Cooking up a good Thanksgiving, kid-style

Kindergartners share their ideas on fixing turkey dinner

By Bill McClellan
Managing Editor

What's the average length of time to cook your Thanksgiving Day turkey? And how hot should the oven be?

Just to make sure about those and other Turkey Day questions, Northeast Elementary school teacher Barbara Bowen asked her kindergarten students.

Not surprisingly, the students all agreed that before you can cook a turkey, you have to catch it first.

Riley Raschke suggests walking to the jungle to find one. Ben Gutierrez says the best way is to go by airplane to an Indian town "and they will show you where the cage is at."

Other locations to find a turkey according to the students, are the woods, the farm, the fair, the lake and the forest. Others say you are more likely to find turkeys near water. They suggest a cove, the beach, the ocean and the sea.

Jon Ryan Hernandez has an easier plan. "Go to the Lubbock Mall and find a turkey," he says.

The students have all kinds of ways to dispatch the turkey. Bows and arrows were among the favorites. Knives, pointed sticks, swords and guns were other weapons of choice. Taylor Gibbs suggests a "sharp gun."

The children were pretty consistent in how they plan to go about getting their turkey ready for the oven, although a few were a bit more graphic than their classmates. "Poke his eyeballs out," writes one little girl.

Once the turkey is in the oven, most of the kids don't plan on waiting very long before they start eating. Rebecca Morin plans to cook her turkey for five minutes at 5 degrees; Hunter Perez will try five minutes in a "not so hot" oven; Kristi Massey will set her oven on "hot" for five minutes; Alex Koonce will cook the bird five minutes at 6 degrees.

Others want to cook theirs a little longer. Ben Gutierrez suggests five weeks at "real hot." Jessica Garza plans to cook hers for 15 hours and 100 degrees. Joe Lara said three hours at 10 degrees.

Other suggestions are to cook the turkey in the fireplace or a wood stove. Heather Vasquez says "fry it up."

Joshua Sorrells has a good idea. "Take the turkey to my Grandma to cook."

Jordan Gafford will turn the heat up on his. "Cook it in the oven at 1,000 degrees for 81 minutes," he suggests.

OK, then, how do you eat the turkey, wondered Mrs. Bowen? The kids were quick to answer.

"Eat it with your hands," says Jordan Gafford.

"Eat it by itself," says Yolanda Munoz.

"Eat it by yourself," says Randy Loveall.

Erma Rodriquez will serve hers with chicken and grapes, Gabriel Acosta with "a fork and fries" and Samuel Lee with bacon and corn.

Anthony Shankles plans for lots of trimmings with his turkey. "Eat it with hamburgers, hotdogs, chips, bacon and pork chops," he suggests.

"Have chicken strips with it," says Riley Raschke, "That tastes pretty good to me."

The enterprising Riley also suggests using an arrowhead to carve the turkey's bones and make them into silverware for the meal.

"Eat him with a fork and plate, marshmallows, ice cream and that red stuff. That's it," says Ben Gutierrez.

Kailea Shaw, apparently not so sure about her cooking time of 24 hours at 3 degrees, points out, "We

Lighting of angels set Friday

The angels will be flying Friday night.

In a unique display, 34 handcrafted angels will decorate the square this Christmas season, adding extra color to an already-festive downtown display.

Santa will arrive at the square at 5:30 Friday evening and lighting of the angels and the rest of the lights around the courthouse will take place at 6:30.

Price Daniel Unit inmates provided the labor for the lights, which were designed by chamber manager Donna Fowler. The chamber made light strings and purchased 4,200 lights, sockets and plug-ins, as well as thousands of yards of tinsel and glitter wrap to make the angels.

Ruling on death awaits autopsy

No ruling in the death of 18-year-old Kenneth Brock Allen Gard will be made until autopsy results are received, Scurry County deputy and sheriff-elect, Darren Jackson said Wednesday afternoon.

"We are still investigating the shooting, which appears to be self-inflicted, but accidental," said Jackson.

Jackson also said there is no evidence of foul play, nor do alcohol or drugs appear to be a factor in the shooting, which was reported to sheriff's dispatchers at 4:51 a.m. Wednesday.

Gard, who had graduated from Sndyer High School this past spring, died at a residence located at 5971 FM 1269, approximately three miles south of Fluvanna.

At the time of the shooting, there were nine people in the residence, including Gard.

Deputies, DPS troopers and Snyder EMS personnel responded to a 9-1-1 call early Wednesday after one of the persons at the residence called and stated a friend of his had shot himself accidentally. Jackson said Gard was apparently playing with a .357 caliber pistol when it discharged, striking him in the side of the head.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "What this country needs is a Thanksgiving Diet that takes off five pounds just for good intentions."

It's time to talk turkey. That means talking about, not to, your brother-in-law.

Today is the time that millions of Americans sit down and enjoy a traditional dinner that has been faithfully observed since the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock in 1620.

That's just one of the myths associated with Thanksgiving.

Actually, the main dish at the Plymouth meal was likely lobster, since Cape Cod Bay was swimming with lobsters that often weighed up to 25 pounds. They were so abundant that it was said that even a small child could catch them with bare hands.

The famous feast was likely held in December, a year later. It was called Harvest Festival, after a British custom. The harvest probably belonged to the Indians and was corn, which the colonists lived on for their first three years in the new land.

