Bonus Bill Sent to Certain Veto

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A Bonus Bill was sent to the White House today for the president's signature.

The congressional formalities were completed when Vice President Garner signed the two hundred million dollar bill.

Roosevelt set aside his veto to start writing the message, which probably will be sent to Congress Monday.

The message will go to the president where leaders can be quickly overridden, but it will come in the middle of the day.

29 MILLION IS GIVEN TEXAS FOR ROADS

WASHINGTON, May 17.—New York, Texas and Pennsylvania led the list of states in amounts allocated to them yesterday from the half billion dollars set aside for the works fund for highway, road, street and grade crossing elimination.

Of the amount, $200,000,000 was recommended for new highway and street work. $200,000,000 for grade crossing elimination, and $100,000,000 out of the unappropriated balance of the Hayden-Cartwright highway act.

The $400,000,000 for new highway, road, street and grade crossing work was distributed according to a formula laid down in the law calling for population, road mileage, and railway mileage to be considered.

New York received $24,623,556 of new funds and $5,663,690 that previously had been granted. Texas got $29,000,000 and Pennsylvania upward of 25,000,000.

New Mexico was allotted $4,596,693 and Oklahoma received $9,585,381.

The distribution of the $500,000,000 included:

New Mexico, for highways, roads, and streets, $2,871,397; for highway-railway grade separation and protection, $1,725,286.

Oklahoma, for highways, roads, and streets, $4,580,670; for highway railway grade separation and protection, $5,004,711.

Texas, for highways, roads and streets, $11,989,350; for highway-railway grade separation and protection, $10,855,982.

State shares from the $100,000,000 unappropriated balance of the Hayden-Cartwright act included:

New Mexico, $1,470,850.00; Oklahoma, $2,342,590.00; Texas, $6,145,626.50.

Bankhead Slips To Be Ready to Sign Next Week

Bankhead compliance applications will be ready for signatures of Hall County producers next week, following a meeting of county and community committees, it was announced today by County Agent James A. Jackson.

First signatures and statement of facts will be taken Tuesday, he said. Mr. Jackson is urging all producers to sign applications next week while in the hands of community committees, before being returned to the county agent's office.

"It will be necessary for the applications to be signed by either the tenant or the landlord before exemption certificates for 1935 will be issued," he said. The signature of either will be sufficient.

SPENCER SANCTIONS SLINGING OF SLANG

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 17.—The use of slang was defended by Dr. W. G. Spencer, president of Franklin College, in an address before the Indianapolis Ministers' Association.

"I have no justification for the general use of slang, but there are some reasons for its use which come very near justifying it," he said.

Among the reasons were: A short cut in the expression of thought; vividness and picturesque added by the paradox of omission and demand in imagination, and an intimacy

Picks More Cotton Than 60 Men

A dream inspired by back-breaking toil in the inventors' youthful days in Texas is forged into this machine, hailed as the first practical cotton picker. Built by Mack D. and John D. Rust, it was exhibited the first time at the National Cotton Show in Memphis, Tenn. In tests it has picked more than 8000 pounds in a 7 1/2-hour day, as much as an average hand picker will gather in 10 weeks. The principle is simple. Rotating moistened spindles enter the plant, the cotton adheres to them, and is stripped away by a suction fan, which delivers the cotton to a container attached to the upright pipe shown in this picture.

Three Firemen Die In Convent Blaze

JOLIETTE, Quebec, May 17.—Three firemen lost their lives today as they fought flames destroying the convent of Sisters of Congregation of Notre Dame here.

An aged nun, Sister. Ste. Elaine Desseur, died of heart attack shortly after the fire broke out in the kitchen of the convent.

All other occupants, 53 children, 50 aged pensioners and 50 nuns, escaped as firemen led them to safety.

The firemen who are dead are Louis Chartier, Quibert Fleury and Oscar Furlong. Fireman Jean Leguyer was seriously injured.

LAKEVIEW WILL HONOR GRADS TONIGHT

LAKEVIEW, May 17.—Fourteen Lakeview High School graduates will receive graduation diplomas in the final closing exercises of the Lakeview school tonight. John Deaver, of Memphis, will deliver the commencement address at the high school auditorium.

Baccalaureate services for the high school graduates were held last Sunday evening at the Methodist Church, with Rev. G. H. Galtis delivering the sermon.

Georgia Lee Payne is valedictorian of the graduation class and Houston Gattis is salutatorian.

INCH AND HALF FALLS DURING MORNING

Texline and Dalhart Also in Center of Heavy Showers

ALMOST TWO INCHES

At 2:15 o'clock this afternoon the rainfall here since yesterday afternoon was nearing the two-inch mark. The total for the past 24 hours was 1.93 inches, according to J. J. McMickin. One and 90-100 inches had fallen since 6 o'clock this morning.

"Good, soaking rain over the entire Panhandle" was the report Fort Worth and Denver officials sent out of Amarillo late this morning, as Memphis and its area were receiving the heaviest downpour in months.

Shortly before noon Memphis had received 1.43 inches and there was no sign of a let-up as the water continued to fall almost straight down upon the city.

All sections of the area reported similar precipitation, although no exact figures were obtainable.

Lines Are Out

Communication lines were out between Memphis and Turkey this morning and no report could be obtained from that section of the country.

