored, whole pineapple; cut lengthwise into quarters. Top with pina colada yogurt and sprinkle with a little toasted coconut.

— Strawberry Pancake Shortcakes: Layer pancakes with lightly sugared sliced strawberries and dollop with whipped topping.

— Cook's Choice Pancakes: Prepare pancakes as usual, except, when undersides of cakes are nicely brown, lightly sprinkle about 1 tablespoon mixed dried fruit bits, raisins, coarsely chopped pecans or drained blueberries evenly over each pancake. Turn and brown other side.

— Signature Pancakes: Prepare pancake batter as usual, except thin with enough water to make of proper consistency to squirt through a plastic squeeze-top bottle or to pour from a small pitcher. Squeeze or pour batter onto greased griddle to form letters for names. (Be sure to write each letter backward on the griddle so the pancakes will read correctly when flipped.)

— Cocoa Plus: Stir 1 tablespoon caramel topping into a cup of hot cocoa. Top with marshmallow creme or tiny marshmallows; drizzle with a little additional topping.

— For a brunch crowd, bake omelets in the oven: Melt 2 tablespoons margarine or butter in a 15- by 10- by 1-inch baking pan in 400-degree F oven. Combine 12 eggs, ¼ cup water, ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper; beat with fork or rotary beater until combined but not frothy. Tilt hot margarine in pan to thoroughly coat pan. Place pan on oven rack; carefully pour egg mixture into pan. Bake in 400-degree F oven about 7 minutes or until eggs are set but still glossy. Cut omelet into 6 squares. Spoon desired filling over half the square; fold other half over filling.

Westerners hold on for win

WTC men fend off Thunderbird run for 121-119 decision

By PHIL RIDDLE

SDN Sports Editor

A Hollywood script writer could not have written a better story to go with the Western Texas College men's basketball game Monday.

The contest had it all, good guys, bad guys, suspense, drama and a happy ending as WTC took a 121-119 Western Junior College Athletic Conference win.

The good guys, of course, were the Westerners, in particular Alfredo Porter, who hit 24 points on the night including five three-pointers, and Dominick Byrd, who scorched the nets at the Scurry County Coliseum for 18.

Four other Westerners ended up in double figures. Ray Johnson had 16, Ken Critton had 15 and Allen Smith and Tony Joyce had 14 apiece.

The bad guys were, naturally, the NMJC Thunderbirds. Not that they were bad. They played an excellent game. Especially 6-4 sophomore Tim Fitzpatrick who hit three three-point goals to keep the T-birds in the game during an early WTC run.

Reggie Collins scored 31 for the NMJC squad followed by Russell Adams and Will Scott with 20 each.

The game started as a lark for the WTC team as they bolted to a 20-6 lead in the opening five minutes of the game.

Joyce and Porter each contributed a pair of threes to the early effort.

Allen Smith tossed in a bucket at the 13:48 mark to give the Westerners a 17-point lead at 27-10.

The Thunderbirds closed the gap to nine with a bucket by Collins to set the score at 51-42 later in the half.

WTC jumped back out to a 15-point advantage with a hoop from Smith who snatched an offensive rebound and tipped the ball in for two and a 58-43 lead with just over two minutes left in the first half.

Isaac Wright and Fitzpatrick combined for five points within eight seconds near the close of the half to bring NMJC within 62-57.

Joyce hit a free-throw for WTC and Wright popped another deuce for New Mexico to make it a four-point ball game at intermission.

The Thunderbirds came out from the dressing room fighting and clawing and earned a 73-72 lead at the 17:11 mark of the second half with a three-pointer by Fitzpatrick.

By 14:17 in the half WTC was in an 86-75 hole.

A pair of buckets underneath from Western Texas sophomore post Critton and it was 86-79.

Jeff Shelley hit a long two for the Westerners with under 13 minutes left to bring WTC within five at 86-81.

