TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIERS DIE WHEN PLANE IS UPSET

PILOTS TRAPPED IN THE COCKPIT OF HUGE MACHINE

HAD ENTERED FLIGHT

SHIP TURNS OVER IN MUD WHEN FORCED LANDING MADE

(By The Associated Press) NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Apr. 26.—Lieutenant Commander Davis and Lieutenant Staiton Wooster, naval aviators, were killed today when the giant biplane in which they had hoped to cross the Atlantic, flipped over in making a landing in a marsh near here.

Both airmen were trapped in the cockpit which was submerged in mud and water.

Officers from Langley field who reached the machine a few minutes after it had turned over said they found that Davis had been crushed about the face and that Wooster's neck had been broken.

A naval court of inquiry convened in executive session late today in an attempt to ascertain the cause of the accident, after that it always takes under the circumstances.

Davis and Wooster, both of them graduates of the naval academy, met death in the plane in which they had planned to compete for the $25,000 Orteig prize for the first non-stop flight between New York and Paris.

The plane, recently chartered by the American Legion by the wife of Commander Davis, was carrying a load of 16,000 pounds.

Attempting their first flight in the ship with such a load, Davis and Wooster, in getting the ship off the ground, lifted about 100 feet in the air, then turned toward the earth—750-plane made a good landing in a marsh near Messick, a fishing village on Neck River, but after going about 125 feet through the mud its tail lifted high in the air and it flipped over.

Lieutenant K. O. Boucher, field engineer of the Wright airplane corporation said "one of the gasoline tanks broke loose from its mooring when the plane crashed. This let gasoline into the cockpit, but just how much no one knows. It has been reported around the field that the men died of gasoline fumes, but no one knows this to be the case."

Graves of Veterans Are Decorated by Friends of Confederates At Cemetery Here

Observing Confederate Decoration Day, by order of the commanding officer, members of the Daughters of the Confederacy at local veterans decorated the graves of 16 departed heroes at the Lubbock cemetery. Flowers were placed upon the graves of all of the confederates who were buried at the cemetery. If this happened, anyone knowing of a veteran whose grave was not decorated yesterday, if the names are handed to P. Eberhart, they will be decorated May 29, National Decoration Day.

The following veterans' graves were decorated yesterday: D. Adams, J. P. Jones, J. P. Boyd, J. H. Clark, K. F. Dickinson, Harold Green, C. W. Holt, G. Jarrett, L. M. Knight, J. D. Neal, G. H. Overton, W. E. Pevny, J. R. Robinson, G. M. Royalty and S. W. Wilkinson.

Respiration Forced For Youth 130 Hours

ROANOKE, Va., April 26.—(AP)—Walter Boothe still clung tenaciously to life tonight after nearly 130 hours of artificial respiration.

Already the 15 year old farm boy had lived far beyond the time doctors allotted him. Since noon last Thursday, Boothe has lain with arms, legs and lungs paralyzed. The attack came as he was about to undergo an operation for a dislocated vertebrae, the result of an automobile accident last May.

Boothe seemed "brighter" today, attendants said, but they refused to speculate on how much longer he might hold on.

His father, and mother Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Boothe, of Haymarket, Va., are constantly at his bedside.

FEDERAL ROAD AID RESTORED TO TEXAS

SIX MILLION TO BE ALLOWED STATE THIS YEAR FOR HIGHWAY WORK

(By The Associated Press) AUSTIN, April 26.—Restoration of federal aid to the Texas highway system and approval of tentative allotments of federal road money made by the new state highway commission tonight was announced by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the national government's bureau of roads.

Aid was withdrawn from the state during the last Ferguson highway commission's term when the federal bureau became dissatisfied with the financial condition of the state department.

The official announcement closed a conference with the state highway commission which lasted all day. The highway commission has satisfied the bureau as to the maintenance of those federal aided roads purposely built, which have been inadequately maintained. A program for the use of federal aid in Texas in the work of reconstruction and a new construction has been agreed upon generally.

Before announcement of the state, federal aid had been tentatively made by the highway commissioner in line with this program and will be approved at once, MacDonald said.

Six Million Aid About $6,000,000 in aid will be available to the state this year and about $4,000,000 for 1928, the discrepancy being caused by the fact that the state this far this year has received no allotments.

All tentative allotments of federal money, made by the highway commission and totaling about $3,000,000, will be approved immediately by the national bureau, MacDonald said. State aid that has been allotted by the commission to match federal money.

Action Follows Conference MacDonald was accompanied in the conference by E. W. James, his assistant; A. K. Losh, federal engineer over the division including Texas, and P. H. Everett of Austin, resident engineer for the government in the restoration of aid was made, the commission allotted about $1,322,122 federal aid and about $788,471 state money to projects in various counties. Allotment made to Montgomery county this morning was cancelled later in the day when it was ascertained the county has not sufficient money to pay its share.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 26.—(AP)—Ray Raymond, musical comedy actor who died after being beaten by Paul Kelly, rival for the affections of Raymond's wife, Dorothy MacKaye, was buried today. The funeral services were attended by a score of street actors and actresses who crowded into the funeral procession.

Miss MacKaye, who has maintained an absence from grand jury hearings on the strength of physicians reports that forbid her leaving home, attended the funeral of her husband, the actress, father, supported her on his arms and a nurse also accompanied her. After viewing her husband's body, Miss MacKaye collapsed and was unable to follow the body to the grave. She was rushed to her home where she was reported in a serious condition.

POLITICAL LEADER DEAD

James R. Nugent Dies in Trenton After Operation Performed in Hospital There

TRENTON, N. J., April 26.—(AP)—James R. Nugent, of New Ark, former democratic political leader, who helped break Wilson's gubernatorial campaign with him, later died tonight.

Mr. Nugent had been at the hospital here since November 29 last. A week ago he underwent an operation for intestinal toxemia.

An chairman of the democratic state committee Mr. Nugent attempted what was considered almost impossible in 1916, when he became a leader in the move to nominate Mr. Wilson for governor. In less than a year he was deprived of his office as state chairman at the demand of the man who he had helped make governor.

His intense loyalty to Senator Smith who had been won over to the Wilson cause by George Harvey, forced him to put personal feelings, Mr. Nugent had the difficult task of directing the Wilson campaign for governor. It was he who induced Joseph P. Tumulty, who served 19 years as Mr. Wilson's secretary, to join the campaign.

Selection Of Jury In Bribe Case Slow

AUSTIN, April 26.—(AP)—With only 15 prospective jurors selected out of 27, in criminal district court, before which H. H. Moore, expelled former member of the House of representatives, is facing trial on bribe taking charges, the tribunal recessed late today with prospects that no jury can be empaneled until late Wednesday.

An additional venire of 60 men was ordered summoned to report in the morning and those qualified were instructed to return Wednesday at 2 p. m.

Opposing attorneys said they expect to qualify a maximum of 22 veniremen to allow possible full exercise of the compulsory challenge on each side, which would leave 12 jury men.

Defense counsel repeatedly asked prospective veniremen today whether they would give any greater credence to the testimony of Texas rangers than to "ordinary officers."

