Hoffa Seeks Too Much Power

The tendency of some labor unions to spread into fields entirely foreign to them reaches the point of absurdity with the announcement of Jimmy Hoffa that his teamsters union will campaign next year to sign up 10,000,000 state, county and municipal employees.

Hoffa's grandiose dream is announced on the same day a federal judge orders his union to comply with reform orders of court-appointed monitors. Two of the three monitors had told the judge that union officials were defying their cleanup orders.

Hoffa's ambitions appear to have no bounds. Several months ago he moved to set up an alliance of all transportation workers, land, sea and air.

Now he says—and apparently he is serious about it—that he intends to bring into the truck drivers' union such diverse groups as policemen, firemen, sanitation workers, hospital workers, and others. The "others" obviously would be in the main white-collar workers of state, county and city governments.

It is doubtful if many employees of the various subdivisions of government would relish such a motley union. Those among these groups of public workers to whom the idea might appeal would prefer, on the whole to have their own.

But if by chance a move to weld large numbers of public servants into such a labor union as the teamsters should prove successful, immense potentialities for mischief would arise. For example, if the truck drivers struck against either a single firm or a whole industry in a given city and if the municipal workers were called out in a sympathy strike, a city would be paralyzed even if policemen and firemen were not ordered to quit work. Calling sanitation and hospital workers off the job would make city life unlivable in a hurry.

The ability to employee threats to the health of a whole population as a club to enforce its demands on a firm or an industry is too much power for a union to possess. Labor leaders should think a long time before reaching for such power. For if it were abused the public would demand checks upon such power and union leaders might lose some of the freedom of action they now enjoy.—The Houston Chronicle

Motorists Set Own Insurance Rates

The Assn. of Casualty and Surety Companies informs holders of automobile insurance that the high cost of this type of protection is attributable solely to the manner in which they drive. The place to start reducing automobile insurance rates is on the streets and highways, says the association. Auto liability rates, it continues, are caught in a jam between rising traffic accidents and rising costs of settling claims. Exorbitant jury verdicts is another factor cited. However, each item traces back to the conduct of the driver on the highway.

This folder should be of more than passing interest to Texans who, starting Aug. 1, began paying increased rates averaging between 20 and 25 per cent more for auto liability insurance. The increases were called for by the fact that the insurance companies were paying out more money in claims than they were taking in premiums. Throughout the nation as a whole, insurance companies paid out $116.70 for every $100 in premiums in 1957 and the Texas percentage was even higher.

Obviously these figures must be brought into adjustment. Why not do it, in part by charging accident prone motorists a higher rate than safe drivers?—The Houston Chronicle.

Paradise Lost

The sad plight of seagulls of the St. Augustine, Fla., coast who are "starving to death in the midst of plenty because they have forgotten how to fish" is related in a recent issue of The Early American Magazine.

The gulls used to live on the waste from the local shrimp fleet. They didn't have to catch fish—or teach their young the techniques of fishing.

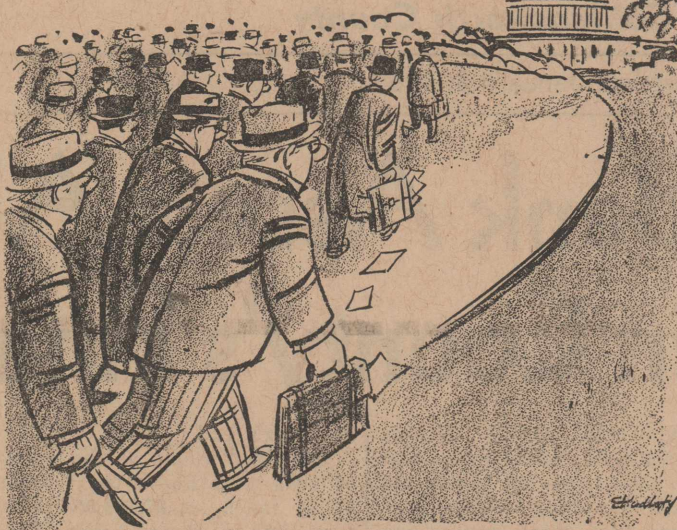

Then the shrimp fleet moved away to Key West and their paradise was lost.

The Early American says: "A few of the birds had the intuition to follow the fleet. A few more enterprising enough, or had instinct enough left, to take to the sea once more. But many of them can be seen sitting sadly where they were left, starving to death because no one will bring them shrimp, while in the Gulf there is a sea of food for the taking."

