Officers of the city police department, watchful of the safety of life and property, find two men attempting to knock the knob from a safe in a filling station, and kill one of the men in a subsequent gun fight. Press association wires will carry the story over the state and nation. It is not bad advertising. It will cause the men who seek to prey on the property of others to stop and think. A few more receptions like this from vigilant officers and there will be a practical end to knob-knocking and highway robbery.

Texas bankers know the value of a dead bank robber. Each dead bank bandit is worth $5000 to his slayer, according to the Texas Bankers association. The association doesn't want live bandits. It wants dead ones and it will pay $5000 for each hi-jacker shot down while engaged in the robbery or attempted robbery of any member bank. Dead bandits and robbers can't escape through technicalities of the law, they can't draw suspended sentences or brief terms which will allow them to return to their trade within a short time. And they preach a powerful sermon to their own kind.

So far as it appears on facts offered, Wichita Falls officers proceeded with due caution Sunday morning, although they were compelled to kill in the course of defending their lives and upholding the course of the law. It is wise to act with caution when in doubt. A Junior college student, who delivers papers for The Record News, reported he was stopped and questioned by a group of heavily armed men about 4 o'clock Sunday morning. Intelligent officers should be able to distinguish between a Junior college student and a law-breaker without much trouble. They were in this instance, but a less careful group of men, or an easily-frightened student, might have precipitated a tragedy which would bring universal regret.

H. W. Barton is impressed with the success of rice growing in Northwest Texas and plans to put considerable acreage in the crop next year as an experiment. Others are expected to join him. Rice culture in this section of the country seems to be regarded more or less as a freakish piece of business. It may not prove so.

There are always those who are willing to take the lead in development, and there are always those who shy at any change from custom. The experimenter and the progressive always wins in the long run. Then his discovery is adopted to general use. It is fortunate that the Wichita valley has so many men who are willing to invest their time and money in work that also profits others. It is the chief reason for the growth and progress of Wichita Falls and Wichita county.

The Kincheloe brothers at Lake Pauline secured 111 bushels on one acre of rice, and an average of 100 bushels on several acres. The federal report just released on rice production in Texas gives the average yield for the state as 39 bushels per acre. Valley farmers might think that over.

Alva Wilgus, V. N. Armstrong and Charlie Spragins were the stalwarts who went to El Paso for the Texas Advertising clubs convention. They brought home the honors and the next convention with the aid of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and members of the local club. Three Wichita Falls men were elected to office, W. S. Abbott as second vice president, and T. A. Bradley and A. E. Kelley as directors. These three men did not attend the convention, but their work was already well known among other clubs of the state, and on this basis they were chosen as leaders in the next year's program of all Texas advertising clubs.

FATE BLOCKS ATTEMPT TO KILL OBREGON

Former Mexico President Object of Assassin In Bomb Blast

THREE IN ATTACK

Would-be Slayers Caught By Police To Face Firing Squad

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13—An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Gen. Alvaro Obregon, presidential candidate, was made here this afternoon.

The general, who arrived here late yesterday from his ranch in the state of Sonora, was driving through the streets with three companions when a closed car drew alongside.

Two bombs were tossed at Obregon's car. One hit the car and bounced back into the center of the street where it exploded. The second exploded in front of the car, after the driver had stopped.

Two persons were killed by the blasts, one is dying and three were seriously injured by pieces of the flying metal.

Several shots were also fired at Obregon.

The famous Yaqui Indian fighter was unshaken by the attempt on his life, and after seeing that the injured were being cared for, he got into his car and attended a bull fight.

Police immediately launched an investigation and several arrests were made.

OBREGON'S WIFE GETS NOTICE OF ATTACK

NOGALES, Ariz., Nov. 13. (AP)—Telegrams received in Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, tonight by Senora Maria Tapia de Obregon, wife of General Alvaro Obregon, candidate for the presidency of Mexico, related an attempt on her husband's life while he was riding in an automobile in Mexico City today.

Obregon and an attorney by the name of Orci, were driving through preparatory to going to a bullfight where the general was to have officiated as master of ceremonies when the attempt to assassinate him was made, the telegram said. A car bearing three men passed the automobile in which Obregon was riding. As the trio sped by two of them, sitting in the back seat of the automobile, hurled two bombs at the presidential candidate. The bombs failed to explode.

General Ortero and Juan Jaime, who were riding in an automobile directly behind Obregon, gave chase to the attempted assassins. After a pursuit of several miles the three men were caught at La Reforma, a suburb of Mexico City. They immediately were remanded to the military prison at Mexico City and were to have received summary hearing with probable execution tomorrow morning.

The names of the three men making the attempt on Obregon's life, were not given in the telegrams.

Senora Obregon early in the evening received a meager telegram from the bullfight ring in Mexico City, telling of the attempt on her husband's life. Direct telegraphic communication was established by her between Nogales, Sonora, and Mexico City and additional details of the attempted assassination were received. In a second telegram it was said that General Obregon, apparently not fearing further attempts on his life, was going to a popular cafe in Mexico City tonight where he was to be guest of honor at a formal banquet.

Hambone's Meditations

Sole Candidate

Here is another latest of General Alvaro Obregon, Mexico's "strong man" and sole presidential candidate since the execution of General Francisco Serrano and the flight of General Gomez. He was snagged on his return to his home in Sonora, from Mexico City.

BURNS CALLS CHARGES "LIE"

Detective Denies Plot To Influence Jury

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—"Carry on! You will be punished for."

This in substance is what William J. Burns, the detective, is alleged to have told William J. McMullin, erstwhile Burns operative, "L-37"—but in reality a government spy after the two men had testified early last week before the federal grand jury investigating charges of jury tampering in the Fall-Sinclair case.

Their activities, including the framing of alleged false affidavits for the purpose of "securing a mistrial if necessary," of the famous Teapot Dome case, have been related in detail by McMullin—28-year-old Philadelphia, World war veteran—before the grand jury.

"Carry on! You've done a bully job." Burns is alleged to have said.

Probe Winding Soon

Closely guarding the "still more sensational" disclosures of the amazing tale of alleged perjured testimony, falsification of affidavits and subordination of perjury related by District Attorney Peyton C. Gordon yesterday, the government prosecutors today laid plans for winding up the inquiry early this week.

While Major Gordon and his chief aide, Neil Burkinshaw, made preparations for handing such indictments as may be returned by the grand jury, additional details of this most amazing episode in the history of American jurisprudence came to light today.

Gordon and his aides were at the court house most of the day.

In another section of the capital William J. Burns, head of the far-flung detective agency which bears his name, reiterated his charges that McMullin's revelations were "a —— lie." He said he wants to go before the grand jury and refute the admit ex-Burns agent who enlisted in the Burns service on October 13 and eleven days later hated to government counsel an alleged collusal plot to bring about a miscarriage of justice in the naval oil conspiracy case.

RECORD HAUL MADE ON TIP BY BRALLEY

Giant Distillery Raided 12 Miles From Here In Clay County

TWO MEN ARRESTED

Charges Brought Against Pair in Court At Henrietta

Tipped off as to the location of the purported distillery by Sheriff W. G. Bralley, Sheriff George Cunningham of Henrietta and his deputies, accompanied by the Wichita county sheriff, early Sunday afternoon arrested two men, and confiscated a still estimated to have a capacity of 1000 gallons which they found in a shed near the banks of the Wichita river 12 miles east of here in Clay county.

The still was in the full blast of operation when discovered by the party of officers, Sheriff Bralley said. Encased brick framework, equipped with modern gas burners, and located near an enormous cooling vat which was described as about 10 feet high and eight feet across, with a capacity of about 3000 gallons, the still is though by officers to be the largest and the most modern ever discovered in operation in this region.

Ray Gumits and L. B. Gross, discovered in charge of the still, were arrested by the officers, and taken to Henrietta where formal complaints charging each of them with the manufacture and possession of intoxicating liquors were filed by W. J. Glasgow, district attorney. The men are being held in the Clay county jail at Henrietta.

Two large trucks were sent from Henrietta to dismantle the still and bring the confiscated property to the county seat, Sheriff Bralley said. Besides containing the still and the large cooling vat, the iron structure that housed the paraphernalia also contained 2200 gallons of mush, 3500 pounds of sugar and about 100 gallons of perfected whisky, officers reported.

Sheriff Cunningham had been informed of the presence of the still in his county by Sheriff Bralley, the latter said, and the party of Clay county officers came to Wichita Falls early Sunday afternoon in order to invite the Wichita county sheriff to participate in the raid.

Italian Lira Jumps After False Reports

ROME, Nov. 13.—Reports of the revaluation of the lira at 100 to the British pound, and rumors that Finance Minister Count Volpi is to be appointed to a diplomatic post, either at Paris or Washington, caused a sudden flare in lira yesterday. Both rumors were promptly quashed by statements inspired by Premier Mussolini.

Pretty Actress Sues Husband For Divorce

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Charging neglect and cruelty and at the same admitting that her husband's career had interfered with their manifold happiness, Miss Helen Munson, popular actress and star of "Seventh Heaven," today filed suit for divorce against Humphrey Bogart, of "The Saturday's Children" company now playing here.

Three Sailors Killed When Vessel Sinks

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 13.—News of the sinking of the schooner Virginia Pendleton with a cargo of salt, 120 miles north of Great Abaco and of the sufferings from exposure, thirst and hunger of her crew was brought here tonight by the auxiliary schooner Eugene, with seven of the rescued seamen aboard. Three others were lost.

Body of Slain Man Discovered In Field

DECATUR, Texas, Nov. 12. (AP)—The body of an unidentified white man was found with a stab wound in the neck in a pasture near Wilbar Point, 22 miles from here, by Jim Middleton, a farmer. Physician declared the man has been dead for about six weeks.

FINAL HONORS PAID TO TOBIN

Thousands Attend Rites At San Antonio

By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 13. Mayor John W. Tobin was buried today.

Private services were held at the Tobin home this morning. At 11 o'clock the body of the mayor was taken to the Municipal auditorium to await the public services at 2 o'clock, and to enable the thousands of the mayor's friends to look upon his features.

The public service was most impressive. Long before the vested choir of St. Mark's Episcopal church entered the auditorium with a chant for the dead upon their lips, every seat in the huge building was taken.

For three hours, people passed by the casket and either took seats to await the service or left the building.

At either end of the casket stood a stapping policeman. Behind the casket, filling the big orchestra pit, were hundreds of beautiful floral pieces.

The most Rev. Arthur J. Drossarts, archbishop of San Antonio, the Venerable R. S. McKenzie, arch-deacon of the West Texas Diocese Episcopal church, and Rabbi Ephraim Frisch of Temple Bethel, made short addresses.

Death List in Hotel Fire Includes Eight

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 13. —An early morning fire that trapped occupants of three floor rooms in the Grayson apartment hotel here resulted in the loss of eight lives today. Thirteen persons suffered injuries and one of them, a city fireman, may die. The fire, originated from an unknown cause in an elevator shaft.

Serious Defect Found In Ship's Equipment

ESSEX, Nov. 13.—Discovery of a serious defect in the vessel's machinery resulted in the cancellation of the sailing of the liner Dublin Hall an hour before the ship was scheduled to depart for New York yesterday. All passengers and baggage were disembarked while the ship was ordered to the dry dock.

OCEAN FLIGHT SHIP CRASHES IN ROUGH SEA

German Plane Wrecked In Accident at Horta, Azores Port

ON WAY TO NEW YORK

Plane Was Just Making Start For America As Its Goal

HORTA, The Azores, Nov. 13.—Another attempted trans-Atlantic airplane flight ended in disaster today when the German Heinkel seaplane, "D-1229," crashed while attempting to take off for New York and was wrecked.

None of the plane's three occupants, Pilot Hertz Merz; radio operator and co-pilot, Wilhelm Beck, and Mechanic Fritz Rhode, were injured, although they were thrown into the sea when the plane turned over.

The exact cause of the disaster was not ascertained, although it was believed to have been due to one of the wing-floats striking a small wave just as the heavy seaplane lifted from the water.

The D-1229 left the harbor at 2 o'clock this morning, after having its engines thoroughly tested. Everything looked propitious for the start. The plane taxied over a brightly moonlit path toward the open sea, which was barely rippled by a light southerly breeze.

After getting clear of the harbor Merz opened the throttle wide, sending the big plane roaring over the water. The plane had gathered full speed and was about to leave the water when there was a loud report like an explosion and the plane was seen to somersault and crumple like so much matchwood.

A rescue launch rushed with all speed to the scene and pulled the occupants of the plane from the water, apparently unhurt.

The disaster to the D-1229 caused Pilot Felix Leone of the companion plane, D-1230, to postpone his attempt to start for New York today. The D-1230, a Junkers seaplane, has been at Horta for several weeks, awaiting favorable weather for the start for its flight to New York.

Miss Lilli Dillenz, Viennese actress, is a passenger aboard the D-1229.

$2000 Diamond Ring Recovered by Police

A diamond ring, valued at $2000, stolen late Saturday afternoon from the residence of Mrs. E. H. Voss, 709 Wofford street, was recovered early Sunday with the arrest of a 12-year-old boy by Police Officers Pat Allen and Luke Hart.

The ring was returned to the owner, who requested police to release the boy, as she did not want to prosecute him.

Mrs. Voss told police she had fed the boy for the last two or three days, and had no suspicion that "anything was wrong with him."

BOY LOSES HIS HAND IN BLAST

Flash Powder Explosion Injures Youth

Burnley McCullough, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett McCullough, suffered the loss of his right hand, which was amputated just above the wrist, in an explosion of a bottle of flashlight powder with which he was playing in his father's shop, the Bradford Supply company, about 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

The boy, badly burned over the chest, abdomen, thighs, and face, as well as his right arm, was rushed to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital where amputation of the right hand was found necessary. His condition, attendants said, is serious, though not critical.

Mr. and Mrs. McCullough were on their way to El Paso at the time of the accident, and were recalled to Wichita Falls by a rush message. They had not arrived at a late hour Sunday night. Mr. McCullough is manager of the Bradford Supply company.

BOWIE PARK BOY MAY LOSE HIS RIGHT EYE

J. A. Wilson, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson of Bowie Park is confined in the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital with serious injuries to his right eye, sustained about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon when he was hit with a stick while playing with a group of his companions.

The eye was critically injured, according to reports of physicians, and is to be removed in an operation early Monday morning.

Though not acquainted with the details of the accident, attendants at the hospital said young Wilson was playing with three or four other boys, and one of them, tossing a stick, aimed too close to Wilson's head.

Radical Changes For U. S. Cavalry Proposed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Radical changes in the cavalry of the United States army to increase its efficiency were recommended in the annual report of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, chief of cavalry, made public today. The recommendations included substitution of a semi-automatic rifle for the present Springfield rifle, and the addition of an armored car unit, a tank unit and an observation squadron of airplanes.

HANKOW, Nov. 12 (AP)—The violent disorders that broke out in the native quarter of Hankow yesterday when the military dictator, General Tang Sung-Chi fled before the approach of the Nanking armies, continued today but with diminished intensity. The many fires that were started by the fleeing soldiers were partly under control.

