Grandfield Leaders To Seek Frank Kell's Aid On Railroad

DIRECTORS OF LUBBOCK LINE COMING HERE

Oklahoma Directors of Long Proposed Road Determined to Build

PLANS IN READINESS

Sooner State Portion Given Special Attention By Grandfield Group

By C. W. ROGERS,
Record News Staff Correspondent

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Feb. 5.—The determination of the citizenship of Grandfield to secure construction of an east and west rail line through the rich Red river territory in Tillman and Cotton counties has again found expression, according to Tom Patterson, editor of the Grandfield Enterprise.

A delegation of Grandfield business men headed by R. P. Reagan, city manager, will go to Wichita Falls within a few days for the purpose of enlisting the interest of Frank Kell in the proposed railroad, which has been in contemplation for the last 10 years and for which Oklahoma and Texas charters were granted in 1926, specified as the Ardmore, Vernon and Lubbock Railway company.

$15,000 Already Spent

"Grandfield has expended more than $15,000 in promotion of the project," said Editor Patterson, "and we do not intend to abandon our efforts so long as there is hope of securing a permit to build from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Developments in rail construction in Texas may interfere with the completion of the Texas end of the line. Be that as it may, we want a line from Davidson to Ardmore, through Grandfield, that will give us better rail connections and a connection at Ardmore with the Frisco that will afford a short route into St. Louis."

Bonds Are Printed

The Grandfield railroad builders are prepared to go into action without delay, it was said. Support of all towns along the proposed route, both in Oklahoma and Texas, has been assured; charters continue valid and in full force and effect, the directorate remains intact and $10,000,000 bonds have been printed and are ready when required.

The directors and trustees of the Oklahoma corporation include: R. L. Winchell, R. W. Lindsey, Grandfield; George Legate, Wilson; Har-

Northcott Denies Murder Charges From Stand

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Feb. 5. (UP)—Gordon Stewart Northcott denied from the witness stand at his trial today that he killed any of the four boys whose deaths are charged to him.

Acting as his own attorney, the youth questioned himself concerning each of the slayings and denied them in turn.

"Did you kill Nelson Winslow?" he asked himself.

"I did not," he replied.

He followed the same procedure in denying that he had murdered Lewis Winslow, Nelson's brother, Walter Collins and an unidentified Mexican.

'Blind Flying' Takes Hawks Across U. S. In Record Time

By ROBERT H. WILLSON
Universal Service Correspondent

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—Capt. Frank M. Hawks and his speed plane, the Air Express, landed at Roosevelt field today at 2:59:29 o'clock p. m. to claim a new record for a transcontinental non-stop flight. He had lowered the previous record established by Art Goebel and the late Harry Tucker by 36 minutes and one second.

It was a thrilling story the pilot told simply enough as he "un-froze" himself from the control at which he had remained for more than 18 hours.

In his race against time he had spanned more than half the continent without a sight of land. From Roswell, N. M., to the mountains of West Virginia he had driven the staunch Lockheed into swirling masses of dense fog and clouds, guided only by compass and altometer.

As to the peril he encountered in those long hours of blind driving he merely said:

"There were times when I thought I'd be mighty lucky to get down alive."

In the cabin Oscar E. Grubb, mechanic, fared worse than Captain Hawks who sat in an open cockpit. He was sick, two of his fingers froze and hope was chilled as the roaring motor tore into a milky sea that had no top or bottom.

Captain Hawks was very hungry when he landed, having been too busy to eat even a sandwich, but he was more thankful to be on land than he was hungry. He cheerfully took the time to go over the details of the flight before he ate. He said:

"We got away from the Municipal airport at Los Angeles with a good start and everything looked fine for the first few hours. We passed over Arizona in good weather and were making from 150 to 180 miles an hour. Then at Roswell we encountered our first taste of fog and clouds.

"It was so bad at that time I was almost persuaded to turn back. I did not expect it to be all roses. Now that it is over I don't see how it could have been much worse. This is a treacherous time of year to go out for records.

Eyed His Compass

"I tried to get up over the clouds. At Roswell I began to climb and traveled at altitudes ranging from 8,000 to 14,000 feet. I saw nothing. That lasted for 12 hours. I kept my eye on the compass and tried to stay on the course.

"At 8 o'clock this morning I caught the first sight of land. It was mountainous country and I immediately saw that I was over West Virginia. This was some distance to the south of my course which should have brought me over Ken-

BREMEN FLYER DIES IN BERLIN

Operation Fails to Save Baron von Huenefeld

BERLIN, Feb. 5. (UP)—Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld, who made the first East to West non-stop flight across the Atlantic ocean with two others, in the airplane Bremen, died here today.

Von Huenefeld's death came suddenly after an operation for stomach trouble. It had been announced that the operation was successful.

The baron had undergone two previous operations.

Von Huenefeld was backer of the Bremen flight from Berlin, to Greenley Island, off the Southern coast of Labrador in the straits of Belle Isle. The flight ended in a forced landing April 13, 1928, but the German aviation enthusiast had accomplished a trans-ocean flight—from Ireland to the ice covered island—that had balked aviators for years.

Credit for the flight went to Capt. Herman Koehl and Commandant James Fitzmaurice, the co-pilots of the Bremen, but it was Von Huenefeld's determination that made it possible. He had put virtually all of his money in the project, it was said.

Later, having learned to pilot a plane himself, he abandoned his role of passenger and, with two companions, made a long and dangerous flight from Germany to Tokio, via India.

His plane was damaged at Tokio and he returned to Germany by train.

Air Piloting of Lindbergh Puts Two More Nations on New Mail Route

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 5. (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today tied two more Central American countries into the rapidly extending air mail service. He landed his amphibian plane here at 2:45 p. m., central standard time, after a flight which began at Belize, British Honduras, at 9:10 a. m. The first 125 miles to Tela, Honduras, were flown in one hour and a half and after refueling he covered nearly 500 miles more.

In two days the aviator who first demonstrated the time saving of air travel in countries adjacent to the Caribbean has put in operation two thirds of the new route from Miami to Panama which hereafter is to have fortnightly service. Yesterday he visited Cuba before settling down for the night at Belize.

Neither mountains nor rebels presented difficulties to Lindbergh during the overland portion of his flight today. Last year some apprehension was felt when he flew across northern Nicaragua but that section now is quiet. Despite the colonel's efforts to make the present journey a purely business affair he was greeted by crowds here fully as enthusiastic as those which feted him last night in Belize.

Tomorrow he faces an 800-mile flight to Cristobal, Canal Zone, by way of Costa Rica.

Texas Quicksands Trapped Mastodon

CANADIAN, Texas, Feb. 5. (AP)—The quicksands of the Canadian river, which claimed many cattle in the old trail driving days, apparently were just as treacherous seven or eight million years ago, according to members of the University of California expedition which is searching for fossils of prehistoric animals near here.

R. A. Stirton, curator of the museum of paleontology at the university, who heads the expedition, said that his party expected to find the bones of many camels, rhinoceroses, three toed horses and mastodons, trapped in the treacherous quicksands centuries ago.

PAIR ESCAPES SUNKEN U-BOAT

Men Leave S-4 From Far Beneath Surface

ABOARD U. S. S. MALLARD, Feb. 5 (By Radio) (UP)—A bobbing head in the water above the spot where the submarine S-4 was submerged today told naval officers and observers that the most hazardous undersea test ever undertaken was a success.

The first man ever to leave a submerged submarine accomplished the feat today with no untoward incident. From the depths of the Gulf of Mexico, Chief Torpedoman Edward Kolinoski shot to the surface of the water after leaving the undersea craft through a safety door in its hull. While rising to the surface, the daring volunteer breathed freely by means of a "lung," the gas-mask-like invention of Lieut. C. B. Momsen, who followed him to the surface a few moments later, similarly equipped.

Discarding his invention, Lieutenant Momsen donned a regular diving suit and lowered himself to the ocean floor. Kolinoski trailed him to the bottom a few seconds later. Five minutes elapsed—moments of intense suspense, and then a signal from the submarine announced that both men had successfully reentered the submerged craft through the safety hatch, closing it behind them.

The S-4 disappeared below the water off Key West at 11:30 a. m. today while anxious eyes followed its course until out of eyesight in the gulf waters. A small launch put out from the Mallard while the crew of the vessel peered at the spot where the submersible disappeared. Long minutes went by. Suddenly a black buoy rose to the surface and officers knew the exit hatch had been opened.

Cheers from the crew greeted Kolinski as he hurtled to the surface. He calmly paddled about until picked up by the launch. Momsen was similarly greeted as he shot to the surface.

Wichita Boy Named to Annapolis; Burk and Vernon Youths Alternates

Raymond Strong, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Strong, 2009 Elizabeth, has been appointed to Annapolis, national naval academy, according to word received Tuesday from Rep. Guinn Williams. Grady M. Ragsdale of Burkburnett, Perry L. Jones of Decatur, and Robert N. Robertson of Vernon, were named as alternates.

Young Strong graduated from the Wichita Falls high school with high honors in 1927. He spent one year of study at the Wichita Falls Junior college before entering the University of Texas, where he is now a student.

In addition to high scholastic standards maintained during his work in the Junior college, the boy attracted widespread attention for his distinguished work with the Blue Curtain club, college dramatic organization. His college activities included work in public speaking, debating and extempore speaking, in all of which he attained unusual recognition. In the Junior college state tournament in the presentation of one act plays, held in Gainesville, Strong was chosen one of the five best players in all the casts.

He took his examinations in January and is expecting to enter training in July.

Representative Williams also announced the name of William T. Foster of Sunset, as principal appointee to West Point, with William H. Bowers of Saint Jo and Oren Swain of Bridgeport as alternates. Porter won the highest grade in the examinations, being awarded 81.23 per cent.

SENATE VOTES TO CONSTRUCT 16 WARSHIPS

Cruiser Bill Given Huge Majority in Final Ballot Late Tuesday

COST 270 MILLION

House Expected to Promptly Accept Measure For Big Naval Increase

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 (UP)—The navy bill authorizing construction of 15 new cruisers and one aircraft carrier at a total cost of $274,000,000 passed the senate today by a vote of 58 to 12.

With the exception of one amendment recommending negotiation of treaties with leading maritime powers to regulate ocean traffic in wartime, the senate bill is virtually the same as the measure passed by the house last spring.

Goes to House

The measure now goes back to the house for concurrence. Prompt acceptance of the senate amendment is expected. The bill will then go to the White House for consideration of the president.

It was learned on good authority today that President Coolidge plans to sign the measure despite the defeat of an amendment he recommended which would strike out the so-called time clause. This provision required that the 15 ships shall be built within the next three years.

"Big Navy" Victory

Passage of the bill by such a large majority was a victory for the "big navy" faction in the senate, which has been frustrated since last spring in repeated attempts to get action on the long-pending authorization.

Opponents of the naval program had to content themselves with the amendment proposing negotiations to define "freedom of the seas" and treaties pledging the great nations to respect this freedom.

Amendment Changed

The amendment as first proposed by Senator Borah, Idaho Republican, merely stated the desire of the senate for a restatement and recodification of maritime law but was changed at the instance of Senator Reed, Missouri Democrat, specifically calling for negotiations of treaties to carry out its purpose.

The vote, taken on the Reed substitute for the Borah amendment, was 81 to 1. Senator Bruce, Maryland Democrat, cast the one dissenting vote.

The bill provides for construction of five 10,000-ton cruisers a year for the next three years at a cost of $17,000,000 each and an airplane carrier at a cost of $19,000,000.

In case the disarmament conference of 1931 is successful, the bill authorizes the president to alter the buildings program to suit any agreement reached.

Dinsmore Denies Pupils Patronized "Speakeasy"

Only Four Out of 600 Students in Liquor Episode, Says Electra Superintendent; Indictments Followed Probe

Denial of the existence of a "school boy speakeasy" in Electra was made Tuesday to the Record News By B. M. Dinsmore superintendent of schools at Electra, in a statement to the Record News.

The statement follows a story published in the Record News more than a week ago, reporting an investigation of the alleged speakeasy by parents and school officials, working with the district attorney and the sheriff of the county. Mr. Dinsmore declared in his statement that only four of the 600 students in the Electra high school were implicated in the reports of whisky drinking.

Indictments were returned against three Electra residents by the grand jury here last week, following the investigation made earlier in Electra.

Gives History

Mr. Dinsmore's complete statement follows:

"The Electra High school has no speakeasy. Electra High school students are not permitted to leave Electra High school building between classes except when they receive permission to go home on account of illness or upon the request of their parents. Electra High school students are not even permitted to go across the street to the stores for any school supplies between classes. Last Saturday morning the Wichita Falls Record News reported that there existed, within a few blocks of the school building, a joint or "speakeasy" where the school children apparently were free to visit between class periods during school hours. Investigation does not warrant that statement.

School Investigation

"Here is the truth of the whole matter: two boys attending the Electra High school bought two pints of 'booze' from two 'bootleggers.' One boy took one-half pint to school, the other boy and one of his friends drank the other one-half pint, and then went to school. All of this was soon detected by the Electra High school officials. In an effort to stop this sale of 'booze' to boys the superintendent of the schools called a meeting of the parents of these boys, Mayor Ragland, and Chief of Police Jim Taylor. Mayor Ragland invited the district attorney and the sheriff's department. At the meeting these facts were brought out and those present agreed to keep the facts developed a secret so that justice might be had in the enforcement of the law.

"Of the 600 students in the Electra High school just four have been implicated in drinking liquor. These tried it only one time. Searching investigation has failed to reveal any more liquor cases among any Electra High school students. These facts make the Wichita Falls Record News report unfair to the Electra High school."

Dallas Radio Amateur Has Chat With Operator of Byrd Expedition

DALLAS, Feb. 5. (UP)—A Dallas amateur radio operator established a two way communication with the Commander Richard Byrd expedition that lasted two hours Jan. 27, the operator announced today. In this period, the amateur, Thomas R. Gentry, exchanged greetings with the polar expedition 8,000 miles to the south and received unofficial news as to the plans of the party.

Shortly before midnight a week ago Sunday, Gentry flashed the following message from his station W5RG:

"Good evening, old man, very glad to talk with you and thank you for calling me. How do you receive me?"

From Byrd's commercial radio station came the answer: "All correct your signals, fine business here, old boy—weather here very cold but good for distant radio contact."

After the Byrd operator had sent several messages to be relayed, the two stations gossiped as to the progress of the expedition. Gentry was told that the expedition was about to penetrate into the icy wilderness with a sending set of only 500 watts which will prevent such communication again.

Gentry told his conversationalist that he had attended a theater earlier that night in which he heard a transmission of a message from the Byrd expedition over a talking news reel.

EINSTEIN IDEA REFUTED HERE

Cantwell Calls Scientist's Hand on Theory

Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of Wichita Falls city schools, Tuesday night attacked the Einstein theory on space at a meeting of the Wichita Falls Technical club.

Where Dr. Einstein's theory is generally that space is a reality with boundaries, Dr. Cantwell says that space is simply space and that it has no boundaries.

Flim on Atom

His address was one of the two features of the meeting of the club which was held at the Wichita club. In direct contrast to Dr. Cantwell's talk on the inconceivable vastness of everything, a motion picture was shown which delved into the realm of things too small for the human eye to detect. The film was called "Beyond the Microscope" and went into the detailed construction of the atom, the formation of water by hydrogen and oxygen atoms, and similar little known facts.

Dr. Cantwell said that the completion and use of a new 100-inch telescope had given a tremendous impetus to astronomy and also had resulted in a more general agreement among astronomers on distances and formations of stars.

800 Planetoids Listed

He said that in the past it was believed there was nothing between Jupiter and Mars in relation to the Sun, but that now more than 800 planetoids are listed there.

P. A. Cordell presided at the meeting. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lusk of the Iowa Park state experiment station; J. B. Thomas of Dallas, chief engineer of the Texas Power and Light company, and a group of teachers from the Wichita Falls Junior college.

ESCAPED TEXAS SLAYER KILLS BOSS AND SELF

Tom Ross, Sought Since Daring Escape, Suicides In Cattle Camp

KILLED INSPECTORS

Milt Good Convicted With Ross for Death of Two Association Men

HAVRE, Mont., Feb. 5 (AP)—A man known as Charles Cannon, but identified as Tom Ross, formerly of Texas, shot and killed himself in one of the buildings of the Frye Cattle company, in Glacier county, near Browning, Sunday night after killing R. C. Hayward, also an employe of the company, according to word received here today. Ross had been employed as a foreman by the cattle company but had been succeeded by Hayward.

According to two eye witnesses and meager information received here, Hayward and Ross got into an argument over the methods Ross had used in carrying out his work.

As Hayward walked from the room after the argument, Ross pulled a gun and killed him. He then held the witnesses prisoners for more than an hour, they said, after which he went to an adjoining room and killed himself.

