Coolidge Gives Washington Address By Radio

ASK AMERICANS TO LIVE UP TO FOUNDER'S IDEAL

Rotary Club Anniversary Is Also Occasion For Speech

TELLS PROBLEMS

Says Self-Government Not Cure For All Faults But Best

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—President Coolidge, in a radio address delivered tonight from the White House combined with a tribute to Washington, an appeal to the American people to accept the responsibilities and continue the sacrifices necessary to make enduring the institutions which Washington founded.

Mr. Coolidge described the part played by Washington in founding the American government, and he "accomplished the results by accepting great responsibilities and making great sacrifices."

"If we are to maintain the institutions he founded, if we are to improve what he created, we must be like-minded with him, we must continue to accept responsibilities, we must continue to make sacrifices," the president said. "Under all the laws of God and man there is no other way."

The address was delivered by the president in his study in the White House and was made by invitation of the International Rotary club, members of which recently asked that the president deliver an address today in anniversary of the founding Rotarianism.

"Each year the birthday of George Washington gains wider acceptance as being of more national significance," Mr. Coolidge said. "In far off lands people are observing this day by taking thought of the qualities that gave Washington this foremost place among the truly great. They are drawn by this man by his calm and clear judgment by his abounding faith, and his unselfish devotion. Beyond that which was ever accorded to any other mortal, he holds rank as a soldier, a statesman and a patriot. Others may have excelled him in some of these qualities.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON

Editor Says Father of Country Was Prophet Of the West

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Washington was "the prophet of the west," Dr. John H. Finley, of the editorial staff of the New York Times said in an address at a public Washington's birthday observance under the auspices of the Union League club today.

"He was the first to realize the importance of tying this great valley of the western waters to the colonies, and making a unit out of what might have become a group of American Balkan states, each with its own river or mountain barrier," said Dr. Finley.

"He was in favor of cementing interests of solidarities. He did not want entanglements with individual nations.

"He would have been today one of our world entangling economic expansionists—whatever his view of the league of nations might have been.

"But he was in the modest enterprises of his time, which were the precursors of the great businesses of today, scrupulously careful to keep his public service free of any taint of private interest. There is not a public man in our history whose example needs more to be held before our eyes at this time when public confidence is being shaken and national shame is being invited by the failure of some men in office and out of office to recognize their obligation to the public."

Daugherty Beards Enemy In Senate Den and Pays Visit

Appearance of Attorney General in Senate Chamber Creates Sensation and Amazes Foes.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Harry M. Daugherty, who threw down the gauntlet yesterday to senators seeking to force him out of public life, today walked calmly into the senate chamber and spent an unperturbed half hour in the midst of his bitterest foes.

He told inquirers he had come to fulfill a long standing promise to listen to the reading of Washington's farewell address by Willis of Ohio, one of the few senators who publicly have championed his cause throughout the storm of criticism that has come down upon him.

The unexpected appearance of the attorney general amazed his enemies, created a stir in the galleries and electrified what otherwise would have been one of the quietest and most sedate of senate sessions. He entered the chamber alone and was greeted by Senator Warren, republican, of Wyoming, who shook hands with him. He took a seat on a lounge in a corner of the republican side.

Senators Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the republican senatorial committee, immediately joined him there and later Senator Elkins, republican, West Virginia, greeted him and took a seat near him. Mr. Daugherty stood with the senators while the chaplain delivered the opening prayer. He then took a seat again at some distance from Senator Lodge, republican leader of Massachusetts and one of the spokesmen for administration senators urging that President Coolidge ask for Mr. Daugherty's resignation.

The attorney general had been given a bound copy of Washington's address and he followed closely the reading by Senator Willis, occasionally marking passages in the volume with a pencil.

With exception of Senators Moses and Elkins, most of the senators present remained in their seats following the reading from copies of the Washington address. Mr. Daugherty left alone and so speedily that none of them had opportunity to speak to him. He appeared in good humor and smiled frequently.

Arkansas Negro City Loses Officers To Booze

By The Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 22.—Edmondson, a Crittenden county incorporated town of 300 or 400 population, composed almost entirely of negro and having a negro mayor, town marshal, and council, has recovered temporarily from what was described officially as "an embarrassing and precarious condition" due to the alleged absence from the town of the marshal and the "official star."

The troubles of Edmondson were made known here today by Thaw W. Rowdon, federal prohibition director for Arkansas, who announced that Sam Gabriel Thompson, negro town marshal of Edmondson, had been arrested after several days search on charges of transporting whiskey, that subsequently he was released on bond and now is performing his official duties as guardian of the peace.

The mayor and town council are said to have considered election of a substitute town marshal during two or three days, when neither Thompson nor the official badge were seen on the streets of Edmondson, but were restrained by the fact that such official would have no badge of authority.

Thompson was charged with having transported liquor on mule back from a still recently raided near Edmondson.

ADAMS STANDS BY DAUGHERTY

Republican Committeeman Says No Time to Yield To Threats

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Chairman Adams of the republican national committee tonight publicly joined the issue with those of his party leaders in the senate who are demanding the immediate resignation of Attorney General Daugherty.

"This is not the time," he said, in a formal statement, "to yield the threats of those who are conducting this campaign of political terrorism, or to the demands of those who are frightened by such methods."

The republican organization, he declared, will insist that no verdict of guilty, shall be pronounced until indisputable evidence of guilt has been produced. The statement follows in part:

"The integrity of a former republican cabinet official has been called into serious question because he accepted money while in office from certain oil interests.

"The reputation of three former democratic cabinet officers, and other prominent democrats during the Wilson administration because they received money from the same oil interests, as hire for their political influence with their own administration.

"Taking advantage of this situation a few political black guards and scandal mongers have launched a general campaign of slander against members of the cabinet and others high in official life.

"One of the victims of this campaign is Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy. The record shows he did not perform a single act in connection with the leasing of the naval oil reserves that was either illegal or immoral—much less a betrayal of public trust or inimicable to public welfare.

"Now it is being charged that Attorney General Daugherty was a party to the transaction. He had nothing whatever to do with the oil leases. He was not even consulted regarding them. Those making these charges claim they want a congressional investigation of Mr. Daugherty in order to bring out the facts. But they are not willing to wait for the investigation.

"What they hope to do is to force Attorney General Daugherty out of the cabinet before such an investigation can take place. They hope he will prefer such retirement to the alternative of remaining in office to be harrassed and slandered.

"The republican party organization stands unalterably for clean and honest administration of public affairs. It does not condone betrayal of public trust or seek to protect those of its party guilty of such betrayal.

"But if is equally insistent that the guilt must be proved or shown by evidence that admits no doubt. Hysteria is not proof. Libel is not truth. Idle gossip and hearsay scandal are not evidence."

ADMITS MURDERS.

By The Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 22.—Carl Ryberg admitted today that he killed Mrs. Laura Mummey and badly injured her husband, Joshua, last Tuesday, when he robbed the home of the old couple, according to Sheriff McCullough, to whom Ryberg made his statement.

No Appropriations Have Been Made in 10 Years For Building Postoffice Structures Figures Show.

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Members of congress from 48 states are anxious to know the solution of the public buildings problem, which a congressional candidate from Texas says he has.

This candidate is reported recently to have told an audience in Texas that he would present their demands for a postoffice in such a way as to obtain the building.

Meanwhile Congressman Langley, republican, Kentucky, chairman of the public buildings committee; Representative Walter W. Magee, New York, member of the powerful appropriations committee, and even Speaker Gillett have been unable to get relief.

There has been no public buildings bill since 1913 on 11 years. As a result the postal plant of the country is in a run-down condition.

Speaker Gillett has tried in vain to have improvements made on the postoffice at Springfield, Mass., his home. Congressman Walter W. Magee, New York, in several floor speeches has told the house of representatives of the situation at Syracuse. The government tore down a building on a corner in Syracuse 10 years ago, expecting to erect a new building. No appropriation has been forthcoming and land worth a million dollars, in the heart of the city is idle, a gaunt hole in the ground reminding Syracuse daily of the fact that there has not been a public buildings bill in 10 years.

In Texas new buildings or improvements are urgently needed in Dallas,

COALITIONISTS CONTINUE WINS IN TAX MATTER

Democrats With Republican Insurgents Gain More Victories

CORPORATION TAX

Longworth Predicts Combine Will Be Broken And G. O. P.'s Win

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The house democratic-republican insurgent coalition wedged another amendment into the revenue bill today, making tax returns subject to inspection by certain congressional committees.

This amendment and another adopted by a one vote margin, opening corporation tax returns to inspection of state officials regardless of whether the state imposes an income tax as the law now requires, developed the major controversal issues of the day.

Both amendments drew fire from the republicans, Representative Mills, New York, charging that "this piecemeal destruction of the revenue bill is not only leading to complete distortion of the measure but to destruction of the income tax law itself." He charged the measure was being made an instrument of politics, adding that "instead of bringing relief for the tax payers it is going to harass them."

Representative Wingo, democrat, Arkansas, in reply, denied that amendments thus far adopted had done more than bring relief to a greater number of tax payers and declared he would "rather be charged with political motives than personal interest in framing a revenue bill."

The republican stand served to defeat an amendment offered by Representative Moore, democrat, Virginia, which would have opened personal as well as corporation returns to state officers. It was lost, 122 to 74.

Additional changes in the measure were tentatively agreed upon at a meeting of some members of both parties of the ways and means committee. These would increase the estate

NEW COUNSELOR IN TEAPOT CASES IS HARD AT WORK

Owen J. Roberts.

Owen J. Roberts, named by President Coolidge to act with Atlee Pomerene as counselor for the government in the oil lease cases, has plunged into the evidence so far presented in the senate investigation and expects to have all of it examined by the time the hearings are resumed. He was appointed after two men, Thomas W. Gregory and Silas Strawn, had been disqualified. He is a Philadelphia lawyer.

EVIDENCE IS PRETTY BAD

By The Associated Press.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 22. — A woman's hat, stained with blood, a pint bottle of liquor, a demolished coupe and a large pool of blood, discovered on the Keystone road near Fisher, west of Sand Springs, set Tulsa county authorities on a tour of investigation today, led by Sheriff R. D. Sandford. No clues have been uncovered to unravel the mystery.

Ku Klux In Parade March Without Masks

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 22.—The knights of the ku klux klan of Oklahoma and several surrounding states staged a mammoth parade on the downtown streets here tonight, the marchers being unmasked. Klan leaders said this was the first public demonstration in the history of the order in which the members appeared with the faces revealed. The marchers, however, were attired in the customary robes and hoods of the order.

Approximately 4,500 marchers were in line.

The demonstration was quiet, both the marchers and the throngs that packed the streets maintaining almost unbroken silence during the hour the klansmen were in formation. The Tulsa klan, headed by a band of nearly 75 pieces, drew the only marked sign of recognition from the crowd. The Tulsans who attained the spotlight during the period of martial law late last year when a military tribunal set up by former Governor J. C. Walton investigated acts of alleged lawlessness in Tulsa county, received a burst of cheering as they passed between the lines of watchers.

A fiery cross of electric lights carried by two men led the way for the klan army. Another cross formed of several hundred klansmen carrying red flares further back in the parade was one of the features.

While the klansmen paraded, aviators with crosses on their planes dashed about overhead dropping bombs that exploded in the air, and left trails of fire streaked against a black sky. A mist filled the air throughout the parade, at times amounting almost to rain, and a chill wind made the watchers along the side lines uncomfortable.

The business session of the gathering opened at 9 o'clock this morning with about 800 accredited delegates from 270 klans in attendance. Grand Dragon N. C. Jewett of Oklahoma presided.

Representatives from klans in Arkansas, Texas, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas were at the business session and addresses were made by a spokesman from each state.

BEER WAR VICTIM

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Apparently thrown mortally wounded from an automobile into a snow bank along one of Cook county' beer highways, J. H. Duffy is believed by police to be the latest victim of the beer war in the county. A bus driver found the body.

FIUME TO ITALY

ROME, Feb. 22.—Premier Mussolini and the Jugo-Slav minister today exchanged ratifications of the treaty signed at Rome January 27. It is by the provisions of this treaty that Fiume becomes Italian territory.

Stresemann In Criticism Of French Stand

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Foreign minister Stresemann today announced in the Reichstag that France had returned Germany's note respecting the Palatinate, France at the same time informing the German government that it did not intend to interfere in German disputes, in which it was not concerned. The minister strongly criticized the French action in rejecting the note. It could only lead, he said, to increasing despair among the people, instead of to agreement, which everyone desired.

Senator Greene Appears Improved From Wound

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Senator Frank L. Greene, of Vermont, shot down a week ago by a stray bullet fired in a battle between prohibition officers and suspected bootleggers, apparently strengthened his grip on life today.

Physicians believed his condition was better today than at any time since he was taken to the hospital, although they said that no definite prognosis could be made at this time. The senator is now taking nourishment.

HERE'S DIAMOND THEFT TRICK Easy Way to Get Engagement Ring

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Clever thieves varied an old trick and succeeded in robbing a jewelry store in a crowded Berlin street today of about $20,000 worth of loot.

Just at the noon hour when the proprietor and his clerks locked up and departed for luncheon, a dray drew up and two men unloaded a large box which they placed against the shop door. They informed inquirers that they were waiting for the proprietor's return to collect carfare. In about half an hour, saying they could wait no longer, they reloaded the box and drove away.

When the proprietor returned he discovered the loss of practically all the stock available. Investigation disclosed that one man had been hidden in the box and working through a trick door had cut out the panel of the shop door, helped himself to diamonds and jewelry, crawled back into the box, reset the shop door panel with sticking plaster and was comfortably carted away by his confederates.

The Day In Washington

The agricultural appropriation bill was reported to the house carrying $36,758,513.

The revenue bill was amended in the house to make tax returns available to special congressional committee.

Attorney General Daugherty appeared unexpectedly in the senate and remained half hour in the midst of his foes.

C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, will be called before the senate oil committee, probably Monday, it was stated.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, cut short his southern visit to return to Washington to resume his work in the oil inquiry.

Chairman Adams of the republican national committee, declared the demand for Attorney General Daugherty's retirement "without investigation appeared "absurd."

QUAKE SHOCK.

By The Associated Press.

