Dawson Co. Fair Enjoys Successful 3-Day Run

High Quality Shown In Division Place Winners

Despite rain and uncomfortably low temperatures last week, the Dawson County Fair was well attended and furnished entertainment for thousands of local residents.

Though initial expenses have been heavy, Fair Association authorities feel sure that when all details have been attended to, revenues of the first annual Dawson County Fair will have been sufficient to defray current costs, stated J. L. Matthews, secretary-treasurer, this week.

Exhibits, which were assembled in less than thirty days time by many communities, received favorable comments from visitors, and were shown to advantage in the recently completed exhibit building, first permanent building erected by the association.

Among the county exhibits, first went to Lou Community, second to McCarty and third to Wilson. Others in the order of awards were Ballard, Klondike, Midway, Key, Lamesa and Weaver.

TORNADOES KEEP RECORD CLEAR WITH 19-13 WIN

The Ralls Jackrabbits blew into town last Friday night and almost blew the Lamesa High School Tornadoes out of the District 5-B conference race before the Tornadoes woke up to the fact and managed to score enough points to prevent this. The final score was Lamesa 19 Ralls 13.

For the first time this year the Tornado goal line was crossed and for the first time this season the Tornadoes were behind in a game when the Jackrabbits scored the first touchdown of the game.

On the opening kickoff the Tornadoes carried the ball deep into the Ralls territory losing the ball on the 11-yard line on downs. After Ralls had punted out, the Tornadoes again carried the ball into Ralls territory losing the ball this time on the 22-yard line. In the opening minutes of the second quarter a long pass from Land, Ralls back to Reed, rangy Ralls end, gained 25 yards, and another completion by the same duo carried the ball across the goal line for the first points of the game. The try for extra point was good and Ralls was leading 7 to 0.

However, the Tornadoes seemed to wake up for on the next kick-off they held the Ralls boys and on an attempted punt the Lamesa line broke through and blocked the punt which was recovered by Lamesa on the Ralls 15-yard line. On the first play after this, blocked-punt, Melton Jones, Lamesa half-back went around left end to score standing up. Steele made good the extra point. Again after the next kickoff as Ralls attempted to punt the Lamesa line broke up the play a Lamesa player recovering on the Ralls 13-yard line. And again Jones went around left end to score on the first play. Try for point was good.

The Ralls boys took things in hand at the opening of the third quarter, when Land broke through left tackle and raced 55 yards before being hauled down on the Lamesa 20-yard line. On the next play Land again broke loose, carrying the ball to the Lamesa 1-yard line. However, Lamesa held and a fourth down pass was incomplete. After Lamesa had kicked out to the 50-yard line on the first play, Ralls came back and on their first try a long pass from Land to Reed was again completed and Reed went over without being touched to tie the score again. Try for point was good.

The fourth quarter resolved itself into a passing duel with Lamesa for the first time breaking up the Ralls passing attack, intercepting several and knocking down several. It was one of these intercepted passes that paved the way for the Lamesa victory when Hill, Lamesa quarterback intercepted a Ralls pass on the 50-yard stripe and brought it back to the 30. Again Jones was given the ball on the first play and again Jones went around left end and on one of the prettiest runs of the day scored the six points to give Lamesa the lead and the game. The kick for extra point failed.

Late in the quarter Jones again brought the crowd to its feet when he intercepted a pass on the 50-yard line and dodged and stiff-armed his way back to the Ralls 15. However, the Ralls line stiffened and a fourth-down pass was incomplete across the goal line. Hill intercepted a Ralls pass just as the game ended.

The game was interesting throughout with the small crowd of fans kept on the edge of their seats at all times for fear that Lamesa would lose. The entire Tornado team showed up well on occasions, and again seemed to be loafing and taking things easy at other times, scoring when they needed to, it seemed and content to let the Ralls boys do their best.