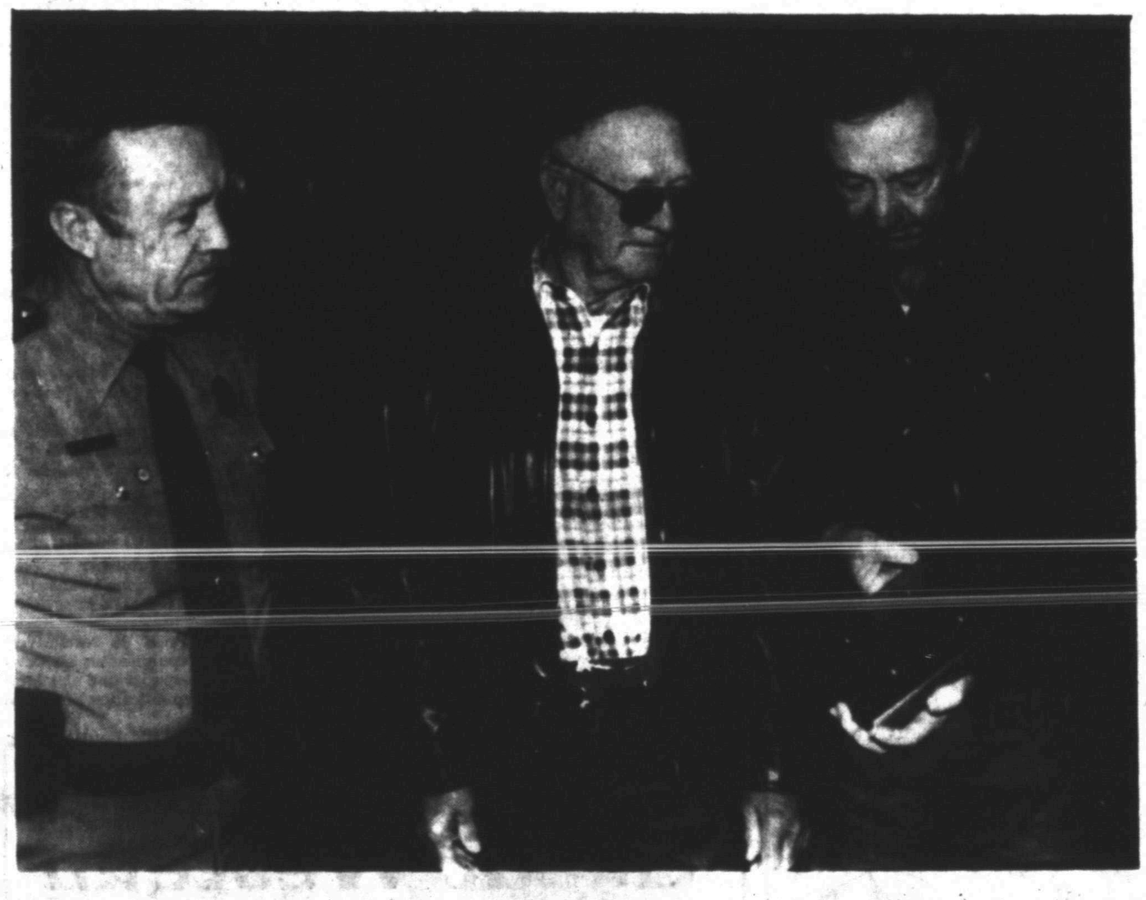

The official proclamation, some sources say, was issued in 1631 by the Massachusetts Bay Colony in Salem. But it was in February, and it was a fast day when people abstained from food.

The holiday was celebrated intermittently and at various times of the year until 1789 when George Washington proclaimed Thursday, Nov. 26, as a day of thanks. He declared it a one-day holiday in 1795.

President Thomas Jefferson opposed the national observance in 1801, citing separation of church and state. In 1863, Abe Lincoln restored the holiday.

It was Franklin Roosevelt who commercialized Thanksgiving. In 1939, in an effort to boost the economy during the Depression, Roosevelt moved the holiday up a week to lengthen the Christmas shopping season. In 1941, Congress upstaged the President and returned the holiday to the last Thursday of the month.

Some say the turkey should have been the national symbol, not the bald eagle. It really doesn't matter, as long as you keep passing the dressing.

Local man honored for saving one's life

Snyder resident Leroy Key was honored with a prestigious Texas Department of Public Safety award Wednesday morning, given in recognition of saving the life of Ira resident Robert Roe.

DPS Lt. Richard Campbell presented Key the DPS Director's Award for his efforts in pulling Roe from a burning pickup on the night of July 3.

"Mr. Key disregarded his own safety in pulling Mr. Roe away from the wreck," said Campbell.

Key was nominated for the award by DPS trooper Cindy Fey, who has since transferred to the Austin area.

In her nominating letter, Fey said she felt Key did something that few people would attempt to do in pulling Roe from the wreckage.

"Most people do not think rationally and they tend to freeze up in situations like these," said Fey's letter. "In a split-second, with no thought for his personal safety, Mr. Key made the decision to pull Roe from the burning vehicle."

Roe, who was at the ceremony this morning along with numerous friends and family of Key, was of course, most thankful.

"He's the reason I'm walking and talking today," grinned Roe.

U.S. economy growing at modest rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy was growing at a modest 2 percent annual rate in the summer, even slower than previously believed, as consumer spending turned in its worst showing in five years and the trade deficit continued to worsen.

The Commerce Department reported Wednesday that the increase in the gross domestic product was far below the sizzling 4.7 percent rate turned in during the spring.

The new 2 percent GDP figure for growth in the July-September quarter was even lower than the original 2.2 percent estimate released a month ago. The government attributed the downward revision to a higher trade deficit than originally estimated and less production going into business stockpiles.

"This is an ideal number. It is not too fast and not too slow. It shows an economy that is in good shape," said Robert Dederick, chief economic consultant at Northern Trust Co. in Chicago.

GOP presidential candidate Bob Dole seized on the original GDP report last month as evidence the economy was starting to slide toward a recession. The Clinton administration countered that the slowdown was welcome because it would keep the economy from overheating and forcing the Federal Reserve to start raising interest rates.

An inflation index tied to the GDP showed moderation as growth slowed during the summer, rising at a rate of just 1.9 percent. That was down from a 2.2 percent rate of increase in the summer and the best performance for this measure of inflation in three years.

In a second report, the Commerce Department said Wednesday that new orders to U.S. factories for big-ticket durable goods edged up 0.1 percent in October as a record jump in demand for communication and electronic equipment offset weakness in the transportation sector.

In early trading, the Dow Jones industrial average was down 16.02 Wednesday following a drop of 19.38 points on Tuesday. This decline followed a string of record closing marks set since the election as investors have enthusiastically seized on the belief that the economy is slowing and this will keep the Fed on the sidelines for some time to come.

In an indication that corporate performance is slowing, the government said Wednesday in a report accompanying the GDP that after-tax profits of U.S. corporations were down 2.6 percent in the third quarter, the weakest showing since a 5.8 percent drop in the first quarter of 1994.

After-tax profits had edged down a smaller 0.2 percent in the spring following a big 6 percent increase in the first quarter.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said Wednesday that the number of Americans filing first-time claims for unemployment benefits was unchanged last week at 342,000.

The 2 percent GDP rate for the third quarter was the slowest growth since a barely perceptible 0.3 percent advance in the final three months of last year.

Harrelson ties up traffic on bridge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Big trees are a big deal to Woody Harrelson.

The actor will be charged sometime next week along with other activists who tied up the Golden Gate Bridge during an environmental protest, John Shanley, the district attorney's spokesman, said Tuesday.

Meanwhile, state Sen. Quentin Kopp proposed making bridge trespass a felony and urged inconvenienced motorists to sue Harrelson.

Harrelson and eight others climbed one of the bridge's towers Saturday and unfurled banners, snarling traffic. They remained aloft for 5½ hours to protest a deal they said would save only 7,500 acres of the 60,000-acre Headwaters redwood forest in northern California.

"Woody told me not only is he willing to face jail, but he's prepared to give his very life to protect those big trees," said Tom Ballanco, Harrelson's lawyer.

The protesters face misdemeanor trespass and related charges and could be fined up to $10,000 each.

Only just in time

After being produced in England for a few years, the annual world championship book is back under the control of the American Contract Bridge League. The book of the 1995 championships was published only a few weeks before the 1996 event took place — not surprisingly, when you see how massive a work it is. In almost 170 pages divided into three columns with smallish type, you receive details of several deals from the qualifying stage, many deals from the quarterfinals, and all deals from the semis (some in abbreviated form) and from the finals.

In the Bermuda Bowl final, Canada had drawn within 13 points with 14 deals remaining. This board put the United States back in control.

Both sides finished in four hearts. In this auction, North's response showed any 4-3-3-3 shape with three hearts and some 13-15 points.

