Water woes main topic at meeting

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Nearly 175 people gathered Tuesday evening for a Town Hall meeting to express their concerns about local water quality and to ask water officials what can be done to improve the situation.

O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, and Tom Decell, city public works director, spent approximately two hours talking about what is responsible for the current quality of water, its effect on city equipment and what can be done to improve water quality.

Ivie said that only recently has the city had problems with its water quality.

"Prior to 1986 it was OK, it was better than it is now," he said, explaining that CRMWD was working to keep the levels of salts in the water at a low level. The chloride and sodium found in the water gives it the salty taste people complain about, he said.

Previous to 1986, Ivie said, there had been a "respectable quality of water," for the city.

But in 1986 heavy rains in the area of Natural Dam dam contributed to downwater flooding that filled Lake Spence. By the time the water reached Spence, it contained a large number of chlorides, and evaporation at the lake increases the buildup of chlorides, he said.

Ivie said one of the ways the water district has tried to cut down on the amount of chlorides in the water is to use water from Lake Thomas — which does not have the salinity found in Lake Spence — to create a blend that is more acceptable to city residents.

Ivie also told the group that CRMWD spends a tenth of its money to improve water quality, but acknowledged it may take

Thorough burglary

BIG SPRING — Thieves burglarized a refurbished home late Monday or early Tuesday — taking almost all of the appliances except for the kitchen sink.

The burglars took an $800 electric oven, an $800 refrigerator, a $600 brown carpet, a $299 garbage disposal, and a $69 kitchen sink faucet, for a total value of $2,568, according to a police department incident report. The house is located in the 500 block of South Main Street.

Big Spring Police Lt. Terry Chamness said today it appears thieves entered through a door that was not well secured. The house was newly-remodeled and belonged to Bluebonnet Savings.

Snyder man injured

BIG SPRING — A Snyder man is in a local hospital today after being trapped for more than an hour in his vehicle, which hydroplaned while traveling on state Highway 350 Tuesday morning.

Randall Price, 32, was in the westbound lane traveling from Snyder to Odessa in his 1978 Chevy pickup with a gooseneck trailer in tow when the vehicle lost control on the wet pavement and went into a broadside skid before striking a guardrail and skidding off of the road, an officer with the Texas Department of Public Safety reported today.

The vehicle and trailer were about five miles east of Big Spring at 6:45 a.m. today when the accident occurred, the officer reported.

Price and two other people in the vehicle who were not injured remained trapped in the vehicle for about an hour and a half before being extracted by the Jaws of Life rescue equipment operated by the city fire department, with the help of a private wrecker.

Price was taken by ambulance to Scenic Mountain Medical Center with a possible broken wrist and contusions.

Follow-up clinic

ABILENE — The VA Follow-Up Clinic at Dyess Air Force Base, Abilene, will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Thursday. All entitled veterans are encouraged to utilize the Follow-Up Clinic.

The services available are limited to an examination by a physician, lab, X-ray, screening, and pharmacy services. Veterans will be seen by appointment only.

To make appointments, veterans should contact Dan Garcia, Taylor County Service Officer (915) 677-1711, Ext. 328 or 329; or the scheduling clerk in medical administration service at the Big Spring VA Medical Center at 263-7361, ext. 352.

Commissioners OK budget request

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Commissioners on Tuesday approved the county's Board of Economic Development's budget request of $17,950 for its first year of operation.

The money, which will be used to advertise and promote business growth and development, will be taken from county reserve funds and will not affect the tax rate even though the law allows an increase of up to a five cents per $100 valuation, said County Judge S.L. "Mac" Morris.

"We're funding it from interest funds," he said. Also available to the BED and private businesses in the county will be state and federal grants and loans. Morris said he is not sure how much of that money is available.

The budget takes affect immediately, said BED Chairman Elmer Martin. The board and the funding for its activities was authorized by a Nov. 7 county referendum which voters passed 450-393.

Areas of expenses in the budget include: $8,000 for professional services; $3,500 for advertising and promotion; $2,500 for out-of-county travel; $1,500 for miscellaneous expenses; $1,200 for telephone expenses; $850 for office supplies; and $400 for postage.

"Of course we think it's very conservative," Martin said of the budget. However, he added, "We have a very broad base to operate on."

Morris said that those figures are general and were put together as they are now so that the board

VA program honors Black History Month

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A small audience at the Veterans Administration Medical Center lifted its voice and sang yesterday in honor of Black History Month.

The program, sponsored by the Committee for Black History Month and the Equal Employment Opportunity Advisory Council at the VA, featured a speech by James Pitts, a Midland teacher and World War II veteran, and music led by the VA volunteer choir.

Medical Center Director Conrad Alexander introduced the program by remembering the contributions of black veterans who have served in U.S wars, as well as those of black civilians. He said that 25 percent of the VA's workforce nationwide is black.

Pitts brought a young pine tree to the program, explaining that, "As a veteran, I am committed to doing more for the earth for all people. I will plant this tree for the unfinished business of all veterans who live and have lived."

He credited the Air Force for broadening his understanding of the world. He served in the 697th Port Company Transport Corps in North Africa and Italy from 1943 to 1946. "I met Arabs in North Africa, Italians in Rome and went sightseeing in Switzerland," Pitts said.

"My wife and I won a trip to Senegal in 1985, so I've been fortunate to see Africa twice," Pitts added.

He said his perspective from the service and from being a science teacher made him aware of the environmental hazards people have caused, and responsible for righting those wrongs.

Hence the tree, which Pitts said should be planted during Arbor Season. The state, he explained, recently voted to extend Arbor Day from a single day to the planting period between Jan. 1 and April 22 for 1990.

"This tree is for all vets and all black Americans," he said. "At one time we hardly knew who we were. We went from that abominable word I won't use here to colored to Negro to Afro-American to black," Pitts said.

"It's been a question of just who are those who served their country, turned the soil and made the country great? Yes, we were damaged, but we try to meet our goals and we're proud to be Americans."

"For all veterans and black Americans, I extend my sincere thanks for this recognition of black history," Pitts said.

Alexander said the tree would be planted at one of the rest stops on the walking track in front of the medical center when it stops raining.

Jesse Jones, a physician's assistant at the medical center, acted as master of ceremonies for the program. He closed it by saying he hoped the audience would get an insight into black history. "One day maybe the history will be told and there'll be no need for a black day or a Hispanic day, but just an American day," Jones said.

A second speaker, Midland businessman Ken Carpenter, was unable to come to the VA. He was one of the few people in Midland to stand up for civil rights and school desegregation in Midland in the '60s, said introductory speaker Al Cordova.

Council might cut jobs

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — Two city sanitation workers may lose their jobs as part of an effort by the City Council to trim next year's proposed budget in that area by $16,450.

City Council members on Tuesday night said they will also consider cutting the pay of the three sanitation truck drivers by $1.23 an hour but raise the pay of the eight trash can handlers by 23 cents and hour. Both jobs would then pay $4.75 an hour.

Four members of the Council were present for the first 1990-91 budget workshop. They discussed the proposed $2.34 million budget which features an $18,740 reduction from the present budget due to the slow economy. The new budget year begins May 1.

Employee salaries and related costs account for 39 percent of the new budget, which calls for the cutting of full-time employees from 47 to 45, City Manager Brenda Hammond said.

Hammond said that the sanitation workers who remain employed will be required to work eight hours a day instead of the average 4½ hours a day they are now working.

"They get paid for eight hours," she said. "We can do that by cutting two employees." She also said, "We're going to equalize the pay and equalize the work."

Those changes will cut the salary and insurance costs for that department by $16,450 in comparison to this year's cost estimates, bringing it to $92,550. That will reduce total costs for the department by $14,500, bringing that to $106,550. The proposed budget shows added costs in supplies and maintenance equipment.

Street and Sanitation Department Superintendent Frelon Huff told councilmembers that he has met with and discussed the possible changes to his

Water

some time before the problem corrects itself. Even when Stacy Dam is finished it will probably not make a difference in the water quality because other areas than Big Spring will be using that new water supply.

CRMWD has already spent $2.2 million to improve Natural Dam in an attempt to correct part of the problem.

But what the district really needs is a another flood in the watershed area of lakes Spence and Thomas to decrease the salinity deposits, he said. Ivie said he hoped that there could be a good rainfall amount next year, since it has been drier than usual in Mitchell County for the last two years.

Other possible solutions, such as a desalinization plant, would be expensive, meaning residents would have to pay water bills twice as much or more, Ivie said.

"The water will be decent in time, bear with us," he said. But Ivie acknowledged that some people should not even drink the water as it is now, and said residents have a right to complain about the water quality.

"There's a lot of people who shouldn't drink the water," Ivie said frankly, after an older man in the audience said he was told by a doctor that the water's impurities and salt content would be bad for him medically.

The man also charged that the water wasn't good for his air conditioner either: that his machine seperated and collected 10 pounds of salt from city water during a period of months. The water ate the paint off of his air conditioner too, he charged.

Ken Dunwoody, former plant manager for Western Container, said people who attended the meeting are already aware of the problems with the water quality and they want the city or CRMWD to do something about the problem.

Several people said they wanted CRMWD or the city to build a desalinization plant to improve the water quality and taste. When asked for a hand count of how many people would be willing to pay for the increased costs, however, only a fraction of the people raised their hands in support of the idea.

Ivie said the city that would be responsible for building such a plant if anyone chose to do so.

After the meeting, Ivie said he believed the audience asked good questions.

"Their arguments were made in good faith, most of them had some basis," Ivie said. "We want to see water in our city as good as possible."

Ivie repeated that problems with chloride concentrations could get better if the area around lakes Spence and Thomas receive heavy rainfall, but said barring that the outlook for better water in the immediate future is bleak.

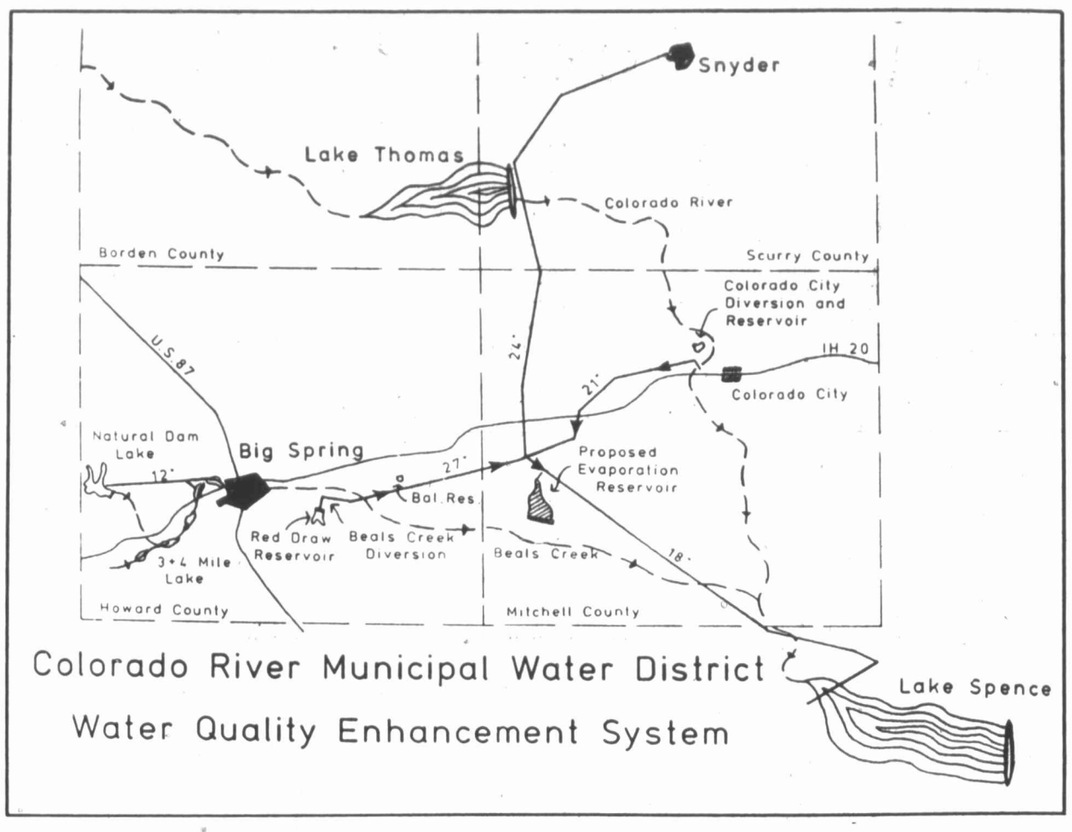

Decell addressed water problems as they relate to the city. One of the main problems the city currently faces is the number of pipes that break when the temperature reaches a freezing level, he said.

There were 106 6-inch breaks over the Christmas Holidays because of cold temperatures, Decell said.

Weak "bell joints" that hold the pipes together are responsible for much of the problem, and the city has replaced some of the existing joints with PVC pipes resistant to the problems plaguing the old system, Decell said.

Another problem confronting the city is the water it pays for each year which goes unnacounted for — about 22 percent of the water the city buys from the water district every year, Decell said. That unnacounted water represents water which is lost through leaks, fire pump checks or used by fire vehicles to fight fires, he said.

Decell said he would like to see the amount of water unaccounted for reduced to about 15 percent, which he said would be a fairly acceptable level for this city. In previous years, the amount may have been as high as 30 percent, he said.

Sex offender given a deferred sentence

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A Big Spring man indicted by a Howard County grand jury with indecency with a child was given a deferred sentence Monday in 118th District Court on the condition he meet certain probationary guidelines.

John Juan Ruben Gaitan, 18, 1905 Wasson Road, pleaded guilty to indecency with a child in exchange for a sentence of 10 years deferred adjudication on the charge. The sentence means that if Gaitan honors the conditions of his probationary release the offense will not go on his criminal record as a felony, District Attorney Rick Hamby said today.

Deferred adjudication is a type of probation that refrains from implementing the court's judgment during the period of monitoring, provided the person meets the conditions of their release, explained Hamby.

If the person successfully completes their probation without incident, no judgment is imposed and the offense is not kept on the person's record, Hamby said. If the person fails to meet the conditions of their release, they can be imprisoned for the full length of a possible sentence and there is no opportunity for an appeal, he said.

The sentence is usually reserved for young defendants, he said.

Hamby called deferred adjudication a "useful tool" for helping to rehabilitate some offenders, but said prosecutors use the alternative sentencing method "fairly sparingly." District and county courts both use deferred adjudication.

Hamby said his office wouldn't normally give probation in a case such as Gaitan's, but said the victims in this case thought it would be appropriate for Gaitan.

"It was granted at the request of victims, given so (Gaitan) can get proper help," Hamby said.

Gaitan has previously been charged with two counts of aggravated sexual assault in August 1988.

Human rights report catalogues man's inhumanity in many countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — China, Nicaragua and Iraq were sharply criticized by the State Department today in an annual human rights report to Congress that also documents beheadings and amputations in Saudi Arabia and floggings in Iran.

In the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, the report said the human rights situation is "a source of deep concern." Palestinian Arabs are in the 27th month of an uprising against Israeli control.

From student detentions in Liberia to disappearances in El Salvador, the 1,641-page report catalogues man's inhumanity to man in virtually every conceivable way.

In Burma, men forced to walk ahead of army troops in mine-infested fields are blown up. In Iran, prisoners are flogged and suspended from the ceiling, according to eyewitnesses and human rights groups.

Pro-democracy demonstrators were gunned down in Beijing's Tiananmen Square June 3-4, and independent observers are cited as challenging the official toll of 20 executions as unrealistically low.

The report also finds areas of improvement, most conspicuously in the Soviet Union. "Authorities have adopted a more forthcoming approach to foreign criticism of their human rights record," the report says.

And yet, though the top leadership no longer fosters anti-Semitism and appears embarrassed by it, "there has been a sharp increase in popular expressions of anti-Semitic attitudes," the report relates. "Jews have been increasingly concerned over the danger of violence."

Israel, a democracy, comes in for little criticism outside of the situation in the occupied territories.

A total of 432 Palestinians were reported killed in 1989, 304 by Israeli security forces and settlers and 128 by other Israelis.

While the Israeli defense forces engaged in a severe crackdown, the report cites a significant increase in Palestinian violence against Palestinians, spurred by a growing Islamic fundamentalist Hamas movement.

James Zogby, executive director of the Arab American Institute, called the report a brutal indictment of Israeli occupation, said pro-Israel groups applied pressure to mute the criticism and that Congress should either cut the $3 billion in aid to Israel or make it conditional on an improved record.

The Israeli Embassy in Washington issued a statement saying, "Israel's measures have not differed from those applied by other democratic countries when facing violence in the form of riots, armed assaults, murder and terror." Soldiers who violate regulations are punished, the embassy said.

Rep. Gus Yatron, D-Pa., chairman of the House human rights subcommittee, complimented the State Department for a report that "pulls no punches in assessing dismal human rights records of such dictatorial regimes as China and Iraq."

Rep. Gus Yatron, D-Pa. challenged the Bush administration to match the rhetoric with "a policy which places America's commitment to human rights and democratic institutions above offending ruthless regimes, which the administration is currently seeking to curry favor."

Yatron challenged the Bush administration to match the rhetoric with "a policy which places America's commitment to human rights and democratic institutions above offending ruthless regimes, which the administration is currently seeking to curry favor."

His statement reflected congressional criticism of President Bush as imposing only limited sanctions against China after the Tiananmen Square crackdown in which hundreds and possibly thousands were killed.

The report found a dramatic deterioration in the human rights climate in China in 1989. Apart from the Beijing massacre, the army killed scores of Tibetans in March in Lhasa and reports of torture of persons accused of "counterrevolutionary crimes" are persistent. "Conditions in Chinese prisons are invariably harsh and frequently degrading," Congress was told.

Iraq's human rights record is described as "abysmal," with effective opposition to government policy stifled and intelligence services engaged in extensive surveillance.

"The freedoms of speech and press and of assembly and association are virtually nonexistent," the report says. "Other important human rights problems include continuing disappearances and arbitrary detentions, lack of fair trial, widespread interference with privacy, excessive use of force against Kurdish civilians and an almost total lack of worker rights."

In Jordan, where martial law has been in effect since 1967, intelligence and security agencies have broad surveillance powers and certificates of good conduct are needed for all public jobs and for many in the private sector.