The freedom we enjoy has its own peculiar perils. It seems often to encourage softness, laxity, self-indulgence, and indifference to responsibilities—A civilization is only as vital and strong as the men who give it life. It must falter when they do. If their moral fiber, their character, grows slack, then their system must surely decline.

* REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where Teamster Hoffa has started to organize a Policemen's Union, maybe figuring to get him some armed, people-paid agents to reason with strike-breakers and reluctant union joiners.

My angle-hunter neighbor says when Hoffa gets Teamsters made out of all types of workers, there will be many money-making opportunities open.

Like, say, a man wants to go into the wholesale bank sacking business, he can have the Bank Robbers Union just throw a picket line around each one of their jobs, and the Policemen's Union members couldn't cross to hinder the work.

I see where the Army is working on what they call a "fear gas" which they can spray on the enemy and it asphyxiates his belligerency so he is too scared to fight.

My badgered neighbor says this stuff ought to make wars shorter and safer, and he would like to have some to squirt on bill collectors and his wife.

But he thinks the Army could save a lot of research time and expense by just getting the recipe used by the Internal Revenueurs, who can throw a man into a fear sweat with only a long white envelope.

Seems likely the new national budget will set up the customary allowance for paying the rent on our good foreign friends.

My aching neighbor says we have put out lots of money on friends here lately, but we have to remember a friend is not something you can just buy outright and thereafter call your very own, like, say, a set of false teeth.

Says keeping friends after you make them is like keeping hired hands, who often have to be constantly nourished and pampered or next thing you know they are drinking coffee on somebody else's time.

I see where a lady columnist comes out with the claim that women are better liars than men, which my windy neighbor says is an unfair comparison.

Says men and women mostly practice this art on each other, which gives the girls the overwhelming advantage of having softer material to work on.

Claims they are not entitled to credit for superior prevaricatory skill when they can use a pretty smile and a pat on the arm to score with somepop-up lie which a man couldn't get to first base with.

I see where a Massachusetts gentleman got his alcohol burner quenched in an accident and nevermore can drink anything stronger than soda pop.

He sued the party responsible for this sad condition and a horrified jury decided $7500 was about the right price for living with a frustrated thirst.

My nip-loving neighbor says he has had lots of experience with craving something he couldn't have, and in every such case his wounded feelings could have been healed up and haired over nicely with a $7500 money poultice.

Pretty near every paper you pick up has got some more writing on the subject of underfed school teachers.

My square neighbor says he is in favor of fair pay for every-

BACK TO A PEACOCK

The custom of making New Year's resolutions can be traced to a peacock. The colorful bird was a favorite Christmas dish in early England, according to research experts.

It was customary for knights to take the "vow of the peacock" by making their pledge for the new year with their right hand on the peacock.

Mrs. Jimmy Strickland

Sheila Key of Norwich, England, Weds Jimmy Strickland in Christmas Rites

A Christmas season ceremony at Baton Rouge, Louisiana, united Miss Sheila Rosemary Juliet Key, Southwood Hall, Norwich, Norfolk, England, and Jimmy Wayne Strickland of Wellington.

The couple was married Friday, December 26, at two-thirty in the afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Poor, sister and brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Strickland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nigel F. Key of Southwood Hall, while the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Strickland of Wellington.

The Rev. Mack B. Stewart of Baton Rouge performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a white wool jersey dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Attending the couple were Mr and Mrs. Poor. The latter will be remembered here as Miss Floy Lstall Strickland.

Mrs. Strickland, mother of the bridegroom, wore an olive green dress with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The reception followed the ceremony, with Miss Alice Germany of Baton Rouge serving the wedding cake and Mrs. Fred Williams of Wellington, sister of the bridegroom.

The bride attended Sutherland House School, Cromer, Norfolk, England, where she was graduated in 1954. She then attended St. Godric's Secretarial College in London for a year and now is employed with A. D. Ring and Associates in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Strickland was graduated from high school here in 1954 and is now serving in the United States Army at Fort Lee, Virginia.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson of Amarillo.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a blue suit with beige and white accessories, with a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Jimmy Langford, the bridegroom's sister, was matron of honor. She was dressed in a black suit with beige accessories, accented with a pink carnation corsage.