Allen Smith closed the gap to just three points with a short jumper with 11:33 remaining, but a pair of free-throws from NMJC's Adams and a three from Collier gave a six-point lead to the visitors.

Ray Johnson hit a big bucket at 6:18 followed by a Jacoby Garmon basket to bring WTC within two at 105-103.

Joyce tied the contest at 105 with a bank shot off the glass after a great offensive board.

Joyce and Byrd teamed up to give the Westerners their first lead since early in the half as Joyce stole the basketball and dished to Byrd who dunked it home for a 108-107 lead and 4:20 left in the game.

Critton drew a charge at the 3:00 mark and followed with an arching hook shot for a pair that gave the WTC squad a 113-109 margin.

Tony Joyce added a critical three-point bucket with 2:09 left for a seven-point advantage.

Now for the drama: With just 16 seconds left in the game New Mexico had managed to make the game a one-point affair, 118-117.

In desperation the T-birds put Johnson on the line and he hit one of his two free-throws, but more importantly, grabbed the rebound off the missed second shot.

Fitzpatrick was forced to foul Johnson again with just eight ticks left on the clock.

Johnson coolly slid both chances through the iron and preserved the win for WTC.

"The keys down the stretch for us," said WTC coach Tony Mauldin, "were our hitting some big free-throws and our depth."

"We were in just as much foul trouble as they were late in the game, but we were able to put some fresh people out there."

"What it comes down to," said Mauldin, "is that we made the big plays tonight."

The win sets the WTC record at 16-5 and 5-2 in WJAC play. NMJC fell to 9-11 in all games and 2-2 within the conference.

The Westerners' next battle will be Thursday in Big Spring against nationally ranked No. 3 Howard College.

Snyder cage teams to face Sweetwater

Both Snyder High School varsity basketball teams seek to get back on a winning track tonight as they battle Sweetwater in District 4-4A play.

The Tigers, 12-10 in all games played and 5-1 in loop competition, lost to Andrews, 44-35, on Friday in a game that highlighted both squads' defensive talents.

Tracy Brazier was high scorer for Snyder with 14 points.

Sweetwater, an 11-10 team overall, is 4-2 in district play and is fresh off a 47-35 win over Monahans last Friday.

Sweetwater's attack features all-district 6-4 senior Tim Thompson as well as returning starters Greg Ruffin, Billy Rather and Oubigee Jones.

The Mustangs are picked to finish fifth in District 4-4A this season after last year's 10-19 campaign.

The Lady Tigers try to rebound from a 53-49 loss to the Andrews Fillies Friday night.

Snyder held an eight-point lead after the first quarter but fell victim to the Andrews press and Kristia Rogers of the Fillies who poured in 28 points, including six in a row to open the second period.

The Sweetwater girls are sitting atop the district with an unblemished 8-0 mark.

They are 17-6 on the season and drubbed Monahans, 85-18, in their Friday outing.

The Lady Mustangs whipped

Snyder, 54-35, in the district opener earlier in the season in Snyder.

The SHS boys will be at home in the Scurry County Coliseum and the girls will travel to Sweetwater.

Varsity games will begin at 7:30 p.m. and JV units begin at 6 p.m.

Monday's Western Junior College Athletic Conference match-up between WTC and New Mexico Junior College turned into an early three-point shootout between Western Texas' Bobbie Brown and NMJC's Stacy Williams.

Brown hit five on the night, ending up with 21 points, in all, to Williams' four threes and 16 points.

WTC grabbed the first half lead with an early 16-0 flurry that flustered the Lady Thunderbirds and set the tone for the evening.

The first NMJC points weren't scored until almost eight minutes had elapsed in the opening half.

The Lady Dusters took a 17-point advantage, 23-6, at the halfway mark of the first half with a flying lay-up by point guard Vicky Jones.

"Vicky Jones played a great ball game tonight," said Kelly Chadwick, coach of the Western Texas women.

The NMJC squad didn't break into double figures until 7:24 left in the half when Amy Severson hit a three for a 27-12 score.

