At no trump you cannot make more than the longest number of cards in either hand.

Before bidding, examine your cards to see whether you have (1) sound major suit bid, (2) a no-trumper, or (3) a minor suit bid, and give them preference in this order.

Where one of two bids is possible, doubt may arise in the choice of the bid, and this is where the expert recognizes the best declaration that will encourage bidding on the part of the partner. Players often complain that they do not hold good cards, but very often when they do hold them they do not make the most of them.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Ida M. Tarbell, one of America's outstanding pioneer women in the world outside the home, is the latest public person to declare prohibition a failure. Miss Tarbell insists that neither party can dodge this issue in the national conventions and that candidates must be considered on the score of their relationship to prohibition before anything else, she says, is impossible; but modification isn't.

Five years ago, Miss Tarbell confessed, she was an ardent prohibitionist. "Today," she says, "I am asking myself whether prohibition is any longer serving as a guarantee of temperance, whether it may, in fact, become a menace to temperance."

When the Ida Tarbells speak no one can afford not to listen. Years of logic and tolerance and understanding give her and other leaders the right to speak and think. We should listen and weigh their evidence regardless of our own convictions.

ETERNAL ROMANCE

It seems never too late to misbehave, according to Mrs. Ann Pfaltz-graph, 67, of Columbus, O., who charges in her divorce petition that after only four years of married life her husband, aged 79, is receiving letters from a spry young thing of 66. She even tells of "crosses" meaning kisses at the bottom of the letters.

After all, it would almost seem a wife should give thanks for a husband so blessed with the talent of keeping the well springs of romance eternally fresh, even if some of the romance splashes elsewhere, too.

3-OPENING BIDS

There should be no "bugaboo" about bidding four-card suits if judiciously handled. Doing so furnishes most valuable information, and failure to bid it may result in throwing away a game-going hand.

For those who never bid a four-card suit, and ultra-conservative players, as a "flyer" I would suggest that when bidding as good as A K X X or A Q 10 X or K Q 10 X in a major suit with an outside A they need have no hesitation about bidding that suit initially.

Of greater necessity, however, is to bid any sound four-card minor suit, as it may encourage a betterment bid, or develop such additional information as will lead to a game-going declaration.

It is not sufficient that the opening bid shall guarantee the minimum requirements of an original bid. It also should be so made that partners will interpret it correctly and with a view to encouraging partner to improve the bid if possible. The opening bid should furnish the maximum amount of information. If partner can mirror your hand, assistance can more readily be given to you.

Rigidity in the declarer or in the opening bid has no place at the bridge-table.

The battle cry of every opening bid should be, "We want game!" Failure to make game is almost a waste of time.

To make game, nine tricks are required at no trump, ten tricks in a major suit and eleven tricks in a minor suit. The difficulty of making game in a minor suit is obvious, as it allows for only two losing tricks.

There are many who prefer playing the game at no trump to doing so in a major suit. They forget, however, that it is worth at least one more trick to play the game in a suit as there is the possibility of ruffing one of the losers, which cannot be accomplished at no

Executors Estate Quit

Son of Late Secures Stop Surrender Stock

NEW YORK—A court order has been issued by Judge Charles F. Baile, of the Supreme Court, to the executors of the estate of the late John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to stop the sale of the stock of the Rockefeller Foundation.

The executors, including the late John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had filed a petition for summary judgment, asking the court to order the executors to sell the stock of the Rockefeller Foundation, which was valued at $400,000.

The executors claimed that the stock was not part of the estate of the late John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and that it should be sold for the benefit of the Rockefeller Foundation.

The court, however, ruled in favor of the executors, and ordered them to stop the sale of the stock. The court stated that the stock was part of the estate of the late John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and that it should be sold for the benefit of the Rockefeller Foundation.

The executors are now appealing the court's decision.

Executors of Big Estate Ordered To Quit Wine Cellar

Son of Late Pearce Bailey Secures Injunction To Stop Surreptitious Leak In "Stock."

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, June 20.—A temporary injunction today closed the wine cellar of the late Dr. Pearce Bailey, noted neurologist, to the executors of his estate. The injunction was granted by Surrogate O'Brien on application of Pearce Bailey, son of the neurologist, who complains that only about ninety-four of the original store of 640 bottles of liquor remain. The executors are Charles N. Black, former trustee of Princeton University, and Robert Thorne, a Wall Street lawyer. Young Bailey, who is a law student at Columbia University brought an action last March seeking the removal of Black, who is his uncle, and Thorne as executors of his father's $1,000,000 estate. At that time he charged that they had "feloniously consumed" 450 bottles of his father's liquor and also that they had misappropriated more than $20,000 from the estate. This action is now before a referee. At the time the original complaint was filed, Black at San Francisco said he had consumed the liquor to keep his nephew "from going crazy over it." The present complaint sets forth that Thorne when visited by young Bailey's attorney made out a check payable to the estate for $1,819 and said that made himself and Black full owners of all the liquor in the wine cellar. Young Bailey in an affidavit attached to his latest complaint charges that the liquor is still disappearing from the wine cellar. A hearing on a permanent injunction will be held Friday Dr. Bailey died in 1922. The wine cellar is located in the Bailey home in Katonah, N. Y.

Trotsky, Claimed Exile, To Prison

Man Claiming Kinship to Great Russian Convicted of Automobile Theft

AUSTIN, June 20.—Nicholas Remniko Trotsky, 32, who claims much light and color—including his self-asserted rescue of Olga, eldest daughter of the late Russian Czar—have come to him, will go to Leavenworth, penitentiary this week, sentenced to a negro and an ex-convict, and gather more spawds. Federal court here found Trotsky, claiming kinship with Leon Trotsky of Soviet Russia, guilty of violating the national automobile theft act and sentenced him to a year and a day. The government claims he transported a stolen machine indirectly from Ponca City, Oklahoma to Austin. The debonair Russian, who possesses the uniform of a Coast-guard officer, appeared here last winter. City authorities allowed him to practice medicine at the municipal hospital, physicians of which declared him a skilled surgeon. Later, in jail, he saved the life of a fellow prisoner who sought to commit suicide by cutting his throat. Several women became interested in him and arranged his cell as comfortably as possible. Governor Moody has heard Trotsky's story—a romantic tale of how he saved the princess from a revolutionary mob, traveling with her night after night, keeping her in hiding during the daytime, until they reached the Russian border. He claims to have lost track of his royal companion in New York. When Trotsky stood to be sentenced, he only smiled and twisted his small marcelled mustache as a few women spectators wept. He vowed to write memoirs when he reaches the federal prison.

Theft of Bathing Suits Results In Arrest of Youths

Six Youngsters Held By Officers After 48 Suits Are Missing From Tumble N Pool.

