Marred By Wind...

4 Paratroopers Die In Jump

FORT IRWIN, Calif. (AP) — A paratrooper whose pelvis was broken in a huge airborne military exercise that left four dead and 71 injured says a gust of wind hit him about 50 feet above the California desert, snarling the straps of his parachute.

"I hit the ground, rolled about three times and started to pass out," said Army Spec. 4 Danile Maynard, 24, of New York City, one of 2,300 soldiers who took part Tuesday in the first exercise of units of the Rapid Deployment Force from all four military services.

The jump was one of the largest ever in peacetime U.S. military history.

Three of the injured paratroopers were reported in critical condition with head injuries at Loma Linda University Medical Center, 60 miles from the jump site. Three other soldiers were hospitalized there and five were at other hospitals.

Lt. Gen. Robert C. Kingston, commander of the Rapid Deployment Joint Task Force, said the exercise was conducted in winds varying from 6 to 10 knots. He said 13 knots, about 15 mph, is considered the maximum allowable wind velocity in peacetime training exercises such as Gallant Eagle 82.

Deputy San Bernardino County Coroner Marshall Franey said Tuesday that an external examination of the four bodies showed the men "appeared to have died of head or neck injuries," and one had a fractured arm and leg.

"We won't know the exact cause of death until autopsies are completed, but the injuries suggest they were dragged by their parachutes," he said, referring to all four victims. Asked about reports that two parachutes had malfunctioned, he repeated that the cause of the deaths was still uncertain.

Kingston said, "One soldier apparently was dragged." Two paratroopers were killed after their parachutes malfunctioned and the fourth landed on a piece of heavy equipment, officials said.

The 2,300 paratroopers, members of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., jumped from C-141 jets 800 feet above the Mojave Desert just after dawn Tuesday.

Late Tuesday, two C-130 cargo planes took 60 injured paratroopers to Norton Air Force Base in San Bernardino, where they were loaded onto a C-141 Starlifter for a flight back to Fort Bragg.

Maynard, speaking from his bed at Loma Linda hospital, said the jump had been called off once as the planes approached the drop zones after authorities estimated winds were gusting to 45 mph on the ground. But shortly afterward the soldiers were told the jump was on.

Maynard said the troops expressed no concern about the wind and wished one another luck as their plane flew toward the target area.

"On the plane they told us it (the wind) was only 4 to 6 knots," said James Davis, 19, of High Point, N.C., who was hospitalized with groin and back injuries at Loma Linda. Davis said when he jumped he found himself wrestling with what he estimated was a 35 knot, or 40 mph, wind.

"My feet hit first, then my rear end, then my head," Davis said. The wind caught the chute, and Davis estimated he was dragged three-quarters of a mile over rocks and plants before the wind died.

As he slid across the ground, Davis said he saw other men in his unit being dragged across the rugged terrain and trying to control their parachute canopies.

Other jumpers were more successful.

ON TO REGIONAL—The Snyder High School production of Eugene O'Neill's "Ah Wilderness" was one of two one-act plays chosen for regional competition after yesterday's district 2-AAAA contest in Midland. Snyder's John Wilson was named best actor in the district contest while Jack O'Banion and Kim Lunsford were named to the all-star cast. Joey Forbes and Ramona Murphy were named to the honorable mention cast for their efforts. The cast and crew of the SHS production will be in Odessa April 13-14 for the regional competition at Odessa College. The play from Pecos High School will be district 2-AAAA's other entry in the regional contest. Pictured above are Jack O'Banion, Joey Forbes, Kim Lunsford and John Wilson. (SDN Staff Photo)

In El Salvador...

Fourth Largest City Is Retaken By Guerrillas

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Troops retook El Salvador's fourth largest city from the leftist guerrillas as rightist pressure grew for the ouster of moderate President Jose Napoleon Duarte in post-election political maneuvering.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said 15 soldiers and 100 leftist rebels died in four days of fighting in Usulutan, 60 miles southeast of San Salvador. He said the situation in the city of 60,000 was "now controlled."

A heavy guerrilla attack in Usulutan Saturday prevented voting there and in five neighboring towns in the elections Sunday for a constituent assembly to name a new interim government and write a constitution. Reporters who returned from there Tuesday said the rebels escaped into the countryside as fresh troops attacked.

In San Salvador, Duarte's centrist Christian Democratic Party maintained its plurality as the election tally neared completion, but the right-wing National Conciliation Party that controlled the government from 1961 until the 1979 coup emerged with the balance of power.

Although composition of the assembly will not be known until all the returns are in, the Christian Democrats have been talking about an alliance with the Democratic Action Party, the most moderate of the five right-wing parties. But it was in fourth place and apparently would not win the additional seats the Christian Democrats need for a majority.

National Conciliation was in third place with the prospect of about 14 seats that it could throw behind the Christian Democrats or a right-wing coalition led by the ultra-conservative Republican Nationalist Alliance (ARENA) led by former Maj. Roberto d'Aubuisson.

The five other rightists appeared Tuesday morning to be near agreement to unite in a majority coalition. But by afternoon, prospects of such an agreement receded.

"The only consensus at this point is that Duarte must leave the presidency," National Conciliation secretary-general Raul Molina Martinez told reporters. "Without us, there is no government."

The Christian Democratic party secretary, Julio Adolfo Rey Prendes, told reporters his party stands firmly behind Duarte, and "without the Christian Democrats, there will be no social peace in this country."

"If we're not in the government, people will lose faith," he said. "If they lose faith in democracy, they'll have to find other ways to change things."

The chief obstacle to a rightist coalition appeared to be the presidential ambitions of d'Aubuisson, a right-wing firebrand accused of sponsoring at least one anti-leftist paramilitary "death squad."

One National Conciliation official, Luis Lagos, said d'Aubuisson was not likely to become interim president "because the leader cannot be a caudillo (a military dictator)."

Grace Period To End At Midnight

Officials of the Texas Department of Public Safety have announced their intentions to begin writing citations for drivers who fail to show proof of insurance when requested.

A new law took effect Jan. 1 which requires all Texas drivers to carry liability insurance covering at least $10,000 per person for bodily injury ($20,000 for two or more persons) and $5,000 coverage for property damages.

When the law took effect Jan. 1, DPS officals announced a 90-day grace period, during which DPS troopers would issue citations for failure to have proof of coverage only to drivers involved in accidents.

This 90 day period will expire at midnight tonight and troopers will begin citing drivers who cannot prove coverage.

Those without the required insurance risk a fine of $75-$200 for the first offense and a $200-$1,000 fine for subsequent offenses.

A conviction under the new law can also result in suspension of drivers licenses and motor vehicle registration unless the driver can establish and maintain proof of financial responsibility for five years from the conviction date.

Locally, officers of the Snyder Police Department had been following the DPS guidlines set forth in Janurary.

According to police spoksemen Wednesday morning, the local department has made no decision on their policy for enforcement of the law after midnight tonight.

GOP Senators Say...

U.S. Economy Worse Than Reagan Admits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate Budget Committee, repudiating President Reagan's optimistic forecast for the economy, says the country faces tougher times than the administration wants to admit and much bigger budget deficits.

At the same time, the committee began its work on a 1983 spending plan Tuesday with a bipartisan display of impatience over Reagan's refusal to compromise on his proposed budget.

"It's absolutely urgent we move and move with dispatch," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the committee chairman. He favors a series of steps to reduce budget deficits, including higher taxes, less spending on defense and limits on cost of living increases for Social Security.

"This isn't a game of budget chicken. This is a very serious business," said Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., ranking Democrat on the panel and author of another alternative to Reagan's budget.

"The president needs to get on line," echoed Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

The committee, which is expected to complete its redrafting of Reagan's budget after a two-week Easter recess, began the job Tuesday by voting 13-1 to reject the president's optimistic forecast for the economy. Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., was the lone dissenter, urging his Republican colleagues not to begin their work by rejecting Reagan's own.

But the committee adopted a forecast that said the economy will rebound more slowly from recession this year and show less growth in the following two years than the White House predicts. The panel also assumes that inflation, unemployment and interest rates will generally be higher than the president forecasts.

Ask Us

Q.—If Line Park is not developed, will the one percent city sales tax be removed?

A.—No. Only a portion of the sales tax funds would go to the park in any one year, says City Manager John Gayle. The remainder would continue to be used in lieu of property tax increases for projects such as last year's replacement of worn out water mains, which cost more than $355,000.

Deadline Near For Banquet Ticket Sales

Ticket sales for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce banquet were approaching the 600 mark today with another day and a half to go.

The ticket sales committee, headed by Ernest Sears, is scheduled to wind up its work by noon Friday. The banquet is set for 7:30 p. m. Friday.

Guest speaker for the banquet will be Iola Johnson, co-anchor for WFAA-TV news programs, Dallas, and the master of ceremonies will be Dave Lane, WFAA-TV vice president and general manager.

Tickets, priced at $12 each, may be ordered by calling the chamber office at 573-3558, or they may be purchased at First Federal Savings and Loan, The Shack, Adventures Unlimited Travel Agency, or Snyder Truck and Tractor.

The ticket sales committee reported that several chamber member firms had indicated that they planned to purchase banquet tickets for personnel and guests but had not determined the total number needed. These are being urged to get their orders in as quickly as possible.

News Conference Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will hold his ninth White House news conference tonight, and his first in the evening, and the president's aides say he will make a statement about nuclear arms limits.

The session with reporters in the East Room of the White House is to begin at 8 p.m. EST and will be carried by the major broadcast networks.

Senate Opposes Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is on record as strongly opposing the use of spent fuel from nuclear power plants as a source of plutonium for atomic weapons.

The stand was taken Tuesday in the form of a restriction tacked onto a $1 billion, two-year authorization bill for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. The prohibition on using spent fuel for bombs was approved 88-9, after which the money bill was approved 97-0 and sent to a conference committee.

The House has passed a version of the bill without the spent fuel restriction.

When anyone questions the programming on major television networks, the network officials always have a defense ready, and usually it is topped with "we just give our viewers what they want." And, in most cases they have rating system reports to back them up. A show that fails to make a good rating seldom endures.