In Saudi Arabia, capital punishment is meted out for a wide variety of crimes. Beheading is the usual method of execution and, in some cases, it was followed by public crucifixion. In the first 10 months of 1989, at least 13 thieves had their hands severed, including 11 non-Saudis, the report says.

Nicaragua's Sandinista government, which faces national elections on Sunday, is sharply criticized for maintaining "an extensive and repressive internal security apparatus" that includes surveillance and infiltration of the political opposition.

could begin its efforts. "We just put together the best numbers we could," he said.

Martin said the five-member BED board, which was formed in September in anticipation of the referendum's passage, is already working on the possibility of bringing in a drug and alchohol substance abuse treatment center for court-referred patients, and a regional landfill.

"We're working on a feasibility study for that now," he said of the drug-alchohol center.

Morris said that the center may serve up to nine judicial districts in 23 counties.

Proposing a regional landfill is local businessman Jim Moody. He said that the landfill could generate up to $2 million a year and last up to 100 years. It may be located on 795 acres about a mile from I-20.

Those projects have "first priority," right now Martin said. But board members will soon start working on other projects and may begin meeting up to once a week, he said.

"We'll have to decide that," he said of how often and when they will meet. "It depends on the business we have coming up," he said.

Other members of the board are Gayle Houston, Bobby Lemons, Woody Anderson and Mike Hemphill. They are serving two years and without personal compensation, according to the 1989 Legislative amendment to a previous law which allowed for the referendum. The amendment enabled counties with under 50,000 populuation to participate.

With the establishment of an economic development board, counties as well as private businesses in the county can apply for numerous state and federal grants and loans from such places as the Texas and United States departments of commerce, Morris said.

"There's just books of them," he said of the programs and sources available that may provide money.

Asked how much money might be available, he said, "We're not even speculating."

Gubernatorial debate

DALLAS (AP) — Three area news organizations will sponsor debates this fall between winners of the Democratic and Republican gubernatorial primaries, officials announced.

The Dallas Times Herald, Fort Worth Star-Telegram and KXAS-TV will sponsor one debate in Dallas and one in Fort Worth.

The first one-hour debate will be broadcast the week of Oct. 7 and the second will be about one week prior to the ▪ ov. 6 election. The debates will be televised live in prime time and will be offered to other television stations for simulcast.

Funding approved

HOUSTON (AP) — The Wallisville Reservoir could begin construction as early as August after the Bush administration approved spending $9.2 million for the project.

Texas Water Commission Chairman Buck Wynne said Tuesday that President Bush released the funds for the controversial water project at the mouth of the Trinity River despite initial reports that the president was against the project.

A dam or some type of barrier is needed to prevent a backwash of saltwater into fragile freshwater swamps upstream should the city begin taking water from the river.

But environmentalists are concerned that a dam would reduce the flow of fresh water into Galveston Bay. An injunction secured by the Sierra Club and others stopped work on Wallisville from 1973 to 1987, and then the Reagan administration withheld federal funds because the project did not meet new cost-sharing guidelines.

Members of the Houston Sierra Club and other environmentalists said they would lobby Congress for federal funding for an inflatable barrier, which could be raised during times when the river is low.

Metcalf and Eddy ranked the inflatable barrier second to a dam because it is more expensive to the city. The inflatable barrier would cost the city about $40 million.

Back taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — The federal government is owed nearly $87 billion in back taxes, but thousands of sizable delinquent cases are stacked in Internal Revenue Service files because there aren't enough workers to pursue them, a U.S. House subcommittee reported.

IRS officials estimate their agency could deliver the government a windfall of $30 billion to $40 billion if the agency improved its collections.

But the subcommittee headed by U.S. Rep. Jake Pickle, an Austin Democrat, concluded Tuesday that the IRS daily is falling further behind in collections.

The amount of back taxes owed to the federal government has ballooned 1,700 percent since 1973, and the total grew by $1 billion in the three months that ended Sept. 30, the report said.

"The problem is going wild, and proposed efforts to deal with it are unacceptable," said Pickle "The IRS needs to better manage the accounts receivable (overdue taxes) and put this tiger back in its cage."

IRS Commissioner Fred Goldberg told the subcommittee that much of the increase in unpaid back taxes is due to economic growth. Because the IRS has done a better job of finding tax violators, it has increased its caseload of collections.

Texas girl returns to operating room

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Stormie Jones, the world's first heart-liver transplant recipient, returned to the operating room today because doctors feared she was bleeding internally a day after her second liver transplant.

The 12-year-old Texas girl's new liver was functioning, but a drop in blood pressure Tuesday night prompted doctors at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh to reopen the incisions at about 8:50 a.m., said hospital spokeswoman Lynn McMahon.

"They really are not considering this any type of setback," she said. "Stormie is doing very well. She is incredibly strong."

Ms. McMahon said doctors estimated it would take several hours to determine if she was bleeding and to locate the source.

Stormie had asked doctors for another liver weeks before they decided she needed one, according to her mother. She got her wish during Tuesday's 10-hour operation.

Tired of fighting problems with her first transplanted liver, Stormie said she needed a new one in November, her mother, Lois "Suzie" Purcell, 33, said at a news conference about an hour after her operation ended about 1 p.m.

"She tolerated the surgery very well," said Dr. Andreas Tzakis, who led a seven-member team of surgeons who performed the procedure. "It went very smoothly. She's a very strong child."

Hepatitis, not organ rejection, prompted doctors to decide Feb. 13 to perform a second liver transplant. Doctors discovered Stormie's first transplanted liver was being damaged by hepatitis caused by an unknown virus in early January, when she was hospitalized for treatment of an infection.

Symptoms of liver inflamation began to appear as early as four months ago, but Stormie became especially ill two weeks ago, suffering from weakness, jaundice and itchiness.

Her family was notified Monday that a suitable donor organ was available. The hospital declined to release information about the donor.

Stormie was overjoyed at the news and had no qualms about undergoing another major operation, her parents said.

"It's kind of like poker — you can't win if you don't play," said Stormie's stepfather, Alan Purcell, 27. "We had no choice but to play the game."

Monday night, the girl spent her time asking why doctors and nurses seemed to be delaying preparations for surgery.

"She was asking, 'When are they going to get here?' 'When are they going to show up?' and 'I want my liver,'" Mrs. Purcell said.

Surgery began about 3:15 a.m., nine hours after Stormie, her parents and her 16-year-old sister, Misty, arrived at Greater Pittsburgh International Airport from their home in the Fort Worth, Texas, suburb of White Settlement.

It's too early to gauge the operation's success, but the new liver "seemed to start functioning right away," Tzakis said.

The girl's heart was not affected by the disease and did not need to be replaced Tuesday, Tzakis said.

"Her heart responded perfectly during the transplant," Tzakis said.

Stormie received a new heart and liver at Children's on Feb. 14, 1984, to control levels of cholesterol 10 times higher than normal. Her cholesterol level has since decreased to nearly normal, Tzakis said.

Starzl replaced the girl's heart and liver with those of a 4-year-old girl who had died in a ▪ ew York car accident.

Before that operation, Stormie suffered two heart attacks and underwent two triple coronary bypass operations.

She had no serious complications until October 1988, when Children's doctors removed a bile duct obstruction. She returned to Pittsburgh in November after she began losing liver function.

At that time, doctors began administering FK-506, a new, experimental anti-rejection drug.

"She probably had mixed problems with hepatitis and organ rejection, and the rejection got better with the FK-506," Tzakis said.

Doctors expect no complications during Stormie's recovery this week because of her relatively good health, he said.

The success rate of a second liver transplant is estimated at 65 percent to 70 percent, hospital officials said.

Bush presents award to Texas engineers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush presented the first Charles Stark Draper Award to two Texas engineers who developed the semiconductor microchip, an invention that "helped America change the world."

Jack S. Kilby and Robert Noyce, working separately in the 1950s, developed the microchip, also known as the integrated circuit.

"Integrated circuits have enabled us to do the unimaginable," Bush said at an awards ceremony Tuesday night at the State Department. "Now, it is unimaginable to believe we could ever live without them.

"The microchip . . . helped America change the world."

The integrated circuit incorporates a large number of transistors on a single, tiny piece of silicon.

Kilby is chief technical officer of the Houston Area Research Center; Noyce is president and chief executive officer of Austin's Sematech, a research consortium of high technology companies.

The two men, who are recognized by the scientific and engineering community as independent co-inventors of the monolithic integrated circuit, will share the $350,000 award.

The Draper award for engineering achievement is sponsored by the National Academy of Engineering. It was established in 1988 with an endowment by the Cambridge, Mass.-based Charles Stark Draper Laboratory.

The prize will be awarded every two years to individuals who have contributed significantly to the advancement of engineering and whose achievements have produced important benefits to the "well-being and freedom of all humanity."

Bush said the microchip, in addition to transforming everyday life with such items as computers and calculators, "has stirred the new breeze of democracy" across the world.

Survey finds Americans casual about eye care

DALLAS (AP) — While most working Americans believe eye care is important, few take the time to have their vision checked annually, according to a national survey that found almost two-thirds of adults willing to swap a day of vacation for a free eye exam and pair of glasses.

"We found a disparity between the level of importance Americans place on their eyes and the conscious efforts made to maintain healthy eyes," said ▪ ick Tortorello, chairman of Research & Associates Inc. which conducted the survey for Pearle Inc., the nation's largest eyeglass retailer.

"Although 70 percent are very concerned with potential blindness, only one-third of the population has their eyes examined at least once a year."

"When you first ask people about eye care generally, people don't think about it right away," Tortorello said. "But once you start talking to them about it, all of a sudden they realize they shouldn't play as much Russian roulette" with their eyes.

The random telephone survey of 1,005 working Americans — 64 percent of whom wear glasses — was conducted last fall and released Tuesday. Research & Associates said the findings can be projected to the entire adult population. The margin of error is plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Pray for rain

Big Spring water leaves a bad taste in the mouth, both literally and figuratively. Potable water is probably very high on everyone's want list. But as O.H. Ivie explained at a well-attended town meeting last night, everything, including good water, has a price.

There's no question but that a desalinization plant is technically feasible, if we're willing to pay the increased water costs. Such a plant could deliver drinkable water straight to every Big Spring faucet.

Desalinated water would be healthier, both for people and for our pipes, machinery, appliances and lawns, which are affected by the water salts.

But as Ivie pointed out, the costs of desalination are high and that is due, in part, to the water waste that results from the method by which the salt is removed. Ivie estimated a hundred percent waste factor because half of the water that would go through a desalinization plant would go out again as sludge containing the unwanted salts. This waste water also requires a disposal reservoir of some sort.

It is hard to justify 100 percent waste of a resource, even if it is one we are fortunate enough to have in seeming abundance. It is just as hard to justify the possible damage to the watershed area over a long period of discharging saline water.

There is an alternative. Hard, intense rains, of the type that are fairly common in West Texas, will probably, over a period of several years, dilute our water supply, as such rains have in the past. The Colorado River Municipal Water District staff has charted the amount of salts in our water supply reservoirs over the years, and it is their conjecture that the rains will come and the water will improve.

Given the environmental costs of removing the salt from our water, it may be in the our best interest in the long run to forget desalinization and pray for rain.

Overstocking

The Defense Department's warehouses are overflowing. Crates of helicopter parts remain outdoors for lack of space. Spare ship propellers gather rust on docks. The Defense Department's storehouses are crammed so full that officials lose track of what they have — and order more.

In this era of federal deficits, the Pentagon, as usual, needs a few lessons on how to economize. According to a report released by the Senate Budget Committee, the armed services now possess about $30 billion in supplies they don't — and may never — need. Another $20 billion worth of goods are on order, and $30 billion is earmarked for even more purchases.

Clearly, the force of inertia is at work. The military's purchasing machinery, out of touch with federal budget realities and global politics, has taken on a life of its own. To paraphrase Adm. Farragut, damn the torpedoes and the federal deficit. Spend at full speed.

It makes no sense to let military stockpiling go unchecked in an era when the federal government is under increasing pressure to bring spending under control. Just imagine if every government department insisted on keeping enough supplies and equipment to handle any conceivable need for years.

And the embarrassing disclosures in the Senate report make it tougher for defense officials to argue on Capitol Hill they won't be able to scrape by next year with less than $295 billion.

A few simple lessons in inventory control might save the taxpayers' billions of dollars. It also could free funds for other worthy government programs. This possibility surely won't escape the attention of lawmakers looking for budget fat to trim.

Congress has every reason to carp, but the Pentagon shouldn't wait for the outcry on Capitol Hill. The disclosures should prompt administrative streamlining — starting with military purchasing.

FDA still not back on track

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration managed to get through an embarrassing generic drug scandal without learning its lesson.

The agency still doesn't adequately track the approval process for new generic drugs, betraying the same sloppiness that allowed crooked FDA chemists to hustle gifts from drug makers in trade for preferential treatment.

In fact, four months after one of those chemists was fired, the FDA records indicated that he was still reviewing generic drug applications. He wasn't, of course. Charles Chang was awaiting sentencing for accepting gratuities from drug companies.

The FDA hadn't cleaned up its act enough even to remove Chang's name from the review roster.

Federal investigators who mopped up after the scandal found that two other departed chemists in addition to Chang were still on the records as reviewers. One FDA official who left the agency last May was still listed as the reviewer on 60 drug applications last fall. The report does not list those chemists by name, but an FDA source confirmed that one was Chang.

Our associate Jim Lynch obtained a copy of the investigators' draft audit, which for the first time documents the impact of the dishonesty and disorganization at the FDA. The report was produced by auditors for the inspector general for the Health and Human Services Department, Richard Kusserow.

The conclusions vindicate several drug companies that bumped their heads against a brick wall trying to get the FDA to investigate its own collusion and favoritism. Three FDA chemists and three officials of generic drug firms have been convicted of crimes related to stacking the deck in the drug approval process.

After looking at one single graph in the report, it is easy to see why Mylan Laboratories Inc. — a company that didn't bribe anyone — hired a private investigator to find out why its drugs were put on the slow track.

The FDA took almost three years to approve one of Mylan's drugs. Yet another company got approval for the same generic in less than six months. Chang's trial revealed that he received a bundle of gifts from the company on the fast track.

The agency still doesn't adequately track the approval process for new generic drugs, betraying the same sloppiness that allowed crooked FDA chemists to hustle gifts from drug makers in trade for preferential treatment.

Time is money in the highly competitive generic drug industry. Some exasperated drug makers lost millions of dollars waiting for the inexplicable FDA approval process while their competitors breezed through.

The report shows in hard numbers what was happening. Barr Laboratories, for example, waited 593 days for approval of one of its drugs, while the same drug made by American Therapeutics Inc. was reviewed in 182 days. The Chang trial revealed that an American Therapeutics official had given Chang an around-the-world trip, furniture and other gifts.

Sources inside the FDA have expressed frustration that the agency is still disorganized. Ousted FDA Commissioner Frank Young has not been replaced. The inspector general's draft report says the FDA generic drug division still "does not track the progress of an application," nor does it "detect indications of possible manipulation of the generic drug review and approval process."

The FDA likes to think of the scandal as an unforeseeable surprise. The fact that fired chemists were still listed as reviewers for drug applications was "a technical oversight," according to an FDA spokesman.

The little oversights and surprises reflect a poorly managed agency that still won't admit its problems.

AVOIDING AIDS — The federal government is treating the AIDS epidemic like the common cold. Local health departments have difficulty meeting staffing requirements. Programs that attempt to motivate long-term changes in sexual behavior and drug use require a staff with specialized skills. Yet health officials' requests for more qualified staffers go unmet. Part of the problem is political. When the White House earmarks more money for safe-sex education or clean needle programs, it is attacked by the right wing for encouraging promiscuity and drug use.

MINI-EDITORIAL — As if it wasn't bad enough that federal savings and loan regulators let the industry run amok, now the news is out that they hired private lobbyists to represent them before Congress. Let's see if we can get this straight. A federal agency spent taxpayers' money to hire lobbyists to push its agenda before federal lawmakers. There is some question about whether it was legal. But there is no question about whether it was stupid.

Georgia peaches can be the pits

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

The world is still reeling from the news that billionaire Donald Trump and his aging wife (she's 41, for Godsakes), Ivana, are nearing a split. Trouble, in other words, in Plazadise.

On top of that news has come another spicy tidbit inquiring minds also have been drooling over.

There is apparently another woman, and she is of all things, from Cohutta, Ga. (between Stinkrock and Roosterville), 26-year-old model and part time actress, Marla Maples.

If the Trumps do get a divorce, Ivana is expected to walk with a total nearing the French war debt, or what a Colombian drug dealer can expect to bring home per month.

So can we expect in the future the possibility of Donald Trump taking up with Marla Maples full time? If he does, he will have latched onto one of the world's most intriguing characters, the Georgia Peach, bless her heart, and can I have a new Porsche, Daddy, the other one's dirty?

If Mr. T. thinks Ivana could go through a checkbook like grease through a goose, wait until he must deal with his cute little peachette, the former beauty queen, who, if she's like other GPs I have known, can go out in the morning with a credit card and come home at night with the writing worn slap off.

("Slap" is Georgia Peach for "completely.")

I married two Georgia Peaches myself. My third wife was from South Carolina. She was a lot more frugal than the other two. As she often said, "I never buy anything we don't really need."

"Do we really need this diamond studded toilet seat?" I asked her the time she came home with a diamond toilet seat.

"It was on sale," she explained. "I saved you three hundred dollars."

I asked if I could have the three hundred I saved so I could buy a new set of tires for our car.

"There you go being careless with our money again," she said. "The tires are just as round as the day you bought them three years ago."

My two Georgia Peach ex-wives could shop with anybody. I took one to Greece. She tried to buy the Acropolis.

"Wouldn't it be cute in the back yard," she said.

I took another to Paris. I will never forget the concierge at our hotel saying to my wife as she walked into the lobby after a shopping trip, "Mademoiselle Grizzard would you like for me to store your packages? There's a vacant warehouse two blocks away."

Still, I must admit there is something very special about Georgia Peaches, like the good ones never perspire, they shave their legs everyday, and the sweetness they inherit from their mothers restrains the lion, e.g., D.T.

And if Donald Trump does wind up with Miss Maples, there's a few other things he should know about the little darlings:

The mating call of the Georgia Peach: "Lordy, I'm sooooo drunk."