Thrift of forty-eight bathing suits from Tumble-N swimming pool resulted yesterday in the arrest of six youngsters, whose ages varied between 12 and 16 years, thus marking a renewal of the juvenile crime wave which officers were forced to combat some weeks ago. To combat such practice, all of the suits there are being labeled "City of Lubbock." As to what disposition will be made of the cases, officers would not make any comment this morning. The boys were being held at the police station while information was being gathered on other thefts. City officials said that efforts would be made in the future to prevent any such similar practices. The entire collection of suits belonging to the pool bath house are to be labeled "The City of Lubbock" across the breast, it was said, as one of the precautions to prevent further thefts. The suits stolen are said to be valued at approximately $150. Two copies of every act of the British Parliament are printed on vellum. One, indorsed with the royal assent, is kept among the rolls; the other goes to the record office.

DAILY MARKETS

WALL STREET STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 20.—The stock market, having developed a temporary over-sold position, rallied briskly today despite a marked stiffening in money rates. Prices of standard industrials and rails ran up 1 to 6 points at the opening, with even larger gains in some of the specialties, sold off sharply in a mid-day reaction, and then moved forward to new highs for the day. Several of the specialties closed 5 to 20 points net higher. The stiffening in money rates embraced practically all classes of credit accommodations. Call money renewed at 6, as against 5 1/2 yesterday, and then advanced to 6 1/2 as banks called about $10,000,000 in loans. Time money was quoted on a flat 5 3/4 per cent basis, instead of 5 2/8 to 5 3/4, and bankers' acceptance rates advanced 1/8 of 1 percent. A firmer under-tone also was apparent in the commercial paper market.

Ravenous Trout Attack Fisherman

Lone Nimrod on Remote Colorado Stream Has Thrilling Experience

A wild tale of voracious man-eating trout is brought out of the wilderness by Russ Laro, an Italian prospector who recently returned from the upper reaches of the Gumbren River. With grubs exhausted, Laro resorted to red and blue to secure a few trout for food. Wading a deep swift stream he stumbled and fell. Instantly, swarms of trout were upon him, hundreds of huge trout. They swarmed over me, bit my fingers, snapped the laces from my boots and almost devoured me alive before I could escape. Some were four feet long. Whether there is any truth in Laro's story or not, it is known to be a fact that Colorado's inaccessible streams were never more alive with trout and they are hungry enough to snap at almost any sort of fly just now. Glowing reports of fine fishing, combined with low summer fares on the Fort Worth and Denver, are attracting fishing fans from all over the Southwest. (Adv.)

Today

NASH presents a New and Finer Motor Car

New Twin Ignition Motor New Salon Bodies

"The three new Nash Series, which are being introduced everywhere today, achieve the ambition of my manufacturing career."

"They represent an entirely new type of motor car, priced moderately, but offering you all the beauty and quality and performance heretofore exclusive to very expensive automobiles."

"To create such a car we had to develop an entirely new type of design and invest over $2,500,000 in dies and machinery alone."

"Both the Salon bodies and the high compression motors which power these new models exemplify the most radically modern advancement in body craftsmanship and engineering."

"Naturally space precludes the full listing of all features but I do want to draw your attention to a number of the outstanding attractions such as—

- "Twin ignition, high compression, Bohalite aluminum alloy pistons with liver-struts, 7-bearing crankshaft with hollowed crankpins, Bijur centralized chassis lubrication, Houdaille and Lovjoy shock absorbers, Bilflex-Nash bumpers and bumperettes, chrome plating over nickel for all exterior metal ware, double-drop frame, one-piece Salon fenders and longer wheelbase lengths.
- "This new-type engineering of the '400' motors makes them by far the best performing cars I have ever built.
- "I don't think anyone will ever want to use all the speed and power they deliver.
- "Equipment is absolutely complete at the factory list price and you need buy no extras except a spare tire.
- "If my judgment is worth anything you will find it well worth while today to examine this new automobile development with the greatest care."

Hubbers Unable to Throw Off Jinx Held By Abilene Cardinals Boost Lead By Trouncing Chicago Cubs In Series Opener, 6 to 2

Last Game of First Half Won By Aces, 16 to 14, As Manager Tullos Looks On, Chafing Due Suspension

May Clouts The Nineteenth Home Run and Orr Gets Seventeenth; Andy Dillon Makes Good Start.

Continuing to hold a jinx over the Abilene Aces, Hubbers today in the final session to win by a count of 16 to 14 here yesterday afternoon in the final game of the first half schedule.

It was the twelfth consecutive win for the Aces, nine of which have been over the homebats.

Free hitting on the part of both clubs was enjoyed throughout the game, with first one and then the other team in the lead.

Hubbers were plentiful with Orr, sticky right fielder, contributing his seventeenth for the season. May, Hubber outfielder, getting his nineteenth; and Ray Robinson and Lin Storti, Hubber batsmen, both rapping out one each.

Dillon Starts Well

"Lefty" Dillon, new grounder in the Hubber camp, started the game for the locals and worked an effective game until the sixth session, allowing but few scattered bingles along the way, but he became a bit wild in the sixth frame walking a pair, hitting one, and dished out four hits putting over a total of six runs for the guests.

Again in the eighth and ninth he was handled roughly allowing four hits and three tallies in the eighth and filled the bases on his wild pitching in the last frame, he was rebuffed by Red Hill in the ninth with the hassocks loaded, and a hit whammed out by Galera, pitcher-outfielder for the Aces, decided the count as the winning runs romped in.

Aces Use Many Hurriers

As for pitchers the Aces, under the direction of Ed Kallina, busy initial basemen, substiting for Les Tullos who is a victim of a suspension at the direction of the league president, J. McAllister Stevenson, used a raft of the chuckers starting with Parker, who weathered the rappings of the Hubbers for seven innings, he was forced to retire in favor of Roberts, and Roberts wild in his delivery gave up in favor of the big team captain, Kallina, who let the Hubbers down without further scoring threats.

Today is rest day in the Hubber camp as it is a break between the first and last half of the West Texas league schedule. Bernie Brown, Hubber pilot, has issued an order for his recruits to report to general overhauling, and will start the Merrill lot this afternoon for a new Friday afternoon with the first of a three game bill with Jimmy Maloney's Colts of Midland.

RAIN DAMAGE

Telephone Company Is Being Sued

Jury in the suit of J. A. Hodges against the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, was selected yesterday afternoon in county court before Judge Charles Nordyke. The case is expected to be finished sometime today. Damages of $800 are asked.

The suit grew out of the erection of telephone wires on the roof of the building now occupied by the postoffice. It is claimed that the telephone company placed a stick in the drain pipe on the roof of the building to which wires were fastened. Water collected on the roof following a big rain and seeped through since there was no outlet causing a damage of about $800. The contractor for the building was formerly named in the suit but was extricated as a defendant.

Texan Tells About Group That Lives Off Fake Injuries

"Contortionists" Have Clever Schemes for Fraudulent Accidents To Be Used On Claim Agents.

(By Associated Press) OMAHA, Neb., June 20.—A group which railway claim agents describe as contortionists earns a comfortable livelihood by collecting damages for faked injuries. Delegates to the agents' thirty-ninth annual convention were told here today.

These persons are known to the agents as professional "repeaters" in supposed accidents, which situation leads to the profession of detecting the "repeater". Their activities were related by C. H. Schutte, general manager of the Intelligence Publishing company of Dallas, Texas, a firm that "doesn't print anything but works quietly, smoothly and generally with effect."

