STORY CASE TRANSFERRED TO SHERMAN RECORD CROWD AT OPENING OF COOKING SCHOOL

MRS. CHITWOOD RETURNS AMID BIG APPLAUSE

CLASSES START DAILY AT 2 P. M. EXCEPT CLOSING DAY

Greeted by more than 300 women—the largest opening day attendance in her four appearances in Lubbock—Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, nationally known culinary expert, began the Avlanche-Journal's Fourth Annual Free cooking school at the Lyric theatre, at 2 p. m. this afternoon. The class today was given over to a demonstration and lecture on 'pie crusts' and was the first of the five day school which closes on Friday.

A number of prize awards are to be made each day and each attendant registers as she enters the theatre. Ladies are requested to be their places by 2 p. m. each afternoon until Friday, and at 9 a. m. that day, so that Mrs. Chitwood can begin and end her lectures on Tuesday. Mrs. Chitwood was a decidedly cosmopolitan and walked, amid applause, to her model kitchen, after being introduced by Spencer A. Wells, president of the Board of City Development. Mrs. Chitwood, touched upon her reputation as one of the nation's leaders in her line and complimented the Avlanche-Journal for bringing her to Lubbock. Not only city women were on hand but many from the outlying rural districts were in evidence.

Recipes Are All New Even though this is Mrs. Chitwood's fourth school in Lubbock, she is bringing all new recipes this year and her lectures will cover fields in cookery and culinary arts not before exploited here. Tuesday has been designated as "cake day" and she has announced that she will make a steamed date pudding that will take the place of a fruit cake and may be kept for several weeks, describing this culinary delight as one that will "melt in your mouth."

Special Session Of Legislature Sought

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 24 (AP)—The air, cleared by the definite announcement of H. Tom Right, Lubbock county representative, that a petition bearing sixty-nine names would be presented to the governor asking for a special session of the legislature, forces opposing such a move were drawing their lines today. Right, in his announcement last night, said that if they governor should refuse to call the special session which is sought for an investigation of five state departments, including the governor's the legislature will convene of its own right. Right said that an initiative law passed just before the impeachment of Governor Jack Walton and which placed the power of appointing such a session in the hands of the legislature, was not constitutional. Right asserted the legislature would convene under provisions made in the constitution.

Recent Mexican Revolt Faked, Charges General Arnulfo Gomez, From His Mountain Hiding Place

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 24 (AP)—Although he refused to issue a formal statement, Governor Henry S. Johnston indicated today that he will not yield to demands that he call a special session of the legislature. "I have been so busy running the affairs of the state that I have had little time to listen to politicians who are asking my impeachment," he told a reporter. "I do not intend to call a special session, as my decision now stands."

The governor made it plain that his decision would depend upon what is brought out in the plea by the petitioners, headed by H. Tom Right, Rogers county representative.

PUBLICITY AND OTHER GOOD REASONS CITED BY JUDGE IN DECISION IN ROBBERY TRIAL

DALLAS, Oct. 24.—Trial of the Yancey Story Krum bank robbery case was transferred Monday to Sherman by Judge C. A. Phippen in criminal district court here on his own motion.

The decision to transfer the case came as Story lay on a cot in the court room in an apparently semi-conscious condition.

Publicity given the case at former trials here "and other good and sufficient reasons" were given by Judge Phippen as grounds for the change of venue.

DAWN BARELY AVERTED FALL

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 24.—A broken exhaust valve which but for good fortune might have caused an explosion of the motor and sent the plane, "Dawn" into the sea, was found today by T. Harold Kinkade, motor expert, in his investigation of the trouble which forced the Grayson plane to return yesterday after a five hour flight toward Europe.

Notwithstanding three failures after starting a trans-Atlantic flight, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson was determined today to make another attempt to get to Copenhagen in the monoplane.

Depends on Weather The time for the next attempt depends on favorable weather and the condition of the motor, which practically failed during Sunday's flight after the machine had covered more than 450 miles of its outward trip.

Twice before when the big ship seemed headed for the wax in take-offs here, it was righted by the quick acting release mechanism. Freed of 250 gallons of gasoline, the plane rose rapidly and fears that had led to the sending a hasty SOS message the making of tentative plans to land in the water alongside a nearby steamship were found to be premature.

The Dawn was headed back on "one and a half engines," and the return trip made with further incident.

The Dawn hopped off at 6:13 o'clock and came back ten hours later reaching the vicinity of Sable Island off the coast of Nova Scotia. The aviators calculated they had covered 984 miles.