Snyder teams take girls tourney titles

Snyder's seventh and eighth grade "A" teams were winners in the championship games of their respective divisions of the tournament they hosted last weekend.

The eighth graders led by Annie Ragland's 13 points defeated Colorado City, 37-32, in the title game Saturday.

Ragland earned MVP honors in the championship battle.

Carla Walker added eight and Taffy Greenwood six in the win.

The Snyder crew defeated Sweetwater, 45-17, and Colorado City "B", 60-12, on the way to the tourney crown.

Brooke Lowrance and Lindsey Daniels with eight and seven points, respectively, were named most valuable in the seventh graders' title game.

Snyder won the battle, 27-19, over Big Spring.

Shawna Callaway, Kellie Lacik, Paige Gayle and Bianca Rocha were tabbed as defensive MVP's.

The seventh graders defeated Colorado City, 48-44, and Goliad "B", 25-7, en route to the tournament title.

In other games Snyder's eighth grade black lost to Sweetwater in overtime, 28-26, and to Big Spring "A", 34-7.

Seventh grade "B" was cut down by Sweetwater "A", 47-13, before beating Colorado City, 24-15.

Goliad "B" ended the tourney for the seventh grade "B" teamers from Snyder, 15-12.

Tarpley back

DALLAS (AP) — Forward Roy Tarpley, reinstated to the Dallas Mavericks but still bearing two strikes in the NBA's anti-drug program, concedes that many fans have heard his story before.

"A lot of people ... were trying to help me and I think it's important for me to take responsibility for myself. And that's what I have done," said Tarpley, who resumes practice today.

The Dusters hit the court for the second half in a dead run galloping out to a 52-27 lead with under 10 minutes remaining.

The lead grew to 60-31 on a Tami Wilson bucket from behind the defense.

Brown put in a short jump shot with under three minutes left followed by Jones' free-throw to wind up the scoring for WTC.

"We had much better shooting tonight," said Chadwick of the Dusters' effort.

"Vicky Jones had a great ball game, Tracy Rome had a great ball game, Jill Forrest had a great game. They played as a team tonight."

"The girls were relaxed," he continued, "they played good defense and their shot selection was very good."

Besides Brown's 21 points, Wilson tossed in 15 and Tracy Rome added 14 for the Dusters who are now 14-6 on the season and 2-3 in WJAC competition.

The Lady Thunderbirds are winless in four conference outings and 10-12 overall.

The Lady Dusters will travel to Big Spring to tangle with the Howard College Lady Hawks

Mayor Barry investigation...

Ex-model testifying before grand jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — The one-time model who cooperated with federal authorities in the arrest of Mayor Marion Barry on a cocaine possession charge appeared today before a federal grand jury investigating Barry's activities.

Meanwhile, Barry aides, local union leaders and business officials sought to persuade Jesse Jackson to join the mayor's race in the aftermath of Barry's arrest.

The woman, Rasheeda Moore, who sources said called Barry to the hotel room where he was arrested Thursday night, entered the courthouse under tight security. The 38-year-old former model said nothing as she entered the building through the back door.

Amid the political maneuvering, Barry flew south on Monday and checked into a substance abuse treatment center in West Palm Beach, Fla., to be treated for alcoholism, according to his spokeswoman, Lurma Rackley.

Jackson is "getting a lot of pressure to run. I don't know if he's going to," said an associate of the two-time Democratic presidential contender.

"A lot of the pressure is coming from Marion's people," added the associate, who insisted on anonymity.

Ron Richardson, president of the local chapter of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers AFL-CIO, said he met with a variety of community activists and organizers about mounting a draft-Jackson campaign.

"We are going to plead with him to submerge his personal interests and help heal this city, which is what we need right now," Richardson said. "My indications are that people that I've been talking to — labor leaders, ministers, others — are overwhelmingly in favor of trying to get Jackson in the race."