AUSTIN, Feb. 5. (UP)—Tom Ross, wanted since his spectacular escape from the Huntsville penitentiary Nov. 24, 1923 is dead in Canada, near Great Falls, Mont., according to a telegram received tonight by Ranger Captain Tom Hickman.

The telegram said Ross had killed another man and then killed himself.

The telegram gives the named "Charles" Ross alias Charles Gannot. Hickman says the name "Charles Gannon" was used by Tom Ross after his escape. The telegram was from an officer who had been keeping Hickman posted on Ross' movements in Montana while Hickman was arranging to get there to re-arrest Ross.

Sensational Escape

Ross and Milt Good made the most sensational escape in the history of the Texas prison after killing two Texas cattle inspectors.

At the time of their escape, Good was a penitentiary orderly. Ross and another prisoner inflamed their mouths with pepper to run a temperature and were sent to the hospital where Good was orderly.

When hospital guards were changed, Good asked permission to get some wood. He picked up a stick and felled one guard. Thrusting the other guard inside and locking the door, the prisoners ran out, scaled the wall with a ladder and escaped in an automobile which had been kept waiting near the prison several nights.

Good Recaptured

Ranger Hickman later recaptured Good near Idabell, Okla. Ross then in Oklahoma escaped.

Ross was under 51 year sentence for killing H. L. Robertson and David Allison, inspectors of the Texas Cattle Raisers association, in a hotel at Seminole, Texas, on Easter Sunday, 1921. The inspectors were there to appear before a grand jury. Mrs. Robertson, now matron of the San Antonio city hospital, heard the shots, rushed out of her room and with a pistol, wounded both Good and Ross. The men were tried at Lubbock and at Abilene and both sent to the penitentiary.

According to information sent to Ranger Hickman, Ross' body is being sent to Levington, N. M.

COURT DROPS CONTEMPT CASE

Martin Approves Efforts Of City Manager

Judge P. A. Martin Tuesday afternoon held George D. Fairtrace, city manager, not guilty of contempt of court through the alleged violation of an injunction restraining the city from the pollution of the water of Wichita river by the bestowal of sewage and from dumping offensive garbage on the river banks.

"The testimony here has not led me to believe that a man occupying Mr. Fairtrace's position would willfully and intentionally disobey the order of the court," Judge Martin said.

Hears Arguments

The ruling came at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon after a hearing upon an affidavit offered by D. G. Whitney, land owner, alleging that Mr. Fairtrace had failed to comply with the terms of an injunction granted by Judge E. G. Thornton last August to become effective Oct. 1. Judge Martin ruled after he had heard the demands of J. B. Hatchitt, attorney for the plaintiff, that Mr. Fairtrace be held in contempt and placed in jail, and had listened to the answering charges of Thelbert Martin, city attorney, charging the plaintiffs with seeking the injunction and the contempt citation only to further a pending law suit for damages against the city.

Judge Martin preceeded his ruling by an assertion that he, with a citizen's pride, wanted the sewage problem adequately and decently disposed of. He declared that in view of sharp differences in the testimony offered by the opposing sides, the "most charitable view the court could take would be the belief that the condition of the dumping grounds was altered between the inspections of the city manager and those of the witness for the plaintiff."

Testimony during the Tuesday morning session tended to show that the plaintiff's main complaint lay in the alleged bestowal of organic and offensive matter on the city garbage dump rather than in the method of handling sewage disposal. Attention of the court was centered on that especial aspect of the problem.

Officials Testify

W. I. Cameron, witness for Mr. Whitney, testified that he had inspected the dump twice weekly since the granting of the injunction and that he had failed to see any improvement in its condition. Mr. Fairtrace and Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the city water department, and R. H. Sheffield, foreman of the incinerating plant, were the principal witnesses for the city. They testified that the capacity of the disposal plant had been increased from 5,000,000 to 9,000,000 gallons since the granting of the injunction and that the incinerating plant is adequate. Mr. Fairtrace told the court that he had personally inspected the dump at frequent intervals and had seen to it that his orders for carrying out the court's instructions had been obeyed.

In commenting on this part of the testimony Judge Martin said that from Mr. Fairtrace's testimony he believed that part of the city manager's "official duty had been well carried out."

tucky. I veered then somewhat to the north and soon was lost again in clouds which were almost like a white wall.

"From that time on I held to a lower attitude and felt pretty sure of my course. We plowed through sleet and snow.

"I was glad to look down in the early afternoon and see some cities and towns rather thickly clustered. I knew I was over New Jersey and opened the throttle a little wider. The air cleared soon and after that it was an easy finish.

New Cowling Success

"We had a wonderful experience with the new type of cowling, which cuts down resistence, as well as with our Pratt and Whitney wasp motor. The motor was perfectly steady all the way and cool. The new cowling also helped with our oiling system which never rose above 70 degrees centigrade."

The Air Express is a monoplane with a wing-spread of 45 feet. It has a red fuselage and silver wings and a peculiar appearance because of the cone-shaped cowl. The pilot's seat is in the open behind the cabin.

Captain Hawks surprised the spectators at Roosevelt field by stepping from the cockpit, throwing off a racoon overcoat and displaying himself attired in a gray business suit, shoes well-polished, gray spats and hardly a wrinkle showing. When he put on a hat he might easily have stepped from a Pullman car.

Mrs. Hawks on Field

Mrs. Hawks was on the field to greet her husband. Their home is at the Park Crescent hotel, on Riverside drive. William Brook, of transatlantic fame, was also there and officials of the plane and motor and Texas oil companies. The spectators numbered only about one hundred all told but they rushed down upon the field and had the plane surrounded when it came to a stop.

Grubb, the mechanic, is making his first visit to the east. He recovered from the effects of the gas in the cabin and was eager to be off at once to see the sights of New York.

Captain Hawks will spend two days at his home here and will then go to Detroit.

As a mascot on the trip a woolly top-shop dog occupied a prominent place in the cabin of the plane. Grubb said it would have been no humane place for a live dog.

The plane was taken to Curtis field soon after its arrival for an inspection. It still had enough gasoline on board for two or three hours of flying, having consumed about 400 gallons on the trip.

Indian Millionaire's Paleface Wife Refuses to Tell Her Story to Solon

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (AP)—Mrs. Jackson Barnett, "paleface" wife of the wealthy Creek Indian who came into a fortune when oil gushed from his Oklahoma farm, stood on her constitutional rights again today and declined for a second time to waive immunity before a senate committee investigating her marriage.

While her bronzed and smiling husband loitered in an ante room within earshot of the proceedings Mrs. Barnett heard her attorney read a statement in which he asserted that right and announced that while she was willing to testify without oath she refused to tell anything about the marriage that might incriminate her.

"That's all there is to it then," Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, declared, and the hearing was adjourned for the day as the woman's attorney, Charles B. Rogers, of Tulsa, Okla., was reminded that he had promised to give the committee his version of the wedding and the events that followed it. He is expected to testify probably some time next week.

"You will be asked to waive immunity also," Wheeler told Rogers, and the attorney replied that he would "answer that when he appeared" although he later changed his mind and said he would waive immunity. The committee wanted to hear from Mrs. Barnett, a fashionably dressed brunette, an account of the marriage which has been discribed as a "kidnaping" and the subsequent disposal of the Indian's estate estimated at more than $1,000,000. The money was divided between the American Baptist Home Missionary society and the wife under a "donation" approved by the bureau of Indian affairs. The division later was set aside by the courts.

Wheeler read into the record a telegram from John Fitzgerald, Omaha newspaperman, in which he said he would appear to testify if subpoenaed.

"As staff correspondent of the Daily Oklahoman" the telegram said, "I chased Jackson Barnett when his present wife first kidnaped him. Spent five hours with them in hotel at Coffeyville, Kan., the day after they had been married at Parsons. The Indian was then being guarded by two sheriff deputies hired by attorneys for the woman. He had no conception of what had taken place, was a very childish old fellow and worried only about some fishing which had been promised him. It was obvious his new wife had trapped him. Will appear before your committee if subpoenaed. I have never been questioned in this matter and have never testified in any of the proceedings."

Wheeler said that Fitzgerald would be summoned to testify.

ry Mason, Les K. Johnson, Vernon; N. Y. Bicknell, Crosbyton; H. E. Ferguson and J. W. Bell, Crowell.

Texas Directors

Directors of the Texas corporation include: R. W. Lindsey, R. L. Winchell, Grandfield; J. H. Hinkle, Ardmore, R. M. Fielder, R. H. Coffee, Harry Mason, Les K. Johnson, Vernon; J. W. Bell and H. E. Ferguson, Crowell.

The project as originally conceived, and set forth in the charters, proposes the construction of a rail line to connect Ardmore, Okla., and Lubbock, Texas, passing through the counties of Carter, Jefferson, Cotton and Tillman in Oklahoma, and through the counties of Wilbarger, Foard, Cottle, Motley, Dickens, Crosby, King and Lubbock in Texas, and through or near the cities of Ardmore, Grandfield, Vernon, Crowell and Lubbock, said line being approximately 265 miles in length."

Preliminary Survey Made

Prior to application for charter a preliminary survey of the proposed route was made by J. Warren Sparks, civil engineer of Wichita Falls.

It was recommended that the projected company buy the rail line extending westward from Ardmore a distance of 32 miles, known as "the Ringling road," or negotiate a joint track agreement.

From the western terminus of "the Ringling road" construction would be extended to Weurika, 25 miles, thence along Cash creek to Randlett, 27 miles; to Grandfield, 16 miles and from Grandfield 26 miles to a connection with the Frisco at Davidson, Okla.

The recommendation was made that joint track agreement be negotiated with the Frisco for the 14.5 miles of that line to Vernon, Texas.

Other towns named on the line of proposed construction were: Thalia, Foard county; Chalk, Cottle county; Grow, King county; Guthrie, King county; Dickens, Dickens county. The distance from Dickens to Crosbyton is 28 miles. At Crosbyton a Santa Fe branch extends 43 miles into Lubbock. It was recommended that this branch be purchased or joint track agreement negotiated.

The engineer recommended that shops and roundhouses be established at Vernon in his original report.

YATES RAILWAY BEGINS SOON

Oil Field Outlet Will Be Started by Spring

FORT WORTH, Feb. 5. (UP)—Construction work on the Yates and West Texas railway, new line to the oil fields of Pecos county, will begin by early spring, it was indicated here today.

W. A. Moncrief, president of the board said that surveys for the new road already were under way and that construction blue prints were ready.

The plea of the road for permission to carry interstate shipments was presented to the interstate commerce commission in January.

Although the organizers of the railroad expect little opposition, it is expected that Santa Fe officials will take an important place in the I. C. C. hearing, inasmuch as the line will tap Santa Fe at Rankin.

The Santa Fe line through West Texas is the Kansas City, New Mexico, and Orient, which it recently purchased.

Although the contract will call for construction in six months, Moncrief said that the road probably would be completed in four and a half months.

The Yates and West Texas will be 23 miles in length, with its southern terminus at Iraan, in the Yates oil field.

Later, the line will be extended south to Sheffield, Pecos county.

Sometime in the future, Moncrief predicts, the Yates and West Texas may be carried on south to a juncture with the Southern Pacific.

The road probably will purchase four engines and two or three combination baggage and passenger cars in addition to freight equipment.

NO LONGER SUFFERS OLD TORTURING PAIN

Lady Says She Was Unable to Find Anything to Relieve Her Until She Took Cardue, "A Wonderful Help."

Ceredo, W. V.—In telling how she was benefited by taking Cardui, Mrs. Pearlie Yelkey, of this place, says:

"At one time, I had a very serious spell which left me weak. At times I would suffer such intense pains across my back and in my side that I could hardly stand it.

"I endured this over and over again. Every time the pains were worse than before.

"I was in despair because nothing helped me. I tried several remedies, but I continued to suffer.

"One day, I read about Cardui. Other women told how they had gotten strong and well after taking it, so I was inspired to try it. I have often been thankful for that day, for after I had taken Cardui for awhile, I felt like a different human being.

"It did not seem possible, but I did not suffer the old, torturing pains, and I really felt well. I can heartily recommend Cardui, for I know how much I improved after I took it. Since then, I have taken it several times when I have needed a tonic, and I have always been benefited. It is a wonderful help." For sale by druggists, everywhere

DANIEL QUITS COUNCIL RACE

Second Petition Filed For R. O. Harvey

Roy Daniel, former member of the Texas house of representatives, withdrew from the race for the Wichita Falls city council Tuesday afternoon. His withdrawal followed the filing earlier in the day of a petition on behalf of R. O. Harvey for place three on the council. This is the same place for which Mr. Daniel's petition had been filed with the city clerk.

A former petition circulated for Mr. Harvey was withdrawn last week by its circulator when it was discovered that the petition read place "two" instead of place "three."

Mr. Daniel's withdrawal from the race leaves only one petition now filed for each of the three aldermanic vacancies in April. Mr. Harvey's petition is for place three now held by Roy Carter. J. M. Spoonts has filed for place two, now held by Leon L. Deaton, and C. E. McCutchen has filed for place one, now held by Oral Jones.

Her Engagement Announced Tuesday

Miss Harriett Peterson whose engagement and approaching marriage to Woodward Bass was announced at a bridge party given by her mother, Mrs. C. E. Peterson, Tuesday afternoon.

Strangers Are Easier to Live With Than Their Family, for Some People

"When We Sing, 'There Is No Place Like Home,' Most of Us Are Precious Glad There Isn't—For Strangers Are a Lot Easier to Live With Than Your Family."

The other day a young woman, the daughter of an old friend, came to see me. I had remembered her as a stormy-browed, irritable, discontented girl, but I found her calm, poised, good-natured and content with life. "Oh, yes," she said in reply to my inquiry, "I am thoroughly happy and satisfied, because I have gotten away from home and mother. That sounds beastly ungrateful and unfilial, and I don't mean it that way. In reality I have a lot of sentiment about my home, and I am devoted to my mother. But home was just a perpetual battleground, while here I live at peace with all the world, and I find it so pleasant and restful. Mother's love took the form of never-ending nagging that fretted my nerves to fiddle-strings, while here nobody interferes with me.

"Believe me, when we sing, 'There is no place like home' most of us are precious glad there isn't and, taking them by-and large, strangers are a lot easier to live with than your own family.

You know mother, and you know she is one of those good mothers who never give their children as much liberty as a fly has under a glass. From the time we were born she had a thought for anything but us children, and she has never let us have a thought for ourselves if she could help it. She has supervised our uprisings and our downsittings, and regulated every act of our lives. She decided what we ate, and what we wore, and when we went to bed, and whom we knew, and what we read, and generally told us where we got on and where we got off.

"Perhaps this is well enough when one is a baby. Unfortunately, one does not always remain an infant in arms. In time I grew up, and went off to college and came home and got a job, but mother still regarded me as a feeble-minded babe utterly incapable of taking care of myself, or deciding any matter for myself, and I soon found that I had no more liberty than I would have had if I had been incarcerated in a house of detention.

"Every time I was a half hour late coming home from business I had to furnish an alibi. Every time I went out with a man at night I had to tell the exact hour at which I would return, and produce the man's pedigree, and as many references to his business and social standing as it would require to borrow money on at the bank. Mother felt she had a right to read all of my letters, and to listen in on all of my telephone calls.

"Every night she told me not to sit up late and read. Every morning she warned me how bad two cups of coffee were for my nerves. Every time I started out of the house she called after me to know if I had on my rubbers, and if I had on a thick enough coat, and warned me not to get run over by an automobile.

"Of course, I knew, when I stopped to think about it, that it was only love that prompted this incessant nagging, but it was like a pebble in the shoe, or the constant pricking of a pin, and it drove me wild. The result was that mother and I were in a constant fight and I was always saying things that hurt her feelings, and repenting them and apologizing, and both of us were utterly miserable.

"Then I got the chance to come here to work, and I grabbed it, and now that there are a thousand miles between us, mother and I are both happier, and better able to get a perspective on each other's virtues. We love each other better now that we don't rub each other the wrong way all the time.

"My case is not different from that of other girls. I don't know a single one of my friends who lives at home who isn't dissatisfied and longing to get away, and it isn't because any one of us wants to do anything that it wrong, or lead any sort of wild, untrammeled life, or do anything of which our mothers would really disapprove.

"It is just that we don't want to be nagged, and badgered, and put through a third degree questionnaire about everything we do and don't do. We want to have a little bit of personal liberty without having to fight for it. We want to be treated like reasonable, adult human beings instead of babies in bibs.

"Why mothers haven't intelligence enough themselves to realize this, I don't know. Apparently it never dawns on them that a girl who has enough gray matter in her head to take a college course and hold down a good job in a business house has sense enough to come in out of the rain. Nor do mothers ever realize how ridiculous it is to pry in on the correspondence of a girl who spends eight hours a day working side by side with every type of man.