"Killing or tripping seems to be a favorite method of injury," explained Mr. Schutte. "There was a man who fell on a train at Houston and claimed a fractured wrist. He pulled this stunt several times before he was caught. A woman who tripped over some obstruction on the platform while a train was passing, was found to have placed a wire about her leg, just above her skirt, out of sight. When she fell this would fall off her leg and would be left on the platform. She had discovered by tapping her ankle she could make it swell. So, in view of the brakeman, she would trip and claim an injured ankle. That, of course, was before the short skirt age."

One of the most ingenious methods, the snake bite, was described by Schutte. A man goes into the washroom in a train, about dusk and turns off the light. Suddenly he would let out a yell. His accomplice would walk in and ask the trouble. Only to be told a snake has bitten the man. The accomplice would light a match, see a snake bite it until dead, and then show it to the conductor. Their scheme was for the first man to put a chemical on his fingers to cause a swelling. The snake was already dead when the accomplice pretended to kill it."

ANXIETY GROWS No Further Word From Roald Amundsen

COPENHAGEN, Den., June 20.—Danish aviation circles were beginning to grow uneasy today regarding the fate of Roald Amundsen, famous explorer, who left for Spitzbergen and has since dropped out of sight. The concern is the more acute because this month is the worst possible for Arctic exploring and no expert would ever think of going out now except in the greatest emergency. Some, however, are still confident, regarding Amundsen's safety as it has been his rule never to let people hear from him before he has accomplished whatever he might have set out to do.

GINNERS COURSE Special Instruction At Abilene School

ABILENE, June 20.—In order that gin operators may take advantage of the Westex cotton school, now in session here, a special ginners short course, lasting two weeks, will begin July 2, according to W. O. Ansel, Jr., president of the school. Approximately 25 students are now taking the regular six-weeks course which opened June 4. Practically every part of Texas is represented in the enrollment.

Oppose Church Norris Enters In Dallas Battle

DALLAS, June 20. (AP)—Prospects of a long legal fight loomed here today when five property owners filed suit for an injunction to restrain the erection of a Fundamentalist Baptist tabernacle on a prominent residential corner. Rumors that such a suit would be filed have been heard since the city commission, following a stormy session last Monday, voted to grant the permit over the protest of a group of property owners. At this hearing Dr. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth was the chief spokesman for the church group. He said at that time that he "would stay in Dallas 12 months if necessary to see that the church got its rights." Plaintiffs allege that the proposed structure does not conform to the city building code and would constitute a fire hazard.

Optimistic Note In Rotary Talks

Posey Says Financial Condition Good; Jones Makes Favorable Report About Crops of Section.

An optimistic keynote was struck by speakers who addressed the luncheon of the Rotary club, yesterday noon at the Hotel Lubbock. Walter Posey, banker, declared that financial conditions in this area are excellent with deposits greater and loans about the same as compared with a similar period last year.

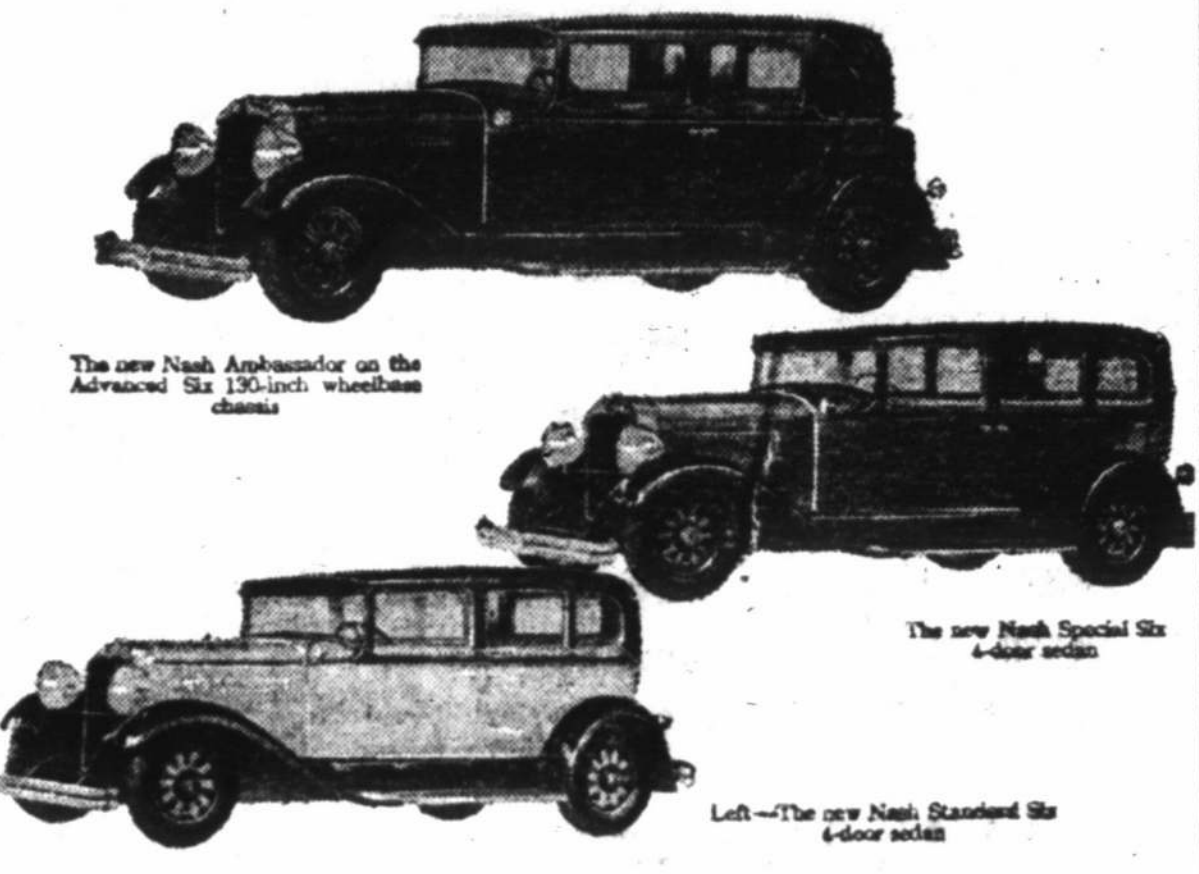

A review of crops in the territory presented by Don L. Jones of the experiment station showed conditions to be much better than a year ago. The crop is about four weeks in advance of a year ago, he stated. George Field responded to an invitation to appear on the program, and told of the highway situation in this county. He gave some very interesting figures on the amount of money received and spent on the highways of Texas. He said there were thirty nine million dollars received annually for the highways, and came from the tax on cars and the sale of gasoline and federal appropriations. Lubbock county is far behind on the building of permanent roads and he was of the opinion that this county should wake up and get busy on the highways, and make permanent roads rather than depend upon the common dirt roads. He figures that much business will be lost to this city should the towns in adjoining counties build paved roads and Lubbock does not.