Two rangers testified before a house investigating committee to arrest F. A. Dale, former representative indicted jointly with Moore, after Dale had accepted, allegedly with Moore's concurrence, $1,000 from W. W. Chamberlain lobbyist, for unfavorable influence on an optometrist tax bill before a house committee.

GREY CONFESSION TO BE READ COURT

MRS. SNYDER'S PART IN THE SLAYING OF HUSBAND IS RECOUNTED

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, April 26.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder's confession that she joined with Henry Judd Gray, her clandestine lover, to "get rid" of her husband, Albert Snyder, and stood by while "the job" was done was read into the record today at the trial of the woman and man. Just before court recessed until tomorrow the way was paved for the introduction of a confession attributed by the police to Gray.

The confessions have been repudiated by the defendants on the ground that they were obtained under duress and coercion, and the legal strategy of the trial thus far developed has been an apparent effort of each to place the blame for the slaying of Snyder on the other.

Mrs. Snyder's confession was read by George V. McLaughlin, former New York police commissioner, who appeared to tell of admission made to him by Mrs. Snyder and Gray of a part in the killing.

Mrs. Snyder's attorneys objected vigorously but ineffectually to the reading of the document, and it was disclosed that two of its pages did not bear the signature of Mrs. Snyder. The confession detailed that relations between the husband and wife had been strained over a period of years and Snyder had threatened to take her life. She obtained this confession, the document recited, and he had asked her if her husband "really meant it."

Told that he would do anything in a fit of temper, the two agreed they would have to "get rid of him."

"If my husband had not threatened to take my life we would not have thought of taking his," she was quoted, "I was in love with Mr. Gray and he loved me."

Former Commissioner McLaughlin told of Gray's statements in connection with the crime. The former police official attributed to Gray statements concerning Mrs. Snyder with the actual commitment of the crime. That when he attacked the sleeping man that Snyder offered some slight resistance and grabbed Gray "by the necktie causing him to drop the weight Gray was quoted as saying, "Ruth picked up the weight and beheld her husband."

RADIO SLAYER TO DIE Floyd Hewitt to Be Electrocuted for Slaying of Woman and Small Son Last February

JEFFERSON, O., Apr. 26.—(AP)—Floyd Hewitt, 16 years old Communist boy, whose penchant for the radio was directly responsible for his arrest for the slaying of Mrs. Cella Brown and her little son, Frederick, last February 14, was sentenced today to die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary August 19.

He was found guilty of first degree murder without mercy by a jury of eight men and four women. The jury required but one hour and five minutes to reach a decision.

Floyd's confession, in which he related how he had been in the habit of going to Mrs. Brown's home at night to listen to the radio and how he killed the woman and her five year old son when she repulsed his advances, was accepted by the jury as truth.

ARMY OFFICIALS AGREE AS EMERGENCY IS APPARENT

DEATH TOLL MOUNTS

RELIEF MEASURES ARE BADLY NEEDED BY REFUGEES

(By The Associated Press) NEW ORLEANS, April 26.—Governor O. H. Simpson tonight issued a proclamation declaring that a public emergency exists and ordering the creation of an artificial break in the levee of the Mississippi river near Poydras at noon Friday, April 29.

Jadwin Agrees Major General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, announced tonight he would approve the proposal of an emergency flood crevasse at Poydras, ten miles south of New Orleans, if the Mississippi river threatens to inundate that city.

The Mississippi river commission tonight approved the request of the state of Louisiana and the city of New Orleans to make an artificial crevasse at Poydras, below New Orleans, in case the flood warrants the emergency.

Emergency Matter The Poydras crevasse will not be made, it was announced by a committee of New Orleans and Louisiana representatives, who met Secretary Hoover, unless an absolute emergency to prevent the flooding of the city is created.

In his telegram to the commission and General Jadwin, Secretary of War Davis said the war department would assume no responsibility nor any financial liability for the break.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge would surely like to know where she's going to live this summer, and has asked a few officers around the White House to let her know if they hear anything about it. That's the latest Calves-mouthed Cal story which is going the rounds. It may be true or not. It probably is true. Mr. Coolidge has quite a reputation for telling his family what they shall do, rather than consulting them as to what they will do. Which is just one reason why some of us wonder if being married to a president is so much after all!

QUEEN BESS'S CORSET

Now the archaeologist have unearthed something which they declare to be the corset worn by Queen Elizabeth, the virgin queen. The whalebone garment may be seen in a London museum. It will give all the wisecrackers a good chance to remark that now they know why Bess remained the spinster queen. The remark that she was not rather than one of her corsets indicates that age's ideas of personal chastity as contrasted with ours. The girl next door was saying this morning that she simply must get another corset. She has only four.

THEY LIKED SPINACH

Two good women were talking together, as women will. They were talking of their husbands' pet foods and the way things had to be fixed to suit them. One lady disserted on how her husband liked spinach if it was cooked a certain way. I don't know just what that way was, Any way, it was a peculiar way, perhaps it was smothered in onions, perhaps the husband liked his spinach with whipped cream and maraschino cherries. Anyway, if he liked his spinach well done in so peculiar a fashion that the other woman in amazement quipped, "Why, that's just the way my husband likes it!" They proved to be the same husband.

The most likely to be one of several things—it might be that a man with such peculiar tastes as spinach with whipped cream should stick to one wife or it might be that if he must have two he should try to select ladies who did not know one another and converse together, or it might be that ladies should not discuss their husbands' gastronomic tastes and thus dwell in a state where ignorance is bliss.

NO 36'S

Where is the perfect 36? So asks the National Wholesale Women's Wear association which complains that the makers of women's dresses are working with only a myth, a tradition, a legend, that the 36's and 42's which they have used for models in these many years do not exist anymore and that new standards of measurement must be found and used.

THAT FOOD BILL

A woman of Norway got herself in Dutch for issuing a cute little cook book with the boast that if her nourishing recipes were followed, any family of four would eat well for $25 a month. Her native hills and hills rise up in wrath. Wives who have it hard enough as it is explaining the grocery bill to ignorant husbands, murdered her. Husbands applauded and told her they always had thought a smart woman could set her table for lots less than they do. Even the socialist party almost massacred her. They said she was a tool of capital, seeking to prove how little a working man needed. And all because she was intelligent enough to do what other intelligent women could do if they worked hard enough at the job! The U. S. Bureau of Home Economics decries that $10 a month for four is the minimum American food bill. And any number of women here will protest that figure as fiercely as Norway protested Mrs. Meddell's $25.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

Breakfast: Sliced oranges and bananas, cereal, cream, creamed dried waffles, maple syrup, milk, coffee. Luncheon: Roast beef, mashed potatoes, zucchini rolls, chocolate bread pudding, milk, tea. Dinner: Broiled calf's liver, twice baked sweet potatoes, omelette, salad, rhubarb meringue pie, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

While calf's liver is considered the best, beef, lamb and pig are also used and not as high in price. Beef liver is not so nutritively tender and delicately flavored as calf's liver but is very good. Liver of any sort contains vitamins that give it particular value among meats. Science has discovered that liver has a curative effect in cases of pernicious anemia.