Game statistics showed that Lamesa made 10 first downs, while Ralls made only 5, gaining a total of 235 yards to 150. Lamesa attempted 3 passes with no completions, while Ralls attempted 14 completing 6 of them for 111 yards, with Lamesa intercepting 5 of them. Ralls intercepted one of the three Lamesa attempts. Ralls punted 9 times for an average of 25 1-2 yards, with two punts being blocked, while Lamesa punted 8 times for an average of 32 yards.

Pictures of Tiny Tots Requested By The Courier

Beginning the first week in November, the Dawson County Courier will publish each week a picture of a member of the Tiny Tot set in Lamesa and vicinity. Pictures of children up to six years of age, inclusive, will be used.

All parents who have a child within this age group are cordially invited to bring a picture to the Courier office. These pictures will be published without charge.

Should the parents not have a picture which they want to use, they may obtain a free sitting at the Rogers Studio on North Austin Street, by calling at The Courier office and getting an order from us. Through an arrangement with Mr. Rogers we shall obtain a print for the newspaper, and if the parent desires to get additional reprints, he can do so by making arrangements with the photographer.

We are asking that these pictures be brought in personally and not sent in through the mail. The pictures must be of single subjects as group sittings cannot be reproduced satisfactorily.

The Dawson County Courier would like to publish the picture of every child in the county, and we shall endeavor to publish as many pictures as we possibly can through the months to come. Every child in town and county up to six years of age is eligible for our Tiny Tot column.

If you would like to have further information, call the Courier office, Phone 162-M.

APPLICATIONS FOR LOANS MAY BE MADE NOW

Applications are now being received by the Farm Security Administration for rural rehabilitation loans for the next crop year, according to S. P. Collins, county supervisor in charge of the Rural Rehabilitation supervised loan program in Dawson, Borden, Gaines and Andrews counties. He made the announcement early this week from his office in the court house here.

Mr. Collins stated that a considerable part of the work of his office consists in assisting Rehabilitation farmers to make out practical Farm and Home Management plans and in advising them in their farming and home operations. "In order that attention may be given to that important phase of the work next spring we are doing what we can to spread the lending activity over a longer period. Farmers thought to be qualified for these loans should therefore be advised to make their applications early this fall," the supervisor said.

"These loans are limited within the bounds of allotted funds to financially distressed farm families—whether on their own land or as tenants or rented land—and who are unable to secure proper credit from other sources to make a crop or to purchase needed livestock and equipment.

"Eligibles must be willing and able to work and show ability to profit from instruction and guidance, added Mr. Collins. There must be land, already available or obtainable, of sufficient fertility to promise a satisfactory return on human labor intelligently applied, and there must be a reasonable probability that a successful farm and home management plan can be worked out for the farm.

"In working out these plans special emphasis is placed on the production of sufficient food and feed crops for all the people and livestock located on the farm, thereby eliminating the necessity of producing larger amounts of cash crops, the returns from which would have to be used for the purchase of feed and foodstuffs that should be produced on the farm. Thus cash crops are limited to an amount necessary to pay off the loan and meet other cash needs of the family.

"The time given for payment of these loans is an important factor in getting distressed families back onto their feet," Mr. Collins said. "Many things which the farmer has to buy such as livestock, farm equipment, line and other self improvement items do not bring their full return the first year and the longer credit period makes it unnecessary for the farmer to sacrifice needed food and seed crops to repay his loan, as would be the case if loans were made for but one year. Where the borrower is a tenant, the term and provisions of his lease are, of course, important factors, particularly as regards the loans for soil improvement item."

Registrations of new automobiles in Texas during September increased moderately over the like month last year, but declined sharply from the preceding month, according to the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas.

Tornadoes To Journey To Levelland For Game This Week

The Lamesa High School Golden Tornadoes go to Levelland this week in one of District 5-B's most important contests. The game is scheduled to start on the new Levelland field at 7:30 p. m. Friday night, October 22.

Neither Levelland nor Lamesa has been defeated this season in conference play, with Levelland being the winner in four games and Lamesa in three. The meeting of undefeated teams is always an attraction and Lamesa is expecting one of their hardest games of the year.

