War cabinet convened by Britain's Thatcher

By The Associated Press

A Sea King helicopter with Britain's Falkland Islands war fleet ditched in the stormy South Atlantic today because of technical problems, but the Defense Ministry said its four-man crew bailed out and was rescued by another chopper.

No other incidents were reported today around the islands. But British warplanes bombed Argentine troop positions around the capital of Stanley on Monday, and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said she will make no more concessions at U.N. peace talks to settle the six-week crisis.

Mrs. Thatcher "more talks with her inner 'war cabinet' today on military options in case this week's U.N. talks fail. On Monday she reportedly gave Argentina 48 hours to make peace.

"Negotiations cannot continue indefinitely," said "War Cabinet" member Cecil Parkinson, chairman of the ruling Conservative Party. "We now have the seventh draft of the different proposals we have put to the Argentines and I believe the time has come for decisions."

He also said Britain was disappointed at the failure of its nine European Economic Community partners to fully renew the one-month trade sanctions against Argentina. Seven nations renewed sanctions for a week Monday night but Italy and Ireland declined.

But in Luxembourg today, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the United States stands fully behind Britain in the crisis and intends to "abide fully by commitments made."

Haig spoke after the North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign minister conference renewed support for Britain's position in the conflict and condemned what they called Argentine "aggression."

War correspondent John Witherow of the London Times reported from the aircraft carrier Invincible that Sea Harrier jets in Monday's raids dropped 1,000-pound bombs fused to explode 50 feet above ground. He said they were effective against many targets, including parked planes.

There were no reports on results. But naval briefing officers said planes dropped bombs near troop emplacements, Witherow reported.

The British Defense Ministry said the Sea King helicopter forced to ditch "was not the result of any action involving Argentine forces." It said the none of the rescued crew was hurt.

The Sea King was the fifth helicopter the British have admitted losing through bad weather or accidents since the fleet sailed from Britain April 5. The Defense Ministry says none has been shot down.

In Buenos Aires, the Argentine air force's commander and member of the ruling junta, Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo, said his forces will stage "a massive attack" as soon as British targets "are perfectly spotted and at a distance within reach of our whole arms system."

Mrs. Thatcher warned the Argentines in London radio interview Monday: "We have gone as far as we can. They are the invader. They are the aggressor. We are the aggrieved. It is up to them."

The prime minister said if Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, the Argentine president, does not withdraw his forces from the islands, Britain will "make him go."

"After all, we have been negotiating now for six weeks," she said. "I have looked at six sets of proposals. They have got nowhere."

But Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez said "there's no more news" about the Argentine position. "No further comment," he told newsmen in Buenos Aires.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said military sources reported Mrs. Thatcher told U.N. Ambassador Anthony Parsons to warn the Argentine negotiators at U.N. headquarters they must reach a settlement in 48 hours or she would order an invasion to retake the rocky, wind-swept islands Argentina seized from Britain April 2.

"Unless there is an unexpected breakthrough at the United Nations, the invasion now appears certain," Press Association said.

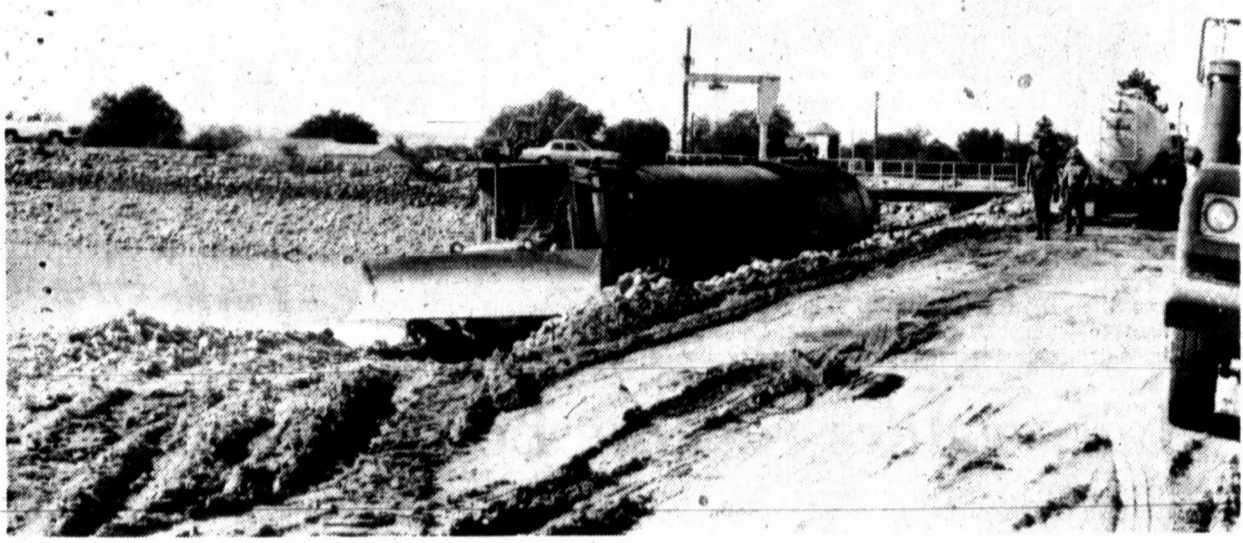

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said the next few days "will be decisive."

"I am more than ever convinced that time is not on the side of peace," he said. "Therefore efforts to find a peaceful solution will be pursued with vigor."

British and Argentine sources said both sides objected to details of a proposed U.N. interim administration for the islands and to suggestions for withdrawal of military forces from the area.

Press Association said the Common Market's compromise decision on renewing sanctions against Argentina was "a major setback" and "a serious diplomatic rebuff" for Britain.

British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym said the Common Market would meet again next Monday, leaving open the possibility another extension could be arranged. Britain's allies lost their enthusiasm for the British cause when Britain sank the Argentine cruiser General Belgrano on May 2, causing the death of 321 sailors.

WATER RESERVOIR DRAINED. Crews from the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority are working 24-hour shifts to drain and clean the holding reservoir for Pampa and Borger water supplies from Lake Meredith. The holding pond feeds water to both city systems and is being cleaned to correct a bad taste and odor problem in the reservoir's water. The reservoir, located in Borger, stores water from Lake Meredith. The six million gallons of water in the tank must be drained and loaded into individual tanker trucks for dumping at another location.

Water supply cleanup underway

Crews from the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority are working 24-hour shifts to drain and clean the holding reservoir for Pampa and Borger water supplies from Lake Meredith.

The cleaning is underway to correct a bad taste and odor condition in water from the reservoir. Officials believe cleaning and treating an accumulation of sludge on the bottom of the pond will improve the water.

The six million gallon reservoir must be drained by pumps and later transferred for dumping by tanker truck. One truck load at a time ensures that the process will be time consuming. CRMWA General Manager John Williams said the process could take about two weeks to complete.

Water authority officials have been unavailable for comment about the cleanup operation, because each employee is working at the reservoir on a 12-hour shift.

City Manager Mack Wofford said Monday that the bottom of the pond will be treated with chlorine once the water is drained.

Also to be drained and dumped are about 10 million gallons of water inside the pipeline from the reservoir to Pampa.

The draining and dumping operation must follow strict guidelines.

Both Pampa and Borger are using only well water, while the reservoir for lake water is out of commission.

At the reservoir Monday, a huge pump was sucking water from the pond into two huge tanks, which rest on a sled on the bank of the reservoir. The two tanks are filled and then pushed by a bulldozer out of the storage pond. The water from the big tanks is then transferred to each individual tanker truck for disposal.