C. W. Caison was best man. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Patterson wore a tan dress, while Mrs. Belew chose a black suit. Both had corsages of pink carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony. Serving at the lace-covered table were Miss Katherine Sanders and Mrs. Durwood Smith of Fresno, Calif.

After a short wedding trip to Amarillo, the couple went to Tulsa, where they will make their home.

The bride attended school in Wellington and in California, while the bridegroom received his education here.

Atends Young Farmers Meeting

Officers of State Association of Young Farmers of Texas Organization held an important meeting at Renner, Texas, December 8, 1958. The Officers attending the meeting, were James Kandel, president from Gonzales; C. B. Huddleston, vice-president from Mabank; N. C. Childers, secretary from Quail; Ernest Grote, treasurer from Fredericksburg; Gordon Koonce, reporter from Wharton and J. R. Jackson, advisor from College Station. The meeting was held at the Texas Research Foundation. The Officers of the Organization voted to hold their Annual Field Day at the Texas Research Foundation upon the invitations of Dr. C. E. Lundell, Director of the Foundation and Fred Shaw, the public relations director of the Foundation.

The Foundation, a non-profit research educational institution, follows the principles of free private enterprise in its approach to the solutions of rural problems. It is privately financed by funds contributed by far-sighted businessmen, farmers, ranchers, and other friends who recognize the need of independent leadership in the field. It is the officers belief that the Foundation is an excellent site for the Field Day because experiments in a wide range of Agricultural fields can be observed.

The officers discussed plans and laid the ground work for the State Convention to be held in Austin in July.

AUSTIN.—As a news-making year, 1958 lacked the lid-blowing scandals and sensational headlines that erupted from the Capitol in 1956 and 1957.

But it was a momentous year in many ways. Elections, recession, state treasury bankrupt. Much talk of new taxes.

Many research reports were made — by the State Tax Study Commission, the Texas Research League, the Hale-Aiken Committee. Required reports came from the Board of Water Engineers, Higher Education Commission and Legislative Council.

All in all, 1958 was a year of surveys, a time of critical self-examination. All the research reports made lengthy stories, little headlines. Few are complete stories. Most will be continued into the turbulent legislative year of 1959.

A month by month review of 1958, including top news events, both good and bad, depending on your viewpoint, follows:

January

Gov. Price Daniel refused to be gloomy about state finances. He said he wasn't convinced the State Treasury would be in the red by 1959, as some said, nor of the need for new taxes.

New State Water Planning Board set up shop with the aim of doubling Texas' water storage capacity. Land Commissioner Earl Rudder resigned to become A&M Vice President. Bill Allcorn of Brownwood succeeded Rudder. Rival groups of optometrists squared off in a court battle to decide legality of price advertising.

Early-day satellites swirled overhead and a lot of people were worrying whether our schools were as good as Russia's. Hale-Aikin Committee asked for grass-roots suggestions for school improvement.

February

Gov. Daniel proposed that precinct convention be abolished and that delegates to the county convention be named by direct primary vote. It was a surprise counter-move to the "code of ethics" campaign being conducted by the DOT as part of its drive to wrest party control from the governor.

State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert predicted a $12,000,000 state revenue deficit and need for $100,000,000 in new taxes by 1959. Economists announced bluntly that there was a recession.

March

Texas oil allowable dwindled to nine producing days. Oil Imports Study Commission blamed excess stocks on over-production during Suez crisis, competition since from foreign oil.

Unemployment payments hit a figure double that of a year ago. And many Texas farmers reported it was "too wet to plow."

April

Oil allowable tumbled to an all-time low, eight producing days. But TEC, for the first time in 1958, announced a significant drop in joblessness.

Former Sen. Bill Blakley, Dallas financier, announced he'd run for senate post held by Ralph Yarborough. It was starting gun for summer politicking.

May

Eight-day oil production pattern continued. Governor Daniel kicked off a campaign to save 254 lives in '58 by reducing the 1957 highway death toll 10 per cent.

Bureau of Business Research reported the recession "is still very much with us."

June

Election campaigns got into high gear. But as much, if not more, attention focused on the "after-hours" election, the precinct conventions. Prize in the struggle would be control of the state convention in September and selection of party officials for the next two years. Leading the rival factions were Governor Daniel for the moderate-conservatives, and National Committeewoman Mrs. R. D. Randolph for the liberal DOT.

July

Primaries returned almost all incumbents to major offices, including Ralph Yarborough to the U.S. Senate and Price Daniel to another term as governor.