Silverton, however, reported "a good, steady rain all morning" to the Amarillo office of the Fort Worth and Denver Railroad.

The local rainfall for the morning stood at 1.30 inches at 11:45 o'clock. The precipitation last night was .13 of an inch, bringing the total at noon to approximately 1.50 inches, according to Weatherman J. J. McMickin.

Nearly Four Inches

Panhandle Race Boosters May Be Delayed by Rain

Unless continued rains over the area make highway travel impossible, a motorcade of over 150 citizens from the city of Panhandle will arrive in Memphis at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow to invite local citizens to the Panhandle Race Meet and Horse Show at Panhandle, May 20 to 24.

The motorcade is due to arrive in Memphis at 11:30 and will entertain with a 30 minute downtown program while here. The booster trippers will be headed by M. B. Welsh, secretary of the Panhandle Chamber of Commerce, and other prominent business men from the North Panhandle city.

A large representation of local citizens is urged to be present when the boosters arrive in Memphis tomorrow morning, according to William Russell Clark, secretary of the local chamber of commerce.

All Games Are Postponed on Account of Rain

All baseball and softball games scheduled here this afternoon and tonight were officially postponed shortly before noon today after rain had fallen heavily throughout the morning.

Three games were scheduled, the Memphis Owls vs Amarillo Shamrocks this afternoon and the opening double-header of the softball league. The loop will open Tuesday according to the regular schedule and tonight's games will be made up at a later date.

KATHARINE STRYKHURST, beautiful, 20, is discontented and restless because her wealthy father, VICTOR STRYKHURST, and her aristocratic stepmother, BERTINE, refuse to let Katharine undertake any sort of work. Katharine rides daily with MICHAEL MEATHEROE, young westerner who runs a riding club. She assures herself she is not interested in Michael but feels a pang of jealousy when SALLY MOON, local coquette, enters at the club for lessons. ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, returns from Europe where she was sent to forget a love affair with GIBBS LARKIN, of whom her parents disapprove. Zoe is still at life with Gibbs. DR. JOHN KAYE, a relative of Bertine's, pays the Strykhursts a visit.

CHAPTER VI

Zoe, after all, was not angry. Katharine's heart softened when she saw her at the Country Club dance—small and round and winking in her floating printed silk, which was the prize of the frocks she had bought back from Paris. It was a gala night at the club. Ribbons of colored paper, five back and forth, and balloons were set free, only to be punctured by the current of some violator. Katharine danced with Dr. Kaye, to be out in spin again and again. She looked lovely tonight in clear ivory silk, the gown molded to the lines of her exquisite young figure. Bertine Strykhurst, glancing at Katharine's animated face, as she laughed and talked with John Kaye, observed to her husband with satisfaction that Katharine had evidently forgotten all about that career romance. Frank Corlies, the typical sophomore, in elegant English dinner clothes, with real pearls for studs, made a foil for Zoe Parker. Lisa Parker and Bertine both agreed that they were a charming pair. "He seems quite mad about her," Lisa sighed. "I wouldn't mind seeing her settle down—after this last year." "You've had a worrying time of it," agreed Bertine, who knew all about Gibbs and who, although not a mother herself, would tell anyone who cared to listen that the girl of today was certainly a problem. "The only thing Katharine really seems to care about," Bertine said brightly, "is riding. Really, I wish sometimes that Victor had let her have a horse of her own. I am not quite sure I like the idea of exposing her to the charms of that young westerner over at Shady Ridge. Mark too good-looking, in a certain crude way." "Oh, Katharine's all right," Lisa Parker said comfortably, watching Zoe's brown curls bob against young Corlies' black-coated shoulder. "She is so serene. Nothing ever seems to trouble her." Bertine started to reply, but thought better of it. People misunderstood so, if she said a single word about Katharine! That was what it was to be a stepmother. Nobody gave you the least bit of credit. Katharine steered John out on the terrace. "Noisy!" she observed, drooping against a pillar.

"And let?" "John, you see what I mean about father and Bertine! I haven't had a chance to talk to you all day." He nodded. "I see. They want to keep you wrapped in cotton wool. Your father doesn't know you've grown up." Her eyes glittered feverishly in the half light. "How—how can I escape from it?" He laughed, and something of the studious quality of his own good, gentle personality touched her with a sort of healing, releasing her from the maddening tensions which had bound her all day. "Well, the Victorians used to marry to get out from under parental supervision. But that didn't work so well. Maybe it does nowadays. Women seem to rule the roost." "Don't be vulgar." But she was laughing, too. "However," she pursued, with relief, "you don't just marry—like that. I mean, you've got to be—well, at least, think you're in love." "Plenty of boys have been top-ten around after you tonight," said Dr. Kaye quietly. In the light from the glare of his match, curved against the leaves, she could see his lean, almost ascetic face. Thirty, John was; he was already a fine doctor and a true earnestly respected. The woman who married him would be a lucky person, Katharine thought, innocently. "Oh, boys!" she rejoined, in a note of contempt. "Don't like 'em, eh?" "Not—not much," she confessed. There was a wicker couch here, with deep square cushions. She sank into it and John Kaye sat down beside her. "There somebody else?" "Not—not really." She sighed. John would be a perfect person to confide in. She needed a confidant; it was hard, always keeping things to yourself. And there was no one she could talk to, really. Bertine didn't understand. . . . oh, she meant to, but she never really heard what you said; or if she did you were certain she would use it as a lunch table topic next day. "No, she wouldn't confide in Bertine." Besides, there was really nothing to tell about Michael Heath-eroe. Katharine had had, on arriving at the club tonight, the strangest feeling that she might see him among the guests. Obviously that was absurd. "Nobody else," she said, quite firmly. Zoe came out with her Prince-ton boy, and Captain Byrne and his handsome blond fiancée joined them for a cigar. Captain Al-berns Byrne was an army man, home from Fort Sill on vacation. He and the plump, graceful widow from Innicoek Hills were to be married the following spring. Gracia Melvaine was 35, just four years younger than the erect bronzed soldier who was to be her third husband. Gracia had been twice "lawfully widowed."

