An investigation into the wreck was under way last night and officials of the road were not ready to make an official report. It was said by eyewitnesses, however, that one of the locomotives had not cleared the frog of a switch it was entering and was sideswiped by another coming in an opposite direction.

THE WEATHER

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch.

Husband's Praise.

I KNOW you're good, I know you're a kind,
As good a man as women find.
I would not criticize, my dear,
For once I was so glad to hear
The many pretty things you said
Before the day that we were wed.
When we were on our honeymoon,
My, how we used to sit and spoon
In that hotel that we were at—
But tell me oftener than that.

And I remember once we gave
A dinner party, like a slave
I toiled all day, and well content,
Because that night, before we went
To rest, you said that you were proud
The way I handled such a crowd
The food was perfect, table fine,
You liked each little act of mine,
The way that I arranged the flat—
But tell me oftener than that.

And I remember other things:
With words like these a woman sings
When long her husband has forgot
The thing he said, as like as not.
My dear, I try to buy with care
The colors that I ought to wear,
I shall recall, till life is done,
The spring of 1921:
That was the spring you liked my hat—
But tell me oftener than that!

Oil Famine Foreseen In U. S. Within Next Few Years in Survey

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Asserting that the oil fields of the United States probably passed their ultimate peak of production in 1923, the mining and metallurgical society of America in a special survey made today declared that the country must look to increased oil importation and then to substitutes for oil.

Petroleum production apparently has entered upon a final phase of slow and gradual decline, with consumption increasing more rapidly than supply, said a report by a committee of geologists and mining engineers to R. M. Catlin, president of the society.

Only two oil pools in the United States are now producing over 100,000 barrels a day, the Long Beach in California and the Smackover in Arkansas, the engineers found. Not all the big pools in the country have been discovered, they explained, but the probability is that the record output of 1923 will not be exceeded unless several large undiscovered pools or new producing sands in old districts are brought to peak production within a single year.

A check for $100 from a prominent Wichita Falls oil operator, who askel that his name not be used, coupled with two other contributions, served Wednesday to boost the Record News' annual milk and ice fund to over the $400 mark. To date a total of $427.85 has been sent in by Wichitans anxious to help tide a suffering family through the rigors of a blistering summer day.

The recurrence of the heat wave yesterday evidently inspired matters somewhat, but small donations have been coming in to the Record News with more or less regularity ever since the 1925 inaugural of the fund was announced. All cash is handed over to the Salvation Army for expenditure for milk and ice. This, in turn is distributed by the army workers among those families deemed worthy of the favor.

That the milk and ice purchased this summer has been the means of saving untold suffering is evidenced by reports from Salvation Army heads.

The fund will be continued throughout the summer.

Donations received yesterday in addition to the $100 were Mrs. J. H. Crumpler $5, and M. J. McGuigan $2.50.

FAITH IN JURY REAFFIRMED IN WJB'S ADDRESS

Commoner is Speaker at Dinner Given in His Honor At Morgan Springs

TALKS ABOUT TRIAL

Purpose of Prosecution Is Not to Stop Investigation Or Knowledge

MORGAN SPRINGS, Tenn., July 8.—(AP)—Speaking at a dinner given in his honor by his fellow lawyers connected with the prosecution of John T. Scopes, William Jennings Bryan here tonight talked of juries and minorities. As in his address at Dayton last night, he avoided discussion of the details of the Scopes case but suggested that two points were related to the case and yet of a character that made it possible to discuss them in advance of the trial.

Ridicule Jury Idea.

"As to the trial before a jury," he said, "some of the city papers have ridiculed the idea of trying a scientific question before a jury as if it were possible, or even unwise, to try such a question before a jury of scientists. A scientist is an expert and may be called as a witness, but no one would ever think of selecting a jury of scientists to try even a scientific question.

"The jury system is a very old institution and has been part of our system of justice from the beginning of our nation's history. All questions of every kind are submitted to juries, and it may be added, that in no state in the union is there an educational qualification established for jurors. In no state of the union is it necessary that a juror be a graduate of any university, college or school.

"Our faith in the jury system rests upon the same foundation as our faith in popular government. According to our principle of government the people are interested in everything and can be trusted to decide everything, and so with our juris. We allow the jury to decide whether the death penalty shall be enacted.

"In the Shepherd case, recently tried in Chicago, they had experts

Stage Is Set For Monkey Trial Friday At Dayton, With Man Versus Ape Tilt Assuming Circus Aspect

Court Battle Over Evolution in Tennessee Is Capturing Attention of Entire World — — And There Is Many An Opportunist in Dayton Now.

THIS week Dayton, Tenn., an obscure little village of less than 2,000 normal population becomes the center of the concentrated interest of most of the civilized world. On Friday, the 10th inst., the case of the People vs. John T. Scopes, will come to trial. The defendant, a young school teacher is charged by the state with the violation of a recently passed Tennessee law forbidding the teaching in the public schools of any "theories that deny the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible."

All the bitterness and hatred of religious controversy is contributing to the interest in this trial until, through the blinding glare of nation-wide publicity, John T. Scopes and his little difficulty wtih the law has centered attention on the little Tennessee village and made it famous almost overnight.

And Dayton, Tenn., is not altogether without its opportunists. While the wordy battle wages and millions of people, ranging from bitter partisans to mildly amused philosophers, are listening in, this sleepy little hamlet tucked away in the heart of the beautiful somnolent Cumberland mountains proposes to "cash in" on its sudden bound into the blinding glare of the calcium.

Under the letter-head of the progressive "Dayton Club" the "Committee on Entertainment for the Scopes Trial, July 10" has written each and every newspaper in the country regarding press tickets and accommodations. The methods used in handling the press are similar to those used at the town of Shelby, Mont., a couple of years ago, when that little hamlet similarly burst into the limelight using in place of Dayton's religious controversy a prize fight for the heavyweight championship of the world.

The committee on entertainment may or may not be interested in seeing that the laws of the sovereign state of Tennesse are upheld but it certainly is interested in seeing that the name of Dayton, Tenn., is carried in every paper in the country, while public interest is focused upon it.

Whatever its townspeople think about evolution and about outsiders coming there to attempt to set aside the laws of their state, and however much they may be dazed that it is their young high school instructor and football coach who has been the more or less willing cause of all the excitement, certainly Dayton is not going to miss its chance.

Its townspeople are laying plans to accommodate the visitors, its congressman, Cordell Hull, has asked the war department for tents and army cots, and railroads are expected to provide extra sidings and Pullmans.

Judge Raulston has agreed to hold court in any dignified place of large assembly, and the chances are that the trial may be held in a large tent of chautauqua or even circus size. Arrangements may be made, too, to broadcast the trial by radio, so that the country may hear as well as read.

John Scopes.

Young high school instructor and football coach who is the defendant.

Bryan in the Lists.

With such an opportunity and forum, upholders of the Tennessee anti-evolution law, including those seeking its adoption by other states, do not intend letting the Dayton trial go by without doing their best to break down the evolutionary theories they denounce so bitterly.

The prosecution and those sympathizing with the prosecution seem to consider that the hated Darwin theory is to be on trial. They are anxious to see vengeance overtake those who explain the theory that "men are descended from monkeys." No sooner was the Scopes prosecution launched than William Jennings Bryan announced his intention of coming to Tennessee to assist. The general public in Tennessee applauded. Bryan is popular in Tennessee.

It appears unlikely, however, that Dayton will be the scene of any extended debate upon evolution. Upholders of the Tennessee law may denounce the theory, but the defense apparently does not consider that evolution has anything to do wtih the trial. It will thing to do with the trial. It will the Darwin theory is immsterial, that it is not within the province of a state legislature to determine the truth of a scientific theory or a religious doctrine. The Bible, it will argue, is not at stake, but rather the inalienable rights of free thought and free speech.

Darrow Resented.

People throughout rural Tennessee appear to resent the coming of Darrow and Malone. They know these two lawyers by reputation. Darrow, sophisticated defender of radicals, is looked upon with something akin to horror. They don't like to see these two men come to attack a law which they think prevents a doctrine that would make infidels and agnostics of their children.

"Shall we allow science to tear down our children's faith in God and religion?" they ask. "Haven't we a right to protect their young and unformed minds from the teachings that produce agnostics and atheists?"

Bryan's Argument.

And Mr. Bryan shows himself in exact accord with the anti-evolutionists in Tennessee. The man who by virtue of his position and reputation will naturally take the lead when the prosecution issues the query:

"Has not the hand that writes the pay checks got a right to say what shall be taught in the schools?"

He declares that he has brought the fight on evolution into the

Which One Was Slandered?

William Jennings Bryan, as everyone knows, vehemently declares that he is not descended from a monkey.

A short time ago, the story goes, in a certain city in which Mr. Bryan happened to be expounding his views, there also happened to be a very intelligent ape, named Napoleon, who looked very much like Mr. Bryan. To make the resemblance still more striking, the ape had a line of patter that at a distance sounded very much like some political speeches.

The monkey did not deliver lectures, but he occupied a high position on the vaudeville circuit and his act, the earnings of which compared very favorably with Mr. Bryan's, gave every evedidence of a high order of simian intelligence.

It was under these circumstances that a prominent cartoonist, struck by the fancied resemblance, embraced the opportunity to draw a cartoon of Mr. Bryan and Napoleon coming down the street hand in hand. To make the point more apparent, the names were reversed as though the printer had mistaken the likeness.

Shortly after the paper appeared, Mr. Bryan dashed into the newspaper office with fire in his eye. Forcing his way into the editorial presence he demanded an instant and humble public apology.

As the editor did not seem to be duly impressed, Bryan roared, "It may interest you, sir, to know that I propose to sue your vile and scurrilous sheet for $50,000 damages."

The tired editor stifled a yawn. "You're too late," he said, "the monk brought suit this morning."

Flowers Number Depend on Cats

Mr. Darwin gives the following homely instance of the struggle for existence:

"I find from experiments that humble-bees are almost indispensable to the fertilization of the heart's-ease, for other bees do not visit this flower.

"Humble-bees alone visit red clover as other bees cannot reach the the nectar. Hence we may infer as highly probable that, if the whole genus of humble-bees became extinct or very rare in England, the heart's-ease and red clover would become very rare, or wholly disappear.

"The number of humble-bees in any district depends in a great measure upon the number of field mice, which destory their combs and nests; the number of mice is largely dependant, as everyone knows, on the number of cats."

Hence, as Mr. Darwin shows, the frequency of certain flowers in a district may depend upon the number of cats.

Father Arrested Wednesday Accused of Avoiding Income Tax

$500,000 INVOLVED

Jule Tells Record News Recapitilization Misunderstood

Jules Constantin, 1105 Alma street, wealthy oil refinery official, whose father, E. Constantine, millionaire refinery owner of Tulsa, Okla., was arrested by federal authorities in New York Wednesday on charge of attempting to defraud the United States government by avoiding the payment of approximately $500,000 in income taxes, in a statement to The Record News last night declared "my father is absolutely guiltless and the entire affair has arisen over a misunderstanding on the part of the government regarding recapitilization of our properties."

The older Constantin, according to an Associated Press dispatch, was arrested in a New York hotel by members o fthe internal revenue intelligence unit. Arraigned before the United States commissioner, he waived examination and was held in $3,000 bail to await extradition to Tulsa.

Explaining the situation last night, Jules Constantin said:

"The Constantin Refining company in 1921 was capitalized at $75,000, while at the same time its assets were approximately fourteen million dollars, of which my father owned about 90 per cent.

"This was a remarkably low capitalization for such assets and later we increased the capital stock to $10,000,000. In making transfer of this new stock the government misunderstood it entirely, believing that it was added income, when in reality it only added to the amount of the shares of the stock at a reduced book value. It was in no sense added income."

Jules Constantin stated he had wired his father for details of his arrest and charge, but had not yet received a reply and before issuing any other statement would await an answer from his father.

Rank Wildcat In Northeast Young County Has Showing at 870

OIL MEN ARE SURPRISED BY SAND SHOWING

Favorable Completion Of Munnich - Steward May Mean New Pool

Driving casing and bailing after losing the seat last evening on their number one G. P. Stewart lease, located in the David Dawson survey, northeast Young county, Munnich and associates have what appears to be a nice producer from sand topped at 860 feet and drilled to 870 feet.

This well, a rank wildcat and surrounded by a series of dry holes, one of which, that of the Dallas-Young company, was drilled to a depth of 4,000 feet, comes as a complete surprise to the fraternity. Its favorable completion within the next few days may mean a new shallow pool in the north Young district.

Promising Louisiana Well Gets Salt Water

SHREVEPORT, La., July 8.—Although it promised more than any other well yet tested in the Uranis district, Cleve Lover's No. 1 Tremont Lumber company in the center of the north line of the southwest quarter of 30-10-2E LaSalle parish proved no better on fulfillment than either of its predecessors, and is reported today as a salt water test at 1,526 feet. What will be done with it, if anything, in an attempt to retrieve it has not been determined.