Both Wests led the diamond ace and switched to the club seven: four, 10, king.

Eric Rodwell, for the United States, went with the percentage line in trumps. He played the heart nine to dummy's queen, returned to hand with a spade, and ran the heart six. When East discarded, there were no further problems. Declarer lost one heart, one diamond and one club.

Eric Kokish, looking for a swing, intentionally took a slightly antipercentage line. He played a heart to dummy's ace and continued with the heart queen. Now he lost two trump tricks to finish one down. The Canadian rally was over, the United States going on to win by 43.

SPORTS

WTC cage classic starts this evening

Western Texas College's Lady Westerners are set to host the annual Thanksgiving Classic, unusual this year in that it features a conference matchup.

The three-day tournament begins tonight and runs through Saturday with games at 5:15 and 7:30 at Scurry County Coliseum.

Odessa College takes on Ranger in the tourney opener, followed by Western Texas College and Paris Junior College. Friday's action has Ranger meeting Paris in the early game and Western entertaining Odessa in the second. On Saturday, Paris and Odessa meet in the early game; Western takes on Ranger in the tourney closer.

"I think it will be a pretty good classic. All of the teams are about on the same level," said Lady Westerners coach Anthony Portley.

That Friday matchup between Portley's Lady Westerners and the Lady Wranglers of Odessa is a Western Junior College Athletic Conference contest. The two teams met earlier this month with WTC taking a 58-43 victory.

"We want to win all three games, but you really do have to separate the Odessa game out," said Portley. "It takes a different mindset. We'll have to look at that game a little differently."

Western Texas goes into the tournament at 2-5 on the season and 1-2 in WJCAC play. Portley's teams have played good defense this season, but the offense has yet to come around.

"We started out the season so far behind — my first year here and just getting three girls back from last year — and we're still trying to get our chemistry going," said the coach. "Offense takes longer. It takes more timing, more repetition. We're still trying to understand our different options in a situation. Defense is easier to learn because it has more to do with heart and desire.

"We haven't found ourselves yet, but we are getting close. I can see it coming."

Portley points to Monday's 64-47 loss to South Plains as an example.

"Five minutes to go and we were down by just six points. They (the Lady Texans) were picked second in the conference this year and we were picked last. So I was encouraged by that," said the coach. "We have to learn how to win those games. Right now, we don't know how, but I can see it coming."

Portley hasn't seen Ranger, or tonight's opponent, Paris, but he expects both to be tough.

"They are both good, athletic teams. They have good athletes," he said.

Snyder host to Vernon, Friona 3A grid playoff

Snyder's Tiger Stadium will host Friday's Class 3A regional playoff game between the Vernon Lions and Friona Chieftains.

Kickoff is 2 p.m.

Vernon, 12-0 and a veteran to the grid playoff scene, defeated Bridgport, 33-31, last week to advance. Friona, a 27-6 victor over Monahans, has a 11-1 season record.

Vernon, top-ranked in the state and in the playoffs for the 14th consecutive season, is the home team. Tickets to the game are $6. The Snyder chamber of commerce is hosting the event, and chamber officials said game workers are need.

Friona will be breaking new ground competing in the third round of the playoffs. "We feel like this is a great opportunity to play a team like Vernon," said Friona Coach James Morton. "We have to play an outstanding game and make some big plays in order to have a chance at beating Vernon."

Friona, however, has some impressive stats as well — including a 11-game winning streak after losing the season opener, 21-14 to Littlefield.

Vernon is a big-play team, featuring two backs with more than 1,000 yards rushing. Brenton Gabbert has 1,043 yards on 119 carries and Chad McBride has toted the ball 128 times for 1,036 yards.

Lion quarterback Si Schur has passed for 862 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Friona is paced by running back Andy Kendrick and quarterback Kyle Grimsley. Kendrick has racked up 1,124 yards rushing while Grimsley has 804 yards on the ground and has passed for 970 yards.

Vernon Coach Bill Blythe had wanted to flip for the game site on a home-and-home basis.

Tech unlikely booster...

A&M, Longhorns: a matter of pride

AUSTIN (AP) — Ricky Williams doesn't get nostalgic about running for 163 yards and two touchdowns in Texas' 16-6 victory over Texas A&M last year in College Station.

Williams, a sophomore from San Diego and as laid back as a surfer, could go down in history as one of the only Longhorns not to get riled by the Aggies.

When Williams talks about Texas-Texas A&M — one of college football's fiercest rivalries — he shrugs his shoulders and his voice trails off.

But that's not to say that Williams doesn't want his teammates getting fired up. He loves hearing offensive guard Dan Neil talk passionately in the locker room about his disgust for A&M.

"Some guys like Dan are really open about how much they hate the Aggies," Williams said. "I enjoy hearing that because he's a lineman and I know he's gonna try to kill 'em."

Texas (6-4, 5-2 Big 12) is a five-point favorite to beat A&M (6-5, 4-3) in Austin on Friday — kickoff is set for 10 a.m. CST. Each team is riding a three-game winning streak after miserable starts.

If Texas wins, the Longhorns will represent the Big 12 South in the league championship game against either Colorado or Nebraska in St. Louis on Dec. 7. A&M would be eliminated from bowl contention.

If the Aggies win, Texas Tech will go to St. Louis and A&M will earn a bowl berth, most likely in the Alamo Bowl.

J. Parker named to all-academic team

WEST POINT, N.Y. — Snyder kicker J. Parker and three other members of the Army football team have been recognized for their stellar work in the classroom.

Parker, a 1993 Snyder High School graduate, has been named to the University Division GTE/CoSida academic all-district team.

Army, ranked 26th nationally in the USA/CNN poll and 27th by the Associated Press, dominated the 15-man squad with no other school placing more than two players on the team. Those chosen are now eligible for selection to the national Academic All-American team to be announced in December.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Parker of Snyder, Parker is one of two repeaters from last year's squad.

Parker, a senior, has booted his way into the Army record books this year by shattering the school's consecutive extra point record.

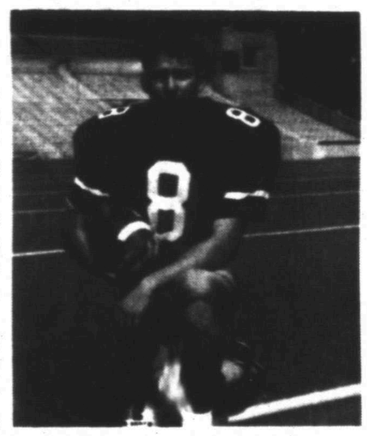

Parker, who has yet to miss a single extra point in two years as Army's kicker, has drilled 75 consecutive PATs, surpassing the former school record of 61 established by Craig Stopa during the 1984-85 campaign. Parker has converted all 39 of his extra points this season after nailing all 36 attempts a year ago.

The single Army season record for extra points is 47, set by Dick Walterhouse in 1944. Parker currently ranks fourth in Army's career extra points and he is tied for fifth in field goals with 24.

Parker has converted 15 of 18 field goal attempts this season, tying the school's single season school record for treys. He is 24-for-31, or 77.4 percent, during his West Point career.