Eric Easter, Jackson's press secretary, said the former Democratic presidential hopeful has been ill in bed since returning to Washington on Saturday and has met with no one regarding a mayoral draft campaign.

Jackson's move to Washington in April 1989 fueled rumors that he would run for mayor. But Jackson has repeatedly said he would never oppose Barry, a friend and former civil rights colleague.

Early surveys of public sentiment gave Jackson a wide lead over all other potential contenders, including Barry.

A local political organizer said 20 labor leaders, business officials and political activists from this heavily Democratic town met for more than four hours on Sunday to discuss a Jackson candidacy.

When the meeting was over 14 of those present said their companies or groups would be willing to woo Jackson, while three others said they would support his candidacy if he enters the race, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

And as Barry mulled his treatment options on Saturday, some of his closest political advisers and former assistants were meeting at the home of ex-city administrator Elijah Rogers to organize plans to get Jackson in the mayor's race.

Attending the meeting were Rogers, former Deputy Mayors Ivanhoe Donaldson and Alphonse Hill, former city official Courtland Cox and several others, said a source familiar with the meeting. Donaldson and Hill have served jail time for felony convictions in connection with their city government jobs.

Ms. Rackley said the mayor checked into the Hanley-Hazelden Treatment Center in West Palm Beach. She had said the day before that details about his health would be kept private but "the most serious problem is alcoholism."

The mayor was arrested Thursday and charged with misdemeanor possession of crack cocaine. He said Sunday he would take steps to "heal my body, mind and soul." Barry, who did not specifically refer to a drug or alcohol problem in his remarks, did not speak to reporters as he left home Monday accompanied by his wife Effi. She later left Florida.

Instructor: expand use of computers

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Computer literacy instructor Ken Blystone says schools need to expand their uses of computers.

Too many educators don't take advantage of the ability to communicate using computers, depriving schoolchildren of a vast arsenal of learning materials, such as NASA's public files, Blystone says.

computers to communicate with other computers via telephone lines.

Blystone, who teaches at Desert View Middle School, and three colleagues recently formed the non-profit Modem Magnet Schools Inc. to promote computer communications technology in education.

Their dream is to persuade parent-teacher associations and civic groups to help put modem-equipped computers in schools, public libraries and community centers.

"Society is entrenched in a parochial view of schools that centers on the classroom," Blystone said. "This traditional concept limits the ability of technological advancements to transform the schools into something new and better."

"Many schools have instead reduced the computer to its lowest common denominator, that of being a stand-alone drill and practice device, or worse yet, a video game machine," Blystone said.

As an example, Blystone points out that few schools purchase modems — devices that allow

Jail employees keep archbishop from visiting jail

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Archbishop Patrick Flores says employees at the Bexar County Jail prevented him from visiting an imprisoned anti-abortion priest because Flores refused to wear an orange jail identification tag.

Flores said he and a group of about 30 priests went to the jail Monday to visit Monsignor Sherill Smith, who is serving 10 days in jail in lieu of paying a $413 fine following his conviction on a charge of trespassing on the parking lot of a building that contained an abortion clinic, but were refused entrance.

"I had come to visit Monsignor Sherill Smith but the problem I ran into is that to see a prisoner I must have an identification card," Flores said.

"This really upsets me. If anyone from the Sheriff's Office ever comes to my office, or the sheriff himself, I am going to require the same thing," Flores told the San Antonio Express-News.

Bexar County Sheriff Harlon Copeland said there are no exceptions to the rules for visiting prisoners.

"There are rules and regulations. ID badges are required. If they refuse to wear them, they don't get in," Copeland said.

The archbishop and the other priests are no different from anyone else and there are no plans to change any of the regulation, Copeland said.

Flores said that Bishop Edmund Carmody, who celebrates Mass once a month at the jail, was turned away Sunday when he wanted to see Smith.

"They said his card was in the computer, but somehow they couldn't get it out of the computer," the archbishop said.