WESTERNERS CLIMB BACK INTO RUNNING WITH ELECTRA UPSET

SANDIES LEAD WITH WICHITA BOASTING WIN

LUBBOCK WILL COMBAT COYOTES HERE THIS WEEK IN HARD GAME

A new angle was shown in the class A Panhandle football conference of the Texas Interscholastic League last week-end as the Westerners climbed back into the running by plastering an unexpected high count of 19 to 6 on the highly heralded Tigers of Electra high school. Wichita Falls broke into the conference race Saturday and scored an 8 to 6 count over the Vernon Lions—very little could have been told of the Coyotes prior to the clash with the Lions as it was the first loop clash the Wichita Falls entry had figured in. Amarillo continued on with clean slate to head the conference by racing through the Chiefs of Quanah, 33 to 0. The Bulldogs of Plainview were idle.

Conference Standing	P. W. L.	Pct.
Amarillo	2 2	.1000
Wichita Falls	1 1 0	.1000
Lubbock	2 1 1	.500
Vernon	2 1 1	.500
Electra	2 1 1	.500
Plainview	1 0 1	.000
Quanah	2 0 2	.000

This week brings the Westerners one of their hardest scheduled games, the Wichita Falls Coyotes, which will be played on the Matador gridiron, after the greatest football exhibition ever shown in West Texas—the Tech-Aggie game on Friday. Wichita Falls won their first conference game last week when the Lions of Vernon high school by a narrow count—but the week before the Lions trounced "Dackie" Allen's Bulldogs for a score of 20 to 0.

Electra Meets Vernon
The Electra team will have a hard time as their hands are full with the Lions to contend with on the Electra field. In view of the Bulldogs will meet the Chiefs of Quanah. The Quanah-Bulldog clash will be a game of great interest as both have their conference game to win—the Electra club is hoped to take the lead with the Chiefs.

Hugh Butler will work with the game with the Coyotes in the week following. Amarillo are bringing the Sandies for the Texas A. and M.-Tech on Friday. Not only the Sandies but three other Class A school clubs of this district will present to Wichita Falls. Dana X's flock of Aggies in action. Westerners, the Coyotes, and Plainview Bulldogs will be the high schools to witness the grid event of the season in Texas.

Grid Grists

By James R. Dow

A great co-operative spirit exists between the high school and the college. The college allows the Westerners to use their field for practice—and the high school athletes the Matadors to use their field for practice. That sort of cooperation will greatly aid both institutions—keep it up.

Again the week holds for the fans of Lubbock and the South Plains two big events—the greatest event is of course, the Texas A. and M.-Texas Tech football contest to be exhibited in the Matador's grass field Friday afternoon. But one as great, or possibly greater for the high school, falls on the week after the game with the Coyote-Westerner game, which is a conference contest and will have a great hearing on the standing and possibilities of the high school in the Panhandle title race.

It isn't going to hurt any fan in Lubbock to attend both of these games. Help and boost both of our grid clubs.

It is possible that four of the high school football teams of class A conference of the Panhandle will attend Texas Tech-Aggie game Friday afternoon. The Amarillo and citizens are providing means for their high school club to attend the game; the Wichita Falls Coyotes will arrive here on Thursday evening in time for a workout and will see the game; the Plainview Bulldogs will possibly be here to see the Aggies in action; and of course, Henry Frink's and Del Morgan's Westerners will be out.

I expect that some 10,000 or 12,000 fans will be in Lubbock Friday afternoon for the Aggie game. About a third of this number will be out of luck for reservations unless they get busy early and secure them.

When Dana X. Bible and his hands romp out on the Matador gridiron they will be standard with equipment at the college has. They will wonder how it was done—for in College Station it was years before they secured the equipment equivalent to that of Texas Tech.

Last week certainly caught lots of spectators with their hands when Texas Christian Uni-

University held the Aggies to a scoreless tie the hand started up "Who'd a think it." Then over in Orwin Stadium at Dallas Ray Morrison's flashy Ponies defeated the proud "M'sou" when the Methodists showed the Tigers up with a decisive count.

The campaign the two civic organizations, the Rotary and the Kiwanis clubs, put over last week for the high school was great. When a town has organizations like that how can it be helped that the boys of the high school won't fight for their town?

But listen fellows—the high school will have a hard pull Saturday with the Wichita Falls entry and more help will be needed to successfully put over the game. Let's boost the game with the Wichita Falls bunch as much as we have the Aggie-Tech game.

Former teammates will battle one another Friday in the Aggie-Tech game. Westerfelt and "Dopie" White will be battling against "Pinky" Alabrook, "Westy" "Dopie" and "Pinky" all were members

Frogland Plans Gala Event For Clash With Bears

(Special To The Journal)

PORT WORTH, Oct. 24.—Preparations will be started today at Texas Christian University for the second or three high points on the Horned Frogs' football schedule this season—their game with the Baylor University Bears Saturday at Waco.