Oil was up to nine producing days. Economic analysts pointed to lessening unemployment, hefty bank deposits, said it might be a good year after all.

August

Legislative Budget Board wrestled with money requests from the state agencies far in excess of expected revenue for 1960-61. Second primary settled who would sit in 56th legislature, but not who would preside over the House. Both Joe Burkett or Kerrville and Waggoner Carr of Lubbock claimed enough pledges to be elected speaker.

Leaders of all types of Democrats called for "harmony" at the September convention. Oil allowable rose to 11 days.

September

Hale-Aikin Committee made its first report on proposals to update

Coleman With Tri-Services

First Lt. Spencer Coleman, here with his wife and baby daughter for Christmas is assigned to a Tri-Service group at Sandia Air Force Base, Albuquerque, N. M., the only group so far as he knows in which Army, Navy and Air Force men are assigned to a single unit.

Lt. Coleman is an instructor in the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project, and his present class includes Navy career officers from the rank of lieutenant junior grade to captain.

and enrich public schools. Fiscal leaders in Legislature upped their gloomy predictions on new revenue needs to $140,000,000.

Texas Democrats turned their eyes toward 1960 after a convention controlled by the Governor despite DOT outrage over the exclusion of its members from the Executive Committee.

October

Texas General Revenue Fund ran dry and began going in the hole. Hale-Aikin Committee reconsidered and reversed its previous stand against federal aid for school lunch programs and vocational training.

Commission on Higher Education proposed a more unified study program for state colleges and universities, concentrating graduate work at UT and A&M. Texans debated merits of nine proposed amendments to the state constitution.

November

State fiscal officials upped their estimates of needed new revenue to nearly $200,000,000. Industry leaders called the oil industry "sick". Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson called for mandatory import controls.

Many public officials were disappointed over amendment voting. Salary raises for legislators and pension plans for county officials got thumbs down.

December

Waning weeks of '58 saw a flood of legislative proposals flow into Austin. Hale-Aikin Committee, joined by Texas State Teachers Association, asked more pay for teachers, more courses, longer school year. Others wanted safety legislation, fiscal help for cities, flexible auto insurance rates, small loan company regulation, etc.

State Tax Study Commission made no recommendation beyond its reporting the fiscal facts of life in Texas. Governor Daniel estimated the state would need $65,000,000 a year more for future spending plus $55,000,000 to wipe out the deficit. He said he thought it could be done without general sales or income taxes.

And the safety crusade moved toward an unknown outcome as officials, joined by newsmen and hundreds of bill boards, sought to cut the usual holiday highway death toll.

Whatever happens to the piles of data and recommendations in 1959, their accumulation made '58 a significant year. It was a year in which many thoughtful people

THE WELLINGTON (TEXAS) LEADER
Thursday, January 8, 1959

sought to take a grasp on the problems and promise of Texas' future.

Fifth of Beef Carcass "Choice"

Only 22 per cent of a beef carcass consists of "choice" cuts that are tender enough to broil, according to the Texas Beef Council. The remaining 78 per cent of a beef animal, however, can be cooked slowly for more tenderness, is just as nutritious, and is often considered more flavorful.

Henry Clay is credited with first using the plea of "temporary insanity" to save an accused man from the death sentence.

Claude-Dodson Split Conference Twin Bill Tuesday

Albert Molsenbocker

On Tuesday night, December 30, the basketball teams from Claude High School journeyed to Dodson for a conference twin-bill with the Dodson Mustangs. A surprisingly good crowd turned out to see the game despite icy roads and unfavorable weather conditions.

In the first game, the Dodson girls were trounced by a fired-up Claude cage team by a score of 76-35. Zenith Swift, captain of the Dodson team, was high scorer for her team with 17 points. Next in line were Myra Hernandez with 13; Melva Miller, 3; and Mozell Lemons, 2.

In a hard-fought battle between the Claude boys and the Mustangs, Dodson finally edged by their opponents by a score of 44-39. Joe Lennon was high scorer for the Mustangs with 20 points, while Penson Hernandez was second with 10. Roger Painter and Jerry Whitson were next with 5 each. All

Minor Collisions During Holidays

A series of minor accidents which left vehicle occupants only shaken, were reported by Police Chief Jack Brisbin.

Icy streets were blamed for the collision of the cars driven by H. L. Jenkins and Wayne E. Barrett of Cotton Center at the corner of Floydada and 8th Streets Tuesday, January 6.