"Why, every 17-year-old flapper who is making her own living knows more about men and how to take care of herself than her great-grandmother could tell her. No mother can chaperon her daughter these days. The girl has to watch her own step, and her mother has to trust her in the end, and it would be better for all concerned if she did it in the beginning.

"Take it from me the principal reason that girls leave home is because of mother's: 'Why are you so late? I thought your office closed at 5 o'clock. Why didn't you tell your employer that you couldn't stay and do some extra work because it made me anxious for you not to get home on time? Who is that young Smith who came home with you? Is he one of the Jones Smiths, or the Thompson Smiths? There is a letter postmarked in San Francisco for you. Who is writing to you from there? Why are you going out to the movies tonight? Don't you know you should go to bed at 10 o'clock when you have to get up at 7.' And so on, and so on, ad infinitum, and ad fightum.

"Girls used to marry to get away from home and mother, which, of course, was jumping out of the frying pan into the fire, but they didn't know it, poor dears. Anyway, it was the only possible chance they had at freedom and so they took the risk. We modern girls are luckier. We can go into business and get situations away from home and thus cut mamma's apron string.

"It is better for all concerned, for when mothers and daughters are no longer at close quarters they cease to irritate each other, and are liable to idealize each other as they cannot do when they are daily and hourly interfering with each other, and squabbling over everything from the length of skirts to what was proper in mother's day.

"When mother and I lived together she regarded me as an awful example of all that was worst in the younger generation. Now she looks upon me as little less than a pin-feathered angel. I could see nothing in her but a grinding tyrant. Now I behold her as a sort of Madonna in a shrine. It may be cynical, but it is true that nothing promotes family affection like distance, and the most devoted mothers and daughters are those who merely pay each other occasional visits."—DOROTHY DIX.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

SILK CURLS IS NEWEST RAGE

Artificial Locks Ordained In Mayfair

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES

LONDON, Feb. 5. (US)—Artificial silk curls! That's the answer of Mayfair dressmakers to the stark vision of milady's shingled, but unadorned, hair.

The dressmakers became all hot and bothered a short time ago over woman's shingled heads, and the edict went forth that the fashionable members of London society should wear something over their hair—preferably to match their evening gowns.

After long and mature deliberation, three plans were brought forth to correct the defect. First there was invented almost invisible circlets of brown silk net and tulle, with intriguing tendril curls of artificial silk stitched at the back on a piece of elastic.

Another chic idea is a pink silk bandeau with pink silk curls of braid at the back. The only trouble with this is the scarcity, in fact, the dearth, of women with pink hair to match. That may come, however, when the rage for snow white hair subside.

And then, if you want to go the whole distance, you may wear a sheer little sort of a cape-like contrivance of the absurdest fairy-like silk net, with just a suggestion of frilling of gold or silver at the nape which suggests curls.

Of these expedients, the first is most popular, being most practicable. Some of the curls attached to the circlets are the color of old mahogany furniture, very highly polished. Others are fair, and some are pure glistening white. The color of the circlet, or bandeau of tulle and net, is selected to match the curls.

The same spherical outline with which the modern artist depicts hair in fashion sketches is given to the curls, and may even look as if they were created with a few strokes of the pencil.

The bandeau part of these new additions for evening wear is almost invisible in most cases. Sometimes, however, a single or triple row of tiny diamante stones is fastened to the net.

A more elaborate bandeau is shaped like a Russian tiara in front, but is of the lightest and almost invisible brown silk. On this is worked lovely designs in tiny diamante. Of course, there are brown curls at the back.

PRODUCE PAYS AT GRANDFIELD

Cream, Eggs and Poultry Gain Importance

(By Staff Correspondent)

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Feb. 5.—"Three years ago not 10 cans of cream was received in Grandfield a week; now we are paying dairy farmers better than $20,000 a year for their product," said C. H. Schoff, manager of the Fuller Creamery company.

"Last year we paid farmers $120,000 for poultry, of which $26,000 was for turkeys," he added.

"Farmers who bring in cream, poultry and eggs regularly are never heard complaining of hard times. They have money in the bank.

"A conspicious example of successful and profitable poultry raising is shown in the record of Mrs. W. G. Crocker, widow, farming seven miles east of Grandfield. Mrs. Crocker has about 300 White Leghorn hens derived from the strain most favored on the M. Johnson poultry farm at Wichita Falls. She markets around 200 eggs daily and sometimes more.

"C. G. Miller, wheat farmer seven miles east of Grandfield, receives around $50 weekly for eggs and poultry, mostly eggs. He has about 350 Brown Leghorns.

"E. J. Samuels, wheat and feed grower eight miles east of Grandfield, is another man in the $50 class. He also derives additional revenue from the sale of baby chicks.

"Charlie Slack, farming to the west about six miles, grows cotton, wheat and feed and has considerable live stock around his place. His plan is to hatch off about 1,000 chicks at a time. When these reach frying size he sells all that do not look promising enough to keep. Non-laying hens are promptly culled and sold.

"The cow, sow and hen are adding to the prosperity of the community. We expect our business to double in volume in the next year or two."

News Dealer-Magistrate Has Hands Full Supplying Justice and News

(By Staff Correspondent)

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Feb. 5.—T. J. Patterson Sr., in addition to acting as agent for The Record News and Wichita Daily Times in Grandfield, keeps the books in the newspaper office conducted by his sons—it's a sizeable plant, too—and acts as magistrate and justice of the peace. This last task is no small one; Grandfield has a population of around 2,500.

In his judicial capacity, Judge Patterson is said to dispense justice according to his own idea, which is to apply the law of reason to every case. Mild offenders are leniently dealt with; others get what is coming to them.

Among his experiences the judge tells of a trick that was played on him by a negro woman charged with possession of liquor. The defendant earnestly protested that she was given the liquor by some Samaritan she couldn't remember to be used as "cold medicine." She vowed that she had "an awful misery." When the judge suggested that a little snort might help her "cold" the woman promptly destroyed the evidence by drinking the entire pint. It did not faze her and she got off light.

Judge Patterson has only one prejudice that is known—he hates a chicken thief and declares that in his opinion these should be hanged, if convicted.

Decorators of District to Meet Here as Guests of Wichita Firm

A buffet luncheon, with an impressive menu, is being prepared for the guests. The party will be held at 7:30 o'clock in the grill room of the Kemp hotel.

Tyler to Vote On Airport Bonds

TYLER, Texas, Feb. 5. (UP)—As a special feature of the campaign for the bond issue to be voted on here Feb. 14, one section of which provides for $25,000 to be used in the establishment of a municipal airport, Charles F. Pedley, manager of the Dallas branch of the Texas Air Transport company, and a number of officials of his company, flew here in an eight-passenger monoplane, and attended a mass meeting at the courthouse in the interest of the project.

Among the speakers was Pedley, who stated that Tyler on account of its location, 100 miles east of Dallas and 100 miles west of Shreveport, with the addition of the airport, would become one of the leading air centers in this part of the country. A commercial airplane service, including airmail, passenger and freight service, was likely for Tyler.

The Dallas visitors were traveling in an eight-passenger Stenson-Detroiter monoplane, the first time such a plane ever landed here.

Texas Senate Asked For $301,000 Appropriation

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 5 (UP)—A bill seeking an appropriation of $301,000 to bluild nine historical memorials in the state of Texas has been introduced into the senate by Senator Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock.

Under the provisions of this bill memorials would be erected at Fort Worth where General Worth established a fort to drive back the Indians, at Nacogdoches on the site of the first camp of Moses Austin, and at Goliad in commemoration of the Texans who died on the battlefield there.

This bill would erect a monument at Village Creek where John C. Denton fell in battle with Indians, and another at Indianola, the port through which the settlers entered Texas by sea.

Fort Phanton, where Gen Robert E. Lee founded the outpost of the United States army will be designated by a monument if this bill becomes enacted.

Jacksboro, headquarters of pioneer Texans while freeing the Lone Star state of Indians, the Kutch-Manning battle grounds of many Indian encounters in Young county, and Mount Blanco, first settlement of Hank Smith, will each receive a monument.

The bill provides that the governor is to appoint a committee of three to carry out the erection of the proposed monuments and it sets aside an item of $1,000 included in the appropriation, to be used as traveling expenses that will arise in carrying out the provisions of the measure.

New YEAST and IRON builds weight quickly. Your own druggist guarantees results—or pay nothing

Daily the letters pour in telling how Ironized Yeast has put on 5 to 15 pounds of good, solid flesh in few weeks. Has built up strength in nervous, tired people. Has cleared skins of ugly pimples and boils.

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial.

This yeast is treated with pure, vegetable iron, the same as found in spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast. By this special formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast or iron taken separately. Pleasant tablets, safe for everybody. Do not upset stomach or cause gas or bloating.

Don't have a skinny, weak body. Don't go around with an ugly skin. Go to your druggist today. Get a handy bottle of Ironized Yeast. If you are not delighted with the quick results, get your money back.—Adv.

There are many reasons for the ease of steering the new Ford

THE new Ford is exceptionally easy to steer because of the well-proportioned weight of the car, the steel-spoke wheels, the co-ordinated design of springs and shock absorbers, the size and design of the steering wheel, and the simple mechanical construction of the steering gear.

The Ford steering gear is of the worm and sector type used on high-priced cars and is three-quarter irreversible.

In simple, non-technical language, this means that the car responds easily and quickly to the steering wheel, yet there is no danger of the wheel being jerked from the hands of the driver by ruts or bumps in the road. A light touch guides the car, yet you always have that necessary feel-of-the-road so essential to good driving.

Strength of materials and careful workmanship give unusual stability to the Ford steering gear and housing.

The steering worm, for instance, is splined to the steering worm shaft and is stronger, of course, than if a single key were used to hold the shaft and worm together. The steering worm sector is forged and machined in the same piece with its shaft.

The housing of the steering gear mechanism is made of three steel forgings, electrically welded together. This housing is then electrically welded to the steering column. Such a one-piece steel unit is naturally much sturdier than if several parts were used and bolted or riveted together.

Throughout, the steering mechanism of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no attention.

The only thing for you to do is to have the front steering spindles, spindle connecting rods, and drag link lubricated every 500 miles and the steering gear lubricated every 2000 miles. This is easy to do because of the high pressure grease gun lubricator fittings provided for these parts.

For this work, you will find it best to consult the Ford dealer. He has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at the least trouble and expense.

Herbert Kaufman's
DIFFERENT CROOK STORY
Daily Editorial

SHE was a thief in her earliest 'teens—a pickpocket, a shoplifter, and, when occasion offered, a dabbler in easy marks—a crook by inclination and deliberate choice. She loved the game—its thrills, its risks, the clash of wits and the gambling odds.

She was an artist with the technique which stamps all eminent virtuosity.

Inspector Burns ranked her as the slickest-fingered, fastest-thinking "gon" in her field.

The toils of the law were forever twisting about her—and mostly in vain. Her fine touch was evident in a hundred brilliant coups. But it was a super-dick who managed to pin the goods on Sophie Lyons.

Her mob was the swellest outfit in the underworld—its aristocracy the great forgers, con men and safe-blowers of the nineties.

Generally, though, she played solitaire. The lone wolf doesn't have to share the kill. Besides, if there's a pack, there's usually a yelper.

Old-timers say she looked like a lady, dressed the role, intoned a perfect English. Where she got her gift of garb and mimicry Heaven alone remembers.

She never drank. Indulged in profanity nor committed a social error. She studied her parts too thoroughly to trip on such solecisms.

The whole Continent was her hunting ground. She forayed like a hawk, striking without a false stroke or misjudgment.

Her alibis and getaways were masterpieces and unfumblingly executed. She gained enormous sums—just how much no one will ever learn.

◆ ◆ ◆

THEN, in the prime of life, and at the height of her glory, she quit.

Not through fear of consequences, not in a spirit of repentance—but because she recognized the stupidity of dissipating such intelligence and capacity on objectives inferior to her talents.

She grew convinced that it was easier to swim with the tide than against it—became a business woman, a realty operator, an investor—promptly accumulated a fortune, and turned the bulk of it into a helping hand for wayward girls and a grub-staking fund for released convicts hoping to go straight.

For twenty-five years she rendered important, constructive service to the society she had once exploited.

Detroit, her home town, knew her for what she had been, and honored her for what she became.

Sophie was too proud and brave to sail under false colors—a hypocrite, a sneak at heart couldn't have gotten by.

She died last week, leaving her heirs in comfort and bequeathing the rest of a considerable estate to provide delicacies and aid for the ill and destitute in prisons and penitentiaries.

And, if Saint Peter knows his beans, Sophie Lyons is sitting pretty today.

Homes and Apartments

ONE OF THE DELIGHTFUL FEATURES of modern American life is that one can always find something to worry about. Law enforcement, crime waves, the divorce rate, the younger generation, the rise of billion dollar corporations—the possibilities are almost limitless.

Chief among these items during the last decade or more has been the steady growth of the apartment house.

A few generations ago the family that did not live in a single home, either owned or rented, was the exception. Those who lived in apartments were pitied; it was felt that there could be no normal life unless one had a whole house to oneself.

Now, however, the scales are swinging the other way. In some cities the majority of families live in apartments; and no town is so small that it does not have a fair sized quota of apartment dwellers.

All of this has proved an excellent subject for the worriers. The American home, we are told, is breaking up, patriotism is decaying and the old-time virtues generated by family life are disappearing. In a few more years we shall be a nation of fly-by-nights, and "parlor, bedroom and bath" will be our national motto.

There is no denying that there is something especially satisfying about living in your own home. A yard and a flower garden, no matter how small, give a sense of order and importance to one's life. The added privacy and isolation that a separate house give are often priceless.

But there is a good deal of hazy thinking about the general subject of home. For home is a state of mind as much as it is anything. It is an atmosphere—a blending of assorted moods and associations and aspirations—and it can be found quite as well in a three-room apartment as in a private house.

It doesn't take much, really, to make a home; and what it takes is just as available to the man who can't afford anything but a third-floor flat as to the rich man who can build a country mansion. Love, forbearance, tact, unselfishness—these are the chief ingredients.

Put together in the right manner they produce contentment, without which no home is anything but a sham. They provide a haven; a place where rest and happiness and inspiration can be found. Sometimes a pair of rooms fitted up for "light housekeeping" constitute as beautiful and enduring a home as any man could wish; and sometimes the costliest residence imaginable is no more deserving of being called a home than a railroad station.

If you have a genuine home—a place where love and deep satisfaction and contented peace enfold you—you don't need a great deal more. If you haven't, you needn't think you'll better yourself by moving.

Schools and Crime

THE AMERICAN PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM—pride of the nation for many years—is really a great recruiting ground for our steadily increasing army of criminals, according to an article in the February North American Review by Justice Samuel D. Levy of the New York City children's court.

Justice Levy explains it thus: Fully 2,000,000 children in our public schools, a tenth of the total enrollment, are below normal mentally. Given special attention, nearly all of these could be developed into useful citizens. But since the ordinary school makes little provision for them, they fall behind in their classwork, are dubbed "dummy" by their school fellows, and rapidly develop anti-social attitudes that later lead many of them into criminal pursuits.

The remedy, as he sees it, is the establishment of ungraded schools in which such children could be educated without being made to feel inferior. The cost, he admits, would be great, but he believes the savings in the crime bill would more than counterbalance it.

His suggestion is worth earnest consideration. The National Educational association might well give it some study.

Colonel Stewart's Defense

COL. ROBERT W. STEWART'S recent statement, defending his side of the argument in his effort to retain his seat as chairman of the board of Standard Oil of Indiana, hardly can be said to add anything to the gentleman's case.

In fact, the statement is really rather amazing. Boiled down, what it amounts to is this: "After all, I made money for the company. Sure, some of that money was made in the Continental affair—but what of it? Money talks, and that's all that matters."

It is precisely because that argument is out of harmony with modern business ethics that Rockefeller is trying to make Stewart resign. Nobody has denied that Colonel Stewart has been an efficient business man. It is in the matter of public morality that he has offended. And apparently he still doesn't understand it.

DAIRYING IN THE SOUTHWEST

We of southwest Oklahoma have not yet realized how greatly dairying may be made to bring new wealth to this community. We have not realized that, as Gilbert S. A PRACTICAL MATTER

It was characteristic of Jesus, the Master, that he made use of the simple things that were at hand to do His works, and that he met the little duties of the day in such a thorough manner that none of them was neglected. A study of the life of the Man of Galilee will show that he made salvation, religion, a plain, practical matter of every day living and every day service to humanity.

The Day Book of a New Yorker
Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Now that Police Commissioner Whalen has devised a new set of rules on how and when pedestrians may cross from one side of a street to the other side, New Yorkers will offend find themselves suddenly and poignantly embarrassed.