The three men that the Georgia Peach admires most: 1. Daddy. 2. Daddy. 3. Daddy.

What Georgia Peaches all have in common: They're always cold and they have bladders the size of a white acre pea.

What two things you can always count on the Georgia Peach to know: What day the Dawgs play Clemson and the location of the nearest Neiman-Marcus.

Why God made Georgia Peaches in the first place: To make up for the mistake he made on Joan Rivers.

More on this story as it becomes available, y'all.

Delay sought in releasing answers

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Poindexter says former President Reagan's testimony is favorable to his case, but the former national security adviser wants to delay its release until after a jury is sworn in for his Iran-Contra trial.

Twelve news organizations on Tuesday suggested in a court filing that the videotape and transcripts of Reagan's testimony Friday and Saturday in Los Angeles be made available as soon as possible.

Iran-Contra prosecutors told U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene, who is presiding in the case involving Poindexter, that they have "no objections" to releasing the videotapes and transcripts of Reagan's deposition now.

But Reagan's lawyers filed court papers asked that the tapes be withheld until the end of the trial.

Poindexter's lawyers maintained in court papers that Reagan's testimony "is favorable to the defense."

Weather improves for launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Weather conditions improved slightly today for the scheduled secret military launch of space shuttle Atlantis and NASA said the countdown was clipping along at a smooth pace.

Air Force forecasters said today there was a 60 percent chance that winds and dense, wet clouds over the Kennedy Space Center will prevent the early Thursday liftoff, but that outlook is an improvement from an earlier prediction of 70 percent when experts said there was a chance of thunderstorms.

Air Force spokesman Capt. Ken Warren said the threat of thunderstorms has receded, but brisk winds and thick clouds with some rain could pose the major problems.

Atlantis astronauts took advantage of a slight break in the weather today to fly practice landings in the space shuttle training craft. They spent the rest of the morning in briefings and were to go to bed at noon.

The early bedtime for the five-member shuttle crew is designed to shift their sleep cycle to the rest schedule they'll follow in orbit.

Atlantis' crew is commanded by Navy Capt. John O. Creighton. Air Force Col. John H. Casper is the pilot and the others are mission specialists Marine Lt. Col. David C. Hilmers, Air Force Col. Richard M. Mullane and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Pierre J. Thuot.

Miners prepare to go back to jobs

CASTLEWOOD, Va. (AP) — The nearly 1,700 Appalachian miners who ratified a contract with Pittston Coal Group after a 10½-month strike prepared to go back to their jobs this week, but not everyone is happy about it.

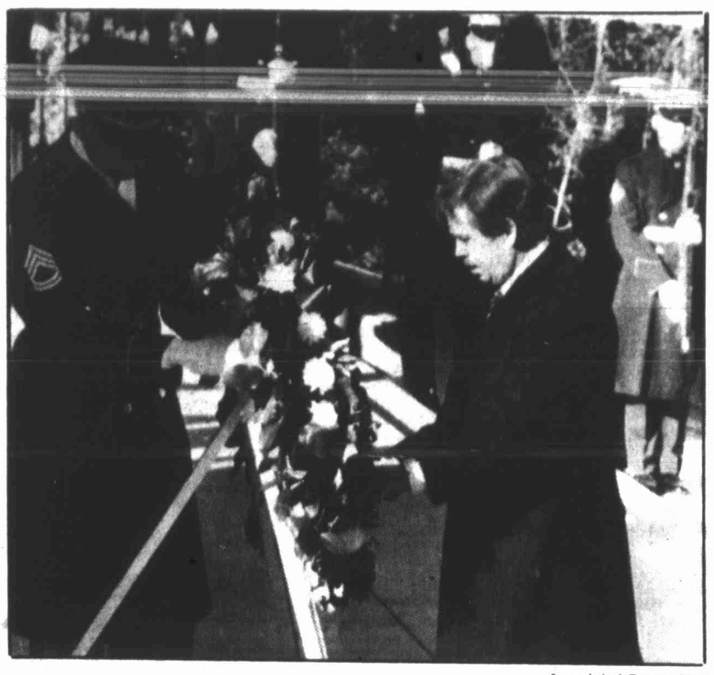

Pittston President Michael Odom, who announced the return to work, says most of the United Mine Workers in Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky will be back on their jobs by Monday. The first shifts begin Thursday night.

"We're going to go about the business now of mining coal," UMW Vice President Cecil Roberts said Tuesday during a news conference to announce that the contract, replacing an agreement that expired in February 1988, was ratified by 63-37 percent.

The miners got the job security and health and retirement provisions they sought, and Pittston won the right to operate round-the-clock, with voluntary labor Sunday morning and afternoon.

Czech president urges U.S. to support reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States can best help Czechoslovakia, one of Eastern Europe's "wayward children," by keeping the Soviet Union on the road to reform and democracy, Czechoslovak president Vaclav Havel told Congress today.

"The more quickly and the more peacefully the Soviet Union begins to move along the road towards genuine political pluralism" and economic reform, "the better it will be — not just for Czechs and Slovaks, but for the whole world," the playwright-turned-president said in a speech prepared for delivery to a joint meeting of the House and Senate.

Havel, the first head of state from his country ever to visit Washington, also said he recognized the need for a continuing presence of U.S. troops in Europe. But he added: "Sooner or later Europe must recover and come into its own, and decide for itself how many of whose soldiers it needs...."

He also called for moving up the so-called Helsinki II conference now planned for 1992 and turning it into a European peace conference "that would finally put a formal end to the Second World War and all its unhappy consequences."

And Havel called for the removal of "as many Soviet (military) units as possible" from his country before national elections scheduled for June.

"Czechoslovakia is returning to Europe," he declared, vowing to coordinate that return with neighboring Poland and Hungary and the other "wayward children" of the former Warsaw Pact.

Turning philosophical, Havel said years of repression had given his countrymen time to ponder what is truly important, and said Americans can learn from that experience as well.

"The salvation of this human world lies nowhere else than in the human heart, in the human power to reflect, in human meekness and human responsibility," Havel told the lawmakers.

His speech came a day after Havel got a warm welcome from President Bush at the White House along with promises of freer trade between the two countries and incentives for new investment and economic development.

The Bush administration and leading lawmakers also have proposed expanding an aid program begun last year for Poland and Hungary to include Czechoslovakia and other countries emerging from 40 years of Soviet domination.

Havel did not directly address the question of aid, but at one point commented that greater stability would lead to reductions in U.S. military spending.

U.N. peacekeepers wounded

TYRE, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem militiamen opened fire at a group of U.N. peacekeepers in south Lebanon today and wounded three Irish soldiers, one of them critically, U.N. spokesman Timur Goksel said.

Goksel said the soldiers were attacked by gunmen from the Amal militia in the village of Haddatha, just north of Israel's self-proclaimed "security zone."

Amal leaders were investigating the incident. The militia is known to have good relations with the 5,800-strong U.N. peacekeeping force, which has been stationed in south Lebanon since March 1978.

A spokesman for Amal in Beirut, who refused to be named, said the firefight could have developed due to "personal reasons" He did not elaborate

"The investigation is currently under way. Of course, we regret the clash and stress that it was not politically motivated. Our militiamen are under strict orders to respect UNIFIL," the spokesman added.

UNIFIL, drawn from nine nations, mans a narrow buffer of south Lebanon separating Israel's security zone from predominantly Shiite villages hostile to Israel.

Britain first to lift sanctions

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — In the first major dent in international sanctions against South Africa, Britain has defied the rest of the European Community and will unilaterally lift a ban on new investment.

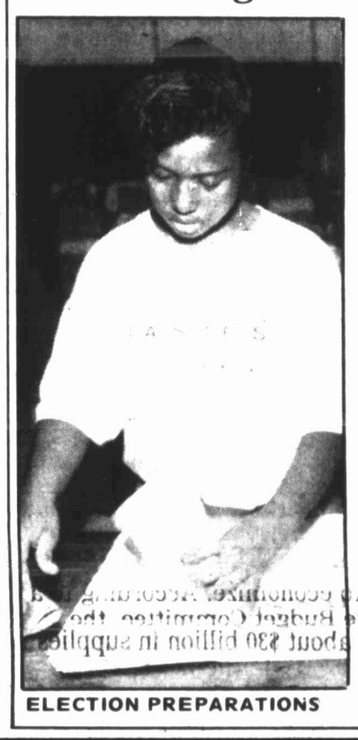

Britain's move Tuesday, following its failure to persuade other members of the 12-nation community to follow suit, underlined its reputation as a reluctant member of the European Community.

The African National Congress today accused Britain of breaking its word on economic sanctions and said the action was part of a pattern by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of favoring South Africa's white minority government.

Irish Foreign Minister Gerry Collins accused Britain of setting a "dangerous precedent" and added: "I would appeal to everyone here not to embark on such a course."

In contrast to the fallout over South Africa, the community's foreign ministers displayed marked unanimity over the upheavals in Eastern Europe, declaring that the Western trade bloc sees itself as a "mooring for a future European equilibrium."

Thousands gather for election rally

ELECTION PREPARATIONS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Thousands of Sandinista supporters on foot or in cars, trucks, buses and wheelchairs began gathering today for President Daniel Ortega's final campaign rally.

Bands of youths stayed up all night raising black-and-red banners across two parade routes, and crowded vehicles began arriving from out of town before dawn for this evening's rally alongside Lake Managua.

"We're here to flatten Violeta," said Jorge Luis Garcia Castana, a Sandinista army veteran who was almost totally blinded by mortar fragments in Nicaragua's civil war.

He and other disabled veterans said they thought a vote for Violeta Barrios de Chamorro was a vote for the U.S.-supported Contra rebels who left them crippled for life.

Sandinista campaign manager Bayardo Arce told reporters that Ortega was willing to turn over the government in the "hypothetical" event of a loss.

Hunger still exists, Congress told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hunger is not just an abstract political debate — it can be a daily battle for poor families, a pair of mothers on welfare told members of Congress.

And it's a battle the families don't always win, they said.

"My children are always asking for food," said Peggy Adams, a mother of nine from Montgomery County, Md.

"You may think that's fairly typical for children, and maybe it is, but half of the time I don't have enough food to feed them whenever they are hungry," she said.

Mary Tamper, a Prince George's County, Md., mother of two, told a similar story Tuesday to members of the Senate Budget Committee.

"There were times when my son would say, 'Mom, I know you just fed me, but I'm still hungry,'" she said. "This hurt me more than any knife, especially when there was no food in the cupboard."

Both testified in the Senate committee's hearings on hunger and the Bush administration's proposals for food and nutritional funding.

Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Budget Committee, said the Bush administration's budget proposal for fiscal 1991 cuts $462 million from the child nutrition budget and freezes the food stamp program.

"It is a budget that goes in the wrong direction as far as hungry Americans are concerned," Sasser said.

He said he believed Congress will support higher spending for nutrition programs for families with children.

Dr. Victor W. Sidel, a social medicine professor at Albert Einstein College of Medicine in the Bronx, N.Y., cited estimates that 2 million to 5 million low-income children in the United States are hungry — and that the figure could go as high as 9 million.

He said hungry children suffer twice as many illnesses as other children, and he charged the nation's record on child and prenatal nutrition was "obscene."

"A nation that permits its children to go hungry cannot claim moral leadership," Sidel said.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., ranking Republican on the panel, defended the Bush administration's budget proposal, saying some cuts in eligibility for school lunch assistance may be warranted and that food stamp assistance levels were adequate in some cases.

Both Mrs. Tamper and Mrs. Adams said the federal Women, Infants and Children program — providing food assistance for pregnant mothers and their children up to age 5 — filled the gaps after they found themselves thrust into poverty.

"All I can say is, thank God for WIC," said Mrs. Tamper.

Although the assistance is provided for the youngest children and their mothers, both mothers said they used the WIC food to feed the whole family.

Both described a sudden descent from middle class to welfare and poverty after losing their husbands' income.

Mrs. Tamper's husband died after being diagnosed with leukemia. She said she was forced to give up her job as a teacher's aide for a time, and that they moved in with her mother while relying on Social Security Survivor Benefits, rent subsidies and other assistance.

Mrs. Adams said her family lost its $55,000 annual income when she and her husband were separated and he was sentenced to prison. She said her family has benefited from food stamps, public assistance and WIC.

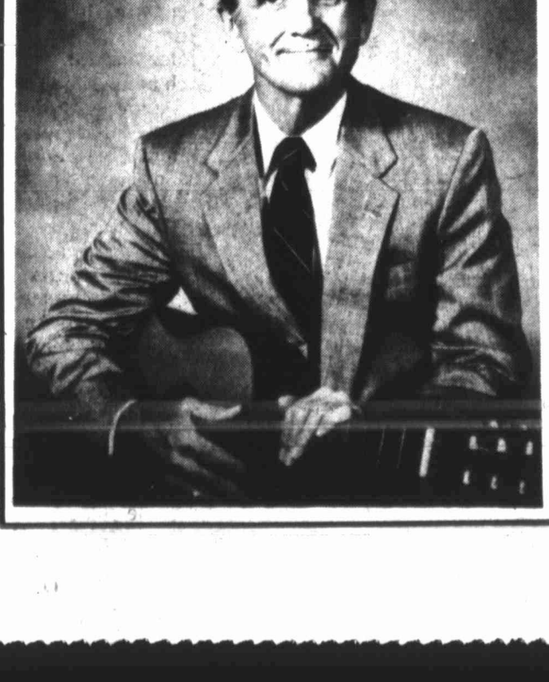

Despite the aid, she said, her 9-year-old son's weight has dropped from 65 pounds to 60 pounds, and her 5-year-old son has dropped a size in clothing. Her 8-year-old twins haven't outgrown their clothes in two years.

"I have seen my children's bodies stop growing like they should, and I pray it's not their brains as well," Mrs. Adams said.

Magazine specializes in aids for hearing-impaired

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — When hearing-impaired Paula Bartone discovered a portable amplifier that would help overcome her inability to use the telephone, she was more than thrilled.

She was angry.

Ms. Bartone said she could hardly believe that she finally had found a device on the open market that could enable her to escape one of the most aggravating handicaps of the first 25 years of her life.

The discovery was only by chance. "Why hadn't she known before?," she asked herself.

Today she is publisher, editor and founder of The Voice, a slick, full-color, 30,000-circulation national magazine based in Corpus Christi and published nine times a year in devotion to the problems of 20 million deaf or hearing-impaired Americans.

She started the magazine immediately after learning about the phone amplifier.

She did it because she wanted to make sure that deaf and hearing-impaired people could avail themselves of a forum that would keep them informed of advances, breakthroughs and equipment to make their lives easier and more productive.

"The amplifier had been available at least a year or two, and other devices had already been available for a long time," she said. "I was angry because I'd been forced to be dependent, and I'm not dependent by nature."

In order to embark on her new career, she quit her job as a school teacher, borrowed $6,000 from her father and it's been up hill and down hill ever since. The first three years were very difficult, she said.

Ms. Bartone has had to force herself to work 70-hour weeks for months on end — serving as publisher, editor, advertising salesperson, circulation director and janitor.

"It was crazy, but I didn't know any better than to do this," said Ms. Bartone, 39.

Despite many problems — including a near collapse of the enterprise three years ago when she ran out of money — it's been getting a little easier lately.

The magazine began to break even two years ago, she said.

"I put my heart and soul and every penny I could get my hands on into this for five years," she said. "The problem was, I just didn't know how to go out of business."

She said she's still $30,000 in debt, but she's making progress in paying it off.

She's buoyed by a new expansion project and promotion, including a national circulation drive, an advertising push, broadened coverage, more pages and additional staff and features, including the addition of national sports columnist Barry Strassler.

A colleague, Steve Coleman, has taken over the advertising program so she can devote time to editorial content.

Entertainment reading in recent editions has included biographies about inventor Thomas Edison, 19th century German composer Ludwig von Beethoven and 19th century Spanish artist Francisco Goya, all of whom suffered from chronic hearing loss.

Ms. Bartone also established a toll-free magazine telephone number (800-327-7347) in which Voice advisory board members answer hearing-related health questions.

"In today's information age, without knowledge and access to the constantly emerging technology available, a large number of people with hearing loss will be left in isolation," Ms. Bartone said.

"We offer an opportunity for deaf and hard-of-hearing people to learn about the many options open to them."

Editor's note: The subscription rate for nine issues is $14, payable to Voice International Publications Inc., Box 2663, Corpus Christi, Texas 78403-2663.

Shouldering the burden

UZUNU, Romania — An elderly Romanian woman carries a load of firewood on her shoulder in the village of Uzunu, about 25 miles outside of Bucharest. Modernization and improvement of Romania's standard of living still have a long way to go in the turmoil resulting from last December's popular revolution.

Pollution may be killing salamanders

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Polluted snow from acid rain may be killing off salamanders in the Colorado Rockies, one of a series of mysterious population declines among amphibians around the globe, a researcher said.

Scientists fear the decline of frog, toad and salamander populations — even in relatively pristine national parks — may presage ecological disaster.

"Amphibians are tough critters," said David Wake, director of the Museum of Vertebrate Zoology at the University of California at Berkeley. "They survived whatever wiped out the dinosaurs, and they have thrived through the age of mammals. If they start to check out now, we better take it seriously."

An 8-year study by John Harte, a professor at the university, indicates a link between declines of hardy, 6-inch tiger salamanders in the Rocky Mountains and an increase in the acidity of ponds in which they live.

Harte's study noted that snow formed from acid rain melted in the late spring, pouring into 14 ponds he studied and raising their acid level.

The study found acid levels such as those created by melting snow severely disrupted egg growth and killed developing salamander embryos, Harte said Monday.

Studies in the eastern United States have shown the impact of acid rain on fish populations, but Harte's study is the first strong evidence that the same problem may be hitting the West, the university said in a statement.

Harte collaborated on the project with Erika Hoffman, a scientist at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

The study was presented at a special meeting called by the National Research Council at the National Academy of Science's Beckman Center in Irvine in Southern California. Scientists were to meet through today to discuss "Declining Amphibian Populations — A Global Phenomenon."

Amphibians are cold-blooded, moist-skinned creatures who spend part of their lives in the water and part on land. Declines in local populations on six continents were first noted in the late 1970s.