But occasionally the networks misintrepret, or merely ignore, their signals, and occasionally, the rating systems fall flat on their faces.

A case in point is the Lawrence Welk Show, which taped its final weekly television program recently. Welk, the North Dakota accordion player, had his band on network television back in the 50s. But, after a few years, the network people decided that TV audiences had passed him by, and the Lawrence Welk Show was cancelled by ABC.

It was a minor setback for Welk, perhaps even a blessing in disguise for a man who had been stranded in Texas during the Great Depression and but for the kindness of an Abilene hotel manager would have gone out of business. He merely stepped out of the network line-up and syndicated his show. It then continued to round out an overall total of three decades, and eventually was carried on more stations than ABC had in its network.

★ ★ ★

It was the first of two popular television shows to have that experience. A few years ago, CBS took a hillbilly variety show called Hee Haw for the summer, but decided it could not make the grade on the rating charts for the fall and winter. Hee Haw went into syndication and has prospered ever since.

But back to the Welk story. The program is not likely to disappear suddenly. Reports are that many TV stations will continue to carry reruns of the Lawrence Welk Show for some time, and there are plenty of them.

Welk established strong ties to Texas early in his career. It was in Abilene that he and his band were stranded without funds back in the 30s. A hotel manager agreed to lodge them and feed them if they would play each night in the hotel's dining room. This experience is one of Welk's favorite stories, and he says he could not have kept his band together otherwise.

Also, Texans have become stars on his show. The late Alice Lon, who grew up near Kilgore, was the first "Champagne Lady" on his television show. And Ralna Hovis, one of his top vocalists the past few years, is the former Ralna English, who grew up in Haskell.

Lawrence Welk's last show ends an era in television, but some time in the future, look for Welk Show reruns to appear on educational television as classics.

DRUG AWARNESS PROGRAM—Marilynn Golightly, regional coordinator for the Texans' War on Drugs program, and Snyder police lieutenant Steve Warren teamed up to present a program on the dangers, usage patterns and identification of dangerous drugs commonly used by teenagers for the District 2 convention of extension homemakers at the Scurry County Coliseum Tuesday. Golightly told the homemakers about various drug related publications commonly available and urged the women to put pressure on their local retailers to stop distribution of the magazines. Lieutenant Warren described and showed several drugs and associated paraphernalia to a responsive and interested audience. (SDN Staff Photo)

Spacemen Begin Debriefing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Home safely after a spectacular "toboggan" ride from space, astronauts Jack R. Lousma and C. Gordon Fullerton begin a week of debriefing today, recounting for experts their eight days of adventure aboard the shuttle Columbia.

Columbia landed with a thump Tuesday at the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico after staying in orbit an extra day to wait out a sandstorm that scrubbed a landing the day before.

It was the third test flight for Columbia, its toughest and longest. The spacecraft faces but one more test mission before it starts flying cargo for paying customers.

Lousma, arriving in Houston, called the mission "spectacular from end to end, particularly the toboggan down from upstairs."

In overcoming all its problems, he said, "Columbia demonstrated a maturity that was really unexpected."

The spacecraft landed at 9:05 a.m. MST Tuesday, completing a journey of more than 3.3 million miles and 129 orbits of the Earth. It dropped from space and sped across western Mexico and the United States before diving toward a safe touchdown on a dry lakebed amid New Mexico's mountains.

Except for some missing tiles on its skin and a few scars and scratches, Columbia was in good shape. Technicians quickly drained surplus fuel and chemicals and towed the stubby-winged craft to a service area beside the desert runway. In about eight days, the spacecraft will be lifted atop a jumbo jet and flown to the Kennedy Space Center for refitting. A fourth flight is planned in June.

For Lousma and Fullerton, the adventure is over and it's time for the paperwork. The astronauts will spend hours over the next seven days speaking into tape recorders and answering engineering questions about the performance of Columbia.

There was no question about how the two spacemen felt. Said Lousma from space: "This is really a beautiful flying machine."

Astronauts, space center workers and friends stood in a light rain Tuesday night to welcome the returning spacemen at Ellington Air Force Base near the Johnson Space Center.

Lousma thanked the crowd, particularly for their prayers. "I've always said a few prayers are worth a lot of training," he added.

Fullerton's speech was short. "My job ... to lower the landing gear. Jack's was to land and make the speeches."

Neighbors decorated the yards at both astronauts' homes with signs of welcome. In nearby Friendswood, where Lousma lives, streets were lined with flags and more signs.

Airline Awaits Union Decision

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The president of Continental Airlines says the company should know within three weeks whether its employees' union will accept wage and work-rule concessions designed to save $60 million annually.

In a speech to shareholders, President and Chief Executive George A. Warde said Tuesday that no deadline had been set for completion of talks with the unions representing pilots, flight attendants and mechanics.

The airline lost $60.4 million last year and had a total indebtedness of about $200 million after borrowing about $25 million in February.

The shareholder meeting at the airport Marriott Hotel marked the end of Texas Air's takeover after an 11-member panel of directors nominated by the Texas company was elected. Texas Air owns 50.8 percent of Continental's stock

Berry's World

"The Association of American Bankruptcy Attorneys has endorsed Reaganomics!"

paul harvey

This is mostly shop talk but may soon involve you.

Cuba's Castro threatens an "air war," threatens with Big Bertha transmitters to out-shout American radio stations.

While his present quest, obviously, is for political leverage — the potential nonetheless exists for that bush-league dictator to sure enough foul up stateside communication. Including our emergency frequencies.

A bit of background: With the proliferation of radio broadcasting in our hemisphere, a North American Regional Broadcast Agreement was signed whereby each nation respected the rights of the others.

But Castro announced last year that he was going to build some superpower radio stations — obviously infinitely larger than necessary to blanket his tiny island.

Logically, he intends to use such Big Berthas to propagandize Latin America and to muzzle some United States stations broadcasting on those frequencies.

We sent FCC and State Department officials to Cuba last year to discuss the interference; they thought they had an agreement. a Cuban delegation then visited Washington to confirm the agreement.

But when Western Hemisphere nations conferred in Rio last November — preparing to update self-imposed regulations — and we blocked 40 changes which Cuba had proposed in frequency allocations — Cuba denounced the United States and stormed out of the meeting.

And since then, Castro's unofficial "air war" has "jammed" 16 Florida stations and has interfered with others as far away as Salt Lake City.

The Florida Association of Broadcaster is urging our country to "fight fire with fire," to amplify our transmissions on Cuban frequencies, to drown them out.

But FCC Commissioner Anne Jones is disinclined, says them jamming us and us jamming them is not constructive.

So a delegation of Florida broadcasters was heard this month by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. At least, the broadcasters want representation on any future negotiation delegation.

They want a real live broadcaster included among the bureaucrats in any future Cuban-American meetings.

Legislation is presently pending in Congress to create Radio Marti, a station specifically intended to broadcast from the United States into Cuba.

Unlike our Voice of America, which broadcasts only straight news, this Radio Marti would blanket Cuba with propaganda.

Just the presence of this item on the congressional agenda seems to have sobered Castro. Some of his stations have gone off the air. Others have changed power and frequency. No Big Berthas have been heard from.

At the moment, it's a standoff. But in this kind of "air war" bigness is no advantage.

Your Birthday

April 1, 1982

The year ahead may be the time to let go of situations which have caused you mostly grief or stress. Although it is never easy to start over, you'll be glad you did once you make that move.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The tender spot continues to be your dealings with your mate. He or she may not be the easiest to get along with today, but the same might apply to you. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you might be stuck with redoing or repairing careless workmanship from yesterday. Don't point any fingers of blame; spend your energy on the tasks.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Buyer's remorse may be setting in today on past extravagant spending. You might even find it advisable to return some purchases.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If the chill is in the air at the homestead today, try to get to the bottom of the problem and made amends. Even if it's not your fault, arrange a truce.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Little is ever accomplished by holding grudges. In fact, you'll be the only one to feel the anguish if you choose to embrace such an emotion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It may be necessary today to review your financial situation and look for ways to offset the beating it's been taking. Cut out those nonessentials.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Why knock your head up against a brick wall? If things aren't going the way they should, perhaps it's best to stand back to see if you're heading in the proper direction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can only accomplish in life that which you first conceive. If you choose to be negative, only failure can result.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you feel life has let you down, recall: We reap only what we've sown. Check to see if you planted weeds or fruit. Plow under anything unproductive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pessimistic companions should be avoided today. Their crepe-hanging could put you in the doldrums, too, and you'll start seeing mud instead of stars.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) What should have been a productive day might turn into one just the opposite, mostly because you have a tendency today to make mountains out of molehills.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you know socially may be at the bottom of your financial troubles today. If you can't change what is already done, let this serve to guide you in the future.

ABWA Scurry Chapter Names Woman Of Year

American Business Women's Assn. held their regular meeting Mar. 25 at Martha Ann Woman's Club. Presiding officer was Mary Hall and Leona Wiggins was hostess.

Tim Riggan of Edwards Stock Exchange was the guest speaker. Mr. Riggan explained that stock was not the only business of the exchange. He touched on utilities, capital gain, taking advantage of tax law, Mutual Funds, bonds such as corporate and tax free municipal and trust, and also told about real estate limited partnership investments. He gave a brief explanation of the IRA account.

Jan Lanier, a hairdresser at The Snootie Fox, was been named Woman of the Year by the Scurry Charter Chapter. Annually, each ABWA chapter selects one of its members for this award. Selection is based on the member's achievement in her field of business, participation in the association and in community activities.

As the chapter Woman of the Year, Jan may compete for the 1982 Top Ten Business Women of ABWA and the American Business Woman of ABWA awards. Announcement of the national award recipients will be made at the ABWA 1982 National Convention, Nov. 3-7, in New Orleans, LA.

Jan has been a very active member of Scurry Charter Chapter since 1977. Her past duties have been corresponding secretary, program chairman, and vocational speaker chairman. She is presently in charge of Bosses Night to be held April 29.

During the business session, members discussed a promotion of family pictures to be taken the weekend of May 15. Proceeds from this project will go into the scholarship fund. Pictures will be made at Merle Norman Studio and members will sell packet of tickets.