Phillips: tax personnel need appraisal schools

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Pampa Independent School District Superintendent Bob Phillips said today he would encourage the district's tax office staff to attend tax appraisal workshops to keep informed of tax changes even though the office's appraisal duties will be eliminated next year.

Charles Rand, city school tax assessor-collector, said trips to seminars and courses in Austin and Amarillo are justified because his office is "still in the appraisal business" until the end of 1982.

Tax appraisal responsibilities for all 10 Gray County taxing entities, including the Pampa schools, will be moved to a central tax office for 1983. The school board voted unanimously March 3 on Phillips' recommendation, to cease appraisal in preparation for the centralization.

And workload of the tax office is substantially reduced this year. All real property parcels in the district were reappraised last year, and this year's appraisal is limited to new properties and additions, personal property, and mineral and industrial properties.

But recent school board budget reports list payments for travel and tuition for appraisal education as late as April 7, more than one month after the vote to get out of appraisal functions.

High court upholds cutoff of federal funds to schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, casting her first Supreme Court vote in a women's rights decision, says she agrees the federal government can cut off funds from schools that discriminate against female workers.

Mrs. O'Connor, the court's only woman member, was in a 6-3 majority Monday that said a 1972 federal law designed to halt sex bias in education applies to school employment practices as well as to treatment of students.

The vote only reflects Mrs. O'Connor's view of what Congress meant in passing the law. It does not show her views on women's rights under the Constitution.

In other action Monday, the nation's highest court:

—Said it will decide whether a suspected drunken driver's refusal to take a sobriety test can be used as evidence of guilt.

Phillips said a report in the Sunday edition of The Pampa News on tax appraisal school expenses "seems inaccurate." Rand said, in reaction to the report, "I'm not trying to be critical, but I just didn't understand the purpose of the article."

Both Phillips and Rand said some of the trips and courses listed in the article took place before the vote to centralize the appraisal duties.

Phillips said the tax office budget will be reduced by $100,000 next year, but he would support further education for tax office staff even then.

He said the staff should keep informed of tax laws in preparation for 1983 to maintain the background necessary for their work.

As for the elimination of appraisal duties for the staff, Phillips said "I don't think that's really all that relevant."

Rand said the workshops were justified because of the difficulty for the staff in staying informed of changing tax laws.

He said the office staff should be judged on education and experience, and in order to handle concerns of taxpayers "you must still have the experience to handle it."

Rand said "I understand people's feelings about paying taxes" and the tax office is "doing the best we can under the circumstances" to serve the taxpayer.

women and girls," said Margaret Kohn of the National Women's Law Center in Washington.

Like all other employees, school workers have other legal remedies to challenge alleged discrimination. But Monday's ruling, which sanctions a cutoff of federal money, provides the government with a new legal weapon to fight sex bias.

The court ruled in a case involving two local Connecticut school boards accused of discriminating against female employees.

Jury told Hinckley had 'mental illness'

WASHINGTON (AP) — When he shot President Reagan last year, John W. Hinckley Jr. suffered from "a severe mental illness" that caused him to withdraw from reality and left him unable to think in a logical way, a Harvard psychiatrist testified today.

Dr. David Michael Baer, the second expert psychiatrist to testify for the defense about Hinckley's state of mind during the March 30, 1981, shooting, diagnosed the 26-year-old defendant's disease as a "schizophrenia spectrum disorder."

Baer, an assistant professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, said the disease is "a major depression with psychotic features — features that cut him off from reality."

Baer said the disorder causes "thoughts to split off one from another. They do not flow logically. Thoughts are cut off from emotion."

The psychiatrist, who said he specializes in neurological problems — disorders of the brain and spinal cord — told a federal trial jury that Hinckley also had suffered from a lack of sleep in the five days before the shooting.

Hinckley's behavior also was adversely affected by medication that had been prescribed for him, Baer said.

Another defense psychiatrist, Dr. William T. Carpenter Jr., testified Monday that Hinckley acted on impulse when he shot Reagan and then "waited to be blasted" so he could enter a magical union with Miss Foster.

Carpenter said he wrote a report about Hinckley's own description of that dramatic moment.

"The president was turning to smile, but he never had the chance," the psychiatrist's report said.

"He dropped the gun, fell to his knees and waited to be blasted."

Until that moment, Carpenter said, Hinckley wasn't certain whether he would shoot Reagan or go to Yale University in New Haven Conn.

Ambulance service 'here to stay'

"We are not going to fold — we're here to stay," Metropolitan ambulance owner La Wayne Guengerich made that statement from his office Monday afternoon, following reports that Pampa's ambulance service was about to fold.

For more than the past week, Guengerich was unavailable for comment on the company's financial problems, which led to reports that Metropolitan was about to close its doors.

"I want to remain non-committal for the next few days. There are some things going on behind the scenes that I can't discuss right now. We have been here a long time, and we plan to stay here, but there may be some changes made. I won't know until I meet with a few people," Guengerich said Monday.

The status of Metropolitan is uncertain as Guengerich was not to be found while the service lost communications equipment to creditor repossession last week.

Creditors picked up the company's radio pagers last week, and Metropolitan had its phone yanked April 22.

The phone company disconnected

Pampa's emergency ambulance number, due to "repeated non-payment."

Other actions, both past and present, have been filed against Metropolitan for non-payment of bills. A recent action saw a local car dealer refuse to release an ambulance due to non-payment of a repair bill. A local tire company wants its money for new ambulance tires and front-end work.

Despite the mounting financial pressure, Guengerich said his company plans to fulfill the ambulance contract with Pampa and Gray County. The entities pay an equal share of a $5,600 monthly subsidy to Metropolitan.

The contract between the entities and Metropolitan expires in September.

City Manager Mack Wofford said Friday that employees had not seen Guengerich for the past 10 days, but Guengerich maintained Monday that he has been "in close contact with city officials, especially since April 22."

Wofford said Monday that Guengerich "came by to tell me he was still here — that's about the extent of it," the city manager said.

"He told me he had been out of town for the last 10 days or so and wanted to let me know he was back in town," Wofford said.

After hinting about changes in Metropolitan's operation, Guengerich said he will know more about the company's status after a few meetings with unidentified officials.

"After some high-level meetings, I can tell you more about the situation," Guengerich said. There are unconfirmed reports that Guengerich's "high-level meetings" involve attempts to sell the ambulance company. It has been reported that both local and outside concerns have looked at purchasing Metropolitan.

However, any sale or transfer of the ambulance service must again approval of both city and county officials since the two government entities provide subsidies under terms of a contract with Metropolitan.

"We have known for some time that they are for sale, but they have not officially requested transferring the ambulance contract," Wofford said today.

One Metropolitan ambulance has been parked at the police station this week, and a Pampa officer has been driving the unit. Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said the officer is a former employee at Metropolitan and has insurance to cover his involvement in driving the ambulance.

Ryzman said the officer is not driving the unit today. "We gave it all back to them yesterday," Ryzman said.

Also, an ambulance from Amarillo was called to Pampa Monday to transfer a patient here to Amarillo. Normally, Metropolitan would transfer patients from Pampa to Amarillo hospitals.

POLICE DRIVE AMBULANCE. Pampa police officers have been forced to serve as drivers for the city's private ambulance company.

During Metropolitan's current operations crisis, a lack of manpower forced police to respond to emergencies. This ambulance was driven by a uniformed police officer and parked at City Hall Monday. Reports abound today that Metropolitan is about to change hands.

IS THIS BOAT SPEEDING? Kingfisher, Okla., residents had to use boats to get around their streets after flooding inundated the north central Oklahoma town Monday. Up to 600 residents were routed from their homes by the floodwaters.