SMITH ADMITS HIS TRUE NAME HOWARD HALL

Police Also Identify Man By Means of Finger Print Record

DEAD MAN UNKNOWN

Officers Work On Lines Which May Identify Slain Man

Presented with his own fingerprints brought from the Gainesville, Texas, bureau by Cecil Birch, identification expert, the suspect who gave police the name of Ray Smith when captured early Sunday morning confessed at a late hour Sunday night that he had served a two and one-half year term in the Oklahoma state penitentiary for burgery under his right name, Raymond Hall. The sentence, he said, was assessed in Kay county, Oklahoma. Chief of Police "Doc" Dudley of Gainesville, and Sheriff Crawford of Cleburne left here late Sunday night after apparently failing to identify Hall's slain companion.

Two possible identifications of the man slain early Sunday by two local officers in a gunfight with two alleged safe robbers, who late last night were being sifted by the police and members of the district attorney's staff, as Ray Smith, companion of the slain man now under arrest, continued to assert that he did not know his dead pal's name.

One of these identifications would establish the dead man as Cleo Dickson, wanted at Waco on a charge of hi-jacking. Officers are expecting to come here from the Central Texas city some time Monday in an effort to identify the body. Dickson is known to have been in this territory and local officers were on the lookout for him at the time of the slaying of the yet unidentified man.

May Be Dead Ogre.

The other line of identification, indicated by the police in their investigation during the day and Sunday night, is that the dead man may be the "road bandit" who during past weeks has been terrorizing the lanes about Wichita Falls by robbing couples and attacking women. This angle was given attention after E. F. Fruechte, assistant district attorney, declared that the slain man's appearance tallied with descriptions given of the man held responsible for the road attacks.

Mr. Fruechte informed city and county officers of the likeness, and investigations into the suspicion got under way. Chief of Police Frank Burns said he would get in touch with victims of the highway attacks, some of whom no longer live in Wichita Falls, and bring them here, that a definite attempt at identification might be made.

Officers of the sheriff's department were likewise notified, to get in touch with road victims who had asked their aid in the apprehension of the bandit.

Identity Still Mystery.

At an early hour Sunday night, officers had made little headway in establishing the identity of the man. Nearly four hours of questioning of Ray Smith, companion of the dead man who is being held in the city jail, failed to bring anything new to light.

Mr. Fruechte, who conducted the investigation in the early hours Sunday morning, said that Smith had virtually refused to make a statement to officers concerning himself further than to indicate that he had served over two years in the Oklahoma state penitentiary on a charge of burglary, and had been released from the institution on Oct. 8. The district attorney's office, Mr. Fruechte said, has asked prison officials to verify the supposition.

Pal Denies Slain Man.

Smith also denied an intimate acquaintance with his slain companion. The story told by Smith,

Trial of Chicago School Head on Pro-British Charges Nears Final Chapter

Teachers to Testify That Unpatriotic Matter Was Taught In Lecture Course

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—When the trial of William Mirandrew, suspended school superintendent charged with insubordination and with inculcating pro-British propaganda in the Chicago schools, is resumed here tomorrow morning, a former New York newspaper man will be the last of the witnesses to testify against him.

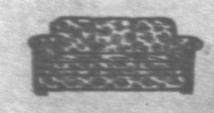

He is Charles Grant Miller. His testimony is expected to deal with the alleged pro-British propaganda charges against the suspended superintendent.

According to Frank Righeimer, special attorney for the board of education, before which the trial is being conducted, Miller will be followed by a number of teachers and school children. Their statements will be linked up with Miller's "general" testimony.

"The trial will by no means end there," said Righeimer, "for we have a number of witnesses we wish to question."

He intimated that among these witnesses will be a teacher who will tell of alleged unpatriotic teachings in history classes conducted for teachers at the University of Chicago, which she attended at the suggestion of Superintendent McAndrew.

Mr. Miller took part in a similar investigation of textbooks of New York several years ago. Recently he came here at the invitation of Mayor William Hale Thompson to aid him in his drive on pro-British propaganda.

SHRINERS PAY SUNDAY VISIT

Bowie, Bellevue, Henrietta Witness Pilgrimage

Members of Muskat temple returned Sunday from the three towns of Bowie, Bellevue, and Henrietta, which they visited in the afternoon on the last of their pilgrimages.

The party, consisting of the divan, band and patrol, as well as many guests, left here about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and were welcomed into Bowie at 1:30 by O. W. Watson, mayor. The address was answered on the part of the Shriners by Potentate Guy Rogers. Mrs. J. E. Pitman gave a vocal solo, and Miss Birtha Kruger gave a reading, wollowing the lunch which the visitors were served by Bowie nobles.

Arriving at Bellevue about 3 o'clock, the visitors were welcomed by N. T. Gaines, mayor. The potentate again answered the address. Miss Byers of Bellevue gave a reading, Ed Pyland and Helen Gault, both of Bellvue, sang a duet, Miss Patsy Lou Sherrell, also of Bellvue, gave a reading, and Mrs. J. S. Pitman of Wichita Falls entertained with a vocal solo. Joe Hunt, of Wichita Falls, gave a reading, preceding the drill staged by the patrol.

Frank Bunting, mayor of Henrietta, delivered the welcoming address in that city. After a program which included a vocal solo by Mrs. Pitman, a reading by Joe Hunt, and harmonica solos by Guy Rogers Jr., and Noble Charles Johnson, the visitors were given a dinner in the Masonic hall.

Those included in the trip follow:

Kay Addresses Bible Class Audience On Text: "Love of God For Men"

Judge John Kay addressed members of the Kay Bible class Sunday morning on the subject, "The Love of God For Men." 225 members were in attendance.

The text of the address follows:

Over on the far Eastern corner of the Mediterranean sea, they had a group of philosophers who claimed the great virtue of brevity. They said that whatever a man had to say ought to be encompassed in a very few words; so, one of the philosophers went out and worked out a platform and, when he came back with it, he said: "It is hard work to be good". But, they shot that all to pieces. They said: 'Bill, you never were good. You don't know anything about that. Go back in the woods and fix that up and come back in better shape.' He went away and was gone about a week and then, when he came back, he said: 'It is hard to become good', and they let it go at that.

'It is hard to become good.' I don't agree with a lot of people about what constitutes sin. I don't know that my theology would be worth much in one of these big institutions. But, I don't think that your little doings—what you go out here and do—constitutes a sin. I think it is your thinking inside of you. If I am right about that, then there is many a thief that never stole anything, many a murderer that never killed anybody, many a drunkard that never took a drink. But, that Savior says: 'As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he', so that sin is a deeper question than we ordinarily think, if I am right about it. I just throw that thought in this morning for whatever you think it is worth. But, whenever you go around thinking evil about your neighbor, or your community, then you have got what the Indians call 'a bad heart'. You are wrong inside. Your bad heart may not lead you to the extent of burning your neighbor's barn, but the burning of the barn isn't as bad as it is to think about it.

The Story of Amos.

Now, the lesson this morning is about another prophet. We had in our lesson last Sunday a prophet named Amos, a fellow that came up out of the woods to the city, talking to the Jews. This morning, this prophet was an accomplished, well-to-do man who had lived in luxury, but he tells them the same message. A man doesn't have to be poor to be right. He doesn't have to be cultivated or ignorant, but religion ought to be the same thing and produce the same kind of heart in each and every man.

Now, what does this Hosea talk about to the people? He doesn't talk about the love of men for each other. There was not as much said about that in the Old Testament as there is in the New. There was not as much said about it in the New Testament as is said these days. But he talked about the love of God for men.

Now, I don't understand that. I don't know how that God, wherever His great throne is, however many great universes he manages, I don't understand the least little bit of how or why He should care for one man down here on the earth. I don't understand that.

There are some men writing some books these days as philosophers and scientists; writing it like it was something new; writing it like it was the high voice of authority. Maybe some of you have been reading them. "Why We Behave Like Human Beings', is one of the books. Another one, 'The Story of Philosophy', and a lot of people are buying these books and a lot of people are reading them, and some people think they are great books. Out of all the list of books that I could name here this morning, there is not one philosopher that ever took a drink out of the deep well of philosophy; there is not one man whose book will last 10 years; and, there is not one new thought from cover to cover of these books and, yet, they explain away God, and heaven, and the universe, and man's immortality with a brush.

Don't Know Too Much.

You know, I don't like a man that knows too much. I am afraid of that man who has got some question absolutely settled. I am afraid of that politician who knows all about the league of nations, or the tariff, or farm relief, or taxation. I am afraid of that man or that woman who says they know all about how to raise children. I am afraid of the school teacher who says he has reached the very top in teaching school, and of the doctor who says that he has now got to the place where he can handle typhoid. Our struggle is forward and upward, and it is mighty little that we know and a mighty little that we can say that we are sure about; so, when we come to this question of God's love for man, I don't know—I don't know why—but, I do know that it is true. It shows in every flower that blossoms and in every field that turns yellow in the autumn and in every blessing that comes down on your head and on mine, that somewhere, somehow, there is one that cares for us and cares for us with an infinite love. I always feel that way. I always feel there is a power higher, stronger and better than I that cares for me, and that sometimes cares for me more than I care for myself.

You know, some of us don't care for ourselves like we might, or should, or could. We don't. It is pretty easy for a man to say, sometimes, "Well, I don't amount to anything, anyhow." "Nobody in the community cares about me. I am not getting anywhere. I am not doing any good." Some of you have felt like that. I know you have. Right there, and right then, you are trying to sell yourself to yourself below par.

A man ought to feel that he is one of God's creatures, that he has been selected in infinite mercy to be a son of the Father, that he has been selected to stand up as an exampler in his community and, from that he ought to be strong in confidence in himself and in the love of his Maker.

Bootleg King to Face Jury As Wife's Slayer

By Universal Service

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 13.—George Remus, erstwhile bootleg king, will go on trial here tomorrow morning charged with first degree murder of his wife, Mrs. Imogene Holmes Remus, whom he shot on October 6 after overtaking a taxi-cab in which she was on her way to court for the trial of her suit for divorce from him.

Remus will defend himself, he repeatedly has declared. It will be his defense that the conspiracies and misconduct of his wife with Franklin L. Dodge, junior, formen department of justice star operative, so affected him as to cause temporary insanity at the time of the shooting.

Remus Plans Plea

"His Beautiful Imogene" whom he alternately cried for and cursed as he lay in his cell at Atlanta prison, plotted with Dodge to steal the million he had made in his liquor transaction; they plotted to have him deported from the country and instituted proceedings to this end; they agonized him by pleasure trips about the country while he was a prisoner, will be Remus' pleas, supported by testimony taken from a hundred witnesses in a dozen cities.

Gunmen were offerend $15,000 to take his life. Once, he says, when he was a government witness in a liquor conspiracy trial at Indianapolis, the district attorney armed him and hid him in an apartment to protect him from gunmen.

The state, however, will depend upon testimony that Remus was motivated by revenge. Ruth Remus, daughter of the slain woman by a former husband, is expected to prove the prosecution's best witness. Her mother was in constant fear of her life from the groundless jealousy of Remus, even during the height of Remus' bootleg career, at the time which he was entertaining on a lavish scale in the $300,000 home he bought his wife, the girl says.

Court Wants Action

Judge Chester R. Shook, who will hear the case, has insisted that no delay will be booked.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the trial which is expected to take about three weeks.

Ganna Walska To Lose Husband

Harold McCormick Plans To Ask Divorce

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—The suit for divorce against Mme. Ganna Walska which Harold F. McCormick, Chicago millionaire official of the International Harvester company will shortly file here, tells the story of his search for love, it was authoritatively learned today.

In it is revealed how vainly the one-time husband of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, sought to win and hold the affections of the attractive young Polish prima donna.

The document is said to be replete with expressions of the heart-aches the millionaire suffered, as well as the shock of his disillusionment.

McCormick in California.

Mr. McCormick, who was today reported to be staying either at a Santa Barbara, Calif., hotel, or at the home of Stanley McCormick in Montecito, near there, is expected back in Chicago in a few days to confer with his attorney, George L. Schein. The filing of the suit will probably follow his return, it was said.

Meanwhile word has been received from Paris, where Mme. Ganna Walska, former prima donna, is conducting a perfume shop and profitably selling aids to beauty, that she will not contest the suit. In fact she candidly admits that when her husband charges her with refusing to live in Chicago with him he is telling the truth.

Desertion Is Charge.

The technical charge in the suit will be desertion, it is understood.

Mme. Walska will likely be represented by Dudley Field Malone, who obtained a divorce for her in Paris from Alexander Cochran, millionaire carpet manufacturer, in 1922.

In the event Mr. Malone does not appear in the Chicago court on behalf of his fair client, he will be represented by an attorney here.

It has been learned that Mr. McCormick is certain he will not be required to pay alimony. Just before his marriage to Mme. Walska, he presented her with $10,000,000.

No Alimony Issue.

Since then he showered costly gifts of jewelry upon her, besides spending large sums to help her in her fight to win recognition as an opera singer. He feels, consequently, that he has been generous enough to void the question of alimony, his intimates have said.

Furthermore, the Harvester head is said to have flatly refused to start divorce proceedings in Paris where there would be no publicity.

"No," he has been quoted as saying, "Chicago is my home and there can be no question involved there of establishing legal residence. A divorce obtained there (in Chicago) will be absolute and binding, and that's the sort of divorce I want.

McCormick Very Bitter.

"And, besides, I know that my friends there are sorry for me. I want them to have my story in detail and to know that I am justified. I realize the ridiculous position I have been forced to take and I feel very bitter about it."

WOMAN WINS POINT IN TRIAL

Slain Husband Held No Life Insurance

By Universal Service.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Nov. 13.—Hope for the ultimate freedom of Mrs. Margaret T. Lilliendahl, accused of the murder of her husband, Dr. William A. Lilliendahl, was considerably brightened today when her attorneys announced that the widow's husband did not carry an insurance policy.

This smashes the state's first contention that she and Willis Beach, 52-year-old poultry farmer, also in prison in connection with the Lilliendahl murder, entered into a conspiracy to kill the doctor "for the insurance."

Bigger Navy Bloc Fights Tax Drop

Five-Year Expansion Plan Will Be Pushed

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Decision of republican leaders in the house to put through the tax-reduction bill before Christmas stirred up a row today among advocates of projects calling for federal appropriations that will not be considered until after the treasury surplus has been absorbed in the tax-relief bill.

"Big Navy" men will demand that the tax bill be modified after it reaches the senate, if necessary, to provide funds for a five-year naval expansion program. Representative Fred A. Britten (R) of Illinois, leader of the "Big Navy" bloc, said:

"Adequate national defense comes first. I believe that the tax bill can be passed by the house before the Christmas holidays, but we will carry out our plans for a stronger navy, regardless of the revenue bill.

Navy Advocates Busy

"Should it be found that the navy-building program will call for more money than is left in the treasury after the revenue bill goes into effect, we shall demand that the bill be modified.

"The senate is not likely to pass the revenue bill until late in February or March. By that time some idea will be obtained as to what the navy requirements will be, and the tax bill can be changed in time."