The archbishop said a secretary from his office telephoned the jail Monday morning to let jail personnel know of the impending visit. Flores said he provided jail personnel with his driver's license number, his Social Security number and his birthdate.

When he arrived at the jail, Flores said, jail employees told him he would have to sign a card and wear an identification badge.

"If they don't trust me, why should I trust them? If after 20 years I'm not deserving of their trust, then what kind of system do we have?" Flores asked. He said plans to write a letter to Copeland to express his displeasure.

Smith, 68, who heads anti-abortion activities at the San Antonio Archdiocese and has been a social activist since the 1960s, was arrested after he blocked the front door of Reproductive Services clinic Oct. 15, 1988.

'Coupon Connie' says she's learned lesson

DALLAS (AP) — As her federal mail fraud and conspiracy trial winds down, a Florida woman has vowed never to clip another coupon.

"I have no intentions whatsoever of ever going back to what I was doing," Connie Arvidson said Monday night. "There's more to life than just coupons."

Final arguments, expected this week, were delayed Monday as U.S. attorneys recalled witnesses.

Mrs. Arvidson, of Boca Raton, Fla., is accused of mail fraud and conspiracy in a $2 million distribution of coupons prosecutors say were counterfeit.

The defendant said she was "addicted" to clipping and swapping coupons.

"Your wife would get hooked too," she warned.

She blamed coupon exchange magazines for promoting a scheme she learned later was too good to be true.

"You were learning to make money from other people's throwaways and I saw nothing wrong with that," she said.

Now, if she's acquitted, Mrs. Arvidson plans to begin a new career — perhaps as a nightclub singer.

"I've been told that I'm pretty decent," she said. "I like doing that and I don't have to go into Dumpsters and work hard like I did before."

She is charged with mail fraud and conspiracy, along with David Rees and James Floyd Richardson, both of San Antonio.

They and seven others were indicted last June in connection with a $2 million counterfeit coupon scam in which bogus coupons for food and other products were printed and distributed nationwide from Texas, prosecutors allege.

Seven others agreed to cooperate with the prosecution in exchange for leniency, and several testified during the trial.

If convicted, Mrs. Arvidson faces up to 30 years in prison and up to $1.5 million in fines.

But she remained optimistic, saying she never knowingly purchased counterfeit coupons.

"The evidence is not very strong — I've not done the things they are accusing me of," she said.

Mrs. Arvidson also said women on the jury appeared to understand her dilemma.

However, she added in a telephone interview from her motel room, "I'm not asking for their sympathy; I'm asking for them to be fair."