TARRES, France, Feb. 22.—An earthquake this afternoon at 3:20 o'clock rocked buildings here and at Bagneres, Cauteres and other places. The walls of some buildings were cracked while doors were thrown open and furniture was broken. The shock lasted ten seconds. Nobody was injured, and the property damage was relatively slight.

NAPHTHA FIRE AT REFINERY CAUSES UNKNOWN DAMAGE

Fire which, officials believe, was caused by a chemical reaction in the agitator, destroyed a small amount of naphtha at the American refinery just before midnight Friday and may have caused heavier damage to the agitator itself. It was impossible at an early hour this morning to ascertain whether or not the agitator had been burned out or not. Officials at the plant said they did not believe any extensive damage had been done but that they would be unable to learn definitely until the agitator had cooled and a thorough examination could be made.

The flames were discovered about 11:45 Friday night. The contents of the agitator, which was nearly filled to its 400-barrel capacity, was drawn out through the bottom.

An alarm brought firemen from the city department to the scene, where they aided in fighting the blaze and in guarding against its spread to surrounding tanks and buildings.

3 TRAINMEN DEAD IN EXPLOSION

By The Associated Press.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Feb. 22—W. H. French, engineer; G. H. Phipps, fireman, and L. F. Pargon, brakeman, all of Parsons, Kas., were killed late this afternoon when the freight locomotive exploded at Hominy, Okla., 30 miles southwest of here. Phipps was killed outright and Pargon and French died later.

The engine boiler was hurled 100 feet from the track. The cause of the explosion is unknown, railroad officials say.

Engineer French and Brakeman Pargon were rushed to Wyona, a few miles east of Hominy, for medical treatment. Pargon died within half an hour and French two hours later. All three men were badly scalded and burned.

Kansas McAdoo Forces Put Joker Past Favorite Son

Adjourn Meeting Suddenly So Gov. Davis' Forces Could Not Indorse Him For President.

By The Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kas., Feb. 22.—Kansas democrats, after a hectic day in which their annual mass meeting abruptly adjourned to avoid endorsement of a presidential candidate, selected Hutchinson, Kas., for the party's state convention on April 2.

The outstanding development of the day was the abbreviated mass meeting from which profuse expressions of party harmony had been expected instead of the customary oratory and party laudition, a motion for adjournment was offered, as the first business, before the body and carried. Politicians saw in the action a move which forestalled at least temporarily a clash between the supporters of Governor Jonathan M. Davis for presidential endorsement and the followers of William G. McAdoo, led by Sam B. Amidon, McAdoo's state manager and democratic national committeeman. McAdoo forces favored the adjournment motion.

Commenting on the action, Governor Davis said he felt entitled to a favorite son endorsement and that if it were not given at tonight's banquet then the two factions had "come to the parting of the way," and the governor might become an avowed candidate for president.

Negro Found Not Guilty of Murdering School Teacher

Freedom of Black Probably Means Solution of Mountain Death Mystery Will Never Be Made.

By The Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Ky., Feb. 22.—Jerry Reed, negro ex-convict, charged with the murder of Miss Laura Persons, Pine Mountain school teacher, late in 1920, was found not guilty by a jury in circuit court here today. The case was given to the jury Thursday forenoon.

The verdict closes the second chapter in the murder mystery which may go down through Kentucky mountain history as unsolved. Dr. C. H. Winne, assistant state veterinarian, first was charged with the crime. When his case was called, however, it resulted in a mistrial and the indictment later was filed away.

Afterward a letter said to have been written by a convict who was in the state reformatory at Frankfort with Reed was purported to have implicated Reed with the crime, who then was taken into custody.

Miss Parsons was beaten to death with a club. Her murder stirred the people to a high pitch in the mountains where it is an axiom that a woman is almost as safe as she ordinarily is in her own home

Seek To Commute Six Death Sentences

By The Associated Press.

HAMMOND, La., Feb. 22.—Notice that application for commutation for six Italians under death sentence for the murder of Dallas Calmes, in May 1921, would be filed with the board of pardons was published today in Hammond newspapers. The defendants, Joseph Giglio and Roy Leona, Brooklyn, N. Y., Joseph Blacchio and Andreas Lemartis, Chicago, and Natalie Deamore and Joseph Brini, New Orleans recently failed in an attempt to have the United States supreme court review their case and nothing remains but executive clemency at the recommendation of the board of pardon.

Calmes, a restaurant operator of Independence, near here, was shot down by one member of a party during an attempt to rob a bank at Independence. Only one shot was fired. The six defendants were captured and convicted. The identity of the man who shot Calmes never has been revealed.

SECRETARY TO COOLIDGE IS NEXT CALLED

Walsh Rushes Back From Vacation to Start Other Developments

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, will be called as a witness in the oil inquiry, probably next Monday.

This was made known today by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, who has taken the lead in pressing the investigation, after he had returned unexpectedly to Washington from a vacation at Pinehurst, N. C.

Mr. Slemp visited Palm Beach last December at the time Former Secretary Fall and Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, were there, and he probably will be asked if he talked with them about the oil scandal.

Other members of the committee who concur in the decision to call the president's secretary, said he might be questioned also as to whether he had talked with government officials or others mentioned in the oil cases since the beginning of the sensational disclosures which followed the testimony of Archie Roosevelt on January 22.

Apparently the news that he would be called came as no surprise to Mr. Slemp. It was understood that he had been advised several days ago that

NOTED BISHOP LAID TO REST

Alexander C. Garrett's Funeral Is Largely Attended

By The Associated Press.

DALLAS, Feb. 22.—All that is mortal of Bishop Alexander C. Garrett, presiding bishop of the American Episcopal church, was laid to rest today. He died last Monday and his funeral followed a series of religious services throughout the week in which all Dallas took occasion to pay final respect to its venerable citizen.

The funeral service was held at St. Matthews cathedral. The structure was packed to overflowing and those unable to gain entrance stood outside door while the service was being held. Persons from all walks of life and from every denomination made up this quiet crowd that stood on the outside; men of high rank in the Masonic order, older citizens of Dallas who knew the prelate when he was in his prime, laborers, bankers and merchants, all anxious to attend the last rites of a man who had given his life to working for Dallas and Texas.

When the funeral service was begun the tolling of the cathedral bell, which started with the moving of the bishop's body from St. Mary's college to the cathedral this morning, ceased. The regular burial service of the Episcopal church was read. Dean R. S. Chalmers of St. Matthews cathedral read the Psalms and the lessons were read by Bishop S. T. Partridge of Kansas City. The prayers and blessings were read by Bishop George H. Kinsolving of Austin, bishop of Texas.

LARGE CROWD

Another crowd had gathered at the grave despite the inclement weather. The service at the grave was brief. The service through commitment of the body to the flower-banked grave was read by Bishop Harry T. Moore of Dallas. Bishop Frederick B. Howden of Alburquerque, N. M., read the prayer and Bishop Sessoums of New Orleans led the verse of "Nearer My God to Thee," the favorite hymn of the dead prelate. Bishop Kinsolving concluded the service with the reading of the Apostles' creed.

The Masonic services at the grave was dispensed with because of the conflict between the Episcopal service and the Masonic service.

The active pall bearers were the Rev. C. E. Snowden of Dallas; Archdeacon Harry Lee Virden of Dallas; Curate Bertram Smith of Dallas; the Rev. Charles Clingman of Houston; the Rev. Joseph Sherrin of Dallas, and the Rev. Richard Morgan of Bonham.

The honorary pall bearers included numerous friends of the bishop of long standing and men who had attained high degrees in the Masonic order. Bishop Garrett hirm f was a thirty-third degree Mason.

The aged bishop was buried in robes that he had put away 24 years ago for that purpose. The robes were given to him at that time on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his consecration as a bishop. He decided then to save the robes for his burial. It was said he was proud of their splendor and beauty, and preferred to save them and use other robes for his work. There was also in the casket the bishop's staff which Bishop Garrett had carried in the early days of his office. It was of wood, gilded, and was supplanted by a staff richly ornamented.

COOLIDGE

ONE OF US

"We can best estimate him by not identifying him with some high place, but thinking of him as one of ourselves. When all detailed description fails, it is enough to say he was a great man. He had a supreme endowment of character.

"It is not possible to compress a great life into a single sentence. We look upon Washington as the exponent of the rights of man. We think of him as having established the independence of America. We associate his name with liberty and freedom. We say that he was a great influence in the adoption of the constitution of the United States. All these are centered around the principle of self-government. But when we examine the meaning of independence, of constitutional liberty, and of self government, we do not find that they are simple rights which society can bestow upon us. They are very complex. They have to be earned. They have been paid for. They arise only from the discharge of our obligation one to another.

"Washington did not, could not, give anything to his countrymen. His greatness lies in the fact that he was successful in calling them to the performance of a higher duty. He showed them to have a greater liberty by earning it. All that any society can do, all that any government, is to attempt to guarantee to the individual the social, economic and political rewards of his own effort and industry. The America which Washington founded does not mean we shall have everything done for us, but that we shall have every opportunity to do everything for ourselves. This is liberty, but it is liberty only through the acceptance of responsibility.

SELF GOVERNMENT

"Self government does not purge us of all our faults, but there are very few students of the affairs of mankind who would deny that the theory upon which our institutions proceed gives the best results that have ever been given to any people. When there is a failure, it is not because the system has failed, but because we have failed. For the purpose of insuring liberty for enactment of sound legislation, for the administration of even-handed justice, for the faithful execution of the laws, no institutions have ever given greater promise or more worthy performance than those which are represented by the name of Washington.

"We have changed our constitution and laws to meet changing conditions and a better appreciation of the broad requirement of humanity. We have extended and increased the direct power of the voter. But the central idea of self government remains unchanged. While we realize that freedom and independence of the individual means increased responsibility for the individual, while we know that the people do and must support the government, and that the government does not and cannot support the people, yet the protection of the individual from the power now presented by organized numbers and consolidated wealth requires many activities on the part of the government which were not needed in the days of Washington. Many laws are necessary for this purpose, both in the name of justice and of humanity. Efforts in this direction are not for the purpose of undermining the independence of the individual, but for the purpose of maintaining for him an equal opportunity. They are made on the theory that each individual is entitled to live his own life, in his home one way, free from every kind of tyranny and oppression.

GOAL NOT REACHED

"We have not yet reached the goal of Washington's ideals. They are not yet fully understood. He was a practical man. He suffered from no delusions. He knew that there was no power to establish a system under which existence could be supported without effort. Those who now expect anything in the direction are certain to be disappointed. He held out no promise of unearned rewards, either in small or large amounts. On the other hand, if no one ought to receive gain except for service rendered no one ought to be required to render services except for reasonable compensation. Equality and justice both require that there should be no profiteering and no exploitations. Under the constitution of the United States there is neither an peasantry or any order of nobility Politically, economically, and socially service and character are to reign, and service and character alone.

"Such is the meaning of the life of George Washington, who came into being nearly 200 years ago. He left the world stronger, and better. He made life broader and sweeter.

WICHITA NOT

San Antonio, Fort Worth, Houston, Beaumont, Austin and Wichita Falls. Congressmen Sumners, Box, Garrett, Lanham, Buchanan and Wurzbach have been especially active in attempting to get relief, but have fared no better than Speaker Gillett.

Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge all have opposed public buildings bills until building costs come down. Representatives Magee, New York; Langley, Kentucky; Box, Texas, and others have pointed out that a sane building program would really save the government heavy rental and give employes a sanitary place to work.

Representative Magee believes that a program should be set in motion this year. He would operate it in somewhat the same way as the rivers and harbors appropriations are made. First he would have the public buildings committee specifically adopt certain federal building projects.

Then the appropriation committees of congress would appropriate a certain amount each year, about $20,000,000 the first year. The treasury department then would allot the money to adopted projects where the need is most acute. Magee points out that $23,000,000 is being expended annually by the government for rental.

PLAN

If his plan, or the slightly different plan of Representative Marvin Jones of Texas, were adopted, each project would be continuing until completed as projects are, and public building would be on a sane basis.

Secretary Mellon and Postmaster General New favor beginning a building program, but President Coolidge refused his assent. Meanwhile the building bloc in congress has held up President Coolidge for a number of public buildings in Washington, which are badly needed, holding that Washington needs these buildings no worse than the rest of the country needs them.

The department of agriculture, justice, labor, commerce, interstate commerce commission and other departments in Washington are now in rented quarters badly adapted to their needs, overcrowded and costly in rentals. Some of the valuable records of the government are exposed to fire and unless an archives building is erected here public records, which are absolutely irreplacable, may be lost.

If a general program could be undertaken to care for the serious needs in Washington and throughout the country, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Beaumont, San Antonio, Wichita Falls and Austin, would be the first places in Texas to get aid.

The joint congressional commission on postal service, in a report sent to congress this week, again urged a public buildings program. In its report this commission, headed by Senator Sterling, South Dakota, said:

RECOMMENDATIONS

"The commission has previously recommended to congress, and now renews the recommendation, that a building program be adopted, with appropriations by congress for the conduct of the postal service, under which for a term of years a definite sum will be annually appropriated to cover the cost of the necessary developments. If such a program is adopted and carried out, in the course of time the postal system will be freed of the tremendous burden of rentals which it is now bearing and which, under present methods will be ever increasing. It will then be conducted on the basis of the public ownership of its plants, whereby it will acquire for the people, through the government, participation in the increase of the value of the land in the various commercial centers of the United States, which is certain to be rapid and continuous. The pursuit of such a system faithfully and persistently will do more in the way of economy than has ever before been accomplished. While the outlay for a few years will be heavy, it will gradually diminish; whereas under present rental system the increase will continue year after year indefinitely, without end, until, as may be plainly forseen, the rentals borne by the postal system will offset any possible economies that can be made in any other direction and keep it ever impoverished."

or inheritance tax and impose a gift tax. What rates will be proposed was not determined, although the schedule advanced recently by Representative Ramseyer, republican, Iowa, to make the maximum rate on the estate tax 40%, applying to the amount by which the net estate of a decedent exceeds $10,000,000 was favored by a number of those who conferred on the matter.