It takes a lot of police work to convert jaywalkers into chalkwalkers, and there will be many a pair of burning ears and downcast eyes among the hitherto careless and casual citizenry before people form a new habit.

Outside of this city the prohibition against jaywalking is widespread, especially in the South and Southwest. The natives of the large and medium sized cities of these sections, having become accustomed themselves to obeying the traffic rules, get a lot of fun out of the embarrassment of New York visitors and their sudden startlement when a police whistle with an irritable note brings the impetuous visitor to a halt.

In such cities as Houston, Texas, for example, the rule against jaywalking is very strictly enforced. The visitor from New York, accustomed to the lax and easy regulations for pedestrian traffic in his city, seldom realizes until too late that the people all around him in the streets look upon him as the rest "rube."

Absent mindedly, perhaps, or in calm disregard of the chalk-marked lane at street intersections, he starts blithely across a street through vehicular traffic. Before he takes two steps from the curb a police whistle shrills and he looks up to see a mounted policeman gazing at him menacingly. And all around scores of other persons are grinning and chuckling at his obvious discomfiture. It is an outdoor sport in such places to stand by and laugh at the New Yorker, who as a rule thinks pretty well of himself and is apt to look a bit superciliously upon local manners and customs.

The residents of cities where the jaywalking rule is strictly enforced say they always can tell a New Yorker by his habit of blindly plowing through traffic and taking a chance with life and limb. As a matter of fact they get no little satisfaction out of these little incidents in which his wandering feet are suddenly halted.

"You New Yorkers are too uppity anyway," a resident of one of these cities said to this writer. "It's a good thing for you all to be taken down a little now and then."

When the play went into rehearsal its author, Elmer Rice, was directing.

"Get something your grandmother would like," the young man's mother counseled him, "and just remember that she's an old lady."

With this advice to guide him, the young man started for the cut-rate emporium of Joseph Leblang. Finding nothing to his liking, he set forth for a round of the box offices.

Off Broadway at Forty-second street he entered a theater housing an attraction he considered proper for a lady of any age. He awaited his turn and finally reached the window.

"Nothing in the orchestra," the box office man responded in the bored, disinterested manner of all box office men.

"Absolutely nothing?"

"Two way off to the side in the rear, but you wouldn't want 'em Nobody would."

The young man turned away dejectedly. It was getting late and he had about decided to resort to an agency.

"Nope, those wouldn't do," he said. "One of them is for an old lady, and she couldn't hear from there."

Quite unexpectedly the man in the window became a human being.

"You win, buddy," he said sentimentally. "I'm always for the old ladies. Here they are."

The young man, taken somewhat aback, looked at the tickets shoved at him through the window—two seats in the second row center.

Maude Adams is to return to the theater, says Charles L. Wagner, but this return will not come about until February of next year. Miss Adams is now in Hollywood. In the spring she will go to India for the picturization of Rudyard Kipling's "Kim." Contracts for her re-appearance in New York have been signed. Negotiations, it seems, have been under way since April.

Mr. Wagner informs us that Miss Adams will offer "an unusual monologue" and that what she does will be "something new in entertainment." Later she may do a play.

Sir James M. Barrie, according to Mr. Wagner, will be "interested" in the return to the theater of the actress who brought his plays before the theatergoers of America.

He's a man of note, this George Olsen, being one of the country's best-known orchestra leaders. And he likes a story he heard in jail.

GEORGE OLSEN

Now Olsen has been in jail only by choice — never by force. And on this particular occasion he went to Sing Sing with his orchestra to furnish a little music for the Sing Sing boys in an entertainment they were giving within the prison walls.

"Of course," said Olsen, "they allowed me to talk with any prisoner who looked interesting. There was one convict there—a young man with a sparkle of humor in his eye—with whom I chatted.

"'What are you in here for?' I asked, at length.

"'Believe it or not,' he replied, 'I'm in here for writing fiction!'

"'Why, I never heard of such a thing!' I replied. 'What did you write?'

"'Checks,' he answered."

Chicago-Lubbock Tariff Reduced

CHICAGO, Feb. 5. (US)—Chicago business men today won their fight to maintain present freight rates to the Southwest and were further awarded reductions in tariffs on shipments to Amarillo and Lubbock, Texas, by a ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The victory ends a long fight by local concerns for an equal rate with St. Louis shippers into Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas and renders inoperative a proposed increase of five cents a hundred pounds. The schedules as adopted today show a cut of five cents over the present rate from St. Louis to Amarillo and Lubbock the extreme western portion of the southwestern territory.

Federal narcotic officers who made the arrests, seized prescription books said to have been used by the druggists in the last two years.

The VICARION

The Astounding Story of an Invention Greater Than the Movies

Copyright by Gardner Hunting

By Gardner Hunting

Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

In the year 1933 Radley Brainard has invented the Vicarion, a device with which it is possible to re-create scenes out of the past. The invention is a sensational success, with all the theaters installing it in place of motion pictures. Complete Illusions, Inc., which at that time controls all the improvements on the movies, faces ruin, but when Ferdinand Mortimer and Jerry Ballard, heads of the company, call on him, Brainard refuses to make terms.

Brainard's records of the past are contained in "bombs," which hold liquid air and while he is projecting one of the "bombs," which was unmarked, he sees a beautiful gossamer-clad girl, with whom he falls in love, although he is engaged to Phyllis Normar. During the first demonstration of the Vicarion, with Phyllis and her family looking on, a strange man staggers in the studio. He is unable to tell who he is and Brainard names him Van Winkle, and makes him his aide.

Brainard calls in the operator who made the unmarked record, but gains no information from him. He orders Van Winkle to investigate the making of the bomb. Brainard projects one of the three remaining bombs containing the woodland scene in which the girl with whom he is infatuated appears and decides the records were made by Jeffry Homer, a criminal whom he has employed. Homer dies of fright while listening to the voice of his dead brother which Brainard projects by means of the Vicarion and Homer's secret of the "bomb," which contains the "sunrise nymph" passes into the hands of Mortimer and Ballard.

"It's Come"

She opened an upper window and called down into the porch below. A man answered her—Van Winkle!

"It's come!" he said—as if she would understand, just as she did—as if she must have foreseen, just as she had!

"What's happened?" she asked.

"They're broken over, at last—the people. You'll have to run for it—they'll come here!"

"Why?"

"They associate you with Brainard, of course."

"I'm—alone!"

"I'll wait."

The traitor! Here was the traitor, with warning of disaster! But she barely thought of that. "They'll associate you with Brainard!" What then had they done—what did they mean to do—to him?

A world of meaning lay in that brief phase. They hated him, then. "They'll associate you with Brainard!" It was a foregone thing that they had turned against him! And she had known they would. Almost from the beginning she had known what the crowd would some time do. Had they thought with her? Had she thought with them?

Her riding clothes of white linen had been laid out for her morning gallop, the only respite she had lately had from thought. They were easy to get into, knickers and belt and boots and sleeveless coat!

"It's come!" she whispered. "It's come!" over and over. "It's come."

But her hands did not tremble nor her breath grow short. She tossed back her hair before her mirror and slipped on a hat that fitted close, binding with it the bright mass back from her lovely face. Her eyes alone, in their great, dark intentness, marked her sense of final crisis. Here was climax—to which she rose with courage that shook the everyday trembling of weeks out of her slender young body and strung it taut. Here was something for her to meet!

The conception of the great, blind night outside, covering somewhere the gathering, creeping menace of the mob—the gathering hatred that stretched far away and away under the darkened sky, like the low hanging clouds themselves, black, mysterious, unending, burdened, was like a forevision of a world's end. But that itself would be something to meet—something to run to meet! For horror must lie forever, not in the meeting, but in the aporcach!

She ran down the stairs and unbarred the door. The moment she opened it, Van Winkle's silhouette loomed against a sky that had turned a hot yellow, like some great, poisonous, tropical flower. She knew what it was. She stepped out beside him; she was not afraid of him. There was room in her heart for but one fear.

"Do you know where Mr. Brainard is?" she asked.

"He was in his studio—we could not rouse him. And the new door is of steel!"

She had not known that. She had a momentary vision of a lonely man shut away from his world by the stoutest means he could devise. Stout means, indeed!

"How did it—begin?"

"In a theater. A cut in a program was announced. A small thing. But they resented it. They took fire. They rioted over it, and smashed things. It broke out into the street, and spread. It isn't an hour, but the studios are afire in fifty places! A few engines are out—pitifully inadequate. The crowd is smashing theater-fronts now—windows, signs, anything that will break and jangle. When I came away they were trying to break down the iron gates to the hallways of the Bonmar!"

"What will they do?"

"Murder, I guess. It was bound to come out—they've been fed on it!"

"I'll get the car," said the girl.

She turned back into the house and secured the keys of the garage; a duplicate set hung always in the hall. She went back to him.

"Will you go down with me?" she asked him.

"The streets are filled—you can only drive away!"

"We'll go by the beach. It's low tide."

"But—what can you do?"

"I don't know."

They started down the steps together to go around to the rear. But a cry from the road arrested them. In the rising light, Phyllis saw two figures turning in between the stone pillars of the gate. In a moment she was running toward them. Relief Brainard staggered toward her, supporting, half dragging, almost carrying it, it seemed, a disheveled, reeling man! It was John! His face was cut. Blood ran down across it—and strayed from his lips when he tried to speak!

They got him to the steps, where he fell inert. Phyllis clasped him in her arms, trying to cover him as if from imminent blows. Miss Brainard dragged at her.

"We must get away!" she said. "It's because he's a Norman they tried to kill him. He—he was in the crowd—as mad as the rest. So was I—I don't know what it was—a fever that caught everybody, even me—till I saw him fall. It's because he's a Norman! We must get away!"

"How did you get here?" Van Winkle asked her. But she could not tell him.

"The car!" Phyllis said.

Van Winkle dropped down beside John. "I'll take care of the boy," he told her. "You're the only one who can drive the car."

She got to her feet. Then she turned and ran through the graveled path away to the rear of the house. The garage doors were open! Great black squares in the yellow light from the sky! A figure appeared in one; it was Masters, the young chauffeur. Even the freckles showed on his honest young face.

"Oh!" he said, as he recognized her. "Say, I'm glad you come, Miss Norman! I don't know what to do, only wait here!"

"Masters!" gasped Phyllis. "Oh, drive around front, quick—the big car!"

"Big car's out, miss; your father took it, with Drake. There's only the light sedan."

"The sedan? Five passengers! Very well—quick."

Flight

She started to turn again toward the house, when she heard the mare, Betty, nicker in the stable near at hand, as if in response to the sound of her mistress' voice. Phyllis stopped short. She could not use the car now to go to Radley. They must take John away somewhere in it. But she could use the mare!

"Oh, Masters," she cried, "will you saddle Betty for me? I—I've got to get her away too!"

He ran obediently out and to the stable. She waited; it seemed but a moment before he led the saddled animal out to her. Betty nuzzled at her affectionately. The young man held his hand for Phyllis' foot. In an instant she was in the saddle.

He looked up at her—worshipfully. She had seen it in him before—this boyish adoration, unpresuming, devoted. She grasped at it now. She bent toward him.

"Oh, you'll help me! I haven't anybody to help me but you! John, my brother, is hurt; Miss Brainard and Mr. Van Winkle are with him out front. Take them wherever they tell you to go. I can't go till I know—" she hesitated an instant—"till I know the others are safe."

"But, Miss Norman," he began.

She stopped him with a gesture. "We havent time to argue. I depend on you!" And she turned the mare and galloped across the flowerbeds toward the front.

At the steps she saw that a fourth figure was added to the little group. It was Carol! Carol—a wilted, drooping, sodden little thing—mysteriously wet, shivering with cold, dull to apathy, apparently, so far as John's condition was concerned, but echoing in turn the alarm Van Winkle and Relief Brainard had brought.

"They're coming here!" she said to Phyllis, explaining her own presence only by this warning. Then she repeated it, "They're coming here!" and reiterated it—"They're coming here!"—with the stupidity of half delirium. She seemed crazed by exhaustion and fear.

"Masters is bringing the car," Phyllis told them. "You are all to go in it."

"Where?" asked Van Winkle. "Without you?"

"You'll go, too!" cried Relief Brainard. "And we'll all drive to my little house up back of Altadena! They'll never think of coming there!"

"Good!" Phyllis answered her. "Tell Masters to take you there. I'll come—when I can."

And knowing the fruitlessness of discussion, she turned Betty, took the low hedge beside the drive and was off across lawns, over fences, through shrubbery, away toward the beach.

The mare seemed to thrill with delight at the midnight run. She bounded over low obstacles and took higher ones with light-footed leaps, responding to a touch, a word. She was a splendid creature, and her gallop was like a glorious flight. As if herself imbued with purpose, but joyous in its execution, she seemed to answer to the very impulse of her rider. And the girl's spirits rose with the sense of it. Something to do! Something to do! And doing it! Vague, indeed, was her plan—only to begin by going where there might be more to do. Only to reach the place where crisis would center. Only to fling herself into the thick of his struggle whatever it might prove to be. Sure of his extremity! Wanting only to share it. With nothing to offer but her fragile body—and devotion. Careless of consequences other than that she might be where he was. Winged with loyalty, and armed with nothing else! Under a flame-lit sky whose dun clouds seemed gorged with blood; through networks of cross-lights; clattering over little streets of asphalt; thundering upon sod and hard-packed sand; dodging under stilted docks; crashing over the rattling boards of some long wharf approach; tearing through shivering gardens and flinging the gravel from private drives; so she rode, erect in the saddle, high on the stirrups, with flying rein, panting in beat with the mare's wild breaths, whipped with the wind of her flight; heedless of risk and of narrow chance, reckless of bruising branch or tearing thorn, led by love—by all that made living life to her!

The Mob

She saw the Benmar's slender facade loom like a tower of ivory in the glare from the east that was like a hot sunrise. She brought her tiring mount down to the side street, with the roar of the crowd beginning to fill her ears. They were there ahead of her, the mob! There they were, filling the pavement from curb to curb, sweeping around corners, over-running surrounding spaces, swinging to and fro with that strange movement of a swaying crowd in which body seems welded to body all moving in involuntary unison, in complete disregard of individual will. Their shouts went up in great heaving cries, echoing hollowly down streets and lanes, flung back clatteringly from the building's high tile and glass.

How alike they were—the people; heads up, yellow faces turned to the same angle, chins thrust out, gaze intent, flesh stained to the same hue by fire and passion, prompted by the same vague purpose, with the same willingness to be led. Here because led here, hating because led to hate, murderous because taught murder! But who had led them here, hating and murderous? Surely not those little dancing, howling figures over there at the foot of the building's walls. Surely not those pygmies who shouted at and shook to no avail the high iron pailings that guarded the building's doors. Not those mere stragglers, frayed from the crowd's own edge and fluttering there like the windwhipped ravelings of a flag! What were they to the crowd and to the thing that led them.

But yells and cries were rising in the other street on the building's front. The girl pushed her horse along the outskirts of the close-packed throng. Without giving her attention otherwise they seemed to pack closer to let her pass. She looked down upon their heads at the white corners of their eyes, at their humped shoulders and cramped arms—at their sea of hats! Hats! Badges of their blindness to the very likeness they typified!

They were storming the Bonmar's front door. As Betty picked her way around the rear of the crowd in the main thoroughfare Phyllis saw again a little group of madly active figures close in against an iron gate, behind whom surged the mass of humanity. No, they were not the leaders of the crowd—rather its hands! With them the mob beat against the iron barrier. Some of them it bruised and broke!

As the girl watched she saw a man leap and fall against the bars. Past her, near by, another was carried bleeding, but raving and cursing at his plight. But to the crowd they were as its cut knuckles, worth only a passing thought. Frenzied others had rushed in to take their vacant places. Driven by passion, how little men cared for their flesh and blood selves! Bodies became important only when spirits were tamed.

The entrance to the Bonmar, brilliantly lighted as it always was, glittered like the starry staircase to a fairy place. But it was empty. Its guardians had fled! Still and empty and bright, echoing like a well to the shouts of the mob but isolated by its wicket as if in a plane removed—seeming suddenly invested with a cold, aloof personality, indifferent to the tumult, stolidly untouched and unafraid, with starry eyes a spectator, like herself!

Radley was not there! Above, dark windows stood black in the building's towering white front. Darkness everywhere. Was he there—up there somewhere, cowering dim rooms, or slinking through echoing halls? She did not believe it! He was no coward. She could fancy him still shut away, absorbed, in that muffled den, his studio, unaware or disaster; but if he knew, if he saw this frenzied attack, he would come out and deal with it. Trickster he might be, crafty, unscrupulous now, cruel! His hand against all men's because he believed their hands against him. Blind, mistaken, perverse, perhaps—but no coward! Where was he then? Somewhere up there, looking down calmly, aloof, calculating, still-eyed, too?