High waters recede, bodies found

By The Associated Press
 High water that left hundreds of people homeless began receding from storm-battered communities in Oklahoma and Texas as officials recovered the bodies of five people who drowned in rampaging floods.
 A week of violent thunderstorms and tornadoes in parts of Missouri, Texas, Oklahoma, North Dakota and Illinois has caused a total of at least 10 deaths.
 About 600 people were evacuated in Kingfisher, Okla., as waters swirled 6 feet deep in the 4,000-resident town before beginning to recede Monday after the worst flooding in a quarter century. Gov. George Nigh declared a state of emergency in the town.
 "My house is full of water," said one of the evacuees, 40-year-old Mary Cordova. "I doubt there's anything left to salvage."
 "All the houses look like little islands," said Howard Watson, director of civil defense in Kingfisher. "And there's two to three feet of water in the houses now."

As waters began to drop, some residents began returning home, said a sheriff's office dispatcher, Ed Tiegman.
 "As soon as the floor shows, they go in and start cleaning," said Tiegman. "They don't want to wait for the mud to dry."
 Texas was pounded Monday by a second day of heavy rain, high winds and hail the size of baseballs. Authorities on Monday recovered the bodies of three San Antonio residents washed away Sunday in floodwaters when a car was swept off a bridge near Uvalde in southwest Texas.
 In Wichita Falls, Texas, where water finally began to recede Monday from flooding last week that forced 5,000 people to evacuate, about 500 people remained homeless.
 Many victims had rebuilt their houses from a tornado that devastated the same part of town in April 1979.
 Wichita Falls Mayor Gary Cook

requested a survey team from the governor's Office of Emergency Preparedness, which was to arrive today. Only 6 percent of more than 2,000 flooded homes were covered by insurance and damage was estimated at $20 million, Cook said.
 "We have declared a local state of emergency and are attempting to remove tons of debris and re-establish a state of normalcy in our community," he said, adding many city facilities were under water.
 Officers in San Antonio, where 7 inches of rain fell in the last two days, helped dozens of motorists trapped by floodwaters.
 One of the San Antonio flood victims, a 17-year-old woman, died when her car was swept away after it stalled in high water. An 18-year-old woman, Dawn Hamilton, and a would-be rescuer, Michael Murray, 27, died when her stalled pickup truck was washed over a bridge in Bexar County.

Second Baltimore row house fire kills seven

BALTIMORE (AP) — The second major row house fire in this city in four days swept through a two-story home today, killing seven people and injuring another, officials reported.
 The 4 a.m. fire that left four children and three adults dead in northwest Baltimore was blamed on careless smoking, said fire department Lt. Donald Crouch.
 Crouch said the blaze apparently started on a living room sofa and quickly spread up a stairwell.

 "The house is pretty much wiped out," he said.
 The victims were identified as Jean Moore, 36, her five children: Alicia Brand, 1; Duke Brown, 6; Renee Moore, 8; Rosetta Brand, 11; Darlene Moore, 21, and a visiting friend Jerome Dotsun, 35.
 "The victims were sleeping but had awakened and were trying to escape but were overcome by smoke," fire department Capt. Patrick Flynn said.

 "A smoke detector would have saved them," Flynn said. "There's no doubt."
 He speculated that heat from the blaze awakened the victims but that "they just didn't have enough lead time" to escape.
 Injured in the blaze was a firefighter who was treated at the fire department infirmary for first- and second-degree burns on the back of his neck.

No OPEC price reduction planned

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The world oil cartel will not lower its prices this year, meaning stable or slightly higher prices for gasoline and heating oil, according to sources in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.
 The sources said OPEC has concluded that the oil glut which pushed prices lower last winter will end this summer, and that prices will hold near current levels. The Standard Oil Company of California in a recent forecast said the excess supply of crude oil should be gone by July 1, and that OPEC production is likely to pick up afterward.
 A special four-nation OPEC committee was scheduled to open formal discussions today on the implications of the anticipated end of the glut. The committee, made up of the oil ministers of Algeria, Venezuela, Indonesia and the United Arab Emirates, is expected to recommend extending the production ceilings OPEC members agreed to at an emergency meeting in Vienna two months ago.

 The 13-nation cartel will consider the recommendation on Thursday, when it holds its regular spring meeting in Quito, Ecuador.
 The Vienna agreement to limit total production by the 13 nations to 17.5 million barrels per day came as world oil prices were tumbling and oil sales by some cartel members were rapidly declining. Since then, prices on the open market have recovered to near the level of official OPEC contract prices.
 Mana Saeed Oteiba, the president of OPEC and the oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, said Monday that current Opec production is "something like" 15 million barrels per day, slightly more than half its peak output three years ago. Oteiba also said OPEC was committed to restricting its production to keep prices from falling.

 One of the biggest uncertainties facing OPEC is economic recovery in the United States and Europe. Recession, coupled with conservation and substitution of other fuels for oil, has sharply reduced world demand for OPEC oil.
 Marc S. Nan Nguma, the cartel's secretary-general, said, "OPEC has the impression that the American economic recovery has been delayed." He would not say when OPEC's economists expected the U.S. economy to rebound. The Reagan administration has forecast recovery in the second half of 1982.
 A resurgence in U.S. economic activity would bolster the demand for OPEC oil since the United States buys more than 15 percent of OPEC's total daily output.

New laser therapy is treating glaucoma

WASHINGTON (AP) — The major form of glaucoma, an eye disease that threatens the sight of millions, can be treated with a new type of laser therapy that one day could lead to a cure for the blinding condition, says an eye researcher.
 The therapy, which uses laser light beams to scar part of the inner eye, relieves the pressure within the eyeball that leads to blindness and greatly reduces the need of many patients for surgery or constant medication, Dr. James B. Wise said Monday.
 Wise, of the University of Oklahoma College of Medicine, and other experts said his new approach — called laser trabeculoplasty or LTP — is so successful that many eye specialists around the country are quickly adopting it.
 Glaucoma is a condition of uncertain cause in which fluid does not drain properly from the eye, causing increased internal pressure. This slowly damages the optic nerve, leading to blindness.
 The risk of the disease usually increases with age and millions of people have some form of it, many unknowingly. An estimated 1.6 million Americans are visually impaired by glaucoma and 62,000 are blind from the disease.
 The laser treatment is effective against the most common form, called chronic open-angle glaucoma. But it does not work with the congenital form or the so-called closed angle type, in which the angle of the iris in the eye blocks drainage.

 Near the front of the eye beneath the cornea, the curved transparent surface, is a ring of spongy tissue called the trabecular meshwork. Fluid constantly produced in the eye normally filters through this tissue into a canal where it leaves the eye.
 With glaucoma, this meshwork loses its spongy nature, collapses into the canal and blocks drainage.
 Glaucoma sufferers use special eyedrops that promote drainage, but they become less effective with time, Wise said. With severe disease, surgery is the only alternative. A hole is cut in the eye and covered with layers of tissue to create a controlled leak.

In 25 percent of the cases, the leak closes and glaucoma recurs, Wise said, and all patients are in danger of cataracts, bleeding and other complications.
 With the laser treatment, an outpatient procedure that takes 15 minutes and costs one-tenth as much as surgery, doctors put a special reflecting contact lens on the eye, Wise said. With a full, magnified view of the meshwork through the lens, doctors fire short laser pulses evenly around the body.
 The 60 to 100 burns scar the mesh ring, but do not burn through. This scar tissue contracts and pulls the mesh tighter, opening the drainage channel and reducing pressure, he said.