Working Women Still Do Chores

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A survey conducted by Better Homes and Gardens magazine indicates that middle-class, married working women still see themsleves as responsible for all the household chores, regardless of how many hours they work outside the home.

More than 32,500 readers responded to a survey, "How Is Work Affecting American Families?" and 74 percent of the women who answered the questionnaire have jobs.

Ideal Of Romantic Love Is Misleading

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Traditional marriage vows pledging love and devotion "until death us do part" should undergo some changes that better reflect the realities of love, says Martin C. Dillon, who teaches a course in "Love, Death and Creation" at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Dillon, associate professor of philosophy at the university, says although most Americans marry for love, the link between "romantic" marriage and spiraling divorce rates could be people's unreal concept of love.

"Most traditional families are in serious trouble because of their expectations about love," he says. "By fostering a romantic notion of ideal love, one that is largely unobtainable, our marriages are being driven apart.

"We have been misled with overly inflated expectations," he adds. "If we marry for romance, we're going to be disappointed because people tend to be in love with idealization rather than reality."

Intimacy erodes that illusion, but "the illusion of romance dies hard," says Dillon, who is preparing two books on love and sexuality.

In American traditional society, Dillon says, couples make marriage vows in absolute terms: "...in sickness and in health, as long as we both shall live."

Those vows, he says, are based on the unreal expectation of a relationship staying the same throughout time. The language of love, he observes, "is full of always and forever and never, but you can't say you'll love someone forever because it's just not a promise you can realistically make. What we should be saying is 'I love you now and I hope I'll love you a year from now; I'll work at it.' We have to take into consideration the fact that everyone grows and changes as years go by."

Dillon suggests that a mature marriage contract should be conditional, bound by specific time periods and circumstances and that the economic realities of family responsibilities be included.

"A better marriage vow may be one designed to protect the offspring of that marriage," he says, and refutes those who say a prenuptial agreement, spelling out financial obligations in case of divorce, is a negative and unromantic preparation for marriage.

"If such a practical step dispels illusions, then those are illusions that needed dispelling," he says. He likens a prenuptial agreement to wearing a parachute in a small plane. "You have no intention of using it, but it's foolish to go up without it, and nice to know it's there in case of emergency."

Dillon says he would like to see marriages made more difficult to achieve than divorces. "The soul-searching should come before marriage, not after," he says.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is a hand from the 1936 Life Master pairs. The best we can say about South's bidding is that he believed that if you played a hand at three no-trump you were likely to get a top. Maybe a well-deserved top, maybe a totally undeserved one, but a top in any event.

He wasn't at all happy with the heart lead. He seemed sure to be on his way to the loss of at least five hearts and the ace of spades.

Nevertheless, South faced the potential disaster with a head unbowed. No one could tell from his manner that he was in a hopeless contract and lo and behold fortune favored the brave.

East won the first trick with his ace of hearts. Then he returned the seven spot in line with the well-known practice of returning the original fourth best.

South played his jack. He had no other card to play.

Now West went into one of those long soul-searching huddles that bridge players have been caught in since the game was invented. Finally, West decided that his partner's holding had been A-7-2 and that South's heart holding had been Q-J-9-4. A duck was indicated against that possible card combination. Maybe East would hold the king of diamonds.

West ducked and South quickly ran off the rest of the tricks for a top score to end all top scores.

Congressional Resolutions Carry High Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — Critics have long lambasted Congress for doing nothing. Not true. Just this year, amid the pressures of the federal budget, lawmakers have found time to give official recognition to peaches and patriotism, bald eagles and ballet.

Those are among the hundreds of commemorative resolutions introduced every year by congressmen. It all costs money, but nobody knows for sure how much. Nobody knows, either, how much time explanation, debate and voting consume on limited floor schedules, or how many staff hours are taken up typing, copying and circulating pleas for support on a pet resolution.

"It's got to cost," said Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., whose Post Office and Civil Service subcommittee on the census must handle most such bills in the House. "It bothers me, but I don't control the situation. I didn't make the rules."

By one estimate, the introduction of a brief resolution costs nearly $1,300 for printing and distribution. If the sponsoring senator or representative makes a speech supporting his bill on the floor, space to print it in the Congressional Record costs another $475.68 per page. Roughly 700 such bills were introduced last year.

"Those costs are nominal," said Mike Ferrell, staff director of Garcia's subcommittee. "The expensive item is the time taken up on the floor of a billion-dollar Congress. It takes at least 10 or 15 minutes to explain a resolution."

What some considered to be an example of the problem occurred last Oct. 20, when Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, demanded a roll-call vote on a resolution declaring the fourth Sunday in October to be National Mother-In-Law Day. It passed 305 to 66, with 28 voting "present."

"One of the dangers — and the mother-in-law thing highlights this — is that sometimes these things come up and the floor and there's some squabble between Democrats and Republicans, and they use this as a mechanism to delay and stall by asking for votes on these things," said Garcia.

So far this year the House has passed 11 such resolutions, the Senate more than two dozen. A few are on serious governmental topics, such as National Agriculture Day or Afghanistan Day. But most, Ferrell said, are not.

"The ones that predominate are in the classic sense a special interest: a group, an association or whatever constituency that makes a request to a member, who innocently or blindly obliges that request."

Earlier this month the House considered Joint Resolution 361, granting official recognition to the international ballet competition to be held in Jackson, Miss.

Rep. Jim Dunn, a freshman Republican from Michigan, criticized "the activities that the U.S. government is involved in such as ballet days versus what we really should be involved in, and that is solving the economic problems... These are not normal times, and we cannot go on tradition in this body."

But Garcia rose to defend the bill as important to Mississippi and to Rep. Wayne Dowdy, D-Miss., "who has worked so hard to get this through." The measure passed.

The House also has declared the third week in February as National Patriotism Week and 1982 as the Bicentennial Year of the Bald Eagle, and the Senate has designated July as National Peach Month.

Although any member can introduce a bill, both Garcia's committee and the Senate Judiciary Committee, which handles similar chores in that chamber, have rules to limit and discourage them from reaching the floor for action. That has kept National Junior Bowling Week, International Franchise Day and Parliamentary Emphasis Month from gumming up the floor calendars.

The House requires 218 co-sponsors — a majority — and forbids action on bills naming any commercial, political group or any particular state, city or school. The Senate rules call for 25 co-sponsors and bar politics and specific businesses or products.

The Senate rules are being re-evaluated to make it tougher, perhaps by requiring more co-sponsors. "There is some feeling that we've been taking too much time," said a staff member who asked not to be named.

"Obviously if a member can do someone a favor without committing a lot of staff time, he's gonna do it," said Ferrell.

New Life For Struggling Gun Control Movement

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan held firm to his support of gunowners' rights after he was shot outside a Washington hotel a year ago, but the wounding of a president with a cheap handgun nevertheless gave new life to the struggling gun control movement.

"What we're seeing across the country is a resurgence and new people coming into the handgun control movement in many different states," said Charles Orasin, executive vice president of Handgun Control, Inc.

Morton Grove, Ill., population 24,000, put itself on the map earlier this year with a local ordinance banning handguns. In Chicago, the City Council has passed a measure prohibiting the registration of new handguns after April 9.

Friendship Heights, Md., a suburb of the nation's capital, found itself prevented by a state law from banning handguns, so it tried the next best thing: banning the bullets to go in them. That one is still caught up in a legal argument, but the fever is spreading.

In Massachusetts, a move is afoot to outlaw snub-nose pistols, while a licensing and registration law is being considered in Ohio. The Maryland legislature has pending a bill to outlaw carrying a handgun outside home or place of business, with a mandatory jail term for violators. Dade County, Fla., is seeking to toughen its gun law. And California has a voters' initiative brewing, this one to cap the supply of handguns.

Movement on gun control is a new development. Public opinion polls have shown for the past 50 years that most people would like some effective controls on handguns, but that opinion never became an emotional issue to most voters — and most of the voters that did care opposed controls.

Orasin believes the assassination of former Beatle John Lennon in New York on Dec. 8, 1980, was seismic in its effect, because it stirred a generation that had not been involved in the gun issue before.

"The John Lennon tragedy really sensitized the Beatles generation," Orasin said. "This is a very new, young generation, a large group of people that can vote, are acquiring property, becoming taxpapers, the future leaders.

"And the poll data we're seeing is that the intensity of support for handgun control is much higher in this group than among older people," Orasin said. "So, as each year passes, they'll have a greater influence on the handgun control debate."

The Reagan shooting, on March 30, 1981, reached even more people, Orasin reasons.

"To begin with, because of television," he said, "you had almost an instant replay of how the president was shot, and millions of Americans saw how a small, easily concealed handgun was able to penetrate this Secret Service protection and almost kill the president."

The attempt had a greater effect because the victim was a Republican and a conservative, Orasin said.

"What you find is that many conservatives who in the past had either not spoken out for handgun control or had taken no position on it, after this shooting were prompted to say something has to be done," Orasin said.

"Because the focus became narrow. It was no longer gun control — not rifles and shotguns — but specifically handgun control, pistols and revolvers," Orasin continued. "So, in that one incident the debate was focused and they saw exactly what people were talking about, just concealable handguns.

"The issue had always been looked upon as a liberal Democratic issue. Now it's an issue for all parties, all ages, all religions, all colors. People realize something has to be done," Orasin said.

At the time Lennon was shot, Handgun Control, Inc., which is generally considered the spearhead of the control movement, was struggling.

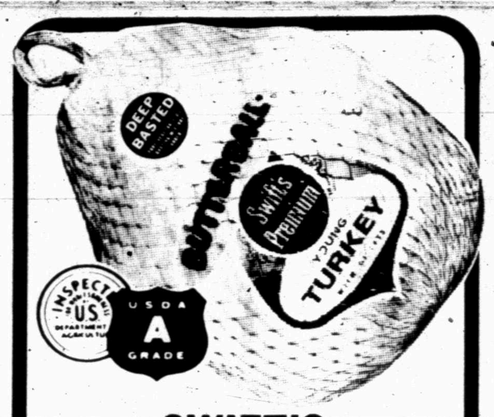

Compared to the National Rifle Association's 2 million members and $40 million budget, Handgun Control, Inc., had a mailing list of about 65,000 and was running an office and small staff on about $1 million a year.