In the past few years, drastic population declines have been noted in such species as the golden toad in Costa Rican rain forests, the yellow-legged frog in the Sierra Nevada, and spotted frogs in the northwestern U.S., which now are being considered for addition to the endangered species list.

Counting people requires new maps

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Census Bureau sets out to count Americans in a few weeks, workers will have all new maps — the result of a massive cartographic cooperation by government agencies.

The project was undertaken because it's not enough for the census to just count everyone every 10 years. It also has to report where they are.

Since 1983 the U.S. Geological Survey and the Census Bureau have worked together to compile a new set of computerized maps, known as TIGER for Topologically Integrated Geographic Encoding and Referencing.

Census-takers for years were plagued by old and inaccurate maps, sometimes setting forth with nothing more detailed than highway department road maps.

"Highway department maps typically only show the roads they maintain, which are not all roads. Often they are very deficient for census purposes, but they were the best available," explained Robert Marx, chief of the Census Bureau's geography division.

Now all that has changed.

"The Tiger system allows us to tailor maps to the enumerator. If you are working in downtown New York City you need a different type of map than if you are working in rural Kansas," observed Marx. "And crew leaders need different maps from their workers."

Tiger maps are stored on computer tape, making it easy to change them and to run new copies as needed.

Copies of the new local census maps have been sent to more than 39,000 local governments across the nation in recent months, with preliminary housing counts going to 21,000 local governments, Marx explained.

Officials were asked to check the maps and make additions or corrections, which then are entered in the computers for use in the April 1 census.

"On the housing counts, we have heard from about 13 percent of the 21,000 governments," he said.

"Comments ranged from 'it looks fine' to some fairly serious problems. Where we have identified problems we are recanvassing the area to find out what happened and to get it fixed," Marx said.

This local review will be repeated after the census. The maps will be sent out again, along with the housing unit and population counts by block.

Local governments then will be able to check for omissions and census officials will recanvass areas where questions are raised.

Clock hands may move from nuclear midnight

CHICAGO (AP) — Keepers of the Doomsday Clock say the world is moving drastically away from the threat of nuclear war.

For years the Doomsday Clock on the cover of The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists has been ticking back and forth toward midnight, an indication of the state of superpower relations.

After standing at six minutes before midnight — or the threat of nuclear war — for two years, the Bulletin's April edition may turn the clock back, reflecting recent reforms in the Soviet Union and its Eastern European allies.

Editor Deb Ackland said Tuesday that a decision hasn't been made on where the clock's hands will be in April.

But Nobel laureate Leon M. Lederman, director emeritus of the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory outside Chicago and one of the scientists whose opinions influence the clock's movement, said, "I wanted the hands to move back the most. The danger of military confrontation between the superpowers and the credibility of that threat is lessening every hour."

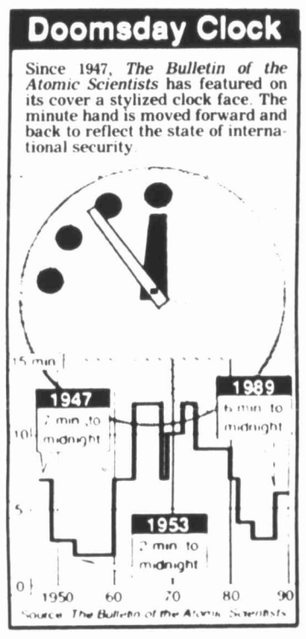

The clock first appeared on the June 1947 Bulletin to evoke the image of the apocalypse — universal conflagration bursting forth at the darkest hour — and of military attack, with the countdown to zero hour, Aekland said.

The clock was closest to midnight — two minutes away — in 1953, after the United States successfully tested the hydrogen bomb.

It was farthest from midnight — 12 minutes — in 1963, after the signing of the Partial Test Ban Treaty, and again in 1972, when the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty was signed.

It last moved in 1988, shifting back from three minutes before midnight to six minutes away, due in large part to the U.S.-Soviet treaty eliminating intermediate-range nuclear missiles, Ackland said.

The Bulletin was founded in 1945 by scientists who worked at the University of Chicago on the Manhattan Project — the successful U.S. effort to build an atomic bomb during World War II. Among its founders were J. Robert Oppenheimer, sometimes called the father of the atomic bomb, and Albert Einstein.

The magazine, published by the Educational Foundation for Nuclear Science, has 17,000 subscribers in 70 countries.

The magazine's worldwide Board of Scientific Sponsors debates the international climate through letters and over the telephone to determine whether the hands of the clock should move.

The sponsors make their recommendations to the Bulletin's board of directors and editors, who have the final say.

Lederman, a member of both boards, said he believes that since World War II, the world has never been further from nuclear war than it is now, though he added it will be hard for bureaucrats to stop asking for huge military expenditures.

But despite the general view among Bulletin sponsors that the threat of nuclear war is diminishing, some note changes that could pose a threat to peace.

"They are concerned by the growth of nationalism, strident nationalism in Eastern Europe and other places," said Lederman, who won the 1988 Nobel Prize in physics.

Scientists search for psychic dogs

NEW YORK (AP) — Intrigued by stories of two dogs who reportedly could sense that their masters were about to have epileptic seizures, researchers are looking for other dogs who appear to have that ability.

If dogs can be trained to give warnings, they might make life easier for people with epilepsy by giving them time to take precautions to avoid injury during the seizure, said Reina Berner, executive director of the Epilepsy Institute in New York.

As a result, some people with epilepsy could become less fearful of having seizures in public, and so begin to lead less restricted lives, she said.

The institute hopes to find three to five dogs who appear to have the ability, so the animals can be formally tested. If it appears, researchers hope to find out how they do it, so other dogs can be trained, Berner said.

The testing would involve monitoring brain waves of a volunteer to watch for the signal of an impending seizure, and noting if and when the dog senses the seizure coming.

Editor's note: The Epilepsy Institute is at 67 Irving Place, Sixth Floor, New York, NY, 10003.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer.
Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $60.00.
A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, ● even before it can be felt.

Calf scramble

The following Sands FFA members have qualified for the Calf Scramble during the Houston Stock Show and Rodeo. Eric Herm, Matt Snell, Jason Hodnett, Aaron Cowley, Chris Bilbo, and Dee Lott will compete March 2. There will be 20 boys and 10 calves in the Astrodome Arena. Winners will receive $800 to buy a registered beef heifer to be shown in Houston in 1991.

Brown gathering

On Feb. 18, the Brown family met in Lamesa at K-Bob's Steakhouse. Visiting from Hale Center were: Troy and Mildred Brown, Dean and Mickie Brown, and Don and Brenda Brown, and their families from Ackerly, Billy and Gracie Brown, Burt and Bevie Masingale, and Jannette Brown, with her children Billy and D'Nae.

Youth fundraiser

The First Baptist Church, Ackerly, will provide a Mexican pile-on lunch after worship services Sunday. Proceeds will benefit the youth who have plans to attend Super Summer camp.

Baby shower

On Saturday a baby shower will be given by Gerry Buchanana and Jessie Little honorning Jill Beall Havink, daughter of Robert and Ida Lou Beall. The shower will take place at 2525 Ent St., from 3 to 5 p.m.

Fun and Friendship

The next Knott community Fun and Friendship Day could help us make a big difference in a life or death situation. Charla Lewis, coordinator for Emergency Medical Services for the college, will be teaching the Heimlich maneuver and snake bite first aid. The Heimlich maneuver is a very important skill to know when someone is choking. If not done correctly is useless. Plans are being made to provide a class to reach CPR in our community, if there are enough who are interested. CPR is an emergency skill that could be vital for the people in our community. Everyone young and old needs to know CPR. People do not realize that it takes only 4-6 minutes for the brain to start dying and only a few seconds for the heart cells. Once a cell dies it cannot be replaced. CPR can help prevent brain and heart damage, and could save a life. We live 20 miles from town and about 9 miles from Ackerly, so it would take at least 10 minutes for an ambulance to arrive with help. This is why your presence at the next community gathering could mean the difference between life or death for a loved one, or friend. If you would like to take this class, please call Laverne Gaskins at 353-4411.

Woman's view falls wide of mark

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: "Tall in California" insisted in her letter that short men had a tendency to come on too strong in order to compensate for their shortness.

I was recently watching the TV special "Gandhi," which left me quite puzzled. Why was this short guy doing all these wonderful things for humanity?

Then I recalled the letter from "Tall in California," and it all became crystal clear to me! Gandhi was overcompensating out of frustration from being unable to date tall California girls.

And then there was Einstein, of course! I had always wondered why this little man of underaverage height bothered to completely revolutionize modern scientific thought with his theory of relativity. It should have been done by someone big and tall — like John Wayne. What a tragedy that we can no longer reach Gandhi and Einstein with this deep new understanding of human behavior and relieve them of their personality problems.

On the other hand, what wonderful news to find that if short men behaved just right, they may earn the privilege of dating tall girls. I'm sure Einstein and Gandhi, not to mention Picasso and Freud, would be drooling at the prospect of dating girls taller than themselves.

Really, if shallowness has any relation to height, how tall is "Tall in California"? — RONALD ANTHONY CROSS, SANTA MONICA

DEAR RONALD: She didn't say, but if "Tall" reads this, it will probably cut her down to size.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 92-year-old veteran of three wars: World War I, World War II and the Korean War. The U.S. Army recently mailed to me 13 medals, including the Bronze Star.

I have no heirs who would be interested in having these medals, so if you will suggest a manner of disposal, I would very much appreciate hearing from you. — LT. COL. THOMAS P. DICKINSON, ARMY RESERVE, GEORGETOWN, OHIO

DEAR COL. DICKINSON: I went right to the top for a solution to your unique problem and consulted Gen. R.G. Stilwell, whom I recently met through my involvement with the Korean War veterans.

Gen. Stilwell said: "I can attest that only a handful of Americans have served in all three wars, and those who are still living are very few indeed. Thus Col. Dickinson is a genuine American hero! In reviewing his service record, I learned that Col. Dickinson is, in fact, due two more medals — for a total of 15!

"If, as he says, his relatives are not interested in his medals, I am sure the people of Georgetown, Ohio, would be proud to acquire them. Although he may be too modest to propose it, those medals should be prominently displayed in his hometown to inform present and future citizens of Col. Dickinson's patriotism."

America's mania for muffins; party time or any time

The mania for muffins has reached homes, schools, offices and bus stops across the country. Muffins are versatile, portable, convenient and easy to make. This makes them perfect for mealtime, snack time, party time or anytime.

Today, this mania for muffins has a new twist: Cereal and yogurt. With these recipes you can add color, plus calcium and other nutrients to quick and easy muffins for everyday or special day use.

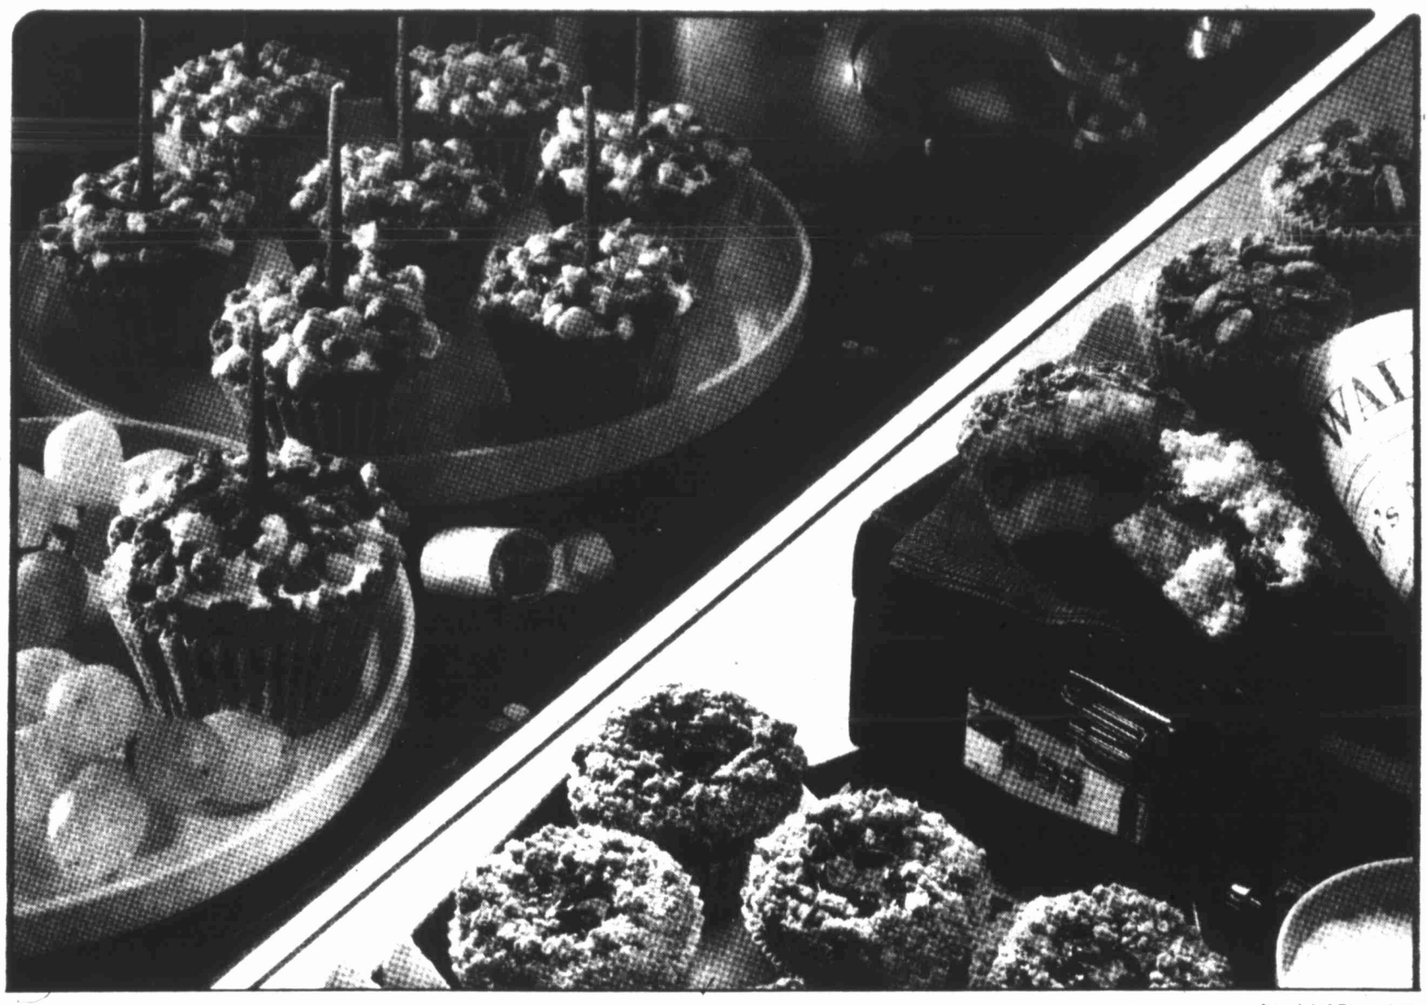

Choosing quick and easy foods that are wholesome can be a challenge. These recipes add variety to any meal. Honey-glazed Oat Bran Muffins are the perfect alternative to a sweet roll in the morning. Or try Lemon-Blueberry-Yogurt Muffins in place of an afternoon candy bar.

Children will love Peanut Butter and Jelly-Yogurt Muffins in their lunchbox. The zany colors of the Sparkle-topped Muffins make them perfect as a special treat in place of a cupcake.

As an added taste bonus, these wholesome muffins are prepared with cereal and yogurt. Yogurt is an excellent source of calcium, protein and other nutrients. Most cereals are fortified with vitamins and minerals and provide a tasty way to add key nutrients to your diet.

These two simple ingredients combined in easy muffin recipes provide a versatile way to help you meet your need for wholesome foods.

This week's Recipe Exchange easy and delicious muffin recipes.

HONEY-GLAZED OAT BRAN MUFFINS

1 egg
1 container (6 ounces) custard style vanilla yogurt
1 package oat bran muffin mix
1⅓ cups Raisin Nut Bran cereal, slightly crushed
Honey

Heat oven to 400 degrees F. Grease bottoms of eight medium muffin cups, 2½x1¼-inches, or line with paper baking cups. Mix egg and yogurt in medium bowl, using fork. Stir in muffin mix, streusel and ½ cup of the cereal just until moistened. Divide batter among muffin cups. Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Cool 5 minutes. Spread each muffin with about ½ teaspoon honey; sprinkle each muffin with about 1 teaspoon of the remaining cereal. Gently loosen and remove from pan. Makes eight muffins.

LEMON-BLUEBERRY YOGURT MUFFINS

1 cup Total cereal, crushed
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
1 package wild blueberry muffin mix
1 egg
1 container (6 ounces) custard style vanilla yogurt

Mix cereal, sugar and lemon peel; reserve oven to 400 degrees F. Line eight medium muffin cups, 2½x1¼-inch, with paper baking cups. Drain blueberries; rinse and set aside. Mix egg and yogurt in medium bowl, using fork. Stir in muffin mix just until moistened (batter will be lumpy).

Spoon 2 tablespoons of the batter into each cup. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of the cereal mixture and about 1 tablespoon blueberries onto batter in each cup. Carefully spread 2 tablespoons of the remaining batter over blueberries in each cup; sprinkle each with about 1 teaspoon of the remaining cereal mixture. Bake 15 to 20 minuts or until light brown. Cool 5 minutes; gently loosen and remove from pan. Makes eight muffins.

PEANUT BUTTER AND JELLY-YOGURT MUFFINS

⅓ cup peanut butter
1 egg
1 container (6 ounces) custard style vanilla yogurt
1 package oat bran muffin mix
½ cup Cheerios or Honey Nut Cheerios cereal, crushed
2 tablespoons jelly

Heat oven to 400 degrees F. Grease bottoms of eight medium muffin cups, or line with paper baking cups. Mix peanut butter, egg and yogurt in medium bowl, using fork. Stir in muffin mix and cereal just until moistened (batter will be lumpy). Fill muffin cups about ¾ full. Top each with about ½ teaspoon jelly; press about ½-inch into batter. Sprinkle each with about 1 teaspoon streusel. Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Cool 5 minutes; gently loosen and remove from pan. Makes eight muffins.