Dean J. M. Gordon was in charge of the club, in absence of President J. J. Jennings who with R. J. Murray is in attendance at the Mississippi convention of Rotary clubs.

STRIKES IN ATHENS Other Industries Join With Walkout

ATHENS, June 20.—Strikes in various industries continued to trouble Greece today. Employees of the electric railroad between Athens and the port of Piraeus and tramway workers decided to join in the walkout. Buildings in Athens were also ready to strike. Other organizations issued various demands and declared if these were not granted they would quit work tomorrow. Many bankers, employees of the waterworks and tobacco workers in Salonika and Kavala, however, were returning to work. It was denied that the army and navy had been effected by the strike.

HIGHEST ENROLLMENT Total of 1143 In Canyon School Now

CANYON, June 20.—The highest enrollment figure in the history of the West Texas State Teachers college has been reached during the first six weeks of the summer term with a total of 1143. Many more students are expected to enroll for the second term, which opens July 1st. The number of students enrolled in the Department of Agriculture is three times greater than for any previous summer.

$1,500,000 LOSS 2200 Made Homeless By Oklahoma Tornadoes

ALTUS, Okla., June 20. (AP)—Losses from the tornado which swept parts of four counties in this vicinity Saturday night were estimated today at $1,500,000 by officials of the American Red Cross on the basis of reports from Miss Edith Miller, who yesterday assumed charge of the relief work. There were 2,200 homeless, the figures showed, and 445 homes were destroyed or damaged by the storm. Thirty thousand dollars is necessary to provide emergency relief and rehabilitate the families left destitute.

Deputy Charged In Killing Of Negro

Black Attacked Officer, Biting Him On Left Arm, Austin Deputy Says In Defending Charge.

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, June 20.—Deputy constable Emmett White shot and killed Beaton Arthur Hill, negro, here early Wednesday, when, White claimed, the negro suddenly attacked him.

The deputy was bitten on the left arm, he said, when Hill sprang from an automobile and bore him to the ground. A technical murder charge was entered against White and bond of $1,000 was made in justice court.

White said he was in his automobile, making a round of the east side of the city and came across Hill asleep in the car and that a fight followed.

SCRIPTURE: God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were sinners, Christ died for us. — Romans 5:8.

DEMERITS

It seems that the most of the candidates now running for public office, and this is usually true more often by candidates for state or federal positions, that they hardly ever make the race on issues that they propose to advocate or try to put into effect, but on the things that their opponent has not done, when he possibly has not had an opportunity to do so. After hearing each candidate's arguments, the voter is left in the position of choosing which is the lesser evil, which will be the least incompetent in office.

Everything has always been regarded as fair in politics, and candidates have indulged in mud slinging since the beginning of the republic, and their charges are becoming more and more sensational each year as an apathetic public fails to become alarmed at the old charges. The fact of the matter is, the public has long ago learned to take its own view of the conduct of public officers without regard to the charges of the candidates. The public today knows about as much about the administration of offices as the candidate, and the office seeker who makes sensational allegations against his opponent usually is wasting his breath and lowering his standing in the public's estimation. The masses are not as ignorant and susceptible to everything they hear as some candidates seem to think.

But still the charges fly. They are flying here in Texas this year. Those of us who have felt that we have had an average administration during the past two years are now being informed that gross incompetency has characterized the administration of public affairs from the governor down to precinct constables.

When we come to think of all the incompetent officials that have served the public of Texas, it is surprising that the state has progressed as it has. As a matter of fact, the Lone Star state has made extraordinary progress, and we look for continued progress in the future despite the dark outlook and menacing cloud east over the state by candidates of many who are characterized as incompetent and unfit for public office.

Sensational charges will be hurled into the public's apathetic ears, but the people have learned that when a candidate has no strong point to recommend himself to the public, the next best thing he can do is discredit his opponent.

ENGLISH WOMEN

Fate kindly spared Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, most famous of the English "suffragettes," to a ripe age—74 years—for one who had lived so strenuously. Thus it was her privilege to see, just before the end, the realization of her most cherished dream—the enfranchisement of British women on equal terms with men.

The Franchise Bill lately completed puts the ballot in the hands of England's five million "flappers," which assures a feminine majority for the country, of more than two millions. The subterfuge by which the man-made government has been maintained since 1917 is cast aside.

Twenty years ago that prospect would have caused dismay; now John Bull views it with utmost calm. The Great War brought profound changes in men's outlook; today women's rights are recognized almost universally. That was bound to come in the course of natural evolution, and the war only brought it more speedily.

Mrs. Pankhurst will have a place in history as an Old World pioneer in that movement; then as a seeming eccentric who sought to gain her ends through violence; and at last as the patriot who could see that her country was greater than her cause. She began to campaign a half-century ago as an ardent disciple of John Stuart Mill, but gradually shifted from that great thinker's mild theories to a zeal for "direct action."

she went to prison, sought martyrdom through the "hunger strike" and was released by perplexed officials, torn between duty and chivalry.

That record reflected no credit upon her and did not advance the cause. The war gave her the opportunity to redeem the error and she improved it nobly. At once she declared a truce and threw all her force into embattled England's service.

Suffrage was extended to women over 30 years old as a war measure in 1917, and but lately the remaining political discriminations against the sex were removed. Thus, though she never went to Parliament, Mrs. Pankhurst died triumphant. Like most forceful characters she was full of contradictions, but she will be remembered as a crusader and an emancipator.

DEMOCRATS WILL HAVE TO NOMINATE A SERIOUS MAN

For president of the United States, the republican party has nominated not alone a national, but a world figure—made so by a crisis which brought out alike the best and the worst in men. But for the American people, above and beyond any thought of Herbert Clark Hoover's fame throughout this globe is the consideration that he is the highest type of citizen; a patriot in the broadest sense—a servant of the public good.

Even if the constitution contained no oath to bind him and to determine his conduct as Chief Magistrate—and even if the republican platform set forth no clear demand for strict enforcement—it would be unthinkable that a man of Mr. Hoover's stamp, honored with the world's foremost political office, would follow a course other than that of requiring the nation to keep "the law in calmness made." And this would mean all the law, organic and statute, whether it had to do with prohibition of liquor traffic, the government's mighty task of flood control or any other enterprise dedicated to the general welfare.

Column after column of type is required to set forth the services which Mr. Hoover has performed for humankind, and particularly for his own country's economic and social betterment, during the 14 years since the world came to know him as chairman of the commission for relief in Belgium. His is a record which inspires utmost trust and confidence on the part of that vast majority of his fellow countrymen who demand a sturdier, higher criterion of a citizen's fitness to hold their greatest office than the particular partisan political label he happens to bear.

That clumsy little "agrarian" demonstration put on in Kansas City but serves to emphasize the country wide demand, from Vermont to California, for Mr. Hoover's nomination. And no previous republican national convention, coming before the democratic gathering, more squarely and strikingly has put the latter on notice that it must offer a citizen extraordinarily able, honorable, and worthy of office, if it would present any serious claim for votes. Both the pre-convention and the convention course of the Hoover candidacy sharply point the fact that the country does not desire and would welcome the disruptive agitation arising from the attitude and the policies of any candidate who would assail the Eighteenth Amendment.