Betty, the mare, stood still, long, yellow highlights trembling on her smooth, quivering coat. The straight white figure of the girl in the saddle, far the most conspicuous thing in the huge assemblage, stood like a commander overlooking and directing assault. But she was as unaware of herself as any unit in the vast throng and as they were of her!

Suddenly a wild yell went up. For what? Had the gate given way? No, there it stood, stanch. What, then? Had they sighted their quarry up there above their heads? But no—their eyes were not raised. Again the yell rose, starting at the gate itself and sweeping from it away and back to where her mount stood! About the building's entrance the crowd seethed. Ah, now she saw! They had brought a weapon, those hands of the mob—a ponderous thing, long and bulky and heavy, a log, a pole—a ram!

At the rising clamor, men surged in from the side street and swelled the greater mass, packing closer the dense body which had seemed solid before. Behind the girl was the rising, terraced mound of grass, oasis in the midst of the boulevarded street; it was like the rising side of a bowl in which the people were confined. A few scattered ones stood high up on its sides, onlookers, like mere drops spattered up there from the fluid mass below. Now the main body rose and absorbed them again into itself. The mare stood still as men and women swept around and against her and then settled about her, once more welded compact.

For an instant Phyllis' eyes were deflected to the eddy about her and she missed the immediate scene. But next moment there arose a roar from the mob's hoarse throat that seemed to drown thought itself! Yells, shrieks and screams were lost in the one mighty cry—a cry of triumph!

She looked—and saw him! At the head of the glittering stairs in the Bonmar's white entrance he suddenly stood, beyond the wicket, a single dark figure in the flood of light, facing them. Straight, calm alone! Oh God, how alone he looked! Facing the mad world single-handed—no one at his side—no one to care—no one to share his danger or his fate! Far, far over here, this side of it all she was still only the spectator, she could still only look on!

He raised his hand, as if to command them. Their roar went derisively shrill. The side street emptied itself into the main; the crowd gathered itself to strike! He spoke to them—shouted at them—his lips moved visibly—but they drowned out the sounds of his voice. They howled in savage delight at their own clamor, as if it were something with which to beat him down. He raised his hand again, then both hands, and stepped forward and down, a step, another a third—pleading for a hush—hoping to be heard! They surged forward as if to meet him—and their din rose to the pandemonium of the pack to the kill!

He took another downward step, and then again. He reached the bars—and took hold of them with his hands. His hands! He was opening the gate! For an instant the throng seemed to shrink away from him. A little space opened out, and once more she saw him stand alone. Then the hands of the mob seized its weapon. With a sudden stillness upon them, more awful than any sound, they rushed. The ram crashed upon the gate, upon the lonely figure standing there, and crushed on and through the crumbling marble stairs behind!

DRY BUREAU CHANGE LOOMS

Enforcement May Be Placed Under Attorney General

By M. L. RAMSAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (US)—The prohibition bureau, with 40-odd administrators and 4,000 agents working under it throughout the country, will be transferred to the department of justice soon after President-elect Hoover takes office, it appeared tonight.

The transfer may have important bearing upon Mr. Hoover's selection of an attorney general.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon let it be known that he is entirely willing to have the change made.

By effective co-ordination of the dry bureau's work with the related anti-smuggling activity of the coast guard and customs bureaus is the one problem to be solved, so far as Mr. Mellon is concerned. Both these bureaus are closely related to treasury functions and he feels they must remain in that department.

Although the dry bureau has been in the treasury throughout the nine years of prohibition, both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mellon favored its removal to the department of justice early in the Harding administration.

There was opposition then and the realignment was not pressed. Mr. Mellon still feels, however, that the bureau's close relation to criminal prosecutions, and dependence upon them, makes the department of justice the logical place for it.

With enforcement to be centered in that department, prohibition activity easily might become the controlling factor in the choice of an attorney-general.

Col. William J. Donovan, whose name has encountered influential opposition in some political quarters, with approval in others, probably would not fall into this class, dry spokesmen said tonight. They added, however, that his work as prosecutor, before he became assistant to Attorney General Sargent, had been satisfactory to the prohibition element there.

The drys themselves have been divided over the transfer of enforcement.

New Record Set in U. S. Car Sales in Europe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (US)—The world is riding in American automobiles as never before, commerce department records showed today.

Passenger cars, trucks and automotive products to the value of $322,000,000 were sold abroad during 1928, setting a new record. This was an increase of $118,000,000 over 1927, the previous record year, and a 400 per cent increase over 1922.

Exports included 368,328 passenger cars, compared with 63,791 in 1922, and 138,782 trucks, compared with 11,443 in 1922.

Nearly 10 per cent of the passenger cars, and 26 per cent of the trucks produced last year, were sold in foreign markets.

Canada was the largest buyer, with Argentina next.

FRATS MAY BE SHORN OF FUN

'Hell Week' Initiation Injures Youth

LAWRENCE, Kan., Feb. 5. (INS)—Steps to abolish "hell week" among Greek letter fraternities at the University of Kansas may be taken by the K. U. student council and university authorities as the result of an injury received last night by James Barrick of Kansas City, a pledge of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. Barrick, a senior in the department of journalism at the university, but a pledge at the fraternity, sustained a broken hand when struck by a paddle which was being wielded by an upper classman at the fraternity house at midnight last night, a few minutes after the annual "hell" festivities had started.

Members of the organization today said the accident last night probably would be responsible for cancelling the rest of the hell week program. For several years university authorities have been trying to get the fraternities to abolish the annual custom which precedes initiation into the secret societies and this year a number of the leading organizations did away with the practice entirely.

Found at Last—a Sea Captain Who Doesn't Brag About Rescue

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5. (AP)—The sea, true to a traditional capacity for variety, put ashore here last night a ship's captain who considers the rescue of a crew of 30 men and their ship scarcely worth mentioning.

John H. Parks of this city, in command of the W. E. Hutton, oil tanker plying between Philadelphia and Smith's Bluffs, Texas, arriving here, admitted to questioners that he had salvaged the Norwegian freighter Dagfin of Oslo, 12 miles off Cape Hatteras Saturday and rescued Captain A. F. Larson and his crew of 29. He said, however, that "it was a routine salvage job and so easy I hated to mention it, only I thought maybe I'd better explain why I'm 28 hours late getting to port."

The Dagfin, a coal burner, ran out of fuel after battling heavy seas during a three-day gale and, with her radio out of commission, was drifting about helplessly.

Captain Parks sighted the distress signals Saturday and went to the freighter's aid. He got a line on the Dagfin and towed her to Hampton Roads, then came on to Philadelphia.

I just must tell you that McCoy's Tablets are the finest things I have ever tried. I have always been thin and never found anything to do me so much good. I was disappointed in the beginning.

I weighed 104 when I began—now I weigh 115½. I praise them. I can't be without them. My limbs are picking up fine. I am singing their praises to everyone I see. I didn't have any faith in them to start.

Signed (Mrs. W. E. Looney)

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your money will be returned.

Just ask for McCoy's Tablets at Renfro Drug Co., or any drug store in America.—Adv.

It's Growing!

The shoulder-length bob is taking a real place among fashions of the hour for the younger set. In many high schools and colleges, more than half the girls are letting their hair grow to the new length. This style as worn by New York City girls is shown in the above photograph of Miss Edna Rabbe, 1925 Avenue G, Brooklyn.

Miss Rabbe says: "I am certainly delighted that I let my hair grow to the new length now that I have found a way to keep it easily manageable and attractive. My hair is ever so much fluffier and more vigorous than it has been for a long time. And it is free from all traces of dandruff, now. I attribute its improvement to the method I am using to care for it. It's so popular among the girls in my set. All we do is put a little Danderine on our brushes whenever we use them. This makes my hair so easy to dress any way I want it and holds it in place as I arrange it. Danderine soothes my scalp and keeps it and my hair so clean I don't need to shampoo more than twice a month, now. And all my friends admire the way it makes my hair so bright and sparkling."

Danderine does more to bring out the natural color, the gleam and lustre of your hair, than shampoos or brilliantine. It removes that oily film from it, gives it new life and lustre. It cleanses and invigorates the scalp; helps overcome dandruff. Danderine is delightfully fragranced; isn't oily, doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottle.—Adv.

AUTOMOBILE FINANCE COMPANIES PAY GOOD DIVIDENDS

—Quoting Mr. C. C. Hanch, General Manager, National Association of Finance Companies:

"It is our impression that securities or stocks of well-managed finance companies, generally speaking, have paid more dividends on the investment than most other businesses with a similar volume of invested capital. Of course, there has been a variation in the return among various companies but it is conceded that well-managed finance companies covering a period of years have been, as a rule, money-making and profitable institutions."

72 Prep 5s Play For State Title

Wichita Falls Contender For Three Seasons

AUSTIN, Feb. 5.—During the last eight years, a total of 72 different high school basket ball teams have participated in the eight state basket ball tournaments that have been sponsored by the Interscholastic League bureau of the University of Texas. Each of these teams, before reaching the state finals, has been three times a champion, inasmuch as the league rules require that a team competing in the finals must have won the county, the district and the bi-district tournaments.

Brackenridge high school of San Antonio leads the list of participants, having sent a team to the state finals seven years out of the eight since the league has been supervising the tournaments. Austin and El Paso tie for second place having been represented six times each; while Stephenville has sent a team to the state tournament five years.

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 5 (AP)—Coach Chuck Bassett's Texas Aggie cagers fought an uphill fight to defeat Southwestern university, 29 to 25, in a hard-fought basket ball game here tonight.

The Pirate quintet jumped into an early lead, and at the half were leading, 16 to 12. Only after using virtually their entire string of forwards were the Aggies able to get their four-point lead.

Harry Keeton, Aggie guard, was high with 11 points.

Famous Golf Shots of 1928

How to Score a 'Cuckoo'

By BASIL WYRICK
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Astounding shots have thrilled galleries or even decided titles, but the only hole scored in three under par during 1928 championship play did neither. H. J. St. Clair of Kansas City, made the "cuckoo" during qualifying rounds of the Western open but won no title and had no gallery to cheer his feat.

St. Clair was halfway home on the 501 yard fifteenth of the North Shore country club, Chicago. He threw his weight into a scorching brassie shot and that was that. He was alone except for his qualifying partner and neither of them saw the ball duck into the cup. It was found only after a long search of the neighboring territory. Nor did it win St. Clair a title, for he failed to survive the elimination rounds.

But it did give St. Clair a cuckoo and came close to equalling the distance from which a golf ball has been holed in one blow. The Kansas City professional was not scoring well during the round. He was struggling to keep under 90 when he stood on the 15th tee and looked down the forbidding fairway to the undulating green nearly a third of a mile away.

"The way I'm going," said St. Clair to his partner, "I ought to take about seven on this cantankerous hole, but I'm going to give this pill a ride anyway, even if it goes out of bound over the hedge."

The stocky golfer smote the ball and it stopped 250 yards from the tee in the edge of the rough. Thinking he might reduce the predicted seven to par five after this good drive, St. Clair got hold of the pellet with his brassie just right and it sailed away for the flag straight as the proverbial arrow bobbed to the carpet and rolled over a slope into the cup. But the last 50 yards of the ball's course could not be seen by the players.

When they reached the green there was no ball in sight. Searching the rough and surrounding pits where he felt his ill luck might have caused it to kick despite its true flight, St. Clair was about to go back and drop another ball when his companion's caddy, lifting the flag for him to putt, drew up the missing globule with the staff, and St. Clair then realized that he had made a hole in three strokes under par.

BANCROFT MAY BE RELEASED

Dave Rejects "Mere" Offer Of $10,000 by Robins

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (UP)—Dave Bancroft, former manager of the Boston Braves and veteran National league shortstop, may be given his unconditional release by the Brooklyn Robins, it was reported here today.

Bancroft is understood to have turned down an offer of $10,000 for his 1929 services, $3,500 less than he received last season. With Glenn Wright to play shortstop, the Robins feel they can do without the ageing veteran and are said to have asked waivers on him.

Bancroft received a bonus of $20,000 last season when he signed to play with Brooklyn after being cast adrift by the Braves.

None of Brooklyn's stars have as yet signed contracts. Dazzy Vance, Wright, Babe Herman and Del Bissonette probably will be the most difficult to sign. Vance is asking for $25,000, an increase of $5,000 over last year's salary.

National League To Open April 16

Boston Situation Holds Up Drafting of Schedule

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (AP)—The annual schedule meeting of the National league today failed in its major purpose as the 1929 schedule failed of adoption.

A series of playing dates had been arranged calling for a number of Sunday games in Boston. A permit for playing these games has not been granted the Boston Braves so the schedule, instead of being ratified, was referred to President John A. Heydler for later action.

The 1929 season will open Tuesday, April, 16, five days later than last year, with New York playing at Philadelphia, Brooklyn at Boston, St. Louis at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at Chicago. The season will close Sunday, Oct. 6, one week later than the closing date in 1928.

Roberti Defeated; Firpo Battle Off

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 5. (UP)—Plans for a heavyweight match between Luis Firpo, training for a comeback, and Roberto Roberti, Italian heavyweight, have been blasted as a result of Roberti's unexpected defeat Saturday night at the hands of the Argentine heavyweight, Roberto Delfino.

Delfino wore Roberti down in the first six rounds and easily had the edge at the end of 12 rounds. The sixth round was the only one in which Roberti looked like he had a chance of winning.

Moco Carpenter Kayoed In 3rd Round by Snyder

DODGE CITY, Kan., Feb. 5 (AP)—Angus Snyder, Dodge City heavyweight, knocked out Moco Carpenter here tonight in the third round of a 10-round bout. Snyder scored three knockdowns.

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 5 (AP)—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, coasted to an easy referee's decision over Don Davis of Chicago in 10 rounds tonight. Mandell wrenched his left shoulder in the ninth round, but the injury was not believed serious enough to necessitate more than an ordinary rest.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5. (AP)—Jerry "Tuffy" Griffiths, Sioux City, Iowa, puncher scored a technical knockout over Billy Freas, Grand Rapids, Mich., veteran heavyweight, in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout tonight.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

WILD BILL MEHLHORN and Horton Smith are the leaders of the 1928-1929 winter golf season. What they do in play later in Florida may cause a revision of their ranking. But there is no questioning the right of the veteran and the youngster to rate with the best of the pros, on the basis of their play this season. For the one it has been something of a comeback; for the other it has been a meteoric climb to the select circle of those who wear the mantle of the ancient and royal game.

Smith got off to an early start by winning the Oklahoma City open. He followed that with other successes in California. So phenomenal was the play of the young Joplin, Mo., golfer that he was named as a member of the United States Ryder cup team which will invade England this summer to joust with the outstanding British professionals. He is the outstanding young golfer of today and by summer seems certain to be a contender for recognition as one of the game's greatest players.

◆ ◆ ◆

MEHLHORN HAS been going along for several years, always a potentially great golfer but lacking some essential to win highest honors of the game. Mechanically, there is no golf superior to Wild Bill. He is master of every club in the bag. But in the past he had difficulty mastering his temperament, as they say at the opera. Then Mehlhorn found himself. Possibly it was pique at being left off the Ryder cup team. Mehlhorn himself explains it that way. Anyhow, Wild William started playing superlative golf by winning the El Paso tourney; he followed that by capturing the San Antonio open and then Monday won a playoff with Smith and Bobby Cruickshank to take the south central event at Hot Springs.

All these victories in succession and over formidable fields embracing some of the foremost stars of golf.

THE MOST striking feature of the golf rehabilitation of Mehlhorn is evidence that he has acquired steadiness and tournament temperament. At San Antonio he was so hampered by a gallery that he was forced to drive into a tree and lost two strokes. He showed at Hot Springs that he could meet the occasion requiring steel nerves and his best golf when he won the playoff from Smith and Cruickshank.

Trees twice have been factors in the golfing career of Mehlhorn at San Antonio. A few years ago the irrepressible Bill climed into a tree while the San Antonio affair was in progress. A fellow pro was in the act of making a shot. From his lofty place of vantage, Bill poured down advice and invective. That horrified the Keepers-of-the-Most-High-Dignity of golf. One is not supposed to move or utter a sound when a golfer is making a shot and conversation above a whisper is a grave breach of golfing etiquet.

Mehlhorn was verbally chastised by various and sundry golfers and golfing officials, who saw such ribald antics as degrading to the sport. Putting the game on a level with that rowdy sport, baseball, in fact, it was. But Mr. Mehlhorn survived that reproof and laughed it off. Or cussed it off, probably. But when they did not name him for the Ryder cup team, that was too much. They could say he was not a gentleman on the links and get away with it, perhaps, but they couldn't impugn his golfing ability.

And judging from Bills' play it seems that they couldn't.

STRIB FIGURES TO BEAT JACK

Runyon Says 7 to 5 Odds On Willie Justified

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright 1929 by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—I am not at all surprised by the report from St. Louis that one of its larger operators in the betting mart has started off the Stribling a 7 to 5 favorite over Josef P. Cuckochay, or Jack Sharkey, as he has legalized himself.