Chief Brisbin said that Barrett, driving from a side street, was unable to stop his car on the ice and it skidded in front of the Jenkins car. There was considerable damage to Barrett's 1955 Chevrolet.

Cars driven by Mack Saied Sr. and Rommie Forbis collided as Mustang players saw action in the close game which was finally decided in the last minute of play. Joe Lennon hit two free throws with about 30 seconds left to play, and the Mustangs defense held to protect the five point lead.

Saied was backing out of his driveway on East Avenue Saturday, December 27, Brisbin reported. The fender and turtle lid of Saied's 1958 Oldsmobile were damaged, as was the front fender and grill of Forbis 1955 Chevrolet.

The third collision was between the 1957 Chevrolet pickup driven by Cameron Beam and the 1952 Ford of Calvin Burch. The collision occurred Sunday, Jan. 4, at the corner of First and Amarillo Streets.

Jury Awards in Injury Suits Going Up

Chicago, — The amount of money awarded by juries in personal injury suits is leaping upward at a much faster pace than the cost of living, a special study released today by the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies shows.

From 1947 to 1957 there was an increase of 304% in the average sum awarded by juries in personal injury suits tried in the Circuit and Superior Courts of Cook County, (Chicago), Illinois, Roy L. Davis, midwestern manager of the national insurance association reported. He said similar or greater increases have occurred in other metropolitan areas.

In contrast, Mr. Davis pointed out that the U.S. consumer's price index for cities advanced only 12.6% during the same period.

Mr. Davis attributed the mounting cost of automobile insurance claims in large part to the spiraling trend in jury awards. "The direct result of high jury verdicts on insurance premiums is substantial, but even worse is the indirect result. Rising court verdicts force the companies to make higher and higher out-of-court settlements. Automobile insurance rates have gone up simply because claims against insurance companies are increasing both in number and in size.

Mr. Davis emphasized that injured persons should receive a just and adequate award. "Many large verdicts and settlements are deserved, but there are altogether too many cases in which the accident is looked upon as an opportunity to get rich. Awards that reflect jury sympathy, rather than a true evaluation of damages or determination of fault, encourage exaggerated and groundless claims. They distort values. Persons who otherwise are scrupulously honest believe it is all right to 'soak' the big insurance companies.

"It is not the insurance company, but the insured driver who pays for the exaggerated claims. Each time the level of insurance settlements is raised by excessive awards and fraudulent claims, the cost falls upon motorists in the form of higher premiums. The extravagant juror and the claims-padder are cheating themselves and their neighbors, not the insurance companies."

A similar study made in Creek County, Oklahoma, shows that the average sum of money awarded for personal injury and wrongful death by juries in that county increased more than 3400% in the eleven year period from 1947 through 1957.

The average award in 1957 was $89,781.45 compared to $2,585.00 in 1947. The volume of law suits of this type filed in Creek County increased from 24 cases in 1947 to 133 cases in 1957.