The first consideration for any truly patriotic American is that in nominating Mr. Hoover, the republican party evinces respect for the people of the United States and their laws, and for world opinion. Now let the democracy do likewise.

FORGET LINDBERGH? — NOT LIKELY

Will Col. Charles A. Lindbergh within a few months or years drift into oblivion as have other American heroes and prominent figures whose names were temporarily on every tongue?

If not he will be one of the few exceptions in history since Marcus Aurelius wrote "all is ephemeral—fame and famous as well." Beginning with this premise, Frederick L. Collins, magazine writer, opens a discussion in the American Magazine for July, of the future of the foremost American idol of recent years.

Under the title, "How Many of These Celebrities Do You Remember?" Mr. Collins presents not an ordinary memory test but a modern application of the Marcus Aurelius theory; a commentary upon quick, flaming and quick dying American enthusiasms.

"Is it possible that Lindy, the unforgettable, will sometime take his place among the heroes we have forgotten?" asks the writer. "Perhaps, but I do not think so. His first achievement, great beyond the dreams of great men, might save him. But, like many historic and epic deeds, it might be forgotten if it were not for two things. One is Lindy's own personality and the other his glorious youth."

FATE'S IRONY

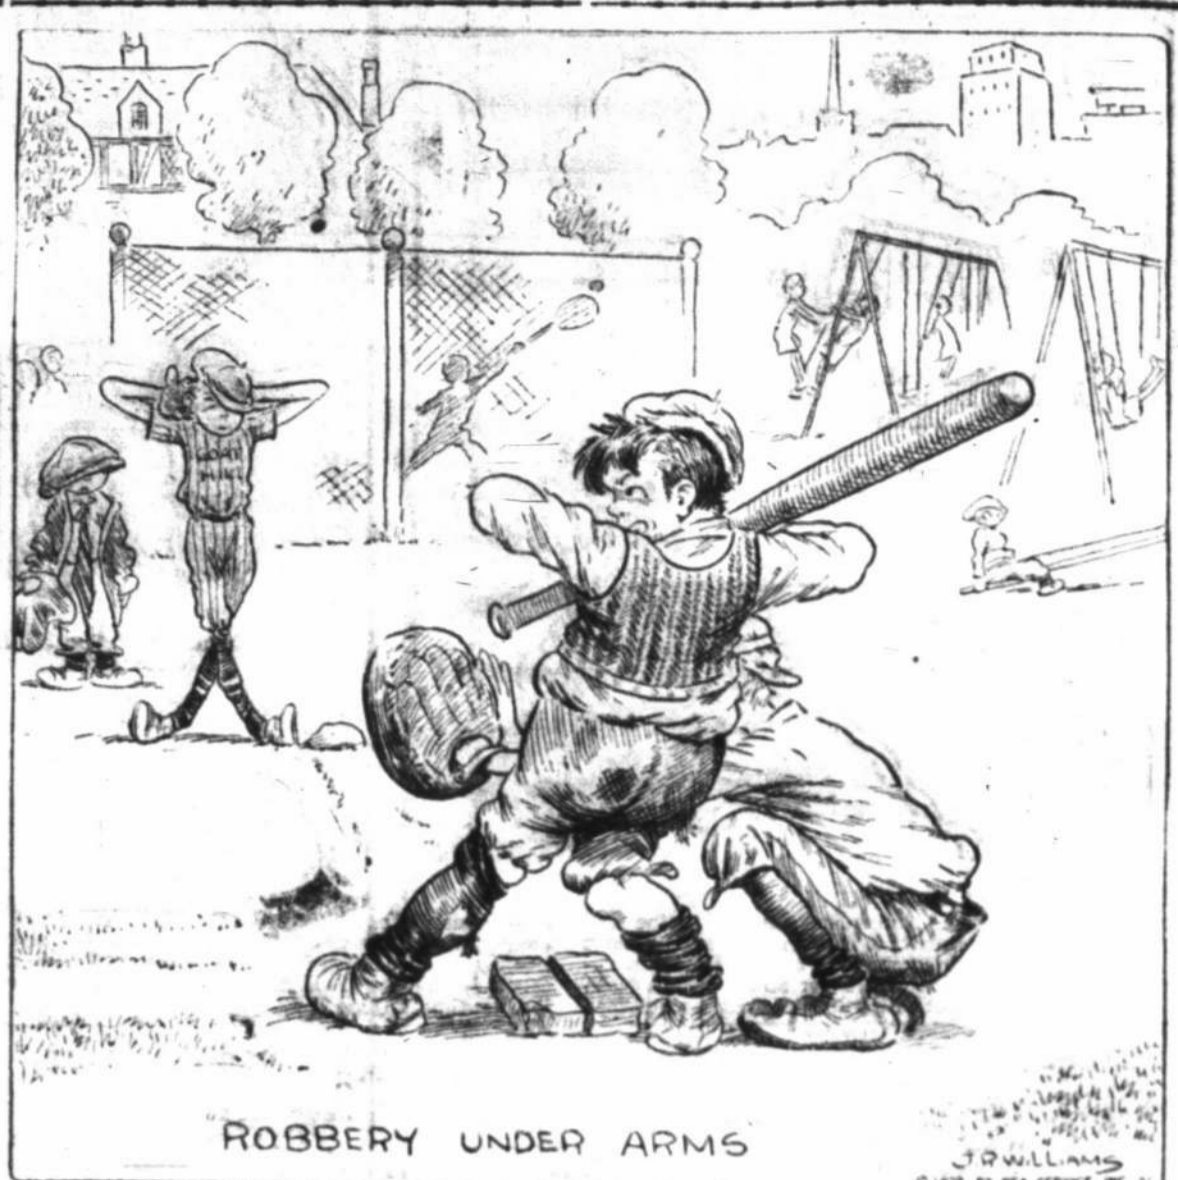

Fate plays peculiar, freakish pranks sometimes.

Rene A. Olson was an airmail pilot. He had flown many thousands of miles, through all kinds of weather, and had done it unhurt. He enjoyed life and good health in a supposedly dangerous calling.

The other night, off duty in Akron, Ohio, he and some friends got into an auto to go to Cleveland, 30 miles away, to attend a theatre. It was a commonplace enough trip; thousands of people make it daily. But here Fate played her trick.

The auto collided with another car at a cross roads. Olson was instantly killed.

OUT OUR WAY—

ROBBERY UNDER ARMS

By Williams

SO THINK WE

We think it quite unfair to the Pune bride and the sweet girl graduates that some doctor should make statements that much of the spread of proberia is due to kisses.

We think that Manager Brownfield will possibly have a pretty good line on his pitchers for the second half of the season's games, as most property were tried out in the game yesterday against the Abilene ace.

We think one of the greatest pests in the world is the fellow that comes up to the place to stop because the red light tells him to, and always gets his car about half way across the line, and causes every pedestrian to go around his car. A driver that will do that is a real pest. He is either careless or inconsiderate and in either, should never be allowed to drive a car.