Officials of the university have declared Saturday a holiday and a large percentage of the student body, along with scores of fans from the city, are expected to pack several trains to capacity. Many of the fans will make the trip for a two-fold purpose—to see the game and pay an annual visit to the Cotton Palace celebration.

Old Custom Reviewed
The game with Baylor in Waco is the renewal of an old custom of playing the Bears on their home gridiron. The Horned Frogs and Bears are ancient rivals. However, for a number of years the Frogs had been meeting at the Texas State Fair at Dallas until the severing of athletic relations between Baylor and Texas A. and M. and the subsequent elimination of the annual Bear-Aggie tilt at the Cotton Palace opened the opportunity for the Frogs to participate in the traditional contest.

The teams have much to spur them on to great accomplishments this year as their records of the past have been more or less evenly divided. An example of the closeness of competition is given in the fact that they have battled to a tie at Dallas for the past two years.

Oklahoma Clubs Still In Western Gear Says Today

(By Associated Press)

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 24.—Tulsa and Oklahoma City are still members of the Western league. Dale Greer, president of the league, declared today.

"We are sitting tight," he said. "No action will be taken prior to the meeting of the national association of professional baseball leagues in December."

Greer asserted the action of the two Oklahoma clubs in withdrawing from the Western and entering the Texas league was ineffective, as the rules of the national association were discarded.

PLAYING THE GAME

Development Of The Shift

By FIELDING H. YOST

(Director of Athletics, University of Michigan)

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Development of the present mixed understanding shift plays in American football started in 1894 or 1895 with the abolition of the right-of-play rule in motion towards the line of scrimmage when the ball was snapped.

Since that time the fundamental of the rules has been against the "running start," while previous to the rule changes of these two years as many as ten men were in motion forward when the ball was snapped.

The original American rugby rules required only one man to be on the line of scrimmage when the ball was snapped. This resulted in the formation of the flying wedge, a V shaped formation. It started far back and the ball was snapped to one of the runners just before the wedge crossed the scrimmage line.

Changes in the rule in 1894 prevented the use of the flying wedge, while additional changes in the rules in 1895 required the presence of five men on the line of scrimmage with the provision that one man might be in motion backward toward his own goal line. This change in the rule, was followed by the famous guards back formation of Pennsylvania with its companion tackle back turtle back and all mass formations.

After twenty years of such plays, in 1905, the rules again were changed, this time to provide for seven men on the line of scrimmage and soon after this what are generally known as shift plays came into use. It is necessary to make a distinction between a shift play and the general understanding of a shift play.

All teams use a shift of personnel. Some accomplish this shift upon a signal number, the player taking different positions as they line up. Some shift in the huddle, a practice that Michigan has used since the introduction of that system of signal calling. In these shifts there is no attempt at a forward movement, just a different distribution of the personnel to get the best use of the abilities of different players.

The generally discussed shift, as originated by Dr. H. L. Williams of Minnesota, where a group shifts and is supposed to stop, is the one that has been the center of public discussion for the past several years, and it is this shift which occasioned changes of the rules during the past year.

Following out the fundamentals of the game as evolved in 1894, the rules committee has attempted to stop all possibility of a "running start" by directing the officials to count "one, two, three, four," after a shift or huddle before the ball is put in play.

In spite of all this discussion of shifts and other styles of play, football has become as fundamental in its general scheme of attack as baseball. Line play especially, including the end positions, has become similar both on offense and defense. There remains, however, quite a difference in the disposition of the backs.

Ninety per cent of the teams in the United States use what is known as the Z formation with a man shifted in the line and the backs at one side. This is the formation from which the Minnesota shift makes its play after the backs have made their respective number of hops.

The Warner system, now in use at Stanford and also used by the Navy, makes a slight variation as follows:

The man at the left is the man in motion when the ball is snapped. All teams use the punt formation, with the different backs disposed of in the angle back of the line to make the most value of their ability. This is the formation most largely used by Michigan. As it gives the greatest latitude to the attack and especially to the individual who can pass, run and kick. It is an ideal formation for running, kicking, bucking and passing.

Canzoneri Is Big Favorite Tonight In Dundee Battle

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Tony Canzoneri enters the ring tonight against Johnny Dundee a decided favorite in their unofficial featherweight championship battle over 15 rounds. Odds on the youthful Brooklyn boxer have jumped from 6 to 5 to 5.

The fight is to be recognized as a championship affair by the New York state athletic commission, but inasmuch as Dundee gained his title from Eugene Criqui and never has been defeated since at the National Boxing association.