John lifted heavy eyes. Nothing seemed to matter very much this morning. She had missed her hour for riding. But did she want to ride any more. Wasn't Michael Heatheroe becoming a far too important factor in her life? Wouldn't it, perhaps, be wise to make a clean cut of the matter? Oh, but it was her one great outlet; she needed it. It kept her going. . . . thought perhaps you might come in and lunch with me," John Kaye was saying. "Oh, I'm so sorry, I'm afraid I didn't hear what you said before," she said in contrition. "I'm moving to Monday. Found a place," Dr. Kaye said. "It's furnished, so Bertine won't have any fun." His eyes twinkled behind the rimless glasses. "But I thought I'd like to see you again before I settle down to work in earnest. There won't be any more week-ends for me when I get under way." "I'd love to come for lunch," Katharine said. "Could I see the apartment, perhaps? That would be fun." It was arranged that she was to meet him at the Ritz at 1. Later they would go over to the building on the East River where Dr. Kaye was to live, in two rooms high above the turbid stream with its tags and sloughy steamers plying their way to New England. After John had left Katharine called the number of the riding club. "That you, Tip?" It was Miss Strykhurst. Tell Michael I won't be riding today. I shall insist on keeping Furry for me. Her heart pounded madly as she waited. The boy's voice came to her over the phone: "That's all right, Miss Katharine. I'll be there in ten minutes ago." Katharine put the telephone to her ear. She scarcely heard its crackle with hands that were a little. She scarcely heard. (Continued on Page 3)

MONEY VS CHARACTER

I doubt if many people realize that the increase in Federal government debt during the past three years is actually less than the decline in state, municipal, and private corporation obligations, resulting in a net decline in total debt. Although government debt has made a tremendous gain, the total of all new loans made during the past three years has been abnormally small. Obligations on urban and farm real estate have shrunk considerably.
These constitute the largest single item of debt, exceeding even Federal liabilities. Commercial and brokers' loans are near the depression low. The flood of recent security issues has been used primarily for refunding purposes rather than for new capital investment.

Hence, the total debt of our country is only $230,000,000,000 today compared with $250,000,- 000,000 in 1929. The big danger is that government debt is the responsibility of a group and is, therefore, a more dangerous type of liability than private debt, which is the definite responsibility of only one individual. Also remember that the national wealth in dollars has shrunk from $360,000,000,000 in 1929 to $260,000,000,000. In addition, the present debt level must be supported by a volume of business which is 33 per cent less than the 1929 volume. Nevertheless, I do not fear the creation of government debt so much as I dread the undermining of character through the establishment of Federal "hand out" agencies.

TOO MANY PASSENGERS

The prosperity of nations does not depend on natural resources, money in circulation, or an even distribution of wealth. The United States has possessed undivided natural resources for millions of years, but she began to prosper only when men of character, thrift, and initiative, willing to make sacrifices and take risks, replaced the roving savages—and importance of character has not lessened since the last frontier was passed. When the majority are willing to roll up their sleeves and pull the cart, we will again have prosperity; but just as long as too many insist upon riding in the cart, recovery will be retarded. The problem now is to get the slackers out of the cart.

Hence, to have the present relief work accomplish its desired results, it must be accompanied by some form of educational work. Such educational work should continually remind those receiving relief that relief should be only an emergency affair. The campaign should drill home to relief families the fact that their future depends upon making themselves self-supporting as soon as possible. If we are not to go through inflation and end up with some "ism," such an educational campaign is absolutely essential.

We must provide a national antidote for "the-government-owes-me-a-living" habit which is the inevitable after-effect of any gigantic public stimulant.

INTERESTING SUGGESTION

If I had the job of Relief Administrator Hopkins, I would insist that every check going out be accompanied by good, straight, honestly advice to the recipient.
Much of this seed would fall on barren soil but some of it would take root and grow. Such a campaign would not be expensive. It would be bound to cause a few to voluntarily quit relief and create some kind of job for themselves.
Furthermore, it would go far toward the restoration of confidence among those who have none and who are in a position to create jobs.

Last week I made three suggestions to prevent government spending from gathering momentum: (1) temporary disenfranchisement of relief workers; (2) payment, on relief jobs, of only 65 per cent of going private wages; and (3) life pensions for Senators, regardless of re-election. These, plus some old-fashioned sermons as outlined above, would show businessmen and industrialists that the Administration does not believe in Communism or the destruction of private property, but that it is trying to work along sound lines and at the same time keep the radicals in line. Then industrialists would begin to recover confidence and would invest their money to create new enterprises, build new homes, and do other constructive work. This is the only way the unemployment problem will ever be soundly solved.