We think that Walter Posey is mighty right about this high tax stuff. They will drive people away, or keep the maway about as bad as anything that can be thought of. Big corporations are not going to stand to be taxed heavily, and small business can't stand it, so there it is. The city and county government and the school must continue to go ahead, but we can't afford to scare people away.

We think it is surely up to the city now to get the undergrounds of the Santa Fe. The railroad folks are ready to go, and now it is the city's move.

We think it is a pretty good indication that everything is coming along nicely when we hear reports from men who are keeping up with the financial conditions, say that business is at least twenty percent better this year than it was the same time last year in Lubbock. That sounds like this city is in shape to be on the prosperity map.

PRSS COMMENT

THE LEGACY OF LOVE.

A. H. Woodward, Birmingham capitalist, rated one of the wealthiest men in the south, has just received a priceless legacy from his mother.

Woodward has reached the point where he doesn't need any more money. But this legacy wasn't money; it wasn't anything that money could ever buy.

His mother's will was read recently, after her death. In it was the following paragraph: "I wish my son, A. H. Woodward, to know that he has never given me cause for unhappiness or worry during his life, and it is my desire that he remember me as giving him a perfect love."

That is the priceless legacy the rich Mr. Woodward received. It is worth far more than any monetary bequest could possibly be worth; it would be so even if the recipient had not a dime to his name.

Money, when the real, fundamental things of life are concerned, is not a commodity of very great value, after all. It will buy food, clothing, houses, automobiles and such like, and they are very fine; yet a man cannot live by them alone. The things that sets a man above the beasts makes life worth living and convinces him his immortality has nothing to do with money. It has to do, rather, with the giving of service and devotion and the receiving of love in return.

And, as a man grows older, there is the matter of memory. All that he has done is the material out of which his memory weaves a background. If this background has a texture that will bear close inspection, the man need not worry about his declining days; they will be happy. If it happens to be otherwise, his money will be able to do much to pad his last years.

It is in these fundamentals that Mr. Woodward has been made rich beyond most men. How many men

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that there is a city ordinance against double parking of cars in Lubbock but there seems to be very few people abide by it. We have noticed where there is plenty of space that some people do not have energy enough to head their car into the curb. There are some really lazy people in Lubbock and some of them are even too indolent to make their wife keep the weeds out of the yard.

It is reported that the people in Topeka, Kansas, even became enthusiastic over the nomination of Senator Curtis of that city to the vice presidency, and gave him a great ovation when he arrived home from the Kansas City convention.

It is reported that some folks are even so wet that they do not want just one dry plank in the political platform.

It is reported that President Calles says he is going to be a town farmer after he gets through being president of Mexico. If he is as successful as most of the town farmers, we doubt if he will set the world on fire with his success.

It is reported that a fellow who was injured in an accident near Wichita Falls has filed suit against an auto driver for $700 for every pound that he has lost by reason of the accident. This is a funny world anyway. We know of some people who would be willing to give that much for every pound they lose.

It is reported that a man who is in the State Insane Asylum from Atchinson, Kansas, seems to be dissatisfied with his confinement in that institution, and writes back to his home paper of the injustice of keeping him there, and winds up his letter to the editor by saying that he is as sane as seventy five percent of the men in his home town.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor Journal of the American Medical Assn. and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Our modesty relative to our bodies is slowly giving way to comprehension of the fact that we will never get anywhere in controlling some of the worst conditions that afflict mankind until we are ready to talk about them frequently and openly.

There was a time when it would have shocked the delicate sensibilities of most Americans even to mention varicose veins. Now comedians make them the subject of wisecracks in vaudeville shows.

Most of the veins of the body are provided with valves which keep the "sump of blood" going back to the heart from setting. When the valves break down the veins dilate and are called varicose veins.

When the veins become dilated they tend to project above the skin in lumpy masses. These lumps easily become irritated. Then they are slightly inflamed they itch and cause general discomfort.

If they get blocked the clots may form in them and these may be exceedingly painful. If the irritation subsides the person is relieved.

Unfortunately the human response to itching is scratching, and the response to irritation is rubbing of other manipulation. Either of these actions tends to make the condition worse in the long run, even though it may bring temporary relief.

The best methods of treatment involve the drinking of plenty of water, and the use of fresh fruits and vegetables in the diet. For itching and irritation most physicians advise scrupulous attention to cleanliness, recommending usually washing with warm water but without soap since the soap itself may be irritant.

The itching may be overcome by the use of ointments containing anti-itching substances which physicians prescribe according to the needs of the patient concerned. The ointments give the tissues a chance to heal, without recurring irritation from repeated scratching.

THE DEMOCRATS CAN WIN

The decisive manner in which the farm bloc was defeated in every move at the Republican National Convention has created an opportunity for the Democrats to draw an insurgent vote which practically assures success for the Democrats on the November elections if they stand together. However, many indications of public sentiment have shown a split in the Democratic ranks under the leadership of that which took place in the Republican lines at Kansas City.

The overwhelming majorities given to the Republican standard bearers, Hoover and Curtis, on the first ballot for their respective offices should lead to false ideas as to the strength of the two candidates. It will take an undivided Democratic vote to win in November, even with the Republican insurgent reinforcements.

There will be an insurgent Republican vote. It may be copies of that. While the politicians at Kansas City were taut in engineering the nomination of Curtis, a man who voted for the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, for the vice president's post after the farm bloc had been decisively defeated in its efforts to write a plank of its own in the platform, many farmers will not be satisfied. Agriculture interests which have been aroused against a definite movement for farm relief, not the naming of one of their champions as their nominee, are not likely to be satisfied with such a compromise.

Farm leaders have already announced their intention of coming to Houston. Democratic leaders have extended them an invitation, and have assured that their views will be given respectful consideration. It should not be difficult for the Democrats to draw the farmer vote, since the Coolidge-Hoover policy is distinctly unpopular.

However, the Democrats' prospects for success are not nearly so bright as they may seem after a survey of the Republican situation. A strong and popular leader with no doubt would lead the party to victory. It must be admitted that such a man apparently has not yet been found. In the event one is not found, the success of the party in November will depend upon the loyalty of its members and their belief in the principles of Democracy. If their faith in the party's integrity is stronger than their sentiment against the nominee, who ever he may be, a Democratic triumph may be expected in November. If the personal views of the candidate are considered more important than party principles, practically the same administration will remain in power in Washington another four years. Corruption has been rampant in the past, but it is impossible to foresee the extent to which it will spread if the people fail to express their indignation at the polls.

Summing up, developments at Kansas City make it possible for the Democratic party to win this year. It is up to the Democrats now, and it will take a united Democracy. Every effort should be made to nominate the most acceptable and worthy man at Houston. Then every Democrat must do his or her part.—Verion Record.

LAUGHS

A Close Shave

When Brown arrived at the station he found he had twenty minutes to spare before his train was due to start.

So, having bought a ticket and seen to the labeling of his baggage, he dashed across the road to a barber shop, seized himself in a chair, and demanded a hasty shave.