LONGWORTH

Representative Longworth, the republican leader, who yesterday advanced a new compromise on the income rates scheduled as a substitute for the democratic rates already voted into the bill, declared tonight he expected eight or nine of the republicans who supported the democratic plan to vote for the substitute if an opportunity is afforded when the bill is up for final vote. The republican compromise fixes the maximum surtax rate at 37½% instead of 44% now in the bill, and decreases the normal rate on incomes below $4,000 to two per cent, the rate now in the bill, but would make it six per cent above that amount. It would allow no increased exemptions.

However, both Representative Garner of Texas, leader of the democratic tax fight and Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, republican-insurgent spokesman insist the compromise will not be adopted.

Delay encountered in debate on numerous minor amendments, few of which were adopted, upset considerably plans of leaders for a final vote by next Tuesday. An effort to reach the estate taxes late today was blocked when Representative Jones, democrat, Texas, made a point of no quorum after losing a vote on an amendment to limit to two instead of four years the period within which additional taxes may be assessed by the government.

Estate taxes and probably the excise taxes will be taken up tomorrow.

BASCOM SLEMP

some members of the committee were of the opinion that he should be questioned.

Upon learning of Senator Walsh's statement, Mr. Slemp communicated with friends at the capitol and was told that no formal subpoena for his appearance had been issued. None may be, as in the usual course high government officials simply are invited to appear before congressional committees.

Decision to call Mr. Slemp was only one development which came out of hurricane conferences which Senator Walsh held with committeemen and his colleague, Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, immediately upon reaching his office.

General procedure at the renewal of the public hearings next Monday was discussed by Mr. Walsh and Chairman Lenroot and later it was stated that Milton E. Ailes, president of Riggs National bank of Washington, probably would be the first witness Monday.

Senator Walsh declined to discuss the subject matter upon which he will be questioned, but it is known that the committee desires to have information from the records of the bank which might throw some light upon rumors related to those current in connection with supposed oil stock transactions by public officials.

After the examination of Mr. Ailes and Mr. Slemp, the committee probably will call in its expert accountants before proceeding with other witnesses. These accountants have completed their audit of the books of W. B. Hibbs and company, a Washington stock brokerage firm, and also of the books of the former Washington branch of Ungerleider and company, a Cleveland stock brokerage firm.

Senator Walsh also said officials of the Federal-American National bank and the Commercial National bank, both of Washington, would be summoned in connection with the testimony given by Mr. McLean at Palm Beach that he had given Fall checks aggregating $100,000, drawn on these banks, and which subsequently were returned to him unused.

"We shall pursue the inquiry with respect to these checks," Senator Walsh said, because the general belief is that his transaction never did take place."

Mr. McLean is now in Washington under subpoena, but the time he will be called before the committee has not yet been determined.

COIN COLLECTORS WILL BID ON ROBBER-BARON'S LOOT

By The Associated Press.

HALLE, Germany, Feb. 21.—Back in 1701 a certain German baron whose principal vocation was the robbery of passing travelers, secreted some of his loot in the castle walls, and then died before he had a chance to spend it. Thus it was that one Wilhelm Kranz, of this generation, is today the owner of a fine collection of old coins. He became possessor of the castle which is near Eberbach, and discovered the baron's hoard. The collection is really interesting and valuable, and consists of 1,150 specimens. Mr. Kranz is going to sell them all at auction, and expects coin collectors from all over Europe to attend the sale.

BUSINESS COUNCIL URGES FOR RESTRICTION NEAR JR. COLLEGE

Property Owners In Area Asked to Sign Covenant Before March 1

At the weekly meeting of the business council of the chamber of commerce Friday noon, a campaign was begun to get property owners to sign a covenant restricting all property within one block of the new Junior college, to be used for residential purposes only, and toward the end that the names of all property owners in that district be in the covenant before March 1.

It was announced by W. B. Hamilton, chairman of the city plan committee of the chamber of commerce, that C. I. Francis, attorney, had prepared the covenant which the owners in the vicinity near the college will be asked to sign. He stated that the zoning of the city would not be upheld by the state supreme court, so that it would be necessary to protect the property, and the best method was to ask each property owner to sign the pledge restricting the property to residential purposes.

Mr. Hamilton said: "We do not know of this proposition having been tried before in any city of Texas, but as all of the citizens of Wichita Falls would not desire to have injurious and obnoxious buildings around the college the property owners should pledge themselves. The committee believes that the property owners will be delighted to sign the document, as they know Wichita Falls citizens wish to protect the college, they themselves are interested in the college and because it will increase the value of the property if it is so restricted."

The territory near the Junior college was divided into sections and men were selected to visit the property owners during the week. C. I. Francis visited the property owners in one section Friday afternoon, and the following committee will work on the plan given, in order to endeavor to induce all property owners to sign the petition before next Friday.

Saturday, Fred Gates.
Monday, Julian Montgomery and P. P. Perry.
Tuesday, C. E. Basham and Leslie Humphrey.
Wednesday, Mrs. J. A. Kemp, Mrs. C. C. Randle and Mrs. J. A. Richolt.
Thursday, F. A. Rogers, G. L. Shepard and Jack Sheers.

Mr. Francis stated that it was his opinion that this city needed some spot of beauty and that he hoped the business council could start and complete the work of securing signatures of the land owners in that section within the next week.

Dr. Everett Jones made the suggestion that newspaper publicity be given to the movement in order to give property owners a clear idea of the plans before they are asked to sign the document.

Jack Sheers stated that the arguments could be eliminated with the proper newspaper publicity.

Luther Hoffman, chairman of the membership committee of the chamber of commerce, reported that 61 new members had been signed up, and that several members of the committee had already obtained their quotas of five members each.

F. G. Swanson brought up the matter of tax assessments. He stated that he had brought up this question before the municipal finance committee, Mr. Swanson declared that the board of equalization was ineffective and that taxes would never be equalized until abstracting begins. He stated that land and the improvements should be assessed separately and pointed out the fact that San Antonio and Dallas were now assessing in this manner. Mr. Swanson pointed out a difference in valuations between the state and county and the city tax assessments. According to Mr. Swanson, the city tax assessments were 20 per cent higher than the state and county. That the equalization of taxes in Wichita county and in Wichita Falls be brought about was urged by the speaker.

Mayor Frank Collier stated that the city officials had asked the committee to work out the proposition, and that a thorough investigation was being conducted by this committee.

W. B. Hamilton asked that the council act slowly on all tax matters, giving them much study, for there were many arguments both for and against every tax system.

"It is not true that in valuations all people are not assessed on the same ratio," Judge R. D. Sartin said. He expressed the opinion that any committee appointed would get the tax matters as badly mixed as they are at present, and he said that he believed a perfect system could not be found. He asked that all inequalities be brought to the attention of the equalization board, for it was possible to straighten out all the differences.

That many owners of motor trucks of three, four and five ton capacities were operating these vehicles with Ford licenses was a question brought up by C. H. Foley. He said this was due to the cost of the automobile licenses which had been raised. He declared that the issuing of the licenses had not been checked up and that much money which should be paid into the state and county for licenses was being lost.

Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, announced that the board of city development of Amarillo has asked the support of the local chamber in securing the 1925 convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. He stated that Vernon was also in the race for the convention, and that he thought best to support Vernon. The meeting place will be decided on in the summer during the convention which meets at Brownwood.

It was pointed out that this convention is the largest of its nature in the United States from the attendance standpoint. A large delegation of representatives from Wichita Falls is urged to attend. A committee headed by M. A. Bundy will work out plans toward getting a special train from Vernon and Wichita Falls.

Announcement of the annual banquet of the Seymour chamber of commerce was made at the luncheon.

Colvin D. Brown, chief of the organization of the service bureau of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., will be in Wichita Falls next Wednesday. He will address the citizens Wednesday night, according to statements made at the council.

Visitors' Viewpoints

Syd Cook of Trenton, N. J., one time roughrider with Buffalo Bill's Wild West circus, and salesman now for the P. F. Volland company, manufacturers of art goods and Christmas novelties, in speaking of Wichita Falls last night said: "I can remember this city 21 years ago when it was nothing but a few shacks and small stores. The growth is out of all proportion to time, and while undoubtedly oil has had a great deal to do with it, the farseeing citizens of the county are directly responsible, and have made it possible for Wichita Falls to be what she is today and will be tomorrow."

Again, "I find my business has increased exactly 75 per cent during January and February of this year as compared with the same period last year. There is every prospect for a good year."

"New Mexico is dead, Arizona is dead, but Texas is wide awake and doing more business than in the last two years." P. R. Shelburne, of Dallas, traveling for the Valentine company, manufacturers of Valspar varnishes, was heard to say yesterday. "The crowded hotel lobby here tells a big story. Believe me it looks good."

L. J. Baker of Kansas City, making collections for the J. B. Holt company, manufacturers of carbide lighting and cooking plants stated last night, "Throughout the rural section of this part of the state I find the best sort of conditions prevailing. There is every prospect for a good year and it reflects on buying and selling, and makes collections good."

FOR A RESTRICTED DISTRICT.

Steps are being taken in Wichita Falls to restrict the immediate district in which the Junior college is located from business buildings. This movement should, and doubtless will receive the support of all citizens who have the best interests of the school and Wichita Falls at heart.

The plan is to restrict the district within one block on all sides of the school. It is pointed out that such restrictions will work to the best interests of this important school and to the property owners whose property is immediately adjacent to the college. That this undoubtedly is true is borne out by the fact that property owners themselves are leading in the movement for a restricted college district.

Under the Texas laws this is not possible by means of city ordinance but its success depends solely on the cooperation of the property owners. No one should stand in the way of the plan.

PETROLEUM, COTTON AND LAWMAKERS.

Production of crude oil in the United States averaged 1,894,900 barrels daily in the closing week of January. Receipts of California crude oil at Atlantic and gulf coast ports continue very heavy although declines in production are reported in the Rocky mountains and Pacific coast states.

Canadians are large buyers of gasoline and the wholesale price in Canada is 29½ cents and the retail price 33 cents.

Petroleum output in constantly increasing and the consumption of gas keeps pace with the output of crude. According to the economists of the automobile industry there will be three million five hundred thousand cars and motor trucks manufactured this year and then the price of gasoline may take another jump.

Is there money in petroleum? Since their split-up in 1911 the thirty-eight subsidiaries of the old Standard Oil company of New Jersey have paid $1,192,000,000 in cash dividends and many of these standard companies have declared a long string of stock dividends also.

Texas is a large producer of crude oil. There are experts who say that the surface has scarcely been scratched. Rapid advances in prices since last December have made the Texas producers glad and the wild-catters very active. The man who discovers a first class oil well discovers a gold mine.

And it is well to remember there are five or six Texas counties that produced cotton having a value of twenty-five million dollars last year.

There are million-dollar oil wells but there are a greater number of million-dollar cotton patches. In the Texas of the future there will be a thousand cotton mills turning the raw material into the finished product and selling the garments of democracy to the seventy-five million buyers in the Latin-American countries.

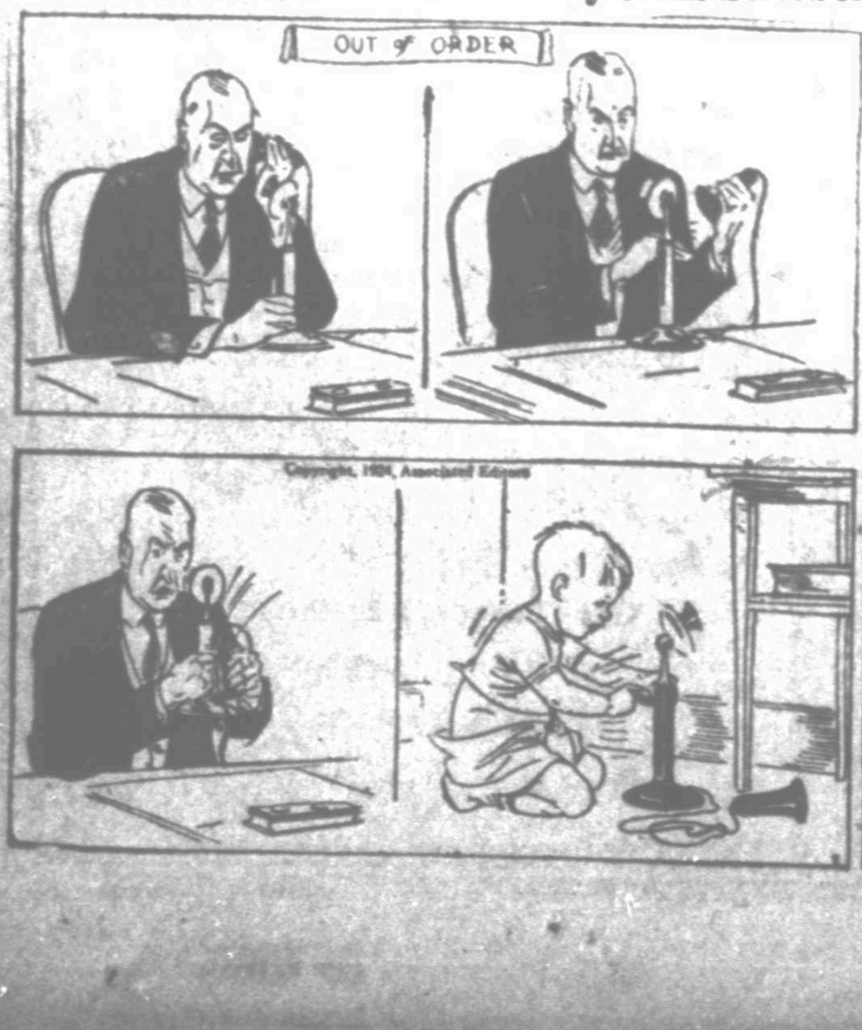

There is more oil under the surface of the earth in Texas than the wisest of geologists has an inkling of, if the stories told by professional scouts who have visited every oil producing country in the world are to be believed and if truth be stranger than fiction, why shouldn't we take their word for the existence of the golden sands in 149 of the 250 counties of Texas?

Incidentally a total of 44,752,344,000 barrels of fuel oil were consumed by locomotives in the United States on the principal railroads in 1922 which showed a gain of more than four million barrels over 1921 and those who are in a position to speak say there was a heavy gain in the year 1923 over that of 1922. Fuel oil used by railroads is topped crude petroleum from which the lighter and more volatile constituents have been removed by distillation leaving a heavier and safer oil for fuel.