It came in Saturday with all the ear marks of being the much sought producer, making heads the last of which went 60 feet up the derrick. It flowed in all about 300 barrels of clean oil and bridged, cleaned itself and bridged again. This time, when it was attempted to bail it back in it came back salt water. Bottom of the hole is 14 feet in sand and shale.

POWELL WELL IN AUSTIN CHALK AT 2,770 FEET.

Gilbert, Johnson & Jack Greenwood No. 1 Greer, Rushing survey, northeast of Powell, Navarro county, east central Texas, is still drilling in the Austin chalk at 2,770 feet, last reports say. It had the top of the Austin chalk at 2,655 feet and is believed to be right in the fault. The test is expected to be a completion by the end of this week.

LIMESTONE COUNTY FIELD IS SHOWING AN IMPROVEMENT.

The Richland-Currie district in Limestone county, east central Texas, is improving, but it still has a long way to go before it is a commercial proposition.

Barkley & Meadows No. 2 Hillburn, an offset to the discovery well, made 84 barrels of oil and 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas and is improving its production. The discovery is making 125 barrels through open hole.

Sun Oil company No. 2-A Hillburn, Hudson survey, north of the discovery, should be a completion soon, while Sun's No. 2 Hillburn, Boren survey, swabbed 90 barrels in 17 hours, with some gas at 2,979 to 2,994 feet.

Homer Chapman, who took over the Strotman well one mile southwest of the Barkley & Meadows discovery, has 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas and is swabbing, having topped a broken sand at 3,105 feet and penetrated it to 3,127 feet.

Graves & Cammack No. 1 Hilburn, second well there, continues to do 50 barrels a day through tubing and packer. It is four locations east of the discovery.

ARCHER WELL SWABS 250 BARRELS FIRST 24 HOURS.

Norday Oil company No. 2 Anderson, block 21, south Anderson ranch sub-division, Archer county, about 10 miles northwest of Olney, swabbed 250 barrels of oil the first 24 hours, finding dry sand at 1,412 feet, oil sand at 1,414 feet and in to 1,421 feet. It is in the new Norday pool of western Archer county. The No. 1, discovery, is showing water.

Empire Gas & Fuel company No. 1 Anderson, south offset of the discovery well in block 21, topped the oil sand at 1,415 feet and will set casing and drill in.

Cullam and Perkins No. 1 Anderson, block 22, third location east of the discovery, has the oil sand at 1,417 feet and is drilling in. Northeast 1,000 feet, the Texas company No. 1 Anderson has a good looking oil sand at 1,431 1-2 feet and will test.

Humphries and Bass No. 1 Anderson, near center of the northwest of the east half of block 49, Meade L. M. pasture sub-division, W. E. Probart survey, is below 1,100 feet.

Weldon and Lower No. 1 Anderson, near the northeast corner of block 19, south Anderson ranch sub-division, has the oil sand at 1,422 feet and will test.

Empire's Nos. 2 and 3 Anderson are drilling at 950 and 300, respectively. After losing No. 3 Anderson, Norday Oil company have skidded 50 feet east to start a new hole. Its location is 907 feet north and 210 feet west of the southeast corner of block 21.

TEXAS COMPANY WELL IN BAYLOR IS SHOWING GOOD.

The Texas company No. 1 Mills, southwest corner of the northeast of the southwest of block 2,428, T. E. & L. Co. survey, Cranfill extension pool of southeastern Baylor county, three miles south of Westover, made 70 barrels of oil and 20 barrels of water from sand at 1,454 to 1,456 feet and 15 barrels the third 24 hours.

News of the Fields

Texhoma-Reynolds

Texhoma has a sand on its No. 3 Reynolds located in the Comanche Indian reservation south Throckmorton county and is slowly drilling ahead with a small amount of oil in the hole. Sand in this test was topped at 871 feet.

In the Nocona district on the Lemons farm located in the Samuel Little survey, Montague county, the Texhoma Oil and Refining company are drilling out the plug on their No. A-1. Sand was topped at 729 feet on which casing was set and cemented.

Norday 3 Anderson

Located 330 feet to the west of their No. 1 producer on the Anderson tract in block 21 of the South Anderson ranch survey, Archer county, Norday et al are reported to have bailed salt water with but a show of oil in their No. 3. Casing was set and cemented on the regular 1,400-foot sand and drilled in yesterday.

Empire 1 Anderson

On their No. 1 Anderson, located to the south of Norday's discovery well in block 21 SAR survey, the Empire have to all appearances a very small producer or a dry hole. Casing was landned and cemented at 1,400 feet after which it was decided to set a liner between there and the sand topped at 1,415 feet. Now after taking better than four feet of sand and with but a show of oil in the hole, things appear rather blue around a very promising area.

Humble-Mercer

North of Olney the Humble Oil and Refining company have two nice producers on their Mercer lease, both located to the east of their No. 1 producer. No. 3, the first offset to the east, is good for 160 barrels from sand topped at 1,056 feet while No. 4 to the east of there is good for 70 barrels.

Lowery-Atchley

On their No. 2 Atchley, located 750 feet west and 150 feet south of the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 226 TE&L survey, east of Olney, Lowery and associates are abandoning as dry with a total depth of 1,055 feet. The well was drilled to sand and casing set and cemented at 1,413 feet. The plug was drilled Wednesday morning and after a short cleaning but, started flowing.

To Test First Deep Cotton Valley Well

SHREVEPORT, La., July 8.—The next two or three days are important ones for operators and others interested in the Cotton Valley oil field in Webster parish as test of the first deep well in that area, Palmer corporation's No. 1, Davis, in the south east corner of the north half of the southwest of the northwest of 23-21-10, is scheduled for Tuesday. The crew was bailing casing preparatory to the test Monday. Total depth is around 3,307 feet.

While this is the first deep test drilled from the surface as such and is almost in the geographical center of the field, it is the third such in Cotton Valley territory as a whole. The first of there deep tests, Evans and Raymond's No. 1 Coyle, in the southeast corner southwest of the northeast of 21-21-10, was a gas well at 2,567 feet and was subsequently deepened to 3,372 feet where it was abandoned on account of salt water.

FIRST WILDCAT DEEP TEST IN THROCKMORTON

Kelly No. 1 Makes 110 Barrels In 16 Hours

The first deep oil production has been developed in western Throckmorton county, one of the wildest wildcat counties in North Texas.

As recently announced V. G. Shimmel of Fort Worth and associates No 1 Kelly, center of the southeast of the northeast of block 31, Comanche Indian reserve, about 15 miles south of the town of Throckmorton, made 110 barrels in 16 hours from a sandy lime at 2,900 to 2,994 feet, on a wildcat block in the south-southwestern part of the county. It is about 30 miles northwest of Albany and some 75 miles southwest of Wichita Falls.

Though not a large well at its present depth, it is very important in that it gives later tests a deeper horizon in which to seek production and vindicates Mr. Schimmel's faith in a territory in which he is drilling three other tests.

The well set 6 5-8 inch casing at 2,950 feet, had white lime at 2,-990 feet and sandy lime at 2,990 to 2,994feet in oil. Swabbed, it began flowing and made 110 barrels in 16 hours and is estimated good for 50 barrels settled at its present depth.

Hoffer Oil corporation of Fort Worth is drilling a wildcat about three miles north, Texhoma Oil and Refining company is drilling a wildcat about one and one-half miles west, having found gas at 822 to 836 feet in the present well, No. 3 Reynolds, and in No. 2 as well.

The well is about one and one-half miles southwest of Panhandle, Larkin and White's No. 1 Richards, block 23, A. J. Morgan survey, which at one time made between 50 and 100 barrels below 1,8000 feet but later went to water.

It is also ten miles west of the Humble Oil and Refinind company and Reiter-Foster Oil corporation's two producing wells on the Staubble-field lands.

B. Bow, petroleum engineer, Bureau of Mines, and C. E. Reistle Jr., consulting engineer Bureau of Mines. It is serial No. 2692

Subject of the new paper is "The Physical Chemistry of Oild Field Emulsions" The first paper was "The Formation of Oil Field Emulsion," by D B. Bow, serial No. 2683; the second, "Methods used for dehydration of Oil Field Emulsions," Serial No. 2688. Copies may be obtained by applying to the Bureau.

Crabb, McNeal and Tom Bryant have a well near the center of their 1,500 acres on the Harris lease doing 50 barrels daily at 414 feet, giving the Burkett shallow field of Coleman county a three-quarter mile eastern extension, dispatches from Cross Plains say. Canyon Oil and Gas company No. 7 Burns, western offset of the above well, is doing 120 barrels at 360 feet Canyon is composed of the three operators named

Conway Brothers and Gilman No. 7 Newton is holding up at 800 barrels in the regular Cross Cut sand of that field in north Brown county.

WHITE EAGLE SPUDS IN STERLING CITY WILD CAT.

White Eagle Oil and Refining company is spudding No. 1 H. M. Mills, center of the northeast of the southeast of section 33, H&TRY survey, block 22, 15 miles west and a bit south of Sterling City, Sterling county, is spudded on a wildcat block. Sterling county is between the Big Lake, Reagan county, field and the Mitchell county production.

NEW ENGLAND TAKES OVER LEASES IN TWO COUNTIES.

New England Oil company has taken over a block of 4,000 acres from Richardson Brothers in Jones and Shackelford counties and a location is to be made in section 3, block 14, T&PRL survey, seven miles south of Leuders, in Jones county. It is 20 miles southeast of Stamford and the well will spud before September 1.

PHILLIPS COMPANY WILDCAT ALBANY, AT 800 FEET.

Phillips Petroleum company No. 1 Fry, center of the southeast of block 384, TE&LCO survey, northeastern Shackelford county, 10 miles northeast of Albany, is drilling at around 800 feet. Phillips has spudded No. 2 Fry, an offset to get the shallow gas for fuel which was encountered at about 386 feet. No. 1 Fry will go deep.

BALCONES TEST IN EAST CENTRAL TEXAS ABANDONED.

Another Woodbine sand wildcat on the Balcones fault line in East Central Texas has bit the dust.

Humphreys Oil corporation—Kirby Petroleum company—Cranfill Brothers Oil company No. 1 M. J. Tharp, G. P. Dike survey, southeastern Kauman county, near Prairieville, is dry and abandoned at 3,353 feet.

Scopes Dad Arrives In Dayton Prepared to Dodge Reporters

SON TOLD HIM TO "FIGHT SHY" OF PRESS GANG

Clarence Darrow Expected To Reach City Sometime Thusday

THE JUDGE ARRIVES

Men Can Take off Their Coats in Court But They Can't Smoke

DAYTON, Tenn., July 8. (AP)—Arrival of Judge John T. Raulston in Dayton today to preside at the trial of John T. Scopes, who must answer Friday to a charge of teaching evolution in the public schools of Tennessee in violation of a state law, marked another step in the progress of events leading to the actual opening of the trial. A. T. Stewart, attorney general of the district, was dining tonight with William Jennings Bryan and other member of counsel for the prosecution, at Morgan Springs, a resort eight miles from Dayton.

Clarence Darrow, defense lawyer, will reach Dayton tomorrow afternoon about the same time Dudley Field Malone and Arthur Garfield Hays, other defense attorneys, arrive in Chattanooga.

Another member of the prosecution legal forces expected tomorrow is William Jennings Bryan, Jr., who is on his way to Dayton from Los Angeles.

Thomas Scopes, father of the defendant, came from Paducah, Kentucky, to attend his son's trial, announcing soon after his arrival late today that he had been warned by John Thomas Scopes to "fight shy of reporters."

John Randolph Neal issued a statement for defense counsel today in which he said that the defense considered Mr. Bryan's address to the Dayton progressive club last night a challenge to the defense to put "the truth or lack of the truth of the theory of evolution" on trial. This challenge, said Dr. Neal, would be accepted. Mr. Bryan made no comment when he read Dr. News statement.

Judge Raulston came to Dayton, accompanied by Mrs. Raulston, by automobile from his home in Winchester, 100 miles away. Soon after his arrival he contented himself with assuring Dayton informally that he was glad to be here and was prepared to preside at the "evolution case" if the task required "all summer." A statement by the judge that "coats off" would be the rule in the court room gained him applause. He added however, that smoking would not be permitted.

Judge Raulston's arrival brought the information that greatly increased mail deliveries have not been confined to Dayton. He said he has received many letters offering him free advice in the conduct of the case. One letter, he said, spoke of the writer having read the judge's "erroneous charge" to the grand jury and assuring him that he was satisfied that his ancestors anchored themselves by depriving the Tennessee Indians of their property through illegal measures. Mr. Bryan's mail has also been heavy. He found a bushel of letters awaiting him here and has received at least a peck in the two days of his residence.

Mr. Bryan admitted today that he has a list of witnesses. He was asked if he "had a list of witnesses to give out."

"I have a list of witnesses,' he replied, 'but not to give out,'" adding that the prosecution did not yet know how many witnesses would be necessary.