It is a logical price. I would say that the Stribling ought to go to the post at that price. He figures. The Stribling has come on. The Sharkey man has stood still. The Stribling would have taken either of Sharkey's last two opponents, Signor Arturo De Kuh, the man with the accordion pleated style, or Meyer W. Christner, jocularly called "K. O." and knocked their ears right down.

Judging the Sharkey fellow off these battles, and allowing that he isn't likely to improve over them, the Stribling "dopes," as we say at the club, to give the Sharkey a fine royal American shellacking. I doubt that the Stribling will knock the Sharkey chappy insensible, however. The Stribling hasn't the right kind o' punch for that.

He is old George W. Devastation against the pop-overs. He whacks 'em on the chin, and away they go, sometimes even before the scheduled moment. But if you look up his record against just ordinary No. 2 and No. 3 types of tussiers you will find that he isn't so destructive.

Not a Knockerout

Within the past few months such as Harry Fay and Frankie Wine has stuck in there for 10 rounds against him. Surely the Sharkey man is as tough as these. Or is he? Anyway, Sharkey could certainly take the Ralph Smiths, the Billy Freases, the Johnny Squires, the Marion Blackstocks, and Who Struck Joe, and August Roundheels, and the et ceteras that the Stribling has been belting out here and there, and do as well as the Stribling.

So I look for the Miami matter to go 10 rounds, with the Stribling's fine southern snoot a few inches in front at the finish, if he will bear in mind that this is a fight, and not a wrestling bout.

If he was a desperate body puncher I would say he might flatten Sharkey. But I do not regard the Stribling's torso taps as particularly painful. Not that I would care to have him hit me in the ham-and-basket. I do not take them there as well as formerly. If the Stribling struck me in the old La Bonza, or whatever it is the frenzied Romans yell at their countrymen in battle, I would probably get very angry and knock him out with a swipe to the potato.

Sharkey is rather susceptible to body punches. And he is not a great body puncher himself — not the species of body puncher that makes the Stribling jack-knife himself, and begin exercising those Graeco-Roman snatches at which he is a past master. Nor, is Sharkey the yip-yippy, huffle-scuffle type of fighter that always gives the Stribling plenty o' worry.

How to Lick Willie

The way to lick the Stribling, as I see it from my comfortable and safe squativoo at the ringside, is to pile on him and to keep hammering him. Crowd him. Push him. Shove him. Rough him. Elbows. Knees. Pile on. Keep piling. Presently the Stribling will be found testing his best holds.

Sharkey isn't that type. Sharkey is essentially a boxer. A light hitter. He hasn't knocked out a dozen men in four or five years of fighting, though I must add in justice to Sharkey that he didn't get many of the kind that are easily tipped over. He has always fought fairly good men.

You cannot have much luck trying to box the Stribling. He is a pretty fair sort of boxer himself. I dislike his defensive style, because it is largely grabbing, but it is none the less effective as a measure of self protection.

He is a remarkable feinter. In fact, when the Stribling starts feinting he feints all over. He feints with his hands, his head, his elbows, and even his eyebrows. He is most dangerous coming out of clinches, when he chucks an overhand right, very short and fast, that has some power behind it.

But I care not what anyone else may say, the Stribling does not relish those roaring in fighters who can take a punch or two and keep digging. William Harrison Dempsey, at his half-best, would have annihilated the Stribling. Right now an Ace Hudkins, with 20 pounds more meat on him, and a couple of inches more in stature, would raise ned with the Georgian. Leo Lomski would give him a lot of work.

Good Match For Both

But the Stribling isn't fighting a larger Ace Hudkins or a Leo Lomski. He is fighting a big, fairly fast bloke with more real big league experience than the Stribling himself has had. A fellow who can be hit with a right hand on the chin. I will refrain from mentioning that William Harrison Dempsey also demonstrated that he can be hit by a left hook on the chin.

It is a good match for the Stribling. And it isn't a bad match for Sharkey, when you consider that he is getting $100,000 for his bit. But the result one way or the other will not necessarily prove that the winner is the best man in the whole world.

HOWARD PAYNE WINS

ALL SPUDDERS ACCOUNTED FOR

3 Unsigned Tossers Bring Contracts to Camp

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

It formerly was the custom of the boys who write baseball pieces for the newspapers, to while away the long winter hours with stories of holdouts. But that means of keeping the scribes employed has passed, along with the corner saloon. Not that the saloon was concerned with a sports writer taking portable in hand and pouding out a yarn to the effect that Pitcher Whozis and Outfielder Sluggem would not sign their contract and positively had retired. Although it was, to be candid, in the corner saloon that many a scribe in what is sorrowfully called the good old days often got his inspiration.

No, the stories of holdouts are no longer news. And it is the magnates of the game and the fans who have brought about the passing of holdout stories.

And perhaps, the demise of the saloon had something to do with it. For what scribe can become grief-stricken at the prospect that the star player won't sign his contract, when in the first place he knows darn well he will, and in the second place, a nut sundae is nothing to stir one's emotions as—well, as what you could get in the dear old corner saloon.

The Fans Don't Care

The club owners were the first to clamp the lid on holdout stories. This was achieved by the simple process of not giving the scribes information that an athlete was holding out. That negative manner of keeping baseball in the public prints was changed to a system of giving out only information on the signing of contracts. The moguls finally came to the realization that the airing of differences between themselves and their poor down-trodden diamond slaves interested the fan not at all—or else aroused the sympathy of the man on the street—for the poor down-trodden slave.

So it is announced by this writer that although three veterans of the Spudders have not signed their contracts, they are NOT holdouts. The athletes whose signatures appended to documents attesting that they are in baseball bondage to the Wichita Falls club have not been received are Pitcher George Payne, Shortstop Rabbit Benton and Third Baseman Wally Swenson. President J. Alvin Gardner, however, makes it clear that the boys are NOT holdouts. They'll bring their contracts here when they report for spring training, the boss said, as is their usual custom.

With all the contracts of the tossers present or accounted for, officials of the Spudders and the good fans of Wichita Falls and environs are marking time until the start of training. The recently-sodded infield at Athletic park will be ready when the boys assemble for the first workout, March 1.

13 Exhibition Games

Thirteen exhibition games have been scheduled for the Spudders. The teams which will play here are from the American league, American association, Western league and Texas league. The St. Paul Saints of the A. A. will open the spring training program with games March 16 and 17. A very appropriate time for Bob Connery's Saints to be here.

Western leaguers will follow the Saints into Athletic park. The Oklahoma City Indians will provide the opposition March 22, 23, 24, with the Tulsa Oilers, who are to train at Abilene, here March 29, 30, 31. The Chicago White Sox are to make their anfnual visit to Wichita Falls on April 5, 6 and 7, and the Fort Worth Cats are here April 13 and 14.

There also is a possibility that a game will be scheduled for Sunday, March 10, as the first workout in an actual game for the athletes.

Dempsey-Firpo Go, Staged by Tex, Most Thrilling Fight in History

Knocked Through Ropes, Jack Came Back to Stop Wild Bull In Second Round of Bout That Was Bar-Room Brawl

By JACK LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The staging of the Dempsey-Carpentier battle for the heavyweight championship of the world in Boyle's Thirty Acres, July 2, 1921, was undoubtedly Tex Rickard's greatest single handed achievement, involving, as it did, the building of a huge pine arena with a seating capacity of 90,000 persons. When Rickard undertook that enterprise, he had not yet built up the strong organization that was functioning so smoothly when he put on the great struggle between Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo Grounds.

When he brought Dempsey and Tunney together in Philadelphia and later in Chicago he had the powerful Madison Square Garden corporation behind him and a staff of expert assistants relieved him of many responsibilities that he was compelled to shoulder alone in the Dempsey-Carpentier affair. For that reason the Dempsey-Tunney fights were run off with mechanical precision and lacked much of the dramatic color that surrounded his earlier ventures. Boxing had entered the real of big business.

From the time that Jack Dempsey won the heavyweight title from Jess Willard in 1919 the menace of Harry Wills, holder of the colored heavyweight championship, continued to loom larger. The challenges of the Brown Panther became more clamorous and more insistent. Rickard, although he knew that such a fight would probably draw more than $2,000,000, was afraid of the match and wished to have nothing to do with it. The troubles he encountered in bringing Jeffries and Johnson together were still fresh in his mind.

William Muldoon, then chairman of the New York State Boxing commission, first championed the cause of Harry Wills and proclaimed him the logical contender for the title. He even went so far as to force Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, to sign for the match. Then, almost overnight, Muldoon reversed himself and announced that the fight could not take place in this state. There is no doubt that pressure from Albany compelled this sudden switch in Muldoon's policies. There is also no doubt that if he had had his own way he would have eventually forced Dempsey to meet Wills for the title. Had the fight taken place Dempsey would have made close to a million dollars for himself and would have demolished Harry Wills in a couple of rounds.

Rickard Found Firpo

With the Wills clamor growing louder and more annoying every day it can be easily imagined with what enthusiasm Tex Rickard went about the business of building up Luis Angel Firpo, the soda water clerk from Buenos Aires who had suddenly loomed on the horizon as a potential champion.

By careful matchmaking and much ballyhooing Rickard succeeded in diverting public attention from Harry Wills and centered it on the Wild Bull of the Pampas, so named by Mr. Damon Runyon. The bull didn't know much about boxing, but he had a right hand that had the power of a sledge-hammer in it. That right hand whistled right down Tex Rickard's alley. By the simple expedient of giving Firpo brittle chins to shoot at the South American soon piled up an imposing list of knockouts. When he first came here, in 1922, he knocked over Sailor Maxted, Joe McCann, Italian Jack Herman and Jim Traecy in quick succession. Then, in 1923, he polished off Bill Brennan, Jack McAuliffe, Italian Jack Herman, Jim Hibbard, Jess Willard, Joe Burke and Charley Weinert—all by the knockout route.

By that time Harry Wills had been forgotten and the public was clamoring for a match between Firpo and Dempsey. Firpo had been schooled and trained by Jimmy DeForrest and under his expert handling had shown vast improvement. If the Argentine giant had not dismissed DeForrest on the day he left for Atlantic City to start training for Dempsey he might have been heavyweight champion of the world. Economy was the excuse Firpo and his South American associates gave for dismissing DeForrest. It was a fatal move. He finally entered the ring against Dempsey without an American in his corner. That fact probably cost him the title.

Both in Fine Condition

Although Firpo loathed the monotonous business of training, he was in good shape and unquestionably at the very peak of his career when he stepped into the ring at the Polo Grounds that September evening in 1923.

Dempsey, who had trained at Saratoga Springs, was also in the pink of condition. He was probably a better fighter that night than he ever had been before or ever was afterward. With Jack Kearns and Joe Benjamin he had mapped out a careful plan of battle. He was to stay away from Firpo for seven or eight rounds and outbox him, giving the lumbering giant plenty of straight lefts. Then, when he had worn him down, Jack was to whip across the knockout.

Dempsey deliberately crossed Kearns and Benjamin and did exactly what he had been told not to do. He made a bar-room brawl of it, a knock-down-and-drag-out affair, the like of which will probably never be seen again. He met Firpo at his own game, standing toe-to-toe and slugging with him. Nine times the wild bull was on the floor before he was finally counted out. It is the truth that Dempsey was guilty of several fouls, but Firpo's dumb handlers never thought to make a protest. With the sledge-hammer right, Firpo beat Dempsey up against the ropes in the first round, heaving over one crushing blow after another. When he had Dempsey half way through the ropes, he let a terrific right swing go, that was aimed for the champion's chin. Jack's head was weaving and bobbing and the blow landed on his left shoulder. But it had power enough to send him careening out of the ring. He fell directly into my lap. On my left hand sat the late Terry Walsh, a famous Western Union operator, who was sending my story, and on my right was Kid McPartland, one of the judges.

Firpo's Big Chance

As Dempsey swung out both arms in an effort to save himself he cracked the kid squarely across the bridge of the nose, bringing the blood. McPartland pushed the arm away and Jack caught hold of the lower rope.

Meanwhile, Terry Walsh and I were doing our best to get Dempsey off the typewriter and the telegraph instrument. It was a mad tangle but we finally succeeded in shoving the champion back into the ring. While Dempsey was out of the ring the referee had not counted over him and it is debatable to this day whether Luis Firpo did or did not win the fight by a knockout.

The battle only lasted 57 seconds of the second round.

The gate amounted to $1,082,590. And for this three minutes and 57 seconds of fighting Jack Dempsey received $475,000. Firpo received $150,000.

Rickard always declared it was the greatest battle he ever saw. I can hear him now saying:

"No suh, I never seed nuthin' like it!"

Boxers of Texas will joust with lads from Oklahoma in a home state ring tonight. Four of the six scraps carded by Promoter Alex Ross at his gym at 821 Indiana avenue involve adversaries of the Lone Star and Sooner states.

The windup will bring together Cyclone Hall, the hard-punching Childress youth, and Russell Beckwith, an Oklahoma middleweight, in a 10-round mill. Hall has stopped several boys here and is set to "take" Beckwith tonight.

Howard Scott, the clever Electra youth with a highly promising ring future, indeed, the smoothest performer with the five-ounce mitts in this section, will meet Corporal Barnes of Fort Sill, Okla., in the eight-round semi-windup. Professor Ross vouches for the fighting ability of Barnes and says the soldier is a lad who will force Howard to his best efforts.

A six-round mill promises to be an affair replete with action and looms as one of the most interesting wars on the bill. It will be fought between Virgil Oden of Wichita Falls and Jimmy Wilson of Oklahoma City, who boxed four slashing rounds last week.

Three four-round bouts, one between Battling Sturdivant of Wichita Falls and Frenchy LeFevre of Grandfield, Okla., the fourth duel of the neighboring state leather-pushers, and a battle royal complete the program.

The seating capacity has been increased 200, it was announced by Ross. Several fans were turned away at last week's show because of inadequate seating facilities.

Crossed Eyes in Children

The subject of crossed eyes is receiving more attention today because of the increasing number of such cases. There are so many angles to this type of defect that only one will be discussed in this article, that of crossed eyes in children, because the child's problem is by far the greatest of those suffering from the distressing effect of crossed eyes.

In order to understand the abnormal conditions under which the eyes are forced to work, we must first know something about the normal way eyes function. In brief, let us consider the act of seeing with both eyes at the same time, this being termed single binocular vision. We have two eyes and each eye has a separate "picture" of external objects. Suppose we look at a tree—each eye has its own "picture"—but we only see one tree and not two. It is necessary for some agency to join the two pictures so that we only see one. This agency is called the fusion sense. Without it we could not judge depth or distance (stereoscopic vision). Without this fusion ability we could not hope to control the movements of our eyes. This fact is readily observed in babies whose eyes wander in any direction. The fusion sense does not usually reach its fullest development until the child is six years old, and it is in this six years' period that most cases of crossed eyes occur. Fortunately, it is just this very type of case that offers the best field for correction.

Before the fusion sense in the brain can join the two pictures (one for each eye) and make one there must be similarity of focus; in other words, both eyes must see with equal clearness. If there is a high optical defect in either or both eyes, this similarity of the two pictures is impossible, and the brain is confused in its desire to "fuse" and see one object, clearly. The vision in the most defective eye is then "suppressed mentally," that is, the blurred picture is disregarded and the attention directed to the clearer one. Thus freed of the seeing instinct, the poorer eye is allowed to turn in the direction of the pull of the dominant muscle—usually inward toward the nose. If the optical error is high, and about the same in each eye, the "crossing" is more apt to be alternating, that is first one eye turns in and then the other.

Sometimes parents do not know of this predisposing cause of "crossed eyes" until the eyes have deviated; this points to the need for an early survey under the competent refractionist of the visual conditions of the eyes of children.

A child whose eyes cross in early life suffers a very heavy handicap. Not only is such a child an object of ridicule by other children, but unless the case is taken in hand early enough, serious damage will be done. No one would desire to go through life crossed eyed because of the disfigurement, but this is not the greatest hardship inflicted upon anyone whose eyes are allowed to stay crossed from childhood. As a rule the vision in the eye that turns is very much below normal and if the good eye should be injured or the sight destroyed, then the person would be, in some cases, totally blind.

The common idea that crossed eyes in children can only be cured by surgical operation is both dangerous and incorrect. The most "successful operation" can only accomplish one good effect—that of having the eyes straight, but without the ability to see at the same time. In other words, in a case of this kind the person is actually "one-eyed," his vision alternating from one eye to the other, if he is fortunate in having equal vision in the two eyes.

The success in curing crossed eyes without an operation will depend almost entirely upon getting the child young enough so as to begin education of the brain centers governing vision.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kidney Stones and Oxalic Acid

Question — Interested Reader writes: "Please explain the difference, if any, between kidney stones and gravel stones. What is the cause of their formation and what should a person subject to kidney attacks do?"