Additionally, he is perfect on 12 career tries between 20 and 29 yards. He is also perfect on 14 attempts from inside 40 yards. He has missed only one in 20 attempts from inside the 40 in his college career.

Parker has connected on eight straight field goal attempts and ranks tied for ninth nationally in field goals per game, 1.5. Academically, he carries a 3.29 cumulative grade point average in political science and has been on the dean's list all six of his semesters at West Point.

Dallas still favored against Redskins

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys hope their huge advantage of hosting a Thanksgiving Day game will outweigh Norv Turner's special magic when they play the Washington Redskins in an NFC East division showdown.

The Cowboys are 19-8-1 on Thanksgiving, a mark aided by the fact they don't have to travel on a short workweek.

"It's very difficult for a team to come here with such a short turnaround," quarterback Troy Aikman said. "It definitely serves as an advantage to us and a disadvantage to the team we're going to play because they have to travel.

"After the game we get a weekend off and are well-rested for the next team we play. It helps energize us for a late-season run."

Dallas is 21-7 on the Sunday week after Thanksgiving.

"The Thanksgiving Day game has helped give us our notoriety," said safety Bill Bates. "Everybody is sitting around eating their turkey and watching the teams with the star on the helmet. It's a national tradition. Some people hate us. Some people love us. But we're on television. That's the way it is."

Turner, the Cowboys' former offensive coordinator, showed the Cowboys last year what they are missing with a two-game sweep.

Now he has the 8-4 Redskins a game ahead of the 7-5 Cowboys in the NFC East.

"That sweep was big last year," Turner said. "People in Washington felt a lot better about me because we beat Dallas twice. We struggled last year but we played very well against the Cowboys."

3 p.m. Thursday Kickoff

Detroit vs. Kansas City 12:30 p.m. Thursday

Nebraska, Colorado in showdown Friday

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — All-American defensive end Jared Tomich can see it in the eyes of his teammates as No. 4 Nebraska prepares for No. 5 Colorado.

"The fire is there," Tomich said.

If Tomich and his pals have their way, they will spend much of the home game Friday looking into the eyes of Colorado quarterback Koy Detmer as he drops back to pass.

"You don't have to sack him every time," Tomich said. "But it's important that one of us is getting right next to him on every play. ... If you get after a quarterback he'll get happy feet, he'll start dancing in the pocket."

The contest decides which team will represent the North Division in the inaugural Big 12 Conference championship game next month. Both schools are 9-1 overall, 7-0 in the conference.

A win also would enable Nebraska to cling to slim hopes for a third straight national title.

Tomich, defensive end Grant Wistrom and tackle Jason Peter respect Colorado in general, and Detmer and the Buffalo passing game in particular. They also have a palpable desire to obliterate Colorado's passing and running game.

Nebraska's defensive regulars, known as "Black Shirts" for the jerseys they wear in practice, are the backbone of the Cornhuskers.

Death term upheld

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's Supreme Court Wednesday upheld the double-murder conviction and death sentences of a man who used a shotgun to kill a doctor and an unarmed escort outside an abortion clinic.

Paul Hill, an abortion opponent who contended he committed justifiable homicide, was sentenced two years ago to die in the electric chair for the murders of Dr. John Bayard Britton, 69, of Fernandina Beach, and James Barrett of Pensacola.

The state Supreme Court is required to review all death sentences, although Hill said at one point that he did not want his case appealed.

The former minister used a shotgun to kill the two men outside a Pensacola abortion clinic in July 1994. Barrett's wife, June, was wounded.

He contended he said he hoped his act would inspire others to act to prevent abortions.

Hill also was the first person convicted of violating the federal Freedom of Access to Clinic Entrances law, and was sentenced to two life terms.

Hill's lawyers claimed in the appeal that he was denied a fair trial because he shouldn't have been allowed to represent himself and because the trial court disallowed his defense claim of justifiable homicide.

Guy Megliorino

Megliorino named captain at Price Daniel

El Paso native Guy Megliorino has recently been promoted to the rank of captain at the Price Daniel Unit.

Megliorino, 36, started his career at the Ellis Unit in 1981.

He transferred here from the Ft. Stockton unit where he served as the administrative lieutenant.

Besides serving in Huntsville and Ft. Stockton, Megliorino has served at TDCJ units in Sugarland and Dilley.

Megliorino and his wife, Jane, are parents of a year-old son, Ty Anthony.

"I look forward to becoming a member of this community," said Megliorino, adding that his wife and child will be moving to Snyder as soon as suitable housing is found.

Pleads innocent

EDMONTON, Canada (AP) — A woman accused of biting off her boyfriend's tongue and flushing it down the toilet has pleaded not guilty to charges of aggravated assault.

Nicole Patricia Meadows, 22, appeared briefly in court Tuesday to enter her plea.

Police said Meadows bit off a 2½-inch section of her boyfriend's tongue when he tried to kiss her during an argument.

Beeville family shares holiday meal with some 300 neighbors

BEEVILLE — When Addie and Ysidro Arismendez's family members pass the gravy during Thanksgiving dinner, it won't start at their own table — it will only end there.

About 10 years ago, they began giving Thanksgiving dinners to a few of their neighbors before they would eat their own meal. Their venture has grown significantly through the years. Gerald Arismendez, 33, one of the couple's children, expects the family to deliver 300 plates this year to Bee County residents.

Gerald said that although they aren't wealthy themselves, family members believe in sharing what they have.

"We're by no means rich," he said. "We're rich in blessings, though."

Addie and Ysidro, along with their eight children and 22 grandchildren, take part each year in preparing the meals.

Older family members do the cooking, and the young children help by performing simple tasks such as putting bread into plastic bags. Getting the younger children involved now will teach them to be charitable toward others as they get older, Gerald said.

"If you set an example, you can only expect them to follow suit," he said.

The family tries to target older and handicapped people when delivering the meals, but they've never turned anyone away, Gerald said.

Joyce Collier and her husband, Walter, are among those who will be looking forward to receiving this year's turkey dinners. Holidays can get pretty lonely for the Tuleta couple, so Joyce said they're especially thankful for the visit. "They're friendly," Joyce said of the family. "We don't have anyone around here."

Family members contribute money to pay for the meals, and this year the family has received 11 donated turkeys. Others in the community have offered to help deliver plates or cook. Gerald said his mother decided to expand their mission last year when she was driving home from delivering plates. There were seven plates left, and she believed that God would tell her what to do with them, he said.

His mother saw some children playing on the side of a street and decided to pull over and find out whether the family had eaten their Thanksgiving dinner, Gerald said. The children's mother told Addie they wouldn't be having Thanksgiving dinner because there were no food stamps left, Gerald said. His mother had just enough plates to feed them.

"The thing was, (the plates) weren't designated for anyone," Gerald said. "That kind of confirms that this is a good thing."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Today is Thanksgiving Day, so here's my traditional Thanksgiving column.