Walter White, officially named as the prosecutor in the case, called on Mr. Bryan today. Mr. White, who is superintendent of schools of Rhea county, has represented his county in the general assembly and was a candidate for the republican nomination for governor in the last convention of his party.

Posters Tell World Of Dayton's Trial

DAYTON, Tenn., July 8.—(AP)—A gallery for display of the sign painter's are in Dayton where the legal battle over the Tennessee law against teaching evolution in public schools begins Friday.

Placards, lettered banners, poster and window inscription tell about the many phases of the John T. Scopes case and call attention to features of the legal controversy which might lost tsight of in the confusion of new developments.

First to strike the newcomer's eyes are the banners of a devout religious nature which suspend from telephones, hand from trees or cling to walls of barns and business houses. Of widest distribution is the invittation: 'Read your Bible."

Placards also inquire: "Shall we pay our money to damn our children."

The visitor is surprised to learn that many of these religious signs have been posted here for a year or more and are not the outgrowth of the occasion. "A man passing through," they tell the inquirers, put the signs up.

A bright y colored banner strung across Main street calls attention to a significant place in the history of the case. Here the world is told is "Robinsons drug store' where it started. Inside seated around an ice cream table F. E. Robinson proprietor, the young school instructor his friend George W. Rappleyea and other local residents, began the argument for the new state law which resulted in the filing of charges against Scopes.

An inlaid inscription now marks this table as the birthplace of the litigation over which the whole country has become aroused as witnesses, but the jury was made up, as other juries are made up, of plain people.

Jury Determines Issue.

"If a lawsuit brings the poorest man in the state as a party against the richest man in the state, the issues of facts are determined by the jury. If a law suit brings face to face the most ignorant man in the state and the best educated man in the state, a jury decides the facts. No matter what the case is, a jury is considered competent to decide questions of fact, and there is no reason why this question should not be tried before a jury, whether it is tried in this state or any other state. Those who speak disrespectful of our jury system are subjecting themselves to more criticism than they are making against the system. Criticism shows only that the critic either does not understand our institutions or is not in harmony with them.

"Another point worth while for the public to know is that this case raises an entirely new question. Can a minority use the courts to force its ideas upon the schools?' We heard of the tyranny of the majority and our constitution attempts to protect a minority from such tyranny. These constitutions are made by the majority and show that in their sober moments the people are willing to put restraints upon themselves so as to prevent sudden action in times of excitement.

"But in this case the majority is not attempting to force any teachings upon the schools. It is the minority that is attempting to force teachings that represent the views of the minority. The evolutionists, if they were in a majority in Tennessee could elect a legislature on this issue and repeal the law, but knowing that they are in a minority, they have not suggested such action. On the contrary they are relying upon the courts to force their ideas upon the schools regardless of the opposition of the parents, tax payers or voters.

Cannot Succeed.

This has never been attempted before and can hardly succeed now. There is not a state in the union in which a majority of the voters are evolutionists, and yet evolutionists, though admittedly in a minority are intolerant enough to demand the schools shall teach their views and their views really constitute their religion. With some, evolution is not only a religion, but the only religion they have and they are guilty in trying to establish it in spite of the objections of a majority.

"This trial will be better understood by the people of the nation when they understand that the real purpose is not to protect freedom of knowledge or freedom of investigation, because this law does not attempt to restrain either knowledge or investigation. The student under Mr. Scopes were not investigating. They were simply asked to accept evolutionary views as set forth by the text book and as interpreted by Mr. Scopes. This law simply prohibits the evolutionists from using the public schools for the purpose substituting their kind of religion for the religion of the masses."

STAGE IS ALL SET IN DAYTON

open so that the world may be saved.

"The disgrace," said Mr. Bryan, "is not the Tennessee law, signed by the governor and passed by the legislature; the disgrace is that teachers paid in the taxes of a community which stamps its dollars "in God we trust" should betray the trust imposed in them by the taxpayers.

Brothers to Brutes.

"The president of the United States takes his oath of office on the Bible. Are the school children of this nation to be taught that the Bible is untrue? No! And they shall not be so taught, for the majority of the people of this nation believe in the Bible and the hand that writes the pay checks should control the schools."

Mr. Bryan added that it would be ridiculous to entrust the education of children to an "oligarchy of scientists."

"The modernists," he asserted, "are making us brothers to the brute."

Bryan, known for his political crusades and lately for his Bible talks and war on hated evolution is looked upon somewhat in the nature of a self-sacrificing Christion soldier girding himself to do battle to the death with the hosts of Satan.

And Darrow! He has had much publicity since the Leopold-Loeb trial. The Tennesseeans believe he is agnostic, if net actually atheistic. All his ultra-sophiction and pessimistic philosophies will have little weight with a jury of Tennessee farmers when Bryan calls on them to protect their children and the Holy Bible from the assaults of the devil.

For evolution, which Scopes is charged with teaching, is considered by most Christians, not only in the state of Tennessee, where it is legally banned, but elsewhere in the world, as a challenge to theology. And theology is defined as "the knowledge derivable from the Bible, the systematic exhibition of revealed truth, the science of Christian faith and life."

While the trial will be of general interest throughout the Christian world it will be of particular interest in the United States because it promises to be one of the most celebrated cases in the legal history of the country and one that after an absorbing and picturesque jury-trial bids fair to end only in the United States supreme court.

This trial will be the first of its kind since the promulgation of the theory of evolution by Charles Darwin 65 years ago. At that time evolution was attacked by the clergy of all churches. This time the subject was more or less brought to the fore through an apparently wideing breach in Protestant churches between fundamentalists and modernists. The fundamentalists hold strictly to the teachings of the Bible. The modernists, while at least for the most part, are not unbelievers in the written word, favor much of the theory of evolution.

On the one side are people owning a simple, but unbending faith. On the other is a group which insists that data science has wrung from the laboratory, the earth and the stars shall not be suppressed. It was upon a similarly uncompromising issue centuries ago that the reformation came about under Luther, Calivn and Knox.

Equally stubborn later was the conflict between Cavalier and Roundhead. And now, after two generations in which friendships have been broken, families parted and churches wrecked over the irreconcilability of the theory of evolution with the first chapter of Genesis, they are going to court about it.

Issue Eagerly Waited.

If the Tennessee law is upheld hundreds of thousands, yes millions of persons throughout the country who have grown up in implicit belief in the Bible will be confident that their prayers have been answered. And if the law is rejected it will be hailed by others equally sincere as a victory for academic freedom and unfettered knowledge.

What the courts may decide is whether the Bible can be placed ahead of the constitution. It is agreed by all familiar with legal procedure that the trial will prove nothing. Whatever its outcome it is hardly likely that the defeated side will be satisfied with the decision of a county judge upon a question of such widespread interest. All that the Dayton trial will accomplish will be the expedition of the Tennessee anti-evolution law to the supreme court.

Once the case reaches the higher courts only intricate questions of law will be considered. Judges, not rural juries, must be convinced, and, therefore, the later proceedings of the case will not have the picturesque and dramatic qualities of the jury trial.

Points at Issue.

Before proceeding further, let us see how each contending side defends its premises.

One of the most outstanding of the fundamentalists, Rev. J. Gresham Machen, assistant professor of New Testament literature and exegesis in Princeton theological seminary, defines fundamentalism and what it stands for now in part as follows:

"The term fundamentalism is distasteful to the writer and to many many persons who hold views similar to his. It seems to suggest that we are adherents of some strange new sect; whereas, in point of fact, we are conscious simply of maintaining the historic Christian faith and of moving in the great central current of Christian life.

Christianity the Same.

"That does not mean that we desire to be out of touch with our own time, or that we live in a static world without variety and without zest. On the contrary, there is nothing more interesting than the effect of the Christian religion upon different races and different ages; there is no more absorbing story than that of the relations between Christianity and its changing environment.

"But what we do mean is that despite changes in the environment there is something in Christianity which from the very beginning has remained the same.

"This historic continuity of the Christian religion is based upon its appeal to a body of facts—facts about God, about man, and about the way in which, at a definite point in the world's history, some 1900 years ago a new relationship was set up between God and man by the work of Jesus Christ.

"The redeming facts upon which the Christian hope is based were the things done by the Lord Jesus Christ, and those facts involve the entrance into the course of this world of the creative power of God; in other words they involve the supernatural.

"Acceptance of the supernatural does not, as is often supposed, destroy the basis of science; it does not introduce an element of arbitrariness which would make impossible any exhibition of regular sequences in nature. On the contrary, a miracle, according to the Christian view is not an arbitrary or purposeless event, but proceeds from the very source of all the order that there is in the world, namely, from the will of God.

"God is the author of nature and we Christians are willing to trust Him not to destroy that orderly system in which it is His will that we should live. Indeed the believer in the supernatural is in some respects kinder to the scientist than the scientist ventures to be to himself; for in order to maintain the distinctness of the supernatural from the natural, we are obliged to hold that there is a real order of nature—not a mere observed set of sequences but a really existent order.

Only, that order of nature, the really existent, is not self-existant; it was created by the flat of God's will, and he has never abandoned his freedom in the presence of his world."

On the other hand, Mr. Vernon Kellogg, zoologist and permanent secretary and chairman of educational relations of the natural research council, in defining evolution and what it stands for now, says in part.

"Evolution is defined in a score of ways. There is no accepted usage by which to define it in just one way. It is used in the titles of hundreds of books and each book covers what it will.

"Evolution means to me, first, something of an explanation of why and how there are so many kinds of living creatures with all their varied forms and manner, yet all striving for similar ends and with much commonness of method. It means something of an explanation of the likenesses and the differences and the relationships among these animals and plants.

"And finally—and I say this without misgiving and without shame—it means to me something of an explanation of the likeness and differences and the relationships between myself and all these other living things.

"Evolution can be only a more or less immediate or detailed explanation of how, granted life, granted matter, granted energy, granted any existence of anything at all and granted an ultimate cause or causes, the form and the behavior of living things can be and are as they are. It is an explanation of process, not of primitive cause.

"Evolution means outrolling, unfolding. It means a reasonable, a satisfying, ennobling conception of life, a conception that gives life infinite promise. Organic evolution is the outrolling of the plan of life, the unfolding of the possibilities of life. It runs naturally and logically from simple to complex, from the general to the special, from the lowly to the high, from amoeba—and simpler to man.

All Life Similar.

"Every living creature, large or small, long lived or ephemereal, active or quiescent, myriad-celled or unicelled, is in certain fundamenatl structure and behavior like every other living creature. To remain alive it has need of certain physical and chemical surroundings which every other living creature has to have, and it does certain things which every other creature does.

"We are one of these living creatures, and what has just been said is as true of us as it is of the rest. And just as evolution offers reasonable answers to the questions we ask about plants and animals, so also it answers many of our questions about ourselves.

"The conception and formulation of the evolution idea, as we know it today, were not the achievement of any one man, not even Darwin. And if not Darwin, then certainly of no other. The idea of evolution and its expression have been the result of many men's thinking through many years. It is the story of the slow progress of human understanding."

Rail Board Is Ready To Go to Plainview

AUSTIN, July 8.—(AP).—Reservations have been made at Plainview for the Texas railroad commissioners, who on July 20 will hold a hearing with representatives of the interstate commerce commission on the proposed extension of west Texas railroads.

It is understood that probably revised estimates of the projects will be presented by the Fort Worth and Denver railroad, because of the rapid change in conditions in west Texas.

The Fort Worth and Denver railroad seeks permission to construct a line from Carey to Dimmitt, and Silverton to Lubbock. The Pecos and Santa Fe railway seeks authority to build from Plainview to Dimmitt and from Lider to Silverton. Clarence E. Gilmore, chairman; C. V. Terrell and Lon A. Smith, commissioners, are to hear the arguments.

HE NEVER MENTIONED RUBBER

John Bull is the shrewdest trader the world has ever known. A few days since British Ambassador Sir Esme Howard appeared before the American Iron and Steel institute and painted a gloomy picture of the British industrial situation. He declared that unless confidence, credit and normal trade was restored throughout Europe a black night of gloom and disaster was coming. He appealed for American patronage of British industry so that his country could pay its debts to the United States and that debt to our government alone is more than four billion dollars.

In another city, the capital of the republic, Herbert Hoover issued a bulletin carrying the information that extra profits from only one of the sources of British wealth, the rubber plantations of the East Indies, will be sufficient to cover all of Great Britain's repayment of its war debt to the United States. American imports of raw rubber which cost $185,000,000 during the calendar year 1924, he said, probably will cost $400,000,000 for 1925, and at least a large part of this prospective increase is unofficially attributed to the operation of a scheme for production restriction worked out by the plantation interests through the British colonial office.

Read these remarkable figures: Crude rubber that sold as low as 17 cents a pound in 1924 reached 46 cents a pound last January and is now fluctuating between 60 cents and 70 cents on nervous markets while the visible rubber stocks of the world are disappearing and exchange prices of English plantation company shares are soaring.

Of course, the United States with three great industries concerned, petroleum and automobile and rubber goods manufacture, is particularly interested in the situation because its consumption is 70 per cent of the world's total output of raw rubber. John Bull has worked a fine scheme but as business is business John has moved along legitimate lines. He has restricted rubber production.