Answer—Kidney stones and renal gravel are caused by the same condition. There is usually a lowered alkalinity of the blood and possibly an excess of oxalic acid in the diet. Avoid the following foods: Rhubarb, sorrel, tea, coffee, pepper, chocolate, spinach and cranberries. No other foods contain sufficient oxalic acid to be injurious. Oxalic acid can only accumulate when the metabolism of the body is faulty.

Oleomargarine

Question—Miss G. G. G. asks: "Would you recommend oleomargarine as being healthful?"

Answer—In the experiments which I have conducted with oleomargarine I have found it to be quite a wholesome substitute for butter if used in an otherwise balanced diet.

Stinging Tongue

Question—Reader: "I have been troubled with my tongue for a long time, with a stinging feeling. It is getting on my nerves so I can't stand it. I have tried the best doctors in Montreal and in Buffalo, and they can't help me, so they told me to write you."

Answer—There may be a number of causes for the stinging sensation of your tongue. I appreciate the expression of confidence from your doctors and if you will send me their diagnosis of your case I will be very pleased to give you my advice.

Two Black Crows

MORAN AND MACK

MORAN: Tell that man we ain't got no turkey sandwich.

MACK: Well, he'll take chicken then.

MORAN: If I had chicken, I could give him turkey, couldn't I?

MACK: Ain't there no difference?

MORAN: Not in a sandwich.

MACK: Well, give him some chicken coquettes.

MORAN: What's them?

MACK: That's a waitress what flirts.

MOARN: Th' only thing I kin make without chicken is chicken hash.

MACK: How about some chicken soup?

MORAN: Yo' can't make it out of sparrows.

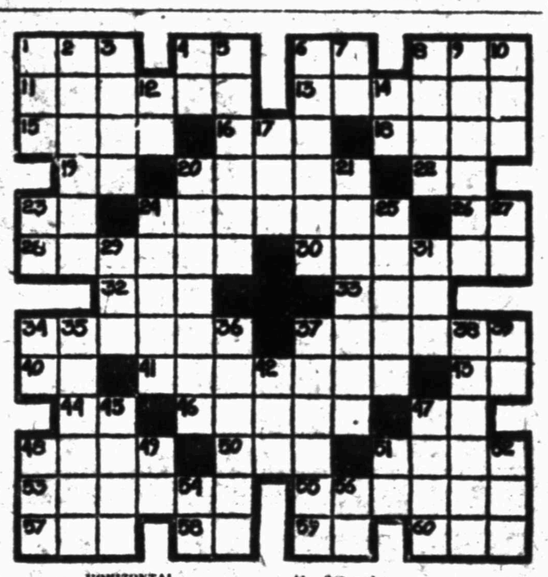

MACK: He'd like some nice canary broth.

MORAN: This ain't no bird store.

MACK: Well, this man wants somethin' with feathers in it. Yo' had better boil a mattress.

Big Boy aims to please his customers. All the cities are fighting for his lunch wagon. New York wants it to go to San Francisco and New Orleans wants it in Chicago.

NEW PRODUCERS SPUR DRILLING ACTIVITIES IN COOKE COUNTY

KEWANEE GETS OIL ON HYMAN

Pure Oil Co. Also Adds Good Well to Field

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

Operations in the various leases of northwest Cooke county, despite the unfavorable weather is going ahead and as a result the past few days finds the completion of a couple of nice producers, and new locations made.

The best of these wells reported is the Kewanee Oil and Gas company's No. A-5, F. C. Hyman located in the E. T. & R. R. survey, abstract 363, which was brought in Monday afternoon swabbing at the rate of 350 barrles from the upper sand topped at 1049 feet. The same company No. A-6 Hyman in the same survey is on the sand with casing set and cemented at 1116 feet.

Pure Gets Good Well

To the north of this production and in the southwest portion of the T. J. Moss survey, abstract 736, the Pure Oil company No. 4 J. C. Embry is swabbing 200 barrels from the 1400-foot sand. Location for No. 5 Embry, which is drilling at 300 feet is 50 feet east of No. 4 in the same survey.

Kewanee Oil and Gas company No. B-1, in the T. J. Moss survey, F. C. Hyman land, is completed in the 1100-foot sand maknig 250 barrels per day.

Shell Petroleum corporation No. 2 A. J. Dennis, located in the T. J. Hutchinson survey, abstract 484, and east of the Kewanee production on the Embry land, is looking for the upper sand and drilling at 1000 feet.

Texas Co. Rigs Up

Texas company No. 5 H. L. Dennis located in the northwest part of T. J. Hutchinson survey, abstract 484, is rigging up and will spud in during the next few days.

Several wells in the outlying areas have closed down in the past few days due to the condition of the roads caused by the rains.

Showing Found In Ellenberger

COLEMAN, Texas, Feb. 5.—A showing of oil and gas was found in the Ellenberger lime in Roth & Faurot No. 4 Sealy-Smith, on the north line of the southwest quarter, section 19, G. H. & H. railway survey, three miles north of Valera, Saturday at 3623-42 feet.

The hole swabbed 18 barrels of 39 degrees gravity oil during a 24-hour period after the deep pay was penetrated. A small quantity of water was found at 3642 feet, steel line measurement, and just what disposal will be made of the test has not been announced.

The Roth & Faurot test created a great deal of interest here, since it is one of the few tests in this area that has had a show of oil in the deep lime. The Ellenberger is correlated as the same pay found in the Empire-Johnson well in southern Callahan county that flowed for a short time, yielding approximately 10,000 barrels of oil before water broke in. Independent Oil and Gas company's No. 1 O. B. Featherston, the O'Hair test, both north of Coleman, and Magnolia's No. 3 Morris got shows of oil in the same horizon, but not in commercial quantities. With the Sealy-Smith show, local geologists expressed the opinion Monday that a pool in the deep lime might be discovered in this area.

Coleman Gasser to Be Drilled to Gardner Pay

Special to The Record News

COLEMAN, Texas, Feb. 5.—Sterling's No. 1 Haygood, southeast quarter section, W. Woolsey survey No. 294, one and one-half miles east of the Overall pool, south of Coleman, completed as a gasser several months ago, at 2256 feet, will be deepened to the Gardner pay, according to announcements here.

The lower pay is expected at approximately 2265 feet. The Haygood well is located two miles south of Continental-Anzac's No. 1 Gardner and No. 1 Mary B. Alexander, producing from the Gardner pay. The Alexander test was deepened to the oil producing horizon recently after being classed a gasser for several months.

Oil Briefs

Average price of crude oil in 10 producing fields decreased last week to $1.68 a barrel from $1.69 the preceding week, oil, paint and drug report says. In the corresponding period last year the price was $1.47. Service station prices of gasoline dropped to 19.02 cents a gallon from 19.32 the preceding week. Last year it was 17.84 cents.

American Maracaibo company announces it has completed at 2930 feet an oil well flowing 3,000 barrels daily in the Hendricks pool, Winkler county, Texas. The company plans further development of its holdings in Texas and Oklahoma and drilling on its extensive acreage in Venezuela.

Second Fry Field Looms in Coleman

Special to The Record News

COLEMAN, Texas, Feb. 5.—Hubert Oil company, McDonald & Campbell No. 1 Weaver, A. Gabel survey, nine miles east of Coleman, swabbed 150 barrels during an 18-hour period Sunday and Sunday night from a depth of 1831½ feet. During the 24 hours ending at 8 a. m. Sunday morning, it swabbed 205 barrels.

The sand, topped at 1815 feet, was drilled through Sunday, shale being found at 1831½ feet, but no water was found. Due to the absence of water in the series, oil men here believe that the Weaver area promises a field similar to the Fry field in eastern Brown county, discovered three years ago.

The Weaver test is located in wildcat territory and immediate drilling is expected. Broderick & Calvert, Fort Worth operators, were moving in Monday on a location 150 feet north and 300 feet east of the discovery well. An offset is expected on the Shell Petroleum corporation lease, southeast of the producer.

Well Near Santa Anna To Be Drilled Deeper

STANDARD OIL OF NEBRASKA

5-Year-Record

The Standard Oil Company of Nebraska was organized in 1906. In 1911 when the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was declared in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and was ordered disintegrated by the supreme court, the $599,500 stock of the Standard Oil of Nebraska, owned by Standard of New Jersey, was distributed to the stockholders of the latter company on the basis of 5,995,983,383rds of a share of Standard of Nebraska for each share of Standard of New Jersey held.

Standard of Nebraska is entirely a marketing concern. It owns and operates about 350 filling stations in Nebraska handling the products of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Standard Oil Company of Kansas and the Midwest Refining Company. No statements as to net income or earnings per share are available after 1924, in which year net was $767,911, or $25.60 a share.

There is no funded debt. Capital stock outstanding consists of $4,601,100 of the par value of $25 a share. Three thousand shares were set aside for sale to employes on a part-payment plan in 1924. Dividends on the $25 par stock have been paid at varying rates, $3.75 (including $1.25 extra) in 1928; $2.75 (including 25 cents extra) in 1927, and $3.15 (including 25 cents extra) in 1928.

As of January 1, 1928, total current assets were $2,099,791, current liabilities were $486,970 and net capital $1,612,821. Book value applicable to the capital stock amounted to $6,645,718 or $36.10 a share.

BETTER WHEAT QUALITY URGED

Methods for Improvement Outlined

LUBBOCK, Texas, Feb. 5.—Declaring that improving the quality of the wheat is one of the biggest problems facing the grower, J. D. Tinsley, Santa Fe agricultural agent of Amarillo, pointed out how this could be done in an address before the farmers' short course recently held at Texas Technological college. "Kansas wheat is not a bit better than Panhandle wheat," he said.

"The bulk of our wheat is utilized by the bakeries. At one time it was utilized by the homes, but now the greater proportion of the people buy their bread. Bakeries have a big business. If the baker puts out certain lines of bread and a housewife likes a certain line of bread, when she gets one of those loaves she expects the loaf she gets year after next to be exactly like the one she bought this morning. In order for the baker to put out this loaf he must have two things: (1) flour which has a certain percentage of protein; (2) a certain quality. The baker comes back to the miller and demands that every sack he buys today shall make a loaf like the loaf he made yesterday. He demands that he get exactly the same number of loaves and practically the same weight in those loaves as he got yesterday. The chemist plays an important part. The baker will go to some other miller if one can't get what he demands. A miller cannot make flour unless he can get wheat with a certain protein content and with a certain quality.

Lowest Grade

"Export wheat is not the highest grade, but it is the lowest grade. Another thing to remember is that wheat is sometimes frozen. We ought to raise the quality of wheat that is demanded for the European market. This means that there is a very urgent reason for paying more attention to quality. We haven't paid as much attention to protein in Texas as in Oklahoma. We are trying to work out a plan whereby the farmer may get some benefit of his protein wheat. Arrangements were made whereby samples could be sent in to the state department of agriculture in Oklahoma for testing. The kind of wheat that is grown in a community proposition, not an individual one. Communities will be penalized. Those who get premiums for lines of research are those who will produce a better wheat than we have. This involves problems such as conservation of moisture and plant food.

"Kanred and turkey red wheat are good as long as it is put in binder and threshed. If it is left in the field very long it shatters. Experiment station people have hopes that by crossing varieties they can get a high protein wheat that will have stiff straw and that will hold in the chaff a lot better, one that will resist frost better than anything we have and be better for the combine thresher. A considerable acreage frozen out every winter. Wheat market reports show that the market has gone up in the last few weeks on account of prospective wheat buyers considering prospective demands because of recent cold weather.

"A grain of wheat is the biggest problem that the miller has to contend with. Dust and dirt get in the bottom and comes out as specks in the flour.

Stations at Work

"Every station is doing a good deal of work on wheat. The department of agriculture is cooperating with all stations. One of the things that the Texas station worked on is rust. They found some interesting things. Different strains of rust which were originally in different localities spread progressively. We can do a lot to prevent smut, but can't do much to hold down rust except by breeding resistant strains. There is the formaldehyde treatment for smut. There is a finance committee supposed to assist in trying to get appropriation from the state for special wheat research work.

"We want a variety of wheat for the Southwest that has stiff straw, tight chaff and a high protein content, and a good quality protein and it must be a good flour wheat. It must have rust resistance and smut resistance.

Ad Club Studies Newspaper Making

Members of the Ad club spent 30 minutes in studying the various departments of a modern newspaper plant Tuesday noon as they were presented in a moving picture film showing the New York Sun making up an extra edition, and by John W. Dobbs, composing room superintendent of the Times Publishing company, who discussed the problems of a newspaper in handling advertising matter.

The picture shown was made in the Sun plant during the preparation of an extra issued upon the completion of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's flight to Mexico City in the fall of 1927. Explanatory comment and discussion were given by Mr. Dobbs during the showing of the film.

In his talk, Mr. Dobbs explained the problems encountered in making up the paper, particularly the advertising sections, arising from the variety of copy submitted. He emphasized the great saving of time and mistakes gained by all copy being properly prepared.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (AP)—An early decline under renewed liquidation, which apparently was influenced by lower Liverpool cables, was followed by rallies on trade buying and covering in the cotton market today. After selling off to 19.58 early, May rallied to 19.69 and closed at 19.66. The general market closed firm at a net decline of 1 point on March but generally 1 to 9 points net higher.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 7 points in response to the disappointing Liverpool cables and rather unfavorable Manchester trade advices. March sold off to 19.52, July to 19.24 and new October contract to 18.97 in the early trading, or about 6 to 7 points net lower, under further liquidation of old long accounts and some southern and local pressure.

Lower prices seemed to bring in more trade buying, particularly below 19.60 for May. After the initial offerings had been absorbed, prices turned steadier. Trade interests brought March at a discount of about 6 or 7 points under May, which helped to relieve the market of near month pressure.

Offerings were comparatively light during the middle of the day. March sold up to 19.62, July to 19.37 and the new October contract to 19.10, making net advances of about 3 to 6 points. Demand tapered off on this bulge and prices reacted partially in the later trading. March sold back to or a shade under the early lows. Other months just about lost their advances, but the market stiffened again in the last few minutes on renewed covering and talk of an improved technical position.

Closing prices were at about the best figures of the day on the new crop positions and within 3 or 5 points of the best on the old crop months. Liquidation of March contracts continued more or less steadily throughout the day. At the close March was 8 points under May compared with a difference of 6 points at the close of yesterday. The widening of the March difference was accompanied by talk of further arrivals of cotton here from the South, presumably for delivery.

Private cables reported that trade calling and scale down buying had absorbed liquidation in Liverpool and said there was only a limited inquiry for cloth, with yarns freely offered. Port receipts today 28,930. U. S. port stocks 2,174,511. Exports 34,315, making 5,774,316 this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 5. (AP)—Cotton prices developed frequent and erratic price fluctuations today and trading was rather more active than has been the rule of late. Although values developed no definite trend there was marked resistance to further declines with good buying encountered around the 19-cent level. May contracts after declining to 18.93 gradually rallied to 19.07 and closed at 19.04, unchanged from yesterday's close. The general market closed steady, unchanged to 1 point up.

The market opened easy in response to unfavorable Liverpool cables and although there was a flurry of buying right after the opening the market weakened again under selling promoted by the weather cables. March sold down to 18.90, May 18.95 and July 18.97, or 7 to 9 points under the previous close.

Later in the morning covering and trade buying on scale down orders coupled with some price fixing absorbed offerings and although there was a moderate reaction around noon the market stiffened again and made new highs in early afternoon trading.

March traded up to 19.03, and May and July to 19.07, or 10 to 13 points above the lows and 3 to 4 points over yesterday's close.

There was renewed selling in final trading and prices receded 7 to 8 points from the highs but offerings were absorbed at the decline and before the market closed prices rallied almost to the highs. March closed at 18.99 and July 19.05, or unchanged and one point up, respectively, compared with the previous close.

Specialties and Copper Feature Firm Trade on Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (US)—Specialties and coppers featured a generally firm market on the stock exchange today. The call rate held at seven per cent with loans outside made below that rate so that somewhat better sentiment prevailed.

Effect of the easier money condition was enhanced by announcement of a higher price for copper metal and increase in the Anaconda dividend that caused a wave of demand for the red metal shares and closed Anaconda up 2⅝, Cerro de Pasco up 5, Kennecott up 4⅛ and American Smelting up 2¼.

Short covering caused six points recovery in Packard and a rally of close to four point in Chrysler but other motors remained laggardly. Carbide remained one of the featured specialties adding 5⅝ to its gain, while Simmons moved up 2½ further. International business machines gained 8⅛ and U. S. Realty 7⅛. Oils and Rails remaining quiet and irregular. Turnover remained practically unchanged at slightly above the 4,000,000 share level.