Jackrabbits Battle Lockney To Tie Game

RALLS, Tex., Oct. 24.—The Ralls Jackrabbits held the Lockney Longhorns to a scoreless tie Friday afternoon on the Jackrabbit gridiron. The game was one of intense interest as the greater part of the afternoon was spent in mid-field and neither club threatened. The Longhorns, under the direction of Grady Burson, resorted to the aerial route in the last stages of the game—with but little success. "Froggie" Lovern's Rabbit line proved to be too much for the visitors and attempt after attempt was made to put through the bitter Ralls defense.

Classic Of Season Only Few Days Off And Final Preparations Being Made For Texas Tech-A. & M. Battle

Only a few more days remain and the big show will be on. All the circuses in the country will have nothing on the Texas Agricultural college and Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college football classic that is to be featured in Lubbock Friday afternoon on Tech's gridiron. Even Bells-Flo-to and their White Elephant won't have a thing on Ewing Y. Freeland's Matadors and Dana X. Bible's Farmers for fans are coming from far and wide over the Panhandle and West Texas. Special trains from Amarillo—special excursions rates up and down the Santa Fe railway will bring thousands to the contest. Every make of automobile—from Cadillac to "Leaping Lena's" to plug their way over the highways to reach the "mecca of gridiron shows" on Friday.

Many Come from Far
From the west—as far as Albuquerque, from the east—as far as Wichita Falls; from the South—as far as Aggie land, itself; and from the north—as far as the Panhandle of Texas extends the football fans will flock into the stands of the Tech Athletic Field on the occasion. Never has a game in the Southwestern conference been handed the publicity that the Aggie-Bullfighter affair has enjoyed. Marvin Warlick, superintendent of the seating arrangements on the Matador field, will have a crew of workmen busy all through the week dressing up for the big party. Mr. Warlick intends to make a showing of the plant of the college during this game that will gain recognition from the officials of the Southwestern Conference, which conference the Matadors are making a bid for. "It is not the strength of a club especially against the Southwestern Conference teams that puts an institution in the state's best conference—but the equipment they have, the support that is given by the fans, and the evidence that a college may be able to substantiate conference games." E. W. Provence, business manager of the college told the Journal, "that will land Tech in the conference."

Golf Is Fixture On T. C. U. Sports Card

PORT WORTH, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Half as an intercollegiate sport is a fixture so far as Texas Christian University is concerned, it was demonstrated here as 37 candidates answered the call for varsity material recently.

Places on the team which will compete for Southwestern conference honors will be determined by play in a tournament and a series of matches among squad members, according to Victor Robertson, who is in charge of the squad at present.

The conference title was won by James Wilson of T. C. U. last year, and the Frogs are out to keep the title at home this season.

Gordon Cone and Dillard Schenk of Lovington, N. M., visited their parents here over the week-end.

Reservations can yet be secured for the game—but advices are that the earlier seats are reserved for the game the more convenient it will be. Tickets are on sale at the Hotel Drug company now.

The fighting Aggies will arrive in Lubbock Thursday evening and will take a light workout on the Matador field. Coach Dana X.

THE PLAINSMAN Says: That Girl on Broadway says that the only difference between some men and monkeys is that the monkeys don't have any false pride.

Organized labor—especially that part of it which particularly affects miners, has a wonderful opportunity to exert its admitted influence for good and at the same time to sell its principles to millions of Americans who have only a slight understanding of unionism among the workers of the world.

The miners' union has gone on record as opposing the strike and the methods used by the strikers. It has surveyed the situation and, according to press reports, has urged its members to withhold from participation in the strike the union miners are standing by their own organization but some of them, also affiliated with the I. W. W., have not heeded the command from the union and are helping with the strike.

The two organizations are differing in their stands on the Colorado strike and if the Plainman's knowledge of the I. W. W. and regular, organized sensibly operated unions, is true and correct, isn't the miners' union which is at fault.

Here's where organized labor's opportunity comes in. The strikers who refuse to heed the command of the union—who evidently choose to follow the dictates of the International Workers of the World—should be expelled from the miners' union and never be permitted to re-enter it.

Such discipline would not only better the relations between those two essential groups of capital and labor and prove the strength of the union to its own members, but at the same time would convince a great number of people in the United States that unionism—organized labor as a whole—is conservative, fair and a great power for good in the field of industry.

The average member of a labor union would be astonished if he knew how unfamiliar the average citizen is with organized labor—how many know nothing at all of its methods and principles and how many others, who have no connection with its operation, have a warped and decidedly unfair opinion of it.

Right here in Lubbock we have a number of local unions affiliated with national and international unions and banded into a great federation which embraces all reputable organizations of workers. Yet the average Lubbock citizen is an unfamiliar with the question of organized labor as it is with the private lives of the Hindoos.