Sixty-nine per cent of the rubber plantations of the world are in English colonies with 29 per cent in Dutch possession where a vast deal of English capital is invested. Now what do you think of that?

Ambassador Howard is a skilled and suave diplomat. He knows the game. He asks for sympathy of the American people. He implores Americans to buy British goods in order to stave off another calyclism.

And after he has planted the seed in fertile soil up bobs Herby Hoover with his story of raw rubber and the British plan for compelling Americans to pay the piper, war costs and all, in the shape of fabulous profits to the British capitalists and government now in control of the rubber plantations of the world.

Mr. John Bull may be a slow moving individual but he travels too fast for Brother Jonathan in the world of trade and traffic.

HATTON ON THE ROAD

Congressman Hatton W. Summers of Texas is for a naval inquiry to investigate the Dehoney charges, or rather the disclosures made by the California oil king in the New York Times of July 1 in purporting to give the history of the naval oil leases in California. The Texan has addressed his letter to the secretary of the navy, and asks for a searching investigation.

Rear Admiral John K. Robinson is involved. He is the naval officer who disclosed to the California oil king the government's fear of impending war between this country and a great naval power in the Pacific. Admiral Robinson failed of promotion. Then he was placed on the retired list. Warren G. Harding was his friend; Calvin Coolidge overlooked Robison and perhaps he had good reason for his action.

Now Dehoney has made the disclosures but it is too late. All the naval oil reserves are in the hands of oil operators. Uncle Sam has lost them unless the supreme court of the United States reverses the decree of Federal Judge T. Kennedy Blake of Wyoming. It is a nasty pool of grease all around.

HEAVY COTTON CROP GUESSED

And now the government has made a forecast of the third largest cotton production in the history of the industry. A crop of 14,339,000 bales in 1925 is the guess made by the government agent of the department of agriculture. A heavy acreage increase is reported by the government and conditions are reported good.

This will not apply to many counties in Texas where a fierce drouth has blasted the hopes of the growers. In 1914 the record crop of history came when 16,135,000 bales were picked and ginned, and in 1911 when 15,693,000 bales were picked. If a bumper cotton crop is produced this year, then the buyers of the world should be satisfied, but it is never safe to count the chickens until they have been hatched.

It is admitted by the experts that west Texas will produce a tremendous crop this season and in other sections of the state a fair yield will be picked. Regardless of this, it is a long time from July 1 until November 1, and there is no telling what will happen in Texas before frost bites.

IN NEW JERSEY.

In New Jersey the democrats have nominated a wet for governor and adopted a wet platform. While the republicans have nominated a dry and adopted a dry platform.

Senator Walter Edge, the republican boss of New Jersey did all in his power to nominate a moist republican candidate on a moist republican platform. Edge lost. Now the democrats say they are going to sweep the state. They have been successful for eight years in holding the coffice of governor by nominating wets on wet platforms. This may be their waterloo year.

Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York must be right. In a recent interview he enumerated 14 kinds of democrats and at that time the full census returns had not been received.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

The Easiest Deception.

It is the business of the sharper to deceive other people.

He fancies that he is something of a psychologist if he can talk so convincingly about his schemes that other people will trust him and put their money in them.

He is especially pleased when he snares another man through the latter's greed, which is the usual way in which the victims of get-rich-quick games are trapped.

But it never occurs to the sharper that while he is fooling other men, he is deluding himself still more.

For the system of earning, or rather of getting, a living he has devised for himself is almost absolutely certain to land him in prison or in poverty by and by.

It is often easy to fool other people, but never so easy as to fool one's self.

The man who imagines that he is particularly bright, and has the advantage of the world is certain to have a rude awakening by and by.

That may give him pause for awhile, but presently he is at the old self-deception job, fancying that by loafing on his job, or neglecting his duties or procrastinating he is "getting out of work," when really he is but making it necessary for him to work all the harder during the later years of his life, when broken health and discouragment will make hard work a tragedy.

It pays now and then to keep exact tract of progress year by year, so as to be sure that one is not overestimating his accomplishment, and failing to make allowance for the wear and tear that is incident to all effort which is not put forth in the right way.

By the right way we mean what is called replacement in business—putting back into the brain more than is taken out of it, and keeping in good health in order to enable the body to do its own replacing which it was built to do, and will do if given a reasonable chance.

Many business men continually fool themselves into the belief that they are mountains of strength, and capable of any amount of work, and any amount of sitting up late at night and overeating and overdrinking at the same time.

They are never so proud as when they are thinking of how much liquor they can stand, and how little sleep they can get along with while doing a tremendous amount of physical work.

Then one day something snaps, and the doctor shakes his head and tells them to drop everything and rest for a year.

If they believe him the year may put them back into the old form, but it will not keep them there if they go back to the old habits.

Presently something else will snap and then a few mourners will gather around and lament that so much ability has been taken from the world at such an early age.

There are thousands of ways to fool one's self, and a great many people know and practice them all.

And that is why there are so many failures, and so many untimely deaths, and so much misery that must be suffered by women and children who are in no wise to blame.

The habit is usually formed young. The one who has it can find it out if he looks himself over critically but with humor now and then. If he knows he has it, it can be cured.

ROBERT VANCE DAVIDSON

Robert Vance Davidson is dead. He was attorney general of Texas three terms. Galveston was his home for many years, and he filled many positions of minor importance before the democrats of that district made him a lawmaker and he saw considerable service in the Texas legislature.

He was born in North Carolina 71 years ago. He came to Texas a very young man and hung out his shingle as a lawyer on the Island. He had a remarkable career as attorney general. He prosecuted the Waters-Pierce Oil company and finally succeeded in having the courts impose a penalty of several millions of dollars for alleged violations of the anti-trust law.

This was in the day when the politicians of the state were crusading against monopolies and when some of the politicians were crusading against Joseph Weldon Davis, who was United States senator and perhaps the most powerful political idol of his time. Robert Vance Davidson was an anti-Bailey leader.

Before his coming an attorney general was satisfied with two terms. Davidson broke the record or the hodoo, became a candidate for a third term and won hands down. Then he became a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor. His popularity must have waned. He ran third in the list of candidates and his political career was over.

He adopted Dallas as his home, and there he has lived for years in the practice of his profession, ever taking more than a passing interest in the politics of state and nation. He was an ardent Wilson man. He was a sturdy champion of the League of Nations and all the Wilson policies.

His defeat for governor satisfied him. He never did appeal for another office, and yet he was the most successful trust buster of the period after he had been inducted into the office of attorney general and made it interesting at all times for the Standard and its children or stepchildren.

Now Texas is a great oil producing state. Texas has more refineries than any other state. Texas ranks second in the production of gasoline. All the corporations that were banished from the state when Davidson was attorney general came back. Even the International Harvester company came back.

As for the Standard and its subsidary companys they are all here, they are more powerful than ever. Indeed, the day of the trust buster has departed. Robert Vance Davidson was the scion of an old North Carolina family. His forebearers fought in all the wars for American independence. They fought in the Civil war under the flag of Lee.

It is said that the first Davidson came to America more than 200 years ago, and it goes without saying that the tribe of Davidson has been in evidence in north Carolina and other southern states ever since the first of the name landed on these shores. But this story has more to do with the career of a Texas trust burster than with the Davidson family. He put the trusts out; they came back.

EXODUS OF THE BROTHER IN BLACK

Colonel Harvey Jordan of Georgia, secretary of the American Cotton association, says that most of the labor which made its exodus from the south during the financial deflation of 1920 found its way to factories in the north and will never return to the south. All in all, one million farmers and farm laborers moved away. A fair wage caught them.

"KILLARNEY of the CHORUS"

Hello! Hello!
Beware the Vacant Booth.

By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

©McClure Newspaper Syndicate

In a wheel chair in the window overlooking the dark trenche of the tracks, studded here and there with the white and green of the signal lights, sat her father Martin McKenna who never again would drive that same Thunderbolt Flyer as he had driven "her" in the pride of his honest manhood. Ten steady years at the throttle of the Thunderbolt and there had come a night of treacherous, woollike fog on the Indiana flats.

A mix-up or orders to a crawling freight ahead. Out of the gray night Martin McKenna saw the looming bulk and guessed its meaning. He could have wrenched the throttle back and jumped. He wrenched it back and stuck instead, wedged the emergency brakes and shouted to his fireman to pull the bottom out of the fire-box. The Thunderbolt piled itself into the blind back of the freight but bruises and one or two broken bones alone were the toll of the sleeping cars behind its engine. The newspapers in their clamorous headlines pointed to a hero—one Martin McKenna, engine driver—but headlines do not provide one with a new and good pair of legs. Those of Martin McKenna would not be walked on again.

The face that was turned to meet Killarney's homecoming — seamed, rugged and still keen—had no bitterness in it, however. The life of the rails that was his own life still unraveled day and night before Martin McKenna. On the wall by the bay-window where the wheel chair stood through all his waking hours there hung a rack of railroad lanterns, white, green and red.

Old Martin's eyes were bright. "Quick, Killarney" he called. "Ye'll be just in time. She's comin' into the curve with Jim Curley pushin' her to the limit. 'Tis his Thursday night run."

His fingers took the lantern from Killarney's grasp, he bent far forward, and out it swung beyond the window in a clean half-circle of white.

Crashing and racketing the Thunderbolt shot by beneath them. Four quick, short blasts broke out from its whistle. They had an instant's vision of the engine's cab as it passed, a square of rushing light. The capped and overalled figure in it, leaning into the darkness, waved a hand upward and then turned to face the road ahead.

"Did ye see it, Killarney—Jim Curley that fired for me till the bad luck came? Drivin' the old Thunderbolt he is, as good as ever I see me give him the white light—'all clear, go ahead.' And no more either does he miss that answer on the whistle—one, two, three, four. 'Good night, Good luck.' It's fifteen years, Killarney, I've talked to the old Thunderbolt and she's answered me back. But there—ye know all that as well as I do. I oughten't to be gettin' so excited over it whenever she goes past."

She put her dark head down on the one that was going white with the years. "Oh, daddy," she said in a whisper. "I'm so sorry. I-I can't help it. I'll always be sorry."

His rough hand rested on hers. "There, Killarney, don't ye be mindin'. I've lots left to be contented with so long as I've got ye and the Thunderbolt still to watch."

"And what—and what would you say," she murmured, "if some day it happened that I might think of leaving you? For not very far away, ever, but—" Her voice died into silence.

"Well," said Martin McKenna with a steady smile, "If so be it the lad can look me in the eyes the way I like I'll be glad for both of ye, Killarney. Not that I think there's a one in the world good enough for ye—"

Her father just caught her words. "Maybe there is someone already, daddy. But you've seen him—he's been here. You like him because you've said so. But there won't be anyting for a long while yet."

No immediate answer was forthcoming. A jangling buzz was sounding on the bell that sent Killarney flying to the door. When it swung open there was disclosed a bored youth in a messenger's uniform who had not at all relished the trip through this uninteresting section of New York with a long white box. One hand was already partially outstretched in readiness to receive something for his trouble. But the hand was as promptly withdrawn when slim radiance suddenly appeared framed in the doorway.

"Excuse me, lady," he grinned engagingly. "I guess these are for you, all right. "I was told to hurry up with 'em like hell. Excuse me again—them's the sentiments but my words." A cheerful whistling died away, headed downstairs along with a noisy pair of boots. Killarney stood in the center of the room holding to her an armful of roses, softly pink as the glow in her own face. The card was there and a scribbled line. Scott Revell had found a way somehow to snatch an instant from that evening's party.

"Just till tomorrow, Killarney," the words danced before her.

She heard her father's voice from the window. "Ye don't have to tell me anything, Killarney. It's plain on the face o' ye and my eyes are pretty good still. Come over here now and say good night to your old daddy."

It took a long while for them to say good night to each other this time. Presently she heard him moving clumsily about his own room and in the end his voice drifted out to her.

"Don't ye sit up too late, Killarney."

Defiantly she answered him, her young face, still alight. "I guess if you can stay up half the night to talk to your old Thunderbolt when she goes by I can sit up an extra hour. I'm talking to some roses, daddy."

The roses had wilted long ago. They had stood for days in a vase as blue as Killarney's own eyes, but tonight these roses were three weeks back and Killarney herself, fluttering through the mazes of the "Heydays" closing dance, looked a little like a wilted rose. As soon as the big curtain came down and the noisy dressing room filled up there would be that battery of curious eyes to face, that endless whispering behind her back. It was all a mistake, a terrible mistake—it must be.

The curtain had fallen and in her mirror Killarney saw a rigid little face, factitiously bright with the makeup which in another moment would be off. Next to her Marge Walsh was leaning over, her hair tumbling about her eyes.

"I'm sorry, Killarney," she said, softly. "Does it do any good for friend Marge to say it again? That high life engagement stuff always gets a big stir on the front page, it's all newspaper bunk anyhow, I bet—Scott Revell doesn't look like that kind to me."