Advocates of Mississippi valley flood control, farm relief and other projects calling for appropriations echoed similar war-like sentiments.

Farm bloc leaders cautioned congress to "go slowly" in tax reduction, until the question of farm relief has been settled. Should a bill calling for a federal fund of $100,000,000 or more for farm relief be passed, that may have a bearing on the size of the tax "melon."

Flood Control Factor

Mississippi valley flood control is certain to absorb millions of dollars the first year. Estimates are that a comprehensive flood control plan will cost from $250,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 spread over a number of years.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has pointed out to the House Ways and Means committee that the $3225,000,000 tax reduction recommended by him does not allow for any new appropriation measures in congress. His warning that a deficit may result should congress exceed this maximum, has caused alarm among the forces pleading for national projects that call for monetary outlays.

Politics Cut Ice

Next year being an election year, members of congress up for reelection are anxious to obtain appropriations for federal projects in their districts.

Republican leaders have determined to push the new revenue bill through first, in order to head off the rush to the "pork barrel," with the defense that the treasury will have been milked dry by the tax-cut bill.

GIRL SLAIN BY CHUM'S FATHER

Maid Mistaken as Thief By Deaf Man

By Universal Service.

VALPARISO, Ind. Nov. 13—Mistaken for a robber, Paula Grafton, 17, who was returning home from a dance, was shot dead here today.

The girl, finding her parents' home locked, tried to crawl through a window of the nearby home of her chum.

The chum heard the noise and aroused her father, who is deaf. The father mistaking the whole affair seized his revolver and when the Gratton girl got her head and shoulders over the window ledge fired.

Slain Man's Pal Refuses To Talk

as quoted by Mr. Fruechte, runs that Smith met his companion in Iowa Park last Friday, and that he (the companion) introduced himself as "Blackie," refusing to give any other name. Smith, according to Mr. Fruechte, said, "Well, people call me 'Whitie', so I guess we'll make a pretty good pair."

The two came to Wichita Falls later that day, Smith's conversation ran on, and secured a room at the home of Mrs. Cleo M. Berlin, 1200 Indiana avenue.

Silent on Shooting.

Smith likewise refused to commit himself in a statement regarding the shooting, further than to state that just as the two men were surprised by the officers, and had jumped in their car to make a getaway, "Blackie" handed him a gun, according to Mr. Fruechte.

Officers from most of the principal cities of Northwest Texas are expected to arrive here Monday to aid in the work of identifying the slain man, Chief of Police Burns said Sunday, after messages had been forwarded to all nearby police informing them of the shooting. Chief of Police "Doc" Dudley of Gainesville, officers from the Cleburne sheriff's office, and others have reported they probably have clues that will aid in the work.

That assistance would be given officers in identifying the man by his companion, Smith, was not felt by officers Sunday after Smith had denied any intimate knowledge of "Blackie." Smith told officers, however, that he had heard "Blackie" talk of relatives in Oklahoma City or Tulsa, and police wired those cities immediately for assistance.

Known as "Blackie."

The man whose only known name is "Blackie," fell dead with five bullet wounds in his body, and his companion, Smith, was captured about 1 o'clock Sunday morning in the rear of a Grant street residence after a running fight with Officers Bentley and Summers, who said they ran on to the two men as they were coming out of the Panhandle filling station, Hayes and Seymour streets.

The two officers said in their report of the affair that they turned the Dodge police car they were driving towards the station and yelled for the men to stop, saying that they were officers. Paying no heed to their calls, the suspects made a frantic effort to break away in their Ford car, which temporarily stuck. Finally giving it the gas, they rode off, pursued by the officers, who opened fire.

Shots Puncture Tires

Officer Bentley shattered the two rear tires of the fleeing Ford after a chase of several blocks, and just before it made a cross cut into the front yard of the A. D. Hudspeth residence, 1503 Grant street, disappearing towards the alley. The pursuing officers approached, they said, again yelling that they were officers of the law, and for the alleged bandits to "stick 'em up."

"Blackie got up," Officer Summers said," and raised his left arm. But in the right hand he had his gun. The other fellow got up, and Blackie opened fire on us, firing one shot before one of our bullets put his gun out of commission, and after several others had laid him low. Smith tried to fire, but the gun he had was prevented from firing by a small wad of paper that had lodged on the firing pin.

Bentley narrowly escaped death when he was struck by the split bullet that came from Blackie's gun. The steel jacket hit the officers belt.

"After Blackie had shot," Summers continued, "Bentley, who had fired most of his shells at the car, let 'em have his last shot; and I emptied my automatic. Blackie fell, crying, 'Don't shoot any more, I'm dead'." The man had been pierced five times, bullets entering both his hands, one entering the body just above the heart, one striking near the right knee, and one in the groin. One of the officers' bullets had hit the man's pistol, putting it out of commission.

After a coroner's inquest had been held, in which Judge O. L. Gibbs had pronounced a verdict of death from gunshot wounds over the slain man, the body was removed to the Merkle Undertaking company, and Smith was taken to jail. The officers, returning to the filling station, found that the knob of the safe had been knocked off, although the inner compartments were untouched. Tools of all descriptions were found in their car, as well as a new firestone casing, and several other articles believed to have been stolen from the place.

Smith Identified

Brought to the police station, Smith was identified by Mrs. Berlin as one of the men who had come to her home for a room last Friday with another man, both of whom, she said, were wearing officers' badges, and were posing as Oklahoma officers.

Earlier in the day she had told police that she had been suspicious of the men since she saw them prowling in other rooms of the boarding house. She came to the police station and told of their masquerade as peace officers, and advised officers to be on the watchout for them. Several articles of clothing, including four shirts and a pair of pants were identified by roomers in the house as property that had been stolen from their rooms, Chief Burns said.

No Complaint Filed

No formal complaints had been filed against Smith Sunday, according to Mr. Fruchte, who said that charges would be withheld until Monday, when more information concerning Smith could be learned.

Rockefeller May Donate Millions For Archaeological Work In Asia

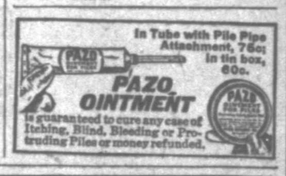

By Universal Service.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 13.—Official announcement of a donation of $2,008,000 by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the establishment of a museum for archaeological research at Jerusalem, is expected to be made by the Palestine government on Monday, it was learned today.

It is understood that there are no strings tied to the Rockefeller donation such as caused the Egyptian government to refuse Mr. Rockefeller's offer of $10,000,000 for a similar museum at Cairo.

However, the donation is contingent upon the Palestine government's donation of the land site for the museum and an undertaking to complete the building within two years.

It was believed here that James Henry Breasted, noted Chicago Egyptologist, was largely responsible for Mr. Rockefeller's donation of the fund.

FULL CHURCH HEARS PASTOR

"Grace of Hospitality" Powers' Text

Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church delivered his Sunday sermon, "The Grace of Hospitality," to a capacity congregation Sunday evening.

The text of the sermon follows:

The writer evidently has in mind an incident in the life of the patriarch, Abraham: "Abraham has stretched his tent under the oak of Mamre." The Syrian sun beats down in all its noonday fury; the cattle and sheep are resting lazily in the shade, and the birds in the boughs of the trees; and the grass and weeds are wilted, with drooping heads. Suddenly, two weary, dusty strangers appear at the tent door of the patriarch, and he runs to meet them and invites them to share his hospitality. Water is brought for their dusty feet, and cakes are placed on the hearth. The fatted calf is killed, and soon they are seated at a sumptuous meal. That evening, when the strangers take their leave, Abraham realizes that he has been entertaining angels unawares. Now, the writer to the Hebrews, remembering how the Christians are persecuted and scattered over the world, writes to the Hebrew Christians and says, "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers, for some have thereby entertained angels unawares."

Now, I thought since we are to be the hosts to the Baptists of Texas this week, it might be well for me to speak to you on this text this morning. We shall have probably three thousand messengers and visitors here during the week—our noble leaders; preachers, missionaries and evangelists; our noble women and laymen, and a host of our fine young people from the country and village churches; from the towns and the great cities. It is my prayer that, when they have come and gone, some of us may have the joy of realizing that, while we were just in the true spirit of Christian hospitality, entertaining strangers, we were also "entertaining angels unawares." I would like to call your attention to this text under three heads, "The Grace, the Spirit and the promise."

The Grace or Hospitality.

This is one of the most beautiful and Christ-like of all Christian graces, and it is one that does not flourish as it did in the days of Abraham, and in the days of our fathers. It would seem that, as our civilization grows, the old-fashioned, Christian hospitality becomes more unusual; the servant problem, the food problem, the high cost of living, and a thousand and one other things seem to choke out the spirit of hospitality. When the stranger knocks at our door now, we all, with one consent, begin to make excuses, and, as a result, he is sent to the hotel. I venture to say there are homes in this church and city that have not entertained a preacher in 10 years. I would like very much to see this grace revived, and see it flourish in our hearts and homes as we receive and welcome and entertain our Baptist brethren and sisters this week in our city. May this plant, that grew up and flourished in the garden of God, be transplanted, grow, blossom and flourish in our hearts and home this week. I would like for you to remember that the distinguishing word in this text is not "friend," or "relative," but "stranger." There will be many who will be glad to open their hearts and homes to an old pastor, friends, or some of their relatives back from the old home, but let us not forget the tired missionary, and the weary stranger, and the lonely messenger that comes from some humble country church—"be not forgetful to entertain strangers." The only thing that we need to know about him is that he is tired and hungry and lonely, and needs rest and food and fellowship. Let this flower of hospitality have a chance to bloom and grow and flourish in your hearts and homes as it has never had before.

And, then, my dear people, I would like to call your attention to the spirit in which this grace is to be exercised. The distinguishing word here is "unawares." This was what made Abraham's hospitality so beautiful—"it was all unawares." He never dreamed, that those tired, dusty strangers were the messengers of the most high God (that is what "angel" means—"messenger"), and those people we will entertain this week are the angels of the churches; the messengers of the most high God. Oh, that we may be able to see underneath all the exterior appearances the fact that they are the messengers of God. Do you remember when Elijah came to the widow and found her gathering chips to cook the last mess of meal for her hungry child, and Elijah said, "Cook some for me first." It seems selfish and heartless on the part of Elijah, and yet, while she never dreamed for whom it was being prepared, she never hesitated to share the last crust of bread with the stranger, and meal did not give out and the cruse of oil never failed until it rained. There is so much in the spirit in which we do a thing. "Let not your good be evil spoken of." There is a way to do a kindness to a friend and make him love you. "The letter killeth, but the spirit maketh alive." The law of kindness and the grace of hospitality should be in our very hearts. It is said that, when Queen Victoria was a little girl, she had a beautiful little pony and cart, and one day, while driving in the park, she noticed the little girls would turn away and cry when she drove by them. She asked her nurse what made them cry, and the nurse told her it was because they wanted a little pony and cart, but were not able to buy one. It is said that, from then on, the little queen did not drive any more in the park. This is the true spirit of hospitality. The real spirit of hospitality does not vaunt itself; it is not proud, but is kind. It would not make anyone feel badly because of his poverty or misfortune. How careful we ought to be to so dress on the street or at church or anywhere so as not to make our poorer sisters or brothers feel badly. I do not think dress parades are in order in the house of God. That is the true spirit of hospitality. I think this must have been the secret of Florence Nightingale's influence over the soldiers. It is said that, when she passed through the hospital, they would rise up on their elbows and kiss her shadow as she passed by. It is said, when she was a school girl, she would, on a rainy day, lend her umbrella to poorer girls and walk home herself in the rain. That was a true spirit of hospitality. It is said that, when Agassiz was a student, he worked hard and denied himself that he might buy a microscope, and would rise early in the morning, and sit late at night and use it, so that he might lend it to poorer students during the day. That may have been the reason he became such a great scientist, and had such a power and influence over his fellow men in later life. There must be no expectation of reward, or hope of mercenary gain in hospitality. We entertain them because they are strangers and need our hospitality. We must not recognize the angel or even suspect him. It must be "all unawares." This is the true spirit of hospitality.

The Promise of Christ.

It is wonderful how many of the commands and precepts of our Lord carry with them a promise, and those that do not have a promise have a reward. And I am so glad that this command to entertain strangers has a promise and a blessed reward with it. I do not know whether it shall come to you as fully as it did to Abraham, but it will be just as real and blessed. There was one great longing in the old patriarch's soul, and that was for a child and heir. That longing was fulfilled that day; it was made sure. There was another longing in his heart that day, and that was to get Lot out of wicked Sodom; and that longing was fulfilled that day. It came through Abraham's entertaining "all unawares" these messengers of God.

Do you suppose that Abraham and Sarah ever got over the visit of those strangers. When Isaac came, they recalled that blessed visit. When Lot came alone out of the burning and wicked city of Sodom, they said he was delivered through the visit of the angels of God to their home. How Abraham must have thanked God that he opened his heart and home to those strangers that day.

In 1811, a sixteen year old boy undertook to walk from Baltimore to Washington D. C. He wasa poor widow's son, and didn't have a pair of shoes. So, he hadn't gone very far before his feet became very sore. He came to a humble farm house along the road, where there was an old man sitting on the porche. He asked him for some water to wash his feet, and the old man noticed the boy's feet were bleeding. He called his boy from the field and asked him if he couldn't lend this stranger a pair of shoes. The young man went into the house and got his best pair of shoes and gave them to the stranger, and they fitted him exactly. The strange boy said, "What is your name? I wish to send you pay for them when I reach Fa[illegible]." But the [illegible]mar boy would not tell him. He said, "I just want to have the pleasure of intertaining a stranger." I do not want any pay for them." The young man went on his way, thinking that in some other way he would find out the boy's name, and pay him for the shoes. He reached Washington, secured a position, and finally opened up a dry goods store. Some years afterward, he passed that way again, and noticed the farm house was vacant. He inquired of the neighbors about the farmer, but no ons seemed to know where they had gone. He kept those old shoes, and often took them out and, showed them to his friends, telling them the story. Finally, this man became very wealthy, and was knighted by the queen of England for his philanthrophy. In 1836, he rode in a carriage with some friends from Baltimore to Washington, and, when he came to that farm house, he got out of the carriage, and went in with his friends, and told them the story of the old shoes. He told them how he would like to find that boy. They became very interested in the story, themselves, and told him they would like to help him find the boy. After a long search, they found that he had moved to New London, Connecticut, and had had the great misfortune to lose his wife and children, and that, now, he was a broken, lonely old man, waiting on the fishermen on the coast of Maine. When Mr. Peabody got that letter, he went and got those old shoes out, and packed them full of the biggest gold coins and bills that he could find, put them into a strong box, and expressed them to the old man. And, when that old man broke open that box, and saw those old shoes, and ran his hands into them, and began to draw out those gold coins and bills, I am sure he said, "I thought I was just entertaining a stranger that day, when I gave that poor boy, with the bleeding feet, my best pair of shoes. But, now, I know that I was entertaining an angel unawares." He had received the reward of those who entertain strangers.