Business, as registered by the Babsonchart, stands at two per cent below a year ago, but is still 21 per cent below normal.

You gross more money with a FORD V-8 TRUCK and a bigger percentage is clear profit

THE moment you buy it, the Ford V-8 truck begins to save you money, because it will do more work—haul more tons at less cost. Its notably low fixed costs and its marked economy of operation and maintenance combine to reduce ton-mile haulage costs. Its new forward load distribution permits carrying more pay-load ahead of the rear axle. This results in longer tire and brake life—less body and chassis strain—more room in the cab.

We are ready to prove the ability as well as the economy of the 89 h. p.

truck—even the gas and oil. You test

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Dr. John Angus MacMillan, Minister

Surgery has made remarkable forward strides during the past few years—thanks to medical science. But how about moral surgery? That sort of surgery is quite as necessary to human welfare as medical surgery. Jesus not only believed in moral surgery but recommended its practice. That fact will be emphasized in a sermon, titled, "Emergency Operations," at this church Sunday morning—at 11 o'clock.

Members of the graduating class of the local high school will have a part in the service.

The Sunday school begins at 9:45 a. m.

There will be no evening service owing to the fact that this church will participate in the commencement service honoring the 1935 class of the Memphis High School.

Note—other announcements which will be made Sunday.

"It's not raining rain—it's raining dafodils." Such glorious, such b-e-a-u-t-i-f-u-l rain! Was any country ever more blessed? Dustorms surely have been put to rout—housewives can now begin to complain about tracking the rugs with mud—farmers may wonder when it will be dry enough to plant.

So much cotton will be made this fall that the farmers will wish the AAA would take the limit off of production.

It was dry and dusty so long that it will take lots more rain than has fallen to make people wish it would quit raining. More crops have been made with too much rain than with too little.

Dalhart—the center of the drouth area—has been getting some nice showers this week. All the world wants to see that sector soaking wet.

Many farmers will be needing workers soon, and many who wish to become independent of government relief may do so. The necessary rains have been provided for the start—the soil, sunshine and hard work will complete the job of making bountiful crops—God is in the heavens and all is well.

Roger Babson, in today's Democrat, says, "When the majority are willing to roll up their sleeves and pull the cart, we will again have prosperity; but just as long as too many insist upon riding in the cart, recovery will be retarded. The problem now is to get the slackers out of the cart. . . . We must provide a national antidote for 'the-government-owes-me-a-living' habit which is the inevitable after-effect of any gigantic public stimulant."

home of the theory of every man a king. Neither did I run across any farmer, laborer or clerk who had been given $5,000 by Huey, but I did run across a few who suspected that some of his earnest followers might have earned at least that much by one means and another. I did not meet any independent and fairly prosperous looking farmers such as we have seen many years in the Panhandle, but I did see the skinniest mules that I ever beheld. My own question is: "How can a dictator raise $5,000 for everybody in the United States, when he can't even feed the mules in his own home state?"

BULLET ALMOST HITS LOS ANGELES JURORS
 By United Press
 LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—A bullet, fired into a jury room in City Hall Tower, narrowly missed two jurors deliberating Thursday on a damage suit brought by Mrs. Mable Kaufman against the Los Angeles Motor Coach Company.
 Police began an investigation to determine if the bullet was fired intentionally. Detectives said the shot might have been intended for an adjoining office occupied by Commissioner E. D. Doyle, whose alimony rulings supposedly had stirred enmity.
 If Lincoln had seen what was coming, that phrase would probably have run "of the people, by the Postal Telegraph, for the Western Union."

ed to nearly four inches here. Some sections of the county reported as much as five inches for the same period, excluding this morning's showers.
 According to Mr. McMickin, the rain started last night at Texline, where 1.50 inches had fallen early this morning and it was still raining.

At 10 o'clock Dalhart had received an inch.
 Amarillo, Plainview and Lubbock reported hard rains, as well as the report of "good, soaking rain over the entire Panhandle."

Streets Flooded
 The downpour here started this morning shortly after 8 o'clock, after light showers throughout the night, and at noon had not slackened its pace.

The first report at 10:30 showed 1.08 inches this morning.
 By the middle of the morning downtown business streets were flooded. Water extended across the entire street at the corner of Main and Seventh, along Main to Eighth and from Main to Noel on Seventh, as the downtown drainage system was overtaxed.

The downpour was the heaviest for a single day since last August.

THE VOICE OF THE UPPER RED RIVER VALLEY

ON WITH THE INVESTIGATION

DEMANDS for administration reports on whether government funds helped sponsor the farmer mass meeting boosting the AAA, issued by Republicans, climaxed a sharp congressional argument Wednesday over President Roosevelt's denunciation of lies about his agricultural adjustment program.

Senator Hastings (Rep.) of Delaware introduced the resolution. He said he assumed expenses for the farmers were being paid directly or indirectly by the Government.

Although he could present no proof of this belief other than "the President's general attitude toward this and like subjects," he probably was more right than he, himself, believed.

The farm representatives were sent to Washington by small donations made by farmers in each community represented. At least some of this money came from the Government, through one program or another, or else many of the farmers could not have made a donation.

In addition, they would have had no cause for making the donations if it had not been for Government funds for no farm program would have been of interest to them. They would have had no farms.