In the weeks after Lennon was shot, Handgun Control's mailings brought in an unexpected $300,000. The group's leaders were pondering how to use this windfall when Reagan was shot. They decided to sink almost the entire bundle into a recruiting campaign, primarily full page ads in 22 major daily newspapers.

Men's Organization...

Knights Of Columbus Celebrate 100 Years

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — To thousands of Catholics, they're the men wearing plumed hats and brandishing silver swords during special church celebrations — the Knights of Columbus, regarded by many as the most powerful lay group in the American Catholic Church.

On Monday, "the Order" celebrates its centennial with a Mass and the re-entombment of the remains of its founder, the Rev. Michael J. McGivney, in St. Mary's Church here.

It was there 100 years ago that McGivney, concerned with the plight of destitute widows and orphans of working men, founded the Knights of Columbus. The priest, championed by the Knights as a candidate for sainthood, later established one of the first insurance programs in the nation for industrial workers — the cornerstone for the more than $6 billion worth of insurance the order carries today for its members.

From humble beginnings in the small working-class church, the Knights have grown into a 1.35-million-member organization that last year donated an estimated $40 million and 9 million man-hours to charity, in addition to providing pageantry at church celebrations.

The Knights have 7,156 local councils and lodges worldwide. More than 1 million members of the organization live in the United States and there are some 200,000 Knights in Canada, about 45,000 in the Philippines, 9,000 in Mexico, 3,000 in Puerto Rico and smaller numbers in Guatemala, Panama, the Virgin Islands, the Dominican Republic and other countries.

Insurance revenues provide most of the income for the order's charity programs, but Supreme Knight Virgil C. Dechant says the organization is not interested in profits.

"The insurance revenues, certainly, are very valuable to us because they supply the wherewithal for much of this work," said Dechant who worked his way up in a state chapter in Kansas before coming to New Haven as assistant supreme secretary in 1966. "We're tax exempt and that implies that we must use the monies that we don't pay in taxes for charitable works and we try to do that."

Dechant directs the organization from his modest office suite in the group's world headquarters — a modern 22-story red brick structure that dominates New Haven's skyline. But the quiet and unassuming 51-year-old Supreme Knight dismisses any suggestion that he is in a position to become the chief lay spokesman for 49.6 million Roman Catholics in the United States.

Dechant says the Knights can better serve the church by providing the financial backing and manpower for projects supported by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and other Catholic groups.

"This is not right for me to say, but if you were to ask a bishop today or the conference of Catholic bishops, 'Where can you go to raise money for a special project?' ... there's only one place to go and that's the Knights of Columbus. And they all wear the door out," he said.

The Knights funded construction of a bell tower at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, helped lead a grass-roots campaign to insert the words "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance, paid for the microfilming of some 11 million pages of precious Vatican Library documents, endowed a permanent chair of American history at the Catholic University of America and underwrote the link-up costs of telecasting papal ceremonies all over the world.

However, few projects rival the order's $10 million "Vicarius Christi" fund established last year to provide Pope John Paul II an annual stipend for whatever charities the pope wishes to help around the globe.

Dechant also points with pride to Knights of Columbus funding of the American bishops' fight against abortion, their support for natural family planning as an alternative to artificial birth control and a program supporting tuition tax credits for parents who send their children to private and parochial schools.

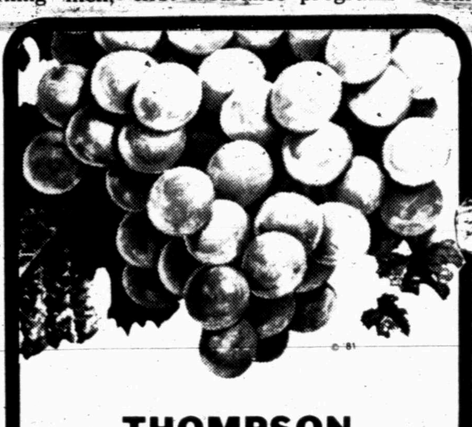

"We have not involved ourselves in partisan politics except where there are matters of faith and morals ... we try to restrict it to that," Dechant said. "We have no lobbying office in Washington. But we are involved in the pro-life issue, the aid to Catholic education issue and other matters that concern us. On moral issues, we do speak out.

Princess Seeks Prince Of Guy

DALLAS (AP) — Marie-Antoinette Elisabeth-Alexandra Irmgand Edda Charlotte Anhalt is looking for a prince of a guy.

The woman, who calls herself Princess Alexandra von Anhalt, has checked into a suite at the Fairmont Hotel here and says she won't leave until she finds a Texas rancher to marry.

"I need a Texannie," the German woman says in broken English. "I need a rancher who will offer me his arm when we walk."

Fairmont officials said the princess arrived Friday with her nephew, who calls himself Prince Jurgen von Anhalt. The pair paid $3,000 in advance for the two-bedroom, $350-a-night Republic Suite, hotel officials said.

The woman's passport lists the regal-sounding — and lengthy — name. But the Anhalt name is listed neither on the protocol list of the German embassy in Washington nor in "Who's Who in Germany." The German consuls in Houston and Dallas have not heard of her.

Embassy official Charles Bentlean said the Anhalt name comes from a house of nobility in the 15th century, when Germany was divided into several principalities led by titled aristocrats.

OEA Helping With Special Olympic Fund

Office Education Association members at Western Texas College have completed two projects to raise funds to help send Snyder contestants to Special Olympics contests in Abilene and Austin.

OEA is an organization for office occupations students, helping its members to achieve their greatest potential in their chosen fields and promoting leadership.

The WTC group collected and sold aluminum cans and held a bake sale during National OEA Week to earn money for their donation.

Snyder's Special Olympics entrants will be going first to an area meet to be held April 20, with 28 participants registered there. On May 26-28, the state meet will be held in Austin.

Judge Rules Oil Spill Victims May Sue Private Company

HOUSTON (AP) — American citizens hurt by a Mexican oil spill may not sue that country's oil monopoly, but they can seek damages from the private company that did the drilling, a federal judge has ruled.

Tuesday's decision by U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor Jr. addressed the sensitive issue of jurisdiction in a tangle of lawsuits stemming from the massive 1979 Ixtoc I oil spill.

O'Conor dismissed all claims against Pemex, the Mexican government-owned oil monopoly, ruling Pemex was protected "on the basis of foreign sovereign immunity" which generally prevents U.S. citizens from suing foreign nations.

But the judge said U.S. citizens can sue Permargo, the private Mexican company that did the drilling for Pemex.

The ruling paves the way for a trial on the many damage suits consolidated in O'Conor's court.

No trial date has been set and some attorneys, who asked not to be identified, predicted the ruling would likely lead to out-of-court settlements.

Oil, grease and tar from the runaway Ixtoc I offshore well was swept northward by winds and currents and stained Texas and Louisiana beaches about two months after the well blew out on June 3, 1979.

It took 10 monts to cap the well that triggered what is considered the worst oil spill in history by spewing more than 100 million gallons of crude into the Bay of Campeche.

Fishermen, hotel owners and others sued for damages totaling more than $400 million. Merchants dependent on tourist traffic complained oil on the beaches ruined their 1979 season, especially on South Padre Island.

Lawyers for Permargo argued the company could not be sued by Americans because U.S. courts lacked jurisdiction.

O'Conor disagreed, saying Permargo is listed in Houston and Galveston telephone books, keeps an apartment in Houston, has money in Texas banks and is one-quarter owned by a Galveston man.

"As far as I can see we're now suing what is actually a business arm of Mexico, since Permargo was doing the work for Pemex," said Joe Jamail, who represents Texas fishermen, shrimpers and crabbers claiming losses. "It makes little difference to me. I know where Permargo has money in American banks."

O'Conor also ruled the Dallas-based SEDCO Inc., which owned the ocean-going rig used to drill Ixtoc I and had rented it to the Mexican company, was legally entitled to consider the rig a "vessel."

That gives SEDCO the right to try to take advantage of a maritime law that limits liability in damage claims to the value of the vessel.

SEDCO lawyer Walter Cardwell said his company was pleased with that, but planned to appeal dismissal of claims against Pemex.

"It has been largely forgotten," Lilljedahl said.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 39-year-old man, 5 feet 11 and weigh 140 pounds. I gradually decreased my weight from 155 to this weight over a four-year period. I commute by bicycle and with week-end recreational trips average 90 miles a week. This is supplemented by year round activity such as skiing and walking. For 25 years I have had no serious illnesses.

A year ago my heart beat 60 times a minute. Now it beats 48. I realize you can't diagnose what has caused this pulse rate drop normally seen in finely tuned athletes but I am puzzled. I would like to know if you think there is any illness that might precipitate such a change and if I should check into it further.

DEAR READER — You are unusual but your heart rate is not. That amount of regular exercise is often associated with heart rates of 50 or below. It is a sign of an exercise conditioned heart. As the heart beats that slow at rest it is often enlarged. That is partly because the heart holds more blood than in less fit individuals.

In your case, since your heart only beats 48 beats a minute it needs to pump about one-and-a-half times as much each beat as it would beating 75 beats a minute. To do that it stores more blood between contractions.

The increased volume size of your heart also means that when you are cycling or exercising that your heart can pump more blood per minute, enabling you to do more vigorous exercise for longer periods of time. When I studied the pentathletes one year I found many of them to have large slow hearts even though they were in outstanding health, ready for the Olympics.

You may know that Roger Bannister had a heart rate in the 70s before he trained to break the four-minute mile. When he broke the record his resting heart rate was between 35 and 40 beats a minute. So you are in good company.

Heart block, usually seen in older people, also causes a slow heart rate. If you are concerned ask your doctor to have an electrocardiogram done.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-8, Your Heart Rate: What It Means. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son was told by his school teacher that honey would cure his allergy. He was told to take one tablespoon per day. The contents of the honey are supposed to have all of the substances that he could possibly be allergic to. Is there any truth to this matter?