SPARKLE-TOPPED MUFFINS

1 package wild blueberry muffin mix
1 container (6 ounces) custard style vanilla yogurt
1 egg
½ cup Trix of Booberry cereal, crushed
8 rounded ½ teaspoons marshmallow creme

Heat oven to 400 degrees F. Line eight medium muffin cups with paper baking cups. Prepare muffins as directed on package, except substitute yogurt for the milk. Cool 5 minutes; gently loosen and remove from pan. Spread rounded ½ teaspoon marshmallow creme over top of each muffin. Dip muffin tops into crushed cereal. Makes eight muffins.

Experiment while you cook

By PAPA JOE REED

As we continue our cooking, we continue to learn. And that's the way it should be. You know, one of the most enjoyable things about cooking is standing over the stove, adding a little of this or a little of that until it tastes just right. What I'm saying, is experiment.

Find out which taste appeals to you. Remember one thing, seasoning is a lot easier to add then it is to remove. So don't be afraid to experiment with new tastes. You might find some that you will really enjoy. With this mind let's fix a spicy, hearty budget dish that is easy to put together. I call it:

MEXICAN SKILLET DINNER

Pork sausage (1 lb.)
Onions (¼ cup, chopped, instant)
Pepper (1 cup, diced, green)
Macaroni (1, 8-oz. pkg., elbow)
Tomatoes (1, 303 can)
Buttermilk (1 cup or 1 cup sour cream)
Sugar (2 tablespoons)
Chili powder (2 tablespoons)
Salt (¼ teaspoon)
Pepper (¼ teaspoon)

First brown the sausage in a deep heavy skillet; now add the onions and green pepper. Cook until the onions are a golden brown. Pour off the excess fat. Now add the remaining ingredients; stir to moisten the macaroni. Cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and cook for 30 to 40 minutes. A great dish, economical and delicious.

Now for a salad. This one is a knock-out. You can't get enough of it, it's that good. Let's introduce the:

PRETTY PINK FRUIT SALAD

Cream cheese (1, 8-oz. pkg.)
Salad dressing (½ cup)
Allspice (½ teaspoon)
Orange peel (½ teaspoon)
Cloves (¼ teaspoon)
Nutmeg (just a dash)
Red food color (just a few drops)
Fruit cocktail (1 No. 303 can)
Orange (1)
Cherries (maraschino, ¼ cup)
Pecans (½ cup, chopped)
Marshmallows (1 cup, miniature)
Heavy cream (1 cup)

Yes, I know. There's a lot of calories, but with this delectable taste treat, who cares? First have your cheese at room temperature and then add the salad dressing, spices and food coloring, mixing thoroughly. Drain the fruit cocktail; peel and section orange and cut cherries into halves. Add the fruits, nuts and marshmallows to the cheese mixture. Mix carefully. Whip the cream; fold into fruit mixture. Spoon into a 1½ quart mold. Freeze. Remove from the mold, slice and serve on crisp lettuce. If you don't put on too much weight, you'll have this salad pretty often.

How to open an egg

You like cheesecake? If so, I want to share with you, that which was shared with me. I was at Don's IGA the other day and Georgia cross treated me to one of her "mini-cheesecakes." Now all of you who know Georgia know that she is a terrific cook. So I asked her to share this recipe with me. I also told her I would like to share it with you and she graciously agreed. So, here's Georgia's:

MINI-CHEESECAKES

Vanilla wafers (12)
Cream cheese (2, 8 oz. pkgs., softened)
Sugar (½ cup)
Vanilla (1 teaspoon)
Eggs (2)

First line your muffin tin with foil liners. Place one vanilla wafer in each liner. Mix the cream cheese, vanilla and sugar until well blended. Add the eggs and mix well. Pour over the wafers, filling ¾ full. Bake for 25 minutes at 325 degrees. Remove from pan when cool. Now chill and top with fruit, preserves, nuts or chocolate. Once again be creative. You're the artist.

Buzzer-beater bites Bulldogettes

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

SNYDER — It was a classic dogfight, but Coahoma came up just a bit short.

Lynn Corn hit a five-foot jump shot with five seconds left, giving the Wylie Lady Bulldogs a 48-47 victory over the Coahoma Bulldogettes here Tuesday night in Class 3A area basketball action.

The win puts No. 5 Wylie, now 28-2, in the Region I tournament in Lubock this weekend. Coahoma ends the season at 22-7.

The entire game was as close and intense as the final outcome. It featured two probable all-staters in Coahoma's Kelly Williams and Corn. Both had superb games.

Corn, a 5-foot-9 senior forward, scored 22 points and grabbed six rebounds. She shot well, hitting 10 of 18 from the field. And addition to her game-winning basket, she sunk two clutch free throws, and got a steal in the last 30 seconds of the game.

Williams, a 5-foot-11 senior post player, also shot well, hitting 9-of-14 from the floor and finishing the game with 22 points. She also grabbed nine rebounds and had two steals and two blocked shots.

The MVP performances made both coaches marvel.

"She (Williams) is an incredible post, we couldn't do anything to stop her," said Wylie coach Pat Penick. "We would double-team her and she would just squirm her way past both of us. She's one of the best posts I've seen," she said.

Coahoma coach Truman Meissner was equally complimentary of Corn. "We wanted to keep Corn from touching the ball, but she took the ball and went down through us," he said of her game-winning basket. "She had been struggling, but she couldn't miss tonight. She's the best we've played against."

Although Corn and Williams were the stars, they got plenty of help from their teammates. Coahoma's scoring wasn't that balanced; besides Williams, only LaTisha Anderson and Kim Gee scored.

The Bulldogettes pressed throughout the game, as Kim Willborn and Sarah Hanks chipped in with strong defensive efforts.

Wylie had a more balanced scoring attack, with six players getting in the scoring column. Post players Missy Davis and Shanna Briggs combined for 18 points.

At the start of the game, Corn came out scoring and Gee and Anderson answered with three long-range bombs. Wylie led 14-13 after one quarter.

Williams got her offense going in the second quarter, scoring seven points as Coahoma briefly took a lead. The half ended tied at 24-all when Williams made a free throw, Anderson hit from the top of the key, and Wylie's Dana McNeil scored off an offensive rebound right before the buzzer.

In the third quarter Wylie took its biggest lead of the game, thanks to two Corn jumpers. The Lady Bulldogs led Coahoma 34-28 with 3:32 left in the period.

By the end of the quarter, though, Coahoma had cut the lead to 38-36 on a basket inside and a three-point play by Williams.

After Gee nailed her fourth three-pointer at the start of the the final quarter to give Coahoma a one-point lead, the rest was nip-and-tuck. The lead changed hands nine more times.

Anderson hit one from the top of the key just inside the three-point line, giving Coahoma a 45-44 lead with 2:57 left. Niether team scored until two minutes later.

Things looked fairly good for Coahoma with 32 seconds left and Gee at the line with a one-and-one situation. She missed the first shot, but Willborn rebounded. The Coahoma junior tried to go up for a shot by Corn swiped the ball away. Willborn then fouled Corn.

Corn calmly sank both tries, giving Wylie a 46-45 lead with 29 seconds left. Sixteen seconds later Corn fouled Anderson. Anderson nailed both shots, giving Coahoma the lead at 47-46 with 13 seconds left.

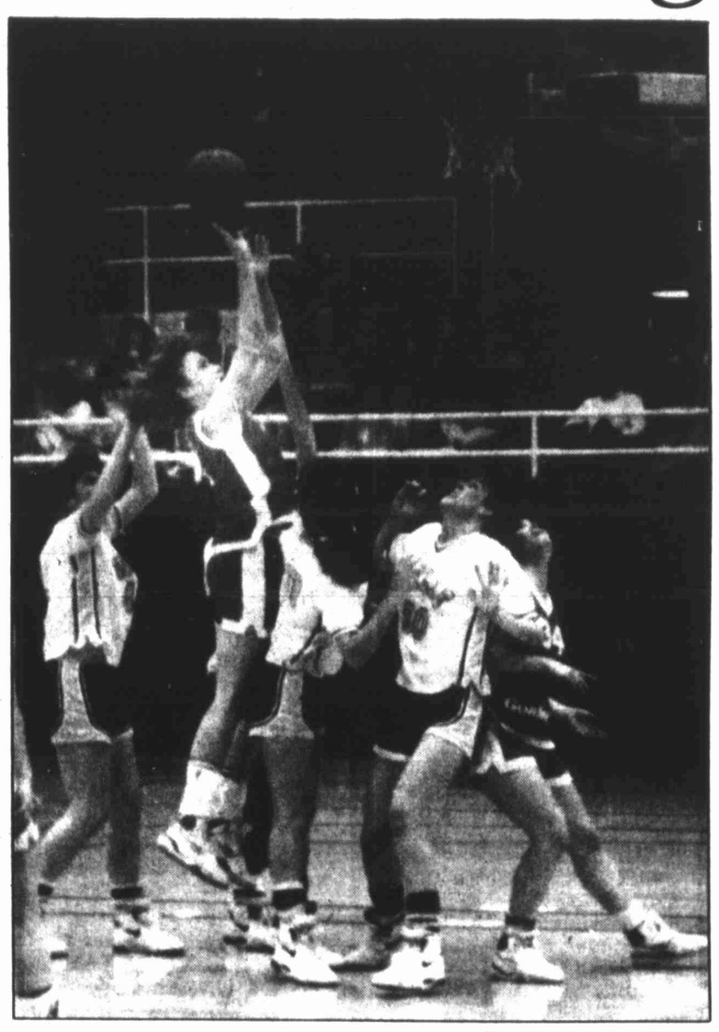

Wylie inbounded the ball against Coahoma pressure and got the ball to Corn in the backcourt, who then drove by the Coahoma defense, ending it with a short jumper over Willborn.

Penick said it wasn't exactly the way she drew it up on the board. "Really I wanted a timeout," she said. "But the girls got the ball and filled the lanes so well, I let them go. Lynn must have been confident with the shot, or she wouldn't have taken it."

Meissner said, "It's a tough way to keep from going to regional. There were several big plays at the end. When we had the lead I just wanted to work the clock down. The kids played hard. They tried to do what we wanted to do. A break here or a break there may have made all the difference in the world."

COAHOMA (47) — Kelly Williams 19-14, 4-7 22; LaTisha Anderson 4-11, 2-2 11; Sarah Hanks 0-1, 0-0 0; Kim Willborn 0-1, 0-0 0; Kim Gee 5-11, 0-1 14; Tiffani Ward 0-0, 0-0 0; Lori Rich 0-0, 0-0 0; totals 18-38, 6-10 47.
WYLIE (48) — Amy Templeton 1-4, 0-0 2; Lynn Corn 10-18, 2-2 22; Shanna Briggs 4-13, 0-0 8; Missy Davis 5-9, 0-1 10; Trina Brown 1-3, 0-0 2; Dana McNeil 2-5, 0-0 4;

It's time for a new sport

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

There's a new spring sport at Coahoma High School and it seems to be making everyone happy.

For the first time in the school's history, the Bulldogs will be playing baseball, and Coahoma Athletic Director Steve Park, says it appears to be a move for the best.

Steve's stuff

Last year, when the school board approved a proposal to start baseball; and the bats and mitts began rolling. Park was one of the main supporters of starting a baseball program at CHS. He and some other proposed it to the school board, and it passed with flying colors, giving the Bulldogs something they had been deprived of for decades.

"The school board thought it was a good idea. There wasn't really anyone against it (baseball)," said Park. "The main concern was money — how much was it going to cost."

Park did some checking with other ADs whose schools had baseball programs, and found out the expenses weren't much more than track and field.

"Once you get over the first year, it's no so bad," said Park. He added that the construction of a diamond, and getting equipment were the main costs for the initial season.

The field is currently being constructed just east of the CHS campus. Park said it's almost completed. "They are putting a field around it, we just don't have any grass though. It's going to be real nice when it's completed," Park said.

The Bulldogs won't play at their new diamond this year. Their home games will be at Roy Anderson Complex in Big Spring. The new Coahoma diamond won't have any lights, therefore only day games will be played.

The Bulldogs are getting close to starting regular season play. Coach Phillip Ritchey's team will scrimmage the Big Spring junior varsity at 4 p.m. Thursday at Steer Field. Coahoma will play a junior varsity schedule this year to get a feel for things.

Next year, they'll start playing for real in their new league — District 8-2A. The ways things stand right now, the Bulldogs are headed for the playoffs in their first year of regular season play. That's because Wall is the only other school in the district that fields a baseball team. But Park says he's heard that other schools in the district might start programs.

As usual the main question about smaller schools having baseball programs is: Are there enough athletes to go around with other spring sports going on, like golf, tennis and track? Usually track is the sports that uses the most athletes, so it will no doubt clash with baseball — but not at Coahoma.

Currently, there are more young men participating in track, 26, than there has been in recent years. There are 20 players out for the baseball team.

"There are quite a bit of them doubling, about 12," said Park. The Coahoma AD said that he encourages the athletes to play as many sports as possible.

This shows the character of Bulldog athletes. In today's times of Nintendo, fancy haircutsand rock music, it's hard enough to get kids to play one sport, much less two at the same time.

"We're trying to let them get their track workout in one hour, and then go to baseball," said Park. "Baseball games are on Tuesday and Friday, and I think there's only a couple of track meets on Friday. We'll let the kids choose which one they want to go to."

And unlike many overzealous coaches, track coach Doc Rowell and coach Ritchey don't have any problems.

"The coaches work together," Park said. "They schedule it so their workouts and most of their games don't interfere with each other. That's what it takes, because it's all to benefit the kids."

And that's the very reason the baseball program was started at Coahoma High School.

Hawks soar by Forsan

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — The Forsan Buffalo-Queens, having arrived at the 2A area playoffs with a deserved reputation for come-from-behind wins, faced a familiar situation against the fifth-ranked Wall Lady Hawks, trailing by nine entering the final quarter.

But this time, there would be no Cardiac Kids' comeback. The Lady Hawks, behind a tenacious defense and a patient, spread-the-floor offense, ended Forsan's Cinderella season with a 39-28 playoff win at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Tuesday night.

The win enabled the Lady Hawks, now 29-2 for the season, to advance to the 2A regional tournament for the fourth year-in-a row. The Queens ended their season with a 20-11 record.

Kathy Ullrich scored 17 points — several of those on drives into the lane — to lead Wall. Sophomore guard Barbara Mitchell tallied 11 points to lead Forsan.

The game was close for most of three quarters, as the smaller Queens effectively negated Wall's height advantage by packing the lane with as many as four defenders. The strategy kept the Queens within three points as late as the midway point of the third.

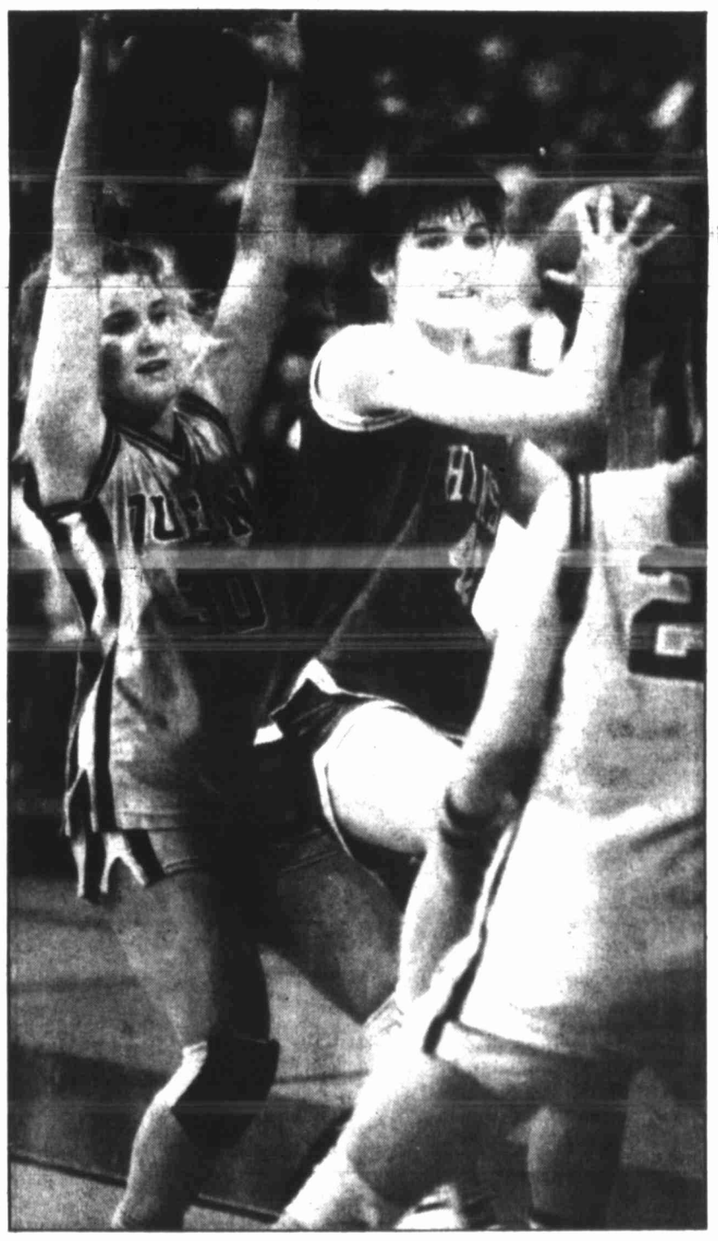

Wall, however, retaliated by spreading its offense, forcing the Queens to come out and defend. Ullrich responded by either driving the lane for a layup or dishing off to an open girl for an easy basket.

This turn of events led to a 10-2 Wall run that gave the Lady Hawks a 32-23 lead heading into the final quarter.

"They were packing it in pretty tight," Wall coach Jerry Chitsey said of Forsan's defense. "In the second half, we wanted to take control and do what we wanted to do on offense. We tried to mix it up and keep them off-balance."

And once Wall was able to do that, the Queens were effectively doomed. The fourth quarter consisted mainly of the Lady Hawks

B-County whips Marathon, 62-30

MIDLAND — The Marathon Lady Mustangs had a brief moment of glory early against the Borden County Lady Coyotes, but that moment soon vanished as quickly as a snowball in an oven.