J.T. Richardson builds mud plant

CANADIAN — Plans to construct a plant in Canadian that will recondition drilling mud have been announced by J.T. Richardson Inc., a company which operates a fleet of specialized fluid transfer equipment in Texas and Oklahoma.
 Construction of the $500,000 facility will begin immediately, with completion set for July 1, according to Warren Chisum, president.
 "We will be able to recondition drilling mud to its original properties and save what otherwise would be waste," Chisum said.
 "Our customers will be able to purchase or lease this reconstructed drilling fluid for less than the cost of new fluid," Chisum said.

 The new liquid mud reclaiming plant will consist of two 300 barrel mixing pits and a 10,000 barrel liquid storage capacity. The facility also will have a warehouse for dry storage.
 Six full-time employees will operate the plant on 24-hour shifts, 365 days per year, according to company officials.
 J.T. Richardson's home office is in Pampa; the company also has terminals in Canadian, Wheeler and Whitesboro, Texas and Texas City, Elk City and Yukon, Oklahoma.

Domenici warns senators against inaction on Social Security plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Budget Committee is warning his colleagues that their election-year rebellion against his plan for $40 billion in Social Security savings will mean higher taxes or bigger deficits.
 "Nonetheless, Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., concedes "we don't have the votes" to preserve the controversial Social Security savings over the next three years, as endorsed by the Republican majority on his panel.
 Meanwhile, GOP leaders in the Democratic-controlled House were continuing efforts today to piece together an alternative budget outline that will hold the votes of disaffected Republican moderates and attract enough conservative Democrats to repeat their budget victories of last year.

 "We just about" have a package, House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said Monday night after completing more than nine hours of private meetings.
 Across the Capitol, the Senate was resuming debate today on the $779.1 billion 1983 budget plan that also includes $95 billion in tax hikes through 1985 and a $22 billion reduction in President Reagan's planned military buildup.

 "We are right on Social Security and the American people know it," Domenici declared Monday.
 But Republicans and Democrats alike have lined up with amendments to strip the Social Security provision from the budget blueprint.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Stamp acts

When President Reagan proposed a tightening up of the runaway foodstamp program last year, he was immediately portrayed as heartless and uncaring.

But if ever a program has been hideously abused and needed the knife — Food Stamps this year will reach 23 million recipients and cost $12 billion — it has been this one.

For a graphic illustration, consider: Since 1977, regulations posted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (which administers food stamps) have contained a provision giving an unusual benefit to the American-born children of illegal aliens.

In brief, the regulation declares that while the undocumented are not entitled to food stamps, their children are. Going further, the food stamp allocation to the children must be computed on the basis of the parents having "no income," the problem being that if the parents are "illegal," their income cannot be legally recognized.

Thus, since 1977, local food-stamp administrators have faced such anomalies as:

— A family of seven with an income of $1,500 monthly (two adult "illegals" with 5 U.S.-born children) being declared eligible for food stamps.

— A family of seven with an income of $1,500 monthly (two native-born U.S. residents with five children) being declared not eligible for food stamps.

The situation has grown so bizarre, local welfare officials concede, that bonafide legal residents are now claiming "illegal" status when applying for food stamps to block social services officials from figuring their income into their food stamp request.

In our hypothetical examples of families of seven, the monthly food stamp payout to the children of legal is zero. An illegal couple with four children is eligible for $233 a month. Three children are worth $183, and so on.

The situation has now existed five years, and happily, may be on its last legs. Clamoring by ineligible recipients and caseworkers reached the point that rules changes to stop the inequity were demanded by Congress in September.

Unfortunately, however, the process of change is so slow that new regulations have still not come down from Washington. The new rules must first be published by the USDA. A public comment period must follow, and then the new rules must be published again. That must be followed by a release of the new regulations to the state, another publication by the state, and then transmittal to local offices.

Mr. Reagan got into trouble with the Washington crowd when he talked about a guy who bought vodka with the change from his food-stamped orange juice. The program is much more than that, it was said. How much more, we are still learning.

Need to redress right-to-know bill

Congress set out last year to do some fine-tuning of the Freedom of Information Act, but the bill now before the Senate Judiciary Committee goes clear off the dial. In attempting to make the act less vulnerable to abuse, the bill would seriously undermine its usefulness as a tool for the public to keep tabs on the government.

The FOI Act will never be perfect, because government agencies will always quarrel with journalists, scholars, investigators, and others over what the public has a right to know and what the government has a right to keep secret for one reason or another. Since the Act was passed in 1966, people on both ends of the tug-of-war have compiled their lists of objections to its provisions and procedures.

Businesses have complained that inside information they supply to regulatory agencies can be obtained by competitors under the act. Agencies have complained about the expense of complying with requests for information. Above all, the CIA and the FBI have complained that the act can force them to disclose information damaging to national security or law enforcement.

More than a few of the complaints from the government side seem unwarranted. The law now permits a judge to review sensitive documents and decide whether an agency is justified in classifying them as secret and denying an FOI request to see them. That system seems to be working. The government seems to be suffering more harm and embarrassment from deliberate or accidental leaks of information than through the FOI act.

As for costs, the Senate bill may satisfy that problem by allowing agencies to impose fees for filling extensive requests for information, thus discouraging frivolous use of the Act. It is in the area of national security and law enforcement that the bill swings the pendulum too far in the direction of protecting government secrecy.

Under the bill, the attorney general would be empowered to make entire categories of information exempt from the act — terrorism, organized crime, or foreign counterintelligence. As sensitive as those areas may be this would relieve the Justice Department of any need to establish that release of information in those broad categories would somehow be harmful.

Further, federal agencies which may now withhold information that would "interfere with enforcement proceedings" would be able to withhold any information "relevant to enforcement proceedings." This is an invitation to build a fence around files as encompassing as one's definition or "relevant" can make it. Under the present law, an agency can withhold information that "would disclose" a confidential source. The bill would protect information that would "tend to disclose" a source, allowing an agency like the FBI to conceal aspects of an investigation that may be several steps removed from the identity of an informant.

There is no fault with the bill's attempt to deal with the problem of foreign agents who pose as journalists or scholars to use the FOI Act to probe for information in sensitive areas of the U.S. government. It would give an agency the right to question on whose behalf an individual is making an FOI request.

The Freedom of Information Act establishes that the government must have a bona fide reason to withhold information from the public it serves. There is nothing wrong with that principle. The Senate, however, is threatening to amend the act in a way that would allow agencies to hide behind smokescreens of excuses to avoid compliance with legitimate requests for information.

The senate judiciary Committee has been attempting to work out compromises with civil libertarians, journalists and other critics of its bill. Unless some of its objectionable features are changed, the bill would represent a sharp setback for the cause of public access to information the public deserves to know.

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON — Morale within the armed forces is abysmally low, alcoholism and drug abuse are chronic among soldiers, and military equipment is constantly plagued by design and performance problems.

Those complaints probably sound familiar, but in this case they have absolutely no relationship to any real or imagined deficiencies within the U.S. military establishment. Instead, they are typical of the problems regularly encountered in the Soviet Union.

This country's citizens seldom hear of the USSR's military shortcomings because the Defense Department prefers to portray the Soviet army as a highly trained, generously financed, well-equipped, virtually invincible juggernaut.

"American generals testifying before Congress always tell us about Soviet strengths. They tell us a lot less about Soviet weaknesses," says Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis. "Everything is geared to make it appear that there is a huge gap between Soviet and American weapons, with ours grossly inferior."

But Aspin, whose credentials include past service as a Pentagon systems analyst and current membership on the House Armed Services Committee, has produced compelling evidence that suggests that the vaunted Soviet military apparatus is, in fact a slothful, corrupt and flawed organization.

The information comes from a variety of sources, with much of it derived from Soviet emigres or defectors with military experience who now live in this country.