Petroluem hunting is the greatest game in the world today, and the Titans of the game are fighting for control of the world supply of oil. Texas is sitting on the top of the world. Texas is destined to become the leader of the sisterhood in point of population and wealth but Texans in the primary election this year should pick a senate and a house of representatives of foremost builders and developers to be found in the thirty-one senatorial districts and the 151 representative districts.

There is work to be done under the big dome at Austin next winter. When whales are needed why pick minnows from the political pond?

PANTOMIME -:- By J. H. Striebel

It Would Help If the Neighbors Would Use a Little Parental Discipline, Too.

THE SNARE

"It is about Dick," she said breathlessly.

"I know—Miss Armytage told me."

"What did she tell you?"

"That you had a premonition that he might come to you for assistance."

"A premonition!" Her ladyship laughed nervously. "It is more than a premonition, Ned. He has come."

The captain stopped in his stride, and stood quite still. "Come?" he echoed. "Dick?"

"Sh!" she warned him and sank her voice from very instinct. Followed details of his appearance and a recital of his wanderings so far as he had made them known to her. "And he was so insistent that no one should know, not even Terence."

"Terence must not know," he said gravely.

"You think that too!"

"If Terence knows—well, you will regret it all the days of your life, Una. You will realize it when I tell you that duty forced Terence to pledge his word to the Portuguese government that Dick should be shot when found."

She stood still, ghostly white against the gloom. A dry sob broke from her. "Terence did that! Terence did that," she moaned. And then in a surge of anger: "I shall never speak to Terrence again. I shall not live with him another day. It was infamous. Infamous!"

"It was not infamous. It was almost noble, almost heroic," he amazed her. "Sit down, Una."

They had reached a little circle by a piece of ornamental water, facing which a granite-hewn seat had been placed. She sank to it obediently, if sulkily.

"It may perhaps help you to understand what Terence has done when I tell you that in his place, loving Dick as I do, I must have pledged myself precisely as he did or else despised myself forever. Won't you understand?"

"I understand that men are very stupid," was her way of admitting it.

Tremayne sat down beside her. "Now that we understand each other on that score, let us consider ways and means to dispose of Dick."

At once she was uplifted and became all eagerness.

"Yes, yes. You will help me, Ned? How are we to get him out of the country?"

"I think I know a way. I am sure I can induce Glennie to take our fugitive home in the Telemachus and land him safely somewhere in Ireland, where he will have to lose himself for a while."

"Do you think Glennie will consent?" she asked in strained anxiety.

"I am sure he will. I can almost pledge my word on it."

Under that confident promise her troubles fell from her, as lightly as they ever did.

"You are very good to me, Ned. Forgive me what I said just now about Terence."

"Of course." Moved to comfort her as he might have been moved to comfort a child, he flung his arm along the seat behind her, and patted her shoulder soothingly.

Fell a step on the patch behind them crunchin the gravel. Captain Tremayne, his arm still along the back of the seat, and seeming to envelop her ladyship, looked over his shoulder. A tall figure was advancing briskly. He recognized it even in the gloom by its height and gait and swing for O'Moy's.

"Why here is Terence," he said easily—so easily, with such frank and obvious honesty of welcome, that the anger in which O'Moy came wrapped fell from him on the instant, to be replaced by shame.

"I have been looking for you everywhere, my dear," he explained to Una. "I have a very dear friend who is anxious to pay his respects."

"This is damned indiscreet of you Ned," he added turning to his secretary. "Suppose you had been seen by any of the scandal-mongers."

Tremayne accepted the rebuke in the friendly spirit in which it appeared to be conveyed. "You're quite right, sir. We should have thought of it." And O'Moy felt again the glow of shame of suspicions so utterly unworthy and dishonoring.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Intelligence Officer.

In a small room of the palace where the ball was held, sat three men about a card-table. They were Count Samoval, the elderly Marquis of Minas, and a gentleman who wore the dark green uniform, of a major of Cacadares.

With perhaps the single exception of the Principal Souza, the British policy had no more bitter opponent in Portugal than the Marquis of Minas. Once a member of the Council of Regency—before Souza had been elected to that body—he had quitted it on disgust at the British measures. He was listening intently now to the soft, rapid speech of the gentleman in the major's uniform.

"Of course, rumors had reached the prince of this policy of devastation," he was saying, "but his highness has been disposed to treat these rumors lightly, unable to see, as indeed are we all, what useful purpose such a policy could finally serve. Since you assure me, Monsieur le Comte, that milord Wellington's policy is beyond doubt, as reported, it but remains to address ourselves to the discovery of the mystery underlying it. What conclusions have you reached? You, Monsieur de Samoval, have had exceptional opportunities of observation, I understand."

"I am afraid my opportunities have been none so exceptional as you suppose," replied Samoval, with a dubious shake of his sleek, dark head. "One conclusion, however, I have reached: Wellington is preparing in Portugal a snare for Massena's army."

"A snare? Hum!" The major pursued his full lips into a smile of scorn. "There cannot be a trap with two exits, my friend. Massena enters Portugal at Almeida and marches to Lisbon and the open sea. He may be inconvenienced or hampered in his march; but its goal is certain. Where, then, can lie the snare? Your theory presupposes an impossible barrier to arrest the French when they are deep in the country and an overwhelming force to cut off their retreat when the barrier is reached."

"The overwhelming force exists," said Samoval. "You should remember what Wellington obviously remembers: that a French army depends for its sustenance upon the country it is invading. That is why Wellington is stripping the French line of penetration as bare of sustenance as this card table—an impassable lien of fortifications encountered within many marches of the frontier—we may also assume that starvation will be the overwhelming force that will cut off the French retreat."

The major slowly shook his iron-gray head.

"You have no right to assume an impassable barrier. There is no such thing as a line of fortifications impassable to the French."

"You will pardon me, major, but it is yourself have no right to your own assumptions. Fortifications are unquestionably building in the region of Torres Vedras, and Wellington guards the secret so jealously that not even the British—either here or in England—are aware of their nature. Best part of eight months have already gone in their construction. It may be another two or three months before the French army reaches them. I do not say that the French cannot pass them, given time. But how long will it take the French to pull down what it will have taken ten or eleven months to construct? And if they are unable to draw sustenance from a desolate wasted country, what time will they have at their disposal?"

The major was silenced for a moment. "I congratulate you, count," he said finally. "Monsieur le Marechal shall have your views without delay. Tell me," he begged. "You say these fortifications lie in the region of Torres Vedras. Plans of these lines must be in existence."

"Undoubtedly. Sir Terence O'Moy will have plans in his possession showing their projected extent."

"Two things, then, are neessary," said the major promptly. "The first is that the devastation of the country should be retarded and as far as possible hindered altogether. The second—and this is more difficult—is that we should obetain by book or by crook a plan of the fortifications." And he looked directly at Samoval.

The count nodded slowly, but his face expressed doubt.

"I am quite alive to the necessity. I always have been. But—"

"To a man of your resource and intelligence —an intelligence of which you have just given such very signal proof—the matter should be possible." He paused a moment. "Obtain the plans, and—"

He checked abruptly. The door had opened, and in a Venetian mirror facing him upon the wall the major caught the reflection of a British uniform, the stiff gold collar surmounted by a bronzed haw face with which he was acquainted.

"I beg your pardon, gentlemen," said the officer in Portuguese, "I was looking for—"

His voice became indistinct so that they never knew whom it was that he had been seeking when he intruded upon their privacy. The door had closed again and the reflection had vanished from the mirror. But there were beads of perspiration on the major's brow.

"It is fortunate," he muttered breathlessly, "that my back was toward him. I would as soon meet the devil face to face. I didn't dream he was in Lisbon."

"Who is he?" asked Minas.

"Col. Grant, the British intelligence officer. Phew! Name of a name! What an escape!" The major mopped his brow with a silk handkerchief. "Beware of him, Monsieur de Samoval."

This little exercise which improves the tone of the abdominal muscles of a child is more fun if mother will sing the old song, "See-saw, Margery Daw," while she watches the child try it. A HARD LUCK STORY

'Twas the voice of the pullet, I heard her complain,
"The life of a chicken is utterly vain;
In youth she must scratch all day long in the soil
And the eggs that she lays are for others to boil.
And if she goes roving afar from her nest
An automobile does the tragical rest.

"If she is permitted a family to rear,
She lists to their cheeping with shuddering fear,
For cats are ferocious and cats lie in wait
On tender young chicklets, their hunger to sate.
And if these are foiled of their hideous will,
If the hawks don't bereave us, the poultrymen will.

"How awful the fate of a hapless old hen,
As she waits in a crate to be eaten by men!
To be fed with cement, quite in spite of her wails
So her weight will be great when she falls on the scales
How dreadful, with death at her doorway to feel
That she'll never digest that last lime-laden meal!"

Ah! dear children, why shed btiter tears
And howl when receiving a box on the ears?
Why hold that existence is shorn of all joy
When you can't have the razor to us for a toy?
You ought to be carefree as kittens are, when
You think of the life that is led by the hen!

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

IDEALS OF A UNIVERSITY EDUCATION ENUMERATED BY THE PRESIDENT OF MISSOURI

What, besides learning, should the university bestow upon its students? In what way does the community reap benefits from the college? These questions were taken up by Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the University of Missouri, recently. He made it clear that the materalistic dividends accruring from a university education are secondary to the loftier, idealistic benefits to the community.

"To establish ideals of conduct, to create an appreciation of community responsibility, to develop the power and the desire to think wisely about the complex problems of state and nation and to cultivate the ability to express ideas effectively for the forwarding of his own business and the improvement of community conditions—all these elements are no less the business of the university than is the perfecting of a man in the arts of his business or profession," he says. "An analytical mind, a discriminating judgment, the power to distinguish truth from error, not only in one's own business but outside of it, are qualities that the graduates of the university should have a greater measure because of the influence of the university.

"It is necessary that we have physicians, lawyers, engineers teachers and a hundred other specialized professions and business, and the protection of the individual citizen as well as the prosperity of the state demands that the service rendered by each of these be of the best quality obtainable,' he goes on.

"Let us take for illustration, the medical profession of today. In my time we have progressed from juniper bitters, boneset tea and patent medicines to a point where it is confidently announced that the average span of life has been lengthened from 10 to 15 years. Yellow fever, smallpox, typhoid, diphtheria and a dozen other dread diseases are either extinct or have been brought under control.

"Our graveyards are filled with victims of vicious quacks with plausible personalities who have graduated from inferior schools or who masquerade as doctors under the protection of purchased diplomas.

"It is the business of the university to send forth physicians who have been taught the best and latest in medical science, men trained in the skillful application of their knowledge and imbued with the ability and desire to keep abreast of medical progress, who by their standards shall create a condition wherein none of lesser ability shall be allowed to practice. Through such men the university will declare a dividend to the state of happiness, health and life for its citizens that is not measurable in dollars.

"In the field of legal education also the university may render needed service. Most peaceful men believe that there are too many lawyers, but those who have found their property threatened or their rights infringed have discovered that able lawyers are scarce. Today you may have no need of an attorney; tomorrow your success and happiness depend upon receiving proper legal advice. The greater the number of lawyers whose lack of technical knowledge and sound practical judgment of business affairs is such as to render their advice worse than useless the more important it is that the community protect itself by preparing for the practice of law men of accurate legal knowledge and sound, practical judgment.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

PISCES

The early morning aspects are bad, but change very rapidly for the better and by noon are in harmonious accord with all things. Travel, give attention to important business matters and indulge in romance and amusement.

A child born today will be clever and versatile, but inclined to ill health until fairly mature.

If today is your birthday your character will be as versatile as your interests are varied, and you will be as much of enigma to yourself as you are to others.

In fact yours is a personality which is extremely difficult to analyze tersely as there is almost nothing one could say about it, which would not be partially correct. You are in the first place a practical person but at the same time you have a burning curiosity and an interest in a great many things which the average material person would regard as entirely fantastic.

You are musical and artistic and in the matter of expressing yourself distinctly creative. You are capable of giving any abstract emotion a living description. You should not allow this talent for delineation to remain dormant, for you could certainly achieve no small distinction as a writer. You are tactful and diplomatic and a successful organizer of other workers with the faculty for the adjustment of disputes that rises almost to genius. However this is a power you will find easier to apply to the disputes of others than to those in which you yourself become embroiled.

You are fond of society, particularly the society of the opposite sex to whose entertainment you could easily devote the greater portion of your life time.

Successful people born on this date probably didn't try saying it with flowers.

The normal American reaction to a bandit outrage in China is to wonder why anybody should go to China, anyway.

SOILS AND SOIL PHYSICS.

Use of Implements in Improving the Condition of Soils.

We have been discussing some of the various ways of improving the mechanical condition of heavy soils. We have mentioned the use of lime, manure and several other means, but we have not mentioned the mechanical stirring of the soil by instruments such as the plow, harrow, cultivator and other implements in common use by farmers generally.

Authorities on economics have held that one of the greatest inventions in the history of the world was that of the metal plow.

In ancient times and even at the present in the more unenlightened countries plowing was and is done with a crooked stick hitched to an ox or even pulled by man power alone.

The invention of the metal plow and the improvements on it that have followed have made great advances to be made in cultural methods and have also allowed one man to crop many times more land than was formerly possible.

To realize the importance of the plow in world economics it is only necessary to picture to yourself what would happen to us if all the farmers had to go back to tilling their land with a crooked stick pulled by an ox. Our large cities would cease to exist, half the people now on earth would starve and the world would soon relapse into barbarism. In a way our civilization rests on the plow.

The plow is the basic implement in all farming operations. To know how to plow, when to plow and how deep to plow are important items of knowledge to every farmer.

It is not our purpose to discuss here the different kinds of implements used in tilling the soil for there is an almost infinite number and of numerous makes and manufacture. It is rather to indicate how certain types of implements may be employed to advantage in improving the condition of the soil and thus enable the farmer to produce more and better crops.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Carrie C. Wilcox To Be Methodist Organist.

Mrs. Carrie Wilcox of 1708 Lucile street has been chosen to fill the place of organist for the First Methodist church of this city, of which the Rev. Leslie Miller is pastor.