The Levelland team is composed of a heavy, hard-hitting line and a fast and shifty backfield. They had men present last Friday night to scout the Lamesa team in action and are preparing to hand the Tornadoes a real battle. The Tornadoes came out of Friday's game in good shape with no injuries reported, and the meeting of these two teams is expected to result in one of the best high school football games of the year in this section.

It is expected that a large group of Lamesa fans will accompany the team to Levelland, and the high school is making plans to carry the band and pep squad over to lend the Tornadoes encouragement.

MAYOR REQUESTS OBSERVANCE OF TRAFFIC LAWS

Traffic conditions in Lamesa are becoming increasingly serious, warns Mayor W. L. Marr, who asks for the cooperation of local citizens in observing all traffic regulations.

"The thousands of cotton pickers, and the additional trucks and automobiles on our streets congest traffic and greatly increase traffic hazards," said Mr. Marr this week.

"Although the traffic lights are working effectively in controlling the motor traffic, many of the pedestrians seem to think that the lights are for the cars only and refuse to observe the signals."

"The lights are for the protection of all alike and must be observed by everybody," he stressed. "No person is in such a hurry that he cannot wait for a green signal before he crosses the street. Motorists should remember that when they are turning to the right on a red light the pedestrian passing across the street on a green light has the right-of-way and automobiles should stop before turning."

"When autos turn on a green light pedestrians have the right-of-way and drivers should stop and carefully pick their way through the line of pedestrian traffic."

The City has employed three new policemen to be on duty on crowded days and city officials are requesting that everybody cooperate in solving Lamesa's traffic problem.

SCOUT'S ANNUAL DRIVE PRODUCES GOOD RESULTS

Lamesa went over the top in the annual sustaining membership drive of the South Plains Boy Scout Council, announced Earl M. McClure, Scout executive, this week. An intensive campaign was conducted Wednesday among the business houses of the city with gratifying results, stated local Scout officials.

A Baldwin was in charge of the local drive. Working with him were Joe Speck and Leslie Pratt, local Scoutmasters; J. D. Dyer, and W. K. Crawley, together with twelve other men in Lamesa. A meeting was held early Wednesday in the courthouse at which membership cards were distributed and instructions issued to the membership soliciting crew.

Similar drives are being held in Floydada, Slaton, Post, O'Donnell, Lockney, Hale Center, Plainview and Tulia.

Membership in the South Plains Sustaining club is one dollar each month. This money goes into the operating fund to provide a program of Scouting activities for the boys of the council. The purpose of a membership drive in each town is to provide for their particular part in the council budget for the year.

$500 For Arrest Of Criminal

A reward of $500 will be offered by the State of Texas for the arrest and conviction of the unknown person or persons who murdered W. F. Peacock of the Grandview community, Nov. 7, 1936, announced Gov. Allred in a proclamation this week.

Local citizens have raised a fund of $330 to be used for the same purpose and every effort is being made to apprehend the perpetrator of the crime.

GINNS SPEED UP TO HANDLE BIG COTTON YIELD

Gins in Dawson county were running full blast this week as the cotton harvest went into full swing, and have managed to date an estimated total of 30,000 bales in the entire county. A total of 14,295 bales have been ginned at Lamesa.

Estimates for this year's cotton crop have ranged from 60,000 to as high as 100,000 bales for the county. Last year's total production in Dawson county was 46,802 bales.

A government census from the Department of Commerce shows that 10,064 bales of cotton were ginned in Dawson county from the 1937 crop prior to Oct. 1, as compared with 618 bales prior to Oct. 1, in 1936.

OLD AGE GRANTS MAY BE STOPPED IN NOVEMBER

Discontinuance of old age assistance after October 31 or a prororation resulting in a sharp reduction in grants, was forecast this week by the Texas Board of Control in an official communication addressed to State Representative Harry N. Graves.

The official statement indicated the possibility that payments to the needy aged might not be made in November, December, January and, probably, in February. Cause of the crisis, as explained by the members of the board control, which is the Old Age Assistance Commission, is that all, or nearly all, of the present available state assistance funds will have to be used to take care of $1,627,000 owed a Dallas bank and due not later than January 1.