When new military conscripts arrive at the regiment with which they are to serve for two years, they are systematically abused by second-year soldiers who beat up the recruits, force them to perform menial tasks and steal their uniforms and personal possessions.

The second-year men, in charge of physical training, regularly resort to techniques approaching torture. In one case, a recruit was forced to exercise until he pulled out all of the stitches from a recent stomach operation.

Beatings imposed as punishment lead to irreversible physical damage, suicides and desertions. New conscripts receive rations barely adequate for survival because most of the food is taken by officers and older recruits.

Soviet soldiers are paid only 3 rubles and 80 kopecks per month — the equivalent of about $6 — but even these wages are frequently stolen by older conscripts and used to purchase vodka and drugs.

"Everybody drinks all the time. Absolutely everybody — all the officers and all the soldiers. All the time," one former Soviet lieutenant reported. "People drink anything they can lay their hands on," added a former reserve officer.

Alcohol is extracted from hydraulic brake fluid, aircraft de-icing fluid and anti-freeze. Some soldiers resort to drinking cologne. Others smoke hashish and opium derived from plants that grow in Soviet Central Asia.

Because one-fifth of all USSR military personnel are officers — a ratio 50 per cent higher than in the United States — the Soviet military establishment is under constant pressure to produce more officers.

But "nobody wants to study" at military commissioning schools, one former officer explained. As a result, army recruiters often attempt to trick young soldiers into signing contracts that commit them to 25-year military careers.

"About the only prospect that lures conscripts to re-enlist," says Aspin, "is an assignment to supervise a warehouse, which they use as a source of income by looting army supplies and selling them for personal profit."

Electronic equipment, spare parts for trucks, blankets, construction supplies and a host of other items are among the materials regularly stolen.

A former Soviet army technician recalled that he was supposed to be in charge of two radar stations "but only one worked and then only half the time because his unit's officers had stolen and sold much of the equipment."

"The second station would not function because... there was no generator," he explained. "Our officers sold it and drank the money away."

Today in history

Today is Tuesday, May 18, the 138th day of 1982. There are 227 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 18, 1980, Washington's Mount St. Helens volcano had its biggest eruption in 123 years, prompting the evacuation of residents up to 30 miles away.

On this date:

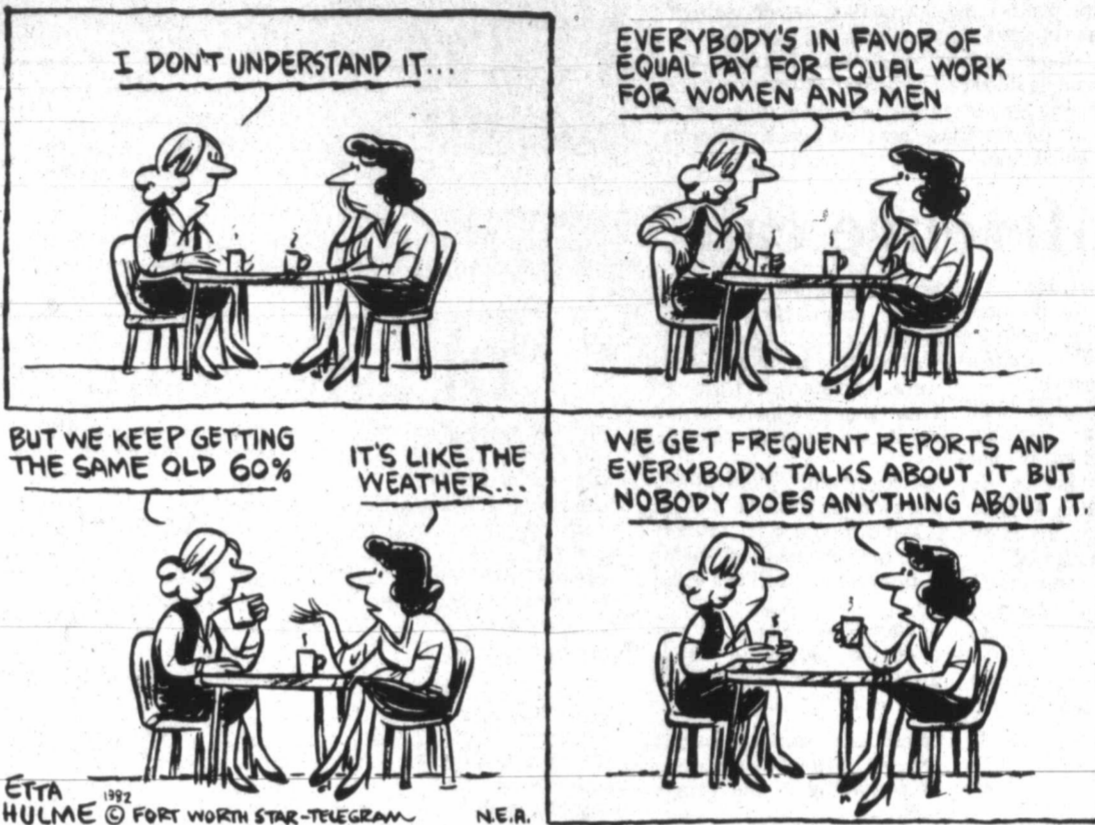

In 1736, England's witchcraft statutes were repealed.

In 1804, Napoleon Bonaparte was proclaimed Emperor of France.

In 1878, Colombia granted a French company a nine-year concession to build the Panama Canal.

And in 1941, Italian forces in Ethiopia surrendered during World War II.

Ten years ago: Four bomb-disposal experts parachuted into the Atlantic and boarded the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth II following a bomb threat aboard the vessel.

Should Government finance students?

By OSCAR W. COOLEY

Regarding government financial aid to college students, Juanita Kreps, former U.S. Secretary of Commerce, speaking at Ohio Northern University, said: "College is for everyone who wants to meet its standards of performance. Income should not be a barrier to learning."

Mrs. Kreps is an economist and knows full well that to go to college costs money, and that someone has to meet that cost. Like all goods, college is not for everyone but for those who can qualify academically and who can pay the cost. It hinges mainly on how much one wants to go to college. If one is sufficiently determined to go, his income or lack of it does not bar him. My father was a Vermont farmer. He had little money; yet three of his boys graduated from college, all private institutions of high order. I cite this merely as an example.

I knew students who came to the campus with hardly enough to make their first tuition payment. I recall one who came with nothing, attended four years and graduated with money in the bank. At one time or another, he must have janitored every building on the campus.

The assumption that unless the government offers loans and grants to college students, many well-qualified and deserving youth will be unable to get a job is quite wrong. College students are in the prime of life physically. If one has brains and ambition, lack of money need not deter him.

President Walter B. Waetjen, Cleveland State University, says that if the U.S. Government aids-to-students are denied, only the wealthy will go to the private schools and all others will compete for space at the state universities.

Not so long ago, there was no federal aid for students. The state gave a limited number of scholarships, but you had to burn the midnight oil to earn one. Federal aid to college students is a new thing.

In truth, going to college should not be made too easy. The more it is subsidized, the less the emphasis will be on learning. Because it costs less to attend a state college or university, the attendance there is marked by numbers, not brains.

Mrs. Kreps said the fact that a great number attend college in this country "brings benefits to society as a whole." For this reason, the sacrifices which taxpayers make to underwrite education can be justified, she observed.

How can one know that many young Americans going to college benefits "society as a whole"? Maybe too many go to college, they way being largely paid by tax revenue.

I assume Mrs. Kreps is not a socialist, but when one stresses service to "society as a whole," I wonder. Especially in the area of learning, the benefit is gained first and principally by the individual learner, not the society.