Baked Calf's Liver

Two pounds calf's liver, 1-2 pound sliced bacon, 2 large onions, salt pork flour, salt and pepper.

Use the whole liver. Cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes. Drain and wipe dry. Put on rack in roaster. Peel onions and cut in thin slices. Cut a thin slice of salt pork about the size of each onion slice. Put a slice of pork under a slice of onion and cover the liver with wooden shavings. Dredge with flour, sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake one hour in moderate oven. Drain bacon cut in very thin slices until browned. Serve liver on a bed of hot broiled rice seasoned with salt, pepper and butter and garnish with beans.

A Real Realm of Women

JERUSALEM, April 25.—Woman in ancient Palestine was never the bear of burden that she was in some of the other eastern countries. And the new Palestine, being created today, in accordance with the Balfour Declaration, is living up to this tradition of woman's equality. Indeed, the beautiful seaside of Nahalal, near Haifa, first settled by the Zionist hosts of the only all-woman's colony in the world.

Here, a group of one hundred and fifty women rule supreme, themselves doing everything from cooking to tilling fields and laying roads.

The colony was established several years ago by a group of young Jewish girl graduates from Europe, who came to Palestine enthusiastic to "do their bit" towards the re-establishment of the national Jewish homeland. They found hundreds of young women, working side-by-side with the men, doing every form of the earth, pioneer work required in building up a new country.

But these newcomers, influenced, perhaps, by current feminine emancipation ideas, felt that the women workers were merely assisting—playing "second fiddle"—to the men. They felt that the women should have an opportunity to make their own individual contribution to the reconstruction work. They believed that an all-woman's colony would result in the creation of a type of woman pioneer who could act as a leavening influence in the women's world of the new Palestine.

Co-operative Government

With this end in view, on a stretch of ground given by the Jewish National Fund, the Women's Colony was established. It is governed on a co-operative basis. Not only do women cultivate the fields, but some of them are designated with the responsibility of disposing of the crops. All of the roads in the new colony were laid by the women. At the colony, too, is a splendid agricultural school, where, between their working hours, the girls receive thorough training in the sciences of agriculture. Each year they elect their own "queen" or head of their

Operators Predict Extension Of Noodle Creek Pool On Showing Of Formation

Special to The Avalanche. ABILENE, April 26.—A probable extension southwest of the Noodle creek oil pool in southwestern Jones county is forecast by many operators who are in touch with developments in this section.

Morrison and Thompson's No. 1 Mrs. Alice Ross, section 28, block 19 T, and P. survey, 1-1-2 miles southwest of the fartherwest, south producer in the Noodle pool is now drilling past 2,000 feet and the formation found down to the present depth have been closely in accord with the logs of the producers in the proven area. Many predictions have been made here during the past week that production would be found in the Rose test at the Joe Winter pay level, found in the Noodle area at around 2,525 feet.

Test Closely Watched
This test is being given close attention by the fraternity in this section as it is bearing the depth at which the pay is expected. Should this test prove a profitable much territory to the southwest of the proven district will be developed.

In the Noodle creek field the Phillips Petroleum company's No. 4 Joe Winter, now drilling at around 500 feet is being watched with much interest. This well is only 40 feet north of the same company's No. 2 Joe Winter, which is producing oil from the 2,525 foot level. This No. 4 well will not stop at that depth however, even should production be found, but is to go below 4,000 feet as a deep test to further check and explore the pay strata found at 2,025 feet. In Marland oil company's No. 2 Mason, which is producing some 100 barrels daily from that depth. The Marland well was the first test in the Noodle area that missed the 2,525 foot pay and was drilled down from that level as an experiment. The pay sand below 3,000 feet was drilled into unbreached and as a result a stream of water found slightly higher has never been successfully cased out and even now the oil coming from the well carries some water. The owners of No. 4 Joe Winter expect to be on the lookout for the 2,525 foot pay strata and when the bit approaches that level precautions to keep out water will be taken. Many oil men believe that if the water trouble can be eliminated that a heavy prodigy will be gotten in the Winter well, which is a direct offset west to Marland's No. 2 Mason, the deep producer.

Phillips' No. 1 Thornton, in the southwest corner of the pool, and which missed the pay at 2,525 feet is now fishing for a last bit at 2,525 feet. This test is also to go below the 2,000 foot level in an attempt to pick up the deep pay.

Dry Hole
Atlantic Oil Producing company's No. 2 Howell, west of the same owners No. 1 Howell, a 15-barrel well failed to pick up pay at the 2,525 foot depth and after drilling to 2,525 feet is shut-down waiting for further orders. This test is southwest of Phillips' No. 1 Thornton.

Morrison Oil company's No. 1 Winn, southeast of Atlantic's No. 1 Howell is drilling at about 2,450 feet. This well has been making very favorable showings.

Phillips' No. 4 Treadle inside the proven area is drilling past 1,700 feet, stabilizing oil and gasoline company's new strike No. 1 Hick, W. T. Trent survey, No. 22 in east central Jones county, in which a new and pure oil sand was struck last week at 1,525 feet has been put on the pump this week and is regarded as good for between 5 and 25 barrels a day. On Wednesday of this week, while the tools were being set in the hole, preparatory to putting in the pump, 30 barrels of oil flowed from the hole in 2-1/2 hours. If this well holds up on the pump it is certain that other wells will be cased during the next six weeks. This well will be closely watched by all operators in this section.

Another Test
Midwest Exploration company's No. 2 Howell, west of the same owners No. 1 Howell, a 15-barrel well failed to pick up pay at the 2,525 foot depth and after drilling to 2,525 feet is shut-down waiting for further orders. This test is southwest of Phillips' No. 1 Thornton.

Morrison Oil company's No. 1 Winn, southeast of Atlantic's No. 1 Howell is drilling at about 2,450 feet. This well has been making very favorable showings.

"Illegal Loan" Puts Officials In Motion

An "illegal loan" on one of the walls of the court-room just behind Judge Clark M. Mullican's desk resulted in considerable scurrying about in the court house, on the part of officials there.

Under a carefully planned system of signals, a number of officials were used to call the different officials to the third floor, while a buzzer summons them to court at the second floor. During court someone leaned against the signal buzzers in an idle moment, thereby sending members of the sheriff's office, the District Clerk and other persons to see what was wanted.