So, Senator Hastings, you were right. Whether the administration sanctioned the farm trip is a question we cannot answer. But we are thankful for the funds that made donations from farmers possible.

An investigation into the trip would be interesting. Why not go on and have it. It probably would bring out some facts about the work of the administration that Republicans had rather would remain covered.

They should investigate the individuals on the trip. Find out, for instance, if President Roosevelt or Secretary Wallace didn't slip them a little spending money, just as football players are supposed to be treated.

It would be interesting to the people here if Mayor J. A. Whaley were called before the Republican-Investigation-of-Administration-Farm-Trip-Assistance-Committee to give a detailed account of where his dimes came from.

WORLD LAUDS WOMAN

THE world does not often go out of its way to acclaim the person who has devoted his life to working for others. It is the go-getter who gets the cheers and the fame, the man who keeps his eye peeled for the main chance who gathers in the laurels—most of the time.

But once in a while it works the other way; and when it does we discover that the race always reserves a special kind of admiration for the person who manages to live a life of pure selfish usefulness.

They set up a flag-decked pavilion in Washington the other day and arranged for an around-the-world broadcast to do honor to just such a person. The ambassadors of England, France, Russia, and Japan were there; words of tribute came over the air from the great capitals of the world; and the central figure was a gray-haired woman of 75, who used the occasion to speak once more the thought that has guided her life—the simple idea that justice, understanding, intelligence, and plain moral uprightness can get the world through difficulties that look insoluble.

This woman was Chicago's Jane Addams, of Hull House.