Mrs. Wilcox has had many years experience as a teacher of piano and organ and was both a concert and church organist in New York state for some time.

Her work is looked forward to with much pleasure by the choir and congregation of the church.

Miss Wilma Katheryn Parham of Dallas will spend the week end with Miss Zona Marie Ehlert.

Miss Ena Everton, a student of S. M. U. at Dallas, and former Wichita Falls girl, will arrive today and spend the week end with Miss Lucile Benson.

D. A. R. Entertain With Colonial Tea.

With members of the D. A. R. in the receiving line, the chapter entertained with its annual Washington tea Friday afternoon at the William-Mary. Several hundred guests called during the afternoon when a delightful musical program under the direction of Mrs. Ben Bell furnished the diversion. A free will silver offering was taken.

Women's Public Information Committee.

Members of the Women's Public Information committee of the Wichita Falls Electric company met at the company's headquarters Thursday evening in a business session. Miss Annette Coffield, chairman of the committee turned it over to Miss Alma Smith who told the women of the merits of the electric percolator, the toaster, the vacuum cleaner, curling irons, smoothing irons, and waffle irons, the safety device on the percolator and how to care for and oil an electric washing machine.

During a social half-hour, nut parfet and white cake was served to Mesdames G. W. Russell, J. W. Lyle, J. M. Williamson, P. A. Rogers, W. F. Lyers, W. P. Crews, A. E. Kelley, Herbert Snider, R. E. Mrs. H. C. Babb of Fort Worth who has been the guest of her brothers and their families, Bob, Jeff and John Waggoner, for the past three weeks, leaves today for Decatur where she will visit relatives before returning home. Mrs. Babb has been an unusually popular visitor while here and has furnished inspiration for numerous lovely luncheons and informal parties.

Household Hints

ATTRACTIVE SALAD.

Every housewife, whether she has been married and keeping house one month or twenty years, likes an attractive new salad to spring on her family or guests. Have you ever made a cranberry salad? Not too much work and so tasty and pretty! Stew one quart of cranberries in two and one-half cups water, add two small cups sugar, strain. Dissolve a tablespoon gelatine in four tablespoons water, mix with hot cranberries and set aside to cool. when cold and beginning to set add a cup finely minced celery, half cup chopped nuts and same of seeded raisins. Pour into wet mold to harden. When the jelly is unmolded it may be cut into cubes or left whole, as you wish. If cut in cubes toss lightly in a sweet cream dressing and serve on lettuce or shredded cabbage. Dressing: Three-quarters of a cup of heavy, sweet cream, three tablespoons of white vinegar, saltspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, half saltspoon parika.

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Bran Gems.—Take one-half cup bran, one saltspoon salt, one tablespoons cornstarch, one-half cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, two tablespoons shortening, one-half cup milk, two tablespoons molasses. Mix shortening thoroughly with molasses. Add milk and mix all dry ingredients together and sift into the first mixture. Bake in a hot oven from ten to fifteen minutes. This makes eight gems.

COLOR CUT-OUTS

Two Reasons For Clogging

Billy Cut-out, Charlie, the orphan boy and some others were playing ball on the front walk. Billy noticed that when the ball was in some one else's hands, Charlie began to do the funny little clog dance up and down in his place. "What are you dancing for?" asked Billy.

"Well, my new suit's nice and warm," apologized Charlie, "but without an over coat I get chilly in this cold air." When Billy's father came home, Billy ran in the house and told him Charlie had to clog to keep warm. Right away Mr. Cut-out came out and told Charlie to hop in the car. Then they went straight down town, and when they came back, Charlie had a big warm topcoat, like Billy's. Charlie ran back to join the ball game, but soon he was hopping up and down again.

"Now what are you clogging for?" asked Billy in surprise.

"Just because I'm so happy in my new overcoat," laughed Charlie.

Roast Rabbit.—Take one teacup bread crumbs, three tablespoons fat, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, one-half cup chopped oysters, two beaten eggs, salt and pepper. Mix well and stuff rabbit, sew top. Skewer head, back and the legs and each side. Season outside with salt and pepper. Roast in a moderate oven basting well with melted fat.

Marshmallow Tapioca.—Soak two heaping tablespoons tapioca overnight. Drain and add one pint of milk and a very scant one-quarter cup of sugar. Cook in a double boiler until it is clear, then add one and one-half dozen marshmallows, stirring until dissolved. Remove from heat, flavor with vanilla and serve cold. No meringue is required as the pudding is light and delicate. This may be served, if desired, with a fruit sauce made from juice of any tart fruit. This makes one quart. Soft boiled rice may be used in place of tapioca and is equally as delicious. This is an inexpensive dessert for a large family.

Home Wrecking Is Always An Inside Job | Dorothy Dix | Lays Blame For Stolen Affections on Lack of Effort

What Do Men Loathe and What Do They Like, in Women?—The Girl Whose Fiance Is Personally Untidy. Will Her Fiance Take After His Father and Mistreat His Wife After Marriage?

Dear Miss Dix—My sweetheart and I are always quarreling and making up again. Please tell me some of the things that disgust a man, and some of the things that please him. Should I mention other men to him and ask him about the girls with whom he used to go? Do men like women to show how much they care for them?

J. O. P.

Answer — Well, to begin with, nothing disgusts a man with a woman quicker than for her to have a quarrelsome disposition. No man looks forward to spending his life with a wife who has a chip on her shoulder and who is always spoiling for a fight.

High temper also disgusts a man. A woman with her face distorted with fury and her tongue saying venomous words is as repulsive a sight to him as is a drunken woman.

Slovenliness in a woman is disgusting to a man.

Men don't even like dangling ribbons and loose clothes on a woman. They like her to be shipshape, and neat, and tidy, and trim, and taut, and they are repulsed by blousy hair, and runover heels, and soiled finery.

Men don't like morbid women, who are always vivisecting themselves and their emotions, and they flee from a teary woman who is forever telling her grievances as they would from the plague.

Men don't like vain women who expect to be flattered. They loathe sarcastic women who make cutting speeches, and they abominate women who talk too much and who monologue along by the hour about their own achievements and what grand families they came from.

And it certainly disgusts a man for a woman to run after him openly, so that everybody perceives it and speculates about whether she will be able to catch him or not. But on the other hand, it pleases him for her to stealthily stalk him down, thereby letting him know that she considers him big game that it is worth her while to capture.

Men like amiable women, who are easily pleased, who enjoy everything and who make a man feel pleased with himself because he is giving them a good time.

Men like women who know how to work them artistically, who know just what to say to flatter them and just how to stroke their fur the right way so that they purr under their hands. Men like women who dress well and whom they are proud to be seen out with, women who know how to dance and play cards, who are good at outdoor sports, and who don't ruin every game they sit in.

The women men like best are the jolly, sweet, nice women, who are not to brainy, not too compentent in any line, who are easy to get along with, and who do not make too many demands on either their time or their purses.

A girl queers herself with a man when she tells him about the other men who were in love with her because he knows that she will tell other men about him, and no man, unless he is a cad, ever tells one girl about another. The unforgiveable crime is to kiss and tell.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am engaged to be married to a young man who is everything in the world he should be, except that he is slovenly in his personal appearance. Sometimes I am really ashamed of him when I meet him unexpectedly on the street. I don't like to tell him about this for fear of hurting his feelings, and he never takes the hint when I discourse about how attractive it is to see a man looking well dressed.

What in the world shall I do about it?

SALLY.

Answer—It is a curious thing, Sally that men who are so easily disgusted by slouchiness in a woman's appearance so seldom realize that women hate untidiness in a man ten times as much as men hate it in a woman. But such is the case.

No man could stay in love with a woman whom he saw habitually with unkempt hair and sloppy shoes and a dirty wrapper. No man would feel impelled to kiss a woman with cold cream on her face. Yet there are untold numbers of men who consider that home is a place to take off their coats and their collars and their shoes and to sit around in a state of slovenly undress that would disillusion any woman who wasn't stone blind.

It is a pity that men don't understand more about the psychology of clothes, and realize that if they want to keep fastidious women in love with them they have go to dress in a way to enhance their charms. Not only that, but their appearance has a powerful effect on their success in business. For a man's clothes are the first things that hit our eye, and we judge his ability, his prosperity and his judgment by the way he is dressed.

In your particular case, you will have to wait until after you are married to get in your missionary work, and you will have SOME job. You cannot break a slovenly man of being slovenly.

But you can circumvent him as did one wife I knew. Every night she took away all of the clothes her husband had worn that day, and locked them up in a closet. Then she put out a complete outfit for him, fresh linen, clothes pressed to a razor edge, newly polished shoes. It was no more trouble for husband to put these on than the others, and so she sent him forth immaculately dressed in spite of himself.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am in love with a fine young man, but my parents object to my marrying him because his father was very unkind to his mother. Is that any indication that this young man would mistreate me?

UNDECIDED.

Answer—Not necessarily. The old adage, "like father, like son," is apt to be true because a man generally has his ideals of women formed by his father, and so he is liable to treat his wife as he has seen his father treat his mother. Often, however, the exact reverse of this is true, and the boy is so revolted at the cruelty that has been shown his mother that it makes him the tenderest and most considerate of husbands. Children who are brought up in a quarrelsome household nearly always resent it, and are the greatest advocates for peace at any price when they get homes of their own.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chonic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

Fire Damages Travis Residence About $300

Fire of unknown origin did damage to an approximate amount of $300 at a frame house owned by Mrs. A. J. Thompson, at 1109 Travis street, about 8 o'clock last night. Damage was confined to the wall in the rear of the house, and a portion of the roof over a small addition.

According to Mrs. Thompson, the cause of the fire was a mystery, first knowledge of it being after it had spread up the wall and to the roof. Inside a small kitchen in the first floor, the path of the fire seemed to lead up the wall from a large burnt place in the wall behind a gas cook stove. Lighting seemed to be intact over the house.

Several persons having rooms in the house seemed to have no knowledge of the cause of the blaze.

$36,000 SUIT ON NOTES TO CLOSE TODAY

Arguments were completed Friday afternoon in the Reilly vs. Griffin case that has been on trial in the 89th district court for the past four days. The jury was dismissed by Judge Martin at 5 o'clock with instructions to report again at 9 o'clock this morning to consider the verdict.

The case involves about $36,000 and is a suit on some notes.

Who's Who?

FRED G. BONSFILS.

Those who know Fred G. Bonfils were not surprised when he startled the senate investigating committee and the nation in general by announcing voluntarily that Harry Sinclair had paid him, his partner, H. H. Tammen, and another man $250,000 as part settlement in obtaining rights in the Teapot Dome oil fields.

For Bonfils and Tammen, as owners of the Denver, Colo., Post, have drawn attention in the west through their aggressive and outspoken manners.

Whether Coloradoans like or hate Tammen and Bonfils and their Denver Post, they can't ignore them. There is scarcely a chapter of Colorado history since 1892 in which their influence has not been felt. In addition to the Post, Tammen and Bonfils own and manage a circus and Tammen runs a big curio store on 17th t., near the Union tation. Bonfils, after years of hard fighting to achieve it, is definitely "in" Denver society, but Tammen doesn't bother about such things.

There are few big public men in Denver who have not at some time felt the hatred of this pair. Many a promising political career has been blasted under the chemical warfare attacks of the Post, which in action is merciless and by many considered unscrupulous.

The growth o fthe Post since 1892, when Tammen and Bonfils started it, and the parallel growth in power and wealth of the two proprietors are among the wonders of Colorado.

Numerous incidents in the career o fthese two "journalists" convinced Denver that neither would hesitate to use fists or feet against an enemy. One of the first enemies the Post made was former U. . enator Thomas M. Patterson, owner of the long-established Mountain News. In 197 the feud reached such a stage that Bonfils one morning attacked Patterson in the street. Patterson testified he was struck from behind. A asselly rescued the aged ex-senator. Patterson also testified that Bonfils had threatened to kill him if the name Bonfils ever again appeared in the News.

Bonfils refused to plead when the case was called for trial. The court entered a plea of not guilty. Bonfils wa found guilty. Justice Carlon gave him a $5 ifne and costs.

A few years later Bonfils had a street fight with Thomas J. O'Donnell, attorney for the Denver Uunion Water Co., which the ost was attacking. Bonfils accused O'Donnell of trying to pull a revolver and O'Donnell said Bonfils had been threatening to "get" him.

Another long-remembered scrap in which both proprietors figured took place in the Post editorial rooms when the Post was trying to obtain the release from the penitentiary of a murderer named Packer. W. W. Anderson, a lawyer, was interested in the same cause. Anderson asserted he was knocked down first, but he finished the fight by shooting both Tammen and Bonfils. Both were severely wounded.

While the proprietors often came out second best in personal encounters, the Post has generally been on the winning sdie.

CITIES TO COMBAT T. B. IN CATTLE

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 21.—Both San Antonio and Galveston are considering taking up area plan tuberculosis eradication among dairy cattle and it is reported that work will begin early in the spring looking toward accrediting the city of San Antonio and Galveston island as tuberculosis free areas, according to Dr. Leon G. Cloud, state veterinarian.

At present there are only two accredited tuberculosis free areas in Texas.

According to Dr. Cloud, San Antonio will be ready to take up the work as soon as the city attorney completes adapting the model ordinance to San Antonio, and it is possible that Galveston island will take up the work even sooner. Both the city and county officials of Galveston are favorable to conducting the area work, according to Dr. Cloud, and it will be easy to protect this area once it is established, as the only access to the island is the causeway.

WOMAN CONTRACTOR TAKES LARGE CONSTRUCTION JOBS.

By The Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Calif.—Mrs. E. E. O'Brien does work almost, if not quite, unique for a woman. She is a contractor who bids on large jobs, and recently she has completed several such projects.

Mrs. O'Brien has just built the Tunnel road on the boulevard known as the Skyline. Now she is engaged in grading and excavating the site of the United States veterans' hospital near Livermore, Calif.

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S.S.S. builds blood-power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-blood. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 157 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Tommy Cochran Plays Houston Finals Today

PLAYS O. S. CARLTON, JR., HOUSTON, WHO IN 1923 BEAT COCHRAN IN TEXAS AMATEUR

By The Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 22.—Youth will have its fling tomorrow at the Houston Country club course, when Tommy Cochran of Wichita Falls, and O. S. Carlton, Jr., of Houston meet in the finals which decide the championship of the tenth annual invitation tournament of the Houston Country club.