Further, it was pointed out, the income from present state sources is $100,000 less each month than Texas funds paid to the needy aged, which necessitates a drastic reduction in the size of the average grant. Grants average $14 per month.

Few Copies Of Fair Edition Still Available

The Dawson County Courier still has on hand a few copies of the 56-page Historical-Fair Edition, published last week. Bound copies may be had for 50c and plain copies, 10c. Hundreds of copies have already been sold and The Courier is placing only a comparatively few additional copies on sale for those who wish to keep a permanent record or to send it to friends and relatives in distant parts of the country.

The demand for the edition has been much greater than anticipated, and those who should like to have additional copies are urged to call for them as soon as possible.

Resurrection River

By William Byron Mowery

Their route, narrow-straight toward the Bay, led across a monotonous succession of stony watersheds and timbered valleys. Up one treeless granite strewn hill; a pause on the crest for a glance back; down the opposite slope into the first straggly trees; on down into the valley timber, and up the next granite slope—with little variation that was the story of their trek.

Near eight o'clock Craig paused on a high bare ridge and glanced back across the watersheds, searching the route they had come. With a shock he saw five distant man-figures whip over a rocky crest, swinging down the western slope and vanish in the timber. The Chiwaughimis! Following the trail less than five miles away, they were with the ferocity of lean March wolves traveling almost twice as swiftly as he and his two faltering partners. "We've got to keep ahead, got to lay down fast tracks," he said. He encouraged Poleon and Sam: "We've peeled off eleven miles already. A fourth of the way to the Bay. Every mile is a mile for us. If we can keep out of rifle range till late this afternoon we can make a running fight of it, string out our five shells to the limit, spin out the fight till dusk, and then give 'em the slip. But we don't dare let 'em close in now."

He took Sam's arm and hurried down the slope. He knew that the Chiwaughimis would close in, that a death fight was drawing nearer and nearer; but in him was that bulldog quality which kept him battling away where lesser men would have waited; and so he fought stubbornly for the miles. Each mile was precious. Each mile brought him closer to the Bay and life territory where by lucky chance they might run across prospectors or Indians and secure weapons.

To stop and try an ambush was suicide, with their five cartridges. A dynamite mine on the back trail was impossible, for they had no way of timing the explosion as the Chiwaughimis passed. There was nothing to do but struggle on and on, till the metis caught up and started the rifle talk. When that happened—well, cross that river when they came to it.

He and Poleon, by themselves, could have kept ahead of the Chiwaughimis, at least for several hours longer; but Sam held them back. By nine o'clock Sam's eyes had swollen shut; he was totally blinded; he had to be led every step of the way.

Steadily and swiftly the metis whittled down the lead. When Craig had first sighted them they were seven ridges behind. In an hour they were but five. By ten o'clock only three.

The evidently saw that Sam was snow-blinded, and guessed that the party had only one rifle. Cesar's missing gun; for they came whipping over the ridge without pausing to scout out possible ambushes.

One of them, swifter or more daring than the others, had drawn away from the pack and was half a mile out in front. Craig thought at first that this metis was intending to circle around, head them off and hold them till the others caught up. But the man showed no signs of that. Instead of swinging to one side, he kept straight on the trail. Outstripping the other half-breeds, he drew closer and closer till he was within long rifle range.

Whirling on a hilltop for a glance at this lone pursuer, Craig saw him, only two ridges behind, and recognized him by the bright-colored centurion's headdress that he wore. The man was Cesar, Chiwaughimi.

"We got to stop and peek him off, Craig," Poleon panted, as they hurried down the boulder slope and into the trees. "No not here. We'll peek him off, but not here," Craig answered, leading the way across an icy torrent in the little valley. "We've got to make it up this slope and over the top. Then, while you hurry on with Sam, I'll stop just over the ridgeline, and wait for him to come whooping across. He'll run headlong into my ambush, that way; and I'll only get him but his rifle and cartridges too."