Take a few minutes to think about what you have to be thankful for:

How's your health? Not so good? Well, thank God you've lived this long. A lot of people haven't. You're hurting? Thousands — maybe millions — are hurting more. (Have you ever visited a veterans hospital? Or a rehabilitation clinic for crippled children?)

If you awakened this morning and were able to hear the birds sing, use your vocal cords to utter human sounds, walk to the breakfast table on two good legs and read the newspaper with two good eyes, praise the Lord! A lot of people couldn't.

How's your pocketbook? Thin? Well, most of the world is a lot poorer. No pensions. No welfare. No food stamps. No Social Security. In fact, one-third of the people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight.

Are you lonely? The way to have a friend is to be one. If nobody calls you, call someone. Go out of your way to do something nice for somebody. It's a sure cure for the blues.

Are you concerned about your country's future? Hooray! Our system has been saved by such concern — concern for fair play under the law. Your country may not be a rose garden, but it also is not a patch of weeds.

Freedom rings! Look and listen. You can still worship at the church of your choice, cast a secret ballot, and even criticize your government without fearing a knock on the head or a knock on the door at midnight. And if you want to live under a different system, you are free to go. There are no walls or fences — nothing to keep you here.

As a final thought, I'll repeat my Thanksgiving prayer; perhaps you will want to use it at your table today:

O, heavenly Father,
We thank thee for food and remember the hungry.
We thank thee for friends and remember the friendless.
We thank thee for freedom and remember the enslaved.
May these remembrances stir us to service.
That thy gifts to us may be used for others. Amen.

Have a wonderful Thanksgiving, and may God bless you and yours.

LOVE, ABBY

An afterthought: Want an instant high? The surest cure for the post-holiday blues is to do something nice for someone. Why not call someone who lives alone and invite him (or her) over for dinner?

Better yet, call and say, "I'm coming to get you, and I'll see that you get home." (Many older people don't drive, and those who do don't like to go out alone after dark.)

Try it. And let me know the results.

P.S. Special greetings to those of you in the military who wrote from remote corners of the world to tell me that you are using my Thanksgiving prayer on this Thanksgiving Day.

Lottery executive director comes under fire

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Lottery Executive Director Nora Linares has come under fire in connection with a contract awarded to a close friend of hers four years ago by the company that operates the lottery.

Ms. Linares was questioned for more than two hours Tuesday by the three-member Texas Lottery Commission about how Mike Moeller, a friend and former boss of hers at the Texas Department of Agriculture, got a $30,000 consulting job with GTECH Holdings Corp. in 1992.

The contract was awarded to Moeller just months after the Rhode Island company won a five-year contract to run the Texas Lottery. Moeller is currently serving time in a federal prison in a case stemming from his work with the Agriculture Department.

Two key revelations from Tuesday's meeting included:

— Moeller's contract with GTECH listed a New Mexico address belonging to a cousin of Ms. Linares.

— Ms. Linares took a trip last year to Santa Fe, N.M., with Moeller and Lena Guerrero, a lobbyist for Dittler Bros., the Texas Lottery's instant ticket manufacturer.

Ms. Guerrero lost her bid for re-election for the Texas Railroad Commission in 1992 after acknowledging during the campaign that she falsely claimed to have graduated from the University of Texas in 1980.

"Ms. Linares has been consistently an advocate for GTECH and its performance," Texas Lottery Commission chairwoman Harriet Miers told reporters after the meeting.

"I would hope it's been based on objective criteria. But that is obviously an issue that this commission has to look at as to whether there would be any other motives and we will be looking at that issue."

Ms. Miers said she wouldn't comment on her confidence in Ms. Linares to continue as executive director until more information from GTECH regarding Moeller's contract was made available.

GTECH officials told the commission Tuesday that they were still investigating exactly what Moeller did for them. They said Moeller's contract pertained only to work in New Mexico and not Texas. They said they disagree with Moeller's hiring and blame it on a former executive who has since been convicted on federal charges in New Jersey of defrauding GTECH in a kickback scheme.

GTECH recently had its 1992 contract to run the lottery extended for another five years without a rebidding process. Ms. Linares has said her decisions regarding the company were based on its performance. She declined comment to reporters after the hearing Tuesday.

Moeller and Ms. Linares both have said she didn't know about the contract until recently.

In the contract Moeller had with GTECH, he listed an Alamogordo, N.M., address of a cousin of Ms. Linares.

Ms. Linares told the commission that several years ago, Moeller had asked her if she knew of someone whose address he could use temporarily for a business venture. She said she was unaware that the business venture involved GTECH.

"He told me he was doing business in New Mexico. I probably assumed it was business he was doing in regards to other stuff," Ms. Linares told the commission.

"Why, in all the people in the world, would he ask her for an address?" Ms. Miers said. "That's a question any logical person would have to ask. Was he her only friend?"

Ms. Linares' attorney, Charles Soechting, who also represented Moeller in a divorce proceeding last year, wouldn't comment on a report that Ms. Linares and Moeller are romantically involved.

"I'm not going to comment on that," Soechting said.

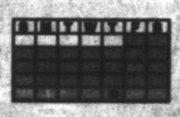

Ms. Miers said, "I think where we ought to be focused is did this behavior adversely affect the lottery. The focus on whether they were very close friends or romantic, I think misses the point."

Ms. Linares said the trip she took to Santa Fe in 1995 with a group of people that included Moeller, Ms. Guerrero and deputy lottery director Zoann Atwood was a weekend vacation unrelated to lottery business.

Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You've written that herbal remedies are not effective and are not good for a person. But herbs were God-made; drugs are man-made. God doesn't work for money, man does. So which is better?

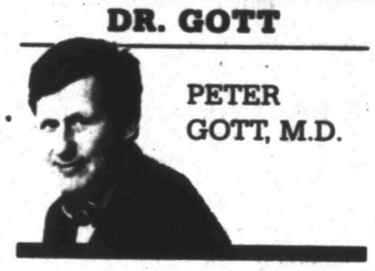

Also, many people turn to herbs because of cost. A friend of mine recently was given a very expensive prescription. How can the average person afford such a purchase? I think that doctors and druggists are just trying to scare the public so that they can make money.

DEAR READER: You're certainly correct that many manufactured drugs, especially the prescription variety, are expensive and I share your concern about this fact.

Nonetheless, herbal remedies have been shown to be much less effective than manufactured drugs. When you consider time lost from work or school, continuing discomfort, and the potential complications of disease, the higher cost of medicine may actually be a pretty good bargain.

For example, say you develop a strep throat. With herbal treatment (or no treatment at all), the infection may last several days during which you are so sick you can't swallow food or fluids, and run a high fever. Subsequently, you suffer a complication of the infection, such as kidney disease or rheumatic fever, both of which are serious and may cause long-term disability, even death.

DR. GOTT

Doesn't it make more sense to take $20 worth of penicillin pills? You're back on your feet in two days, return to work in three, and risk no consequences from the strep.

This is a simple example; I won't bore you with the advantages of treating hypertension, heart attack and other maladies.

In addition, most manufactured drugs have, as their basis, natural compounds; therefore, in a sense, they ARE "God-made."