Amanullah Khan, king of Afghanistan, is to soon make his first visit to Europe.

100 Women Enroll in Work to Put Community Chest Campaign Over

A hundred women, prominent in the social and civic activities of Wichita Falls are enthusiastic members of the Womens Division for work in the Community Chest campaign November 20 to 25 according to announcement made by Harry Hines, in charge of the campaign.

"As is the case in all progressive cities the social and civic leaders among the women are actively interested in work of such importance to the community and our Wichita Falls women have always been remarkably generous in giving their time and efforts to further the work of such causes," Mr. Hines declared.

The Womans Board, composed of 10 of the city's leaders with Mrs. C. R. Hartsook as chairman, met with Mr. Hines Saturday afternoon to outline plans for the womens activities in the campaign and it was announced that the hundred women who have been selected as members of the Womans Division will meet Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at the Wichita club.

In speaking of the meeting Mrs. Hartsook stated that the work will be so arranged that no woman will be asked to give more than three hours of her time to the campaign and urged that all members of the division be present at Tuesday's meeting in order that all plans may be outlined to the entire group at once.

Members of the Womans board include Mrs. C. R. Hartsook, chairman, Mrs. G. C. Woodruff, Mrs. R. W. Gutzler, Miss Elva Killingsworth, Mrs. B. L. Fain, Mrs. W. P. Ferguson, Mrs. Wayne Sommerville, Mrs. P. S. Richardson, Mrs. Jim Barnard, Mrs. J. D. Bright and Mrs. T. M. Conrey.

Sam Houston P.-T. A. Plans Shower

The executive board of the Sam Houston P.-T. A. entertained the sponsors of the association Friday afternoon at a party at the home of Mrs. J. R. Roach, 2215 Buchanan street.

The work and the duties of the sponsors were outlined by Mrs. C. E. Russell while Mrs. G. L. Musick planned a shower for a mother whose home was destroyed Friday by fire. The miscellaneous shower is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the school in connection with the regular weekly P.-T. A. meeting.

An Armistice Day program was held for the members of the P.-T. A. at the Sam Houston school following the regular meeting hour. Upon returning to the home of Mrs. Roach, the members were entertained at games and contests.

Dainty refreshments bearing miniature flags were served to the following: Mesdames Carl Davis, C. V. Mangrem, Jimmy Mills, Russell Scott, Pinkston, C. E. Crowell, E. B. Morrow, Harry ten Brink, S. N. Rouche, I. R. Sides, J. C. Paul, T. J. Lester, S. S. Skidmore, W. C. Hackley, H. M. Hines, H. J. Hehmann, A. C. Collins, E. F. Ward, E. P. Wormen, Russell, Finger Jeter, Frances Bone, O. W. Young Wichita Falls

The young lady in the evening dress is Miss Jeanne Claypool. Jeanne dares to be different from the general run of young ladies—she wears a perky red bow, which is a refreshing addition to the charming ensemble of a pair of deep brown eyes, dark hair, dark brows and a warm tinted skin.

She is petite, too, and that is a desirable quality when it is combined with Jeanne's winsome personality. Her Mother says she never does anything, but has the necessary conversational ability to persuade others to do things for her and feel that they're being favored in so doing. She doesn't need to learn to do anything, does she?

Jeanne is orderly and her big brother Ralph, aged eight years, sees to it that her gift of orderliness doesn't become dulled through lack of practice. Both Jeanne and her brother may be found at home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Claypool, 2155 Avenue F.

Mrs. Hamric Entertains Merry Bidders Club

Mrs. Bert Hamric was hostess to the Merry Bidders club Wednesday at her home on Yale when she was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. G. F. Seaman. The house was prettily decorated with autumn flowers and large colorful chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Harry Weisler is the new member of the Merry Bidders club. In the games Miss Jessie Morris won high score and was awarded a dainty corsage; second high score prize was given to Mrs. Dick Wheeler, a hand painted set of salt and pepper shakers. Mrs. Weisler was given the guest prize, pastel tinted sachet bags.

Other guests were: Miss Anna Krajca and Mesdames C. S. Burnett and W. A. Adams. Refreshments were served to the following guests and members: Mesdames Burnett, Adams, George W. White Jr., C. E. Mitzger, Weisler and Wheeler and Misses Anna Krajca, Morris, Lily Roach, Clara Krajca. The next meeting will be on Wednesday evening, November 23, with Miss Clara Krajca, 502 Mississippi, hostess.

Child Celebrates Fourth Birthday

Mrs. C. M. Weatherley entertained a group of children in honor of the fourth birthday of her daughter, Doll Weatherly, at her home at 1403 Polk street, Friday afternoon.

The house was prettily decorated and the table centered with a large birthday cake. The little girls received small perfume bottles for favors, while the boys were given bags of marbles.

Little guests were: Doris Corder, Marcella Dulaney, Nola Gale Terrill, Marie Lowe, Johnnie Boyles, Leo Kelm Jr., Billy Neal Powers, and the honoree.

Address Features Program At Academy Friday

"Patriotism" is the title of the address given by Rev. Lawrence Hoyt Friday at the Academy of Mary Immaculate, when the school celebrated the end of National Education Week with Armistice day and patriotism program.

Reverend Hoyt defined patriotism as more than a mere love of man for the land of his birth, but also as a willingness to obey the laws and ideals of that country. The theme of the address was "He Was the Bravest Citizen of Rome That Did Most Love and Best Serve His Country; and He the Saint Among the Jews Who Most Loved Zion."

The entire Friday program follows: "Ave Maria," chorus; "The Armistice," by Philip Hays; "In Flanders Field," by the high school students; "American Festival Overture, Op. 47—Anton Hegner, with the first violin played by Gwendolyn Garrett, James Hull and Burdette Keim; second violin, by Teresa Weber, and Spencer Whatley; piano by Lucille Keim, Erie Ward, Nell Duffy, Maxine Duffy, Dorothy Eyerts, and Peggy Durkin; "She's Up There, "Old Glory," by the chorus; "The American Flag," by Leonard Ratican; "Allegiance to Our Flag," by the fourth and fifth grades; address by Reverend Hoyt; "Texas, Our Texas," by the chorus; and "The Star Spangled Banner," by the students.

Tots Creep to Cure Spines

By creeping on all fours children are being cured of weak spines in a hospital in Germany. The doctors say that by abstaining from walking the little ones relieve the weight from the backbone and remove any undue strains. The patients even lie prone at their meals. Their knees, elbows and feet are guarded with small pillow-like protectors. It is claimed that many cures have been effected by the system.

Although in his eighty-second year, Professor James Blackie has just climbed Great Gable (2950 feet) and Seawell Peak (3310 feet), the highest summit in England.

An Idol Passes On

THERE is crepe on the door of the Alamo and the people of the Alamo city mourn the departure to the world invisible of John W. Tobin their civic leader and political idol. John W. Tobin was a native son of the Alamo. His father was a son of the Alamo. His grandfather was one of the early mayors of the Alamo City. John W. Tobin was a remarkable man. He had been chief of the fire department of the Alamo City in his youthful years. He became sheriff of Bexar county and held that position 20 years. He was chief peace officer in the days when San Antonio was something of a frontier city. He never carried a gun. He never shot a man in self defense or to place a notch on his Colt or automatic.

He had arrested hundreds of criminals or men who had been accused of crime. He never found it necessary to shoot to kill or to shoot to conquor. Men who were classed as desperadoes surrendered unconditionally when this quiet, modest little man called upon them to go with him to the court house. He never permitted a mob to assemble to lynch a person accused of crime in the 20 years that he was sheriff of his county. He never permitted a person guilty of crime to get away or to escape from the dragnet of the law. He was a sheriff but not a killer. He was a peace officer who believed in law enforcement and justice administered in the court house in the shadows of the Alamo.

His political opponents called him Boss Tobin. His followers called him their big chief. He loved San Antonio as he loved his life. He was a dreamer as well as a practical man. He loved nature and he had the soul of a poet and the brai not a creative artist. He never had a waterloo in his life. He aspired, after 20 years as sheriff, to fill the office that his grandfather had held ages ago. He was elected mayor of the Alamo City. He carried his ticket with him to victory. As an executive and a builder, men say that John W. Tobin as chief magistrate, made the best mayor San Antonio had ever known and the city made greater building progress along the lines of civic beauty and architectual grandeur than it had ever made in the years agone.

There was opposition always to his plans and his building programs. On election day this opposition either melted away or was overwhelmed by the men and women of the Alamo City who followed the standard of Tobin and who shouted the slogan that San Antonio should be made the most beautiful as well as the most progressive city under southwestern skies. His plans carried. His programs never fell by the wayside. Three times he carried his administration to victory. He built the great auditorium, which is a model of its kind. He made San Antonio a city of parks and playgrounds. He made it a city of boulevards and driveways. He made it a city beautiful without destroying the ancient landmarks or the colorful spots created in the days of Spanish occupation and Latin-Indian romance and intrigue and early mission fathers or the European voyagers or adventurers who came to these shores.

A year ago his health failed him. He had a building program on. His physician sent him away to California, hoping that the climate of the Golden Coast would undo the ravages that disease had wrought. While on his bed of pain on the Pacific Shores, he was renominated by the voters of San Antonio who followed his flag. All who denounced Tobin as a boss, rallied to the standard of the contender for his office and his leadership.

Election day came. Tobin and his ticket won by the greatest majority ever rolled up for successful candidates in the Alamo City. He sent a message on the eve of election day. He merely said that his cause was in the hands of his friends in San Antonio, the people who loved San Antonio and who were proud of its progress and knew they would take care of him when the ballots were counted after the closing of the polls.

He had faith in the people of San Antonio and the balloting justified his faith. He spent months and months on the golden coast. Just the other day he returned to the Alamo to die in the city that he loved so well. Death handed him his waterloo. He died a poor man. He spent his money as he earned it lavishly for San Antonio and for the entertainment of his friends and visitors to the shrine of Texas liberty, and independence. All business was suspended in the great city when his passing was announced. All the people who loved him mourned the loss of a civic leader who was more than a boss. He had been high in democratic councils of his state. Messages of condolence poured in from men high in public office, from military chieftains as well as political chieftains and office holders. Club women sent their wires and their flowers of eulogy and love. He will sleep in the Alamo City—a city he loved with surpassing loyalty and devotion. As an idealist he ranked high; as a champion of civic advancement he won first place; as a chief executive officer or mayor his followers represented all nationalities and all creeds and colors. He went down the line for the Fergusons in the famous fight of Klan or anti-Klan. He went down the line for Moody in the famous battle for the control of the government by the people who believed in the ideals of the youthful contender.

He was not an orator, or an incessant babbler. He was a worker and a builder. Now was he a political boss or was he a leader of the people of a great city ever determined to keep the Alamo first in population, first in civic development, first as a city beautiful and ever marching forward? There are bosses and there are leaders. This political and civic idol of the Alamo was looked upon as a leader by those who followed his flag for almost a third of a century. They knew their chief.

Going, Not Coming

NOT so much talk about immigration as there was a few years ago. The law, sensational at the time, which reduces the number of foreigners coming to our shores to a handful, is still in operation. The facts are astonishing. Since 1924 approximately three times as many common laborers have returned to Europe as have come to this country. The effect of the law has doubtless been to raise the standard of living in the United States. Americans expect and get higher wages than foreigners. And they spend more freely.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—On East Fourteenth street, sandwiched between burlesque shows, movie palaces and automat restaurants is Luchow's, a relic of pre-war New York. This was one of the most famous restaurants of its day, but its day was darkened by the heavy cloud of prohibition. Luchow's reestablished the atmosphere of European beer gardens. Here came all the famous, to drink their foam-capped inimitable draught, over their weighty exchange of thought. Here was the meeting place of renowned societies. Here was the spot in which beer was supreme and in which stronger liquids were abhorred. Here was the popular rendezvous of O. Henry, of De Pachmann, of Paderewski, of Antoin Dvorak, and a multitude of other equally brilliant artistic lights.

But this Luchow's is no more. True, there is still a place by that name at the same place. But inside, there are only relics of the glorious past sedately eating vegetable dinners, instead of quaffing the foaming brew. There are only mournful waiters bearing dietetically correct food in place of the frothy flagons of old. There are only wistful ghosts to haunt the once brilliant meeting place of pre-Volstead New York.

Things cost more in New York and environs than in any place else in the country, I believe. My neighbor paid $2.50 for a birthday cake of simple design. In Chicago you can get a well trimmed one for 60 cents. We pay 35 cents for a small bottle of cream, which all through the middle west sells at just half that price. The best eggs now cost almost a dollar a dozen. That price, too, is double what they pay out in Illinois. I do not believe that New York salaries are proportionately higher, but the necessities of life certainly cost a lot in this part of the world.

* * *

There is a chauffeur for one of the Shuberts who always guesses almost the exact time at which his master will tire of an opening performance at a theater and drives up to the entrance in the Rolls-Royce. That is the apotheosis of dramatic criticism.

There is a newsdealer in a suburb in Westchester who is an Englishman who has not been over here long enough to think in dollars, quarters, dimes, nickels and cents. He quotes the prices of wares at his stand—which includes chewing gum, candy, cigars, magazines and stationery—in shillings and pence. I understand his plight. When I am abroad and the price of something is quoted to me, I can make nothing of it until I have gone through the mental arithmetic of reducing the price to terms in American money at the prevailing rate of exchange.

MODISH MITZI — Mitzi Wants Only One Thing—And Gets It — By JAY V. JAY

"There's really nothing else I want," said Mitzi to Polly very positively. "Nothing in the world except one of the new tunic dresses," she adds, as she sees a page of them in the newspaper. There's the flared tunic, the pleated tunic, the short straight and pleated tunic, and the straight tunic. This short, bedium and—any fraction season they are going to be long, thereof. While they are discussing tunics you might notice the snug shoulder drape that Polly wears.

It's a new tunic style, Mitzi wears. It has a flounced tunic applied to the sheathlike lines of this velvet gown. The flounce goes up at the side to follow the fashion of broken hemlines. Stunning! "There's not really another thing, you want Mitzi, is there?" envies Polly. "No, Polly, no," Mitzi says thoughtfully, "not at this minute. . . ." For the moment a tunic dress is enough to satisfy her — as it should be.

HATTIE — A STORY OF LOVE AND SACRIFICE

By SAMUEL MERWIN

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe,

LUCILLE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Picture studio where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture, "Bagdad." With her go

GRAN'MA, old and lame, and

ALICE, Hattie's married sister and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man, although she is fascinated by the director. De Brissac wants her to go with him on his yacht for a week's cruise when the picture is finished but Hattie refuses and leaves the Earthwide studio to work for Plantagenet. She finds she cannot work without De Brissac, however. She meets Lucille who advises her to go back to De Brissac. Alice's husband,

ARTHUR, has deserted her several years before but he comes back and adds himself to Hattie's responsibilities. Hattie and Henry go to a private showing of the finished picture which is a great success. De Brissac is to form his own company and wants her to work with him.

He offers her a contract at $1000 a week.