Anti-drug program gains support

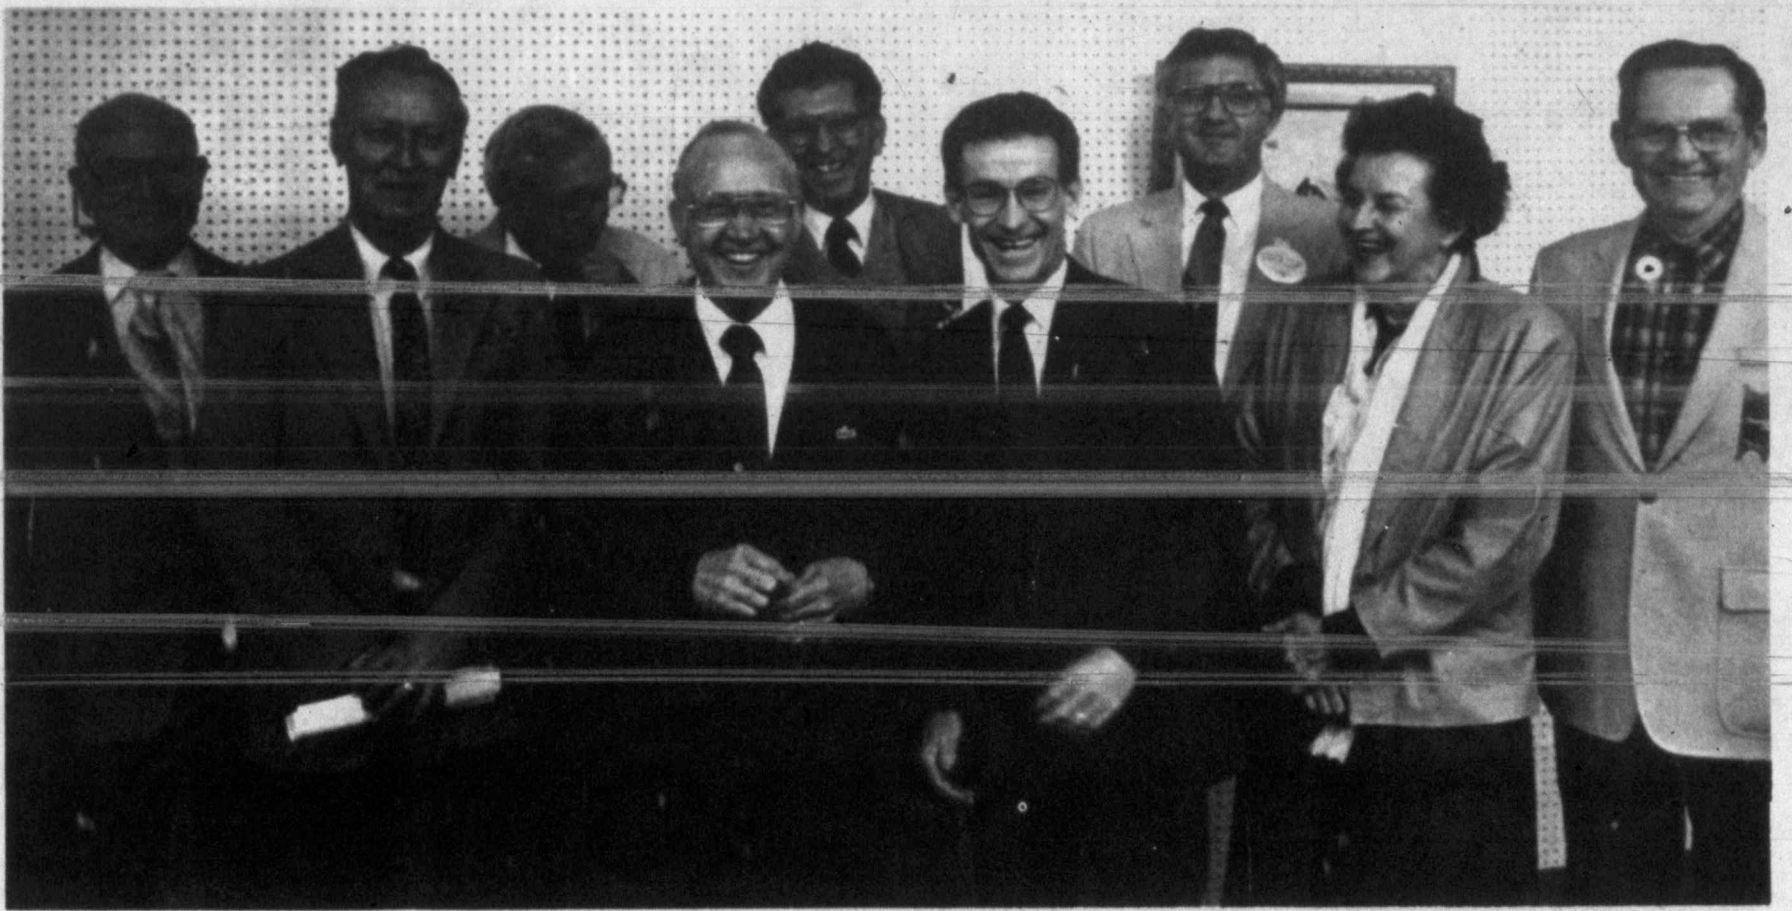

DALLAS (AP) — Four television stations, three newspapers and two Spanish-language radio stations are joining forces in the drug fight with programs aimed at drug abuse.