"It isn't true," said Killarney slowly. "I know it isn't true." Her lipa quivered an instant and then went firm again. "Scott's waiting for me not at the door. It isn't that at all that hurts. Oh, Marge, I only wanted to be happy and now I have to think."

Her hands fumbled a good deal as she slipped herself into a warm little street costume. The long iron stairs seemed longer than ever and the corridor blacker and bleaker. Near the entrance a swirl of her chorus fellows caught up to her and she was swept forward on a flood of laughter and smiles, feeling something heavy as lead within her. All these others were hurrying forward bright with anticipation, it was only her own feet among them that dragged. The stage door gave onto its lighted alley and the first face she saw was that of Scott Revell, deep with anxious lines. He pressed through the crowd and caught her arm.

"You've seen it, of course?" he said curtly. "Don't say anything here. Wait until we're around the corner."

She was content to go in silence and to wait until, with a shaded lamp between them, they sat at the familiar table in the queer little eighty-cent French place of their own finding. Here they had sat last night and the night before and many nights before that. It was supposed to be a garden, it had tall green trellisses and benches that somehow now looked plain wooden and not gay, as they used to be. From her desk Madame smiled but only the wrath of an answer went back from Killarney.

"I couldn't reach you earlier," said Scott slowly. "But you'll believe me, Killarney, when I tell you there isn't a word of truth in that report that Lois George and I are engaged?"

"Yes," she said softly, her hands were twisting together in her lap. Her eyes were lowered.

"And you'll believe me when I tell you that there isn't anyone I do want to marry except you?"

This time the blue eyes came up, trusting and deep. "I believed you last night when you told me that. I believe you tonight too."

He drew a long breath of relief, his whole face lightening. "Then that's settled. I've been almost crazy all evening since that thing was published. I knew a dozen people would show it to you."

She shut her hand together again, for Scott was going on. Only her glance never left his face.

"I went straight to my father, Killarney. I havin't told you this part of it before. He's always expected that Lois and myself would make a go of it. So have Loi's folks. Just as the paper said, it'll mean in the end a joining up of our mines and their railroads. Lois' father has half a dozen in the west. She's a good friend of mine, an old friend of mine, but that's all she's ever been. She's a little bit too cool and casual and used to letting her head rule everything. I never dreamed my father would take it the way he did."

"Take what." The words were almost a whisper.

"I put your picture on his desk. I said, 'that newspaper report is all wrong. This is the real girl.' And he—well, he—"

"Go on," said Killarney quietly.

He paused. A deep seriousness had him. "We'll go it together, Killarney, but we'll have to go it alone. He drops me flat if I stick to you. And I'm going to. That's all.

A poignant silence fell between them. Presently a strained voice spoke. "Does that mean that you'll have to leave his house and his office? That you'll have to start somewhere all over again for yourself? That it'll take years and years, perhaps, to work up to where you are now? And in the meantime all the friends you have, all the people who know you will cut you and sneer at you because you're down? That you'll lose everything?"

His mouth tightened. "It means just that, Killarney. But I'll have you. That will be worth it all."

"And what else did he say?"

"Something a little cruel. Don't let's ever mention it between us again. He said, 'these show girl marriages don't pan out. I've seen them before.' He doesn't know what he's talking about.

What Today Means to You

CANCER.

Very favorable planetary aspects prevail today until late in the afternoon, after which they become rather adverse, with sluggish vibrations. Any proposition that you have in mind, and which has already received deliberate thought and been given careful attention, can be safely launched today, and, although the signs denote success for any and all such forceful enterprise, those that are related to mining or real estate will be the most favored. In the late afternoon, a review should be made of what has been accomplished during the early part of the day, and, though a cessation of activities is not counseled, there should be a lessening of forceful aggressiveness. Self control must be exercised to resist a tendency to impulsive speech or action.

Children born today are promised a more than fair share of good and vigorous health, although the signs denote that there is a probability of accident, that only watchful care will avoid. In character and disposition, they will be very impulsive, demonstratively affectionate, although lacking in consistency and persistency. They will have the intention to accomplish great things, and mean to do so. Continuity of action will, however, be wanting, and a task, just as soon as it presents difficulties, will be abandoned for something of a more pleasurable nature. They will possess attractive personalities, but be prone, at times, without rhyme or reason, to lose their temper, which they should be taught to control.

If today is your birthday, you never allow your emotions to control or dominate your actions, and while ambitious, you are cool and calculating, rather than enthusiastic. Your nature lacks that warmth which so often attracts and delights, and your friends and of real ones you have very few consider you cold and unresponsive. In all that you do, your conscience is your guide and mentor, and you censor yourself just as severely for any dereliction of duty as you criticize others. You are a slave to duty, and never a victim of emotion.

You posess initiative, originality, and resourcefulness, never allowing yourself to be caught at a disadvantage.

You are reasonable and moderately affectionate with members of your own family, but are exempt from those deep passionate feelings which often hallow and sometimes harrow, intimate relationships.

Successful people born on this date are: Oliver W. B. Peabody, lawyer, author; William B. O. Peabody, clergyman; Philip P. Bliss, composer; Elias Howe, inventor; James M. Beck, lawyer.

Irrigation

The Size of the Economic Farm Unit Here.

The size of the farm unit on any irrigation project must be such that the farmer can employ to the maximum his labor and capital.

If his farm is too small to allow this, obviously the farmer will be idle part of the time or at best working to a disadvantage. The farmer must first make his living and then create a surplus to meet taxes, land payments, and other items.

If he has more land than he can handle he must meet excessive payments if he has bought on terms. Or if he has paid cash he has more money invested than he can get proper returns on. He generally tries to farm all of it with the result that his returns per acre are too low to take care of his overhead.

Some years ago, we undertook, through the columns of this paper to determine as near as might be from the available data the size of the economic farm unit on this project. We found that this is a semi-humid climate where irrigation is needed to a less degree than on many western projects.

Truck farming was disregarded except as an incidental activity of every properly conducted irrigated farm.

Allowance was made for the limited growing of fruits and berries as well as sufficient pasturage and forage for the live stock generally required on a farm.

It was assumed that the farmers here in large part at least would for many years devote themselves to general agriculture, the growing of cotton, and dairying.

The results of this investigation was that the economic farm unit on this project was found to be from 80 to 100 acres, depending upon soil productivity and other factors.

Frederick Eliminates Annual Tax Levy

FREDERICK, Okla., July 8.—Elimination of a general fund tax levy for the coming fiscal year, was a bright spot of the new budget just completed by city councilmen. Anticipated receipts of more than $100,000 are expected to care for all needs of the city government.

A general fund levy of 7.1 mills was taxed last year. Receipts for this year were $4.000 in excess of appropriation made for the coming year, and it is thought that this budget will be in the clear.

The only city tax that will be levied will be one to take care of interest and sinking fund on city bonds. This tax was voted on sometime ago and citizens approved of an issuance of bonds for public improvements and buildings.

SUB ROSA

By MIMI

The Hair-Raiser

No, this is not an article for bald gentlemen who want to know how to produce a thick luxuriant crop of hair.

It's a sermon to the young lady who says hair-raising things, which simply delight her friends sometimes.

"Effie is a perfect scream," a charming lady told me the other day. "She is really the funniest woman I've ever met. She says the most hair raising things. I never know what she's going to say next. Some of her remarks are perfectly dreadful, but really they are so funny that nobody minds at all. She's no respecter of persons I can tell you that. She will say anything to simply anybody."

Well Effie sounded like a very interesting person to me, and I awaited meeting her with the greatest curiosity.

Everybody likes the unconventional type of person who doesn't particularly care whom she's talking to just so long as she's being amusing and he's being amused.

The following afternoon I met the fair Effie at the home of the very woman who had praised her so loudly to me.

She was the center of attention, as usual, and everyone was exclaiming and chortling with glee over her amazing, simply hair-raising remarks.

During the course of the tea, a dear old gentleman came in.

He was really a sweet old thing, but looked a bit shabby and dowdy.

As a matter of fact, he was lord something or other, and a very important person to know, so people were rather careful to be nice to him.

Effie perceived him and in her most pentrating drawl remarked: "Well, they've evidently opened the museum this afternoon, and let out some of the prize relics."

Which of course reached the ears of the dear old gentleman who looked so hurt and so uncomfortable that people became indignant with the hair-raiser and spent the rest of the afternoon discussing people who don't know where to stop.

It was all very tragic, and the worst part of the whole affair was the attitude of the hostess who had particularly wanted to be kind to lord something or other, and who was now in a frenzy at her beloved Effie for hurting his feelings.

Up to then she had thought Effie the most priceless person in the world, but the minute Effie trod on the toes of someone who should not have been made fun of, the joke ceased to be a joke.

Therefore I would counsel those of you who are accustomed to making rather hair-raising remarks—who like to startle people by saying very frank things at unexpected times—to select carefully the time and setting for that type of humor.

Otherwise, you'll find your warmest admirers holding an indignation meeting against you, when some day you make an unfortunate slip with the wrong person.

BELIEVE JESUS ONCE LIVED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 8.—(AP)—Those who have given the matter most serious thought are unanimous in saying there once lived such a man Jesus, Dr. J. E. Dillard, Birmingham, Alabama, declared in an address tonight before the 94th annual convention of Baptist Young People's Union of America.

No man and no group of men could ever imagine the things he is reputed to have said. The marvelous Symmetry and harmony of life, character, conduct and influence prove beyond a question of a doubt that Jesus lived and this is the greatest fact in universal history.

Millions Die Of Indigestion

Most Common, Yet Insidious of Fatal Disease Strikes Like Lightning and When Least Expected:

Protect yourself by strengthening your digestive organs with Ferraline,then eat what you please without fear of trouble.

Nature, with Her infinite wisdom, has provided in Ferralihe a quick and sure relief for the millions who are living in constant fear of that dreaded disease—Indigestion. Ferraline is not a concoction made by man but is a strictly natural product, and contains the essential elements which Nature has provided to strengthen and tone up the weakened organs of digestion.

Indigestion and weak blood march hand-in-hand. No dyspeptic can have pure rich blood until his digestion is made perfect again. Stomach disorders always weaken the blood and weak blood causes anaemia, weakness, and nervousness.

If you have had warnings of Indigestion, do not delay another day to accept the positive guarantee that your money will be promptly and cheerfully refunded if the very first bottle of Ferraline does not give you relief. Don't be misled into believing that heart-burn, gas, bloating, constipation, biliousness, sick-stomach, heart and kidney pains will gradually go away. These are danger signals warning you that the dread disease, Indigestion, is gradually sapping your very life. Regenerate your digestive organs at once with Ferraline, then you can eat three good meals every day without discomfort. A ten-days treatment of Ferraline will cost you only One Dollar at your druggists. The Ferraline Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

To Whiten Skin with Lemon

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy white complexion; also as a freckle sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Ad.

MARKETS

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, July 8.—Responding to favorable trade news and easier money rates, stock prices continued to move to higher ground in today's market, despite intermittent profit-taking, which was particularly heavy in some of the motor shares, with 25 individual issues moving to new high levels for the year.

Stiffening of commodity prices and publication of weekly trade reviews, indicating that steel consumption this summer would run well above that of last year, brought fresh buying into the steel shares. U. S. steel common crosses 117, to a new high on the movement Vanadium was pushed up nearly three points to a new 1925 top at 34, Colorado Fuel closed 2 ⅝ higher at 44 ⅝ and most of the others improved fractionally.

American Smelting moved up nearly 3 points to 147 ⅝, the highest prices since 1917. American Smelting preferred, International Nickel preferred, Utah Copper and United States Smelting also broke through their previous peak prices.

A brisk demand developed for the Virginia-Carolina Chemical issues, all of which attained new maximum quotations for the year. The common closed 2 points higher at 6 ⅝ after selling as high as 7 ½ and the preferred showed a net gain of 3 ⅝ at 23 ¼ after having touched 23 ½.

Net losses of a point or two were recorded by Mack Trucks, Chrysler, Yellow Cab and Fierce Arrow common and preferred. General Motors touched a new top at 87 ½ and then eased to 85 ⅞ and was followed into new high ground by Packard and Paige Detroit.

An increase in Corning Crude prices, private estimates of a further reduction in domestic crude output last week and another share drop in Mexican Production, revived flagging in the oil shares. Speculative enthusiasm was kept in check however, by reports of a reduction in mid-continent gasoline prices.

Establishment of new high records by Wheeling and Lake Erie common and preferred was the feature of the rail group.

Call money renewed at four per cent and then dropped to 3 ⅝ with funds obtainable in the "outside market" as low as 3 ½. Time money and commercial paper held steady.

Weakness of Norwegian kroner, which fell back about one quarter cent to around 17.75 cents, featured the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled firm, around $4.85 ⅝, and French francs and Italian lire were quoted slightly higher around 4.70 and 3.70 cents, respectively.