Melon Rumors

Coincident with the report that the steel corporation would make its annual stock offering to employes as of May 1, there were further rumors of contemplated declaration of a stock dividend by the directors. There was some thought that such action would be taken at their April meeting. For the stockholders to approve such action at their regular annual meeting would require the calling of a special dividend meeting of directors. Just at present those usually well informed do not expect such action as they believe that the corporation will hold off special dividend action until late in the year. However, the position of the corporation is such as to warrant special stock distribution or recapitalization at any time.

Merger Looms

Inquiry indicates that negotiations looking toward the Warner-Loew merger are still under way. The same banking interests responsible for the latest investment trust combine are interested in this merger, it is pointed out, with W. C. Durant "standing in the middle."

Borden's new high was due to knowledge of contemplated split-up of the stock with similar influence at work in the buying of Union Carbide. Continental Can was the subject of favorable brokerage advice coincident with further investment buying of American Can. In the absence of any unexpected business disturbance both Can stocks should pay a larger dividend toward the close of the year. Snider preferred also gave a better account of itself with report of new group operations being planned.

Dividend Expected

Simmons was further helped by expectations that the regular dividend would be increased at the next meeting of directors. Remington Rand was the subject of special brokerage advice but leading interests in the business machines field continued to favor Underwood-Elliott Fisher, International Business Machines and Cash Register.

Interests responsible for the last rise in Columbia Graphaphone were reputedly planning more aggressive operations as it was stated they had cleaned up all the foreign selling that was handled through one of the most important banking firms. While the rails were quiet, there was further bullish news in the form of expectation that the Rock Island directors would increase the dividend at the next meeting.

Copper Advance

Increase in the Anaconda dividend to a $7 annual rate followed on the heels of the further advance of ¼ of a cent a pound in the price of copper. This advance was no surprise to the trade as first expectation was voiced a fortnight ago. However, it means further gain in income of Anaconda and other leading producers and puts Anaconda, with Cerro, Kennecott, American Smelting and other good companies in a position to make even larger payments before the end of the year. However, it will also encourage opening up of high-cost producing properties and manipulation of unattractive metal stocks of which the unschooled investor must be wary.

TEXAS REVIEW

FORT WORTH, Feb. 5. (AP)—Today's supply of cattle and calves here about in line with Tuesday of last week, but considerably under the corresponding day last year.

Trading in steers opened fairly early with about steady prices paid on the early sales. Prices ranged from $10.00@10.90, with some due to sell around the $11.00 mark.

The supply of bulls very light with two cars in the southern division at $8.60 and a few head at $9.00, common light bulls sold mostly around $6.50.

Trading in cows consisted mostly of the better kind of cows, with a three-string selling at $8.50 and other cars at $8.00. Fully steady. Canners and cutters found ready buyers for the light offering on hand with sales fully steady. Very few of the canners sold under $5.00, with cutters up to $6.00.

The number of slaughter yearlings and heifers on hand was liberal with prices about steady. Trade fairly active. A carlot sold at $11.00, and about three cars sold at $10.85.

The supply of calves continues to be light with a fair demand. Early sales included carlots at $11.00, $11.35, and $11.60, or fully steady. The bulk of the cull calves sold at $6.50@7.00.

The stocker supply of cattle light. Steer calves sold at $12.25 or about steady.

With northern markets showing a little weakness on sheep, wooled fat lambs here were a quarter lower. Other classes steady. A part deck of wooled fat lambs sold at $15.75 and wooled feeder wethers at $8.90.

Hogs steady to 15c lower, top $9.85 to an order buyer. Truck top $9.00. Bulk 175 to 250-pound butchers sold at $8.50@9.60; packing sows at $7.50@8.25.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 5. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Receipts of hogs at the 11-markets totalled 140,300, an increase of 42,000 over last Tuesday and 34,000 in excess of the same day a year ago. Liberal supplies at all markets reflected a weaker undertone in the trade, and although trading ruled fairly active prices were reduced mostly 15@25c against yesterday's average. The day's practical top rested at $10 at St. Louis.

A slow, draggy, steady to weak market prevailed on fed steers and yearlings as a rule, with some markets reporting weak to 25c lower rates on short fed offerings. Choice yearlings scored $14.25 at Chicago and $13.75 at Kansas City. Better grades of beef cows and fed heifers continued dull and are quoted weak to 25c lower, while lower grades of cutters are in good demand at steady prices. Country demand for stocker and feeder steers at present is extremely narrow as a result of the declining prices on fat steers and the relatively high level of corn. Although declines of 50@75c were scored during the past ten days, very few cattle have been taken out for finishing. Arrivals totalled 33,400, against 44,243 a week ago and 35,599 a year ago.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 5. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts 11,000; 15@20c lower; top $9.55 on 200-230 pounds.

Cattle—Receipts 7,500; calves 700; fed steers and yearlings steady to 25c lower; she stock steady; slaughter steers, good and choice, 1,300-1,500 pounds $11.50@14.00; 1,100-1,300 pounds $11.25@14.25; 950-1,100 pounds $11.25@14.75; fed yearlings, good choice 750-950 pounds $11.25@15.00; heifers, good and choice 850 pounds down $9.50@12.75; cows, good and choice $8.00@10.25; vealers (milk-fed) medium to choice $9.50@15.00.

Sheep—Receipts 8,000; steady to weak; lambs, good and choice (92 pounds down) $15.00@16.00; ewes, medium to choice (150 pounds down) $7.75@10.00.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 5. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 1,00; market steady to 15c lower; top $8.85, paid for small killers for good to choice 226-pound butchers; truck to $9.00; bulk mediums to good 175 to 220-pound rail hogs $8.50@8.60; bulk desirable 175 to 250-pound truck hogs $8.50@9.00; packing sows steady, mostly $7.75@8.25.

Cattle—Receipts 2,000; market general trade in all classes, about steady; slaughter steers rather slow, some strength on small advances in low cutter cows; slaughter steers, mostly $10.00@11.00; several cars around $10.95@10.90; slaughter yearlings $11.00 down.

Sheep—Receipts 200; wooled fat lambs weak to quarter lower; other classes steady; part deck good to choice wooled fat lambs $15.75; two decks holdover wooled feeder wethers $8.30.

CHICAGO REVIEW

CHICAGO, Feb. 5. (AP)—General selling out on the part of holders of future deliveries here led to a break in all grain values today at the last. Reports of arrangements to bring liberal amounts of wheat to Chicago from Omaha and corn from Kansas City did much to start the selling movement, and to reveal that for at least the time being the markets here were without adequate support.

Closing quotations on wheat were weak, 1⅝c to 2⅛c net lower, corn 1⅛c to 1⅛c off, oats ¼@⅜c to ½c down and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 15c.

Lowest prices of the day were the rule at the finish in every one of the grain pits here. Before word came, however, that both wheat and corn at Missouri river markets were being sold for shipment to this city, each of the two cereals was displaying an upward trend here. Corn was showing the greater strength, helped by indications of a renewal of corn export demand with bids from Great Britain for corn from this country said to be on about a working basis. Evidence of better export call for wheat from North America was also apparent, with world available stocks of wheat reported cut down nearly 6,000,000 bushels as compared with a week ago.

Late gossip was current that advances in the corn market had shut off the export demand for corn. An additional bearish factor was announcement that a leading industry which has been buying corn here in good sized quantities had suddenly withdrawn from the market. Besides, country offerings of corn to arrive here were of fair volume. Oats followed other grain, and reacted after an early bulge.

For the most part, provisions were slightly easier on account of selling for warehouse interests and for packers.

KRAFT PLANT REVISES PRICE

Henrietta Baby Beef Brings 13 Cents Here

A drop of three cents per pound of butterfat content on sweet milk has been announced by the Kraft Cheese company, making the present price 52 cents, according to Charles L. Teissier, manager of the local plant.

The price paid for sweet milk has been decreased at other points some time before any decline was announced here, it was said. The drop in price was attributed to a surplus of cheese products which is represented by the largest amount in storage ever recorded in the industry. The stored reserve of cheese one year ago was greater than at any other time since 1923, it was stated, but that surplus has increased materially during the last year, Mr. Teissier said.

Efforts are being made in Terral and Comanche, Okla., to organize local agencies for the delivery of milk from a large number of farmers to points on the highway where a truck freight line into Wichita Falls may complete delivery to the Kraft cheese plant here. Mr. Teissier and O. K. Barnes, publicity and agricultural agent of the chamber of commerce, made a trip to Oklahoma last week in the interest of possible sources of milk in Comanche and Terral, and the plans being formed at those points are the result of their visit.

Another carload of choice yard-fed baby beef from Henrietta was purchased Monday by the Wichita Packing company. Forty-five Hereford calves, from six months to a year old, comprised the shipment, which came from the herd belonging to Dr. A. B. Edwards. The stock invoiced at about 13 cents on the roof.

SON ACCUSED OF FORGERY

Charge Follows Mother's Story to Judge

Upon the complaint of his parents, who accused him of signing his mother's name to a $750 check, a 34-year-old Wichita Falls man was arrested on charges of forgery Tuesday afternoon. The complaint, filed by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, included two smaller checks to which the son is alleged to have attached his father's name.

The arrest followed the filing of an injunction petition Monday, in which the parents asked that the son be restrained from entering their home. A hearing on the petition before Judge W. W. Cook Monday afternoon was continued to await the testimony of the defendant.

Two civil suits, in which the parents, aged and handicapped by a poor command of the English language, seek to regain 2,000 acres of land which the son is alleged to have wrongfully obtained, are still pending.

The parents told Judge Cook Monday that their son intimidated them in their own home and would not allow them to conduct their affairs in peace. A native of Czechoslovakia, the aged mother, in testifying against her son, was forced to use the services of an interpreter.

Accident Costs Man His Arm

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Feb. 5—A strong post probably saved the life of T. H. Berry, 45, employe of the Memphis Cotton Oil mill, here tonight. Berry suffered injuries when his arm became entangled in a rotating line shaft which necessitated the amputation of the arm at a local hospital.

According to those at the mill, Berry leaned over to clean a running board beneath the line shaft. As he bent over, his sleeve caught in a set screw on the shaft and pulled his arm into it. He grasped a nearby post with his free arm while the rotating shaft tore the clothing from his entire body and mangled his arm.

Other employes, attracted by his screams, shut off the power and took him to a local hospital where amputation was found to be necessary. He was reported resting well at a late hour tonight, and hospital attaches said he would live.

County to Act On $31,000 Fee Claim

Action on the advice given a week ago by Harvey Harris, special counsel, suggesting that the county contest the $31,000 claim for delinquent tax fees, will be taken at a special meeting of the county commissioners court Thursday afternoon.

The special session was called because Mr. Harris was unable to attend the meeting of the court Monday. It is understood that the court will give formal notice to Guy C. Raley, county tax collector, and M. L. Tittle, his predecessor, that the county will force their claim for commissions on delinquent taxes collected since 1919 into the courts for decision.

Mr. Harris, employed as special attorney for the county, met with the commissioner at a former session and explained that a contest in a court of competent jurisdiction was advisable.

Mystery abounds at the Olympic theater this week where Tom Lewis and his company are presenting "The Face At the Window," a dramatic mystery show that abounds in comedy. The Lewis players are presenting their best play so far in this show.

◆ ◆ ◆

Wednesday is the last day for what we consider the most interesting picture Coleen Moore has appeared in. It is "Synthetic Sin" at the Majestic. It may not be Colleen's best, but it is highly entertaining.

◆ ◆ ◆

And Thursday is the day the vaudeville bill will come back to the Majestic. Folks are still talking about Koran who spilled several family secrets while gazing at a crystal in an act last week.

◆ ◆ ◆

Back to Colleen Moore. A man in the street remarked that "Synthetic Sin" was a lot more like the real stuff than is "synthetic gin."

◆ ◆ ◆

◆ ◆ ◆

Billie Dove's "Adoration" is due on the boards at the Majestic Saturday.

◆ ◆ ◆

Charlie Moorehead is highly elated over the showing being made by the Lewis players at the Olympic. "They are giving us something that is really new," he says.

Symphony Orchestra and Artists Concert at College Wins Praise

By FRIEDA van EMDEN

Why was not a microphone installed at the Junior college last night to broadcast the glory of Wichita Falls? This community has received all kinds of publicity, but its true musical spirit has never been proclaimed to the outside world. It is apparent from the concert given by the Wichita Falls Symphony orchestra and solo-artists, under the auspices of the Musicians club, that we have here more able musicians per capita than almost any city in the United States. Some were born here, others came and settled and they are making a truly musical center of Wichita Falls. If the public will always encourage its musicians as it did last night by attending in big numbers, great things can be done.

It is more satisfying to listen to the first class efforts of the best of local talent, than to have to take in the half-hearted effort of fatigued traveling artists, be they ever so well known.

Orchestra Program

The first half of the program was given over to the symphony orchestra. Mr. Nelson, its conductor, has molded it into a wonderful ensemble, showing great precision and perfect unity. This orchestra does not in the least sound amateurish, though it is practically made up of amateurs, people not depending for a living on music. It must have taken hard work and unending patience on the part of the conductor and wonderful cooperation, innate musical sense and loyal, hard practice on the part of the players.

When the opening notes of Mozart's Minuet sounded in perfect unissimo, one became conscious of listening to a good orchestra. They were, one might say, at the tip of the conductor's baton, following his every mood and indication. Such definite contrast, such fine inflections! They played with the verve of a veteran orchestra. Mozart and Beethoven were given in truly classical style and a nice balance between strings and brasses was maintained throughout.

Friml's "Mignonette" was extremely gracefully done, young Donnell taking the obbligato artistically for so young a player.

Nelson's Composition Played

This was followed by one of Nelson's latest compositions, "Marche Funebre," which received its first public hearing. We would like to hear this again, its pronounced rythm and surprising brass-effects class it amongst the ultra-modern. We hope that some day Mr. Nelson will make up a program entirely of his own work. Later on in the evening, as an encore to his solos, with Stella Stacy at the piano, he played another composition of his, "Lovely Marianne," done in such an entirely different vein that the contrast was remarkable and shows his versatility.

Schubert's ever attractive "Marche Militaire" brilliantly closed that part of the program.

The second part was given over to solo work. Miss Modena Howell, soprano, gave two songs, which were well received, with Mrs. Bruce Greenwood doing good work in the violin obbligato.

Floyd Ard Jr. played the highly technical and brilliant Schutts-Evler arrangement of Strauss' "Blue Danube Waltz." This he followed by Liszt's "Liebestraum" and he gave a wonderful interpretation of this beloved composition.

The other composer carrying away the honors for the evening was Stella Stacy, whose two songs, "Betrayal" and "Whither," were well sung by Joseph Berger, baritone. As an encore he gave Fay Foster's "I Just Don't Want To," which was in a much lighter vein. This young man knows how to handle his voice.

Mrs. Stacy's accompaniments, which she played herself, were most interesting and her playing is exquisite. She also arranged the piano part to the two concert numbers Eithel Allen Nelson gave, "Romance" by Winiawski and "Caprice" by Fiorillo and through their modern treatment gave them a much more interesting background. Mr. Nelson played brilliantly and received a well-earned applause.

The evening closed with a lovely quartet, "In a Persian Garden," by Liza Lehman, sung by Mrs. Kenneth Bebb, Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, Mrs. W. L. Underwood and Mr. Lester Aldrich. Their voices blended perfectly and the solo parts were well taken. Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr. showed her ability as an accompanist in Miss Howell's numbers and with the quartet.

RICHER

City Meat Inspector Finds Dime in Cow's Stomach

Dr. J. M. Farrell, city chief sanitary inspector, is a richer man now than he was Monday—by 10 cents.

While inspecting meat at a local packing house, the doctor found a dime in the stomach of a cow. On the basis of "finder keeper, loser weeper," Doc took formal possession of the money.

He also reported finding about a pound of nails in the stomach of another cow.

CARNES SENT BACK TO BARS

Baptist Treasurer Pleads Guilty to Charges

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 5. (AP)—Clinton S. Carnes, who rose from ex-convict to a position of prominence as treasurer of the Southern Baptist Home Mission board and decamped after nine years leaving a shortage estimated at nearly a million dollars, pleaded guilty to embezzlement here today and was sentenced to from five to seven years imprisonment.

His plea was accepted on recommendation of board officials who said Carnes had turned over all his resources for restitution, that it would save the state a long, expensive trial and that justice would be served by the sentence because of his age. It was added that Carnes had agreed to aid in untangling the board's accounts, on which auditors have been working since he disappeared last summer.

It was as an obscure auditor that Carnes first became affiliated with the home mission board. A year later, in 1919, his business ability won for him the post of treasurer.

Then he joined the Capital Avenue Baptist church, became chairman of the finance and buildings committee, was invited to membership in several clubs and established a home in the fashionable Druid Hills section. He became the head of several private business enterprises here.