The hill was steep and toilsome. Fairly pulling Sam along, Craig smashed through the buckbrush, reached the belt of scraggly timber, climbed through it to the bare slope above, and raced for the rocky crest.

The had come within 20 yards of it, when—kr-i-ling!—a sharp-speaking rifle cracked, across the valley. A bullet zinged over their heads, glanced off a granite rock and sang its ricochet song out through the air.

"Get on over the ridge!" Craig yelled at Poleon, who whirled to look at the Chiwaughimi. "Sam come on—faster!"

Kr-i-ling-ling—the savage sent a stream of steel-jackets across at them. A bullet hit the stock of Craig's gun and knocked the weapon out of his hand. He grabbed the rifle up again and guided Sam over a stretch of slippery ice-hard snow. A second bullet burned through his pocket sleeve and seared along his forearm—a red-hot flash of pain. He swung Sam around a boulder that barred their way. Only Poleon was already there. Kr-i-ling-ling! Sam stumbled and fell, tearing loose Craig's grasp. Craig bent and seized his arm. "Sam! Scramble up! It's only a jump—"

He broke off. Sam did not get up or answer. His arm was limp, his whole body had gone limp. He rolled over, blood trickling from his mouth; and lay still.

In horror Craig gazed down at him and saw that he had been shot through the head and instantly killed.

—that he's gone? You leave here; you hurry on. I'm going to whip across and get that Chiwaughimi's gun and shells."

"You can do it. Dose utters are too close."

"I've got to! Where are those others?"

"Dey're coming op dat east slope now! I saw 'em—from on top dis ridge, while you was helping Sam. You can't ever make it."

Craig groaned at the evil luck. Except for that one fatal bullet which struck Sam down, they would have waylaid Cesar Chiwaughimi, secured the breed's rifle and precious cartridges.

Poleon stooped, picked up Craig's empty shells from the snow, and silently held them in his palm, for Craig to see.

"I shot five times!" Craig jerked out. "I didn't know, didn't realize—"

The rifle slipped from his hands to the ground. He let it lie. It was useless. He had shot all their cartridges.

"It's aw-right, Craig," Poleon said. "You had to keel de man dat keeled Sam."

After a few moments the two of them turned away from the body of their dead partner, and went on. They had no weapon or defense now, but they were thinking less about their own hopeless plight than about Sam, lying back there, stark and lifeless.

The Chiwaughimis finally trapped them, late that afternoon, in a little timbered valley 12 miles from the Bay. With the Chiwaughimis only 700 yards behind and occasionally dropping a splatter of bullets around them, they had plunged down into the valley, waded breast deep across its rushing torrent, and started up the slope opposite. Before they were out of the timber, the four Chiwaughimis came whipping over the ridge, and ran part way down the west slope. Glancing back, Craig saw them halt, there on the hillside, and wait, with their rifles at ready.

He looked up at the slope ahead of him and Poleon. Steep and bare, it was a suicidal gambit, with those four deadly rifles less than 30 yards distant. The Chiwaughimis were only hoping that Poleon and he would venture into the open and try to climb that slope.

In desperation he swung down valley with Poleon in order to keep to the timber, which gave them at least a scant protection from those pitiless rifles.

In that move too he was speedily headed off. One of the metis left the other three and started south along the open slope. Craig thought that he recognized the man as Lupe, but he could not be sure of this, for his own eyes were stinging and watering after 15 hours of that blinding white glare.

The half-breed easily passed them up and ran on south to a place where the belt of timber was broken and the valley was bare. There he crouched down and waited, squarely blocking their path.

Like a trapped creature Craig stopped and looked around him for a way of escape. There was no way. He was cornered, he and the now blinded Poleon, in that drogue of black spruce.

himself was closing in from the south. He was less than 50 yards away now. With half a dozen spruce twigs Craig made a little framework to hold the dynamite on the end of his crude crazy catapult. He laid on it not one stick but five. The catapult would scatter them badly, but at least one of the five sticks should land where he wanted it to go.