Today's meeting as finalists is the second within a year for the youngsters. Last March at Galveston, it was Carlton who by some of the most brilliant golf of a sensational golf week, defeated Cochran and won the state amateur championship, the title he now holds.

The present is the third Texas tournament in a year in which Cochran has reached the finals, and likewise it is the third in a year that Carlton has gone to the final round.

Cochran earned the right to participate as a finalist by emerging undefeated from a field of some of the best golfers in the state in the top half of the draw. Charles Dexter, Jr., of Dallas, Louis Jacoby, of Dallas, Ed Wilde of Englewood Club, Preston Moore of Houston, Jim Harnett of Dallas, and Jay Reuffe of Fort Worth were all included in the top half of the draw. Cochran eliminated Wilde in the afternoon round today, the final outcome being Cochran six up with five to play.

Carleton had a very stiff and difficult to over-ride Jack Tarrant, winner of the tournament last year, A. H. Badger, a sterling golfer from Dallas, Bob Kampmann, San Antonio's best amateur, George V. Rotan W. C. Hunt, Bryan Heard and Frank Godchaux. This morning he found difficulty in winning from Badger, two and one. In the afternoon round he ran into a tarter in Billie Hunt, a fellow club member, who earlier in the day defeated Bryan Heard after being three down to him at the turn. Carlton defeated Hunt one up.

In the second flight James F. Schoelkopf of Dallas, who shot an 88 in his qualifying round tomorrow meets Horace McCoy of Dallas, who was low medalist in this flight with 85. Schoelkopf eliminated Meridith of Houston, in the afternoon round one up in 19 holes.

McCoy in the afternoon round defeated H. M. McCullough of Houston, six up and five to play.

McCullough, in the morning round, eliminated Clyde Cunningham, the only municipal course golfer remaining in the tournament, one up in 19 holes.

In the third flight Dr. W. W. Ralston of Houston goes to the finals by virtue of the default of Dr. O. S. Hodges of Beaumont, who was unable to continue. In the morning round Dr. Ralston eliminated J. V. Neuhaus of Houston, four and three.

Dr. Ralston meets Ed Andrews of Houston, in the finals in this flight tomorrow. Andrews defeated R. H. Kelley of Houston two up in the afternoon round after winning from E. J. McCullough of Houston, two up in the morning play.

WORLD'S LARGEST SPORTING EVENT

—By Feg Murray

Today the 24th annual American bowling congress opens in Chicago with 2,500 teams and 13,000 bowlers entered. Devotees of this sport claim that the bowling game has increased its areas more rapidly in the past years than any other sport or pastime in America—golfers' claims to the contrary notwithstanding. We have yet to see a golf tournament lasting a month and with 13,000 entries.

Jimmy Blouin, present world's classic bowling champion, who won the first prize in the "All Events' in 1909, and who was individual champion in 1911, recently bowled his sixth perfect game. Watch his smoke! (Copyright, 1924, Associated Editors)

U. S. ACE FAILS TO BREAK FRENCH ALTITUDE RECORD

By The Associated Press.

DAYTON, Ohio., Feb. 22.—For the second time in two months, the United States today failed to wrest the world's aviation altitude record from France.

Lieut. John A. MacReady, McCook field flying ace, and former holder of the title, aroused hope that the honor would return to America when he pushed his Lepere biplane to a height of 41,000 feet, but subsequent calibration of his instruments reduced this to 34,983 feet—far under the mark of 36,555 feet set by the Frenchman, Sadi LeCointe.

While LeCointe's actual altitude was less than 37,000 feet, MacReady must have attained a height of 37,855 feet to have broken the record. A recent ruling requires that any new record be 1,300 higher than the old one before it becomes official.

ELLIOTT OF BROOKLINE SETS HURDLES MARK

By The Associated Press.

EXETER, N. H. Feb. 22.—A new record for the 45 yard high hurdles was set at a Phillips-Exeter Academy track meet here today by Charles T. Elliott Jr., of Brookline, Mass. His time for the event was 5 4-5 seconds as recorded by the officials. The interscholastic record is 6 1-5 seconds and the A. A. U. record is six seconds flat.

KIRKWOOD SAYS HE WILL BE IN U. S OPEN RACE

By The Associated Press.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Feb. 22.—Joe Kirkwood, winner of the second annual Corpus Christi open tournament which closed here yesterday, winner of the San Antonio open championship last week, and who, it has been rumored, may withdraw from the United States open because of a conflict with the British championship dates, denied today that he had ever contemplated such action, and said that "that is the first I have heard of it."

Kirkwood, who will leave tonight for Houston, said that in case of a conflict, he would withdraw from the British championship rather than the United States open.

GREB WINS DECISION OVER JACK REEVES

By The Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 22.—Harry Greb, middleweight champion, won a decision in a four round boxing match here today from Jack Reeves of San Francisco. They fought at catch weights. It was announced Greb weighed 164 pounds and Reeves 165.

PITCHER JOHN WRIGHT, SOUTHPAW, TO SPUDS

By The Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22.—Pitcher John Wright, southpaw, who pitched last summer in the Three-Eye league, has been sold to Wichita Falls of the Texas league by the Pittsburgh Nationals, the management announced today.

The purchase of Pitcher Wright lifts the total number of portside hurlers for the Spudders to three. In Wright, Wichita Falls has just that much more added chance of ringing into the spangles that for which they have so long desired—a winning left-handed moundsman.

JOIE RAY WINS 'LEGION MILE' AT BOSTON MEET

By The Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 22. — Joie Ray, crack Illinois Athletic club miler, won an easy victory today in the "Legion Mile," one of the feature events on the program of the annual indoor track meet of the Massachusetts American Legion. Leo Larrivee, of Holy Cross, made a gallant bid to overtake ray on the last lap, finishing five yards back of the Chicagoan.

BERLENBACH, A K-O KING, TO OPEN GARDEN

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Madison Square Garden, prevented from staging a scheduled boxing show next Monday because of suspension imposed by the state athletic commission as a result of the recent Harks-Villa flyweight title fiasco, will resume fistic activity with two 12-round feature matches next Thursday night.

Paul Berlenbach, sensational New York middleweight, who has piled up a record of 23 consecutive knockouts will attempt to increase this string when he opposes Young Fisher, veteran Syracuse boxer. Ad Stone, Philadelphia's "fighting Marine", will meet Dave McGill, Irish light heavyweight champion, in the other main attraction.

JOE KIRKWOOD IS STILL WINNING

CORPUS CHRI TI Feb. 22—Success again crowned the efforts of Joe Kirkwood, winner of the Corpus Christi open tournament yesterday, when he, paired with J. M. Coleman, Corpus Christi, an amateur, won the amateur-professional best ball event, with a low card of 71 for the 36 holes. Kirkwood played the same brilliant style of golf that he has shown in the past two days and seemed if anything, more sure of himself than in the open tournament.

Tom Kerrigan, Mount Vernon, N. Y., paired with B. McGoldrick, amateur, and Bill Mehlhorn, St. Louis, paired with Ted Thomas, local amateur, were tied for the second place with scores of 72.

GOODFELLOW ASKS DAMAGES OF DENVER

The Fort Worth and Denver City railway was named defendant Friday in a suit for $12,500 damages, filed by Robert Goodfellow, former special officer employed by the road who alleges that he sustained injuries to the above amount in a fall into the round house pit of the company on April 7, 1923.

Mr. Goodfellow asserts in his petition that no lights had been posted by the company at the pit and that in the performance of his duty he fell into depression. Injuries to his right side and leg forced him to remain in bed for six week' time, he states, after which he was compelled to use crutches for another six weeks.

DUKE MEETS LUNDY OF OKLA.

Savage-Tex. Ray, Simmons And Roberts In Legion Fites

A miscellaneous gathering of fistic artists, making up a likely appearing group of matches, will entertain fans at the American Legion boxing program Wednesday night at the opera house.

Next week's card shapes up something like this: Duke Trammell of Fort Worth-Johnny Lundy of Oklahoma City; Mickey Savage of Sapulpa-Tex Ray of Fort Worth; Battling Simmons of Henrietta-Kid Roberts of Ardmore; Rattlesnake-Bill Brewer of San Antonio; Battling Gains-Kid Norfolk, locals.

Trammell and Lundy, Savage and Ray, will make up a double final bill, each match scheduled to go 10 rounds. Simmons and Roberts are on as a special bout, to go six rounds. The semi-final eight-rounder will be between Rattlesnake, the local colored champ, and Brewer, said to be the best colored boxer in the southwest. Gaines and Norfolk will step a four round affair for colored honors as they find them.

From one end to the other, the card coming up looks to be a well-balanced one. Promoter Don Wofford declares it one of the best yet, from the reasoning there is more tried talent to be exhibited. Trammell, savage, and Simmons are at all times counted on for good showing, and are established favorites. Ray has appeared here before. Roberts and Lundy are not nearly so well known, but have been heard from. The colored semi-final will develop interest, in that a match for Rattlesnake is in some probability showing up, with the assurance of a good bout in that class. Gaines and Norfolk will furnish the fun.

INDIANS BACK IN PORT; TRIP OVER

Wichita Junior college Indians returned home late Thursday night with the Eighter-from-Decatur cage scalp tucked away securely beneath their belt for the second time, but also with two-thirds of their heralded road trip long gone to smash. The latter matter was explained by Coach "Bootjack" Moore as being that he had word at the last minute the other two games could not be arranged at that time. Wichita was to play Junior A. and M. at Arlington, Friday, and Denton Normal, Saturday, according to previous announcements.

Although a newspaper article carried the news Coach Moore's cagers left Decatur Friday afternoon headed for Arlington, and from thence to Denton, the fact was the Indian mentor with his crew were already in Wichita Falls, and everything cancelled for further games on that trip.

Denton Game Only Probable

According to Moore, the games with the Arlington and Denton quints, although announced as early as last Sunday, were never fully arranged. However, as he had stated earlier in the week, last, prospects were good, up to some time before the Indians left for Decatur, for a game with Junior A. and M., at least Moore said last night. The Denton game never did materialize, Moore explained, and the A. and M. game was called off because of a holiday there Friday.

May Get Games Next Week

The Wichita college mentor is now in the market for cage games next week, he stated last night, but up to that time nothing definite had been arranged.

DEMPSEY TELLS PRESIDENT HOW

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—President Coolidge greeted Jack Dempsey today as "one who has been before the public longer than I have."

The world's heavyweight champion accompanied by Jack Kearns, his manager, called at the White House and was introduced to the president by Secretary Slemp with the explanation that the boxer could knockout a man with a two-inch punch.

"Well, that is two inches more of a punch than I would like to get from you," the president replied.

The president inquired if Dempsey had "any engagements in sight," and was told he "expects to box two or three times during the spring and summer."

CAMPUS CHATTER

With a total of $257.67 worth of votes, Miss Leota Tucker, senior class beauty, was proclaimed the most beautiful girl in all the high school Friday afternoon at the close of the beauty contest which was held for the benefit of the Coyote, the high school year book.

Miss Mary Brown of the Sophomore class came second with $222.50 to her credit, while the Junior class beauty, Miss Alma Willis was credited with $217.50, making a total of over $700.00 which was cleared for the year book.

The contest was one of the hottest in the history of the school, and the totals varied dangerously during the afternoon, though Miss Tucker was in the lead the most of the time.

Students returned to their homes Friday afternoon experiencing all the varied feelings of exultation, regret, disappointment or hilarity that always follow a bitter battle, no matter in what field it may lie.

However, they had a glorious time over the contest and it will live in their memories as another enjoyable scrap of their school life.

The defeated classes took their beating with good grace and many words of encouragement to their downcast beauties, realizing that the sacrifice was made for the good of the year book, the permanent record of their school life.

Miss Laura Lee Hampshire won the Junior High School Popularity contest Friday afternoon by a close margin. Estelle Barnes came in second and Edna Sinclair, third. The proceeds went toward the junior high section of the Coyote.

Dr. J. W. Cantwell visited Alamo school Friday afternoon and spoke to the civics classes on George Washington.

Miss Johnnie Morgan is ill and absent from her classes at Junior High School.

The members of the Girls' club at high school were dismissed from the last 25 minutes of the ninth period Friday for their George Washington meeting, so they could finish in time for the voting on the beauty contest.

The following members of the high with Coach McCallum to Estelline where they play this afternoon:

Leo Baldwin, captain; Frank Shaw, Horton (Dummy) Deems, Lowry Crites, Olton Powell, Edwin Powell, Paf Mackechney, Richard Gordon, John Tyson and Gerald Smith.

Miss Henrietta Pyle, supervisor of music, visited Sam Houston school Friday.

The high first grade at Alamo school made caps, hatchets and postal cards featuring George Washington designs Friday.

Rex Sutherland and Sara Creath, Alamo students, have returned to classes after an absence because of illness.

The seventh grade at Alamo wrote historical essays on Washington Friday.

Charlotte Evans and Bonnie Combs are absent from the high seventh at Alamo because of sickness.

Christine Terrill, Nellie Mae Ross, Nadine Looscourrow, Mary Kauffman and Anabel Herron are absent because of illness from low seventh at Alamo school.

Mary Ballew, Jack Moore, Maxwell Kauffman, Wayne McNeil, Margery Percy, Herbert Lee Fisher and Dorwood McDonald are absent from the high first grade because of measles.

Deaths

The funeral of Mrs. Lucinda Elliott, 75, who died at her home 1511 Marah street early Friday morning, was held from the residence at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. Burial was in Rosemont burial park.

Mrs. Elliott was one of the early settlers of the community, having made her home here for many years. Surviving her are her husband, one daughter, Mrs. L. C. Salisbury, and one son, Cy Elliott, all of this city.

WAGGONER BUYS INTEREST GRAY COUNTY LEASES

Plans to Deepen Panhandle Test; Much Activity In Territory

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, Feb. 22.—An interest in the well and part of the leases of Tipton and associates in the eastern part of Gray county is reported to have been purchased by W. T. Waggoner of Electra who contemplates deepening the well below the gas sand. Definite announcement is made also of two locations by the Homer F. Wilcox Oil & Gas company of Tulsa. One is in section 62, block 3, five miles south of Pampa, and the other in section 95, block 3, Wilson ranch, five miles north of Pampa.