She meets Henry for dinner that night and tries to tell him how she hates pictures and about De Brissac; that she wants to get married and settle modestly in a little home of her own. He cannot understand and when she realizes it she leaves him and goes to De Brissac.

The second picture, "Pharoah's Daughter," is released and is an even greater success than "Bagdad."

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Through the winter, spring and summer they worked eight driving months of it. Once again nerves tightened and faces grew set. "Pharaoh's Daughter" was definitely a success, but the company was not yet strong enough to withstand so great a setback as a failure of "The Soul" would entail. De Brissac's courage became during the summer a topic of conversation among all in the know about the studio. He flatly wouldn't hurry. Three assistant directors and nearly a score of camera men worked without thought of the mounting costs. Scenes were built over, retakes made without stint, time consumed in long delays while each smallest detail of the picture was made perfect. In May it was said that the picture would cost four hundred thousand dollars. By the end of June the estimate had grown by a hundred and fifty thousand, and in September, with the immense exploitation charges figured in, all concerned realized that very little would be left of three-quarters of a million when the film at last reached the public.

It was plain to Hattie, as these months passed that she and De Brissac were approaching another and a more intense emotional climax. At the time of their last trip on location he was in a state of mind that might cause him in any small moment of upset to throw discretion to the winds. Still she insisted on having Alice with her. He fretted but sensed a growing resistance in her, and yielded. Alice privately tried to beg off, but Hattie wouldn't consider it, even when Alice insisted that she didn't feel at all well.

Hattie was changing. She knew this herself; could even see it in her mirror. She was less confused. Motives were quietly forming. The firm little thought had come that if De Brissac wished to go on moulding her life, keeping her for his own at whatever cost to herself, he should step up to the line and marry her. She even told herself that she was about through with this furtive business. She knew now that he had been married and had children somewhere, but he never told her whether he was now free . . . never a word about that. And she was beginning definitely to think that she had a right to know. There were still many tender passages between them; but habit had become a factor in the situation, and there were reservations and evasions.

Outwardly she was quieter, just a thought more settled, surer. And she had grown like many of the other young actresses in that her demure look was no longer ingenious. And her gentle pretty smile told nothing. Sometimes she felt very old. It was hard to believe that she was not yet nineteen.

The climax she dreaded developed early in November. The picture was to be released for a first run at one of the regular Broadway theaters, not a picture house. Without consulting her, De Brissac arranged that they should share a personal appearance on the opening night. Then he told her that he wanted her to make the journey with him. Quietly, in her new evasive manner, she insisted that Alice would have to share her compartment. The quarrel raged for several days. Finally he had to yield and hand her her own reservations for two. She locked the envelope in the bureau drawer with his presents. She didn't want Arthur handling that. It would be her first journey East. Her thoughts ran back over the year and a half as she laid the printed envelope away on the Spanish shawl next to the jewel case. She might perhaps wear some of the things in New York. If, that was, she could plan it so Alice wouldn't notice. After all, she had let him give them. He wanted to see them on her. Surely she hadn't treated him well. At last she could take them along. . . . And other thoughts that brought a wistful smile to her pretty mouth. . . . that queer boy and girl business with Willie Mazzini and even Fred Schmandt. She would have to call at the mailing room. How wonderful it would all be, returning to New York almost as a reigning princess; stopping at a great hotel, besieged by reporters, gazed at by everyone, she who had been little Hattie Johnson and was now Harriet John. New York! . . .

This was on Wednesday. The reservations were for the following Tuesday. It was a temptation to do nothing about it, let the situation drift as she so often hopelessly did. But you couldn't quite let a journey drift. And so, on Tuesday morning she spoke vaguely to her maid about packing for a trip to New York. The maid was a silent and intenseuy practical Danish woman known as Hedwig. This seemed to make it necessary to broach the matter to Alice. She found some difficulty in going about it. Alice hadn't seemed herselfe of late. But the thing had to be done.

She did it at luncheon. Arthur, fortunately, had gone to Frank's at noon with the publicity men. He was excited over the idea of a wholly new emphasis in the press matter, the picturing of Hattie as an outdoor girl. There were experts enough available to pose her properly with a tennis racquet, and, in another costume, swinging a golf club. Arthur, at this time, was all for stressing an atmosphere of girlish simplicity in the publicity, and was building, to do him justice, better than any of them knew at the time. De Brissac, despite his sharp intelligence was a European and a person of broadly theatrical character. His imaginations wos opulent, warmly Oriental, never native; and while he had keenly sensed and used that wistful quality of Hattie's there was danger now that he would mould her into the more familiar theatrical sort of screen actres. It was on this tendency that Arthur was directing his persistent battle for what he called the Maude Adams sort of thing. It was, in a degree, self-justification. He knew by this time how the picture world regards those able-bodied men who live off the bounty of a girl or a child performer. Whispers found their way through the small cracks in helf esteem.

Hattie played listlessly with her fork.

"Why don't you eat something?" asked her sister. She had a new fullness about the face, but her eyes looked drawn. "What's the matter with you lately, anyway?"

Hattie didn't reply to this. She was trying to frame a sentence that would help her along through a situation that was much too large and difficult for her capacity.

She said, at length, this in her light voice; casually, as if it were a matter of no particular importance—

"I've got to go to New York on Tuesday."

"New York? Alice stared? "What on earth."

"Personal appearance. It's pretty important. I've got to go. I know you don't feel very well, but I'm afraid you've got to come with me."

"Come with you. Oh, I couldn't do that. Arthur would never "

The sentence died there.

"I've got to go," Hattie repeated. She couldn't have explained why she dwelt so on the necessity of it. That was how it seemed.

(To be continued.)

My soul is weary of my life; I will leave my complaint upon myself; I will speak in the bitterness of my soul.

I will say unto God, Do not condemn me; shew me wherefore thou contendest with me.

Is it good unto thee that thou shouldest oppress, that thou shouldest despise the work of thine hands, and shine upon the counsel of the wicked?—Job, X, 1-3.

Three Baptized By Convicted Minister

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. (AP)—The Rev. A. A. Davis, Baptist minister convicted in Williamson county of a perjury charge in connection with alleged klan floggings there several years ago and sentenced to a penitentiary term baptized three of his fellow prisoners in the Trinity river recently, the Rev. James B. Nations, Elgin Baptist pastor, notified the American-Statesman Saturday.

An ancient Roman pavement, 20 yards square, was recently discovered at Middleham, Scotland.

ALIBI OFTEN JUST THE BUNK

Heredity Most Overworked Of All Excuses

Perhaps Your Pet Alibi Is "Heredity" and You Blame Your Faults on the Family—Perhaps It's "Nerves" or "Temperament" With Which You Excuse Your Weakness—"Business" Is Man's Favorite and "Children" Women's Perfect Alibi.

What is your favorite alibi? All of us have out pet excuses by which we seek to camouflage our faults and weaknesses to the world, and to justify our shortcomings to our own souls.

Perhaps the most overworked alibi in the world is heredity. You rarely meet any one who will acknowledge his faults are his own. Oh, dear, no. They are always poor grandpapa's or grandmamma's.

Apparently the chief advantage in having ancestors is to have some one to whom you can pass the buck. Anyway, did you ever know of a drunkard who confessed that the reason that he drank was because he liked the taste of liquor and because he enjoyed the gorgeous sense it gave him for a while of sitting on top of the world? Not much. He tells you between maudlin sobs that he is the victim of heredity and that drink is in his blood.

Did you ever know a gambler who was one from choice and because he was too weak to resist the lure of the green cloth? Never. It is always because he is one of the gambling Thomases, or Jones, or Smiths.

Did you ever know a virago of a woman who was ashamed of giving away to her temper, or who tried to control it? No. On the contrary, she is rather proud of taking after grandmother, who was so high-strung that she kept everybody about her paralyzed with fear.

Did you ever know a woman who was a slovenly housekeeper, and who sat her family down to meals that would kill an ostrich, who blamed herself for her laziness and inefficiency? Not on your life. She merely remarks that it doesn't run in her family to be good cooks and goes on wallowing in filth and poisoning her husband and children.

Another alibi that is called upon to do yeoman service is temperament. You never see a man who confesses that he is shiftless and trifling and no-account, and that he would rather bum his way through the world than work his passage. No, indeed. The reason why he never sticks to a job is not because the very thought of labor sickens him, or because he hasn't the grit to do anything that is hard and monotonous, as any task gets to be that you have to do day after day. No. It is because he is so temperamental that he just simply can't bring himself to do ordinary, commonplace things.

His romantic soul shivers in horror at the thought of a butcher shop, or laying bricks. His free soul could not be confined in an office or a store. His delicate sensibilities shrink away from the sordidness of commercial life, and so he loafs while mother takes in boarders to support him. But he isn't lazy. It is only that he can never find anything to do that is suited to his temperament.

Did you ever know an irritable, nagging, petty tyrant of a woman who ever admitted to her faults and tried to reform? Mercy, no. Her alibi is nerves, and she considers them a dispensation of Providence for which she is no more responsible than she is for the color of her eyes.

It is her poor nerves that make her fly into tantrums every time she is crossed in any way, and say things that stab like a knife, but which she expects everybody to forgive and forget when she gets in a good humor. It is her poor nerves that make her have hysterics until she gets a new car, or a new dress, or a new fur coat. It's her poor nerves that make her rule her family with a rod of iron so that they dare not do anything that displeases her for fear of bringing on one of her spells. Heaven only knows what mean, selfish, bossy women would do without nerves. They might have to behave themselves.

The ever-present alibi for the failure is that he never had a chance. He wasn't born to riches. He couldn't go to college. He never had any pull. He has lived all of his life where there was no opportunity. He had people he had to help. And so he sat all of his life on the do-nothing stool, with folded hands, without ever making an effort to achieve success.

It is a lovely excuse for lack of energy and initiative and general shiftlessness, but it doesn't go much in a country where nine successful men out of ten have made their own chances and hammered at the door of opportunity until they broke through it.

Men's favorite alibi is business, which is a blanket excuse that covers everything they want to do and desire to leave undone. Does a man want to stay downtown of an evening and play poker with the boys? "Miss Smith, telephone my wife I am detained on an important business conference." Does he want to take a trip? Business calls him away from home.

Does he give up reading everything except the headlines and the sporting news in the newspapers? Too busy to read good books. Does he prefer only the shows at the theater that exploit feminine pulchritude? Pity the poor T. B. M!

Does he neglect his wife, and show more affection for her or interest in her than if she were a piece of household furniture? Does he let his children grow up perfect strangers to him? It is because he is so absorbed in his business. Is he grumpy and grouchy around the house, and as pleasant to live with as a sore-headed bear would be? Business again. And as long as a man can plead business he feels it is a perfect justification for his breaking his wife's heart and alienating his children's affections and being utterly disagreeable.

The woman's perfect alibi is her children. With that she gets away with everything from not powdering her nose to murder. Coming and going, it is the best double-action excuse, which works both ways, that has ever been devised.

The young wife gets sloppy and fat and doesn't comb her hair or doll herself up because she has to take care of the baby. The untidy woman's house is like a pigpen because you can't keep things clean if you have children. Wife leaves husband to toil in the city in the summer while she goes to a cool place for the health of the children. The family has to move into a better house in a more fashionable neighborhood because the children have to have social advantages, and mother has to run around to parties because she has to make friends for the children.

And so it goes. Each of us has our alibi by which we excuse our faults and weaknesses. What is yours? DOROTHY DIX.

Health and Diet Advice

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

CONSTIPATION — THE DISORDER OF CIVILIZATION

Constipation is a disorder of civilization and is not found at all with primitive people. There is no doubt but what this condition poisons the system to such an extent that it is often the first and real cause of many serious ailments. This poisoning does not come from the retained food material only, but also from the reabsorbing of body toxins which should have been eliminated with normal bowel movements.

A large percentage of the feces is composed of waste products thrown out by the system, and if one diets carefully and does not over eat, only a small amount of feces is composed of left-over food material and cellulose from vegetables and fruits.

Because constipation is such a general cause of all diseases, many people have been cured of serious troubles simply by taking frequent enemas or using laxatives. The manufacturers of the petroleum oil intestinal lubricants say that they receive many thousands of testimonials from people who claim to have been cured of every disease mentioned in the medical dictionary. Even though I know this to be true, I do not believe it is wise to depend upon laxatives or enemas in order to keep the bowels cleaned of accumulated poisons.

Bad results are sure to follow if laxatives are long continued. I have never known, personally, of a case where enemas produced any bad effects, but I am sure that everyone desires to be normal, and that you who are reading this article wish to have regular bowel movements in the normal manner.

In order to bring about a permanent cure of this trouble it is a good plan to study the various causes which produce it. The following is a list of causes I consider the most important:

(1) Irregularity in going to the toilet. You have always waited too long if you have waited for your bowels to tell you they were full.

(2) Wrong position on the toilet. The savage is never troubled with constipation.

(3) Insufficient use of the bulky greens. The bowel of the civilized man must have plenty of bulk in order to perform its work properly.

(4) Insufficient exercise, especially of the abnominal muscles.

Of course, there are many other causes which I might mention such as long continued use of laxatives, low blood pressure, enervation, prolapsus of the abnominal organs, etc., but if you will follow the instructions which I am giving you in tomorrow's article these causes can be removed.

QUESTION: J. P. T. asks: "How can a bowlegged person straighten his legs? I am eighteen years old, but I have been bowlegged for only about eight months. Can this condition be caused by lifting or carrying too heavy objects in your work?"

ANSWER: You can help your condition somewhat by taking various kinds of leg exercises, such as the deep knee bend, long walks, etc. Carrying heavy objects could only affect you if you are not using enough bone building elements in your diet.

QUESTION: K. L. J. asks: "Have you a book printed on recipes only?"

ANSWER: At present I do not have a book published on the subject of recipes only. Watch this column each week and clip out the menu articles which appear, and in this way you can accumulate a good many interesting recipes.

QUESTION: G. M. M. asks: "Will you please tell me a remedy for granulated eyelids?"

ANSWER: Granulated eyelids sometimes start from a local infection rubbed in by soiled fingers, but infection of any of the mucous membranes is generally only possible from an over-acidity of the stomach and intestines. The irritation of this hyperacidity seems to be able to affect any of the mucous membranes, such as those of the nose, throat and eyes. Local treatments should be used on the granulated lids, but the constitutional derangements must also be eliminated before a prominent cure can be expected.

QUESTION: M. M. B. writes: "When I sit long I have a dull pain in the lower part of my back, feels like the end of spine. What causes this?"

ANSWER: You should first have your spine examined to see if there is any bone disease, such as tuberculosis or arthritis. Then, if you will write me again I will be glad to give you my opinion about the best method of treatment.

New Bridges Too Practical

Lovers of the beautiful in Belgium are protesting against modern steel bridges being constructed to take the place of some of the picturesque stone arches that were destroyed during the World War. Belgium has fewer masons who know how to build the old-style bridges, and this has necessitated the use of steel. While the new structures are more serviceable than the old, they do not harmonize so completely with their environment.