Borden, after spotting the Lady Mustangs a 4-2 lead in the first, ran off the next 20 points to take control and cruised the rest of the way to a 62-30 Class A area playoff game at Chaparral Center Tuesday.

Lisha Sternadel scored 15 points, Amy Lewis added 14 and Randi Woodward tallied 11 to lead the Lady Coyotes, now 26-3 for the season. Marathon, which ended its season with a 23-5 mark, was paced by Roxie McGuire's 16 points.

The win also allows the Lady Coyotes to advance to the Region 1-A tournament for the fourth consecutive year. Borden will face Lorenzo in the first round Friday night in Levelland.

Borden County coach Bill May said that his team's early run was the difference in the game.

"From midway through the first quarter to midway through the second pretty well dictated the game," May said. "We got such a big lead that Marathon went totally out of their offense. I've got to credit our defense with the win — that, and Marathon didn't have much depth, and we were able to play 11 girls."

Sternadel and Lewis were forces in the paint all as the Lady Coyotes had little trouble scoring inside, May said. "Amy had eight points in the second quarter. We were able to take it inside almost at will. Marathon came out in the third and packed it inside, and that's when Woodward hit two three-pointers. It was one of those nights where we counter-acted everything they did."

The next step for Borden, as it has for seven of the last 10 years, is the regional tournament in Levelland. Although the Lady Coyotes have had great success reaching this stage, they have yet to break through the competition to reach the state tournament.

BORDEN CO. (62) — Amanda Anderson 1 2 4; Shara Woodward 2 0 6; Randi Woodward 4 3 11; Julie Harris 1 0 2; Shayne Hess 1 0 2; Leslie Fryar 1 0 3; Kristi Adcock 2 1 5; Lisha Sternadel 4 7 15; Amy Lewis 6 2 14; totals 22 15 62.

Grady headed to regional

IMPERIAL — There were no opening game jitters this time as the Grady Lady Wildcats advanced to the Region I-A basketball tournament by whipping the Balmorhea Bears 67-45 Tuesday night in area action.

The Lady Wildcats got off to a fast start, taking a 17-10 lead after one quarter of play, and stretching it to 32-20 at the half. "We didn't have jitters like we had against Grandfalls," said Grady coach Randy Peel. "We came out and played real good defense and shot 50 percent. They tried to go inside and we blocked about three shots in the

Overweight baseball player paying the price

SMYRNA Ga. (AP) — Darryl Strawberry is being paid $1 million a season to hit Lonnie Smith's weight, which isn't nearly as easy as it sounds.

With all the steaks, potatoes, beer and rich chocolate desserts he consumed during a winter of inactivity, Smith might have trouble hitting .225 these days.

Smith, the Atlanta Braves' 5-foot-9 outfielder, weighed 190 pounds last season while batting .315 with 21 home runs and being named the National League's comeback player of the year.

He's in need of another comeback if he's to be fit by the time the season starts.

"It really surprised, shocked and disgusted me," Smith admitted after tipping the scales at an ungainly 225½ pounds. That's a major reason why he's spending time on the farm — a fat farm in this Atlanta suburb.

He has carved 12 pounds off his frame in six weeks. His goal is to get down to 193 by Opening Day.

"I think I'm still at least 10 pounds over where I need to be, but I don't think I'd have a problem performing," Smith said.

Instead of playing in the Puerto Rican winter league, in which he was most valuable player last year, he became a couch potato. His weight skyrocketed when he stopped smoking and started snacking while lounging around his north Atlanta apartment. He gained 30 pounds in three months.

"My most strenuous exercise was Christmas shopping, and I got that out of the way by November," he said.

"I knew I hadn't done anything, but I thought I deserved a rest this winter after going nonstop the last two years. I didn't know I would balloon up this big.

"My thighs and butt had gotten especially big. I had to buy some new suits. People made some comments."

Braves president Stan Kasten was one of them.

"I didn't see Lonnie for at least a month, until mid-December," Kasten said. "It was pretty obvious he had put on some pounds and I made the suggestion" that he avail himself of the exercise and dietary programs at the Georgia Sports Institute.

"It's been a change for me, especially since I love desserts," said Smith, who recently signed a two-year contract for a guaranteed $3.85 million after losing a bid for a one-year, $2 million pact in arbitration.

Smith's payment for his gluttony has been a diet in which the gourmet dishes include baked fish and chicken washed down with at least eight glasses of water per day.

And there are the workouts.

The 90-minute routine includes muscle-straining, five-minute bursts on such equipment as a rowing machine, moving ladder and stationary bicycle, as well as the old standby, skipping rope.

There's also weight training and aerobics.

"Lonnie got in there probably a little later than he should have," Kasten said. "I just told him, 'Lonnie, here's where you need do be.' He didn't disagree.

"You can't force any player to do something in the offseason. The player has to want to do it."

"I think Lonnie is always going to be in shape. He's that type of guy," General Manager Bobby Cox said. "We think he should be OK.

"We've talked to him about it a bit, but we think he's doing fine."

"He's an athlete, but I don't think he's ever been through anything like this," said Alan Goldstein, one of several coaches working with him. "This ain't easy."

Out to get driver

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Forest Tennant, the NFL's drug advisor, falsified drug tests that helped shorten the career of NASCAR driver Tim Richmond, a television report charged.

Washington's WJLA-TV, which last month carried a report charging the NFL's drug testing program was poorly run, reported Tuesday that sealed court documents and interviews showed Tennant and NASCAR used allegedly false drug test results in 1988 to bar Richmond from racing.

The investigative report by Roberta Baskin said Richmond was targeted by NASCAR. The report said the racing group went to Tennant to establish a substance-abuse policy with Richmond in mind. NASCAR, which had no comment to all questions concerning Richmond's drug tests, told WJLA that it is in the process of hiring a replacement for Tennant.

Tennant, who could not be reached for comment, also advises the California Highway Patrol and its department of justice.

A series of drug tests and falsely reported "positive" results shortly before the 1988 Daytona 500 kept Richmond from driving in what was to have been his last big race, according to the report. Richmond died of AIDS last August.

Hoop coach reassigned

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Less than two years after being hired to bring Drake basketball back to life, Tom Abatemarco is looking for another coaching job.

Abatemarco, who had been temporarily relieved of his duties two weeks ago because of a player revolt, resigned Tuesday and one of his assistants was fired as the university moved to restore order to the program.

The action came after a university investigation found that NCAA rules had been broken, although not by Abatemarco, and that Abatemarco's treatment of his players and coaches was "demeaning."

Abatemarco had been reassigned to other duties in the athletic department on Feb. 7 after his players, complaining he had treated them harshly, boycotted practice for two days and said they would no longer play for him.

Abe's sendoff

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Retiring basketball coach Abe Lemons got a standing ovation and a big-screen television set as he coached his last game at Oklahoma City University's fieldhouse.

Lemons, 67, has said he will retire at the end of the season. He was swamped with presents during a ceremony before Tuesday night's game with Midwestern State, which his team won 106-93 for Lemons' 598th career victory.

He received T-shirts, sweatshirts, gift certificates, caps, jackets, books, plaques and walking shoes. Lemons' wife, Betty Jo, was given a dozen roses and a silver and turquoise bracelet.

Great Scott! Byron drops bomb

By The Associated Press

From Byron Scott's point of view, the game was over before it was over.

"When I let it go, I knew it was in," Scott said of his buzzer-beating 3-pointer that gave the Los Angeles Lakers a 115-114 overtime victory over the San Antonio Spurs Tuesday night. "If you were watching me, you know from my reaction that I knew it was going in. There was no doubt."

The Lakers and Spurs, two of the Western Conference's best teams, traded the lead throughout the fourth quarter and overtime, although San Antonio led 99-92 with 3:50 left in regulation.

"It feels good when you win one like that, especially against a capable team like the Spurs," Scott, who finished with 15 points, said. "Both teams played their hearts out."

San Antonio, playing its first overtime game of the season, took a 114-112 lead on Willie Anderson's jumper with 37.4 seconds left in the extra session.

David Robinson, who had 23 points, 16 rebounds and 10 blocks, rejected Orlando Woolridge's shot on he Lakers' next possession, but Anderson missed a jumper and Los Angeles inbounded the ball with 7.7 seconds left.

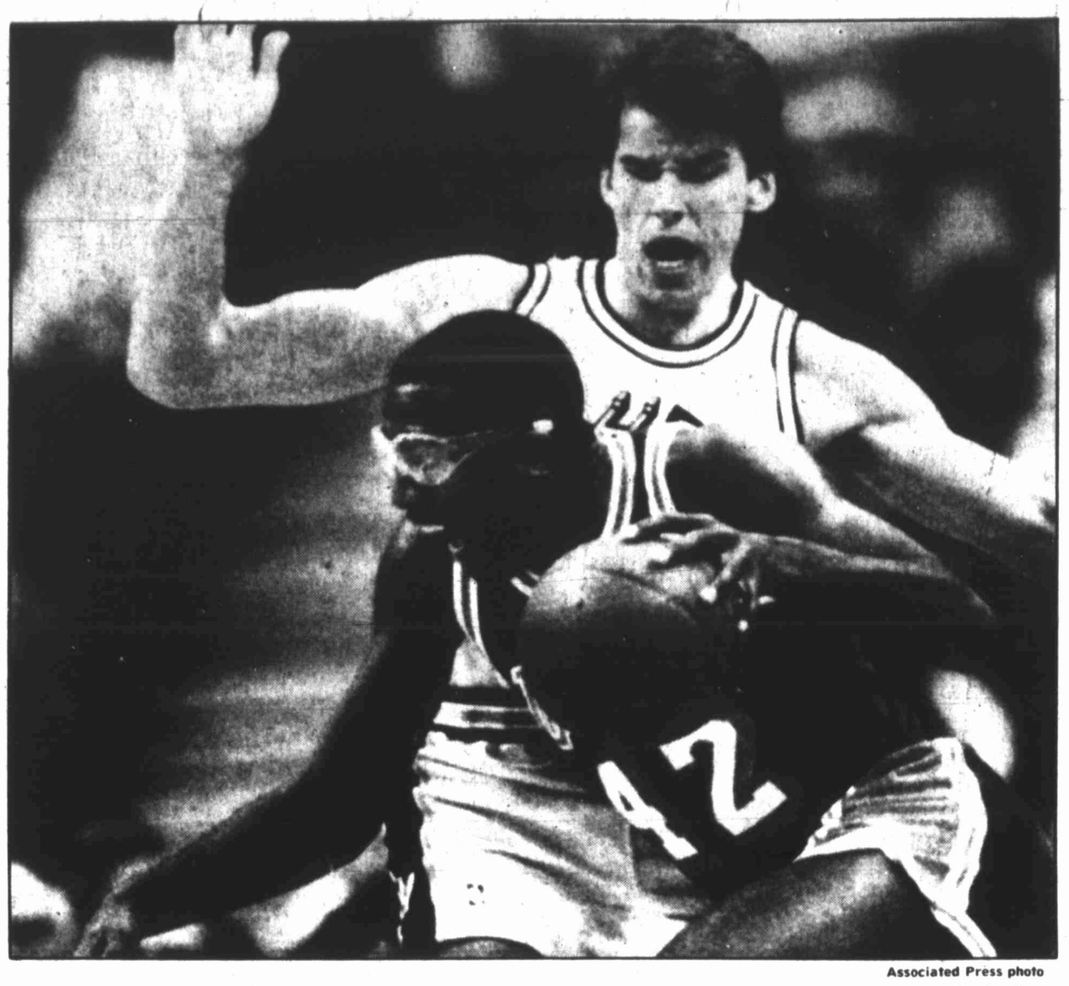

Magic Johnson passed the ball to Woolridge, who drove inside before passing the ball out. Scott was waiting for it at the top of the 3-point arc, 24 feet from the basket.

"We broke on defense," said Anderson, who won a game for San Antonio on Saturday with a buzzer-beating shot at Houston. "It all came down to the last play and it just went for the Lakers."

dJames Worthy, who led Los Angeles with 27 points, hit a 15-footer with 2.2 seconds left in the fourth quarter to tie the game at 106 and force overtime.

Robinson's bid to win the game at the end of regulation was blocked by Mychal Thompson.

Terry Cummings led all scorers with 30 points. He had eight in the fourth quarter, including a jumper that capped an 11-2 Spurs run and left the Lakers in a 99-92 hole.

SAN ANTONIO — Los Angeles Lakers' forward James Worthy (42) drives for the basket as San Antonio Spurs' Frank Brickowski defends during first half action Tuesday night.

Bucks 110, Nets 102

New Jersey lost its 14th consecutive game, the longest losing streak in the NBA this season, as Ricky Pierce scored 29 points for Milwaukee.

Pierce's performance offset a career-high 23-point, 26-rebound effort by Charles Shackleford for the Nets, who are two short of the franchise-record streak set in 1978.

The Bucks got 12 points from Pierce in the third quarter and outscored the Nets 22-14 to take a 77-71 lead.

Timberwolves 97, Rockets 92

Minnesota won its fourth consecutive game behind Tony Campbell's 30 points and Sam Mitchell's steal and two free throws with two seconds left against Houston.

The Timberwolves, who have just 14 victories, have the longest winning streak by a first-year expansion team since New Orleans won four straight in 1974.

Mitchell Wiggins scored 31 points, including 20 in the first half, for the Rockets, who lost their third straight game. Akeem Olajuwon and Buck Johnson scored 22 apiece for Houston.

Suns 120, Celtics 99

Phoenix won for the 19th time in 22 games, including 14 straight victories at home, as Kevin Johnson scored 31 points.

Tom Chambers had 12 of his 25 points during a 26-10 third period run, and the Suns took a 95-75 lead into the fourth quarter.

Kings 99, Clippers 90

Sacramento beat Los Angeles for the second time in two nights, with Danny Ainge scoring 30 points.

Wayman Tisdale had 23 points and 11 rebounds for the Kings. Charles Smith had 30 for the Clippers, who have lost four consecutive games.

Trail Blazers 117, Magic 102

Xavier McDaniel had 27 points and 10 rebounds and rookie Dana Barros scored 21 points as Seattle continued their recent road success by winning at Orlando.

Houston QB may turn pro

HOUSTON (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware's decision to turn pro or remain at the University of Houston for his senior year may depend on information he receives from Coach John Jenkins.

Jenkins is trying to determine Ware's market value should he declare himself available for the NFL draft in April.

The Houston coach said he plans to give Ware an objective opinion, even if it means losing him to the pros.

"If Andre is going to be among the top 10-12 players chosen, that means he'll be getting a lot of money and I would be so excited for him," Jenkins said. "I just want what's best for Andre and his mom."

Ware, a junior, has been weighing his options since the end of the season when the Cougars beat Rice to complete a 9-2 record and moments later, Ware was named winner of the Heisman Trophy.

He has until March 22 to make his decision.

Jenkins would want Ware to return to school if he isn't going to be among the big money winners in the draft.

"If he declared himself, I'd be so excited for him because it would be for the right reason, that he was going to be one of the top money players," Jenkins said.

Jenkins is attempting to analyze the needs of NFL teams to help Ware decide when he might be selected on draft day.

"It would be completely selfish of me to make a claim to Andre like, 'Don't even listen to them, stay in Houston,' " Jenkins said. "I want all of our players to know I'm interested in what's best for them.

"I haven't advised him anything yet as far as whether to stay or go," Jenkins said. "But in a week and a half, I think I'll have a pretty good feel for where Andre might fit in."

Jenkins said he saw many advantages to Ware remaining in school but the possiblity of a career-ending injury had to be a consideration.

"I hate to coach caution, because you could fall o the porch and break a leg, but if something like that happened, it would break my heart," Jenkins said.

"His daddy died when Andre was in the second grade and his mom gets up at 4:30 every morning to work at the post office. He deserves anything he can get. He's earned it."

Ware established 25 NCAA records last season, including 4,699 passing yards, 365 passes completed, and 4.2 touchdown passes per game.

Jenkins, who became coach last month when Jack Pardee moved to the Houston Oilers, begins his first spring practice on March 5 and Ware says he'll participate if he hasn't made up his mind about turning pro.

"I'm still in the position of gathering as much information as I can," Ware said. "If I haven't made a decison, I'll be out there March 5."

Ware said comments he made last week in Fort Worth were misinterpreted to indicate he would make a decision this week.

"It was never that I was going to make a decision this week, I just said it was possible," Ware said. "I don't know when it will be. I don't want to be rude. I may just have to walk away and not say anything."

Jenkins wants Ware to avoid what he thinks will happen to some other juniors who already have committed to the pros.

"There's a number of players that have declared themselves and it's obvious that they are being projected as second rounders, maybe fourth or all the way to eighth round," Jenkins said.

"For a young man to give up his college eligiblity and bypass his senior year, it's so counter-productive.

"All the players need to realize that the NFL is a business and there's no assurance of making anybody's team.

La Salle high scorer closer to 3,000 points

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE (AP) — For Lionel Simmons, reaching 3,000 points gets easy from here.

Simmons moved within three points of becoming the fifth player in NCAA Division I history to eclipse the 3,000-point plateau after scoring 34 in 14th-ranked La Salle's 110-81 victory over Loyola of Maryland Tuesday night.

"I think I can score three points next game," Simmons said.

The Philadelphia native will get his chance Thursday night at home against Manhattan.

"I'm looking forward to it," Simmons said after moving past Oscar Robertson on the career scoring list. "I'm glad it's down to three. If it were 13 or 14 points, I'd be a little worried."

In other Top Twenty Five games, No. 11 Syracuse beat Boston College 105-69 and Memphis State stopped No. 16 Louisville 82-68.

Simmons has scored 20 or more points in 22 of La Salle's 24 games this season and is close to a sure thing.

That wasn't how Simmons felt five games ago.

After a shaky start, Simmons scored 12 points while La Salle was outscoring Loyola 24-4 in a 5:22 span after falling behind 13-9. La Salle led 55-29 at halftime and built its lead to 80-41 seven minutes into the the second half.

The victory, La Salle's 15th in a row, moved the Explorers to 13-0 in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference and 23-1 overall. Loyola fell to 2-12 in conference, 4-21 overall.

After throwing up an air ball on a 3-point shot and missing an alley-oop dunk in the opening minutes, Simmons went past Robertson with a reverse layup that gave La Salle a 29-15 lead with 9:18 to play in the first half.