DEAR READER — None. I personally like the taste of honey as do millions of others. But let's face it, a pleasing taste doesn't make it a health remedy. There are many false wild claims about the benefits of honey.

Honey couldn't possibly do the desensitizing program that is often useful in controlling allergies. If your son were allergic to dog hair he is not likely to be desensitized by honey.

There are three approaches to allergies: avoiding the substance you are allergic to, desensitizing with minute exposure to the substance or taking medicines such as antihistamines to counteract the allergic response. Honey doesn't do any of these. Let's hope your son's teacher is better informed on the subjects he or she is supposed to be teaching.

Rep. Sam Hall Rebukes Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Sam B. Hall has suggested activist atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair should take a fact-finding mission in her effort to block federal funds for congressional chaplains and "go straight to hell."

Stunned silence initially greeted the comment Hall made Tuesday on the floor of the House of Representatives, but then other congressmen and spectators in the galleries cheered and applauded.

Moments later, the House voted 388-0 for a bill that reaffirms the right of the House to have a chaplain open daily proceedings with a prayer.

Mrs. O'Hair, whose suit years ago led to prohibition of prayers in public schools, is seeking to prevent Congress from spending public money for chaplains.

Hall, D-Texas, said he'd followed for several years the lawsuits brought by Mrs. O'Hair and couldn't restrain himself from going to the rostrum to make the impromtu comment.

"It's a terrible thing to have to be faced with a creature like Madalyn Murray O'Hair, who believes in neither hell nor heaven," Hall said.

Anticipating further judicial review of the suit, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, and others introduced the bill to make clear the position of Congress on the matter.

WINTER LANDSCAPE—Aert van der Neer created this "Winter Landscape with a Windmill," which is included in the Golden Age of Painting exhibit to be shown in the Scurry County Museum at WTC from April 5-30. Van der Neer's winter scenes were ideally suited to the monochromatic color schemes associated with Dutch landscape art.

Three Of Four Defendants Are Sentenced

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A fourth Amarillo man still faces sentencing after pleading guilty to participating in a conspiracy to manufacture and sell counterfeit South African Krugerrands.

Former bank president Robert Finis Ringo, 46, was sentenced Tuesday to three concurrent one-year federal prison terms for failing to report loans of more than $10,000 by making the payments in cashier's checks under that amount.

David Patrick Merchant, 45, a former Amarillo building contractor now living in the Denver area, has yet to be sentenced. Merchant has pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting Ringo and faces a $500,000 fine, five years in jail or both.

Ringo admitted approving $270,000 worth of loans using the lead-centered, gold-plated South African coins as collateral while he was president of Tascosa National Bank.

Museum Show Features Art From Netherlands

A travelling art exhibition featuring 16th and 17th century Dutch, Flemish and German artists will be featured in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College from April 5-30.

The collection is on loan from the Sarah Campbell Blaffer Foundation of Houston and represents the culmination of three years of intensive search and selective acquisition from works of private collectors and art galleries throughou Europe and the United States.

The museum will be closed Sunday in preparation for the openimg of the exhibit. Members of the Museum Association will see the exhibit at a special premiere showing from 6:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. Thursday. A buffet dinner will be held in conjunction with the special showing. Persons who would like to join the Museum Association may pay membership dues on that evening, or send them in advance to the museum at Box 696, Snyder 79549.

The Blaffer Golden Age of Painting collection exists on the premise that the art of the Netherlands in the 16th and 17th centuries exhibits such richness and variety that, by bringing together a carefully chosen group of paintings, the viewer's experience can be expanded on an aesthetic level and also by increasing his historical awareness. Supplementary materials traveling with the exhibition include a catalogue written by British art historian Christopher Wright.

Since 1976, the Blaffer Foundation has underwritten exhibitions of its collections in smaller museums and university art galleries in Texas, realizing the desire of Mrs. Sarah Campbell Blaffer to make great works of art available for viewing by Texas residents who cannot easily visit major art galleries and museums. The Scurry County Museum has previously shown the Old Masters and the Abstract Expressionist collections as well as Francisco Goya's renowned series of etchings known as The Disasters of war.

During its current tour, the Golden Age of Painting has been shown, or will be shown, at the University of Houston and at locations in Beaumont, Lubbock, San Angelo, Amarillo, Denton, Abilene, the University of Texas at Austin, Alpine, El Paso and Wichita Falls as well as Snyder. The Blaffer Foundation underwrites all costs to the museum.

Information about special tours of the Scurry County Museum may be obtained by calling the office at 573-6107.

Support Grows For Nuke Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Mark Hatfield, the only U.S. senator who witnessed the devastation of Hiroshima, this is a magic moment that may never recur.

His reasoning goes this way: Since the United States and the Soviet Union are roughly equal in nuclear weapons — and thus need not fear the other side has an advantage — the sensible thing is for them to agree to a freeze in production, testing and deployment.

"It's a very simple resolution," the Oregon Republican said of a measure now moving through Congress aimed at pushing President Reagan into approving freeze talks with the Soviet Union.

But Fred C. Ikle, the undersecretary of defense, is concerned that Hatfield's idea would keep the United States from adding weapons "that would be more survivable," like the B-1 bomber and new Trident nuclear submarines.

Since those weapons are less vulnerable to Soviet attack than some current arms, adding them to the U.S. arsenal now would help prevent war, Ikle said in a recent interview.

"We are not adding weapons systems just for the sake of increasing the numbers on our side," said the former U.S. arms control director.

The views of Hatfield, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and Ikle, the Pentagon strategist, typify a growing international debate that Reagan plans to address it at his news conference tonight.

Indications are he will support a freeze, but only after the United States overcomes what the administration considers to be a Soviet lead.

The idea of a freeze — stopping the nuclear buildup in its tracks — is rapidly gaining momentum in and out of Congress.

Hatfield's resolution, cosponored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., calls on the United States and the Soviet Union to "pursue a complete halt to the nuclear arms race." Twenty-two other senators, including Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, and 161 representatives support the measure.

Under the resolution, the two superpowers not only would agree to "a mutual and verifiable freeze" in warheads, missiles and other delivery systems, but "pursue major, mutual and verifiable reductions."

Other freeze proposals have been aired. The best-known, advanced by Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, would halt — and even trim back — deployment of Soviet missiles based roughly west of the Urals and trained on Western Europe.

The rub, from the U.S. view, is that this also would prevent the installation of 572 U.S. Pershing II and cruise Tomahawk missiles in West Germany, Britain and Italy, scheduled to begin in December 1983.

Brezhnev's offers were swept aside by Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Ways Means Committee Powerful In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — One November morning, Democrats on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee met on Capitol Hill to board a chartered bus for Baltimore. Seats were assigned according to seniority — with one glaring exception.

Exiled in the last row, behind a gaggle of fiscal experts and coatholders, sat Rep. Kent Hance of Texas, the Democrat who broke party ranks last year to co-sponsor President Reagan's tax bill.

As the bus rolled through the Maryland countryside, no one had to ask who was punishing Hance. It was obvious that the orders came straight from Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski — a man who views party loyalty as something just short of a holy sacrament.

Rostenkowski, 54, a product of Mayor Richard J. Daley's Chicago Democratic machine and 24 years in the House, is a throwback, in spirit if not in fact, to the days when a few "old bulls" ran the show on Capitol Hill.

The husky chairman has adjusted his style to this less colorful, more complex era. But when aroused, he still wields the whip of party discipline.

Rostenkowski says he's trying to do his job, "and if I can't do it with the cooperation of people, then they should not expect any largesse from me."

Going into his second year as Ways and Means chairman, Rostenkowski has Republicans on the spot. A loser in last year's tax battle, mainly because Hance and other "boll weevil" conservatives jumped ship to side with Reagan, he now holds a stronger hand.

With the economy sagging, a $98-billion deficit looming and election day just eight months off, conservative Democrats no longer find Reaganomics so tantalizing. And Republicans are doing some soul searching, too.

Any move to bolster the economy by backing off from this year's increase tax cuts, Rostenkowski says, must start in the White House or the Republican-controlled Senate. "The whole idea," says one Republican aide, "is to let us stew in our own juice and eventually boil to death."

When and if such a plan is unveiled, chances are that Democrats will pounce with a rival version and Rostenkowski will lead the way, a task to which he seems well-fitted by experience, political skill and force of personality.

Questions remain. Can a man whose words sometimes come out in a Daley-like jumble and Damon Runyon syntax be the kind of high-profit spokesman Democrats might need to sway public opinion?

Will his reputation for toughness trip him up? Down deep, some of his peers say, he isn't really that way. Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., low Democrat on the Ways and Means seniority totem pole, says he came on the committee unsure what to expect. "Actually," he says, "I've found him to be a rather kindhearted person."

But as Rostenkowski himself puts it: "I haven't got just friends around here."

"There's a fear factor," muses a lawmaker who has known Rostenkowski for years.

At 6-foot-2 and 225 pounds, with narrow, alert eyes, high, slanting cheekbones and a powerful jaw, Rostenkowski looks rugged. Once a letterman in four high school sports, he now confines himself to golf, carrying his clubs along on a political circuit that leads to such select spots as San Juan, Palm Springs and Las Vegas.

Once a member of the "Tuesday-Thursday Club" of congressmen who spend four-day weekends in their hometowns, and better known for political flair than doing homework, Rostenkowki has been staying in Washington more and cracking the books since becoming chairman.

Friends says his idea of a good time in Washington after sundown is still a secluded party in the Jockey Club of the Fairfax Hotel, surrounded by ranking Democrats, old-time Ways and Means members and selected lobbyists — mainly those who, like himself, have been political insiders.

Daniel David Rostenkowski was born Jan. 2, 1928, the son of Chicago Alderman Joseph Rostenkowski and the grandson of a Polish immigrant who became a state senator. More to the point, both were members of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee, "ward bosses" in the ancient parlance of politics. So is the congressman; the House Ways and Means chairman is a Chicago ward boss.

Fresh from college, Rostenkowski was offered a tryout with the American League's old Philadelphia Athletics. But with his family running the ward, he quickly abandoned baseball for politics.