Undoubtedly a sad situation, for any institution which embraces as many lives and which has shown the progress through the years as has organized labor should be fully understood and appreciated by the average citizen whether or not he has a direct connection with it.

Indisputably the men and women who belong to branches of organized labor should take steps to clear away the veil which separates so many of their fellow citizens from the right view of the situation and they should be ever watchful and solicitous that their leaders make the right moves to aid them. For these reasons the Plainman believes that drastic action should be taken by the miners' union in the situation in Colorado.

That Man on Avenue Q says he saw one of his old sweethearts today and that he hated to take her at her present fair value.

Anyone will tell the truth if you make him mad enough.

Sunday has changed from a day of rest to a day of restlessness.

Here lies the body of little Willie Peet. His parents failed to stop him from playing in the street!

That Man on Avenue Q says it's all right for a president to choose not to run but it's damn poor philosophy for a pedestrian.

Mayor Thompson suggests Soldiers' Field as an appropriate spot for the Democratic convention. It would prove a saving if they haven't taken the ring down yet.

Perhaps one reason why more politicians don't throw their hats into the ring is that they like to talk through them.

Revolt In Mexico Wasn't Unexpected And Rebels Feared Olvaro Obregon, Dutcher Says After Thinking It Over

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer. WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Most informed persons in Washington expected that there would be an armed revolt in Mexico, but few thought it would develop so early.

President Calles had so often and so insistently promised that he would keep his hands off the presidential campaign and allow a free election that the general belief was that military activities would be postponed until after General Serrano and Gomez saw how the election resulted.

Serrano and Gomez, however, apparently shared the general belief that Olvaro Obregon would be elected. Whether they had any hope of fair and free elections is difficult to decide from this distance, but it is likely that they would have been justified in such hope because Obregon is such a popular hero in Mexico that strong men would not need to shoot him.

Friends of Mexico in this country were anxious to see the revolt put down and have supported the drastic Calles in executing many rebel leaders. If it should be proved that Calles deliberately provoked Serrano and Gomez into insurrection, their opinion doubtless would change, but it appears that Calles merely proved his strength and foresight and beat his enemies "to the draw."

If Calles had been captured he undoubtedly would have been treated the same way. Although it is true that the Mexican people are not yet well along the road toward what is known as civilization and that rebels are being killed off quicker than they would be in this country—perhaps there is every justification in Mexican law for the numerous recent executions.

The victims presumably are being shot down in accordance with the law of Maximilian, dated 1867, which provided that anyone should be shot who was taken, arms in hand, against the constituted government.

Emperor Maximilian himself had this law passed to enable him to deal with his Mexican enemies and he enforced it against many of the leaders in the warring faction led by the Mexican patriot, Benito Juarez.

Then, when Maximilian himself was captured, Juarez, who had been president and who claimed Maximilian's reign was illegal, invoked the law against the emperor, and Maximilian died before a firing squad because he had been taken prisoner.

For Europe is still very poor. Even Paris, rich by contrast, thanks to tourist trade, lacks general prosperity. Most folk are content to live from hour to hour, a few "tramps" too "carelessly" looked about by tourists, is greedily "sold" upon. London, being "bigger," seems even poorer and when you hear the shop girls tell of their few shillings a week, you wonder how they live.

A fur coat on an American woman actually causes faces to turn pale and, in an out of the way city, the display of money in any quantity still causes an uneasy change of glances.

On the other hand, the European sees the American spending money and that's all he needs to know. In spite of the high rents, food costs and such the American still seems to have enough money to get across the ocean, whereas the

PLANT PECANS AND ROSES

The time for planting trees will soon be here, and the time for thinking about tree planting is already here.

Trees, flowers and shrubs should be planted methodically and carefully. From the innumerable varieties that are available, the home owner should choose those which thrive best in the climate, which most nearly conform to the requirements of the space available, and which will produce the best effect in connection with trees and shrubs already planted and growing.

The florist or nurseryman is always glad to give information as to planting methods, as well as to help with suggestions for cultivation during the warm weather when the plants are growing. No experience is required, therefore, if one exercises ordinary care in the selection and planting and is willing to accept advice as to cultivation.

From the large number of trees that thrive here, the Bulletin would give first choice to pecans as shade trees or to fill any vacant spaces about the home yard. Pecans grow thickly with but little attention, they provide excellent shade where shade is desired, and within a few years the young trees begin producing delicious nuts that amply repay their owner for any time or money devoted to their care.