Taxing people, rich and poor, learned and ignorant, to get money to give to college students may benefit society greatly and may not. The question is, if that money was not taxed from them, how would they have spent it? It might have been used in ways more beneficial to society. The tax theory is that the state knows better than the owner how his money should be spent.

School prayers

By ART BUCHWALD

It is to the President's credit that with all the things on his plate, including unemployment, a tough budget fight, the Falkland crisis and his efforts to try to close the "Window of Vulnerability," he would take time to propose a constitutional amendment to permit prayers in school.

Critics have accused Mr. Reagan of raising the issue at this moment as a sop to his right-wing supporters, who feel the President has been spending too much time on the country's financial problems and not enough energy on the real issues facing the nation, of which school prayer is one with the highest priority.

Whether a constitutional amendment is a solution is up for debate. I believe we should try some other remedies first to satisfy everybody.

The administration has come down strongly on the side of giving tax credits to parents who send their children to parochial schools. It seems to me if this law is passed, a compromise solution to the problem would be to permit children attending public schools to be bused to a religious school of their choosing in the morning, say their prayers, and then get back on the bus and go to their public school to do their work. In this way you would give American children an opportunity to pray, but you would also keep religion off state property. Those on the bus who didn't want to pray could remain in their seats and hit each other over the head with books.

The pro-prayer people say that the constitutional amendment is voluntary and a child will not have to pray if he doesn't want to. The anti-prayer people maintain that peer pressure as well as teacher pressure will force a kid to pray whether he has the choice or not.

The latter group sees this kind of scenario:

"All right, children, we will now open with a morning prayer. Those sinners who don't believe in God can either stand in the back of the room with their faces to the wall, or hide in the clothes closet."

"Come, you little Bolsheviks, hurry it up so the rest of us can get on with seeking divine guidance. Where are you going, Tony?"

"I'm going to the back of the room. I already prayed at home this morning."

"And you think that's enough?"

"It's enough for me."

"Look at Tony, children. He is a perfect example of a secular humanist. He'd rather stand in the back of the room than pray to God. Does anyone know where Tony is going to wind up with his attitude?"

"In Hell."

"Very good, Charles. And who will he find in Hell?"

"Satan."

"And what will Satan make him do?"

"He'll make him feed the flames of a fiery furnace, and Tony will have to wear a tail, and he'll be screaming all the time and fighting off snakes, but it won't do him any good."

"That's absolutely right, Enid. Who knows what else will happen to him?"

"Blackbirds will peck his eyes out, and he'll have a stomachache all the time and his toes will drop off."

"Very good, Everett. Well, what do you have to say to that, Tony?"

"I'd still rather stand in the back of the room."

"Are there any other Communists in the class who would like to join him?" All right, Tony, you seem to be the only one. Go to the back and I don't want to see your ugly face until I tell you to take your seat. Now, class, let us bow our heads and pray for Tony's soul! Heavenly Father, there is always one rotten apple in the barrel...."

Church leaders applaud peace conference

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Many American church leaders returning from a religious peace conference in Moscow say the meeting produced an evenhanded appeal against nuclear arms, and wasn't Soviet-dominated as critics had charged.

Several also criticized Western news coverage of the meeting last week and defended the Rev. Billy Graham's participation, saying he made a positive contribution and that detractors had misrepresented him. "He was a tremendous ambassador for all people of good will, proclaiming the good news of Christ and hope for peace in the world," said the Rev. Reinhold Kerstan of the Baptist World Alliance in Washington. "He has been treated very unfairly by some Western people. He was not 'used.' His ministering spiritually wherever he could sets him apart from any such cheap criticism of his role."

Strong lobbying by the American ministers also helped prevent any Soviet domination of the meeting, the participants said. William P. Thompson, chief executive of the United Presbyterian Church, said the conference organized by the state-authorized Russian Orthodox Church was "completely open" and "the end product was quite balanced," calling on both nations to halt the nuclear arms buildup.

He also deplored the "negative appraisals" of Graham, saying they were based on error and "overstatements of what Graham said." Graham, a Southern Baptist evangelist, was criticized by several religious leaders last week after he said he had seen no direct evidence of religious repression in the Soviet Union, that church services "are allowed to go on freely," and that he had "experienced total liberty in what I say."

The Rev. Edmund W. Robb, chairman of the Institute of Religion and Democracy in Washington, said last week that Graham was "manipulated to give legitimacy to a conference controlled by the Soviet government." Graham said while on the Moscow visit he found Soviet churches to be well-attended, and he saw more religious freedom than he expected. Responding Monday in London to the criticism, he said reports of the trip contained "apparent distortion and actual misquotes."

However, the Rev. Paul L. Brndjar of the Lutheran Church in America echoed the criticism of Graham and said the conference had a pro-Soviet bent.

Senate name-calling is academic

WASHINGTON (AP) — When several Senate Republicans suggested their Democratic colleagues were being "demagogues" on the Social Security issue, a war of words erupted. It's still not clear who won.

"Now we are demagogues, our friends across the aisle say," said Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. He in turn accused Republicans of "all of the demagoguery."

The cross fire developed as the Senate's work on a defense bill became ensnarled in a battle over a GOP budget proposal — supported by President Reagan — that includes $40 billion in Social Security system cuts.

Senate Finance Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., entered the fray.

"I do not want to get into this argument about who is a demagogue so I went to the dictionary," Dole said. "I was surprised, looking in Webster's New International Dictionary of the English Language, Second Edition, Unabridged. When I went to the definition, it says, 'See Demagogue.'"

"Was not the word 'democrat' in lower case?" Byrd asked.

"No, it was in caps."

"Was it upper case?"

"I would be glad to give it to the senator. It is right in the dictionary. I did not print this up. I was even more shocked than the senator must be."

Byrd then asked if Dole meant to suggest, by inference, that "those who may be demagoguing the issue on the other side and downtown are Democrats also?"

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., strode to the front of the Senate and lugged the huge unabridged dictionary to his desk. Hearty laughter engulfed the chamber.

Sure enough, the Senate's 1955 copy of Webster's, in giving the origin of the word, noted its Greek root was "demos" or "people" and then stated, "SEE DEMOCRAT." That reference is omitted in later editions of the dictionary, however.

"I was to speak an hour, but having lost my enthusiasm, I will take six minutes," Moynihan said to more laughter.

Webster's goes on to define demagogue as "a leader or orator in ancient times who championed the cause of the common people," along with a more current usage: "especially, a political leader who seeks to gain personal or partisan advantage by specious or extravagant claims, promises or charges."

Moynihan, seeking to deflect Dole's barb, conceded that demagogue and democrat were based on the same Greek word.

Inmate jumps three stories

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An inmate trying to escape broke both legs when he leaped from the seventh-floor roof of the Bexar County jail to a secondary roof three floors below.

Authorities said Roberto Garcia, 29, joked with medical technicians about the doomed escape effort Monday morning as he lay injured on the secondary roof.

Garcia, convicted in connection with a 1981 shootout with a policeman, was removed from the roof after about an hour by a mechanical "cherry picker" and taken to a hospital.

When medical technicians asked Garcia whether he was trying to escape or to commit suicide, the inmate replied, "at this time, it looks like a little bit of both." Emergency Medical Service Lt. Joe Valadez said.