Greyhounds Swell Taxes

Dog taxes probably never have paid so much into a public treasury in 10 weeks as has been contributed in that period by the racing greyhounds of England. A greyhound racing boom started a few months ago and at eight meetings in various towns and cities the average attendance was 400,000 people a week. In 10 weeks the treasury has collected from this source a total of $500,000 through the entertainment tax and the bets tax.

Passengers on seven liners leaving Southampton, Liverpool and Glasgow for America in one day recently numbered 7000 and their fares totaled nearly $1,250,000.

TRACTION FARE HIKE HEARING

City Council to Consider Rate Plea Monday

Hearing on increased street car fares will probably occupy most of the time at the city council meeting Monday night. The plea of the Wichita Falls Traction company for an increase in rates of from six to seven cents is scheduled to come up. This matter was postponed three weeks ago when a special committee named by the council to investigate the plea failed to put in an appearance.

Members of the council expect no report from the committee Monday night. None of the members would make a statement as to what the attitude of the body would be but it is unofficially understood that the council will deal direct with the company.

Louisiana University Seniors Face Probe

By Universal Service.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 13. Major W. E. Brougher, in charge of the investigation of the hair clipping of 310 freshmen at Louisiana State university early last week, announced today that several seniors, including four members of the Tigers' varsity team, are under scrutiny and may be expelled.

On one liner leaving Moville, Ireland, recently, were 478 passengers, most of whom were emigrants bound for the United States.

In exactly the same manner in which his brother had died a year ago, John Ridgewell dropped dead while ploughing at Sible Hedingham, England, recently.

Harry Hurl, Employe Of Denver Railroad, Dies

Harry T. Hurl, 66, employe of the Fort Worth and Denver railway, died in a local hospital at 5 o'clock Sunday morning.

Funeral services are to be held from the residence, 204 Flood street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, after which the body will be forwarded by the Merkle Undertaking company to Guthrie, Okla., for burial.

Mr. Hurl, who had lived in Wichita Falls for the last seven years, is survived by his wife and two brothers, James Hurl of Topeka, Kan., and George Hurl of Osage City, Kan.

A Column of Et Ceteras in Sport

BY VON

Playing chess by telegraph is not a new stunt but for those who like and play the game, this method of competition between teams or individuals bears sufficient color to add interest. Those who are chess devotees in Wichita Falls, have without doubt been following with interest the moves up to date in the two games being played between the chess clubs of Wichita Falls and Tulsa.

* * *

Harold E. Rosenthal and Charles E. Fuller, two of the ramrods of the Wichita Falls Chess club, are examples of what the game of chess does to otherwise normal folks. It is through the columns of the Wichita Falls Record News and the Tulsa World that the chess-playing public is being kept informed of the progress of the great battles of pawns between the two cities. But to return to the above-mentioned ramrods, there's hardly a night passes but that they are to be found pondering over their chess boards, along with other members of the local club, studying out the next step to take in answer to Tulsa's latest move.

* * *

To watch these chess experts ponder over their moves, occasionally discussing some strategic point, one would think that an army general staff were in session plotting out the next maneuver for the field of battle. And therein lies the very secret of the interest in the game, for chess is a sort of small scale war with kings and queens, knights and bishops, castles or rooks and pawns. The only difference in the two is that the queen and not the king leads the chess armies in the fray. It is the queen who holds the most power, while the point of the game is to save the king from capture. One might well say that Madame Queen in a game of chess is quite a military suffragist, or should one call her an Amazon?

* * *

So far, in the two battles of chess now in progress between Wichita Falls and Tulsa, the Spudder chessmen are confident that they hold the edge over the Oilers of the Oklahoma petroleum capital. Perhaps, James V. Cole, pilot of the Tulsa chess club, thinks otherwise, but that doesn't worry the locals even a little bit.

* * *

By the way, there's another famous chess battle going on in the world at the present time. Buenos Aires, Argentina, is the scene. There Jose Capablanca, of Havana, Cuba, present world's chess champion, is defending his crown against an attack by Dr. Alexhine of Petrograd, Russia. More than a score of games have been played between these two wizards of the chequered board without a final decision. Alexhine has won four games, Capablanca two, and the others have been drawn. Six victories will be necessary to decide the title. So far the contest has been raging over a month and may last until Christmas. This business of winning a chess game is important and isn't exactly what you would call a snappy series of forward passes for a touchdown.

* * *

It may be next July before the two-game tournament between the Wichita Falls and Tulsa clubs is decided and again something fatal may transpire in the next few moves. So far each club has made 12 moves in each of the games, and in one of the contests both queens have been removed as casualties of the fray. Pawns have fallen by the wayside to be interred in unmarked graves, victims to patriotic duty in the defense of their kings. Of course we're rooting for the Wichita Falls club to win. The campaign cry is "Long live the king!"

* * *

Members of the Wichita Falls high school Coyote pack will be a busy bunch during the next 19 days training for the coming Thanksgiving day contest at Amarillo with the Golden Sandstorm in which game the title of district No. 3 will probably be decided. However the Coyotes have one more hurdle to clear before the Amarillo game in the form of the powerful Plainview eleven on Saturday, November 19. Plainview on Armistice day held Lubbock to a 6-6 tie after Lubbock earlier had tied Wichita Falls 13-13. At the beginning of the season Plainview lost to Vernon 20 to 0, while Wichita Falls has an 8-6 victory over the latter.

McClendon Takes Golf Tournament

CORSICANA, Texas, Nov. 13.—Dr. T. P. McClendon of Corsicana captured the first prize in the first flight of the East Texas Golf Association tournament.

Other first flight winners were Roy Caldwell, Tyler; H. R. Srtoube, Corsicana.

Winners of second flight were W. A. Lang, Billie Coulson and Son Allen, all of Corsicana.

Third flight winners were R. M. Golding, Hillsboro; J. S. Murchison and A. P. Simpson, both of Corsicana.

Southern California To Meet Micks Unbowed

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—By her victory over California, Southern California is assured an undefeated record as prestige in her tilt with Notre Dame in Chicago late this month.

The Trojans were tied by Stanford, 13-13, but have won from all other opponents.

Coast experts see no team as a possible winner over the Trojans in her remaining coast games this year.

Butch Niemic Ranks As Midwest's Best Kicker

The two best kickers in the middle west, according to most experts, are Louis Gilbert of Michigan, and Butch Niemic of Notre Dame. While Mendenhall, Anderson and McDonough are all rated good kickers, the Wolverine and Irish punters are the only two who are good consistently.

CONQUEROR OF YALE TO FORE

South Wins Recognition In Football World

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—Of all the embattled college gridiron legions from coast to coast and gulf to border, the University of Georgia stands out today as the only major eleven neither defeated nor tied.

Overwhelming all opposition thus far in the south, Georgia's claims to national championship recognition are further illuminated by the fact that these Bulldogs of the south have been the only outfit to upset the famous Bulldogs of the east—Yale, the principal claimant now to eastern title honors through sensational victories over the Army, Dartmouth and Princeton.

Many Undefeated Teams.

There are a half dozen or more outstanding undefeated teams over the broad expanse of gridiron warfare but at least one tie game has cropped up to spoil their otherwise brilliant records. Among those in this category now are Tennessee, in the south; Pittsburg and Washington and Jefferson, in the east, as well as New York university; Southern California on the Pacific coast; the Texas Aggies, leaders in the Southwestern conference; Illinois, pace setters among the western conference "Big Ten" and Minnesota of the same fold.

Although yesterday was a day of thrills and spills, of sparkling individual feats, another epidemic of tie games and record crowds, where more than 500,000 spectators saw a dozen of the leading conflicts of the east, south and west.

Army Wins Regard.

Army's 18 to 0 victory over Notre Dame, putting Rockne's team out of the title running was probably the biggest "dope" upset of the day, a stunning reversal, but not far behind it was Stanford's halt at the hands of little Santa Clara on the Pacific coast by a score of 13 to 6.

Yale's dramatic last period triumph over Princeton with Bruce Caldwell on the sidelines put the Elis into a pre-eminent position in the eastern fold.

Pittsburgh, tied only by Washington and Jefferson, has a brilliant record, including its latest intersectional victory over Nebraska.

Texas Aggies Atop.

In the south, Georgia's rule at the top of the Southern conference with five conference victories, is disputed principally by North Carolina state, which has won all three of its conference games but which does not boast a record otherwise as impressive as the Bulldogs.

Illinois, putting aside Chicago, is undisputed leader of the Western conference and needs only a win over Ohio state next Saturday to clinch the title.

Missouri, disposing of a rival Iowa state team last Friday, holds the Missouri valley conference peak, with Nebraska as runner-up. In the Southwestern conference the Texas Aggies, adding Rice to their victims, have an edge over Southern Methodist and Arkansas in the standing.

Stanford Has Rival.

The Pacific coast conference still finds Southern California and Stanford as rivals for the title, although the former added to its prestige with a victory over Colorado university Saturday as Stanford was bowing to Santa Clara in non-conference games. The major conference tilt resulted in Washington's overthrow of California, 6 to 0, but since both had been beaten before it did not have much effect on the championship rating.

Texas Boy Is Flash On Tennesssee Team

LEBANON, Tenn., Nov. 13.—The spectacular broken field running and passing of Ben Brooks of Forney, Texas, has earned for him the sobriquent of "The Texas Flash" as quarterback of the Cumberland University Bulldogs here. Brooks' most spectacular work was against the United States Marine Corps team at Paris Island, S. C., recently when he ran forty yards to place the ball on the Devil Dogs' 5-yard line an dthen carried it over after the rest of the Cumberland backfield had failed.

Brooks will receive his LLB. degree here in June. He is president of the Iota Sigma Tau fraternity. He is captain-elect of the 1928 baseball team.

Burleson Defeats Redskins' Next Foe

GREENVILLE, Texas, Nov. 13. In a football game that was witnessed by several thousand fans, the Burleson College Bruins defeated the Wesley college Panthers here Friday afternoon, 18 to 0.

Touchdowns were scored by Cole, Son and G. Bird.

J. Bird, diminutive quarterback for the Bruins, was easily the outstanding star of the game, as he proved a consistent ground gainer, forcing the ball into the Panther territory practically the entire game. Segell, Panther fullback, was another star of the game.

Hornets Will Tackle Tarleys Turkey Day

ARLINGTON, Nov. 13.—The undefeated Hornets representing the North Texas Agricultural college, have arranged for a special train to carry boosters to Stephenville, where the annual Turkey day game will be played between the Arlington team and the team of the John Tarleton Agricultural college.

Two Americans Win English Track Meet

OXFORD, Eng., Nov. 13. (AP)—Two American students finished first and second in the 100-yard event in the senior sports meet here Friday.

C. F. Gates, formerly of Princeton, won first in the event, with A. D. Bond of Missouri second. Gates also captured the shotput event.

Duke Tramel Adds To String of Victories

FORT WORTH, Nov. 13. (AP)—Kid Kober of Dallas defeated Loy Turribate, junior lightweight champion of Mexico, here Friday night. Turribate's seconds threw in the towel in the ninth.

They weighed 135 pounds. Duke Tramel of Fort Worth stopped White Wolf of Mexico in the fifth.

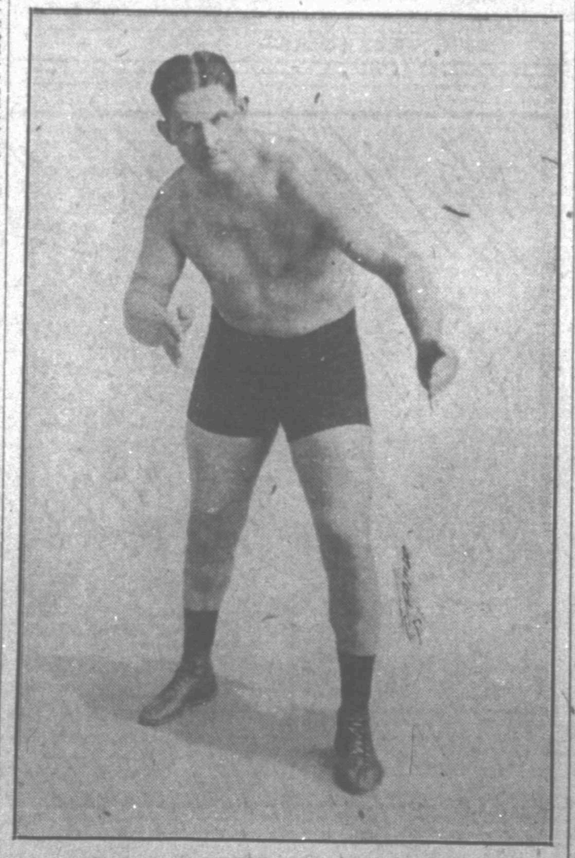

West Texas Teachers Defeat New Mexico

ROSWELL, N. M., Nov. 13. (AP)—The West Texas State Teachers' College eleven Friday downed the New Mexico Military Institute Soldiers 19 to 0 in a holiday game here before a crowd of 3000.

He's World's Most Dangerous Wrestler

Wayne (Big) Munn who meets Ed (Strangler) Lewis here on Friday night of this week at the Wichita Falls Athletic club gymnasium, 605 Scott, is classed "as the world's most dangerous wrestler" by Lewis because of his enormous strength. Munn once defeated Lewis for a disputed hold on the world's championship but later lost to the Strangler. Lewis has posted his $10,000 gem-studded world's title belt for the match with Munn here. The belt will be on display at the Art Newelry company Monday.

PENN TO PLAY GOLDEN BEARS

Eastern Team to Visit Pacific Coast

Special to The Record News.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—Lou Young, head coach of the University of Pennsylvania football team is making plans for the second trip of his team to California in the past three years. On Jan. 1, 1925 this team, Pennsylvania, met the Golden Bears at Berkeley, in a post-season contest. The California eleven won 14 to 0.

This year the Pennsylvania team is making the trek to the coast to participate in the ceremonies attendant on the dedication of a memorial bench to Andy Smith, who was a player and coach at Pennsylvania, and who is regarded in the west as one of the greatest coaches in California's history.

Travel to Berkeley.

Plans now in the process of formulation call for the Pennsylvania football squad and party leaving this city, on December 17, arriving in Berkeley, four days later. Quarters will be established as close to the California campus as possible.

A hotel will be secured near the stadium, so that practice can be held every afternoon prior to the game. With almost two full weeks of practice, the coaching staff believes that the players can be whipped into condition and acclimated so that they can give Nibs Price's eleven a keen fight.

Practice sessions such as were held on the way to the coast in December, 1924, will not be held in Chicago, Omaha and Ogden. Blackboard talks en route will keep the minds of the players keen but otherwise practice will be tabooed until the team reaches Berkeley.

Cornell Ends Season.

After the Cornell game on Thanksgiving day, which closes the regular season, the coaches plan to have the entire varsity squad break training for at least 10 days after which practice will be held on Franklin field if weather conditions are right and if not, in an armory close to the field.

Despite the fact that Cornell has not had its usual winning season, the coaches look on the game with Dobie's eleven as one of the most difficult assignments of the season. Time and again teams that were not regarded highly have come to Franklin field from Ithaca and given Pennsylvania a keen battle.