Of all the flowers that should be selected during the winter season, none is better than the rose—for roses grow luxuriantly in this climate, require less cultivation and less water than most flowers, and there is no other blossom that excels it in fragrance or beauty. There are hundreds of varieties of fine roses that may be secured from local florists, the plants costing from ten or fifteen cents to a dollar or more, according to the variety and size of plant, and home owners who want to beautify their homes could not do better than to buy a dozen or more fine rose bushes this winter and plant them according to the florist's directions. Of the shrubs there are dozens of varieties from which one may make selections, and some of them cost more than the average home owner can afford to pay.

Trees and shrubs and flowers about the home increase its attractiveness and its actual value, and add materially to the enjoyment of those who occupy it. This is the time to plan the winter planting, and careful planning pays big dividends in money and in satisfaction.

COTTON OPENS FAST; PICKING DEMAND GREAT

2,500 PICKERS NEEDED IN THIS VICINITY NELSON ASSERTS

Urged by the penetrating rays of "Old Sol," a fleecy white carpet is gradually covering the South Plains and demanding the attention of practically every individual in this section. Especially is the demand for gatherers of the harvest in evidence, says R. F. Nelson, special agent of the U. S. employment service who is stationed in the Chamber of Commerce office in the city hall.

2,500 Pickers Needed
Twenty-five hundred cotton pickers are needed in Lubbock and its immediate trade territory, he said this morning as he bustled himself with placing a number of transient workers with farmers of this section. Calls came in this morning from Littlefield, Ralls and other nearby towns for hundreds of pickers. Ralls reported that they could easily use 1,600 pickers in the immediate future.

The workmen are drifting to this section rather slow, Mr. Nelson reports and indications point toward a slight shortage of hands. He requests that all farmers needing pickers who have not already made arrangements for men to make applications to his office where they will receive the first men to come to town.

Cotton Opening Fast
The cotton is opening mighty fast, Mr. Nelson said this morning after he had made a tour of this section yesterday. A light frost would aid the cotton to open he said and would be of much benefit to the crop now.

C. W. Woodman, state director of the service at Fort Worth, reports to Mr. Nelson that he is sending numbers of workmen to this section during the next few days. Farmers wanting pickers now should get in touch with Mr. Nelson at the city hall.

Hundreds of pickers are headed toward the South Plains every day, according to D. F. Eaton, county agent who has just returned from the Dallas Fair.

Favorable Weather
"This is the most favorable cotton weather I have ever seen," Mr. Eaton said, "and there is no reason now why we won't make a good crop." There are ten or fifteen thousand bales in the county which learn of this salad as it is one that appeals to men and that may be prepared so quickly that "even though she has been out spooning all morning with another man, a woman may feed this salad to her husband and convince him that she has been at home preparing it for hours."

These foods are in keeping, however, with this experts teachings on economy. In each lecture, she demonstrates the makings of foods for every purse, showing what may be prepared for "elaborate" occasions, but more often exhibiting the preparations that will appeal to the average housewife who must each day plan tasty and different meals to tempt the palates of her family.

Developed Fudge Cake
The fudge cake was developed by Mrs. Chitwood after several months of experimenting. Her fondness for fudge candy making it evident that she find a food that would not be so fattening as the candy. This cake tastes and looks as much like fudge candy as another food can, she explains, and is more desirable since it does not fatten.

The school will begin promptly at 2 o'clock each day, except Friday, when it will be conducted from 9 until 11 o'clock in the morning because of the Tech-A. and M. game that afternoon. Closing at 4 o'clock each day, the school will permit the beginning of the regular Lyric picture show programs at that time.

This cooking authority's lectures for Friday morning is to be "How Wives may Make their Husbands Love Them," she said this morning.

Drawing upon a wealth of experience, gained through traveling throughout the nation conducting cooking schools, Mrs. Chitwood said this morning that she was ready to refute any laudatory theories that the way to a man's love was not through his food.

To Buffalo, N. Y., Next
When she has completed her school here this week, Mrs. Chitwood is to go to New York to conduct demonstrations for the Buffalo Times. She was in Tulsa last week and before going there conducted schools in Houston and Shreveport. At Houston her lectures were broadcast.

The lesson this afternoon dealt with pie crusts and frozen desserts. She demonstrated a "struggling bride's crust" and gave rules to follow in making perfect pastry and pies. A coffee soufflé pie was demonstrated and the recipe given to those in attendance.

The rest of her lecture concerned the difference between ice cream and mousses and the demonstration of an angel parfait, the recipe having recently been worked out by this expert. "The only thing wrong with this dish is that one can never get enough," according to its originator.

Women who come to this school are to bring paper and pencils in order that they may copy the recipes that will be read by Mrs. Chitwood and take notes on her lectures on food selection, marketing, preparation and serving as well as principles of home making.