OLD ROUTING FOR LAKE ROAD IS APPROVED

Highway Meeting Favors Carrying Out of Former Plans

A decision to stick to the original routing of the Holliday-Lake road and carry it along the so-called scenic drive, through the grounds of the Wichita state hospital and an to a terminus with the lake road near the Lake Wichita pavilion was reached Wednesday at a meeting of the city, county, chamber of commerce and Municipal Golf club officials. Those attending the session were heartily in favor of putting the road over the route at first designed instead of veering off t othe west, skirting the north boundary of the state hospital grounds and striking the lake road half way between the pavilion entrance and the fair grounds road.

Hope for Best.

It was also reported that negotiations were proceeding in a reasonably satisfactory manner and it was believed the old route would eventually be made possible nontwithstanding the mixup at a commissioners' court meeting last Monday which brought a delay in awarding of contracts for the highway.

The proposed original route will include two subways, one for the public road itself which will dip beneath the Wichita Falls and Southern tracks, and the other an underpass for a private road of the asylum which will run beneath the new highway and give access to and from the hospital gardens without a grade crossing.

A committee was named to wait on officials of the Southern railroad and seek to enlist their assistance in the financial outlay of the subway.

C. C. Men Present.

Those attending the meeting included J. T. Harrell and Hubert M. Harrison, representing the chamber of commerce, County Judge B. D. Sartin, Commissioner J. P. Jackson and Engineer J. M. Isbell for the county, Mayor R. E. Shepherd and City Clerk W. E. McBroom for the city and I. R. Sheldon, president of the Municipal Golf club.

The road is to be built to fulfill the terms fo a contract existing between the city and W. F. Weeks, donor of the land on which the new South Side park and golf course is located. It will also provide a more direct outlet from the city to the lake road.

District Court Will Hear Criminal Cases

Starting next Monday, the30th district court will devote its time to a trial of criminal cases, it was announced Wednesday by District Attorney Ben P. Allred, who also made several settings of cases in which the defendants are now in the county jail and against whom indictments are returned by the grand jury now in session would also be called the 13th.

Cases set yesterday include: 3661—Estes Lloyd Kiker, assault with intent to murder; 3653—Tom Colburn, assault with intent to murder; 3538—R. D .Chunn, abortion ;3 538—Mrs. R. D. Chunn, abortion; 3662—O. L. Lunsford, manufacturing liquor; Amel Mayers, manufacturing liquor.

No report was made yesterday by the grand jury which has been at work since Monday. It was believed, however, that a partial report could be made within the next two or three days.

SIX MONTHS FOR THEFT

Robbery Under $50 Plea Draws Half-Year Sentence.

A six months term in the county jail was assessed Wednesday in the county court at law against Carl Nicholson when he entered a plea of guilty to charges of theft of property under the value of $50. He was arrested Tuesday night in Electra, charged with having entered a house and stolen some small articles of jewelry.

60 DAYS FOR SWINDLING.

W. L. Hines Enters Plea of Guilty in County Court at Law.

A jail sentence of 60 days was imposed Wednesday by Judge C. M. McFarland of the county court at law on J. L. Hines when the latter entered a plea of guilty to charges of swindling. He is alleged to have passed a forged instrument on a local merchant.

Just Wasn't Room for Anyone Else; Even All the Motor Cops Were There

THEY might have found room to pack another couple or two somewhere on the lake pavillion floor last night, but those 2,500 or 3,000 that at oe time or another romped through curtailed dance steps at the First Annual Policeman's Ball will stoutly deny any such asinine allegation.

The ball, dance, party, struggle or what have you broke all records for terpischorean gatherings in Wichita Falls. And, by the same token it was probably as colorful and lively an affair as Wichita Falls has ever seen. Seventy-five and 12 seemed to be the prevailing mode in age limits, with every day and month in between also on hand in profusion. It was a fact, grandma and granddaughter stepped on each others 'toes "hit each other and run" without the formality of an "I beg your pardon."

Nobody Cared.

Nobody cared when someone else thought they were a football dummy. Nor did anyone complain when some ambitious flapper and her hair-oiled consort essayed a Red Grange sprint around right end or a cross-buck through tackle. They shoved back and let it go at that.

It might be explained here that the ball was the first of its kind ever staged by the Wichita Falls police department for the benefit of its police relief fund. It was announced prior to last night, however, that if this was a success it would be made an annual event. The reporter dared not suggest to Chief Hodgins or Frank Queisser that it was a success, for this was all too evident.

Early evening saw all roads to Lake Wichita. Motor cars, of course, furnished the chief means of travel, but for the benefit of those not afflicted with a gas buggy the police provided a number of traction cars which left the city hall at regular intervals. They were run out again—or at least somebody said they would be run out when the hop was over. The were still dancing strong when this yarn was written around midnight.

Around the lake grounds almost every available inch of parking space was taken and it was necessary for a few cars to find room on the paved road outside the grounds proper. Even that, though, was a minor inconvenience. Shines werent worth the tenth part of a dime when you got on the floor, so who cared when they had to wade through dust to get there?

Plenty Decorations.

Upon the breeze-swept deck of the big lake pavillion an energetic decorating squad had done yeoman service. Flags and gleaming buntings of all colors were strung in a haphazard but riotous ensemble of color. From rafter to rafter they stretched, reaching into the remote corners and serving as tinted masks for the lights which filtered through them on the kaleidoscopic pattern of figures beneath. The gaily colored dresses of the ladies and, in some instance the equally flamboyant hues of the men, formed a complimentary chart of purple, pinks, blues, yellows and reds.

In and out among the dancers were other flashes of color—these from the well-groomed blues and tans of the uniformed cops on the job. Chief Hodgins had about all the police in town on the jo band was even loaned some of the county officers for the occasion. Their uniforms and gleaming stars struck a military note that was as pleasing as it was unsual.

And speaking of uniforms, the big duck in the whole puddle was one George H. Hodgins hisself, chief and and generalissimo of the police department, who stood like a beacon light of good cheer on the side lines. His natty uniform was never pressed to greater perfection; his big gold badge of authority never shined with more brilliance; and he himself never grinned more expansively than as he parked here and there, acknowledging the constant stream of salutes hurled at him from all corners.

The chief had worked hard for this thing. He had given many a weary day of time and thought to it and he would have been one discouraged mortal if it hadn't proven the success it was. But he knew within half an hour after it started that the word failure was an alien element last night.

Frank Queisser There.

Frank Queisser, too, commissioner of public safety, was there with the little Queissers to see that all enjoyed it. He bawled out a reporter for coming in late; kicked a cop when the latter bumped into him in doing an Immelman turn on the polished boards, drank a barrel of soda pop, wore a fancy hat and had one big time.

Those fancy hats, by the way, provided a kick all their own. Staid and dignified Wichitans who never thought, perhaps, they would be guilty of such foolishness, donned them with acclaim and had all the more fun for doing it. The supply was rapidly exhausted once they started in, but there were enough to cause plenty of hilarity.

As for the program, it went off smoothly and without a hitch from the grand march on the finale. It was arranged in tasteful and well-balanced style; it was just long enough and the special numbers came with just sufficient frequency to provide welcome intermissions in the dance cards. Everybody made a hit. Mayor R. E. Shepherd, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd, held the crowd quietly while he sang a pleasing tenor solo and then responded with another when the big jam encored insistently. The special dance numbers and other musical selections, also, drew vociferous and sincere applause for meritorious work well done.

"I just want to thank everybody on behalf of myself and the police department," Chief Hodgins said, when asked for some expression. "It has all exceeded my fondest expectations. Everybody had a good time just as we wanted them to. The police fund has been swelled by substantial proportions. It's all right."

Plans no doubt will be made to make the event an annual midsummer frolic from now on.

LAKE KEMP IS STILL FREE TO PUBLIC-REPORT

Caretaker States That Fees Will Not be Charged Yet

Roads leading to Lake Kemp from Maybelle and from Vernon are not cut off by the new fences now being strung around the lake by W. T. Waggoner of Fort Worth, according to John Crowford, resident caretaker of Lake Kemp who was in Wichita Falls Wednesday.

No Payments Yet.

Thus far, Mr. Crawford said, no limitations have been imposed on wishing either from boats or off the face of the dam or banks of the lake, Mr. Crawford said. Assessing of the fees to be charged under the development plan of Mr. Waggoner will probably not be started until the fences are completed. That on the south side of the lake will be finished within a few days, Mr. Crowford said, while the one on the north side lacks several weeks of completion. The free parks to be established there are not opened yet, either.

Mr. Crawford said that the lake level was now *8.6 feet or a drop of a foot and half. The decrease has been necessitated by the emptying of large amounts of water into the diversion lake from where it is drawn out for irrigation purposes over the syestem.

Ten Rattlers.

The caretaker also reported that in direct contrast with last year, there were very few rattlers found around the edge of the big body of water. In 1924 , thousands of reptiles swarmed the rocks along the shores but for some reason most of them have now disappeared.

Sixty-three small pleasure boats, four house boats and the big converted dredge, now fitted up sumptuously as the Point Breeze hotel, are now o nthe lage, Mr. Crawford said.

Reports Castles Are Buying in on Cotton

A private wire report to R. E. Floweree and company Wednesday stated that "a good authority of New York report uptown crowd under leadership of Castles bought 50,000 bales yesterday on theory that crop complaints will increase from now on and next government show a loss."

The Castles are well known in Wichita Falls for their market trading. They formerly lived in Waco.

HUGE TAX CUT SEEN

Chairman Smoot Says $300,000,000 To Be Sliced.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A tax reduction of at least $300,000,000 and possibly $350,000,000 by the next congress was predicted today by Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee.

He based his estimate on the indicated surplus as shown by treasury figures. The cut in surtaxes, he pointed out, would be to twenty per cent from the present rate of forty per cent, but in advance of a clear indication of what would be done with miscellaneous taxes he would not estimate the cut in normal income taxes.

A. A. KUEHN HOST EMPLOYES

Petrolia Supply Company Workers Given Big Picnic.

Between 50 and 60 employes of the Petrolia Supply company here were guests last Saturday of A. A. Kuehn, president and general manager of the company, at a picnic and frolic on Red river, just east of Petrolia. A big picnic dinner was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Kuehn and the day enjoyed in games and other diversions.

Farmers Busy With Irrigation of Fields

Farmers in the irrigated valley are working night and day in their fields, principally turning in and regulating water from the irrigation canals. They are taking full advantage of the bright moonlight nights prevailing the last week, and a number of them report excellent results from the evening labors.

Out on the James D. Greer and Ernest Birk farms straight west of the city over 350 acres of irrigated cotton are being worked. Of these, 300 acres are in Greer's special long staple cotton which is recognized as among the finest grown in the southwest.

The irrigation waters are proving their value more each day now as the heat and drought continue, farmers report.

TRIP TO RAIL HEARING MAY BE IN BUSSES

Consider Using Big Cars Instead of Individual Automobiles

Substitution of big busses for private automobiles in the proposed trip of a number of Wichita Falls men through the lower Panhandle to Plainview on July 20 is being considered by officials of the Chamber of Commerce.

The local organization plans to take a large delegation of Wichitans on a trade jaunt through the territory to be served by the new Fort Worth & Denver South Plains line and it has been suggested that the chartering of four or five huge busses now in operation around here would result in a more impressive showing than a dozen or more private machines. It would also lessen the rigors of the trip and permit a more balanced schedule, it is said.

Plans tentatively worked out call for the party leaving Wichita Falls several days before the hearing is held at Plainview, spend the night in Childress and then head west through Turkey, Quitaque, Silverton and other points. Roads in that vicinity are declared to be in excellent condition.

It is hoped that 50 or maybe double that number can be secured to make this inaugural journey through the South Plains country that is destined to be a new and important part of Wichita Falls trade territory.

No Clues in Search For Missing Officer

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—Disappearance of Captain Robert M. Connell, regular army officer, formally assigned as national guard instructor at Lancaster, Penn., was reported today at the war department.

No trace of the missing officer has been found despite investigation conducted by the Baltimore, Md., corps area, headquarters, Lancanter police and war department officials since he was ordered transferred from Lancaster to Fort Hancock, N. J., more than three months ago.

RANGER QUARTERMASTER OFF FOR ANNUAL INSPECTION

AUSTIN, July 8.—Captain R. W. Aldrich, quartermaster of the Texas rangers, left early today for his annual inspection of the ranger force over the state. The force number about thirty men now.

LAKE WICHITA LOW; WATER TO BE HARD AGAIN

City Faced With Problem Of Getting Adequate Supply

Wichita Falls will within the next day or so be faced again with the necessity of using hard water from Lake Kemp, it was reported Wednesday when it was found that the level of Lake Wichita has dropped to a point where farmers depending on the old Highland irrigation ditch, which also supplies the city water department, are unable to draw off enough for the needs of their fields. Several have asked the irrigation district officials to take action to give them relief.

The dropping of the level of Lake Wichita means simply one thing—it must be filled with water from Lake Kemp, and this means an end of the soft water, for the last two months has been drawn solely from Lake Wichita.