Squad in Shape.

With the squad in better shape than it has been in many weeks, Pennsylvania should be prepared for the off tackle thrusts and the forward passes of Dobie's machine. A brief rest during the coming week and then two days of hard work will conclude the intensive training for Cornell. More than likely only signal drills will be held during the three practice days prior to the game.

While the football team has been in the limelight since late September, the indoor sports teams have not been idle. The basketball team faces one of the most difficult schedules in history and Coach Eddie McNichol and advisory coach Lon Jourdet have had their charges working out for the past two weeks.

The loss of an almost entire team of good players has made the coaching program all the more difficult. Magner, veteran guard, dropped behind in his studies, Goldblatt, graduated and so did Davenport, while Becker, Lorms, Slane and Broadbeck all failed in their examinations.

Starting Cagers.

Present indications point to the team starting the season with Connell and Schaaf, forwards; Chapman, center, and two of the following three as guards: Lobley, Lazar and Lukaswitz.

Among other teams including Cornell, Dartmouth, Yale, Princeton and Columbia, Pennsylvania will meet Notre Dame, Ohio State, Michigan, Army, Navy, Penn State and Syracuse. A total of 26 games will be played.

OLNEY LOSES THREE STARS

Cubs' Quarterback Hurts Shoulder in Game

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Nov. 13.—Following Olney's victory over Bowie here Armistice day in the first of the semi-finals of district 4, class B, the Cubs are scheduled to play the Seymour Panthers in Seymour Friday, Nov. 18.

Russell, Olney's fleety quarterback who had been out of the two previous games on account of injuries received in practice, suffered a sprained shoulder in the Bowie game and physicians report that he will be out for the rest of the season. The loss of Russell will greatly handicap the Cubs as his speed and ability to circle the ends has made him a consistent ground gainer in all previous games.

B. Hart and E. Hart, ends, were out of the Bowie game on account of injuries and are still laid up. It is very probable that they will not be in the Seymour game. Barring these three first string men the balance of Coach Herm's squad is in excellent condition and are prepared for a tough battle with the Panthers.

Reports from Seymour indicate that the Seymour line-up will be in the best of condition. Lunsford, center; Easley, end, and Jones, halfback, for the Panthers were reported as injured in last week's practice but are recovering and will be used against the Cubs, in the game this week. The teams are about evenly matched in weight and the prospects for a close game are good.

Tyler Junior College Admitted to Cage Loop

TYLER, Nov. 13.—This year Tyler Junior college will be a member of the Junior College Basket Ball conference of Texas, which includes the College of Marshall, Rusk college, Lon Morris, A. and M. Junior college at Greenville and others over the state. Tyler Junior college, while not a member of the conference last season, had a strong team, which did not suffer defeat from a team in its class.

FROGS TO TRY FOR HOSS WIN

S. M. U. Will Face Fighting Bunch of Toads

Special to The Record News.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 13.—With nine days of practice between them and their big battle of the Southwest conference football season, Texas Christian university's Horned Frog eleven today settled down to its final siege of practice.

There was comparatively little concern in the Horned Frog camp as to whether the Centenary game was won or lost, since it did not county in conference averages. However, for the breaks of the game turning against them, the Frogs would have come off the field at the Armistice day encounter in Shreveport victor.

It is the hope of Coaches Bell and Kubale to have every member of the Frog squad in tip-top playing condition for the S. M. U. clash. The hospital jinx has played no small part in the Frog gridiron history this season, and every effort will be made to elliminate that element for Thanksgiving.

The Frog-Mustang game will be played before what promises to be the largest crowd ever assembled for a football contest in Fort Worth. Additional end seats are now being constructed on Frog field that will bring the seating capacity up to around 16,000.

Thanksgiving day will be homecoming for T. C. U. and the Frogs will be straining to perform at top notch for the old grads.

Decatur Indians In Victory Over Clifton

DECATUR, Nov. 13.—The Decatur college Indians overwhelmed the fighting Clifton college eleven 50 to 0 here in an Armistice day clash to maintain a perfect conference record, having won two and lost none. The Indians go to Weatherford Friday to meet the powerful Weatherford college Coyotes in the T. J. C. C. semi-finals.

LITTLE CHANGE IN SOUTHWEST

Texas Aggies Continue To Top Conference

DALLAS, Nov. 13. (AP)—With no material change in the Southwest conference standing as a result of week-end games, followers of the championship race turned their eyes to the closing games Thanksgiving day which will decide the pennant winner.

Texas A.& M. retained its lead in the conference race as a result of its defeat Armistice day of Rice institute, 14 to 0. The Owls showed unexpected strength in holding the Aggie eleven to such a small margin of victory.

Texas university again illustrated supremacy of Southwest conference teams this year over Missouri valley conference members by defeating the Kansas Aggies of Manhattan, Kans., 41 to 7, Friday.

Arkansas university continued the onslaught on Missouri valley teams Saturday when it downed the Oklahoma Aggies, 1926 Valley champions, 32 to 20.

Centenary college of Shreveport occasioned no surprise by a defeat Armistice day of Texas Christian university, 7 to 3.

Saturday Southern Methodist university overwhelmed Baylor university by a 34 to 9 score.

All teams in the Southwest conference, with the exception of Arkansas, are idle this week-end, the Porkers taking on Austin college at Fayetteville. The Arkansans are picked as easy winners.

But on Thanksgiving day, six Southwest conference teams meet in annual gridiron classics which will decide the championship.

The Longhorns are to meet the Texas Aggies at College Station, and in view of the earlier games as well as the fact that they will be playing on Kyle field the Aggies are expected to win. If they do, they cinch the conference honors, while a defeat would give S. M. U. a good claim for the title, provided the Mustangs win their Thanksgiving day game with T. C. U. at Fort Worth.

Baylor and Rice clash at Houston, and the loser of this game will have uncontested possession of last place.

The conference standing:

TEAM—	P	W	L	T	Pct.
A. & M.	4	3½	½	1	.875

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13. (AP)—Hurdling the second high barrier of the year the Missouri Tigers last week pulled up in position for that most thrilling climax in the Missouri valley conference—the Kansas game—and the conference championship for the Tigers if they win.

If Missouri beats the Jayhawkers in the thirty-sixth annual renewal of the valley classic—and all indications point to a Tiger victory—the third conference championship in four years will return to Columbia.

A victory over Kansas would put Missouri in position to drop the Thanksgiving game with Oklahoma without last year's result when the Sooner victory cost Missouri its third straight championship.

Missouri passed its way to victory over Iowa state at Ames on Armistice day 13 to 6. At the same time another Texas whirlwind in the shape of Texas university was sweeping the Kansas Aggies along to the score of 41 to 7.

Yesterday saw Kansas miring deeper than ever in the conference standing when Oklahoma broke the old Jinx and decisively defeated the Jayhawkers 26 to 7. Oklahoma proved beyond doubt that it is not a one-man team, for with Haskins benched by injuries, a full set of backfield stars were presented.

Grinnell took its usual weekly defeat, this from Washington in a game that had no bearing on the title. The score was 13 to 7.

Nebraska, bidding for intersectional honors in the East, fell before the dazzling long runs of the Pittsburgh backs, 21 to 13.

Minnesota defeated Drake 27-6 in an inter-conference game.

Drake, with a top-heavy intersectional program, has won only two games this year, both against minor schools.

The likewise unfortunate Oklahoma Aggies had another bad day, losing to Arkansas 33 to 20.

Nutrition Course Attracts

Japan has become a Mecca for students of nutrition since Dr. N. Saeki, director of the Nutrition Research Institute, Tokyo, returned from his lecture tour in Europe and South America. In his talks he urged research into nutrition problems from the viewpoint of medical science and asked foreign scholars to make use of the results of experiments conducted in Japan. Various countries in Europe and South America are establishing similar institutes.

New York Giant Club To Be Sold Says New Rumor

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Sale of New York National league ball club, with the possibility of George M. Cohan succeeding Charles Stoneman as its president, has been added to the ramifications of the contract controversy now raging between Promoter Tex Rickard and Heavyweight Champion Gene Tunney.

Genial Jim Mullen, the portly Chicago sportsman who started the rumpus, made these assertions shortly before leaving New York for home today.

Mullen was here for 24 hours, and during that time managed to squeeze in conferences with Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, and Bill McCabe, Tunney's closest friend and most trusted adviser.

Here are some of the verbal bombshells left behind by the Chicago man:

Verbal Bomb Shells.

1—That Tunney has accepted his terms for a title match next year, and that the champion will visit Chicago a week from Saturday to sign preliminary articles.

2—That a change in the ownership of the Giants is impending, and that a Tunney match under Mullen management may be staged at the polo grounds.

3—That McCabe has assured him that Tunney will have no difficulty in breaking the contract held by Rickard, and that the champion believes Rickard has broken their agreement in several respects.

4—That Ed. Kelly and Mike Igoe, who control Soldier's field in Chicago, have leased the stadium to him. Kelly and Igoe were with Mullen.

Mullen asserted that he has reason to believe that negotiations are in progress for the sale of the Giants, and that George M. Cohan is to take charge of the club if the sale is consumated. In the event the deal is completed, Mullen said he would invade New York with a championship match. He has been assured that he will be given the boxing privilege.

Stoneham Denies Sale.

While there have been several reports this year that Stoneham was planning to retire from baseball, the Giant ownership has steadfastly denied them. It is known that Rickard has been trying to buy the club. Tex wants to remodel the park so that it can be used for football, outdoor boxing and bike racing. His idea would be to have the Giants play their home games at the Yankee stadium. However, Tex is at a disadvantage, as he and Stoneham are none too friendly.

Mullen declared that his plan to promote a heavy weight championship match now has become a certainty. He said:

"My negotiations with Tunney have reached the stage where nothing can upset them. They have been approved by Gene and they have been endorsed by everyone connected with him.

"The deal will be closed a week from next Saturday. Gene has been invited to attend the game between Notre Dame and the University of Southern California in Chicago, and he will finish up our business while he is there.

"Rickard's contract will not hold water. Tunney believes their agreement has been broken already, and he has several specific violations in mind. Bill McCabe told me the same thing.

"While I have Soldier's field available for the match, there is a good chance that I will put it on right here in New York. I have been swamped with offers of financial assistance during the short time I have been here, and I happen to be on the inside of a deal that is under way for the Giants.

Cohan After Club.

"I know that George M. Cohan is dickering for the club, and I am promised the boxing privileges if the deal goes through. And it looks very much as if it will.

"I'm out to break Rickard's mnopoly of the heavyweight division, and I'm glad to say that the champion is giving he his moral and professional support. I think that is all I need.

Judging from the attitude of Tunney's friends, Mullen speaks with authority. He came here with Jimmy Bronson, who was Tunney's chief second in both of the Dempsey fights, and he and McCabe were in private conference for several hours last night. Gibson was ill at his home, but he and Mullen held a long conversation over the telephone. Mullen is "in," from all indications.

The plot thickens. Tuesday, when the Dempsey-Kearnes trial begins, it will curdle. In the natural course of evolution, the next step in its progress will be either buttermilk or limburger.

COTTON CROP RUSH EASES

Most of Crop Harvested In Wichita Area

With the bulk of the cotton crop picked, most of the corns, sorghum and hay harvested, small grain sown and some fall plowing done, the agricultural situation in Texas generally is much better than it was a year ago, according to the November crop report of the United States department of agriculture.

"The long period of open weather and ample labor supply has enabled the farmers to put their work into better than usual shape," the report said. "Debts of last year have been liquidated in most instances, and in localities a surplus remained after paying current obligations. There are grain and feed enough for next year, hogs to make meat and lard and more families are making a living on the farm than in many years."

The Texas cotton crop is estimated at 4,300,000 bales, which is 1,328,000 less than the 1926 crop.

The corn crop is estimated at 114,931,000 bushels. Rats have overrun large areas of corn fields, consuming and injuring material quantities of the grain, according to the report. Weevils have also damaged a considerable portion of the grain.

The grain equivalent of the Texas crop of grain sorghums amounts to 69,192,000 bushels, an average of 24 bushels an acre, the report sets out. Of the crop last season 63 per cent was harvested for grain and 37 per cent for forage, while this year a somewhat greater forage percentage and smaller proportion of grain will result.

The sweet potato crop is estimated at 11,970,000 bushels, compared with 8,556,000 bushels last year.

Despite a dry summer peanuts have averaged 650 pounds an acre, for an indicated production of 83,200,000 pounds. This against 49,345,000 pounds in 1925.

Only a limited number of localities have fair pecan crops this year, according to the report. Prospects are that less than 23 per cent of a full crop will be harvested. In comparison, the 1926 crop was the largest on record.

Texas rice is averaging 39 bushels to the acre, for a total production of 6,279,000 bushels, against 6,142,000 bushels last year.

CHANCE ACQUAINTANCES

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Danger May Lurk in "Picking Up" Strange Men

By Beatrice Fairfax,
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

WE are living in an informal age. Social affairs are managed more simply than they were a few generations ago. This is for the most part, gain, as many of the customs discarded by modern men and women were out-worn. There are, however, certain conventions with which we cannot afford to dispense, because they protect all, even though they may prove inconvenient now and then.

"Anxious" writes that he wishes to make the acquaintance of a young lady who lives in his neighborhood. He feels that she, also, would be interested in meeting him. He has asked all his friends about her, but not one of them knows her. He explains that she is evidently "a person of refinement," who would resent being addressed by a stranger. Under these circumstances, is there no way in which these two young persons can meet each other?

"Lonely Seventeen" has a similar problem. She knows a certain young man—"by sight only." He stopped in front of her home the other day, while she was sitting on the porch, and made some remark. "Seventeen" paid no attention to the remark and the young man continued on his way.

She wishes to know whether she did right. She says she really would like to know the young man. "Seventeen" knows a girl who knows him, but whenever she sees the girl, the young man does not happen to be present.

"Sis," also is puzzled over the introduction problem. She was introduced it seems, to a young man over the phone. He has never seen her. He refuses to meet her parents, but wishes to meet her outside her home. She is undecided about going on with the acquaintance.

I do not wish to discourage "Anxious," "Lonely Seventeen," "Sis," and others who have written regarding this problem. It might be very pleasant now and then to "pick up" an attractive stranger. But would it be wise?

On my desk are a few clippings from recent copies of the newspapers. These are some of the true stories they tell:

A traveling salesman met a pretty blonde through his pal, who "picked her up" in a restaurant without an introduction. The salesman cultivated the girl's acquaintance. As a result, she involved him in a hideous murder, and both are awaiting electrocution.

"The nicest fellows!"

This is the description two factory girls gave of two young men they met on the street. The men asked the girls riding the following evening.

"Why not go!" the girls doubtless reasoned. "We have little enough fun! We can take care of ourselves and any one can see they're lovely young men!"

A lonely maid, the morning after the ride, scanned the bulletin-board, mutilated bodies of three two girls. Their chance acquaintances, the "lovely fellows," escaped.

A certain young girl strolled in the moonlight with her chum one Summer's evening. They met two strangers on the street—attractive young men. All had supper together and the party ended merry and harmless. The lady of that girl was found in her own hallway next morning.