A minute earlier, with a jumper from the left side of the lane off a rebound, Simmons had equaled Robertson's point total of 2,973, which The Big O scored in three seasons (1958-60) at the University of Cincinnati.

LSU's Pete Maravich set the Division I points record of 3,667 points in three seasons (1968-70).

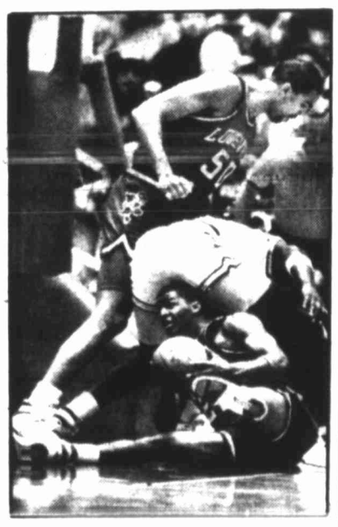

Freeman Williams of Portland State (1974-78) is second with 3,249 points, followed by Harry Kelly of Texas Southern (1979-83) with 3,066 and Hersey Hawkins of Bradley (1984-88) with 3,008.

Simmons was pulled from the game with 8:23 to play to ensure that No. 3,000 will be scored in Philadelphia.

"I went to high school in Philadelphia," Simmons said. "Having Philadelphia part of me my entire life, it's only right to do it in my hometown."

Simmons had one chance at reaching 3,000 points against Loyola. Three points shy of the plateau, he found himself with the basketball just outside the 3-point line. He passed off.

La Salle has three more regular-season games, the MAAC Tournament and the NCAA tournament, giving Simmons at least five games to perhaps climb a notch or two higher on the list.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Louisville's LaBradford Smith (on floor) gets sat on by Memphis State's Kelvin Allen as Louisville's Felton Spencer comes to the aid of his teammate.

No. 11 Syracuse 105, Boston College 69

Derrick Coleman scored 21 points and Syracuse held Boston College to just one field in the first 7½ minutes of the second half to win at home.

The Orangemen (19-5 overall, 9-4 Big East) ended a two-game losing streak and reached the 100-point mark for the first time since Dec. 19, a span of 15 games.

Syracuse used an 11-1 run to break away from a 43-39 halftime lead.

first quarter.

"They tried a box-on-one with Sherri (McMorries) and that didn't bother us. We're used to it by now. In the second half, they went to a 1-2-1-1 and we shot over it."

McMorries led all scorers with 25 points. She got ample scoring help from Kim Adkisson and Lauri Romine, who tallied 20 and 18 points, respectively.

"Lauri Romine really helped us a lot. She scored about 10 points more than what she normally does," said Peel.

Peel also praised the play of reserves Michelle Madison, Missy Romine and Cindy Wells. "They came off the bench and gave us some good minutes," he said.

The win gives Grady a 24-6 record while Balmorhea finishes the season at 16-7. Grady will play no. 4 Sudan Friday at 3 p.m. at the Texan Dome in Levelland.

playing keep-away from Forsan. At one stretch in the fourth, the Queens went more than five minutes without a shot.

Wall, meanwhile, padded its lead by six during the stretch to ice the game and a fourth shot at the region title.

"We didn't get real good shot selection in the second half," Forsan mentor Johnny Schafer said, "but Wall played good defense. You don't get to where they are by not playing good defense."

The second-half pull-away was in contrast to a closely contested first 16 minutes, which saw the Queens and the Lady Hawks change leads with great frequency.

An Ullrich jumper gave the Lady Hawks a 6-4 lead midway through the first, but Forsan responded with a Kara Evans jumper and a Mitchell three-pointer to give the Queens a three-point bulge with 1:30 left in the first.

Ullrich, however, sandwiched a pair of baskets around one by Mitchell to bring the Lady Hawks to within one, 11-10, entering the second quarter.

The two teams traded the lead three more times in the second quarter before the Queens went scoreless for the last six minutes of the half. Wall wasn't much more productive, but managed to secure a 20-16 lead at halftime.

"I told the girls they didn't have anything to be ashamed of," Schafer said. "I told them it took the fifth-ranked team to put us out of the playoffs.

"We had a very remarkable season," he added. "I told the girls to think about all those games we came from behind to win."

WALL (39) — Kathy Ullrich 8 1-4 17; Michelle Beasley 3 1-2 7; Robyn Jansa 0 0-0 0; Jenny Wilde 1 0-1 2; Debra Johnson 2 1-2 5; Melissa Multer 4 0-3 8; totals 18 3-12 39.

Names in the news

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Joe Clark, who gained fame for wielding a baseball bat and bullhorn as the principal of a Paterson, N.J., high school, says racial integration of schools has failed.

"This integration stuff is a bunch of bovine balderdash," Clark, who is black, said during a news conference Thursday. He ridiculed what he called the notion that the "brains of the white kids are going to jump into the black kids."

Clark said the black family structure must become stronger if blacks are to hold their own. Many young black males are "dangerous, ruthless, volatile, and they will kill you. And it's not their fault."

Black fathers must hold up their end and support black women, who traditionally have provided the backbone for their families, he said.

DON JOHNSON JOE CLARK

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The man that actor Don Johnson caught allegedly rummaging through his hotel room pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a felony burglary count and trial was set for next month.

Henry Kenneth Rosenbaum, 35, entered the plea Thursday in Municipal Court and a March 22 trial date was set, said defense attorney William Graysen. Rosenbaum remained free on $50,000 bail.

The complaint charges that the "Miami Vice" television star and his actress-wife, Melanie Griffith, returned to their Bel-Air Hotel room on Jan. 29, 1989, and found Rosenbaum going through Miss Griffith's purse.

Johnson testified at a preliminary hearing that he confronted Rosenbaum in the suite's bedroom, ordering him to lie down on the floor and put his hands behind his head until police arrived.

Neither Johnson nor Miss Griffith were hurt.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1990

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Boy Scouts founder Robert Baden-Powell, tennis star Michael Chang, President George Washington.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Long-standing family conflicts can be handled diplomatically. Face up to your responsibilities. Listen when a child asks for help. Your creativity will return, boosting you to a position of power.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A verbal free-for-all is a positive force, opening up new avenues of communication; the entire family benefits. Write down your original ideas. Big changes lie ahead. Handle romance with kid gloves.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take your time when making important decisions. Try to consider all the alternatives. Thoughts of unpaid bills can create tension. Get together with fun people and forget about things you cannot change.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This may be a day when sensitivities run too high for comfort. Use your wonderful sense of humor. Romance is volatile — just the way you secretly like it! Social demands keep you busy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Couples find greater peace of mind once they talk things out. Pour on the charm and you get your way! A telephone call lifts your spirits. Avoid getting involved in your neighbors' affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make the most of a golden opportunity. New financial gains are indicated. Athletic endeavors leave you breathless but healthier. Be more realistic when it comes to the family budget. Postpone luxury purchases.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Play down any personal differences with your co-workers and teamwork will be easier to obtain. Confusion over a financial matter could cause strife at home. Find out the exact figures involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take time out to solve a financial problem. The possibility of deliberate deception cannot be dismissed. Keep in close touch with faraway business contacts. Parents would welcome a visit or call.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Talent and hard work still offer the best route to success. Distant affairs could put a dent in your cash flow. Do not jump the gun before everything is in place. Traditional values prevail.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Channel your nervous energy into good works. Your imagination and enthusiasm make you unstoppable today. Handle people with more tact. A social event is very much to your liking. A romance could ignite.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Life seems particularly exciting now. An original idea is likely to get a fair hearing. Those in authority will be impressed. Give serious thought to revising a budget. Mate or partner is supportive.

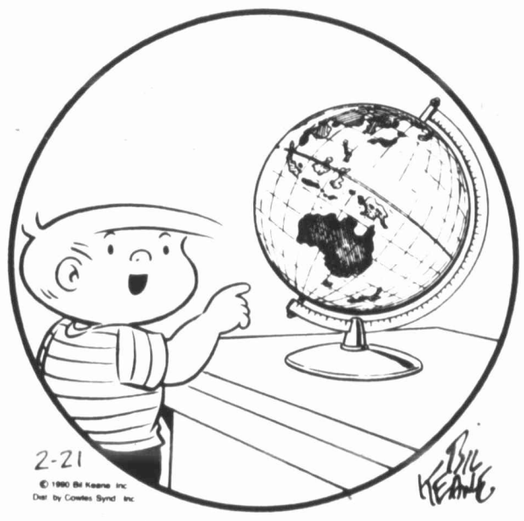

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your work on behalf of a charity or community cause gives you new self-confidence. The good will generated today will pay off handsomely at work. Additional financial rewards are possible soon.

Anniversary

The Lee Roy Wrights

MR. AND MRS. LEE ROY WRIGHT

Lee Roy and Helen Wright, Colorado City, will celebrate their 50th anniversary Saturday at an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. at their home.

The event will be hosted by their sons and their families.

Wright was born in Olney.

Mrs. Wright, the former Helen Christine Bennett, was born in Rogers.

The couple met in 1939 at church in Olney, and married Feb. 23, 1940 in Seymour at the home of Frank Wodell, minister of First Christian Church.

The Wrights have four children: Wesley Wright, Bentonville, Ark.; Marvin Wright, Houston; Jimmy Wright, Bentonville; and C. Roy Wright, Sand Springs; and 10 grandchildren.

During their marriage they have lived in Coahoma and the Sand Springs area.

Wright retired from Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. after 39 years of service. Mrs. Wright is a housewife.

They are Baptists.

Wright has been a Boy Scout for 40 years. Mrs. Wright is a member of the Home Demonstration Club.

When asked to comment about their marriage, they said "The 50 years have been good. We raised four sons that we are very proud of."

Hobbies and interests include fishing, knitting, quilting, handcrafts, and attending arts and crafts shows in Texas and Arkansas.

The couple invites all their friends and relatives to share in this special occasion.

MR. AND MRS. AUGUST GRAUMANN

The August Graumanns

August A. and Phyllis Graumann, 1903 Nolan St., celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary Saturday at the Brandin' Iron Inn.

Hosting the occasion were Pete and Beth Kitzman.

Graumann was born in Granite, Okla.

Mrs. Graumann, the former Phyllis Montgomery, was born in Duke, Okla.

After corresponding for six months, the couple met Sept. 29, 1949 in Mangum, Okla. They married Feb. 18, 1950 at the parsonage of St. John Lutheran Church, Granite, with the Rev. Carl Lueker officiating.

The Graumanns have three children: Mrs. Pete (Beth) Graumann, Dallas; Dr. and Mrs. Keith Graumann, Livingston, Ala.; and Mrs. Stephen (Jonna) Sturgell, Richland Hills; and two grandchildren: Kaily Sturgell and Jeff Kitzman.

During their marriage they have lived in Mangum, Okla., Sundown, Snyder and Big Spring.

They own and operate Graumann's Oilfield Pump & Engine Repair.

Graumann was employed by Texaco Inc. for 24 years. Mrs. Graumann was employed by Goodhousekeeping Shop, G.H. Hayward and Fred Hyer, and Southwest Tool.

They are members of St. Paul Lutheran Church and the Big Spring Symphony Association and Guild.

When asked to comment about their marriage, they said "We married very young and had children right away. We met a lot of friends and kept most of them. We still keep in contact with friends from everywhere we lived. We've had lots of ups and downs, but we're glad we have each other."

Hobbies and interests include deer hunting, fishing, boating, reading and crossword puzzles.

Homemakers club meets

The Center Point Extension Homemakers Club met Feb. 13, 1990 at the home of Zay Birrell. Vice President Jen Davidson chaired the meeting.

The club will furnish 12 dozen cookies to the Big Spring State Hospital on March 27th.

Council Delegate Ireba Griffith reported on the E.H. Council meeting in January and the very successful 4-H Stock Show.

A video program on "How To Buy a Car And Keep It Running (almost) Forever" was presented.

Davidson will be hostess for the Feb. 27 meeting at the Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center.

Job hunting? Put best foot forward

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

A seminar, titled "How to Get a Job . . . and Keep It" will be conducted Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the conference room at Highland Mall.

The conference room is located on the south side of the mall between the entry of Furr's Cafeteria and the car wash, next to the mall offices.

Cost is $4 per person if preregistered, or $5 at the door, and includes lunch and materials. Preregister by contacting Naomi Hunt at 267-8469 before 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The program will be translated into sign language for the deaf.

The seminar will feature a panel of local employers discussing qualities employers like and dislike in job applicants. Panelists include:

Joe Wallis, Texas Employment Commission; Sandy Wright, vice president of Citizen's Federal Credit Union; Ross Westbrook, Fina Oil & Chemical; Phil Spears, warden of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp; Cliff Attaway, manager of Dunlaps; Jan Howard, general manager of Day's Inn; Bonnie Miller, personnel director at Western Container; Perry Lyson, Big Spring Correctional Center.

Other presentations during the seminar will be:

- Dress for Success: Presented by Cindy Marshall, Specs and Company and Bob Beasley, Gentleman's Corner.
- Applications: Presented by Anna Walker, coordinator of Office Education, BSISD.
- Resumes.

Focus on family

- Interviewing: Presented by Darrell Ware, Big Spring State Hospital; and Bill Crooker, Howard County commissioner.
- Build a Career: Presented by Naomi Hunt.

The seminar is presented by the Extension Community Development Committee and Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with Highland Shopping Center and Texas Employment Commission.

This seminar was planned to coordinate with the Job Fair Feb. 28 at Howard College to help job seekers improve their skills in seeking employment.

Before you begin looking for a job, you should know what you have to offer an employer. What can you do? What would you like to learn? What steps do you need to follow to find just the right job? First you need to carefully consider the product in question — you.

Even if you do not have previous work experience, you can find a job you will like. All you need is a good plan of attack, hard work and patience.

By measuring your personal assets, you are taking a self-inventory. This inventory can help you know more about yourself and help you get the right job. The inventory may also help you determine the education or training you need to qualify for the future career you want.

Make a list of activities you have done and enjoyed doing or that had results you were proud of. As these activities occur to you, write them down.

After listing your activities, identify skills and abilities needed to do each activity. You should begin to see unique patterns of skills emerging. No single activity gives all the current job possibilities of future career clues needed to help with your career choice. However, these possibilities are a starting point for your job search. And, you probably have a feeling of confidence now that you realize you do have more experience than previously thought.

Now, you need to organize this information into a personal data sheet which you can share with prospective employers. A resume or personal data sheet is a concise inventory of your job assets. It tells what you have to offer an employer for a particular type of job. It is a job-hunting tool.

It introduces you on paper for the prospective employer to see and become interested in your qualifications. The purpose of a personal data sheet is to get you job interviews. Keep your data sheet to one page. Include personal information: your name, address, and telephone number. Also include information about your education, previous work experience, the student activities in which you have participated, and the special skills you have developed.

"I took off for the holidays – 103 lbs. with Nutri/System."

"The holidays can be a lot of fun — especially now that I've lost 103 lbs. And I owe it all to Nutri/System. The counselors were so warm and caring. They helped give me a positive attitude and the confidence to go out and enjoy myself. Now I bought a new holiday outfit and I'm out having good times. Nutri/System has given me a lot to celebrate." Peggy Zolner

Century 21 — McDonald Realty Recognizes Award Winning Associate: Sue Bradbury

Sue is shown congratulating Mr. & Mrs. Ron Alderton & family for both the sale of their home & purchase of a new home. Mr. & Mrs. Alderton comment, "OUR THANKS & APPRECIATION TO SUE & C-21-McDONALD REALTY FOR CARING, DETERMINATION, PERSISTANCE AND PROFESSIONALISM IN THE SALE & PURCHASE OF OUR HOME."

Bobby McDonald, Broker, says, "Sue is one of those special, talented persons who likes people and loves to sell real estate, and ... she is a thoroughly trained real estate counselor ... a rare combination.

20 years ago, a REALTOR'S job was, primarily, finding a buyer, or a house. Today, that is still the basis of a transaction ... but ... structuring a mutual transaction, prequalification analysis, managing the loan procedure, guiding the property through appraisal, inspections, repairs, preventing & overcoming obstacles, handling the sale through closing — including a myriad of changes, rules, regulations, requirements, has become a counselor's role. Over 12 years experience, indepth training, an attitude & dedication for learning has made a role model of Sue for others in the real estate industry.

While winning awards for sales volume — typically 3 to 4 dozen property sales a year, she still finds time for church, teaching Bible school, Chamber of Commerce leadership training & home. Often ... very often ... there's flowers on her desk from some appreciative buyer, seller, mortgage banker, appraiser, title company, attorney, etc. That ... better than words ... speaks for Sue."

She invites all clients, friends & acquaintances to visit the office & register for a U.S. Gov't Bond award to be given on CENTURY 21-McDONALD REALTY CO. GRAND OPENING — Valentine's day — February 14th.

SEE TV GUIDE (back side) FOR THIS WEEK'S CHOICE HOME OFFERINGS.

Wedding

Walling-Freshour

MR. AND MRS. DANIEL FRESHOUR

Stacey Lynn Walling and Daniel Ryan Freshour were united in marriage Feb. 10, 1990, at a 7:30 p.m. ceremony at College Baptist Church, with the Rev. Ken McMeans, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Debbie Walling, 600 Circle Dr. She is the granddaughter of Collin and Joyce Reese, Big Spring.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with two 15-branch candelabras entwined with ivy, pink roses and white satin bows. Pews were marked with black satin bows.

Music was provided by Britt Walling, bride's brother.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Collin Reese, wore a blush pink satin gown fashioned with a V neckline and mouton sleeves. Schiffli embroidered lace, seed pearls and iridescent sequins accented the bodice and sleeves. The ruffled skirt, adorned with lace appliques, fell to a chapel-length train. The fingertip veil of pink illusion was attached to the headpiece of satin roses, seed pearls and sequins.

She carried a cascading bouquet accented with pink roses.

Maid of honor was Jackie Marquez.

Flower girl was Brandi Cypert, bride's cousin.

Best man was Chris Mason.

Ushers and candlelighters were David Freshour, bridegroom's brother; and Jerry Freshour, bridegroom's brother.