CONTROVERSY

There are some people who are adverse to controversy. Some times controversies are not altogether pleasant, but we are of the opinion that they are sometimes essential to bringing about certain things that possibly would not be accomplished otherwise. We are confident that controversy, argument, furnish the seeds of progress, and the 'shush-h-h' method of dealing with problems—social, religious, political, or personal—never resulted in anything but stagnation or degeneration. Christianity itself was founded upon controversy, and how many centuries the civilization of the world would have been retarded had Christ and His disciples said: "Shush—we mustn't say anything; it might start an argument." America was discovered through controversy. It was settled because of controversies, by those who insisted upon argument and fighting for ideas and ideals. The United States itself is the result of controversy. If Odams, Franklin, Washington, and their fellows had said: "We mustn't talk about the right to tax without representation; King George might not like it," there would not have been any United States. The emancipation of the slaves was delayed for at least a generation because of the 'shushers' who insisted that it was wrong to discuss the slavery problem, because someone might differ with their ideas. The element of humanity that will not fight for a principle for fear of creating discord is a drag on progress. To adopt the attitude of 'sh-sh-shush' when a vital principle is involved is as futile as it is cowardly. Business itself is based upon controversy—and competition. Life itself is controversy and competition. The publication that is confined to the 'sh-sh-shush' school of thought gets nowhere. It is contributing nothing to advancement, to progress, to constructiveness in this world. The yes-man of business politics, church, or society merely seeks the easy way that the panderer and the court clown followed in older days. If a matter of principle is involved, if factions, parties, or individuals honestly differ on any problem of public or private policy, the best way is to thrash out the matter openly. The fact is that the 'shushers' have been the most fertile cause of wars in the past, because, by their own attempts to keep quiet and force others to keep quiet, they have created an atmosphere of doubt, distrust, and suspicion. Test it yourself: How often, after nourishing a hatred or enmity for years, have you discovered some fact that altered the whole situation and caused you to say: "If I had known that I would have acted differently?" We all do it. We cannot avoid controversy. Even the writer who criticizes us is guilty of indulging in the very thing to which he objects. Since controversy is unavoidable under any circumstances, we prefer frank, open discussion, because in every controversy a thinking person may gain something of value from the other fellow, even if he does not admit himself wrong.

TRADE

In commenting on the conditions of the markets and the condition of the country from a foreign trade angle the New York Times has issued a statement in which it says that three statements issued by the Government last week threw interesting light, each in its own way, on the singular situation of the United States in relation to the rest of the economic world. One of them reported an excess of exports, in the nine completed months of the fiscal year, amounting to $630,000,000, as against barely $500,000,000 in the same months of 1913 and 1912. Another gave the export of American cotton during March, which was the largest ever sent out in that month. The third was the report on the stock of gold held in the United States. The total at the beginning of this month, $4,595,000,000, surpassed all previous figures; it compared with $3,080,000,000 at the end of 1918, and with $1,887,000,000 in August, 1914. Notwithstanding the fall in price caused by the unprecedentedly large American cotton crop of 1926, the recent monthly value of our cotton export has been nearly $11,000,000 above that of a year ago and $25,000,000 above 1913. Prices of cereal products also have been falling because of a larger yield; yet, as against the $494,000,000 worth of all foodstuffs exported from America in the calendar year 1915, the value of last year's exports of the kind footed up $838,000,000. To this large increase in our agricultural exports must be added an export of finished manufactures during 1926 which, valued at $1,958,000,000, contrasts with $780,000,000 in 1913. This large increase in our export trade—much larger even than would be explainable by the 45 per cent increase of average prices over the pre-war figure—indicates the nature of the problem created by our present economic relations to the outside world. It is true that imports have at times increased more rapidly than exports, as compared with years before 1914. There have been months in the past three or four years in which imports exceeded exports. But these turned out to be temporary incidents; the average annual merchandise export surplus, even since the fall of prices in 1921, has been close to the pre-war figure. Prior to 1914 it was roughly estimated that the annual payment of the United States to the outside world, apart from trade in goods or specie, was $500,000,000. That requirement had to be met either by the surplus of merchandise exports or, in default of a sufficient excess in that quarter, through export of gold or sale of our own securities abroad. The immense indebtedness incurred by foreign countries to America during and since the war has reversed the position. Today, yearly advances of nearly $1,000,000,000 of American capital to foreign markets barely balance the account—even with the movement of foreign gold to the United States very large, as it has been in all but one of the past six years. The investment of American capital in foreign securities is a natural incident of our position as a crediting State; but it does not clearly point the way to the longer future, because that very process must increase the annual payment due to the United States on account of the accumulating debt. It is recalling familiar history to show that England solved a similar problem early in the Nineteenth Century, through change from a surplus of merchandise exports to a very large import excess, created mostly by importation of foreign food and raw material which England could not produce at home for her increasing industrial population. But the United States itself is today the world's largest producer of food and materials of manufacture. For the most part it not only supplies its own requirements for such products, but is a necessary recourse for foreign consumers of them. The resultant situation has been reflected in the heaping up of gold in American reserves, at a time when the existing home supply appeared to be superfluous and when nearly one-half of the total world's stock of gold was already held in the United States. Solution of this economic problem seems at the moment to be as far away as it was in 1918. European economists have occasionally harped on the certainty that this overflowing gold supply would drive up prices for American goods so that our foreign sales would slacken and our purchases abroad increase sufficiently to turn the balance. But no such movement of American prices has occurred, and no such change in our merchandise trade. Furthermore, with each successive adjustment of the European war debts an additional payment to the United States, reaching eventually to large proportions, will be imposed on the outside world. Even at the end of 1926 the payments made to date for interest on such obligations had aggregated $485,000,000 and, on the basis of the funding plans, the total annual interest will in due course range between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000. This is one of the numerous considerations in the existing situation which leads to doubt whether the existing financial arrangement of the war indebtedness can be considered permanent.

Another Name for Charity
Dr. Shailer Mathews, dean of the University of Chicago divinity school, lately said: "Religion does not consist of believing there is a person sitting in the heavens known as God. There is infinitely more to religion. It gives a constructive aim to life; makes life worth while. A person who sees reason and something like purpose in the universe, although he may deny the existence of a supreme personality, I cannot call an atheist."
Perhaps there would be a more general disposition to exercise a like tolerance were a clear conception of what constitute true religion the rule. By a natural and easily explicable mental process, many a sincere, devout believer falls into the error of confusing the outward forms of worship with its substance. Probably there never has been an age in which this was not done. Jesus found striking occasion to condemn the practice in His day, and now many identical false doctrines and like misinterpretations of Truth are established in authority and perpetuated in His name.
Religion—as The Master taught—does not consist in open profession of faith, in protestations before men, in the paying of tithes. Rather, true religion means humility before God and an earnest resolve to do His will, with no thought of winning approbation other than from one's own consciences.
Considered apart from the mystery of man's relationship to Infinity and Eternity, religion might be defined as a devout attitude toward life. It embraces first a profound conviction that existence here and now is not purposeless nor by mere chance, but that one has a mission. Such an interpretation as that contained in the poet's line might suffice—"Life is real, life is earnest."
However vexed by doubt, a man still can pursue in reverent spirit, that can make life worth while. As Maeterlinck has written, one may carry to skepticism as deep a devotion, so sincere a hunger for truth and so overwhelming a sense of the mystery of creation as to constitute a faith in itself. "Abide in the simple and noble regions of thy life; obey thy heart," Emerson counsels.
That would be to attain the spiritual heights. Perhaps it would not win popular applause; but true religion can be indifferent to the crowd's praise or blame. In itself it is an infallible well-spring of strength and peace. The world still is deceived by ornament, as Shakespeare makes Bassanio say. Sham and hypocrisy may command rich recompense while true worth often goes unrecognized. However, each carries its own rewards; the choice depends on whether material or spiritual values are to be most highly esteemed.
The true test of religion is the life which its possessor leads, not outwardly, but stripped of all masks. It is another name for what Paul calls charity—for what Abou Ben Adhem professed as love of fellowmen.