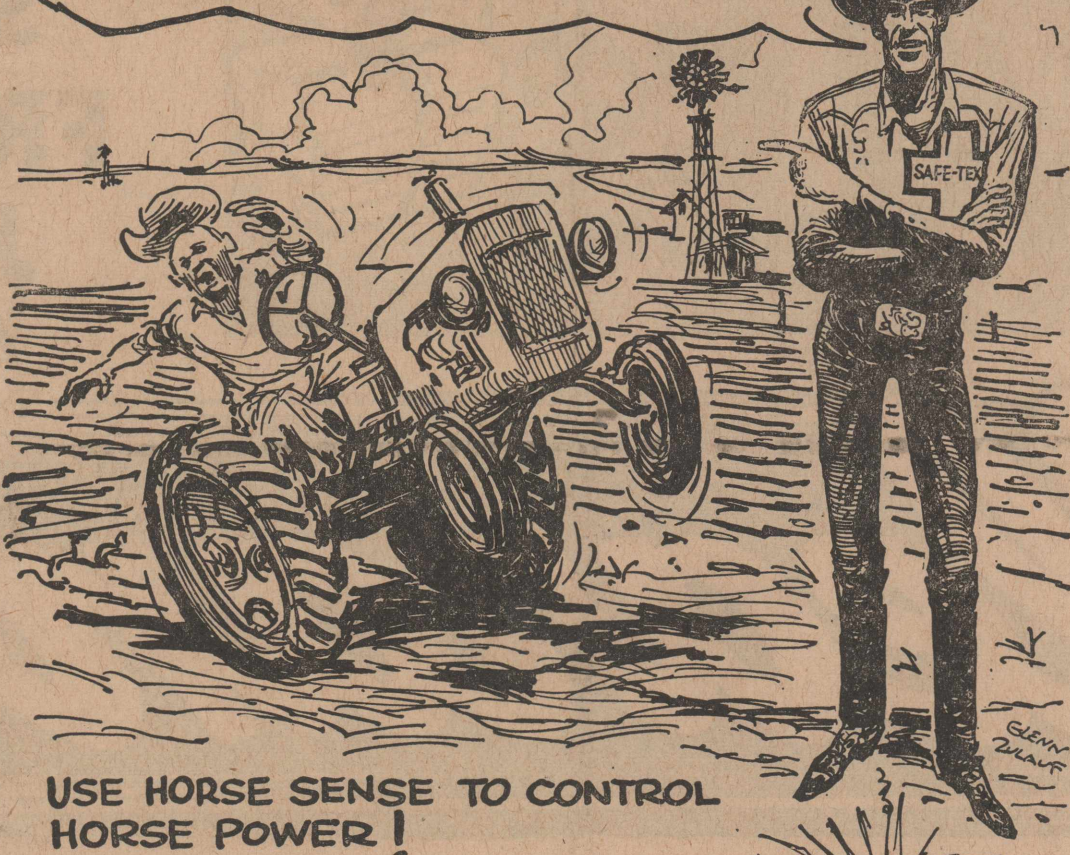

The Creek County study was made by the Oklahoma Insurance Information Office.

Holleys Return from Funerals

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Holley and Dena have returned from Lamesa and Winters, where they were called by the deaths of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Lee (Pud) Wright and their 15-months old daughter, Laura Ann, of Winters.

Their deaths resulted from a head-on collision near Lamesa December 23, as they were en route to Muleshoe to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Holley. Two other children were critically injured, Dennis Ray, 11, and Brenda Lee, 8. The boy has undergone surgery several times since the accident, and the condition of both children is improving.

The Wright family had visited in Wellington and met a number of people here.

The collision occurred when a New Mexico motorist hit the railing of a bridge, then veered into the Wright's traffic lane. Mr. and Mrs. Holley said. Driver of the other car was not badly hurt, they added.

The little girl was killed instantly. Mr. and Mrs. Wright lived a short time.

Funeral services for the three were held at First Baptist Church in Winters Christmas Day, and burial was in Winters cemetery.

Dodson, Reed Split Twinbill

Friday night, Jan. 2, the cage teams from Dodson, the Mustangs, journeyed to Reed for a double-header with the Indians.

In the first game of the twinbill, Dodson girls bowed to a spirited Reed team by the score of 43-35. Zenith Swift led the scoring for Dodson with 19 points. Myra Hernandez scored 14 but their efforts were not enough to outscore Reed's forwards. This loss dropped Dodson to an eight won-eight lost record for this season.

During the second game, the Mustangs combined good team play with the scoring of Benson Hernandez and Kenneth Hunt to drop the Indians 46-36. Reed, who was hoping to get a rating among the top ten teams in Oklahoma, could not cope with the Mustangs' man-for-man defense.

Benson Hernandez scored 22 points, and Kenneth Hunt scored 15 for the Mustangs. Jim Bull was high scorer for the losers with 13 points. The win gave the Mustangs an 8-8 record also.

TOMBSTONE TERRITORY

Before World War I Fairy Soap was the largest seller on the American market. Mother used it as a beauty aid. Junior used it in the bath tub. Sister used it to shampoo her hair. And father used it to wash that portion of his face which wasn't covered with mustache and mutton chops. In magazines, on bill boards and in newspapers, you would see advertisements of Fairy Soap.

During the first great war the demand for Fairy Soap was so great that the manufacturers dropped their huge advertising program with an eye to making a bigger profit. They figured Fairy Soap was so well known it would carry itself. They were wrong. Other far sighted soap manufacturers stepped in with appealing advertising campaigns and took over the market. Fairy Soap was never able to come back and today lies in the graveyard alongside the Gold Dust Twins, Saint Jacobs Oil, Melon's Baby Food, Dolly Varden Chocolates, Omar cigarettes, Maxwell automobiles and many other products that died a natural economic death due to lack of advertising.