"Texas Crackdown!", a two-hour show on the drug problem in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, will be broadcast simultaneously tonight on the three networks' local affiliates: WFAA-TV Channel 8 (ABC), KDFW-TV Channel 4 (CBS) and KXAS-TV Channel 5 (NBC).

Independent station Channel 58 also will carry the unprecedented program.

Radio stations KSSA-AM and FM and KESS-AM will broadcast live translations of the program, which airs from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. A 60-minute town meeting on the drug problem in North Texas will air at 10:30 p.m.

1 week delay granted in Bell rate case

AUSTIN (AP) — Consumer advocates say they were improperly left out of settlement discussions between Southwestern Bell and the Public Utility Commission's general counsel concerning the telephone company's rate case.

"It appears a whole lot like the company is pulling the chain of the general counsel's office when people are deliberately excluded from settlement negotiations," said Don Butler, attorney for a number of cities served by Southwestern Bell. The cities are recommending about a $700 million rate decrease for the telephone company.

PUC General Counsel Robert Rima, whose office has recommended a $392 million annual rate reduction for the company, said the goal of its recent negotiations with Southwestern Bell was to develop a "framework" for settlement that would allow all parties to agree. He noted that previous talks among all parties hadn't worked.

"I believe the end result of this will, in fact, include a significant rate reduction" and elements of a proposal by Southwestern Bell to upgrade service, Rima said. Neither he nor Southwestern Bell

Vice President Jon Dee Lawrence would discuss details of the negotiations.

PUC Administrative Law Judge J.K. Trostle granted a motion by Rima to delay the scheduled Monday opening of the case to allow for settlement negotiations. She conditioned her ruling on all parties being involved in the talks by Tuesday.

In a move protested by consumer advocates, Ms. Trostle granted a one-week postponement and said a second week was possible if negotiations are proceeding well. Public Counsel C. Kingsbery Ottmers and others wanted the hearing to proceed while a settlement is being discussed.

"Any delay that ultimately prolongs the hearing, if negotiations break down, will just be to Bell's advantage," said Ms. Ottmers, who represents residential ratepayers at the PUC. Consumer advocates and the general counsel have charged Southwestern Bell is earning more than authorized from its last rate case.

Southwestern Bell denies it is earning excessive profits and has asked the PUC to approve its "Texas First" plan to freeze rates for five years, upgrade service and obtain more regulatory flexibility.

Ms. Trostle cited the expense of a lengthy rate case in granting the postponement. Estimates are Southwestern Bell's case could last six months or longer.

Two rewards offered by anonymous donor

DALLAS (AP) — Police say an anonymous donor has offered two $25,000 rewards for information leading to the arrest and indictment of those responsible for a series of attacks on children in two Dallas neighborhoods.

The reward was posted anonymously Monday morning, Deputy Police Chief Lowell Cannaday said at a news conference.

Two children were abducted as they walked to school in Oak Cliff last week and driven elsewhere, where they were raped. In each case, the assailant drove them back and let them off in the vicinity where they had been picked up.

An intruder has broken into four homes in far north Dallas late at night and abducted four young girls. In three of the cases, the victims were sexually assaulted.

"We're at the same place we were a week ago on the north Dallas case and we do have several leads we're pursuing," Cannaday said.

Investigators say they believe the north Dallas and Oak Cliff attacks are unrelated.

The Oak Cliff assailant apparently has been driving a white pickup, said Cannaday. He said the girls have given investigators a partial license plate of "776."

The victims in the north Dallas attacks were all white, ages 7 to 10, and the victims in the Oak Cliff attacks in far south Dallas were all black, ages 10 to 15, he said. The most recent attack occurred Jan. 19.