Finally, some herbal remedies have dangerous side effects, are often compounded with little or no quality control, and may give their users an unjustified feeling of confidence, leading them to spurn the very prescription drugs that would be most useful.

I don't have an objection to herbal remedies. When they have been proved effective by scientific scrutiny, I'll use them. However, to date, they haven't. So, I'd rather treat my patients with allopathic potions that have withstood critical analysis.

As an addendum, I should point out that cheaper substitutes are generally available for the more expensive drugs. If your doctor is aware of the fact that you have to pinch pennies, he can either give you free samples or suggest (or prescribe) similar medications that cost less. But, please, don't take chances with unproven remedies just because they're cheaper.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Fads II: Herbs and Other Healing Fads." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

Judge blocks state's cutoff of assistance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge blocked Gov. Pete Wilson's attempt to cut off prenatal care to illegal immigrants, saying the state had no good reason to rush a federal law into effect without seeking public opinion.

Superior Court Judge William Cahill issued a preliminary injunction Tuesday at the request of civil rights groups and San Francisco.

State lawyers said the emergency regulations, which were to take effect Sunday, were justified by the federal welfare law that President Clinton signed in August. It includes a provision requiring states to abolish state-funded benefit programs for illegal immigrants.

But Cahill wrote, "The mere enactment of a federal law does not automatically create an emergency here in California."

The state generally has to give advance notice and seek public opinion before it enforces a federal law, part of the normal regulatory process.

HUMC will light first Advent Candle Sunday

Hermleigh United Methodist Church, in preparation for the Christmas season of Advent, will be lighting the first Advent Candle during Sunday's 11 a.m. worship service.

Altar minister, Marie Thomas, and other women of the church have been busy preparing the sanctuary with evergreen and poinsettias.

The church Christmas tree with Chrismons will be put up and all members and friends are asked to bring money, groceries and other items for the traditional Christmas cheer baskets. These will be given to those in the community with special needs.

Elmood United Methodist Church in Abilene will present a Christmas cantata entitled "The Wonders of His Life," at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 8, at the Hermleigh church.

The Christmas Eve candlelight/communion service will be held at 6 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend any of the services.

Handgun rules developed

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts has developed strict guidelines to treat handguns as consumer products in a novel approach being closely watched by both gun manufacturers and anti-gun activists.

Bypassing the Legislature, State Attorney General Scott Harshbarger has proposed rules that would require the guns to be equipped with childproofing devices and be tested to make sure they don't fire accidentally.

"We ask of every consumer product that it be reliable and safe. All we're saying is the same standards and warnings ought to apply," Harshbarger said Tuesday at a hearing on his proposals.

The regulations take effect sometime next year. Those who break the law face a fine of up to $5,000 for each violation, said Ed Cafasso, the attorney general's spokesman. Harshbarger may modify the regulations after taking recommendations from the hearings.

James Brady, the former White House press secretary who was crippled when he was shot during the 1981 attempted assassination of President Reagan, testified in support of the guidelines.

Gun manufacturers and owners said they were concerned that safety devices may make it more difficult for citizens to defend themselves.

St. Mary Family Healthcare donates to Food Cupboard

St. Mary Family Healthcare donated $1,000 to help the Food Cupboard furnish food to needy people in Scurry County. The Food Cupboard is a project of the Ministerial Alliance.

"We are excited to be able to sponsor the Ministerial Alliance again this year and this project which is a valuable contribution to so many people in Scurry County," said Cecilia Garrison, regional manager for St. Mary. "We look forward to working with them throughout the year," she added.

The Food Cupboard is also supported by the Community Thanksgiving service which was held Sunday evening at the First United Methodist Church.

St. Mary Family Healthcare Center-Snyder is part of a primary care network in 22 communities that St. Mary Hospital in Lubbock is developing throughout West Texas and Eastern New Mexico. The centers are part of a system that provides comprehensive primary and preventative care at the local level.

St. Mary was established in 1939 by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Orange, as a not-for-profit hospital dedicated to providing the South Plains region with quality health care.

The Teddy Bear is named after President Teddy Roosevelt, who once refused to shoot a bear cub while hunting in Mississippi.

The 1996 election for representatives to the Scurry County Farm Service Agency (FSA) will be held on Dec. 2. This year's election will be for a representative from Local Administrative Area (LAA) 2. This area includes all farms south of U.S. Highway 180 and west of State Highway 208. Ballots have been mailed to producers in LAA 2 and must be returned to the local FSA office or postmarked no later than Monday, Dec. 2. Candidates included on this year's ballot are Harold Hester, David Shifflett, Kirby Sterling and Sidney Wall. You should vote for only one candidate. Ballots will be counted on Wednesday, Dec. 4 at 9 a.m. in the local FSA office. This meeting is open to the public.

Conference set Dec. 13

CANYON — Agricultural producers and landowners must make key decisions every year about conservation and protection practices for their farming and ranching operations.

A conference scheduled in late fall has been planned to aid area producers in making sound choices, say organizers of the "Ag Producer's Role in Environmental Stewardship" symposium, set for Dec. 13 from 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. at West Texas A&M University in Canyon.

The registration fee is $15 and includes all sessions and a catered lunch. The deadline to register is Dec. 5. Registration forms are available through the TSSWCB Regional Office in Hale Center at 806-839-1030 or Brent Auvermann, Texas A&M Center at 806-359-5401.

Upper Colorado SWCD Report

Windbreaks can save your money on your energy bill all year. Recent studies show that windbreaks can save 10-30 percent on heating bills. The shade produced by one tree can have the cooling effect of five air-conditioners. Here's a few hints on windbreak design and planting.

1. Design your layout so that the windbreak is at right angles to the wind. A windbreak should extend at least 100' past each end of the area to be protected.

2. While a windbreak can be a single row, 2 or more rows are better. Staggered, multi-row windbreaks allow trees in one row to continue to protect an area if a tree is lost in an adjacent row. Without this overlapping protection, a blank space will act just like a funnel.

3. Spacing between trees needs to be 10-13 feet for evergreens, and 20 feet for hardwoods. For best results, don't mix evergreens and hardwoods in the same row. Faster growing hardwoods can overtop evergreens, and shade them out. The same caution needs to be applied when mixing hardwood species.

4. Windbreaks should be at least 100' from the nearest buildings so that the windbreak doesn't interfere with the airflow of a chimney. This distance also provides some air circulation between the windbreak and buildings during hot weather.

5. When planting, provide holes large enough and deep enough to accommodate, roots without crowding. Make sure the roots are spread out, and not turned upwards at the tips. Partially fill the hole, and pack the soil around the lower roots. Water, place the remainder of the soil in the hole, and water again. this helps get rid of any large air pockets near the roots.

6. Protect the young trees from weed and grass competition by mulching, using a plastic weed barrier, or tillage.

7. Seedlings need between 8 to 10 gallons of water per week the first year, and at least ten gallons per week later on, depending on soil type and weather. Fertilizer isn't needed the first year.

For more information call or come by the Upper Colorado Soil & Water Conservation District office. Offices are located in the Scurry County USDA Office Complex at 5309 Big Spring Hwy., 915-573-6317 or 6318 and the Borden County FSA office in Gail, 806-756-4301.