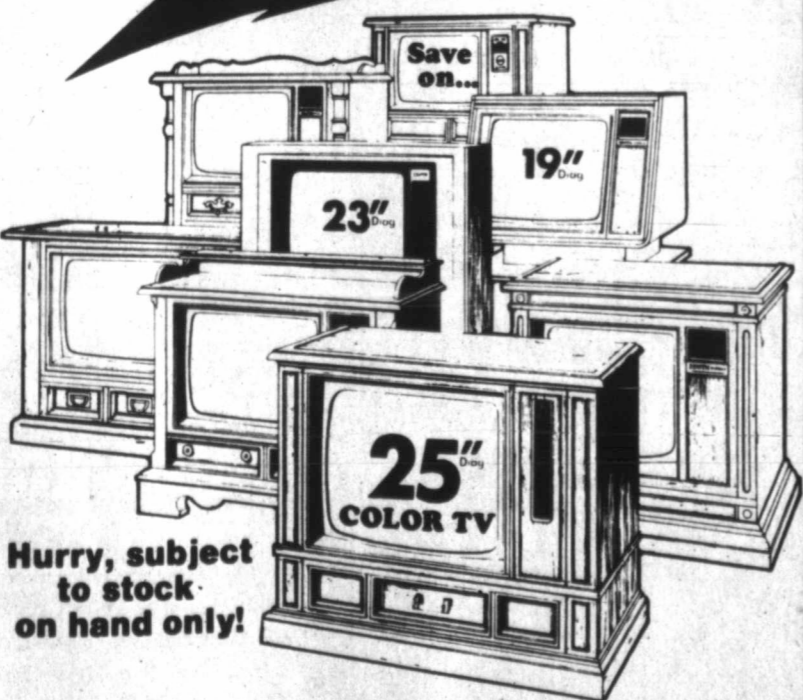

Sheriff Joe Neaves said it was the fourth time in recent weeks that prisoners have escaped or tried to escape from the overcrowded county jail, which is under court order to comply with jail standards.

Quietly furnished living spaces

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

There were no visible fireworks among the award winners at the recent Hexter Awards for interiors of the year.

As one of the judges remarked at the presentation, each of the winning entries was a livable space furnished quietly in the best materials the client could afford.

For the past 24 years, the awards, sponsored by S. M. Hexter Fabric Co., and chosen by a jury of designers and editors, have been offering a glimpse into the standards of taste being proffered by the decorating establishment.

Judging from this year's winners, the first part of the 1980s is shaping up as a time in which decorating is meant to solve the problems of space arrangement in an unobtrusive fashion.

Where once a designer might have preferred to be known as a trend setter breaking new ground, this year's winners said they were more concerned about carrying out their clients' wishes.

Hal Adams, a New Yorker whose apartment design took first place in the residential category, said an important test of an interior was its appropriateness.

It's rather like dressing, he observed. "If you've got on sneakers, then you'd better put on a pair of jeans. If you're wearing patent leather shoes, then black tie is correct."

Mark Epstein, also of New York, received first honorable mention for his refurbishment of a suburban tract house. Epstein said that as a rule every decorating job involves rethinking the space to fit the client's needs.

He has found that suburban homes built even only a few years ago are almost always too formal for today's style of living.

"Rooms that are cut up into small separate spaces, each behind its own door, don't work today," he said. As a result, he generally starts by knocking down walls to provide for a more fluid and open arrangement of space.

Along with greater informality, there is an attitude that concentrates more on personal comfort and less on show, he added. "Years ago, people started by decorating the living room. Today, they often start by creating a retreat in the master bedroom and bath."

For Milo Hoots Jr., a Washington designer who received second honorable mention for an apartment for a couple relocating from a larger house, the first step in any project is to help clients define their needs and sort out priorities.

By and large this means fitting many possessions and activities into fewer, smaller, less architecturally interesting rooms.

The three designers agreed that whether they hire design help or not, most Americans face similar situations in furnishing their homes.

Among typical problems is the need for more storage space, easier maintenance and better lighting.

Although the number of possessions and the amount of time spent at home have not diminished, the amount of living space available to most people has. As a result, more built-in or store-bought storage furniture and rooms furnished for multiple use are usually necessary.

The anonymous character of new homes also requires more decorative ornamentation to create an atmosphere of warmth and comfort, the three designers said.

Dear Abby

Patient recovers health but not possessions

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: An elderly man whose beloved wife was dying wrote to ask if he should undertake the dreaded chore of disposing of her things now while he had the strength, or wait until after she was gone. You advised him to do it now rather than put off the dreaded chore.

I know a darling 85-year-old woman who suffered a series of strokes three years ago. She was in a coma for months. Everyone "knew" she'd never leave the hospital alive. The family sold her house and disposed of all her clothing, furniture and even her art supplies. (She was an artist.)

Today my friend is walking carefully with a cane. She has a "self-maintenance" room in a rest home and she is painting better than ever. (She sells everything she paints.) I know because I go to teach her every week!

The loss of those irreplaceable things that were disposed of while she was in a coma is such a heartbreak to this dear lady. Why are we in such a rush? After all, what are a few short months when they may mean so much comfort to a dear person near the end of her life?

Written in kindness by . . .

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: You are right, of course. We should keep reminding ourselves that where there is life there is hope. Or, more appropriately, where there is hope there is life. Thank you for writing.

DEAR ABBY: Is it too late to enter my mother in your "baby derby"? She gave birth to seven children in a little less than seven years. The names and dates of birth are listed: Rudolph, born Oct. 10, 1947; Herbert, Aug. 30, 1948; Robert, July 27, 1949; Raymond, June 18, 1950; Gerald, July 21, 1951; Kenneth, July 6, 1952; Michael, Aug. 18, 1953.

This may not be a record for speed, but persistence in trying for a girl should count for something, right?

RUDOLPH J. MOCK, HANOVER PARK, ILL.

DEAR RUDOLPH: Right. Lucky you — you're the only one who never had to wear hand-me-downs.

DEAR ABBY: Your letters on stealing silverware hit close to home with me. I have a very dear friend (she's 72) with whom I eat out quite often. Almost every time we go somewhere to eat, this woman puts some silverware in her purse!

She knows I see her do it, but it doesn't seem to bother her. However, it embarrasses me. I'm so afraid that one of these days she will be caught and her reputation will be ruined.

Even though we've been friends for years, I'm considering dropping her. I don't need friends like her. Please advise.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Since she is a "very dear friend," do her a very friendly favor and tell her that her practice of stealing silverware is a source of great embarrassment and concern to you. Also, tell her that unless she discontinues it, she's seen the last of you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FIGHTING MAD": "Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; it is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry and enterprise.

"Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

On balance, none of them would prefer to return to a more gracious past. They and their clients find much in the present that gives richness to home life.

"People love gadgets," explained Epstein. His clients opt for whirlpools in the bathroom, living areas that are furnished with the latest in media equipment, and kitchens that are efficient, easy to care for and filled with labor-saving devices.

Unlike the past, however, when possessions were on display, today's prized objects are usually stored out of sight.

The softness that once was furnished by ornate architecture and the clutter of possessions now comes from artful use of colors, lighting and many different surface textures.

DEAR ABBY: When Jack and I became engaged seven months ago, I asked Jack's mother to please start making up a guest list because I had to know how many people to plan on. I am paying for the reception myself. My father is dead and my mother has all she can do to support the family.

After waiting for three months, I asked Jack's mother for her guest list and she said there was plenty of time. Finally I told her that I could afford to have no more than 150 at the reception, which meant 75 from her side and 75 from ours.

Well, the invitations are ready to be mailed, the wedding is eight weeks away and Jack's mother now informs me that she must invite 85 guests or a lot of people will never speak to her again.

What can I do? I hate to start my marriage off with bad feelings between Jack's mother and me, but all I can afford is 75 from her side. Also, we are short 10 wedding invitations and it's too late to order any more. Please help me.

BITING MY TONGUE

DEAR BITING: Tell your mother-in-law that if she needs 10 extra guests she will have to pay for them. And if you're short 10 wedding invitations and it's too late to re-order, 10 guests (on Jack's side) will have to settle for handwritten invitations or a telephone call.