But the barber was a man whom nothing could hurry—metaphorically, at least, for he was a mortal, who despite Brown's protests applied the brush in so slow and deliberate a manner that the luckless traveler found himself confronted with one of two horrible alternatives—to miss his train or take his seat in it with a face covered with soap.

"Do hurry," pleaded Brown, but the barber paid no heed. He continued lathering.

At last Brown could stand it no longer. He seized his tormentor's hand, and "For pity's sake," he cried, "hold that brush still; I'll wring my head."

Why, Ma!

Harry: "I'd hate to believe it, but it looks mighty darned suspicious." Jerry: "What does?" Harry: "Well, I'll tell you. For six months I have been buying a box of candy a week for Edith—and Edith's mother has gained 22 pounds!"

DORMITORY FOR NEW COLLEGE.
Contractor M. L. Waller, Business Manager R. O. Conner, Foreman B. W. Echols and Secretary-Treasurer R. W. Jones arrived in Littlefield last week for beginning work of construction on the Littlefield College to be located on a plot of 1416 acres of land adjacent to the east side of the city.

Monday morning work was begun in placing water and electric lines on the college property, following which excavation was started and forms are being placed for the erection of two dormitories of about 30 rooms each; one for boys and one for girls attending the college.

The work of construction on administration building and four buildings for teachers will be taken up as soon as the dormitories are well on the way.

That there is no dearth of labor is the statement of Mr. Jones, who says they have a dozen or more available applications now for every job available, the later on they will be able to use more workers.

President John R. Freeman, Dean O. A. Burk and family, Miss Lois Freeman, Joe Frank Copeland, director of music and voice department in the college, accompanied by Mrs. Copeland, and son, Lee, were also here the first of the week in the interest of the new institution.

One carload of school furniture and supplies have arrived here and another is expected this week.—Lamb County Leader.

BROWNFIELD TO CELEBRATE FOURTH OF JULY.

The committee to solicit funds made sufficient headway this week that it looks like our Fourth of July celebration will be an assured fact. Several beaves have been donated, and more than $600 is in sight this week with which to buy more, so everything is looking lovely toward that end. Several of the donors have doubted or increased their subscriptions this week, and others will be asked to increase as much as possible, while a few others who have not been seen as yet will probably increase the buying funds to where the celebration can be put over in good shape, and once more Brownfield will, in its old time style be able to entertain the throngs along with the city.

Many forms of entertainment will be prepared, and besides there will be a city ordinance against double parking of cars in Lubbock but there seems to be very few people abide by it. We have noticed where there is plenty of space that some people do not have energy enough to head their car into the curb. There are some really lazy people in Lubbock and some of them are even too indolent to make their wife keep the weeds out of the yard.

While the politicians at Kansas City were taut in engineering the nomination of Curtis, a man who voted for the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, for the vice president's post after the farm bloc had been decisively defeated in its efforts to write a plank of its own in the platform, many farmers will not be satisfied. Agriculture interests which have been aroused against a definite movement for farm relief, not the naming of one of their champions as their nominee, are not likely to be satisfied with such a compromise.

Farm leaders have already announced their intention of coming to Houston. Democratic leaders have extended them an invitation, and have assured that their views will be given respectful consideration. It should not be difficult for the Democrats to draw the farmer vote, since the Coolidge-Hoover policy is distinctly unpopular.

However, the Democrats' prospects for success are not nearly so bright as they may seem after a survey of the Republican situation. A strong and popular leader with no doubt would lead the party to victory. It must be admitted that such a man apparently has not yet been found. In the event one is not found, the success of the party in November will depend upon the loyalty of its members and their belief in the principles of Democracy. If their faith in the party's integrity is stronger than their sentiment against the nominee, who ever he may be, a Democratic triumph may be expected in November. If the personal views of the candidate are considered more important than party principles, practically the same administration will remain in power in Washington another four years. Corruption has been rampant in the past, but it is impossible to foresee the extent to which it will spread if the people fail to express their indignation at the polls.

PERT PESTS

The Times had not been off the press but a few minutes yesterday when a lady phoned the editor and stated that she wanted to cancel the subscription to an editorial appearing in the issue pertaining to pernicious agents who call at the homes in the city selling subscription schemes to the housewives.

This particular case related to the fact that a collector had called for the "easy payment." Her husband had left for town in the morning and there was not enough change on the place to pay the collector, who refused to accept the money, and she had asked him to stop the paper which he refused to do.

There is only one way to deal with these pert pests and that is to have nothing to do with them or their propositions and deal through some local, responsible agent.—Celebrius Times.

PRESS ON!

PRESS ON! Surmount the rocky steps—
Glimb boldly o'er the torrent's arch;
He falls who feebly creeps—
He goes who dares the hero's march.
Be thou a hero! Let thy might
Trump on eternal snows its way,
And through the ebon walls of night
Hew down a passage unto day.
PRESS ON! If once and twice thy slip
Slip back and stumble, harder try
From him who never dreads to meet
Danger and death, they're sure to fly.

be a number of prominent speakers here on that date, including Hon. Marvin Jones, our present congressman, who is a candidate for re-election. At that time he will tell the voters how he stands on the issues of the day.

The beaves will be cooked pot roast style, as it can all be better utilized when thus cooked, and served army style with pickles, mashed potatoes, bread and coffee. Herald will probably be able to give more information about the program in the next issue.—Terry County Herald.

THE PAPER CHASE

The driver's eyes were glazing ahead as the car tore along the road.

The woman sitting behind sat forward to speak but he ignored her, so engrossed was he with the urgent need for speed.

"Two or three fruitless attempts she made to gain his attention. Then she gave up and sat quiet, her expression rather pathetic in its address. Eventually they reached a town, and he pulled up at the entrance of a large hotel.

Hurriedly he jumped out and turned to the woman. "We haven't been long, we should find it," he blurted out. "Where do you think you left it?"

"Oh, Ralph," she began. "But he had turned to the manager and was speaking to him: 'My wife lost a $100 bill here this morning,' he said, 'so we came straight back—'

The woman broke in. "Ralph dear," she spoke plaintively. "I've been shouting at you for the last hour that I found it in my handbag after all, but you wouldn't listen. It had slipped behind the lining."

"Good Heavens," exploded her husband, "and I've been risking both our necks. Oh, well, we may as well stay the night here now." They were alone again, and he turned to her once more.

"Couldn't you have made me understand—waved it under my nose or something?"

"I tried to do that," she walked and the wind blew it out of my hand!"

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED VIRGINIA BREWSTER is in love with an artist, NATHANIEL BARK, but she is tricked into promising to marry FREDERICK DEAN in one year if she fails to earn $100,000 that he alleges her father cheated him out of.

BREWSTER had lost his fortune in speculation before his death and VIRGINIA is left destitute. She pawns some of her jewelry and her brother, OLIVER CUTLER, promises to invest the money for her.

She seeks work, but without success. She discovers that she is being shadowed and suspects that DEAN has bribed the agencies not to help her. After work leaks out that the "Brewster girl" is job-seeking, she is besieged by reporters.