An eastern trend of the gas producing area of Carson county was discovered recently by the Texas company in drilling its No. 3 Burnett into the gas sand. This is in section 108 block 5. W. W. Silk and associates are drilling satisfactorily with a rotary at 2,600 feet in the northeast corner of section 115, block 5, Carson county. In the southeast quarter of that section the American Refining company has a location to drill with rotary tools. Philip Engle of Wichita Falls has contracted for an interest in a block near the central part of Roberts county, south of the Canadian river, and will drill in the northeast quarter of section 7, E. L. & B. M. survey.

The Gulf Refining company is enlarging its equipment yards at Miami and has completed two 15,000 barrel tanks. A warehouse is under construction The Texas company is completing a 55,000 barrel tank on the Burnett lease in Carson county and is erecting two 500 barrel tanks at its No. 3 Burnett that is nearing completion.

MAER ET AL'S WELL TESTING OIL SAND

Maer Staniforth and Gwynne's R. F. Wilson No. 1, lot 8, block 28, American Tribune New Colony Lands survey, Archer county, one mile north of the Rinehart-Bailey discovery well, and one-half mile northeast of the Underwood Drilling company's producer, has encountered a good sand at depth of 1,608 feet. The sand was penetrated several feet and bailing was started last night.

Dorian-McCarthy 150-Barrel Well

Dorian and McCarthy Oil company's L. F. Wilson No. 4, block 822, Geraldine Townsite, Archer county, has been completed a 150 barrel pumper from sand 1,528-1,584 feet. The company's No. 5 is rigging up preparatory to spudding.

RIGGING UP

By SUMMERS

The Middle States Oil corporation now has a substantial control of the Southern States Oil company and all affairs of both companies are on the soundest basis, according to publicity department of the Middle States corporation.

A weakening in the morale of the small refiners is noted. A check on the Burbank situation has brought out the maximum premium offered for oil in that field is now 35 cents a barrel.

Jack Danciger and associates, identified with the Danciger Oil and Refining company, which firm is active in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, has recorded several leases in the vicinity of the Wellington structure, northern Colorado.

No sooner had federal forces recovered the oil fields than keen interest was displayed in resumption of activities in the development of Mexico's rich natural industry, according to publicity department of the Mexican government.

Allentown is located in the center of the extension to the Luling field. The new town has grown rapidly and now has several hundred population.

Crockett county is to have several deep tests by major companies. The Mid-Kansas, Big Lake Oil company, Transcontinental and others are blocking acreage for tests, according to reports from San Antonio.

Rice county, Kansas, has a wildcat well making 300 barrels and is attracting many operators from northern Oklahoma and the Kansas fields.

BOLLER TEST GETS LIKELY OIL SAND

C. W. Boller et als' L. F. Wilson No. 1, section 82, L. F. Wilson lands, has encountered a likely looking sand at depth of 1,616 feet. Casing is to be set and cemented for test.

GREENE-FLOWERS REPORTED BAILING

Green, Flowers and Tarver Oil company's Daume No. 1, southeast of the Stedham-Trasher test west of Murphy's corner was reported bailing from the sand at 1,823 feet.

Two carloads of Automatic Electric Washing Machines have been received by the Wichita Falls Electric company for their $5.00 down and $5.00 per month sale, beginning March 1st. —Adv.

Texhoma District Extended 3 Miles By Erwin's Strike

H. A. Erwin's T. B. Wilson No. 1, block 11, H. A. Erwin subdivision of the H. H. Kirk survey, three miles southwest of the Texhoma-Goss pool, Archer county, has drilled into a rich sand at depth of 1,634 feet. The sand was penetrated a few inches when the hole began to fill with fluid. Operators visiting the test were of the opinion that the test would be a producer.

FORT WORTH CATTLE.

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 22.—The cattle market was active today and prices of all classes were fully steady, with an additional 25-cent advance in calf price. Receipts were estimated at 2,400 head, including 600 calves. Beef steers cleared at 5.00 to 8.85. Good cows sold around 4.00 to 4.25. Medium grades went at 3.25 to 3.75, cutters sold at 2.25 to 2.75 and canners were purchased at a range of 2.00 to 2.25. A small selection of heifers and yearlings sold at a spread of 6.00 to 7.00. Bulls sold around 3.00 to 3.75. The calf market supported a top of 8.00. Most of the offerings found an outlet at 3.50 to 6.50, however.

The hog market was active, but prices experienced a downward revision of 15 to 20 cents. Packers and order buyers were in competition and 2,000 were on sale. The top was 7.25 to order buyer and 7.00 to packers for carlot. Packers purchased hogs in truck division, however, at 7.20. Most sales made a range of 7.00 to 7.15. Pigs remained steady with the bulk of the run clearing at 5.00 to 5.45. Receipts in the sheep house were too small to make a quotable price, only 100 head being received.

SHIPPING BOARD GAINS

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The privately owned fleet of the American merchant marine made a net gain of 13 ships, exclusive of tankers, aggregating 83,178 gross tons, during 1923, it was shown today in figures made public by the shipping board. The report covered only vessels of 1,000 tons or more.

The increase brought the total number of vessels under private operation to 766 displacing 3,020,561 tons. Of the total tonnage under the American flag, 2,385 vessels of 11,368,113 tons including tankers but exclusive of ships operated on the Great Lakes, the report showed the government owned 1,288 of which 68.4 per cent were idle on January. Private operators owned 1,067, of which 15.5 per cent were unemployed.

LARGE GIFTS MADE TO TEXAS LIBRARIES

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Feb. 21.—Gifts to Texas libraries in 1923 totaled $235,000, according to reports received and compiled by Miss Elizabeth H. West, librarian of the state library.

The two outstanding gifts of the year were those of Mrs. Burnett Couts of Fort Worth who gave $150,000 in cash to Texas Christian university for a library building, and of Capt. W. C. Tyrrell of Beaumont who bought the First Baptist church building and gave it to the city to be remodeled for a library.

The latter gift, said Miss West, is unique in Texas library history in that the terms of the deed of gift require trained service and adequate income for the library. The librarian must have at least one year of technical library school training and at least two years of successful library administration experience. The tax rate fixed in the deed is three cents for 1923, to be increased one cent each year until it reaches the dollar per capita pronounced by the American Library association as a reasonable minimum income for a public library.

Other individual money gifts of $100 and upward were: $109.50 by local clubs to the Potter County Free library, Amarillo; $100 by the American Mission association to the Tillotson college library, Austin; and $100 by local clubs to the Carnegie library of Winnsboro.

The largest individual gifts of books were: The Francis L. Town library, valued at $4,000, bequeathed by Colonel Towne to the Carnegie library of San Antonio; Lord Kingsborough's Antiquities of Mexico, valued at $1,000, given by Frank Kell of Wichita Falls to the Main library of the University of Texas; and a collection valued at $500 given by Mrs. W. W. Gilbert to the Carnegie library of Vernon.

Other gifts of books valued at $100 and upward were: A collection of plays given by Lutcher Stark to the University Extension Loan library, valued at $150; books valued at $330 given by J. W. Hamlet to the Texas Woman's college, Fort Worth; books given by George W. Graves and Mrs. John G. Tod valued at $100 and $250 respectively both to the Harris County Law library.

Among the gifts of books by groups is the Oxford dictionary, bought at a cost of $270 by the January 1923, senior class of the Bryan street high school, Dallas, and given by them to their high school library. This gift was declared by Miss West to be especially noteworthy.

The value of other collective gifts of books of $100 and upward was: $965 to the Canadian Public library, Canadian, by various donors; $174.50 to Cisco, by various donors; $1,425 to the El Paso public library by various donors; $100 to the Texas Woman's college, Fort Worth, by friends; $100 to the Ursulin convent, Galveston by various donors; $133.21 to the Graham public library, by the local Chautauqua club; $535 to the Harris county library, by various donors; $328 to the Lubbock public library, mostly by local clubs; $161.25 to the Memphis public library, by various donors; $100 to the U. D. C. library, Meridian, by the Bosque chapter, U. D. C.; $1,035 to the Mineral Wells Circulating library, by various donors; $250 to the Plainview public library by Mrs. Dick Graves and Messrs. Wallce and Brahan; $400 to the Carnegie library of San Antonio by various donors; $150 to the Carnegie library, Vernon, by various donors; $272 to the Waco public library by various donors.

PARIS INSISTS ON RIGHT TO CONDEMN POOR ACTORS

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The theatregoers of Paris are supporting today the right of audiences to condemn as well as applaud the work of actors on the stage, and to this end they quote Moliere, who said that this was a privilege one purchased along with his theatre ticket.

Whistling in a French theatre is more of an insult to the actor than is hissing in an American playhouse, and recently it has been freely practiced in the dignified and staid Comedie Francaise, the government theatre in Paris. More than one well known tragedienne has heard whistling accompanied by pointed comments on his alleged incapacity, from bored spectators.

The police have tried several times to stop the practice by ejecting the offenders, but without result. The public is now clamoring for its right to "throw brickbats" as well as bouquets.

The Power of the Printed Word

NIAGARA FALLS is the most famous waterfall in the world. Printer's ink made it so. There are more than twenty waterfalls in the world higher than Niagara. The others are not advertised. You do not hear of them.

If you are a merchant you should consider the power of the printed word.

As Elbert Hubbard once said: "Horatius still stands at the bridge, because a poet placed him there." Paul Revere rides adown the night, giving his warning cry, because Longfellow set the meters into a gallop. Commodore Perry, that rash and impulsive youth of 26, never sent the message, "We have met the enemy and they are ours," but a good reporter did, and the reporter's words live, while Perry's died on the empty air.

Consider the power of the printed word and what it will do to make your own business bigger and more profitable. Study advertising. Look closely into its possibilities.

When you look up into the sky at night, your naked eye can see only about 700 stars. The number of stars visible through a telescope is over 70,000,000. Look at advertising through a mental telescope. Give serious consideration to its great advantages to you.

The Record News, growing steadily, consistently, day-by-day winning the confidence and respect of more and more readers, having already gained the confidence and respect of its advertisers, now invites the conscientious, yet negligent merchant to GROW WITH IT.

Advertising in the Wichita Falls Record News is money well invested, for, advertising in this paper is an investment that is sure to bring good returns if placed judiciously and consistently.

Ordinary prudence demands that Wichita Falls merchants use the

There's Impressive Quality In These

Spring Suits

The excellence you always find in Society Brand clothes is emphasized anew in spring suits.
The new stripe and check effects—Oyster Grey, Powder Blue, and an interesting variety of other colors and patterns.
This climate makes a good spring suit a real practical buy—you can wear it the year around, except for the hottest summer days, and the nippiest winter ones.
The extra pair of trousers adds to the practicability.
The ample, broad lines of the tailoring are a guarantee of comfort.

MONEY At Work

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

THE AVERAGE INVESTOR CAN NOT DETECT FRAUDULENT BONDS

There is just one thing to remember when it comes to purchasing securities from strangers. Don't!

Securities should always be purchased from a reliable broker, bond house or bank, and not from the first individual or concern which happens to offer them, no matter how good the security may appear to be. Many times the average investor who buys from strangers gets a bond which looks all right to him but is really valueless.

For instance, the bonds of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad company of Iowa are on the old property which lost all value in the reorganization of the company some years ago. The average investor has no method of knowing that from the certificate, and he would have to resort to a keen memory if he depended upon himself alone in purchasing these bonds.

Six Tombs Tells Tragic Tales Of Terrible Deaths

By The Associated Press.

ACKWORTH, Ga., Feb. 22.—Six graves in the Liberty Hill cemetery here mark four grim tragedies in a single family. Six members of the McDowell family rest in the little cemetery plot where today the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McDowell, shot to death while asleep by their son, Frank, in St. Petersburg, Fla., were laid to rest.

Besides the mounds that mark the resting place of the father and mother, are those of their two daughters, burned to death a year ago in their home in Decatur, Ga., in a fire started by their brother, Frank, who confessed that he fired their beds while they slept.

A few feet away is the grave of Eugene McDowell, brother of J. M. McDowell, who ended his own life on April 17, 1915, by drinking poison. Just beyond, in the resting place of W. P. McDowell, another, who was killed when struck by a train at the Ackworth station February 18, 1906.

Surviving members of the McDowell family feel more pity than anything else toward Frank McDowell, who confessed the slaying of his parents and two sisters, according to Clifford McDowell, who came here today from Knoxville, Tenn., to attend the funeral of his brother and his brother's wife.

"It is hard to say just what attitude the members of the family will take toward the boy," he said, "but we pity Frank more than anything else, because we do not think that he was sane. I haven't seen him for a number of years."

Tut's Tomb Is Again Re-opened, Carter Absent

By The Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 22. — Pierre Lacau, of the Egyptian antiquities department opened Tutankhamen's tomb this afternoon in the absence of Howard Carter. The sarcophagus was found undisturbed and two hours were spent in making an inventory of its contents.

Mr. Carter failed to accept the invitation to be present at the re-opening of the tomb. The Egyptian government does not intend any further work in the tomb this winter.

Today's re-opening was undertaken mainly to facilitate measures to safeguard the sarcophagus and arrange for the ten days series of visits as provided in the original program. The tomb will then be closed.

Britain Dock Strike Still Hanging Fire

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The confidence felt yesterday of an early settlement of the dock strike changed to renewed apprehension tonight when it was learned that the decision whether to accept the terms which the employers offered had to be referred to the strikers themselves.

The delegate conference sat nearly eight hours today without arriving at an agreement and then decided to adjourn until Monday in order to consult the men. It is hoped the delegates will be able to return from their respective ports on Monday with mandates for acceptances, but this is by no means certain as the big meeting held in some ports today showed a deep determination to exact payment of the full two shillings advance. In view of these threats there seemed to be no hope of resumption of port work before Tuesday and perhaps not then, unless moderate counsels pre-

Six Charged With Murder In Glen Rose Case

By The Associated Press.