Great Host Of Boy Scouts Leave Soon For Summer Camps
With the opening of the summer camping season only about a month distant a host of Boy Scouts are eagerly looking forward to making the summer of 1927 the busiest camping months in the history of Scouting. Hundreds of Scout camps located in every state of the Union are already preparing for the forthcoming invasion. Councils in many of the larger municipalities have started work on greater and better camp projects to replace established camping locations of last year, many of which grew outgrown before the season had ended. Careful estimates indicate that more than 250,000 Boy Scouts will be in camp during 1927. The majority will be in summer camps.
It is estimated that fully 275,000 Boy Scouts had outing periods in organized camps last year. More than 5,500 boys attended camps maintained by First Class Scout Councils. In addition to these there were thousands of boys in camps maintained by 2nd Class Councils, by troops not under any council, and at independent group camps generally. Thousands more enjoyed week end camps and winter camps.
Camping facilities for every boy with every boy a camper are objectives of the Boy Scouts of America. The Scouts carry on educational merit badge activities at most camps and at each there are important instructions in swimming and in life saving. While exact statistics are not yet available, computations indicate fully 30,000 boys were taught to swim last year. More than 14,000 swimming merit badges were granted to Scouts who developed swimming proficiency at First Class Scout camps in 1926.

HOG AND SLOW POKE
Speed, both slow and fast, are what make driving on the highways so dangerous. That's the discovery of the traffic committee appointed by the Chicago Association of Commerce.
This committee finds that road hogs aren't the only selfish drivers to watch. There are the slow pokes, who creep along at 10 miles an hour, but insist on taking the middle of the road regardless of others.
The result is an attempt to pass such slow drivers on the right as well as on the left, having a sliding hinge that they won't suddenly decide to get over toward the side of the highway.
The horn is many a case, used to be ineffective. There's no law that affects them. They go serenely on.
Police, however, might make it a practice to harass such slow pokes, so they would the road hog and speeder, and charge them with obstructing traffic.
This might not only cause the slow driver, but it might the better eliminate the necessity of taking dangerous chances by cutting around them or passing them to the right.

We think that gallantry must be on the wane. We read today where a groom ran away from his bride and left with another dame. How cruel.
We think about the only class of people who are fearful of China and the United States getting into war are the fellows who would make a billion or two of dollars should the two nations tangle up.

We think it would be no nice if everyone of our readers would believe everything that they read in the Avalanche.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
EVERY TOWN MUST HAVE A STOP LIGHT
These smart city fellows have nothing on us. We're small, but we're up to the minute. A sign on the corner reads "Stop for the Bull." And it will let you wish to get in it. We're all the improvements our town is complete. We're not very large, but we're thriving. And now we've installed our own "busiest street" A stop light to regulate driving.

Plight Of Refugees Becomes Desperate As Flood Menace Of Mississippi Worse

Correspondent entered Arkansas City today to find most of the town's population of 2,000 huddled on the levees. Homes were floating about in from ten to twelve feet of water.

Mayor C. C. Hemmingway requested the correspondent to send out an appeal for food, clothing, other supplies and boats to aid in rescuing several thousand persons whom he said were marooned in the rural districts.

"Please tell the world that we need food, boats, shelter, tents and bedding," the mayor said. "There are five hundred refugees here who want to leave. All of the people on the levee are in dire need. Any aid you can send the stricken town will save lives and give our everlasting thanks."

Medicine Needed

"We are anxious to get medicines also, in order to prevent any outbreak of disease. There are some cases of fever, but the health situation so far is comparatively good."

Mayor Hemmingway told of the crowding of two negroes in the capsizing of small boats and also gave a graphic picture of the rescue of two white boys from Cleveland, Miss., who hung in trees for eighteen hours after their motor boat had been swamped.

The mayor also asserted that motor boats which had gone on rescue missions in the flooded rural district reported dozens of homes swept away with their occupants unaccounted for.

New Break Occurs

OSCEOLA, Ark., April 26 (AP)—A break in Kochitike levee near here today is releasing a huge volume of water over a wide area in which is the plantation of former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

The break is 50 feet wide.

New Orleans Alarmed

NEW ORLEANS, April 26 (AP)—The largest city in the south and second port in the nation, today was forced to apply for relief from its greatest asset as the raging torrent of the Mississippi swept down the river.

Governor O. H. Simpson, after making a telegraphic request for permission from the war department to cut the levee below New Orleans in order to relieve the ramparts protecting the city from the strain to which the prolonged highwater has subjected them, attended conferences of engineers and business men to discuss plans for cutting the levee near Poydras.

The governor declined to make any statement for publication and the public in New Orleans was kept in ignorance concerning the steps being taken to alleviate the situation.

The proposed crevasse would be about 2,000 feet wide and near the scene of the break in 1922 which flooded 70,000 acres of farming and trapping lands in Plaquemine and St. Bernard parishes. Engineers believe that a crevasse which would lower the level at New Orleans three feet, since only 600 feet wide cut down the river stage in New Orleans almost two feet in 1922.

Vigorous protests came today from both the section which would be inundated by the break and from the upper delta. While the farmers in St. Bernard and Plaquemine parishes would only lose one season's efforts, the trappers in the territory affected would lose two or more seasons of work since the flood waters would kill many fur-bearing animals.

Proposal Protested

Intense indignation at the proposal was registered at a mass meeting held at Brithwaite in Plaquemine parish. More than 400 persons headed by Judge Leander H. Perez and Sheriff L. A.

Mereaux denounced the artificial spillway proposal.

Sheriff Mereaux declared that "in spite of all assurances to the contrary every one here knows that when the crevasse has been made you will get nothing in remuneration." Judge Perez denounced the proposal as unfair to the residents of St. Bernard and Plaquemine parishes, but expressed the belief that the war department had authority to authorize the break.

Compensation Demanded

"Therefore, he said, we should take every measure to insure adequate financial compensation for any loss that may be sustained through such a break. We are facing a situation such as never before existed in our history. We have been imposed upon. At the conference held last night only two representatives from this district were present. They did not want any more."

"New Orleans has not given the parishes of St. Bernard and Plaquemine a square deal. They have been plotting to break the levee here for many days. We are seeking simply a square deal and we haven't got it."

Committee Named

A committee was designated with full power to act for the two parishes in the matter of assessing property for the purpose of procuring reparations or to draw up protests which would be forwarded to the president of the United States, the Secretary of War and the Mississippi river commission should an agreement not be reached.

From various other sections of the state came reports of disapproval of the proposed levee break. Citizens of the upper delta contended that a break so far down the river would not relieve them and that it should be at Morgana or some other point in that section of the state.

Other Breaks Protested

Any move to break the levees at Morgana, however, would bring instant protest from Baton Rouge and other cities in that neighborhood since a crevasse in that vicinity would flood a wide area of rich farming lands and probably inundate several good sized towns on its sweep toward the Atchafalaya and the Gulf of Mexico.