Auto Bullet-Riddled
As soon as this was determined, the authorities whose fears had been roused by the finding of the party's bullet-riddled automobile in which the bodies of two dogs, their throats slit, were found, sent their emissaries out to seek the release of the two men and two women carried off Saturday as their automobile crossed the deadline of "safe" district on a hunting trip.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
 A woman's gloves and handkerchiefs found at the scene of the murder, are traced to Miss St. Clair. When Markham questions her and threatens her arrest she is flippant and uncooperative. Markham delays in questioning her and VANCE realizes she could not have killed Benson. By means of measure at the scene of the crime, VANCE undertakes to ascertain the identity of the murderer.

HOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XX
 "The subject is not exactly an interesting one," said Markham, "so for the sake of argument let us admit that you have reached the precise point of the gun's position. Where do we go from there?"

"I hold the string on a line," directed Vance, "enough to measure the exact distance from the floor to the knot. My secret will be known. This game doesn't enthrall me. Markham protested. "I'd prefer London Bridge," he retorted. He made the measurement, eight and a half inches, he announced indifferently. Vance laid a cigaret on the rug point directly beneath the lamp.

"Now we know the exact height which the pistol was held when fired. You grasp the basis by which this conclusion is reached, I'm sure." "It seems rather obvious," answered Markham. Vance again went to the door and opened it. The district attorney desired the use of your gun for a moment," said. "He wishes to make a test."

"Snitkin stepped up to Markham and held out his pistol wonderingly. The safety's on, sir, shall I turn it off?" Markham was about to refuse the offer when Vance interposed. "That's quite all right, Mr. Markham doesn't intend to fire it—let me." When the man had gone Vance placed himself in the wicker chair and placed his head in juxtaposition with the bullet hole.

"Now, Markham," he requested, "will you please stand on the spot where the murderer stood, holding the gun directly above that cigaret on the floor, and aim deliberately at the left temple. Take care," he intoned, with an engaging smile, "not to pull the trigger or you will never learn who killed Benson."

Reluctantly Markham complied. He stood taking aim. Vance asked him to measure the height of the gun's muzzle from the floor. The distance was four feet and six inches. "Quite so," he said, rising. "You, Markham, you are five feet, seven inches tall; therefore the man who shot Benson was very nearly your own height—certainly under five feet, ten." That, Vance is rather obvious, what?" His demonstration had been simple and clear. Markham was frankly impressed; his manner had become serious. He regarded Vance a moment with a meditative frown; then he said:

"That's all very well, but the man who fired the shot might have held the pistol relatively higher than I did." "Not possible," returned Vance. "I've done too much shooting myself to not know that when an expert aims deliberately he does it with a stiff arm and with a slightly raised shoulder, so as to bring the sight a straight line between his eye of the object at which he aims, the height at which one holds a revolver, under such conditions, pretty accurately determines his own height."

"Your argument is based on the assumption that the person who shot Benson was an expert taking deliberate aim at a small target?" "Not an assumption, but a fact," returned Vance. "Consider: had the man not been an expert shot, he would not—at a distance of five or six feet—have selected the forehead, but a larger target—namely, the breast. And having selected the forehead, he most certainly took deliberate aim, or he would, in all probability, have fired more than one shot."

Markham pondered. "I'll grant that, on the face of it, your theory sounds plausible," he conceded at length. "On the other hand, the guilty man could have been almost any height over five feet, ten; for certainly a man may crouch as much as he likes and still take deliberate aim."

"True," agreed Vance. "But don't overlook the fact that the murderer's position in this instance, was a perfectly natural one. Otherwise Benson's attention would have been attracted, and he would not have been taken unawares."

"That he was not unawares was indicated by his attitude. Of course, the assassin might have stooped a little without causing Benson to look up. Let us say, therefore, that the guilty person's height is somewhere between five feet, ten, and six feet, two. Does that appeal to you?"

Markham was silent. "The delightful Miss St. Clair, you know," remarked Vance, with a japing smile, "can't possibly be over five feet, five or six."

Markham grunted, and continued to smoke abstractedly. "This Captain Leacock, I take it," said Vance, "is over six feet—eh, what?"

Markham's eyes narrowed. "What makes you think so?" "You just told me, don't you know," I told you!"

"Not in so many words," Vance pointed out. "But after I had shown you the approximate height of the murderer, and it didn't correspond at all to that of the young lady you suggested, I knew your active mind was busy looking around for another possibility. And as the lady's inamorato was the only other possibility on your horizon, I concluded that you were permitting your thoughts to play about the Captain."

"That he, therefore, been the stipulated height, you would have said nothing; but when you argued that the murderer might have stooped to fire the shot, I decided that the captain was inordinately tall."