GLENROSE, Texas, Feb. 22.—Six men are directly charged with murder tonight, six more are in jail pending investigation and six others have just been released after questioning as the result of the murder of Richard Watson, the young detective through whom State Ranger Burton sought to break up what the authorities here style the "mountain moonshine rendezvous of Texas."

The age-old feud between moonshiners and revenue officers, which has rocked the mountains of West Virginia and Kentucky, since man could distill corn, is being re-enacted in the hills of Somervell county tonight.

But that does not tell the story, according to County Attorney J. A. Moore, Sheriff Joe Dotson and Ranger Burton. Glen Rose is virtually at an armed armistice. Lives of those who oppose the alleged rum ring are menaced. The situation is so tense, feeling mounting so high between the two bitter factions, that Company B of the Texas rangers is expected to arrive tomorrow to insure peace. Captain Shumate is already here, having just come. Those accused of murder, after conclusion of a preliminary hearing in justice court are: Murray West, Conley West, Willis West, all brothers; Charles Moss, Grandy Moss, also brothers, and Dr. Pruitt.

POULTRY TRAIN NOW AT QUANAH

Denver Special Gets Enthusiastic Response In Hardeman Capital

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Feb. 22. — The most successful poultry show in the history of Hardeman county, according to old timers, was held at Quanah Thursday and Friday in conjunction with the Fort Worth and Denver poultry demonstration special which arrived here early this morning.

Lectures by prominent poultry men and together with demonstrations at the poultry show here in the Carroll building and the special cars of poultry under the auspices of the Denver local people were shown pretty well how to get into the poultry business on a successful basis. Unique advertising stunts drew hundreds of interested people to town today and local poultry fanciers are optimistic concerning the future of the poultry business in this country.

Mammoth Fire Truck Now Being Overhauled

Mechanics at the Central fire station started work Friday on a thorough overhauling of the big Seagrave pumper truck, the largest and one of the most useful pieces of fire fighting machinery owned by the city.

The truck, which has seen 11 years of service, weighs 14,700 pounds and has about outlived its usefulness, according to Fire Chief McClure, who, however, is still able to depend on it when occasion demands. A complete renovation of the motor, transmission and electrical system have been planned for some time and after the heavy service demanded of the truck at the Farmer's Cotton Oil company building fire Thursday night it was absolutely necessary to make the repairs at once.

Although it has been in use for years and has traveled hundreds of miles in responding to alarms, the machine has figured in only one serious accident. That was about two years ago when, while speeding to a fire in the dark, it struck one of the heavy "dummy police" traffic markers that formerly graced the streets. The front axle was broken and other damage sustained but none of the firemen was injured.

The truck will be out of commission about a week.

Robbery Charges Filed On Man In Justice Court

A second arrest was made Friday afternoon by city officers who, since Thursday night have been at work on the Hickman robbery case. Charges were filed Friday morning in justice of peace court against Arvil Pool, one of the two men who were surprised by Mr. and Mrs. Hickman when they returned to their home at 1007 Eighth street Thursday afternoon. Pool was held by Mr. Hickman until officers arrived but the other invader made his escape.

No formal complaint has as yet been made against him but the charges probably will be filed Saturday.

A large quantity of clothing had been packed in a suit case by the two men when Mr. Hickman and his wife walked in on them. Pool, who is crippled, was unable to make his escape. He gave his age as 18, while his companion, officers assert, is 20.

STAGE AND SCREEN

By JOSEPHINE FISK

STRAND—"Cause of Divorce," a John A. Dierker production, presented by John S. Woody.

MISSION—"The Mailman."

OLYMPIC — "The Marriage Market."

GEM—Harry Carey in "The Miracle Baby."

"Who Is Ronald Colman?"

The answer is that he's the year's most sensational screen discovery. Just as Rudolph Valentino sprang to fame over night in Metro's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," and as Ramon Novarro leaped from obscurity in "The Prisoner of Zenda," Colman has reached stellar heights at a bound in "The White Sister." Handsome, dashing and distinguished, he has conquered filmdom.

But what of his career before "The White Sister," in which he appears at the Strand Sunday?

He is a graduate of the English stage, having appeared in many of the greatest successes in London up to his coming to this country about three years ago.

Mr. Colman was playing with Ruth Chatterton in "La Tendresse" for Henry Miller when Inspiration Pictures, Inc., after a long search, singled him out as being an ideal type to impersonate Captain Giovanni Severi. His screen test was most satisfactory and arrangements were made with Mr. Miller, who had placed the young man under contract to permit Colman to go with the company to Italy, where the picture was filmed.

As an Italian, Colman proves to be a striking counterpart, but in reality he is a Scotchman.

"The White Sister," based on F. Marion Crawford's story, is a Henry King production sponsored by Inspiration Pictures, Inc., of which Charles H. Duell, Jr., is president, and released through Metro.

Conway Tearle in "Black Oxen"

MILLER A VERSATILE ARTIST.

Carl Miller has been in pictures since 1916, but was really "discovered" by Charlie Chaplin in the role of director of "The Woman of Paris." In this picture Carl, who played the part of Jean Miller, the artist lover of "the woman," did such good work that he was named one of thirty actors who have accomplished unusually brilliant work in the past year.

He plays opposite Marie Prevost in "Once in a Blue Moon," which is the working title for "The Rose of the Ghetto." He is also to have the male lead in the picture in which Mildred Davis (Mrs. Harold Lloyd) is to star —not titled at present. Aside from his picture activities Carl is a sculptor, a painter and a ready writer.

"Arbutus Quilty," isn't that a delightful name? Louise Fazenda bears it in her newest picture since "The Gold Diggers" and "The Galloping Fish." It is "Listen Lester." Of course it is a comedy. Arbutus Quilty couldn't be tragic if she tried.

Incidentally, to all whom it may concern, Louise is a very domestic young woman when at home. She's a wonderful cook 'n everything.

Willard Mack has written a story for Jackie Coogan. Mr. Coogan, Sr., is said to have just "grabbed" the story when it was offered to him. Pictures suitable for Jackie are none too plentiful. Mr. Mack had never before written a story for a child.

'Tis said along the Rialto that Gloria Swanson is to play "Peter Pan" in the screening of that famous play. Do you believe in fairies?

Baby Peggy is to play in "Helen's Babies," a story that was published seventy years ago and is still popular.

Did you know that William S. Hart, "Wild Bill Hickok," etc., was an author? He wrote "A Lighter of Flames" which he is going to produce on the screen shortly. He has received word lately that the book was deemed worthy to be printed in Braille type for the blind to read.

Antonio Moreno is playing the role of a lawyer in Sam Wood's production of the original story labeled "Bluff." Mr. Moreno says he had good observation training for the character through his many visits to the courtroom of his friend, Judge Sydney Reeves. And this is the first time he has had a chance to try out for the reel the data his real courtroom sessions bestowed upon him.

Irving Cummings, who has just completed his fourth picture at Universal City, will start next week on "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," a Gerald Beaumont racing story from the Red Book Magazine. He will have a cast which includes Creighton Hale, Ethel Shannon, George Cooper, Edith Yorke, Robert Brower and Charlotte Stevens.

Carmelita Geraghty, another of the 1924 "baby stars," picked by the Wampas for their annual ball, has taken up quarters at Universal City, where she will support Herbert Rawlinson in "High Speed." This film is an adaptation of a magazine story by Fred Jackson and will be produced by Herbert Blache. The cast includes also Bert Roach and Otto Hoffman.

Edward Sedgwick has completed the cast of the latest Hoot Gibson picture, "Forty Horse Hawkins," written by himself and Raymond L. Schrock. It includes Anne Cornwall, Helen Gibson, Richard Tucker, John Judd, George (Buck) Connors and a dog by the name of Mickey.

The huge radio loud speaking plant which was installed at Universal City for the purpose of directing the huge scenes in "Hunchback of Notre Dame" has been placed in the Studio Inn at the picture city. At the luncheon hour it distributes to all parts of the lot the music broadcasted by all the coast stations from Seattle to San Diego. A two-speaker unit of the same system is now being used by King Baggot for the castle scenes of Mary Philbin's big picture, "The Inheritor."

Only a moving picture director could complain of the California weather this winter. It is fully up to advertising specifications. But it doesn't suit William Duncan for a cent. If it doesn't snow in Great Bear or some of the other well known California winter resorts, soon it will be hard sledding for the new serial on which he is working, "The Free Trader."

Universal has just purchased the motion picture rights to "The Husband of Edith" by George Barr McCutcheon, and it is being put into the proper form for the use of Reginald Denny. It will undoubtedly follow "The Missourian."

Rejuvenation and a mental battle between a woman's duty to herself and her country and happiness with the man she loves, are among the many features of the modern society drama, Frank Lloyd's production of "Black Oxen," a First National picture, to be the center of interest at the Olympic theatre, starting Sunday.

Adapted from Gertrude Atherton's novel of the same title, a volume which made history as the most popular bit of fiction during 1923, the screen version of "Black Oxen" gives life to a theme unique and fascinating because of its directness and rare entertainment quality, and Mr. Lloyd has spared neither effort nor expense in making his visualization one of the big plays of the year.

Two Are Featured.

Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle are featured in "Black Oxen," with a supporting cast numbering several thousands with ten well known screen players in the principal secondary roles. Miss Griffith plays the dual character of Madame Zatianny, an European bred American woman of 58 who has been rejuvenated and appears to be no more than thirty. Mr. Tearle is cast as Lee Clavering, a New York newspaper feature writer and budding playwright, who falls in love with the charming Zatianny, bringing to both people the first real romance their lives have known.

Clara Bow, a young brunette beauty, essays the part of Janet Oglethorpe, a flapper, who, although held more or less in contempt by Clavering, because of her apparent recklessness, refuses to permit anyone to deprive her of the right to marry the man she has set her heart on winning.

Old Home Town Stuff

THINGS YOU SAY, DO AND SEE AND SOME YOU DON'T

Thieves entered the C. E. Britain home, 905 Harrison, some time Thursday night and escaped with a suit of men's clothing, an overcoat, and other articles of wearing apparel. The robbery was reported to the police Friday morning.

G. W. McDaniel, county superintendent of schools of Clay county was in the city Friday.

Gilbert E. Markham of Chicago was in the city Friday on business.

Only a few vags and drunks, with the usual number of traffic offenders made up the grist for Friday morning's police court session.

Work of the Boys Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls will be demonstrated at various community schools beginning Friday evening, February 29, including Evert, Stringtown, Fairview and Newtown. The demonstrations will be done under the supervision of Frank Creighton, Scout executive, and Miss Glenore Fisk, Campfire guardian.

Announcement has been made that the drill team of Wichita Falls Commandery No. 59 will practice each Thursday evening until the grand commandery which meets at San Antonio, April 30. Captain Leslie R. Stringer is in charge of the work.

Piggly Wiggly Casts Bread Upon Record News Crew With 100 Loaves

Employees of the Record News will have no difficulty in following the well known slogan "Eat More Bread", owing to the gift of C. S. Wyatt of the Piggly Wiggly stores who sent 100 loaves of his new De Luxe loaf, put out by the Piggly Wiggly bakeries, to the Record News offices Friday afternoon.

The big Piggly Wiggly bakeries have just completed installation of $10,000 worth of the latest and most up to date bakery machinery, which produces the new double loaf, much finer in grain and texture than the former loaf produced and better flavored because of the character of the loaf, according to Mr. Wyatt.

Mr. Wyatt said in speaking of the bakery:

"The steam oven which is the largest in the city, is fitted with the newest attachments which bake the loaf in such a manner that it keeps nicely for 48 hours. The oven has a capacity of 530 loaves an hour and turns out a batch of bread every 24 hours. The new oven raises the capacity of the bakery to 15,000 loaves a day, making the plant one of the largest and most completely equipped in the southwest."

Besides the distinctive new loaf which is split at the top and divided into two sections, insuring a thorough baking at the top of the loaf and making a conveniently shaped slice, every sort of bakery dainty is manufactured in the plant, according to Mr. Wyatt, including cakes, pies, cookies, French pastries, rolls and little fancy cakes.

Bread is now shipped from the bakery here to the Piggly Wiggly stores in Electra, Terrel and Ardmore, Oklahoma, and the price on the new loaf, which Mr. Wyatt has named "the De Luxe," will remain the same as formerly, 6 1-2 cents, according to Mr. Wyatt's announcement Friday.

ARREST MAN HERE ON OKLAHOMA CHARGE

An alleged assault with intent to murder charge, filed recently in Ardmore, Okla., led to the arrest here Friday morning of a local man who is named as defendant in the complaint. He was taken in custody by Officers Griffin and Blocker and is being held for the Oklahoma authorities.

Details of the supposed offense were lacking here, but it is understood that an attack was made on a federal officer in Ardmore recently for the basis of the complaint. The man arrested here denied that he had been involved in any trouble with an officer.

Judge Rogers In Washington Talks Burk and Electra

A large crowd was on hand at Burkburnett Friday evening for the address given by Judge Guy Rogers of Wichita Falls on the subject "Equality Before and the Enforcement of the Written Law." The meeting at which he spoke was in the nature of an observance of Washington's birthday and was sponsored by the Masonic organizations of Burkburnett.

Several hundred turned out at Electra Thursday night when Judge Rogers spoke in the First Baptist church on the subject of "A Citizen and His Country." P. B. Curd, also of Wichita Falls, spoke on "Washington, the Mason."

2ND CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN FOR CRIMINAL OPERATION IS FILED

A second complaint charging a local woman with having performed a criminal operation was filed Friday afternoon in justice court. The same woman who was arraigned last Wednesday on a similar charge was the defendant Friday. Both charges were made by Deputy Constable Richardson, who has been at work on the cases.

The woman was released on bond of $1,500 on the first charge, while bond of $1.00 was set and furnished in the case Friday.

Both cases will be presented to the grand jury which convenes next Monday.

LANGFORD-DEBUS CASE OVER TODAY

A short deliberation this morning will be sufficient for the jury in the P. P. Langford vs. E. A. Debus suit tried in the 78th district court Friday. The jury deliberated about an hour Friday and announced on being dismissed for the day that another 30 minutes would be sufficient to arrive at a verdict.

The suit is for collection of a note given by Debus to a man named McCoy at the time former purchased a consignment of cattle from the latter. Mr. Langford acquired the note from McCoy and is now seeking a settlement.