Meanwhile the lesser tributaries of the Mississippi were flooding sections of the state. Two sections of Alexandria, La., felt waters from the Red river today and boats and rafts were brought into service to move families out of the inundated districts.

New Breaks

Water streamed through some sections of the Enterprise levee at several places and other section were being sand bagged while a levee is being thrown up to prevent the flood water from spreading over the Red river island farm lands. Farmers began moving out of the island district several days ago.

Red river parish continued to bear the brunt of the rise of that tributary, however. Half a mile of tracks of the Louisiana railway and Navigation company had been washed away near East Point, 33 miles below Shreveport, and service was discontinued. Several thousand acres of low lands were under water in the neighborhood of East Point and Crichton, other towns in northeast Louisiana continued preparations to meet the rising waters in Bayou Bartholomew, Bouffert river and Bayou Macon.

The entire Louisiana National guard was ordered out tonight by Adjutant General L. A. Toombs. The order, General Toombs said, was a precautionary measure to meet any possible outbreak of disease.

Disease Breaks Out

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 26 (AP)—With several cases already reported, Monticello tonight was taking every measure to prevent an epidemic of typhoid and malaria among the hundreds of refugees now being taken care of there. Emergency wards have been established and serum is being rushed to check the spread.

First reports of the disease were brought here today by Lieutenant Griff McSwine of the government flying forces, who said there were 2,000 negroes and 1,000 white refugees being taken care of there. Of the white people, four fifths are women and children, he reported.

LAMESA, April 26—The city water rates of Lamesa are to be materially reduced. Their dreams in this connection are to be realized for the city through the efforts of an engineer of San Antonio has worked out a plan whereby the costs of obtaining an inexhaustible supply of water will be minimized.

The present city commissioners comprising Mayor R. E. Simpson, M. C. Lindsey and Judge C. P. Rogers have worked consistently for the past two months to bring about this reduction. It is believed according to these officials that when the experiment is finished Lamesa will have perhaps as low if not the lowest water rates in this section.

Floydada Observes State Products Week

Special to The Avalanche

FLOYDADA, April 26—Texas industrial week is being observed in Floydada this week in a very fitting manner. An all-Texas luncheon was served the members of The Floydada Luncheon club at their regular meeting Monday noon. Local speakers were placed on the program and gave short talks on the progress and growth of the Lone Star state. Merchants are displaying Texas manufactured or Texas produced products in their show windows competing for a cash prize offered by the chamber of commerce for the best decorated window.

Members of the Luncheon club enjoyed a very pleasing program in connection with the lunch. E. N. Tawater and T. E. Stevenson told of the many advantages offered in Texas not found elsewhere also calling attention to the members to the fact that Texas leads in the production of so many different products yet the same products are shipped from the state in the raw material and shipped back in the finished product. The Floydada high school sextet gave several selections closing their program singing "The Eyes of Texas."

Jack Rabbits Are Victims Of Drives

Special to The Avalanche

LAMESA, April 26—Jack rabbits are mourning the loss of great number of their species in this section. Farmers are playing havoc with these animals. Hundreds gather in the various communities to participate in what is known in this section as the famous "Rabbit Drive."

The most recent drive in this section was in the Three League community, twenty-seven miles southwest from here. Business men and farmers by the scores gathered in this community to enter this sport. A great time was reported, a big dinner and more than 500 rabbits. As a result of this drive it is hoped that the farmers of this community will have less damage to their crops by these pests.

Eight persons were arrested in the past when a riot broke out over the awarding of a prize for dancing.

Arrested for drunkenness, James Morrison and Thomas F. Keller of Chicago, each 35 years old, said they were just out "on a little tear."

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BILLY WELLS, head of the glove department of the mammoth Curtis Store, NYDA LOMAX, WINNIE SHELTON, and seven other girls, almost every one exceptionally pretty, win prizes in a second intriguing contest staged by T. Q. CURTIS, the millionaire store owner.

Billy participates in these contests over the protests of CLAY CURTIS, son of the millionaire. Clay suspects his father of a hidden motive and he feels that the contests will result in something unexpected and perhaps unpleasant for the participants. Clay has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family in the poor section of the city, working in a factory by day and studying music and composing at night. Billy is also suspicious of Old T. Q. Curtis.

Just before Billy gets a note informing her she is one of the prize winners, she has a customer—a man, Oriental looking, impeccably groomed—who entralls her with his smiling smile, his entrancing tones. She is still under the spell of his strange presence when she goes to Curtis' office. There she learns that the prizes in this contest consist of an invitation to the Curtis mansion for dinner at a near date, and the gift of an evening dress and slippers for the occasion. When Billy picks out her dress she feels the repetition of a premonition that came to her in the late afternoon—a premonition that all of this is vitally important to her; that it has bearing on her future, on Old T. Q., and on the strange man she has served at the glove counter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XV

ALL during supper on Thursday Billy was in such high spirits that even Clay, who had been moody and silent since she had told him and her mother of the prospective dinner party in T. Q. Curtis' home, smiled in sympathy.

"Had a man on my lunch hour today," she announced. "And what do you think? Old T. Q. evidently thought there was something in my suggestion for the improvement of the store, for he has announced that beauty parlor rates to the girls are to be just one-third of the charge to the customers. Isn't that nice? Think of getting a manicure for twenty-five cents! And the operators are forbidden to take tips from the saleswomen. T. Q. going to make up the difference to the beauty parlor people. So, little Billy ain't so dumb!"

"You'll be managing the store, yet," Clay protested. "Leave the dishes a while mother," Billy begged, as she pushed back her chair. "And you two nice things go into the living room and make love to each other while I get a surprise ready for you. And mind—peeping mother!"

Fifteen minutes later she lifted to the door of the living room, and looked on for a moment with misty eyes at the sight of her mother and Clay Curtis doing exactly as she had commanded them—making love. The boy's legs were stretched on the worn carpet, his tired head rested on her mother's knees, and her mother's gentle, work-marked fingers were stroking his temples.

"Sorry to interrupt," she called softly, "but you've got to tell me if I'll do—fab the party?"

She had brought the dress home that evening, and had smuggled it and her evening pumps and silk stockings into her room.

As Clay sprang to his feet, and Mrs. Wells clapped her plump hands like an excited child, Billy revolved slowly before them.

"Perfect, Billy! I'm going to set you to music in that dress. And I'll call it 'Dance of an Autumn Dryad.'"

"That's one of the things I love about you, Clay," Billy twinkled her blue eyes and winked her nose at an unperceived Billy. "You do see and say exactly the right things. It is like dancing maple leaves in autumn, isn't it mother?"

But Clay had no more to say in words. He went to the piano and began to compose a lilting, gay little piece that set to music the delicate charm of the dress. Billy listened, her eyes bright with tears of gratitude and love.

A few minutes later Billy left the room to remove the precious dress before even one tiny chignon had shouldered and when she returned, she was a more ordinary but still charming little figure in a green and white checked gingham house dress. Without a word to Clay—her mother had retired—she took her violin from its case and began to tune it for their inevitable hour of music.