Turkey talk

Whether it's your first time cooking a holiday meal, or if you're a veteran chef, you may have questions about preparing your holiday turkey. The following recommendations will be helpful. Butterball also has a Holiday Talk Line you can call for further questions as well as an internet address. 1-800-323-4848 and hhtp:/www.butterball.com

Most frequently asked questions:

What's the best way to thaw a turkey?

Refrigerator thawing is recommended. However, if short on time, submerge the turkey in cold water. Thawing turkey at room temperature allows bacterial growth and is not recommended.

•Refrigerator thawing:

—Thaw breast side up in its unopened wrapper on a tray in the refrigerator.

—Allow at least one day of thawing for every four pounds of turkey.

•Cold water thawing:

—Place breast down in its unopened wrapper in cold water to cover.

—Change the water every 30 minutes to keep surface cold.

—Estimate minimum thawing time to be 30 minutes per pound for whole turkey.

What is the best way to roast a turkey?

*Place thawed or fresh turkey, breast up, on a flat rack in a shallow pan, 2 to 2½ inches deep.

*Insert oven-safe meat thermometer into the thickest part of the thigh.

*Brush or rub skin with oil to prevent drying of the skin and to enhance the golden color.

*Place in a preheated 325 degree F oven.

*When the skin is a golden color and the turkey is about two-thirds done, shield the breast loosely with a tent of lightweight foil to prevent overcooking of the breast.

*Use the roasting schedule as a guideline: start checking for doneness ½ hour before recommended end times:

New Weight (In Pounds)	Unstuffed (In hours)
10-18	3-to-3½
18-22	3½ to 4
22-24	4 to 4½
24-30	4½ to 5

*Turkey is done when the meat thermometer reaches the following temperatures:

180 deg. F deep in the thigh; also juices should be clear, not pink when thigh muscle is pierced deeply.

170 deg. F to 175 deg. F in the thickest part of the breast, just above the rib bones.

160 deg. F to 165 deg. F in the center of the stuffing, if turkey is stuffed.

*Let turkey rest for 15-20 minutes before carving to allow juices to distribute evenly.

Handle turkey so it is safe to eat.

Follow these food safety guidelines.

*Thaw frozen turkey in the refrigerator or cold water.

*Keep thawed or fresh turkey in a refrigerator.

*Prevent juices from dripping onto other foods in the refrigerator by placing wrapped turkey on a tray.

*Thawed turkey may be kept in a refrigerator up to four days before cooking.

*Roast fresh turkey as soon as possible, but no later than the "use by" date on the packaging.

*Place raw turkey on nonporous surfaces; these are easy to clean.

Use paper towels, not cloth, to dry off turkey and wipe up juices. Discard paper after use.

*Wash hands, work surfaces and utensils touched by raw poultry and its juices with hot, soapy water.

*Use cooking methods that allow the turkey to reach an internal temperature of 140 deg. F in less than four hours. Avoid using low roasting temperatures or partial cooking methods.

*Use a meat thermometer to determine turkey's doneness.

*Store turkey, stuffing, gravy, broth and other cooked foods properly within two hours after cooking.

Storing leftover turkey

*Refrigerator storage — wrap turkey slices and stuffing separately and use within 3 days.

*Frozen storage — wrap in heavy foil, freezer wrap or place in freezer container; for optimum taste, use stuffing within one month and turkey within 2 months.

What to do before you roast a turkey?

*Remove original plastic wrapper from thawed or fresh turkey.

*Remove the neck and giblets from the body and neck cavities.

*Drain juices and blot turkey dry with paper towels.

*Stuffing turkey — this can be a very critical issue. Cooking the stuffing or dressing separately is a much safer technique. However, if you choose to cook the dressing inside the turkey, follow some very important steps — stuff the turkey just before roasting; ingredients may be prepared earlier, but keep moist and dry ingredients separate and combine just before stuffing. Stuffing portions — use ½ cup stuffing per pound for turkeys weighing up to 10 pounds; for turkeys weighing more than 10 pounds, use ¾ cup stuffing per pound.

CIA employee pleads innocent to fed charges

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — CIA employee Harold J. Nicholson pleaded innocent Wednesday to federal charges that he spied for Russia.

U.S. District Judge James Cacheris, at the request of Nicolson's attorneys, also approved a gag order to stop public statements about the espionage case by government officials. The defendant's lawyers argued that such publicity has jeopardized their client's chances for a fair trial.

Nicholson, 46, waived his right to a speedy trial. Cacheris set a trial date of March 10, 1997. Nicholson's lawyers had said last week that he would plead innocent and fight the charges vigorously.

The delayed trial schedule was the result of the sensitivity of the documents in question and an elaborate security screening that needs to be conducted on Nicholson's attorneys before they are allowed to review documents involved in the case.

Nicholson, a 16-year veteran of the CIA, has been charged with selling highly sensitive national security secrets, including the names and assignment plans for many new CIA officers, to Russia over the past two years.

The government alleges that he has been paid $180,000 for the documents.

Nicholson was denied bail Monday when prosecutors revealed he has a Swiss bank account containing $61,000 which he had not reported on financial disclosure forms.

In connection with the gag order, Jonathan Shapiro, Nicholson's court-appointed attorney, had said in court papers filed Tuesday that he was "shocked at the daily deluge of extraordinarily prejudicial comment, specualtion and innuendo coming from the mouths of high law enforcement officials, who seem bent on putting the best spin possible on their embarrassment about alleged security breaches at the CIA so close on the heels of the Ames case."

He was referring to the CIA's most damaging turncoat, Aldrich Ames, who pleaded guilty in 1994 and is serving life without parole for selling secrets to Moscow over nearly nine years for $2.7 million. Ames was blamed for the deaths of 10 Western agents.

Prosecutor-fugitive kills self

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Nicholas Bissell ended his own problems with a bullet in a Nevada casino hotel room. His family's problems are only beginning.

The prosecutor-turned-fugitive left behind a wife facing a prison sentence, three fatherless children and a mother who may lose the home she put up for his bond.

"He focused on himself, his needs and concerns," Gov. Christie Whitman said. "He never considered anyone else."

Rather than face years in prison for skimming $146,000 from his business to support a life of gambling and luxury, Bissell chose to run.

When authorities found him eight days later in his third-floor hotel room, the 49-year-old former New Jersey prosecutor put a gun in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

The 10-minute standoff Tuesday began when six law enforcement officers knocked on Bissell's door, then kicked it in, said Jim Umbach, deputy U.S. marshal in Phoenix. They found Bissell sitting on the floor and holding a gun.

"I'm not going to hurt anybody," Bissell told them.

After a deputy marshal asked him to think of the people who would be sorry if he died, Bissell finally said: "I can't do 10 years," and killed himself. The New York Times reported Wednesday.

While sentencing guidelines called for a 6½- to eight-year prison term, prosecutors were pushing for at least 10 years.

The suicide stunned those who remembered Bissell as a brash, often arrogant crimefighter proud of the millions in assets his office seized in drug cases.