Kr-i-ling!—a bullet from Lupe's rifle came zipping into the tangle. Craig paid no attention. Lighting a match, he held it to the fuses, waited a second; then drew his knife across the taut babiche cord.

The sapling snapped up with a swish; the sticks went hurtling out through the air. One of them, the first he had lit, exploded halfway to the thicket, tearing the top out of a squatty balsam. Another flew off to one side, struck a tree bole squarely, knocked off the mercury cap, and fell without exploding. Another went spinning clear over the thicket, 30 yards beyond it. The other two fell into the thicket itself.

Craig waited, sickening moment, afraid that the caps had been knocked off. But then came a terrific bellowing roar. The explosion the thicket to bolt, flung the taller trees with the blast, flung a cloud of snow and water and torn deerbrush higher than the tallest pines.

Forgetting all danger from Lupe, Craig rose up and peered at the place where the thicket had been. He saw no stir of life there; heard nothing but the dripping of debris from the pine branches.

A bullet from Lupe's rifle caught him in the left shoulder and knocked him back again a rock. He struggled up. Twenty-five yards away Lupe was crouched behind a windfall log, pumping a fresh clip into his gun.

Reeling and groggy, with the woods heaving in front of his eyes, Craig struck another match; lit the fuse of another stick; waited—waited—then took a step forward, and flung the stick at the windfall.

Lupe jumped up as the stick hit in the snow just behind him. Unable to get away from that deadly thing in time, he grabbed it up to fling it back at Craig. But he was too late, a split-second too late. Craig had timed his throw too well. As Lupe's arm arched back, the dynamite exploded—in his hand.

There was a puff of dirty-white smoke, a leap of reddish flame, a blast that hurled snow and spume into the tangle where Craig stood. When the smoke and debris cleared away and he looked, he saw a tatter of cloth dangling from a pine branch, and a

"THE REST OF THE RECORD"

By James V. Allred

The last week of the special session has rolled around and throughout the State there are sightless eyes, withered hands, and helpless baby arms raised in supplication to the Legislature of Texas. There are others going about the daily classroom duties of educating the youth of the State, bending under the weight of years, and wondering if a retirement system will be set up for the teachers.

These are the ones who have watched the legislative session from a distance. Unable to come to Austin, some unable to vote, they have waited patiently for the Legislature to do its duty and raise revenues for old age assistance, aid to the needy blind, dependent children, and for the teachers' retirement fund.

There has been another group stalking the corridors every day since the session began, crowding the legislative galleries, and intently watching the efforts to raise revenues by taxing the pipe line companies, the oil, sulphur, and other natural resource groups.

It has been the largest, most powerful lobby Texas has ever witnessed in Austin. It is confidently and complacently awaiting the verdict of "no taxes."

Meanwhile the destiny of our unfortunate people lies in the hands of the Legislature.

The people have been told that I want to lay heavy taxes upon all the people. That is not true. A "hullabaloo" against this session has been raised and the cry swelled in volume that we must not levy taxes for the social security program voted by the people. When did this "hullabaloo" first arise? I'll tell you when it was!

After the Legislature voted these appropriations and went home last June, every one knew then that we were going to have another session in November to raise the money to pay the bill. But when I announced six or seven weeks ago that I was going to recommend taxes on the big pipe line companies, and others who have been growing pompous and prosperous by draining our natural resources—then the hue and cry started.

When I said that I had recommended these same taxes before, that the program had been scuttled and that I was going to find out at this special session who was running Texas—that is, when the selfish interests, through their mouthpieces, started a campaign of propaganda.

The tried to make real estate owners believe that the people's program would raise their taxes; but they overlooked the fact that I had heaped lower these property taxes to the lowest point in over twenty years. They announced a great expayers' march on Austin. 68 marchers finally rallied into Austin Cadillacs and limousines, headed by a man whose chamber of commerce organization receives two thousand dollars a year contribution from the sulphur company alone.