"Ready?" she spoke at last.

Clay took his place at the piano, still without a word for her.

She cocked a merry, speculative blue eye at him as she began to play, but she could make nothing of the expression of his face. It was neither angry nor wondrous nor gloom that she read there; it was nearer to profound thoughtfulness. As they played piece after piece, however, the magic of it won him from his mood, so that when the hour was up she saw that his face wore that uplifted, proud look that only music could give there.

"When she was putting her violin tenderly and carefully into its case, she was startled to hear Clay say, in a strained, unnatural voice:

"Would you mind letting me see a copy of the essay you won the prize with?"

"Why, no, of course not, Clay. I thought you'd rather not see it. You hated my doing it so. Mother tucked it into the family Bible, I think. Yes, here it is."

He took it and went to the fireplace to lean against the mantle as he read. When he had finished and looked down at her, as she sat in the big chair before the fire, she was startled and troubled to see a mist of tears over his eyes.

"It's a crime for Dad to handle a fortune! Give your eyes and then jerk me back, giving you a fifty-dollar dress for your dreams," he said her fiercely.

"But I never had even a fifty-dollar dress before," Clay said to himself. "And writing the essay made me realize that I don't want great wealth—I'm grateful to him for that. Just as I said, all I want is money enough for a really fine violin and for the best of instruction. For myself, I mean; of course mother needs comfort, security." She paused and grinned at herself. "Let's not take it so seriously, Clay. It's sweet of you to mind, but I'll win my chance somehow. And if I don't—well I can always play for myself and for mother."

"Billy," he dropped suddenly to his knees and took her little hands—"You've got to have your chance! You're great—a genius. I couldn't believe it at first. I listened to pick flaws, for fear I was letting my friendship for you run away with my judgment. But, Billy, if I know music—and God knows I ought to, for I've heard enough of it and spent enough money learning it—if I know a great violinist when I hear one, then you're a genius. You'd do anything to win your chance, wouldn't you—anything?"

Billy laughed, a little shakily, for her blood was racing madly in her veins. "You mean something dramatic like selling my soul to the highest bidder? I'm afraid there aren't any bidders, Clay. If this were a movie now, there'd be a rich villain pursuing me. It's a little difficult to imagine old T. Q. pursuing seven pretty girls, all at the same time, isn't it?"

"I wasn't thinking of T. Q. that is directly," he acknowledged. "But this whole business of the food contests has set me thinking."

"You've been showing the strain of the unusual exercise," she teased him. "Listen, Billy. He gripped her hands hard against his breast. 'I can do it for you. You know that, don't you? Don't crinkle your funny little nose at me.' It was his turn to laugh shakily. 'I don't mean on my wages as a factory hand. But you know I can go back to Dad any time I want to. You said yourself Tuesday night that his eyes were haunted with loneliness. And he told me I could come back any time. If I give up this—this experiment of mine, will you go back with me? As my wife? Dad would be terribly pleased. He likes you. He'd do anything for you, give you all and more than you've dreamed of in this essay of yours. Billy, will you?"

"You mean—you'd give up your own dream—for me? Because I have gentleness?" she asked slowly, tugging to release her hands.

"You've got to have your chance, Billy," he reiterated stubbornly. "It's in my power to give it to you. You're more important than I am."

"And you think I'd accept your sacrifice? Let you acknowledge defeat, so that I might be hated along my own little private path to glory? What a noble creature you must think I am! No, thank you, Clay. I'll earn my own chance—or work in a department store for the rest of my life. I'll not let you give up your fight for my sake. I'd despise you if you did."

"This is really funny!" Clay Curtis rose to his feet, then turned sharply to bury his face against an arm outstretched along the mantle. "One girl turns me down because I'm no good without my father's money, and another because I'd be no good with it. And I'm the wise young man that swore he was through with women. Billy rose, her knees shaking so that she could hardly stand. She took one step toward him, to fling herself into his arms, but something stronger than the love which made her faint with longing for him held her back. With an enormous effort she made her voice sound casual, friendly, cool.

"I'll never forget what you were willing to do for me, Clay. You are the wise young man who was through with women—and you're going to be wise until you've won the fight you had courage enough to start. I don't count, Clay. Forget about me. I'll manage. You can't keep a good girl down." She forced her stiff lips to smile in imitation of their old impudence.

"You'd rather take help from my father than from me?" He raised his head to stare at her with hard, angry eyes.

"There's no doubt about it—I'm a wicked woman," she grinned at him, hoping desperately that he could not read heartbreak in her eyes.

"You know what I mean! You're no fool! You know as well as I do that T. Q. Curtis is giving that dinner party for a purpose. He's planning to play God in your life—"

"How? How?" she demanded angrily, but fear shrilled her voice. (To be Continued)

The next chapter: T. Q.'s dinner party. Billy's premonition about the stranger with the hypnotic eyes proves well founded.

WRIGHT BOOK COMES TO SCREEN AT LAST

Samuel Goldwyn paid $125,000 for the screen rights to Harold Bell Wright's best selling book "The Winning of Barbara Worth," which comes to the Palace theatre in film form next Thursday. It was the avowed intention of the pioneer film producer, when he and director Henry King purchased the film rights in New York, that the story should lose none of its sweep, none of its dominating power and dramatic appeal in the transmuting process.

To carry but this idea successfully, Goldwyn assigned Frances Marion, famous scenarist, to do the scenario for the screen version. She worked for six months, while studio technicians toiled over various pre-production angles and Mr. King traveled more than five thousand miles seeking a typical and realistic location, which he found on the desolate but impressive Black desert of Nevada.

The film version preserves each great incident of the novel, including the thrilling ride of William Holmes and Abe Lee with the money to pay striking workers in Jefferson Worth's struggling town of Barba, and the terrific sandstorm which orphaned the tiny Barbara.

NOTICE TO THE PEOPLE OF LUBBOCK COUNTY

This is to notify all parties who have property in the named tract for the year 1927 to come in and render their property for taxes at the office of R. C. Burns Tax Assessor, or to any one of the assistants and render said property as all property must be rendered not later than first of May, and all property not so rendered will be closed.

Each year there is considerable error in assessment occasioned by parties failing to render their property to the Commissioner's Court a day of unnecessary work in making adjustments or errors in assessment which is going to have to be remedied so for that reason I am calling your attention to this matter and advising you that no errors assessments will be recommended by the tax assessor and your property will have to stand on the tax rolls as it is assessed.

To save yourselves the extra money you might have to pay by reason of your property not being assessed right, and to get away from the bad practice of having to make so many adjustments in your valuation we will advise to properly render your taxes.

Yours very truly, R. C. BURNS Tax Assessor

DAILY MARKET

COTTON DECLINES

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Reports of better weather in the south and circulation of the first May notices seem responsible for realising or liquidation in the cotton market here, and prices followed. July contracts which had sold at 15.42 at the high point of yesterday, declined to 15.08 and closed at 15.12, compared with 15.23 at the close of the previous day. The final tone of the market was barely steady at net declines of 16 to 22 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 12 to 18 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. Further buying on the Mississippi valley situation railed prices several points after the opening. October selling off from 15.42 to 15.52, or within 5 points of yesterday's closing quotation.