In 1958, he came to Capitol Hill and took a seat on the Commerce Committee. He became known as Daley's man in Washington and developed a prowess for dishing up choice cuts from the pork barrel, notably money for Chicago's Crosstown Expresway, a project later cancelled by local pols who are now using the money for mass transit and road repair.

Rostenkowski moved to Ways and Means in 1964 at a time when its members held the power of making committee assignments for other House Democrats. "My argument, was, if this is the political structure of the Congress and it's part of the leadership, I'd want to get there," he says.

Fortified with Ways and Means power, Rostenkowski became Democratic Caucus chairman. He lost the post in 1970 in political infighting with origins in the uproar over Vietnam at the 1968 party convention.

As the mood of the streets spread to the hall, President Lyndon B. Johnson, watching on TV, phoned Rostenkowski on the stand and commanded him to subdue the delegates by taking the gavel from Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla. This he did. Two years later, Albert became House Speaker.

On election night 1980, Majority Whip John Brademas and Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman went down to defeat. Rostenkowski was in line for either job — not both — and after considerable agonizing chose the committee.

With his record as a not-overly-liberal pragmatist, to say nothing of his clout, the new administration was soon taking extraordinary steps to court Rostenkowski as a potential ally, or at least, someone who might help engineer a deal that would put Reagan's three-year tax cut proposal through the Democrat-controlled House.

The night after Reagan was shot, Vice President Bush had been sent to speak at a Rostenkowski fund-raiser in Chicago. He made the speech by phone, instead. When New Right conservatives threatened to unleash an anti-Rostenkowski telephone and mail campaign, senior Rpeublicans quickly squelched the plan.

Administration officials bartered for weeks with Rostenkowski. But compromise wasn't in the cards, and Rostenkowski set about to fashion a rival bill that would appease the liberals while keeping conservatives from bolting to Reagan's side.

This he did in three ways. He brought liberals, who had held out for a one-year tax cut, around to a bill that matched Reagan's three-year plan, except that the third year's cut would be "triggered" only if the economy performed up to White House predictions.

His bill also was transformed into a "Christmas tree," to match the Republican version, with ample tax breaks for oil men, commodity traders and selected corporations. Rostenkowski said he had pangs about this but told the Washington Post that his choice was between "losing courageously or winning. I want to win."

Finally, Rostenkowski created a mood within the committee. "It was almost like a family with him," says one Ways and Means Democrat. "He demands total loyalty and he will give total loyalty ... He got me to decrease the windfall profits tax. I wouldn't do that under usual circumstances ... It got to be almost like a cheering section in there."

Then there was the thought of what might happen to defectors. When Rostenkowski suspected Hance of leaking Democratic caucus proceedings to the White House, he kicked the Texas lawmaker out of the caucus.

And he is still on Hance's case.

At a recent Washington Press Club dinner, Rostenkowski told the Texas congressman there were no hard feelings and handed him a gift. Hance unwrapped the package. It was cement boots.

Rostenkowski showed a gentler side the day Rep. Michael C. Myers, D-Pa., convicted in the Abscam affair, pleaded with his fellow lawmakers not to expel him from Congress. Myers sat alone while speaker after speaker called for his expulsion. Rostenkowski walked into the chamber, sat down next to Myers and threw his arm around him.

"I felt sorry for him," he says. "He didn't have a friend in the place.

Special interests have been generous to Rostenkowski's campaign fund. His latest report to the Federal Election Commission lists 45 business and labor contributors of $1,000 or more — hospitals, defense contractors, insurance men, oil men, railroads, airlines, Realtors, bankers and many more.

Like most congressmen, Rostenkowski scoffs at the idea that he would be swayed by campaign contributors. With or without the fund, which at year's end totaled $391,611, his district is one of the safest in America.

The collection of wishful thinkers and sacrificial lambs who emerge to challenge Rostenkowski for his seat have no realistic chance and most know it. As Walter Urbaszewski, an 85-year-old retired undertaker, cackled after winning the Republican nomination in 1976: "If elected, I'll demand a recount."

PINEWOOD DERBY ENTRANTS—These Cub Scouts of Pack 36 in Snyder are busy making final preparations for the Pinewood Derby finals to be held at the annual Lone Buffalo District Scout Exposition in the Snyder National Guard Armory Saturday afternoon, April 3. The exposition will open to the public at 1 p.m. Saturday with the derby finals scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Weigh-ins for derby entrants with soccer conflicts will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday. Pictured above are Rick Freeman, scout master of Pack 177, and David Shifflett, scout master for Troop 107. Freeman, Shifflett and Charles Upton of Colorado City are in charge of the Pinewood Derby for this year's exposition. Twenty-One Students To Compete In Midland

Twenty one students from Snyder High School will travel to Midland Friday and Saturday, April 2-3 for the University Interscholastic League District 2-AAAA Literary Contests.

Entrants from Snyder will be competing with students from Sweetwater, Lamesa, Odessa Ector, San Angelo Lakeview, Pecos, Monahans, Andrews and Fort Stockton for honors in informative speaking, persuasive speaking, poetry interpretation, prose interpretation, journalism and ready writing.

Informative speaking entries from Snyder include Andy Sealy, Keith Martin and David Etheredge.

Entrants in the persuasive speaking catagory will be Clint Potts, Art Hartley and Jack Garcia.

Jennifer Cole, Dana Parham and Jack O'Bannion will present poetry readings in the poetry interpretation contest. Chelle Kruger is listed as an alternate entry for this contest.

Prose interpreters from Snyder will include Robert Loveless, Kathy Norris and Kim Lunsford with Shane Sullivan listed as an alternate entry.

Elaine Whitfill, Robyn Harlin and Aimee Williams will represent SHS in the ready writing contest. Robert Loveless is also listed as an alternate ready writer.

Four students will represent Snyder High as either entrants or alternates in the feature writing, editorial writing, newswriting and headline writing contests. The four journalists are Mindy Aldridge, Chip May, Terry Linsley and Tommy Gressett.

Winners in this weekend's district contests will advance to regional competition later in April.

Stonemason Is Rock Expert

CONOVER, N.C. (AP) — Richard Sipe is a stonemason who says he can do anything that can be done with a rock.

As proof of his boast, he is putting their history of North Carolina on a 7,000-pound hunk of nephrite jade.

"The main reason I'm doing it is not to bring out my ability as a sculptor — even though I do have a good eye--but to bring out the beauty of the stone. And all I want is for it to be good enough for the critics to criticize."

Sipe is carving scenes from 200 years of state history into a mottled green boulder of nephrite jade he dug out of a North Carolina mountain 1972.

The 54-year-old Sipe has been a stonemason 32 years. He's also an avid rock hound.

"I like rock. I work in it for a living but I like it on top of that," he said.

It took Sipe four years to find the stone he is sculpting, four more to decide to sculpt it and five years to learn how.

"I was two years in working out the polishing process," he said, adding that it is at least another two years from completion.

Sipe has invested several thousand hours of time already in his rock. He points out the shapes of sheep and lions in its veined surface.

"The rock dictates to me," he said. "I kind of go as the spirit moves me."

This is the first art object Sipe has attempted with rock, but he says he has always had the creative bug.

Sipe's historical boulder will show scenes of Catawba Indians, pioneers and the Civil War in relief carvings. A "tree of life" with a cloud, a dove and a child beside it will be carved on the rock to symbolize Sipe's and the state's Christian faith. He calls his work "Two Hundred Years on the Road."

Besides sculpting the jade boulder, Sipe also digs sapphires, carves wood and experiments with melting and molding jade in his small blast furnace.

"I get more ideas than I'll ever use, they just flow," he said.

Two Thefts Reported Here

Snyder police officers are investigating two thefts reported Tuesday afternoon.

Dean Erickson called police around 2:45 Tuesday afternoon to report the theft of money from his car. According to reports, $250 belonging to Erickson and $15 belonging to Jeffery Rittenhouse was taken from Erickson's 1973 Ford while it was parked at Denson's Gulf service on the East Highway.

Later, around 4:30 p.m., Bill Atwood called police to report the theft of a thirty foot oval swimming pool and several other items from the back yard of a house at 1311 College Avenue. Value of the items taken from the yard has not been determined. This theft is reported to have occurred sometime between March 26-30.

Elections Postponed

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos said Sunday that new elections to Moslem legislative assemblies in the troubled southern Philippines will be postponed from April to May 27.

Marcos said in a speech to cadets of the Philippine Military academy that the delay was at the request of regional leaders.

The auventurer known as Captain Blood attempted to steal England's Crown Jewels from the Tower of London in 1671.

Point Race Is Scheduled

A West Texas Barrel Racing Association jackpot and point race will be held April 3-4 at the Sundowner Arena in Snyder.

Races will begin each day at 1:30 p. m. There will be competition in open, junior and all novice classes.

Further information may be obtained by calling 573-3058.

Over Monohans...

Tigers Roll On, Win 10-3

Coach Albert Lewis' Tigers got five runs over the first two innings, then exploded for five more in the fourth to blast Monahans 10-3 in District 2-AAAA baseball action here yesterday.

The Tigers, now 2-0 in loop competition and 11-5 for the season, will travel to Lubbock Coronado Friday for a non-district game at 4 p.m. Snyder then plays Lubbock High here in doubleheader action Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m.

District play resumes April 8 as the Tigers travel to Andrews, in what amounts to a couple of schedule changes. Due to senior trips, next Tuesday's game with Odessa Ector has been moved to April 12. Also, the April 8 game with Andrews was originally slated to be held here, but coaches have switched sites, meaning Snyder will entertain the Mustangs on May 7. Both of those games with Andrews will now be at 4 p.m.

In other 2-4A games played yesterday, Lamesa shocked Andrews 8-5 and Ector topped Fort Stockton 9-5. Pecos was idle. Lamesa and Snyder lead the loop perfect 2-0 marks.

Coach Lewis wasn't particularly impressed with Snyder's showing here yesterday, primarily due to several errors made by the local crew. Snyder did find some good hitting, however, that made the difference in the game.

Monahans scored first as Fideo Oyerbides walked, advanced on a single by Tino Sanchez and a walk from Jesse McGuire, and scored on a Bobby Jarret single. Though the Loboes had the bags stacked with one out, Snyder starting pitcher Gerald Don Hicks struck out Floyd Hernandez and got Tom Sanchez to ground out, ending the inning.