Chance acquaintances do not always end disastrously. But they too often lead to burglary, suicide and blackmail if not actual murder.

There are some circumstances under which it may be safe to talk together, attend an entertainment, frequent tearooms together day after day or even journey short spells. At times good talk with other unspoiled folk encourages confidence, leads to friendship. A judicious introduction is not easily found to be reliable.

Often, on the score of "family connections," an introduction, although not successful, can be depended upon. By all means wait for that introduction, then disentangle and start your friendship right.

The introduction is a privilege which has provided for itself, by means of which one reliable person, knowing another and assuming a certain responsibility for him. Even an introduction needs to be taken rather seriously by the young person.

It is better by far to make those acquaintances. Wait until you can meet the young man who interests you, in the right way, through a friend you have in common. Then your neighbors will have every chance of leading to friendship, perhaps—who knows—to happy romance and marriage.

The First Taste of Success

By L. Lamar Matthews

THE children call her "Miss Alice" and their parents before them called her that. Everybody in the town where she teaches knows "Miss Alice" and everybody who has had the good fortune to be in her class remembers her with gratitude and affection.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

"Miss Alice" firmly believes that every child can excel in at least one thing. She has found by experience that if a child at some time, in some way, achieves a marked success it inspires him to further effort.

There was little Aaron Black. Aaron was a little bit less than average in the matter of intelligence and that's why "Miss Alice" began hunting around for some line in which he could excel. She found that the boy could write unusually well. After that she let him write part of some lesson on the board each day; and she always complimented hi smooth, legible handwriting. Aaron beamed with pride. His tousle head went up as it had never done before. He could look his schoolmates in the eye; for there was something that he could do better than most of them. This achievement, this new self-confidence encouraged him to make greater effort in his other studies; and Aaron took a new lease on school life.

Then there was Sally Mack. Sally was fat; she was older than her classmates; she was dull; and she was painfully sensitive.

The first time Sally arose in "Miss Alice's" class to recite some of the children snickered. But they never did it again. For when Sally had occasion to leave the room their teacher made them understand just how rude and unkind and ill-bred that giggling seemed.

Before long "Miss Alice" discovered that Sally had a beautiful voice. After that Sally was asked to lead the class singing.

"Your voice is so sweet and clear that I want the other pupils to imitate your tones," she told the astonished girl.

That success gave Sally more satisfaction than anything that had ever come her way, and it encouraged her to try harder for other small successes.

Sally is grown now. She has worked off that superfluous fat; she has overcome her shyness and awkwardness; and it doesn't matter if she is dull. For she is good-looking, she sings like a nightingale, and her husband and children adore her.

There are other grown-ups and other children in that town who date their start upward to the time when "Miss Alice" was their teacher.

It is a great day in the life of a child when he finds that he is not as inferior to other children as he thought he was.

When he makes one effort toward a definite end he has put his foot on the ladder of achievement.

The stimulus of success is necessary to mental and moral development. Nothing is so discouraging as failure after failure. It destroys the morale. It has a crushing, blighting effect upon the child's nature. Success develops an attitude of confidence and hopefulness. That's why teachers and parents should make certain that some small successes are intermingled with the small failures that come to children.

Country Mother's Job Not Always Easy

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU, if a mother, probably live in the city or the country, large towns being cities and small villages being classified as country. If you are a town mother you may envy the country mother, her freedom from smoke, fog and noise and from the misery of life in a tenement. But, in fact, the country mother has troubles and problems quite as difficult and painful as any to be found in a town home. Overcrowding is common to both, for farm houses, so called, and village cottages, are not elastic. Other country drawbacks are damp houses, food and water shortage, distance from nurse and doctor, bad sanitation and many worries.

CHARLES A. L. REED, M.D.

Milk, at any rate, one might think was plentiful in the country. But in many districts even a cowman's wife cannot get it, even at town prices, for the whole supply is sent to the dealers. Consequently many children are fed on cheap, tinned milk, with disastrous results to their health.

The water supply is generally a well or spring, usually several hundred yards from the dwelling. This means that every drop wanted for washing, cooking and cleaning has to be drawn and carried, generally by the mother, whatever the weather and whatever her state of health. Then every drop of water used has to be disposed of. There generally is no handy kitchen sink to throw it down. Some of these wells are heavy to work and occasionally the water is rightly open to suspicion. When, in a dry Summer, the shallow well gives out, water may have to be fetched from a much greater distance under much more difficult conditions.

The country is the place where food is grown, but not by any means where food is plentiful. For instance, in many inland villages no mother can ever think of providing fish dinners for her family, as the town mother can easily do. In the Summer time there is plenty of fruit, but at any other time she cannot afford it.

We talk about vitamins, but whereas four or five children can be kept quiet for half a day with a few cents' worth of cheap sweets it would cost a quarter to give them the equivalent pleasure in apples or tomatoes. Again, in a small village the mother is dependent on the small general store, where, often, inferior provisions are sold at more than town prices, for there is no competition.

Illness is a far more anxious thing when the mother has to wait a whole day or more for a doctor. Many minor ailments such as chickenpox, measles and ringworm, toothache and small accidents go untreated because the mother cannot leave home for long enough to take the child to the doctor. If she doesn't go to the doctor she has to pay the doctor for travelling to her—and that is expensive.

The establishment of small school clinics, and dentists' motor vans helps to improve matters in remote country districts, but these blessings are still very rare.

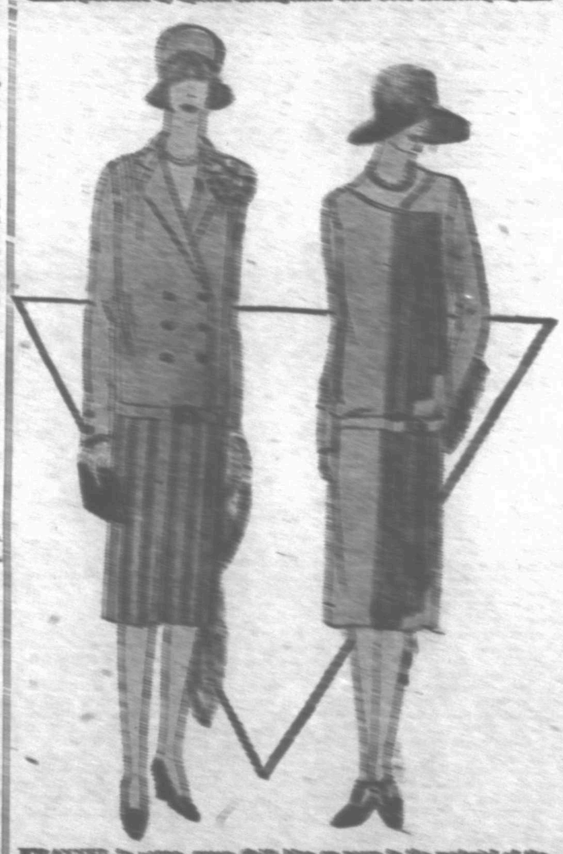

Take it all in all, the country mother of the working class has no soft snap. She is full of ambition. She works hard and long. The conditions of her life probably subject her to more hazards than are known by her city sister. That is one reason for the trend of population from country to city. To counteract this tendency there should be "Country Mothers' Clubs" in every rural community. Such organizations offer a splendid opportunity for philanthropy.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Bridal Processional

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Would you be so kind as to give me the order in which the following bridal processional would march? Flower girl, matron of honor, the ushers, best man and groom.

2. If the bride is to be given away by her brother, her father being dead, does he march with her in the procession or meet her at the altar with the groom and best man? Then what does he do? When I say "Then what does he do?" I mean does he stay with the bridal party or take a seat beside his mother?

Thank you. A READER.

FIRST come the two ushers, walking together. Then the ring-bearer, alone. Next the matron of honor, walking alone. Next the flower girl, alone. Last the bride and her brother. The best man and groom wait at the front of the church.

2. Usually he walks with the bride as she goes up the aisle. Of course, if the bride prefers to walk alone she may, but usually a bride likes the fortification of walking with the male relative who is to present her in marriage.

If the bride walks with her brother, she walks on his right. Then when they reach the foot of the chancel steps the groom steps forward to meet her. At the same time the brother steps to the left and a step behind the bride. Here he waits until the time in the ceremony when the minister says, "Who giveth this woman to this man?" Then he steps forward and places your hand in the clergyman's hand. This part of the ceremony over, your brother steps into the pew with your mother, the first pew on the left.

Tempting Recipes

By Hannah Wing

NOT all Swiss cheese comes from Switzerland, and therefore not all of this cheese has the characteristic flavor and richness of the original product. To remove all possibilities of error the staunch little country of Switzerland will no longer permit the cheese to be nicknamed. Henceforth the genuine Swiss cheese that comes from that country will be known as Switzerland cheese—all others are not genuine.

In this country this cheese has been best known in a sandwich between slices of rye bread. In its native country it is used in cooking or eaten with the dessert of pastry or fruit quite as our American cheese is in this country.

If you are fond of the flavor of Swiss cheese, or if you wish to add a new and nutritious note to your menus, get some of the genuine Switzerland cheese and try it in these dishes:

Au au Rapidee.

Cut Switzerland cheese in strips one-fourth inch square and two inches long. Brush lightly with mustard and wrap each in a wafer thin slice of bacon. Place under the broiler and grill until the bacon is crisp. Serve on strips of freshly-made toast, sprinkling each strip with a sprig of watercress.

The Switzerland cheese to prepare gives one-quarter of an inch thick and must come under the broiler. Meantime, heat salmon in the oven, place a square of cheese on each, brush lightly with mustard and top with a disk cut from canned pimento.

Fashion Fads and Fancies

By Mildred Ash.

EVERY Day Is Wash Day with the correctly gloved women who wear the smart fabric gloves, which closely resemble suede. Suitable to all occasions, these washable gloves are obtainable in all the soft shades of beige, brown and gray, as well as in black and white.

Finding No Charm in Contrast, the season's footwear fashions favor shoes and stockings that exactly match. The latest shades of beige, brown, smoke gray and taupe are offered in chiffon hose and in shoes of novelty, glazed or dull leather. Suede and antelope are especially smart for dressy street shoes as well as for formal afternoon wear, and are often trimmed in narrow, tiny bandings of reptile skin.

Our Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

HE always has a dismal tale to offer any listening ear; earth is, he vows, a shadowed vale and very drear. The men about him shrink away, affrighted, when they hear him speak; the bravest heart at such dismay grows faint and weak. Yet foolish is his grim delight in giving forth this sombre song. However much he think he's right—he's wrong! For while he croaks the robin sings each morn his merry roundelay, and with the flutter of bright wings drives care away. The misanthrope is no man's friend, but steals away peace, joy and cheer, his hate makes life seem, in the end, a thing of fear. Men, heeding him, would reach the brink of woe, the bars to Paradise; we pity him, and yet we think he knows—he lies!

FOLLY'S DAUGHTER

A Thrilling Mystery Story of New York's Night Life

By ANN LISLE

Mac Summons Roy.

WHEN MacNeil Shannon's left foot would bear his weight, he hurried back to New York. There was a mourning band on his sleeve. There was a tired look in his eyes. He had loved his mother. He had been lamed in trying to save her from the car that crushed out her life.

ANN LISLE

As he stood at the desk of his New York hotel, his eyes misted with tears and lighted with pleasure at sight of the picture of his mother that stood in a place of honor.

"I'm sorry if it has upset you to see it here," a clerk said gently. "But I've kept it here ever since——"

"Mrs. Moore put it there, of course," Mac said idly. "And you have kept it there. I'm grateful to you both. I'm grateful that you two have remembered——"

"I think the young lady with red hair will remember, too," the clerk said. "She was crying fit to kill while she was draping your mother's picture, Mr. Mac—Mr. Shannon, I mean."

"You're a good enough friend of the boss to call him Mr. Mac," that gentleman said with one of the smiles that could light his iron face and make it boyish and sweet. "But what do you mean by saying that the young lady with red hair decorated the picture? You mean Miss Hathaway, I suppose. What was she doing here? She doesn't work here any more, does she?"

"No, sir. But she came right over that night we got news of—the accident. . . And—I think I've said enough, sir."

"You've said enough so you've got to say more," Mac ordered grimly.

So the observant young clerk, who had no idea that he had "noticed" his way up to the promotion list, told what he had seen on the night when Mrs. Moore ordered Jill out of the hotel.

"Quite so," Mac broke in grimly. "Mrs. Moore is an excellent woman but a poor psychologist. I believe Miss Hathaway was engaged to Ames—"

"She was," the clerk said regretfully. "But that poor kid got a dirty deal all around. After it came out that she was the daughter of the Duane woman, Ames took his honeymoon all alone. Beats all what cowards some men are, doesn't it, Mr. Mac? And snobs to boot. Can you imagine a man deserting the girl he loved because her family tree was a little lop-sided?"

"I cannot," said Mac grimly. Nor can I imagine how a young man of your powers of observation has remained a clerk so long. How would you like to try assistant managership at one of our small hotels and work up to a managership of the Coast Shannon?"

But Mac was not quite so kind in the things he said to Mrs. Moore. Nor was he particularly gentle in his address to himself. And when he got Ray Scarlett on the phone he was suave—but icy. Roy recognized the fact that he was being ordered, not invited, to lunch with the head of the Shannon Hotels the next day. He said nothing about it to Vic. She was beginning to get jumpy about the Hathaway girl, whom she persisted in discussing as "My little sister" and naming as Jill Heath.

When Roy went to keep his luncheon engagement with Mac he was prepared to present such a brilliant array of advertising attention that Mac couldn't get around to the family skeleton whose bones Roy did not fancy rattling in public. But Shannon drove directly to his point:

"Look here, Scarlett, what's become of the Hathaway girl? Her relationship to your wife is pretty close—"

"Sure it is," Roy grumbled. "And a darn shame it is that they dug up the whole ugly story. Vic was so ashamed of it all that she ran away to New York and masqueraded under the name Vivian Hartley. Now her name is Vivian Scarlett. Why in heck should it be tarnished by the Heath scandal of a couple of decades ago?"

"I'll say that your wife's part of it doesn't count much," Mac said grimly. "What I'm thinking of is that poor youngster with her name unsmirched, her story public property, her mother's guilt a byword, her mother's suit a dramatic subject and her own loneliness likely to drive her to——"

"You can't drive a girl like that anywhere she doesn't want to go. It might as well tell you the facts and then we can settle down to the new business," Roy said irritably. "Vic persuaded me to agree to adopt the girl. The kid has felt like doing it. But I wanted to make up to my wife for—a few things. So I agreed. Jill was sent upstate to the dump where she lived—the Kerlys."

"Good," said Mac. "If you're looking out for the girl, then I'm not going to have to——"

"But, we're not," Roy told him. "She'll quit when we get there—quit rather shabby circumstances—with a wad. Vivian makes the same kind you have—"

"Roy Scarlett," Mac said half under his breath, "I knew he was a bad hombre the night I got her away from him. So that is the end of Jill Hathaway—"