Circulation of May notices estimated at 146,000 bales brought in a good deal of May liquidation, and prices turned easier during mid day on the favorable weather news which seemed to create rather a more hopeful view of the flood situation.

Trade interests were good buyers of May at 26 to 28 points under July, which suggested that the notices were being gradually stopped, but some were reported still in circulation during the afternoon and there was an apparent difference of 25 points at the close of the day before. May sold off to 14.89 and October to 15.26 in late trading. Last prices were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest on most positions.

Private cables attributed the decline in Liverpool to hedging, with local, London and Bombay selling, but said there was improvement in light cotton cloths for India.

Exports of May 21, 1927, making 8,502,523 as far this season. Port receipts 15,175. U. S. port stocks 2,126,481.

COTTON GOODS STEADY

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Cotton goods held steady today with funds of moderate proportions in unfinished cloths. Yarns held fairly steady and were in light demand. Raw silk was firmer abroad and unchanged here. Printed silks and well. Dressings were steady and quiet.

COTTON OIL TRADES SLOW

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Cottonseed oil was less active and irregular today over a narrow range, averaging lower on liquidation in May and July, coupled with commission house selling. In sympathy with the decline in cotton, which offset the firmness of lard. The close was 2 to 15 points lower. Sales 17,200 barrels. Prime crude 7.25; prime summer yellow spot 8.40; May closed 8.78; July 9.31; September 9.58; October 9.60; November 9.55.

COTTON LIQUIDATES

NEW ORLEANS, April 26 (AP)—Liquidation and hedging accounted for the decline shown in cotton prices today after a vain attempt was made to steer upward. Large tenders for May deliveries in New York of 134,000 bales was a helping influence to the weakness of prices. Today was first notice day for May deliveries. Tenders for May in the local markets amounted to only 5,400 bales.

First trades showed losses of 6 to 9 points and after a brief spurt upward of 5 to 7 points, prices again turned downward, losing 12 to 13 points. A last minute rally of 3 to 7 points on flood news from northern Louisiana cut down losses and the market closed at net losses for the day of 9 to 16 points.

October closed at 15.20 and December 15.43, 17 to 19 points below Monday's close. Exports for the day totalled 23,057 bales.

WOOL SALES

BOSTON, March 26 (AP)—Good strictly combing graded half blood 58-60's territory wool selling at 1.00 to 1.02 for the average quality lots are moving at 97 to 1.00, scoured basis. Dealers and buyers both report that similar offerings of the grades are rather small to moderate quantities.

SUGAR IS QUIET

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—The raw sugar market was quiet today and in absence of business prices were unchanged at 4.51 for Cuban, duty paid.

There was not much activity in raw sugar futures. Early sales of 1 to 3 points on covering and a little outside buying, attracted liquidation and trade selling, followed by reactions; the market closing 1 point higher to 1

COFFEE LOWER

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Coffee futures were lower today under trade selling and liquidation which appeared to be inspired by the easier showing of Rio and prospects for better flow on contract next month. July sold off to 12.50 and closed at 12.53, the general market opening at a decline of 5 to 14 points and closing 15 to 20 points net lower. Estimated sales 27,000 bags. Closing quotations: May 13.42; July 12.52; September 11.82; December 11.50; January 11.20; March 11.15.

Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7s 13.4 to 15.7; Santos 4s 17.12 to 17.14.

RAIL PROFITS

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—The pamphlet report of the International Great Northern railroad for 1926 shows net income of $84,636 transferred to profit and loss, an increase of $27,185 over 1925. Railway operating in groceries were $2,761,896 larger. Freight revenue gained $1,894,891.

RAIL EARNINGS LESS

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Net income of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico railway for 1926 was $679,604, smaller than the year before, $326,361 having been transferred to profit and loss after dividends of $1,028,295. Railway operating revenues increased $1,751,864. Freight revenue gained $1,518,217.

STEERS SLOW

FORT WORTH, April 26 (AP)—Beef steers sold on a slow market again today, but other classes of cattle were disposed of to a moderately broad demand. Cows and yearlings displayed slight strength while calves held to a good steady level. Hogs ruled 10 cents to 15 cents lower, while not enough sheep and lambs were here to make a market. Receipts called for 2,800 grown cattle, 700 calves, 1,200 hogs and 1,000 sheep.

HOGS SLOW

CHICAGO, April 26 (AP)—Hogs 24-88; slow, steady to 10 lower; top 16.70; lights 16.40 to 16.70; mediums 16.10 to 16.50; butchers 8.55 to 10.30; sows 8.75 to 9.10; pigs 8.55 to 10.35; estimated holdover 11,000.

Cattle 8,000; steers and she stock steady to strong; steers 9.75 to 10.75; light yearlings 11.50; heavy yearlings 10.60; stockers and feeders steady to weak at 8.00 to 9.25; bulls 10 to 15 lower; vealers 25 to 50 higher at 9.25 to 9.50.

Sheep 8,000; lambs steady to strong; woolled lambs 16.00 to 16.50; clipped lambs 14.75 to 15.25; sheep steady; woolled ewes 8.00 to 9.00; clipped ewes 7.50 to 8.00.

WORDY ARGUMENTS ARE FEATURE OF FIRST DAY'S HEARING

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, April 27.—State's preliminary testimony was disposed of late today in trial of H. H. Moore on bribery charges which caused his expulsion from the house of representatives along with F. A. Dale, and district court recessed until Thursday when some of the main witnesses will be introduced.

Among them is expected to be W. W. Chamberlain, Houston lobbyist for the Texas Optometry association, who testified before a house investigating committee that he gave Dale $1,000 in marked bills with Moore's alleged acquiescence to secure unfavorable report on Moore's Optometrist tax bill then pending.

A jury was empaneled in mid-afternoon and three witnesses heard. Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, identified a copy of the optometrist tax bill and the certificates of election showing Dale and Moore to be qualified members of the house. M. Louisa Moore, chief clerk of the house, and Mrs. V. D. Pugh, calendar clerk, identified certain records having to do with identification of the bill and its course as pending legislation.

State's attorneys indicated that Hanger Captains Frank Homer and Tom Hesterman also will be among the first main witnesses. They told the house investigating committee of arresting Dale as he pocketed $1,000 in marked bills tendered by Chamberlain near the alley side of a local hotel last February 2, a few minutes after Chamberlain-hot-take-charge with Dale and Moore in the latter's hotel room.

Trial of Moore's case, which has been severed from that of Dale, got under way late Wednesday afternoon, after 12 jurors were agreed upon without oral examination additional to that accompanying selection of 25 prospective jurors.

A struggle over whether a committee report attached to Moore's optometrist bill should be allowed in the record developed soon after Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, took the stand as the first witness. T. H. McCreger, former senator, chief defense counsel, insisted that the committee report was foreign to the bill as referred to in the indictment and noted an exception when his objection was overruled. Defense counsel chimed in.