"He was a strong-willed character," said Somerset County Sheriff Robert H. Lund. "He wanted things his way, I'll say that much for him."

Bissell's death leaves troubles for his family, including his two teen-age daughters and a son from an earlier marriage. His wife and co-defendant, Barbara Bissell, will be sentenced Dec. 6 on 13 counts of fraud.

Bissell's 79-year-old mother had put up her $120,000 condominium toward his $300,000 bail. That bond was forfeited last week when Bissell fled.

"Given that the circumstances have changed, we will take another look at the forfeiture issue," U.S. Attorney Faith S. Hochberg said Tuesday.

Authorities began searching for Bissell on Nov. 18 — two days before he was to be sentenced — when he cut off his electronic monitoring bracelet and left it on a kitchen counter along with what was characterized as a suicide note. The contents were not disclosed.

Details then emerged that he had secretly sold china, crystal and furniture while his wife was at work. Bissell also had a new credit card and had withdrawn $800 from a bank account four days before he fled.

He apparently had not been heard from until Monday, when he placed calls to friends and relatives on a cellular phone.

Authorities traced the calls to Nevada and got a tip that he was staying at the Colorado Belle Hotel and Casino in Laughlin, a gambling town of 8,000 about 90 miles from Las Vegas. Bissell had registered under his own name.

A source who spoke on condition of anonymity said Bissell had been staying there for three days and apparently had not been gambling enough to warrant any VIP treatment. The source said he apparently was holed up in his room most of the time.

His green Jeep Grand Cherokee was found nearby with stolen Kentucky plates.

The turn of fortune was extraordinary for the former public defender and municipal judge.

Judge blocks enforcement of 209

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal judge blocked enforcement on Wednesday of a California initiative to dismantle affirmative action, saying civil rights groups have a "strong probability" of proving it unconstitutional.

Chief U.S. District Judge Thelton Henderson issued a temporary restraining order barring Gov. Pete Wilson and Attorney General Dan Lungren from taking any action to enforce Proposition 209, at least until a hearing Dec. 16.

The ballot initiative, approved by nearly 55 percent of California's voters on Nov. 5, amends the state's constitution to ban race and gender considerations in public hiring, contracting and college admissions.

State lawyers argued that Proposition 209 cannot be discriminatory because it requires equal treatment. But the lawsuit claims that despite its neutral wording, it would eliminate only programs that benefit women and minorities.

Henderson's order said the civil rights groups that filed the lawsuit had "demonstrated a strong probability of success."

"Courts must look beyond the plain language of an enactment," the judge wrote. "The relevant question is whether, in reality, the burden imposed by a law necessarily falls on minorities and women.

The restraining order does not apply directly to local agencies or to the University of California, which already has taken steps to notify new applicants that race and gender will no longer be considered.

Henderson specified that Wilson could continue to ask state agencies to identify affirmative action programs potentially affected by Proposition 209. The initial review, ordered by the governor the day after the election, was scheduled to be completed Wednesday.

On Dec. 16, Henderson will consider the civil rights group's request for a preliminary injunction to prohibit enforcement of the measure until the lawsuit goes to trial. Unlike Wednesday's order, that injunction could be appealed to a higher court.

Legal experts say it could take a year or more before there is a definitive ruling. That was the case with California's Proposition 187, which would have denied most public services to illegal immigrants. It was approved in 1994 but has been tied up by court challenges ever since.

Supreme Court to decide on legal immunity of private prison guards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court will decide whether guards at privately run prisons have the same immunity against lawsuits as guards at state-run prisons.

The court agreed Wednesday to review a ruling that denied such protection to guards at a Tennessee private prison.

About one-third of the states have privately operated prisons. Often, the prisons' contracts allow them to exercise all the police powers and traditional public functions reserved to a state government.

Federal courts have disagreed over whether private prison guards are entitled to "qualified immunity," which shields state employees from being sued over actions taken in the good-faith belief that no one's rights are being violated.

The high court's decision, expected by July, should resolve the conflicting lower court rulings.

After Tennessee lawmakers authorized the use of private prisons in 1986, state prison officials agreed to have the Corrections Corporation of America run a prison in Clifton, Tenn.

Ronnie Lee McKnight, an inmate at the prison, sued guards Daryll Richardson and John Walker in 1994, saying they violated his civil rights by using bodily restraints that were excessively tight while he was taken to Clifton from Nashville.

McKnight's lawsuit said he required hospital treatment for extreme pain and swelling, and that the two guards taunted McKnight when he complained about the restraints.

Richardson and Walker sought to have the lawsuit dismissed before it reached trial, but a federal judge refused.

The judge ruled that guards working for a private, for-profit corporation are not entitled to qualified immunity. The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld that ruling in July.

Pentagon may be losing track of discarded weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — When sleek Cobra attack helicopters swoop in for the big screen kill in "The Rock" and "Courage Under Fire," it's thanks to private citizen Ron Garlick — not the Defense Department.

Garlick, who rented two unarmed Cobras to the makers of the two action movies, built the aircraft from parts he legally purchased under a military surplus program — now being overhauled in the wake of worries that weapons could fall into the hands of foreign governments or private militias hostile to the U.S. government.

"The military has taken the position for some reason that these aircraft should be destroyed," Garlick said Tuesday by telephone from his business in Hamilton, Mont. "But there's not one known case of military equipment being used for any overt criminal act in the United States.

"You can do just as much damage with fertilizer and a rental truck," he added in a reference to last year's Oklahoma City bombing.

The Pentagon said it sold $302.3 million worth of outdated or unwanted equipment last year, mostly to scrap dealers. Some equipment and parts that were supposed to be rendered harmless ended up in the hands of arms dealers, according to a joint investigation conducted by U.S. News & World Report and CBS' "60 Minutes."

will also have cooked ham."

Rebeeca Morin, who suggests potatoes, pickles and "that's all" with her turkey, adds, "We will eat this today, but I usually eat a cow."

And after the meal is over?

"Then you play with toys," says David Guzman.

"Go play outside," suggests Heather Vasquez.

But Veronica Alvarado has her priorities straight. "Clean up the kitchen," she says.

Now there's a girl who knows Christmas is just around the corner.

Officials challenged to sign pledge

AUSTIN (AP) — Elected officials are being challenged to sign an ethics pledge by a task force including religious, environmental and citizen group representatives.

"We're hoping that these principles will be signed and will be hung in every state legislator's office," said Tom Smith, state director of Public Citizen and part of the Texas Ethical Standards Task Force.

But the task force may strike out at the top of state government, at least as far as getting signatures.

Gov. George W. Bush, while supporting high standards, "as a matter of practice ... doesn't sign pledges sent to us by organizations," his spokesman Ray Sullivan said Wednesday.

Texas House Speaker Pete Laney and Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who presides over the Senate, haven't had a chance to review the proposed pledge but support high ethical standards, according to staff members.

The principles of ethical conduct include a vow to treat public office as a public trust, use campaign contributions only for direct campaign expenses and avoid conflicts of interest.

Task force participants say they want members of their groups to meet with state and local officials to urge adoption of the principles.