This attitude of these people may well be judged by the leader they have chosen in the Senate against taxes for the needy. He is the same man who last year voted for a sales tax upon the poor; and then, when an income tax on the earnings of the rich was proposed, walked the floor and ranted that it would ruin Texas.

I'm not the only chief executive criticized for calling special sessions. When a few days ago President Roosevelt called a special session of Congress to help the farmers, he said: "I know that many enemies of democracy will say that it is bad business, bad for the tranquility of the country, to have a special session."

I'm glad the President has called Congress to try to do something for the farmers of the nation; and I have no apologies for calling this special session to help our own people.

I say that when we have placed a new tax upon our natural resources 75 per cent of which goes outside the State, when we have passed an income tax levied upon the earnings of twenty pipe line companies who made over seventy-eight million dollars net profit in one year when we have done these things, there will be time to talk about sales tax.

I didn't have to call this special session except for my conscience. I could have ridden the case route, and that these special sessions would have called me crazy. But I've gone about the State, and I've seen misery and woe.

I've done my part. I've called this Legislature in special session and made my recommendations. For these things I shall continue to fight. But the destiny of our unfortunate people lies in the hands of the Legislature.

Former Lamesan To Take Screen Test In Dallas

Dawson Bridgeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bridgeman of Lamesa, is being considered by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talent scouts as possible moving picture material.

Mr. Bridgeman, whose picture appeared in the Saturday Dallas News, has entered application and will participate in screen tests on the stage of the Majestic Theatre in Dallas soon. The MGM studios are spending $25,000 in Texas to discover new talent. Seventy-five tests are to be made in Texas and twenty in Dallas.

Mr. Bridgeman spent several years in Lamesa and is well known here. He left last February to accept a position with the Emergency Crop Loan office in Dallas.

AMPLE COTTON STORAGE SPACE NOW AVAILABLE

Ample storage space is now available for all cotton on which the government is making loans, announced D. C. Price of Lubbock Tuesday, speaking in the interest of the Lamesa Commission.

"Farmers over the area have become fearful that lack of storage space might delay or prevent altogether, their getting government loans on their cotton," stated Mr. Price. "We wish to assure them that no shortage of space will delay consideration of any application, or prevent a loan being made on cotton."

The cotton is being rapidly shipped out of this area to warehouses at Galveston and Houston, he stated, thus relieving congestion at local points. Arrangements are being made whereby the government will have ample space to store all cotton taken under contract.

JUDGE YATES SPOKE TO CIVIC CLUB TUESDAY

County Judge W. M. Yates discussed the need of better control over juvenile delinquency in Lamesa at the regular meeting of the Luncheon club Tuesday.

Judge Yates recounted some of his experiences in dealing with such cases and expressed the belief that if every citizen could be brought face to face with these problems as the county officials are, a definite program would be initiated to reach and provide opportunities for the under-privileged.

V. Z. Rogers responded to Judge Yates' talk by telling of the interest educational experts and federal and state governments were taking in the matter of training the child when he was young, rather than trying to control and punish him after he had reached the age of delinquency.

Mr. Rogers reminded the members of the recreational program which is now being conducted in Lamesa and asked for the full support of the club members in seeing that this project is given a fair chance to prove its worth.

Bill Boyd of the Lamesa Auto Co., who has recently moved here from Lubbock, recounted the success of a similar program in Lubbock last summer and admonished the members here to support it. W. P. Witt, program coordinator here, was in charge of the Lubbock program last summer.

Bill Boyd was appointed chairman of next week's program.

Social Security Board Prepares Income Table

Amounts of monthly benefit payments to workers retiring at the age of 65 under the Federal Old-Age Insurance program are contained in a table prepared for distribution to the workers by David S. Pruitt, manager of the El Paso office of the Social Security Board, with offices in the First National Bank building at El Paso.

Data included in the pamphlet were compiled in response to numerous requests for this type of information. Pruitt said, although the Board will not begin to make monthly benefit payments until 1942.