For a time this spring Lake Wichita was filled with water from Lake Kemp and the resulting hardness brought such strenuous complaints from housewives all over the city that the supply from the big reservoir was shut off. Lake Wichita is naturally a soft water body and with the Lake Kemp supply stopped the complaints disappeared.

The long dry spell, however, has required the use of large amounts of water for irrigation purposes between here and the lake, which accounts for the necessity of pouring in Lake Kemp water again.

QUANAH HEARS R. E. LEE TALK ON IRRIGATION

West Texas Chamber Of Commerce Head Is Luncheon Guest

QUANAH, July 8.—The doctrine of diversification, intensified farming and individual irrigation was carried into Texas green belt today by Col. R. Q. Lee, who continued his campaign of west Texas. He was luncheon guest at Quanah and a selected audience of leading business men and farmers attentatively heard him outline his program. An irrigated garden or if possible several acres of truck he declared as essential to the modern farm as the kitchen stove and he urged his hearers to encourage and practice the policy of irrigation which will insure prosperity for Texas, declared the west Texas chief.

At Vernon, Tuesday night, he addressed a representative gathering and made a strong pronouncement of his policies. Poultry was urged at Vernon as a part of the program and he gave figures on the amazing expansion of poultry industry in Eastland county. Lee himself owns several poultry plants near Cisco, one of which has 10,000 laying hens. Eastland county producers received $10.50 net per case for eggs while their neighbors gladly sell for $7.50.

The party was met here by a delegation from Childress and escorted there where Mr. Lee speaks tonight. Thursday he invades the Panhandle and speaks at Clarendon and Memphis.

COMMANDANT LEAVES.

Commandant and Mrs. Johnson of the Salvation Army left early this morning for El Dorado, Ark., where Captain Johnson will take charge of the Salvation Army headquarters there. The change was necessitated by the bad health of Mrs. Johnson. Captain and Mrs. Frederick Wilkes of Austin will succeed the Johnsons in command.

The Old Home Town

Martin Parkman left Wednesday on a short vacation tour to points in Colorado.

A dozen cases were called for trial Wednesday morning in city police court, most of them arising as a resu t of traffic law violations. A few drunks and vags were mixed up in the assortment.

Hubert M. Harrison, genera manager of the chamber of commerce, left Wednesday for Greenville where his sister, Miss Margaret, is to be married Thursday night. Mrs. Harrison has been in Greenville several days.

Firemen were called at 10 o'clock Thursday morning to a residence at 213 Seymour street where some wall paper had caqgst fire from an overheated stove. The blaze was extinguished before any damage was done.

Burkburnett Child Victim of Illness

BURKBURNETT, July 8.—Allie Jean Chatham, age 2 years, died Wednesday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Chatham, from a complication of stomach trouble and whooping cough, having been sick about ten days.

Funeral takes place this morning at 10 o'clock in the Methodist church, Rev. N. L. Hamilton conducting the services. Burial will follow in the Burkburnett cemetery, directed by Collier brothers undertakers.

The family is prominent and well known in business and social circles. The pall bearers for the little girl were selected from her fathers business associates in the Caro Motor company and are the following citizens: H. A. Dodson, manager of the company; W. D. Darrow, J. L. Wilkerson and Joe P. McClelland.

ACTION HERE ON RAILROAD IS POSTPONED

Denver Officials Unable To Attend Plains Meeting Here

A meeting set for today at which plans were to be outlined for Wichita Falls' action in the hearing on the Denver South Plains extension has been posponed because of inability of F. E. Clarity, general manager of the Fort Worth and Denver railway, and Judge J. H. Barwise, general counsel for the Denver roads to be in the city. A wire was received Wednesday afternoon from Mr. Clarity saying that business would detain him in Fort Worth.

He and Judge Barwise were to have met with J. C. Mytinger, R. E. Pennick, and T. H. Lawson, comprising a chamber of commerce committee here, for a discussion of this city's action in the Plainview hearing July 20. A hearing will be conducted at that time before the state railroad commission and the interstate commerce commission relative to the extension of the road.

The delay in this meeting has also resulted in postponement of a meeting of the trade trip committee, scheduled for Friday morning, when plans were to have been taken up for the visit to Plainview of a large delegation of Wichita Falls business men.

More Truth Than Poetry

TOO LATE

The Arctic, explorers report,
Though the nights are uncommonly long,
And the natives uncommonly short,
And the victuals uncommonly strong;
And though we who abide to the southward are prone
To view it with certain suspicions,
In regard to climatic conditions,

And we find the equator is not
What we fancied when going to school,
It isn't exceedingly hot,
In fact it's remarkably cool.
When Beebe was angling for algae down there,
So we lately have learned from his letters,
Both he and his party donned thick winter wear—
Thick underclothes, mufflers, and sweaters.

Too bad that our nomadic race,
When the world was so long and so wide,
Would have put up their tents in a place
Like the one where we're doomed to reside,
Where we stretch out our hands half the year to the heat
Of the log or the anthracite ember,
And the asphalt boils up in the hot city street
From June till the last of September.

If the cave man had dug himself holes
In the snows which in Greenland abound,
Or a little bit south of the poles
A snug habitation had found;
Or under the palm trees that grow on the Line
Had fathered his family together,
Existence for you and for me would be fine—
For we'd never be bothered by weather!

Morgan Grabs Number 12 When Spudders Nose Steers

White Meets Corbett In 12-Round Go Tonight

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

IT CAN NOW BE SAID THE SPUDDERS REALLY ARE BACK IN THE LEAGUE AGAIN. THREE STRAIGHT LOSSES. OUT: THREE STRAIGHT WINS, IN.

We would suggest to Tanner that he pitch Suds Sutherland in the Dallas final this afternoon. Any other grandstand managers got something to say?

* * *

You Bet Your Apples It Is!

That's number 12 victory for Eulag (Dick) Morgan. Eight more and poppa collects from the prima donna of the editorial force for no less than 25 cold clinkers. Truly, it is a great life.

Yeah, Is That Right?

"Bryan Hurls A Cocoanut," read J. William Gray, the eccentric, and then utters: "Well, they can do all they want to in that Tennessee trial, but it doesn't bother me. I may look like a monkey and at times act like a monkey, but I know I didn't come from a monkey."

Startling news!

DEEP STUFF.

And then Ichabod, the enthusiastic sport reporter, hands in the following item of interest: "Gage McDermett has added Frank Shaw to his First Christians' rooster." No. Elcise, there isn't any poultry attachment to the Christian nine; that's just Ichabod's clever way of spelling lineup.

* * *

When they speak of an athlete playing nice ball do they mean to insinuate that he might have played naughtily, but didn't?

CAN IT BE DID, HUH.

Cats win another, 2 to 1, in 16 innings. "Whadda you going to do about that gang?" excitedly quries Johnny Parker. And us immediately suggests poison in the soup. Whereupon, Johnny solemnly observes; "Why, you couldn't poison those guys. No effect, no effect, at all!" All of from which we would gather somebody has tried it before.

It Won't Affect They're Winning

The charley hoss epidemic in both arms and legs which has been undermining our hitherto proud Spudders all season has just about quit the squad and centered on Prexy Harvey instead. Spud boss broke out with an innovation in foot wear as far as the financial fraternity is concerned Wednesday. Due to charley cayuse in sport hoof, baseball magnate galloped about the office all day in a pair of Indian moccasins.

VERY SUBTLE.

"The only kick," avers Don Wofford, "the only kick I have against importing these bull fighters for the legion performances this week-end is that we already have enough bull fighters in Wichita Falls."

A CAT NAP, SO TO SPEAK.

Wildcat Monte, the rollicking Wichita Falls junior lightweight fisticuffer, has enacted one for the book, Monte, the early portion of this week was billed in a ten-rounder with Frankie Reagan at Dallas. Kitten Kat broke into Dallas along about 3 o'clock the afternoon of the scheduled glove frolic, got himself a room in a hotel, went up and decided take a nap.

* * *

Time for the fight came, but there was no Monte at the Dallas punching emporium. At the last minute, frantic promoters put on a substitute. Monte awakened and came out of the hay about 11:30 that night, all rearing for action, but the fight was over. The siesta had lasted eight hours, cost Monte railroad fare from Wichita Falls to the Trinity river city, hotel bill, and the proceeds he would have received for fighting a main event.

May Have to Fight Yet.

But it's not the loss of cash thats agitating our noble young athlete. Mrs. Monte, a bit dubious as to the wherefore and why, if any, of the alleged slumber at the wrong time, according to authentic information, has her Wildcat dodging and climbing trees every time he gets within speaking distance.

That Corbett-White Affair.

Speaking of fighters, this Corbett-White embroglio set for tonight in the legion arena may prove somewhat of a grudge affair. It all depends on White's attitude. It's like this, so we're told: Don Curley, White's manager, signed up Corbett several months back for a series of bouts in Mexico. Pat fought one of the scraps, and then branched out on his own book, paying no attention to Curley's agreement, and, most terrible of all direful catastrophes from the manager's viewpoint, in breaking the contract Corbett automatically stopped giving Curley his cut of the fight proceeds. Now Curley has been pulling all kinds of strings to get Pat licked. He almost emplored Don Wofford, local promoter, to match White with Pat declaring Tommy would take Corbett to a sweet lacing thereby to an extent giving Curley his revenge and appeasing his managerial wrath.

White has said little in regards to any personal feeling against Corbett, but if he carries out his manager's plans, which it is quite possible he may attempt to do Corbett is in for a stiff mill, for has the goods.

THE MEXICAN PROMOTER.

White tells some interesting yarns about the fight game in Mexico, especially the promotorial end. Just the converse of Wichita Falls boxing shows, for a long time all the ringside seats in Mexico City were free. How come, do you ask? Well, most of the aristocrats and officials in the Southern metropolis are ring worms, and the average poor fight promoter didn't stand a chance. These fellows would walk in and upon finding the ringside section crowded would straight away call the promoter and order him to clear out a set of seats for them. If the hapless promoter didn't jump to it immediately it usually meant the calaboose for him. The highbrows, each fight night would steadily stream in beginning shortly after the prelims had started and by the time of the main event the entire ringside would be turned over to them gratis and the birds who had paid for the seats would be shoved back in the rear somewhere.

This state of affairs kept up for quite a period until one day the chief of police and chief of detectives combined as fight promoters themselves.

Now nobody gets in free!

Tommy White, Texas City, vs. Pat Corbett, Oklahoma City, welterweights, 12 rounds.

Joe Bernard, Seattle, vs. Jack Denton, Tahoka, junior lightweights, six rounds.

Battling Bullger, Dallas, vs. Battling Jennings, Henrietta, welterweights, six rounds.

Two four-round prelims will be staged, according to the promoter.

Tommy White, the Texas City welter who claims by right of conquest, the lightweight, welterweight, and middleweight titles of Old Mexico, is taking Corbett on tonight primarily to display his wares before Wichita Falls followers of tsings fistic preparatory to a bount next week with Duke Trammel. the king of southwestern welterweigh's.

He's After Duke

That Trammel is the greatest drawing card Wichita Falls promoters ever sent into a local ring, White fully realizes. He believes that he is fully able to cope with Trammel on even terms, but at the instigation of the American Legion which organization is promoting the bouts, White has agreed to tangle with Corbett so that there will be no doubt when the hour arrives for his go with Trammel that he is not a set-up for the Duke. Trammel has whipped so many boys here that a number of fans believe the promoters are giving him easy matches.

Corbett has fought in Wichita Falls rings on several occasions, going over well. If, White reasons, he can pour it on the Oklahoman there will be no shadow in the minds of Wichita Falls fandom as to his ability to give Trammel real trouble, may beat him.

If Pat Will Mix It

White, though making no boasts, believes he can take Corbett to a neat lacing. If Corbett will stand up and mix it with him, the battle should be a royal affair.

White, it will be recalled, nearly beat Johnny Simpson, the San Antonio mauler who has appeared here several times, to a pulp not so long ago. Another boy well known to Wichita Falls bugs that White has whipped is Cicente Aguilar, the tough Mexican middleweight. Tommy knocked Aguilar out, and took the decision in four other bouts with the Mexican.

Christians Seem Titular Menace

The First Christians, out of the Sunday School race the early part of the season and not figured as very strong competition in the last half drive, may pull a surprise on the leaders.

While the Grace Methodists and First Methodists, league leaders, were winning three straight, the Christians were taking three out of four since the split. The Christians have games scheduled with both the Methodists and then one with Floral Heights. The Heights crew, having dropped from the race, will forfeit to the Christians.

DETROIT 5-8; BOSTON 0-2.

DETROIT, July 8.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers won both ends of a double header from the Boston Red Sox here today, the first game 5 to 0 and the second 8 to 2. Excellent pitching enabled the Tigers to win the first game, the veteran Dauss allowing the invaders only 6 hits, thereby winning his sixth consecutive game. In the second game the Tigers piled up an early lead and Stoner had little difficulty in holding the Red Sox in check while his mates batted Ruffing and Fuhr freely.