Snyder made up the difference and more in the bottom of the first inning. Brent Roemisch led off with a double and Britt Vincent singled him home. Vincent was later waved home on an overthrow to third base. Perry Echols and Casey Peterson also provided singles in the inning.

The Tigers made it a 5-1 ballgame in the bottom of the second. Curtis Gafford led off with a walk and two outs later Vincent belted a two-run homer over the right field fence.

Though Monahans retaliated with a run in the third and another in the top of the fourth, 5-3, Snyder closed the doors in the bottom of that stanza. Vincent knocked into a fielder's choice which provided Monahans with two outs in the inning, but next-up Echols rocked a rightfield home run to make the score 7-3. Jesse Hernandez then singled, Barry Davis reached on an error and Casey Peterson walked to load the bases. Designated hitter David Rios brought in two runs with a single between third and shortstop, and Peterson's shot to the third baseman brought about another error which scored the final run.

Hicks, now 5-1, took the win with a four-inning performance. Tommy Gressett came on for the final three. The pair gave up nine hits and struck out 10 batters. Gressett had seven strikeouts.

Jesse McGuire took the loss. He was relieved by Monte McGuire after three and two-thirds innings.

Leading hitters in the game were Monahans' Tino Sanchez, who went four-for-four, and Snyder's Echols, two-for-two with a home run and three RBI, and Vincent, two-for-five with a home run and three RBI.

Cats Conquer Midland High

Snyder's junior varsity baseball squad won its fourth straight game yesterday as the Cats defeated Midland High 8-4 over eight innings.

Snyder trailed through the first six innings, but a two-out triple by Chad Peterson tied the game in the seventh and forced the extra inning.

Peterson, now batting .615 for the Cats, went two-for-two on the day with four steals and one RBI. Other leading hitters included Jimmy Cain, two-for-four with a double and one run; Willie Greathouse, two-for-four with a double and an RBI; Norman Malone, two-for-three with an RBI and a steal; and Jay Mayo, one-for-four with a triple and an RBI.

Paul Tate was the winning pitcher. He went the distance and gave up seven hits, none over the final three innings. Snyder collected nine hits.

The victory puts the Cats at 5-4 heading into Saturday's first-round game of the Abilene JV Baseball Tournament. Snyder is scheduled to play Abilene High at 11 a.m. at Abilene High School.

Malone Feels Fortunate To Get Past Mavericks

HOUSTON (AP) - Although Moses Malone popped the net for 38 points and hauled down 20 rebounds, the Houston big man still considers the Rockets fortunate to have defeated Dallas 99-95.

Dallas rookie Mark Aguirre hit a basket with 45 seconds left Tuesday night to tie the National Basketball Association game at 95-95.

The Rocket's Allen Leavell then missed a shot, but Malone scooped the ball off the floor and hit a 12-foot jumper with 20 seconds left to give Houston the lead to stay.

"When Leavell took his shot, the ball seemed to fall right in front of me. I grabbed it and fortunately, it went in," said Malone.

"It was just an unlucky play for us," said Jim Spanarkel, who paced the Mavericks with 21 points. "Wayne Cooper had good position, but Moses was just able to get the ball."

Elvin Hayes finished the night with 27 points for Houston, pulled down 14 rebounds and added two insurance free throws with a second remaining.

"Elvin is very hard to defend against. You have to double on him and when you do this, it hurts your team concept," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta.

The win moved Houston, 41-32, to within 3½ games of Midwest Division leader San Antonio. Dallas saw its record fall to 24-48.

"I think this was a big game for us as far as the playoffs. I definitely feel we will make the playoffs," said Malone.

Twins Rap Rangers

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Minnesota reserve first baseman Jesus Vega slugged three solo home runs and an RBI single to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 6-2 exhibition baseball victory over the Texas Rangers Tuesday afternoon.

The win raised the Twins' spring record to 8-13. Texas is 12-8-1.

Vega's first two homers came at the expense of Texas starter and loser Rick Honeycutt, who was shelled for 10 hits in six innings.

Roger Erickson got the win for Minnesota.

Vega homered in the second, singled in a run in a two-run third and homered again in the fifth. His third home run over the left field fence came in the eighth off Ranger reliever John Henry Johnson, who also gave up a solo homer to Ron Washington in his one inning of work.

Texas rookie outfielder George Wright, who saw his hitting streak snapped at 17 games, knocked in the first Texas run in the sixth with a groundout. Rookie catcher Bobby Johnson singled in the other Texas run.

- In the final round of the 1979 Philadelphia Golf Classic, Sam Trahan made only 18 putts, a record.

Seales, Camacho Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — unbeaten junior lightweight Ray Seales, a veteran middleweight who has traveled the country in a 10-year pro career, fights tonight at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum on a card that also features Hector Camacho.

The 30-year old Seales, the North American Boxing Federation champion, will meet John LoCicero of New York in a non-title fight scheduled for 10 rounds.

Comacho, of New York, also an NABF champion, will try for his 14th win and seventh knockout in a 10-round, non-title bout against Raphael Lopez.

Spurs Fall Short To Golden State

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Golden State's World Free said he was "stunned momentarily" when he was smacked on the head during the fourth quarter of a game against the San Antonio Spurs.

"We pulled together after that and decided to go out and win," Free said, in an understatement.

Free scored 10 of his 32 points in the last quarter to rally the Warriors to a 113-107 win over the Spurs Tuesday night in a National Basketball Association game.

Purvis Short scored eight of his 15 points and Bernard King got seven of his 24 in the final period as the invading Warriors, 40-32, surged from a 99-88 deficit with 7:42 to play.

"We needed to win this game for our playoff chances," King said. "At the half, we were only eight down and we decided that we had a good chance to win."

The Spurs, who fell to 44-28, had led 63-55 at the half and 87-80 going into the final period.

"With the start of the fourth quarter, we completely changed our offensive scheme," said Spurs Coach Stan Albeck. "Not on purpose, but we just turned conservative."

San Antonio's George Gervin, the NBA's leading scorer, took game honors with 34 points. But his pace slowed after a spectacular 21-point first quarter and he was benched in the final period because of foul trouble.

But Recession Has Hit Here Too...

Sun Belt Immigrants Come To Texas For Start

DALLAS (AP) — In Detroit, Sunday newspapers sell out by 10 a.m. In Akron, there's talk about the good life in Dallas. And in Kokomo, folks discuss jobs in Houston.

Thousands of Sun Belt immigrants come to Texas each week in search of a new start.

But wait a minute. The recession has hit Texas, too.

"We have again talked a lot about the ripple effect of the national economy on us in Texas, and we're feeling that effect," says Gov. Bill Clements. "I don't think there's any question about it."

About 3,200 electronic components company employees have been laid off since the beginning of the year in North Texas. In Houston, where recent arrivals camp out under freeway overpasses while searching for jobs, city officials say the sluggish national economy has caused layoffs and slowed housing starts. Texas-based airlines have ordered massive layoffs. And sluggish oil prices have sent some energy-based industries into a nosedive.

Officials say the torrent of job-seekers from northern states have contributed to unemployment.

"Some of the people come down here and if they have a skill that is in some of the shortage occupations, they will not find it too difficult to find a job," said I.V. Ferguson, Texas Employment Commission district director in Dallas. "But if you are not, or if you are an unskilled person, you will find it pretty tough."

The economic slowdown has bitten the state on its Achilles' heel — oil production.

Stocks of Texas multibank holding companies have dropped an average of 25 percent since the first of the year.

Speaking in San Antonio last week, Robert H. Chitwood, president of the National Petroleum Refiners Association said: "The bottom has literally dropped out of the oil market," forcing the shutdowns of about 50 refineries nationwide. Mostly smaller, older refineries have been affected.

"About 20 percent of the refining capacity in the U.S. ought to be shut in," said Sam. R. Bright Jr. of Rauscher Pierce. He said 40 percent of the United States refining capacity is on the Gulf Coast.

Spokesmen for Geosource Inc., a major supplier of instruments and equipment used in energy seismic surveys, attributed its layoff off 185 employees — or 1.8 percent of its workforce — to decreased demand.

Officials of United States Steel Corp. said steelmaking operations in Baytown, east of Houston, were idled last week. The curtailment affected 400 workers who could elect to take the week as scheduled vacation, company spokesmen said.

Some other U.S. Steel workers in Texas were shifted to four-day workweeks because of the current business slump, officials said.

Houston was among three cities where Texas Instruments Inc. laid off 1,700 workers, citing a sluggish market for digital products and semiconductors. The company's Dallas facility lost 650 employees. And another Dallas electronics company laid off 1,500 employees in March.

"To me, companies are waiting; they're not hiring as many people," said Ferguson. "We are having some fairly good layoffs in some particular industries, and spotty layoffs in all types."

The slackened pace of the airline industry has affected Texas workers. At Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, Braniff International is laying off about one-third of its 9,000 employees. Dallas-based American Airlines also laid off 2,504 of its 37,256 employees.

General Motors' assembly division also announced it trimmed 700 of about 3,000 employees at its Arlington plant.

Ferguson said area TEC offices list an average of 1,850 job openings daily, compared to 10,000 for the same period two years ago.

Statewide, unemployment is 5.8 percent, compared wiwth 4.7 percent in February 1981, said Jerry Biscoe, TEC spokesman in Austin.

In San Antonio, Texas' third largest city, an economic downturn forced Datapoint Corp. officials to delay construction of a $50 million headquarters complex.

Mayor Henry Cisneros said the move by one of the city's major industries was the "first inkling of San Antonio being touched by the national economy."

Datapoint President Harold O'Kelley said the delay allows the company "to maintain our conservative position in today's uncertain worldwide economic conditions and current adverse business climate."

Another San Antonio company, Fairchild Swearingen Aviation, said it is cutting the work weeks of 700 of its 1,200 employees. An unspecified number of other workers will be laid off because of slow sales, officials said.

Financial analysts said more companies are declaring bankruptcy and bankers are taking a harder line on credit policies.