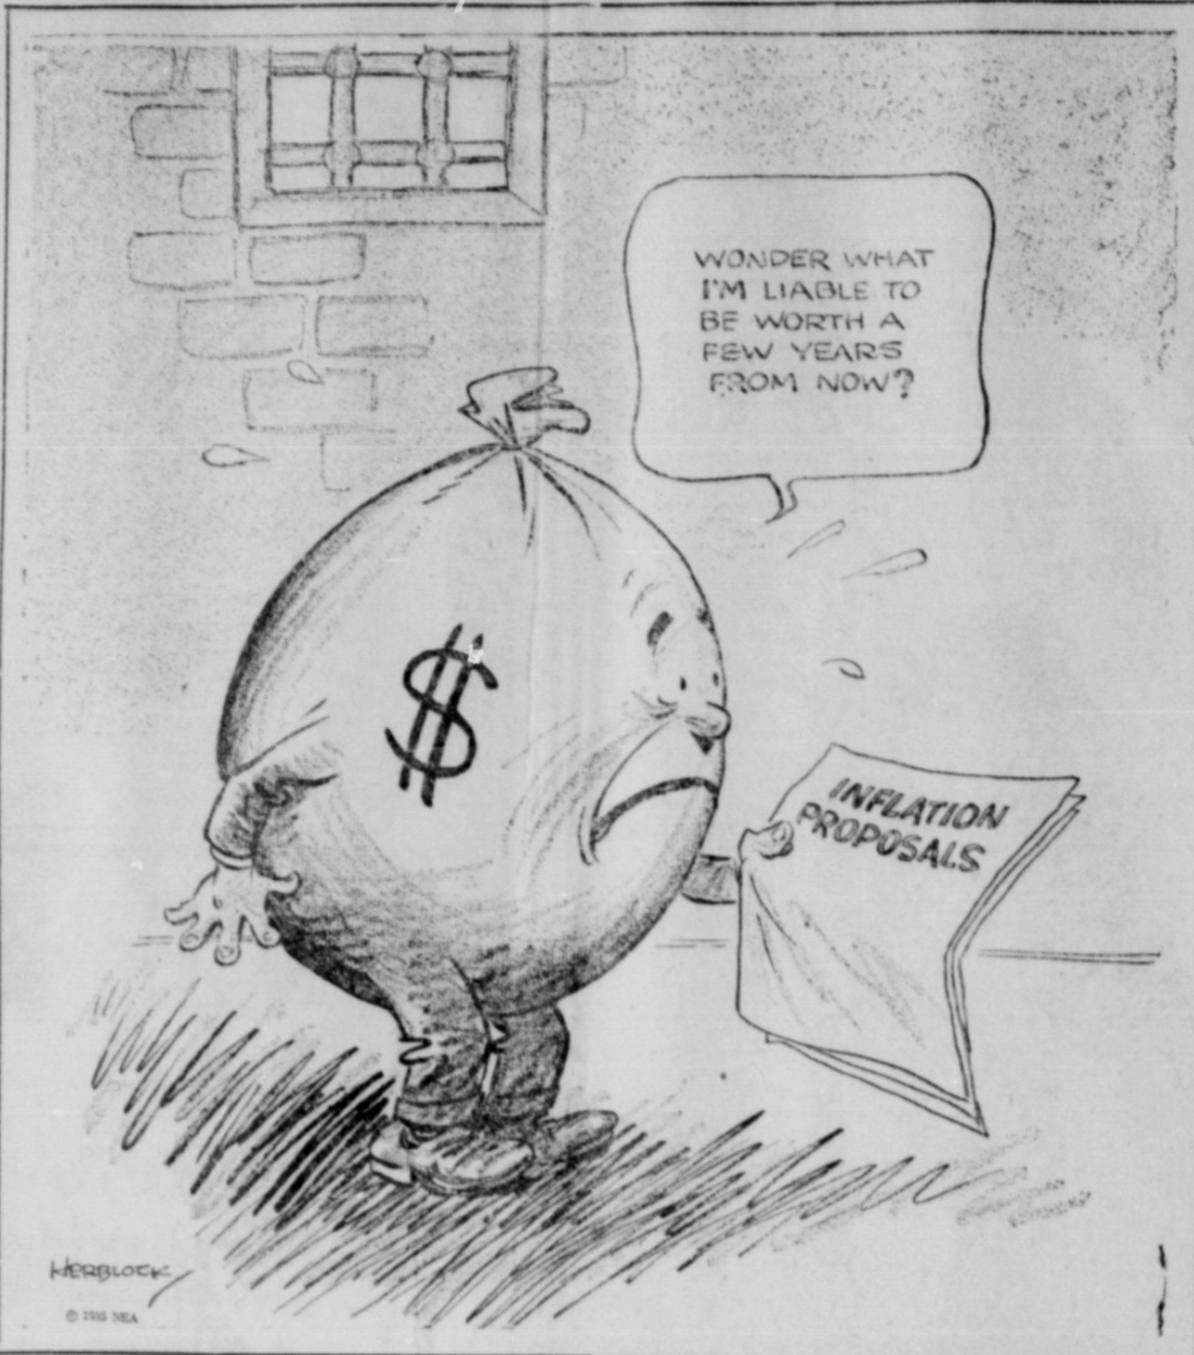

The occasion was an international peace broadcast; and it may seem a bit strange to find such a movement joined by powers that are feverishly building up their armies, navies, and air fleets. Nevertheless, join it they did; and Miss Addams gave them this message:

"We believe that we are not obliged to choose between violence and passive acceptance of unjust conditions; on the contrary, that courage, determination, moral energy, active good will can achieve their ends without violence."

This is a strange and welcome slogan for a world relying more and more on instruments of brute force. It would sound too good to be true, except for the fact that people like Miss Addams have had the courage to build their careers about it and to show that it can work.

Miss Addams has lived in Chicago, where there is an almost infinite number of "unjust conditions" to contemplate; and she has neither passively accepted them nor opposed them with unthinking violence.

ANOTHER ANGLE ON THE SECURITY PROBLEM

HEALTH BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

The lame back you may get at times isn't something you should pass off merely as somewhat of a nuisance. All sorts of causes will explain this trouble, and yet there are many cases which just can't be explained by any of the modern points of view.

Some of these people complain of a snapping sensation of the hip when they move the thigh and leg. This snapping sensation, they claim, is due to the pulling of this tight ligament over the head of the bone.

or the pain in any certain cases is due to a tight ligament of this character. Of course, the condition is treated by doing everything possible to release the tension on the ligament, stretching it gradually by use of certain exercises.

Side Glances By George Clark

"That's the swell thing about me and Joe. He knows I'm no heiress and I know he isn't a duke or a prince."

Those studios that specialize in enlargements are reported cheerful over the news that a Chicago fishing school will compel its students to back up their stories with photographs.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

More Embarrassment Faces J. P. Morgan in Railroad Quiz . . . Congress Afraid of Itself as Law Arbiter . . . Lynching Bill Defeat May Be Costly to Democrats.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Mr. J. P. Morgan, who became famous when a midget sat on his lap, may have two more dates with Senate committees before the year is up.

Testifying before Senate committees bores Mr. Morgan. He says so himself. But the Nye committee investigating the munitions industry is going through the firm's wartime files and expects to want to see him later.

And Senator Burt Wheeler will almost surely be investigating railroad financing, in which the Morgan company is involved up to its neck.

The railroad investigation is temporarily held up for lack of a $25,000 appropriation. It has been desperately fought by Wall Street bankers and some of their controlled officials of the railroads.

Blocked by Tydings For a month, the grant of $25,000 has been blocked by opposition of Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, a member of the Senate's four-man audit and control committee, which must approve it.

Townsend of Delaware, the Republican member and a former majority vote is needed. Wheeler, Railroad Co-ordinator Joe Eastman, and SEC Chairman Joe Kennedy have appeared to urge the appropriation, but Tydings is quoted as saying the inquiry would be a "fishing expedition" and that he doesn't want it.

The Senate interstate commerce committee voted for the investigation and most of its members believe Tydings' obstruction is such a barefaced usurpation of power that he can't get away with it.

Perils Morgan Reign Importance of the investigation—which probably would lead to changes in the railroad organization law—to Mr. Morgan is indicated by testimony of Dr. Charles A. Beard of the Missouri Pacific Independent Bondholders' Committee:

"The Van Sweringens owe the bankers $48,000,000. The importance of so huge a matter headed by J. P. Morgan, may be gauged from that the amount of the Van Sweringens' total of J. P. Morgan & Co. time of the railroad reorganization statute on March 1904.

"The wiping out of a share of the huge bank of the Van Sweringens' corporations might have seriously embarrassing to J. P. Morgan & Co., even to the threatening its position as lord of some of the way, public utility, and corporations of the States."

Congress Afraid of Morgan Congress doesn't fear final arbiter of the law. Said Congressman Antonio of New York: "It is far better to have national amendment passed effect that the support shall have no right to law unconstitutional and with the precedent decision in the Marbury Madison case, which is a piece of autocracy by any court into the of a country?"