Thus, in the pregnant silence that emanated from you, old dear, your spirit held sweet communion with mine, and told me that the gentleman was a six-footer, no less."

"I see that you include mind reading among your gifts," said Markham. "I now await an exhibition of slate writing."

"His tone was irritable, but his irritation was that of a man reluctant to admit the alteration of his beliefs. He felt himself yielding to Vance's guiding rein, but he still held stubbornly to the course of his own previous convictions."

"Surely you don't question my demonstration of the guilty person's height?" asked Vance mellifluously.

"Not altogether," Markham replied. "It seems colorable enough. But why, I wonder, didn't Hagedorn work the thing out, if it was so simple?"

"Anaxagoras said that those who have occasion for a lamp supply it with oil. A profound remark, Markham—on of those seemingly simple quips that contain a great truth. A lamp without oil, you know, is useless. The police always have plenty of lamps—every variety, in fact—but no oil, as it were. That's why they never find anyone unless it's broad daylight."

Markham's mind was now busy in another direction, and he rose and began to pace the floor. "Until now I hadn't thought of Captain Leacock as the actual agent of the crime."

"Why hadn't you thought of him? Was it because one of your sleuths told you he was at home like a good boy that night?" "I suppose so," Markham continued pacing thoughtfully. Then suddenly he swung about.

"That wasn't it, either. It was the amount of damning circumstantial evidence against the St. Clair woman. And, Vance, despite your demonstration here today, you haven't explained away any of the evidence against her. Where was she between twelve and one? Why did she go with Benson to dinner? How did her handbag get here?"

"And what about those burned cigaret butts? And I can't admit convincing me—despite the fact that it is convincing—as long as I've got the evidence of those cigarets to contend with, for that evidence is also convincing."

"My word!" sighed Vance. "You're in a positively ghastly predicament. However, maybe I can cast illumination on those disquieting cigaret butts."

MANY CARS ARE PROVIDED FOR AT EXHIBITION

ANNUAL GUARD SHOOT ON JOHNSTON RANCH TO BE COLORFUL

Parking space for 1,000 cars, affording an excellent view of both runs and targets, will be available for firing exhibition which will be staged by the local battery of the 131st field artillery of the Texas national guard at Bud Johnston's ranch, 12 miles southeast of Lubbock, on October 30. Capt. H. H. Griffith, commander of the battery, said this morning. The shoot will be given just below the caprock about a mile south of the ranch house, Captain Griffith said, and the cars may be parked on nearby hills.

Good Exhibition
Indications point toward a good exhibition, he said, as there will be more ammunition fired this year than ever before in an exhibition given by the battery. Two hundred rounds of French 75 shells will be fired from a complete battery of four guns and five thousand rounds of machine gun bullets will burn out from two machine guns of the battery. Tracer bullets, which may be seen easily, will be fired from the machine guns.

The firing will hold sway about four hours, Captain Griffith said, the exhibition to start soon after 7 o'clock Sunday morning. The battery will go to the site the night before and set up for the firing early Sunday.

Many Visitors Expected.
A large number of out-of-town visitors are expected for the shoot including about 35 members of the Plainview battery and artillery men from Merkel, Abilene, Amarillo and other nearby guard units. Capt. Alpha Brummage, instructor of the 131st field artillery for the state, will be here for the exhibition which is being given not as a celebration but is prescribed for the guard work by the war department.

Ten Drunks Fined On Week-End Here

Drunkenness apparently was prevalent in Lubbock Saturday night and as a result ten dizzy headed youths woke up in the county and city jails Sunday morning. They were corralled by officers late Saturday night. Four arrested by the city officers paid fines of $15 while six arrested by members of the sheriff's department were taxed $16.70.

Traffic System At Fort Worth Big Aid

FORT WORTH, Oct. 24 (AP)—The electric traffic control lights have practically driven traffic accidents from the business section here, according to Lieutenant C. L. Green of the police department.

"Before the lights were installed we had ambulance call after call to pick up pedestrians who had been knocked down at intersections," Lieutenant Green said.

"Since the lights were installed and pedestrians and automobile drivers have learned to obey them, it is a very unusual thing for an accident to occur in the business district."

Such accidents do develop are usually due to carelessness of pedestrians in starting across a street before the lights give the proper signal, said Green.

Academics Popular At School Of Mines

AUSTIN, Oct. 24 (AP)—By far the great majority of the 882 students enrolled this year in the University of Texas school of mines at El Paso are taking academic courses, it is shown in the official report of enrollment made to President H. Y. Benedict of the university.

Only 121 men and one woman are taking engineering. Eighty six men and 139 women are taking geologic regular courses, and 207 men and 228 women are taking academic irregular courses.