Cannaday said he hoped the rewards would encourage people to come forward.

Protesters block bus station

DALLAS (AP) — Some participants in a wheelchair protest that disrupted bus service at a terminal here compare their struggle to the early days of the civil rights movement.

About 40 people in wheelchairs disrupted bus service at the downtown Greyhound terminal Monday. Some chained themselves to buses to protest lack of access to buses.

Members of American Disabled for Accessible Public Transportation protested for about an hour. The demonstration broke up when police arrested about 25 protesters for refusing to move from their positions in front of, behind and alongside incoming and departing buses.

"If they've got to arrest us, they're just doing what they have to do. I've been arrested before," Tom Pugh of El Paso said.

Protest organizers carried placards with slogans against Greyhound, which has lobbied against proposed federal legislation that would require them to install wheelchair lift devices on all their buses.

"It's the same as Martin Luther King. He knew his people would be arrested when they marched through Alabama or wherever. But the message has to go out, and this is one way of doing it," said Pugh.

Monday's protests followed a similar demonstration Sunday outside a meeting of the American Bus Association here.

Association members oppose the federal legislation requiring wheelchair lifts because commercial bus lines can't afford to install the lifts on all buses, said Michele Trull, spokeswoman for the bus association.

Authorities broke the chains of at least three people who had themselves attached to the wheels of buses. But two protesters threw themselves out of their wheelchairs and had to be carried by police.

Greyhound had tried to negotiate with the group in the past but was rejected, Liz Hale, spokeswoman for the bus line, said.

Classifying symptoms of hypoglycemia

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A few years ago, I was diagnosed with hypoglycemia. Can you tell me in detail what you know about this disease, how it is diagnosed, and what might result from it?

DEAR READER: Hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) was, until recently, a "fad" illness. It is characterized by symptoms of fatigue, faintness, nervousness, palpitations and hunger that appear when the blood sugar falls.

I say "fad" illness because many otherwise healthy, tense people were previously incorrectly diagnosed as "hypoglycemic." For example, we now know that people can experience symptoms of hypoglycemia and have normal blood sugars. Conversely, normal adults often have low blood sugar levels that cause no symptoms whatsoever.

Hypoglycemia is now diagnosed by strict guidelines: the presence of definite symptoms that correspond to a measured blood sugar of 45 milligrams per deciliter or less. Thus, nervous and hungry people with low to normal blood sugars are no longer classed as hypoglycemic, nor are symptom-free patients with low blood sugars.

Hypoglycemia is real; it does exist. But is far less prevalent than previously thought. True hypoglycemia can be serious because if the low sugar is not corrected, the brain is temporarily deprived of nutrition and unconsciousness can result. Patients with hypoglycemia should be investigated for insulin-secreting tumors of the pancreas, using blood tests and ultrasound.

If the problem is so-called "reactive" hypoglycemia and no pancreatic tumor is present, patients can usually control their symptoms by avoiding sugar and alcohol, eating frequent high-protein meals and drinking fruit juice to alleviate symptoms.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hypoglycemia." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a bronchial tube infection. My doctor has scheduled sputum cultures, X-rays, a biopsy and scans. I took TB medicine for three months, and he still can't determine what the spot is. I really need some advice.

DEAR READER: I'm not sure a bronchial infection is what concerns your doctor, who is quite properly looking into many possibilities. A sputum culture will indicate what type of microorganism is causing your infection; in fact, special cultures would even provide a diagnosis of tuberculosis, if that is your problem.

X-rays are a must, particularly special X-rays — such as a CT scan — if, as you state, you have a "spot" on your lung. A biopsy is usually performed at the time of bronchoscopy, when a specialist looks into the bronchial passageways with a flexible, fiberoptic tube.

I think your doctor is considering several conditions: infection, tuberculosis, scar tissue, pneumonia and tumor. Therefore, he can give you the most satisfactory advice. Wait for him to complete your scheduled tests, then request a full explanation and recommendations.