Heilmann hit two home runs in each game, lacing ou tthe first ball pitched to him in the sixth inning for a homer. Todt of Boston made an unassisted double play in the first game.

ST. LOUIS 5; BOSTON 4.

BOSTON, July 8.—(AP)—Boston's winning streak of five games was broken today when St. Louis scored five runs in the early innings and won out, 5 to 4. Mail's shutout the Braves until the ninth when a four-run rally, started by pinch hitters, fell one short. The brilliant stops by Bell in this same inning undoubtedly saved them from defeat. Manager Hornsby was in uniform after being laid up with a leg injury, but did not get into the game. Score:

First Baptist	5	1	4	.200
F. H. Methodist	3	0	3	.000

Behind the stellar pitching of Jimmy Parker, Sunday School league strikeouting, and the hefty slugging of his mates, the First Methodist gave Charley Brooks' Grace Methodist nine a severe drubbing, 15 to 3. Jimmy Parker added ten more men to his string of strikeouts in the six innings he pitched.

This gave the first Methodist the lead in the last half race, and shoved the Grace Methodist back into a tie with the First Christian for second place, one full game behind the First Methodist.

Score Every Inning.

The winners scored in every inning to pile up the count. Ronie Glidewell was given poorer support in the field, and several of the First Methodist home runs should not have been for less than four bags with fast work on the part of the outfielders.

Neal's home run for the Grace Methodist in the first inning was made on Parker's second pitch. Two errors, two walks and three stolen bases gave the Grace Methodist their second tally in the fourth. A walk, two stolen bases and an error let in the final score in the sixth.

Two errors by Whatley, a single by Kizziar and a sacrifice bunt let in the first of the First Methodist runs. Hoop Cannon tripled to center and three men romped home. Freddie Boone bounced a hit off the top of a car for two bases, scoring Cannon.

Four in Second.

Three singles, a passed ball, a sacrifice, Rabbit Gordon's home run and an infield out were responsible for the four runs in the second. Jimmy Parker drove out a home run in the third for the score in that inning.

Riley Rawles' home run, Cannon walked and scored in the fourth on Doke's three-base smack. Johnnie McMahon opened the fifth with a home run. Haney beat out an nfield hit and went to second when Neal threw wild at first. Kizziar hit for the round trip, but failed to touch first base. He returned to touch first, then left the base and was called out. Gordon beat out an infield hit to third, stole second, and continued to third when Hicks' peg went wild. He scored on a wild pitch.

Worthy Harvester Beats Gordon Dillion

CLEVELAND, July 8.—(AP).—Under a masterful drive by Marvin Childs, Omaha, Worthy Harvester, an outsider in the betting today, defeated Gordon Dillon, odds on favorite in the Fasig sweepstakes, first race for 3-year-old trotters in the grand circuit this season.

Childs kept his gelding off the fast pace, and took first and third heats, the second going to Gordon Dillon, which led all the way. The favorite tired in the other heats. After making a break in the first heat and trailing far out of it for a quarter of a mile, Driver W. S. Garrison sent him to the front and Gordon Dillon trotted the last half in 1:02 3-5, finishing third only two heads behind Worthy Harvester and Lucile Wright.

Joe Fights Jack Tonight, But Wants Monte

Joe Bernard, the Seattle youngster who fights Jack Denton tonight in a six-rounder at the Eleventh and Ohio arena, doesn't want to box Denton, not because he's afraid he can't beat Jack, but because he's out after Wildcat Monte's scalp.

Bernard lost a decision to Monte here two weeks back, and is irritated him highly, because he believes he is by far a better miller than Monte, and avers, also, that the decision was a poor one.

If Bernard puts it on Jack tonight he'll probably get another whack at Monte, and he avers that if he ever gets into the ring with Wildcat Monte he'll beat him to death, figuratively speaking.

Hale pitched no-hit contest. Stubby Hale, U. S. Machine Shop, hurler, turned in a no-run, no-hit game Tuesday at the expense of the Texhoma, while the Machinists chalked up two runs to win the tilt, 2 to 0. Only three Texhomans reached first base, all in the first round. Myers was hit by a pitched ball and Lightholder forced him at second. Lightholder reached second on a passed ball and Watson walked. After the first round the Texhomans went out in order. "Alabama" Jarrett, Texhoma pitcher, also turned in a winning game but errors by his mates spelled his doom.

Security Team Hooks Up With Electrics Today

Security Bank will try today to keep up their winning ways in the Twilight loop and hold their present position on the top rung of the ladder. The Electric company, under the management of Goodwin, will be the club today that will take a swing at stopping the league leaders. Eddie Killman will be the probable pitching selection of Skipper Goodwin. "Oklahoma Lee" Courtney announced that he would use Gabe Harris on the hill.

The Security Bank has a rough road ahead to win the last half and gain the right to meet Texhoma in the play off. After meeting the Electric company team today, they will meet the American Refiners July 12. On July 23 they hook up with Ludlam and Riggs. Their final game on July 26 comes with Monroe's Travelers. The Electrics are down in the depths of the cellar, but still have a chance to pick up and upset some of the dope. The American refinery has been running strong all year, finishing in a tie for the first with Texhoma in the first half. Ludlam and Rggs seem to have found new life, judging from their last contest, and may prove a difficult opponent. The Travelers came near giving the first half of the race a severe set back, by defeating both Texhoma and American Refinery in the last two games and may come back strong in the last half.

The probable lineup for today's game is:

Wichita Falls Electric—Whatley, ss; Thurman, 2b; Riley, cf; Blue, 3b; Campbell, 1b; Ramsey, lf; Gleason, rf; Kollman, p; Hodges, c.

Security Bank—V. Brown, 1b; Stanfield, c; Martin, 2b; Montgomery, ss; Courtney, lf; Patterson, rf; C. Brown, 3b; Harris, p; Parker, cf.

White Doped To Outpoint Corbett

Who'll win the American legion fistic program's main event tonight?

That question is asked The Record News sports editor by somebody prior to each weekly battle here.

An answer has always been given, and correctly in every instance to date.

The selection for tonight is Tommy White, if he doesn't get indigestion, break a leg or arm, or get run ov'r by a freight train before the bout comes off. Not by a knockout, It's quite possible, but not probable. Pat Corbett is too clever, covers up, and runs too much to get bowled over unless by accident.

July 25 Tennis Meet Not Annual

The tennis tournament scheduled for municipal courts July 25 will not be the annual Wichita Falls championship competition, as has been rumored, but is to be a bit of preliminary play for the creation of more interest in the game itself and the coming titular tournament which probably will be staged early in September as has been the case in other years, it was gathered from authentic sources yesterday.

The tournament billed this month will not have the city championship cups at stake. It has been custom to hold the title tournament in September in order to allow entrance to players who at this time of the year may be out of the city on summre vacations.

rOganization and plans, it is understood, will be enacted during the month of August for the city championship play.

The way the Sunday School and Twilight league last half races are running, it appears that neither the winners of the first half races will grab the last ganfalon. In all probability, both leagues will be forced into playoff series.

WEAR ATTACKS CHARGES OF FARMER JIM

Hillsboro Attorney Says Former Governor Is Mis-Informed

KLAN TALK IRES HIM

Jim Accused of Hiding Behind Petticoats Of Ma

WACO, July 8.—Characterizing former Governor Ferguson's assertion that he tried to "break into the supreme court through the ku klux klan bedtick route," as insulting, W. C. Wear, Hillsboro attorney, yesterday issued a statement in which he severely criticized Ferguson for injecting politics into the recent Texas Bar association convention.

Judge Wear's statement in part follows:

"Insulting Statements."

"You published in a very prominent place the insulting statements that Ferguson made with reference to the introduction by me of a resolution in the bar association in which I was an accredited member and the members of which he deliberately and codrsely insulted. Manifestly he ought to have had sufficient regard to the proprieties not to inject into the proceedings the question of politics, together with his peremptory demand to the effect that they should not adopt a resolution with reference to the question of the issuance of pardons by the governor and the criticisms connected therewith."

"Ferguson referred to my progress by introduction into the bar association with reference to the issuance of pardons by the governor of this state. With that coarseness which is characteristic of Ferguson he refers contemptuously to the fact that I was a candidate for chief justice of the supreme court and he uses the following language: "He is the same feller who during the last campaign tried to break into the supreme court through the ku klux klan bedtick route."

With Only Four Men.

"As a matter of fact very little investigation would have disclosed that I only consulted with four men with reference to my announcing as a candidate for that great and responsible position, namely, Hon. A. M. Frasier, Hon. Walter Collins, Hon. George Dupree and Hon. Charles C. Crenshaw. Each of these gentlemen reside in Hilsboro. They are splendid lawyers, first class gentlemen and are outspoken in their opposition to the ku klux klan organization. I sought the advice of no one else anywhere before making my announcement as a candidate. At the time I made my announcement neither Judge Cureton nor Judge Buck had announced as candidates.

"As to my failure to be elected to the great office for which I announced my candidacy, assuredly I cannot feel as greatly chagrined on account of affiling to succeed, nor have my friends as much occasion to regret as they would have had if I had been successful and after being honored with a great office by a confident and noble constituency had I been convicted of such acts, such as the high court in the state should enter its solemn judgment declaring that I could never hold office again in this commonwealth.

Behind Ma's Skirts.

"By the way, it would seem that it is just a bit ludicrous that Ferguson would make such public proclamation of his dissatisfaction that there are no rich men in the penitentiary. Certainly it could not be expected that one should be sent to the penitentiary simply because he is rich.

"In conclusion I do not hesitate to say that I would prefer to be classed with most any class rather with one whose greatest boast and accomplishments are that he must of necessity hide behind his wife's petticoat."

WILHELM KING FOR A DAY AT SCHOOL REVIEW

Former Kaiser and Son Appear in Army Uniforms

POTSDAM, Germany, July 8.—(AP)—The republic was forgotten and the Hohenzollerns were again king for a day when the 100th anniversary of the founding of the noncommissioned officers' school here was celebrated yesterday with military pomp and the unveiling of a monument to the war dead.

Former Crown Prince Frederick William and his eldest son appeared in uniform of the guards regiment, and Prince Eitel Frederick in field grey.

Divine service on the parade parade grounds of the former guards began the ceremonies and the concluding feature was a parade before the representatives of the Hohenzollerns.

The fact that the former crown prince wore a uniform in public for the first time since his return to Germany occasioned much comment as did the absence of the republican flag.

AUGUST AND WILLIAM GIVE TOAST TO FUTURE.

Wilhelm, wearing a uniform of the Prussian guard at a gala dinner is reported to have toasted his guests with the wish to see him re-established on the Saxony throne.

Hot Beer in Cold Water Shoots Man; Cops Are Called

SAN ANTONIO, July 8.—"A man has been shot."

This terse phone message Tuesday night sent police on an emergency call to a South Alamo street address.

It had come from a nearby resident who had heard the shots.

The officers found the wounded man lying in the middle of the floor, his face a mass of blood.

"Who shot him?" the officers demanded of two women who stood at his side attempting to stop the flow of blood.

They pointed to a tub of ice water which had once contained beer. "He put some bottles of hot beer in that ice water."

A loud report and a rain of foaming water sent the officers and women scurrying to the corners of the room for cover. One bottle had remained in the tub. After having the man's wounds dressed at a hospital, he was booked for being drunk. One of the women, his wife, was booked on a similar charge and the third woman will be turned over to prohibition officials.

NEARLY INSANE AT TIMES

Mrs. Saunders Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Troubles of Change of Life

Knoxville, Tenn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound while going through the Change of Life. I was very nervous, could not sleep and had melancholy spells. In fact, I was nearly insane at times and my memory was almost a blank. I was so weak I could not do my housework half of the time and suffered dreadfully with my back. My doctor said I would have to worry it out and I went through this for three years before I began taking the Vegetable Compound which I saw advertised. I think it was eight bottles that I took. It has been two years since I took any and I haven't had a doctor since for that trouble. I do all my washing and ironing and I have gained from 116 to 138 pounds. I advise all women who suffer physically and mentally as I did to give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. I hope it will do as much for them as it did for me."—Mrs. T. A. SAUNDERS, 711 E. Depot Street, Knoxville, Tennessee.

Frank Norfleet, Texas ranchman and merciless pursuer of seven men who fleeced him out of $45,000 in 1919 was consummated here today when Judge Kimbrough Stone in federal court denied W. B. Spencer a permanent writ of habeas corpus. This decision will permit Texas authorities to return Spencer to Texas to serve an eight-year sentence imposed on his conviction of the swindle.

Spencer was convicted in the Texas court June 7, 1924. He was at the time serving a two year term in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., and was permitted to return to complete his sentence there.

He was re-arrested by Texas officials as he was released from the penitentiary June 5 last but succeeded in obtaining a temporary writ preventing the Texas officials with Norfleet, who accompanied them from taking him back to Texas.

Spencer was the last of the seven men whom Norfleet had hunted down. All of the others are imprisoned. To accomplish his revenge, Norfleet traveled many thousands of miles throughout the United States.