"The only common denominator in all businesses is that all are struggling right now," said Robert Diaz de Leon, president of Tri-Tech Engineering Inc. of San Antonio. "If I can break even, I think of myself as having succeeded."

He said his small company, which provides engineering services for construction projects, laid off 17 employees or more than half its staff when residential construction faltered last fall.

"The biggest concern of small businesses is that most of us operate on a very thin edge," said Bill Loftus, a small business marketing and advertising specialist in San Antonio.

A "good percentage" of small businesses are facing bankruptcy, said Harry Straup of Alamo National Bank. "We're looking at each credit closer than before, The year 1982 could be a very difficult year if we continue to move in the direction we're going now."

John McGillicuddy of New York, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. complained recently of a "veritable explosion of debt" to oil refiners in San Antonio.

Near the Rio Grande, Texas merchants have been hurt by Mexico's financial ills. Laredo businessmen said devaluation of the peso in February emptied their stores of Mexican nationals who once bought Texas goods.

The devaluation forced foreclosures of resort properties owned by Mexican nationals, and a drop in new car sales in the Rio Grande Valley.

"In the Valley, the devaluation of the peso has hurt business, as much as 15-20 percent, although big cars are still selling," said Gene Fondren, executive director of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association.

Fondren said sales also lagged in West Texas, where farmers are fighting high production costs and low crop prices. Witnesses at a farmers' union hearing in Lubbock said farm implement purchases were also down.

But there are signs that the business slowdown has been slow to affect some areas of the state's economy, and resistance to recessionary pressures has been high.

Money on deposit is at an all-time high of $7 billion, although a recession's effects could still be felt, said state banking commissioner Robert E. Stewart.

Dear Abby

Young Girl's Affair Has Age-Old Ending

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I see letters in your column from young girls who fall in love with older men, I ache for them because I know what they're feeling.

When I was 16, I baby-sat for a divorced man who had two young children. I fell in love with him the first time I saw him. I was thrilled that an older man would even look at me. (He was 30.) I lost my heart (and my virginity) to him. Our affair went on for a year and a half. I never realized that all he saw in me was a bed partner when he felt the need. Meanwhile he was on my mind night and day.

My love for him took me out of circulation at school. Boys my own age seemed like infants. I missed the school proms and all the activities and fun high school girls have. And worst of all, it made a liar and a sneak out of me. My parents never knew, thank God.

What did I get instead? The constant fear of pregnancy. (I was just plain lucky; he was selfish and inconsiderate and refused to use protection.)

He said he was "thinking" of marriage. He was. But not to me. In the middle of our big love affair he married a woman he had said was "just a friend." My heart broke into a million pieces.

That was 15 years ago, Abby, and I've never told anyone about it. If you think this will help someone, use it in your column, but please don't say where it came from.

YOUNG AND FOOLISH ONCE

DEAR YOUNG: Thanks for the testimonial. Girls, if the shoe fits, wear it, and run as though your life depended upon it, because it does.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This is a tough one. A very dear friend of mine (I'll call him Tom) recently had a physical examination and his doctor found a spot on his lung. Tom was a three-pack-a-day man, so the doctor told him he had to quit smoking.

Well, Tom has quit buying cigarettes, but he hasn't quit smoking. Whenever he sees someone with a cigarette he asks for "just one drag." Of course, no one would refuse him. I plead guilty to having given Tom many drags, even though I know I shouldn't.

So how do you say no to a friend when you know he's dying for a cigarette?

GOOD BUDDY

DEAR BUDDY: It won't be easy, but if you really care for Tom, you'll say no. And if that's too difficult for you, never smoke in Tom's presence.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Quite some time ago you printed a "Prayer for Secretaries." I framed it and hung it on the wall over my desk.

I just returned from my vacation to find that the office had been painted. You guessed it. My "prayer" had been taken down, and nobody knows what happened to it.

Please, please print it again.

WITHOUT A PRAYER

DEAR WITHOUT: Your prayers have been answered. Here it is:

PRAYER FOR SECRETARIES

"Dear Lord, help me to do my work well; to have the memory of an elephant, the patience of a saint and the hide of a rhinoceros. And when the boss asks me to stay late to type a three-page letter that absolutely must go out today, and he doesn't get around to signing it until tomorrow, please help me to keep my mouth shut.

"Dear Lord, never let me lose patience, even when the boss has me searching the files for hours for something that is later discovered on his desk!

"Help me to have the knowledge of a genius, although my education is limited to high school and secretarial training.

"Help me to understand and carry out all instructions without any explanation.

"Let me always know exactly where my boss is and when he will be back, even though he never tells me when he leaves.

"And Lord, when the year ends, please give me the foresight not to throw out records that will be asked for in a few days, even though I was told emphatically, 'Destroy these — they are cluttering up the place!'

AMEN"

10 YEARS AGO

E. J. Richardson of Snyder was elected a vice president of Sweetwater Production Credit association.

Elizabeth Taylor Vestal of Snyder was listed on the honor roll at Southern Methodist University.

Hillcrest Lodge here was accepted for membership in the Texas Nursing Home Association.

Janice Asbill joined the staff of Snyder Chamber of Commerce as secretary, succeeding Betty Thompson, who resigned.

The Scurry Concert Associaiton launched its annual membership drive, with Ralph Wesson serving as president of the organization and Virginia Cox as campaign chairman.

15 YEARS AGO

Dr. John English, pastor of First United Methodist Church, was the speaker for Easter sunrise services sponsored by the Scurry County Ministerial Alliance.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Noble returned from a one-month, 25,000-mile trip that took them to the Fiji Islands, New Zealand, Australia, New Caledonia and Tahiti.

Officers elected by Snyder Jaycee-ettes were Mrs. Bill Massey, president; Mrs. Don Etter, vice president; Mrs. Wendell Rehm, secretary; Mrs. John Thames, reporter-historian; and Mrs. Ronald Austin, treasurer.

20 YEARS AGO

New members inducted by the American Business Women's Association were Alma Sellers, Estelle Swan, Rhoda Bills, Odell McDow and Mae Patterson.

Officers elected by Fluvanna PTA were Mrs. Darrell Sims, president; Mrs. Martin Parks, vice president; Mrs. H. C. Landrum, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Bob Jordan, historian; and Mrs. Paul Turner, parliamentarian.

25 YEARS AGO

Buildings damaged by high winds included Bennett Office Supply, Burgess Pharmacy, C.E. Knight Co. and Reddin Drug, plus the fence at Canyon Drive In Theater.

Dorothy Peery of Amarillo presided over a two-day meeting of the Northwest Texas Conference Wesleyan Service Guild held at First Methodist Church.

North Carolina's Tar Heels won their first NCAA basketball title by defeating Kansas U., 54-53, in triple overtime in Kansas City before a crowd of 10,500.

Several charter members of Layne-Kite Post 181, The American Legion, were presented 35-year membership certificates. They included Joe Holland, Roy Strayhorn, Frank Arnett, J. Melvin Newton, Harrie Winston, Harry Lee, Ernest Taylor, Noah Brown, Jim Norred, Arthur Townsend, A. H. Kruse, Ben Wilson, Jess Rogers, Porter King and Roy Hendricks.

Over 200 persons attended the annual meeting of the 18th District Congress of Parents an Teachers here.

30 YEARS AGO

Work began on installation of air conditioning equipment in the Scurry County courthouse.

Leon Huff, manager of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, said that inadequate housing facilities and high rent caused 50 to 75 Air Force families in Big Spring to cancel their plans to move here.

U. D. Walker came here from Littlefield to become manager of Dunlap's Department Store. He succeeded Herman Parton who was inducted into the Air Force.

The World War II Battle of the Coral Sea ended May 8, 1942, in victory for the Allied forces.

Technology Is Good Career

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Information technology will create millions of new jobs in the 1980s, according to a corporate strategic planner.

"Not only are there extreme labor shortages in jobs related to information technology — but the business depends to a large extent on minds, not factories, so information workers will be well paid," says Paul A. Strassmann, vice president, Xerox Corp.'s Information Products Group.

The jobs emanating from high technology are vast, Strassmann explains. They include electrical engineering, programming, systems analysis, training, counseling, marketing, clerical, service and management.

Mongoose Rid Island Of Many Snakes

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Residents of the Adriatic Island of Mljet got tired of battling poisonous snakes which bit people and killed chickens. So they imported mongooses, the snake-killing mammals native of India.

Now, Mljet tourist officials praise the mongoose as the salvation of the island, which attracts more than 30,000 visitors a year to its pristine beaches and pine forests.

Mljet is free of the deadly vipers that still infest nearby islands. The increased mongoose population, offspring of the original half-dozen imports, is thought to be the only one of its kind in Europe.

"We should build a monument to the little Indian mouse," said Vladimir Strazicic, director of the tourism and business organization on the 40-square-mile island.

There are several versions of how the original mongooses came to Mljet.

Natasha Simonov, a biologist here at the Serbian Institute for Protection of Nature, said that, according to one popular tale, local sailors brought several pairs of the animals on a return trip from India some two centuries ago.

She and Strazicic both credit the version saying that a parttime resident Austrian baron, fed up with the snakes, brought five or six of the creatures from India in 1906. The island was then a part of the AustroHungarian empire.

Attempts were made to breed the animals on other islands and parts of the mainland to fight the snakes there, but the mongooses died out, probably because of subtle climatic differences, said Strazicic.

REMEMBER: IN GAMBLING (BINGO)

SOMEBODY ALWAYS GETS HURT

★ The citizens of Snyder are being asked to believe that legalization of bingo gambling is an innocent granting of permission to non-profit organizations to allow them to make money and provide entertainment.

★ Nothing is simple about gambling. Like Pandora's Box of old, once the door is opened, all sorts of evil things come out.

★ Legalizing bingo gambling is merely a first round to open the flood gates for pari-mutual betting on horse and dog racing, lotteries and the whole gambling scene.

★ Numbers of studies have shown that any revenue brought into a community through gambling is more than offset by the cost of policing and crime losses related to gambling.

★ Organized crime makes tremendous use of the gambling industry to support its other illegal activities.

★ Gambling seeks personal gain and pleasure at another person's loss and pain.