Said Blanton of Tennessee we would have no go all. We would have an affair that would be Russia."

Two Games Open City Softball Loop Schedule Tonight

ESTELLINE AND HEDLEY TENS IN OPENER

Salisbury Marines, Tarver's To Meet In Second

Softball returns to Memphis tonight for a stand of over three months.

The City Softball League starts tonight under the floodlights of Fair Park Stadium, with four of the eight clubs seeing action in a doubleheader attraction.

Hedley and DeWitt's Tailors of Estelline will perform the opening ceremonies in the initial clash at 8 o'clock.

Not So Soft
Tarver's Pillboys and the Salisbury Marines will complete the argument for the evening, going into the arena at about 9:15.

Fans are going to learn that softball isn't as soft as it was last season. Or so, at least, is the apparent outlook on the eve of the season's openers.

A harder, faster ball has been adopted this season. Ten players on each club will make the game faster. Strong rivalry is expected to develop as the clubs get strung out in the championship race.

No Favorites
Everybody is at a loss to pick probable winners. And insofar as this writer can ascertain no one is willing to take the responsibility of quoting odds in any direction.

The four idle clubs tonight will don the league and team colors, flaming sweaters over light trousers, next Tuesday evening shortly after sundown.

Bullard's Tailors and Turkey will do the honors in Tuesday night's completion of the first round.

Big Crowd Expected
The two hardware stores—Thompson's and Harrison's—will go to each other's throats in the windup tussle.

Lovers of the "little baseball" sport—and they are legion, judging from last year's church league reception—are expected to pack the stadium tonight to witness the openers, and, incidentally, to aid the Junior Chamber of Commerce bear the expense, at 10 cents each, of lighting the field for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Seago were visitors in Wichita Falls yesterday.

SPORTSMAN'S SCRAPBOOK

BY SHERMAN MONTROSE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

The long bow and arrow will reign supreme this hunting season over a 200-mile square area in Oregon, where the use of high-powered rifles in the pursuit of game has been banned.

Through action of the Oregon state legislature, a bill setting aside the Canyon Creek Game Preserve, in the John Day county, has been designated as a hunting ground where only bow and arrow may be used to bag lion, deer, elk and smaller animals.

The measure giving archers this hunting paradise was sponsored by the Board Arrow Association, a group of 47 hunters who have adopted the whistling arrow and bow in preference to modern guns. Dr. George H. Cathey, Portland, is president of this group.

Rifle hunters who sneer at game-getting ability of archers well may hold their peace before Dr. Cathey. He long has been a hunter, but gave up the rifle in preference to the bow as being more humane, in that it brings a quicker kill and less suffering.

Hunting with a bow and arrow requires clever stalking, archers claim, too. This type of hunting also eliminates the danger of hitting a fellow hunter accidentally, for the quarry must be in the open. Twigs and brush deflect arrows.

In a test, Dr. Cathey fired two arrows completely through the chest cavity of an elk, the steel tips chipping through ribs on both sides with ease.

Mrs. Carl Jones of Estelline was a Memphis visitor yesterday.

Hunting deer with bow and arrow is real sport, and a genuine test of a sportsman's marksmanship.

He recently arrowed two bear, one on the North Umpqua, and one near Diamond Lake, allowing but one arrow for each kill. Both animals expired within six feet of being hit.

Such a method of hunting is more thrilling than wholesale butchering with high-powered rifles, Dr. Cathey avers. He predicts it will be very widely practiced in the near future.

HUSKIES SEE 'KEEPSIE CREW WIN—THEN OLYMPICS

Here's the sophomore varsity crew of the University of Washington, generally recognized as the favorites at Poughkeepsie this season, and probable representative of the United States in the 1936 Olympic Games at Berlin. Left to right are: George Lund, George Hunt, Joe Rantz, Charles Hartman, Delos Schoch, Robert Green, Roger Morris, Bud Schacht, and Coxswain George Morry.

By JIMMY DONOHUE
(NEA Service Staff Writer)
Pulling the oars of Uncle Sam's shell in the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin next year will be this year's University of Washington Huskies.

If you don't think so, pay up your insurance and talk to some of those apple growers around Seattle. They think so much of their crew that the business men have banded together in taking up a collection to send three shells to Poughkeepsie for the collegiate regatta next month.

There is considerable foundation for Washingtonians favoring the Huskies. First, the varsity this year is composed of those same eight rampaging freshmen of 1934 who swept to victory in the frosh race at Poughkeepsie.

These present sophomores are so good that they have relegated the 1934 varsity to the jayvee shell. Second, they stacked up against California's Bears in a dual contest early this year and those raw freshmen, with only a year's experience at the sweeps, nosed out Ky Ebright's veteran crew that won the varsity event last year at 'Keepsie.

Crew Powerful and Young
Third, the squad Al Ulbrickson coaches at Seattle is young, averaging only a little over 19, tips the beam at an average of 180 pounds, and its composite height is 6 feet 2 inches. There's plenty of power in a shell pulled by eight strong, young frames such as these figures represent.

That power was demonstrated during the race with California. The Bears took a good lead at the start, but the Huskies, keeping a steady, powerful 30-stroke pace, commenced to creep up. California increased the beat to 32, then 34.

The Husky cox, George Morry, raised his pace to 32, and, even at two strokes slower than the Bears, his shell began to creep up. Just before the final sprint, Morry increased the pace to 34, and the Huskies pulled ahead to win by two-fifths of a second.