The table shows the amounts workers will receive each month upon retirement at the age 65 for annual earnings ranging from $520 to $3,000 for work periods of 10, 20, and 30 years.

Dawson County H. D. Women Report on State Meeting

One of the greatest conventions ever held by the Texas Home Demonstration Association ended last week in San Antonio. It was the first time the organization had ever met apart from the Farmers' Short Course, at College Station.

Some five hundred delegates from all parts of the state, representing membership of fifty thousand farm and ranch women of Texas were present. It is said that this organization in Texas is the largest women's organization of its kind in America.

The entire delegation was housed in the Gunter Hotel, and all convention meetings were held in the Crystal Ballroom. The group was greeted and welcomed by Judge Schweppe, County Judge of Bexar County, and the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of San Antonio. The response was given by Mrs. J. L. Morris of Lamesa.

On Tuesday a beautiful reception was given in the Crystal Ballroom by the ladies of San Antonio and a banquet by the Association on Wednesday night, at which time, Dr. R. M. Montgomery, professor of economics at the State University was the principal speaker. Mrs. Maggie W. Barry, advisor in rural organization appeared on the program a number of times. She is an eloquent and forceful speaker, and one of the greatest executives in our state.

Mrs. Barry complimented the women on their growth, she stated, "that a few years ago every woman was taking down recipes, now they were taking notes from Whitehead." She gave the following quotations from him: "Culture is activity of thought, responsiveness to beauty and humane feeling. Often the most cultured person in a community is a woman of limited school education, who has traveled and known people. Her mind is not cluttered up with inert academic knowledge."

Mrs. J. B. Speck, Mrs. E. A. Twedt and Mrs. G. F. Thorpe, were the voting delegates from Dawson county. Each one gives the thing the most remarkable about the convention as it appeared to her.

Mrs. Twedt said, "the contact with the band of five hundred rural women, all working in a similar way made me feel that there is a new start for better homes, more organized communities and higher living. I was inspired to adapt the motto, "Where there is work, there we are."

Mrs. G. F. Thorpe said, "a community means people of common unity when we work or play together we can promote anything of common good. The organization as a whole depends on the individual in each club. This association forms a big part of the adult education movement, this doesn't begin with the study of books, but with doing something with the hands, which leads to study of books and bigger things. Too long we have considered the college as the only seat of education. Every place where there is human activity is a seat of education."

Mrs. J. B. Speck said, "I think the one thing of greatest importance concerning our convention was the fact that women from the north, east, south and west were meeting for the common purpose of making rural homes better. The enthusiasm shown by the women of all sections of this great state of ours, the cooperation and the spirit of love and helpfulness, was remarkable."

best people you can find anywhere, and of course, we have many fine features and characteristics but it is the true whether we want to admit it or not, that we do not keep our town as clean as it should be, and as a result many complaints are heard from visitors and residents alike. There is no justification to our allowing our town to become littered up with waste, which is a menace to health, an expense to the public and a fire hazard to the town. We can easily have the cleanest town on the Plains with a little effort and cooperation on the part of each citizen. May we all get in behind this move. Make Lamesa a clean town!

Robert Wade attended the football game between Texas Tech and Arizona University Saturday in Lubbock.

Miss Ann Allen of Tahoka spent the weekend here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie Allen. Miss Allen has recently accepted a position in the First National Bank of Tahoka.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The greatest single safeguard for the church and the State is a Christian home. The home is a fountain from which flow out the lives which make or break society. It does not have its own way, for it is set down in the midst of many other influences, some of which oppose it, others of which reinforce it.

A home has to be made Christian first, but after that it has to be maintained on a Christian basis. Some home-makers find the first step the harder; with most, it is the long process of keeping on that is the most taxing. The Christian elements can be put into a home circle by a few acts of will; they can be kept there only by a steady determination.

Christian Home Sunday will be observed in a special service at the 11 o'clock hour next Sunday morning. Every family of the congregation is urged to attend, and to sit together as families.

Evening service at 7:30.
DAVID J. MURRAY, Pastor.