Ringbearer was Randy Cypert, bride's cousin.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted in the fellowship hall. The bride's table, draped with a white cloth over black satin, featured a three-tier white wedding cake decorated with pink roses and topped with a Precious Moments music box with a bride and bridegroom figurine. Brass candleholders and crystal serving pieces also decorated the table. The bridegroom's table, draped with a white cloth, featured a pink heart-shaped cake trimmed in white. Pink crystal and silver serving pieces also decorated the table.

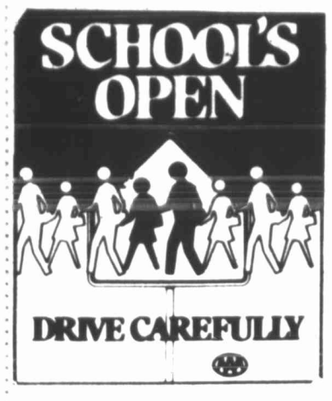

The bride, a 1988 graduate of Big Spring High School, is employed by the Big Spring Herald.

The bridegroom, a 1989 graduate of Big Spring High School, is employed by Big Spring State Hospital.

The couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Everything you need to close down a crackhouse.

You aren't helpless when crime invades your neighborhood. You're fully capable of helping police and they're ready to show you how.

The case of The Stanton Park Stand-off.

When crack moved into a row house on a quiet block of Stanton Park, folks decided to serve an eviction notice.

They met with police to find out what they could do to keep drugs out of their neighborhood.

The cops told them to keep an eye out—to let police know whenever something suspicious happened. They began to notice faces. They wrote down license numbers of strange cars. They noted the times of odd behavior. They worked with each other. They worked with the police. Armed with field glasses, note pads and telephones, folks kept track of the neighborhood. Within one month, enough evidence had been gathered. Police moved in. Crack moved out. Citizen participation beat crime in D.C. It can do the same for you. For more success stories, write: The McGruff Files, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C. 20539-0001.

Police become even more responsive when their people are their partners. Together we can help...

Business beat

Plaza secures vendor

BIG SPRING — A vendor has been found for one of the railroad cars for the downtown Railroad Plaza and the that business should be open for business beginning April 1, the coordinator of the downtown project says.

The downtown renovation group Big Spring Main Street Inc. signed a lease Feb. 5 with Thelma and Hugh Reynolds for a store specializing in handcrafted items such as gift items, household wares and some clothing, said Beverly Franklin, coordinator for the downtown project.

Mrs. Reynolds has previously owned a business in Big Spring and has been doing handcrafted items for a number of years, Franklin said.

The store, called Hand Maden, will be ready for business April 1, the same day the caboose which will house the coordinator's office and landscaping for the area are expected to be finished, Franklin said.

The third railroad car could also be filled soon, but Franklin said although the there have been offers by some businesses to locate in the empty car, the downtown group is holding out for foods product vendor.

In other business, Franklin said the Main Street Inc. group will have a special appreciation dinner at 7 p.m. Feb. 22 at Albertos Restuarant. The by invitation only dinner will be held to honor those who have worked to make the downtown project a reality, she said.

DTN seminar

BIG SPRING — A seminar will be held here Tuesday, Feb. 27, in which a regional representative for Data Transmission Network will discuss use of the network by farmers, ranchers and others.

The seminar will occur in the Circuit Electronics showroom, 2605 Wasson Road.

Based in Omaha, Neb., the network is designed to offer forecasts on markets for agricultural commodities. Participation in the network requires installation of a large satellite dish, a monitor and a receiver, at a total cost of about $300.

To attend the seminar, people may make a reservation by calling David Pappajohn, owner of Circuit Electronics, at 267-3600.

Fuel loading complete

DALLAS — Fuel loading at Unit 1 of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant was completed last week.

Fuel loading began Feb. 9, and a total of 193 fuel assemblies, each about 13 feet long and weighing about 1,500 pounds, has now been loaded into the Unit 1 reactor.

"The fuel loading process was accomplished in an efficient, professional manner with no significant material or personnel problems," said Austin Scott, vice president, nuclear operations. "Those involved directly are to be commended for the skills with which they have carried out this operation."

Each fuel assembly contains 71,808 nuclear fuel pellets and costs about $400,000. One assembly equals the energy in 1.379 billion cubic feet of natural gas, which currently would cost about $3.4 million.

About six weeks of testing now will take place before the Unit 1 reactor achieves criticality, or a self-sustaining nuclear reaction. The unit then will be tested at up to 5 percent capacity for a projected two to three weeks. After receiving a full power license from the NRC, the unit then will gradually begin to increase power. Full power operation is expected by summer.

Comanche Peak is owned by TU Electric, which provides electric service to more than 5 million people in 87 counties in Texas.

Free tax help

BIG SPRING — The local chapter of Volunteer Income Tax Assistance will once again be offering free tax assistance this year.

The VITA workers are available to help at the following days and times: Tuesdays, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church; and Saturdays from 1-4 p.m. at Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Volunteers help people — particularly handicapped, senior citizens and non-English-speaking taxpayers — with basic tax returns. There is no charge for this service.

For more information, call 398-5522.

New membership

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — The National Association of Real Estate Appraisers recently announced the formation of a new class of membership for the association titled State Accredited Member.

This new classification was established to correspond with new state licensing laws now being passed throughout the United States. State licensing of appraisers is required by Section 11 of the S&L Bailout Bill.

The new designation is currently available to individuals who have met and are licensed by the state but have not yet qualified for all the requirements of the association's Certified Real Estate Appraiser Professional Designation.

Auto winner

STANTON — Menerva Garza won a new Ford Escort in an "Our Best to You! Instant-Win Sweeptakes" game promotion. This is a supermarket promotion currently running at Stanton Thriftway and 82 other supermarkets in Colorado, Texas and New Mexico.

Ms. Garza won her new car by entering the second-chance sweepstakes portion of the game. Arrangements have been made for her to receive her new car from Whites Motors in Stanton.

The sweepstakes game features instant cash prizes from $1 to $1,000, grocery prizes and weekly Ford Escort Sweepstakes prizes.

New manager

BIG SPRING — Brown's Shoe Fit Co. of Big Spring recently announced that Tony Heaton was named as the store's new manager.

Heaton, who comes to Big Spring from Hobbs, N.M., has a wife, Deanna, and two children.

Jones promoted

DALLAS — Patricia A. Jones has been named an officer in Energy Banking at NCNB Texas — Dallas.

Jones, a native of Big Spring, earned a BBA degree in finace from the University of Oklahoma in 1987.

NCNB Texas reported $33.7 billion in total assets Dec. 31, 1989. It is the largest bank in the state and serves through a network of more than 220 banking centers in 68 Texas communities.

Guest speaker

BIG SPRING — Ben Burton, described as a "country-spun philosopher," will be the guest speaker at the Cosden Employees Federal Credit Union chili and stew supper at 6 p.m. Thurday in the high school cafeteria.

BEN BURTON

Burton is the former public affairs manager for Weyerhauser Company in Arkansas, and is a native of the state.

Aside from a career in forestry, Burton also served a term in the Arkansas General Assembly, and coached football teams for 15 years in Arkansas and Texas.

Oil & gas review

Howard County

Operating out of Midland, Conoco Inc. has completed two successful plugbacks for shallower pay in Howard County's portion of the Howard-Glasscock Field, about eight miles southeast of Forsan.

The wells are designated as the No. 44 Douthit and the No. 17 Reed "A."

They potentialed at 34 and 50 barrels of oil per day, respectively. They also made 84 and 100 barrels of salt water and minor volumes of casinghead gas daily.

The Douthit well will produce from perforations at 2,155-2,290 feet, while the Reed will produce from perforations at 2,355-2,542 feet into the hole.

Pumping 42 barrels of oil and 120 barrels of salt water per day, the No. 31 Kloh has been completed in the Howard-Glasscock Field, Howard County, 12 miles south of Big Spring.

Marathon Oil of Midland is the operator.

The well will produce from a new set of perforations, 2,406-2,497 feet into the hole.

Conoco has posted first production data from the No. 43 Douthit in the Howard-Glasscock Field, eight miles east of Forsan.

It pumped 38 barrels of oil and 133 barrels of waste water per day on an open choke.

It will produce from a set of perforations in the Glorieta Formation, 2,742-2,984 feet into the wellbore.

Glasscock County

Mobil Producing of Midland has posted first production figures for the No. 59 Dora Roberts in the Howard-Glasscock Field, Howard County.

The well pumped eight barrels of oil with 64 barrels of salt water from a set of perforations at 1,575-1,853 feet into the wellbore.

Location is about 13 miles southeast of Big Spring.

Martin County

Showing ability to pump 59 barrels of oil daily on an open choke, the No. 1 Orson "J" has been finaled in the Spraberry Trend, Martin County, 14 miles west of Lenorah.

Painted clothing continues to be popular

The interest in hand-decorated clothing and accessories shows no sign of slowing. In one of the classes she teaches at the Hitch-n-Post, Clara Tolle, standing, gives Quincy Kelly a few tips on the T-shirt she's painting while Joanne Cagle looks on. Joanne is decorating a handbag.

You can rest easy, fans of painted and decorated clothing. The themes you love — adobes, sand-washed hills, Indians and feathers — will continue to be as popular as ever, according to Ernestine Day who has just returned from market.

Day, owner of the Hitch-n-Post, 1901 E. FM 700, reports that the entire phenomenon of hand-painted and hand-decorated clothing shows no sign of slowing. "It was featured in about 75% of the displays at the recent Hobby Industries Association show in Dallas."

The Hitch-n-Post's classes in fabric painting and decorating cater to the trend. Under the creative eye of artist Clara Tolle, class participants meet to decorate jewelry, handbags, T-shirts, sweat shirts, denim skirts, shirts and dresses — using paints, dyes, beads, sequins, leathers and ribbons.

Silk painting will gain new popularity, Day predicts. Instructions in this art form will begin as soon as the store receives supplies. New supplies already arriving include ultra suede fringe, and new instruction books and patterns.

"Five new books by Susan McNeil are on order," says Day. New garments for decorating — as well as canvas handbags by T-Cappelli — will soon be in stock, so you can get a head start on your summer wardrobe.

Classes are continuously forming; to sign up, just phone the Hitch-n-Post at 263-0783 or go by the charming Western-style building. For those who like the hand-decorated look but don't have the time or talent, the store can do it for you.

The store also offers adult art classes, taught by artist Tolle.

The Hitch-n-Post is open Monday through Friday from 9:30 to 5:30; and on Saturday from 9:30 til 1 p. m.

Many places may sell arts and crafts items, says Day. "But we feel what our store offers is unique — we teach the customer how to do it, and we're always here to help them."

Wedding

Todd-Snellgrove

MRS. BRIAN SNELLGROVE

Julie Beth Todd and Brian Lewis Snellgrove exchanged wedding vows Feb. 17, 1990, at a 7 p.m. ceremony at First Baptist Church, Stanton, with the Rev. Don Blackman, pastor of Heritage Baptist Church; and Dr. David Hamblin, bride's uncle and pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hughlyn Todd, Stanton.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with double candelabra trees, and arrangements of mixed spring flowers entwined in the candles. The aisle was marked with hurricane lamps decorated with red roses.

Pianist was Phyllis Mason.

Organist was Debbie Avert.

Jill Todd, bride's sister, and Brad Snellgrove, bridegroom's brother, sang "Parent's Prayer"; John and Phyllis Mason sang "In This Very Room," "Only God Could Love You More," "Cherish the Treasure," and "Commitment Song".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white imported satin with a sweetheart neckline. The cathedral-length train was appliqued with lace and edged with satin ruffles. The leg-o-mutton sleeves were decorated with lace appliques and the bodice was appliqued with lace and pearls.

Maid of honor was Jill Todd.

Bridesmaids were Monica Sale, San Antonio; Kim McReynolds, Melissa Franklin and Donna Mashburn, all of Stanton.

Best man was Brad Snellgrove.

Groomsmen were Jay Edwards and Brian Sikes, both of Lubbock; Roger Karr and Wayne Barton, O'Donnell.

Ushers were Reggie Franklin, Stanton; Jeff Brandenberger, Eden; Kirby Williams, Borden County; and Eric Williams, Lubbock.

Guest registrars were Crysti Sale and Jody Brandenberger.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at Cap Rock Electric in the banquet room. The bride's three-tier cake was decorated with fresh flowers between each tier. The bridegroom's chocolate cake was decorated with a cotton arrangement. Refreshments were served before a lattice entwined with ivy. Silver appointments decorated the table.

The bride, a graduate of Stanton High School, is a senior education major at Texas Tech University.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Stanton High School, is a December graduate of Texas Tech in agriculture economics. He is a self-employed farmer.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans, La., the couple will make their home in O'Donnell.

Hang gliders soar from Mountain

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Packsaddle Mountain near Kingsland is a mecca for hang gliding pilots. They go there from all over the state to take a flying leap into the air and see how long they can stay up. The record so far is about six hours.

Jeff Hunt is a 26-year-old hang glider pilot from Austin. He has a degree in aerospace engineering from the University of Texas. He worked in the field for a couple of years, then started his own company, Red River Aircraft, named for the street where he resides.

He makes aerodynamic parts for model aircraft, gives hang gliding lessons, sells hang gliding equipment and stages hang gliding events. He has been hang gliding for twelve years. He says the wind currents around Packsaddle make for a grand ride.

Two launch ramps are on top of the mountain. The hang glider pilots run off these in hopes of catching a thermal and soaring skyward. "You don't jump off Packsaddle the first time you get into harness," says Jeff. "Some people, me for instance, take about three years before they feel confident enough to take off from Packsaddle. We start on flat ground and get the beginner accustomed to the equipment. Then we go to a grassy slope and gradually build up to jumping off mountains."

Modern hang gliding started in the mid 70's but the sport goes back a long time. "The Wright brothers experimented with hang gliding," says Jeff. "But the sport was perfected when Nasa was trying to figure out some way to glide spacecraft back to earth."

Pilots don't actually hang from a bar. They use the bar for navigation and control. They are quite securely fastened to the wings which give them the ability to fly. Safety measures include parachutes, backup parachutes and even rockets.

The FAA doesn't regulate hang gliding yet, but The US Hang Gliding Association does. Pilots take proficiency tests to determine levels of experience and ability. The members carry cards designating their ranking.

Mountains aren't the only way to fly. A good wrench truck can get a hang glider airborne in a few seconds. All you need is a good stretch of pavement.

"You can get started in hang gliding for about a thousand dollars," says Jeff. "That'll give you some used equipment and some lessons. Of course the fancier you get, the more it costs."

He got interested in hang gliding when he met some hang gliding pilots at a hill where he went to fly his remote controlled aircraft.

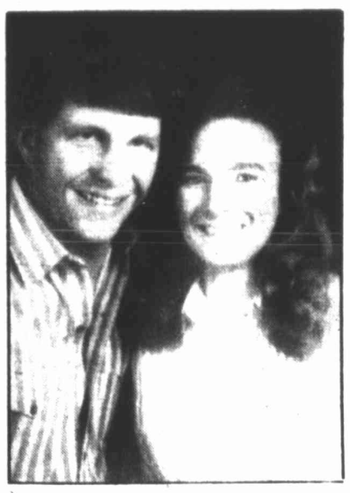

He thinks the sport is exhilirating. "You have an incredible view that's probably unrivaled by any other type of aircraft. There is no obstruction to your vision. It looks scary to someone seeing it for the first time, but there's a lot of preparation and the pilots knows what his aircraft can do. I feel very safe doing it. I wouldn't be doing it otherwise."

The flying wings the pilots use are made of dacron fabric stretched over an aluminum alloy structure with stainless steel bracing. They are aerobatically correct. Pilots can do loops if they wish.

"Some of the early hang gliders were made of plastic and bamboo and were undesirable," says Jeff. "People were calling on the aircraft to do more than they were capable of doing. The sport got a bad reputation because there were accidents and people were dying. The manufacturers then started making safer and safer aircraft. A lot of people still think hang gliding is a dare devil, death-defying sport, whereas it actually has become a very mature, very sane form of recreational flying."

Seeing a bunch of hang gliders around Packsaddle Mountain is a colorful sight. They can go quite high. Some pilots have ridden thermals to 26,000 feet.

Tidbits

The cameras will roll next week when local residents appear in a documentary about rattlesnakes! Former resident Linda Adams pays a return visit as consultant on the film.

Linda, former editor of the Big Spring Herald, left here to continue her education, eventually writing her master's thesis on rattlesnakes. Much of her research, it seems, came from conversations with customers while having her hair done at La Contessa Beauty Salon.

Now her thesis becomes the subject of a documentary to be filmed at the salon March 1. On hand to tell their snake stories will be Merline Pierce, Opal Wilkerson, Wanda Hawkins, Gary Don Carey and Martie Geanopolus.

"I always wanted to be a movie star!" Opal says.

Leona Hughes' 80th birthday cake was iced with the scene of a woman in a rocking chair pulling a fish from the pond. Fishing is one of Leona's favorite things to do, but she doesn't get to go fishing as much as she used to.

Leona's sister, Margaret Norman, hosted the birthday party at her San Angelo home.

Guests included the honoree's son Jerry and Becky Hughes, and her brother Luther and Alma Coleman, Big Spring; her brother Leonard and Sue Coleman, Ackerly; her sister, Elzie Witt, and brother Vern and Billie Coleman, Rising Star.

Former resident Ellen Eudy dropped a note this week from Lubbock.

Ellen, who moved to Lubbock recently, says "I like it here, but oh, how hard it was to make the decision to leave my hometown and everyone I knew and loved."

Ellen is staying temporarily with her daughter, Charlene Brasher, former longtime Ackerly resident. She's waiting for space in "a very nice duplex just two blocks from South Plains Mall!"

Friends can write to Ellen at 5401 50th, K-7, Lubbock, Texas, 79414.

Former resident Felicia Ford, Dallas, daughter of Jerry and Preston Dunbar, was lead singer in a four-day entertainment extravanza in San Francisco this week, according to her mother. It was part of an industrial show for Avis Car Rental.

Felicia phoned that she had a chance meeting with Joe and Virginia Whitten when they were in Dallas recently. The threesome dined and shopped and talked over old times — Felicia traveled several years with the Whittens and "His Children" Prison Ministries.

Felicia is moving her base of operations to Nashville soon and concentrating on her country/western repertoire. Former Big Spring resident Carleen Everett-Haley and husband Bee Haley live there now, and Carleen has offered to help Felicia get settled.