After that race Coach Ulbrickson remarked: "All we need is training to make a crew greater than the Californians who won the 1928 and 1932 Olympics. We have the other three factors, speed, strength and stamina."

Of course, plenty can happen before the Olympic selection is made next year.

The Huskies must prove their right for consideration by taking the Poughkeepsie classic, and to do that they must beat California's crew again, as well as eastern shells from Navy, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Cornell, Yale, and other institutions.

California is the big threat to Washington's supremacy. The Bears can be counted on to be ready for revenge. Cagy Ky Ebright is one of the best crew mentors in the game, and he is pointing to his Bears to knock Ulbrickson's hopes higher than a kite at 'Keepsie, as they did last year, when the Huskies were favorites.

not only had the No. 3 tacked on his back, but batted him in the No. 3 position, where Ruth revolutionized baseball.

McCarthy Wanted to Junk Babe Ruth's Old Number 3
Just before he was seized by influenza, on the eve of the Yankees' departure for the west, McCarthy, realizing his slip, sought to lessen the burden on Selkirk.

"You look a bit nervous, George," McCarthy told Selkirk. "Maybe this business of being called the new Ruth has got you down. How about a few days' lay-off?"

"I'd prefer to stick in there," replied Selkirk.
"Well, then," countered McCarthy, "how about changing your number? Take any number you please. I want to do everything possible to prevent you from pressing in an effort to live up to Ruth. Your constantly being compared with Ruth is unfair to you. Changing your number might lessen the tendency of the public and baseball writers to draw this comparison."

"My number has nothing to do with it," answered Selkirk. "I'll fight my way out of it."
Selkirk is a courageous athlete, but fear is expressed that he left his best baseball in the minors.

The Selkirk who hit .355 in the International League last season and finished with .313 in 46 American League contests has hit only spasmodically this spring. Selkirk's fielding has complicated matters, too. The climax was reached when his failure to catch comparatively easy fly balls cost both games in Chicago.

Yankees Need Player Who Can Bat in Runs
Selkirk still denies that the Ruth complex has him down, but you can't get away from the records, as Al Smith was wont to say. If George isn't suffering from a mental hazard, he either is obtaining a very late start or is a bit short of major league caliber.

Only one Yankee, Earl Combs, has crashed the .300 circle this season, and the Kentucky colonel got in it on the strength of one big day in Philadelphia and remained only until the outfit played its next game. Lou Gehrig is down to a measly .240 and Red Rolfe leads the pack with .270.

The Yankees are desperately in need of someone who can smack in runs.
Selkirk must snap out of it in a hurry or be replaced by Dixie Walker upon the club's return home. Walker has been on the shelf since he dislocated his shoulder in an exhibition game at West Point.

Marguerite Track Coach

Like most great athletes, sprinters are born, but they have to be taught the finer points.

When a coach recognizes that inborn and necessary nervous makeup, it is up to him to develop the talent by seeing that the youngster starts and runs correctly and conditions himself properly.

The sprinter generally is pictured as medium sized, and inclined toward a slender body, with long, tapering muscles. George Simpson belonged in this class. So does Jesse Owens.

The picture does not always fit, however. Archie Hahn, Lorin Murchison and Frank Wykoff were small and finely built. Eddie Tolan, Arthur Duffy, and Emmett Toppino were short and stocky. Charley Paddock was rather large about the hips and big thighs. Bernie Wefers was tall and slender. Tex Ramsdell and Eddie McCoy were heavyweights, and so is the current champion, Ralph Metcalfe.

A sprinter must learn to relax while running. Many a near-champion has failed to reach his goal because of his nervous desire to turn on speed, thereby falling short in the co-ordination of muscular activity. Relaxation, co-ordination of leg and arm action, a rhythmical stride, and the entire muscular system working in unison for the one objective, speed, make the ideal sprinter.

It took sprinters about 30 years to wear down J. Owen's mark of 9.8 seconds in the century to the present 9.4 standard. During that interval sprinters were few and far between, but we have developed several outstanding dash men in recent years.

In 1934 there were at least 24 college men who covered the 100-yard stretch in 9.8, and in the last five years America has had five men who have turned in 9.4 performances.

Present day sprinters are greater in number by tenfold, and improved in quality.

Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Vineyard spent a time in Memphis last night with his sister, Mrs. J. C. Wells, en route from the State Medical meeting in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wheeler of Parnell spent yesterday here on business.

According to estimates, the average American man, woman, or child consumes 1000 pounds of vegetable food and 600 pounds of animal food annually.

CLEVELAND, May 17.—That big No. 3 on his back seems too much for George Alexander Selkirk.

The New York Yankees have given up on the Canadian-born outfielder whom they hoped would succeed the illustrious George Herman Ruth. He is on the market.

An act of Joe McCarthy is admission that he suspects he made a mistake in not easing the load of the man replacing Ruth by eliminating the large No. 9 carried with such grace for 15 years by the inimitable Bambino.

McCarthy evidently erred in his appraisal of Selkirk, but, in justice to the Yankee manager, the star of the Newark farm appeared to be a phlegmatic individual who would not be hand-capped even when it was certain that his work would be compared with that of the greatest figure in the history of the game.

McCarthy considered Selkirk such a good trouper after eight years in Double A loops that he