Everybody needs friends. For some practical tips on how to be popular, get Abby's Popularity booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Floor tile is longer lasting

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I heard that there was a special kind of vinyl tile that never wears out and never shows marks of any kind, yet I have tried everywhere and nobody seems to have heard of it. They all say I don't ever have to worry about solid vinyl tile wearing out, but that nobody can guarantee that tile of any kind will never show marks, because anything can be damaged if certain things are dropped on it or dragged along it. Have you heard of such a tile? A friend of mine says he read it in a magazine about six months ago but doesn't remember which one.

A. — The answers you were given were reasonably accurate. Present-day resilient floor tile of all kinds is more resistant than years ago, both as to wear and marks. This is especially true of solid vinyl and even more especially if the vinyl is embossed or otherwise textured, thus helping to disguise marks.

Q. — We have a slate floor just inside the front door of our house. Can we give it a coat of polyurethane varnish?

A. — Yes.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others. Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness of pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals...call for in Depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Texas Mrs. chosen Mrs. America

NEW YORK (AP) — Rhonda McGeeny, the thrice-married Mrs. America 1982, said Wednesday that she hopes to inspire "women to be all they can be."
Mrs. McGeeny, 29, who married for the first time at age 18 and again at 22, was with her husband of three months, Pat McGeeny, 32, at a Manhattan news conference. She wore a black fur coat over a scarlet bathing suit.
"When you consider the statistics that one of every two marriages fail, divorce is a problem millions of women have faced or will face," said Mrs. McGeeny, a 29-year-old mother of two. "It is difficult for any man or woman. I hope to inspire women to know that when times seem darkest, one will grow and can determine one's own future."

Mrs. McGeeny, who owns a recruiting firm in Houston, was named Mrs. America in Las Vegas on Friday night, topping 449 other contestants. She said it was her first beauty contest.
"I think every young girl dreams of being Miss America," she said. "When I was young my mother told me, 'If you wash your face every night and take good care of yourself, you'll grow up to be Miss America.'"
Her husband, who is an account supervisor in Houston, said being married to Mrs. America is "fun."

Special effects on painted surfaces

Q.—I read somewhere about a "wet look" on painted walls but didn't pay too much attention to it. Now I would like to get that kind of look on the walls of a room I soon will paint. Do you know how this can be done?

A.—I am not sure I know what a "wet look" is, but it sounds very much like the glistening finish a sealer produces when used on paint. After you have painted the walls, wait about a week to allow the paint time to harden properly. Apply a clear sealer over the newly painted surfaces.

Q.—We have a varnished finish to remove any gloss, which would interfere with the adhesion of the paint.

A.—You can paint over the varnish. First, though, you must sand or steel wool the old child's room. Is it possible to paint over the varnish or does the old finish have to be removed?

A.—We have a varnished finish to remove any gloss, which would interfere with the adhesion of the paint.

Harvesters honored with spring sports banquet

Pampa High athletes involved in swimming, baseball, track, golf, tennis and cross country were honored with a spring sports banquet Monday night in M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Athletes and coaches in each sport received special recognition while Pampa High Athletic Director Bill Balcom presented the Most Valuable Participant awards.

Receiving MVP awards in each sport were Cindy Raymond, girls swimming; Clay Douglass, boys swimming; Randy Slaybaugh, boys track; Charles Wuest, baseball; Tricia Hawkins and Leslie Eddins (co-winners), girls tennis; Greg Trollinger, boys tennis; Dennis Mashburn, boys golf; Tracy Waters, girls golf and David Whitson, cross country. In an unusual, but appropriate gesture, girls' track coach Frank Belcher named his entire team as Most Valuable Participants.

"I feel that the whole team made contributions," Belcher said. "The team scored 45 more points than they did last year and there were 18 girls that scored points in varsity meets."

Two girls, Jessica Marcum and Kristi Hughes, advanced to the regional meet. Other team members were Leslie Albus, Susan Andrews, Tina Bunton, Joan Burns, Terri Busse, Sally Cain, Janet Campbell, Beth Case, Missy Crossman, Ashlie Darby, Dona Darby, Shelly Duenkel, Sheila Grays, Vicki Green, Tina Greenway, Rebekkah Guenther, Sandy Jones, Whitney Kidwell, Jami Kirkwood, Missi Laney, Nancy Martin, Rosalind Meadows, Patti Palmer, Teresa Perkins, Cynthia Powell, Cheri Rawls, Amy Raymond, Melissa Reed, Kerri Richardson, Gwen Simpson, Cindy Wagoner, Kim Wilson, Nita Whitehead and Leanna Young.

Special awards in tennis were presented to Mike

Spence, who had the best singles record (13-5) on the squad, and Andrea Elliott, voted the most improved player. Miss Elliott, a freshman, won the singles title in an Amarillo tournament this year.

In girls' swimming, Miss Raymond reached the state meet for the third consecutive year. A senior, she set seven school records.

In boys' swimming, Douglass won the 200 IM in the District 3-5A meet and placed second in the 500 freestyle to advance to the regional meet. Douglass participated in the World Games for the Deaf this past summer in Germany. Other regional qualifiers in swimming were Shawn Smith, Cody Moore, Julie Rabel, Brianna Marsh, Julie Turner, David Fatheree, Amy Raymond and R.F. Hupp.

In boys' track, Slaybaugh advanced to the regionals after winning the discus and shot put at the district meet. He was a state qualifier a year ago.

Brad Mink, Chamber of Commerce assistant manager and KGRO sports announcer, was master of ceremonies.

Harvester Booster Club sponsored the banquet.

Celtics try to avoid elimination

BOSTON (AP) — It all hit so quickly that the Boston Celtics had little time to recover.

In the first minute of Saturday's 99-97 loss to the Philadelphia 76ers, Boston's top playmaker, Nate "Tiny" Archibald, dislocated his left shoulder and was replaced by Gerald Henderson.

With Henderson starting the next afternoon, the 76ers rolled to a 119-94 triumph to grab a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference playoff final.

"We haven't had time to adjust to what they're doing," said Henderson, who is expected to start when the series returns here Wednesday night as the Celtics try to avoid elimination. "In 24 hours, you can't look at the film. You can't do anything to make adjustments."

In the last games of the season and the five (playoff) games we had against Washington. Tiny was in there and the team gets used to his playmaking, his certain thing, and you just don't adjust like that.

"We're not cohesive on offense at all, two guys doing one thing, three guys doing another," said Henderson, who doesn't penetrate as much as Archibald. "The two days off should help."

Boston was 9-1 in the 10 games Henderson started in late February and early March when Archibald didn't suit up because of an injury. But the competition in those regular-season games wasn't as stiff as the 76ers present in the playoffs, said Boston forward Cedric Maxwell.

He said the team was in a cautious mood Monday as its drive to become the first team to repeat as NBA champions since the 1967-68 and 1968-69 Celtics was in serious jeopardy after three consecutive setbacks.

"We have confidence but still we're pessimists because we have a major injury," Maxwell said. "The more and more we think about things, the more confident we'll become about playing this game Wednesday."

The 76ers have the confidence that comes with a 3-1 lead but are aware that the same advantage last year didn't keep the Celtics from beating them 4-3 in the Eastern Conference final.

"The only thing I learned from last year is that I would rather be up 3-1. We have beaten them three in a row, and they have the ability to beat us three in a row," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham.

This year, Boston will mount its comeback attempt without Archibald, who is out for the series, and with Maxwell hobbled by a swollen right knee and center Robert Parish slowed by a foot problem.

The series winner plays the rested Los Angeles Lakers in the best-of-seven title round. Los Angeles completed its sweep of San Antonio Saturday night.