CUTLER insists on taking VIRGINIA out to dinner and hints that it won't be necessary for her to work for her money, but pretends innocence when she challenges his remark. NIEL, resenting the attentions of CUTLER and VIRGINIA does not like the familiarity with which his model, CHIRI MOND, treats him.

A gorgeous evening wrap comes to her hotel, and VIRGINIA discovers that DEAN has sent it to her. She phones him that she is returning it, and he tells her he doesn't want his future wife to work. His threat to ruin CUTLER frightens VIRGINIA and she warns OLIVER. Then she hears of a splendid position and goes for an interview.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIV

For weeks after Virginia's first meeting with Mr. Welkins of the Blue Capella Steamship Line she smiled whenever she thought of the fear that had gone with her to that interview.

As the days slid into late summer she forgot it altogether. It had concerned Frederick Dean. Would he have the power to stand in her way, to cause her to lose a position she desired to take? Virginia knew that his interests were far-reaching. That they might extend to influence in the routing of the Blue Capella line was easily within the realm of probability.

If such were the case, at least he had not chosen to take any action against her. She had been engaged for a few minutes' talk with Mr. Welkins and nothing had occurred to cause her any regret or dissatisfaction in regard to the work. She liked it. At first it had been difficult to accustom herself to giving up her days of confinement within the four walls of an office but she consoled herself with thinking how much worse it would be if she were employed in a commission and could not see Nathaniel each evening.

Each evening that is, except those on which Oliver insisted that she keep a rendezvous with him. Virginia never could see that it was necessary to have those secret meetings. Again and again she told Oliver to use his own judgment about her "investments," but he stubbornly refused to go on unless she consented to talk over the deals he went into with her money.

"But, I don't know when you ought to buy or sell," she expostulated. Patiently Oliver explained the operations of the market. He appeared anxious to have her understand what he was doing for her. But Virginia had no flair for the game, and though she listened she never was able to advise him. Oliver seemed to get on just the same. At any rate he saw Virginia with great encouragement each time they met, which was once or twice a week.

"I believe we threw Dean off the scent," he was wont to remark with great satisfaction.

While it was true that there had been no onslaught upon his position in the financial world and no sign of enemy activity, nevertheless he did not neglect to caution Virginia against becoming careless. It was her practice to leave her hotel by the servants' entrance and step into a taxicab. Oliver would have waiting at the curb. Her route to their meeting place was a roundabout one down to and through the crooked streets of Greenwich Village and then south along the lesser thoroughfares until she reached the financial district. There she gained admittance to Oliver's office building through a side door which a porter was paid to open for her.

These visits troubled Virginia exceedingly. They savored of clandestine intrigue... the meeting of lovers with guilt on their conscience, and she did not like it. There wasn't anything else she could do, however. Oliver would go on without her and without her she could not hope to make $100,000. And they still feared Frederick Dean. Too much to disregard his threat. At times Virginia wondered if it had not been just an idle gesture on Dean's part to force her to break away from Oliver, but the latter professed to believe it would be dangerous to flout her enemy.

Moreover, the deception she found it necessary to practice on Nathaniel when Oliver required her to meet him troubled her greatly. Yet she would not tell him about the whole truth then; and Virginia refused to hang over his head a sword such as hung over her own. There was reason to believe that she would have the money in time to settle with Dean but the bare possibility of failure was enough to shadow her life, and so she chose to endure it alone.

Nathaniel was doing splendidly with his mural work. It appeared to absorb him. It had been a long time since he had argued against her decision to work through the fall. Virginia was grateful for the ascendancy of his love for his art and made no move to distract him. Matters stood thus on a beautiful morning in September when Virginia stopped at the hotel desk for her mail on her way to breakfast in the dining room. She was subtly changed from the glib girl who had driven down to her engagement party in her fiancée's studio with stars in her eyes and heaven in her heart.

Her gray eyes were now deeper and darker as though they had not looked on the sun for many years and her full red lips had lost the soft curves of youth to take on the chisled lines of character growth. She was thin and devoted, but there was an intensity of feeling about her like the effulgence of a perpetual light. One sensed the glow of her quiet, steady and determined.

The clerk on duty greeted her with respectful cheerfulness and handed over a pile of letters. Virginia glanced over them hastily and returned all but one to be held until evening. The one she took with her to read at the table.

The monogrammed "J. C." on the envelope meant nothing to her. She thought it must be a letter from a friend and proceeded to open it expectantly. She did not receive many letters from her friends these days. They appeared to have accepted her decision to drop out as being sincere, as it was.

The sea shores, the mountains and foreign places had called them to sport and play. They had little time to think of a comrade who could join them only in fancy when she found a minute to close her eyes and shut out the sight of her present surroundings. Times were when the noise and the heat of summer had pressed and beat upon her message as Mrs. Cutter could not at the moment use the telephone. "Ask her" if she will be in at five-thirty," Virginia said, vaguely irritated.

Mrs. Cutter returned word that she would, and Virginia prepared to close her desk and leave promptly at five. She wished to avoid the overcrowding in the subway if possible, and since there were many thousands of office workers in the district who shared the same desire, there was not a second to be lost in the mad rush after the minute hand pointed at that hour.

Many there were, Virginia knew, who "beat the clock," but she was by no means conscientious to follow their example, at least too grateful for having work that she liked to think of taking advantage of her employers.

It was a little later than 5:30 when she was admitted to Jeanie's attractive drawing room with the plain blue velvet rug and rose-patterned draperies of black silk. She stood a moment uncertainly as her hostess made no move to rise from a love seat where she reposed with her legs curled under her and puffed on a cigarette in an ivory holder a foot long.

For a moment of tense silence she surveyed Virginia as though her caller were a stranger whom she wanted to be rude to. Then she waved the long cigarette holder toward a nearby chair and nodded her head.

Virginia felt a tightening in her throat and a wave of warmth in her cheeks. Jeanie Cutter had been her friend. But there was no welcome in her manner or in the words she drewled at Virginia in the voice of one who is both amused and annoyed at the antics of a nuisance.

Republicans May Maintain Chicago Office In Drive

James W. Good, Manager of Hoover Pre-Convention Campaign, Being Boosted As Leader.

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, June 20.—Proposals that a sectional organization with headquarters at Chicago be established for the coming presidential campaign is being discussed by members of the republican national committee arriving here for tomorrow's conference with the party's nominee, Herbert Hoover.

It is suggested, too, that James W. Good, who is in charge of Mr. Hoover's pre-convention activities, be made western campaign chairman and entrusted with the task of turning the votes of the farming districts to the commerce secretary.

Work May Be Chairman. The committee members are generally of the belief that Mr. Hoover's choice for the chairmanship of the national committee will be Secretary Work of the Interior Department, who has been one of his avowed and enthusiastic supporters since early in the pre-convention campaign. Mr. Hoover is expected to disclose his wishes at tomorrow's conference.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, the vice presidential nominee, who arrived in Washington yesterday and conferred at length with Mr. Hoover, will remain in the capital for the meeting. It is expected that the session will see organization of a campaign staff and possibly some announcement of the plans of the two candidates for receiving the formal notification of their nomination.
